Father Sentenced To Pen in Slaying Of McBrayer Here

Held guilty last week by a Floyd circuit court jury of first-degree manslaughter in the stabbing slaying here of Gerald McBrayer, 38, the two teen-age daughters of John Henry Newsome were ordered last Friday by Circuit Judge Hollie Conley to be committed to the custody of the Kentucky Department of Human Resources at its Morehead Treatment Center for Delinquent Girls. Terms of the girls and their father were set by the jury at 15 years each. Newsome was sentenced to serve his term in a state penitentiary. When Newsome's attorney indicated his conviction will be appealed, Commonwealth's Attorney James R. Allen and County Attorney Harold J. Stumbo, who prosecuted the three defendants announced they will protest Newsome's release under bond, pending outcome of the appeal. They later said that the protest may involve hearing of testimony relating to a statement allegedly made by the father after the jury had returned its verdict.

The girls-Barbara, 16, and Gloria, 14-are expected to be committed today (Wednesday) to the Morehead facility, although their attorney indicated he may appeal their conviction. The father's motion for bond may also be heard at that time

Under Kentucky law the trial judge may at his discretion sentence juveniles to either the Department of Human Resources or to the Department of Corrections. If sentenced to the latter, they would serve their terms in a state prison-in the case of the girls, in Peewee Valley prison for women.

Pronouncing the girls' sentences, Judge Conley said, "If the goal of our

Working To Stop the Downpour

Workmen are pictured preparing a cell area of the Floyd county jail for pouring of a new, fourinch concrete floor. Waterproofing is being placed between the old floor surface and the new, and drains are being installed to prevent the severe leakage which for years has caused damage to offices in the two floors below the jail. New bathroom fixtures are also being installed. Total cost of the work is $54,792. Contractor for the project is Tom O. McGuire, of Prestonsburg, with plumbing work being sub-contracted to Elliott Glass & Electric Company.

Carroll Extends Auto Tag Deadline

Citing the extreme hardship caused by this winter's severe weather, Governor Carroll last Friday signed an executive order which extends by two weeks the deadline for Kentuckians to buy the 1977-78 decals for their auto license plates. The governor's action extends the deadline until midnight Tuesday, March

Gov. Carroll's decision followed consideration of the circumstances which have kept an apparent large number of Kentucky auto owners from purchasing their decals by now. The governor has been in consultation with county clerks throughout the Commonwealth and with the Kentucky Bureau of Vehicle Registration, and it is upon information gained through these channels that he made his decision.

The troubles of Allen and the Mud Creek water district, however, are not drouth-connected. A water main laid across the highway bridge at Allen froze, and that, with a leaky system, left New Allen with little or no water service. Mud

When Big Sandy ADD last week committed itself to the temporary management of the Allen water system. a part of the discussion hinted at an idea that, sometime in the future, a single. giant water system may serve the Big Sandy valley.

More immediately, there is the possibility that the Prestonsburg water system, now being extended to be edge of New Allen, may consider the purchase of the Allen system. Consolidation of that system with Prestonsburg's would first require approval by the voters of Allen, however

The dream of one giant system to serve the entire valley looks toward the linking of rural water districts to city-operated plants, all under ADD direction.

The Big Sandy ADD board of directors last week approved a new system of assessments for each of the five participating counties, setting a flat assessment of $3000 per county instead of the former 5-cent per capita rate.

The board approved in A-95 review Highland Towers, the proposed 40-unit housing development planned for location near Cliff. Other items in the review gaining approval were:

-A $500,000 Appalachian rural housing demonstration project which calls for increased federal activity

-Concentrated Employment Program funding of $552,000 for job training and opportunities for the disadvantaged and $92,905 for public service employment. -A $30,000 Morehead State University

-$30,000 to the University of Louisville's Community Development Center for interviewing 3100 Kentucky residents and 600 persons involved in local government to determine if Big Sandy ADD is reaching the people with its programs.

Floyd Red Cross Board Formed On Eve of Annual Fund Drive

The organization and first meeting of the board of directors of the Floyd County Chapter of the American Red Cross was held here last Wednesday night and a goal of $12,000 was set for the annual fund drive which will run through March, American Red Cross Month.

The meeting marked the first official action of the Floyd county Red Cross chapter since the death early last year of Miss Ella Noel White. Miss White had single-handedly spearheaded the Red Cross effort in this county for more than 40 years and Wednesday night's meeting represented the first time in the chapter's history that a board of directors has been formed.

New executive director of the Floyd chapter is Hershel Joseph, of Prestonsburg, who will maintain a regular, parttime schedule at the Red Cross office here. Elected officers include Burl Wells Spurlock, chairman; Hansel Cooley, vice-chairman; Richard Fitzpatrick, treasurer, and Robert Castle, secretary. Thirteen persons make up the board and seven more will be added by the chapter's next meeting.

Joseph pointed out that board members will represent all sections of the county. "Red Cross through the years has pumped a tremendous amount of money and manpower into this county and we think the reorganization of the chapter should provide for a countywide effort," Joseph said.

Jim Stringer, of Lexington, district manager of the Blue Grass District, state division of Red Cross, addressed the board, giving a brief history of the development of the worldwide Red Cross organization and explaining chapter bylaws. Stringer praised the late Miss White, calling her "a beautiful lady-one of the greatest I've ever known."

'What she gave to this community and Red Cross was 46 years of her life,' Stringer said.

Joseph said he was confident that this year's fund drive goal would be met. 'For the first time ever, we'll have fund drive chairmen in all the larger communities in the county, and with this in mind we feel that a $12,000 goal is realistic.

Gas Rate Boost In Effect Today

Prestonsburg residents will be paying 20 cents per thousand cubic feet more for natural gas burned after today (Wednesday), the City Utility Commission announced Monday.

The rate increase, as in the case of the first a few months ago, resulted, it was explained by Bill H. Howard, utilities superintendent, from an increase in the same amount by Prestonsburg's supplier, the Kentucky West Virginia Gas Company

The per thousand cubic foot rate is now $1.40. It was $1, last Oct. 31. The minimum rate stands, unchanged.

Despite the increase. Howard said, Prestonsburg's gas rate is lower than any other county-seat town in the valley, with the exception of Paintsville which has the same rate. Paintsville also is supplied by Kentucky West Virginia Gas Company

Blood Unit Visit At Allen Central Set Next Thursday

The Floyd County Mobile Blood Unit will be at Allen Central High School at Eastern next Thursday for blood donations. All those who wish to give blood are urged to come to the school between the hours of 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. or 2:30 to 6 p.m.

Continuance of the blood program in this county depends largely on the public's response to the blood drawings scheduled. Although most people know that in giving blood they are assuring themselves, as well as their family of having available a lifesaving supply of blood in the event of need, there are still some questions frequently asked. Among these are the following with brief answers.

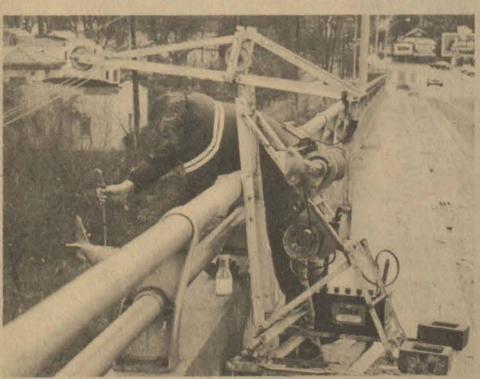

Why should more people give blood? People are the only source of blood for transfusion, and only three percent of those eligibile to donate blood do so.

Who can give blood? In general, any adult in good health who has not had any recent serious illness or a history of certain diseases may be a blood donor. Every blood bank has requirements designed to protect the donor and the person receiving blood. Persons between the ages of 18 and 65 may give blood. Further questions may be directed to Billie Jean Post at 886-8511.

The Big Sandy Area Development District is seeking the help of area residents in the preparation of a Comprehensive Improvement Program for the counties of Floyd, Johnson, Magoffin, Martin and Pike.

Big Sandy-ADD is requesting that residents complete the Project-Program suggestion form provided elsewhere in this newspaper and return it to ADD, which will use these completed forms and other suggestions received in a series of public meetings to be held throughout the five counties. Testing Big Sandy River Water

Larry Dysart, of the U.S. Geological Survey's Louisville office, is pictured with special equipment on the bridge where new U.S. 23 crosses the Big Sandy here. He spent several hours Tuesday taking water samples. Dysart's work was part of a current USGS project which is designed to measure water quality along the drainage of the Levisa Fork. His samples, which were procured by lowering a heavy brass capsule into the river from several points along the bridge, will provide information concerning such things as chemical content, quantity of suspended sediment, and water velocity, or rate of flow. Dysart said results of preliminary tests show about the same overall water quality from Pikeville to Paintsville, and he commented he was "pleasantly surprised" by the results.

"The water quality actually seems to be pretty good," Dysart said.

Creek suffers because the Pikeville system on which it and the Sandy Valley district depend is simply not affording enough water. Line breaks and leaks also figure in its plight.

A $31,000 grant made by Governor Carroll out of his contingency fund is expected to connect New Allen and area with the Prestonsburg system. Possibility of a central preparation plant to serve both the Sandy Valley and Mud Creek districts is under study.

The town of Martin was reported this week by Roger Rectenwald, of the Big Sandy ADD office here, to be threatened with water service interruption. He said a 100,000-gallon storage reservoir there 'is leaking badly and about to burst."

All these are present troubles. But, if the rains persist in staying away-how will it be next summer?

Roads 'Terrible;' Allots Gravel

Secondary roads are in "terrible" condition, members of the fiscal court were told at their meeting here Monday morning, and they moved to allocate gravel for each of the county's four magisterial districts.

The gravel allocation of 2500 tons was made to each district, and the order added that "if the county judge uses any of it (the gravel) it is to be assigned to the district he uses it in." (A court attache interpreted the order to mean that if Judge Stumbo uses any gravel in a district that amount will be charged against the district's allocation.)

Magistrate Bill Wells voted against the motion.

The only other action taken at the meeting was to terminate the employment of two workers-Bennie Caudill, of the road department, effective March 15, and Green Hamilton, of the CETA program, effective March 9.

Magistrates Leroy Akers, Kenneth Roberts and Dewey Roberts voted for the discharge of Caudill. The vote on Hamilton was unanimous, including Magistrate Bill Wells, who presided at the meeting in the absence of County Judge Stumbo.

The order removing Hamilton from the payroll gave the reason for the court action as "he is not staying on the job following instructions from his supervisor.

The court's next meeting will be held March 14.

The Water Gap-Bull Creek Water District was presented last week by the Prestonsburg office of the Farmers Home Administration a letter setting the conditions that the district must meet to assure federal-funding in the amount of $571,000 for construction of a water distribution system in its area.

Church Housing Here Gets Grant

The Church Housing Association of Prestonsburg has received from the Episcopal Diocese of Lexington $50,000 toward the cost of a community room in connection with an 80-unit mid-rise complex for the elderly which is planned by CHA.

Application for the mid-rise project, to be located at Indian Hills, near the mouth of May's Branch here, has been made, Julia Mayo May, executive director, said.

The $50,000 grant is a part of a total of $425,000 made available to five Eastern and Central Kentucky facilities through a bequest from the estate of the late Ethel G. Cheairs, of W nchester

'We could have awarded the grant to only one institution but by dividing the $425,000 among five, the funds are reaching the maximum number of people with the maximum benefits," a diocese representative said.

The Lee County Personal Care Home received a grant of $246,000, and $27,000 was received by the Golden Years Rest Home, Jenkins.

Says Placards Unwanted

Election time is beginning to heat up. This can be observed by persons in cars and pick-up trucks with ladders, hammers, boxes of tracks or staples going about the county, desecreating our communities by leaving their likenesses on utility poles, fences, state road signs, old buildings or anything tht will hold a tack.

This ageold custom is one that should pass, since communities are trying their best to clean up litter and pollution, and candidates do not return and remove signs after elections.

In this day and age it appears to me that it would be adequate to advertise in the Floyd County Times, radio or by word of mouth.

The Little Paint Community in northern Floyd county asks that placards not be used in its area and that any already up be removed.

A Martin fifth-grade student walked off Feb. 19 with top spelling honors in a match among representatives from nine county grade schools. Craig Hall, whose teacher is Mrs. Syrilda Martin, became the 1977 KEA spelling bee champion in the second annual county meet. He was given a $50 award by the Floyd County Education Association.

The runnerup for this year's title is Teresa Robinson, an eighth grader, of the Bonanza school. She is the 14-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Robinson, of East Point, and a student of Josephine Whitaker.

After eliminations reduced the number of contestants to two, spelling continued until the Bonanza representative misspelled the word, "kept." Young Hall then correctly spelled both "kept" and the next word on the list, "slept," to become the new champion.

Proper Handling Could Decrease Pesticide Accidents, Regulation

lead to serious consequences, such as illness or death for animals and humans or long-lasting danger to the environment. According to the state pesticide office, the chemicals are potentially dangerous even when used correctly. Careful handling of pesticides is the key to preventing accidents.

