Washington Dateline
History of Disarmament—Story of War

By MAJ. GEN. G. J. KEEGAN, JR.

Recently the question was raised as to whether or not those of us who oppose a new SALT treaty with the Soviet Union are not in fact out of step with the wishes of the American people.

The question was raised on the eve of the United Nations Conference on Disarmament which is now under way. In my judgement, the conference will serve no useful purpose. No agreements will be reached. No resolutions will be signed or drafted.

The reasons are quite simple. History tells us that one of mankind's oldest illusions is that pertaining to the achievement of peace through disarmament. In the hands of the Soviets and their radical or liberal supporters around the world, the disarmament illusion has become one of the greatest propaganda weapons in modern history. Expectations and hopes will be raised. Defense programs will be deferred. And the world will continue to ignore the international facts of life.

The current Disarmament Conference is the stepchild of the 1930's. During that period, Japan was occupying Manchuria. Hitler was forging the weapons of war. Bolivia and Paraguay were at war. Meanwhile, the League of Nations discussed and hoped. The discussions were not about the mounting threats so much as they were about the need for disarmament. Shortly thereafter, the most avoidable and preventable war in history occurred. It occurred for one reason—because the nations of the Western World failed to maintain even the most modest of defense forces.

The period between World War I and World War II was dominated by the hopes of the disarmament lobbies. The naval disarmament treaties following World War I served only to accelerate the onset of war.

The Kellogg-Briand Pact of 1928 did nothing to discourage Japanese and Italian aggression. Instead of shoring up their defenses, which would have easily discouraged Adolph Hitler, the nations of the West mobilized mass meetings and entertained the hopes of hundreds of pacifist and subversive organizations pleading for disarmament. Such groups as the "World Alliance for International Friendship", and the "Conference of the Cause and Cure of War in the World," dominated the free world political scene.

Throughout the difficult decades following the 1920's the Soviet Union was consistent in its propagandistic exhortation for total and complete disarmament. Yet the Soviet Union never faltered in its aim to become the dominant power in the world.

By the eve of WW II, the Soviets had built and deployed the largest forces of armor, infantry, artillery, air defense, fighter aviation and strategic bombardment in the world. Despite the clear and present danger posed by Nazi Germany, Joseph Stalin virtually nullified the effectiveness of these forces by purging his by prying his General Staff and the USSR's vast corps of battle commanders. The liquidation of Marshal Tukachevsky cost the USSR its most brilliant strategist and war planner. Stalin was not alone in being disarmed and deluded by Nazi diplomacy and propaganda. So were all of the West's leaders—save, of course, private citizen Winston Churchill.

Regrettably, institutional memories are short. The record of history is that it is not arms races which produce wars. Wars are the product of aggressive intentions. It is the failure of intended victims to perceive that they are threatened and to take adequate peacetime defense measures which invite aggression. While expenditures on arms races represent an unfortunate diversion of monies which might better be spent helping the poor, the costs for the maintenance of an adequate defense represents but an infinitesimally small outlay of wealth when contrasted to the incredible cost, waste and destruction of war, which is the inevitable consequence of inadequate defense preparations.

Throughout the past thousand years, the short twenty-to-thirty year intervals of peace enjoyed by the nations of the world have been solely due to the maintenance of an adequate balance of military power between military protagonists. Invariably, it has been the failure of threatened nations to stay the course, to arm themselves adequately, which has invited aggression. The lesson is one of the oldest in history. If you are in a race for your life, you must run like hell. And you must stay the course.

Next week General Keegan will document the story of some of the disastrous violations of the SALT I Treaty. Our leaders have cast aside the overwhelming lessons of the history of disarmament to chart a path for America which, at best, is shadowed with ominous enemy war clouds!

New Strip Laws May Require Multiple Processing Permits

Under new strip mining legislation, a coal processing plant may be required to obtain several permits from the Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection, depending on the impact the operation would have on the environment.

With this problem in mind, a special task force has been established within the department to coordinate internal permitting procedures. The task force is particularly interested in designing smooth and efficient permit review procedures for projects involving more than one division in the department.

"Any operation, not just coal processing facilities, may be required to obtain multiple permits from our department—from solid waste facilities to sewage treatment plants," said task force member Don Beavers. "To investigate a full range of problems involved in multiple permitting, the task force is composed of a member from each division," he added.

Beavers indicated that the task force would like to establish a central unit for permit processing which would eliminate the need for each applicant to contact several divisions for permitting information.

"If this central unit could be composed of an employee from each division, every applicant could sit down and have a pre-application conference, and they would no longer be confused as to which permits they should obtain," said Beavers.

He pointed out that this central unit would also provide adequate communication between the department and

The Roy Ratliff family of Martin had out-of-town visitors recently from Sandy Hook, Conn., and Waynesboro, Pa. Their guests were Misty Baker and Lisa Sandone, senior Girl Scouts who were in Kentucky to attend Folk Arts Festival, an international event sponsored by Wilderness Road Girl Scout Council. Misty and Lisa stayed with the Ratliff family until June 25. When they joined 130 Girl Scouts at Berea College, where the Folk Arts Festival takes place. Some of the activities the Ratliff family planned for their guests included Girl Scout Camp Chatterawa and swimming at the Jenny Wiley pool, visiting and meeting local people, sightseeing over the country, attending one night of the Grigsby-Francis basketball camp at McDowell taking pictures of Jenny Wiley State Park and Archer Park, receiving Kentucky Colonels' commissions presented them by State Senator Jim Hammond. Hospital Picnic Held at Park

Well-filled table a focal point at annual picnic.

Nearly 200 mental health clients, their families and health care workers from Floyd and Magoffin counties enjoyed about 75 assorted pot luck dishes at the eighth annual Eastern State Hospital Picnic held at Archer Park last week.

The picnic is sponsored by the Floyd County Mental Health Association and was organized this year by the Prestonsburg Comprehensive Care Center. The Salyersville Comprehensive Care Center staff assisted with the picnic and supplied Bluegrass music. Group singing and a contest to determine the oldest (85) and the youngest (18 months) were part of the entertainment. The George Archer Senior Citizens and several Floyd county civic and church groups provided and served the meal.

"This picnic symbolizes a long-term relationship with Eastern State Hospital that's pretty unusual," said Tim Atkinson, team director of Floyd and Magoffin County Comprehensive Care Centers. "We have worked together to get mental health care patients out of the hospitals' and into community care situations," he said.

