HUD Fund Allocated To Housing

Grant Will Finance Construction Here Of 68-Unit Complex

The U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) has reserved $2,153,200 for low-rent public housing in Prestonsburg, it was announced last week by Congressman Carl D. Perkins and Senators Wendell H. Ford and Walter "Dee" Huddleston.

The Prestonsburg Housing Authority will use the funds for the construction of 68 low-rent family units at a location yet to be announced.

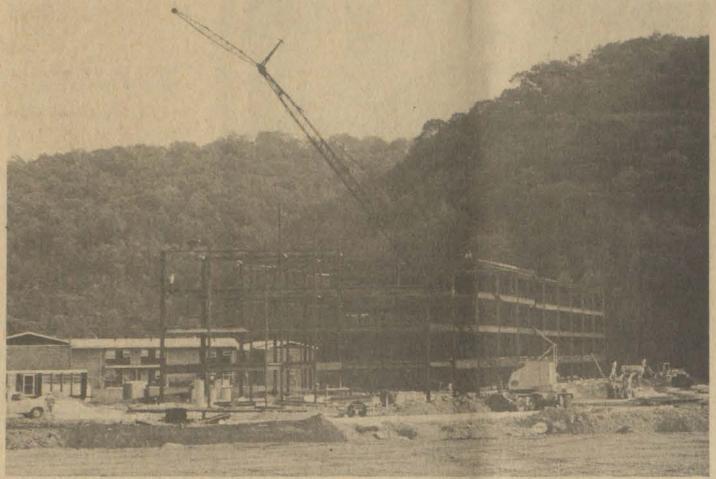

'Housing is one of our greatest needs in Eastern Kentucky, and this allocation will be of great help, Congressman Perkins commented.

Design of the complex has not been completed but it will probably follow the pattern of the Dixie housing development in the Goble-Roberts Addition, Julia M. Mayo, executive director of the Prestonsburg Housing Authority, said Monday. Work is expected to begin next

The new project will provide Prestonsburg 493 housing units-238 public housing units, 75 church housing units in the Goble-Roberts Addition and 80 for the elderly now under construction by the Church Housing Program at the mouth of May Branch here

An additional 95 units proposed for construction in the Cliff area await final approval. Highway access to the Cliff site is one of the factors involved.

Apartment Complex Takes Shape Here

Branch here was described this week as "right on schedule" with a completion date set for September of next year. The complex, the result of a joint effort of the Highland Terrace Corporation, the Prestonsburg Housing Authority and the Church Housing Association, will provide 80 apartment units in a modern, five-story structure with special provisions for the aged and handicapped. All apartments will have a private balcony and will be fully electric, air-conditioned and carpeted and each floor will feature a lounge. A large recreation room and kitchen will be on the ground floor. Ten of the units are designed specifically for residents restricted to wheelchairs. The building also features two elevators, a sprinkler system and its own emergency power source. General contractor on the project is J. T. Groggans, of Danville.

Action Alleges Co-Op Violates City Zoning Act

The city of Prestonsburg moved last Friday to test in the courts its power by zoning ordinance to halt the operation of a coal mining operation within the city

Alleging that the Co-Op Mining Company, Inc. had disregarded a notice to remove all its equipment from the deep-mine site off old US 23, near the Ball Alley curve here, the city and its mayor, Harold W. Cooley, filed in circuit court a petition asking an injunction against the coal company

A hearing on the motion for injunction is slated here Wednesday.

Named defendants in the suit, in addition to the coal company, are its stockholders and shareholders, Dennis Caldwell and Donald L. Horn, and agents and employees of the firm.

Co-Op, which has been operating since last February, has 17 employees.

The city's suit is based on two zoning ordinance, one of which was in effect prior to June, 1966, the second adopted Dec. 4, 1975. It defines the purpose of the ordinance to be that of promoting the general welfare by establishing and regulating zoning districts throughout Prestonsburg, protecting the permitted uses in each district from the "undesirable effects of conflicting uses, and protecting the efficiency and encouraging the improvement of traffic circulation and access to land in all the districts in order that daily travel and commerce may increase in safety and increase with a minimum of delay...

The suit relates the succession of events pertaining to the mining enterprise to this effect:

Red, White, Blue Days Plans Near Complete

Plans and final organization of the ninth annual Red, White and Blue Day, set for October 20-22 here were being concluded this week and as the schedule appears now this year's celebration will be one of the most impressive ever.

High point of the festival, of course, will be Saturday's huge parade featuring scores of bands, military units and representatives of local and state organizations.

A color guard, consisting of Pikeville Army Reserve units and Kentucky National Guardsmen will march in the parade with the Prestonsburg National Guard unit, also being represented by a group of guardsmen manning a military half-track. Capt. Richard Favote will once again bring an ROTC unit from Morehead State University, and the Disabled American Veterans van will participate along with state DAV of-

Information may be obtained by calling Mrs. Dan Weber, 874-9320, or Mrs. Paul Spencer, 874-2657. Two Arrested In Rum Raids

A raid Friday on the Buckeye Fork of Middle Creek netted Sheriff Doug Lewis, Deputy Sheriff Rodney Holbrook and ABC Agent Ted H. Salisbury a quantity of illegal alcoholic beverages and resulted in the arrest of one man

Earl Ray Slone was charged with illegal possession after the officers discovered 11 pints of whiskey, 11 "fifths" of wine, and 65 bottles of beer.

Arrested Monday on a third offense charge of illegal possession of alcoholic beverages for purpose of sale was J. W. McIntosh, of Prestonsburg. McIntosh was charged after Sheriff Doug Lewis, Deputy Sheriffs Randall Lewis and Ollie Leslie, and ABC Agent Ted H. Salisbury recovered 104 cans of beer, eight "fifths" of whiskey, and a half-pint of vodka from McIntosh's residence and car. The auto was impounded in the action.

Another case of booze was discovered Saturday by Deputy Sheriff Lindsey Hunt when the officer found 36 "fifths" of whiskey in some weeds on Buffalo.

Others booked at the county jail over the past week, charges against each, and

The proposed ordinance does not fix rates but provides that any franchise granted under its authority will set forth the initial rates which the system may charge, and no rate established may afford undue preference or advantage among subscribers.

(The court's attempt to hold the Akers Television System to the $5-per-month rate is under injunction. Akers, whose facilities near Martin provide a wide range of channels for television reception, charged $10 per month in areas where full service was possible, and its successor, TEL-COM, has reduced that charge to $9. TEL-COM's warning to some subscribers that their service may be disconnected for non-payment of the monthly charge raised the question Tuesday if the fiscal court can go to circuit court for an injunction to protect subscribers from loss of service.) The proposed ordinance suggests the issuance of franchises for a period of 15 years, but, unless it is expressly stated otherwise, franchises may not be exclusive. Each system bidding for a franchise would be required to pay an application fee of $200 and those granted franchises will remit to the court on an annual basis 3 per cent of its gross in-

TV systems granted franchises will be required to place their systems in full compliance with FCC requirements within 60 days after a franchise is granted and to post a $5,000 performance bond. At least one station from each of the three major networks will be required, plus a Kentucky station if available

Franchise holders will be required to maintain a list of all complaints and the measures taken to resolve the problems

Okie Lawson, of the Lawson Sanitation Service, which has the waste collection franchise in the Mud Creek area, appeared before the court to ask that he be permitted to raise his monthly rate above the $4 now charged. He said he was unable to operate under the existing rate, but Magistrate Hershell Hamilton, of District 4, said he opposed an increase, contending that Lawson has many potential subscribers whom he needs to contact. The court will study the situation further, it was indicated.

School Board Critics Pledge Cooperation

Mutual pledges of cooperation characterized the Wednesday night meeting of the Floyd County Board of Education and approximately 50 members of People for Better Schools (PBS). Both groups emphasized their common goal: better schools for the children of Prestonsburg and Floyd Statewide attention has been brought to Prestonsburg high school because of the condition of the physical plant and by the ultimatum presented the Board of Education by Dr. Ernest Holbrook, chairman of the Floyd County Board of Health, which threatened closure of the school if certain "deplorable" sanitary conditions were not corrected.

Superintendent E. P. "Pete" Grigsby, Jr. stated Wednesday night that until he was served with the notice, he was unaware of conditions at the high school

He said that just four days prior to the date of the ultimatum, the high school had passed an inspection by the health department.

The passing inspection on Sept. 15 received a grade of 78 percent; the failing inspection, four days later, 70 percent, according to William Hughes, rincipal of the school. Both inspections were conducted by health department sanitarian, Carl Baldridge, according to Earl Compton, health department

Asked about the discrepancies in the two inspections, Compton said the school was "just in worse shape" four days

Building Poses Hazard to Town

Auxier residents are concerned by the hazard to life and property presented by the partially ruined frame structure that used to house the company store of the old Northeast Coal Company and more recently served as storage for the now defunct Princess Manufacturing Company. The imposing structure which stands squarely in the middle of the town has been the scene of numerous fires in the past and was condemned a year ago at the request of the Auxier Fire Department by the office of the state fire marshal.