Knowing the proper procedure for handling restricted-use pesticides and being certified for using them may not only prevent accidents, but also may protect private applicators of pesticides from increased regulation in the future.

New federal pesticides laws require private applicators, usually farmers and homeowners, to obtain a license from the pesticide control agency in the Kentucky Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection. Training has already begun for private applicators of restricted-use pesticides who will be required after Oct. 1, 1977, to receive certification for purchase and use of the chemicals

According to Fred Waters, chief of the state pesticides office, a private applicator is a person who applies or supervises the use of restricted pesticides in the production of agricultural commodities on property he or another owns or rents or as an exchange of services on another private applicator's property. Unlike commercial applicators who receive compensation for pesticide application, private applicators are usually homeowners or farmers who may apply pesticides to their own land or to another's for an exchange of work.

Waters pointed out that it probably won't be easy for a farmer who is not certified to carry on his normal farm business.

To prevent accidents and forestall increased regulation, said Waters, certified private applicators should understand and use proper methods in handling restricted-use pesticides. The four main factors in correct pesticide handling are: using pesticides consistently with label directions, storing pesticides properly, disposing of pesticide containers properly, and not allowing an unlicensed person to apply restricted-use pesticides.

Private applicators must attend a two and one-half-hour training session held by the county extension service and make sure that the county agent sends his name and social security number to Frankfort for certification. Areas regarding pesticides that are covered at each meeting include: labels, safety, environment, pests, pesticides, equipment, and calibration. No examination or license fee is required for the private applicator.

Waters explained that pesticides classified for restricted use are chemicals that may cause injury to the applicator or have reasonable adverse Abuse of restricted-use pesticides can effects on the environment, even when they're applied according to directions for use, warnings, and cautions.

Examples of common pesticides that private applicators may not be able to purchase or use unless they are certified are: Azodrin, Carzol, Chlordane, Dasinit, Dieldrin, Dinitro, Do-Syston, DNBP, Dimecron, DNOC, Dow General, Endrin, EPN, Furadan, Guthion, Lannate, Lead Arsenate, Lindane, Methyl Bromide, Monitor, Nicotin, Paraquat, Parathion, Phorate, Phosdrin, Plictran, Premerge, Roundup, Sinox, Sulfotepp, Systox, Trithion, Temik, Tepp, Thimet, Thiodan, Toxaphene, 2-3-5-T, 2-4-5-TP Vapona DDVP, Vorlex, Zectran, Zenophos, Vapam and Metasystox.

Pesticides will be added to the list, said Waters, as they become restricted. General use pesticides that are potentially less harmful can be purchased without being certified.

When a private applicator does need a restricted pesticide, he must purchase it from a dealer who is authorized by the state to sell. Before selling the applicator the product, the dealer must ask him to show proof that he is certified.

The assignments, he said, will allow several officers to gain additional field experience for later leadership within the bureau.

The re-assignments, effective last organization chart allows for "a more week, involve ranks of Lieutenant and direct flow of communication between above.

I wish to commend Sen. Jim Hammond of the 29th Senatorial District for the effort he has made on behalf of the Martin area as well as his entire district. In response to a recent letter I addressed to him as to progress on the plans to construct additional sidewalks within the City of Martin, he replied that materials have already been purchased by the Highway Department to construct the sidewalks, and the only holdup has been bad weather and the severe demand resulting from the need to keep roads passable.

This sidewalk will prove a "Godsend" for the area along US. 80 now without sidewalk.

Sen. Hammond also reports that the channelization program for Beaver Creek will be ready for actual construction by September, 1977. He expressed hope that work would be completed within 12 months thereafter.

Nursing Home Here Said Excellent

Recognition is not given often enough sometimes where it is so righteously deserved, and that is my reason for writing this brief article.

I was not aware of the excellent nursing home we have in our county until our family found it necessary to put my grandfather in one. At the time, I felt sad about having to put him in a nursing home, but after seeing the prompt and professional attention he was given, I was so thankful and proud we have access to such a center so near home as Mountain Manor Nursing Home.

He had been in two hospitals before going there, and I must say he had not received the prompt attention and special care that he received while in Mountain Manor.

We wish to express our sincere thanks and appreciation to all the staff and management of the Mountain Manor Nursing Home

KY 292 in Martin county has suffered a battering by the weather, nobody has done anything to repair it, and as a result it was blocked for more than an hour Monday by protesting coal-truckers and their friends

'We're paying a fortune out in (coalseverance) taxes, and we can't even get a decent road. You can't get a car down it without getting stuck, and it got so people weren't going to stand for it any more," said Curtis (Bo) Francis, operator of Big Hill Coal Co. The firm was one of several small underground mining companies whose employes participated in the protest.

The road, which was closed about 6 a.m. by a crowd standing on it, was cleared about 7:30 a.m. by a Kentucky Stae Police trooper and Martin County Magistrate Lafe Murphy. Some demonstrators remained at the side of he highway throughout the day, however. Witnesses said two protestors were taken from the area in the trooper's patrol car, but no charges were filed.

The demonstration, which included several women and children, took place at the Martin county end of a bridge on the Martin-Pike county line. About 15 large Mack coal trucks were parked along the side of the road.

The protestors said they were seeking publicity for their cause.

They said they permitted ambulances traveling to and from Appalachian Regional Hospital at South William son to pass through the blockade.

The demonstrators issued three demands:

-Rebuild and repave KY 292 to withstand a heavy volume of loaded coal trucks. The protestors also want the highway designated as part of KY 40, which would qualify it for federal maintenance funds.

-Drop state plans to move a bridge on KY 292 and instead elevate it at its present site.

-Remove the toll of 15 cents for cars and 60 cents for coal trucks on a private bridge linking Warfield, Ky., and Kermit, W. Va. The bridge is not part of KY 292; it connects KY 40 with U.S. 52 in West Virginia.

KY 292 was covered with a thin layer of about two inches of asphalt four years ago, but the pavement on Martin county's length of the road was crushed and worn away within a year, according to protestors and state highway officials.

The Pike county side of the road has fared better, they said.

About 11 miles of KY 292 in Martin county are part of a 16-mile run for coal trucks from mines in Pike county to a tipple on Wolf Creek in Martin county. "It's in terrible shape," conceded Gail Mullins, Pikeville district engineer for the Kentucky Bureau of Highways.

Mullins said the highway district and Martin fiscal court agreed at a Feb. 1 meeting to seek state "energy road funds" from coal-severance tax revenues to improve the road.

He said the proposal must be reviewed by state highway officials in Frankfort, and he said he hoped for a decision before April 1. If the plan is approved, he said, work could begin this summer

> Funding for the system will include a $276,000 grant from FmHA, a $110,000 grant from the Appalachian Regional Commission, a $164,000 loan from the FmHA which must be paid back by revenues over a 40-year period, plus a $21,000 contribution by the water district from tap-on fees.

> County Judge Henry Stumbo gave assurance that the ARC grant will be expedited through the Big Sandy Area Development District with the assistance of Joe McCauley, executive director.

Kenco Associates, Inc., consulting engineers for the district, were represented by engineers, Joe Sisler and Jim Jones, at the meeting. They said water would be purchased from the city of Prestonsburg, then distributed through a booster station to a 75,000gallon storage tank to the customers along Rt. 3 and the Left and Right forks of Bull Creek. The water will be distributed to the customers through a total of approximately 15.4 miles of water line.

The district instructed Kenco Associates to proceed with final plans and specifications. Customers may still sign up for a $150 tap fee until the final plans are completed in approximately 60 days. At that time, it was said, the tap fee will be raised to $200 or more.

Hatfield, chairman of the water district, said he is looking forward to construction starting next summer.

The Clean Air Amendments

At hand is a lengthy analysis from the electric power generating company's point of view of what the proposed amendments to the Clean Air Act of 1970 will mean economically to the power companies and the users of electric power.

The Floyd County Times

Published Every Wednesday by

Prestonsburg Publishing Company

NORMAN ALLEN Editor

One example from the rather lengthy study is titled, "No Significant Deterioration"-which means that the law, as amended, will require the installation of "scrubbers" at all new generating plants to remove sulphur and other noxious ingredients from the coal used in generating electric power. It is estimated that the cost of the scrubbers to Kentucky plants would be $419,592,000.

That, according to this report, would increase the average consumer's electric bill $121 a year.

The Times cannot in good conscience oppose any sensible, equitable means of protecting the environment-air, land, water, whatever. And we know that this protection of the environment is a herculean task that must eventually be paid for by the public, whether the payment comes in the form of higher utility rates or higher taxes, or both. But it does appear that this move being made in the Congress in a time of fuel crisis is illtimed

Speaking of the environment: Few, if any, Kentucky electric power plants are located within urban areas to add their emissions to those of other industrial activities. The Big Sandy Plant, the only one of its kind in the Big Sandy Valley, is, for example, in a rural setting. It is not in a populated area such as Ashland where an array of manufacturing plants have created and continue to create a pall of air pollution beside which the emissions from an electric power plant are, by comparison, no more than the smoke from a brush fire.

The Law and Juvenile Crime

The permissiveness of the age is perhaps nowhere more evident than in the law.

On another page of this edition of The Times appears a reprint of a news-story from Lexington in which a juvenile court judge voices the frustrations he has faced in handling juvenile crime under Kentucky law. Other court officials, peace officers, many citizens have admitted defeat after having the law thwart their efforts to bring about some semblance of order out of the anarchy of juvenile crime.

Most of these are people who have teen-agers of their own. They love youth. They subscribe to the doctrine of a second chance for any boy or girl who has made a mistake. But they are tired of seeing the young commit crime after crime, go free time after time and walk away to steal or rob or rape again. They have the old-fashioned notion that the law is more than a target for nose-thumbing.

There, of course, is no pat answer to all the problems of juvenile crime. It may be that in many cases the youngster is indeed a victim of circumstances, but that fact does not reduce the murders and rapes or dull the pain of those who are beaten into insensibility and robbed. The state of New York-especially, the city of New York-has made a study of its situation. The result has been new, tough laws-laws which send young criminals into strict confinement. Some say New York has over-reacted. But we doubt it.

the drawing, recognized himself and began bawling. That brought down the wrath of the teacher on the budding artist, who soon joined the little boy in loud lament. "It just goes to show you on what a tiny

Somebody apparently had a bright idea, a few weeks back, filled in my name on a card ordering this album of records. and last week they arrived. Was tempted to mail them right back but made the mistake of playing one or two, and one of those played was a medley of Hawaiian music.

That did it . . . "Aloha Oe" . . . "Blue Hawaii" . . . everything but "Drowsy Waters."

If you wonder why this music so en-thralls me, remember that I'm something of a square with a tin ear who can't appreciate "real" music. Make it soft and slow, Susie. I can't appreciate even some of the newer hymns.

You wonder how anybody could be so musically dumb? Perhaps it's because the sounds of early years are best. I can think that there are people far from home, unwilling victims of city turmoil, who would hail the mellow bawl of a foxhound from a distant hilltop or the far off tinkle of a cowbell music fit for an Aeolian harp.

society is to rehabilitate, then the court has no other choice than to send them to the Department of Human Resources. I feel that if they are confined to Peewee Valley, there will be two teen-agers that are lost.

Under the sentence the girls would upon reaching the age of 21 be transferred to Peewee Valley if they are still confined at that time, Judge Conley said.

Trucker of Year Says 55 MPH Best

America's No. 1 truck driver believes in the 55 mile an hour speed limit. As Olen Lee Welk, 63, of Big Sandy, Texas, explains in his soft Texas drawl: "I never tried to fly.

One could say he had his chances. For instance, "Oley," Welk went to school with Clyde Barrow who, with a girl named Bonnie, took a "fast trip" of crime and mayhem. In 1934, the year they were gunned down, Oley Welk took up commercial trucking.

Welk, named "1977 Truck Driver of the Year" by the American Trucking Associations (ATA), has never felt the need to go fast in a 43-year career of driving heavy and oversized tractortrailers for an estimated 3.5 million accident-free miles. In fact, he says: "I run between 55 and 58-I'm never bothered.

east," he declares. "All you gotta do is get used to it," he adds. "I always believed if you want to move, they have a place in Indianapolis. You can go race with A. J. Foyt.

Welk, who has seen his share of gruesome accidents caused by speeding, believes the worst consequence of exceeding the 55 mph speed limit can result when a front or rear tire blows.

"I love me, love my wife, love everybody else," he says. "I don't want to run over anybody if I blow-out a tire.'

Welk, who visited Washington recently for President Carter's inauguration and to be honored for his long safety record, drives the big rigs for C & H Transportation, Co., Inc., of Dallas, the country's leading heavy-hauling carrier. He marked his 25th year with C & H on January 21. Welk is the first heavyhauler to win the ATA's highest honor. He loves driving. "I'm going on 'til I'm 85," he vows.

Consider these facts which led to the turnabout, as reported in TRIAL, national legal news magazine:

In one 12-month period 73 juveniles were arrested for homicide, and of these 50 were "repeaters." Fifteen of them had had one prior felony arrest, 12 had had two, 7 had had three, and one had been arrested 17 times on felony charges. Moreover, two had been arrested previously for homicides-and 10 of the 73 arrested for homicides were arrested for felonies after they had been picked up on the slaying charges.