"When the first picnic was held, 30 patients were bused from Eastern State Hospital in Lexington back to Floyd county for a few hours," according to Eva Horn, a social worker, board member of Mountain Comprehensive Care and past president of the Floyd County Mental Health Association. "Only five patients at this year's picnic were bused in from Lexington. The majority live in personal care (rest) homes, or with relatives, or in mini-homes in the community, with mental health care provided in their home county."

Adopting the philosophy that the least restrictive mode of treatment is the best treatment, Eastern State Hospital began organizing mini-homes 12 years ago. A mini-home is a private residence licensed to keep up to three mental health care clients. Since 1966, the hospital population dropped from 1,200 to 300 and there are 15 mini-homes in Magoffin and 21 in Floyd county alone.

Comprehensive Care now works with the Bureau for Social Services to match patients with mini-homes, and to monitor their well-being. Comprehensive Care also operates partial hospital centers which offer socializing opportunities as well as mental health care services to area residents.

ENJOY PICNIC

A family picnic was held at Jenny Wiley State Park last Sunday. Attending were Ola and Joe Collins, Joie and Ray Lawson, and daughters, Michelle and Michanda, and Pat and Sid Case, all of Honaker, Gernie and Earnestine Collins, Earnie and Jackie Collins, and daughter, Tiffany, of Pikeville; Mr. and Mrs. Nolan Parsons and children, of Allen; Bon Price, of East Point, and son, Fairon Hunt, of Betsy Layne.

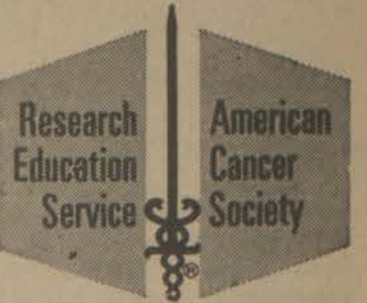

OBSERVE BIRTHDAYS

Among the persons who observed birthdays during last week were Kelli Wright Ford, John Burke, Jr., Jason A. Burchett, William Jesse Baird, III, Stacey Ankrom, Jane R. Spurlock, Michael Campbell, Steve Jones, Deborah Gipson Stumbo, Robin Kelly, Mrs. Rodney W. Keenon, Angela Stumbo, Elizabeth Fannin, Jean H. Burke, Sam Hale, Delmer Elswick, Randy Click, Irene Meadows, Mary Jane Brown, Mary C. Hereford and Angela K. Potter.

The largest hailstone on record fell on July 16, 1938 in Potter, Nebraska. It weighed one and a half pounds and was the only one that fell there that day.

As recently as 100 years ago, some people were still using a tin kitchen funnel as a hearing aid - though it only worked if you stood right next to it and screamed into it.

The versatile peanut turns up in soup, penicillin, axle grease, metal polish and innumerable other products. Sen. Barry Goldwater once used it instead of shaving cream. The latest development, according to the August Reader's Digest, is a high-pressure, high-temperature method for converting the peanut's carbon content into industrial diamonds.

Young Briton Getting Experience As a Nanny in Morgan Co. Home

By HELEN STACY

"I enjoyed it very much," said the attractive 17-year-old from Kent, England. "It was so different, being outdoors and all, trees in the background and those in the play climbing the trees and using them as part of the scenery in the play."

Debbie (Deborah) Briggs, of Kent, England, about 11 miles outside London, attended the Jenny Wiley Summer Theatre production of "Shenandoah" with her hosts, Mr. and Mrs. Edward C. Keeton, Jr., of West Liberty, and their daughters, Lisa, 7, Lori, 4, and Cara Clay, 14 months.

Debbie is spending her second summer with them as a way of gaining experience to become a professional nanny. Partly as a result of her stay last summer, Debbie has been accepted at Tunbridge Wells College in England to take a "two year nanny course."

"I hope to return to Kentucky and the Keeton home after I finish the course." This is a change from her original plans. Last year she had ambitions to get work as a nanny for children of some rock star.

"That was because I want to travel," explained blonde, blue-eyed Debbie. "And that is what I get to do lots of with the Keetons." She told of spending two weeks with them at Myrtle Beach and visiting Gatlinburg, Tenn.

"What I want most to do is see more of Kentucky, and get to enjoy all the seasons."

Debbie is from a "rathier" well-to-do family in Kent. Her father, Alan Briggs, is with Lloyds of London and frequently comes to the States on business with clients. This explains how Debbie got to Kentucky for her nanny experience. Mrs. Keeton's sister, Myra Tobin, an insurance broker in New York, travels to England and works with Debbie's father. When Miss Tobin learned Debbie wanted to come to America she suggested contacting her sister, the former Jonell Tobin, in West Liberty.

When she arrived a few weeks ago she said, "Oh, I feel at home." She says she has not been the least homesick. "Only for fish and chips. Yours are not quite the same."

She especially enjoyed taking back to England with her the many ways to enjoy peanut butter. "It sounded so revolting," she smiled, "to eat it with jelly, with bananas, with chocolate. I tried it and it's lovely. And the many different flavors of ice cream in the shops here."

The Keetons are active in community and school and West Liberty United Methodist Church. Debbie says she enjoys church here more than in England. "People are so friendly and there are so many young people. I got to help with Bible school."

Debbie will get to see a baseball game in Cincinnati before she leaves in mid-August. "We don't have baseball." She will see other parts of Kentucky when she visits the Tobins in Hardin county and will see other outdoor dramas and musicals in state parks. "Now I know why we don't have these outdoor plays in England. We can't depend on the weather. We have sun, but we have so much rain, too."

She will go home again with a Kentucky sultan. "I would so love to take some of your sun and heat back home to my friends."

She enjoys the view from Keeton Heights (a subdivision developed by Keeton's grandfather D. R. Keeton) and Kentucky scenery. She still is amazed at how much Americans and Kentuckians eat "but maybe that's why everyone is so friendly."

When Debbie's stay is over she and her parents—"Mum and Dad"—will "take a holiday" in the Virgin Islands before returning to Kent.

She feels her experience as a nanny to the Keeton children is "a tremendous asset," and says, "One of the nicest parts of being here is getting to tell all my friends about Kentucky. I know some of them will be visiting here some day."

