US Shoe Plant At West P'burg Also Reported

Word that the U.S. Department of Labor is buying the Prestonsburg Shoe Company (US Shoe) building for use as a Job Corps center was followed this week by a reliable report that the shoe company will remain here and expand its production in a new location.

The Department of Labor has already received the support of the City Council in its move to establish the Job Corps training center, and Governor Carroll is awaiting formal notification of the move so that he can quickly add his approval of the project.

Meanwhile, it was learned, US Shoe Company and the directors of the Prestonsburg Development Corporation have agreed on the company's proposal to lease the former KAI building in West Prestonsburg as its plant location for a full production program.

The Job Corps Center is a result of President Carter's Economic Stimulus Package (Public Law 95-29), as a result of which funds were made available to double the current Job Corps program.

This Town... That World

What an inspiration Marcella Bailey had when she conceived the idea of Red, White and Blue Day. But the greatest thing about it is—now it belongs to all who take part, and all are invited.

Anybody got a double whammy to spare? The single job I tried on the Yankees isn't working.

THE BAD NEWS

Just arrived—The Old Farmer's Almanac (its 187th anniversary edition), and now it's official: we're in for another hard winter. For the Greater Ohio Valley region, which includes Kentucky, the Almanac predicts:

'The winter will be notable for the frequency of the cold waves from November through February, with those occurring from Christmas into the first week of January, from the last week of January through the first week of February, and the end of February being particularly severe. There will be an abundance of light, dry snow.'

Is that all? No (it says here), after that comes a mild March and after mid-month, heavy rains will cause flooding. After that—never mind, if we make it till then we'll be ready for anything and whatever befalls later should, short of an earthquake, come by way of relief.

What Can't Be Done Under Law With Juveniles Amazes Judge

'I've been getting a lot of static about my handling of some juvenile cases, and I don't think I deserve it,' District Judge Harold J. Stumbo told The Times last week.

One specific criticism arose from the court's failure to jail a juvenile offender who had broken into a place of business in the Left Beaver Creek section.

'I was asked to send this juvenile to jail, and I explained at the time why I could not,' he said.

In the first place, he pointed out, a person under 16 years of age may not be jailed unless he or she has committed a Class A felony.

Besides this, there is the Court of Appeals decision forbidding the imprisonment of a juvenile in any prison, within sight and sound of adult prisoners.

And the county jail, occupied by adult prisoners, is the only place where prisoners of any age can be lodged in this county. The $600,000 juvenile detention center and courthouse annex here has been occupied by offices since Jan. 1 but the juvenile detention section is not yet ready for occupants while the county is waiting on state action to activate it as a regional juvenile detention center which would be operated at state expense.

Some juvenile prisoners, Judge Stumbo said, have in the past been sent to Pikeville where Pike county has a facility that is acceptable, but Pike county no longer will accept such prisoners from this county, Floyd county, Stumbo said, owes Pike county $600 on this score.

The law governing juvenile crime, generally, is weak, the judge says, and courts administering it are helpless to meet the situation effectively. He cited examples:

—If the detention center here were open, a juvenile cannot be committed to it if such action would interfere with the prisoner's education or religion. For example, a juvenile could plead that his or her imprisonment would interfere with attendance at school or at Sunday school or church.

—Legislation enacted at the last session of the General Assembly provides that before a juvenile is committed to a detention center he or she must first be given a complete physical examination. (Nothing was said about who pays the bill for such examination, Stumbo said.)

—An out-of-court admission or confession of guilt may be made by a juvenile, but is not admissible as evidence. The prosecution must have other evidence or get an admission of (See Story No. 3, Page 4)

Bayer, Boggs Plead Guilty in US Court On Employee Taxes

Two Eastern Kentucky businessmen pleaded guilty last week in U.S. district court at Catlettsburg to charges of failing to deposit federal taxes withheld from the wages of their firm's employees.

Judge Hermansdorfer fined Clarence E. Boggs, 48, of Ashland, $500 and placed him on probation for five years. Boggs, an executive of C & J Tolling, Inc., Ashland, was charged with failing to deposit $7,701.40 of employees' taxes withheld during February and March.

Judge Hermansdorfer fined William D. Bayer, 36, of Prestonsburg, $1,500 and placed him on probation for five years. Bayer, president of B & B Engineers, Inc., was charged with not properly depositing $20,954.80 of employees' taxes withheld during a three-month period in 1976 and 1977.

(An official of the company said this week that Bayer has not been associated with B & B Engineers since Sept. 1, 1977.)

The 1.9 million veterans and active duty personnel who received Veterans Administration payments for educational assistance during Fiscal Year 1977 brought total participation under the current GI Bill to more than 7 million.

One Woman's Dream Come True . . .

Floyd County's Red, White and Blue Day

"As I arise each morning, getting ready for my day's work, I always stop and listen to the music God gives me. The sweet sound of birds singing as though they had no worry, no problem. Wouldn't it be nice if we could all live in this manner? We all need to come down to earth and, like the birds, sing together."

Eight years ago Mrs. Marcella Bailey, of Langley, felt it was time to revitalize patriotism in America, and bring people together in respect for the American flag and for those who had worked for this country. Where better to start than right at home? She began putting together her dream of Red, White and Blue Day—and her dream caught on.

The event always takes place in the county seat of Prestonsburg and this year the dates are Oct. 19 through Oct. 22.

"Saturday, the 21st, is our biggest day, but just as important are the activities that lead up to Saturday's parade and entertainment," said the Red, White and Blue Day founder. "We involve our children in pageants and contests all week."

Mrs. Bailey and her husband, Sid, enjoy the good life in their Floyd county home, despite her husband's health. "Sid was an outstanding football player at Prestonsburg High and then went to Ohio State University. He entered military service in his sophomore year. In 1966 his health began to bother him, but we've managed. We enjoy our home and garden, and I'm like other women, I garden and can vegetables and fruit. When we rest, we sit on our front porch and wave to our friends going by."

Mrs. Bailey, in her 50s and possessing boundless energy, is a firm supporter of her state and country, for her father and brothers as well as her husband were in military service.

She not only believes in upholding the flag and respecting veterans, but is staunch in supporting prayer in the classroom. She also believes that everyone should vote. "We have a voice in our government—thank God for our military—and I tell people to get out and exercise that right. I ask them how they would feel if they lived in a country where they had not vote, no voice in our government. This could happen right here in our own beautiful America, so let's stand up for our flag and our country."