State condemnation requires that the owner either renovate the building to safety standards or have it torn down within 60 days after condemnation, and, although some haphazard demolition work was done for about a week last spring, most of the structure remains standing and many residents feel it has only been weakened and made even more hazardous by the dismantling work which has

Where To Find Help? Ask Ky. Ombudsman

The public now has 24-hour access to the office which handles complaints and inquiries about the services of the state's largest agency. After-hour calls to the ombudsman of the Department for Human Resources now are being automatically recorded by a new answering service machine.

"The public now has around-the-clock accessibility to the department," said Human Resources Secretary Peter Conn. "Without increasing staff, we have greatly increased our availability and our capability for helping people.

According to Ombudsman Vertner Taylor, this will be accomplished by having one staff member come in at seven in the morning to take the messages off the tape and divide them among the rest of the staff when they arrive at 8 a.m. "This will ensure a prompt response," said Taylor.

The ombudsman's toll-free number is 1-800-372-2973. Some days the ombudsman's office receives as few as 20 calls, while an emergency such as a strike or a disaster might result in 500

"The machine will also be a great help during emergency situations, because recorded messages can be sent out on it. For instance, should there ever be a postal strike, we can have a phone hookup which tells people who receive benefits where to pick up the checks normally mailed to them," Taylor said.

The Department for Human Resources has four bureaus, but Taylor says that 75 percent of the calls to his office concern money related services of the Bureau for Social Insurance.

"People are naturally more anxious about something as vital as funds needed for food and rent. Many of these calls could be avoided if the person waited one or two more days, but regardless of what the problem is, we try to satisfy them, said Taylor.

Since benefit checks from the state are sent out at the first of each month, the busiest time for the ombudsman is a few days thereafter. Taylor said that the miner's strike was the most trying emergency he has had to deal with since he has been in the office.

Taylor sees the role of ombudsman as one of cutting through red tape. His employees have to be knowledgeable of the workings of state government. He tells them to assure Kentuckians that they do have redress for their grievances, first at the local level and then at higher levels if the original decision does not satisfy them.

The ombudsman makes weekly reports to the department's deputy secretary and monthly reports to each bureau head. These reports point out trends which enable the bureaus to become more efficient in providing services, according to Taylor.

'We are available to all Kentuckians through a toll-free number and we attempt to help solve any problem dealing with state government even if it is not in the realm of human resources. We don't give legal advice, or determine eligibility for benefits; we just try to tell people how to go about solving their particular problem," Taylor said.

A Labor Department publication, "Labor Firsts in America," reports that the first antidiscrimination law against women was in Illinois in 1872, and that in 1879 the first state legislation to prohibit the employment of women in coal mines

Bottle legislation seems inevitable because throwaway beer and soda containers make up six percent of the nation's solid waste and this type of refuse is among the most visible. A national system would reduce the total significantly and save the equivalent of 81,000 barrels of oil per day. The bottling industry is almost uniformly opposed to deposit proposals and have some 1,000 full-time positions devoted to killing the proposals, according to one industry estimate.

which to operate nobody cared a lot. The wind was whipping up whitecaps over the lake while the thermometer was doing a sharp nosedive (recall a prediction made in this column last week?), but the houseboat ponderously eased along over those waves in a smooth glide, all was snug inside, and nobody fought for the right to go out in the smaller craft which we towed behind.

This was a new experience to most of us, hard-core fishermen accustomed to bouncing around in all weathers, eating out of a tin can and fishing as long as there was light, come what may. We were not, so to speak, in the lap of luxury, but we were mighty near it.

Luxury that is found at anchor in a faraway spot, no telephone to jangle, no television or newspaper to keep you aware of the world and a lot of its tragedies. Out there was blue water; above, a blue sky; along nearby shorelines towering rock cliffs, evergreens dotted with the autumn colors of maples and sourwood. Inside, shelter from the wind, warmth, tall tales, the camaraderie of a few ordinarily petty souls set free. Luxury.

Coffee, bacon-and-eggs, fried potatoes. pork-'n'-beans, bologna. We lived "high on the hog," two days and nights. Old appetites grew young on plain fare. Nobody grew soft in this "luxury" but who could want better?

Our only contact with "civilization" was by a battery-powered radio which faded out at every critical point in the ball games being reported. And after UK and Kansas City and Philadelphia had all lost, most of us wouldn't have mourned if the radio had fallen into the lake. Fishing? Were the bass striking? You bet. Had a picket line set up, and only bluegill and disloyal "yellow dog" bass would cross it.

THE MYSTERY SOLVED

Now I know why Watt Hale hasn't reported to me this summer. As a picture elsewhere in this edition shows, he has been busy growing gourds.

HERE FOR WEEK-END

Miss Becky Lou Harris, of Lexington, and Tony Harris, of Paintsville, were here during the week-end for a visit with Miss Harris' grandmother, Mrs. Rebecca Rasnick, and her aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Pettrey.

Thank Mrs. Clifton

On Thursday evening, October 4, the Floyd County School Board had its monthly meeting. Almost 60 of us in attendance were witness to an amazing sight. Ruby Catherine Clifton, president of a group known as People for Better Schools, which had been in existence about a month, "took on" the Floyd County Board of Education. Unafraid, she asked questions which should have long ago been asked. Mainly, "Are you going to repair some of the unbelievably sick physical conditions which exist at Prestonsburg High School?" And they listened to her. And they answered her. And we discovered, to our amazement, that this singular voice was being given some proper attention and answers indicating work had been done and more would be done. And we left feeling a little better, in hope that the repairs would go on; and that the board would continue to cooperate with this woman who we felt was fighting our battle. We simply want to say, "Thank You", Ruby Catherine Clifton, and other officers and committees of P.B.S., and we hope by this small gesture of our appreciation you and your group will always continue to fight for what you and we believe inclean and safe school conditions that will be conductive to teaching and learning

Let's Deal with Issues

I write this letter as an interested citizen who has lived in Floyd county for the past six years. I am dismayed by the letter in last week's issue referring particularly to whether those involved in the negotiations with the school board are local or outsiders. It is critical to keep clear the important issues regarding this community problem.

First of all, we must remain united. There may be varying opinions concerning who is or who is not responsible for the poor conditions at Prestonsburg High School. Some of the problems may be within the power of our school system to correct and some may not be within that power. The root causes of these problems, though, must be dealt with openly and honestly. No one should be trying to brand anyone else.

Secondly, and most importantly, the issue of local or outsider must not be allowed to cloud the essential questions being addressed. This issue is not relevant. What is relevant, however, is that our children get the best education possible. The questions involved require true dialogue and wisdom. But this dialogue should not be judged by the family heritage or the accent of the other, but by the quality of what the other has to say.

The time for heat is over. There must be light. I pray that all of us actively pursuing a better school system may be open enough to listen to one another for the good of our children and the future of our community city in regard to what permits if any were needed for mining. The city claims no information was relayed to the company or its agent that permits were granted.

-On March 1, City Engineer Richard E. Martin notified the mayor that the mine being opened was in the city limits.

-Five days later, Donald L. Horn and Albert A. Burchett appeared before the Planning and Zoning Commission. Documents defining the mining activity were submitted, and the Commission was notified by Horn that a contractor was cleaning out the old mine at the site and hauling away the dirt. The suit adds that Horn also stated that he had not been ordered by the city to stop work and that if an injunction were filed he would go ahead with mining at his own risk. Burchett notified the Commission that petition to rezone the property would be filed within a few days. -On March 7 a letter was addressed to Burchett and the company to the effect that any work in establishing a mining operation was in violation of the zoning ordinance until such time that a change in zoning was granted and a conditional permit issued.

-A stop order was delivered to Caldwell, contractor at the mine, on March 16 by Joe P. Tackett, Jr., city building inspector.

-A hearing on the proposed zoning change was scheduled April 3 and continued to May 1. Burchett and Caldwell. the suit says, indicated to the Commission that coal had been removed and that work would continue, even though it was in violation of the zoning ordinance.

-After the zoning hearing on May 1, the City Council denied the zoning change and notice was given defendants that they had till May 13 to remove all their equipment.

The city claims defendants have created "a continuing and public nuisance" and have continually interfered with the public welfare. It asks that, in addition to the injunction, the defendants be fined, that other sanctions be imposed and that defendants forfeit all right, title and interest to the property in question. (Only the plaintiff's side is represented in early reports of civil actions.)

