

Court Asks Bids On Park and Jail

Phase I Work On Allen Park Is Advertised

This Town...That World

WELCOME TO THE FLOYD COUNTY FAIR!

NOT ALL IS BRIGHT

Watt Hale made a too-brief visit with us this week, and, although gravely ill a few months ago, is now quite chipper, if that is the word I want. Yet, when he began reflecting on conditions round and about, there was a sort of subdued air about him.

Said he had an idea for a time that he had solved matters pretty well in his corner of the woods by keeping out of the poke warden business last spring and simply declaring everything open range—first come, every woman for herself, and so on. But, now . . . now, he sadly remarks, he detects a bit of glowering, here and there, and he fears that if the poke crop next spring isn't what it should be the open range may become the scene of open warfare.

SO APTLY NAMED

The Floyd fiscal court moved Monday toward the first work in the development of the Floyd County Park, near Allen, with the advertising for contractors' bids.

This first work, Phase I of the park development, will include site work on 18 acres, including grade, drain, paving, fencing, lighting and laying of water lines. Bids will be opened at 1:30 p.m. Oct. 11.

At the same meeting the court rejected two bids offered on construction of a mini-park at Minnie as too high. The lowest bid, submitted by Big Wheel, Inc., asked $128,850 for the work. The second bid, offered by Sinco, Inc., asked $140,224.

The project is expected to be re-advertised.

The court also authorized advertising for bids on repair of the county jail to stop leakage of water into offices on the two lower floors of the building. The jail bids will be opened Oct. 22.

The jail work will involve new floor

Firm Sues Hospital, Others for $230,000

Alleging that their contract giving them sole responsibility of providing anesthetic services at Highlands Regional Medical Center has been breached, William White and Associates, P.S.C., last week filed suit in circuit court here, asking of the hospital and others a total of $230,000.

In addition to the Medical Center, Dr. Ernest Holbrook, Betty Popp, Daniel A. Graham and Robert C. Phelps were named defendants.

The suit alleges:
1. On July 1, 1974 plaintiff and the Medical Center entered into a contract providing that White and Associates were to be the exclusive providers of anesthetic services at the hospital, their remuneration to be 88 per cent of gross receipts for such services. The three-year contract could be cancelled by 90-day notice, with payment to plaintiffs to be 50 per cent of the gross receipts. On April 17, 1976 the contract was breached when the hospital permitted persons other than employees of the plaintiff to render anesthetic services in the hospital.

Because the annual gross was alleged to be $120,000, 50 per cent, or $60,000, was asked of the Medical Center.

2. On or about July 1, 1974 White and Associates contracted with Betty Popp to serve as anesthetist for a salary of $20,000 a year. The contract was renewed orally July 10, 1975, and Mrs. Popp operated under its terms till April 17, this year. On the following day she resigned, effective that date, and thereafter began working independently for the Medical Center. Plaintiffs seek to recover $10,000 from Mrs. Popp.

3. Dr. Holbrook and Lois Burchett, chief operating room supervisor at the Medical Center, enticed Mrs. Popp to leave plaintiffs' employment and to act as an independent. On this ground plaintiffs ask $60,000, plus $100,000 because of alleged damage to plaintiffs' business.

4. Contracts with Graham and Phelps stated that in the event the contracts were terminated they would not administer anesthesia for any group or hospital within a 90-mile area of any hospital contracting with White and Associates for a two-year period. An injunction was asked to restrain Graham and Phelps from performing such services in the hospital for two years. Graham and Phelps were each to be paid $10,800 a year for their services, plus $500 a month each for auto, telephone and use of their dwellings for company business.

In a separate action Everett Williams, Jr. asked $40,000 damages of East Kentucky Paving Co. and its employee, Larry Pack, claiming he suffered permanent injuries and disfigurement when struck by a motor vehicle of the company which was loaded with a bulldozer.

Floyd Newsome names the estate of Ronald Waddele and his survivors in a $270,000 damage suit. The action is the outgrowth of an automobile wreck on US 52, near Kermit, W. Va. last August, when Waddele's auto, allegedly driven at excessive speed on a stiff curve, rammed the mountainside, killing Waddele and injuring Newsome, passenger in the car. Plaintiff claims his injuries are permanent.

(Reports of damage actions represent only the allegations made by plaintiffs.)

Water: A Community Effort

Excavation work in progress last week on new water service.

The last lengths of some 8,200 feet of 8-inch pipe were laid Thursday between the mouth of Calf Creek and the vicinity of Mack Tackett's furniture store, near Allen, as residents of the area joined Prestonsburg Water and Gas System employees in an effort to provide reliable water service to consumers of that section.

Bill Harvey Howard, superintendent of the Prestonsburg Water and Gas System said workmen will begin hooking on consumers to the new service today (Wednesday).

The work was initiated only last Tuesday as the result of an agreement made a month ago between the Allen water system and the Prestonsburg system providing that the new water supply will be sold to the Allen system, which in recent months has reportedly been unable to provide adequate service to the 76 consumers in the area. The Floyd fiscal court provided $8,500 to finance the work in part.

Howard said the biggest part of the three days' work was done by residents of the area served. "All but a couple of pieces of equipment and even machinery operators were provided by people of the community," Howard pointed out. "They did all the excavation work—we just provided the pipe and laid it. It was a real community effort."

Floyd Community's Story Told In Recent Film Documentary

Three new film documentaries on Appalachian life and tradition have been produced. Two of these were premiered at Alice Lloyd College, Pippa Passes, June 21.

"Wheelwright: Coal-mining Town" deals historically and socio-economically with the model coal camp in this county which was largely developed by the Inland Steel Company for its employees. Historic period photographs and several interviews with local residents and persons instrumental in the town's progress are featured in the hour-long analysis and statement.

"Court Day in Mount Sterling" was filmed at the traditional annual event in the Montgomery county seat. This bargaining and swapping day, which grew from the opening day of court, was once a custom in most county seat towns in Eastern Kentucky.

A documentary dealing with aspects of Appalachian tradition is entitled, "Mountain Ways". Historians Henry P. Scalf and Leonard Roberts are interviewed. Dr. Wallace Campbell, of Pippa Passes, gives recollections and observations about the one-room school. Family life and a recent chronology of Appalachia form the core of the work. Appalachian musicians are featured.

Ligon Man Dies In Auto Wreck

Killed in an early morning auto accident Sunday near Hi Hat was Anthony W. (Tony) Caudill, 22, of Ligon. A passenger, David Newsome, 19, also of Ligon, suffered multiple lacerations and was hospitalized at McDowell Appalachian Regional Hospital.

State police indicated that Caudill, the driver, lost control of the car which struck a tree after leaving Ky. 979, about 1.8 miles south of Hi Hat at 4:30 a.m. Caudill was pinned in the car for about 40 minutes following the accident.

An employee of U. S. Shoe Corporation near here, he was born January 16, 1954 in Wolf Lake, Ind., a son of Ishmael and Maudine Mitchell Caudill, of Ligon.

Defense Wins Venue Change Second Time

For the second time since he was named in murder indictments 30 months ago, Eddie Jones has been scheduled for trial in Pike county.

The case in which Jones is accused of the slayings of Deputy Sheriff Lawrence Conley at Garrett and James Clayton Conley, near Wayland, was transferred to Pike county for trial last Thursday by Special Judge Caswell P. Lane after a hearing on a supplemental defense motion for change of venue.

The case was first transferred for trial in Pike county on a defense motion in May, 1974. But it was never heard there and was returned to Floyd county for trial after a new indictment had been returned here naming Eddie Jones, his father, Agnel, and Johnny Martin on two charges of murder, aiding, abetting, etc. (The charge against Agnel Jones later was dismissed on the Commonwealth's own motion.)

Judge Lane's decision to transfer the case to Pike county surprised attorneys and many attending the hearing. He had referred to the June 28 pre-trial hearing held here at which he had denied the motion for change of venue, and pointed out that Floyd is a large, populous county and that resident of one section of the county may not know of events in another. He pointed out that the supplemental motion for change of venue

Murder Bill Names Father, 2 Daughters

Juvenile Court Judge Richard E. Fitzpatrick last Wednesday directed that the charges against Barbara and Gloria Faye Newsome, juveniles charged with the knife-slaying of Gerald McBrayer, Prestonsburg shoe store owner, be transferred to Circuit Court, and the following day they and their father, John Henry Newsome, were named by the grand jury in a murder indictment.

The father and daughters later entered a plea of not guilty, and their trial was set for next Monday. The fact that the three were unable to execute bond led to immediate trial of the case.