Resolution Asks Mine Act Change

Conservation districts of Area 8 last week adopted a resolution at their meeting in Morehead asking that deviations from the federal Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act be permitted. Area 8 includes Floyd and 17 other Eastern Kentucky counties.

The resolution, drafted by George E. Branham, chairman of the Johnson County Conservation District, says the surface mining act was passed by Congress to seek a balance between economic stability and environmental quality.

The law basically requires surface mined land to be restored to its original contour.

It was hailed by environmentalists, but not by some landowners in Eastern Kentucky, who said they preferred some mined areas to be left flat after mining because flat land is scarce.

Jeff Butcher, spokesman for the U.S. Soil Conservation Service in Lexington, said officials of at least 10 counties have expressed support for the resolution.

The document says public meetings by the federal agency and local conservation districts showed the reclamation issue was "a major concern to local residents in Martin, Johnson, Elliott, Pike and Boyd counties."

The resolution will be presented for statewide support at a Sept. 18 meeting in Louisville of the state's 121 conservation districts.

Kelly is a freshman at Betsy Layne and plays the french horn and flute in the band. To be eligible for this honor, a student must have perfect attendance, show great improvement, do daily practice, good sight reading, and have a good attitude and liking for piano lessons.

GINA DUNAWAY
Gina Dunaway and Beth Hall have received the high achievement award in piano lessons. Gina is the six-year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gene Dunaway, of Banner. She has been taking piano lessons for 15 months and received "The Most Outstanding Piano Student of '77, of Prestonsburg. She was a participant in the Little Miss Floyd County pageant and was Tiny Miss patriotic of 1976. All are students of Paula Hinchman, of Allen.

BETH HALL

Only one fighter has ever been knighted. Sir Dan Donnelly, champion of Ireland around 1815, received this singular honor!

Officials Told Problems

Nearly 900 county officials learned last week that they will be involved in finding solutions for local jails, putting together a statewide plan for solid waste disposal, establishing housing fair marketing plans within the private sector, implementing affirmative action in local government and working toward district health departments.

These subjects and many more were covered in a two-day local issues conference in Louisville.

Jailer Association President Lloyd Berry, of Mason county, urged fiscal courts to face realities in funding jails and said his association endorses a district jail system. Berry said fire codes, regulations concerning female and juvenile prisoners and a cutback in incarcerations were all taking their financial tolls.

Gov. Julian Carroll told the conference he had created a task force that would be studying these problems along with other problems related to the new court system.

Eugene Mooney, secretary of the Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection, said his agency is working toward the goal of becoming primary in granting licenses in the area of air and water quality and solid waste. To do this, states must prove they have the capability of carrying out the programs by 1983. Legislation to achieve this was passed in the 1978 General Assembly.

Fred Porterfield, area director for U.S. Housing and Urban Development in Louisville, said Kentucky cities were "losing points" for lack of Equal Employment Opportunity law compliance. He said a fair marketing plan with the private sector is required and affirmative action hiring in local governments is also necessary.

U.S. Sen. Walter "Dee" Huddleston told the group that government must respond to citizens needs in a more efficient manner that will eliminate waste. He said reorganization of disaster services was such a response to a need. Huddleston, who served on the study committee for this reorganization, said he had become acutely aware of the multiplicity of agencies and time delays in response following the 1974 tornadoes in Kentucky.

Commissioner Robert Slaton, Department for Human Resources, said his Health Services Bureau was taking the approach of face-to-face contact with county officials in an effort to bring about more district health departments.

"Health services can best be provided to local citizens through local agencies," Slaton said. He said, however, that adequate staff and services could not be provided through 120 county departments. Slaton said pooling money to hire staff that is serving several counties through existing buildings and facilities has proven successful in the districts that have been formed.

Bridges, roads, media relations and railroads also were discussed at the conference.

By JOHN WILSON

If you've been wondering why the stocking truck hasn't visited your favorite trout stream lately, the reason is, as usual, the weather.

According to Pete Pfeiffer, assistant fisheries director for Kentucky's fish and wildlife department, last spring's unusually cold temperatures slowed the growth of trout in the Celina National Hatchery in Tennessee, where our trout are raised.

"We try to stock at least nine-inch fish," Pfeiffer says, "but too many of the trout now available are still only around seven inches long—too small to be of real interest to anglers."

Trout growth can usually be managed in a hatchery, Pfeiffer explains, to allow a summer long supply of stocking sized fish. But when continued cool weather persists well into spring, the water doesn't warm enough to stimulate the trout's metabolism. As a consequence, the fish don't eat as much and thus don't grow as fast as they should.

All trout stockings originally scheduled for July will now be made in August, Pfeiffer says, but he adds that the delay won't mean fewer trout. "We plan to stock all the fish that we have been allocated, even if it means two deliveries in a single month or stockings later in the fall than were scheduled."

Even when the trout have grown enough to stock, some streams might not get stocked this August because water temperatures are too high. Trout are cold-water fish which cannot tolerate warm waters or rapid rises in temperature. The stocking trucks maintain a water temperature of 60 degrees, but some streams now have temperatures in the high 70's. This difference, Pfeiffer says, is great enough to kill the trout unless they are acclimatized to the warmer water.

"Sometimes we can gradually raise the water temperature in the tank trucks on the way from the hatchery, but this must be done with care," Pfeiffer says.

As water temperatures rise, so do the trout's metabolic rates and their need for more room and more oxygen. Unless stocking crews are careful, they can lose many trout while the fish are still in the truck.

So continued hot weather could mean that several streams won't be stocked during August. The final decision, Pfeiffer says, will be made on a stream-by-stream basis when the trout are ready.

Trout for Kentucky's stocking program are obtained free from the federal hatchery and the price of the trout stamp ($2.25) more than pays for transporting and handling costs.

Church on the Move

The United Baptist Church at Water Gap was on wheels temporarily recently when it was moved because of highway construction. The 30 x 50-ft. concrete block structure was moved from its original site, near the Water Gap post office, a distance of about one mile to a new location in the vicinity of the B & D Motor Company. Moving the 117,000-pound building was done by M & M Movers, Pikeville, without incident.

Use of the building in its new location will be begun next Sunday with a footwashing service.

The building was erected at Water Gap about eight years ago after the original building had been destroyed by fire.

