

National Mines Gift Clears Debt

For the last three years clubwomen, church groups, schools, fraternal organizations and hundreds of individuals have participated in fund-raising efforts to meet the $47,219 cost of equipment needed by the Area Volunteer Fire Department based at Wayland.

They succeeded to the extent of $24,830, but the full amount needed appeared far away until last week when National Mines Corporation came to the rescue with a check for the $22,389 balance.

The gift was made on behalf of National Mines by its president, George E. Evans, Jr., of Lexington, a long resident of the Wayland area. The equipment which is now clear of debt is described as "one of the finest owned by any community of comparable size in Kentucky."

In 1968, Mr. Evans and National Steel Corporation in a joint venture began a major mining development in the Beaver Creek area with the revitalization of the Beaver Creek Consolidated Coal Co. After three years, Evans Industries merged their holdings in the Beaver Creek and Jones Fork area with National Steel and formed the Beaver Creek Division of National Mines Corporation, a subsidiary of National Steel. National Mines operates five mines and one preparation plant in the Beaver Creek Division. Wayland Mayor Hobert Webb is superintendent of No. 1 Mine in the Beaver Creek Division. National Mines has two mining operations in western Arkansas, three in southern Pennsylvania and three in southern West Virginia.

Many other local people who have worked for the Beaver Creek Division have been promoted to key jobs at other locations with National Mines. In the Lexington corporate office, in addition to Evans, there are Dave Bayer, senior vice-president of exploration; D. J. Patton, vice-president of operations; Charles Collins, director of purchasing; Garland Bowen, director of land acquisition; John Collins, director of safety; Phillip Johnson, special projects engineer; Hugh Henegar, mining engineer; Linvel Jones, manager of cash accounting; Larry Rollins, draftsman, and Vonda Deaton, secretary. Ernil Reffett is the manager of technical services at the National Pocahontas Mine in West Virginia. In Arkansas, Alvin Mace is the general manager, Troy Curry is general superintendent, and Jim Akers, a former resident of Prestonsburg, is mining engineer. Paul Bailey is assistant to the general manager at the Isabella Mine in southern Pennsylvania.

Board Hires 465 Teachers

The old school term had barely ended when the Floyd County Board of Education last week employed teachers—464 of them—for the next school year.

All new teacher contracts are contingent upon the teachers meeting certification requirements and on the condition that the new term will bring no loss in pupil enrollment, Supt. of Schools E. P. Grigsby, Jr. said.

With almost all teaching slots filled, applications of as many as 200 other teachers, some from distant states, are on file at the Superintendent's office. Mr. Grigsby said these have little or no chance in Floyd county and that it may be necessary to reduce the number of teachers. The average daily attendance (ADA) during the past school term was affected by flood and a severe winter, and this has a direct effect on instructional funds from the state. Besides, he said, the school system is overstaffed, with some holding positions under tenure.

Major changes were made in the staffs of two schools:

—At Wheelwright Wilbur "Shorty"

Jamerson quit the post of principal to resume the role of teacher, and Don Daniels, who has been physical education supervisor for the board, was named to replace him and also to coach football. Frankie Francis, basketball coach there, resigned and will replace Daniels as phys. ed. supervisor. Randy Ward, a Wheelwright High alumnus, was employed as boys' basketball coach, and Teresa Brody, of David, was named girls' basketball coach. Virginia Jamerson, who had doubled as principal of Osborne Elementary and girls' net coach at Wheelwright, dropped the coaching position.

—Phillip Dingus, principal of the Martin Elementary School, will move to the pupil personnel department July 1 and eventually will replace Herbert Prater, supervisor, when the latter retires. Denward Johnson, of Wheelwright, former school administrator at Alice Lloyd College, will succeed Mr. Dingus at Martin.

At Allen Central High School Judy Mason, a graduate of Austin Peay, was employed as physical education instructor and girls' basketball coach, succeeding Patricia Murphy who will teach there and be assistant coach. The school is looking for a football coach. A junior varsity schedule is planned for the coming school term, and a football-baseball field there is expected to be completed this summer.

Retirement of these teachers was approved: Royce Turner, Wayland; Edgar Bingham, Title I rural teacher; Frances Turner, Edith Hopkins and Olive Rose Hall, all of McDowell; Mabel Allen, Prestonsburg; Adrian Hall, Wheelwright; Elsie Hicks, Allen; O. E. Stanley, Betsy Layne; Kathryn Frazier, Prestonsburg.

Leaves of absence were granted to Linda C. Gearheart, Charlene Sexton, Dahlia Sue Jones and Rheda Robinson.

Teachers employed:
ALLEN CENTRAL HIGH SCHOOL—J. O. Dingus, principal; Adrian Bentley, asst. principal; Kaye Scutfield, music; Nancy Dingus, home ec.; Howard Wallen, p.e. and boys' basketball coach; Stephen Halbert, special vocational careers; Alicia M. Hughes, music; Marie Mullins, home ec.; Rondal Prater, driver

House Interim Committee Views Strip-Mine Sites in This Area

Members of the state legislature's Interim Joint Committee on Agriculture and Natural Resources traveled through eastern Kentucky last Thursday viewing strip-mining sites in the Prestonsburg area.

The committee is studying the various aspects of strip-mining and reviewing reclamation procedures to determine if legislation is adequate to regulate this type of coal mining.

The committee inspected 11 strip-mine sites on a tour which was designed to give the legislators a look at the mining and land reclamation techniques being used in eastern Kentucky.

Several of the mine sites visited by the committee were examples of reclamation which had not been handled properly and resulted in erosion and landslides. These sites were suggested to the legislators by eastern Kentucky environmental groups and the Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection.

The committee also visited areas where reclamation had been done properly and the land was considered suitable for home building. Rep. James "Jitter" Allen (D), of Martin, was impressed by the reclamation efforts he saw.

"The overall picture has improved greatly since the last time the committee visited the eastern Kentucky area," he said. Allen said if the legislature is going to enact any new laws dealing with surface mining they will have to wait until the federal mining bill is enacted. That bill is being completed by a conference committee where differences between the U.S. Senate version and the House of Representatives version will be worked out. President Jimmy Carter has said he will sign the legislation.

HUD To Supply $750,000 as Aid On Flood Loss

Of the more than $2 million damage suffered by Floyd county schools during the April flood, HUD will reimburse the school system $750,000, Supt. of Schools E. P. Grigsby, Jr. said this week. Some latent damages, such as equipment later found to be faulty as a result of the flood, may later be reimbursed, he said.

To qualify for the assistance, HUD required the board of education to buy flood insurance covering Prestonsburg High School and Allen Elementary. But such insurance was not required for Betsy Layne, Harold and Martin schools, three of the hardest hit by the flood.

The superintendent said flood insurance will be procured for the other schools, although it is not demanded as a prerequisite to federal aid.

One controversy remains between the board and HUD. The school system lost 10 school buses parked at the flooded Allen garage. These were models ranging from 1965 through 1970. The board asked HUD to replace or repair them, but the federal agency is willing to allow only $4,700 for the lot.

Grigsby said used school buses, some older than those lost by Floyd county, sold in Lexington recently for $2,495 each.

Perkins Slates Meets To Talk Flood Problem

Congressman Carl D. Perkins will hold two public meetings in Pike county, June 18, to discuss plans and proposals for providing greater flood protection in the Tug and Levisa forks of the Big Sandy River.

Representatives of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers will be present at both meetings.

Flood protection on the Tug Fork will be discussed at a meeting beginning at 10 a.m. Saturday, June 18, at Belfry High School.

Plans and proposals for the Levisa Fork will be the subject of a meeting at 2 p.m. the same day in the Pike county courthouse.

"We cannot afford to lose any more time in providing flood protection the people want and need in Eastern Kentucky," Perkins said.

"Already, I have asked the Corps of (See Story No. 3, Page 4)

Mrs. Willis Named Red Cross Chapter Executive Director

A special meeting of the board of directors of the Floyd County Chapter, American Red Cross Monday afternoon resulted in the unanimous approval by board members of the appointment of Mrs. Shelby Willis as new executive director of the Floyd chapter.

Mrs. Willis, wife of Donald A. Willis, of the Lake Road, near here, will succeed Hershall Joseph who resigned the post after accepting employment with the Kentucky Disabled American Veterans organization in Louisville.

Mrs. Willis, who assumed duties as executive director Tuesday, began working with Red Cross on a volunteer basis during the April flood disaster and Joseph cited her for her long hours of dedicated service during the disaster work.

Names of 2 Nominees For Magistrate Omitted

The Times was in error in its June 1 edition when it failed to list Republican nominees in two magisterial districts.

French Hensley is the Republican nominee in District 2 and will oppose Kenneth Roberts, Democrat, and Emerson "Bob" Brown was nominated by the Republican party in District 3. He will oppose Eddie Caudill, the Democratic nominee.

Also omitted was the name of Linden Elliott, Republican candidate for Constable in District 1.

All three were unopposed in the primary.

This Town...That World

Prospects of this column are, as of inst. date, rather slim. I am in the position of the oldtimers who always began their letters with this preamble: "I set myself down to drop you these few lines . . ." And I might, as they did, add that "this finds me very well, and hope you are the same."

LET IT ROAR!

Had some doubts that I'd ever live to see the day when I would welcome the crack-of-doom sound of thunder, but Monday was the exception. It was great to hear this threat of rain. Better yet to see the threat made good . . . Fellow tried to make me believe it was so dry on his farm the crawfish had bored so deep for water that when they came up they had the bends.

MADE IT NORTH YET?

This came in the mail, months ago, from Hazel George, down in Florida, and was found, it would appear, just in time. It reads:

Pensacola has her beaches, And her winters, they are dandy,

But when teaching ends in June I head for good, ole Big Sandy! (and you may quote me.)

THE GOOD FORGOTTEN

I have, most of the time, an aversion to calling this bird by its common name. It runs through a repertoire of notes that would shame a mockingbird in a magnolia, and at such times I think of it as the poor man's nightingale. Then it sours on the world, it appears, and gives with those catty remarks, even as we humans do, and for this single flaw gets the name of catbird from us who forget all its song and focus on one fault.