Letters to the Editor

"Clear as Mud"

I wish to make some "editorial" comments on articles in the August - September issues of the FLOYD COUNTY TIMES pertaining to actions of the Floyd fiscal court regarding Ex-Sheriff Lewis' jurisdictional status.

Some of the articles leave one with the impression that there are political overtones which may have precipitated the confrontations. Lewis must have been accomplishing something worth while because, as the old adage goes, "Nobody kicks a DEAD dog." But, what was he ACCOMPLISHING? And why do his political collegues rant so obviously and want him stopped? THAT is the QUESTION.

The Floyd Fiscal Court (Kenneth Roberts, Ed Caudill, Ray Wilcox, Hershell Hamilton, County Attorney Arnold Turner and Yvonne Jones) have made their position "clear as mud"-they want Lewis' jurisdiction limited to the city of Wheelwright. But why make such a decision before a higher court decision has been rendered, defining his (Lewis') authority? Why should a man who works so hard have his 'hands tied behind him' by this small group of people? I wonder, are their actions really in the best interest of the citizenry?

While this fiscal court is being so vehement about this matter, let's also consider these questions:

(1) Is the Floyd Fiscal Court doing anything to improve roads in the county's (2) Is it making sure that public buildings are maintained properly? (Not long ago, the new courthouse looked neglected and dirty.) And I commend the grand jury on its recommendations regarding repairs and general main-

(3) Does the fiscal court help see that children have decent schools? (I know that the Board of Education has this responsibility, but I would think that the fiscal court could take actions to see that children have a safe, clean learning environment.)

(4) And, what are these people in the fiscal court doing to help the sheriff's department provide adequate lawenforcement services for Floyd county?

I noticed in one article that the sheriff's department can afford only TWO salaried deputies for the whole county. If it's so inadequately limited in personnel, it's no wonder the Ex-Sheriff pitched in and helped out. And, receiving $3,900 remuneration for six or seven months' work seems meager indeed; that averages about $600 per month, more or less, which is a bargain indeed for the services of an experienced law official like Lewis. It's ludicrous that the fiscal court should expect the present sheriff to repay this, especially so since a higher court has made no decision as yet.

Would you believe that this Ohio county where I live has about 20 salaried deputies, and that their starting salaries are around $9,000 a year? Would you believe that a sheriff's salary here is around $36,000 a year, plus $9,000 for his wife to act as jail matron. Compare these statistics to those of Floyd county. And then ask yourself, "Why doesn't the Floyd fiscal court allocate enough budgetary money so that the sheriff can adequately staff his office and provide Floyd countians with sufficient law enforcement? After all, those magistrates are receiving a very adequate income themselves, aren't they? Isn't it something like $13,500 a year? That averages $1,125.00 per month! What do they do that causes them to receive twice as much as a deputy there? (I understand deputies are paid about $500 per month.) Do the members of the fiscal court establish their own salaries? If I were a taxpayer there, I would be learning the answers to such

In another article (Aug. 23, '78 issue) the word usurpation was used in reference to the Ex-Sheriff. Webster defines that as FORCIBLE SEIZURE. It seems to me that attorney Allen should be better equipped in his terminology than to choose such an exaggeration for the described situation. Such maneuvers make one wonder if the particular term was meant to convey more than it should have. After all, there would have to be a MUTINY, if there were usurpation of authority. And, besides, I should think that since Lewis is a deputy marshal in a 6th class city, (and such marshal having the powers of sheriff for the suppression of a riot, disturbance of the peace, or resistance to law and authority) that he has legal authority to make arrests in Floyd County. I fail to understand where he could be considered as usurping anyone's authority.

Also, a state law that prohibits a sheriff himself seems succeed discriminatory, and one which a Supreme Court would most likely strike down as unconstitutional. Why deny HIM (a sheriff) the right to earn a living at what he is most qualified to do-if the voters want him? I think your laws need to be more consistent: either all public officials be allowed to succeed themselves, or else none be allowed to do so. But, to apply it only to a sheriff is to discriminate against him, both as a politician and as an individual.

I wonder if perhaps the local political element is afraid that two Lewis heads are better than one? I question whether they are grasping at straws in an effort to discredit the man. Isn't there a judge vacancy in Floyd county? Maybe some ambitious politician wants that position, and is afraid that Ex-Sheriff Lewis might be a strong political rival for it. And thus begins the campaign to disempower him and subtly disparage his reputation.

What really gets ridiculous is that his 'attackers'' don't want the public to view them as his attackers; their fear of the public's regard for Lewis' integrity seems to make them hide behind a 'cloak of doing what's the legal thing to

These people seem to want to win if they're in the right, and also hope to win if they're in the wrong. One example is the County Attorney's apology for his own actions when he explains that he has acted only as a representative of the county and hopes there will be no ill feelings against him from the sheriff's department. If he feels he's performing his obligated duty, why apologize? And, if he feels he is not, then why perform such actions? Everything just really becomes "clear as mud" when you try to understand such double-talk.

Mr. Lewis has given almost 30 years of DEDICATED service to Floyd county. No doubt he went without regular meals and many hours of needed sleep and rest because his job was so demanding. But did he ever complain about the hard work, long hours, and meager pay? He has laid his life on the line for the people of his county. And, after all this, I don't feel the man need defend his reputation and integrity. His name and work speak for him. I do think it's a shameful thing for politicians to make such a putrescent mess over a minor point of law and act so ingratiating when they should be showering accolades on the ex-sheriff for his past performance.

Columbus, O.

Questions Justice

Two men were murdered in Floyd County, both killings were reported as vicious and criminal. But one killer is charged with a "capital" crime which is supposed to carry a higher degree of punishment. Why the difference in crime? Is it because one of the murdered men was a friend to coal miners that his life is regarded as less valuable? O Justice, where hast thou flown?

Bad News for FCT . . .

It has been with a degree of sadness that I have decided I won't be writing the 'Society Notes'' for this newspaper, after

When, about two years ago, you asked me to do this column, while Mrs. Ruth Sowards, who had edited it for many years, was ill, I was glad to do so, mainly for two reasons:

1. While my family and I had lived elsewhere for awhile, I had lost contact with some of our "old" friends, and several "new" people had moved here during that time. Writing this column gave me the chance to renew old friendships, and to become acquainted with many of the persons we hadn't previously

2. Retiring (a little) early, after teaching, oh, so many years (from kindergarten through the senior college level), to housework, on a full-time basis, required a little help in "bridging that gap." I found that writing this news me to make that great transition For these reasons, I shall always be

I have simply decided that covering the social items is beginning to require more time than I can afford to devote to this

Please allow me to say that sharing the joys and the sorrows of persons who have contributed news to this column has been an experience that has enriched my life.

Thoughtful remarks like: "We know you'll tell the truth on us," and "I brokedown and cried like a baby when I read your little Christmas story," and the gift of a lace-trimmed handkerchief, with the message, "A token of appreciation," printed by a blind woman news contributor, have made me realize, as never before, how incapable I am of putting gratefulness into words. I hope that the simple word, THANKS, in its true and rightful meaning, will be acceptable to

Historymobile Exhibit To Feature Coal Industry at Festival Here

Historymobile, which features an exhibit on the state's coal industry, will participate in the ninth annual Red, White and Blue Festival here, Oct. 21 and 22.

"We have one of the most unique patriotic festivals in America," said Marcella Bailey, founder and coordinator of the event. "Every student in the county can participate, as well as civic organizations, local businesses and churches. The event includes a parade, two beauty pageants and a patriotic ceremony on Sunday.'

Mrs. Bailey has presented her idea of making the festival a national holiday to groups throughout the United States and recently talked with President Carter about Floyd county's unique event.

The historymobile with its exhibit,

Ballads written about coal mining during the industry's development provide the background music in the Iside program.

Branham's Bond Oct. 19 Meeting Set at $10,000 In Jail Stabbing

Alvin Branham, Jr. was held to $10,000 bond after examining trial was held last Thursday on a charge of first degree assault. The charge stemmed from the stabbing in the county jail recently of another prisoner, Tommy DeRossett.

Branham was in jail at the time, charged with the holdup of the Cooley Grocery here. He later escaped the jail with two other prisoners, but was recaptured.

Charlie Hamilton, at whose home across the river from Prestonsburg, Branham was found by officers, was held to $3,000 bond and his district court trial set for Tuesday. He is charged with hindering the apprehension of a fugitive.

State Representative Bill Weinberg, D-Hindman, has told a legislative committee to consider making some sweeping changes in the state's road maintenance program.

"The state maintenance system here in Kentucky needs maintenance, maybe even a complete overhaul," Weinberg told the Legislature's committee studying highway maintenance and construction

Weinberg said Kentucky's maintenance system 'has remained basically unchanged for the past 30 years.'