A number of area youngsters will participate in the Little Miss Patriotic Beauty Pageant in the Martin gymnasium at 7 p.m. Oct. 13. This event is sponsored by the Martin Woman's Club. On Oct. 19 at 7 p.m. in Prestonsburg Field House the Allen Women's Club will sponsor the annual Red, White and Blue Beauty Pageant.

On Saturday a flag-raising ceremony by the Kentucky National Guard at 10 a.m. starts action. The Prestonsburg High School band will play the National Anthem, followed by the Lord's Prayer, Pledge to the Flag and a welcome by Prestonsburg Mayor Harold Cooley.

All events take place in the Municipal parking lot where Lenville Ball of Morgan county will be in charge of musical entertainment. Ball, once a night club entertainer playing engagements across the country with Chet Atkins, now devotes his music and song talents to gospel singing and on weekends is a regular performer at Renfro Valley.

The Saturday parade will get under way at 2 p.m., and on Saturday night everyone will join in square dancing at the parking lot. The Maytown Fire Department and other civic groups will assist with activities.

On Sunday, at 2 p.m., Marlow Tackett and his Southern Comfort Band will entertain at the parking lot.

What does all the work and planning mean to the Floyd county mother, grandmother and homemaker? "Folks, stop and look up and count your blessings and thank God we live in a free country and enjoy so many wonderful freedoms. We need to rise early, open our own door and our heart and step outside on our own land and sing with the birds. Let's join in a rousing song, 'God Bless America,' and appreciate life's sweet music."

Help for Abused, Neglected

Mrs. A is over 80, bedfast, and has a son who becomes abusive when he's drunk. Not long ago, Mrs. A's neighbors heard her fall out of bed and cry out for help.

The son had been drinking and wouldn't let anyone enter the apartment. The neighbors called police but wouldn't swear out a warrant. Without the warrant, the police couldn't enter the apartment to check on Mrs. A. However, the local office of the Department for Human Resources' Bureau for Social Services was notified.

Two social workers investigated the report, as required under the provisions of the Kentucky Adult Protection Act. In Mrs. A's case, the workers found that Mrs. A was all right and was being cared for by a woman who shared the apartment. That woman had been out at the time Mrs. A fell out of bed. The son, however, had been causing problems for both women.

The social workers discussed various possible courses of action with the companion, who decided to take legal steps to get the son out of the apartment. She also asked the workers to help her obtain some supportive services for Mrs. A—services the social workers felt were needed.

Mrs. A is an example of a problem which is becoming increasingly serious all over the country: the adult who can't protect herself or himself from abuse, neglect or exploitation.

John Denton is an adult protective services specialist with the Department for Human Resources. He says that in the 12 months which ended on June 30, 1978, the Adult Special Services Branch in the department received 1,048 reports of suspected abuse or neglect. Each report was investigated, just as Mrs. A's case had been.

The reports were confirmed in 591 instances—or 56 percent of the time. In a few instances, social workers either were unable to locate the person or were denied admittance to the home. The workers found that in 345 cases the reported abuse or neglect was unfounded.

Denton points out that social workers found 710 people who needed some kind of assistance or supportive services. However, 300 of them refused assistance.

"We can't force anyone to accept help," Denton adds. "Unless a court declares someone incompetent, that person has the right to refuse."

The most common form of abuse was self neglect, Denton says. "I'd say the most common situation we find is a woman in her 70s or 80s living alone and no longer able to handle day-to-day tasks." The 12-month report lists 335 cases of self neglect.

According to Denton, the year-end summary also shows 83 instances of physical abuse, 77 of neglect by a person taking care of an adult and 31 cases of exploitation. In 58 investigations, more than one type of abuse or neglect was uncovered.

Denton says that the most likely persons to report adult abuse or neglect are those who are closest to the person—relatives, neighbors or friends. However, more than 100 people were referred to Human Resources by hospital personnel. Others reporting possible cases included police, county health department and comprehensive care center personnel, staff members from nursing homes and other Department for Human Resources workers. In 62 instances, the adult himself asked for protection. In addition, there were 88 anonymous reports.

Under the Kentucky Adult Protection Act, anyone knowing of an adult who may be suffering from abuse, neglect or exploitation is required to report the case to the Bureau for Social Services, Department for Human Resources. The law also provides immunity from civil or criminal liability when the person making the report has reasonable cause for believing that the adult needs protective services.

Law Enforcement Assisted by Grants

Gov. Julian Carroll has awarded 77 grants totaling $2.1 million to criminal justice projects across Kentucky.

The governor's awards came after the projects received the favorable recommendation of the Kentucky Crime Commission at its September quarterly session held in Owensboro.

Police projects accounted for the largest number of grant awards, 40, as well as the largest amount of funding, $584,016. The largest single grant was for $452,260 to the Kentucky Department of Justice for the local public defender system.

The lion's share of the funding for the awarded grants comes from the federal Law Enforcement Assistance Administration. The remainder of the funding comes from Kentucky Department of Justice funds, other state funds and local sources.

Emergency 'Copter Use May Increase

EMERGENCY LANDING—A Kentucky National Guard helicopter lands at the St. Luke Hospital helipad in Fort Thomas. A $4,986 grant from the state Transportation Department paid for half the cost of the lighted concrete pad, the first completed under the state program.

By MARK EDWARDS
Emergency use of helicopters in Kentucky could be expanded through two programs to build landing sites, or "helipads," for hospitals and other agencies, according to the state transportation department.

lukewarm," said Transportation Secretary Calvin Grayson. "Since the beginning of the programs in late 1976 we have awarded only four grants totaling $23,000," he said. The grants were approved for the Jefferson County Police and three hospitals: Lourdes in Paducah, St. Elizabeth in Covington and St. Luke in Fort Thomas.

The hospital helipad program is coordinated with the emergency medical services program of the Department for Human Resources.

Grayson said that nine agencies have expressed interest in building helipads. They include medical centers at the University of Louisville and the University of Kentucky, both of which have emergency facilities not found in smaller hospitals. He noted that the two centers would be key elements in the statewide helipad system.

Officials said they plan to help fund 100 helipads across the state. The average grant has been estimated at about $5,000, but costs can vary widely, according to Ed LaFontaine, director of the department's aeronautics division.

"Most helipads are laid out on a small plot of ground," said LaFontaine. "The main expenses are lighting and marking, which must meet minimum state standards."

But urban helipads can be very expensive, if space is scarce and utility lines must be moved. "Rooftop helipads are convenient, but they generally are not practical unless buildings are designed for them with adequate safety measures," he said.