Two Plants Still Tied By Strikes

Company and Union Agree on Restraints In Strike at Warco

Strikes at two Right Beaver Creek plants continue, and one reached circuit court last week.

The court action was that of Elkhorn Industrial Products Corp., of Warco, which filed last Friday a petition for a restraining order against Local Union 505, International Brotherhood of Teamsters, and 59 of its members.

The request for the restraining order was supported by affidavits of employees of the company who reported threats and acts of violence.

Warrants were issued for six members of the local. An agreement on a restraining order was reached Monday between the company and the union.

The agreed order enjoined the union from violence, threats of violence, coercion or intimidation; from picketing where such activity would interfere with entrance or exit to and from the plant; from congregating in or around plaintiff's premises so as to threaten the

Pike Co. Woman Killed in Wreck

A Pike county woman was killed in an auto wreck three miles north of here shortly before noon Saturday as she drove toward Huntington, W. Va. to visit her husband in Veterans Hospital.

The victim, Mrs. Oka Mullins, 55, wife of Delbert Mullins, of Caney Creek, Pike county, died almost instantly. Her 14-year-old niece, Lisa Mullins, of Ashland, a passenger in her car, was taken to Highlands Medical Center, suffering head lacerations.

State Trooper Keith Scott, who investigated the tragedy, said it was indicated that Mrs. Mullins, driving north, was following another vehicle and, attempting to pass it, met the auto of Charles Fletcher, 49, St. Albans, W. Va., head-on. Fletcher was uninjured. The body of Mrs. Mullins was removed from the wreckage by the Floyd County Emergency and Rescue Squad.

Rescue Squad Sets 1977 Radio Auction 4 Days This Week

The Floyd County Emergency and Rescue Squad's annual radio auction over Station WPRT will begin today (Wednesday) at 6 p.m. and continue through Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Broadcasts for the first three days will be from 6 to 9 p.m. The Saturday auction will begin at noon and continue till 9 p.m.

Capt. Graham Burchett, of the Rescue Squad, said the radio station will continue the auction Sunday, if necessary. He said the Squad had expenses of about $6,000 during the April flood and that it is badly in need of funds. He urged the public to participate in the radio auction which is one of the means available to the Squad to raise funds.

Board Employs Ronald Hager For 3 Years

Ronald L. Hager was employed by the Floyd County Board of Education last Wednesday as assistant superintendent of instruction for a three-year period ending July 1, 1980.

Mr. Hager had previously been under one-year contract, and the longer contract was recommended by Supt. of Schools E. P. Grigsby to coincide in termination with those of Supt. Grigsby and Asst. Supt. Ray Brackett.

Employment of the school system's central office personnel resulted in few changes. Those employed:

Wayne W. Ratliff, transportation director; John Campbell, Jr., assistant transportation director; Ned Bush, health coordinator; Gordon Moore, Anna Sue Stumbo and Ulyssus Horn, supervisors; Blanche Dingus, food service director; Richmond Slone and C. Phillip Dingus, directors of pupil personnel; Herbert Prater, director of pupil personnel and consultant in the training of the new director, Phillip Dingus, for the six-month period ending Dec. 31, 1977; Mildred Kendrick and Denzil Halbert, visiting teachers; Denzil Halbert, county athletic director, the latter post to be secondary to his work as visiting teacher; Audrey Pratt, Title VI child find coordinator; Larry Jervis, itinerant counselor; NYC personnel—Estill Hall, director, Eloise A. Hall, assistant director, and Sharon Justice, secretary-bookkeeper; James F. Francis, Title IV, Part C, phys ed consultant.

Travis Bush (right) listens to a history of the development of arts and crafts at Prestonsburg Community College. Bush Gallery is scheduled to open June 24.

Area Artists, Craftsmen Get Own Gallery, Gift of Bush

Area artists and craftsmen soon will have their own gallery here as a display and outlet facility.

Bush Gallery, which will be located at the rear of the Milady Dress Shop on North Lake Drive, has been made possible by Travis Bush, road-builder and coal operator.

Mr. Bush had been in conversation with builder, Carl Bradley, when he discovered the need for such a facility, and decided to donate building space for the promotion and encouragement of area artisans. In appreciation and acknowledgement of his generous gift, the Appalachian Guild of Artists and Craftsmen, Inc. was formed to facilitate the operation of the Bush Gallery.

Interest in arts and crafts has had its local stimulus. Since 1974, the Prestonsburg Community College Community Services Program, under the direction of James Ratcliff, has contributed courses offered in painting, photography and pottery. Starting with pottery classes taught by Naoma Powell in the already over-crowded art classroom, a small nucleus of serious potters began. A year later, it was decided that a guild would be formed for these more advanced potters and a move to the Magoffin Complex provided the Guild with its own facility. Several members of the Guild became capable of teaching beginners classes in pottery. These first teachers, Susan Taylor, Diane Kofford and Lynn Rogers, provide rotating leadership concerns of the Guild along with the current chairwoman, Marsha Bradley.

With the move to a new facility on campus to work out of, the forming of a guild and the use of local talent as potters for teachers, a large amount of pottery began to collect. A new need was emerging.

Along with this working structure, Okey Jackson, graduate of Berea College and Claremont Graduate School of California, returned to his home state of West Virginia and was commissioned to design and construct a high-firing stoneware kiln. The money for this project was also donated by a local business person. Jackson continued his support of the guild as a professional teacher and consultant. The guild promoted further education for potters by bringing in such well-known craftsmen as Charles Counts, Paul Soldner, Jerry Rothman, Gary Robertson and David Middlebrook for workshops that have had great support from potters from several surrounding states. These workshops have been funded in part by the Kentucky Arts Commission.

Out of the guild concept the college also sponsors a painters' guild, taught by Russell May and Tom Whitaker, a photography guild and, at one time, an active weavers guild.

HUD Helps 2,500 Families, Area Director Ingram Says

Jack Ingram, director of eastern Kentucky operations of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, said last week that "HUD has assisted more than 2500 families with its temporary housing program."

Progress is being made through the combined efforts of HUD employees, of which over half are residents of eastern Kentucky, the Corps of Engineers, private contractors and the cooperation of local citizens and officials," Ingram added.

The 14 mobile home parks known as group sites should all be completed and occupied by June 12. These sites are at various locations throughout the affected area.

Many other families are being assisted by HUD through the Mini Repair Program, which helps families whose homes can be made livable with a few basic repairs.

Approximately 3,000 living kits containing pots, pans, linens and tableware have been distributed to eligible applicants in need.

"The momentum now reached by HUD should assure the achievement of the Department's announced goal to provide temporary housing for 5,000 families by June 30," Ingram added.

IN APPRECIATION

I would like to express my appreciation to every one who sent flowers and food and to our many friends for their kindness. A very special thanks to Dale Merion and his staff for the service we received; to the Joppa church preachers and to Rev. Bob Smith and Rev. Speed Hall for the graveside service. For all this many thanks and may God bless each of you.

Floyd Youngsters To Attend 4-H Camp, June 27 to July 1

By JACK M. FRIAR
(County Extension Agent)

Special fun that includes making new friends, swimming and boating, sports and games and crafts and nature study is in the offing for Floyd county youngsters at 4-H camp this summer.

Last year, 132 4-H'ers from this county attended a Monday-Friday camp at Irish Acres. This year, Floyd boys and girls will go to camp there June 27-July 1.

Irish Acres is one of the five 4-H camps in the Commonwealth, all offering a wide variety of summer fun activities for youngsters in the 9-19 age range. Fun and learning, along with a chance to enjoy the outdoors, are the main ingredients to make this year's camp exciting.

The more active sports, such as basketball, volleyball and swimming are favorites of most campers, but many also find time for table tennis, shuffleboard, and even an occasional game of checkers. Neophyte archers and hunters can improve their skill on camp target ranges, and those who like to fish will be able to improve their casting skills at 4-H camp this year.

Young nature lovers can learn more about their environment and its resources, collect specimens and hike the many nature trails. And in craft classes, the 4-H'ers will have a chance to be creative and make something useful or decorative.

Trained instructors will help with these and other activities, teaching beginners and helping the more skilled campers observe safety rules, Friar says. In addition, special training in such subjects and nutrition and first aid are often part of the 4-H camping program.

Extension agents, adult and teen leaders also provide supervision for the young campers. And, coordinating the total camping program at Irish Acres this summer will be camp manager Toni Gardner, Salyersville, a graduate of U.K. and a former staff member at Feltner 4-H camp. The Kentucky Association of Electric Coop. (KAEC) provides salaries for managers of all the Kentucky 4-H camps.

For many 4-H campers, staying in cabins with other young people and adults is their first experience in group living. Getting to know other people and sharing fun and learning with them are valuable lessons in interpersonal relations for the campers, and informal

Perkins Stresses Summer Food Aid

In an effort to increase utilization of the summer food service program in the Seventh district, Congressman Carl D. Perkins has announced that school systems and any other public or non-profit organization can still qualify.

"This is a very fine program, designed to make sure that youngsters get a proper nutritional diet through the summer, but unfortunately the big cities are taking much more advantage of it than the rural areas," Perkins said.

"As the sponsor of the program, I want to see our communities get much more benefit from it," he added.

Perkins designed the program to provide free meals for those school age youngsters who normally qualify for the regular school lunch program.

He said sponsoring organizations can be schools, local governments, churches, community action agencies, day camps, and the program can be operated on any site. The major qualification is that the children should be individually certified to be eligible for free meals, or the site must be in an area where a third of the children are eligible to receive free and reduced price meals, under the regular school lunch program.

Congressman Perkins said interested organizations and schools should contact Redwood Taylor, co-director of the Division of School Food services in the Department of Education, in Frankfort.

A Change That Is Overdue

Kentucky's parole system at long last, and none too soon, may undergo change at the next session of the General Assembly.

The unrealistic method of handling prison terms may be completely abolished. Attorney General Robert Stephens announced recently that he will propose legislation which would provide a fixed sentence for each person convicted of a felony and that sentence to mean exactly what it says. No parole.

