

Johnson Killed, Bond of $50,000 Set for Stumbo

Detective Says Some Witnesses See Death
As Possible Accident

Stephen Stumbo, 22, of West Prestonsburg, who was jailed on a murder charge Saturday night after his brother-in-law, Larry D. Johnson, 25, of Risner, was shot and fatally wounded near here, was held Tuesday to $50,000 property bond ($5,000 cash bond) after an examining trial held in district court.

The shooting took place at a shooting range off old KY 114, a few hundred yards outside West Prestonsburg, at about 7:45 p.m. The victim died in surgery at the Highlands Medical Center of a single .357 Magnum wound to the stomach.

The only testimony heard at the hearing was that of State Police Detective Kenneth R. DeBoard, who joined Sgt. Gary Rose and Troopers J. Stephens and J. West in the investigation of the case. He quoted from statements made by three witnesses, Lincoln Gibson, Milton Stumbo and Leonard Joseph, Jr.

Their statements, he said, indicated that they felt that the shooting was accidental. The trouble began with a dispute between Johnson and Milton Stumbo, a cousin of Stephen. Milton Stumbo, witnesses said, fired two shots into the ground, near Johnson's feet, then

Reclamation Officials Clear Of All Charges

Two top administrators of the strip-mine reclamation office here were cleared last week of charges, including one that they had ignored violations at some strip sites they had inspected.

After a two-month departmental investigation, Gene Brandenburg, commissioner of the Bureau of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement, found that neither Gene Stewart, head of the Bureau's Prestonsburg office, nor Nevard Wells, its chief inspector, "was a party to any intentional wrongdoing." Stewart has been on leave with pay since May 5, and Wells had been suspended without pay since that date. Both men have returned to work, and Wells becomes eligible for back pay and benefits lost during the time of his suspension.

The inquiry is reported to have been prompted by charges, made by some inspectors in the Prestonsburg office, that Stewart and Wells had ordered them to ignore violations or to "go easy" on certain mine operators; that the two administrators had received gifts from operators whose mines were being inspected by the Prestonsburg office; that communications between the administrators and their inspection staff were poor, and that citizens' complaints about strip operations were sometimes ignored.

Stewart was reported to have said last week that he had never seen morale higher at the local office. Three of the office's 13 inspectors are said to have resigned in recent weeks.

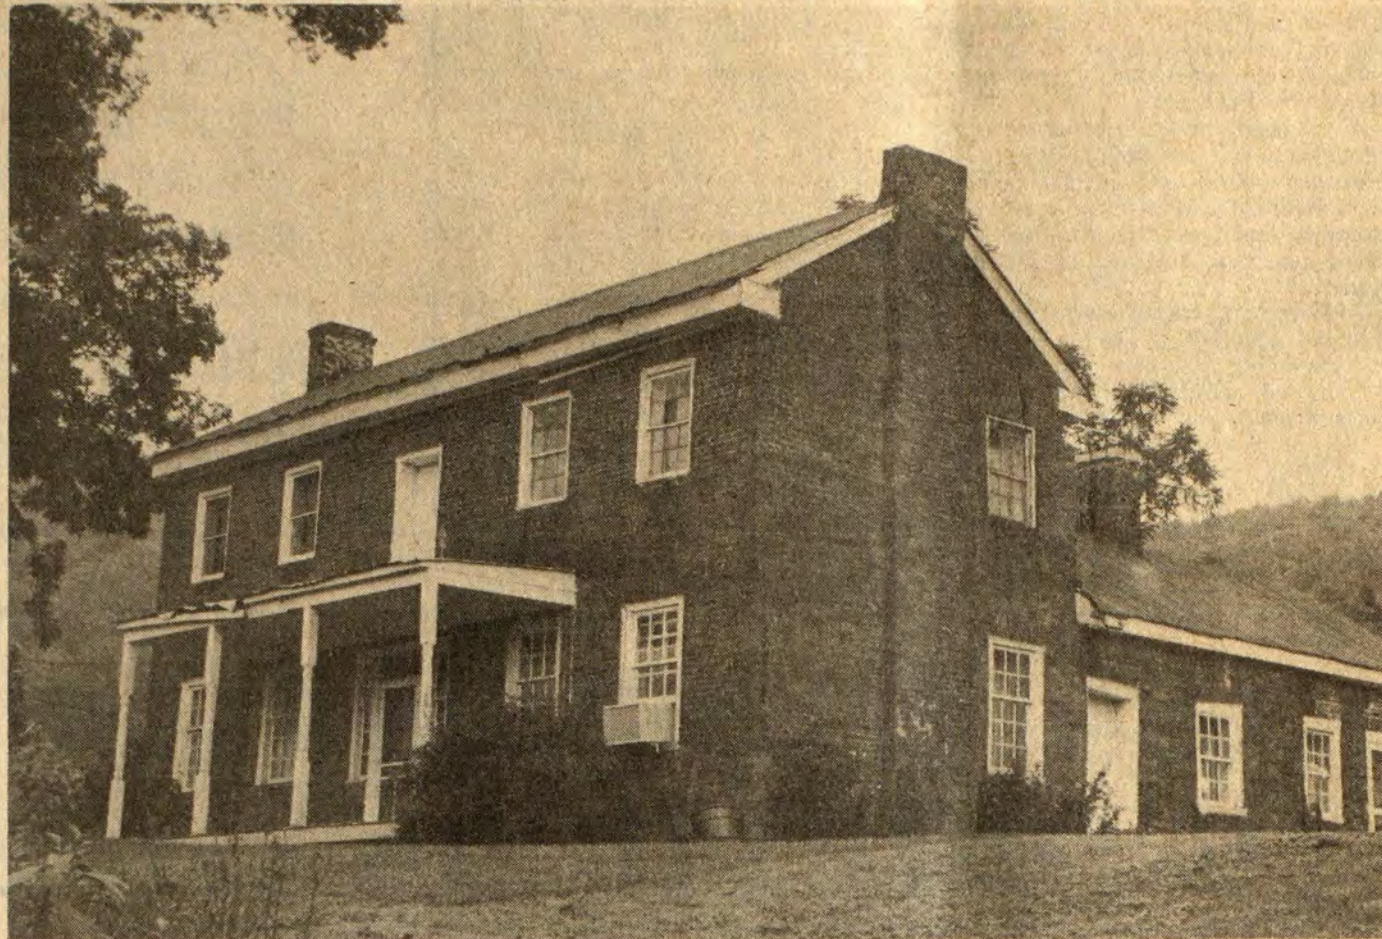

Dr. Joyce, New Med Director For Big Sandy Health Care

Roger Marshall, executive director of Big Sandy Health Care, Inc., has named Dr. Ellen M. Joyce as the organization's medical director. The HEW-funded health agency operates clinics at Mud Creek, Wheelwright, Salyersville and Phelps.

