

Development Agency Asks $2.38 Million

With two projects involving $816,000 under way here, the Floyd County Community Development Agency recently applied for an additional $2,389,000 to effect improvements in three other sections of the county.

County Judge-Executive Yvonne S. Jones said the new projects for which community development grants have been requested from the Housing and Urban Development Administration (HUD) are these:

1. For the Old Allen-Dwale area $889,000 for rehabilitation of deteriorated housing, acquisition of dilapidated structures, relocation of families residing in such structures and providing of sewer-collector lines. The project would affect an estimated 600 families.

2. Housing rehabilitation in the previous flood plain at Martin and the repair and unplugging of sewers to low and moderate income houses; an estimated 100 families affected. The application is for $500,000.

3. At Wheelwright a $1 million project including 75 vacant houses, rehabilitation those which can be repaired, demolition of some which cannot, rehabilitation of water and sewer

Annual Meeting Held at Armory; Projects Listed

The Big Sandy Area Development District's board of directors in its annual all-day meeting last Friday at the new National Guard armory here elected Russell Williamson, Inez banker and former basketball coach, its chairman to fill the vacancy created by the recent death of Floyd County Judge Henry Stumbo.

Allen Perry, editor of The Paintsville Herald, was named vice-chairman; Mayor Harold Cooley, of Prestonsburg, treasurer, and Salyersville Mayor Tim Bostic, secretary.

The board amended the by-laws, changing the board membership from 23 members to 25, and adding the mayor of the city of Martin as a regular member.

In addition to the county judges and mayors of county-seat towns, members elected to the board for the fiscal year beginning July 1 were:

Floyd county Supt. of Schools E. P. Grigsby, Jr., Commonwealth Attorney James R. Allen, and Dr. Henry A. Campbell, director of Prestonsburg Community College.

Johnson county—O. T. Dorton, Allen Perry and Mary Ruth Henderson. Magoffin county—O. J. Arnett and Grady Conley.

Martin county—Gene Ward, Russell Williamson and Larry Smith.

Pike county—Chester Smith and Joe Justice.

Mayor E. P. Grigsby, of Martin, and Mayor Charles Cantrell, of Elkhorn City, are board members by virtue of being mayors of fourth class cities.

Addressing the board at the dinner session, Clair Nichel, deputy commissioner for the Department for Local Government, commended the board

Judge Hits Truckers On Overload Charges

A total of $1,500 in fines was assessed last week on overweight trucks operating in the county by District Judge Harold J. Stumbo in a sharp departure from the widespread Eastern Kentucky custom of overlooking overweight violations.

One truckdriver was fined $160 and costs for permitting coal to fall along the highway from his uncovered truck.

(Enforcement of a fiscal court order fixing a fine for all uncovered coal trucks operating on county roads has not been undertaken, since the court's authority to levy a penalty only on coal trucks has been questioned. But Judge Stumbo pointed out that they are unquestionably subject to the state anti-littering law.)

A 30-day jail term was set for Felmer Ray Clifton, who was charged with drunk driving and driving without an operator's license. The defendant was probated to Layne House here but after his stay there he is to be returned to the court.

Clifton was fined $100 and costs on the drunk driving count and $2, plus the 30-day jail term, for driving without an operator's license.

(Judge Stumbo explained that a jail term may not legally be imposed for a first-offense drunk driving charge but days in jail may be added for drunkenness or for driving without a permit.)

Reminded of the insistence of some citizens that he "crack down" on drunken drivers, the judge remarked that he has been tough on these offenses but must remain within the law.

"For the first offense," he said, "I fine a drunk driver who is convicted or who pleads guilty $100, then add a 10-day jail term on the drunkenness charge, since the law doesn't provide imprisonment for first-offense drunk driving. I probate the jail term, with the clear understanding that, if the defendant is back in court, he or she will serve the 10 days."

Stumbo says he does not void drivers' licenses as a rule, because he has found that many of those arrested are driving without license and without any consideration of the law requiring one.

Those who violate jail term probation will be permitted to serve their terms on week-ends, if they are employed. "I don't want anybody to lose a job -- we've got enough on welfare," Judge Stumbo commented.

He said he committed last week to a maximum security institution two juveniles who had entered pleas of guilty to two separate felonies, and that his action was bitterly protested by representatives of the Department of Human Resources.

Coal Tax Funds Asked by Board For 10 Projects

Recommendations of the Floyd County Economic Aid Board for allocation by the state of coal severance tax funds include funding of 10 projects. The board completed its work on the recommendations at a meeting here Tuesday afternoon, and the list of improvements was scheduled to go to Frankfort this week.

The recommendations include these: County park at Allen, $35,000; Left Beaver district mini park at Minnie, $20,000; city of Martin, $13,479 for purchase of a street sweeper; $30,000 for improvement of Archer Park here, including handball and racquet ball courts; and $5,000 each to six fire departments—those of Allen, Maytown, Betsy Layne, Left Beaver Rescue Squad, city of Wheelwright and another for the Wheelwright area.

County Judge-Executive Yvonne S. Jones said work has been resumed on Phase I of the county park at Allen by the contractor, Big Wheel, Inc., and that this work is expected to be completed by August 1, as scheduled. Phase I work includes grading, sidewalks, curbs, lighting, blacktopping and construction of softball fields.

Construction of the bridge across Beaver Creek is under way by Burchett & Bush, contractors, and is scheduled for completion by September 15.

Phases III and IV, which include a swimming pool, bathhouse and golf course, remain to be let to contract.

Judge Stumbo said the park has been guaranteed $200,000 in Area Development funds.

EXPLANATION

The Times has been asked to explain that the sale of the home of Lee Hamilton was not mentioned in the agreed order entered here last week, providing that Mr. Hamilton will remain away from his place of residence for a period of seven days. Reference to the sale of the home was based on a statement made by a county official.

The order simply states that after a period of seven days its provisions are null and void.

This Town...That World

Whoops!—a new form to be filled out "in detail" arrived this week. This one has to do with the anti-littering tax on newspapers and others producing a product that could litter the landscape and possibly cover up the rest of the junk. O. K., we'll pay and gripe no more than the next fellow about it. After promising to be amicable about it, on second thought I add: When those same forms get to taking $50 worth of time to report a $15-$20 tax bill, we may not be so agreeable.

If a newspaper can be charged a tax for littering, what's the charge for a pornographic sheet?

WILLING TO WAIT

In a hurry? Can't take time to enjoy the life that's getting shorter by the minute?

We all might become more sensible and slow down a bit if we would follow the example set recently by this couple out in Illinois who had ideas of moving on till a mother robin chose their trailer for a place to nest and hatch her three eggs. Jim and Fern Miller, owners of the trailer, could have shooed the bird away. Some would have shot it. But they had no such ideas. "We're prepared to stay another 21 days until the little robins can leave their nest," Mrs. Miller said.

That's a couple worth knowing. They know something so many of us will never know.

NOT OF COMMON HERD

The story is told of the meat-packers' convention to which a noted clergyman had been invited as the speaker. When the minister arrived at the banquet table, the toastmaster promptly rose and intoned:

Way of the Cross Outreach Opens Television Studio Here

The Way of the Cross Outreach, which had its beginning here 18 months ago with a leader, Miss Jean Hale, and a prayer group, recently completed a $200,000 television studio for the telecasting of its services and nationally known guest-speakers.

The studio is located in the Way of the Cross Book Store on the first floor of the Fitzpatrick building on South Lake Drive.

Regular Way of the Cross services at 7:30 p.m., Thursdays, will be broadcast from the studio via a mobile unit brought here from Louisville and stationed in a bus outside the studio.

Guest-speaker Sunday will be the Rev. Bob Roberts, of Evangel Tabernacle, Louisville.

Among other guest-speakers already scheduled to be televised, live, from the studio here are David Wilkerson, author of "The Cross and the Switchblade," who will be here in September; Ann Gunther, author of "How Big Is God?," and Vickie Jamison, Texas evangelist, whose appearance is scheduled June 27.

Cost of the equipment has already been paid, it was said. Guest-speakers will be paid only through offerings.

Ed Bowlds, of Hartford, Ky., is the studio manager. Telecasts will be seen over Hazard (Channel 57; locally, 2) and WCHS, Charleston, W. Va. (Channel 8; locally, 6).

Mr. Bowlds said the public is invited to attend the telecasts from the new studio.

Red Cross Fund Drive Falls Short of Goal

The annual fund drive of the Floyd Chapter of the American Red Cross was scheduled to end officially Wednesday after a month of money-raising effort, but it must be extended," according to Floyd Red Cross Executive Director Shelby Willis.

The reason? Because, as of last Friday, only $600 had been received at Red Cross offices here, less than one-tenth of this year's goal of $10,000.

Explaining that local Red Cross chapters depend almost entirely on financial support derived from the donations of local citizens, Mrs. Willis said, "Unless we get more response through extending our fund drive, we have only enough money to hold out about two more months."

Although about $8,500 in donations was received last year through the fund drive which followed last April's disastrous flooding, the National Red Cross organization took $5,700 of that total, according to Mrs. Willis. "That left us $2,800 to run the chapter on," Mrs. Willis pointed out, "and now the money is nearly exhausted."

"Through the coordinating efforts of our fund drive chairman and volunteers we've sent out letters and used advertising as well as offered membership cards to the Red Cross for each contribution of $1.00 or more," Mrs. Willis said, "but there has been almost no response."

The local Red Cross organization has never been more active than now, Mrs. Willis said that the national Red Cross spent $555,000 in Floyd county alone during last spring's flood. "And they're still paying bills," she added. Over the past year the local chapter has served to fill out Veterans Administration forms, serve military families and service men, providing overseas contacts between personnel and families in times of emergency, answer inquires (more than

Council Directs Closing of Club After Gun Fray

The Prestonsburg City Council last Thursday instructed City Attorney William G. Francis to determine the steps necessary to close the Fraternal Order of Eagles Club here and to take them.

The club was the scene recently of a shooting fray in which one man was killed and a second critically wounded.

The council's action is independent of a petition which County Attorney Arnold Turner, Jr. and Commonwealth's Attorney James. Allen said last week they intended to file to close the club.

Council member, George Cecil Brown, was named to the Floyd County-Prestonsburg Joint Zoning Commission to succeed Cloyd Johnson, a former member of the council. Sue Webb was named city clerk to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Mrs. Beverly Hackworth.

Council directed City Manager Jack Clark Hyden to contact an engineer for estimates on the cost of repairing Duncan street, West Prestonsburg, and construction of a walkway from the high school to Prestonsburg Community College and another on the downhill entrance to Archer Park. He also was asked to call on the Department of Highways again for action on filling potholes on US 23 here.

Fire Razes Former Martin Youth Center Bldg.

Fire early Monday morning, destroyed the block building (formerly the Martin Youth Center) which housed the Ornamental Iron Works Co., a firm which only recently moved into the structure on Route 80 near Martin. The blaze, apparently originating in ceiling wiring, resulted in more than $100,000 damage including the loss of seven welding machines and a large quantity of stock.

Guard Prepares For Ceremonies

Preparations continue for the dedication ceremonies for the Prestonsburg Army National Guard Armory to be held Friday, June 23, at 10 a.m.

Governor Julian Carroll is scheduled to be the principal speaker, along with state Adjutant General Billy Wellman and local officials.

The Prestonsburg unit is Detachment 1, Company B, of the 1st-149th Mechanized Infantry. The unit is presently recruiting to gain full strength. It authorized strength is 88 persons and it has 63.