The trial of Bobby Workman, who is in jail unable to execute bond on a charge of slaying James Chaffins, has been set to begin the following Monday, Sept. 27.

The Newsomes' indictment was the only true bill reported by the grand jury to Judge Conley, but others may await their official filing.

This week had been left open on the docket for the trial of Eddie Jones, and when the case was venued to Pike county the result was some confusion in the docket and loss of time for trials and grand jury work. The grand jury had recessed because, it was explained, both Commonwealth's Attorney James R. Allen and County Attorney Harold J. Stumbo were expected to be engaged in the Jones trial this week and neither could work with the grand jury. For this reason the return of the grand jury for an additional two days work was set for Sept. 23.

The court session will resume work today (Wednesday), but no criminal cases are booked for hearing till Thursday.

Clyde Bradley, who had been held in jail here as a parole violator from Ohio, was released last Tuesday on his own recognizance to appear in court Sept. 20. He was so released because he had voluntarily surrendered to the charge.

Allen Man Held In Pike Robbery

An Allen man who was accused of taking at knifepoint a drug from a Pikeville drug store was jailed last Tuesday on an armed robbery charge.

The prisoner was listed as Russell Sammons, 30, who took more than a bottle of Darvon from the store. Officers said he entered the store in The Town and Country Shopping Center, threatened the pharmacist, Ronald Johnson, of Prestonsburg, with a knife, demanded the Darvon, and briefly held Johnson hostage. The pharmacist was injured slightly during the holdup, suffering a knife scratch on his back.

Sammons reportedly fled the store with a bottle of Darvon and another partially filled bottle. Pikeville police captured him near the traffic light on the nearby Williamson road, and a portion of the drugs and the knife which he allegedly used were recovered from the riverbank where they had been tossed before the arrest was made.

The arresting officers appeared before the Pike circuit court grand jury, the same day, and it was said that Sammons may have been indicted on more than one count.

Water District Cost, $571,000 Estimate Made

Water Gap-Bull Creek Water District members met last Friday evening to discuss their proposed water system improvement project. Kenco Associates, Inc., consulting engineers from Ashland, presented the commissioners with their findings regarding the water system, which indicated that a public water system is feasible for the area.

David Osborne, engineer with Kenco Associates, said at least 80 percent of the project cost will have to be funded by federal, state, or local grants in order for the residents to receive a reasonable water bill. In his opinion, a reasonable water bill would average about $10.80 per month.

Osborne also said that the project is estimated to cost $571,000, which includes engineering, legal work, construction, and other overhead items of this amount, $21,000 has already been collected as tap fees from the residents of the area. Osborne said he is anticipating a $275,000 grant from the Farmers Home Administration, and a $110,000 loan from the Farmers Home Administration. He said this still leaves $165,000 that must be found from some source.

Curtis Hatfield, chairman of the water district, asked Gene Graves, county supervisor for the Farmers Home Administration if FmHA could grant the additional monies. Graves replied that the Farmers Home Administration is limited by law to making 50 percent grants, and that his agency could not furnish the additional $165,000. He did

Operators Show Light Opposition

By DAVID V. HAWPE (In The Courier-Journal)

Dramatic changes in state supervision of deep mining are in the works, and coal industry spokesmen are curiously calm.

In the past, regulatory changes and tax legislation have brought wails from coal men, but not one operator has attempted publicly to inject controversy into safety programs now being developed by the Deep Mining Safety Commission—programs likely to cost the state more than $9 million per year.

The operators' seeming attitude was best expressed by Rita Coal Co.'s Elmer Belcher. He is "quite concerned" about the new safety proposals but "fairly unclear" about the directions the proposals are taking.

Belcher is sure of one thing: "You can't hold a miner's hand. I think it's great to train young miners. I'm for that. But you can only go so far. You can't hold a man's hand as he does his job."

"We sure don't want anybody to get hurt in the coal mines," Belcher said in a recent interview. "But safety programs only go so far. We haven't stopped people from getting killed on the highways, have we?"

When asked why they have been so agreeable about the commission's proposals, coal men emphasized in separate interviews that they are as dedicated as anybody to the safety of coal miners.

David Zegeer, who manages Bethlehem Steel's extensive Eastern Kentucky mining properties, made that point, and added, "You can't afford not to operate safely." Interpretation: Lost-time accidents mean lost production.

Labor spokesmen privately have said that a year in which 26 men died at the Scotia mine is not a good year in which to oppose safety programs. Others have suggested that it would not be good politics for the coal industry to oppose safety programs to which the governor seems committed. Some point out that the coal operators are not going to be required to foot the bill.

Gov. Julian Carroll appointed the 15-member safety commission after deciding, on the last day of the General Assembly's regular session earlier this year, that Rep. Glenn Freeman's "resident inspector" plan needed further study. The commission has been holding meetings throughout the state.

"I think the commission has been about as responsible as any I have seen," Tom Duncan, president of the Kentucky Coal Association, said.

State Proposes Lockbox Use

Frankfort, Ky.—The way has been cleared for the state to speed up revenue collection through lockboxes placed in post offices.

The system, which state Attorney General Robert Stephens says would not require any further legislation, involves using designated state depository banks rather than state agencies to collect revenue.

As proposed by the state Treasury Department, a lockbox would be purchased by the bank, assigned to the state Department of Revenue and placed in a post office. At numerous times during each working day collections would be made, taken to the bank and credited to the account of the state treasurer on the same day. On the following day the treasurer's office and the Department of Revenue would be notified by the agent bank by 8:30 a.m.

Attorney General Stephens stated that the bank could simply be a designated agent of the revenue department and the employees of the bank would be subject to the same restrictions on disclosure of confidential information as would any other agent of employe of the revenue department.

The idea for the collection arrangement may have come from the state of Washington, whose revenue department presently operates with the lockbox system.

Kentucky Fishing Report

Frankfort, Ky., Sept. 13—Cooler air and water temperatures are resulting in generally better fishing across the state and two lakes—Nolin and Green—report limit catches of black bass. The lake-by-lake rundown, according to the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources:

BUCKHORN: Crappie slow on minnows over submerged cover; bluegill slow on worms around stickups; clear, except extreme headwaters murky to muddy; falling slowly at 3 feet below pool and 71.

Juror Pay, Subject Of Deskins Query

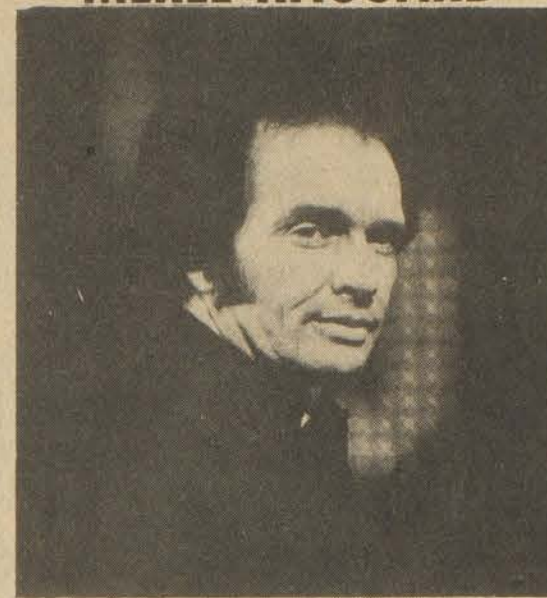

State Representative Herbert Deskins, Jr., of Pikeville, has asked the Kentucky attorney general to issue a formal opinion as to whether or not jurors are entitled to be paid the federal minimum wage, Deskins in a September 6 letter to Attorney General Robert F. Stephens posed these questions:

- 1. Can the state of Kentucky avoid paying the federal minimum wage for jury services?
2. If so, where does the state find exemption from the federal law?

Deskins said he is concerned about jurors being inadequately compensated for their services and that he felt they should be paid at least the federal minimum wage. He added that he will introduce legislation during the special legislative session to pay the jurors in the newly created district court an amount equal to the minimum wage. The special session will convene in November.

Corrections Program Taken to Counties

Frankfort, Ky.—"You're going about this in the right way. This is the first time corrections officials have ever come to us to talk about the mutual problems we have and to ask for our suggestions and help," state Rep. Paul Richardson, of Winchester, said as the Bureau of Corrections took their first trip out into the counties.

When Dr. David Bland was sworn in as commissioner of corrections last month, he pledged to personally visit each of the Commonwealth's 120 counties to meet with local officials and interested citizens for informal discussions about the problems the counties are having in the area of corrections and to explain what the bureau is doing now.