KET Program To View Juvenile Justice System

"Kentucky Now" takes another look at the juvenile justice system, Thursday, August 10 at 8 p.m., with a repeat Sunday, August 13, at 1:30 p.m., on KET, The Kentucky Network.

Reporter Charles Thompson explores alternatives to the incarceration of juvenile delinquents, including group homes and day treatment centers.

While talking with two judges, one in Louisville and the other in a small, rural community, Thompson learns of differences between urban and rural resources available for community use in dealing with delinquents.

Thompson also talks with Virgil Kelly, a Louisvillian who, as a youngster, went from a juvenile detention center to the adult, maximum security prison at Eddyville. Since then, Kelly has been rehabilitated and now works with youngsters who may be headed down the path he has already traveled.

Martin Gas Company Gets Rate Increase

The Martin Gas Company has been granted a 3 per cent rate increase to meet the increased cost of wholesale natural gas.

The rate adjustment was approved by the Kentucky Public Service Commission because of a rise in cost from Martin's supplier, Columbia Gas of Kentucky.

Under the new monthly rates, customers will pay $2.77 per 1,000 cubic feet for the first 2,000 cubic feet and $2.72 per 1,000 cubic feet for all over 2,000 cubic feet.

State Not To Demand Reassessments in '79

By SY RAMSEY
(In The Lexington Herald)
The potential administration nightmare of statewide reassessment during a major election year apparently will not come to pass, despite a statute requiring the process.

Under the law, county property valuation administrators must conduct such a reassessment during their second year of office.

That falls next in 1979, which is also a year in which Kentuckians elect a governor and secondary constitutional officeholders.

An incumbent administration trying to promote a successor normally would be concerned about voter backlash in view of the tendency of assessments to rise because of inflation and the consequent tendency of property taxes to rise.

However, Tarleton Rogers, director of the general property tax division in the state Revenue Department, said Wednesday that "we have never placed strong emphasis on the statute."

He said the PVAs, who, although elected locally, are employees of the Revenue Department, will not be ordered by the state to comply with the law.

Rogers said, "There has been an issue over interpretation of the statute"—with PVAs divided as to whether it must be carried out literally, with a complete reassessment, or whether normal upward adjustments suffice.

"If the PVAs did a reappraisal next year under the statute, they would still in the interim have to retain something close to fair cash value," Rogers said.

"Our position is that each year, we advise the PVA where he stands in relation to fair cash value," Rogers said. "Then it's up to him or her to bring the assessments to that level."

The PVAs, whose election often depends on voter acceptance of their assessments, want a new law which would limit property tax increases to the general inflation rate reflected by the consumer price index—rather than the higher rate at which property values tend to increase.

Such a proposal failed in the 1978 General Assembly.

Rogers estimated that in general, property in Kentucky goes up in value 10 percent or more every year. Until this year, the recent national inflation rate has ranged from 6 to 7 percent.

Currently, the state is engrossed in trying to certify the 1978 assessments from all 120 counties.

"We hope they will be within reasonable fair cash value," Rogers said. "But we have 26 new PVAs who might have some difficulties."

He said only half the counties have been certified, but that his office hopes to finish in time for tax bills to go out locally in September, though this deadline rarely is met.

Since a 1965 state Court of Appeals decision, all property has had to be assessed at 100 percent of value. The state in effect is satisfied if the over-all assessment is at least 85 percent of that.

Time Out for Jesus Crusade This Week

WOC TV Ministry invites the public to attend the Time Out For Jesus Crusade to be held at the Prestonsburg High School football field, 7:30 p.m. on August 3, 4 and 5, with guest speaker, Vickie Jamison. In case of rain, crusade will be held inside the gym. The crusade will be televised and there will not be any admission charge.

Big Sandy Among Districts Funded

The Appalachian Regional Commission has approved a $75,000 grant for second-year funding of programs in the Big Sandy and three other Kentucky development districts, according to Gov. Julian Carroll.

William L. Short, secretary of the Kentucky Development Cabinet and Carroll's alternate on the commission, said the Kentucky River, Buffalo Trace and Gateway districts were also funded. Under the programs, personnel in each of the districts are to determine local development needs and priorities and establish area goals and objectives, Short said.

Local government units and citizen groups are to be consulted for input into the programs, Short added.

In the covered wagon days, it was a common practice to cure fresh meat with salt in order to preserve it for later use. It's not surprising then, that the saving of money (in reserve, for later use) is often called 'salting' it away. That's precisely what we encourage you to do with our Certificates of Deposit; your best choice when considering long-term investment. 'Salt some away' with one of these high-yielding Certificates of Deposit.

Effective June 20, 1978, annual interest rates and requirements payable on Passbook Savings and Certificates of Deposit are as follows:

Sword To Move Into No. 3 Spot With Ky. Police

A 27-year veteran state police officer has been named the new commander of field operation for the Kentucky State Police.

KSP Commissioner Kenneth E. Brandenburgh said that Major Douglas L. Sword, 47, will be elevated to that post immediately following the August 1 retirement of the present commander, Lt. Col. Leslie C. Pyles.

As commander of field operations, Sword will become one of the three top-ranking state police officers in Kentucky.

For the past 18 months Sword has been assigned to Pyles' office at Frankfort as an operational commander for state police posts at Richmond, Morehead, Pikeville, Harlan, London, Hazard, Ashland and Columbia. He will be replaced in that capacity by Capt. William O. Bradley, now serving as post commander at Richmond.

A native of Pike county, Sword joined the state police in 1951 as a radio operator. In 1953 he became a trooper and in 1958 was promoted to assistant post commander at Ashland. Subsequently, he also served as post commander at Ashland as well as Morehead, Pikeville and Hazard.

Sword is a 1975 graduate of the FBI National Academy and has been commended on at least eight occasions by the FBI and other state police organizations for assisting in the capture of fugitives wanted for crimes ranging from kidnapping, bank robbery and rape to the attempted murder of a police officer and auto theft.

In 1972, he was commended by then-FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover for his part in directing the capture of a suspect wanted for fleeing arrest after a gun battle with police in Ohio and the abduction of a Portsmouth, Ohio man whom he forced to drive him into Kentucky.

Bradley, 51, who moves into the post being vacated by Sword, was born in Beattyville. He joined the state police in 1953.

Mrs. Slone Promoted By Ashland Bank

John W. Woods III, president of Third National Bank, Ashland, announced recently the election of Jane Hill Slone to the post of vice-president for branch operations.