A native of Boston, Dr. Joyce now lives at Banner. She is a physician at Big Sandy Health Care's Mud Creek clinic, and serves on the staff of Our Lady of the Way Hospital at Martin.

May House for Possible Inclusion in Historic Register

The Samuel May House, on North Lake Drive, just across the highway from May Branch, is to be reviewed next month for possible inclusion in the National Register of Historic Places. The house was built in 1816 by Samuel May, a surveyor from Virginia. Bricks for the impressive dwelling were made on the property, and laid with mortar made of mussel shells and sand from the nearby Big Sandy River. Window glass was hauled in from Virginia.

The 163-year-old edifice still has its original lock and outside key, stairways, handcarved mantels, nearly all its original floors and pegged chairboards. The latter were designed to protect the wall paneling from the backs of rocking chairs.

E. B. May, Jr., a descendant of the builder, said this week that the house was in need of restoration. Blasting at the nearby excavation on U.S. 23 has disturbed some of the crumbling brickwork, he said.

Inclusion in the National Register would make the building eligible for federal and state restoration grants. It would also protect the property from alteration or destruction by federal projects.

Martin City Council To Hear Trash Collection Complaints

After making several abortive attempts in recent weeks, some angry Martin residents and city councilors are determined to discuss what they describe as the sorry state of that city's trash collection service at the city council meeting tomorrow (Thursday) at 6:30 p.m. Among the allegations currently circulating in the city are these:

- that Martin Sanitation Co. has been making only irregular and infrequent garbage collections for several months;
- that repeated complaints have resulted in little or no improvement in the situation;
- that two special council meetings called to discuss the problem have been summarily postponed at the bidding of Mayor E. P. Grigsby; and
- that attempts by some area merchants to hire an independent contractor to collect trash have been rebuffed by Martin Sanitation Co. as an infringement of its franchise rights.

Mayor Grigsby was said to be unavailable for comment on the allegations until later this week. Neither Pete Grigsby, Jr., nor Roy Ratliff, reputed owners of Martin Sanitation Co., returned the Times' telephone calls this week.

Martin resident Charlotte Hall said this week that trash had been picked up at her house only once in the past month. "It has been a problem for several years," she said, "but it has been worse recently." Mrs. Hall added that she had reached the point where she didn't bother to complain any more.

Mrs. Edna Lewis, manager of the Dollar Store, said she saw a rat near the store recently, which she attributed to the accumulation of garbage in the vicinity. The piled-up garbage, she added, also makes it difficult for trucks to unload at the store. A trash can on the sidewalk in front of the store has not been emptied in months, she alleged.

The manager of Giovanni's Pizza Hut said she feared a Health Department citation if the trash problem was not

Miners Arrive To Serve Time

They felt like pawns in someone else's chess game—pieces to be pushed around as other people made the moves. They were among the first of an anticipated 29 coal miners to show up at the Floyd county jail, beginning last Friday, to serve a day behind bars for violating a federal court injunction against wildcat strikers.

Last week, U.S. District Judge H. David Hermansdorfer found about 115 members of UMW District 30, Local 24-2264, in contempt of court for refusing to obey a May 29 injunction ordering them back to work at Scotts Branch Mine in Pike County.

The miners were each sentenced to five days in jail, with four of the days suspended if they reported voluntarily to serve the remaining day during their time off work. The Floyd county jail is one of those in this part of the state designated to hold federal prisoners.

"What can we do?" asked Rod Tackett, of Dorton, who arrived to begin serving his sentence Friday night. "We've got to work in the mines. We have no choice. Sometimes I think the country's going communist, the way they lock up guys like us."

Tackett's charge that the miners were caught up helplessly in decisions made by other people—mine operators, union leaders and federal judges—was echoed by Frank Pruitt, of Pikeville. "A man cares for his family...I'm not going to let them starve—and for that I end up in here," he complained, as he waited to be shown to his cell Friday. "I've never been inside a jail before, and I shouldn't be here now. It's the biggest injustice I've seen."

Who is to blame? "The judge says it's us. That's the way he feels," Pruitt answers bitterly. "It's not the way I feel."

Deputy jailer Gene Hall said the miners were being locked up in the main cell with the jail's regular prisoners. The cell accommodates 32 persons. Only three other prisoners were being held when the first miners joined them Friday. Other miners arrived Saturday to serve their sentence, and still others are expected to come in this week-end.

Clifton Death, Puzzler; Autopsy Report Awaited

An official investigation into the death last Saturday of Orville Clifton, 53, of Prestonsburg, may be undertaken after the report of autopsy findings is made by a Lexington pathologist.

When or how he was injured is not known. He was arrested Sunday, July 22, outside the Eagles Club here by Sgt. Darrell J. Conley, of the Prestonsburg police force. The officer said he lodged him in jail, immediately thereafter and that there was at that time no indication that he had been injured. Jailer Lawrence Hale said he talked with Clifton for perhaps half an hour before taking him to a jail cell and that when the prisoner was released the following day to be taken to Layne House here for alcoholism care and treatment he saw no evidence of injury.

On his arrival at Layne House, said Glenda Lawson, who was in charge at the time, Clifton had a black eye. She added that after she left, Tuesday afternoon, he developed a headache. She placed the time at 6 or after. He was then taken to the Highlands Medical Center, thence to Lexington where he died.

Frank H. Layne, for whom Layne House was named, said he saw Clifton there and is positive that whatever happened to Clifton occurred before he came there.

Jailer Hale said that about a week before the time of his arrest Clifton was apparently unconscious after he had either hit a car while riding his bicycle or had been hit. He said this incident occurred in the street between the Burger Queen and the Gulf Service Station at Friend and North Lake Drive. Later, he appeared in normal condition.

The victim is survived by a half-brother, Willie "Jap" Harris.

Funeral services will be conducted at 10 a.m. Thursday from the Floyd Funeral Home chapel by the Rev. Paul Joseph, and burial will be made in the Richmond cemetery.