"New programs have been stacked on top of each other as new sources of money have appeared," he said. "It's time for a fresh look and a new begin-

Weinberg said Kentucky's roads are inadequate, especially in eastern Kentucky. "The roads are inadequate for getting coal out and they are inadequate for getting people from their homes to these fine superhighways that have been built," he said.

"It doesn't do any good to build these superhighways if people can't get to them," Weinberg said.

Weinberg told the committee there are several major problems with the maintenance operation. Among the problems he mentioned are: delays in construction caused by the absence of an effective system for supplying equipment and material for maintenance; inadequate salaries and the confusion caused by the lack of coordination between the state and county maintenance operations.

Dear Consumer

Views Sought on Food Labeling

By Esther Peterson Special Assistant to the President for Consumer Affairs

What do you want to see on a food label? Three Federal agencies have launched a campaign to learn just that. The Food and Drug Administration (FDA), the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) and the Federal Trade Commission (FTC) are inviting consumers to express their views at five hearings being held around the country from August through October. The agencies feel consumer comment will help them develop better ways of providing useful nutrition information on food labels. Written comments on the issues are also welcomed.

Each of the agencies regulabeling and marketing and is coordinating activities with the others. FDA regulates the labeling of all foods except red meat and poultry, which are regulated by USDA. FTC regulates food advertising.

Among the questions on which the government is seeking public comment are:

· Should ingredient labeling be required for all foods? (Some foods are excluded by law from ingredient listing.)

· Should fresh and raw foods as well as all processed foods be required by law to carry full nutrition labels? (Now, only foods which have added nutrients or which make a nutritional claim must carry the nutrition label.)

· Should all foods have "open dating"-such as the date on which a food was packed or the last recommended day of retail sale-and which dates would be most

. If a food is an "imitation" lates some aspect of food of another, should that food be called "imitation" or should it be given a new name?

· Are there types of foods to which vitamins and minerals should not be added?

· What current information on food labels is most important? Least important? What new information should be on labels?

· To better inform consumers on these issues, FDA is distributing issue papers discussing these points. They may be obtained from Taylor Quinn, FDA Bureau of Foods, 200 C St., S.W. Washington, D.C. 20204; telephone (202) 245-1243. Hearing schedule information and other details may also be obtained from Mr.

Written comments from those who can't appear at hearings may be sent to Hearing Clerk, HFC-18, Food and Drug Administration, Room 4-62, 5600 Fishers Lane, Rockville, Maryland 20857.

"KITE" Brings Down Trucking Violations

Operation "KITE" caught a traffic entering the state from lot of trucks flying high during a recent four-day blitz by highway enforcement officers from the state Department of Transportation, Indiana State Police and federal transportation officials who operated road blocks in the Owensboro, Henderson and Evansivlle

KITE refers to Kentucky-Indiana Truck Emforcement, the first joint operation of this type between the two states, that went into effect Sept. 24 and continued until Sept. 28.

At that time federal transportation officials, Kentucky's 33 participating highway officers, and 40 Indiana state police officers sat down to analyze the results.

'We didn't have any proconceived ideas as to what we'd find," said state highway enforcement director Col. Dick Horn, explaining the operation. "There were no numbers or specific goals to reach," he said, "although the operation did have some definite guidelines to follow.

Road blocks were set up in both states along US 41 and US 231 to stop all commercial truck traffic for inspection. Kentucky operated inspection points for all southbound Indiana, Horn said.

Specifically, the officers correct or absent log books and cab cards, improper or nonexistent registration and un-

Even though nearly 50 percent of the total citations were handed out during the first two days and truckers from Michigan to Tennessee were aware of the operation, highway enforcement officers continued to find violations. according to Horn.

Figures for the KITE operation show that in Kentucky, 6,805 trucks were inspected, 293 operators were arrested, 283 vehicles were parked for safety violations and 73 operators received warnings. Federal transportation officials checked 82 trucks, parked 64 for safety violations. Kentucky mining and mineral officials cited one operator for improper handling taken the initial formal step in achieving primacy under the federal Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act of 1977 by applying for a $2.7 million Permanent Program Development Grant from the U.S. Office of Surface Mining.

According to Horn, the operation was an "enormous success" and truck operators are warned that they may see the road block blitz appear again, and again, and again.

Primacy, as written in the federal law, will be granted to a state after it is capable of enforcing the federal law and is actually carrying out the specified

The money will be used to develop five programs: small operators assistance, reclamation inspector training, designating lands unsuitable for surface mining, development of a computerized surface mine information system and orphan lands program development.

The application is the state's first under procedures set out in the 1977 Act aimed at achieving primacy for the states. Kentucky recently received $1.9 million under the interim program to reimburse the state for expenditures needed to carry out the law during its first year.

"Since passage of the federal strip mining law, Kentucky has been a leader in achieving compliance," said Eugene Mooney, secretary for the state

> 'This money will give us the resources to probide and develop the program to the permanent federal requirements and thereby eventually achieve total enforcement of the law in Kentucky, Mooney said.

"The training of reclamation inspectors will cover such subjects as state and federal laws, basic technology area characteristics and basic investigative procedures," Mooney added.

Under the Small Operators Assistance Program the state will help provide laboratory services for small operators seeking permits. Those services are needed so operators can meet water quality standards and obtain analyses of core drilling samples. These needs are major technical and cost constraints to the smaller operator.

The Computerized Surface Mine Information System will be used to maintain an information retrieval system on all permits, operations and producers

The other two programs, Orphan Lands and Lands Unsuitable for Surface Mining, will deal mainly with identifying and classifying the appropriate lands under the categories of needed retroactive reclamation and future land planning respectively.

The federal money, which will be matched with state funds, will support the programs for fiscal year 1978-79.

New Mining Laws Subject of Seminar

Operators of small coal mines in Eastern Kentucky will have an opportunity to learn about some problems and possible solutions to newly-proposed federal surface mining laws at a one-day seminar Tuesday October 17 at Pikeville

The seminar, which begins at 10 a.m., is being sponsored by the Coal Industry Technical Assistance Center (CITAC) and Pikeville College which will bring to the area some of the top officials of the Office of Surface Mining (OSM). This will be an opportunity for industry people to express their views on these regulations.

Small and medium size coal mine operators are especially urged to attend this seminar to learn in what ways the federal government is willing to help them in such areas as financial assistance, consultation, legal problems

Dr. Charles Jordon, associate professor with Pikeville College's Department of Mining Technology, wishes to stress the importance of this seminar which is being held one week before public hearings begin on the proposed permanent regulations. The nearest public hearing will be held in Knoxville, beginning October 24.

The seminar at Pikeville College will also feature a display of environmental monitoring instruments and related apparatus by VWR Scientific Company, Preiser Scientific Company and Fisher Scientific Company.

Registration which is free of charge and open to the public can be made in advance or at the desk on the day of the seminar. Additional information may be obtained by calling the CITAC office at (606) 432-3161 extension 323

Child of Alcohic Suffers Fear, Guilt

They are told, "Just take one day at a time." They are Ala-teens. They are a group of young people who gather frequently to talk about a common problem...an alcoholic parent.

The child of an alcoholic faces a variety of problems that most kids do not have to face early in life. The child of an alcoholic faces the potential threat of physical abuse, and other health problems. They also face a variety of stress problems like guilt, fear, shame, and isolation. The child of an alcoholic also faces other problems which are not so obvious, like learning social behavior from a parent who is suffering in

"The children of some alcoholics face the possible threat of being beaten, molested, or suffering some other abuse as a result of their mom or dad being drunk," said Wendy Quammen of the Cave Run Comprehensive Care Center in Morehead. He continued, "These kids live in daily fear of that physical abuse. For some, there is no let-up."

Wendy Quammen is a seasoned counselor, and supervisor of counselors at the Morehead Center. Quammen says, "Beyond the fear for their safety, some of them live with the problem of incredible guilt...they blame themselves for their parents condition." Quammen went on to say, "In working with these young people, that is one thing we try to work on...we let them know that you (the child) are not the cause of your parents need for alcohol or what they might do under its influence..you are not responsible."

Quammen says that counselors do not stop with telling the child he or she is not the cause. "We also make sure they know that they must be responsible for themselves to a certain point—they must deal with their own problems." Quammen added, "They must understand Children of alcoholics suffer in many ways similar to the drinking parent. According to Ray Daugherty, Executive Director for the Kentucky Alcoholism Council, "The child of an alcoholic, more than anyone else because they are forming their self-image, take on the identity of the alcoholic parent." Daugherty continued, "These kids take on some of the experiences of the parent, they adopt the negative self-image—the feeling of failure, the feeling of loss of control, and the feeling of guilt.'

Since the children of alcoholics have no other role model to pattern their life styles after, many children seem to take on personality traits of their parents. According to Wendy Quammen, this presents problems, "The children learn from their parents behavior-that even means they learn that beating each other up is a way to solve a problem.'