The program got on the road last Thursday with visits to Bath, Clark and Montgomery counties.

Attendance increased throughout the day as 23 people met with Bland in Bath county that morning, 29 people in Clark county that afternoon, and 32 people in Montgomery county that evening.

Following the massive restructuring of the bureau which began in May, Bland—who drew up the master plan for Kentucky corrections while a consultant for Carkhuff Associates of Massachusetts—has stressed a philosophy of openness and accessibility, with an emphasis on gaining local communities' support in solving corrections problems.

"We want the people of Kentucky to know what we're doing. And we want to know about the problems locally," Bland said.

"We want the local people to know that if they do encounter any problems, we are just as close as the telephone. We want them to rely on us, and we want to rely on them," he said.

One problem which was brought out at all three meetings, was how to effectively rehabilitate Kentucky's inmate population.

The problem is multi-faceted, Bland said. He said it involves job preparedness, community acceptance and the inmate's desire to change.

Bland said steps are being taken to offer the inmates training in skills that will help them become employable upon their release from prison.

"If a man walks into an employer and says, 'I can work on any transmission up to 1976 and any model engine,' that man stands a much better chance of being hired than someone who just walks in and says, 'I just got out of prison and I learned to be a mechanic,'" Bland said.

"We have to teach these people how to talk to employers and how to sell themselves and their training, as well as merely offering them training."

To questions he received in each county about regional correctional facilities, Bland said he believes prisoners nearing the end of their sentences could be re-integrated into society effectively through a regional jail type of program.

"It doesn't make a lot of sense to put someone in a pre-release program at LaGrange or Blackburn if he's going to get on a bus and go back to Paducah when he's released," Bland said.

He said he believes prisoners would stand a better chance of making it back into society by coming from a regional facility where they could tie in to local educational facilities and have a reorientation process with their families and local employers.

With first offenders Bland said that within the next six months he plans to upgrade the admissions and orientation unit at the state reformatory near LaGrange. "We believe that after 10 days in the admissions and orientation unit, a first offender can be appropriately classified as to his criminal sophistication," Bland said.

He said the bureau projects housing approximately 4,000 inmates in state institutions by 1977. "A regional facility type of program would better allow us to get the first offenders and minimum security inmates into an atmosphere conducive to effective rehabilitation," Bland said.

The next set of corrections forums will be held Tuesday, Sept. 14, in Shelby, Oldham and Trimble counties.

First-Aid Psychology Can Help Marriages

"Just as an adequate knowledge of physical first aid can save a victim from drowning or heat prostration, some knowledge of psychological first aid can often rescue an ailing marriage," writes Dr. Daniel A. Sugarman, psychotherapist and psychologist, in the September Reader's Digest.

Calling the measures troubled couples can take "deceptively simple," Sugarman outlines several suggestions that can help restore stability to a shaky union. Among these, he puts a conscious commitment to making the marriage work at the top of the list. Many couples, he feels, fail "to close the escape hatch of fantasied divorce." Once this is done, more energy is available to building a flourishing relationship.

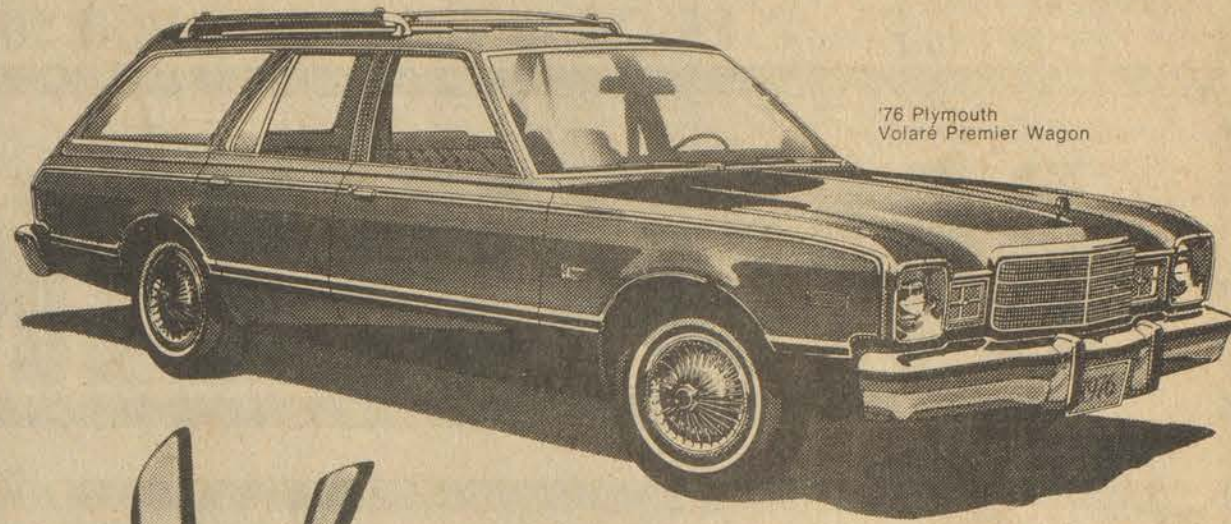

Lack of communication, a stumbling block in a number of marriages, can be overcome in several ways. First, the couple has to learn not only to talk to one another but, more importantly, to listen. When you're busy marshalling your own defense, you hardly have time to hear the complaint. Going further, Sugarman points out that one partner often harbors a deep-seated resentment which he feels he can't express for fear of "hurting" the other. Unless such feelings—real or imagined—are aired, the marriage remains in trouble.

Togetherness, a concept fostered in the 1950s, often has a suffocating effect on couples. Sugarman observes that it can result in a loss of individuality. "The best marriages that I see consist of two whole people who are interacting—not two 'half-people' who constantly stifle each other," he writes.

Other suggestions the psychologist offers are taking a good, hard look at your own behavior to see if you're a contributor to the problem, and facing up to the realization that even the best of marriages contains a certain amount of tough sledding.

A Tree and Its Links with Nature

By RUFUS M. REED

"To know a tree," I said to our group of teenagers, "and its many links with nature and the forest in which it lives, requires close observation and careful study. Let's pick out some tree," I suggested, "and make a study of it in relation to the forest in which it lives and the great world of nature all about it."

It was mid-April and we were hiking the woods to see the flowers and new-leaved trees. For our special study we chose an old beech tree with a dense, rounded crown, standing on an open hillside. As we neared the beech, we noted the ground under it was littered with spiny hulls of the last year's crop of nuts, but not a single nut could be found. The hulls were all empty.

"Here's the old tree's first link with nature," I said. "It furnished a bounteous crop of nuts each year to feed the wildlife of the forest—the chipmunks, squirrels, grouse, wild turkeys."

"It sure is a valuable provider of food for wildlife," they responded. The ground under the tree was also littered with brown bud scales, which the tree had cast down in every small wind. The new leaves had burst out, opening the buds, and the scales had spiraled down in showers as one might cast off old garments no longer needed.

"Look at the newborn leaves," I said. "It's mid-April now and the young leaves are rejoicing, dancing and waving in the bright spring sun." The leaves had captured a new sheen from the sun, and the old beech was glorified in her new spring gown. We discover a strange thing happening to the newly fallen bud scales. A gang of large, red ants were gathering up these scales and carrying them to their nest. We tracked the ants and found their nest, all decorated with the bud scales. They had heaped them up around the nest. "What use do the ants make of these scales?" I asked.

I got different answers. "They use them for nest decoration," one said. "They take them inside and make soft beds for their cocoons," another said. "They use them for food, they let them moulder and use them for growing mushrooms. Ants like to eat certain kinds of mushrooms."

"This is one of the old tree's more mysterious links with nature," I told them.

We study the bark of the old beech and find many interesting things growing on it. One of these is called "tree hair," and it is a soft, silky lichen, which the books call "old man's beard." There were large tufts of it clinging to the bark. While we were looking at the "tree hair," we were amazed to see a small warbler fly down and begin plucking a mouthful of the soft lichen. "It's getting this tree hair to put in its nest," I told them. "This makes a soft lining for the baby birds."

"What birds?" they ask. "Parula warblers. Now you see here another of the old tree's links with nature. It furnishes nest material for the warblers and other birds."

"What is the Latin name of this old beech?" they asked.

"Fagus grandifolia—fagus means beech and grandifolia means large leaves. The leaves grow long and broad, with many prominent veins; each vein ends at a tooth on the margin of the leaf."