Elmo Head, state recruiting officer, said that during May the Prestonsburg unit was the top recruiting unit in the state, with 11 enlistees.

Kentucky Adjutant General Billy Wellman said, "The Prestonsburg unit is working hard to gain 100 per cent strength, and this unit should be commended publicly for their gains." Wellman's chief goal is to bring all Guard units in the state to full strength this year.

The public is cordially invited to attend the dedication ceremonies.

MARTHA LAYNE COLLINS, clerk of the Kentucky Supreme Court, congratulates John Wesley Mann, of Prestonsburg, on his admission to the Kentucky Bar. Mrs. Collins administered the constitutional oath of office to the new attorney during recent ceremonies in the Supreme Court room at the Capitol in Frankfort.

It is to be held at Masterson Station Park, just off U.S. 421 west of Lexington - channel 19 on your CB will be monitored in case you get lost. There will be camping services, food, arts and crafts and music. The line up is as follows: Fri., June 9—Ralph Stanley and the Clinch Mtn. Boys (who just finished up their festival and have a new LP), J. D. Crowe and the New South (with their new LP), Boys From Indiana, Outdoor Plumbing Co., and Reel World Stringbands—Sat., June 10, you can see Seldom Scene, Ralph Stanley, Jimmy Martin and the Sunny Mtn. Boys, Katie Laur Band, Hutchison Bros., Stoney Creek, and Messa Grass—Sun., June 11, they put on for you the Seldom Scene, McLain Family Band, Lester Flatt and the Nashville Grass, Hotmud Family, Blue Types of Grass, and the Bluegrass Thoroughbreds. People who have been rock freaks since diapers are turning on to bluegrass and especially bluegrass festivals. They are full of great people and great music—don't snurl your nose, try one!

New AC-DC, out now, get it! The name of this mind buzzer is "Powerage" and is better rock, believe it or not, than their previous two albums, "High Voltage" and "Let There Be Rock." Bon Scott, as always, screams out common person rock about hassels of the younger generation. The style is simple heavy and driving. Check this group out in concert the 25th with Alice Cooper. By the way, Cooper is now in studio working on a new LP called "From the Inside." Bernie Taupin, one time lyricist for Elton John, will be writing up Cooper's experiences of recovering from alcohol while Cooper handles the music. Kansas is also preparing to hit us again as they are currently mixing a new live LP as well as beginning studio work on a brand new album. Bob Dylan is finalizing a new LP recorded on location in Santa Monica. Other artists now in studio are Chilliwack, Jennifer Warnes, England Dan and John Ford Coley, Sammy Hagar and Joe Cocker.

I can't get out of here without just mentioning the new Pablo Cruise album, "Worlds Away." The group has gotten it together like never before with a "getaway from it all" theme. The beginning of the song "I Go to Rio" is especially interesting—check it for yourself!

For your own musical sake and sanity check these new sounds out before they are super hot. One is Dixie Dregs with their "What If" album of southern jam, totally instrumental. Alvin Lee is gonna get you again with his rocking "Rocket Fuel—Ten Yrs. Later" LP. Backalley Bandits join the class of music headed by such greats as Pure Prairie League as a future stiff competitor. Beat the crowd and get 'em now!

Get this! More new sounds, all winners! Carole King—Welcome Home; Rita Coolidge—Love Me Again; Andy Gibb—Shadow Dancing; Kinks—Misfits; John Prine—Bruised Orange; Bruce Springsteen—Darkness On the Edge of Town; Little River Band—Sleeper Catcher; Tom Petty and the Heartbreakers—You're Gonna Get It; Patti Labelle—Tasty; Con Funk Shun—Love Shine; LTD—Togethergrass; Ronnie McDowell—I Love You; Larry Gatlin—Oh! Brother.

That's it, finally. Coey

Local Control Study Is Begun

A nine-member task force toured the Appalachian Regional Hospital system's 10 hospitals and clinics this week, the first step in a plan for more local control of the facilities in Kentucky, Virginia and West Virginia.

"Community involvement is the future of these hospitals. I see it as a step in a progression that was bound to come," Dr. David K. Heydinger, ARH president, said.

The ARH board of trustees has exercised total control of the hospital chain since 1963, although councils of local residents were established to help make administrative decisions.

Communities now are demanding more control and, in some areas, it has become an emotional issue, said Heydinger, who has resigned to join the Marshall University medical school in Huntington, W. Va., although no effective date has been set.

Some local boards want more control "and they can handle more," he said. "Others don't want more."

The task force will try to determine what level of local control is best for each area.

30-Day Alcoholism Program Offered Problem Drinkers

By A. K. WEBB

"I feel good knowing that I will help someone else," said Paul Andis at a local workshop held recently during Alcoholism Awareness Week. "I can't change another person but I can offer alternatives and present options for that change."

Alcoholism Recovery Community and its director, Andis, provide opportunity for many problem drinkers who no longer want alcohol erupting their lives.

The 30-day residential alcoholism treatment program located in Lexington is open to any resident of Floyd county who desires a change working toward sobriety.

According to Andis, human contact makes the difference in working with those suffering from alcoholism.

"At ARC we provide a healthy, nurturing environment as opposed to toxic. Usually the surroundings from which the client comes is poison. This is not society's fault and we don't pity the alcoholic. Instead we help that person make positive changes down in the gut so when returning home he will have power to resist obsessive drinking," explains Andis.

Describing the ARC treatment facility Andis relates, "Therapeutic community, we believe, works best in a residential environment set up within a small society and a person becomes more responsible in that setting. 'A person can understand another individual in the same situation and oftentimes listens to another client before a counselor.'"

"Working at ARC my job is not to lay a lot of great things on those needing help. Our job is to help assure an atmosphere where peer pressure works on the client. That client will in turn become a helping to someone else," concluded Andis.

Since ARC services more than just the local central Kentucky area where it is located, and is expressed concern for better follow-up on those individuals returning to their communities.

"My ideal would be ARC could provide after care for our clients. This isn't possible now with the size of our staff and since we cover Eastern Kentucky and throughout the state," Andis commented.

The alcohol program at Mountain Comprehensive Care, Pike County Alcohol Counseling Treatment facility, and other local neighborhood organizations concerned with alcoholism treatment work closely with ARC in furnishing efficient alcoholism services to those in Floyd county.

Into five and one-half years of operation, ARC was modeled after a program in Minneapolis, Minnesota which, unlike ARC, was designed by Addis as "mucho expensive!" ARC, however, only last month started assessing fees which are determined by a sliding cost scale.

"Nobody should consider charge as a reason for not coming to our program," Andis said. "It isn't that costly and we can arrange various kinds of pay systems for the client. 'No limit is placed on the revolving door client and we're always there whenever they need us.'"

Pike County Smithy On 'Kentucky Now'

On Feds Creek in Pike county is a 72-year-old blacksmith named Lundy Taylor. He's been doing his work for a long time and has seen some changes in the tasks he's been asked to perform.

Thursday, June 15, he and Marguerite Carson, of London, Ky., are profiled on "Kentucky Now" at 8 p.m. (ET), 7 p.m. (CT) on KET, The Kentucky Network. The program can also be seen Sunday, June 18 at 1:30 p.m. (ET), 12:30 p.m. (CT).

Marguerite Carson is a fiercely loyal native of the Eastern Kentucky mountains who has taken it upon herself to combat some unfavorable stereotypes often advanced about the area. She and her husband live in a house reconstructed from several log cabins and furnished with mountain crafts and antiques.

A frequent lecturer about Appalachian culture and tradition, she has produced a slide show incorporating facets of tombstone rubbing, mountain music and of people keeping the traditions alive as they go about daily living.

Mrs. Carson has also been recording oral history and she talks with Tomi Morris about a project she is doing in Corbin.

Needed—More Homeowners

Public housing undeniably has its merits. It affords comfortable shelter at reasonable cost for many thousands of the elderly and those of low income who otherwise would be either homeless or forced to live miserable existences.

But for the great majority of Americans it is not the answer to a problem which becomes more distressing by the year. The natural desire to own your home, to live under your own roof, to have a place to set down some roots as a family anchor becomes by the day more of dream than reality.

Middle-class America is becoming the homeless segment of the population, unless rented apartments and mobile homes are to have fireside hearths. The cost of land, building materials and labor makes impossible homebuilding for young couples, and all others of moderate income are in much the same discouraging situation.

These are the people who would be paying taxes and supporting community services, including government, if it were possible for them to own homes. (And it might be added that public housing contributes no taxes but takes property off the tax rolls.) These are among the reasons for more serious thinking about the housing situation which apparently is a national problem.

The plan of the Floyd County-Prestonsburg Community Development Agency to make available building lots rather than to go into the housing business itself strikes us as a step in the right direction.

Now if they or others can find some building money to be borrowed at reasonable interest rates, some of the gloom might lift.

Will Kentucky Share Coal Boom?

Will Eastern Kentucky cash in on vast increases in coal production called for in President Carter's national energy plan? There now seems to be some doubt about whether it will.

Various government reports, for example, conflict a great deal on how much more coal is expected to be mined in Eastern Kentucky by 1985. For that reason, state officials, coal operators and miners should take a closer look at the energy planning going on now in Washington. If they don't, the national energy plan may end up excluding Eastern Kentucky from a boom that could help finance improved life in the mountains.

The president's energy plan aims to nearly double the amount of coal mined nationally over the next seven years. Since the plan was announced over a year ago it has been assumed that Eastern Kentucky would play a larger part in it.

The president was in Charleston, W. Va., last week and talked of the need for steady increases in coal production in Appalachia. His statements seemed to support this assumption. They also supported a U.S. Transportation Department report issued in January. The report estimated Appalachian production would increase by more than 50 percent by 1985.

But a report now being prepared by the Department of Energy estimates production of Appalachian coal will go up by only 10 to 15 percent. In Central Appalachia, which includes Eastern Kentucky, production is projected to go up from 197 million tons last year to 209 million tons in 1985, an increase of only about 6.5 percent.

Meanwhile, out west, coal production may more than double. Why is the projected increase so small for Central Appalachia and Eastern Kentucky? Is it because of bad roads that might not be able to handle a much larger number of coal trucks? Is it because railroad beds and tracks have deteriorated to the point they too would be inadequate for carrying significantly increased amounts of coal?

Is it labor problems in the mountains? Or is it something else? These are a few of the questions state officials and the coal industry should be asking officials in Washington. The answers would give them some idea of what must be done if Eastern Kentucky is to keep riding the coal boom.

And this boom, in the form of more jobs and increased severance tax revenues, provides Eastern Kentuckians with a glimmer of hope that life in the mountains can keep improving, no matter how slightly.

Urges Stiff Penalties For Drunk Drivers

Recent remarks by one of our judges that he had to be lenient with some of our drunken drivers—was no solace for those who have had to bury loved ones due to these drivers. This is no time for leniency. Penalties for drunk driving should be increased to make it prohibitive to so drive. The fine should be $500 and increased another $500 for the second instance, etc. Since there is no room in the jail for so many punishment should be for these people to be charged with cleaning up so many miles of ditches of our roads on Saturdays they are off from work. I noted in a recent list one drunk driver who had already killed one person while driving drunk. He got off, scot free, in that instance.

The source of supply for alcoholic beverages in our county should be legally dried up. I noted that only token arrests are made of the "bootleggers" and increased another $1000 for second offense, etc. It should be made to be very unprofitable to "bootleg" in Floyd county. It has been rumored that prominent figures derive part of their income from "franchised" dealers throughout the county and they are supplied by a distributor from downstate who used to be active in Floyd county politics. The way things are, makes it appear that there is more truth than fiction in these rumors.