'Drunk or sober, the child seems to believe the parents arguements, and sometimes the violence which may result, are a way of life," Quammen pointed out. "What that also means, is when they grow older, whether or not the child decides to drink, he has a role model that may allow for the beating up of a wife as the problem solving mechanism," says Quammen.

It is hard to say how many children are suffering from problems associated with alcoholism in the family. The programs which deal with helping these individuals do not always keep records. One such program is Ala-teen. "Ala-teen is a program which is often misunderstood by the public," says Ray Daugherty. "It is a program designed for the child who has alcoholism in the family-not the teenage alcoholic," Daugherty went on.

Since Ala-teen is a direct spin off of Alcoholics Anonymous, there are no membership records kept. Ala-teen is a program which follows some of the same principles of A.A. Ala-teen strongly advises their participants to live one day at a time. They also suggest specific steps to deal with their problem, the same steps which are used in helping alcoholics in their recovery.

"Above and beyond the step by step rebuilding process, the kids who go to Ala-teen learn that they are not alone. They learn that there are people who have been through exactly the same kind of trauma. That kind of help is not as systematic as the steps in the recovery, but it is just as needed," says Daugherty.

There are other programs available to the children of alcoholics. They include special counseling at Comprehensive Care Centers throughout the state. Also, some schools and universities have counseling offices which can help the child of an alcoholic find assistance and

Horseshoe Pitching To Be Expo Event

The North American International Livestock Exposition will feature major horseshoe pitching events this year. The Expo will be held November 4-18, and horseshoe events will take place five days during the show at the Kentucky Fair and Exposition Center in Louisville.

Nearly $1,500 in trophies, prizes and other competitive incentives will highlight the events, attracting some of the best pitchers in the region. However, several events are planned to include pitchers of varying skills. Two major Louisville businesses have teamed up with the North American International to attract this significant event to the area: WAMZ-FM Radio, Louisville's largest Country-Western radio station and Yellowstone Bourbon, known worldwide as a Kentucky product of Glenmore Distilleries.

Michael Crusham of WAMZ and Fred J. Burghard, Jr., of Glenmore, said that the entire tournament and all scoring will be under the supervision of the Metro Horseshoe Club in Louisville. Schedule of horseshoe events is as follows:

November 4-9 a.m. - 6 p.m., Qualifying Events. No fee required. November 5-12 noon - 6 p.m. Qualifying Events. No fee required. November 9-6 p.m., Tournament.

Entry fee, $5. November 11-6 p.m., Tournament.

November 11-9 a.m., Tournament, Entry fee, $5. 1p.m., Invitational Tournament. By invitation to the nation's best. All Day . Bluegrass Music Exhibition.

Anyone is eligible to compete in the qualifying events, and tournament players will be selected on the basis of scores earned in the qualifying events. Tournament play will include 12 classes. Spokemen for the event indicate that qualifying events may attract up to 1,000 participants, and tournament play will feature up to 144 finalists. The Invitational Tournament will, for the first time, bring the world's finest pitchers to Louisville for the purpose of both competition and demonstrations of skill.

Crusham and Burghard also confirmed that a Bluegrass Music Extravaganza will take place on the final day of Tournament Play, November 11. That event will feature many of the area's finest Bluegrass musicians, playing the best of their renditions.

Information and entry forms regarding all events can be obtained from: Horseshoes, c-o Ag Associates, Inc., 756 South First St., Louisville, Kentucky 40202, Phone 584-8060.

"Good words" from Pikeville's Dr. Rudolfo Valera and family have attracted two new doctors to the area.

Dr. Corazon Antonio joined the Mountain Comprehensive Care Center staff in Prestonsburg this month as a full-time psychiatrist. Her husband, Dr. Carlos Antonio, a general practicioner, plans to begin the practice of medicine in the area as soon as he completes full licensure procedures.

The Valera and the Antonio families have been friends since they attended medical school together in their native country, the Philippine Islands. In spite of the families' separation, they have remained in close contact since the Antonio's came to the U.S. in 1970.

Dr. Corazon Antonio recently finished a three-year psychiatric residency at the Hayden and Donahue Mental Health Institute in Norman, Oklahoma. This was completed in conjunction with a medical internship. Since she is "fresh from training," Dr. Antonio feels she can bring new knowledge to the effort of helping the mentally ill in this area.

The Antonio's plan to reside in either Pikeville or Prestonsburg, depending upon available housing. The two physicians have three children: Carlos, Jr., 14; Chris, 13; and Caroline, 8.

Floyd Election Interest Low But Poll Machinery Set

Although the Nov. 7 general election could be one of the dullest in years, Floyd county is setting up for it as if it were one of the traditional do-or-die political

The only "local" interest lies in Congressman Carl D. Perkins' campaign for reelection, and even that is not one to create any excitement, since his Republican opponent, perennial candidate Granville Thomas, reportedly isn't campaigning.

The other hope for local interest died with the registration deadline when only administration candidates for the Floyd County Board of Education filed. Dr. J. D. Adams in Educational Division 1 and Ray "Shag" Campbell in Division 2, both incumbents, are unopposed.

The only possible source of suspense lies in the campaign for U. S. Senator with Senator Walter "Dee" Huddleston opposed by Louie Guenther, Jr. Republican, and Anthony A. McCord, American Party candidate.

death. It was lawmen chasing the outlaws, the outlaws chasing trains and digging for gold and the claim jumpers jumping the claims. Thus the fast guns burst into flame, then some less, with no name or no claim. It was the cattlemen the clodbusters. It was friction of every sort, coming in from every angle, making a boiling pot and a battleground

all the way. Now if that wasn't excitement, colorful excitement, just what

With all this in our great west, why wouldn't one fall in love with it? I got my first taste in 1933 panning gold in the Yuba river, and my first glimpse of the most beautiful country I could ever behold on this earth. I have made quite a lot of trips since, which have taken me into most every hole and corner of the west, yet there's a lot for me to see. In some places I have been over them two or three times

Like a mighty magnate it draws me, there's no place on earth quite like it, in marvelous beauty and its exciting, colorful history. I just had to see it again, so I boarded a giant bird and flew westward.

Its beauty is made up of chains of snowcapped mountains, sprawling plains, beautiful, clear rivers, some in mad tumbling, rushing, torrents, some placid, clear, deep blue, which seem to invite the fishermans line, that he may be rewarded with a battling trout or salmon.

The rushing rivers can also reward one with gold and silver, which is an exciting venture if you've got the elbow grease and back-bone to spare. Up these rivers you encounter the high mountains, with the tall, tall timber which seems to touch the sky. Some of the Redwoods are as much as 365 feet high, and the great Sequoias are almost as tall and aregiants in size. One feels so small standing beside them, looking upward to see how they are towering over you. Also there are the beautiful, clear-blue lakes with nature's splendor surrounding them, some bordered with high, sheer cliffs, or with rolling knolls, backed up by high mountains, bordered by the timber giants, all of which makes up a painters

Also there are great panamoric vistas, canyons, gorges and various shapes of pinnacles, caverns, deep pits and crevices, in all the colors of the rainbow, making it a fantasy land of gorgeous beauty. There, too, is the Painted Desert which is also one of many hues and colors, making it a panaromic beauty as it lies sprawled in splendor. Also the great rock formations in various places run from sheer cliffs two to three thousand feet almost straight up, some formed into high pinnacles standing up like guardians over the great landscape-all this and much more is enough to hold one spellbound, if they are a lover

With all the great west's beauty and splendor, it has it's colorful, exciting history, brought about by it's very uniqueness of nature and fortunes. Gold and silver, buffalo and cattle, climate and great grazing lands such as the California sun and the Great Plains grazing lands, which attracted the golddiggers and the cattle barons, the shoot'em-up cow towns, the battles with the Indians, the Mexicans, the draw of the deadly outlaws, the wooing and winning of the beautiful senoritas, the battles for same. There permeated the air of absolute freedom, as free as a bird; there were no strings to tie the spirit down, Thus came the whoop'em up spirit that prevailed in wild, free stage for fifty years or more. It was a setting for the greatest action of it's kind in history. Came the cowboy, the railroads, the train robbers, the fast guns, the stage lines, the holdups, the fast draws one erased or omitted, passing on to the happy hunting

Mrs. Blair To Lead Watergap CF Drive

Jay Crouse, president of the Bluegrass Chapter, Cystic Fibrosis Foundation, has announced the assistance of two Floyd countians in organizing a door-to-door campaign in October, the Breath of Life month. Sharon Watson of Prestonsburg, and Mrs. Myrtie Blair, of Watergap, will lead local volunteers in the fund-raising

The funds raised during the campaign will go to support research and care programs for children affected by lungdamaging diseases like Cystic Fibrosis, severe asthma, chronic bronchitis, and bronchiectasis

Cystic Fibrosis, an inherited incurable disease, affects approximately 1 in every 1500 children born. C-F is a vicious disease that produces mucus in the lungs, causing terrible breathing difficulties, repeated lung infections and serious lung damage. The mucus can also interfere with normal digestion.