As the law now stands, parole is possible for a lifer only a year or so after one under 21-year sentence is eligible for release by the Parole Board. Juries disagree on the term to be given the person convicted when, in reality, there is little difference in the length of the sentence, whether it is life, 21 years or 15 years, courtesy of the parole law.

The attorney general and others who are proposing drastic changes in the parole system may supply a satisfactory answer to the questions which arise as a long-suffering public cannot understand how a parole board, far removed from the scene of the crime, can determine that a criminal shall go scot-free after serving only a fraction of the term imposed upon him by a jury.

Nor can the public, often under virtual siege by criminals, understand why government talks of crime prevention and at the same time frees from prison those who create the crime situation.

Somebody might, while they are considering the realities of penalizing the criminal, also suggest to the Legislature that the probation by trial judges of persons convicted of felonies be changed. This is not to argue that the first-time offender should not be given another chance, but we cannot see any sense in a system which gives one man the power to wipe out all the work of prosecution and the decision of a jury.

The defendant on trial for a felony has the advantage of three challenges to one for the Commonwealth in the selection of a jury. If he is unable to employ legal counsel, the state provides a public defender whose only task is to prepare for the defense of persons requiring his services. Conviction must be by unanimous vote of a jury of twelve. Anything less cannot mean conviction.

Then why a trial and conviction if the trial judge is to have the power to nullify the entire proceeding?

We trust somebody will suggest to the Legislature a law providing no probation for any person convicted by a jury after a full trial of his or her case. If they want probation, let them plead guilty, then let the judge grant probation if he is convinced it is deserved.

HOW IT BEGAN—OR DID IT?

Heard a fellow remark recently that he would not "knuckle down to any man." The expression was so interesting and evoked so many memories that I didn't take time to congratulate him on his determination.

"Knuckle down" . . . now there's one which, it occurs to me, originated in a game of marbles. There always was this fellow who couldn't, or wouldn't, rely on the strength and accuracy of his thumb to propel his taw but who "fudged," lifted his hand from the ground and in a quick forward motion gained two or three inches on the target. I have seen boys leave a marble game with skinned knuckles, and it wasn't from fighting. Some I have seen resist getting their knuckles down to the ground and keeping them there till they were forced to do so.

So it was. Boys knuckled down against their will, and when the expression took on the note of submission it became just as distasteful to their elders.

(Or that's the way I see it, looking back some distance.)

BETSY LAYNE F.H.A. ELECTS NEW OFFICERS

The officers plan to have a very active year.

The Betsy Layne Chapter also had two girls elected to Regional Offices for Region 11—Sherry Watkins for regional song leader and Anita Hamilton for regional reporter. These girls will be attending F.H.A. leadership camp, June 21-23 in Hardinsburg, Kentucky.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of Tony Wells.

It's been, just one year ago
Since you went away,
But oh, the pain, your leaving brought,
Words cannot explain.
I miss your kind and loving voice,
And Oh, your smile so sweet,
But all those loving memories,
Within my heart I'll keep.
And then one day, when life here ends,
Beyond the sunset blue,
I hope that we will meet once more,
In a land where dreams come true.

Sadly missed by parents,
Edward and Eula Mae Wells and Family,
Darrell, Mike, and Carolyn.

"Salad Bowl"

By WILMAY

It will be a treat if you ever hear eighteen-year-old Jerry Waugh, of Allen, deliver a sermon. He is the son of Rev. and Mrs. Earl Waugh, of Allen. Jerry takes careful aim, pulls no punches, gets us all right between the eyes, commands attention from first to last, has a message for Christians as much as for others. This fall, he will be a sophomore at Cumberland College, Williamsburg. While there last year he started a jail ministry that attracted considerable attention. Soul-winning is his favorite pastime. A 1976 graduate of Prestonsburg High, he leaves this week for summer mission work in Michigan.

The following startling figures are from his father's church bulletin, May 29. Rev. Waugh cited these reasons for continuing to preach against alcohol:

"Serious drinking problems affect 1.3 million Americans between the ages of 12-17. 450,000 youngsters between ten and nineteen are considered alcoholics. One third of U.S. high school students get drunk at least once a month. Three out of every four high school students drink (on average.) That's twice as many as just four years ago. Arrests for intoxication of boys 18 and younger have jumped 250 per cent in the same period. Four out of ten teen-agers involved with alcohol are females." (Quote from Temperance Magazine.)

Often parents set the example. Many are familiar with the story of the dad who learned that his daughter had just been killed coming home from her class prom. The report said a motor accident involving drunken driving. He vowed at once to kill the driver who caused it or the man who sold the liquor to the kids, then turned to his bar to get a "bracer" before going to the morgue. On top of the bottles there was a note from the dead girl that read: "Dad, I knew, since this night is special, that you'd not mind if we 'borrowed' some of your liquor." Not infrequently alcoholism starts with cocktails in the home, which can whet some appetites for stronger drinks. Prohibition was not perfect, largely because of failure to enforce it, but think how rapidly America has gone downhill since its repeal. Have we just begun to pay the price? One leading denomination

If you want a bird's-eye view of a pendulum swinging the right way at last do not miss "Crime in America" in the June Reader's Digest. The article has a great lesson, one a child should know without having to read it, one the U.S. has ignored for years, to her detriment.

"What TV Does to Kids" in the same issue is likewise tops and no less needed in our land. Christian leaders, parents, many teachers have upheld its philosophy for years, but who among us takes time to express ourselves to the Federal Communications Commission? Garbage has continued to flood American homes, influence youth, specially, and to keep many youngsters from being good students. Worse still, numerous parents and other adults squander some time that often could be better spent in other ways, though some recreation, etc., is essential, some TV programs excellent, and we get what we ask for.

Shepherd Bond Set at $25,000

The bond of Kenneth Shepherd, of David, who has been in jail here on a murder charge since June 27, was increased from $20,000 to $25,000 Tuesday by County Judge Henry Stumbo after testimony of Commonwealth witnesses was heard in a preliminary hearing. The first bond was set without hearing.

Carl Hicks, father of Darrell Hicks, 24, whom Shepherd is accused of slaying, told of seeing Shepherd fire a shotgun charge through a window of the auto in which his son was a passenger. He said that his son, carrying a rifle, then ran some distance. The shooting took place in front of the Carl Hicks home on the Open Fork of Middle Creek.

Defense witnesses had contended that Hicks had first shot Shepherd through his arm with a .22-calibre rifle, but Coroner James J. Carter quoted Dr. Maldwin, who examined Shepherd, as saying he was told Shepherd's arm wound was the result of an accident. The coroner told of the victim's wounds and said there were glass fragments in his face and neck.

The defense offered no testimony, but Cassie Allen, attorney for the accused man, asked about the position of the two cars occupied by the victim, Shepherd and others. She also inquired about the rifle which was said to have been in Hicks' possession, and the victim's father said that he did not recognize the weapon.

Summer Jobs

Summer jobs for disadvantaged youth who meet poverty guidelines and who plan to attend college or vocational schools this fall will be offered through the Community Action Program this summer. Work begins June 20 and will last for a five-week period. Funds are made available by the Eastern Kentucky Concentrated Employment program. Floyd county students who are interested in a job may call 886-3889 or 886-3697 or call at the C.O.E. office at Lancer or the C.A.P. office in the courthouse, Prestonsburg, for further information.

Changes Seen For Parole Law

Frankfort, Ky.—Kentucky Corrections Commission David Bland, has predicted the 1978 legislature will likely enact some changes in the state's parole laws, but added he did not know whether abolishing the system would be the right approach.

Bland said he has ordered a study into the state's parole laws, forecasting that the report would be completed by the time the 1978 general assembly convenes.

The corrections commissioner's comments came in the wake of State Attorney General Robert Stephens' announcement Wednesday night in Lexington of his plans to propose legislation to abolish parole during the next session of the legislature. Stephens explained under the system, each person convicted of a felony is meted out with a fixed sentence to be served without the benefit of parole.

Bland said Stephens' recommendation was "just one of several" his researchers were studying.

"I was not aware the attorney general was going to recommend that," Bland said in an interview. "But getting rid of parole altogether is just one of the recommendations, and I can't say at this time that will be the recommendation of the study group."

Bland said he was confident the legislature would discuss and probably adopt some modification of the parole system. But he said whether Stephens' recommendations, or that of his study group, are eventually adopted is pure conjecture.

Bland added that a concern of inmates during studies by his department had shown concern over the inequities of the current parole system.

"You are talking about objective decisions, and the inmates are concerned about equitable decisions by the members of the board of parole," he said.

Among the other suggestions being discussed is a program whereby prisoners would serve one-third of the sentences and the fixed "determinate" sentence whereby a person is sentenced for a full term and cannot be paroled.

"These have been discussed in other legislatures and adopted in some states," Bland said. "The one-third plan was even brought up in the last session of the legislature, but did not receive final action."

State PTA Elects Men to Top Posts

Kentucky PTA is no longer a woman's world. Men were elected to the top three jobs in the Kentucky Congress of Parents and Teachers last week at the annual convention held this year the Convention Center, Lexington.

The new president is Harold Steele, Lexington. The first president is Jack Hendrix, London; second vice-president, Bill Greenlee, Owensboro; and third vice-president, Mrs. Melvin Earls, Paducah. Continuing in office are the treasurer, Mrs. James Adkins, Catlettsburg, and secretary, Mrs. Edward Rupp, Louisville.

Governor Julian Carroll, guest-speaker at the closing session, noted that there needs to be more parental involvement in the educational areas, especially male involvement. KCPT has also showed this to be the direction to go in electing their officers.

Members of the KCPT board of managers from this area are Mrs. James Adkins, Catlettsburg, and Miss Blanche E. Dingus, Martin.

TO THE PEOPLE OF FLOYD COUNTY

I want to thank all of my supporters in the past election. Your support and votes were very appreciated. I ran an honest campaign and lost, but I may be a future candidate and I would very much appreciate your help. I met a lot of wonderful people and made many friends. Again, I say thanks to all of you.

Your friend,
Barbara R. Newsome

City May Regulate Sales of Weapons

Under its police power, a municipality, as well as the state, can regulate or prohibit ammunition and weapons sales without infringing on the right to keep or bear arms, according to an opinion from the Attorney General's office.

