Development Group Works To Pinpoint Its Specific Goals

The executive committee of the Appalachian Development Council, a group formed in June by Gov. Carroll to plan continued economic growth in eastern Kentucky, met in Frankfort, last Thursday to work toward pinpointing specific goals.

In an earlier meeting, the council voted to split into five subcommittees, addressing the quality of life, including health, housing and environment; intergovernmental relations, coal severance tax and city-county tax structures; transportation; education; and enterprise development, including land development, economic diversification and industrial development.

Last week's meeting brought the subcommittee chairmen, who make up the executive committee, together to discuss how best to approach each of the five topics. Members in attendance included G.B. Johnson, chairman, Ashland; Phillip R. Dillon, Liberty; Rep. William Weinberg, D-Hindman; Dr. Morris Norfleet, Morehead State University president; Janie Douglas, Harlan and James C. Witten, Sr., Paintsville.

According to Ralph Coldiron, executive director of the council and executive director for community and regional development with the Kentucky Development Cabinet, "each subcommittee chairman will be calling his group together in the near future for working sessions." In other business, the council elected to bring in private interest groups such as bankers, farmers and coal miners for direct input into the councils decision making process as well as to utilize the expertise of individuals from all over the U.S. who have worked directly in area economic development.

Counties, Cities Not To Pay For Feeding State Prisoners

Gov. Julian Carroll said last week that the cost of feeding or "dieting" state prisoners accused of misdemeanors will no longer be deducted from net court revenue payments to cities and counties.

Fees of $4.75 per prisoner per day for dieting misdemeanor prisoners had been deducted from payments to many local governments after July 1 of this year. The 1978 session of the General Assembly authorized the deductions and provided no direct appropriation to do otherwise. A February letter from the Attorney General's office, in an informal opinion, advised that the deductions were legally permissible.

But in a formal opinion from the office of the Attorney General, issued August 22, the office reversed its earlier position and concluded that dieting fees should not be deducted.

Governor Carroll said that "because of the significant cost of not deducting dieting fee payments, I thought it best to consult with the Interim Appropriations and Revenue Committee on the intent of the legislature regarding the deduction of dieting fees."

"When the committee recommended compliance with the latest Attorney General's opinion," he said, "I directed the Department of Finance to stop deducting dieting fees and to refund any such fees previously deducted from base court revenues."

Letters have been sent from Finance Secretary Roy Stevens to all county judge-executives and mayors affected by the change, the governor said.

Some 298 cities and 16 counties will receive reimbursement for dieting fees previously deducted from their net court revenue payments.

This brings the total that local governments are receiving in net court revenues to about $5.4 million per year, as compared to $2 million originally included in the state budget.

DAMAGE FROM L.A. FIRES

LOS ANGELES — The estimate of damage in the two major brush fires that struck the Los Angeles area last week has risen to $71.4 million with 214 homes and 33 mobile homes destroyed.

Alex Cunningham, director of the state Office of Emergency Services in Sacramento, said that a request by Gov. Jerry Brown that President Carter declare the stricken hillsides a disaster area will include those figures.

The damage estimate for the 25,000-acre Malibu-Agoura fire and the 6,000-acre Mandeville Canyon blaze was broken down into $43.7 million in private property, $8.4 million in public facilities and $19.3 million for lost watershed.

JERUSALEM

Men have fought desperately to win and hold her. They have willingly died martyrs' deaths in her name.

"How shall we sing the Lord's song in a foreign land?" Cried the Jewish exiles of 2600 years ago. "If I forget you, o Jerusalem, let my right hand wither! Let my tongue cleave to the roof of my mouth if I do not remember you. If I do not set Jerusalem above my highest joy!" She is like a woman craved.

This is her legacy to the Jewish people. Whenever she flourishes, so too do the Jews—the only people who ever sanctified her as a spiritual and political capital.

At dusk, the hills and stone buildings of Jerusalem are bathed in a clear, orange light.

Our advice is to admit at the outset that you cannot take it all in during a brief visit. This way, you'll avoid a lot of frustration. There are men who have lived all their lives within her boundaries and who still stand transfixed before her.

Why not plan now to visit the land of Israel with us in the spring?

Pier 66's John Allen Executive of the Year

By ANN GENETT

(In The Ft. Lauderdale, Fla. News) Incredible as it may seem, there is only one John (Jack) Allen, president and general manager of Pier 66 Hotel and Marina.

Incredible, because to look at a run-down of Allen's daily and weekly activities is to assume it would take at least three men to carry them out.

But Allen, 62, and full of zest (he's in the office six days a week from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m. and on call 24 hours a day), takes it all in his stride.

An ex-military man, he believes it's just a matter of being organized, parceling one's time carefully—and being surrounded by good people on whom you can depend.

Perhaps it's this attitude toward his career in the hospitality business that contributed to Allen's recently being named Fort Lauderdale area Executive of the Year by the National Secretarial Association.

That attitude and a long string of civic activities like being president of the Greater Fort Lauderdale Restaurant Association, 1959; advisor on hotel curriculum for Broward Community College, 1960-65; president of the Fort Lauderdale Hotel Association, 1961-62 and president of the Greater Fort Lauderdale Chamber of Commerce in 1964.

That's only part of the list, since he's also the director of the Florida State Chamber of Commerce since 1965; BCC trustee since 1974; member of advisory board of Fort Lauderdale University since 1973; director of Ocean First National Bank since 1970; president of Fort Lauderdale Executives Association, 1977; member of the Fort Lauderdale Shrine Club and member of Trinity Lutheran Church since 1956.

Sitting in his meticulously appointed, but far from posh office overlooking the Pier 66 courtyard, Allen speaks warmly and with unfeigned humility about the coveted Best Executive award, the traveling statuette of which stands, Oscar-like, on his desk.

"I sat at that banquet and listened to the chairman read the essay and it didn't dawn on me that it was me they were talking about.

"Surprise is beyond how I felt, and I had no idea my secretary had nominated me."

Allen's secretary, Mildred Hooper, says she wouldn't have dreamed of not nominating him.

"After all," smiles the cheery and ultra-organized Miss Hooper, a certified professional secretary who's been with Pier 66 for 1 1/2 years, "Mr. Allen is a man who loves to get involved with the community."

"He's so outgoing, and he's done so much for tourism here...and the hospitality industry."

Miss Hooper explains all secretaries nominating their bosses were required to write short essays detailing why they believed their employers qualified as Executive of the Year.

No names or company names were used, to avoid unduly prejudicing the panel of local judges.

Sister Mercy, executive director of Holy Cross Hospital and a member of the judges' panel, says, "What impressed the judges the most was the fact that he has helped his organization—Pier 66—grow so much over the years.

"He's not only a very capable businessman, but he's so willing to give of his time to the community."

A longtime friend and Chamber of Commerce associate, Dr. Robert Helmholtz, says of Allen, "He's one of the finest, most honest business people in town."

"You can run out of good adjectives in trying to describe him. He's very talented and forthright, and I believe he has a very simpatico feeling toward his employees—a down-to-earth attitude."

Dr. Hugh Adams, president of Broward Community College, has this to say:

"I think Jack represents the finest in the hospitality industry. He's very able in his field, a constructive person—always pleasant, always competent. He's assisted the college many times by serving on various advisory committees."

Former Fort Lauderdale Mayor F. P. (Pete) Clements, characterizes his old friend as "a very generous individual who's contributed a lot toward making Fort Lauderdale the city it is today."

Associated since 1957 with Pier 66 ("when we were still an unknown restaurant and Phillips 66 service station"), Allen was named president and general manager in early 1977.

A native of Prestonsburg, Ky., Allen got into the restaurant business by going to school and working as a busboy at Berea College in Kentucky, which now specializes in hotel management.

After college, Allen worked for five years at the Gibson Hotel in Cincinnati in the purchasing and catering departments.

World War II interrupted his career, and Allen was sent to the South Pacific for 3 1/2 years in the bomb disposal division of the U.S. Army.

He says of this city, "I believe in Fort Lauderdale and always have. I don't think wild horses could get me out of here. I visited here in 1945, and again in 1951, and I saw then the great potential of this area."

He and his wife, Eva, have reared their family here. One of their children, James Kevin, still lives at home.

Their other two children are Mrs. Sam (Shirley Ann) Huskisson of Plantation, and another son, Jonathan, stationed in the U.S. Army in Tacoma, Washington.