In one building of a public housing project, says the report written by Ralph J. Marino, chairman of the New York State Select Committee on Crime, police had made 146 arrests from only three families. One of those arrested was a 19-year-old who was caught in the act of beating and robbing an 82-year-old woman and who was then released on only $500 bail because the arraigning judge could not under the law take cognizance of the youth's long criminal record which included arrests for similar crimes against the elderly.

Concluded Mr. Marino:

"The juveniles in these three families had terrorized a large community, and the community had to stand the terror, even though the police made 146 arrests of these young predators. Nothing could be done with them. The juvenile system . . . was bankrupt."

That is not Kentucky and Floyd county, true. But it could be. Ask the officers who make the arrests-only to have, as some have said, the offendors "beat us back home."

The great majority of the young people of this country are great youngsters. When that ceases to be true, the country is on its way out. But they, even as the old and weak and helpless, are in danger as long as a vicious minority is coddled and encouraged to add crime to crime.

The most encouraging thing we found in the Fayette county judge's report was the statement that whenever he could prove that the parents of the young who came before him had contributed to their delinguency-he fined those parents.

And how do parents contribute to the delinquency of their children? How many are the ways!

If they are responsible for damage done by their livestock, surely they are responsible for their children.

Could this be a "loophole" in the law that could be helpful?

MAYBE YOU THINK of the American Red Cross as a great big national organization that only helps people 'somewhere else,"-not true. The Red Cross is working right here in Floyd county where you live. The Red Crossit's America's Good Neighbor-and yours. You can help them do their job. Give generously.

Pike County Ready To Start Work on Its Airport Site

Without waiting to see if its location will be chosen by the five counties of the Big Sandy Area Development District for a regional airport, Pike county is ready to begin work on the site at Cowpen, in Pike county

John Paul Runyon, chairman of the Pike County Airport Board, last week said strip-mining of the Cowpen location will be begun "in a matter of days" by a subsidary of the Hawkeye-Elkhorn Coal Company. The stripping of coal will require about two years, but when it is completed the rough grade of a 5,570-foot runway will be ready for development.

(At a recent meeting held to plan a regional airport to serve the five counties n Big Sandy ADD, Pike County Judge Rutherford told other county officials that Pike county would build its own airport if its choice of a site for the regional facility was not accepted.)

Land for the site, which may include a second landing strip, has been donated by several landowners, among whom are the Hatcher heirs.

The county has set aside $1.3 million in coal severance tax money to finish the port from the rough grade. That money is currently in escrow in a Louisville bank, Judge Rutherford said.

He said the county plans to ask Gov. Julian Carroll for an executive order that would allow the county to transfer the money to a Pikeville bank where it can draw interest. That is now prohibited by the laws which is sending coal severance money back to local government.

In the past few weeks, there has been talk of establishing a "regional" airport in the Big Sandy Area Development District, County judges in the five county area have scheduled a meeting for March 2 to discuss forming a regional airport board.

Judge Rutherford plans to be represented at the meeting, although Pike county will not join any regional airport effort.

Former Knott Official Named In State Action

The state added to the troubles of former Knott County Clerk Dillis Combs Monday when it filed suit to collect more than $178,000 he allegedly owes in fees. The lawsuit, filed in Franklin circuit court, also seeks to collect an additional $24,000 from Combs' individual sureties for fees allegedly owed the state.

Combs resigned the office about a month ago, state Revenue Commissioner Maurice Carpenter said, and was succeeded by Arthur Pigman.

The county clerk's office collects state motor-vehicle usage taxes for the Revenue Department, motor vehicle registration fees for the Transportation Department and fishing and hunting license fees for the Transportation Department and fishing and hunting license fees for the Fish and Wildlife Resources Department.

Of the amount sought, the suit alleges that Combs owes the Revenue Department $105,815; Transportation, $55,137, and Fish and Wildlife Resources, $17,474. Of the some $24,000 sought from the individual sureties, the suit alleges that Combs owes the Revenue Department $16,347; Transportation, $4,925, and Fish and Wildlife Resources, $2,960.

Individual sureties who posted a $60,000 bond last Oct. 19 and who are named as defendants are Ima Lee Combs, Leburn; Murph Martin, Dema; Ralph Draughn, Garner; Coy Combs, Mousie; Martin Casebolt, Leburn, and V. L. Workman, Paintsville

The suit also seeks forfeiture of the bond and of the $10,000 corporate surety bond with Travelers Indemnity Co.

(Claims made in filing a lawsuit give only one side of the case.)

THE FEDERAL LAW requiring equal employment opportunity for veterans prohibits most employers doing business for the federal government from discrimination in employment against disabled veterans and Vietnam-era veterans, according to the U.S. Department of Labor.

At the U. S. Department of Transportation, he got a trophy and diamond pin from former Federal Highway Administrator Norbert Tiemann.

The "Truck Driver of the Year" said he favors installing road speed governors in trucks to restrict their maximum speed to about 55 mph-as do C & H and many other trucking firms. "It saves your engine," Walk points out. "You don't overwind your engine.

The veteran driver said his truck has a five-speed transmission and a threespeed rear end-"what I call an old folks' transmission." He said the C & H company trucks are "geared perfect for 55 mph.

He said that C & H adopted the 55 mph speed limit about 1959. Drivers are subject to a lay-off if caught violating the limit three times. "The next time," he said, "you're gone."

While he liked things better before there were CB radios, Oley Welk has used a CB radio for about four years. CBers know him by the handle of "Hawaiian Hitchhiker," although he has never been to the Islands. But a son once brought him a Hawaiian ashtray shaped like a foot, with a "way big" big toe, explaining that "hippies use the big toe for hitchhiking." Welk painted the big toe red, and keeps the ashtray in his truck as his symbol.

He doesn't like to see the CB used to flaunt the 55 mph speed limit, but only to help people who are in need or who are involved in accidents. "I've helped plenty of them," he said. "I don't use the radio to hunt Smokies-in fact, I don't call them Smokey Bear. I call them the Highway Patrol.

Welk was also named 1977 Driver of the Year by two states, Texas and Missouri, which nominated him for the national title. He was named a "knight of the road" in 1958 when he came upon an overturned car. The dead driver had thousands of dollars in cash in his wallet. Welk refused to give the money to alleged relatives who approached him. He turned it over to the Texas Highway Patrol. "And I owed a payment on my truck at the time," he said.

His wife Hazel, 59, sometimes rides with him. They have four sons and two daughters, as well as 15 grandchildren and two great-grandsons. Two sons are trucking for C & H, while a third son used to. The fourth boy, an ex-Marine, drives a city bus.

Couple Married 78 Years Keeps Comfortable and Happy

By HELEN PRICE STACY

"We lived on adjoining farms and I passed their house on my way to and from school. I'd stop almost every day in cold weather and help gather eggs and carry in coal.'

The Reg. Roger Wells, pastor of the West Liberty First Church of God, was talking about his grandparents, Lynn and Lydia Wells, who live at Denniston in Menifee county. The couple, both in their 90s, will have been married 79 years on July 25.

"I looked forward to my visits with them," said Wells. "Their house was always warm and clean, but most important of all, Ma-maw always had lots of food." He added, "Anyone could stop at their house right now and there would be plenty of food, enough cooked to feed several people.

He could not remember a time that there was not food to eat in his grandparents' home, "but I still liked to play in the fire and roast potatoes. My Dad allowed me to stay with them lots of times, but he didn't like my roasting potatoes in the big iron stove." The father told his son, "Now, I'll give you a whipping if you play in that fire today.'

"As soon as Dad was out of sight I started toward the stove. My Grandad looked straight at me and reminded me of the whipping. He gets a laugh even yet when he tells how I turned to him and said, 'Pap-paw, you're not supposed to tell everything you know.' I didn't get the whipping.'

For the elderly couple it was a love match at first sight. Miss Lydia Rupe, 13 at the time, was approaching a neighto his friend.

The couple started courting and before girl's father was away, so Lynn approached her mother.

"Lydia's only 14," said Mrs. Rupe. 'That's too young to get married.'' 'But I don't want an old woman," pleaded the 16-year-old Lynn. That was 78 years ago, "and they still make over one another.

Lynn and Lydia Wells live alone, cook and clean house. Some of the family checks on them daily and the grandson, Rev. Wells, stops often to see them. In summer they have a garden and can several jars of fruits and vegetables. She still sews and quilts.

A daughter (the couple had 13 children) Mrs. Addison Manley, of Morgan county, said her parents always "abided by the Golden Rule and told us children to use it in our lives. I remember when we were all at home and every evening after work and supper we'd gather around Dad and listen to him read from the Bible and pray. It was like storytime to us, it was so interesting."

Of course, the daughter and grandson recall, there have been problems. There was the time soon after the couple married that the bride tried to tell her husband how to build the chimney to their "little plank house in Possum Holler.'

The bridegroom looked from his perch and said, "I'll crawl down and give you the britches now if you think that's the way it ought to be.

How is the couple faring this cold winter?

They use bottled gas for cooking,' said Rev. Wells, "and coal for heating. They manage to keep warm, comfortable and happy.

ADD'S To Provide Training Grounds For Planning Students

Frankfort, 'Ky .- Gov. Julian Carroll announced last week the allocation of funds for a pilot project providing on-thejob-training for senior students in the area of regional planning.

Students from Cumberland College will spend an entire semester on the staff of Area Development Districts in Kentucky River, Cumberland Valley and Bluegrass areas. A total of eight students will be involved in the program-three at work currently, two during the summer semester, and three next fall.

Participants will remain off campus. for the entire semester receiving 12 hours credit for their work in the Area Development District. On return to campus, the students will be given an intense series of seminars and grades will be based on this work plus evaluation from development district staff.

The project, administered by the Department for Local Government, will put students in an actual working situation through perrsonal involvement with Area Development Districts and regional planning programs. "The ADD will also benefit by the addition of another staff member to be utilized in preparing and implementing various regional planning program," said Ralph Ed Graves, commissioner of the Department for Local Government.

Federal funds for the program'are provided through the Intergovernmental Personnel Act. Total cost of the project is $24,270.

To the Voters Of Floyd County:

I, Delmer (Dick) Elswick, am a Democratic candidate for Sheriff of Floyd County, Kentucky. I will be 53 years old, July 24th. I am married to Billie Harris Elswick and reside at Prestonsburg, Kentucky. I am the son of J. B. (Jim Bob) Elswick and Cora Elswick, of Hi Hat, Kentucky, who are members of the United Baptist Church and my Dad is a Deacon of the United Baptist Church. He worked for the C. & O. Railway Company from 1926 to 1964. I am from a family of 12 children. I am related to the Tacketts, Caudills, McCowns, Esteps and Montgomervs.

My wife, Billie, is related to the Gobles, Kendricks, Harmons, Clicks, Burchetts, Clarks, Nichols, Cremeans and Harrises. She has worked in the law office of Woodrow W. Burchett for over 25 years.

I worked in the coal mines in Floyd County in union mines and was a member of the United Mine Workers of America. I attended McDowell High School and played basketball for Mc-Dowell, I served seven years in the Merchant Marine and have been in business for myself in Prestonsburg for the past 14 years.

If you elect me Sheriff of Floyd County I pledge to you that my office will be your office and that your Sheriff will be honest, sober, mature and that I will carefully select qualified deputies who will treat everyone equally and in a business-like manner.

No Elswick has ever run for public office in Floyd County, Kentucky, but they have always been strong supporters of the Democratic Ticket.

You furnish the keys and I'll do the job. Thank you for your vote and support.

UNIVERSITY OF KENTUCKY . COLLEGE OF AGRICULTURE

is about to begin, and everyone is invited through the of unpaved ground - maybe even in your own back yard. We are referring, of course, to spring's colorful pageant - of the great carpet of wildflowers unrolling across the land and the symphony of birdsong as warblers return from the South. All you have to do is just go out, look, listen, and walk around.

This country in general, and Kentucky in particular, is blessed with a wonderful variety of songbirds and wildflowers. In this beautiful state in woods. That is where you alone there are approximately 2,000 species of wildflowers and ferns that grow in sufficient size and numbers to attract popular interest. Starting with the dainty little spring beauty and pristine white saxifrage now already in flower and winding up with the plaintive little "farewell summer" in the fall, the days and the months between make up one long extravaganza of wildflower blooming.

After a winter of cold and snow, it is in springtime when wildflowers mean the most to body and not just a few.

The greatest show on earth us. To the flower lover - and their numbers are growing from year to year, it is a thrill gate. Admission is free, and to discover the first pale performances are held at all anemone trembling in the hours of the day and at any wind beside an old decaying place where there is a space log. It is a keen pleasure to smell the heavenly odor of the trailing arbutus, and to see the beauty of the dogwood and redbud in bloom.

> Whether it is a white trillium growing by a woodland creekside or a common violet flowering in a fence corner, finding and identifying wildflowers is a lot of pleasure to a lot of people. Adding to the interest is the research into their lives and their history. More than two-thirds of our common wildflowers are surrounded by either legend, romance, or superstition sometimes by all three - all of which adds tremendously to the interest and the study of botany.