Because of improved treatment developed through research over the past 20 years many C-F patients are now living into their teens and young adulthood. This same treatment is also benefiting and often curing children suffering from other lung-damaging diseases. Even with this progress, the need of millions of children who struggle to breathe grows larger, and with it the need for more volunteers and more

Q. Is there a relationship between cystic disease of the breast and its relation to breast

A. Cystic disease, sometimes referred to as fibrocystic disease or chronic cystic mastitis, is a common cause of benign lumps and hard areas in the breast. It is seen chiefly in women 35 to 50 years of age and it usually regresses after the menopause. The condition tends to involve both breasts, and multiple cysts of many sizes are common. It is characteristic for the breast to treatment has produced some have a "cobblestone" feel. Unlike malignant tumors, cysts are usually movable, spherical in shape, and relatively soft. They may enlarge and become tender just prior to the menstrual Experience has shown that cystic disease is associated with an increased risk of subsequent breast cancer. However, the malignancies that occur in these patients rarely arise from a cyst. Nevertheless, women with cystic disease should be examined frequently. It is recommended that cysts that do not fluctuate in size or that are otherwise suspicious be biopsied and-or surgically removed. Neither X-ray therapy nor hormones are recommended for treating breast cysts. In fact, hormones prescribed for other reasons may aggravate the cystic condition. If this occurs modification of the hormone dosage may be necessary.

Q. I have read that scientists have discovered a vaccine known as "BCG" that might be effective in treating cancer. Could this be possible?

A. Bacillus Calmette-Guerin (BCG) is a vaccine that has long been used to immunize patients against tuberculosis. In recent years, cancer researchers working with BCG found that it could stimulate resistance against the development of tumors in laboratory animals. Also, in studies with laboratory animals having an early stage of cancer, researchers found that BCG could bring about tumor regression in 50 to 75 percent of those animals.

Currently BCG is being studied as a treatment in human cancer, particularly malignant melanoma, leukemia, and cancer of the lung. Clinical trials of BCG are in progress at the University of Kentucky Medical Research Center, Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center in New York, the National Cancer Institute, the M.D. Anderson Hospital and Tumor Institute in Houston, Texas, and in many other leading universities and medical centers. Findings have been variable. Investigation of BCG therapy in combination with other compete at the Kentucky Horse Park this Saturday and Sunday, and the public is invited to attend free.

The human athletes will have their day Saturday, Oct. 14, when approximately 450 high school cross-country runners negotiate the horse park's steeplechase course-minus the hurdles. Among these, from this section, will be Jenkins boys' team, Magoffin and Menifee counties' boys' and girls teams.

On Sunday, Oct. 15, equines and humans will team up to play exhibition

The cross-country meet, sponsored by Lexington Catholic High School, is expected to draw the state's best girl and boy runners, according to Mark Roche, coordinator and Lexington Catholic cross-country coach. Among the prominent girls teams scheduled to compete are Daviess County and Owensbore Apollo, including 1976-77 and 1977-78 champion class AA individual Kathleen Buemel. Twenty-eight girls teams from Louisville Atherton's boys team, toprated in its AAA class this year, is slated to participate along with defending championship boys teams from Pulaski County (class AA) and Somerset (class A). Forty-one teams are expected.

Roche said the meet will be the only one of its size in central Kentucky, and in the state will be surpassed in size only by Covington Catholic's annual invitational.

Spectators will have an unusually good vantage point since the steepleplechase course has its own ample seating. The competitors may be gaining an advantage for the future as well, since the Kentucky High School Athletic Association's cross-country championships are scheduled to be run over the same course in November.

The girls' 3,000 meter race will begin at noon, Oct. 14, and the boys, running 5,000 meters, will start at 12:30 p.m. that day. Horse Park visitors wanting to watch the cross-country race will be directed to the steeplechase course after parking in the main parking lot.

Tailgating will be the order of the day for the polo exhibition at 2 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 15. Kentucky Horse Park Superintendent Don Wathen plans to erect bleachers for 1,000 spectators and to invite others to watch from picnic blankets, tailgates and vans on the permiter of the polo field.

Polo exhibition coordinator Tom Akers of Louisville said better players from the South and mid-South circuits would take part, as well as local polo players. He plans two games each with three men to a side. The first game, featuring circuit players, will last approximately one hour; the second with local players, about 45 minutes.

Both Akers and Roche expect to stage future contests at the Kentucky Horse Park. Roche hopes to make the Lexington Catholic-Kentucky Horse Park Cross-Country Invitational an annual affair. Akers said polo circuit officials would attend the exhibition matches to help plan future games at the

Old Walnut "Bears" Gourds

Watt Hale, mountain sage and story-teller par excellence, is pictured beside a walnut tree at his home at West Prestonsburg which hangs heavy with long-necked gourds! Hale, who says the old tree "is on its way out," reckons that the tree, having lost its ability to produce much in the way of walnuts, "decided since it didn't have long on this earth it might as well bear a crop of gourds." Hale is also known as having something of a "green thumb," and the ladder leaning against the tree suggest that the walnut may have had some help in bearing its unusual fruit.

W'wright Trojans Protest Treatment

> By GREG ISSAC AND HENRY ISAAC (Wheelwright High School Journalism class)

Wheelwright received a whomping from Elkhorn City last Friday, September 29. This game was crucial for Wheelwright. They had already lost one conference game to Fleming Neon and another loss would knock them out of a chance too get into the play-offs. The loss would also knock the Trojans out of the conference championship. With all this on the line, the Trojans fell to a 45 to 14

Elkhorn recorded 18 points in the first half, with the help of numerous penalities called on the Trojans. Wheelwright scored their only 14 points of the game the first half on two long runs by Tony Hall. Tony is one of Wheelwright's best halfbacks to play for the Trojans football team in years. Tony also scored the extra points for Wheelwright's only two touchdowns of the game.

During the first half of the game, 195 yards of penalities were called against Wheelwright and only three penalities were called on the other team. Protesting the fairness of these penalties, Trojan Coach Don Daniels was ordered off the field. When Daniels refused to leave the game, however, the referee allowed the game to continue.

Elkhorn City scored two touchdowns in the second half against the Trojans. These two touchdowns were made the last 26 seconds of the game as Wheelwright's players only stood on the field and let Elkhorn run the ball untouched into their end zone. The reason for this was that Wheelwright wanted to protest the officiating of the game after it became apparent they could not win. The game itself was called off with only five seconds left to play.

Blackcats End Losing Streak

By C. "OLLIE" ROBINSON The Prestonsburg Blackcats halted their losing streak at four games last week while Wheelwright and Betsy Layne recorded loses.

After winning their first two games of the season, the Cats went into an offensive drought and lost four straight games, but last Friday night, after a slow first quarter the kicking of Dwayne Rodebaugh got the Cats on the scoreboard. Rodebaugh kicked a 25-yard field goal, scored a touchdown, and kicked the extra point.

In the second half, the Blackcats scored on a run by Desi Whitt and a pass from Rodebaugh to Daniels for a twopoint conversion as Prestonsburg defeated Lawrence County, 18 to 0.

This week-end, the Blackcats, with a district record of 2 and 2 and an overall record of 3 and 4, will travel to Maysville to face the tough Bulldogs. Maysville, in Region 3, District 2, has a 2 and 6 record.

Tackett Injured In Ketron Game

The Wheelwright Trojan football team suffered a major setback, Sept. 23 in an away game with Ketron, a suburb of Kingsport, Tenn., when starting quarterback, Joe Tackett, suffered serious injury which will keep him out for the rest of the season.

The injury came as Tackett who was running the ball on an option play, tripped and fell headlong into the advancing Ketron defense.

Tackett was taken to Holston Valley hospital where doctors said he had suffered either a cracked or dislocated verterbrae and Coach Daniels insisted that he remain there in order to minimize the chance of further spine damage.

Coach Daniels has been a regular visitor to the hospital and Tackett was presented a basket of fruit by a member of the Ketron Wildcat team.

Joe Tackett (No. 10) had become a familiar site leading the Trojan offense through five years as a starting quarterback and had led the team in nineteen straight conference games and two close trys at the state playoffs. Tackett was also the Wheelwright baseball team's number one pitcher for five years.

He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Tackett, of Wheelwright. His two brothers, Gilbert and Tim, are also members of the Trojan team.