Physically fit, Allen makes it a point to jog regularly and to play golf whenever possible. Fishing, too, is a favorite diversion.

But his real love is ballroom dancing, which he and Eva do, "at least once a week."

Allen says he and his wife particularly enjoy Latin American-style dancing, "No, we haven't won any dance contests yet," he grins, "but we're trying."

Plans for retirement? It's not in the cards anytime soon for Allen.

He's enjoying himself and his job—though it can be demanding at times—far too much to give it up.

Two Area Pianists Perform at WKU

Two piano students from this area participated in the annual three-day meeting of junior high, high school and college musicians held recently at Western Kentucky University. They are Carolyn Click, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Click, of Garret, who was among 50 pianists chosen to perform in the All-State Piano Ensemble, and Karen Frazier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Frazier, of Paintsville, who was one of six who qualified for the piano competition. Both Miss Click and Miss Frazier are students of Nancy Lyon.

Solo piano competition and the All-State Piano Ensemble were the first events of the three-day meeting during which students and teachers also heard recitals by Dr. Joseph Banowetz, of North Texas State University, and Sylvia Kersenbaum, of Argentina, presently a faculty member of Western.

Joseph Merlin, a musical instrument maker from Huy, Belgium, wore the first roller skates, in 1760, to a masquerade party in London. He sailed into the ballroom playing a violin.

Jockey Joseph Makes Saddle Comeback

(Excerpted from The Detroit Observer)
In midsummer of 1977, Tommy Joseph decided there had to be easier ways to earn a living than riding race horses, so he hung up his tack and took out a license as an assistant trainer.

Within a year, the native of Prestonsburg was back in silks riding thoroughbreds. He decided that his career as a thoroughbred trainer could wait a while. "It's a tough business," allowed the 29-year-old Joseph. "There's no easy way to make a living in horse racing, or maybe anything else these days."

Since his saddle comeback at Commodore Downs recently, Tommy has been doing well. "I rode 110 horses over there at Erie and won 11 races, and now this is my first winner here since I came back last week," he said, referring to his recent hard-earned victory astride Harry Henigman's homebred three-year-old Tudor Honeymoon.

"It's good to be back and get a chance to ride again for people like Harry. You know, by biggest winner was Ronbar, who won the Dowling Handicap here for Harry five years ago. I see where Ronbar ran for $3,200 a couple of weeks ago and won while I was still at Commodore."

When he quit riding in 1977, Joseph started out working with trainer Jim Orik, then wound up with John Foggiano at Hazel Park last spring, but Tommy soon found that it would be hard to put together the kind of a stable he needed to be successful without a lot more experience. "That's when I started to jog and condition myself to ride again," Joseph said. "I hadn't put on much weight—only six or seven pounds—so it was just a case of getting myself fit."

As a native Kentuckian, Tommy got pointed toward a jockey career early in his life. His uncle, Lee Cecil, used to ride, and he still gallops horses at the Kentucky tracks. Joseph broke in with Mark Leach, a former Detroit auto dealer who turned to thoroughbred breeding in Kentucky and he worked his way through the Kentucky and Ohio circuits before arriving in Detroit.

Joseph is the son of Raymond and Betty Joseph, of Prestonsburg.

WOODLAND FIRES scarred hillsides in various parts of Floyd county over the weekend with the greatest concentration in the Left Beaver section. Forestry officials hoped Tuesday's rain would reduce the number of blazes in the county and Eastern District as a whole. (See story elsewhere in this issue.)

Candidate Slone Hikes Through Floyd

Dr. Slone "on the road" during his walk through the county last week. When Harvey Slone walked through Floyd county last week, the Democratic candidate for Governor was well past the halfway point of his 1,000-mile walk through the Commonwealth which has become a primary part of his quest for the Democratic nomination. Apparently living up to his campaign slogan of being "in step with Kentucky's people," Dr. Slone has walked eight hours and 15 miles a day since he began the long trek in Fulton, August 19. Dr. Slone entered the county walking (and jogging) along Route 80 at Lackey, spent a night in Martin, and proceeded to Prestonsburg where a reception was held for the candidate Thursday.

May Ask Snow Removal Funds Returned If No Reports Made

Counties and cities which received emergency funds for snow removal last winter may have to return those funds if necessary forms concerning the use of the funds are not soon received by the state. The Legislative Research Commission last week voted to ask Attorney General Robert Stephens to notify some 100 local governments that do not report on the funds within 30 days of the Attorney General's notification be warned of possible legal action by the state to regain the funds. The funds were awarded to the local governments by the 1978 General Assembly. House Joint Resolution 34 appropriated $2 million for emergency snow removal during last January's blizzard conditions. One of the provisions of HJR 34 required local governments to report on their use of the funds. Rep. Art Schmidt (R-Cold Spring) noted that the LRC has twice requested that counties and cities which hadn't submitted the required forms to do so. "I don't think we should procrastinate any longer. I think we should act," he said. The resolution did not contain any penalty for failure to report.

INFANT DEATHS IN D.C. HIGH
WASHINGTON — The District of Columbia has been chided by a federal agency for failing to curtail drastically the city's high infant mortality rate. The General Accounting Office, an investigative arm of congress, cited lack of coordination among agencies in the nation's capital and inadequate health care planning as reasons for the problem. The GAO notes that the district's infant mortality rate was 25 per 1,000 live births in 1976, well above the U.S. average of 15.2 per 1,000.

Firm Plans Rail-Barge Facility

Ashland Coal, Inc. plans to build a rail-to-barge coal loading facility in Russell, on a 90-acre site being acquired from the Chessie System.

The land, which parallels Kentucky Highway 244, is located between the Chessie System's shops and yards and the Ohio River at mile marker 328.1. A portion of the land is in the City of Russell and the remainder of the land extends into the City of Worthington.

The multimillion dollar facility will include the most modern environmental equipment, a company spokesman said. A rotary rail car dump will discharge coal from hopper cars into underground bins, which will be located inside an open-ended building. Foam injectors, for dust control, and sound suppression equipment will be utilized in the unloading structure. Motors and conveyor belt junctions will be insulated to reduce noise and a conveyor crossing over Kentucky 244, to the large loading point, will be enclosed in a tube to prevent spillage and dust and will further act to reduce noise. A telescopic loading chute will be used to load the barges. Four barges can be moored at the loading point and a fleeting area will extend downstream to near the west limits of the property.

Rail sidings for approximately 450 cars will be constructed, with a portion of the entrance tracks extending into Worthington.

The transshipping dock will be operated by Addington Brothers Mining, Inc., a wholly owned subsidiary of Ashland Coal, Inc. Construction is expected to be complete in about 18 months.

Hazard Owes Big Gas Bill

The city of Hazard has its fuel troubles, well ahead of winter. It owes its supplier of natural gas, Kentucky West Virginia Gas Co., $194,149, a bill that's long overdue, and its source of supply could be cut off if the bill isn't paid.

L. E. Roberts, vice-president and general manager of the gas company, declined to say flatly that Hazard's gas supply will be cut off if the bill is not paid but did say, "We must consider the possibility of discontinuing service if they cannot make satisfactory arrangements about their gas bill."

A hooded coat with hot-as-a-pistol fashion impact. Scallop trim adds colorful contrast on the hood, where the sleeves join the bodice, at the belt, around the pockets and on the cuffs. This single-breasted junior pant coat is equally at home over skirts. The trim is the first-glance attraction, but it's the solid craftsmanship throughout that makes the attention last.

Retired Teachers To Meet Saturday

The fall meeting of the Floyd County Retired Teachers Association will be held at noon in the Regional Library here on Saturday, November 11.
John Faulkner, of the Prestonsburg Social Security office, will explain recent changes in the Social Security laws, and a musical program by the Senior Songsters of the Archer Senior Citizens Center under the direction of Mrs. Patsy Evans will be given.
Hostesses will be Miss Alice Harris and Mrs. Lucy Regan.
All members and prospective members are invited to attend.

Promised Changes Double Approved Black Lung Cases

Congressman Carl D. Perkins was assured last week by Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Joseph Califano that Social Security criteria will be modified. The changes will at least double the number of approved black lung cases, he said.
These assurances were given by Califano to Perkins in a letter dated November 3 in which Califano stated that these actions were being taken as a result of the appeals Perkins had made to the secretary that the Social Security Administration was not following the law in administering the Black Lung Benefits Reform Act of 1977.