The opinion was in response to a letter from Sam Boyd Neely, of Mayfield, asking whether his city could pass such an ordinance, particularly regarding "Saturday night specials."

In answer to Neely's question, Assistant Attorney General Thomas R. Emerson said, "...the constitutional right to bear arms is intended to guarantee such rights to the people ... in defense of a common cause rather than to be used in private brawls or affrays." He cited Toledo and Chicago as cities whose gun-control ordinances had been upheld in court.

An ordinance regulating the sale of firearms within the city, Emerson added, cannot be "unreasonable, arbitrary or discriminatory in effect or classification."

THE U.S. DEPARTMENT of Labor has authorized a study to evaluate the impact of the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 on private pension plan investment behavior.

Song Fest Set at Grayson Lake

It's folk sing time in Eastern Kentucky!

On June 11-12 at Grayson Lake State Park between Grayson in Carter county and Sandy Hook in Elliott, the annual Kentucky Folk Song Festival will attract throngs of visitors from around the state and from many other states.

On these days the hills will resound with pickin' and singin' and everyone will have an opportunity to view arts and crafts and a variety of activities.

The festival is sponsored by the Northeast Kentucky Heritage Festival, Inc., and last year attracted more than 7,000 people. The event is part of the Corps of Engineers cultural heritage interpretive program at the lake.

The lake area includes camp site overlooking the water and some in woodland settings. There are broad fields white with daisies and sheltered coves abloom with wildflowers and native shrubs. Rhododendron and laurel blooms color cliff edges near the shoreline.

The festival will start at noon Saturday, June 11 with mountain and bluegrass music, plus arts and crafts displays. Skilled dancers will demonstrate the art of square dancing Saturday night. Sunday's planned program will be a hymn sing and folk music.

The exhibits will attract many visitors. Such events as an antique gun show and shooting demonstration, toy making, wildlife painting, antique car show, furniture making, clock and dulcimer craft, quilts, crocheting and knitting and other crafts traditional with the region will be set in a background of blue-green water and green hills and meadows.

There are trails for hiking and nature study, facilities for boating, fishing, swimming, picnics and maybe horseshoe pitching and passing ball. There are playgrounds for children, and spots here and there for those who want solitude.

The site for camping will be allotted on a first-come basis, but camp sites, lodge rooms and cottages might be available at nearby Carter Caves State Resort Park, motel rooms in the Grayson-Morehead-West Liberty area and in Ashland, which is only 25 miles south of the lake. The lake is accessible via Ky. Route 7 south from the Grayson exit of Interstate 64.

A number of singing and musical groups will entertain during the festival, and any others who wish to participate as well as artists and craftspeople who want to take part should contact Hubert Rogers, Box 180, Grayson, phones (606) 474-5123 or 474-6848.

PTA Honors Retiring Teacher

Thomas Tackett, principal of Prestonsburg Elementary School, is shown presenting flowers to Mrs. Mabel Allen, on behalf of the P.T.A.

The Prestonsburg Elementary P.T.A. recently presented a floral arrangement to Mrs. Mabel Allen to express appreciation for her many years of dedication and hard work, and to extend best wishes to her on her retirement.

Mrs. Allen has just completed 30 years of teaching. She taught six years at Auxier, and has been teaching at Prestonsburg Elementary for the past 24 years. She has spent most of these years teaching first grade.

Mrs. Allen resides at May's Branch with her husband, Woodrow, who retired last year from the Floyd school system.

Now that they are both retired, Mr. and Mrs. Allen plan to do some travelling and spend more time with their two sons and their families. Their older son, Bill, has recently moved with his family to Colorado. Their younger son, Woody, resides with his wife at Kansas City, Missouri.

Mrs. Allen says the other teachers at PRESTONSBURG Elementary have been wonderful to work with and that she will miss them and the children. "It has been hard, sometimes, but in the end it's all worth it," she said. "Nothing is more rewarding than teaching first graders."

'KENTUCKY MAGAZINE' PRESENTS A SERIES OF APPALSHOP FILMS

"America has rich cultural treasures untold in these dark hills of Appalachia. Until lately, life here remained isolated and almost untouched by the mainstream of mass American society."

Started five years ago as an experiment, Appalshop films have now documented Appalachian history, culture and contemporary social problems and shown the people of Appalachia and their struggle for survival.

KET's "Kentucky Magazine" will present four Appalshop films—"Sourwood Mountain Dulcimers," "Chairmaker," "This World Is Not My Home" and "Ourselves and That Promise"—during June.

"Sourwood Mountain Dulcimers" features I. D. Stamper, a dulcimer player who has become a musical legend in Eastern Kentucky. The program documents dulcimer building and playing in the mountains of Appalachia and depicts the passing of a heritage from an older master, Stamper, to a younger man, John McCutcheon. "Sourwood Mountain Dulcimers" airs Sunday, June 5 and Wednesday, June 8 at 7:30 p.m. (ET), 6:30 p.m. (CT).

"Chairmaker" airs Wednesday, June 15 at 7:30 p.m. (ET), 6:30 p.m. (CT). This segment looks at Dewey Thompson, an 80-year-old chairmaker who does everything involved with making his chairs including chopping down the tree.

"This World Is Not My Home" is a film portrait of a 78-year-old coal miner, Nimrod Workman. "I worked in the mines since 1913," he says. "In 1956 it got so bad with my lungs that they had to bring me outside and I would never go back to the mines no more to work."

Workman, a singer who writes and performs songs and traditional ballads, reminisces about life as a miner and sings traditional Appalachian songs Wednesday, June 22 at 7:30 p.m. (ET), 6:30 p.m. (CT).

"Ourselves and That Promise" is a special bicentennial portrait of four

Kentucky artists. The program, airing Wednesday, June 29 at 7:30 p.m. (ET), 6:30 p.m. (CT), includes the work of three Kentucky writers who read their poetry and discuss how it relates to their Kentucky heritage. Also included is the work of Kentucky bird painter John James Audubon and the photographs of Courier-Journal photographer Billy Davis.

'Want Mountains Flat,' Carroll Tells Congress

By BRYAN WILKINS
(In The Lexington Herald)

PIKEVILLE, Ky.—Declaring that the future of Kentucky depends on the success of the coal industry, Gov. Julian M. Carroll last night said his administration had "vastly improved the pending strip mine bill in Congress."

Carroll, addressing the Coal Operators and Associates at Pikeville College, outlined lobbying efforts made by top officials in the state Department of Natural Resources and Environmental Protection before congressional committees drafting the strip mine legislation.

"We vastly improved the bill. It's still not perfect or the way we would want it worded, but we can live with it," Carroll said.

Carroll said an earlier proposal for the bill to require a return of strip mined land to its original contour is a "congressional hang-up."

I told the Congress we don't want the mountains back to the way they were. We want them flat."

The governor said mountain-top removal technology was incorporated into the pending bill after he appealed to President Carter to let Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus come to Kentucky to view Kentucky mining practices.

However, in a prepared speech, Carroll promised to enforce the federal strip mine law that emerges from a Congressional conference committee, even if regulations adopted are not the ones state officials had recommended.

Carroll said the versions of the strip mine bill, awaiting action in a conference committee, are radically different in several key areas. He added at this time, no one could predict the ultimate outcome of what the forecast would be a "very difficult, tedious and long conference committee effort" to reconcile the two versions of the law.

"In spite of this, it is an absolute certainty that there will be a federal strip mining law passed by this Congress, approved by the President and effective this calendar year," Carroll told the coal operators annual meeting in Pikeville. "It then will be incumbent on me, as governor of this commonwealth, to do all within my power to administer this legislation effectively, efficiently and

Columbia Says No Pullback Planned

The Columbia Gas Transmission Corp. is not pulling back from its drilling program, as was reported recently by The Times, according to the company's public relations department in Charleston, West Virginia.

It plans, according to a statement released Friday, to drill eight wells in Pike county this year at a cost of more than $1 million and to drill in the state a total of 24 wells which will cost an estimated $3.1 million.

In fact, three of the Pike county wells have already been drilled. One was a "dry hole," but the other two apparently are producers, since the company statement said they had not been "fully evaluated."

All eight are developmental wells, located near Majestic, where the company already has facilities.

The wells are among 99 scheduled by Columbia Transmission this year in Kentucky, West Virginia, Virginia and Ohio as a part of its effort to improve its overall gas supply. The 99 wells are expected to cost a total of $15.5 million.

Carroll Tours Pike Flood Areas

Temporary housing residents in Pikeville gather around Gov. Julian Carroll to give him their comments and complaints about relief efforts for the spring flood that devastated the area. Carroll visited Eastern Kentucky this week to survey the progress of flood cleanup operations.

Gov. Julian Carroll has promised area residents that he will report their flood-relief problems to President Carter and federal government officials.

In a two-day tour of Pike county last week, the governor fielded questions and listened to complaints of area flood victims concerning delays in assistance and problems with federal housing officials in the county.

Carroll pointed out that the state's role in the disaster was one of immediate action while the federal government is responsible for most relief in the aftermath of the flood.

He said he is willing, however, to call the President and voice the victims' complaints. "I really feel I should notify President Carter and give him an outline of what I have seen in the area," said Carroll. "I believe this will benefit him by serving as a guide to his assessment of the federal programs offered in the flood area."

Carroll's response followed a series of meetings with flood victims throughout the county. He spent the first day of his tour surveying flood cleanup operations, visiting Pikeville, Peter Creek, Blackberry Creek and South Williamson-Pond Creek, the areas hardest hit by the April flooding.

The governor said he was concerned with the slow federal response to the flood, especially in the areas of the family assistance, grant assistance and housing programs, cleanup operations and flood insurance.

"They have not done as good a job as I thought they were capable of doing. However well intentioned, well meaning the plans were, they're just not working out right," Carroll said.

Although the state has no control in the area, Carroll promised to "pass the word" on the problems to federal officials as well as to members of Kentucky's congressional delegation.

"We want to help, but I am not, and state government is not, a sugar-daddy. We must be practical. The aid cannot put you back like you were before the flood," the governor cautioned the flood victims.