Hamilton Trial Ends in Change Of Venue Plea

The last murder case on the Floyd circuit court docket was shifted last Friday to another county, possibly Fayette, and one cause for the granting of the change of venue will be the subject of a grand jury investigation.

Work of empanelling a jury for the second trial of Lee Hamilton on a charge of slaying Charles Hatler Hamilton was under way Friday when an Allen woman who had been called for possible jury service reported to Circuit Judge Hollie Conley that she had received what she considered to be a threat, the preceding evening.

This turn of events was followed by the petition of defense counsel, Charles Lowe, for a change of venue. There was little opposition from the Commonwealth, and the venue motion was granted.

The prospective juror, Barbara McCown, told of two men arriving at her home in an auto after nightfall Thursday and of one reminding her, "You have

Junk Car Drive Set To Become County Project

A cleanup drive on junk cars which was begun quietly in recent weeks by the Prestonsburg Athletic Association will make noise, countywide, with all fire departments of the county taking part, it was said here this week.

Richard Leslie, county planner, said the groups joining in the junkers cleanup, which is sponsored, statewide, by the Department of Highways, stand a chance to make money with a minimum of effort. Their work is that of procuring releases of the cars from property owners on whose premises the cars have been parked or abandoned. After that, the state will move the junkers to central staging areas where bids are received from scrap dealers, and the proceeds of their sale go to the local groups or agencies.

A minimum of 150 cars must be released for sale before the state will move them. "The more cars got together, the more bidders and the better the prices," Leslie said.

Seventy-five junkers have already been released in the Prestonsburg area. The Little Mud Community Development Association has also joined the cleanup effort.

Cars left on county highway right-of-way will be red-tagged, moved away and sold, it was said. The local groups presumably will benefit from their sale, also.

County's Share Severance Tax Set at $181,433

Floyd county is to receive $181,433 in severance taxes to allocate to local projects through the economic aid board during the 1979-'80 fiscal year, it was announced last week.

In recent years, the economic aid fund has financed, among other projects, some local fire departments, mini-parks and the Wheelwright swimming pool. The Clark Elementary School PTA recently announced its intention of applying to the fund for monies to upgrade the school playground. A similar project at the John M. Stumbo school, on Mud Creek, has already been approved.

A $5 million annual allocation for economic development was established by Gov. Julian Carroll in 1976 to return coal severance money to the state's 47 coal-producing counties. The economic aid board in each county reviews projects and makes recommendations to the state Department for Local Government, which reviews applications for compliance with the law. A final technical review is made by the Department of Finance.

Allocations to each county are based on a formula which takes into account the amount of severance tax collected, the population, and the per capita income of the county.

Other allocations to eastern Kentucky counties for the new fiscal year include: Pike county, $702,197; Martin, $329,224; Knott, $210,914; Breathitt, $178,812; Johnson, $99,849; and Magoffin, $82,876.

The annual reunion was held Saturday, July 21, at Martin. All nine of their children and 29 of their 34 grandchildren were present. Their 5 great-grandchildren were not able to attend this year.

Those attending the dinner served in the Recreation Hall of the Mormon Church were: Mr. and Mrs. Parley B. Flanery and Flo, of Martin; Bill Flannery, of Jackson, Michigan; Arnold and Eunice Hall and children, George, Jeffrey, and Jennifer, of Martin; Joe and Barbara Flanery and children, Tim, Tony, Todd and Mary Beth, of Lavalette, West Virginia; Gerlad and Nora Sue Tomberlin and children, Bill, Sue, Cindy, Tommy, Ross, Chris, John and Heidi, of Weaverville, North Carolina; Charles and Doris Porter and children, Bryan, Mary Ellen, Amy, Sarah, Christopher, Jo Ann Porter LaBosky, and Doug and Ruth Porter, of South Bend, Indiana; Alger and Emma Lois Pigman and children, Diane, Wayne and Debra, of Hindman, Kentucky; Elman and Mavis Blair and children, Matthew, Monica, and Melanie, of Lexington, Kentucky; Bryan and Joan Flanery and daughter, Kimberly, of Ashland, Kentucky. Other friends and relatives enjoying the dinner and fellowship were: Mrs. Fanny Branham, Mrs. Dollie Branham, Mr. and Mrs. Holbert Spurlock, Elder Mark Parkinson, Elder John Andrus, Mr. and Mrs. D. M. Hutchinson, Mrs. Sarah Porter, Mr. and Mrs. Sanford Ousley, Sammy and John Baca, and Miss Bessie Halbert, all of Martin; and Miss Elaine Gayheart, of Hindman.

Grandchildren and great-grandchildren who were not able to attend were Mr. and Mrs. Kent Slete (Alice Flanery) and children, Barbie and Kelly Renee, of Jonesville, Mich.; Mr. and Mrs. Edd Olney (Terry Flanery) and children, Jason and Nicole, of Jackson, Mich.; Mrs. Kathy Knapp and son, Eric, of Coldwater, Mich.; Mr. and Mrs. Susan Porter Haney, of South Bend, Ind., and Mr. and Mrs. Dean Tomberlin, of Weaverville, N.C.

The next annual reunion has been scheduled for Saturday, August 2, 1980.

Counties May Levy Tax But Not on Coal Only

Kentucky's coal-producing counties may enact an occupational or license tax on coal companies if all aspects of processing the product are incorporated in the tax, according to a recent opinion issued by the Office of the Attorney General.

Assistant Deputy Attorney General Charles W. Runyan, author of the opinion, said some counties are having problems because of their approach to levying the tax.

A Pike county coal tax, levied upon the receiving and-or processing of coal at a fixed place of business for distribution, was declared unconstitutional by the state Supreme Court because it taxed a single aspect of the trade and not the trade itself.

Since the tax was on certain uses of coal, it qualified as an excise tax, Runyan wrote. Kentucky counties can levy only ad valorem taxes and license or occupational taxes.

License taxes must meet certain restrictions according to the county's population, Kentucky law says. According to Kentucky Revised Statutes (KRS) 76.083 (2), all fiscal courts in Kentucky can levy a license or occupational tax for general revenue purposes or for any specific county governmental purpose.

However, another KRS sets a maximum for license or occupational taxes at one percent of salaries and net profits earned in the county for counties of more than 30,000 population.

A license tax may then come to the voters in the general election after the tax is imposed. An annual fixed amount license fee may also be provided by the fiscal court.

In counties of less than 30,000, the tax can be measured in terms of a percentage of coal produced, the law says.