Mrs. Slone, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. Polk Hill, of the Abbott road, graduated from Prestonsburg High School. She attended Berea College before joining the bank in 1955. Mrs. Slone began her banking career with Bank Josephine here.

Her background in branch operations began in 1965 as a teller at the bank's Carter Avenue branch. She left there in 1969 to become head teller of the Russell Road branch, advancing to Russell Road branch manager in 1973. She was elected assistant vice-president and manager of the Carter Avenue branch in 1977, her most recent position.

As vice-president for branch operations, Mrs. Slone will be responsible for the day-to-day operations of Third National's five branch banks and will continue to manage the Carter Avenue branch.

She and her husband, David, have two children, Michael Brent and Davonna Jane.

Two-Year Term Set for Patrick

Ben Patrick, former sheriff of Magoffin county, has been sentenced to two years in federal prison after admitting that he bought union referral slips and sold them to construction workers who wanted jobs at a power plant near Charleston.

U.S. District Judge John Copenhaven said he disregarded parts of a presentence report in setting the sentence Tuesday for the former sheriff. Attorneys for Patrick objected to portions of the report in affidavits filed July 10.

Patrick, 48, could have received 20 years in prison or a $10,000 fine or both.

His wife, Marie, and their son, Larry, were named with him in a 16-count indictment issued by a federal grand jury last December.

Under terms of a plea bargain, Patrick agreed to plead guilty if his wife and son were not prosecuted. He admitted buying the referral slips for $150 each from a union official and selling them for between $200 and $300 to at least 18 men in the Catlettsburg-Salyersville area who wanted to work at the John Amos Power Plant in Putnam county, W. Va., in 1972.

Method of Selecting Top Students Slated For Committee Probe

(From The Big Sandy News, Louisa.)
A committee to investigate the machinations as to selection of a valedictorian and salutatorian was suggested at last Friday night's meeting of the Lawrence board of education which also amended the dress code.

The board discussed at length the procedures for selecting the top and second top scholar in the senior class, noting several complaints as to the method for selection.

Supt. Paul Wright said most of the complaints are that students, in order to attain the valedictory spot or runner-up will take easier courses for higher grades, rather than chemistry, calculus or other tougher subjects that might further their scholastic career.

Board member Mrs. Sylvia Bellomy commented that if this is the case maybe too much emphasis is on being valedictorian.

Another member Proctor (Morty) Mullins suggested that top seniors in each of the educational fields, academic, general and vocational be selected and honored equally.

The superintendent explained many faculty members favor a point system, based on the course. This would eliminate many students taking an easier course.

However, the board discussed how a course could be determined easier for one student than for another, without being discriminatory.

The superintendent told the board he will appoint a teacher advisory committee to make recommendations, which he would report to the board, along with his recommendations.

Ford Bill Would Restore Postmaster General Authority

Senator Wendell Ford has introduced legislation that would restore responsibility for appointment of the Postmaster General to the President, subject to Senate confirmation. Ford said the proposal "stands a reasonably good chance of being approved because of what I perceive to be growing dissatisfaction with the way the Postal Service presently is being operated." "The nation's postal system is a basic, constituency-mandated public service, and Americans have come to rely on it heavily," Ford added. "However, if the American public is to have the level of service that it expects and deserves, the Postal Service must be made more responsive to government policy-makers and the people's elected representatives."

Ford said that the Postal Service has progressively deteriorated since Congress gave the agency status as an independent government corporation in 1970.

"The experience of seven years has demonstrated that the Postal Service's achievements have fallen far short of nearly everyone's expectations," Ford said. "Among the more evident examples of the Postal Service's shortsightedness during this period are the extent of recent rate increases, the wholesale post office closings in rural areas, and efforts to discontinue six-day mail delivery."

Ford said that Presidential appointment of the Postmaster General could have a positive impact in several areas.

"First of all it would serve as a clear signal to the Postal Service that the Congress will not tolerate any further erosion in the quality of service," Ford said. "Second, it will make the Postal Service more accountable to the public which it is suppose to serve. And, third, the appointment of the Postmaster General by the President will make the Postal Service more responsive to national policy. We need to bring the Post Office back in line with what are our national needs."

Ford's proposal was offered as an amendment to the Postal Service Amendments Act of 1978.

Gardening Tips from Extension Specialists at the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture

Something few people except bird watchers seem to be aware of is that right here in Kentucky we have a delightful little creature that is well on its way towards becoming another member of the so-called vanishing species.

This is the Eastern Bluebird that has long been a favorite of farmers and gardeners because of its efficiency as a controller of cutworms, tobacco worms and other field and garden pests. To attract bluebirds, most rural dwellers once kept a few bird boxes nailed to six-foot high posts around the perimeters of their gardens—and woe betide any housecat or blacksnake caught messing around one of these boxes sheltering a brood of bluebirds.

Forty years ago bluebirds were abundant throughout most of the state. Fence posts with cavities provided ideal nesting sites. Woodpecker holes in old tree snags, especially old chestnut trees left standing in open pasturefields after succumbing to the blight, were also good nesting sites.

The decline in bluebird populations started when farmers began substituting steel fence posts for wooden ones. The biggest dent in the population, however, occurred in the 60's when bluebirds froze to death by the hundreds during a bitterly cold winter. A Wolfe County farmer told of finding six bluebirds frozen to death in a birdbox nailed to a garden fence post. These birds represented the second brood hatched out in the same box the summer before.

Deciding to check further into the situation, he visited a hollow post where, also the summer before, he observed a pair of bluebirds raising a brood. Here, to his dismay, he found four more dead birds that had evidently perished during one of those bitterly cold nights of the winter.

This spring, at least three persons have called to report that bluebirds that had showed up on their premises regularly for the past half dozen years, failed to return this year—something that leads to the speculation that many more bluebirds froze to death last winter. If this trend continues, farewell little songster.

Just in case there may be a pair of bluebirds loitering around your premises, nail up a birdbox in your yard or near your garden. If a pair should happen to pass by, chances are they will make use of the box.

Check with your county Extension agent for plans and details on how to build a birdbox. There is a 4-H publication that describes how to build a bluebird box.

Also, to further check on the bluebird population still left, this writer will deeply appreciate hearing from anyone and everyone who sees a bluebird this spring.