> The majority of wildflowers that bloom in the spring belong to the large group known as shade-loving plants and are found mostly are most likely to find the anemone, bloodroot, trillium, Indian turnip, and many others.

Also as mentioned before, the show is free but the performers must be respected and remain inviolate. Admire the wildflowers, smell them all you like, and by all means take lots of pictures and capture their beauty on color film, but don't pick. In the first place, especially if in a public place or in a park, it is against the law-and it should be. Wildflowers are for every-

A TRIBUTE TO A SPECIAL LADY By Barbara Madden She was such a perfect lady So full of love and grace. And every time I saw her There was a smile upon her face.

She was so sweet and gentle She was loved by everyone. So queenlike was her presence She would grace any throne.

And though she spoke so seldom You knew that she was there. She had that special quality That is so very rare.

We loved her very dearly And it hurts to know she's gone. But she rests with her Savior now There in her Heavenly home.

Floyd Winter Damage Figures In State's Request for US Aid

The Floyd County Times

Although it is doubtful that winter disaster requests on Washington will result in any help from that source, the figures have gone in, it was announced

A spokesman for the state Department of Emergency Services said the figures submitted from the counties and cities were "significantly reduced" but that they are still of a magnitude which should cause concern on the part of the federal government.

He explained the reductions by saying, 'The federal program has a history of inflated claims, which gives a bad credibility problem."

The damages estimated were divided into two categories-roads and utilities. Floyd county's claims, as submitted to Washington, were $46,000 for roads and $69,875 for utilities (mainly gas and water services).

The figures for school damage arrived too late for revision and were sent into Washington as submitted.

Floyd county's school losses were placed at $23,137

Other county figures for roads and utilities follow (they include cities within the counties)

Boyd-$20,000 for roads; $48,000 for utilities.

Carter-$32,466 for roads; $3,220 for utilities.

Greenup-$23,980; $46,051. Elliott-$14,290; $10,000 for buildings. Lawrence-$15,886; $14,545. Johnson-$39,650; $13,437. Magoffin-No road report; $3,400 utilities.

Rowan-$25,000; $35,287. Morgan-$24,789; $12,853. Other school figures in the area were: Ashland-$326,740 Fairview-$3,928. Greenup county-$78,794. Russell-$46,000. Raceland-$2,000. Carter county-$56,450. Lawrence county-no report.

Elliott county-$22,200.

Two P'burg Students Graduate from U. of L.

Louisville, Ky .- Two students from Prestonsburg graduated from the University of Louisville at the end of the fall 1976 term.

They are Francis Edward Worland Jr. 324 N. Arnold Ave., who received a juris doctor degree, and Elizabeth Graham Dingus, 5 Highland Ave., who received a master of education degree in secondary school guidance.

Commencement for the fall graduates will be held May 15.

Johnson county-$12,700. Paintsville-$45,000. Magoffin county-$79,000. Rowan county-$12,846. Morgan county-$41,575.

Kentucky officials are hoping for lowinterest loans and grants for farmers, whose losses in animal deaths, additional feed costs and physical damages on the farms have been estimated at more than $108 million.

They also hope loans can be obtained for businesses and industries which have been hit with an estimated $296 million in sales and production losses and physical damage.

Requesting aid with economic losses caused by several weeks of bad weather is unprecedented. "No state ever asked for a disaster declaration f the type we are seeking," DES spokesman said.

Aid could also include grant for homeowners who can't obtain other assistance in reparing weather damage to their houses, and for local governments faced with repairs to buildings, water and sewer systems and other public property.

The decision whether to declare a natural disaster in Kentucky, and what counties will be eligible for aid, will come after FDAA officials make a recommendation to President Carter.

By NEVYLE SHACKELFORD UK College of Agriculture "The stormy March is come at last, with wind, and cloud, and changing skies; I hear the rushing of the blast that through the stormy valley flies." Ah yes indeed, March has come again and not a bit too soon either. Although part winter and part spring and partaking of the traits of both seasons, the month's days of storms and cold are made more bearable by the fact that there are also days of real spring mildness and sunshine. Then the vernal equinox, which marks the beginning of spring, comes on March 21, and with this celestial event comes the bright hopes of April when Old Mother Earth really starts donning her new wardrobe.

In March everything starts looking up. Down on the farm there is much work to be done. No longer is there much time to relax in a rocking chair before the glowing baseburner. Another planting season is nearly here and to eat well and fare well, the farmer and gardner must shake off winter's lethargy, start drinking sassafras tea, and get busy. In March, time's really awastin' and the sooner one gets started on springtime chores, the better.

To get ahead faster and to make the work go easier come May and June, the horticultural staff of the UK College of Agriculture offers these suggestions:

Repair and clean the old sprayer for good performance. Secure any new parts that may be needed.

Pick up copies of recommended spray materials for 1977 at your county agent's office. Remember, spray materials change each year.

Prune grape vines, peach and apple trees in early March, but don't overdo it. Also loosen wire from labels of new fruit trees or shrubs that may have been set out last fall. These wires often cause girdling when the plants start to grow.

Apply commercial dormant oil spray to control scale insects on the fruit trees. Take mulch off perennials near the end of the month and seed bluegrass lawns. Use two pounds of Ken-Blue variety bluegrass per 1,000 square feet.

Lawns not fertilized last fall will benefit from applications such as 10 pounds of 20-10-5 per 1,000 feet, or 20 pounds of 10-10-10 per 1,000 square feet. And something else, if the lawn is harassed by crabgrass, apply preemergent crabgrass chemicals before the first week in April.

Be sure to get soil tests in as soon as possible to the county agent. Soil testing laboratories usually get swamped after the first few warm gardening days.

Start annual flowers from seed indoors. Slow growing types, such as begonias, impatiens, verbenas and vincas, should be started as soon as possible. Plant bare-rooted roses this month because late March is an ideal time. Also, if the garden soil is dry enough, Irish potatoes can be planted on the "dark nights" of the month. This period, in the old tradition, is the best time of the spring to plant these tubers.

Also, if you are in the mind to get out some other garden crops-cabbage, broccoli, cauliflower, Bibb lettuce, leaf lettuce, mustard, kale and turnips can be planted during the latter days of March. Also, if you didn't plant your peas in February, get the seed in the ground between March 1-15.

During the colder or rainy days of the month, divide dahlias and cannas for late April or early May planting. Clean gladiolus in readiness for mid-April planting. Feed ground cover plants to encourage maximum spring growth. Use three pounds of a fertilizer such as 5-10-5 per 1,000 square feet.

If there is any time left after doing all these things, it would be a good idea to make some bluebird boxes and place them on fence posts around the garden. Also to help decrease mosquito populations around the homestead, put up a martin box or two.

What with all the work that needs to be done and all the bluster and cold, March may not be the ideal month, but as the poet, William Cullen Bryant wrote, it does bring the "hope of those calm skies, and that soft time of sunny showers, when the wide bloom on earth that lies, seems of a brighter world than ours.

A Reason To Give

The month of March is Red Cross month. This is the time of year we are asked to give, so that Red Cross can help others in need. Who are the others? They're the tens of thousands of disaster victims who receive help from Red Cross in rebuilding their shattered lives. Persons with serious diseases who benefit from Red Cross blood research programs, servicemen and their families who turn to Red Cross for help in time of need. Young people taking water safety and First Aid training to prepare themselves for emergencies. Red Cross was there to help them and many more. The money needed to do the job came from people like you, and over two million Red Cross volunteers stretched your dollars as far as they could go.

This year your help and your contribution are even more necessary to continue and expand Red Cross services. Please help Red Cross help. Send your check to your local Floyd county chapter.

Mrs. Johnson To Head Easter Seal Drive

Mrs. Helena Johnson, of Prestonsburg, has been named chairman of the 1977 Easter Seal campaign for Floyd county, according to Bert Combs, Louisville, state campaign chairman. Mrs. Johnson has served in this capacity since 1974. The annual appeal began March 1 and will continue through Easter Sunday, April 10.

Contributions to the annual campaign will be used by the Kentucky Easter Seal Society for Crippled Children and Adults to provide care and treatment for physically handicapped Kentuckians throughout the state.

through Friday. ANSWER line: First of all, over the past twenty-five years, the cancer death rate in America has gone up only slightly, and for some forms of cancer, the death rate has either stabilized or decreased. There is, however, one form of cancer death which has been "soaring" and that involves lung cancer. In fact, the total cancer death rate in this country would be going down were it not for lung cancer. And, this is most definitely a disease caused by our social environment which promotes cigarette smoking. There has been a tremendous amount of publicity and concern about the cancer impact of our environment but you should keep in mind the few facts that have been established: cigarette smoking most certainly can lead to lung cancer; overexposure to the sun can cause skin cancer; certain industrial chemicals such as asbestos and vinyl chloride have been linked to a small number of human cancer deaths.

through the stool or seen in the toilet bowl can be symptomatic of hemorrhoidsbut, bleeding can also be a sign of bowel cancer. You owe it to yourself to have your condition checked by a physician right away because that's the only way to discover just what is troubling you. By the way, even the person who definitely has hemorrhoids should not dismiss rectal bleeding because people can have both hemorrhoids and cancer. Your selfdiagnosis isn't a good idea because if you have cancer, the earlier it is properly diagnosed and treated, the better.

NOTICE

Today the eyes of the world are upon the Middle East. The Arab-Israel tension, the peace effort and the oil crises have captured the attention of every one. What is behind all this? For some answers, listen to the program, "The King Is Coming", a series of prophetic sermons on Israel and the Jew, Sunday 9:15-10 a.m. on WDOC-FM 1-19-tf.

In girlhood it was thrilling to hear Cousins Newt and Jewell Nichols describe experiences in building the Panama Canal. That enlivened geography and history. In 1915 Cousin Jewel brought back some fascinating draperies, just multiple strands of beads, made from the seed of a Panamanian tree, hard as shells. They left something more precious, their only daughter. Malaria and yellow fever claimed many lives.

The Canal is ours because we did not lease or rent it but build it and bought it outright, on Nov. 18, 1903, by the Hay-Buneau-Varilla Treaty, after other treaties had been aborted. The infant Republic of Panama granted the U.S. 'complete sovereignty of the proposed canal in perpetuity, to the entire 'exclusion of any sovereignty, rights, power, and authority on the part of Panama," thanks to old Teddy R. who meant what he said and said what he meant! America is to support, operate and defend it. The Canal Zone is ten miles wide and forty to fifty miles long. We accepted responsibility for its sanitation, due to the prevalence of mosquitoes. The U.S. gave Panama ten million, pledged an annuity of a quarter million. Increased use of the canal raised our yearly stipend to Panama to approximately two million. Since Panama had just acquired independence from Colombia the U.S. paid the latter twenty-five million in 1921. Started in 1905, the gigantic passage required nine years to build, when pick and shovel were common tools, long before heavy machinery and equipment

Almost since its origin, the Communist Party of Russia has opposed national ownership of important waterways.

Three decades ago Moscow started demanding internationalization of the canal, to undermine her lone rival. Will Russia want the French to gain control of the Mississippi River by demanding that we return Louisianna to France some day? The canal problem is no longer between the U.S. and Panama. It is the U.S. versus the U.S.S.R. Consensus is that Russia made Cuba the power she now is because she wants control (direct or indirect) over the canal. The 1964 uprising in the Canal Zone was led by

Communists. It is known that Alger Hiss pressed for the interests of Panama in the canal. Present Panamanian leaders make no pretense of hiding their Marxist connections and persuasians. Current head of the nation, Gen. Omar Torrijos, is rated a dictator who espouses leftist ideology, rattles his sabers and threatens to demolish the canal by force unless

The constitution says only Congress can sell or release American territory.

The U.S. Senate alone can ratify any treaty, but our constitution and freedoms are being whittled away, like many national beliefs, policies, defenses, thanks to the fast-spreading influence of communist philosophy and power

throughout the world, where one nation now controls over half the land, and a much higher percentage of population, not by military conquest alone but by capturing the minds of men. It is because of this nefarious enemy of mankind and liberty that secret treaties and agreements in America have become almost a way of life under more than one administration, according to reliable reports. No one said a thing about human rights when millions were put to death in horrible manners! Unless our course is reversed to protect our interests time will prove that giving in and giving away

by degrees boils down to total surrender,

In 1967 President Johnson had a new secret treaty drawn up that would have annulled the first and given the canal to Panama at the end of the century.

Congress got wind of this and blocked it temporarily. National sentiment has disclosed that five to one persons favor retaining the canal, but various former negotiators for the U.S.-including

Bunker and Kissenger, and others-are men of the "give-away" philosophy. Sec.