The opinion was requested by Bennie Garland, public administration specialist of the Lake Cumberland Area Development District Inc.

LARGE-SCALE FIRES IN WEST FANNED BY HOT, DRY WEATHER
WASHINGTON—Very hot weather, combined with dry grass, shrubs and timber, helped fan hundreds of lightning-caused fires over 40,000 acres of public lands in the West so far this month, the Bureau of Land Management says.

Americans will consume just under 11 billion pounds of chicken this year, the August Reader's Digest notes. That comes to something like 48 pounds per capita, or about 17 chickens for every man, woman and child in the country. One reason for the high consumption is value. Consumers squawking about the high prices of beef can crow about the relatively low cost of whole chicken—somewhere around 70 cents a pound.

soon remedied. "We have had all kinds of problems," Lavonne Baldrige said, "especially in the last three months." Mrs. Baldrige added that she had only recently moved back to Martin after living in Ohio the past 20 years, and that she is thinking of returning to Ohio because of the garbage situation here. "People in eastern Kentucky deserve better than this," she declared.

City councilman Joe Everage said that he had been "getting complaints from all over town." He was echoed by another councilman, Raymond Griffith, Jr., who said that, notwithstanding Martin Sanitation Company's excuse that they have been plagued with equipment failures and employee problems, the situation is "not excusable."

Griffith said that it was decided at the last regular meeting of the city council that the garbage problem would be discussed at a special meeting July 17. Councilmen each received a certified letter dated July 15, however, informing them that the meeting had been postponed until July 26. Griffith said that, according to City Clerk Terry Sizemore, Mayor Grigsby had ordered the postponement.

Another letter to council members, dated July 25, informed them that the meeting was again postponed, and that the matter would be brought up at this week's regular council meeting. "I don't reckon they can postpone a regular meeting," commented Councilman Everage.

Both councilmen said that a number of citizens had turned out for each of the aborted meetings, unaware that they had been called off.

either tossed the weapon aside or placed it in his nearby car before the two came to blows. This testimony adds that Stephen Stumbo got possession of the revolver and was trying to halt the fight which was going in favor of Johnson.

The detective quoted witnesses as saying that at the stage of the fight when Milton Stumbo was on the ground, Stephen Stumbo was telling Johnson to quit and his adversary, Milton Stumbo, "to hush up." Then, they said, he jabbed Johnson twice in the stomach with the gun, which discharged at the second contact with Johnson.

Powder burns on the body confirmed the statement that the shot was fired a point-blank range.

DeBoard said the witness, Joseph, told him that Stephen Stumbo cried out after the shooting, "Oh, God! I didn't know the gun was cocked."

Although admitting under questioning by Gary Johnson, defense counsel, that the case "does have the earmarks of being accidental," the detective added, "It's difficult for me to believe a man could have a gun in his hand and not know it was cocked."

District Judge Howard J. Stumbo asked if it does not require an effort to pull the cocking mechanism of a revolver. Assistant County Attorney Eric Hall argued that the weapon was Milton Stumbo's, that it had been placed in the owner's car and that Stephen Stumbo had got possession of it. Defense counsel contended that the accused man's statement had "the ring of truth about it," because it was made immediately after the fatal shot was fired.

No member of the victim's family was present for the hearing because time of the funeral was near.

Officials said Tuesday that they did not believe Saturday's incident had any connection with earlier trouble between Johnson and Stumbo families.

Johnson was a son of Mrs. Goldie Ousley Johnson, of Risner, and the late Henry Johnson. He was employed by the R & S Truck Body Company at Allen.

Besides his mother, he is survived by two brothers, Nathan Allen Johnson, of Risner, and Gary Johnson, of Warsaw, Ind.; six sisters, Alla Faye and Kerry Lynn Johnson, both of Risner, Glenda Ousley, of Cromwell, Ind.; Patricia Gay Perkins, of Warsaw, Ind.; Sharon Kaye Stumbo, of West Prestonsburg; and Henrietta Hunt, of Prestonsburg.

The funeral was conducted at 11 a.m. Tuesday from the United Baptist Church, West Prestonsburg, and burial was made in the Jim Johnson cemetery at Risner under direction of the Carter Funeral Home.

physician-extenders trained in the diagnosis and treatment of common illness, and working in close consultation with physicians, she said, would allow the physician to concentrate on more serious illnesses.

A graduate of Tufts University Medical School, in Boston, and a member of the American Academy of Family Practice, Dr. Joyce completed a three-year residency in family practice at Montefiore Hospital in New York and served in a clinic in the South Bronx before joining the staff at the Mud Creek clinic.

"The environmental health hazards are peculiar to each area," she noted last week, adding, "I saw more trauma (violence-related injury) in the South Bronx, but here there are more problems caused by coal dust and road dust." In other respects, however, the problems are similar. "Poor nutrition and parasites are problems," she said, "whether you're in Floyd County or New York City."

"I also suspect that lead-paint poisoning (a common problem for New York tenement dwellers) would turn up here more frequently," the physician said, "if we screened for it adequately."

As Big Sandy Health Care's medical director, Dr. Joyce will be responsible for the overall quality of medical care in the agency's clinics.

at Dewey Lake, the blue waters of Cumberland surrounded by the lush green of its hills was scenery so beautiful that I wish I could, ever so often, push a button and have instant replay.

100 YEARS AGO

Graham Burchett has entrusted to our hands certain old documents which he found, and one of these is the license granted to one James P. Gearheart to operate a tavern in Prestonsburg one year from date (July, 1812).

Another of these old records is the suit filed by the tavernkeeper to collect from the estate of a late customer a bill of $159.80, less a credit of $62. This was filed a mere century ago—in March, 1879.

The name of the debtor shall remain secret. It is not known what caused his death, but I suspect he might have drunk himself to death. For, with the exception of a few cigars and other staples, most of the bill was incurred through the purchase of drinking liquor.

The prices listed in Gearheart's itemized bill are interesting in these days of inflation. For example:

1 pt. brandy 50 cents; 1 bottle brandy cherries, 75 cents; 1 gallon whiskey, $2; 1 qt. wine, $1; hotel bill, kept 2 men all night, $1.50; boarding men, $3.25.

Down in the list is one little item that is a bit poignant. It reads:

"Candy for boy, 10 cents."

We're still trying to get the temperature down to 78 degrees and it ain't funny, McGee.