"How old is this beech?"

"Over three hundred years, I'd say. It grows slowly on this dry hillside with acid soil. See the marks of old age on the tree. It shows old age the same as an old man. There was a deep cavity on one side of the tree and it had dead wood inside. On this dead wood, there was a large shelf fungus firmly attached."

"This fungus is eating the dead wood of the old tree," I said. "What is its name?"

"It is a bracket fungus, and it gives us a clue to the future destiny of the old tree. We know now its days are numbered. Other fungus will soon take hold of it and slowly eat up its decaying wood; in time these parasites will eat out the vitals of the tree and bring about its final destiny—death."

On the bark, we find another interesting plant of a most beautiful design, like fancy lacework; it was of a rich gray-green color and fringed about the border.

"What plant is that?" they ask. "A foliose lichen," I said.

Kentucky Afield

By JOHN WILSON

With summer weather still around, it's hard to think about waterfowl hunting, but if you want to hunt on the Ballard County Wildlife Management Area this winter, now is the time to get started.

Reservations for duck and goose hunts on that area are being taken beginning Sept 5, and the deadline for getting those reservations in is Sept. 21.

Goose hunting on the Ballard area will open Dec. 1 and run through Jan. 20 while duck hunters will have from Dec. 11 through Jan. 15 to enjoy their sport on the area.

To make a reservation at Ballard, write to the Ballard County Wildlife Management Area, Rt. 1, LaCenter, Ky. 42056. Please write the word "Reservations" on the envelope, otherwise it probably will be sent back to you.

Jim Moynahan, the area manager, explains that all requests for reservations are held until after the deadline when a drawing is held. To be fair, he only wants unopened envelopes for the drawing, and if you don't write "reservations" on the envelope, it will have to be opened and hence isn't eligible for the drawing. So don't forget.

Inside the envelope you need the complete names and addresses of all hunters in the party, first choice of hunting dates, alternate dates (the more alternates, the better) and your preference for duck or goose hunting. There is no hunting at Ballard on Sundays or on Christmas Day. Each hunter is limited to six hunts, with no more than two Saturdays.

Also enclose $5 for each hunter or $15 for each pit (only three hunters are allowed to a pit). Only certified checks or money orders will be accepted, and they should be made payable to "Ballard Waterfowl Area." The fees of those not chosen in the drawing will be returned, and Moynahan says it will take up to 30 days to notify everyone whether he's been selected.

In case you're the type who really likes to plan ahead, the dates for making reservations at Ballard have been standardized. Next year and in following years you can apply from Sept. 1 through Sept. 17.

But if you're the type who usually puts things off until it's too late, you can always show up at Ballard at about 4 a.m. on the day of a hunt and wait around to see if any of the scheduled hunters don't show up. Vacancies will be filled on a first-come, first-served basis, but you have to get up early just to see if anyone else overslept.

Moynahan says he's looking forward to a good season this year. The crops that are grown to attract waterfowl are doing very well, and first indications are that the goose population is as good, or perhaps slightly better, than last year's.

In case you missed the first announcement, the statewide duck season will open Nov. 20 and continue through Dec. 2 with the second phase of the split season from Dec. 11 through Jan. 16. The statewide goose season will be from Nov. 12 through Jan. 20.

Duck hunters will be working under the point system again this season, but since that's a whole story in itself, we'll go into it when the weather cools down and those ducks and geese start winging overhead.

Wayne Gearheart, a student at U.K., visited his mother, Mrs. Dottie Gearheart, over Labor Day week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Brackett were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Don Daniels at the Wheelwright football game Friday night when the newly renovated field was dedicated and named the Ray Brackett Athletic Field. Other guests were Dr. Mary Hall, Pete Grigsby, Jr., and Geri Grigsby.

Nellie and Eric Smallridge, of Nitro, West Virginia, were guests last week of Mr. and Mrs. Galloway Lafferty. Nellie Smallridge, a former resident of Allen, was the former Nellie King, and a relative of Mrs. Lafferty.

Mr. and Mrs. David Alex Allen, of Missouri, are here visiting Mr. and Mrs. Joe A. Clark.

Mr. and Mrs. Danny Branson and daughter visited relatives in Martin county over the week-end.

Mrs. Michael Davis the former Kathy Ann Warrick, was the honoree at a household shower at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Davis, Friday, September 3, where she received many lovely gifts. Hostesses for the occasion were Mrs. Clarence Stephens, Mrs. Vina Davis, Mrs. Shirley Davis, Mrs. Telin Burchett, Mrs. Lorene Slone, Mrs. Phyllis Ousley, Mrs. Virgie Warrick, and Mrs. Ruth Ann Davis.

Wins Archery Meet

William R. Stephens, son of Martha Stephens, of Hueysville, won first place in the bowhunter unlimited division in the Land Between the Lakes field archery tournament held Sept. 5. The tournament, sanctioned by the Kentucky Field Archery Association, was held at Golden Pond, Kentucky. He shot a 453 out of a possible 560 points.

Howard, New Appellate Judge, Expects Less Delay on Appeals

Judge Harris S. Howard, of Prestonsburg, expects the state's new Court of Appeals to "substantially reduce the time required to get an appeal decided from the circuit court."

Howard is one of Kentucky's 14 new Court of Appeals judges appointed last month by Gov. Julian Carroll. The appointments were made under a court reform article approved by voters last November. The judicial article set up a new state Supreme Court composed of the former Court of Appeals judges, the new Court of Appeals, and district courts which won't be operative until January, 1978. (Both Howard and Elijah Hogge, of Morehead, who were appointed by Governor Carroll, will be unopposed at the November election when judges are elected for the term ending Jan. 1, 1984.)

Howard discussed the operation of the new court system and his expectations for the Court of Appeals in a recent interview.

Porters Attend Nat'l P.T. Boaters Meet

Mr. and Mrs. Bert N. Porter, of Prestonsburg, recently returned home after having attended the national P. T. Boaters reunion held in Boston, Massachusetts. Some 800 former P. T. Boaters and their wives from all parts of the United States attended this reunion.

The reunion began at the Copley Plaza Hotel in Boston and was marked by the informal get togethers and reacquaintances that always highlight P. T. meetings. At the annual business meeting, members head a report concerning the progress and improvements at the national P. T. Boat Library and Museum located in Battleship Cove, Fall River, Massachusetts. Battleship Cove is the largest collection of naval fighting ships in the world and features Battleship Massachusetts, U.S.S. Joseph P. Kennedy, Jr., submarine Lionfish and two World War II P. T. boats. Founder and director of P. T. Boats, Inc., J. M. "Boats" Newberry, of Memphis, Tennessee, conducted the brief business meeting.

P. T. Boaters also endorsed a brother organization of destroyermen called TIN CAN SAILORS. Edward J. Ward, Executive Director of TIN CAN SAILORS urged all P. T. Boaters to help him locate present and former destroyermen and get them enrolled in the new national destroyermen's organization. Ward told the group that interested persons could write to him at Tin Can Sailors, Battleship Cove, Fall River, Massachusetts 02721.

P. T. Boaters and their wives later travelled to Battleship Cove, Fall River, to attend the dedication of the P. T. Boat Museum and Library there. Secretary of the Navy William J. Middendorf was the featured speaker. Others in attendance included Admirals Edwin Hooper and John Bulkeley. A memorial wreath was cast into the waters of the Cove to commemorate deceased P. T. Boaters.

The final leg of the reunion took all members to Melville, Rhode Island to the site of the P. T. Boat training center during World War II. A memorial stone marker was dedicated by J. M. "Boats" Newberry, Father Gills Webster, O. F. M. and Captain Robert B. Kelly, USN (Ret.) former P. T. Boat skipper and holder of the Navy Cross for valor in World War II P. T. boat action.

Kentucky Magazine Begins Third Season

"Kentucky's got a lot going for it . . . especially people. Kentucky people have inherited the visions of their pioneer ancestors. We want to help you get to know your state a little better."

The words belong to Stan Petrey, the producer and director of "Kentucky Magazine," a soft news program presented by Kentucky Educational Television (KET). Rejecting the slick packaging distinctive in other magazine-format programs, Petrey has chosen to let the people of Kentucky tell their own stories. What results is a unique exchange of ideas and culture among the regions of the state.

"Kentucky Magazine" enters its third season on Sunday, September 26 at 7:30 p.m. on KET. The broadcast is repeated on Wednesday, September 29, 7:30 p.m.

Segments of the new season's first program are: "A Good Life," featuring the McClain family; "Waterwitch" and the "Living Arts and Science Center."