So big a fuss is made over dope and marijuana being used when alcohol is the far more deadly narcotic.

The next grand jury should have responsible people on it who will thoroughly examine our law-enforcement in the county and bring to task those responsible.

Has Sewer Problem

I have a problem with a sewer line that's beginning to be quite messy.

There's an alley between my house and the home of Willard Adkins. This alley belongs to the town of Allen.

Through this alley runs the sewer line from the Floyd county school bus garage. When I said "runs," I mean runs; it's running wide open. This has been going on since the first part of April. The smell the mess are getting to us good.

Now it's beginning to run on my yard and my neighbor's yard.

We have asked and even begged for help, but the sun is too hot for anybody to work on it.

We have talked to school board members, to our local town council members and even the health department, and all the help we get is promises.

Some said it didn't belong to the garage, but we checked it out and, it's theirs.

Now, I'm quite sure that none of these people who know about this problem would want a sewer line in their back yard. Won't somebody please clean this up—or is the whole city of Allen going to smell like a barnyard. CINDY PARSONS, ALLEN, KY.

Women Libbers and Others

The persecution of humans identified as "Women's Libbers," far from being a random expression of contemporary American prejudice, is becoming institutionalized in ways similar to the opening stages of the 17th Century witch-hunt in which nine million women were burned at the stake, the Nazis efforts to exterminate European Jewry between the two world wars, and 450 years of trying to prove black people were not human.

Women Libbers have become, to those who oppose God's words of equality, identified as symbols of danger rather than humans. An ideology justifying their persecution has been created and otherwise conflicting agencies of social control are united in opposing this group—and all three of these processes work to institutionalize their persecution. In turn, such socially sanctioned repression of a group of humans usually transcends itself both in its selection of targets and in its organization—in other words, it often snowballs into vigorous suppression of all forms of deviance or difference.

Psychiatrists have provided much of the rationale for the war against women which is being waged in the name of God, Home and Country. Often mental health, moral values or social or political interest, defining normality and health in terms of each other, are thrown in to weight their vocalizing.

Psychiatry more and more identifies any form of alienation as a sickness which invites the forcible altering of the dissenter's behavior on humanitarian grounds. This kind of sickness, according to the same source, causes an abnormal concern for pornography and sex crimes, always blaming what they call "deviants," or "perverts," for every injustice or crime committable.

More than 3,000 psychiatrists and psychologists who replied to a questionnaire from Dr. Daniel X. Freedman, chairman of the department of psychiatry at the University of Chicago, among other things said, "86.1 percent agreed that people who vigorously try to suppress pornography are often motivated by unresolved sexual problems in their own characters."

The most usable and frequently used prop by these sick people in their ominous process is it places it all in the category of heresy. This pattern may soon become endemic to the society.

lines, and construction of a neighborhood park. The proposed work would affect some 250 families.

Mrs. Anna Jean Tackett, director of the community development agency, which is a county-federal effort in cooperation with the individual communities affected, said homes at Wheelwright that are privately owned by Mountain INVESTMENT Company may be purchased, rehabilitated, then resold to low-income retired persons at prices based on their incomes.

Fate of the applications will not be known till after July 15, it was said.

Projects already under way include the development of building sites on approximately 100 acres purchased by the agency on Abott Mountain, extension of sewers to about 35 homes and rehabilitation of some homes in the Old Lancer area, and rehabilitation of flooded homes over the county.

Mrs. Tackett said the mountain area lots will be readied for home construction and will be sold to low- and moderate-income families for single-unit homes. Utilities connections are included in the development work, which is planned to beat the local housing shortage and lack of building sites. That work and the Lancer project have been funded for $500,000. The repair of flooded homes was funded for $316,000.

members for their concern and efforts in working to improve services and facilities in the five-county area. He praised Representative James "Jitter" Allen for his work in the state Legislature and congratulated Floyd county for having a representative who has quickly learned his job, gained the respect of his fellow-legislators, and developed the technique for getting things done. He particularly praised Allen for his work in the Legislature on behalf of the District Area Development Fund which makes it possible for the ADD board to complete much-needed projects in the Big Sandy area.

Following Nichel's speech, Representative Allen spoke and presented to County Judge-Executive Yvonne S. Jones a bronze plaque honoring her father, the late Judge Henry Stumbo, for his achievement in causing special legislation to be enacted which will make the new Floyd County Juvenile Detention Center a regional facility to be operated by the Department of Human Resources for the entire Big Sandy area.

At the morning session representatives from the various counties reviewed projects of their respective counties on a county basis, prior to establishing regional priorities.

New fund allocations made at the meeting brought to $385,000 the total approved for Floyd county projects. The five-county district total stands at $1,957,000.

New Floyd county projects include $200,000 for the county park at Allen, and $35,000 for the Mud Creek mini park.

Approved for this county in earlier first-round allocations were $100,000 for the Martin water system and $50,000 for the Wheelwright pool.

Other new allocations are: Johnson county water extension, $130,000; Magoffin county, countywide water system, $200,000; Martin county, Inez water plant, $150,000; Pike county, Elkhorn City sewage, $75,000, and Pikeville water plant, $15,700.

1,000 in '77) and provide swimming and first-aid instruction to some 600 individuals of all ages. The local chapter, according to Mrs. Willis, presently has 15 multi-media first-aid instructors, four standard first-aid and personal safety instructors, three cardio-pulmonary resuscitation instructors, one emergency instructor to the injured and eight swimming and water safety instructors.

Adding to the local chapter's commendable "track record" is the fact that the Red Cross here has, in cooperation with numerous civic organizations in the county as well as social service agencies and the county board of education, organized a countywide disaster and evacuation plan geared specifically to the needs of Floyd counties in time of widespread flooding.

Mrs. Willis stressed that local donations are vital for the survival of the local organization, particularly so, she said, because the Red Cross services in Johnson, Magoffin and Martin counties are being transferred and centralized in the Floyd chapter office.

"There are 42,000 people in Floyd county," Mrs. Willis said. "Just think, if each person would contribute just a small amount."

NO. 1

Friday, June 2, marked for me the official opening of the 1978 fishing season. Seven months had been ripped off the calendar since last this menace to the bass population had wet a line.

The result of this expedition which got no farther than Dewey Lake? A few crappie (spelled with an "a") and two bass which perhaps were no more than a year out of the nest.

But it was great—as usual: the freedom of the water, the escape from the telephone and other instruments of torture, the quiet of a day when clouds were low and rain threatened. Then there was that feeling, late in the day, that the shadowy hills were just a little nearer than usual.

And, just before the running lights of the boat began parting the dusk, we heard a whippoorwill.

By LARRY BURKE

We have all heard of the wonderful way Luther Burbank, the California botanist, succeeded in freeing flowers and fruits from their original bad qualities. He grew a walnut without tannin, and freed it from its disagreeable taste; developed a dahlia with a pleasant instead of a disagreeable odor; produced plums and apricots without stones; and evolved thornless cacti.

Can man be freed of all his faults of constitution, habit and training? They do it every day.

These changes are brought on without the skillfulness and knowledge of men like Burbank. It is the result of the individual efforts and the search for strength to overcome! How? By earnestly and honestly seeking—this strange and wonderful strength can always be found.

High Workmen's Comp Rates Hurt State Industry, Claim

A state official charged with helping to attract new business to Kentucky says the Commonwealth's workmen's compensation rates are deterring new industries from locating in the Bluegrass State.

In addition, William Thomas Fields, director of industrial development in the Kentucky Department of Commerce, said the high workmen's compensation rates in Kentucky are causing many businesses and industries to think twice before planning any expansion in the state.

The most recent example involved an Indiana firm that had considered a site in Central Kentucky and one in Alabama for a plant expansion, but chose Alabama because the workmen's compensation rates were four times lower than Kentucky's.

"It's been a case of representatives of several companies coming in and reviewing what we've got and they are impressed," Fields said in an interview, "but then they see how much more it's going to cost them in workmen's compensation rates and they choose other locations."

Fields says a state-by-state comparison shows Kentucky is not the state with the highest rates in the U.S., but it is in a position where it has higher rates than many of the states in the south in which they are in competition.

Fields said some states' workmen's compensation rates are as much as three or four times lower than Kentucky's.

"When you are in constant competition for attracting new industry to the state, the workmen's compensation rates that were recently hiked by the legislature are the biggest handicap we're facing," Fields explained. "It's tough trying to convince some representative to come to Kentucky when he knows he can pay much less in rates in some other states."

As a result, the advantages the state uses to attract industry—stable employment, good roads, excellent navigation systems, good labor records—often are overlooked or negated by the rising costs of workmen's compensation, Fields added.

The problems during the past two years have not only hurt attracting new industries but keeping present firms from pulling up stakes and leaving the Commonwealth.

Proposed Food Stamp Changes

Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland has proposed food stamp reforms to eliminate more than a million participants with the highest incomes, and to make the program more accessible to several million poor not currently participating, especially the elderly and working poor.

The new regulations would become effective, late this summer. Families owning luxury cars could be made ineligible for food stamps, and persons convicted of food stamp fraud would be disqualified for up to two years. Some students would be dropped from the program, while others would have to sign-up for work half-time to get food stamps.

The new regulations also would do away with the requirement that participants pay a certain amount in cash to receive food stamps. Under the proposed new regulations, a family currently required to pay $95 a month for $174 in food stamps -- or a net benefit of $79 -- would simply receive the $79 in stamps without having to come up with cash first. This action was proposed by President Carter, who said some poor families are unable to get food stamps because they cannot make the required cash payment.

The proposed changes would implement reform food stamp legislation passed by Congress last year.

"We expect the changes to be of particular benefit to the elderly and working poor," Secretary Bergland said. "More elderly and low-income working families will now be able to participate and improve their nutrition."

The secretary said the new law, and the proposed regulations, were designed to "strike a fair balance" in food aid to the needy.

"The changes would assure that those with the highest income -- those not significantly in need of food stamps -- would no longer qualify, while we do a better job of reaching those who truly are in need," Secretary Bergland said.

The proposed rules lower the net income levels for food stamps to the federal poverty level and simplify eligibility determinations by replacing most itemized deductions now used in the program with standard deductions.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture plans to accept comments on the proposals until June 16, and to issue final rules this summer. States will then be allowed several months to prepare for implementation of the rules.

Does ACP Save the Soil!
Congress Wants To Know

For more than 40 years the U. S. Department of Agriculture has administered through the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) an Agricultural Conservation Program (ACP) whereby the cost of installing certain conservation measures is shared by USDA.

Recent Congressional reports show, however, that billions of federal dollars have been expended over the years; and yet, the average soil loss per acre per year is greater. (In 1940, the average loss per acre per year was 8; in 1976, the average had increased to 12.)

Congress has challenged the Executive Branch to evaluate the real effectiveness of ACP. According to Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland, "This comprehensive evaluation of the ACP is to be a practical, on-going activity. A large amount of soil, water, and woodland information is available in the most recent four years of ACP records—1975, 1976, 1977, and 1978. These records will yield a variety of valuable data for use with future conservation standards."

The evaluation is being conducted in scientifically selected counties across the United States. Of the 171 counties selected, seven are from Kentucky and include Ballard, Edmonson, Mason, McCreary, Montgomery, Perry, and Webster counties.