Appalachian Writers To Speak at Hindman School

The public is invited to a series of free lectures and readings at the Hindman Settlement School as part of the second annual Appalachian Writers Workshop. On August 6 Dr. Cratis Williams, well-known Appalachian scholar, will be speaking. The speaker for August 7 will be Harry Caudill author, lecturer, teacher and former lawyer. On August 8 there will be readings by such well known authors as Harriette Arnow, Gurney Norman, Jim Wayne Miller and James Still. The series will conclude August 9 with readings by participants of the workshop. This lecture and reading series will be held at 8:00 p.m. each evening in the May Stone Building. The Kentucky Arts Commission is a Co-sponsor of the Appalachian Writers Workshop.

Hammond Heads Committee On Workmen's Comp Ins.

Legislation which would form a Kentucky Workmen's Compensation Insurance Provider, a state agency proposal to ease the "high rate-low benefit" problem facing the program, was discussed Friday by the Subcommittee on Workmen's Compensation.

Currently, there is no state provider of workmen's compensation insurance. Policies are obtained from the private sector or outside sources.

Subcommittee chairman Sen. Jim Hammond (D-Prestonsburg) said the added provider competing with the other sources of insurance (private sector, self-insurance, insurance associations), would help keep rates down.

With alternate sources of insurance, Hammond said, the companies would not be able to raise rates so easily, helping slow the present inflationary trend.

Hammond also said it would help businesses which are self-insured that need to obtain "re-insurance."

Subcommittee member Ed Holloway (D-Louisville) explained that re-insurance, insurance on top of insurance, is needed to protect the employer in the event of a catastrophic or devastating loss to the business, such as the destruction of large amount of property.

Eleanor Ross, federal workers compensation advisor of Region IV, suggested the subcommittee include regulations in the new provider program that would prevent it from becoming a dumping ground for high-risk clients. She said all the alternative sources of insurance should take their share of the high-risk policies.

The subcommittee also directed the Legislative Research Commission to study possible legislation which would help solve problems faced by businesses which wish to self-insure.

Hammond said high re-insurance premiums and large double and red-able contributions mean businesses have to make special funds. "These people don't have much of a choice," he said.

Small businesses are especially susceptible to high self-insurance premiums, according to Rep. Holloway. "They can't afford a loss control system, because they can't afford to bring in a specialist to help them formulate one," he explained. Without loss control systems, designed to make the business safer, small businesses inevitably are placed in the high-risk pool, costing more money, he said.

Also discussed by the subcommittee was what Sen. Hammond called the general public and media's general misconception concerning the rise in workmen's compensation rates.

"At the very most we have only had a 5 percent across the board increase in insurance rates since 1976," Hammond said. He added this increase compares with a 7 to 9 percent inflation rate over the same period.

Letters to the Editor

Our 'Priceless Possession'

At the time of a loss of a loved one, people make things much easier by their love and kindness. In this instance, when our William was hit by a car, there are so many people who did outstanding things, we find it hard to express how deeply we appreciate everything.

The Prestonsburg Police Department, who was there immediately and handled the situation professionally, and yet with love and kindness; the emergency room staff at Highlands Hospital who were ready and waiting for us and treated us with speed, and great kindness, especially Mr. Paul Kinny, who flew to Lexington with William, and even came back by the Medical Center to see how he was.

The people at U.K. Med Center, the whole staff, and the teams in neuro-surgical intensive care, who not only treated William with supreme efforts and care up to the last minute, but did it with love. It is a blessing to find medical people who care and show it.

The wonderful fantastic people at East Kentucky Mack, who flew William to Lexington in their helicopter, and wished that they could do more. We are really blessed to have such people in our midst.

And of course, the wonderful people of Floyd county who surrounded us with love, food, flowers when we returned. Rev. Moultrie McIntosh, who made the funeral a beautiful, uplifting, unforgettable experience. The Prestonsburg Police Department, again, who served as pallbearers, and who took the long way around to give a little boy his last ride through Prestonsburg in a police car. Prestonsburg should be proud of these fine, young men. We certainly are. Floyd Funeral Home, Kathryn Frazier, in-laws, friends and relatives—many, many people too numerous to mention—Porter Industries who stood by their employee in a loving and beautiful way.

I could go on and on, but just let me say that we all are very, very grateful for everyone and everything who helped us through this tragedy.

We Appalachians have a lot of problems, and receive a lot of unfair attention. But our most priceless possession is not our coal—it's our warm, wonderful, loving people. In a time of need, there is no other place on earth where people give of their hearts so much. We have always been proud to be a part of Appalachia. The next time someone does a survey, they should realize that here is our most valuable resource.—People so special that there is nowhere else like it.—

God bless each one for helping us through our loss. Our love goes out to you always.

been picked for jury duty, and we want a fair trial out of it, and I'll be back in three or four days to see we get it."

Later, she told Judge Conley, she received a telephone call which she understood to convey the information that the caller, or the group he represented, had a person on the jury who would report to them how she voted. Mrs. McCown said the caller identified himself as Bob Hamilton but she had no identification other than that statement by telephone.

Mrs. McCown could not describe the visitors to her home. She said the car occupied by the two was dented on the right side, but she could not otherwise describe it except to say it was not a compact model.

She said her five children were sitting on the porch when the visit was made and that she was concerned for their safety.

Commonwealth's Attorney James R. Allen directed a state detective to make an investigation and to inspect all autos parked at or around the courthouse Friday morning. None with a dent as described was found.

Judge Conley was emphatic in his denunciation of any attempt to tamper with juries of his court and added that he will call for a grand jury investigation, later in the month.

The petition for change of venue pointed out that "prejudice, excitement and wide publicity" are factors which make a fair trial of the defendant impossible. It also pointed out that the first trial of the case ended in a "hung" jury and that "the state of feeling has progressively grown worse on the part of some of the interested parties."

Wheelwright Revisited

Most recently, I attended a 26-year class reunion at Wheelwright High School, Wheelwright, Kentucky, and also participated in a class tour of the two school buildings. I am at a loss to express how saddened, sickened, disgusted and enraged we all were when we observed the appalling conditions of these buildings.

To list the numerous and intolerable conditions observed would be too timely; however, some inexcusable examples of what we saw were:

Protruding sub-flooring on stairwell landings; panels in doors—missing; holes in doors where door knobs are "supposed" to be; restrooms in basement in atrocious condition with no panels in windows, wet floors, crevice in wall where sink "used" to be, sink "hanging" from wall—absolutely filthy; student chairs and desks in shambles.