One might imagine restless spirits roaming the halls of the historic mansion on Walnut Street in Lexington, but the only spirits to be found are those possessed by young artists hard at work on their latest creations at the Living Arts and Science Center.

Director James Seidelman discusses the operations of the center and the opportunities it makes available to Kentuckians of varying ages and needs, but all of whom possess the desire to create. The objectives are realized in "Kentucky Magazine's" candid view of a group of the center's children turning imaginary wanderings and daydreams into "objects d'art" in an environment where creativity explodes.

The McClain family began their band just to have a good time. That was nearly eight years ago. They started performing in their living room, and now they've been around the world playing a music heavily influenced by life in the mountains of Eastern Kentucky.

"A Good Life" takes the McClain Family band from their Berea home to an "oldtime music" session with the Carter family.

Les Cushenberry has been witching wells in Kentucky and surrounding states for 60 of his 85 years. Although the reliability of the divining rod may be doubted, Cushenberry and his neighbors claim that he not only hits water every time, but can tell how deep it is. There is no charge for the service; it's just a neighborly thing to do.

The "Magazine" crew follows Cushenberry as he waterwitches a new well, and talks with friends for whom he has already found water. He hasn't failed yet, and it doesn't seem likely that he will.

Floyd Native Fred A. Martin Commended Upon Resignation

Dr. James Graham, state superintendent of public instruction, has announced the retirement on Sept. 1 of Fred Martin, native Floyd countian.

The 62-year-old Martin, senior member of the Department of Education, has served as state director of Trade and Industrial Education for 21 years. He has been involved in education for 38 years and worked with vocational education for almost 35 years.

"Fred Martin has an enviable record of contributions to vocational education, Graham said.

Those contributions include serving as a vocational teacher, an area vocational school coordinator, and as assistant director and director of Trade and Industrial Education. He was a founder of the Kentucky Industrial Educational Association and was instrumental in expanding Kentucky's vocational education program.

Specifically, during the mid-60's, Martin helped formulate the plan which brought local vocational schools under a statewide system. He was also largely responsible for the concept of vocational extension centers, which made vocational education easily accessible to all Kentuckians.

"Fred Martin's leadership and contribution to vocational education in Kentucky is not only significant, but in trade and industrial education, is unparalleled," said Secretary of the Education and Arts Cabinet Wendell Butler, former superintendent of public instruction.

Martin also has received recognition for his national leadership in vocational education and has served as first president of the National Association of Trade and Industrial Educators.

Martin, who is a son of Mrs. Vassie A. Martin, of Hueysville, and the late James Martin, lives on a Franklin county farm where he pursues his interests in horticulture, dogs and saddle horses.

THE VETERANS Administration is still paying pensions to hundreds of widows and children of Civil War veterans, a conflict that ended 111 years ago.

Archeologists Work To Save Relics in Path of New Roads

Frankfort, Ky.—In a government agency where planners, engineers, designers and administrators plan for the future, Betty McGraw turns her efforts to preserving the past.

An archeologist for the Kentucky Department of Transportation (KYDOT), she is the first professional in her field to be hired by the department to find, rescue and preserve historical artifacts lying in the path of proposed highways.

She is one of a staff of professionals in the comparatively new Division of Environmental Analysis. The division was formed expressly to help the state's road builders avoid harming our environment and losing long-buried relics from the past.

"We needed to analyze the impact of transportation programs on the environment and we had to have trained personnel who could guide us in decisions that will affect, for instance, clean air, natural resources and archeological and anthropological evidence," said John Roberts, state transportation secretary.

In addition to Miss McGraw and a staff of anti-pollution engineers and technicians, the division also employs a staff historian, geographer, sociologist, zoologist, a forestry expert and two biologists. They have also just hired an economist and a landscape architect.

"We realize that it is our duty to protect our inheritance for our descendants," Roberts said. "These new employees, representing so many disciplines, will insure that it is kept intact."

"At the same time, this division has a technological staff holding various engineering degrees to insure that our own environment is not destroyed," he added. "In either case, prevention is the best course."

Roberts points out that the department cooperates fully with the anthropology-archeology departments of the state's universities. Until recently, artifact discovery and preservation was left entirely to the universities.

Roberts cites the example of Interstate 24, which links Paducah and Nashville. Although construction of I-24 is not yet finished, all the archeological surveys were completed several years ago by teams from Western Kentucky University and the universities of Louisville and Kentucky.

Now the Transportation Department can do its own surveys. Under McGraw's direction, proposed sites for highway construction or expansion are tested for artifacts if they look promising when they are "walked" by the archeologist and a consultant.

If the resulting tests (consisting of one-meter square excavations in promising terrain; reveal that the site contains arrowheads, full-scale excavation is ordered.

As soon as the state buys or leases property as right-of-way, it must assume the responsibility of protecting or mitigating any damage that could occur to the cultural artifacts. The Transportation Department is guided by our present state Antiquities Act which protects archeological sites and objects of antiquity, preserving them for exploration, excavation and collection by qualified persons and educational institutions.

Although McGraw has been on the payroll for only eight months, 50 projects already are underway.

"We've packed all artifacts we've found and sent them to the University of Kentucky where they are kept for research and public viewing," Miss McGraw said.

A native of Scott county, she also has been a lecturer and assistant director of archeological survey at the University of Louisville. During that assignment, her team excavated the fossil remains of a prehistoric mammoth in southern Indiana.

In her present job, she still sometimes "strikes it rich." In one Marion county construction area, she recently uncovered some "tremendous finds," with arrowheads buried in a layer of soil extending along the road right-of-way for a half-mile.

Drawdown Slated For 3 Area Lakes

Lowering schedules for lake levels at Buckhorn, Cave Run and Carr Fork lakes have been announced by the Louisville district of the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers.

According to a news release from the corps, water flows in downstream channels are relatively low and normal drawdowns will be used to supplement the low flows.

Buckhorn Lake is now being lowered slowly from summer to winter pool level and lowering of the lake will continue through Dec. 1.

Existing water levels at Cave Run and Carr Fork lakes, the corps said, will be dropped slowly to winter pool level beginning Wednesday, Sept. 15 and continuing to Dec. 1.

Corps officials, the release added, will be watching water level conditions to determine if any delay in the schedule can be made. Delays will only be possible, however, if the existing low flow conditions improve suddenly, the corps said.

To Subscribers

Please note date shown opposite your name on your copy of The Times or on the wrapper. If the date reads, for instance, "June 76," your subscription will expire at the end of June.

Because of increased mailing costs, notices to subscribers of their expiration dates will be discontinued. Subscriptions which have expired must be cancelled within one month of the expiration date.

Yearly subscription rates are: $6.30 in Floyd county; $7.35 elsewhere in Kentucky; $8.50 outside Kentucky.

PRESTONSBURG quarterback Greg Dixon (No. 8) picks up some valuable yardage for the Blackcats in their losing bout with Johnson Central Friday night.

KERRY SLONE, Prestonsburg fullback scored his team's first touchdown in the third quarter of Friday night's game with Johnson Central, and the reaction of teammates reflects the "lift" which the TD provided.

however failed to make up for Johnson Central's 17-point first half advantage and the Golden Eagles won the contest 24-21. No. 89 in photo is tight end Jeff Burchett.

W'wright Remains Undefeated

By C. "OLLIE" ROBINSON
The Wheelwright Trojans rolled last week to their fourth straight win by defeating Pikeville, 6-0, while the Prestonsburg Blackcats were being upset by Johnson Central, 23-21.
Coach Don Daniels' Trojans defensive team was outstanding in the win over Pikeville in an important District 2 contest. Ricky Thornsburg scored on a three-yard run with only 16 seconds to go as they picked up their fourth win. The final score was set up when Dewey Jamerson intercepted a pass with one minute, 54 seconds remaining and returned it 10 yards to the Pikeville 40. Wheelwright will travel to Berea Friday night. Berea won over Williamsburg last Friday night, 22-14, and has a 2-1 record.
For the second straight week, Coach Phillip Haywood's Blackcats found themselves trailing, Friday night. The preceding week against Pikeville they trailed by a 14-0 score, but came back to win. But the Cats' gallant comeback fell short last week as they pulled back from a 17-point first half deficit, but dropped their first game of the season.