The evaluation will include "before and after" situations. Examples of potential findings include: The amount of soil that was prevented from moving from fields in a given county, state, region, and nation; the crop rotation of that soil; amount of precipitation involved; effect of building terraces; construction of farm ponds; establishing permanent vegetative cover; installation of run-off control structures; and many other efforts to save our vital resources.

ASCS will be assisted by the Soil Conservation Service in providing the technical data and information. The results will be issued next fall.

ACCORDING TO THE Department of Transportation, if every driver and passenger in the US would wear safety belts during every trip in a car, about 15,000 lives would be saved every year.

2 No-Hitters Mark Little League Play

Little League action last week included another full week of play. On Monday night, in a battle of unbeaten teams, Clifton-McDonald downed Branham & Baker as Jimmy Shepherd and John DeRossett combined to pitch a no-hitter. The score was 18-0. In the night's second game, another no-hitter was pitched as Mitch Cecil pitched three innings of hitless ball and John Hale pitched one as Clark beat Auxier, 21-0. Tuesday night, a single game was played and Goble Lumber edged East Ky. Mack, 7-6.

Thursday night, East Ky. Mack had little trouble with Music-Carter-Hughes as the Mets beat the Braves, 14-6. In the second game of the night Clifton-McDonald again bested Branham & Baker, this time 17 to 7.

Friday night, Jody Hackworth, of the Clark Indians, pitched a three-hitter as the Indians rolled over the Auxier Cubs, 26 to 2, and in the second game Gordie Ratliff, of the East Ky. Mack Mets, pitched a 2-hit shut out as the Mets beat previously unbeaten Goble Lumber Giants, 12 to 0.

The Little League is now operating a soft drink stand at each of the fields. The league hopes to raise desperately needed operating funds.

Meet Here Voices Support for Saving Garfield House

Restoration and preservation of the Garfield Place, one of this community's last remaining historical landmarks, was the subject of a meeting held Monday at the Floyd County Library, here.

The meeting, aimed at organizing a local group of interested citizens to represent the plight of the former Civil War headquarters of General James A. Garfield, met with widespread interest with representatives of the Chamber of Commerce, Prestonsburg Planning Commission, Appalachian Guild of Artists and Craftsmen, the D.A.R., Prestonsburg Woman's Club, P.T.A., and county government present along with other interested individuals.

The group, chaired by Mary Pineau, discussed the fact that the house is presently listed in the National Register of Historic Homes and explored the possibilities permanently preserving it as a historic landmark.

Commission Voids 2-Week Crossbow Season for Deer

The state Fish and Wildlife Commission has cancelled the special two-week experimental season for taking deer with a crossbow, according to Dr. James C. Salato, commission chairman. The crossbow season, which was to have opened October 1 and continued through October 14, was cancelled, Salato said, after commission members reviewed oral and written evidence and opinion presented by bow hunters at a public hearing held in Frankfort May 18. "It seems obvious now," Salato said, "that our decision to allow crossbow hunting for deer, on a statewide basis, was perhaps a premature one. The commission now plans further study and research on both the effectiveness and the safety of the crossbow as a deer hunting weapon." Until the studies are completed, Salato said, use of the crossbow will be limited to the Pioneer Weapons Area in the Daniel Boone Forest where only primitive weapons such as the crossbow, flintlock rifle etc. may be used and where the seasons generally coincide with the statewide seasons.

Joy, Sorrow, Rage— All Can Be Lethal

When Dr. George Engel suffered a heart attack on the last day of mourning his twin brother's unexpected death, he began to wonder if there had been a definite correlation between the two events and if it was a common or uncommon occurrence.

Common, he discovered. Writing in the April Reader's Digest, the physician says: "As far back as written records exist, people are described as dying suddenly while in the throes of fear, rage, grief, humiliation or joy."

A study of 275 cases "in which death generally occurred within minutes or hours of a major event in the person's life" revealed four common characteristics. The most common category (135 cases) was death following the death—or anniversary of death—of someone exceptionally close.

Next (103 cases) was a situation of life-threatening danger—this included deaths during the period of danger or shortly after the threat had passed. He cites the case of a man who survived a major earthquake but died at his desk during a minor tremor a few months later.

Disappointment, failure, defeat or loss of status appeared to provoke 21 deaths, including six deaths of prominent citizens who died while involved in criminal proceedings.

Even happiness can take its toll. Engel found 16 cases of sudden death at the time of triumph, success or joyous reunion. "A 75-year-old man who hit the twin double for $1683 on a $2 bet died as he was about to cash in his winning ticket," he reports.

OUTPATIENT visits to VA health care facilities averaged 1.4 million monthly in 1977, according to the Veterans Administration.

For the Squad to have reached its present status has meant many hours of hard work. Many sleepless nights and a tremendous amount of assistance from the people of Floyd and surrounding counties.

"We would like to express our gratitude to: 1. All who rendered assistance in recovering the bodies of the 26 schoolchildren and the school bus driver. 2. All radio stations and local newspapers for informing the citizens of our wants and needs. 3. All county officials who participated in organizing committees and donating to the success of the Squad. 4. Marlowe To Perform
At Benefit Show
For Cancer Victim

A benefit show for six-year-old Jason Brent Handshoe featuring popular country-western performer Marlow Tackett and his Southern Comfort Band will be held June 18 beginning at 2 p.m. at the John T. Arnett school, Route 7 at Fredville (Magoffin county).

Jason, son of Jay and Connie Handshoe, of Gunlock, has suffered from Wilms Tumor, a cancer which originates in the kidney, since 1975 when one kidney was removed. Since then, he has had to undergo regular chemotherapy treatments which have incurred tremendous expense on his family.

In addition to the featured performance by Marlow Tackett, an auction of many varied items will be conducted with Castle Whitaker as auctioneer. Information concerning the show may be obtained by calling Janice Cooley at Gunlock, 884-5771 or 884-5777.

In addition to the benefit show, a special Brent Handshoe Cancer Fund has been set up at The First National Bank of Prestonsburg by Estill Newsome. Anyone wanting to help in any way in young Handshoe's fight with cancer may contact Mr. Newsome at 886-8368 or by calling The First National Bank or Mountain Comprehensive Care Center.

Poetry Workshop Set At Greenbo State Park

By HELEN PRICE STACY

Moonlight filtering through the trees makes dappled shadows on the lake. Across the broad lake valley a whip-poorwill calls. The quiet is a deep serenity that, mingled with the romantic surroundings, creates a perfect atmosphere for a poet or perhaps for one who would like to write poetry. A poetry workshop is set July 14-16, sponsored by the State Poetry Society, at Jesse Stuart Lodge, Greenbo Lake State Resort Park. The park is not too far from the W-Hollow home in Greenup county of Kentucky's famous author-poet Jesse Stuart, who is recovering from a recent illness.

Mrs. Juanita Johnson of Wee Willowbrook Farm, Argillite, Ky., is president of the state poetry society. "All poets or would-be poets are welcome to attend the workshop," she said. "Membership in the state society is not required."

Jim Wayne Miller of Western Kentucky University, will conduct the workshop on basic fundamentals and forms of traditional poetry. Miller is widely known in literary circles and often is invited to lecture on his art and to conduct poetry workshops.

'Bluegrass Bluegrass' Returns

KET explores Kentucky's musical heritage once again as four programs from the popular series "Bluegrass Bluegrass" return for a summer encore. Airing on "Musical Mondays" during the month of June, the programs are seen at 9 p.m. (ETL) - P.M. (CT).

Featured in the second segment of "Bluegrass bluegrass" is Boone Creek. The group's leader and mentor, Ricky Skaggs, grew up in the hills of Eastern Kentucky, where he attended a one-room school and lived five miles from the nearest store. What made his life different from that of other boys was the influence of music. His entire family was musically inclined and when he was only six years old, he was performing with them on a weekly country and bluegrass radio show.

Under the influence of Skaggs, Boone Creek shows many faces as they play a wide variety of music. In addition to their country-bluegrass sound, the group plays swing with tunes like "Sweet Georgia Brown." They also add jazz and New Orleans blues to their repertoire. Possibly their most powerful tunes, however are their gospel quartets.

Since the taping of the program, members of the band have gone their separate ways. However, in the two and one half years they played together their impact on bluegrass music was great. Nancy Daley, free-lance writer from Lexington, who followed the group says: "What they had is not gone just because the group has broken up. Boone Creek was probably one of the best bluegrass bands ever while they were together and the music they played won't disappear just because they aren't performing together as a group. People liked their music too much for that."

Members of the band include: Jerry

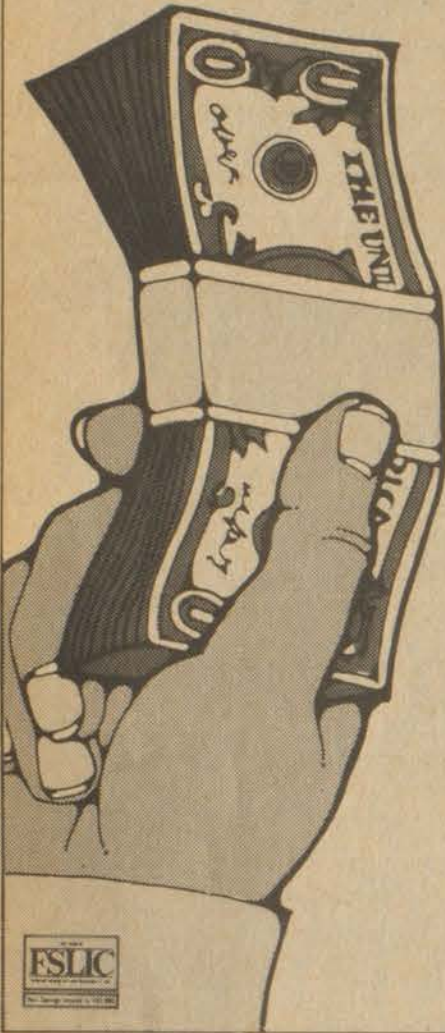

Douglas, who helped Skaggs form Boone Creek, playing dobro; Wes Golding, playing guitar; Terry Baucom, playing banjo and fiddle; Steve Bryant, playing bass; and Ricky Skaggs, who is now with Emmy Lou Harris' Hot Band.

The Boone Creek segment of the "Bluegrass Bluegrass" encore airs Monday, June 12 at 9 p.m. (ET).

What's Better Than Money In The Bank?

Well, when you consider that no bank is permitted by law to pay you as much interest on savings as Floyd Federal can, the answer is simple. A Passbook Savings Account at Floyd Federal in Prestonsburg pays 5 1/4% interest. The highest rate any bank is allowed to pay you is only 5%. So, if you have a savings account at a bank, it's costing you money. While you may feel that it's convenient to save at the same place you do your checking, remember this: That so-called 'convenience' is expensive. What's better than having money in the bank? The answer is: having money in a Passbook Savings Account at Floyd Federal in Prestonsburg. The choice is up to you!

Weinberg Requests Investigation Of State Road Maintenance System

State Representative Bill Weinberg, of Hindman, last week requested the Legislative Research Commission through its interim committees to conduct "a complete and thorough" investigation of the state road maintenance system in Kentucky, citing problems which exist in the program, especially in Eastern Kentucky. Weinberg also wrote Governor Julian Carroll, requesting his full cooperation in any such legislative activities.

In his letter to LR6 Weinberg detailed the reasons for the request and the problems which he feels exist in the state program. "I have just learned since this letter was typed," he said, that all contracts for Adams Construction Company for the delivery of gravel have been cancelled, thus underlining the problem in securing effective delivery of services in this area. It is not clear to me at this time what alternative the state intends to develop to solve this problem."