Carroll combined his inspection of the flood cleanup with another of his visits with state government employees in his Governor-to-Government program. He met with state employees at their various offices in Pike county to discuss both existing problems and new ideas for improving the operation of state government.

During his visit, Carroll also attended a breakfast with local elected officials and hosted a picnic lunch for all state workers in Pike county.

Ex-Mayor Appointed Housing Commission Member by Council

The Prestonsburg City Council last week named Former Mayor William O. Goebel a member of the Municipal Housing Commission. He succeeds Edw. Music.

The Council authorized advertising for bids on three new vehicles, a police cruiser, a street truck and a garbage truck, but bids will be delayed until September because of the time that already has elapsed in the motor vehicle season.

Bids authorized for a new floodwall pump will be asked immediately, however, and new street markers are now being advertised for bids.

Nature Trails

By Rufus M. Reed

Every way you look now, as far as the eye can see, you behold mountains arrayed in fresh, new green. This season, the green looks lush, fresh and vigorous. It covers the earth, in infinite shades and hues. We see the newborn, grayish-green of the white oaks, rejoicing in new-found life. And there's the reddish-green of the black oaks and red oaks as they don themselves in swaddling green. And there's the pea-green of the tulip poplars and the dark green of the buckeyes. There is a glaucous green of the sumacs, which glows like livid flames in the bright sun. Then there's the glossy green of the post oaks and chinquapin oaks.

We also behold the light yellowish-green of the hickories, the bluish-green of white pines, and the dark, somber green of the yellow pines.

Each leaf, in fact, has its own particular shade of green. There are tens of thousands different shades and tints on the newborn leaves of May. May is the fullness of green glory of the mountains. You may behold the tall mountains lifting their green shoulders to the azure skyline. Then you may see the fancy ruffles of green along the crest of the mountain. The green cascades and flows, uphill and down, and onward goes across hills, valleys, ravines, until it clothes the whole earth in a lush mantle of green.

May is the month of full-grown glory of our hills. Last winter there was not a touch of green to be seen on the drab gray hills; now the green has burst forth in rich splendor and our earth is glad and gay in the beauty of May.

Green is a restful, healing color of Nature. It soothes the winter-flawed earth; it heals earth's wounds and scars. Green is a healing-power for the soul of man; green soothes and heals the human heart. The green woods of May invite all to come and find peace in the green-decked cloisters of the forest.

Where do the leaves get their green? The green leaf is the greatest work of nature. The green is the chlorophyll of the leaf. Only the wisdom of Nature can make chlorophyll. The smartest scientist in his laboratory cannot make a single ounce of chlorophyll. It is the magic stuff of Nature. Apparently it comes in abundance overnight, as it were, from Nature's great storehouse of secrets and soon colors the earth with the magic of green.

Chlorophyll is the most important substance in all this universe. Without green chlorophyll and its great work, life would soon perish from the earth.

Chlorophyll makes all the foods that sustain mankind and the lower animals. It uses the energy of the sun and the elements of the air to make carbohydrates. It produces our beans, corn, potatoes and all garden vegetables. It feeds the body of man and heals the wounds of his heart and soul.

Like David of old, we should lift up our eyes unto the green hills, from whence cometh our help and all good things.

One Week To Register For Beef Referendum

The second and final week of registration for the national beef referendum began Monday and will end Friday, June 17.

Floyd county producers can register at the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) office in Prestonsburg, then return the first two full weeks of July to cast their votes.

At stake is the beef research and information plan—a producers' self-help plan to strengthen beef markets here and abroad, increase research to solve beef industry problems and improve communications throughout the cattle business. The plan would be funded by a 30c per $100 deduction on all cattle sales, but any producer who does not want to participate can get a prompt refund.

Any legitimate cattle producer is eligible to register and vote, including FFA and 4-H youths. There is no age limit.

Mt. Care Center Director Resigns, To Go to Ashland

Richard T. Stai has resigned the post of executive director of the Mountain Comprehensive Care Center here to assume the same post with the Ashland-based Landsdowne Mental Health Center.

The Landsdowne Center, which is similar in organization and functions to Mountain Comprehensive Care, served Boyd, Greenup, Carter, Lawrence and Elliott counties. Mr. Stai will succeed David Harkins at Landsdowne.

Mountain Comprehensive Care's executive committee met Monday evening to consider Stai's resignation and possibly to begin the search for a new director.

Mr. Stai came here almost 11 years ago from Baltimore. His resignation becomes effective July 15.

Mountain Comprehensive Care, which has weathered at least one financial crisis in the last year, was described by Mr. Stai as now being "pretty stable." He added that he thinks this situation will prevail another two to three years.

He said he viewed his new work as a challenge. "I perhaps also felt," he added, "that, as a church sometimes needs a new pastor or a pastor a new church, the work here needed some new blood."

THANK YOU

We would like to take this opportunity to thank each one who showed their sympathy and respect in any way upon the passing of our beloved mother, Darkie Owens. To the ones who brought food, the Hall Brothers Funeral Home and the ministers of the Regular Baptist Church, and for all the beautiful flowers, we want each to know we appreciate it more than words can say.

Governor Praises Community Action Agencies Efforts

Governor Julian Carrol has designated the week of May 30 through June 3rd as Community Action week in acknowledgement of the vital part that the CAAs played in the recent flood that made disaster areas of 15 counties.

Dr. Graciela Olivarez, the new director of the Community Services Administration, the federal anti-poverty agency, in commenting on the part played by the CAAs during the April floods, said, "These Community Action Agencies are already in place in hundreds of communities throughout the United States. They stand ready with trained people, facilities and the ability to secure federal support whenever a community disaster such as the flood hits. We are proud and pleased with the performance that the CAAs were able to make in helping the flood victims in Kentucky."

The federal Disaster Assistance Administration set up eight disaster relief centers where federal state and local agencies were able to offer assistance to flood victims. The Community Action Agencies backed by $175,000 from the Community Services Administration through its Region Office in Atlanta, were in the forefront of relief work. This work included aid for temporary housing, moving and storage of salvaged goods, emergency food and clothing, transportation, rental of water pumps, and cleaning of homes after the receding of the flood waters.

The Big Sandy Community Action Program staff at Paintsville took on the task of flood relief for Floyd and Martin counties. Food was the chief item needed in the first week of the flood and the CAA staff cooked and delivered meals, sometimes by boat, for over 300 persons. This meant a working day that started at 5 a.m. and often went on till almost midnight. The Community Services Administration, parent federal agency of the Community Action Program groups, sent $60,000 to the Big Sandy CAP and $27,000 of it was used exclusively for food.

Distribution of clothing to families who had lost everything in the flood and supplying transportation for people to disaster centers was the second main activity of the CAA group.

The final massive task after the flood waters had subsided was to organize clean-up crews. This meant Labor Department programs and the CAA staff working together in a joint effort to get mud out of homes, spoiled food out of stores, temporary housing, especially for the elderly, and furniture moved by trucks volunteered by local businesses and national firms.

Vote Check Fails To Disclose Error

The check last week of all voting machines used in the May 24 primary and the recount of absentee ballots by the county election commissioners did not affect the results in any race for office.

County Attorney Harold J. Stumbo said this week that he had heard a radio report to the effect that information saying that dead persons had been voted in the primary had been supplied him.

"No such information has been given me," the county attorney said. "If there is any infraction connected with the primary election to report, it should be reported to the Commonwealth's Attorney for grand jury action."

McDOWELL NET STAR HONORED

Steve Mark Newsome, who earlier had been acclaimed McDowell High School's most valuable basketball player, will represent his school in the 1977 edition of the High School Athletics Yearbook, it is announced by the editors of Coach and Athlete Magazine.

Selections to Coach and Athlete's High School Athletics Yearbook were made by high school athletic directors throughout the country.

Coaches were asked to choose the best athletes in a sport on the basis of athletic ability, including statistics and overall performance; sportsmanship, and personal leadership displayed by participation in school or community activities. Both juniors and seniors were eligible for nomination.

Fourth Annual Community Development Awards Banquet Held Here May 28

The fourth annual Floyd County Community Development Awards Banquet was held May 28 at Prestonsburg High School, and a number of communities were honored for their accomplishments in community improvement over the past year.

Awards were given for community development clubs in three categories: Village, Rural Non-Farm and Farm.

Winner in the Farm category was the Abbott Creek Community Development Club. The Abbott club received the award for activities including the sponsoring, in association with the Homemakers club, of the annual Christmas supper, sponsoring of a pesticide education meeting for 67 people, and efforts to improve water service. A community clean-up is currently being conducted and a cookout for the club's June meeting is planned. In addition, the club collected clothing and food for area flood victims. President of the club is James Russell Shepherd.

The Weeksbury Community Development Club was presented the first place plaque in the Rural Non-Farm category for its efforts in community improvement which included eight community educational programs, a Christmas party for 350 children, a covered-dish dinner for 100 community residents, building of three new picnic tables for the community park, a carnival and several auctions to raise money for community projects, collection of clothing and food for flood victims, sponsoring of a pesticide and Cooperative Extension Service garden program, and support of 173 who attended 4-H Day Camp. Club president is Peggy Bradford.

In the Village category, David took top honors. Over the past year a monthly newsletter was published which is sent to 260 persons, and the town received the Governor's Beautification Award for the most improved community. The club also collected food and clothing for sufferers of flood damage, held the second annual birthday celebration for David, and is currently involved in getting improved water and sewer service and is working with the Woman's Club on a one-day homecoming celebration, June 11. The David club's president is Ashland "Hawk" Howard. Achievement certificates were presented to WPRT, WDOC and The Floyd County Times in appreciation for their assistance in community development, and a special presentation was made to Prestonsburg City Manager Curtis Clark for initiating the awards program for community development.

One Held Here In T.C.T. Gas Station Robbery

A Prestonsburg man was jailed Thursday in connection with the armed robbery the preceding night of the T.C.T. Service Station at Katy Friend, and bail totalling $3,500 is asked for his release.