Califano told Perkins that the Social Security Administration was proceeding immediately to review cases using the revised procedures. Not only will this review process apply to cases not yet reviewed by the Social Security Administration but also to cases which have already been disapproved and referred to the Department of Labor.

The new procedures as outlined by Califano:

—EVIDENCE ON FILE. HEW is limited to a determination "based on the evidence on file." However, we believe the statute should be interpreted broadly to include any information the Department may have in Title II or SSI disability files.

—EMPLOYMENT IN A MINE. By expanding the scope of what is considered "evidence on file," as mentioned above, SSA will be able to examine additional evidence of changed employment circumstances which should give rise to a finding of disability in cases where there has not been such finding before.

—EVIDENCE SUBMITTED AFTER JUNE 30, 1973. HEW, for the most part, has jurisdiction over claims filed prior to July 1, 1973. While pursuant to court orders, SSA has been considering evidence filed after that date, we believe greater probative value should be given to such evidence. For example, an x-ray taken in 1974 or 1975 may have probative value for eligibility in 1973, since one does not contract miners' disease after leaving the mines.

—OTHER EVIDENCE. Under the 1977 amendments, in any case where there is OTHER EVIDENCE that a miner has a pulmonary or respiratory impairment, SSA must, with some exceptions accept certain x-ray interpretation. The scope of "other evidence" will be expanded to include evidence which has not before been considered in determining eligibility.

—AFFIDAVITS. HEW will expand the scope of acceptable affidavits in those cases where there is no medical or relevant evidence.

Ky. Teaching Award Goes to Harlan Man

David L. Davies of Harlan has been named Kentucky Teacher of the Year, Superintendent of Public Instruction Dr. James B. Graham announced this week. Davies is the first man to receive the award in Kentucky.

The forty-three year old Davies has taught English in the Harlan City School system for twenty years. He also directs the Harlan Boys Choir which he founded in 1965.

"My greatest achievements have been and will continue to be the day-by-day progress of my students," Davies said. "One truly becomes a teacher only when there is a deep concern for the proper physical, mental and emotional development of the children."

Winning the state award automatically makes Davies a nominee for the national teacher of the year title. The national award is sponsored by the Council of Chief State School Officers, Encyclopedia Britannica and the Ladies' Home Journal.

Besides teaching, Davies also coaches the junior high school football and basketball teams. He was instrumental in starting a little league program in Harlan, and he is choir director and Sunday school teacher for the United Methodist Church in Harlan.

In 1972 Davies was named Outstanding Young Man of the Year and Harlan Countyman of the Year. That same year the Harlan Boys Choir attended the International Youth Music Festival in Graz, Austria, and received a superior rating, a rating shared with only two other choirs in the competition.

In 1976 Cumberland College, which Davies attended in the early 1950s, presented him with the Outstanding Alumnus Award.

"The ability to inspire a love of learning in all students is the most important factor in considering nominees for teacher of the year," Graham said. Letters from students, fellow teachers and members of the community supported Davies' nomination.

One student who has also been in the boys choir recommended Davies for Teacher of the Year because, "He expects us to excel, not only in performances, but in our daily lives. He instills in us moral principles and good manners."

A parent who had two sons chosen Outstanding Young Kentuckians wrote, "These achievements have been made possible through the efforts and influence of Mr. David L. Davies."

Davies will be honored at a dinner later this year.

Wanda Barker, a fourth grade teacher at Framers Elementary School in Rowan County, and E. Gene Preston, a junior high school science teacher in Bowling Green, were runners-up for the award.

★ Kentucky Afield ★

Kentucky deer hunters taking bucks with exceptionally large antlers, or those returning with a trophy from anywhere on the continent, will now find it much easier to enter the North American Big Game Awards Program, a cooperative effort of the National Rifle Association and the Boone and Crockett Club.

In the past, hunters have had trouble finding someone qualified to measure their trophy. Only individuals who have passed a four-day training course are recognized as "official measurers" by the awards program. Until recently, there were none in Kentucky. Now there are 12 around the state.

A training session, conducted by Jack Reneau of the National Rifle Association, was held early in October at the department of fish and wildlife's Camp Earl Wallace. Ten of the men who qualified are biologists with the department's game management division, one is a conservation officer and the twelfth is a professor at Eastern Kentucky University.

"Scoring a big game animal is more complicated than most of us realized," said John Phillips, one of the wildlife biologists who completed the workshop. "It takes about two hours to measure a white-tailed deer's rack." (The participants learned the techniques involved in measuring all North American big game species. Every three years, awards are presented to the hunters taking the five highest scoring animals of each big game species.)

Even if a deer does not qualify for a national award, Kentucky hunters can nevertheless enter their trophies on a statewide list to be compiled by game biologists. They are looking for any buck weighing over 215 pounds, any doe over 115 pounds (field dressed weights) or racks with a beam length of one antler of more than 20 inches.

Any hunter who takes a deer with these minimum standards should get in touch with the local conservation officer if he would like his name included on the Kentucky trophy deer list. The CO can also put those hunters who have possible national awards winners in contact with the nearest official measurer.

Fish and Wildlife decided to keep records of large deer, according to Game Management Director Joe Bruna, because of the many requests for such information the department receives each year.

Am. Standard Strike Ends

The 18-week-long strike at the American Standard plant, near Paintsville, ended Sunday with the acceptance by Local Union 7926, United Steel Workers, of the company's latest contract offer.

Plastics and ceramics production resumed Monday at the plant, and Dave Chapman, the company's production manager said, "We'll try to be back in full production by the end of the week."

The contract was approved by approximately two-thirds of the plant's 500 workers, it was reported here.

Neither the company nor the union would divulge terms of the new three-year pact which will extend till June 30, 1981. Wages and benefits are involved. Full resumption of work will depend, Chapman said, on how fast needed parts can reach the plant.

At one time American Standard plants in Louisville and Buffalo also were on strike. When the Louisville workers agreed to a new contract, it was thought the Paintsville strike also would end, but the union rejected the contract offer made at that time.

State Idle Rate Down to 4.6%

Kentucky's unemployment rate dropped from 5.3 percent in August to 4.6 percent in September, the lowest it has been since June.

"This current drop in unemployment was due to youths leaving the labor force and returning to the classroom, as well as increased employment in manufacturing and government," Robert MacDonald, chief labor market analyst for the Department for Human Resources, explained. MacDonald added that the gain in government employment was in state and local education.

The percentages represent an unemployment decrease of 11,300 persons, from 84,900 in August to 73,600 in September. The highest unemployment this year occurred last February, when the rate was 6.8 percent and 101,300 persons were without jobs.

The 4.6 percent rate in Kentucky for September marks the fourth time this year that unemployment dropped below 5 percent of the labor force.

The national unemployment rate was 5.7 percent in September, slightly lower than the 5.8 percent in August.

Sunday dancing not allowed

LONDON — Because New Year's Eve falls on a Sunday this year, Britons will have to do their holiday dancing in private. The Sunday Observance Act of 1780 prohibits dancing after midnight Saturday nights in premises where admission is charged.

Winners in Halloween Contest

Five grandchildren of Preacher Mitchell and Cynthia Chaffins, of Minnie, won first place in a Halloween costume judging at Shiloh, New Haven and Willard, Ohio, recently. The winners were Angie Vanderpool as Tweety Bird, Tonya Vanderpool and Shannon Chaffins as Raggedy Ann and Andy and Crissie Chaffins and Diana Vanderpool as scarecrows.

The costumes were made by Sonja Chaffins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Shade Cook, of Millstone (Letcher county), and Peggy Vanderpool, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chaffins.

State Coal Production Depends on Roads, Rails

Kentucky's ability to "increase or to maintain coal production in direct proportion to our ability to provide adequate transportation," John W. Fish, president of Kentuckians for Better Transportation, said at a national transportation study hearing last week in Atlanta, Georgia.

The hearing, conducted jointly by the U.S. Department of Transportation and the Department of Energy, is to determine the constraints affecting the capacity of the transportation system to move energy materials in 1985 and beyond.

Fish said that "unless dramatic steps are taken immediately to solve the gigantic problems which now exist for railroads and highways there will be a tremendous backlog of needs in these areas in 1985."