VETERANS WITH service-connected disabilities will receive monthly compensation payments totaling $5.3 billion in Fiscal Year 1979, according to VA statistics.

A very REFINED Gentleman OR how NORBERT RILLIEUX was the original Sugar Daddy.

On August 26, 1842, Norbert Rillieux put a patent on a sweet idea. It was a way to refine sugar. To help the sugarcane juices evaporate more quickly, he enclosed condensation coils in a vacuum chamber. A process that's made things a lot sweeter ever since. You can make your future a little sweeter, too, by buying U.S. Savings Bonds through your Payroll Savings Plan. They're the dependable way to save for an education, vacation, or even retirement. Because they always pay off with interest. So buy U.S. Savings Bonds. And be a "sugar daddy" in your spare time.

Series E Bonds pay 6% interest when held to maturity of 5 years (4 1/2% the first year). Interest is not subject to state or local income taxes, and federal tax may be deferred until redemption.

In Training at Camp Shelby

A knowledge of the flora of a region always adds to any field or woodland trip. There is a certain satisfaction in being able to identify plants and shrubs that are seen and then, too, a hiker might walk into a patch of ginseng or golden seal that can be sold for big money.

One of the more interesting plants to look for is Solomon's Seal. A member of the lily family, this wild plant comes in several varieties and is to be found in open woodlands over most of eastern United States. All varieties are similar in leaf and root, lachian folklore, will do everything from warding off an evil spirit called "hibihun" to conferring the gift of writing good poetry.

A variety of Solomon's Seal was also used in England. Handed down from the early 17th century is this recipe which all women should cherish. Whether the North American variety will serve the same purpose, I do not know but the old English recipe is as follows:

"The root of Solomon's Seal stamped when it is fresh and green, and applied, taketh away in one night, or two at most, any bruise, black or blew, gotten by falls of woman's willfulness in stumbling upon their hasty husband's fists, or such like."

Two kinds of Solomon's Seal grow in Kentucky woodlands. The true variety is less abundant and has greenish bell-shaped flowers arranged up and down a slender stalk. In autumn these flowers ripen into plump black or blue berries, pretty to look at but not good to eat.

The false variety has small starchy, white flowers arranged in a terminal cluster. These flowers ripen into pods of beautiful bronze berries which are also inedible. The flowers, however, do have a delightful fragrance. The leaves of both herbs are alternate, lanceolate, smooth and glossy green. Both bloom from May to the last of June.

Solomon's Seal may not possess the mystic and medicinal virtues once ascribed to it, but it is an interesting herb that adds to the wonders of the outdoors.

but different in fruit and flower. It is an herb that has been used for centuries as medicine and it gets its name from a scar left on the root by last year's stem.

This scar, through the use of the imagination, resembles somewhat the mystic seal of Solomon which consists of two interlaced triangles, symbolic of the union of the body and soul.

A lot of superstition surrounds this attractive perennial. Colonists of Virginia discovered Indians using its roots both as a charm and as a medicine. A piece of the dried root carried in the pocket, according to Appa-

THE FEDERAL MINE Safety and Health Amendments Act of November 1977 brings all mines in the United States—more than 20,000 underground and surface, coal and noncoal facilities—under a single safety and health program, the U.S. Labor Department reports.

THE FEDERAL MINE Safety and Health Act of 1977 transferred the Mining Enforcement and Safety Administration from the Department of Interior to the Department of Labor. The Act renamed the agency, the Mine Safety and Health Administration (MSHA).

COLLINS-CHILDS

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Collins, of 76 Auburn Ave., Shelby, Ohio, announce the engagement of their daughter, Rose Mary, to Gary Childs, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Childs, of Mansfield, Ohio. The bride-elect, a native of Martin, is employed at R.R. Donnelly and Sons, Willard, Ohio. Her fiancé is a 1972 graduate of Ontario High School and attended North Central Technical Institute. He is also employed at R. R. Donnelly and Sons.

On August 26 wedding is planned at the Lutheran Church in Shelby, Ohio.

"Snow of '78", Cool Reminder of Winter

Are you sweltering in the summer heat? Do you think longingly of last winter's snow? Would you like a little mental coolness?

Then C. G. Morehead's newest painting is just what the doctor ordered. Entitled "The Snow of '78", the snow-blanketed farm scene lets us remember the fun without re-living the problems. Too often, historic times like last winter pass without documentation, other than newspaper clippings or old-timer's stories.

Morehead, though, has recorded on canvass the fresh, cool beauty of those snows when they first began. His painting catches the snow at the time when children were glad to get out of school. Farmers weren't yet having trouble feeding livestock, the aged hadn't become housebound. The plumb had frozen, and we could still get to work.

"The Snow of '78" captures for all time a season that will become a part of our national history. Our children study the winter at Valley Forge. They are told about the winter of 1918. And our grandchildren will learn about the winter of 1978.

As time goes by, last winter's snow will be compared with other, more recent ones, and no snow will seem as deep, no hardship will seem as difficult, no sledding will seem as fast, no snow cream will taste as good, as it did in the winter of 1978.

Today's great-grandparents tell spellbound listeners about the winter of 1918. Today's children will tell their grandchildren about the winter of 1978. The beauty of the snow, the fun of the outdoor games, the tragedies that occurred, the heroism of so many, the pulling together of a nation in the grip of record cold and snow will be told and retold.

And some will tell those tales while sitting beneath a C. G. Morehead print of the "Snow of '78".

TO LEAD BIKE-A-THON

Big Sandy ADD Gets $89,500 Share Of $733,000 Grant

Gov. Julian Carroll has announced that a $733,000 Appalachian Regional Commission grant has been approved for the Kentucky Joint Funding Administration program.

According to Development Secretary William L. Short, Carroll's alternate representative to the commission, the funding program distributes funds to the nine Appalachian Area Development Districts through the state's Department for Local Government.

Development districts receiving funds through the grant are:

Big Sandy, $89,500; Buffalo Trace, $52,000; Fivco, $88,000; Bluegrass, $89,500; Gateway, $76,000; Lake Cumberland, $100,500; Cumberland Valley, $109,000; Kentucky River, $110,000 and Barren River, $18,000.

Those nine districts also will receive shares of some $244,334 in state matching funds.

According to Short, Kentucky has the first state joint funding program in the Southeast. "And other Appalachian states are beginning to model similar programs after ours," he added.