J. M. Stumbo Elementary School, both the boy's and girl's 1977-78 basketball championship in Floyd county, continues to win. M. Stumbo field.

team, under the field command of Dwight Newsome, will bring home the 1978 championship. Tackett commented that Newsome is one of the best players he has ever coached. He does it all. Newsome, in games, has average of 24 points per game, and leads the team in defensive tackles. His goal for this year was to score 100 points, he now has 98. Newsome vows to get the other points through the Blackcat defense. Coach Tackett thinks Newsome is the best prospective football player in the county. Stumbo's offense has scored 160 points, while our defense has only given-up 30 points during this season. In the back field for Stumbo is Gary Hall, Mike Johnson, Donny Tackett and at wide receiver, Allen Roop. These boys are an asset to the team both offensively and defensively.

On the mornings before Arnold "Duck" Manuel goes to work at the Jenny Wiley Boat Dock, he usually goes out on the lake to check his trotline, and the catfishing, which has been pretty slow during the hot summer months, took a turn for the better Monday morning when he boated four fish, mudcats and channel cats, that weighted more than 70 pounds. The largest of the "cats," which had some poor angler's panfish hook and swivel in his lip, tipped the scales at 30 lbs. Manuel, of Allen, reports fishing picking up at Dewey in response to cooler temperatures.

Proposition 13 For Kentucky?

California's Proposition 13 and its ramifications on property taxes will be among the topics to confront Kentucky's property valuation administration administrators (PVA) at their annual "Conference on Assessment Administration" scheduled Oct. 9-11 at Stouffer's Inn in Louisville.

Assistant Revenue Commissioner E. D. Ballard will lead a discussion of the 'taxpayers' revolt" prompted by the passage of Proposition 13 earlier this Proposition 13 cut California's property taxes by more than 50

Jim Owen Gaines, president of the state Property Valuation Administrators's Association, said, however, that conference discussions will probably emphasize a tax break proposal developed by the PVAs which failed to pass the Kentucky General Assembly, rather than the California proposal.

Gaines said the bill, House Bill 645, would have included the annual consumer price index in property tax assessments, thus offseting the difference in annual property value increases and the tax rate of assessment. However, Gaines said opposition to the bill by education department officials killed the legislation's chances for passage.

Guines said HB 645 was a more sensible approach to property tax relief than Proposition 13 because HB 645 would alter the tax rate. He said the California proposal was a reaction against assessments rather than the

KEA Seeks PN For Teachers

Professional negotiation (PN) is "the natural thing" for teachers and school boards to do when it comes to decisionmaking in Kentucky school systems, says KEA president Doris Morton.

"It's the most logical process, and it comes naturally to veryone who wants to solve problems and improve the schools." Mrs. Morton explained. "That's why KEA has only one legislative goal for 1980-passage of a long overdue PN law. It's natural for teachers to want a part in making decisions that affect them and the children they ters at Pikeville.

State highway officials are meeting found it necessary to let contracts for this week with equipment suppliers, both in Kentucky and other states, to urge delivery, by November 1, of equipment ordered to keep Kentucky highways open this winter

The suppliers, most of whom are overloaded with contracts for such equipment from many other states, are being told that if they cannot meet delivery dates, the state may go to other uncommitted sources for specific type of

We desperately need this equipment to meet our standard for winter maintenance; we don't want commerce and travel to come to a virtual standstill when the big snows come," said Assistant State Highway Engineer Russell Romine. "While we don't expect big or lasting snow and ice storms in November, we expect these new equipment deliveries to be coming in by

Vehicles under contract include 440 dump trucks, 60 tandem dump trucks, 40 motor graders, 150 snowplows and nearly 100 salt spreaders. Romine said that some of that unusually large order covers normal replacement, but some of it is new and additional stock. The equipment purchases totalled $6.4

The department, preparing for a larger salt stockpile, has built six new domeshaped structures, each capable of holding up to 4,500 tons of rock salt. A seventh dome is under construction. Romine said State Transportation Secretary Calvin G. Grayson last spring urged special funding for winter maintenance because of the severity of the past two winters. "Maintenance of our existing roads has become one of our first priorities," Grayson said, "and these unprecendented road closures due to abnormal weather increases the load."

Grayson said his department has found that informing the public about road clearing is as important as the clearing effort itself

He said snow and ice maps are being prepared for distribution to news media by Nov. 1. Newspapers will be able to reproduce the local maps as often as necessary for public road information during the winter

"At the request of Governor Carroll, we earlier contacted all the county fiscal courts asking that they each review and comment on our listings of the roads which should received first priority for snow and ice removal," Grayson said. The Bureau of Highways will consider the counties' special needs in compiling

As part of its winter readiness program, special training in winter maintenance has been given to maintenance crews in all twelve of the highway districts. The last of the sessions will be completed by the end of September.

Some other new procedures have been tried this year, Romine said. Even though road maintenance crews have had more patching to do this year, the same budget also had to cover more snow ween winter needs and pothole filling and all the other summer housekeeping chores like pavement and shoulder repairs," he said. "Even if we hire extra labor-and we did-there is only so much you can do with the equipment you have.

This year, for the first time, the Bureau

Winter's Problems Subject of Meeting

The advent of cool, fall weather has a lot of people thinking about the upcoming winter and asking questions about how state government agencies can assist those affected by severe weather problems.

Joe Elam, deputy secretary of the Governon's Cabinet for Inter-Agency Relations, said officials in the cabinet's six regional offices already are fielding

To help them with the answers, the State Regional Council is holding a twoday meeting Tuesday and Wednesday at Natural Bridge State Park. Meeting with the regional officials are representatives from each of the state's cabinet level departments and agencies.

Representatives are attending from the Division of Disaster and Emergency Services, Military Affairs: Office for Policy and Management; Department for Local Government; Department of Energy; Department for Natural Resouces and Environmental Protection; Department for Human Resources; Department of Justice; Department of Finance; Education and Arts Cabinet; Department of Transportation; Public Protection and Regulation Cabinet; Department of Commerce, and Development Cabinet.

Elam described the session at the state park as an "in-house work session" designed to inform regional office personnel of preparations state government is making for dealing with severe winter

He said Kentuckians, especially elderly residents, want to know about such programs as human resources' weatherization program and the utility

The regional offices, also established by the 1978 legislature, are located in Covington, Louisville, Madisonville, London, Prestonsburg, and Frankfort,

New Court System Under Heavy Fire

been under fire in several Kentucky counties since it was ushered in Jan. 2 to replace city and county courts. Now if faces the possibility of overhaul or abandoment.

State Rep. W. Harold DeMarcus, R-Stanford, backed the Judicial Reform Amendment of 1975, which created the system. But DeMarcus now says he may sponsor legislation to change it.

There is a possibility of me doing that," DeMarcus said, "but it's going to take a lot of work and it has to be a substitution of the present system with a better one. Being green, the first time we ever did that, we made a lot of mistakes. We admit that.

What would DeMarcus change about the system?

"I don't want to say what I don't like about it now because I might not feel that way six months from now," he said. Pike County Judge-Executive Wayne T. Rutherford, however, is outspoken in his criticism of the district court system. "It is not working anywhere in the commonwealth," Rutherford said. 'We've had 13 murders here, probably because of the district court system. We

LENNOX IS MAKING

The state's district court system has usually have five or six by this time, but if they can't get a warrant, they just go get 'em a gun and shoot it out.

"You're going to have an uprising in the state. This system is causing government to be taken away from the people," Rutherford said.

Meanwhile, William Moores and Millard Jones, both of rural Madison county, are bent upon seeing the entiredistrict court system scrapped, with a return to the 600 city and county courts that preceded it. There presently are 113 district judges and 54 trial commissioners and, by law, they must be attorneys.

Moores and Jones claim that stipulation was contrived to create an elitist judiciary. They also claim the new court system is far costlier, but state Chief Justice John S. Palmore said last December a cost comparison was almost impossible because the gragmented nature of the old system made financial accountability difficult.

Moores and Jones have begun an ambitious campaign to circulate petitions in each county, obtain 120,000 signatures statewide, and use this show of force to pressure legislators.

Moores said he would buy newspaper ads, seeking letters of support from persons who might volunteer to work in the petition drive. He had hoped for 25 letters from his first ad. He had received 76 by Tuesday.

The men decided to tackle district courts after leading a successful drive last spring to get Madison Fiscal Court to abandon a land use project that would have zoned the county.

Enough Kentuckians are dissatisfied with the courts to force a constitutional admendent, they said.

But most of the dissatisfaction appears to involve money.

The new system deprived cities and counties of fees they pocketed from criminal and traffic fines.

Records in the Executive Department for Finance and Administration's division of accounts in Frankfort showed the state received more than $9 million from such fines through the first six months of 1978.

No record could be obtained of the amount returned to the cities and counties, but Rutherford said Pike County received nothing from the state, but forwarded $84,481.40 to Frankfort.