The increasing deterioration of the rail mode, he noted, "puts a substantial additional burden on our highways." Citing USDOT figures, Fish said that Kentucky's backlog of highway needs relating to transportation of coal in 1975 was, at $2.3 billion, greater than any other state and is growing.

"The $2.3 billion represents the cost of bringing roads up to the standards of the American Association of State Highway and Transportation Officials—AASHTO—and is a higher cost figure than simply structurally improving roads on their present alignment to support use by coal trucks."

Fish said KyDOT studies show that approximately 6,800 miles of roads were being used for the transportation of coal in the fall of 1977, a 35 percent increase over 1974.

"In spite of Kentucky's efforts to meet coal road needs through additional appropriations, increased bonding, and special legislation," he said, "Kentucky's backlog of coal road needs is greater today than in 1975."

Fish said that "without substantial federal funding between now and 1985 our state's backlog of needs can only grow larger through inflation and through increased usage of coal roads.

"In Eastern Kentucky," Fish said, "the highways and secondary roads that feed Kentucky's Interstate highway system and toll roads are congested with coal trucks, have significant accident rates, and are in many cases in varying degrees of deterioration."

"There are serious needs for upgraded and new haul routes to serve the increased truck traffic or coal to river terminals, to serve railroad tipples, and to continue to serve truck traffic in mine-to-market deliveries, both on short and long-haul runs. There are serious needs for bypass routes around many of our cities and communities where truck traffic congestion and the rapid and continuous deterioration of city streets has developed into an intolerable situation for citizens."

Fish said, "building and maintaining coal roads in Kentucky is a part of a larger highway financing problem which is national in scope. There is presently a significant national problem in meeting the financial obligations of maintaining and reconstructing streets and highways. In some areas, the situation is moving towards crisis proportions. Nationally, funding simply has not kept up with inflation."

Fish noted that Kentucky already has one of the highest severance taxes in the nation. He said additional taxes on coal, at the state level, would adversely affect the ability of our producers to compete on the regional, national, and international levels.

Kentucky produced some 148 million tons of coal in 1977 to account for more than one-fifth of the nation's total production. Only about 18 percent of this was burned within the state. Kentucky's proven reserves of coal are 25 billion tons.

MEET THE GIRL, WIN THE RACE

Whether your vacation purpose is to meet the girl in the pink bikini, win the yacht race, or catch the biggest fish...

The advantages of an aim-and-shoot camera producing prints that develop in minutes are obvious as a means of meeting a particular person or group of people.

Not so obvious, but equally important, are the advantages of using it to record, the moment of victory, the highlights of the race, and the presentation of the trophy...

Should there be a particular print everyone wants, it's an easy matter to have additional prints and enlargements made from it. On the whole, however, it is simpler to have enough film along to give the prints away on the spot.

Picture-taking with The Handle-Kodak instant camera requires no camera adjustments, so you can concentrate on the content of your pictures.

Remember, first, to stay close enough to your subject to capture the victory smile. The Handle instant camera is focused for five feet to infinity, and for most people pictures you'd be wise to stay fairly close to the five-foot mark when you shoot. For a full-length picture of the girl in the pink bikini, you'd probably have to move back a little, but there's no need to move past the point where she just fits into the viewfinder.

Before you move at all, turn the camera on its side and look through the viewfinder to see if the picture would compose better as a vertical. For a shot of a single standing figure, it obviously does.

While you are checking through the viewfinder, give a moment's thought to the background. Is it cluttered and distracting? Would a change of angle improve it? All of this takes less time to do than to describe. Almost as little time in fact as it takes for the print to be ejected from the camera.

When you want to shoot several pictures in rapid succession, remember that the protective Satinlux finish on the prints allows you to tuck them in a pocket or bag as fast as they come out of the camera.

Beyond these tips, the success of your vacation picture-taking is up to you.

A Government That Works For Its Citizens

By DAVID COHEN

Immediately after Labor Day, the House will face its first key test on whether it has learned any lessons from California's Proposition 13 vote.

The Carter Administration's legislation builds on the concept that citizens will receive effective government service only if it is impartially administered, provides incentives and rewards for outstanding performance, permits managers to manage, and provides employees with protection against political abuse.

Government employees' unions and veterans' groups are working overtime in the halls of Congress to maintain the present inflexible civil service. In candid moments, employees, managers and civil service experts acknowledge that the federal government is a bureaucratic maze which stifles the initiative of dedicated government employees while often failing to protect their rights.

Government is complex enough without permitting it to frustrate good managers by giving them insufficient authority to supervise personnel effectively. Nor should it continue to undermine dedicated civil servants by failure to reward their outstanding performance. When merit violations take place with impunity and pay and promotions are made on the basis of longevity rather than performance, our system clearly has to be changed.

If the House is concerned about the taxpayers' revolt, it will face up to four key issues in civil service reform:

(1) Establish a Senior Executive Service. The SES would designate up to 9200 super-grade executives without adding to the government's payroll.

David Cohen is President of Common Cause, a non-partisan citizens' lobby.

Those who enter the Service would be eligible for bonuses for superior performance and would be removed for poor performance. The opponents of change are trying to block it with a proposal to limit the SES to three departments on a two-year trial basis.

(2) Add protections for whistleblowers. An independent counsel would be authorized to investigate allegations of improper reprisals against those who blow the whistle on wrongdoing within the government.

(3) Modify veterans' preference. The effect of modifying veterans' preference will be to open greater opportunities to qualified women, minorities, and young people while assisting those veterans most in need of help—the Vietnam era and the disabled veteran.

(4) Oppose changing the Hatch Act. The Hatch Act is an essential protection against partisan political interference with the civil service. In a system based on performance, it becomes extraordinarily important to protect civil servants against such political interference.

The choice for the House is: will it be responsible in remedying many of the problems facing our civil service system and show that it is paying attention to voter dissatisfaction with government performance, or will it continue to cave in to the intense pressures from veterans' groups and government employees' unions who have a stake in a status quo that results in poor government performance?

Health Views

LIKE FATHER, LIKE SON

The expression, "like father, like son" should be extended to read, "like father, like son, like mother, like daughter, like pets."

It's not unusual at all to see a family group of mother, father, children and even a dog that look alike and walk alike. Their weight problem is the same because they have the same intake of foods; their posture because they emulate each other.

wings. It's a problem for the tailor or dressmaker. But it should also cause concern for the person who has it. It indicates the muscles lack the tone necessary to hold the border against the rib cage.

According to sociologists, there is not much of a generation gap at all. Children reflect their parents in looks—yes, even in attitudes, values and life styles. And unfortunately, many of these behavior patterns that parents pass on to their children are not conducive to good health.

What can be done? Well, the thing not to do is say, "he's built like Uncle Mike," and let it go at that. The worst approach you can take to symptoms of health problems is ignore them, justify them, or procrastinate about them.

For example, many have poor eating habits; some have poor posture habits; many smoke or drink; many like junk foods; most are out of physical condition; and too many depend on drugs and medications. These are all illustrative of parental example—setting that also sets the stage for health problems, especially in later life.

In the case of poor posture, first, a doctor of chiropractic should be seen for advice, counsel, examination and treatment if necessary to correct structural problems. Second, more attention must be given to posture. If the condition dictates it, the doctor of chiropractic may recommend a series of special exercises to build up weak areas.

Let's look at posture. You take your son to a nice men's shop and try to pick out a suit. The tailor tells you, "he's got round shoulders or one shoulder is too low." Chances are, you or your spouse have the same problem. There's a hint of heredity; sometimes it's due to a developmental problem; sometimes it may even be because of an undetected injury, but very often it is caused purely by habit and life style.

It should be remembered that posture has a far-sweeping effect on health. And in the case of a child, it affects growth. Correct posture makes the person look better, but it also makes him feel better.

Clothes don't look or fit right when the shoulder blades or scapulae near the spine project like angel

Sociologists generally agree that people involved in patterns tend to adapt beliefs and philosophies of life that justify them. So don't be fast to say, "bad posture and obesity run in our family." It doesn't necessarily. According to the American Chiropractic Association, you do have reasonable control over your body and health if you are willing to do something about it.

Ingenious Decorating

GRACEFUL SCHOOLHOUSE CHAIRS around a round table recall the elegance of America's Golden Era.

You don't have to spend a fortune at antique shops and auctions anymore to give your home an opulent turn-of-the-century look.

flowers in tall pitchers and vases. Dried flowers can also be used to advantage.