FLOYD COUNTY HEALTH NOTES

Immunization Dates Set

By DONNA J. GRIFFITH
Health Educator

The Floyd County Health Department will conduct two pre-school immunization clinics during the remainder of this week. The first clinic will be held Wednesday, August 2, at Allen Central High School from 10 a.m. to 2 a.m. Friday, August 4, a clinic will be held at the Health Department here with clinic hours from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Services at these clinics are offered free of charge and will include immunizations, TB skin tests, hemoglobins and urinalyses.

All children enrolling in school for the first time, whether it be as kindergarten students, first graders or transfer students, will be required to have all of these tests done, plus a physical examination by a doctor. But children who had a physical by a doctor last year for kindergarten will not be required to have a physical repeated before he or she enters first grade.

At the start of this school year the Floyd County Board of Education is requiring all first and eighth grade students to present a record showing that their immunizations are up-to-date or that they have been started, with the assurance that they will be completed by the end of this school year.

Deaf Twins Excel at Jobs

Denna Khun, left, learns a new dance with her twin sister Dianna Scott. The women, both deaf since infancy, can dance by picking up the rhythm of music from sound vibrations. Their handicap has not prevented them from raising families and holding jobs.

Deafness can often deprive a person of a normal life, but two Louisville women are examples of how early detection and identification of the problem and special training can compensate for the lack of hearing.

Dianna and Denna Abrams were born identical twins and have been deaf since infancy. Today Dianna is Mrs. Jerry Scott, mother of an 11-month-old son, and Deanna is Mrs. Paul Khun, mother of a 13-month-old son.

Because of the early detection and identification of their problem, the twins' parents enrolled the girls in special pre-school programs and, later, schools for deaf children. When they were 11 years old, the parents sent the girls to the Kentucky School for the Deaf in Danville which offers a wide variety of vocational, educational and social opportunities.

At the school the two learned a great deal, including sewing, hairdressing, typing, cooking, budgeting and other practical skills. The girls lived on campus and participated in sports, attended church, held offices in clubs and became cheerleaders.

"Because there were two of them, they were adventurous—never afraid to try new things," said Faye Best, state coordinator of services for the deaf. Best worked closely with the girls during their years at the school and helped them find employment after graduation in 1972. Today, the women are still working (with several advancements) for the same employers, Blue Cross-Blue Shield and Housing and Urban Development (HUD) in Louisville.

At Blue Cross-Blue Shield, Dianna is a work measurement technician in the operations research unit. She studies reports on the company's production and feeds the information into a computer to determine how to reduce operating costs and increase efficiency. "Dianna always tries to excel in her work and has helped with the orientation of our other deaf employees," said Buddy Stewart, manager of the operations research department. "During the past eight years, our company has always had at least nine deaf employees at any given time."

Denna's title, mail and file clerk, is misleading, according to Audrey Everidge, her supervisor in the administration division at HUD. "She memorized the names of 150 employees to distribute the mail and learned how to operate the telex in about three days. The telex is similar to a telegraph, and Denna sends quick wires to our offices throughout the United States. She does typing, updates the federal personnel manual and files publications," Mrs. Everidge explained. Deanna is so efficient that we are still planning other activities and duties for her."

Neither of the women's sons or husbands have any hearing impairment. They communicate with their families and co-workers by using sign, lip reading, sight and movement. They also use hearing aids which produce a certain amount of sound, but do not provide help in distinguishing one word from another. They both drive automobiles and find time to bowl, dance, swim and play tennis.

The twins say they are happy, "because we learned as children not to dwell on bad things."

Life is different for deaf individuals. "We must remember to see if we've left the water running, because we can't hear it. We do not always understand television newscasts and other programs, so we must ask our hearing friends. And sometimes, we lose things like watches and other jewelry because we can't hear them 'drop,'" said Deanna.

Yet the twins feel more fortunate than many other deaf persons. "It's because of what we've accomplished, and especially because our parents, teachers and friends have tried to understand and communicate with us," Deanna said.

Knott Plans 'Pearl Harbor' For Its Japanese Beetles

Japanese beetles, eating away on ornamental plants and posing a threat to farm crops in Knott county, are in for a surprise attack from residents this fall, aimed at wiping out the pest so it won't cause trouble there again.

"We're going to give the beetles a disease," declares Bill Francis, county Extension agent for agriculture.

Called "milky spore," the disease is caused by bacteria. It destroys Japanese beetles in the grub or over-wintering stage of their life cycle that takes place in the soil.

Knott county's plan is to try such "germ warfare" methods in an all-out campaign to fight the pest. Other areas will be watching for results, which won't be apparent until about a year from now, especially Eastern Kentucky where Japanese beetles are reported to be prevalent this summer.

"So far this year, the insects are causing trouble in Kentucky primarily east of I-75," says Chris Christensen, Extension entomologist in the UK College of Agriculture.

The beetles are in the adult stage now—eating anything that's green. In late summer, females begin a mass exodus from the landscape, returning to the soil to lay their eggs. Grubs or worms hatch out and work through the soil during the winter and spring.

In early summer the beetles emerge again for another swarm-like attack on garden plants, shrubs, trees and crops. Preventing this from happening in Knott county next summer and farther into the future is the objective of giving the beetles a disease this fall, according to Extension agent Francis.

Residents will obtain a material containing milky spore bacteria at the county Extension office and use it to treat the soil of their home grounds and fields where Japanese beetles were active this summer. The pests lay their eggs in the soil close to the plants on which they feed.

"We will start distributing the bacteria around Sept. 1," says Francis. "The milky spore should be in the soil so that the grubs or larvae become infected with the disease as they develop."

He adds that a small amount of the material goes a long way because the bacteria multiply rapidly, spreading the beetle-destroying disease far beyond the small area treated.

"There is no danger in treating soil with milky spore," Francis assures. "Research has shown that the bacteria infect only Japanese beetles and are not harmful to any other insects, plants, earthworms, warm-blooded animals or man."

Planning for this fall's sneak attack on Japanese beetles began last April. The county Extension agent appraised the problem and outlined the plan to rid the county of the pest. His proposal fell on receptive ears at the county fiscal court.

Knott County Judge-Executive Foster "Tubby" Calhoun and other members of the fiscal court had battled the beetles in their own gardens. Judge Calhoun said the county would give all the financial support possible.