Weinberg said the investigation should include but not be limited to an examination of the methods used in allocating equipment to the various districts; the level of equipment in said districts compared to previous years; the reasons for the decrease in the cleaning of ditchlines in recent years; the procedures for hiring and firing of state maintenance personnel; the system's relationship to contractors and suppliers of gravel and other necessary materials; and the financial needs of the maintenance program; and means of increasing its efficiency, effectiveness and responsiveness to the public.

Weinberg wrote: "This investigation should be state-wide and should be aimed at arriving at concrete legislative suggestions for improving the maintenance program. It would not, and should not, be a search for scapegoats but should rather strive to develop positive suggestions for reversing the downhill spiral in our state road program which has affected it for several years. I am copying this letter to the Governor, with a note requesting his active assistance and cooperation in addressing this problem."

"Speaking primarily from my knowledge of the situation in Eastern Kentucky, I am compelled to say that the situation is appalling. Some of the counties in Eastern Kentucky have less equipment in working order now than they had five years ago, in spite of increasing road demands. Equipment in need of repair is idle for long periods. The cleaning of ditchlines has become the exception rather than the rule. Water stands under the roadbeds because the ditchlines are full, with the result that the asphalt quickly buckles, necessitating costly rebuilding jobs on roads which have recently been built."

"Personnel policies are dominated by politics at the lower levels and immune from politics or any other accountability at the middle levels. Although those who are last hired can often times be removed if found on the wrong political team, a thorough shakeup of a poorly functioning highway crew is nearly impossible."

"Perhaps the most infuriating factor of the maintenance system in Eastern Kentucky is its reliance on a few contractors for its road work and gravel supply. In Knott county, a contract was let last year before the winter weather to Adams Construction Company to deliver gravel to four sections of the county—Salt Lick, Quicksand, Lotts Creek and Yellow Creek. Despite the availability of the money and the letting of the contract, the residents of these communities are still waiting for that gravel. In Quicksand, Lotts Creek and Salt Lick, it was not possible to deliver the mail for much of the winter and residents have often been unable to leave their community without a four-wheel drive vehicle. The contractor involved has ignored the pressures and requests of everyone from myself to the Governor's office and has attempted to have the contracts cancelled. Meanwhile, people are suffering because the state maintenance operation does not have a competitive market situation with regard to road contracting and the supplying of gravels.

"Even though, with the help of the Governor, we were able in this last legislative session to secure substantially more severance tax money for use on our roads, people in my area are impatient. They want to know what's happening to the money we already have? Why can't we develop a state maintenance system that works? What can the legislature do to improve the quality of life in this regard?"

"I would like to be involved in the investigation of these problems and I think it should be handled by a legislative committee or sub-committee, with broad subpoena powers. I would recommend that the State Government Committee address this problem and would appreciate your bringing this to the attention of that committee chairman as soon as he is selected in June."

"I want to state categorically that the state maintenance system is not getting the job done in Eastern Kentucky. The problem will not be solved by substituting a new face for an old one. I happen to think that we have a competent district engineer who is handcuffed by the overall deficiencies of the program. We must do better, all of us. The people will not stand for less."

Development Clubs Honored For Community Contributions

Community pride, ambition and hard work were recognized Saturday night at the fifth annual Floyd County Community Development Awards Banquet held at the Prestonsburg high school cafeteria.

Dorothy Clark, president of the Floyd County Community Development committee, served as master of ceremonies for the occasion which featured the presentation of various awards for achievement in the field of community development in the county.

Speaking at the banquet was Charles H. Wharton, president of the Prestonsburg-Floyd County Area Chamber of Commerce. Wharton recognized the county's various clubs, presented plaques to winners in several categories of competition, and stressed the importance of an active community development program in maintaining the prosperity and well-being of the county as a whole.

Certificates of Recognition were presented to the following development club presidents: Ashland "Hawk" Howard, David; Otelia Smiley, Prestonsburg; Elmer Ferguson, Wheelwright; Clinton Akers, Prater Creek; Erman Ratliff, Stanville; Peggy Bradford, Weeksbury; James R. Shepherd, Abbott Creek, and Walter Spears, Endicott. The certificates were presented by County Extension Agent John E. Sparks. Achievement certificates were also presented to Elbert Gibson, Felmon Blackmon and Polk Hill for their service to N.E.K.R.C.D.A.

Winner for the first time in the Rural Farm category was Endicott, beating out Abbott Creek which won the award for the past three years. The honor was particularly satisfying for the Endicott community since it is the newest development club in the county, organized last August. Among Endicott's achievements over the past year are the following: erection of school speed signs and basketball goals, levelling of playground, painting interior of school, sponsoring of four community weiner roasts, installation of gas heaters in school to replace old style pot-bellied stove, fund-raising totalling $300, trash collection from Cow Creek hill, work on acquiring guardrails near school, work with Board of Education funds to purchase trailer to cook hot meals for school children.

Weeksbury, consistently one of the more active clubs in the county, was awarded the first place prize in the Rural Non-Farm category. The Prater Creek club won second place.

Listed among Weeksbury's achievements were the following: Presenting Christmas gifts to 350 children, sending 135 young people to 4-H day camp, holding school picnic at community park for 336 children, work with the Southeast Floyd County Volunteer Fire Department, aid in organizing new development club at Endicott, sponsoring of trip to Mammoth Cave for disadvantaged, preparing Christmas baskets for Weeksbury senior citizens, establishing ceramics and exercise classes, starting of series of gospel sings, holding Sunday School at Community Center, six-day summer carnival held to raise money, participation in garden program conducted by the Extension Service, sponsoring of pesticide meeting, and forming plans to build community chapel.

The David Community Development Club, a consistent winner in the competition, won first place in the Village competition, with Wheelwright placing second. Over the past year the David club has acquired a new water system from the Beaver-Elkhorn water district, received grants for a new sewerage system, held groundbreaking for model hillside home to be accessible to water and sewer, worked with other communities in trying to obtain fire truck to serve David and surrounding area, sent out newsletter, "Voice of David," started beautification program, maintained active crafts program for local women, sponsored adult education classes, held Spring "bust out" music festival, conducted community cleanup, held Christmas play.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of Frank Price, who departed this life June 6, 1970: The Golden Gate stood open Eight years ago today With farewells left unspoken You suffered much in silence Your spirit did not bend You faced your pain with courage Until the very end. God knows how much we miss you Never shall your memory fade Loving thoughts shall ever wander To the spot where you are laid. We bless the years we had with you And leave the rest to God. —Sadly missed by Wife, Children and Grandchildren. 11.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of Thermal Jackson Prater. Known as "T. J." who left us January 31, 1978 for a better place.

High on top of a lonely hill, A silent grave in death so still, It's only a grave that needs our care, Because our loved one is buried there. Death was sudden, the shock so severe, We had to give up one so dear, The pain of parting without a goodbye, We will remember until we die. He was only 20 when God called him away, We will never forget that sad day, We will never forget him, now that he's gone And his memory will live with us from now on.

Sadly missed by Kathy, Shane, Geraldine, Adam, Robert, Kathy, Dwayne and his friends and family. 11-pd.

Life of Child Saved As Luck Plays Part

Eleven-year-old Penny Roberts owes her life to a set of fortuitous circumstances.

While she was playing tag with other girls in the pool of the war memorial fountain at Archer Park, around 7 o'clock last Thursday evening she apparently tripped over a wire to the lighting which partially pulled free.

In the fall her head struck the electric box in the pool. Unconscious, she was drowning. But girls with whom she had been playing called for help -- and then circumstances turned in her favor:

1. When a would-be rescuer attempted to reach her, he was knocked back by the electric charge in the water, but Kenneth "Butch" Smith, of the Scott Gross Company, which installed the fountain, happened to be at hand, and he knew where the electric breaker was located and cut off the current.

2. Playing on a nearby softball field was the Turner-Elkhorn Mining Company team, most of whose members were trained in first-aid and mine rescue techniques.

3. The girl showed no evidence of breathing, and had turned blue, spectators said. But at hand was Terry Mullins, an X-ray technician, who administered mouth-to-mouth resuscitation. Within a matter of minutes she was revived.

The victim was taken to Highlands Medical Center, and from there to a Lexington hospital. After a night there she was released to return to the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Roberts, of the Goble-Roberts Addition here.

Shaken by the near-tragedy, Susan Johnson, park manager, said the fountain will either be filled and planted to grass and flowers, or a fence will be built around it to prevent the possibility of such a mishap in the future.

Flood-Damaged Chevy Presented To Mayo State Vocational School

Some of the Chevrolet cars and trucks now turning out the most impressive "mileage" are those that have never been driven a mile on the road, such as the Chevrolet Caprice Classic recently donated to the Mayo State Vocational-Technical School in Paintsville.

These vehicles total nearly 2,000 cars and trucks damaged by wrecks, floods, and other mishaps on the way to dealer showrooms which have been given to schools and other institutions to help build automotive mechanical careers for young men.

Also included in the program are engineering test and pilot line cars, not available for sale.

At latest count, after five years of the Chevrolet donation program, damaged cars and trucks and test cars had been turned over to schools and institutions in most of the 50 states, according to R. D. Good, Chevrolet's national director of service operations.

In addition, Chevrolet also has donated large numbers of car and truck engines, transmissions and other major automotive components to schools for vocational studies.

The donation program was begun in 1971, Good said, in an effort to find a more useful purpose for the damaged units which previously wound up in the scrap crusher.

To make sure the vehicles are never operated again, schools receiving them must sign an affidavit that they will not be driven. Donation tags are fastened to the vehicles and their identification numbers are removed by Chevrolet. Institutions receiving them must be non-profit organizations.

The damaged vehicles become available through Chevrolet's 44 zone sales offices across the nation whenever an accident occurs causing damage to units being shipped. The zone service staffs keep lists of requests for such vehicles. When they become available, schools are notified. Schools are required to truck the vehicles away themselves.

More about Drugs

By WILMAY

You wonder what is wrong when your child acts or talks strangely, to discover that he and a buddy have been sniffing glue, because their pals experimented. Most children are inquisitive. A Louisville pre-schooler overheard remarks about asphyxiation, locked himself in the bath to see how long he could stand the gas. His dad missed him and applied an ancient method to end such curiosity. An outstanding nurse in Eastern Kentucky noticed her youngster was behaving peculiarly while taking cough syrup, which proved to be the culprit.

Many are unaware that various cough preparations, especially codeine, may produce drastic aberrations in some. We learned the hard way. In 1967 I had pneumonia. It and the cough were unabated by massive daily shots of antibiotics. Doctor phoned in an order for cough syrup, since coughing once continued months after a second attack of pneumonia. Directions said take it every four hours, day and night. About the third or fourth day my daughter thought I made an odd remark but paid little attention. That night things were vague, and the old noggin' went full blast the next night. That was before the law required drug names on labels. A copy of the prescription showed it was tricodeine or triple strength, which gave me a never-to-be-forgotten high! Fortunately, reactions and conversation—though totally out of character—were pleasant, happy, and amusing, no violence or tantrums, as often happens. An interesting sidelight was the assumption that persons on TV were speaking directly to me. In reply I used felt markers to write in giant-sized letters on a large sheet of cardboard, which was held up to let fellow "conversants" on the screen read some! Without protest, a loving husband and daughter smiled graciously over such foolishness.