Predictably, the state's most populous county, Jefferson, led the way with more than $1.5 million in criminal and traffic fines during the period. Robertson county paid the least amount-$4,879.50.

There also is the matter of rent due to counties for space occupied by the district courts.

"We have not been paid one penny and they're occupying 8,012 square feet," Rutherford said. "We have to have the money. They owe us $27,000 already this year. We've lost over $80,000 in this year's budget (from court fees). Under their formula, we're not getting back one cent. We're getting no severance tax and our revenue sharing was cut back because of the severance tax." Rutherford said several other county judges were similarly outraged over the state's inability, or refusal, to pay any DeMarcus said, "About 50 percent of them feel that way. There is a great number of judge-executives that are very unhappy with the district court system. They should be happy with it because they don't have any duties. All they do is preside over fiscal court. Frankly, I'm not too unhappy with it, but I think there's a lot of bugs that have to be worked out. "A lot of people are dissatisfied with things the court system doesn't have anything to do with," DeMarcus said. "The legislature raised the fines $15. The court system didn't have anything to do

"I don't hear anybody say they don't receive justice. That's one of the things I'll try to keep in the district court system.

Special Committee on Ky. Constitutional Change

A special committee of citizens and legislators who are studying possible amendments to Kentucky's Constitution will begin by studying the balance of power among the legislative, judicial and executive branches of state government, November 6 in the State Capitol.

The committee will follow up with reviews of Constitutional sections dealing with taxation and finance, local government, education, and business before making recommendations on possible amendments to interim legislative committees next spring. Each amendment must be approved by the General Assembly before being submitted to the voters.

Two proposed constitutional amendments will be on the ballot in the general election of November, 1979. One of the amendments, if approved by the voters, would allow legislators more time to study issues before serving in a session of the General Assembly. Presently, legislators are elected in November and begin serving in a session just two months later. The amendment would give newly-elected legislators a year between the time they are elected and the egin a session of the General Assembly. This added time would give legislators an opportunity to become familiar with the wide range of issues facing each session of the Legislature.

Takes Hard Line On Drug Problems

By JEFF DAMRON (Wheelwright High School Journalism class)

Drug rehabilitation is not the answer to answer to the drug problem, Floyd County Attorney Arnold Turner Jr. told 250 citizens of Wheelwright Sept. 25. Drug sellers and users in the county must be prosecuted, he said.

The County Attorney expressed the opinion that he personally did not believe in "a pat on the back" for drug users and an attitude of "let's try to do better." Only about 3 percent of the people who participate in drug rehabilitation programs actually stop using drugs. Prosecution for the offenders, according to the County Attorney, is the answer.

In response to questions from the audience about the quick release of drug users, County Attorney Turner said that the major problem that confronted his office in terms of drug prosecution was the lack of any undercover officers in the county. The county needs people who can pose as buyers of drugs and arrest the people who sell drugs in the county. At the moment, according to Turner, there is only one officer in the county assigned to act in the area of narcotics and this individual, as a result of a recent drug arrest, is too well-known to make effective contact with drug sellers.

While prosecution of leggers" is comparatively simple, two facts make prosecution of the drug seller more difficult, Turner pointed out. In the case of alcohol, the officer may make a presumption that if an individual has in his possession a certain amount of whiskey and beer that it is his intention to sell that whiskey or beer. Similarly, if an individual has a reputation for selling alcoholic beverages, the presumption may be made that this is the reason he court must prove that there is an intent to sell. The court can not make use of a person's past reputation as someone who has sold drugs in order to gain a conviction. In an effort to gain more convictions, Turner said that the court has refused to probate sentences of drug. users in the past year in Floyd county unless these users have been willing to reveal their sources or the names of people that they have been buying drugs from. "We do not lack in the area of getting good tips," said Turner, "but what we need are people who can make drug buys so we can arrest the sellers, and convict them.'

In the past nine months no prosecution has occurred in the county or circuit court for the selling of drugs. "No undercover investigation is being done in the county", said Turner, "and we will not begin to see the answer to the drug problem in Floyd county until the court is provided with evidence that will stand up

Kentucky is listed among the states such as Oregon and California that take a liberal position legally on the use of drugs. A person who is convicted on the charge of the possession of marijuana may receive a fine of $250 or 90 days in jail. Unlike most crimes, there is no increase in punishment when an individual is caught possessing marijuana a second or third time.

Turner pointed out to the crowd that proper law enforcement would take money that the county does not now have. Mr. Turner has made an appeal to the Brandenberg Commission for the acquisition of two detectives to be placed in this region. He urged the citizens of Wheelwright to let their desire for better law enforcement be known to people in political offices, and he also emphasized the point that people will get the quality of law enforcement that they are willing to pay for. "Less than 3 percent of each dollar is being spent on enforcement,' Turner said. "Law enforcement officers need the money to hire the staff needed to deal with the problem," concluded

Dr. Mary Hall, of the Appalachian Regional Hospital in Floyd county, informed the group that she had been contacted by Mountain Comprehensive Care about the treatment required for the use of "Angel Dust," or P.C.P., and that although she did not know if the drug itself was being used in this county, she has the beverage in his possession. The was alarmed about the possibility that young people might use Marijuana laced with Angel Dust. She said the symptons of P.C.P. usage were frightening and dangerous. "For two years, the Board of Education has declared war declared war on drug users in the schools, but we haven't begun to solve the problem," Dr. Hall said.

> At the time the Labor Department was created in 1913 the American worker lacked many of the basic protections taken for granted today. The average workweek was about 50 hours, and earnings averaged about 22 cents an hour, according to a U.S. Department of Labor publication.

Orphan Land Grants Made

Kentucky will receive federal grants of approximately $2 million to correct two of the state's most severe environmental problems-the Cranks Creek area in Harlan county and the Cypress Creek area in Muhlenberg county

"These grants are the first for orphan lands under the federal reclamation program here in Kentucky and we are pleased to be able to use them for areas which have such an obvious need," Gov. Carroll said. "Every time it rains these people have to worry about being flooded or are faced with intolerable living conditions

"When completed, these projects will go a long way in relieving the anxiety of the citizens in both areas who are so adversely affected by abuses of the

The money was requested by the state after the Kentucky Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection identified the state's extreme danger areas and advised the federal Office of Surface Mining (OSM) of them.

The Cranks Creek and Cypress Creek areas were selected for funding because of the high hazard nature of abandoned mining operations. Periodic flooding of the areas has been attributed to the operations.

OSM, the agency which approved the grants, asked the state earlier this year to list the areas where danger to life and property was extreme.

Cranks Creek and Cypress Creek topped the list because of the numerous floods that have occurred in both places. Accumulation of silt from the abandoned mine sites and massive landslides, in the case of Cranks Creek, were seen as the main contributors to the flooding.

For Cranks Creek, the department estimated funds would be needed for dredging the creek and side creeks, constructing silt structures and grading and seeding along the banks.

Cypress Creek, it was estimated, will need to be dredged and cleared for 11.8 miles near Central City and permanent ways found to prevent it from clogging

Department Secretary Eugene Mooney said he doubted much work could be done this fall except for studies on the future reclamation of the areas.

However, he pointed out that he expects the citizens of the Cranks Creek area to soon supply him with their ommendations on what should be done first. He will combine the recommendations with information compiled by the department and OSM, he said. This joint input will then lead to a decision on priorities.

A similar process is in line for Cypress Creek and, Mooney added, the department already has an engineering plan on Project coordinator Ed Hartowicz, deputy commissioner of the state's Bureau of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement, said the department will give careful study to the problems and plan with the knowledge that financial resources are limited.

"We only have so much money ($1 million for each area) to work with, therefore a full departmental effort involving participation from each of the divisions in planning projects will be needed. I can see several divisions, especially the Division of Water Resources, getting into this thing," he

David Short, head of OSM's Region II office in Knoxville, met recently with Mooney for preliminary discussion of the projects and possible approaches that might be utilized. Citizen spokesmen, OSM representatives and department officials will meet soon to discuss the projects in more detail.

It takes careful breeding and training to make a "run for the roses." Just imagine the loss if it took several years to cut through regulatory red tape before entering a promising thoroughbred in the Derby. There are a lot of thoroughbreds in Kentucky . . . including coal. But coal can never make it to the winner's circle in the energy race if it's tied up in red tape. Time is running out. To meet the nation's 1985 energy goal, we can't wait to open new coal mines. Progress in mining operations must not be stopped due to unrealistic and everchanging government regulations. Needless regulations also increase coal costs, for us . . . and you. Regulations are necessary to insure a fair race. But those regulations must be workable and consistent, providing assurance from all levels of government that we're working toward a common goal . . . more coal, more energy security. To keep our Ace in the race ... let's reduce the handicap.