In the first half, Central's Bill Branham scored the first touchdown, and the kick was good. Later, Brian Taylor kicked a field goal to make it 10 to 0. In the second quarter Taylor passed to his end Cochran and the kick by Taylor was good. So at halftime, Johnson Central led 17 to 0.
The Cats came roaring back in the third quarter. Kerry Slone scored the first touchdown and Dixon's kick was good. The Cat's defense tightened up. Goebel intercepted a pass and again the Cats were on the move, but the drive was halted as Johnson Central made a fluke interception that bounded off one player's shoulder and was recovered by a Johnson Central defender. But the Cats didn't give up. On their next drive they rolled again and Thomas Slone scored and Dixon passed to Goebel for the two-point conversion. The scoreboard then read Johnson Central 17, Prestonsburg 15. But then Taylor passed to Fairchild for 70 yards to score. The kick was blocked and Johnson Central led 23 to 15. Yet the Cats moved again to the Johnson Central 5-yard line and Quarterback Dixon went over, but the run failed. In the closing minutes the Cats were rolling again but a fumble was made and that was it as Johnson Central ran out the clock to win. Prestonsburg will travel to Morehead Friday night to face Rowan County in a district game. Last week, Rowan County won over Lewis County, 15 to 14. Rowan county's record is now 3 and 1.
Betsy Layne High School, now in its first year of football competition, is improving with each game. Last week Betsy Layne played the Pikeville junior varsity squad and was defeated, 65 to 24. The Betsy Layne backfield did a fine job again, especially with the running of Jeff Scott who picked up two touchdowns, one on a 70-yard run and another from the 3-yard line. He also scored six points as he ran the ball for the two-point conversions. Larry Lee also scored his first touchdown on an 80-yard punt return. Monday night, Sept. 13, Coach Jim Cecil's Bobcats traveled to Johns Creek and were defeated by the Johns Creek junior varsity, 38 to 8. The Bobcats scored on a 3-yard run by Hagan Bush, and Jeff Scott passed to Glen Lawson for the two-point conversion. The Bobcats will play Mullins junior varsity at Mullins, next Monday night.

FRESHMAN FOOTBALL
The Prestonsburg freshman team suffered its first loss of the season Monday night as they shut out by the Morgan county freshmen, 18 to 0, at West Liberty. The freshman record now stands at 2 and 1. Last Thursday night, they had to rally in the closing minutes of their game against the Pikeville freshmen to win, 25 to 20.
The Kittens were trailing by a score of 20 to 19 with 41 seconds remaining. Thomas Hastings scored on a 20-yard run to ice the game. Woodie Jarrell scored on touchdown on a 15-yard run; Jack Goodman, on a 15-yard run, and Cohen Swiney on a 20-yard pass play from Quarterback Danny Daniels. Dwayne Rodebaugh connected for one point after touchdown. The Kittens will face another tough opponent tomorrow night (Thursday) at the Prestonsburg field when they will entertain the Johnson County freshmen. Kick-off time is 6:30 p.m.
The Maytown Grade School, for the first time in the school's history, has a football team, and they opened their season Monday night at Wayland and won over the Wayland Grade School, 8 to 0. The Maytown Grade School will play Clark Friday evening at the Clark football field.

Black Cats' Record Slips to 2-1

By BRIAN STURGILL
The Prestonsburg Blackcats lost, 23-21, last Friday night to the Johnson Central Golden Eagles. Though the Cats were behind, 17-0, at halftime, the Cats made a comeback in the second half that was one of the most exciting ones that they have played.
Johnson Central started the scoring in the first quarter when Bill Branham ran the final 3 yards for the touchdown. The conversion was kicked by the Eagles' quarterback, Bryan Taylor. Taylor's kicking talents were again shown when he kicked a field goal, and he was again involved in the Eagles' scoring when he hit split-end Donald Cochran with a 4-yard pass.

NOTICE TO BIDDERS
Bids will be received until 10 a.m. Oct. 11, 1976 on the following:

The bid price will include delivery of tank cars to the Floyd County Highway Garage at Allen, Kentucky.
The Floyd County Fiscal Court reserves the right to reject any and all bids.

After coming back from a halftime pep talk from Coach Phillip Haywood, the Cats scored first in the second half on a 2-yard run by Kerry Slone. The point-after was kicked by Greg Dixon. The Cats scored again in the beginning of the fourth quarter on a 14-yard run by Thomas Slone. The conversion was a pass from Greg Dixon to William Goebel. But the Eagles were determined not to be beat, and scored when a 58-yard Taylor pass was caught by Gary Fairchild for the touchdown. The kick failed. The Cats gave one last effort in the last of the fourth with Greg Dixon scoring. The chance to tie the game was lost when the conversion run failed.
The Cats had 205 yards total offense; the Eagles, 240 yards. Billy Branham was the leading scorer for the visitors, with 111 yards averaging 4.1 yards per carry. Kerry Slone rushed 68 yards for the Cats with 5.7-yard average.
The Blackcats play at Rowan County Friday in a district game. They now have a 2-1 record.

Large Coal Project Talked for State

Frankfort, Ky—A "rather large coal project" for the state was discussed at a meeting between Gov. Julian Carroll and European coal businessmen in Paris.

A few days ago, our young son and I took a leisurely stroll down Mud Run road. I know nothing of its history; however, it is one of the many country roads that extend along the outer perimeter of the Gettysburg Battlefield...

When the laughter of happy children, or other emotions normally associated with the pursuits of an education, no longer bounced off her walls, Mud Run was converted to a clubhouse.

Bobby had heard me asking about this gentleman, often. As he is prone to do, he remarked, "Mom, it seems the friends you enjoy the most are the old men and women and the stories you tell the best is about someone who was killed about a hundred years ago."

This time the locked door and barred windows of Mud Run had prompted a telephone call. I don't believe the name meant as much to him as the other manner by which I identified myself, although I used my maiden name.

That was my first experience in a departmentalized situation. He taught social studies to a group of 60 or more members of the seventh and eighth grade classes in a rented, second story of the local fire hall.

As the year progressed, the partition disappeared, giving him the full responsibility for the academics of the Junior High School. The lady teacher had become ill and there was no replacement.

In addition to being among total strangers, with the exception of my father's family, I was afflicted with a timeless malady for which there is but one cure. I was homesick and that was not to be cured, just yet.

This gentleman's favorite subject was history and a favorite segment, The Civil War, Battle of Gettysburg. He was the historian's historian, even then. In teaching the Battle of Gettysburg not only could he tell you which general commanded which unit, led which assault, pinpointing the exact location of the various assaults, but enumerated both the Union and Confederate commanders of the supportive flanks.

He barely had the time to conclude such an admirable presentation that took several days, when I announced that not the North, but Kentucky had emerged from that three-day battle in triumph.

Rendezvous at Mud Run

By MARY GRIFFIE CAUDILL

remarked that I was truly my father's daughter, a compliment I will always cherish. He was the first to teach me the validity of "when in doubt, don't," as well as encouraging open and free expression of opinions.

Kennedy has changed, completely, with the ensuing years, he, like George L. Moore, is modest to a fault where teaching abilities are concerned. I believe Mr. Kennedy suspected I was homesick for yesteryear. He asked many questions about Kentucky, vowed his team would play the McDowell Daredevils, and win, and still managed to teach.

Thank God for your next meal...

by helping the starving people in Africa.

Most of us have had it pretty good. We probably feel blessed that we were born Americans. And in worship, we thank God—for our country, for all we have. But that's not enough. God expects us to prove our appreciation—by making sacrifices so that the hungry might have food. By providing shelter for the poor. By giving the parolee a new chance. In short, by bringing the God we worship into our lives. In doing this, we'll end up being helped as much as the people we're helping. Join with others at your local church or synagogue and celebrate the bicentennial. Help make this country—and this world—a better place.

Welcome God to America's bicentennial... practice what you pray.

CANCER Answerline

American Cancer Society

A regular feature, prepared by the American Cancer Society, to help save your life from cancer.

A reader explains: "I am concerned because when I was a teenager, I had radiation treatment for my tonsils. I have heard that this can lead to cancer. Is this true? What should I do?"

ANSWERline: In the early 1920's it became medical practice to use radiation or radium to treat a number of different conditions of the head or neck. Unfortunately, the thyroid gland, which is located in the neck, also received either direct or scattered radiation at the same time. Sometime after the Second World War, it became apparent that some people exposed to atomic radiation or even medical radiation, later developed thyroid cancer, and the medical usage was stopped. Fortunately, while many thousands of people have received radiation for medical purposes, only a very small percentage have or will develop thyroid tumors. Most of these tumors are benign. But when cancer is present, it is of the type that can be cured by surgery if treated when in an early or localized stage. It is therefore essential for anyone with a history of head or neck radiation exposure to be checked by a physician now, and to continue to be checked at least every two years. There is low incidence of this form of cancer, and a high probability of cure for those who do have thyroid cancer. But you must protect yourself by having a checkup.