Low tolerance of drugs is not uncommon. A friend in Martin undergoes the same thing. One cousin in Texas wrote to describe her two-week "trip" from some drug for Parkinson. Another friend in Mississippi, with an incurable malady, in whose home Stanley and Jane Combs have visited, was badly unbalanced for weeks this spring until her doctor finally tracked down a new drug as the causative. Suffering with excruciating pain, an acquaintance was hospitalized and sedated, to become unstable for days. A fifth ill friend under continuous treatment in a distant state became hostile and unruly most unexpectedly. Disorientation increased, interspersed by uncontrollable conduct, utterly foreign to the patient. A specialist suspected one drug, which was discontinued. Soon she was her normal self again. The wee granddaughter of a doctor in Virginia, about 1960, tagged along as he sprayed shrubs etc., ate dinner, went into a coma, took two days to determine the real cause, first thought to be food! It was the spray she had inhaled!

Chances are that only one in hundreds will have adverse effects from drugs. What cures many can endanger the life of another. An eminent doctor has a patient who went to pieces on an ordinary, oft-used drug. Medication taken over a long period may suddenly cause tragic reactions in an occasional patient.

Due to a lifelong chronic condition, I am highly allergic to several drugs, also to vitamins, which recently produced a severe case of hives. Since I get "off" easily, the week before major surgery in 1969, we visited the hospital to discuss this probability with the head nurse and the superintendent of nurses, both of whom were most understanding. They had patients there then with the same difficulty. Like my surgeon, they said narcotics would be needed for four days following the double major surgery. Our surgeon agreed to patient's right of refusal if the pain was not unbearable. Prayers of friends prevailed. After 24 hours nothing was taken. The last shot could have been omitted but my special nurse insisted upon it. Pain was not intolerable, and preferable to the helpless feeling that accompanies loss of bearings. Floor nurses had been told to keep one eye on the old lady. One day after the family had returned home, I approached the desk, asking to be wheeled to the chapel. The nurse stared at me, turned to look questioningly at another. Reading their thoughts, I reassured them of being "on" and not "off!" One wheeled me to the chapel, whose visit was to see if they had a painting of Christ there. None was found, so we donated one soon afterwards. Hospital staffs are grand to cooperate when told that a patient has drug allergies.

Marijuana, amphetamines, barbiturates, plus some propellant gases may cause confusion, hallucinations, irritability, loss of memory, et cetera. Pam—a kitchen spray used to prevent food sticking—if inhaled, can be fatal, according to its label. Prolonged use of some drugs: tranquilizers, sleeping pills, etc., may abruptly create problems for some people. A word to the wise should help all of us. The purpose of this article and far superior ones by others, is not to alarm, or to produce fear, but to urge that unusual behavior be reported immediately to medical personnel, that fine print directions on sprays, dusts, and such be read and followed carefully, that parents who fear a child is indulging or experimenting get help at once, before matters grow worse, and that anything likely to be dangerous be kept well out of the reach of children, who are not only disobedient sometimes but forgetful as well! The medical profession and others are striving to acquaint all of us with the hazards mentioned.

Environmental Work Involving Elderly

A three-month backlog of bacteriological reports has been brought up to current status by older Americans hired by the Kentucky Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection under the Senior Environmental Employment Program (SEE).

Now the Division of Sanitary Engineering can process 2,000 reports a month with the help of a retired IBM engineer who prepares the reports for computer input. The older workers have also up-dated the files on public water supply construction plans and mailing lists of certified water supply operators.

The demands for more control and accountability mandated by the Safe Drinking Water Act have increased the needs for monitoring water quality. SEE workers have been collecting water samples for testing and by half way through the first year had inspected 46 waste water and sewage treatment facilities.

Also working as inspectors are older Americans in the Pesticide Division. During a market inspection of 75 retail outlets in three counties, they found 173 unregistered products for sale. During the past three months they have been surveying 200 businesses to ensure the licensing of pest control operators.

And six SEE workers have been traveling throughout the state, making a complete inventory of all existing solid waste disposal sites which can be classified as open dumps under the Resource Conservation and Recovery Act, verifying the status of closed dumps and checking courthouse records for dump ownership. The information collected by the older workers will provide the data base required for eligibility of the state for funds and technical assistance available through the Act.

Floyd County Health Notes

By DONNA J. GRIFFITH
Health Educator

The best way to prevent needless blindness from glaucoma is to be tested for the disease. The Floyd County Health Department will be doing glaucoma screening, free of charge, Friday, June 9, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. If higher than normal pressure is found in your eyes, you will be referred to an eye physician who can give you further tests, diagnose, and treat the problem.

The health department recommends a glaucoma check-up every two years for all persons 35 and older.

The Floyd County Health Department will be conducting a pap smear clinic Thursday, June 8, from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Community health nurses remind all women that a pap smear is not just a one-in-a-lifetime event, that the possibility of cervical cancer continues throughout life and that having a pap smear, at least once a year, is the best way to protect yourself.

The mute swan is so-called because it is said never to use its voice in captivity.

Observe Golden Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Butler, of Printer, observed their 50th wedding anniversary Tuesday, May 30.

They are the parents of seven children, Louise Wallen, of Prestonsburg, Jerry, of Gahanna, Ohio, Robert Glenn, of Tampa, Fla., George Richard, of Westerville, Ohio, Peggy Martin, of Columbus, Ohio, Barbara Bevin, of Roseville, Mich., and Phillip David, of Printer. They have 14 grandchildren and three great-grandchildren. Several relatives visited them during the day.

THE NATIONAL SAFE BOATING WEEK Committee advises you to use your head, and they mean the one on your shoulders, when you're out on the water. Know the rules of the road and practice them.

Ornamentals

If female hollies don't set fruit, spray with a fruit-setting hormone available at a garden store.

Contact your University of Kentucky County Extension Agent for the most recent controls for ornamental insect and disease problems. You should watch out for bagworms, leaf miners, scales, mites, webworms, sawflies, slugs, weevils, leaf rollers or tiers, beetles, borers, bugs, caterpillars, grasshoppers, leafhoppers, crabapple scab, cedar-hawthorn rust, Dutch elm disease, fireblight, and black spot of rose.

House plants can be moved outside where they can have some shade and be protected from the wind.

Pinch chrysanthemums and keep annuals and perennials from going to seed by cutting off dead blossoms.

Cuttings can be taken from hardy carnations, moss-pink, rock-crest and varieties of candy-tuft that cannot be grown from seed.

Plants should be watched closely for the first sign of wilting. When watering, drench the ground rather than making several light waterings.

Prune yew bushes about mid-month.

Mulching is important in the summer to keep as much moisture as possible close to the plants.

Lawns

If needed, water lawn so the soil is wet 4-6 inches down. Light, frequent waterings stimulate crabgrass and should be avoided.

Check for sod webworm activity in lawns and spray if necessary.

Mow bermudagrass and zoysiagrass lawns 1/2-1 inch high, but mow bluegrass and fescue 2 1/2-3 inches high.

Vegetables

Plant seeds of broccoli, brussels sprouts, cabbage and cauliflower for fall transplants.

As vegetables begin to set fruit, sidedress fertilize with ammonium nitrate (33-0-0). Do not fertilize sweet potatoes, watermelons, carrots, beets, turnips or parsnips with high nitrogen. It will cause heavy leaf production and small fruits.

Control insects and diseases according to your University of Kentucky County Extension Agent's recommendations.

Fruits

Rejuvenate strawberry beds immediately after the last fruit has been harvested. This includes clipping the rows to 24 inches wide, and cutting off the plants at the crown if leaf spot or mites are present. Fertilize with a complete fertilizer (5-10-10 or 6-12-12) immediately after harvest and water heavily.

Prune brambles—top black and purple raspberries and erect blackberries at 2-3 feet. Remove and burn old canes that have fruited immediately after the last fruit is harvested.

Contact your University of Kentucky County Extension Agent for the most recent controls for fruit insects and diseases.

The third spray for the lesser peach tree borer should be about mid-month.

Outdoor Lore

By NEVYLE SHACKELFORD
(UK College of Agriculture)

A knowledge of the flora of a region always adds to any field or woodland trip. There is a certain satisfaction in being able to identify plants and shrubs that are seen and then, too, a hiker might walk into a patch of ginseng or golden seal that can be sold for big money.

One of the more interesting plants to look for is Solomon's Seal. A member of the lily family, this wild plant comes in several varieties and is to be found in open woodlands over most of eastern United States. All varieties are similar in leaf and root, but different in fruit and flower. It is an herb that has been used for centuries as medicine and it gets its name from a scar left on the root by last year's stem.

This scar, through the use of the imagination, resembles the seal of the mystic seal of Solomon which consists of two interlaced triangles, symbolic of the union of the body and soul.

A lot of superstition surrounds that attractive perennial. Colonists of Virginia discovered Indians using its roots both as a charm and as a medicine. A piece of the dried root carried in the pocket, according to Appalachian folklore, will do everything from warding off an evil spirit called "hibium" to conferring the gift of writing good poetry. A variety of Solomon's Seal was also used in England. Handed down from the early 17th century is this recipe which all women should cherish. Whether the North American variety will serve the same purpose, I do not know but the old English recipe is as follows:

"The root of Solomon's Seal stamped when it is fresh and green, and applied, taketh away in one night, or two at most, any bruise, black or blew, gotten by falls of woman's willfulness in stumbling upon their hasty husband's fists, or such like."

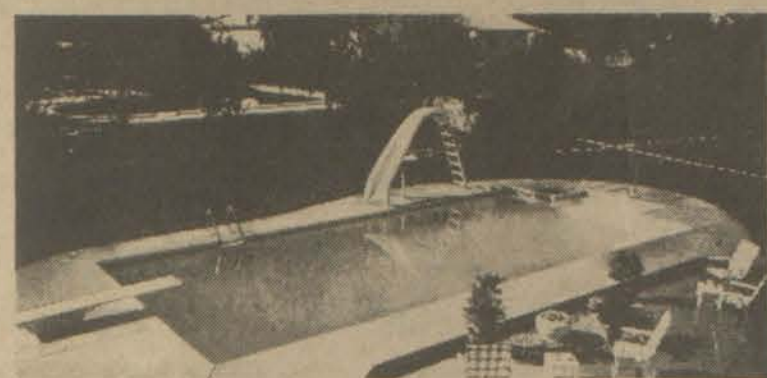

Two kinds of Solomon's Seal grow in Kentucky woodlands. The true variety is less abundant and has greenish bell-shaped flowers arranged up and down a slender stalk. In autumn these flowers ripen into plump black or blue berries, pretty to look at but not good to eat.

The false variety has small starchy, white flowers arranged in a terminal cluster. These flowers ripen into pods of beautiful bronze berries which are also inedible. The flowers, however, do have a delightful fragrance. The leaves of both herbs are alternate, lanceolate, smooth and glossy green. Both bloom from May to the last of June.

Solomon's Seal may not possess the mystic and medicinal virtues once ascribed to it, but it is an interesting herb that adds to the wonders of the outdoors.

THE COST OF medical care for arthritis sufferers in the U.S. is more than $2.5 billion a year.

Solar Energy: What's In It For You?

Heat from the sun is free, but the equipment you need for using it isn't, and a lot of people are still in the dark about what's practical and what isn't. These questions and answers may help shed a little light.

Q. Can I heat my whole house from the sun?

A. Solar energy for whole-house heating is still in its infancy. Systems are available but they require a big investment. The equipment needed for widespread practical use is still a few years from the road.