Just a few authentic-looking pieces and the right accessories can impart the old-fashioned beauty of the Golden Era without separating you from a chest full of gold.

3. Another help for new owners of older homes in search of appropriate furnishings—or for residents of new apartments who would like some Old World charm—is the Golden Era collection of furniture by Thomasville. Each of its warmly distinctive pieces, created by noted designer Jim Peed, features intricate carving overlays and hardware typical of the Gilded Age.

1. You can dramatize period furnishings with starkly modern architectural features and plain, light walls, but you can achieve the same results in an older home or apartment. Just provide a dark background area, such as an exposed brick wall, a dark paneled ceiling, or traditional patterned wallpaper.

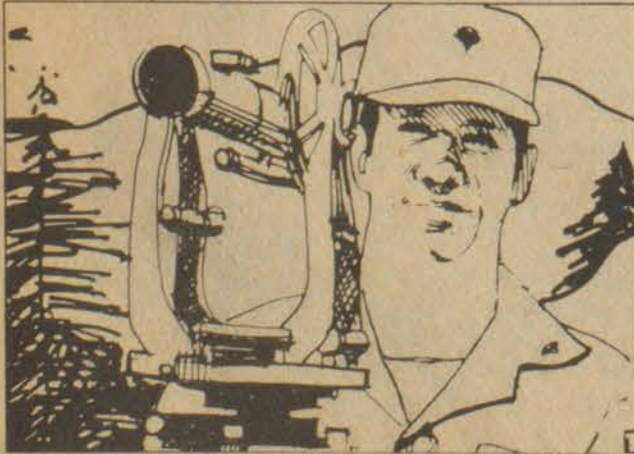

The massive wood bases of its round tables boast brass-capped paw feet, and a white-painted metal bed finds its perfect counterpoint in a drawer cabinet with whatnot deck where milady's richest personal treasures can be exhibited.

2. One way grandmother and great-grandmother might have lent warmth and charm to their rooms was with plants and flowers. You can suggest an indoor arboretum with potted trees standing in dark corners and enliven static areas with basketed, potted ferns or an abundance of long-stemmed

4. You can set out a collection of period pottery and glassware, as well as an assortment of boxes—both tin and otherwise—along with old copper pots and pans. A bouquet of snapdragons in an antique-looking pot, or a platter filled with half-green crab apples, can add just the right touch to a game table from that fabulous era.

HAIR FACTS & FALLACIES

GIVING DANDRUFF THE BRUSHOFF

By following a few simple steps, you may avoid being plagued by some common hair problems.

White flakes known as dandruff afflict most people at some time or another. In many cases, the scales can be brushed away and stopped from coming back with more frequent and vigorous shampooing.

A FEW PRECAUTIONS may prevent some hairy problems.

Occasionally, dandruff symptoms can become quite severe. Besides itching and flaking of the scalp, you may experience redness and inflammation. Persistent or severe dandruff problems should be tackled by a dermatologist.

sponsored by the American Brush Manufacturers Association, coming up September 9, now's the time to protect yourself against your hair becoming brittle, dry and discolored by over-exposure to the sun, swimming in saltwater or a chlorinated pool.

Flaking caused by hair sprays resembles dandruff, also. Hair spray may produce a film on hair shafts. Flaking is particularly common if the spray container is held too close to the hair, producing a heavy concentration rather than a thin film.

In the sun, wear a scarf or hat, and after swimming, shampoo your hair. If your hair is dry and brittle from other causes, gentle brushing with a soft brush is very helpful.

Vigorous brushing with a good hairbrush will get rid of flakes, but brushing is always good for hair. You should have several good hairbrushes: one for gentle brushing, another for ridding the scalp of dirt, flakes and excess oil, and one for styling.

When it comes to split ends, the only way to get rid of them is to cut them off. You may avoid the problem by eliminating blow drying, bleaching and permanent waves.

With the summer here and National Hair Health Week,

Woodland Blazes Numerous in Floyd Over Past Weekend

Forest fires burned over a wide section of the Kentucky Division of Forestry's Eastern District through the weekend with the highest concentration of this county's blazes being reported in the upper Left Beaver section.

All property crimes within the Index decreased, resulting in an overall decline of three percent in this category. Larceny-theft was down four percent, and both burglary and motor vehicle theft decreased one percent.

NOTICE OF INTENTION TO MINE

1. In accordance with the provisions of KRS 350.055, notice is hereby given that: Triple Elkhorn Mining Co., Inc., P. O. Box 70, Prestonsburg, Ky. 41653 intends to file an application for the surface disturbance mining of approximately 5.0 acres located south of Allen City in Floyd County.

Persons wishing to file written objections and/or request a formal administrative hearing in regard to the above described surface mine should notify the Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection within 30 days of the date of this notice.

According to Arthur Leach, district forester, forest fire activity began showing up around Oct. 26, and, with near-drought conditions characterizing area weather, increased in severity until an extreme fire hazard alert was issued Friday.

Leach said even though rain was predicted Tuesday, it may not be in sufficient quantity to thoroughly dampen the ground.

Joe Dietz, chief of fire control with the state Division of Forestry said a ban on outdoor trash burning has been put into effect throughout the state even though the principal danger point at present is Southeast Kentucky.

Source of the blazes is believed to be the result of careless trash burning and the activity of hunters. No arrests have been made in connection with the recent fires, according to District Management Assistant Bill Phillips who pointed out that often residents would report having witnessed someone start a fire either deliberately or irresponsibly but then not follow through for fear of becoming involved.

Benefits Not Paid
For 6-Day Strike

The Railroad Retirement Board will not be paying benefits for unemployment caused by the September 26 strike called by the Brotherhood of Railway and Airline Clerks (BRAC) on 43 railroads. Under the Railroad Unemployment Insurance Act, no benefits can be paid for an employee's first seven days of unemployment resulting from a legal strike. The strike, which began on September 26 and ended October 1, lasted for only six days and such days cannot be included in any claim with other days of unemployment.

The board has paid $4,877,000 in benefits to other employees on strike against the Norfolk and Western from July 10 through October 1, 1978, and $19,367,000 to other Norfolk and Western employees out of work because of the strike.

NAMES OMITTED

Passengers on the Clinchfield Railroad from Elkhorn City to Spartanburg, S.C., September 23, and 24, also included Mr. and Mrs. Luther Clark, Prestonsburg. These names were omitted from the October list.

WASHINGTON — The Transportation Department has scheduled a Nov. 29 public hearing on its alternate proposals for regulating routes used by trucks carrying radioactive material.

The alternates, listed by the department in August, include a broad general rule; overall guidelines, with licensing required only in certain exceptions; licensing for each route; or having the Nuclear Regulatory Commission consider routing restrictions for its licensees.

B. & D. MOTOR CO.
HAS THE WINNER: 1979
FORD FAIRMONT

...A PROVEN
BEST SELLER!

Fairmont—designed to be fuel efficient, space efficient, cost efficient—outsold all other new cars ever introduced and set an all-time sales record for '78. The 1979 Fairmonts... built for today and designed for the years to come... have the same qualities important to you.

Good economy. You get excellent gas mileage. With standard 2.3 litre engine and 4-speed manual floor shift, Fairmont was EPA rated at 80 mpg city.

Attractive price. Fairmont sticker price is among the lowest in its class. Our prices start as low as $8000.

Surprising roominess. 5-passengers big.

Ride and handling. Comfort stems from deep-cushioned seats, good insulation against road noise, generous use of rubber bushings at key suspension points. Rack and pinion steering, Fairmont's front suspension, and a rear suspension based on the Thunderbird coil-link design, team up to give you responsive parking and handling.

Great model choice. Pick from 2- and 4-Door Sedans, 4-Door Wagon and 4-Door Squire, or the sporty Futura Coupe.

Great standard features. 2.3 litre 4-cylinder engine • 4-speed manual with floor shift • rack and pinion steering • front disc brakes • bucket seats, all-vinyl trim • cut-pile carpeting, and much more.