Vance leans the same way. Carter seems to do likewise. It is hard to believe that many of our own leaders have been gradually yielding countless rights to national security. Military bases have een closed: manpower reduced here

one day

were available. Our nation has invested more than six billion in the project, which is vital to U.S. survival. We own the Canal and its Zone the same way we do Louisianna and Alaska, both bought much earlier from foreign powers. Nations should honor their treaties. America has been magnanimous toward Panama, and permitted other countries to use the 41-foot deep waterway, thru which ships pass in a few hours, making it invaluable at all times, particularly in and at strategic points abroad; needed foreign bases shut down; crucial weapons discontinued; millions wasted on canceled projects-all in the supposed interest of peace, which reminds many of Chamberlain's persistent appeasement of Hitler, and its ultimate cost to Britain and her Allies. Many are unaware that 129 representatives of our government over one year ago signed a "Declaration of INTERdependence," in Philadelphia, signifying they want U.S. sovereignty abolished, that they favor one-world government; despite the fact that communists now dominate most of the globe and its people, and could outvote America on issues. Few question that communists are behind present demands in Panama. Turning the Canal over to Panama is the ideal way to place our ocean to ocean trade under them. Yet more asinine is the fact that our very transactors who advocate giving up the canal insist the U.S. should continue to support, maintain, and defend it! If you are against surrendering the canal do write your congressman, senators, Secretary Vance and the President, all of whom pay attention to the populace.

Hearing Delayed On Pike Co. Case

Pikeville—A preliminary hearing for four Pike county residents charged with promoting prostitution in the second degree, a felony charge, has been postponed from last Friday to March 8 by Trial Commissioner John R. Phillips. Since the grand jury will meet March 7, the four could be indicted before the preliminary hearing.

Those charged with the felony charge of promoting prostitution are: Kyle Wolford, 25, Belcher; Elma Owens, 27, Elkhorn City; Dennis Dale Bartley, 23, Elkhorn City; and Warren Elswick, 28, Belcher.

The raids were made on the Adult Activities Center in Pikeville, on the Levisa Gentlemen's Club at Collins and on rooms at the Landmark Motel, near Pikeville.

The raids were made simultaneously by officers from the Pike county detective bureau and the Kentucky State Police. Col. Chester D. Potter, of Prestonsburg, led the State Police investigation.

The investigation started after the Adult Activities Center, owned and operated by Warren Elswick, first opened in Pikeville. The detective bureau initiated the investigation to explore rumors that the massage parlor was being used for prostitution.

In appearances before Judge Rutherford last Tuesday, Elswick was arraigned on two counts of illegal sale of alcoholic beverages in dry option territory, six counts of operating two businesses without an entertainment license and with contributing to the delinquency of a minor, in addition to the promoting prostitution charge.

Elswick's bond was set at $10,000 on the promoting prostitution charge, $500 on each of the two counts of illegal sale of alcoholic beverages, and $400 on each of the six counts of operating without a license.

Wolford's bond was $10,000 for the promoting prostitution charge.

Elma Owens was charged with promoting prostitution in the second degree ($5,000 bond), carrying a concealed deadly weapon ($1,000), possession of a defaced firearm ($250), and operating a business without an entertainment permit ($250).

Bartley's bond was set at $5,000 for the promoting prostitution charge.

The others arrested and charged after the raids were: Linda Miller, 19, Johnson City, Tenn., whose bond on the charge of prostitution was set at $5,000. Her bond was later reduced to $1,000.

Wanda Woody, 22, Johnson City, Tenn., who also was charged with prostitution ($5,000 bond). Her bond was later reduced to $1,000.

Evelyn Owens, 34, Elkhorn City, was charged with promoting prostitution in the third egree, a misdemeanor ($1,000 bond).

THE GEIGER EASTER Seal Speech and Hearing Center, at Ashland (Kentucky), provided help for 970 people with communication problems in 1976.

Your Suggestions Are Wanted

In an effort to encourage area residents to participate in the regional planning process, the Big Sandy Area Development District is conducting this survey to gather information concerning the capital projects and human services programs necessary to the development and improvement of the Region. Information gathered through responses to the form below and through public meetings to be held throughout the Area will be used to establish a Comprehensive Improvement Program for the Big Sandy Area.

Area residents are encouraged to submit their suggestions on any project(s) or program(s) that would contribute to the development of their city or county and the five-county (Floyd, Johnson, Magoffin, Martin and Pike Counties) area as a whole. Capital projects are those which would require property acquisition, construction, and-or the purchase of major items of equipment (i. e. water, sewer, housing, public buildings and facilities, etc.). Human Services Projects or Programs are those which deliver services that satisfy human needs or improve opportunities for citizens in the Area, i. e. nutrition programs for the Aging and for the young, youth programs, manpower training programs, health programs.

Projects suggested via the form below and projects already proposed in plans and other documents will be reviewed at public meetings. The results of these public meetings will then be submitted to respective city councils and fiscal courts for their use and to the Board of the Big Sandy Area Development District for use in developing its "Comprehensive Improvement Program for the Big Sandy Area."

State's First Tornado Watch Prompts Advice for Next

Frankfort, Ky.-Kentucky experienced its first tornado "watch" of the year Feb. 23, prompting state Disaster and Emergency Services officials to remind all Kentuckians of actions to take during a "watch" and "warning."

'Tornadoes can occur at any time, "Robert L. McFerren, deputy director of DES, said, "but we know that they are most common around here in spring and early summer.'

He said that it is most important that everyone know the difference between a 'watch'' and a ''warning.'

"A 'watch' is issued by the National Weather Service whenever conditions exist that could cause tornadoes," Mc-Ferren explained, "and there are definite actions that should be taken. A 'warning' is issued, when a funnel has actually been sighted and people in affected areas should take immediate safety precautions."

He advised that during a "watch" individuals should determine the best shelter area for use if necessary and clear the lawn of outdoor furniture, trash cans or any other objects that might be blown away, since such items can be deadly weapons in high winds.

A transistor radio and a non-electric light source should also be available, and matches should be on hand. Residents of the affected areas should remain tuned to a local radio or television station and watch the sky to the southeast.

If a "warning" is issued, people in the affected area should insure that windows are open on two sides of the house, east and north, so air can pass through without creating a vacuum.

Residents should also insure that everyone in the household or immediate area is warned and seek shelter immediately.

"Wherever the shelter is," McFerren continued, "all pictures, mirrors and other hanging objects should be removed from the walls.

He also noted that schools have tornado plans and that parents should not go to schools when a warning is given.

"Parents only expose themselves and their children to needless risk." he added. "In nearly every case the child will be safer in school than at home."

McFerren reported that additional safety information is available through local DES, civil defense, and other emergency preparedness organizations.

Schools Given Till July 1st On Career Education Plans

school districts to submit plans for a career education program has been extended to July 1, according to Dorothy Alexander, career education coordinator for the Kentucky Department of Education.

"We have extended the deadline to give districts adequate time to develop local plans," Miss Alexander said. 'However," she added, "we held six workshops in January for district career education coordinators despite the bad weather.

Attendance at these workshops represented a little more than 50 per cent of the school districts," she said. Another workshop is scheduled March 15 in Frankfort for those who missed the January workshops.

Miss Alexander said the workshops are designed to give career education coordinators technical assistance in developing career education plans for their districts.

"The districts have started sending their plans to the state education department and we are now reviewing the plans," Miss Alexander said. According to state guidelines, all school districts must include career education in their curriculum by the 1978 fall school term.

The state's career education program was implemented by the 1976 General Assembly. Each public school district will receive a grant based on $3.15 per student according to the average daily attendance records, for career education.

Miss Alexander said confusion exists about the difference between career

Public Service Commission (PSC) to approve rate increases unless national action is taken to stabilize the energy situation, Barkley Sturgill, PSC chairman, said last Thursday.

Speaking at a Frankfort meeting of the Interim Committee on Public Utilities and Transportation, Sturgill said inflation, environmental protection costs, a shortage of energy and lack of a national energy policy have resulted in requests for utility rate increases.

'There will be continued rate cases," Sturgill said, adding, "This is a national picture." The PSC conducted 61 hearings during the last two months.

In response to questioning from committee members, Sturgill said he has no way of knowing what fuel rates will be in the coming months and years. He said there is nothing the PSC can do about the power rates, but "I imagine Congress could do something about it."

Sturgill appeared before the committee to report on the functions and operation of the PSC.

"I think that we have adequately done our job," he said. The hiring of additional engineers, examiners and full-time legal counsel has permitted the commission to keep abreast of cases before the PSC, according to Sturgill. And he said the employment of an executive director, Utilities will continue to ask the state probably within the next 30 days, will make the PSC even more efficient. Sturgill reported on specific issues Gov. Julian Carroll had asked the PSC to study last year.

Among other things, he said the commission believes a divisionor department of water resources should be established to deal with the collection and treatment of sewage.

'This commission has had some experience with private sewer systems and sewer districts. We have found that most of these systems have been developed with a minimum amount of capital investment by a real estate promoter with little concern for continuity of operation of sewer services," the PSC chairman said.

Sturgill said the commission is evaluating the feasibility and desirability of permitting utility rates to deviate from a cost-of-service basis to aid low and fixed-income groups, among other purposes. A study on that will be completed July 1.

Harsher Punishment Needed For Juveniles, Judge Says

Courts need to be able to apply more stringent punishment to young lawbreakers, a judge in Fayette county juvenile court said recently.

Judge William Anthony Todd said many improvements have been made recently in the laws covering juvenile crime, but it is still virtually impossible to impose severe sentences when a defendant is under 16.

"There's nothing magic about the number 16," Todd said.

'For example, I had a 15-year-old before me who was charged with three counts of armed robbery, one count of rape, one of auto theft, one of escape in the first degree, one of wanton endangerment and one of assault.

"If he were convicted on all of those charges, the most I could do would be to commit him to the Department (for Human Resources) and I couldn't require them to keep him off the streets for any time at all.'

At the same time, he said, some

Public Buildings To Suit Handicapped

Frankfort, Ky.-Dinner at a restaurant, a call from a public phone booth or an elevator trip to the top floors of a high-rise are activities most people take for granted. But for those confined to a wheelchair and for other physically handicapped persons, the "routine" can be difficult, if not impossible.

Officials of the state fire marshal's office say they hope to alleviate many architectural barriers encountered daily by the handicapped. The office has long been charged with inspection of public buildings for fire safety violations but only recently has begun checking building plans to ascertain that required facilities for the handicapped are included.

All public buildings and remodeling plans submitted to the office after June 21, 1974, are invalid unless they comply with state regulations for the handicapped.

Stanley Boyd, of the state fire marshal's office, said state regulations include far more than ramps or specialized bathroom facilities. For instance, he said some buildings may be required to install knurled doorknobs to warn the blind they are about to enter a potentially dangerous area. Public telephones and water fountains should be accessible to everyone, he added. John Jarrett, chairman of ALPHA's architectural barrier removal committee, said his group would like to see the regulations expanded to include subdivisions, apartments and factories. "Right now you can be offered a job, but you must find a way to get in the door," he explained. Jarrett said ALPHA was also concerned about the inconvenience voting booths pose for persons in wheelchairs. And, he noted that a permanently disabled person must now submit a doctor's statement when applying for an absentee ballot each election period. Jarrett suggested a permanent card allowing qualified handicapped persons to avoid the repetitive doctor's statement. ALPHA is currently preparing legislative proposals for the 1978 General Assembly, he added.

defendants who are 17 or 18 "aren't ready for an adult court experience.

Todd, who has been on the juvenile court bench since January, 1974, said the FBI has reported that people under 18 committed half the crimes in this country in 1975.

He said the world and the people in it have changed in the past generation.

"I think young people are more worldly than maybe you and I were at the same age and perhaps they have too many adult freedoms without adult judgment, he said.

'Then, too, families are almost nonexistent these days. Parents seem to take a passive role, providing material things for their children without providing moral and philosophical guidance

'Parents need to assume the major responsibility for raising children and not abdicate that to the schools and the courts.'

Todd said he tries in each of his cases to determine if a juvenile's parents contributed to his delinquency

In such cases, he said, he levies fines against the parents. But if he finds them blameless, the punishment goes to the youngster.

"We try to make them make restitution to the victim in crimes where there is a victim," he said.

"In crimes involving the communityfalse fire alarms, bomb threats and the like-we have them give community service: 40, 80, 120 hours they owe the community. We've had them working in schools, for the fire department, in old folks' homes and just about any place."

But there are others for whom a 'serious punitive sanction needs to be available," the judge said.

'We see some kids 14 or 15 years old that have exhausted all of the possibilities we have in our probation system. They are ready to face the adult consequences for what they've done.' Legislators are hesitant to enact strong juvenile laws because "we vote on our children." Todd said.

"But, more and more, people are beginning to feel they need not abdicate their own self-defense just because a lawbreaker is under the age of 16.

Dr. Fuson will exhibit the collection which he and his wife secured during the years 1958-'60 while serving as English teachers at the government university in Meshed, northeastern Iran. Perhaps most notable among his collection is a handwritten copy of the Koran. The volume was finished by the amanuensis in 1809 A.D. Many other curios and art works will be displayed and discussed during the course which will meet from 6 to 7:30 p.m. Mondays, beginning March 7 and continuing for seven sessions through April 25.