"Much of the state is within range of Army helicopters operating out of Fort Knox and Fort Campbell, under the Military Assistance to Safety and Traffic (MAST) program. The MAST program and Kentucky National Guard helicopters supply emergency transportation for critically ill patients, accident victims and medical supplies.

Many new helipads could be served by the military programs while other could rely on helicopters from other agencies or private owners, said LaFontaine.

A Thought to Remember
If a person's life is simple or complicated there are some certainties it will be filled with. It is certain, regardless of how you live, that you will have to make decisions.

Some people make decisions rather easily, while others seem to struggle with them regardless of their importance.

The great decision makers run big businesses, and complicated companies. They are in their positions simply because they have the ability to make right decisions. On the other hand there are those who cannot decide on anything. The simplest of decisions throws them into a tailspin.

The secret is confidence. Confident that you have the facts, and you can choose the best way to meet the situation. Faith is just another word for confidence. A person who has faith has confidence. In other words he has his facts straight.

Celebrate 50th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Willard Osborne, of Hunter, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary October 14 at their home. The observance was hosted by their children. The Osborne's were married 1928 at Hi Hat, by Elder John Akers. Mrs. Osborne is the former Dilliah Waddles, daughter of the late Thomas and Lula Beverly Waddles. Mr. Osborne is a retired employee of Inland Steel Co., and is a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Osborne, of Buckingham. The Osborne's have six children and seven grandchildren. Their children are Lula Nyman and Nancy Soper, both of Michigan, Bobby Osborne, of Alabama, Cecil and Willard Osborne, Jr., of Ohio, and Ruby Hardwick, of West Virginia.

Present at their anniversary observance were Mr. and Mrs. Tom Waddles, Mr. and Mrs. Hillard Bryant, Mr. and Mrs. Ermine Hall, Bob Hardwick, Cecil Osborne Jr., Delena and Cecilia Osborne, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Osborne, Mr. and Mrs. Ted Osborne, Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Osborne, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Hall.

Asks Changes In Tax System

The president of Kentucky's Association of Property Valuation Administrators (PVA's) Monday told the group's annual conference on assessment administration here that the state's "whole property tax system should be looked into," and called for specific changes in the system.

Jim Owen Gaines, Woodford County PVA, said tax reform, not tax revolt, should be the theme of the conference.

One of those reforms, Gaines said, should be taxing all registered tangible property at the time of registering, "if (the change) takes two, eight, or ten years."

"As PVAs we're requested to do a duty that's almost impossible," he said, referring to the administrator's statutory mandate to assess property at 100 percent of its current value in the face rampant inflation.

Those attending the conference seemed in agreement with speakers, such as State Revenue Commissioner Maurice Carpenter, who said that tax revolt along the lines of California's Proposition 13 is not needed in Kentucky.

"We have a better law," Carpenter told the PVAs' today.

Another major difference between tax problems in California and Kentucky, he said, is the matter of California's budget surplus. California's current $5 billion surplus is expected to absorb much of the $7 billion crunch owing to revenue lost to Proposition 13, passed in June.

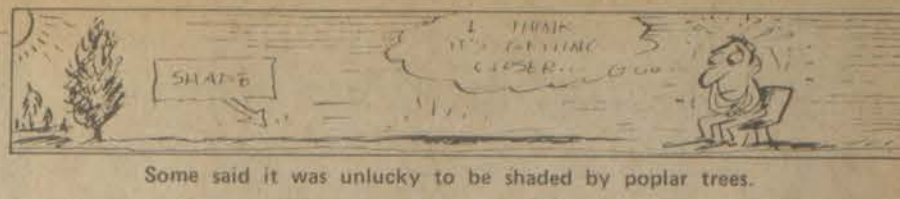

However, Carpenter said he thinks agencies such as the Department of Education will be more reasonable in their requests for more revenue from property taxes in the wake of Proposition 13.

"They can see by the California thing that they're going to be in big trouble, by a vote of the people, if they aren't," he said.

Carpenter also said the number one priority for the 1980 General Assembly will be to come up with something to relieve pressure, in the area of property assessments, caused by galloping inflation.

Some 70,000 widows, wives of totally and permanently disabled veterans and their children are enrolled in college or other training with Veterans Administration financial help.

U.S. veteran population has apparently peaked just shy of 30 million, according to Veterans Administration projection. People leaving armed forces is about equal to deaths among veterans, and the trend is expected to continue.

Knott Citizens Protest Denial Of Gas Service

The sale of natural gas to out-of-state customers while residents of Eastern Kentucky, from which the same gas is piped, are denied the fuel has created a problem which generates its own heat. Last week, representatives of the Knott County Citizens for Social and Economic Justice went to Ashland to serve legal documents on R. J. Stewart, process agent for Equitable Gas Co., parent firm of Kentucky West Virginia Gas Company. While there they picketed the gas company offices in the Second National Bank building, bearing signs which read, "Supply Kentucky First."

The incident was a part of the continuing fight by Knott county residents for natural gas which, they say, should be made available to them before it is piped to Pittsburgh or other industrial centers. The problem is not restricted to Knott county. In Floyd and other gas-producing counties, or where gas pipelines lie, homeowners make the same claims. They point to a Kentucky law which says a gas company must supply gas to anybody within half a mile of its gas lines.

Four years ago, the Kentucky Public Service Commission ordered the gas company to comply with that law. But Kentucky West Virginia appealed the order, and a federal ruling held that the gas company is under the jurisdiction of the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission. That commission has not given the gas company permission to serve local customers, but PSC has appealed the federal ruling. A decision is pending.

The gas company takes the position that it cannot supply local residents because it has not received permission to do so from the federal commission and that it does not have enough gas to meet the needs of customers it is already committed to supply.

Steve Mirkin, speaking for the Knott county group in Ashland, said many Knott countians live within only a few hundred yards of Kentucky West Virginia lines but cannot get gas. He maintained that all such persons should be served under the existing state law. He added that, while this situation exists "here at home" the gas is being piped past the homes of these people, in many cases across their property, to Pittsburgh.

Meanwhile, some area residents, acting on the original PSC order to the effect that they should be served, have tapped onto the company's lines. This was the subject of recent action in the Knott circuit court, and one man who had connected his home with a gas line was ordered to disconnect. The dispute is involved in court, at both the federal and circuit court levels.

Texas Company Announces Deep Drilling Plans

A small oil and gas drilling company announced in Houston, Texas this week that it will join a major oil company in exploring for natural gas at unusual depths in Eastern Kentucky.