Kentucky Property Tax Reported Among Lowest

(From the Interim Legislative Record) A legislative committee is studying state government spending and trying to figure out the best way to hold the line on the growing government bureaucracy. A discussion on the subject was triggered by a recent report to the Interim Joint Committee on Appropriations and Revenue which indicated that Kentucky has one of the lowest property tax rates of any state in the country. However, several legislators said it was not the tax rate which is objectionable. "Most people in my district don't care what the property tax rate is," said state Sen. Danny Yocom, D-Louisville. "They are concerned with the rising property assessments they have to face." One of the committee's co-chairmen, Rep. Joe Clarke, D-Danville, said the Legislature could bring relief to people with rising assessments by passing a bill which would automatically lower tax rates as property values increased. "With this type of legislation we could put the responsibility for raising the money on local governments, the ones who want to spend the money," Clarke said.

Clarke said the Legislature could help curb state spending by carefully reviewing the budgets of the government's agencies in the interim leading to the 1980 General Assembly. "We can find out where the budget can be cut and then pass a budget that holds the line on spending," Clarke said. The legislators named several areas where spending could be reduced, including cutting back on employees and reducing programs started with federal money. "Many of our state agencies could operate more efficiently with fewer employees," said Sen. Robert Martin, D-Richmond. "Maybe we ought to be thinking of setting a limit on the number of state employees." The federal government is at least partly to blame for state spending problems, according to Rep. James Allen, D-Martin. "The feds allocate money to get a program started, people get used to the service being offered, then the federal government cuts off the money and the state has to pick up the funding," Allen said. In other action, the A&R Committee received a report analyzing the state's bonded indebtedness from Dr. Richard Gift, a University of Kentucky economist. Gift said the majority of the state's debt is due to transportation (highways), higher education, and state park bonds. He said the state should make a distinction between revenue bonds, which actuually produce revenue, such as bonds to build college dormitories which are paid for with student fees, and bonds which are paid for with government funds, such as those for a new state office building. Gift said Kentucky's debt, which is sometimes criticized for being excessive, "is not alarming if it is looked at from a hard, financial viewpoint." However, Gift said, "as a taxpayer, I would like to see it lower." According to Gift, the state should have a more detailed discussion of the tax responsibility when issuing revenue bonds, which are frequently used to pay for major projects. "We should be told exactly how much of the bond will be paid with tax money and how much of the bond will be paid off by the project which is being funded," Gift said. "The people who were in the best position to know did know all along that tolls were not going to pay for all the toll roads that were built by the state," Gift said. "There could have been more discussion because now tax money has had to be used to pay the remainder of the debt for those roads." Revenue bonds originally were intended to be used to finance major public improvements, but recently have been used as a legal tool to circumvent the state's $500,000 constitutional ceiling on general obligation bonds. Gift said it would make sense to make that change because "this is a very expensive system we've got now." However, Gift said he didn't think the constitutional change is likely to happen since "it seems like Kentuckians would rather ignore their constitution than change it."

"I've been turning my lights off. Why hasn't my electric bill gone down?"

If you're turning off lights hoping to lower your electric bill, don't be surprised if very little happens. It will help, of course.

But by conserving on the appliances that use the most electricity, you'll really save. Appliances like air conditioners, space heaters, water heaters, ranges, frost-free refrigerators and freezers, and clothes dryers.

You already know how to set your thermostat to save energy heating and cooling your home. But did you know you could save still more if you insulate your water heater and lower its thermostat to 140°?

There are lots of other ways you can cut down on your electricity usage without greatly affecting your comfort or convenience.

We have some S.A.I.E. booklets that show you how you can save energy and become part of our Save America's Valuable Energy Program. And they're yours for the asking.

At Kentucky Power, we want you to get the most out of your electric service.

Correction: Last week, the original read: "Many pastors must teach S.S. and study courses." In print S.S. was changed to social studies, should have been Sunday School!

Previous column series touched on the analysis of several disciplines, quoting authorities. Educators feel answerable to students and parents; public officials, to superiors and constituents; lawyers, to clientele; physicians, to patients and family; the clergy, to congregations; all, to society and God. WESTERN RECORDER, (Jan. 25, 1978) had a great editorial, "A Denomination Needs Constant Examination." True of all faiths, and of us individuals, too. Laity and clergymen of every type exist somewhere. The Bible sets no double standard for sheep and shepherd, though a few biblical qualifications apply solely to ordained personnel; however, churches have a right to expect pastors to be exemplary, since they lead the flock.

Ministers make mistakes and fall short like the rest of us, but the majority are fine good men. Numbers serve one church for years, as did Dr. J.S. Bell, Hindman, for decades; Rev. Jagers, 15 years, Prestonsburg; Rev. Grayson, 16, Inez, now in the fourth year at Maytown; Rev. Waugh, 13th at Allen; Rev. Larry Baldrige, 10-12 at Pippa Passes; Rev. O. P. Smith, 8, Maytown, 50 years ago; Rev. Lee Caudill, 6, Lancer. Long tenure speaks well for pastor and church, but short ones do not necessarily reflect on either. Circumstances alter cases. No two are identical.

No one knows if present appraisal of churches, leaders and members originated in pulpit or pew. Myriad articles and books show widespread occurrence, and that pastors usually blame congregations, and vice versa. More objectivity by both will pay high dividends. Human-like, we all rush to defend our profession, family, self. An old adage says, "There's a little bit of good in the worst of us, and a little bit of bad in the best." So, when it comes to placing blame, perhaps it is six for the laity and a half-dozen for the clergy, in most instances. Instead of thinking in punitive terms to assign guilt, we need to love, forgive, return good for evil, unite to improve situations, and move forward—a large order, good for all concerned. Generally, when conflicts arise, ministers suffer most, for they are in the driver's seat. President Truman would say, "The buck ends here." The pastor is held largely accountable, because no organization surpasses its head. This does not imply that "parsons" cause all difficulties or are always to blame for lack of progress.

At the close of morning worship a visitor asked the pastor how many members were enrolled. "Two hundred," was the reply. "All active?" inquired the stranger. "Oh yes," was the response, half are for me and half against."

Inventory is beneficial to any profession, and criticism is not confined to the laity. Scores of charges in print give the chief complaints by men of the cloth, many of whom refrain from such, think positively, exude love, enthusiasm, optimism, consult leaders, maintain democracy in church business affairs, never denounce members or others. WESTERN RECORDER, (March 31, 1973), listed many criticisms the clergy make: "Inadequate salaries, inadequate trained leadership, immaturity and lack of Christian growth among members." The Courier-Journal article quoted last week gave the major objection as the lack of love and respect once accorded most clerics almost everywhere. Some teachers and other professionals share this feeling, which may or may not be well founded, depending upon each person and the community. Times have changed drastically, not for the better in countless ways.

Old standards are being swept away. Publications tell how many pastors do things few would have dared do formerly. That does not make them right. A West Virginia pastor ran away with a high school girl, saw no harm in it, though reports came that he had committed the same offense elsewhere. His stunned church paid the family's debts, supported the wife and five children until he returned six weeks later, to be transferred to North Carolina! Misconduct by clerics of all faiths is becoming more common.

The clergymen also protest poor attendance, especially at evening and prayer services, business meetings; over emphasis on numbers; limited cooperation and gratitude; too few accepting offices and committee posts; negligible concern for the lost; too few visiting, witnessing; intermembership friction. In a small church one faction sat on the right and the other on the left, as the minister and family agonized over the lack of love and forgiveness. Ministerial complaints equal those of the laity.

Unique is the pastor or church that does not experience one or more sooner or later, for every mortal is human as can be. The following poem from an ancient copy of MARANATHA may be appropriate:

"We cleaned our little church today,
Wiped all the dust and dirt away;
We straightened papers, washed the floors,
Wiped off the lights and painted doors.
We brushed the dirt stains from the books,
And whisked the cobwebs from the nooks.
We polished windows so we'd see,
The newly greening shrub and tree.
The menfolk, too, raked up the yard,
They laughed and said it wasn't hard,
And, oh it felt so very good,
To have the place look as it should.
We said, 'How wonderful 'twould be,
If we cleaned out what we can't see—
Such things as grudges, hates, and lies,
And musty thoughts much worse than flies!
If all would let God's Spirit in,
To cleanse each heart from soiling sin;
Ah, then our church would really shine,
Our fellowship would be divine.'"

KET 'Kentucky Now' Program To View Competency-Based Testing

KET will take a look at competency-based testing in two segments of "Kentucky Now" Thursday, November 16 at 8 p.m., with a repeat Sunday, November 19, at 2:30 p.m.