Ellis Joe "Bo" Campbell was booked in Prestonsburg Police Judge Tom Lafferty's court after Police Sgt. Darrell J. Conley arrested him at Indian Hills housing development here and confiscated the .25-caliber pistol which was allegedly used in the robbery as well as a .22-caliber pistol which was reportedly taken from the service station attendant.

Campbell, who allegedly stole $100 in cash, $8 worth of gasoline and the attendant's gun, was charged with robbery in the first degree and violation of the federal firearms act.

Last Wednesday's robbery marked the second time the station has been struck by felons this year. In January, station attendant Cletus Boyd was wounded in an armed robbery.

Deputy Sheriff Doug Lewis and Prestonsburg Police Chief Ralph Thornsbury last Thursday arrested Ricky Adkins, of Dwale, and Tommy DeRossett, of Prestonsburg, in connection with the burglary, the previous night, of the Big Y Market at Allen where more than $300 in cash and a .357 magnum pistol were stolen. Adkins, 18, confessed to robbing the market, which is owned by James Fulk, as well as another robbery two weeks ago in which $90 was stolen from Mitchell's Gulf Service at Lancer. Adkins was charged with first degree burglary in the Big Y robbery and second degree burglary for the robbery of the service station. DeRossett was charged with first degree burglary.

Two juveniles, one from Floyd county, the other a resident of Knott, allegedly stole $400 in cash and caused an additional $400 damage in the break last Wednesday of Collins' Hardware at Lackey. Sheriff Joe W. Lewis picked up the youths Friday and recovered the stolen merchandise.

Others booked at the county jail over the past week, charges against each and arresting officers follow:

Jimmy Hall, attempt to elude police officers, by State Trooper Castle; Donald Robinson, drunk driving, by Deputy Sheriff Denver Spurlock; Tom Bixler, drunk driving, by Wayland Policeman Norman Thornsbury and Constable Bob Hackworth; Jack Patton, drunk driving, by Sheriff Joe W. Lewis, and Deputy Sheriffs Doug Lewis, Linzie Hunt, and Ollie Leslie; Dean Kilgore, drunk driving, by Sheriff Joe W. Lewis and Deputy Sheriff Ollie Leslie; Paul Tackett, drunk driving, by State Trooper Akers; Randy Tackett, drunk driving, by Deputy Sheriffs J. # Kentucky Afield

By JOHN WILSON

Kentucky's deer hunters need to plan ahead—especially those who like to hunt on one or more of the wildlife management areas of military posts which require advance reservations.

Four popular deer hunting areas, in addition to a new deer area this year, require that hunters participate in drawings to determine who gets to hunt, or in some cases when. So if you want to hunt in one of these areas, circle the application dates on your calendar so you won't forget them.

But don't get too anxious either. Four of these areas won't accept applications before certain dates, so being early is just as bad as being late. To be considered, an application must be received within the specified time frame.

The Ballard County Wildlife Management Area, in far western Kentucky, will be opened to deer hunting for the first time in many years. This area has a good deer population—too good, in fact. Biologists want to reduce the deer herd size to lessen the chances of disease and overbrowsing, so six weekend hunts will be conducted there, three with firearms and three with bow and arrow.

The dates for the gun hunts are Oct. 21 and 22, Oct. 28 and 29 and Nov. 5 and 6. The archery hunts will be held Oct. 16 and 17, Oct. 23 and 24 and Oct. 30 and 31. Applications for the drawing to determine who will hunt (each two-day hunt is limited to 120 hunters) will be accepted by letter during the period between July 1 and July 14 only.

Mail the application (more than one from an individual will disqualify that applicant) to: Manager, Ballard County Wildlife Management Area, Rt. 1, LaCenter, Ky. 42056. Write "archery" or "gun" in the lower left corner of the envelope, and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Letters must contain: the name of each applicant (limit 2), address, age, telephone number, hunting license number, method of hunting (gun or bow) and first, second and third choice of hunting dates. All persons submitting applications will be notified whether or not they were successful in the drawing. Those whose names were drawn will have 14 days to mail back the $10 fee.

At the Higginson-Henry Wildlife Management Area (Union county), the gun deer hunt will be held Nov. 15 and 16. Applications are required for gun hunting and requests will be accepted only between Aug. 13 and Noon Sept. 3. Requests received before or after these dates will be discarded. Mail requests for application to: Manager, Higginson-Henry Wildlife Management Area, Rt. 5, Morganfield, Ky. 42437. All requests for applications must be accompanied by a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

At Land Between the Lakes in Western Kentucky, applications for gun hunts (Nov. 7, 11, 16 and 19) and for the special youth hunt (Nov. 5) must be postmarked no later than midnight, Aug. 10. You can write for an application for the computerized drawing to: Kentucky Deer Hunt, Land Between the Lakes, Golden Pond, Ky. 42231. LBL will also send you a complete rundown of their hunting regulations, which often differ greatly than statewide rules.

Those wishing to hunt at Ft. Knox during the Dec. 3, 4, 10 and 11 gun season should mail their applications between Sept. 6 and Sept. 16. Bow hunting will be permitted from Oct. 1 through Oct. 31, and applications for archery permits must be received between Aug. 1 and Aug. 20. Separate applications are required for each hunt, and each application must be accompanied by a $10 certified check or money order payable to the Treasurer of the United States. Mail applications to: Ft. Knox Conservation and Beautification Committee, P. O. Box 1052, Ft. Knox, Ky. 40121.

The Bluegrass Army Depot, Madison County, will hold both gun hunts (Dec. 3, 4 and 17) and bow hunts (Oct. 15, 16, 29 and 30) this year. Applications must be postmarked no earlier than Aug. 15 and no later than Sept. 15. More than one application from an individual will disqualify that hunter. Applications must be mailed on a postcard and include name of hunter (one person only) address, age, telephone number and method of hunting (gun or archery). The depot charges a $10 fee, payable only after the hunter is notified of his selection and specific hunting date.

Ft. Campbell (Christian and Trigg Counties), generally does not announce specific details of its reservation procedure until sometime in September. Hunters wishing to visit this installation should write directly to: Hunting and Fishing Unit, Outdoor Recreation Branch, Ft. Campbell, Ky. 42223.

Mt. Music Concert Set At Jenny Wiley

Dick and Anne Albin, widely-known performers of traditional folk and mountain music, will present a concert, "Up Mountain, Down Holler," Thursday night (June 9) at the Jenny Wiley State Park campground recreation hall.

Kentucky's state parks are featuring the Albins for the third year of music and entertainment as the couple's presentation of music, folklore and mountain traditions have made them popular wherever they perform.

The Albins will travel to twelve parks in eastern Kentucky offering concerts of traditional mountain songs as well as those they have written. They will also do an informal concert on instruments they build themselves.

ATTENDS INSURANCE SCHOOL

The school, conducted from May 23-27, was designed to supplement the knowledge and skills acquired by the agents during their initial training program with the company.

Gardening in the South

FRED C. GALLE
Director of Horticulture
Ida Cason Callaway Foundation
Callaway Gardens

The azalea season is not over; it's only half begun. All too often, after the first flush of Kurume and Southern Indian azaleas fade, gardeners and nurserymen think the azalea season is over. Fortunately, with proper selection of both native and introduced evergreen species, one can have azaleas in flower from late March until July and August.

There are three major groups of plants within the evergreen azaleas that have mid-and-late flowering varieties: the Glenn Dale, Back Acre and Satsuki.

The popular Glenn Dale azaleas, a large flowered type developed at the National Arboretum in Washington, D. C. include early, mid-season, and the late varieties. Back Acre azaleas are an extension of the Glenn Dale azaleas developed by the late B. Y. Morrison, former director of the United States Arboretum, who also worked at the Glenn Dale Plant Introduction Station in Beltsville, Md. They are generally considered as mid-to late-season varieties, with large flowers on heat-resistant plants.

Satsuki azaleas are of Japanese origin and are noted for their large, single flowers on low or dwarf plants. The Japanese word, 'Satsuki', means 'fifth month' and generally this group produces its flowers in May and early June. Included in the Satsuki group are the 'Macrantha' and 'Gumpo' azaleas. The majority of these plants are known by their tongue-twisting Japanese names.

The Satsuki azaleas sport freely and have great variability in the color and form. A typical white flowered plant, for example, may appear flecked, variegated, or colored, all on the same plant.

Due to the large, fragile flowers, the mid to late flowering azaleas should be given protection from midday and afternoon sun. Rabbits have a fondness for the attractive 'Gumpo' azaleas and will chew the twigs to the ground, in preference to other plants.

The azalea trails at Callaway Gardens have a good display of the middle and late season azaleas. The Gardens was one of the first public gardens to display the relatively new Back Acre hybrid azaleas.

The following partial list will aid gardeners in adding colorful azaleas for flowering in May and June:

WHITE AND VARIEGATED:
Glenn Dales, 'Everest', 'Swansong', 'Wavelet', 'Moonbeam' and 'Fawn'.
Back Acre hybrid 'White Jade'.
Satsuki hybrids 'Gumpo', 'Gunrie', 'Kinghsu', and 'Gyokushu'.
ORANGE TO ORANGE-PINK:
'Flame Creeper'
Satsuki hyb. 'Okina-nishiki'
Back Acres hybrids 'Target', 'Pat Craft', 'Margret Douglas', 'Glenn Dale hybrid 'Eros'
PINK TO ROSE-RED:
Glenn Dale hybrids 'Pearl Bradford', 'Sterling', 'Sagittarius' and 'Cremona'.
Back Acre hybrids 'Debonaire' and 'Marion Lee'.
Satsuki hybrids 'Macrantha', 'Wakabisu', 'Pink Gumpo' and 'Mai-hime'.

VIOLET:
Glenn Dale hybrids 'Sarabande', 'Chanticleer' and 'Dauntless'.

Our 'unsung' beautiful native azaleas are becoming popular and several species are important for their late bloom. These follow in the order of their blooming season. RHODODENDRON VISCOSUM, the swamp azalea, produces white fragrant flowers in May. RHODODENDRON CALEDULACEUM, the popular flame azaleas of the Appalachian Mountains, is not fragrant, but produces vivid orange to orange-red flowers in late May and early June. RHODODENDRON BAKERI, the Cumberland Azalea, is very similar to the flame azalea with typically orange-red flowers in early to mid June. Two fragrant, white native azaleas are R. ARBORESCENS, sweet azalea, and R. SERRULATUM, the Hammocksweet azalea, both flowering in early July.