Middle East Literature

Dr. Ben W. Fuson, formerly of Kansas

Wesleyan University, who has lived and taught in Iran, India, China and Japan, will be teaching a non-credit course,

'Middle East Literature and Culture," at

Prestonsburg Community College this

The course will serve as an introduction to the literature and culture of India, Arabia and Persia, both modern and ancient. Art exhibits, tapes of musical examples, and slides will be included in the presentation.

Ky. Schools Will Spend $6.8 Million

Kentucky schools will spend more than $6.8 million on textbooks for the 1977-'78 school year. Although free textbooks have long been provided to elementary students, it will be only the second year of a program to provide free text books to high school students.

Most of the $4.5 million allocated for grades one through eight will be used to buy science and health books for elementary grades. The remainder will be spent on replacement books in other subject areas and to buy additional books in areas where enrollment has increased.

The money will be distributed at a rate of $9.60 per elementary pupil an increase from $9 per pupil this year.

Almost $2.3 million will be used to purchase high school textbooks under the program begun this year. Previously, each high school student was required to buy his own texts. This year, social studies and language arts books were made available to high school students as a cost to the state of $21 per student.

In the coming year, science and health texts will be purchased at a cost of $10.60 per student. The state has allocated almost $2.3 million to high schools for textbooks; over $4.5 million was spent last year.

Textbooks in an additional subject area will be purchased each year by the state until all high school texts are free to students.

-Next year's budget of $6.8 million will be a decrease from the present $8.8 million budget. According to Eugene Robinson, Division of Instructional Media in Kentucky's Department of Education, the greater cost of high school texts supplied during the 1976-'77 school year accounts for the higher figure.

Consumer Comments

By Atty. Gen. Robert F. Stephens The American dream of selfemployment which produces great personal profits still has an enormous appeal for many people. The dream itself is fine, but it can be manipulated by unscrupulous business promoters to exploit and defraud consumers. The American dream can easily become the American nightmare.

The nightmare often begins with the following advertisement. "Excellent opportunity. No selling. Only 4 - 10 hours weekly, with complete company training and location set-up. Make up to $12,000yr. Investment of $600-$5,900. Call Mr. Smith." An ad like this can attract a lot of attention. The investment is significant, but not overwhelming. The work involved seems minimal. The potential profits claimed are extraordinary. In short, this seems like a golden business opportunity. But is it?

If you call Mr. Smith, you may be given a pitch which is fairly routine for such business opportunity proposals. You may be told you will sell Mr. Smith's products or make products which his company will buy back from you, or for which a certain market will be guaranteed. Mr. Smith's company will help you set up an accounting, production, or distribution Your investment will be system. guaranteed. You will have to make an initial, sizeable investment, usually in the form of cash or a cashier's or certified check, in order to set everything else in motion.

Before an interested party signs even one piece of paper connected with Mr. Smith's company, he or she should thoroughly investigate the business. Ask Mr. Smith for business, financial, trade association, and other customer references which you can check. Find out how long the company has been established and the quality of its business reputation. Check with the chamber of commerce, the Better Business Bureau, and the state and local consumer protection agencies.

Ask what you get for your initial investment. If the investment is guaranteed, ask how it is guaranteed and check on the strength of this assurance. If your

Pike County Squire's Salaries Increased

Pikeville—There may be more millionaries in Pike county per capita than anywhere else in the world, unless it would be Kuwait or Miami Beach.

Now governmental salaries are beginning to reflect a combination of affluence and responsibility.

Pike County Judge Wayne T. Rutherford, sitting as head of the county court, has approved a magisterial redistricting which cuts the number of districts from eight to four.

In line with that move, salaries for squires will go from $7,200 a year to $17,500 a year, a move taken under legislation approved at state level in 1976. "In the past magistrates have had part time, jobs, Error now, on these part-time jobs. From now on, these elected officials are going to be full-time, they are gong to have responsibility for administration of county programs, and we feel they will earn this salary.

personal check is refused and your money is demanded in the form of cash or a certified or cashier's check, this will tell you immediately that you are dealing with someone who is more interested in getting your money than in establishing a good business relationship with you. Don't forget that once your cash or a certified or cashier's check is put in Mr. Smith's hands, it may be almost impossible to get it back. However, you may be able to stop payment on a personal check, if something goes wrong. The mere fact that your money is demanded before Mr. Smith does anything should make you take a serious second thought about any further negotiations.

If a particular sales or "exclusive" territory is guaranteed, find out how many other salesmen are in the same area. Look into the marketing possibilities in your area or the area Mr. Smith proposes as the market or outlet for your products. You should also ask about the presence of a permanent, wellestablished company representative in your area.

The profit claims should also be examined and analyzed very closely. Can the company verify the details of the profit claims? Does the proposal state in writing the time it will take to produce the claimed return? What is the success record of others who have invested in this particular company? Insist upon being furnished with names and addresses of other investors. If your request is refused, then you should seriously question any further negotiations.

You should not sign any binding legal documents until all of these questions have been answered satisfactorily. Give the proposed investment your serious consideration and don't rush into any agreements about which you lack any important information. It may be wise to check with an attorney about the advisability of the business opportunity offer and the quality and fairness of the documents involved.

If you have a consumer complaint, write to the Office of the Attorney General, Division of Consumer Protection, Frankfort, Ky., 40601. The office has found that it can most effectively deal with written complaints and encourages you to write when you have a complaint. However, if you have an emergency situation call the Consumer Hotline. The number is 1-800-372-2960.

FIREARMS EXHIBITED WILLIAMSBURG, Va.—An exhibition of 94 European firearms, part of the collection of Clay P. Bedford of Scottsdale, Ariz., will be on display here at the 1977 Antiques Forum through March 7. The arms date from the early 16th to mid-19th century.

"Right now magistrates meet once a month, or maybe twice. After Jan. 1, they'll likely meet once a week, or more. Most counties can't pay that amount of salary, but Pike, with its coal gasification and other programs, will be able to."

Rutherford said the four-district split has drawn no formal protest, "but I expect it to. I've never seen one of these things yet that didn't have a suit filed before it was through."

Observers noted the only stated protests over the redistricting were complaints that the Blackberry and Pond Creek areas were not in the same district, while it is necessary to travel through one to get to the other.

Things Made Better Now?

Are modern products sleazy, shoddy, inferior to the ones they made in "the good old days''? No, says the March Reader's Digest. In many instances today's manufacturing skill gives the consumer a far better buy for the money than ever before.

Appliances, for example, are sturdier and often more convenient. According to the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, which made a comparison of refrigerators purchased between 1958 and 1972, the new models required only half as many service calls in the first year of use than the old ones-and they don't need defrosting! The same is true of color TV sets; the M.I.T. study shows that in 1960 they required an average of three service calls a year, but in 1972 that average was down to just one.

Gone are the days of solid, plaster-wall construction in housing. But the modern house is better insulated and waterproofed, and its plumbing and wiring are also improved. In clothing, permanentpress fabrics have almost eliminated ironing as a chore, and they far outwear their natural predecessors.

While it is true that one cannot duplicate the workmanship that went into a Buick or a Packard of 30 years ago-at least not for under $20,000-on the whole modern cars are more efficient and comfortable. Remember when you had to change the oil every 1000 miles? In some newer models that figure has changed to every 7500 miles. Many new tires will last 40,000 miles, and blowouts on the road are almost nonexistent.

Good as the old days may have been, they didn't make 'em like they do now.

and are they glad to come back? You can bet your sweet life they are! How do they show it? By flying about excitedly, chirping and chattering, bursting into happy song.

The early arrivals are bluebirds, robins, purple martins and the eastern phoebe, which some mistakently call 'pewee." The phoebe may be seen most any day now, sitting on a fence post, flirting its tail and calling its name with emphasis on the second name, as "feebee, Fee-BEE!" It begins its nest of mud and moss on the underside of some bridge or beneath an overhanging cliff, or perhaps in the eaves of some old barn. It is one of the flycatchers and a most valuable eater of obnoxious insects.

The first purple martins will arrive around March 26. Their scouts come in advance of the main flocks; they are sent out to survey the land, the weather conditions, the availability of nest boxes; they then go back south and report to the main flocks waiting for word to move north. The main flocks will arrive in April and begin building nests in the boxes of their choice.

The bluebird announces its arrival by a soft, tender, gurgling song-"too sweet for anything," wrote Riley. Another writer said, "It's a real joy to wake up on a fine spring morning and hear the sweet warble of a bluebird outside my bedroom window.

In March, the robins come and settle on the lawn in sizeable flocks. They make little sudden sallies to catch some venturesome worm; they greet the observer with cheerful "purts," and eye him with a friendly look. "Robins and bluebirds are the classic harbingers of spring," said one writer. The bluebird has a call note that sounds somewhat like a Swiss yodeling. It says: "A-loo-la-oo-la." Their song has been translated as singing softly "Pur-i-tee pur-it-tee."

The greatest miracle of spring is the sudden arrival of the woodthrush. It

State Is Touted As Movie Site

Frankfort, Ky.-The executive director of the Kentucky Film Commission said he established some important film industry contacts during a recent meeting of film commissions in Atlanta.

"I also picked up some new ideas on ways to promote Kentucky as a site for location filming," said Tom Clark-Todd, 'and learned what catches the film industry's eye in advertising."

Kentucky stepped up its effort to entice the film industry to consider filming in Kentucky with the establishment of the Kentucky Film Commission. Attraction of the movie industry to Kentucky is seen as a means of helping to bolster the state's economy.

"Since last fall, two movies have been shot in whole or in part in Kentucky, bringing in an estimated $330,000 in revenue. 'The Thoroughbreds' was shot in Lexington area and 'The Greatest' was filmed in Louisville," Clark-Todd said. "We are hopeful that the contracts I made at the Atlanta meeting will lead to the shooting of other films in Kentucky," he added. The Atlanta meeting, the 1977 Film Commission Cineposium, attracted representatives of film commissions from 23 states, three cities and the Virgin Islands. Representatives of leading film industry firms were present, including Walt Disney Productions, Quinn Martin Productions and 20th Century-Fox and independent production companies.

seems all the woods and all the creatures of early spring wait with breathless expectation for the coming of the woodthrush. When it arrives about mid-April and broadcasts its first clarion notes, the woodlands suddenly come alive. Buds waiting to burst out suddenly pop open and unfold their newborn leaves; the timid flower, half afraid to bloom, suddenly perks up at the thrush's first clear note and bursts out with a new flower; the other birds hear the thrush's voice ringing afar through the woods like a silver bell and they take new heart and join in the song; the trees take on a brighter sheen and quickly clothe themselves in velvet gowns of bright green; the farmer hears the thrush's first song and announces to the boys, "It's time to plant corn, boys; I heard the first song of the 'chadeeling' this morning.' What a great power has the wood thrush to start the first forward march of spring! There is nothing like it in all of nature! The pretty, golden yellow warbler-the only bird that's all-yellow-arrives in early April and announces its presence by singing: "Sweet, sweet, the spring's so very sweet!" It is seen flitting like a flash of gold through the orchard trees, catching the first insects that swarm in the warm spring sunshine.

Then soon from the hills you'll hear the loudest song of all the warblersthe ovenbird crying, "teacher, teacher, teach!'

And so our feathered friends come back. They are just as sure and depen-

Red Cross Month Proclaimed

Fashions in Chair Design Changed Frequently in Past

Frankfort, Ky — "Chair designs changed as frequently in the 19th century as today's hemlines," according to Lynn Sweet, cabinet-maker for the Kentucky Historical Society. "Every decade a new style of furniture evolved."

Styles ranged from elaborate handcarved chairs of the Federal period (1785-1815) to the functional rocking chair of the century's last decade, Sweet said.

Examples of chairs made at the end of the 18th century are on display in the Changing Exhibits Gallery of the Old Capitol. The exhibit entitled "The Seat of American Invention" will be displayed until March 13, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Since the exhibit started on Feb. 14, Sweet has been demonstrating the craft of making chairs and has completed a mission chair. According to Sweet, the mission chair was designed by Gustav Stickley who made sturdy, functional chairs. Sweet made his copy of the chair with quartered white oak, old methods of carpentry and simple tools.

He is currently reproducing a Queen Anne Corner chair, designed by John Goddard who first constructed the Newport Rhode Island chair between 1735-'50. The copy has considerable handcarving and is made of Honduras mahogany.

At the age of 19, Sweet became interested in making furniture while working in an antique shop in Woodford County. The owner had a woodworking shop where Sweet learned to disassentible and put together 17th and 18th century antiques. During the past six years he has made around 50 pieces.

He began working with the Kentucky Historical Society in 1973 on the restoration of the Old Capitol. When the restoration was finished, Sweet was hired by the KHS to build models, panels, platforms and other exhibit pieces. He does all the repair work for the KHS.

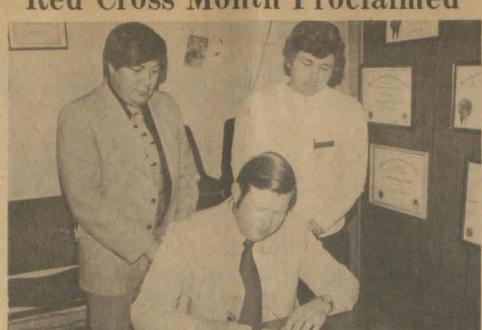

In addition to Sweet's copies, chairs featured in the exhibit include: a Shaker chair, a Boston rocker, two manufactured platform rockers, a Japanese Influence chair, a Chippendale Revival chair and an original chair made by Sweet which he classifies Art Noveau from the end of the 19th century.