Kaneb Services Inc. said its oil and gas subsidiary and Atlantic-Richfield Co. will drill at least two deep test wells within the next two years in a 13-county area in Eastern Kentucky.

The 13 counties involved in the transaction are Floyd, Knott, Perry, Breathitt, Leslie, Letcher, Pike, Johnson, Harlan, Magoffin, Lawrence, Martin and Morgan.

Kaneb said its subsidiary, Weaver Oil & Gas Corp., acquired the rights to explore for oil and gas in about 917,000 acres from Kentucky-West Virginia Gas Co., a subsidiary of Equitable Gas Co. of Pittsburgh.

Weaver in turn sold a 75 percent interest in the rights to Atlantic-Richfield, the Kaneb announcement said.

The rights that were acquired are primarily for exploration below the rock layer geologists define as Devonian shale. Most of the gas production in Eastern Kentucky now comes from shallow Devonian shale deposits.

Kaneb said that it will drill at least two test wells from 8,000 to 14,000 feet.

Since the 1973 Arab oil embargo, companies have drilled deeper test wells in Eastern Kentucky while none have made significant discoveries geological data show that the conditions for finding oil and gas in deep wells in Eastern Kentucky are favorable, it is said.

Gas Losses Here Drop Sharply As System Being Overhauled

If those holes and trenches cut across streets are provoking, hold your temper.

They could mean the difference between continued, uninterrupted gas service next winter.

The work this year is a part of a program begun about four years ago to renovate three-fourths of the gas system here. It includes laying of new plastic pipe, changing from 10-ounce low-pressure to high pressure with 15-20 pounds to each meter, and each home having its own regulator with the most modern safety devices. These have automatic under-pressure shutoff and an over-pressure release device. All old meters, most of which are 20 years old or older, are being replaced.

The system at West Prestonsburg was first to be completely renovated with one mile of two-inch plastic line and approximately a mile of one-inch service lines from main to meter.

Howard K. Bell Engineers, Lexington, estimated the cost of this job would be, if let to contract, $50,000. Bill H. Howard, superintendent of the utilities system, said the work was done by water and gas system employees for about $28,000.

In 1974 the loss of gas here to faulty meters, leaky mains and other construction defects was 26 per cent. As of October 31, last year, this loss had been reduced to 9.68 per cent. This year's loss percentage, expected to be much less, will not be known till the end of the fiscal year, Oct. 31.

"In two more summers we will have renovation of the entire system complete—new mains, meters, regulators and service lines," Howard said.

In addition to the West Prestonsburg renovation, the work has been completed in the Porter Addition, Riverside, Third and Highland. Yet to be done is the work on North Arnold, Trimble Branch and Yellow Town.

Drama Club Rehearsing Miller's "The Crucible"

The Prestonsburg high school drama club has begun rehearsal for their November production of Arthur Miller's "The Crucible" at Prestonsburg Community College.

"The Crucible" is an historical play about the Salem witch trials. It is the story of one man's internal struggle between his desire to live and his moral honesty.

Originally, Miller wrote the play as an political comment on the McCarthy era. Due to popular sentiment, the original play was not well-received. After the emotional heat died down, however, the play received its deserved recognition as a classic American drama.

The cast includes: Jeff Ludwig, Helen Perry Miller, Pam Justice, Delaysa Calhoun, David Marson, Bridget Salyers, Jane Wallace, Tim Parker, Nancy Godsey, Charles Cantrill, David Derossett, Tim Webb, Sherri Allen, Debi Scutchfield, Randy Meade, Rodney Cockerham, Traci Wright, Chester Petry, Dickie Leslie, and Audrey Hudson. Lou Ellen Huopert, of Allen, will be appearing with the company in the part of the slave Tituba.

Stage-managing the production are David D. Allen Jr. and Belinda Bentley. The drama club is under the direction of Susan Dianne Brown.

The Cooperative Education Advisory Board of Prestonsburg Community College held its first meeting of the fall semester, October 10.

The board is composed of various business leaders and college faculty members who are actively involved in the implementation and evaluation of the Cooperative Education Program. Those presently serving are Sam Blankenship, of Floyd Federal Savings & Loan; Ella Jane Howard, of the Appalachian Research & Defense Fund; Tom Hummer, Mountain Comprehensive Care Center; Robert R. Food prices are utterly absurd. A 79-cent can was 95 cents two weeks later, then 97 cents the next week.

Interest in nutrition is constantly mounting, with more M.D.s combining the field with theirs. Since the wellbeing of plants depends largely upon their nourishment it is not logical to conclude that the same rule is applicable to human beings?

The ERA decision in Washington was as expected, with no attempt at fairness. A precedent of years has been broken. It can and likely will create terrific problems for other bills or laws in the future.

Says Fiscal Court Is Limited In Power To Help Enforcement

Congressman Carl D. Perkins is another who has become concerned about law-enforcement in rural areas, and he recently queried the attorney general's office about possible sources of the financing that would be required.

Fiscal courts, he was told by Assistant Attorney General Charles Runyan, are limited in their power to provide police protection. He wrote:

"If county law enforcement is to be upgraded, either around the focal point of the sheriff's office or a county police force system, new specific and explicit state legislation would be required, with an adequate system of financing."

Perkins said he has learned that the sheriff's office in regard to police duties is totally dependent upon fiscal court for money.

The congressman noted that the sheriff in many rural areas is the exclusive means of protection and if for some reason he does not get fiscal court funds for deputies, the people will suffer.

He asked if that court is required to give the sheriff enough money to provide an adequate level of police protection for the county.

Runyan said in summary: "The fiscal court is not mandated to provide (such) funds. It can be said that fiscal court has a moral duty to advance the cause of upgraded and adequate police protection. However, the legal compulsion to do so is not present in current legislation."

The law official said any fiscal court can enact ordinances on police protection, but that no specific standards are provided for such coverage.

"The fiscal court has an option in providing for a county police force not connected with the sheriff's office," Runyan said.

"The county judge-executive can establish a county police force, but it is up to the fiscal court to fund such operation. We have no statistics on this, but we suspect that the use of (that statute) in rural Kentucky is one of infrequency and one involving token staffs."

Runyan said fiscal courts would blame failure to use the statute on the lack of county money. He said that a fiscal court is allowed to fund the salaries of sheriff's deputies and help buy necessary office equipment and supplies for the sheriff.

"However, it is our opinion that there are no statutes mandating fiscal court to fund the sheriff's operations beyond the level just indicated," Runyan said.

Law Enforcement Assisted by Grants

Gov. Julian Carroll has awarded 77 grants totaling $2.1 million to criminal justice projects across Kentucky.