I am questioning whether anyone from your area of the state of Kentucky ever visits the schools in this region? Or, do you just rely upon word or recommendations from the local board members? If the latter is the case, I wonder just how observant they really are or what recommendations they can make. It is strongly suggestive that politics and favoritism are prevalent here and, if so, appropriate measures should be taken.

The allocated funding for general repair and maintenance of these schools is most definitely questionable because, if any monies were being allocated here, there would be significant improvement! I have seen buildings in better condition—condemned!

The general conditions of the Wheelwright, McDowell or Betsy Lane High Schools are far worse than Prestonsburg High School (which is 20 years "newer") and yet, through involvement by the State Board, County Board and local residents and parents, Prestonsburg is being renovated. Therefore, I adamantly urge all parents and concerned citizens in the Wheelwright region to pay a personal visit to these schools, observe the deteriorating and hazardous conditions their children are exposed to daily, and then take the appropriate measures to rid their State and Local Boards of the persons responsible for this dire neglect.

A concerned citizen for student welfare,

MRS. LORRAINE LITTLE

King's Island Trip Success

On July 17th and 19th, 1979, the Big Sandy Area Community Action Program, Inc. took 87 disadvantaged children, ages 8 through 12 on a trip to King's Island. One hundred and thirty children were recruited for the trip, but all did not participate. The children had a great time and took many rides while there.

We would like to take this opportunity to thank the following people for their help in making this trip possible: the parents for allowing their children to go, the Floyd County Board of Education for their buses, the Coca-Cola Bottling Company, of Pikeville, the Royal Crown Bottling Company, of Paintsville, Betsy Ross Bakery, of Prestonsburg, the Prestonsburg Sav-U Market, the I.G.A. Store in Prestonsburg and the Brown Produce Company in Prestonsburg.

We would like to give special thanks to the following chaperones who did a wonderful job with the children: Wanda Hall, of Banner, Billie Isaacs, of Teaberry, James Brown, of Prestonsburg, Hannah Hill, of Wheelwright, Grace Little, of Wheelwright, and Monta Gail Burkett, of Prestonsburg.

Seeks Correspondence

I am incarcerated here at the London Ohio Correctional Facility, in London, Ohio.

I am doing some lonely time here. Since I've been sentenced I have lost all communications with the outside world, (including my family). I wonder if there are people out there who care?

I wish you could feel and have the insight to see how a man passes each and every day in loneliness, with never a "HELLO" from the outside world. I like people!

I am hoping you will print a plea for pen-pals in your paper. With your help I could correspond with the free world and put a little more meaning in this lonely and idle time I am doing.

Any help you can give me will be greatly appreciated. Thank you.

Bookmobiles Serve 300,000 in State

State librarians are hoping the bookmobile program will bring a bright spot amidst the summer doldrums for school children and adults.

The bookmobile program, which will celebrate its 25th anniversary next month at the state fair, now provides services to 300,000 Kentuckians, according to Ellen Hellard, director of regional services, Department of Library and Archives. With schools closed for the summer, bookmobiles provide many children with their only access to books, she said.

Typical programs throughout the state sponsor special activities to promote library and bookmobile services. Various libraries have reading contests, summer theater presentations, craft programs, films and story hours.

"If we can get a person to the library or bookmobile, we feel we can find material for anyone," Hellard said.

Material available in bookmobiles includes adult and juvenile fiction and nonfiction. According to Hellard, children's records are one of the most popular items, since they aren't widely available. Bookmobile record collections also include classical and popular music.

Dianne Seidel, Woodford county librarian, says the goal of the bookmobile is to keep children interested in reading through the summer. "So many of the little ones tend to forget recently learned reading skills," she said.

The statewide effort to provide more library services began at the 1954 state fair when Friends of Kentucky Libraries presented 80 bookmobiles for use in Kentucky counties. At that time, only about 30 counties had libraries. Now 113 counties receive library services through statewide programs.

Observes 97th Birthday

A dinner was given July 4 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Hall, of Topmost, in honor of his mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Hall, on her 97th birthday. She is the widow of Austin "Son" Hall.

She has been a member of the Providence Old Regular Baptist Church for 62 years and been a faithful member until she became disabled.

Sharing the occasion with her were her two sons and their wives, Mr. and Mrs. John Hall and Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Hall, both of Topmost. Mrs. Hall has nine grandchildren and seven were present. They are Mr. and Mrs. Buford Conley, Randis Hall, Nada Hall, Laramine Hall, and Lawrence Hall, Jr., all of Topmost; Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Dale Jude, of Pilgrim, and Mr. and Mrs. Delbert Breeding, of Newport, Michigan. Three of her six great-grandchildren were present, Malesha Conley, of Topmost, and Melinda and Dalton Maurice Breeding, of Newport, Michigan.

Others attending were as follows: Mr. and Mrs. I. G. Jude, of Pilgrim; Mr. and Mrs. Larry Wilson, and son, of Martin; Mrs. Charlene Wilson, and grandchild, and Mr. Jim Rose, of Huntington, W. Va.; Mr. and Mrs. Millard Hall and Mrs. Flerency Isaacs, of Dry Creek; Mr. and Mrs. Grayson Slone and Mrs. Ruthele Jacobs, of Pippa Passes; Mr. and Mrs. Tom Waddles and Mrs. Crawford Mosley, of Dema; Mr. Clive Hall, Mrs. Melvie Conley, Mrs. Earnestine Hall and Mrs. Norma Back and grandchild, Jerry Wayne Hall, all of Topmost; Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Slone, of Wayland; Mr. and Mrs. Dings Pigman, of Raven; Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Hart, of Wise, Virginia; Mrs. Willie Hall, Mrs. Effie Hall, and Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Hart, of Wise, Virginia; Mrs. Willie Hall, Mrs. Effie Hall, and Mr. and Mrs. Dalton Breeding and grandchildren, Jason and Neol, all of Kite; Mr. and Mrs. Lonzo Yonts, of Deane; Jimmy Waddles, of West Prestonsburg.

She would like to thank everyone for her many nice gifts she received from friends and relatives.

Highway Contracts Awarded by Grayson

State Transportation Secretary Calvin Grayson has awarded nine contracts totaling $1.6 million for improvements to roads in northeastern Kentucky.

The contracts stemmed from a bid letting held June 22. In all, $1.6 million in contracts were awarded statewide.