Q. Why should I heat just the water in my house?

A. Solar water heating systems can be a practical way to save on fuel and fuel costs and these systems are available now.

Q. What hardware do I need?

A. Solar collectors (sky-light-like panels mounted on your roof or on a small platform beside the house) to absorb the sun's rays. At the proper angle, panels can even go on the side of the house, or on an outbuilding, as long as they face due south. You also need a medium for transferring the heat, a storage tank, interconnecting pipe and, in most cases an auxiliary heater. You can get equipment, including collector panels of aluminum that put a lot less strain on a roof because they weigh 67 pounds each, instead of 200 for the Sun Set Solar Heating System made by the Rheem and Ruud divisions of City Investing. It works on a "cascade principle" of heat exchange, which transfers maximum heat into the solar storage tank by diffusing solar-heated fluid over the entire surface of the tank. During operation, the system requires only two gallons of transfer fluid—water plus a corrosion inhibitor—instead of anti-freeze.

Q. How do most solar water heaters work?

A. Essential to any system is the collector, a glass- or plastic-covered shallow box with an absorber plate of aluminum, copper or steel. As the sun's rays heat the absorber plate, liquid is pumped through the panel, absorbs the heat and carries it to your storage tank.

Q. Can I really save money with a solar water heater?

A. Yes, but even if you couldn't, solar heat makes ecological sense. Happily, it also makes economic sense. A good solar water heater costs about $1,600 plus installation, fits into your existing system and provides 50 to 80 percent of the hot water needs of an average family.

'Junk Food'
Ban Is Issue

If a proposed U.S. Department of Agriculture regulation goes into effect, Kentucky schoolchildren will not be permitted to purchase candy, soft drinks, frozen desserts or chewing gum until after the last lunch period of the day.

Recently enacted public law gave the USDA power to regulate sales of such items and the agency has given state authorities until June 9 to respond to the so-called "junk food" issue.

State school food authorities currently recommend that candy and the like not be for sale until after all pupils have had lunch, according to Cooper Whitt, unit director for finance in the state department of education's division of school food services. However, Whitt said the recommendation will not have the force of law unless the proposed federal regulation is adopted.

The purpose of the proposal is to prohibit the sale of foods which are believed to have contributed to a decline in the consumption of nutritious foods in schools and to have reduced participation in the school lunch and breakfast programs.

Comments on the proposal or questions concerning the issue are invited and should be sent by June 9 to Margaret Glavin, acting director of the School Programs Division, Food and Nutrition Service, USDA, Washington, D.C. 20250

Gigantic Ripoff?

Law 95-216 Cause
Of Retirees' Ire

Cause of much consternation among retired persons, Public Law 95-216 continues to be a subject of much correspondence to lawmakers in Washington, and has, at least in one instance, been described "as a gigantic rip-off".

The law contains an offset provision under which social security benefits to spouses or surviving spouses will be reduced dollar for dollar by the amount of any public pension or retirement benefit available to that spouse. This includes such pensions and benefits as veterans', teachers' or any derived from employment by federal, state, or local government which is not covered by social security law.

An explanation from the House Committee on Ways and Means states, "The pension is a simple dollar for dollar offset. One dollar of social security spouses benefits will be offset for each dollar of noncovered public employment pension. The entire social security benefit would be eliminated where the public pension equals or exceeds the dependency benefit amount."

A "for instance" would be in the case of a retired teacher who is paid a pension (Teachers' Retirement) which is not covered by social security. At the same time, the retired teacher may be paid survivors part of social security which the deceased spouse had paid into. Under Public Law 95-216 for each dollar paid from the teachers' retirement pension, a dollar would be subtracted from that paid from the social security benefits, and the surviving spouse could wind up getting no social security benefits whatever.

Many retired persons who are feeling the pinch of galloping inflation and spiraling prices have expressed the opinion that the lawmakers' timing is somewhat short of perfection.

This law will apply to applications for such benefits filed during and after December 1977, the month of the law's enactment with the following exception:

The individual is receiving or will be eligible to receive a public pension within five years of enactment of the law, and that individual would be eligible for the social security spouses or surviving spouses' benefits as provided by law in effect in January 1977. Both of these tests must be met in order to qualify for the exception from the general offset rule.

Although teachers have perhaps been most vocal, at least locally, in their protest of law 95-216, there are many other groups and individuals retiring after December 1982 who will be affected by this law.

1979 Speaking Contest
Announced by Boy Scouts

Boy Scouts or Explorers who enter the 1979 Reader's Digest Association-Boy Scouts of America public speaking contest will talk about some phase of their experience in the Scout or Exploring programs.

Local winners compete in area and regional contests, and the national finalists—six Scouts and six Explorers—travel to the BSA's national office in North Brunswick, N. J., and Washington, D.C., for the national competition and participation in the annual BSA Report to the Nation ceremonies in February.

Winners in the Lonesome Pine Council will be awarded trophies, and all participants will receive certificates. The national winners will receive $2,000 scholarships, and 10 other scholarships of varying amounts will be awarded to the other finalists by the Reader's Digest Association which co-sponsors the contest with the Boy Scouts of America.

A deadline of June 30 has been set for unit winners to be selected.

OUTDOOR LORE

by Neville Shackelford

UNIVERSITY OF KENTUCKY • COLLEGE OF AGRICULTURE

Jarred L. Schwartz was his name, but behind his back his neighbors called him "Old Jarhead." He was as much a part of the outdoors as the groundhog and ring-railed coon and possessed many of the characteristics and proclivities of both. For instance, as both these varmints often do, he would raid neighboring gardens and on occasion an apple tree chicken roost.

When I knew Old Jarhead he lived in a makeshift log hut deep in the woods. My grandfather permitted him to build the hut on a far-off corner of his 700-acre mountain farm. Old Jarhead lived mostly off the land, supplementing his diet from neighborhood truck patches.

It was rumored he also made moonshine on the side. Not having any of the necessary ingredients himself for brewing this potent beverage, he made it on shares—that is, if some neighbor wanted a batch of "corn squeezings," the neighbor furnished the makings and Jarhead brewed the moonshine, dividing it according to previous agreement.

One could go on for pages describing the ways of this eccentric old deadbeat. It must be sufficient to say the main reason his neighbors put up with him was that he was a regular encyclopedia of arcane outdoor lore. With uncanny accuracy he could tell when it would rain and how much. He could predict a cold winter or dry summer. He knew every sign of the zodiac, every phase of the moon and what seeds to sow or things to do during each.

He knew when fish would bite, what wild herbs would cure ailments in man and beast. There seemed little, if anything, he didn't know about the natural world around him. His neighbors came to depend on him for all kinds of advice, but when they asked him how he came to know so many of nature's secrets, he would merely shrug his bony shoulders.

Once he told somebody he inherited all his knowledge from his ancestors, who, in the old country, were witch doctors.

Somewhere back in time, Jarhead had been married, claiming a boy named Jim as his son. Jim grew into a teenager wilder than a weed monkey, smart as a whip and resourceful as a razorback hog. One day, when he was about 16, Jim ran away.

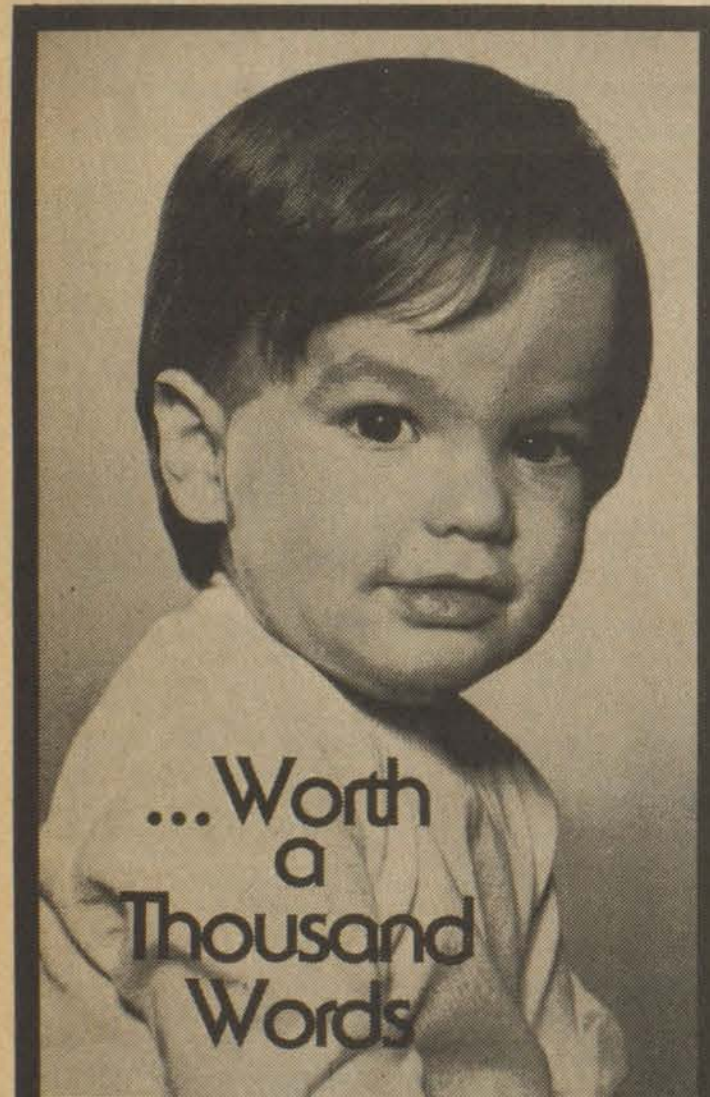

If his disappearance bothered his father, he never let it show. He would say, "Jim can take keer of hisself."

About 20 or so years after his disappearance, Jim showed up as a highly successful first class carpenter, making a fortune building homes and barns in Indiana. Jim took his father away to live the rest of his life in comparative luxury.

Today Jarred Ludwig Schwartz is little more than a legend and his background is still a mystery.

THE FIRST UNION of federal employees was formed by New York City letter carriers in 1863, according to "Labor Firsts in America," published by the U.S. Department of Labor.

THE VETERANS Administration estimates 1.4 million veterans and their survivors will receive educational payment benefits monthly under the GI Bill in FY 1979.

WOMEN'S LIB IN THE EARLY '20's

By MARYBELLE G. CAUDILL

Isaac McChord was a virtual outcast because of his disenchantment with his father, Jonathan's occupation. As proof of that, he was assigned such mundane tasks as sentinel or courier. Both occupations served him well.

They allowed him the freedom to mingle with those who owned books and to borrow or trade with them. As a sentinel, he could lie on his stomach and read to his heart's content. His first love was the love stories in the Bible. He read anything he could borrow, but the English Poets were his favorite literary material. He discovered that he could easily translate the poetry to prose and vice versa; however, at that point he didn't know how he would use it. His brilliant mind was saturated with all sorts of material and each piece cataloged for future reference. He'd been taught never to let anything go to waste.

By 1918, the railroad tracks were being extended into the far reaches of Paradise Valley, and Isaac helped lay and connect the tracks. When the last spike was driven, Isaac was called to Victorville, the nearest depot. He had impressed his supervisors and was given the engineer's apprenticeship on the first "Iron Horse" on her virgin run. The distance between his home and Victorville was some twenty miles; however, during the laying of the tracks he discovered some short cuts that would get him to his destination in less time. If he liked the job, he would move closer to the depot.