The governor's awards came after the projects received the favorable recommendation of the Kentucky Crime Commission at its September quarterly session held in Owensboro.

Police projects accounted for the largest number of grant awards, 40, as well as the largest amount of funding, $584,016. The largest single grant was for $452,260 to the Kentucky Department of Justice for the local public defender system.

The lion's share of the funding for the awarded grants comes from the federal Law Enforcement Assistance Administration. The remainder of the funding comes from Kentucky Department of Justice funds, other state funds and local sources.

Black Lung Clinics Funded

Congressman Carl D. Perkins announced last Thursday that the House of Representatives has approved $7.5 million for the establishment of clinics to treat miners suffering from Black Lung disease.

Perkins was the author of the 1977 Black Lung act which included a permanent $10 million authorization for Black Lung clinics. This is the first time money has been appropriated for such clinics.

"This appropriation will help provide decent medical care for those miners who are suffering from Black Lung," Perkins said. "It is the first time money has been appropriated for these clinics and I will fight to increase the money available for them in the future."

Rodebaugh Leads Cats' Win

By G. "OLLIE" ROBINSON

The Prestonsburg Blackcats evened their won and lost record at 4 and 4 by defeating the Maysville Bulldogs last Friday night, 22-0.

The Wheelwright Trojans rolled over Mullins, 30 to 6, to bring their record to three wins against five losses, and the Betsy Layne Bobcats lost to Fleming County.

The Prestonsburg defense was outstanding against Maysville. In fact, the Cats haven't been scored on in the last 10 quarters. In the Maysville game, Dwayne Rodebaugh rushed for one touchdown, passed for another, kicked a pair of extra points and passed to Danny Daniels for a 2-point conversion.

Rodebaugh scored the first touchdown on a one-yard run and kicked the extra point. Monty Brahm gave the Cats insurance when he took a 17-yard pass from Rodebaugh for a score. Desi Whitt finished the Cats' scoring with a 3-yard run.

The Cats let at halftime, 7 to 0. So far this season, the Cats have scored 87 points to 98 by the opposition.

Rodebaugh has scored five touchdowns, kicked nine extra points and two field goals for a total of 45 points.

The Cats will face Morgan County Friday night and it's Homecoming for the Cats. Morgan County will bring a 4 and 4 record. Their last win was against East Carter by 14 to 12.

PHS Blanks Maysville, 22-0

"We're improving," said Prestonsburg's head football coach Phillip Haywood following the Blackcats 22-0 victory over Maysville, Friday night on the Bulldogs' rain-soaked field. "It's hard to tell how much, especially with the playing conditions, but even in the mud we looked sharper than we have all year," he said of the youthful Blackcat squad.

Prestonsburg kicked off to open the game and forced a fumble on the first play from scrimmage with Ralph Gilliam falling on the loose ball. The Blackcats quickly took advantage of the opportunity driving 32 yards in seven plays with Dwayne Rodebaugh going in from four yards out and then taking on the extra point.

The Blackcat defense, led by Dewey Layne with nine solo tackles and 10 assists, completely dominated the Bulldogs and kept them backed up deep in their own territory until late in the last quarter. Layne was supported with fine defensive efforts from defensive linemen Terry Click, Bill Greer, Desi Whitt, Keith Colvin, Monty Brahm, Lonnie May, secondary of Greg Haywood, Jack Wells, Greg Dillion, Gilliam, Greg Slone, and by the Cats other outstanding linebacker, Rodebaugh, who also had an interception.

Jody Collins, Mark McKenzie, Randy Tincher, Ray Marcum, Joe Frazier, Andrew McClanahan, Dennis Darrels, and Brent McCormick also turned in a fine defensive effort in stopping Maysville's lone threat late in the fourth quarter.

The Cats threatened in the second quarter as Whitt broke loose on a 38-yard run before being pulled down on the three, but Prestonsburg fumbled the slippery ball on the next play. Prestonsburg elected to kick-off to begin the second half and the move paid off. Maysville fumbled on their own 25 with Dillon recovering. Quarterback Danny Daniels hit Branham with a 12-yard touchdown pass three plays later. Rodebaugh kicked the extra point making it 14-0.

The Cats quickly got the ball back in good field position at the 50-yard line. Behind the excellent blocking of offensive linemen Bobby Wells, Harry Adams, Alan Frasure, Greer, Layne, and ends Branham, Richard Burchett, and Colvin, the Cats quickly drove for the score with Whitt going in from five yards out. Tom Hastings and Steve Wright chipped in with 15-yards each on the scoring drive. Rodebaugh passed to Daniels for the two-point conversion. Prestonsburg had another opportunity to score in the 3rd quarter but again fumbled on the 4 yard line. Prestonsburg rolled up 259 yards in total offense with Whitt doing most of the damage inside gaining 4 yards, 17 carries. Rodebaugh picked up 54 yards, Hastings 45 and Wright 22. Coach Haywood said he was pleased with the overall team effort, but added "We still have a long way to go and we face a big test this week against Morgan county."

The Blackcats take on Morgan county in their homecoming game this Friday night.

Grade School All-Stars To Meet In Annual Football Game, Thurs.

Floyd county's elementary schools will stage their second annual all-star football game at 7 p.m. tomorrow (Thursday) on the Prestonsburg football field, it was announced Monday by Denzil Halbert, supervisor of school system athletics.

Five schools will be represented by 26 select players on the North Squad, and the same number will play for the South. Every boy selected for the all-star game will receive a trophy, Halbert said.

The North squad will represent the five schools in the Class A division, having 400 or more pupils—Prestonsburg, Betsy Layne, Osborne, Clark and Maytown. The South Squad, Class B, will be from schools with an enrollment of 300 or more—Allen, Stumbo, Martin, Wayland and Melvin.

Last year, the South team defeated the North, 8-6.

Gary Hopkins, coach of the Class A championship team, Prestonsburg, will coach the North team, while David Mosley, mentor of the Class B champions, Allen Elementary, will direct the South. The two were named Coach of the Year in their respective divisions.

Halbert, who for many years coached the Martin Purple Flash basketball team, is enthusiastic about the athletics program in the grade schools of the county. Basketball is next, and 16 schools will be playing this year, he said.

Ex-Sheriff Joe Wheeler Lewis Restricted to the City Only

Being a former resident of Floyd County, graduate of Betsy Layne High School, graduate of Alice Lloyd College, attended Berea College, graduated from Morehead State College and a teacher for approximately fifteen years, I still feel like Floyd county is my home.