As a result, the plan is being activated this fall. The milky spore was purchased through a research-demonstration grant from the Knott fiscal court. The material will be made available to county residents free of charge.

Interest in the program already is high, according to Francis. He adds, "I've had about 2,000 inquiries about it, 15 phone calls in one day recently."

It will take widespread participation by residents for the plan to succeed in ridding the county of the pest. Francis urges Knott countians to treat their own premises and to encourage their neighbors to do likewise.

"If you apply milky spore on your lawn or field and destroy the beetle grubs, you won't solve your problem if you have a neighbor who doesn't treat his property," Francis explains. "Reinfestation can occur from a nearby garden or field left untreated."

Damage being done by Japanese beetles this summer can be reduced by applying an insecticide dust or spray on plants. But won't wipe out the pest, which is the objective of the Knott county program.

"Enough beetles escape the insecticide to reproduce a buildup of the pest next summer," says Francis.

The eggs laid this year in Knott county won't develop into Japanese beetles if the sneak attack is carried out by residents as planned.

PCC Library Staff Changes

Mrs. Robertson was promoted to the post of head librarian upon the retirement of Robert J. Wallace June 30. Mr. Wallace had been librarian since the beginning of the college in 1964. Mrs. Robertson has been on the library staff since 1972. Thomas C. Hobbs is the new assistant librarian. Prior to assuming his position at P.C.C., Mr. Hobbs was public services librarian with Louisiana State University at Eunice Louisiana. A former resident of Pikeville, he is a graduate of the University of Kentucky and of North Texas State University. Mrs. Sarah Lewis is the library assistant. She had been the switchboard operator at the college since 1975.

Some Insulation Dangerous

According to state consumer safety officials, there may be some home insulation materials being sold in Kentucky that could do a lot more harm than good.

Edsel Moore, manager of the Kentucky Department for Human Resources' consumer product safety branch, warned that improperly treated cellulose insulation products can lead to fire or the corrosion of metals. Cellulose products are produced by several firms in the state and by many others across the nation.

Congress recently passed an interim safety standard, but products that do not meet the standard can be manufactured and sold until Sept. 8 when the standard takes effect, Moore said.

According to Moore, the major component of cellulose insulation is paper. Old newspapers and magazines are shredded, finely ground and sold in bags. During the manufacturing process, the product generally is treated with a flame-retardant chemical. Because of the increasing use of insulation, said Moore, there is a shortage of the most popular chemical for this purpose (boric acid). Manufacturers may substitute aluminum sulfate, ammonium sulfate or other chemicals that have flame-retardant characteristics.

Moore explained that sulfate-treated insulation coming in contact with rain leaking into the attic or with moisture from any source can produce a low concentration of sulfuric acid. This acid can corrode electrical fixtures, plumbing fittings, heating vents, water pipes or metal structure supports.

The danger of fire is very real when cellulose insulation has been inadequately treated with flame-retardant chemicals, not treated at all, or improperly installed, Moore said. When such insulation is placed over light fixtures or electrical connections or too near a chimney or furnace vent, it could absorb enough heat to catch fire.

"Believe it or not, there are insulators who have specially-equipped trucks which shred and grind old papers and blow them into attics for insulation, all in one operation," Moore said. "Some of these people treat the paper, some don't. The problem in this type of operation is inadequate quality control. We generally encourage consumers to be wary of this type of procedure."

Moore said his staff will begin inspecting manufacturing firms and collecting samples of cellulose insulation produced in the state after the standard goes into effect. The U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission will arrange for the testing of samples to determine flammability and corrosive characteristics.

"We believe we will find most of the manufacturers to be voluntarily in compliance with the safety standard, or nearly so," said Moore.

Because packaging for this product normally does not state which flame-retardant chemical was used, Moore encourages consumers to install all cellulose insulation with care when doing the job themselves.

"Do not put this material where it may come in contact with moisture," he said. "And make sure to place it at least 12 inches away from any heat source—furnace vents, chimneys, electrical connections or light fixtures."

He advised consumers to deal only with reputable insulation sales firms and installation contractors. "It's never a bad idea to check installers through the Better Business Bureau," he said.

More information on the safety aspects of home insulation is available from the Consumer Product Safety Branch, Department for Human Resources, 275 E. Main, Frankfort, Ky. 40601.

Kentucky Power Plans Purchase For More Power

Citing a need to develop additional generating capacity by the early 1980's when its projections show customers will be demanding more electricity than can produced internally, Kentucky Power Company has announced plans to purchase a portion of an American Electric Power System (AEP) generating plant now under construction at Rockport, Indiana.

Kentucky Power last Wednesday asked the Kentucky Public Service Commission authorization to invest approximately $187 million, or 15 per cent of the plant's total estimated cost of $1.25 billion, for a corresponding share of the generating capacity. Kentucky Powers investment would represent 390-megawatts of additional generation, some of which is expected to become available by 1981-'82.

The Indiana plant will have two coal-fired 1300-megawatt units and is being built by Indiana & Michigan (I&M) Electric Company. Kentucky Power and I&M are affiliate companies in the seven-state AEP System.

In making the announcement, Waldo S. La Fon, executive vice president of Kentucky Power, said that load growth studies show that if current trends continue, Kentucky customers would be using more electricity at winter peak periods in 1981-'82 than the company would be able to generate at its Big Sandy plant, near Louisa.

The Big Sandy plant is rated at 1060 megawatts. The company's internal demand in 1977 was 798 megawatts and is expected to reach 1077 megawatts during the winter of 1981-'82, the PSC filing said. Included was a projection that the winter of 1983-'84 would see a customer demand 14 per cent in excess of installed generation, without the addition of Rockport.

La Fon pointed out that investment in the Rockport Plant does not lessen the urgency to build the proposed generating plant in Lewis county, Ky., which was announced last December.

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency held a public meeting on the Lewis County project at Vanceburg on July 6. At that session the company stated that, based on a 1979 starting construction date, completion would be expected in the 1983 to 1985 period.

The PSC filing seeks a Certificate of Convenience and Necessity for the 15 per cent interest in the Rockport plant as well as authority to make bank borrowings in an amount up to $100-million to help finance the acquisition of Kentucky Power's share of the Rockport plant.

Kentucky Power will also seek required approval from the Securities and Exchange Commission for these transactions.

The shortest lived U.S. denomination was the 20-cent piece issued only in 1875 and 1876.