Henderson County High School is highlighted in one of the segments. "Kentucky Now" traveled to Henderson for two reasons, says reporter Don Levy. School officials there were the first in the state to test their students using a so-called competency test. In addition, a local controversy has brought the issue of the skills of high school graduates into sharp focus.

"I'm not grading the school," says Levy. The county led the Commonwealth in introducing competency-based tests—tests to determine whether actual skills such as reading, writing and arithmetic have been mastered. The tests are given to identify academic weaknesses in individual students. Once the weaknesses are uncovered, the children receive special help to improve those skills and are then re-tested.

Competency tests will be used in all of Kentucky's third, fifth, seventh and tenth grades, beginning in April next year.

"Kentucky Now" reporter Erna Wilkin traveled to Nebraska during the spring of 1978 and took a battery of competency-based tests. She reports on what the tests require to determine whether Johnny or Susie can read or write or figure.

Traffic Fines, Roads Studied

(From the Interim Legislative Record) Kentucky's increased traffic fines and the state's road maintenance system are getting close study by the Legislature's Joint Committee on Highways and Traffic Safety.

The increased traffic fines also have been the subject of discussion by several other interim committees meeting in the Capitol. The fines were raised by $15 earlier this year. The additional revenue is supposed to go to the Kentucky Law Enforcement Foundation Program (KLEFP) to pay for training programs for local police officers in the state.

However, figuring out exactly how much additional revenue has been raised by the increased fines has been nearly impossible. Methods of recording the receipt of the traffic fine money have contributed to this difficulty. The traffic fines are lumped together with other misdemeanor fines when they are reported by the counties to the Administrative Office of the Courts, thus making it difficult to arrive at any precise figure for the traffic fines only.

The increased fines were described as "exorbitant" by Rep. Archie Romines, D-Valley Station, a member of the Highways and Traffic Safety Committee. Romines said the increased fines were made even worse by increased court cost which were raised from $19.50 to $27.50 with the implementation of Kentucky's new court system. The two increases have combined to cause a minimum traffic fine of $52.50.

In other action, Rep. Bill Weinberg, D-Hindman, told the subcommittee studying highway maintenance and construction that the state's road maintenance program "needs some maintenance, maybe even a complete overhaul."

Weinberg said Kentucky's maintenance system "has remained basically unchanged for the past 30 years."

"New programs have been stacked on top of each other as new sources of money have appeared," he said. "It's time for a fresh look and a new beginning."

Weinberg said Kentucky's roads are inadequate, especially in eastern Kentucky. "The roads are inadequate for getting coal out and they are inadequate for getting people from their homes to the fine superhighways that have been built," he said.

"It doesn't do any good to build these superhighways if people can't get to them," Weinberg said.

Weinberg told the committee there are several major problems with the maintenance operation. Among the problems he mentioned are: delays in construction caused by the absence of an effective system for supplying equipment and material for the work that needs to be done; inadequate salaries paid to employees; and the confusion caused by the lack of coordination between the state and county maintenance operations.

"Taxpayers in Kentucky are insisting that we get more for our money," Weinberg said. "The key is making better use of the dollars now available. We have to have a system where responsibilities are more clearly defined between the state and individual counties."

Weinberg criticized what he called the "duplication of effort" caused by having two road maintenance crews in each county—one working on state-owned roads and the other working on county roads.

"The people of Kentucky don't care if it's a county road or a state road," Weinberg said. "They just want the roads to be properly maintained."

In addition, Weinberg said, the state has got to take steps to improve maintenance of coal-haul roads. He suggested the state could get help from the federal government to maintain the roads.

"If the federal government wants to make coal a major part of our national energy plan, then they're going to have to help us," Weinberg said. "The state can't handle the problem of the coal-haul roads by itself."

As part of its study of the state's road maintenance system, the Highways and Traffic Safety Committee conducted a series of meetings in eastern Kentucky earlier this month. The committee visited London, Hazard, Prestonsburg, Moorehead and Winchester studying road problems and taking with local officials about the road maintenance systems in their areas.

Strange Holes Mystify Kansans

TORONTO, Kan. —The mysterious holes of Walnut Creek bottom lands have Woodson county residents puzzled and their horses terrified.

"We can't figure out why the horses won't go near it," City Councilman Jim Snively said. "Maybe they know something we don't."

The "holes" were discovered about a month ago by high school student Jim Smith while riding horseback in the Walnut Creek bottom lands about two miles southwest of town.

There in the hard-packed silt were six circular depressions—forming a hexagon—with a much larger circular hole in the center.

The 485 residents of the town about 90 miles east of Wichita, Kan., don't know what to make of them.

"It's got us stumped," Snively said. "No one is scared of anything, but it's really weird."

The center hole is exactly 13 feet in diameter and 30 inches deep. At precise intervals around the center hole, but concentrated within an area 50 feet in diameter, are six smaller depressions, each 10 feet in diameter and 18 inches deep.

Each hole appears as if it were made by a large ball, but each has grass and weeds growing in it that do not differ from the surrounding vegetation. No evidence of digging in the area has been found, and no tracts in the hard silt, which is flooded once a year from creek overflow, are evident.

"It just looks like something awfully big and awfully heavy sat there and pushed the ground down," Snively said. "We can't find where anyone was out there with anything, and even if they were, they'd have to leave some tracks. But there just aren't any."

Nurses Attend Workshop

Management and law as applied to the field of nursing were the subjects of a two-day workshop attended recently by nursing staff members from Highlands Regional Medical Center.

Paula J. Gibson, R.N., house supervisor, and Nancy Slone, R.N., obstetrics supervisor, represented H.R.M.C. at the meeting held in New Orleans, Louisiana.

The seminar was sponsored by Health Education Resources, Inc. of Chicago, Illinois and was conducted to provide additional training in management skills and nursing law to supervisory nurses.

Gibson, of Prestonsburg, has been employed at Highlands Regional for nearly five years while Slone, also of Prestonsburg, has been with the hospital for three years.

KET To Air Series for College Credit During Spring Semester

Beginning in January, KET will air four series which will be available for credit from one or more colleges and universities in Kentucky.

The four series involve such subjects as geography, writing, interior design, and high school learning and discipline.

Credit for "Of Earth and Man," an introductory geography series, will be offered by Eastern Kentucky University, Northern Kentucky University, University of Louisville, and Murray State University (the latter on an in-class basis only). "Of Earth and Man" combines art, film, photographs, and narration to increase the student's awareness of basic geographic concepts as they apply to different regions of the globe.

"New Approaches to High School Learning and Discipline" is the title of a returning series designed to provide a survey of contemporary thought and practice on improving student-teacher relations on the secondary level. The course combines lectures and role-playing with student activities as a means of demonstrating how teachers might create a climate for effective learning and discipline. Credit for the course can be obtained through ECU, NKU, U of L, and the University of Kentucky.

The entire interior design process is covered in "Designing Home Interiors," a course offered by UK and U of L via KET. The series begins with the concept of total planning and progresses to elements and principles of design, floor plans, color psychology, floor coverings, and the successful use of accessories. Budget and consumer information are emphasized.

"Writing for a Reason" is a college freshman composition course that covers basic writing skills such as choosing and shaping a thesis; planning a composition; and composing effective sentences, paragraphs, and essays. Credit for the course will be offered by UK and Western Kentucky University.

According to Mike Clark, KET evening programming specialist, the list of colleges offering credit for these four series is not necessarily complete. "It's very possible that additional schools will offer credit for one or more of these series," he says, "but we don't have any more definite commitments at this time."

Clark adds that UK will be offering credit in the spring for a series on the plays of Shakespeare, to be aired by KET. Also, ECU will continue to offer credit for "Guten Tag in Deutschland," a program designed to enable the self-learner to understand conversational German.

Viewers interested in the possibility of taking one or more of these courses for college credit may obtain more information by writing Bob Carter at the Council on Higher Education, West Frankfort Office Complex, U.S. 127-South, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601. He may be reached by phone at (502) 564-5483.

Award winning signs were presented to Weeksby and David for winning their categories in the N.E.K.R.C.D.A. contest last July. Guest-speaker was Donald Graves, Extension specialist in reclamation, who gave a slide presentation on heat sensitivity pictures taken of this area by satellite.

The meeting was sponsored by the Floyd County Development Committee.

What's Better Than Money In The Bank?