The largest contract awarded in northeastern Kentucky was in Carter and Boyd counties for $549,500 to Interstate Lighting Inc., of Versailles, for lighting at the interchanges of I-64 and KY 1 and KY 2, I-64 and U.S. 60, I-64 and KY 180, and I-64 and U.S. 23.

Other contracts, listed by county, are: Boyd County—A contract for $356,290 to Kay & Kay Contracting of London for slab renovation on the bridge over the C & O Railroad near Princess on Grayson-Ashland Road (U.S. 60).

Also in Boyd County, a contract for $49,830 was awarded to Belco Inc., Paris, for furnishing and installing traffic signals on Catlettsburg-Ashland Road (U.S. 23).

Morgan County—Two contracts totaling $322,398 to East Kentucky Paving Corp. of Grayson for surfacing the following:

—Stacy Fork Road from KY 191 south-west for 2.2 miles.

—West Liberty-Licking River-Index Road (KY 2498) from five-tenths of a mile north of U.S. 460 north for one mile.

—Little Caney Creek Road from U.S. 460 south for one mile.

—Yocum-Blaze-Ditney Road (KY 1002) from KY 519 north for 2.6 miles.

—Wrigley-Redwine Road (KY 711) from KY 7 east for one mile.

Various streets in West Liberty.

Bike-a-Thon Chairmen Named in 3 Communities

Mr. William J. Kirwen, director of development at St. Jude Children's Research Hospital, announced this week that the following individuals in Floyd county have agreed to chair the 1979 Bike-A-Thon in their communities.

Mrs. Dorothy Clark, for David; Rev. Dean Pack, for Prestonsburg; and Mrs. Connie Scott, for Wayland will each run separate rides this fall to benefit the internationally recognized hospital.

St. Jude Children's Research Hospital, founded by entertainer Danny Thomas, is non-sectarian, non-discriminatory, and provides treatment free to all patients.

Miners' Groups File Suit To Block Black Lung Fund

Several miners' groups filed suit in federal court last week to block the distribution of $7 1/2 million in federal funds intended for the treatment of black lung victims. The suit seeks to hold up the funds until proposed new regulations are put into effect.

Named as defendants in the case are the secretaries of the Departments of Labor and HEW, the Appalachian Regional Commission, and the Health Services Administration. A petition to enjoin them from distributing the $7 1/2 million, "until regulations are promulgated for the fair and proper use of the money," was filed in U.S. district court in Catlettsburg last Tuesday by Laura Bowers Vandergaw, an attorney with the Appalachian Research and Defense Fund, on behalf of the Kentucky Black Lung Association, the Regional Black Lung Association, and the Association of Miners' Wives and Widows.

The money which the suit seeks to hold up has been appropriated under the Federal Coal Mine Health and Safety Act of 1977, which took effect March 1 last year. Due to be promulgated are new regulations governing distribution of the funds, regulations the miners' groups hope would lead to wiser use of the money.

As long as the new rules have not been announced, however, it seemed likely that the money would be allocated under the existing rules, which the miners' groups allege have led in the past to wasteful and politically-motivated allocations.

Key issues in the struggle for control of the funds are the screening and review process of the state Health Systems Agencies, and the representation of miners and their families on the boards of hospitals and clinics receiving the federal dollars. Nick Frasure, secretary-treasurer of the Floyd County Black Lung Association, claims that the 1974 allocations of black lung money were used to "bail out of debt" the financially-troubled Appalachian Regional Hospitals. Too much of the money, he said, went to health care agencies with high administrative overheads and a poor standard of health care.

Frasure accuses HEW of trying to do "an end run" around the disabled miners' groups and the Eastern Kentucky Health Systems Agency (EKHSA)—which is responsible for screening applications for federal health care monies in this area—in the distribution of 1979-80 black lung funds.

David Bolt, executive director of Kentucky Development Cabinet's office of monitoring and development, confirmed this week that HEW "had raised questions" as to whether its black lung program was subject to the 60-day review period mandated by EKHSA. The problem arose, according to Bolt, because of a July 2 deadline for Kentucky to submit its claim on the federal money. Bolt said that his office was waiting on EKHSA to make a determination on the issue.

A feature of the interim guidelines which are expected to serve as the basis of the new regulations, and which is of particular interest to the miners' groups, is the stipulation that health care agencies receiving black lung funds have black lung victims or members of their families on their governing boards or advisory boards.

Marie Long, secretary-treasurer of the state Black Lung Association and chairperson of the Pike County Black Lung Association, said this week that miners should have input in shaping the new rules, and that they should sit on the policy-making boards of any agency receiving black lung funds. If the 1979-80 monies are distributed under the existing rules, she predicted, "miners would not receive four cents worth of benefit."

Highlands Regional Medical Center spokesman, Russell Dean, said last week that HRMC had submitted to EKHSA a $981,429 proposal to establish a comprehensive black lung treatment program that would link HRMC's cardiopulmonary unit with clinics in outlying areas of the county, such as those at McDowell and Mud Creek, in providing therapy, educational, outreach and follow-up services for black lung victims.

HRMC has been asked by EKHSA to revise its calculations, however, and the amount of its request is expected to be reduced. The total black lung appropriation for HEW's Region IV, which embraces three states besides Kentucky, is $1.3 billion. Kentucky's share of the appropriation is expected to be around $500,000.

Flood Hearings Slated Aug. 16

The Governor's Flood Task Force will hold a public hearing Aug. 16 at 7 p.m. (EDST) in Frankfort to allow citizens to voice concerns and recommendations relating to the December 1978 floods.

The hearing will be at the Boone National Guard Armory.

Flooding last year in the Kentucky, Green, Rolling Fork and Licking River watersheds set records in many areas and resulted in damages estimated at more than $25 million, said Vic Hellard Jr., Legislative Research Commission director.

Just more than a year had passed since the devastating April 1977 floods in eastern Kentucky, said Hellard. During the 1977 floods, damage costs totaled $195 million.

But cost in dollars is only the measurable toll taken when flooding occurs, he said. The trauma of the ordeal itself, work involved in rehabilitation of homes and property and the emotional exertion required to return to normal extract are costs just as real as dollars, said Hellard.

Gov. Julian Carroll has directed the task force to determine flood prediction capability of various responsible institutions; study coordination of flood predictions and communication of these predictions to the public; recommend improvements in flood protection, communication and the ability of state and local governments to respond to flooding.

The task force will submit a formal report of its findings and recommendations to Gov. Carroll in October.

During the August 16 hearing, the public may express opinions and recommendations based on three areas specified by the governor or on any topic connected to problems associated with flooding.