Now that he appeared to have permanent employment, he proposed marriage to Vera Malone, a lass who was the apple of his eye for sometime. And when the engineer, imported from the north, felt Isaac had sufficiently mastered the steam driven locomotive, he would return to his home and leave Isaac to train the next apprentice.

During the early years of their marriage, Vera was content to be the mountain housewife and cater to her husband's every whim. She even tolerated his reading habits that sometimes took precedence over her desires to learn more about his employment and the people he met, because she grew up in a more isolated area than he, if that were possible. Boredom set in and if she couldn't hear about the outside world from Isaac, she could learn about it, first hand. She used cloak and dagger tactics to keep her activities secret from Isaac.

One Monday morning, Vera was more than her jovial self, as she went about the task of getting Isaac off to work and getting her household chores done. She might not learn much but at least she would know the location of Victorville, come day's end. As soon as her work was finished, she picked up her lunch she had prepared while preparing Isaac's.

She quickly saddled "Old Bob," climbed aboard and rode at full gallop, some ten miles to the home of her brother, Silas. She demanded that he hitch up the team and drive her to Victorville. He couldn't understand such urgency, but he couldn't refuse his only sister. During the trip Silas was told to return to the overlook, adjacent to the depot, to pick her up in time to get her home to prepare Isaac's supper. He was also sworn to secrecy but he didn't reckon one such trip could hurt anything.

The following morning, she descended on Silas again, in the pre-dawn darkness. It became a ritual, because all Silas ever got accomplished was driving to and from Victorville. Then it dawned on him that she was smitten with jealousy and he advised that she go home and have a house full of young'uns, like everybody else.

"All in due time, little brother," she responded.

The days became weeks and she was turning his hair gray. His only recourse was to tell Isaac. Upon hearing the revelation, Isaac doubled up in laughter. That infuriated Silas and he demanded to know what was funny.

"So my sweet Vera is jealous, is she? That crazy woman knows I'd never love another woman the sun ever shined on, because I love her too much. Maybe I have just the cure, but I'll need your help. We should know if the treatment works, in a very short time," Isaac remarked.

Isaac said nothing and Vera's "secret" vigil continued. Silas was accommodating Isaac until his plans could be executed. It was taxing his strength, however.

Isaac's reading wasn't for naught. The first phase of the operation was to contact the local postmistress to inform her not to deliver any of his mail to anyone but himself. Shortly, it appeared that she was keeping the postoffice open only for Isaac's accommodation because the bulk of the mail was addressed to him. The letters, she noticed, bore postmarks from nearby offices in Paradise Valley and each was addressed by Isaac. Nobody else in the valley had such beautiful handwriting as the entire McChord family.

One day he broke his code of silence, revealed his scheme, and displayed one of his latest letters for the postmistress' examination. It was a "love letter" based on English Poetry that he loved so well; however, it was signed by an "unknown" lady.

At home, Isaac nonchalantly left the letters where they would certainly be discovered and read by Vera. The poetry was converted to prose and a few paragraphs of endearment were added to each letter. Vera wasn't acquainted with any of the "ladies" and was smitten with jealousy to the extent that she didn't take time to look at the writing. Surely, a glance and a little thought would have identified the "lady". All she could see was, "My dearest Isaac, 'How do I love thee, let me count the ways' etc. She paid little attention to the first ones, but when they increased in number and passion, she made some plans of her own.

The trips to Victorville ceased, Silas and Isaac had a good laugh and the incident was forgotten. In the meantime, Isaac spoke of his impending promotion to engineer and the opening for an apprentice.

Suddenly, Vera developed a sore throat that wouldn't respond to treatment. She used generous amounts of honey and sulphur, sulphur and lard, laced with a sweetener and gave the lining of her throat a generous brushing with a toothbrush. Any acceptable medication given to her was quickly expectorated into the nearest trash can or the bedclothing, if nothing else was handy. During her self-imposed illness, she mastered the art of imitating any masculine voice she heard. She became so good at imitation that masculine clothing and a brief conversation with the chief engineer secured the position for her.

Come Monday morning and Vera was practicing the art of imitation when Isaac left home. She also left, the moment he was out of sight and so arrived in Victorville ahead of him. She had donned striped coveralls and cap and had a red bandana tied around her neck. When Isaac arrived to begin his first run as a full-fledged engineer, his boss introduced him to his new apprentice, Mr. Vern Malone.

He wasn't surprised by her presence, but was in a complete state of shock to learn that his apprentice was the lady he intended to outsmart. The chief engineer went through the formalities of introduction and showing "Mr. Malone" how to operate certain gauges, etc., that was a part of "his" new duties.

Isaac's ego was shattered to the extent that he couldn't divulge the fact that his apprentice was really his wife.

For a decade, Vera (Vern) Malone did her (his) job to perfection, with no one the wiser. Her only absence from that employment was to give birth to four healthy sons. Since Isaac knew when he'd been outsmarted, they paid her mother to care for their sons.

Following their tenure with the mountain railroad, they took Horace Greeley's advice and went west. They worked for a western railroad until their retirement, reared their sons to manhood, and she continued to work but she once again became Mrs. Isaac (Vera) McChord.

Vera passed away a few months ago. She was a very happy lady because she was an active participant in everything that meant most to her: Religion, family, employment, and the knowledge that she was surely one of Appalachia's first "women's libbers".

The saddest part of the entire episode was that she passed away just a few months short of sharing a Golden Wedding anniversary with the husband who wrote "love letters" to himself.

Spotted Fever Confirmed, Spraying for Ticks Begun

HARLAN, Ky. — A second confirmed case of Rocky Mountain spotted fever was reported in the state last week, prompting state agriculture officials to step up spraying plans for ticks in Kentucky.

Harlan county health officials confirmed that a suspected case of the disease had turned up positive, marking the second confirmed case of Rocky Mountain spotted fever reported in Kentucky in May.

The other case confirmed earlier in the month was in Lee county.

More confirmed cases could be forthcoming during the next several weeks, according to Kentucky Agriculture Commissioner Tom Harris.

"Our fear is that because there are so many more ticks than most health officials can ever recall seeing, that we are going to get some more confirmed cases of the disease," Harris said in an interview.

Health departments in about a half dozen other counties, mostly in Western Kentucky, have suspected cases of the disease. But Harris said the cases have only been confirmed in Lee and Harlan counties.

To combat the spread of the disease, which last year claimed two lives in Western Kentucky but has not resulted in any deaths this year, the state has leased two private commercial aircraft to spray Melathon, a chemical used to control ticks and mosquitoes.

The planes were used in the Fulton area and in Hickman county last week. Spraying efforts were also planned for Magoffin county last Tuesday.

"We felt that we needed more intensive effort and a wider coverage area to control the ticks," Harris explained. "Actually, we are spraying for mosquitoes as well, but the same chemical is used to retard the movement of both insects."

Because of the problems with the ticks, the state has actually fallen behind in its annual spraying of mosquitoes.

However, Harris said with the extra aircraft, the state should be able to make up for the lost time due to the war with the ticks.

"We think these planes can cover up to 9,000 acres a day, and with the state plane we already have in service that was fixed up during the winter, we think we have enough to help control the spread of the disease," Harris said.

Hill Among Auburn Faculty Honored

Most of the spraying will be concentrated in Western Kentucky, despite the report of the confirmed case of Rocky Mountain Spotted Fever in the southeastern part of the state.

Harris said southeastern and Central Kentucky do not normally have as much trouble with mosquitoes as do the Western Kentucky river counties, so the initial spraying effort will remain concentrated in the western third of the Commonwealth.

"Nobody really knows why we have so many ticks or why the problem is so widespread this year," Harris said. "We do know it is a potentially dangerous situation with the disease apparently spreading to another side of the state."

Mosquitoes also carry a potentially dangerous type of encephalitis which caused problems for Kentucky two years ago.

Coburn Gayle, director of the division of noxious weed and pest control, said the type of insect that carries the so-called "St. Louis" strain of that disease was not expected to enter the state this year.

Q. How often are lumps in the breast malignant? Is a fibroadenoma benign or malignant (cancer)?

A. Contrary to common belief, most lumps or lesions in the breast are benign (not cancerous). The family physician who first examines the patient with a breast lump will encounter a benign condition approximately 90 percent of the time. A fibroadenoma is one of several non-cancerous conditions which are composed of both fibrous and glandular tissues. They rarely present a diagnostic problem because of their characteristic firm, solid, round feel to the touch. The tumors are freely movable within the breast, are surrounded by a sharply outlined border, and are not tender. A microscopic examination of the lump is needed for a definite diagnosis. Treatment for fibroadenoma is surgical removal. The operation takes only a short time to perform and the patient can leave the hospital within one to three days after surgery.

Q. Is surgery the best form of treatment for colo-rectal cancer?

A. Surgery is the preferred form of treatment for this type of cancer. The surgical operation consists of removing the part of the bowel containing the tumor along with contiguous segments on both sides. The lymph nodes that drain the area are also removed because the lymph system is one of the main routes for metastasis or spreading of the disease.

Effective, June 17

Kentucky motorists may find the new left turn on red law a bit confusing at first, but the state Department of Transportation expects that it will relieve traffic congestion at numerous urban area intersections.

The 1978 Kentucky General Assembly called for June 17 as the first day when drivers will begin turning left on red from one-way streets onto other one-way streets.

According to Transportation Secretary Calvin Grayson, the new law is expected to "greatly improve the flow of traffic, especially in heavily congested cities with one-way traffic patterns."

Highway Safety Coordinator Bennie Maffet explained that drivers who use the new access to one-way streets must do so from the far left lane. The following steps must then be followed to insure a safe and legal turn: --Signal for a left turn. --Check to the right for approaching vehicles. --Look both ways for pedestrians crossing the intersection. --Turn only into the lane nearest the left curb and only when the way is clear.

Maffet also cautioned motorists to keep an eye out for "no turn on red" signs. "These will be posted at intersections where sight is restricted or where pedestrian traffic is heavy," he said.

Maffet emphasized that any left turns on red before June 17 are against the law.

When the operation involves extensive surgery of the rectum, a temporary or permanent opening called a colostomy can be made in the abdominal wall to permit elimination of body wastes. Bowel function is not irreversibly impaired by this operation, and after adjusting to some inconvenience, the patient with a colostomy can lead an otherwise normal, active life.

Q. How does one find out if a young woman or girl has been exposed to DES-type drugs?

A. Diethylstilbestrol or DES is a manmade hormone. During the 1940's and 1950's, most physicians prescribed DES or DES-type drugs to women who had complications during pregnancy. In 1971, physicians found a link between DES and cancer of the female reproductive organs of young women whose mothers had taken this hormone. Since then, while very few DES exposed daughters have developed cancer, other abnormalities have been found. If exposure to DES-type drugs may have occurred before birth, it should be verified from medical records. Many mothers say, "I took something during pregnancy, but I don't remember what it was". If a mother remembers taking a medication, especially to prevent miscarriage, or to treat complications from diabetes, it is possible that DES-type drugs may have been prescribed.

Records of the physician who cared for the mother during pregnancy are the best source of information. If these records are not available, it is possible that the hospital where the delivery took place can obtain this information. Young women whose mothers took DES should have a thorough medical examination of the reproductive organs.

Cox Announces

Cox is a University of Kentucky graduate. He worked for the state of Kentucky in the Departments of Finance, Agriculture, and Highways, and prior to his federal appointment had served as the vice-chairman of the Kentucky Public Service Commission. He is presently self-employed in the trucking industry.