A trucking executive asks: "Just what is the result of constant exposure to cigarette smoke if you are a non-smoker?"

ANSWERline: There is some evidence of cardiovascular effects (for example, higher blood pressure) in non-smokers when the carbon monoxide level in a poorly ventilated room becomes too high. There is a great deal more evidence that sensitive non-smokers may suffer a variety of acute effects including eye and throat irritations, while children of smokers have a somewhat higher incidence of respiratory illnesses than children of non-smokers. At this point, there is no evidence that non-smokers are courting lung cancer by being around cigarette smokers. It is the cigarette smoker who suffers that serious consequence.

A woman asks: "I have several cysts in my breasts. I cannot help but worry that they will cause cancer."

ANSWERline: Cysts are fluid-filled sacs that form in the milk ducts of the breast and almost all such cysts are harmless. Although there is one form of breast cancer involving cysts, this is extremely rare. It is, however, always important for you to have regular medical examination of your breasts because of this possibility, and because cancers can occur near harmless cysts. A trained physician must examine you on a regular basis because it takes an expert to diagnose the difference between a cyst and a possible health problem. You can best ease your mind by having regular checkups and examining your own breasts each month. Your physician can also suggest any other tests you should have, including, for example, mammography, or X-ray examination.

Consumer Comments

By ROBERT F. STEPHENS (Attorney General)

Are you tired of opening your mail only to find more "junk" mail? You can do something about it.

School rosters, mail order files, membership lists of various organizations, phone books and many other sources of names and addresses are used to create mailing lists. These lists are utilized by companies to send catalogs, product samples, sweepstakes tickets, magazine subscriptions, pornographic literature, and fund-raising requests to you. This material which is termed third class mail by the U. S. Post Office is direct mail advertising.

How can you stop "junk" mail? There are three methods you can use to stop or, at least, reduce the amount which ends up in your mail box.

(1) Write each company that sends you "junk" mail and ask to be removed from its list. Most companies consider this good public relations and will cooperate with your request.

(2) If the material is sexually oriented and you find it offensive, contact your local post office. The U. S. Post Office has a list of consumers' names who do not want to receive this kind of third class literature. Every company mailing this material is required to purchase this list and use it. If they continue to send you this material, report it to the Post Office at once. The company will be subject to a fine.

(3) The Direct Mail-Marketing Association is responsible for 70 per cent of consumer third class mailing lists. If you would like to have your name deleted from their list, write Direct Mail-Marketing Association, Inc., 6 East 43rd St., New York, N. Y., 10017. Also, if you want to receive this advertising through the mail, they have a form that will add your name to mailing lists.

Remember, when receiving offers and advertising through the mail, check all the facts before signing a form or spending your money.

If you have a consumer complaint write to the Office of the Attorney General, Division of Consumer Protection, Frankfort, Ky., 40601. The office has found that it can most effectively deal with written complaints and encourages you to write when you have a complaint. However, if you have an emergency situation, call the consumer hotline. The number is 1-800-372-2960.

Pike, Magoffin Road Contracts Among 50 Set

Frankfort, Ky.—State Transportation Secretary John C. Roberts has announced that the state expects to award more than 50 contracts for road and bridge improvements within the next two weeks.

Roberts said that the contracts will be announced soon after the cut-off date for the State Bureau of Highways latest bid-letting, set for Sept. 16.

Among the 50-plus contract proposals now up for bid are at least 11 road surfacing projects in two Eastern and six Western Kentucky counties which are to be funded with coal severance tax money under the state's Energy Road Fund (ERF) formula enacted during the last General Assembly.

The largest of those calls for resurfacing approximately 39.4 miles of roads in Muhlenberg county. Next in line are Pike county (28.3 miles), Hopkins county (22 miles), Union county (14.9 miles), Webster county (6.8 miles), Magoffin county (2.6 miles), Henderson county (two miles) and Hancock county (one-half mile).

Major non-ERF projects on the bid list include:

—Construction of a port-of-entry building at the rest area north of the Tennessee-Kentucky state line, site improvements for the rest area itself, and safety improvements along 15.8 miles of the interstate extending from the state line to the northern end of the US 25W Interchange at Goldbug.

—Renovation and repairs on six bridges in Fayette and Clark counties.

—Bridge deck repairs on two Watterton Expressway bridges—over Westport Road and the L & N Railroad tracks, north of US 60 at Louisville. —Resurfacing portions of the Outer Loop in Jefferson county from a point about one-half mile east of 1065 to the Old Shepherdsville Road.

—Bridge deck repairs on several Western Kentucky bridges, including them are three structures in Muhlenberg county, one on the Green River Parkway in Butler county and another in Barren county.

A regular feature, prepared by the American Cancer Society, to help save your life from cancer.

A reader explains: "Are more Americans smoking cigarettes or aren't they? I seem to be reading a lot of contradictory stories."

ANSWER line: Here is the correct story. In June, the National Clearinghouse for Smoking and Health, a Federal Government agency, reported that the proportion of adult male and female smokers has gone down in almost every age category. Whereas 52.8 percent of American men smoked cigarettes in 1964, 42.2 percent did so in 1970, and 39.3 percent in 1975; whereas adult women smokers were 31.5 percent of the population in 1964, they comprised 30.5 percent in 1970 and 28.9 percent in 1975. While this very positive and encouraging downward trend has taken place, another recent study, this one done for the American Cancer Society, shows an alarming upward trend in teenage smoking. For example, between 1969 and 1975 one-half million more teenage girls (ages 13-17) became cigarette smokers. Hence we have a very sad contradiction: on one hand, the proportion of adult smokers has dropped, on the other, the young are joining the cigarette ranks in greater numbers. The ACS puts the blame squarely on the cigarette "establishment" for luring pre-teen girls and boys into this dangerous habit.

A middle-aged woman asks: "I think that I am due for a gynecological examination. What should a complete examination include?"

ANSWER line: Quite naturally, physicians differ in their checkup routines, but the basics remain the same. These basics include a general physical examination; a careful breast examination; a quick, painless Pap test; inspection of the internal and external genitals; a manual examination of the womb (uterus), ovaries and rectum. Your physician will note your health history. If you have any questions, or conditions you are concerned about be sure to speak up. Your gynecological checkup is a vital part of health protection and a major safeguard against cancer.

An automobile salesman asks: "How many cancer drugs have scientists developed? And, are they getting to the cancer patient or are they just for experimental or research work?"

ANSWER line: Some fifty chemical compounds have been found to be clinically effective against cancer. About thirty-six of these drugs are already commercially available by prescription. Medical science has learned that drugs can be combined to deliver the maximum beneficial effect. And, drugs plus other therapies such as radiation or surgery are frequently used in a combined approach to treat the cancer patient. This kind of team approach is being used in the treatment of many forms of cancer including leukemia, Hodgkin's disease, breast cancer, bone cancer, etc.

Honor Community Leaders

Miss Peggy Bradford and Elbert Gibson were honored at a Labor Day picnic held at the Weeksbury Community Park.

Ira Frazier, in behalf of the Weeksbury citizens, presented silver, inscribed plaques to both.

Miss Bradford was also presented a dozen red roses.

The Weeksbury club, which was founded in 1966, has won four first-place awards, two second places, one third and one fourth in the rural non-farm category of the Northeast Kentucky Rural Community Development Association's contests over the last eight years.

Dr. Thomas D. Clark, historian, author and former professor at various state, national and international universities, will be the first guest of Kentucky Educational Television's "Distinguished Kentuckian" series this fall.

Tom Clark, Historian, on KET 'Distinguished Kentuckian'

Dr. Clark will discuss his life informally with a former student, Whitesburg attorney and Kentucky author, Harry Caudill, at 7 p.m. Saturday, September 25.

An authority on the history of the American frontier and of the Southern region, Dr. Clark has written numerous books which have enlightened a wide national audience.

There he studied under folklorist, Arthur Palmer Hudson, and distinguished historian, Charles Sackett Sydnor. The latter—who subsequently became dean of the Graduate School at Duke University—befriended Clark and influenced him to become a historian.

Devotions were led by Mrs. Arietta Hall, who used Psalm 92 as the Scripture text. The lesson for the evening, "Food additives," was taught by the Floyd County Extension agent, Mrs. Frances Pitts, who also displayed Swedish weaving which is done on monk's cloth with a tapestry or needlepoint needle.