One-Pounder in Museum Display

The Hotchkiss "One-Pounder" Cannon, a rapid-fire gun is one of the weapons on display in the museum.

Frankfort, Ky .- The Hotchkiss "One-Pounder" cannon, a rapid-fire gun, can be seen in exhibit at the Kentucky National Guard's annual convention on Feb. 25-27 in the Executive Inn West, Louisville.

"The cannon actually weighs around 1,000 pounds, but fires a shell which weighs one pound," said Nicky Hughes, curator of the Kentucky Military History Museum in Frankfort, the museum, now in operation for three years, is a joint venture of the Kentucky Historical Society and the state Department of Military Affairs,

Hughes and Mike Housh, the museum's assistant curator, will also exhibit the uniforms of the men who used the Hotchkiss cannon and photographs of the gun actually in use.

"In 1900 the cannon was purchased with money from a Kentucky legislative appropriation," said Hughes. "At that time $10,000, the amount of the appropriation, purchased three other Hotchkiss cannons and 1,000 Winchester rifles, as well as clothing and ammunition for the men who used the guns.

Hughes said the cannons were used until 1905, and "this particular Hotchkiss went to the World's Fair in St. Louis on exhibition.

The museum's curators, Hughes and Housh, are available for tours and speaking engagements, but spend most of the time documenting the contributions made to the collection "which months. Kentuckians have contributed many interesting items other than weapons, according to Housh. One unusual item, the chaplain's kit, was donated by the Calvary Episcopal Church in Louisville. "It was made in Bridgeport, Conn. and presented to the First Regiment of the Kentucky National Guard in 1916," said Housh.

Some of the museum pieces were "even invented or developed by Kentuckians," Housh continued. He cited the gas mask invented by Garrett Morgan, born a Paris, Ky. slave with no formal education, who also invented the traffic

"For people who like museums, but aren't too interested in artillery, the museum features what we call the glamorous exhibits," said Hughes.

One of these exhibits is the elaborate silver service which came from the battleship U.S.S. KENTUCKY. The ship was commissioned in 1900 to go to Asia as the flagship of the Asiatic squadron.

'Some patriotic Americans raised $30,000 and had a silversmith in Philadelphia make the silver service which they gave to the U.S.S. KEN-TUCKY," according to Housh. "The ship was scrapped in the early 1900s and the Navy returned the silver to the Commonwealth with the provision that if another ship was made and named the KENTUCKY, the silver would again be theirs to use.

Another of the unique exhibits is the bearskin cape made and worn by Gov. Simon Bolivar Buckner. The cape was recently contributed by Judge Roy A. Cann, Munfordville, who said it was given to him by a postman named W. I. Beville.

"One day when Beville was delivering mail, Gov. Buckner presented him with the cape and told him that he had killed the bear from which it was made," said Housh curators. "The 127 year-old Gothic style brick castle on East Main Street overlooking the Kentucky River was used for storing weapons and as a shop for making cartridges during the Civil War," said Hughes.

Until after World War II, the building served as a storehouse for the Kentucky Militia and the Kentucky National Guard. It then served in a number of military functions and at one time, housed the offices of Civil Defense. In 1973 the "Old Arsenal" was renovated and the museum officially opened on Feb. 18, 1974.

Appalshop Film Showing Scheduled March 16th

At the age of 10, E. D. Stamper met a travelling dulcimer builder. Since that day 59 years ago, Stamper has become a musical legend in Eastern Kentucky. His style of playing the hammered dulcimer is heavily influenced by the "blues," adding an air of distinction to his repetiore.

"Kentucky Magazine" will present the 1977 Appalshop production of "Sourwood Mountain Dulcimers," Sunday, March 13 at 7:30 p.m. over Kentucky Education Television (KET). A rebroadcast is offered Wednesday, March 16 at the same hour.

"Sourwood Mountain Dulcimers" documents dulcimer building and playing in the Kentucky mountains. While concentrating on music, the film depicts the passing of a heritage from an older master, Stamper, to a younger man, John McCutcheon.

June Appal Records, a division of the non-profit Appalshop, Inc., at Whitesburg, is releasing the first recording of Stamper's music this month.

Insurance Firms Ask No-Fault Rate Hike

Frankfort, Ky .- On April 13, the Kentucky Department of Insurance will begin hearing rate increase requests for no-fault auto insurance by seven underwriters.

By approving a 21.2 per cent rate increase for the Travelers Insurance Co. last week the department granted the first no-fault increase since the program went into effect July 1, 1975. A moratorium on rate increases was observed until last Jan. 1.

A 13.1 per cent rate increase request by State Farm, the largest auto underwriter in Kentucky, will be heard March 8.

State Insurance Commissioner Harold McGuffey attributed the requests for rate increases to escalating medical costs and a rise in the average weekly wage. (Injured persons covered by nofault receive their normal wages from their insurance companies until they are able to return to work.)

McGuffey said all seven companies scheduled for the April 13 hearing have requested a boost in the no-fault coverage, which is for bodily injury and personal injury protection. Some have also requested an increase in property and physical damage protection, he said. The companies combining their requested rate increases for both bodily injury and personal injury protection are Prudential, 13 per cent; Meridian Mutual, 25 per cent; Nationwide, six per cent; Pennsylvania General, 5.6 per cent; Colonial Penn, 25 per cent; Cumis Insurance Society, 11.1 per cent. Commonwealth Fire and Casualty has broken its request down into a separate 10 per cent increase request for bodily injury and a 25 per cent request for personal injury protection.

A Fishy Problem

If it weren't for a hardworking group of concerned researchers, our Great Lakes might be just that. Nothing but water. No fish

In the 1950s a blood sucker from the sea, the lamprey, invaded the Great Lakes region in great numbers killing trout in epidemic proportions. The lamprey, an eel-like monster that looks like the short length of a black garden hose, would latch onto the side of the fish and literally suck the life out of it. If trout became scarce, the lamprey preys on other fish.

Your Wallet and The Public Purse

by John W. Gardner

If a criminal knocked you down in the street and stole $50 from your wallet or purse, you'd be outraged. You'd talk about it for years. You'd never forget it.

When corrupt government officials steal millions from you, you read about it, shake your head in disgust and then dismiss it from your mind. Why? If you think the money stolen by corrupt government officials isn't being lifted from your wallet, you'd better think again.

There are a lot of honest politicians. Thank God, they exist. But the dishonest ones also exist.

If we're going to do anything about them, we'll have to begin with some basic preventive measures. One is to require our top officialselected and appointed-to disclose their financial holdings. Citizens have a right to know whether their public officials have a personal financial stake in the very matters on which they're making official decisions-in other words, whether they have a conflict of interest.

The Government's own inspectors-the General Accounting Office-recently uncovered hundreds of such conflicts of interest in the executive branch bureaucracy. They found, among other things, · that an oil engineer in the Interior Department, responsible for monitoring oil company operations on leased lands, had owned stock since 1971 in major oil companies operating on leased lands;

 that a Civil Aeronautics Board employee, responsible for approving air fare requests, owned stock in a firm engaged in air charter, air taxi and flight services;

 that a Federal Maritime Commission district official held 584 shares of stock in a company which was regulated by the Commission and had maritime operations in his district;

· that only seven out of the 125 Federal Power Commission officials required to file a financial statement in 1973 actually did so;

· that the Civil Aeronautics Board procedures are so vague that no CAB official filed a report in 1970, 1971 or 1973.

Section Four, Page Five

A former Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, John Gardner is Chairman of Common Cause.

In one agency after another, the GAO found that nobody had set down a definition of what a conflict of interest was, that financial statements were not being reviewed, and that follow up remedial action was hardly ever taken.

The situation in the Congress is as unsatisfactory as it is in the Executive Branch. Congressional disclosure requirements are so weak that the public can have only the vaguest information on the extent of our lawmakers' financing holdings. We do know that in 1974,

· 86 Representatives had interests in banks; 48 had investments in the top 100 defense contractors;

 66 House members were receiving income from their law firms.

The kind of disclosure law we need would not assert that such outside financial interests are necessarily improper. It would just insist that they be publicly disclosed.

Let us be clear about what is needed in the way of disclosure. Citizens do not need to know a public official's net worth. It tells them nothing of significance for the political process. Nor do citizens need to see an official's income tax form.

Citizens do need to know where the public official gets his or her income (specific stocks owned, real property, etc.). And they need to know approximately the extent of the holdings. For example, if the official receives income from a law firm, a disclosure statute might require that he specify whether it is in the range between $1,000 and $10,000 per year, between $10,000 and $50,000, between $50,000 and $100,000 or over $100,000.

Some federal officials argue that requiring them to disclose their personal finances is a gross invasion of privacy. But no official is coerced into public service. If they voluntarily assume responsibility for decisions affecting large amounts of our tax dollars, we must ask that they give us certain basic information on their own finances. It just makes sense.

Lamprecid stopped the lamprey by attacking it in its larvae stage. Just as importantly, it did not affect other fish, animals or plant life. Shortly after Lamprecid was pumped into the lakes, trout began to appear again on fishermen's lines.

We were thumbing through a book of children's prayers the other day. It contained the usual beautiful little pravers for children, and they were all well done-striking illustrations, and in general good taste throughout the book.

There was one prayer in this book, however, that was outstanding! It was illustrated with the picture of a little boy lying on the grass with his puppy dog beside him. The puppy had one of his forepaws bandaged, and here is the prayer

"My pet does not feel well today, God. He doesn't want to play with me. Please help me to take care of him . A child's prayer? Yes, but isn't that the true prayer that all people should pray? "Help me to " Here we find no care . selfishness-just a petition for guidance in service.

Our thought to remember is: "THOSE WHO HELP-ALWAYS CARE.'

through both the National Direct Student Loan Program and the Federally Insured Student Loan Program. The Kentucky Higher Education Assistance Authority also sponsors a student loan program to assist Kentucky students attending institutions in the state.

The Basic Educational Opportunity Grant Program provides grants ranging between $50 and $1,000 to assist eligible students in meeting educational costs. Grants are offered on the basis of financial need and do not have to be repaid.

The Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grant Program is for students of exceptional financial need who would be unable to continue their education without the grant.

The Kentucky Higher Education Assistance Authority offers grants to Kentucky students who demonstrate financial need and enroll full-time in a degree program at eligible Kentucky institutions. Scholarships are awarded on the basis of a superior ability or skill such as in academics or athletics, rather than financial need.

The College Work-Study Program provides jobs for students who have great financial need and who must earn a part of their educational expenses. The financial aid officer at the university is responsible for arranging jobs on campus or off campus with a public or private non-profit agency.

The Commonwealth Work-Study Program is a cooperative program which provides summer employment to Kentucky residents enrolled in, or accepted for enrollment in Kentucky colleges and universities. It involves the Kentucky Higher Education Assistance Authority, Kentucky institutions of higher education, the Department of Human Resources-Bureau of Manpower Services and Community Action Agencies.

In addition to federal and state programs, many colleges and universities have their own grant, scholarship, loan and work-study programs to help students meet educational expenses.

Students wishing to attend college who need financial help should contact the financial aid director at the school they choose to attend or the continuing education counselor at the local Bureau of Social Services.

Upward Bound Program Seeking High Schoolers

Pippa Passes, Ky.—Applications from high school sophomores and juniors in six Eastern Kentucky counties are being sought for Alice Lloyd College's Upward Bound summer residential program.

Upward Bound, a program financed by the U. S. Office of Education, "seeks to encourage students to pursue postsecondary educational opportunities through a wide variety of educational experiences," says Wallace Campbell, director of Special Programs at ALC. The College has been designated to serve students in six Eastern Kentucky counties including Knott, Floyd, Perry, Leslie, Letcher, and Magoffin.

The Upward Bound summer residential program will begin in June. About 100 high school students enrolled in the program will take classes in math, science, English, social studies, reading, crafts, physical education, and drama and will participate in a number of special programs including seminars and field trips.

Deadline for applications is May 2. Applications may be obtained from high school guidance counselors, or by writing Upward Bound, Box 42, Alice Lloyd College, Pippa Passes, Ky. 41844.

Campbell said he is also accepting applications from area teachers who would like to teach in the summer program. Subject areas include math, science, English, social studies, reading, art, and recreation. Campbell said he is also seeking applications for a men's dormitory director and tutor-counselors. Application deadline is April 8.

Students enrolled in program from Betsy Layne High School are:

Dennis Johnson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Willie Johnson, of Ivel; Ronald Johnson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Willie Johnson, also of Ivel; William Jones, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dawson, of Harold; and Phillip

THINGS TO CONSIDER

Each of us is seeking a better way of life and new ideas that will help our children have a happy, more successful future. This thought should not, and must not, remain a dream. Individual achievements have their rewards, but countywide achievements will bring pride, satisfaction and success to all our people.