The rare plumleaf azalea, RHODODENDRON PRUNIFOLIUM, begins to display its showy, red flowers in early July. Depending on individual plants, it may be in flower as late as August and September.

All native azaleas are true rhododendrons and are not related to honeysuckles, a common misconception.

The Gardens has one of the finest collections of both native and introduced azaleas for the public to view. Truly, in May, the azalea season is not over, for there are many beautiful plants yet to flower.

Wayne Water-Mill Is Entered on the National Register

The last known surviving log mill in Kentucky, the Adkins-Hurt Mill in Wayne county, was recently entered on the National Register of Historic Places.

According to Mrs. Eldred W. Melton, executive director of the Kentucky Heritage Commission, the mill, owned by Andrew W. Kanaby, of Detroit, Mich., is located near the Tennessee border on the Little South Fork of the Cumberland River. The grist mill, one of the last of a once-common structure, may be the state's only turbine-powered mill still in existence. The two-story mill is constructed of large, hewed poplar logs.

Mrs. Melton said that the mill is in good condition and appears to be structurally sound. "The milldam," she said, "which was rebuilt about 70 years ago, is constructed of large stone blocks. Its mechanical workings, including the original hewn wood water wheel, which is in good condition, have been removed and stored."

Mrs. Melton said that Benjamin Adkins Sr., a Virginia native, constructed the mill in 1836. Adkins, his wife and sisters were probably among the early settlers of Wayne county when they arrived in the late 1700's. When Adkins was killed by Indians in 1839, only three years after the construction of the mill, he left his land and property to his wife and upon her death to their son, Benjamin. "It seems likely," said Mrs. Melton, "that Benjamin Adkins Jr. ran the mill until he and his wife left the state in 1864."

SEVENTY-TWO percent of the 4 million divorced women in the United States were in the labor force in March 1975.

THANKS!

To the Voters who voted for Foster Porter in District 3:

I sure am not a bit mad at anybody for voting against me. Everybody should vote. My leg that was hurt in a fall is not well yet, so I did not make even one trip, electioneering. I figured I'd better not go out on crutches or a cane, asking for votes for Constable.

We have an important election this fall. Please go out and vote. Then later you see if you made a mistake or not.

Smoking: the Bright Side

(This is the fifth of a series of six articles to inform readers of this newspaper about various aspects of heart and blood vessel diseases.)

"The bright side of smoking still deals with not smoking," commented an American Heart Association spokesman. "It is encouraging that damage to the heart and lungs can be repaired by the body itself, even after many years of smoking. Those who quit smoking have a lower mortality risk than those who continue. In time the amount of risk declines to the level of a non-smoker. The point is, it's never too late to quit."

Anti-smoking groups are making inroads in this country. Federal bans have been implemented on smoking in sections of planes, trains and buses. And legislative action in some states has restricted smoking in certain public places, on the basis of health, not fire.

Although smoking among adults has declined slightly in recent years, the percentage of early teenage smokers has risen sharply. A man who smokes a pack a day has double the risk of a heart attack, and five times the risk of stroke, as the non-smoker. The Heart Association urges doctors, dentists and other professionals to get rid of ash trays in waiting rooms and install "Thank You For Not Smoking" signs. Health authorities have a long way to go in convincing millions of teenagers and adults not to smoke. Smoking, combined with high blood pressure and high levels of cholesterol in the blood, are a deadly combination which can lead to heart attack and stroke.

"The local Heart Association is fighting for your life in many areas, including smoking, and has free educational materials on smoking. They can also direct you to local smoking withdrawal programs," concluded the local Heart volunteer.

US 23 Work in Boyd, Lawrence
Let to Contract for $8 Million

Two $4 million contracts for the reconstruction of 3.5 miles of US 23 in Boyd and Lawrence counties were announced Friday by State Transportation Secretary Calvin G. Grayson.

Both contracts were part of a $10.6 million package of road and bridge improvement projects approved for Eastern Kentucky following a bid-letting held by the state's Bureau of Highways on May 19.

Grayson's announcement also included another $17 million in contract awards for other regions of the state.

The reconstruction work planned for US 23 will consist of grading, drainage and surfacing. In Boyd county, the project will begin near Durbin School and extend northward for 2.5 miles to a point just south of Lockwood. In Lawrence county, the work will start near Roe Creek and extend north to Buchanan.

Both projects were awarded to Kentucky Road Oiling, Inc., of Lexington.

Also in Lawrence county, two bridges along US 23 are being scheduled for deck repairs under another $44,554 contract awarded to Safety Engineering Co. of Paint Lick. The bridges are located over Bear Creek at Buchanan and over Blaine Creek, about 5.2 miles north of KY 3.

Two contracts totaling $211,994 to surface 5.6 miles of roads in Letcher county and to replace the superstructure of a bridge spanning Doty Creek on the Garner-Blackey-Jeff road (KY 7), 1.8 miles west of KY 15, were awarded.

The bridge contract was awarded to Ramco Construction Co., Inc. of Frankfort. The surfacing contract went to State Contracting and Stone Co. of Beaver Dam.

The roads to be surfaced under that latter contract are KY 317-Rockhouse-Long Fork road (KY 1469), east from KY 317 for one-half mile; Whitesburg-Ermine-Southdown road (KY 2034), north for 1.1 mile from US 119 at Ermine; and Ulvah-Line Fork road (KY 1103) between KY 2544 and Big Branch-Tolson Branch road (CR 1258).

A $175,361 contract was awarded to Bluegrass Contracting Corp. of Lexington for grading, drainage and surfacing along about one-half mile of Asher-Saylor Road (KY 1780) in Leslie county. The work will begin near the Harlan County Line and extend north to Saylor-Beverly Road (CR 1222).

Under the second ERF contract awarded in Eastern Kentucky, approximately 3.3 miles of roads in Clay county will be surfaced by Kentucky Stone Company at a cost of about $62,016. The roads named in that contract are:

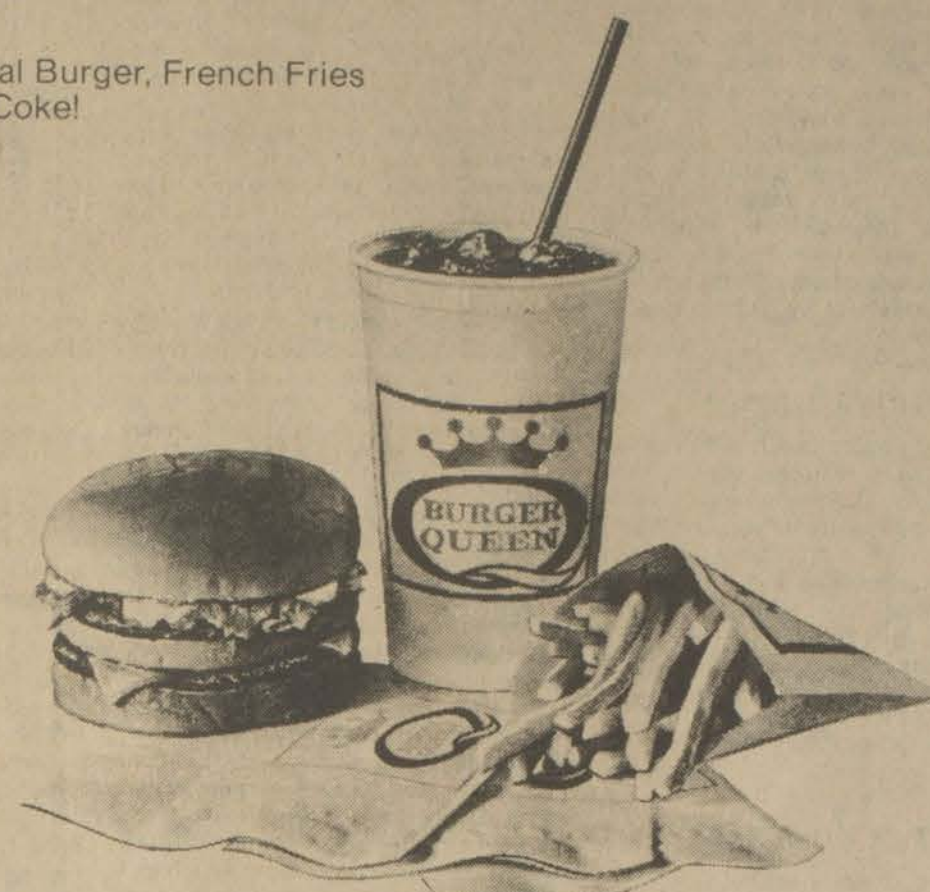

Red Bird River road (KY 66), from KY 1482 to KY 11, a distance of about seven-tenths of one mile; the Oneida-Panco (Big Bullskin) road (KY 1482) from KY 848 to the Leslie County Line, about one mile; Panco-Bowlington road (KY 484) from KY 1482 to the Perry County line, almost one mile.

Kentucky Stone also bid successfully ($36,316) on another contract to surface Burning Sprints-Sexton Creek road (KY 1350) in Clay county, north from Ball road (CR 1329) to KY 577, a distance of about 1.5 mile.

Hog branch road in Menifee county also is to be surfaced for a distance of about three-tenths of a mile, south from KY 1274, under a $12,741 contract awarded to Walker Construction Co., of Mt. Sterling.

GRETHEL NEWS

MOTHER-DAUGHTER TEA

A Mother-Daughter Tea was held at the Grethel Baptist Church apartment-home of Pastor and Mrs. Fred Anspaugh, May 20. Thirty-five were present and a special speaker was Mrs. Susan Robertson, wife of Pastor David Robertson, of the Rogers, Ky. Baptist Church. She spoke of "Mother-Daughter Relationship" and the importance of being Christian mothers.