REVIVAL at FIRST ASSEMBLY OF GOD Martin, Ky. Featuring GLENN DICKENS. Nightly thru Fri., Sept. 10, 7 p.m.

The Latchstring Is Out

Take a denim-blue sky, corn-yellow sunshine, wine-red apples, amber-gold sorghum, mix with the warmth of Southern hospitality and you have October in Eastern Kentucky.

The events are the Kentucky Apple Festival in Paintsville the first week-end in October, followed Oct. 8-10 by the Morgan County Sorghum Festival in West Liberty and Oct. 23 by Red, White and Blue Day in Prestonsburg.

The apple festival emphasized apples and apple products with a variety of entertainment and big-name country music performers. Downtown streets in Paintsville are closed to traffic in order to make wide areas for visitors to walk along city streets to view displays.

Here in the Johnson county seat where high tribute is paid each October to one of America's favorite fruits, visitors can stop at one of main concession booths and buy apple pie made while they watch, or candied apples, stack cakes, apple cider and other delicious apple products.

At the sorghum festival in West Liberty the next week-end the emphasis is on sorghum made at a cane mill on Main Street, quality crafts, art and foods such as Kentucky country ham sandwiches, cornbread, onions, and soupbeans, homemade lightbread, cookies, cakes and candies.

At Red, White and Blue Day in the Floyd County seat Oct. 23, tribute to American patriotism is the highlight of a day that will include addresses and a parade, beauty queens and national, state and local officials.

All of these events will take place in area that offers scenic splendor and historic interest. All three county seats are located within an hour's drive of Kentucky parks such as Natural Bridge State Resort Park at Slade in Powell County (just off Bert Combs Mountain Parkway), Jenny Wiley State Resort Park, near Prestonsburg (also about five minutes from the parkway), Carter Caves State Resort Park, near Olive Hill, and Greenbo Lake State Resort Park, both a short drive from Interstate-64.

Still closer to some of the festivals is Morehead, Rowan county seat, home of Morehead State University, Morehead has excellent restaurant and motel accommodations for those who might not find overnight lodging in the festival towns. A visit to Rowan County also allows tourists opportunity to view beautiful Cave Run Lake that extends into Morgan County.

Nearby are scenic Red River Gorge with its Rock Bridge, stone arches and campgrounds. In the area are covered bridges, caves to explore in Carter County, Daniel Boone National Forest, archeological digs, as well as many lakes and streams, for good fishing.

It is not enough to spend a day at the festival just to see and buy. The ultimate satisfaction in an Eastern Kentucky festival is getting to know the history of a county and town through research before the event, then talking with local citizens during visits.

Everyone can be assured that Kentuckians in the higher elevations come down to earth in demonstrating basic friendliness and offering neighborly help.

"Just don't come down here with a frown on your face," said a Johnson county. "We're down home folks who take a lot of pride in our hills. There's that old saying about the latchstring being out. Well, it sure is and when you come to the festival we're going to do our level best to make you welcome and happy."

For more information, Elmon Davis in Paintsville can detail events of the apple festival; Scottye-Franklin, West Liberty, can give information concerning the sorghum festival, and Mrs. Marcella Bailey, Langley, knows the schedule for Red, White and Blue Day.

UNIVERSITY OF KENTUCKY • COLLEGE OF AGRICULTURE

A 17th century visitor to the shores of Eastern North America wrote home to England that the "Humbird is one of the wonders of this country."

No bigger than a hornet, he added in effect, it hath all the dimensions of a bird, all the glorious colors of a rainbow, and as it flies, it makes a little humming noise like the humble-bee.

The British observer was right. Without a doubt the iridescent, green-backed, ruby-throated hummingbird is indeed a wonder of the country. It is an avian helicopter and the gem of the bird world. It lives on flower nectar and small insects and can fly forwards, backwards, upward and downward, poise motionless in mid-air, and dart off in any direction with almost the speed of a bullet. It is a beautiful little creature, but unfortunately, it is possessed with a most violent temper. It seems to know no fear and will frequently attack any other bird, be it a chickadee or a chicken hawk, unwise enough to stray into its domain. Ornithologists say, however, that it reserves most of its venom for its own kind. During mating season, males of the species engage in deadly battles and often kill one another by grabbing hold of a rival's extensible tongue and hanging on until the organ is pulled out by the roots. As least some students of nature have written of witnessing such an incident.

In other ways, too, the hummingbird is curiously fearless. Sometimes, one will investigate a flower held in the hand and will feed from a lump of sugar held in the lips. A friend who regularly feeds hummingbirds each summer says they often become so impatient when he goes out to fill up his hummingbird feeders that they alight on his fingers and try to drink from a container of sweetened water he puts out for them.

The ruby-throated hummingbird is the only one of its kind east of the Rocky Mountains, but is often confused with a huge moth that is frequently seen at evening buzzing over flower beds.

Because its beauty gives it distinction and its wings make music, it needs no song and, as far as is known, has none. It does have a sort of a squeaking chatter that is expressive of distrust or excitement.

Composed of plant fiber and lichens and lined with spiderwebs and down, the nest of a hummingbird is an artistic creation almost as beautiful as the bird itself. It is exquisitely dainty, and in this tiny cupshaped nest, the female lays two eggs little larger than buckshot. The eggs hatch in two weeks, and the tiny young birds stay in the nest three weeks more before taking wing.

Grant Finances Appalachian Study

The Rockefeller Foundation has granted $35,000 to the University of Kentucky for planning an Appalachian Studies Center which will incorporate UK's three-fold mission of teaching, research and service.

The unit, to be located on the Lexington campus, will be administered by the Center for Developmental Change, which is directed by Dr. Thomas Ford, professor of rural sociology and longtime student of Appalachia.

The planning staff for the UK Appalachian Studies Center is headed by Douglas Arnett, former instructor in Appalachian Studies at Ohio University and a doctoral candidate in political science at Duke University. Named as planning coordinator is UK professor David S. Walls of the College of Social Professions, a former director of Appalachian Volunteers in Kentucky.

UK won the planning grant partly because of "great interest within the University" and a "corps of talented and knowledgeable faculty and staff people with special commitment to Appalachia," said Dr. John Stephenson, UK dean of undergraduate studies, who also serves on the planning committee for the new Center.

In its grant application, UK cited the resources of its 17 separate colleges, its libraries, its already-operating service programs in agriculture, medicine, education and social work within Appalachian East Kentucky, and its research facilities which are the most comprehensive in Kentucky.

Major emphasis of the UK Center will be upon the Eastern Kentucky portion of 13-state Appalachia.

Present interest in the Appalachian region, Stephenson said, comes after the wave of national interest of the 60's, "in a calmer time, when general public attention may have moved on to something else, and when the needs of the region continue."

Among University of Kentucky administrators interested in the Appalachian Studies Center being planned at UK are President Ofis Singletary, left; UK Graduate Dean Wimberly Royster, second from right, and UK Dean of Undergraduate Studies John Stephenson, right. Douglas Arnett, second from left, a native of Eastern Kentucky and former instructor in Appalachian Studies at Ohio University, will head the staff which is planning the Center.

One function of the UK Center will be to assist such departments as sociology, history, economics, geography, political science, agricultural economics and the like in the development of specific curriculum and course proposals concerned with Appalachia at both undergraduate and graduate levels.

Research and service projects also will emanate from the UK Appalachian Studies Center, and the Center may coordinate fellowships awarded by the Rockefeller Foundation to future Appalachian scholars.

There also will be cooperation with existing Appalachian centers at places such as Alice Lloyd, Union and Berea colleges.

"What Appalachia needs, as much as scholarship," says Stephenson, "is people with definite skills as well as warm hearts."

Planning will continue through May, 1977, when specific proposals are expected to be offered for approval by the University and solicitation of funds for the Center should be well under way.

The meeting is open to all retail merchants. The discussion will be led by a staff member of the Kentucky Retail Federation.

IN APPRECIATION

There aren't enough words to express our thanks to those who helped us so much in our time of sorrow. To everyone who sent flowers, food and spent many hours at church; to all the ministers and kind members of the Joppa Regular Baptist Church; a very special thanks to Edward Tackett who delivered a beautiful and heartwarming prayer at the grave site, and to all pallbearers and all those who volunteered their services without being asked; to the Merion Funeral Chapel for their courteous service. To one and all please accept our deepest appreciation. We are eternally grateful and fortunate to know so many wonderful people.