I am a constant reader of the Floyd County Times. In one issue of The Times as of August 31, 1978 I saw where the grand jury had by signing their names restricted Ex-sheriff Joe Wheeler Lewis, who is now a deputy marshal, to the city only. Restriction was made because the Marshal was performing duties throughout the county.

I saw in another issue of the paper that a group of approximately five hundred citizens had a meeting, discussing the need for more Kentucky State Police and more Deputy Sheriffs to be assigned to the area where the Ex-sheriff was restricted to the city and not permitted to make arrests outside the city. There must be something wrong or something going on outside the city that does not meet the eyes of the public. At first they want law and order, then they don't want any.

KRS 61.080 states that the Ex-sheriff may hold any office related to law enforcement. He may serve as a city police, marshal, deputy marshal or any likewise officer as long as he is not working for the present sheriff.

KRS 95.740 gives the police of a fourth and fifth class city arrest power outside the city limits.

KRS 96.800 gives the marshal or deputy marshal the power of a sheriff throughout the county for the disturbance of the peace, suppression of riots or resistance to law or authority. The marshal or his deputy can make arrests outside the city but must be within the county where the city is located of which he is a marshal or deputy marshal.

KRS 95.800, Attorney General's opinion number OAG 78 558 at Page three: The city marshal or deputy marshal of a sixth class city shall have the same power of a sheriff for the suppression of any riot, disturbance of the peace, or resistance to law or authority. Thus the marshal has the authority of jurisdiction to make arrest throughout the county.

KRS 95.800 give the marshal or deputy marshal authority to execute and return any process issued to him by any legal authority.

26 KLR 165.81 S.W. 270, Helm vs. Commonwealth of Kentucky, states, of course such officers as a marshal and any lawful deputy marshal has the authority to enforce the laws of the Commonwealth as well as the laws enacted by the city.

KRS 70.540 Attorney General's opinion, OAG 42,194, page 240 of new penal code statute, states that a person is not inhibited from holding the office of police by reason of the fact that he was the sheriff during the preceding term, became effective in 1958.

Attorney General's opinion Number OAG 35,734 states that a deputy marshal has the authority to make arrest outside the city limits and at any place in the county, effective since 1955.

Page 277 of the new penal code statute, section 95.786, Attorney General's opinion Number O.A.G. 27,794, states that a police or marshal of fifth or sixth class city can make arrest outside the city and anywhere in the county where the city is located.

Section 70.060 (4578) states that any sheriff, deputy sheriff or likewise officer may take with him the power of the county, or any part thereof, to aid him in the execution of his duties of his office, and he may summon as many persons as he deems necessary to aid him in the performance thereof. Effective since January 1, 1963.

As I very well know that the grand jurors are not required to have a law degree, they are only required to act to the best of their knowledge, and I am sure they are faced with many a issue that is very conflicting and hard to understand. In many instances, I am sure, they do not hear the truth, because people are seeking revenge, in these occasions they can only use their better judgement.

It is the duty of the County Attorney, Commonwealth Attorney or their assistant to assist the grand jurors as to what the law may be in cases where they are not sure. I am sure they would do such without showing any partiality to either side.

Now the thing that concerns me most is: Does this restriction that was placed against the Ex-sheriff, Joe Wheeler Lewis, apply to all the city police at Prestonsburg, Kentucky, Allen, Kentucky, Martin, Kentucky, Wayland, Kentucky, Wheelwright Marshal and all other likewise officers through the county? It appears to me that a cross should not be placed on one and a crown on all others. Our laws that we are governed by guarantee equal justice to all.

I have noticed that the present sheriff's arrest report that was reported to the Department of Justice for September, 1978 revealed the following arrest:

6. Aggravated assault; 1. Auto theft; 4. Knowingly receiving stolen property; 8 for processing drugs (marijuana); 17. Drunk drivers; 43. drunks; 7. juveniles, various violations. A total of 78 arrest were reported. I am concerned about the percentage of convictions of drunk drivers. Will someone please quote the dispositions of all offenses of Kentucky State Police, city police, marshals, deputy marshals and sheriff's department in the next week's issue of the Floyd County Times?

Respectfully Submitted,
Former Floyd County Citizen

Again to the Wonderful West

By CHARLES M. MCCOY
This trip takes me to Denver Colorado. I get a rent-a-car, and head north on 25, I'm heading for Gillette, Wyoming to see and visit some of the big coal operations that are going on where the big seams of coal are, which run from 20 to 11 feet thick. It is absolutely amazing to see them. I stayed my first night in Douglas, Wyo. I was out early next morning to continue on up to Gillette on Route 59, a narrow road with only one little town of less than 100 people in the 109-mile stretch. As it was early I rolled down my windows so I could smell the fresh early morning sage fragrance; the air was pure and exhilarating. I was fortunate to see at close up several antelope along the way, also some large game birds which I think were pheasants.
After getting to Gillette and visiting the mines, that evening I headed west on 90 to Buffalo, Wyo. Between the towns are some beautiful country for 68 miles, Buffalo as you know is one of the west's historic towns. Wyoming with it's great bastion of grasslands was a natural home for the buffalo—thus, Buffalo, Wyo. made its history. Then I turned south from Buffalo on Route 87, which is a remote, oldtime, narrow highway seldom traveled. It passes through some of the great wide open spaces of Wyoming. I passed through Kaycee, where nearby was the old hideout for many of the outlaws of the Old West. It's called Hole in the Wall, as they could go through a real narrow passage in a mountain gap into a basin where they were safe from attack from the law or any others, since two or three men could hold off a lot of men as they had a commanding position. Some of the biggest outlaw names holed up here in time.