Well, when you consider that no bank is permitted by law to pay you as much interest on savings as Floyd Federal can, the answer is simple. A Passbook Savings Account at Floyd Federal in Prestonsburg pays 5 1/4% interest. The highest rate any bank is allowed to pay you is only 5%. So, if you have a savings account at a bank, it's costing you money. While you may feel that it's convenient to save at the same place you do your checking, remember this: That so-called 'convenience' is expensive. What's better than having money in the bank? The answer is: having money in a Passbook Savings Account at Floyd Federal in Prestonsburg. The choice is up to you!

New "old" facilities for Feltner 4-H Camp Historic cabins "transplanted"

By Nevyle Shackelford, UK College of Agriculture

Something unusual, if not unique, is being added to the J. M. Feltner Memorial 4-H Camp near London in Laurel County—the camp which, each summer, provides learning and wholesome recreation for hundreds of eastern and central Kentucky youngsters.

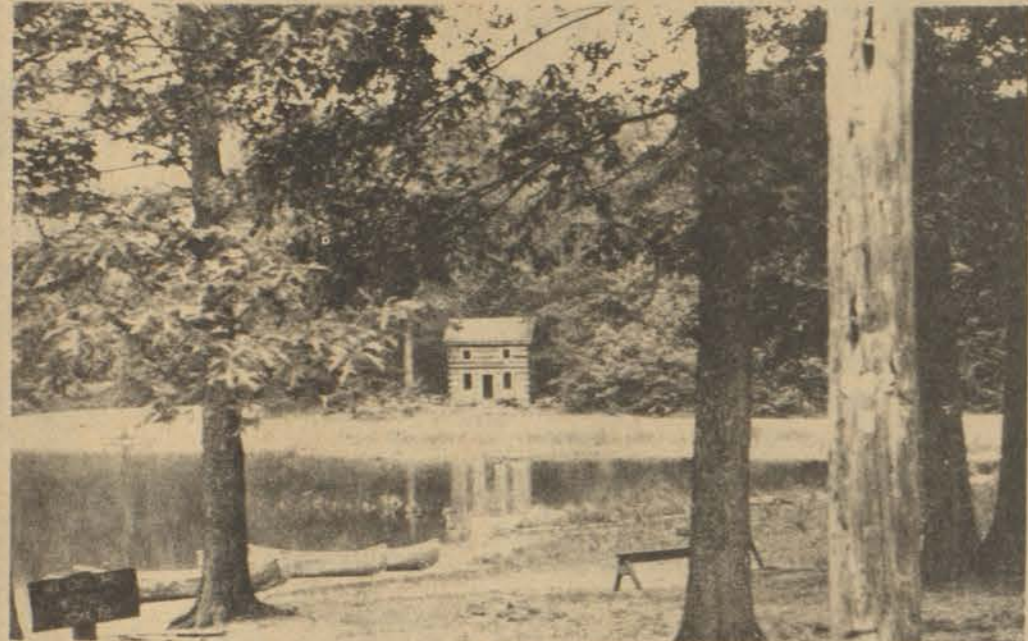

Who served for several years as county agent of Jackson County, and was very active in 4-H work. County agents of the eight-county Wilderness Trail Extension Area, aided by some 4-H groups are restoring this building and getting it ready for use.

What this idyllic youth facility is getting is two historic log buildings, one to serve as a nature center; the other, as a museum to house 4-H artifacts and other mementos relative to this fine youth organization.

In addition to serving as a nature center, where classes will be taught on outdoor subjects and where nature exhibits will be displayed, during times when the camp is not being used for 4-H purposes, the building will be used by selected groups wishing to hold conferences in a rustic setting. The groups must be small, however, because of the limited size of the building, he added.

According to camp manager, Bob Lindy, the first cabin, a two-story structure that once served as a pioneer family homestead, was donated to the camp by David Risner to commemorate his father, Calvin Risner,

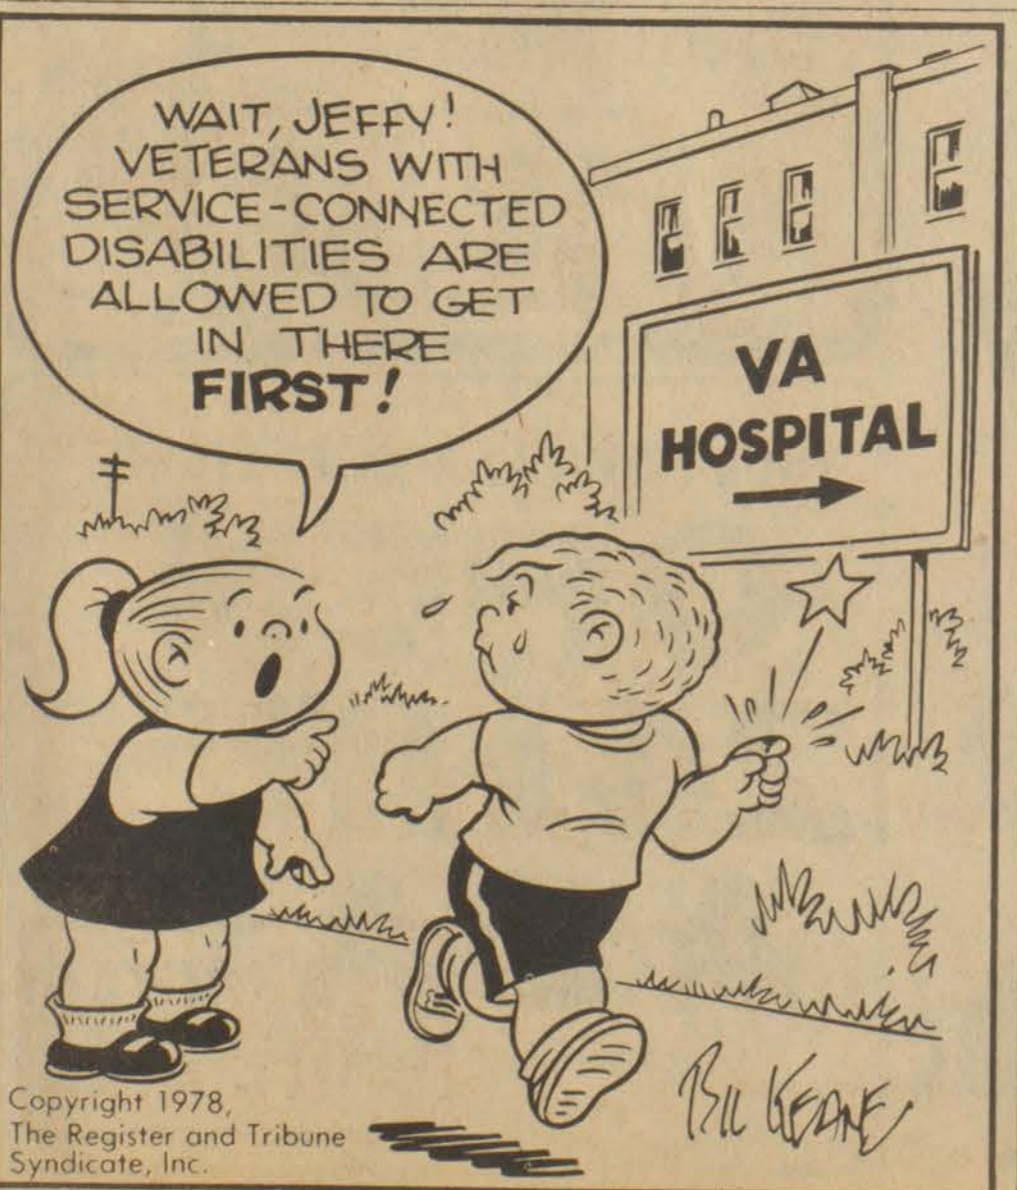

The second and much smaller one-room building,

TO BECOME NATURE CENTER—This two-story building, donated by David Risner in honor of his late father, will serve as a nature center and conference facility at the Feltner 4-H Camp in Laurel County. The building was moved from Jackson County where Calvin Risner served as county Extension agent. The structure has been placed in an idyllic setting overlooking a lake at the camp.

TRANSPANTED CABIN—One of the buildings being restored at the Feltner 4-H Camp in Laurel County is this cabin that once served as an office and sleeping quarters for the late J.M. Feltner, state agent for 4-H. It was moved from Johnson County to the Laurel County site. George Armstrong, Area Extension Director for the Quicksand Area, is shown looking over the exterior of the old cabin.