Think on these proposals:

1. Water and sewage expansion; 2. The continuity of garbage collection; 3. A YMCA and a YWCA; 4. Roads that can be travelled; 5. Upgrade the pay for county police and improve their equipment; 6. The availability of your Magistrate to be seen or talked to four hours daily.

The show's general manager, Preston Slusher, accepted the award.

In announcing the award, James C. Vernon, public information commissioner said, "The Cooperative Travel Advertising Program has proved over the past few years to be one of the greatest incentives for the development of tourism in Kentucky.

"It is one of the few opportunities for state government and the private sector to work hand in hand as partners in the continued progress of the tourism business," Vernon said.

Known formerly as the Matching Funds Program, the advertising program encourages the promotion of tourism and travel in regional and local areas by providing financial assistance to local organizations. Organizations use allocations for the publication of brochures and other promotional literature, media advertising and participation in travel shows.

High-Scoring Duo In District Meet

The Floyd County Times

By C. "OLLIE" ROBINSON

When the 58th basketball tournament gets under way tonight (Wednesday) at Allen Central High School's gymnasium, fans will see two of the state's top scorers in action.

Wheelwright's Jeff Riley a few weeks ago went on a scoring spree to top all scorers in Kentucky, and for McDowell's Geri Grigsby it has been no contest, all season long. Last week, she passed the 4,000-point mark in her high school career, and no other girl-player in the state is near that amazing mark.

The season standings do not mean a lot when the teams square off in the tournament, but on the basis of their records the Wheelwright Trojans and the Betsy Layne Bobcats are favorites in the boys' division. On the distaff side the McDowell Daredevilettes and the Betsy Layne Kittens are standings leaders, going into the district meeting.

Although the tournament is being played at Allen Central, McDowell High is the host school.

In the boys' division Prestonsburg's Blackcats will go against the

Coach Calls Prestonsburg Net Star Bridgette Clay "A Great Athlete"

Bridget Clay, 17-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Clay, of Prestonsburg, is not only one of the outstanding girls' basketball players in Eastern Kentucky, but also is as well-rounded a high school athlete as can be found.

The Prestonsburg high school senior, who is currently averaging 30 points a game for the girls' Blackcat net team and has accumulated an impressive point total of 2,148 in three years' play, began her athletic training early.

By sixth grade she had won the President's Physical Fitness Award and in eighth grade she added three firstplace track ribbons to her growing collection of honors. As a freshman she won the Sandy Valley Conference in high jump and the Presidential Sports Award for her net skills as a junior.

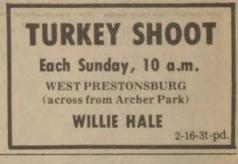

Bridget has played softball for seven years, making All-Star status each year, and her softball team has represented this region in the state softball tournament for the past three years. She has been a member of the track team for the past four years and has spearheaded the PHS basketball team during the three years of its existence.

PHS girls' basketball Coach Charles Collins said of Bridget: "Since she began, she has developed into one of the finest players in the 15th region. She has deceptive moves and excellent body control. She is a great athlete."

Section Four, Page Mille

Besides being a most valuable asset to his team, Coach Collins also credits Miss Clay with being important to the game. "It's players like Bridget who have created a lot of interest and enthusiasm in a game that until just recently had been dead for forty years."

With a four-year grade point average of 3.8 out of a possible 4 point total, Bridgette's sports interests have obviously not interfered with her scholastic efforts, and the young star is looking forward to college where she hopes to continue her athletic and academic success.

To Use EPA Grant For Auto Teachers

3-2-4t

Frankfort, Ky.—The Kentucky Department of Education has received a grant of $14,885 from the Environmental Protection Agency to instruct auto mechanic teachers in emission control systems.

The grant, administered through the Bureau of Vocational Education, covers the cost of travel, meals and lodging of the instructors and the cost of instructional materials, said Pat White, director of Industrial Education in the Bureau of Vocational Education.

Broken into four phases, the training period will cover several months. "When the training is completed, all the auto mechanics teachers in vocational education schools across the state will be qualified to instruct anyone in the inspection and maintenance of emission control systems on all cars," said White. The domino system of teaching the course will be used, said White. "In several weeks four auto mechanic instructors are scheduled to attend an emission control system workshop in Atlanta, taught by a representative of the Environmental Protection Agency, said White. "These four instructors will conduct regional workshops for auto mechanics instructors in state vocational-technical schools. These instructors, in turn, will conduct workshops for auto mechanics instructors in area vocational education centers in their respective regions."

According to White, the program will consist of 40 instructional hours. The curriculum materials (cassettes and slides) were developed by Colorado State University.

White estimated that the instruction will reach at least 170 auto mechanics instructors, 340 postsecondary and 1,400 secondary auto mechanics students and 200 working mechanics in 1977-'78.

State Among Top 10 In Title IX Program

Frankfort, Ky .- "Kentucky's Department of Education is one of the top 10 in the nation in compliance with Title IX and equal employment counseling training regulations," said Ross Henderson, coordinator of Title IX and Equal Employment Opportunity Counselor with the state Department of Education.

A recent survey of local education agencies indicates 90 per cent are complying with Title IX regulations dealing with sex equality in education. Henderson said nearly 80 per cent of local school districts in the state have completed questionnaries.

The regulations apply to educational programs and activities receiving federal financial assistance. Title IX covers the treatment of all employes and students involved in educational programs and activities.

In order to comply with Title IX regulations, school districts must identify a Title IX coordinator, establish a grievance procedure, publish an announcement of the coordinator's name, and complete or be completing a selfevaluation, said Henderson. "And ac-

"Despite lack of federal financial support for implementing Title IX, some progress can be noticed within the past nine months in the state," said Henderson. "Although Title IX is a federal program, it is unlike any other federal program since it deals with democratic attitudes rather than funding," she commented.

"Unfortunately, Title IX responsibilities, in many cases, have been assigned to already overloaded federal program directors who are not financially motivated to add the vital thrust to encourage Title IX implementation," Henderson said. She admitted that lack of federal monies is a stumbling block to implementation but, "Title IX is completely dependent upon a democratic attitude toward human rights, not money.

Shriners Donate Millions to Child Welfare

THERE ARE 11 active staff doctors at the Lexington facility, and 33 consultants who can be called in if needed. At the Cincinnati burn center, there are nine staff doctors and 20 consultant doctors.

NUMEROUS PLAQUES found in other hospitals are not to be seen in Shriner hospitals. A "Book of Gold" records the names of persons who make legacies, bequests and gifts in their wills to the hospitals. The left page reads, "In this Book of Gold are recorded the names of those who have been mercifully mindfully of little children who needed help. For them we pray God's blessings." On the right page — "Dedicated to those who have aided our work."

ADOLPH RUPP, chairman of the board of this particular hospital, said in-patients spend Christmases at home, returning for treatment in January. A vending man in the hospital lobby said he was going home to take his tree down, because he'd "... never seen one as pretty as that." ADMINISTRATOR SPRADLIN said the staff makes an effort to exhibit any work the patients do. While at the hospital, kids attend school so they will not be behind when they return to public school. Education TV is used a lot, she said, and the students put on two plays each year. The Shriners provide the youngsters with numerous toys and games, and make available recreation and oportunities for exercise.

Hospital Costs Rising

As are all hospitals, the Shrine facilities are experiencing the increased costs of equipment, utilities and manpower. The Shrine budgets about $34 million a year to operate its 22 centers. Per patient costs in the Orthopedic units last year averaged $2,200. The average length of stay was 34 days.

For acute burns patients the average length of stay was 40 days, with costs coming to about $375 a day.

In the last 55 years, about $325.4 million has been spent for hospital operation, but the return of the children to society is the Shrine's first concern.

Area Support

Central and Eastern Kentucky communities have supported fund raising activities through their attendance at Shriner circuses, horse shows, rodeos and athletic events. Businesses contribute by purchasing advertising in programs printed for use during these activities.

In addition, church and civic "W organizations entertain the children with our musical programs and plays. admin Oleika Shrine Temple in Lexington or the El Hasa Temple in Ashland. Many are members of a Shrine club or parade unit in their own communities. Members of these clubs and units are often the clowns or mini-car drivers seen in parades.

The Mount Sterling Shrine club contributed several hundred dollars worth of toys to the children's Christmas celebration. The members purchased the toys with money earned at a Mount Sterling Court Day booth in October.

Major Health Problems

Two million Americans are accidentally burned each year. About 70,000 of these require hospital treatment -12,000 eventually die. Of the latter, half are less than 16 years old. Thousands of orthopedic children require help each year.

Many live in towns that cannot provide the necessary medical care. The Shriner centers make this care available.

"We consider the kids we don't treat our liabilities," one hospital administrator said. "The ones we do get to are our assets." THE STAFF operates dining rooms for the girls and boys, and also for employes. Laundry is also aken care of as about 600 hs. are done daily, depending on the ccupancy.

What's Happening?

What's happening in our world today, With everyone going his own separate way.

It seems we don't even take time to notice.

The beautiful things that are all about us. Are we all too busy playing "The Games People Play?"

What's happening to us when we can't even find

Enough time in our day to do something kind.

We seldom slow down enough to take heed.

To a friend or a loved one who is in need. We're always "too busy," just don't have time.

What's happening that makes us want to hide.

All our natural emotions deep inside. We hold a great fear of expressing our love,

Yet we yearn for the feeling of being loved.

It makes me wonder if our feelings have died.

What's happening to us? Its hard to say, Everyone is searching in his own separate way.

Each one is protected in his own little shell.

And his cries become echos in a deep empty well.

There seems so much cruelty in our world today.

What's happening, for sure, is we feel too much fear,

Of trusting and loving those we hold dear. Fear of being condemned and often cast out

Of a society that is missing what life is all about

It seems fear has replaced love through the "Progressive Years."

"Who has seen a shrew? Neither me nor you, but when mice and frogs begin to hop, a shrew is passing through.

When speaking of shrews, there is more truth than poetry in the little old homemade childhood ditty quoted above. In the first place shrews are nocturnal by habit and are so tiny in size that they are hard to see by daylight, much less in the darkness of night. These tiny mammals possess voracious appetites and frequently catch and eat mice and frogs, and sometimes each other. As a matter of fact, wildlife biologists say shrews will eat anything that doesn't eat them first. By way of illustration, the story is told that one night while live-trapping mice to feed caged snakes on the game farm of the Kentucky Division of Fish and Wildlife, a caretaker caught a shrew in his trap. It was dropped into the cage of a rattlesnake to serve as a snack for the serpent.

Next morning while making hs rounds, the caretaker checked the rattlesnake's cage and was surprised and shocked at what he saw. The rattlesnake, bitten through the back of the head, was dead as a doornail and had about two inches of its tail eaten off. The shrew, its belly distended like a well-filled, goatskin water bag, was sitting contentedly in a corner of the cage picking its teeth, figuratively speaking, of course.

As wildlife biologists say, the shrew's greatest enemy is hunger. Because it is so small and burns up energy so fast, it must eat the equivalent of its own eight in food every 24 hours. So, it must constantly be on the move in search of food. This activity places such a strain on its constitution that it rarely lives beyond a year.

On Parkway Tolls

Frankfort, Ky. (Feb. 24, 1977)-January, never a prize month for Kentucky's toll roads, kept travelers home more than usual this year.

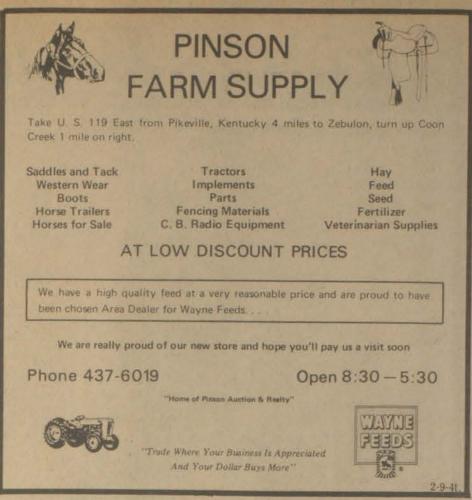

State Transportation Secretary John C. Roberts reports that cash receipts for the state's nine parkways and two toll bridges for the month showed a 10 per cent drop below January, 1976.

Cash receipts a year ago had been $1,058,278; for January, 1977 they were down to $945,036.

Two of the parkways took in more money this year than last. On the Pennyrile Parkway cash receipts were up from $136,453 a year age to $146,409 for January, 1977. The Jackson Purchase Parkway rose from $36,558 to $37,974.

Receipts from the other toll facilities, with January 1977 figures listed first were:

Shawneetown Bridge, $19,021, $24,752; Bert T. Combs Mountain Parkway. $124,487, $164,924; Western Kentucky Parkway, $193,240, $223,338; Blue Grass Parkway, $114,926, $137,129; Sebree Bridge, $3,334, $4,497; Audubon Parkway, $44,455, $45,474; Daniel Boone Parkway, $72,753, $77,125; Green River Parkway, $122,619, $136,422; Cumberland Parkway $65,813, $71,00.