Misses Jana Holmes, Pamela Smith, Laura Layne, and Glenda and Sandra Hamilton from Rogers Baptist Church sang and also read poems and scripture verses related to mothers.

The apartment was decorated with green and yellow crepe paper streamers from the ceiling, lily pad centerpieces for the three tables and lily cups as individual favors. A dessert luncheon was served.

Commuting Professor To Be Next Mayor of Morehead

Since 1972 Crayton Jackson has commuted every week from his home in Morehead to serve as a part-time professor of education at Pikeville College. His loyalties to his community and his involvement in civic affairs there were not hindered by his work, however. During the recent primary election, Jackson won the Democratic nomination for mayor of his Rowan County hometown.

Since he faces no Republican opposition in the general election, and no independent opposition is in the making that he knows of, Jackson is virtually assured of becoming the next mayor of Morehead.

That's a long way to come for a kid from Frenchburg. A high school graduate in the middle of the depression, Jackson was one of 10 children. A large family and no money," he recalled. "I stuck up my thumb, came to Pikeville and enrolled at Pikeville College. Worked in the kitchen for my meals and swept out the third floor of the Administration Building for tuition. Guess I got two years of college for less than $250. If I hadn't come to Pikeville College, I probably wouldn't have gone to college."

Jackson not only went to college, he continued his studies, earning a Bachelor of Arts from Morehead State University, a Master of Arts in bacteriology and education administration from the University of Kentucky, and a Doctor of Education in science education and conservation from Cornell University.

With the exception of a stint in the U.S. Navy as a surgical technician, Jackson has devoted most of his career to education. He taught in the Montgomery County Public Schools for four years and served as an assistant superintendent there for two years. From 1948-'52 he was a science supervisor for student teachers at East Tennessee State University. From 1952-'58 he served as an associate professor of biology at Indiana State University, Indiana, Pennsylvania.

Jackson returned to Kentucky in 1958, serving on faculty at Morehead State University until 1972, with the exception of two years in the U.S. State Department Foreign Service as a science education advisor in Brazil.

After retiring from Morehead in 1972, Jackson came to Pikeville College to work with the teacher education programs here. As of Friday, May 27, he retired again, this time from Pikeville, so that he can devote his energies to the city of Morehead.

"I was afraid I wouldn't have anything to do after I retired," Jackson explained when asked why he ran for mayor. "I was a councilman from '68-'72 and I have a desire to make a contribution to the town and be of service. That prompted me to try my hand at real politics."

Jackson's wife, the former Bernice Hogged, of Floyd county, and his son Benjamin Jackson, an employee of Columbia Gulf Transmission in Morehead, are no doubt delighted with the future plans of Crayton Jackson. He's going to be in Morehead, fulltime now.

CARD OF THANKS

The family of Albert Lee Berry would like to express our sincere thanks to the many friends, relatives and neighbors for their help, sympathy and kindness to us during the sickness and at the death of our loved one. We deeply appreciate the many who sent food, flowers, cards and came to the funeral home in our time of sorrow. We especially wish to thank the doctors, nurses, and personnel of Our Lady of the Way Hospital, the Hall Brothers Funeral Home for its kind and efficient service, also the elders and members of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints for the funeral service and many other kind and loving acts.

To the People of Floyd County:

I would like to take this opportunity to extend my sincere thanks to the people who voted and supported me as candidate for County Judge in the May primary. I also want to congratulate my elected opponents. Let's all work together in the next four years for a better Floyd County.

Thank you,
HOWARD KEATHLEY

Virginia System Ends 'Social Promotions'

(Reprinted from The Courier-Journal)

EMPORIA, Va.—By simply requiring that children master one grade before being promoted to the next, school officials in Emporia have moved their system from near the bottom of national rankings to considerably better than average in many subjects.

Starting with the 1973-74 school year, Greensville County School Supt. Sam A. Owen ended the commonly accepted practice of social promotions—passing a student regardless of academic performance. As a result, 1,100 of the county's 3,700 students were forced to repeat a grade in 1975.

"People say it's psychologically bad to retain a child in a grade," said Owen. "It's psychologically a whole lot worse to hand a child a diploma and have him find out later that he doesn't know anything."

"We had students who were going through school knowing very little about reading and writing," said Owen. "They were getting what I was beginning to call a 'rubber diploma.' I was getting sick and tired of reading in the papers every year about how badly we were doing."

Getting students to perform at grade level required overhauling the grading procedure and retaining large numbers of students in the same grade for two years.

The results have been impressive. Discipline problems have lessened, the dropout rate has fallen and scores on standardized tests have gone up. In the seventh grade, for example, average scores on nationwide reading tests rose from the 28th to the 64th percentile; general language ability scores from the 37th to the 73rd percentile and mathematics from the 26th to the 62nd percentile. Virtually all other grade levels and performance in all other subjects also showed gains.

(Reporting test scores in percentiles compares students with others in the same grade across the nation. A score at the 50th percentile means the student has done better than half the students tested and worse than half.)

When Owen first announced the promotions policy, he said blacks—who account for 65 per cent of the system's students—called him a bigot. Whites called him a Communist. In the first year of the plan, he backed down on a proposal to require 1,300 students to repeat a year.

"The parents complained that their children had received passing grades all year, some of them As and Bs," Owen recalled. "In those cases, we decided to let the parents have their choice, and about 500 of them wanted their children promoted."

No such option was offered the next year, and 1,100 students were held back. Last year, 695 students were required to repeat a grade. School officials say they expect the number of retentions to decline each year, and they note that more than half of those held back now are repeating a half year, not a full year.

To accommodate such students, officials have set up a series of "in-between" grades. Fifth grade students who have learned something but not enough to do sixth-grade work, for example, are placed in a grade called "5-6."

With the rising test scores, community opposition to the promotions policy has waned. Owen now has posted a huge sign outside his office: "Greensville County School Board Office—Where Promotion is Based on Achievement."

His efforts have drawn both the national press and education journals to Greensville County, on the North Carolina border about 100 miles inland. CBS news arrived in Emporia to talk to Owen and to film scenes in the schools.

School superintendents from as far as Piqua, Ohio, and Pinellas County, Florida, have come to talk with Owen and to visit the schools. There have been inquiries from state education officials in California and Georgia. Owen recently flew to Vero Beach, Fla., to brief a group of interested citizens there.

"What Owen has done is something lots of people have talked about," says George Weber, associated director of the Washington-based Council for Basic Education. "But he has really gone ahead and done it. It's courageous, forward-looking and constructive."

The mechanics of Owen's plan are to subject each student in the school system to a battery of standardized tests in the fall and in the spring. Scores on those tests and teacher evaluations are the basis for a decision on whether to promote.

If a teacher wants to promote a student who has scored below his or her grade level on a test, the teacher must explain why in writing. Additionally, teachers have been told to honestly evaluate a student's performance on his report card and to emphasize classroom basics.

"If I go to the hospital to have a doctor take my temperature, I hope it's going to be 98.6. But I want the doctor to tell me what it really is, not what I hope it is," says Owen.

In the four years the plan has been in effect, the classroom atmosphere has changed substantially, teachers say.

"The students seem to care more about what they're doing because they know they've got to learn it to get promoted," said Jane Lee, a reading teacher at Belfield Elementary School.

"Before, students knew they would be promoted if they just came to school a certain number of days and sat in a classroom."

Extension Made On SBA Loans

Gov. Julian Carroll last Thursday announced approval of a two-month extension for Small Business Administration loans for victims of the floods that ravaged Eastern Kentucky in April.

Carroll said R. B. Blankenship, of the Louisville SBA office, told him the deadline for applying for loans to repair physical damage has been extended from June 6 to Aug. 12. Gov. Carroll asked for the extension last week, pointing out that, for many reasons, the persons eligible for the loans had not yet applied for them.

"We must give the flood victims in Eastern Kentucky every opportunity to take full advantage of the Federal Disaster Assistance programs to which they are entitled," the governor said.

Blankenship said the physical damage loans can be used to repair businesses, homes, churches and "just about everything except farms—and the Farmers Home Administration takes care of them."

The deadline also was extended from Jan. 1, to March 13, 1978, for economic injury disaster loans, Blankenship told Gov. Carroll. Those loans go to firms that have lost business due to the floods, either because customers could not get to them or did not have money to buy from them.

By ROBERT F. STEPHENS
Attorney General

Recently you may have seen the story about a cancer hospital which distributed promotional materials indicating that over 70 percent of hospital patients did not pay their hospital bills. What the material did not say was that this cancer hospital was yet to be built and in fact it had no patients, paying or non-paying. Over $600,000 was contributed by the public, but of that money, 69 percent was spent on fund raising; 12 per cent for the purchase of some land; one per cent to settle a lawsuit; and only 18 per cent of the $600,000—or $108,000—was left for those non-existent patients.

Americans give over $27 billion a year to charitable organizations, but because of schemes like this one, part of the money is thrown away on fraudulent solicitations and the needy recipients and legitimate charitable organizations go without.

To combat charity frauds, the Kentucky General Assembly in 1976 passed a law limiting the amount which could be paid to or received by charitable solicitors. The law states that not more than 15 per cent of all contributions of money or property, and not more than 15 percent of net proceeds or profits of social and spectator events and sales of goods and services can be paid to fund raisers and solicitors.

Charitable solicitation schemes occur in many forms, such as direct mailing appeals, telethons, media advertisements, door-to-door sales, and musical concerts. Find out whether a charity is legitimate and worth your consideration and support before investing your money. Some ways you can learn more about a charity are:

- 1) Write directly to the national office of the charity requesting financial reports and other data
- 2) Consult your local Better Business Bureau of the Council of Better Business Bureaus in Washington, D.C. which maintains files on more than 5,000 agencies and can supply you with information which may enable you to better judge the charity.
- 3) Check with the Attorney General's Consumer Protection Division to see if there have been any problems or complaints on the charity in question.

If you have any questions about charitable solicitations contact the Office of the Attorney General, Division of Consumer Protection, Frankfort, Ky. 40601. The office has found that it can most effectively deal with written complaints and encourages you to write when you have a complaint. However, if you have an emergency situation, call the Consumer Hotline. The number is 1-800-372-2960.