I headed on down this lonely road, taking pictures of the beautiful scenes as I went on to Casper, where dark caught me, and I put up for the night. Casper is a thriving western town from oil and cattle. I head out next morning on Route 220 southwest, then on 478 straight south to Medicine Bow. Down these routes is more of the same wild and beautiful, I took pictures of antelope and other scenery. Medicine Bow is another old town of western lore. It is the locale for the picture, "The Virginian." I went through the old Virginian Hotel and bar, which was of interest, also made acquaintance with the editor of The Medicine Bow Post. We had a very interesting chat. He gave me a paper of the Bow which is very interesting to read. After a couple of hours I head on south to Laramie, another old western rawhide town, then from there on back to Denver, and get my plane on to Los Angeles, the City of the Angels, depending on whose angels you are talking about. I visit some of my people there whom I hadn't seen in forty years, I gave them a surprise visit.
Next day, I head for Sacramento, get me a car and head for the wild country, on route 99 north to Redding, then 299 west to Willow Creek, where begins the wilderness road 96 north, where lies the beautiful wilderness of mountain and wild rivers, continuing on to route 5 north into Oregon to Grant's Pass, then south on 199 to Crescent City, Cal., then south on 101 to Redwood highway, the trail of the giant redwood forest. A beautiful splendor. There's 38 miles of this road, then on to Reo Del and get a pass to go through the world's biggest saw mill. Boy, is it something to see in operation! It was very, very interesting. From there on to the Gold Chain Highway where the great gold strikes occurred several years ago, then from this interesting route where I saw some very big gold nuggets, two about the size of a golf ball, two about the size of a man's fist, and a lot of small ones. Then on to Sacramento and home. I brought back some quartz with a streak of fools gold in it, also some black sand with gold and silver in it. So all in all it was a very good trip.
I love the west, with all it's beauty and history. Who wouldn't?
Next, I am thinking strongly of going to the Amazon, which, of course, is wilder but not as beautiful, but I am sure it will be very exciting. If I get out, I'll let you know.

HAROLD NEWS
The October meeting of the United Methodist Women of Vogel-Day Methodist Church was enjoyed Friday evening October 13, at the home here of Jackie Kidd. The meeting was opened with prayer by Regina Daniels, and Ruby Staton led the devotionals, using Psalm 95 and emphasizing the theme of Fall. She closed with a poem, "The Handicapped." Addie Bea Hall chose a portion of a sermon, "America, Wake Up or Blow Up," as the topic for the evening.
During the business session, the secretary's report was given by Addie Bea Hall and the treasurer's report by Jackie Kidd. A date was chosen and to be announced for the dedication of the church's new stained glass windows. It was also decided to purchase new padding for the church pews and to paint and purchase new drapes for the sanctuary.

OUTDOOR LORE

by Neville Shackelford
UNIVERSITY OF KENTUCKY • COLLEGE OF AGRICULTURE

The various forms and colors of Mother Nature's autumn fruits are often as beautiful as the brilliant foliage that surrounds and often hides them. Some are about as functional as they are beautiful. They may be found growing in showy pods and clusters like the wild grape and hazelnut, or singly like the persimmon and pawpaw. Some fruits have decorative husks or pods enclosing the seeds. Other seeds may be surrounded by pulpy flesh that is not only colorful, the chill winds blow and snows of winter cover the ground, the few dried fruits of the grape, persimmon and honeysuckle left on frozen vine and stem mean survival for many wild creatures. Although today man depends much less on wild fruits for survival, there was a time in human history they were used quite extensively. To the Indians they were an indispensable source of food and medicines. Various berries, like the service (sarvis) berry, formed the basic substance for pemmican. Acorns were ground, leached and used for meal in making bread. Wild seeds such as oats, wild rice and maize were staple grain foods for the redman.

Early settlers also used many wild fruits. Jams, jellies and preserves were made from blackberries, huckleberries, buckberries and wild plums, which once grew in abundance. The juice of the pokeberry was a common source of ink, lip rouge, dye and steeped in whisky served as a treatment for "rheumatiz." Black walnuts and butternuts were peeled and the shells boiled to provide a brown dye, and no autumn passed without the collection of a plentiful supply of various seeds, nuts, berries and herbs for use as food and home brewed medicinal concoctions.

Today most people select their fruits from the local supermarket and their medicines from the drug store. This is all to the good and man is much better off for it, but also tasty. These fruits range in color from gleaming scarlet, orange and yellow to more subtle hues of blue, lavender and purple black.

To many wilderness creatures, late ripening wild fruits mean an abundance of food and the season is one long period of harvesting and feasting. Bears and ground hogs feed heavily, building up reserves of fat before going to sleep for the winter. Squirrels, chipmunks, jaybirds, woodpeckers and deer mice gather large quantities of nuts and acorns, eating some but storing away a supply for later use. Migrating birds seek the juicy berries of the poke and grape, finding them a ready food source on their long and exhausting flight to sunnier climes. Later, when you get natural looking flickers of light wherever you want them.

So easy is this new technique that, instead of shelling out up to $65 for the process in a salon, you can easily paint your hair at home for $4.50. Everything you need is inside a package of Clairol's Quiet Touch, The Hairpainting Kit for brush-on-hairlights.

There's no need to feel locked into hairpainting either — no roots, no retouching every few weeks. You paint your hair if and when the mood strikes, whenever you want your hair to gleam with light. It's a bet that unless you tell, no one will ever guess why your hair is such a sensational shimmer of natural looking highlights.

You can add sparkle to mousy brown hair and zest to "dirty" blonde by painting it. Hairpainting is simple and quick—in 15 minutes

Council Elects Martin Woman

Mrs. Eulavene Ratliff, of Martin, was elected to the board of directors of the 57-county Wilderness Road girl scout council at the council's 15th annual meeting Oct. 4 at the Diners' Playhouse, Lexington. She will serve a three-year term. One hundred eighty-six delegates, visitors and friends of girl scouting elected Mrs. Donald Ivey, Lexington, president; Miss Sarah Sledd, Paris, first vice-president; Mrs. Jack Watson, Lexington, third vice-president; and Mrs. Jack Christian, Morehead, secretary. Directors shown in photo are: From left (seated)—Mrs. Daisy Ray, Cumberland, Mrs. Mary Foster, Frankfort, Mrs. Mary Ellen Watkins, Richmond, Mrs. Jean Frazier, Russell; standing—Mrs. Eulavene Ratliff, Martin, Mrs. Arlene Foster, Monticello, Mrs. Sheila Kitchen Pedro, O., Mrs. Anna Bolling, Lexington.

Tax Expert Says Ky. Taxes Too High But Among Fairest

Tax expert E. D. Ballard told the 60th annual conference of Kentucky's Property Valuation Administrators (PVAs) last week that taxes in the state, as elsewhere, are too high but said Kentucky's property tax system is one of the best and fairest in the country.

Ballard, deputy commissioner of the state Department of Revenue and a 20-year veteran in the field of property tax, said a close look at differences between property tax situations in Kentucky and California show that the commonwealth doesn't need a "Proposition 13."

California's Proposition 13, also known as the Jarvis-Gann Amendment, reduced from 3 percent to one percent the maximum tax rate on real property.

"If all property in Kentucky, were assessed at one percent, a lot of tax bills would be increased," Ballard said. "We know that (the system) is fair in Kentucky—we need to tell the people."

Yet, Ballard said, Proposition 13 may effect Kentucky taxpayers even if it is not enacted here. Measures have been taken in other states to limit property tax, he said, citing Tennessee's recent action to limit annual increases in state spending to about 10 percent.

According to Ballard, taxpayers are interested in three areas of change: tax relief in the form of the amount, equity of the tax burden and accountability of government in spending tax dollars.

One type of action which attempts to address these areas, Ballard said, was taken recently in Montgomery county Maryland. Voters there agreed to reduce property taxes from $2.60 per $100 value, a move which will reduce the county budget by about 10 percent. Among resulting cutbacks are a freeze in teachers' salaries and a shrinking of the school day from seven to six periods.

As to what lies ahead in Kentucky, the deputy revenue commissioner said legislative action in 1980 might take the form of a freeze in assessment value along the lines of Kentucky's "roll-back law" of 12 years.

Local Library Week Declared by Carroll

Gov. Julian M. Carroll has declared October 15-21 "Support your Local Library Week" in Kentucky to recognize library volunteers.

The state Department of Library and Archives, in cooperation with the Paul Sawyer Public Library in Frankfort, supported the proclamation that acknowledges the individuals and groups throughout the state who contribute time and service to the libraries.

Friends of the Library organizations, along with other library organizations, along with other library volunteer groups, raise money in various ways, including membership drives, used book sales, book fairs, film series, and soliciting contributions from clubs and foundations.

Barbara Williams, state librarian, said that volunteers and friends of local libraries, patron support groups, play a vital role in the development and expansion of library programs in local communities. "We appreciate the long hours and many efforts put in by volunteers to assist with programs, raise additional funds and enlist support of other people. The libraries need more volunteers and we need to show our appreciation to the people who are helping us," she said.

Friends of the Paul Sawyer Library is an example of what volunteer and Friends groups can do, said Patricia Mellon, president of the group. The group has given the Frankfort library $1,000 a year to buy books for the past two years. "Every library has funding problems for things they want or need," said Mellon. "Volunteers alleviate some of the problems by providing time, labor and financial help."

Boldman Church Slates Open House, Oct. 25th

An open-house is scheduled for Wednesday evening, October 25, at the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints (Mormon), in Boldman, according to Elder John Fanning, branch president.

"The open-house is an opportunity for anyone in the community to become acquainted with the many programs which the Mormon Church provides for its members," Fanning said.

Fanning emphasized that all persons are invited to visit the open-house which will start at 7 p.m.

A main feature of the open-house will be the showing of the motion picture, "Man's Search for Happiness." The film answers every person's three most vital questions. Where did I come from? why am I here? and, where am I going?

Historic Site Owners Given Certificates

Approximately 1,500 Kentucky property owners—each possessing a structure of historic or architectural significance—hold a Kentucky landmark certificate, according to Nina Head, coordinator of the landmark certificate program for the Kentucky Heritage Commission.

Head credited the number of certificates to the comprehensive county survey, which is being conducted in a 24-county area for the second two-year period. The surveys are one of the main functions of the Heritage Commission. "The commission is responsible for one of the main functions of the Heritage Commission. "The commission is responsible for the preparation and maintenance of an inventory or survey of Kentucky's resources of historic buildings, sites, structures, and other landmarks and a listing of landmarks which possess statewide or national significance," she said.

"The landmark certificate presentation usually follows the county survey, as a public commendation and recognition of those sites deemed worthy of preservation by the commission," added Head. "For example, approximately 170 certificates were presented to property owners in Christian county and about 200 to those in Fleming county at presentations during August."

To be eligible for a Kentucky landmark certificate, a historic site must first be listed on the Survey of Historic Sites in Kentucky. "Besides the staff, county representatives of the Heritage Commission or interested citizens also submit survey forms on sites," explained Head. "The survey team and I use the approved list of sites as the basis for selection of the landmark certificates properties. After we review the forms, we submit them to the commission for approval."

"For a small number of landmark certificates, we mail them to the county representative for distribution or directly to the individually property owners," Head noted. "But in counties or communities where a large number of certificates have been approved, we usually present the certificates in a program sponsored by a local group in cooperation with the commission."

Ambulances, Ghosts Scheduled on KET

"Kentucky Now" takes a look at ambulance service around the state and visits with some people who have met the ghost who haunts Maysville's Opera House, Thursday, October 26 at 8 p.m.

Kentucky essayist Jack Lyne is also featured on "Kentucky Now," KET's public affairs program which repeats Sundays at 2:30 p.m.

In the last several years, federal money has been available to buy ambulances and to train people to run them. The money is running out and citizens are being asked to help pay the cost of continuing the ambulance service. Don Levy, a new reporter for "Kentucky Now," takes a look at the availability, cost and willingness of local citizens around the state to pay for ambulance service in their areas.

"Kentucky Now" reporter Milli Fazey talks with several people who have been visited by the ghost from Maysville's Opera House. The Opera House was built on a cemetery site, and it's almost Halloween.

"How To Build Your Own Business" To Air

Through the Appalachian Educational Satellite program, ARC and SBA are launching a pioneer television project to provide residents of 45 communities with information on how to build a successful business.

A pilot series of three TV workshops will air on October 15, 23 and 30 from the University of Kentucky studio in Lexington and be carried by NASA satellite to receiving sites in the 13 Appalachian states. Teletype and toll free lines will allow for two-way exchanges during the broadcasts between workshop participants and a panel of experts in a central studio in Lexington.

Filmed presentations by authorities on various aspects of small business will open each 1½ hour session, led off by SBA's Chief Counsel for Advocacy, Milton D. Stewart, and Dr. Pat Burr, Assistant Administrator for Management Assistance.

The first workshop will focus on ways of going into business and on business failure and success factors; the second on marketing techniques; and the third on financing. A panel will discuss the problems and issues of each subject area and answer questions from participating viewers.

Charges to participants will be $3 for one program; $5 for two and $6 for all three. The enrollment fee covers two individuals, a person and a spouse or business partner.

Both agencies hope this unique pilot project will achieve effective small business management training for residents of Appalachia and will also result in a program that can be used elsewhere.

AESP is a regional, public service telecommunications network funded by the National Institute of Education and managed by the Appalachian Regional Commission, a state-federal agency. The National Aeronautics and Space Administration provides broadcast time on its satellites.

More information can be obtained from SBA offices and satellite sites in the Appalachian Region, or by contacting: Education Division, Appalachian Regional Commission, 1666 Connecticut Avenue, N. W., Washington, D. C. 20235.