Oral statements can be made during the hearing. However, to insure accuracy of the record, statements or recommendations should be submitted in writing during the hearing or by writing to the task force chairman within 10 days after the hearing.

The address for sending written statements is: Chairman, Governor's Flood Task Force, Room 119, State Capitol, Frankfort, Ky. 40601.

Miss Sandra Jean Phillips, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Phillips, of Allen, became the bride of Mr. Charles Michael Brooks, son of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Brooks, of Betsy Layne, on July 14 at the Boldman Free Will Baptist Church.

The Rev. A. B. Johnson officiated at the double-ring ceremony; and wedding music was provided by Mrs. Marvin E. Music, Jr., pianist, and Miss Betty Phillips and Mrs. Larry Woods, soloists.

The bride wore a white silk organza gown with an empire bodice of viennese lace accented with a Queen Anne neckline and long fitted sleeves. The soft A-line skirt was accented by a crystal pleated flounce sweeping to a chapel-length train. Her matching headpiece was a two tiered silk illusion walking-length veil hand rolled and attached to a cap of Viennese lace.

The bride's bouquet was a cascade of philandopsis orchids and stephanopsis centered on a white Bible.

Bridesmaids were Janet Akers, Diane Brown, Dorsie Puckett and Missy Reynolds, friends of the bride; Jeanne Arnett and Suzie Brooks, sisters of the groom, Karen Phillips, sister of the bride, Debbie Bradley was matron of honor for her sister. They wore identical gowns of apricot syleste knit fashioned with a olouson bodice attached to an A-line skirt and covered with a cape of organza. They wore a matching headpieces of silk apricot roses and carried bouquets of carnations and baby roses.

Aubre Arnett, niece of the groom, served as flower girl, and Chris Stanley was ring bearer.

Joe David Taylor served as best man, and ushers were Mike Sturgill, Gary Roberts, Darrell Meeks, Eddie Clark and Mike Puckett, friends of the groom, Jim Arnett, brother-in-law of the groom, and John Bradley, brother-in-law of the bride.

For the daughter's wedding, the bride's mother wore a full-length gown of pink chiffon. The mother of the groom wore a full-length gown of yellow print chiffon. A reception was held at the church basement with Mrs. A. B. Johnson, Mrs. Joe Osborne, Mrs. Kenneth Maynard, Mrs. Doug Hall, Mrs. Dale Conn, Mrs. Jimmy Cecil, and Mrs. Garris Tackett serving as hostesses. Mrs. Danny Thacker presided at the guest register.

Mr. Brooks is a graduate of Mercer University Southern School of Pharmacy of Allanta, Ga. He is a member of Kappa PSI and RHO CHI Fraternities and is employed by Economy Drug of Pikeville.

Mrs. Brooks attended Prestonsburg Community College and is employed by Sandy Valley Monument and Building Stone Co., of Allen.

After a short wedding trip to Alanta, Ga., the couple will be residing at Betsy Layne.

To Wed August 10

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth L. Hall, of Martin, announce the forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Melinda Rene Hall, to Stevie Stephens, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Stephens, of Martin.

The wedding will take place Friday, August 10, at 6 p.m. at The Left Beaver Creek Regular Baptist Church at Garth. The gracious custom of an open church wedding will be observed.

Incorporated (Mine No. 10), Box 177, Bypro, Ky., intends to file an application for the surface disturbance mining of approximately 2.84 acres at Weeksbury, in Floyd County. The proposed operation is approximately 4 1/2 miles south of the junction of state route 466 and state route 122, on Abe's Fork of Left Beaver Creek, latitude 37 d. 17' 26", longitude 82 d. 42' 15". The surface of the area to be mined is owned by Sid Hall, Bertha Tackett, and Bill Roper. A brief description of the kind of mining activity proposed is: Underground coal mining with other related facilities such as may be necessary or required by the state and federal regulations. The application will be filed at the Bureau of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement, Prestonsburg Area Office, South Lake Drive, Prestonsburg, Ky. 41653.

Persons wishing to file written objections and/or request a formal administrative hearing in regard to the above described surface mine should notify the Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection within 30 days of the date of this notice. A copy of the newspaper clipping must be attached to the written objection. The objection or request for a hearing will reference application number 036.5039. Such objection or request must be in accordance with KRS 224.081 (2), and must be forwarded to the Director of Permits, Bureau of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement, Capital Plaza Tower, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601.

2. Notice is hereby provided pursuant to 30 CFR 715.13 (d) (10) and KRS 350 that the proposed post mining land use does not constitute a change from the premining land use. Public comment regarding a proposed change in land use may be submitted to the address listed above.

Auxier-Inez Route OK'd 100%

What may have been the first public hearing on a highway to find all who attended it in agreement was held at Inez last Tuesday night when the Auxier-to-Inez route was discussed.

One hundred ninety-one persons—almost all from Floyd and Martin counties—attended the hearing, and Department of Highways officials said later it was the only such hearing they had ever attended which did not draw one protest.

Civic and business groups from this county were represented by spokesmen, and both the county and the city of Prestonsburg submitted resolutions endorsing the route proposed for new KY 3 from US 23, near Auxier, to connect with the Inez-Ulysses road now under construction.

Russell Williamson, representing Martin county, called on the people of his county, whatever their politics, to try to get commitments from both candidates for governor that they will push KY 3 and meet other road problems.

The new four-lane KY 3, according to the route approved at the hearing, will leave US 23 at the Jenny Wiley Motel, across the Big Sandy from, and slightly north of Auxier, follow New House Branch and connect with the present KY 3. It will follow the general route of the present KY 3 to connect with the Inez-Ulysses road, near Inez.

The new road will be 15.9 miles in length with two 24-foot lanes and a maximum grade of 7 per cent. Highway officials see it as a part of an Eastern Kentucky network in which it, US 23, the Mountain Parkway, KY 80, US 460 and the Daniel Boone Parkway will figure.

Only a general corridor has been outlined, and highway department officials point out that no construction timetable has yet been planned.

Martin To Get $3,939 For Sidewalks, Streets

The City of Martin will receive $3,939 for municipal road improvements in fiscal year 1979-'80, according to state Transportation Secretary Calvin Grayson.

The city will use the money for sidewalks on KY 80 from First Street to the northeast city limits, and sidewalks and blacktop resurfacing on one-tenth mile of River Street, beginning at First Street and extending east.

The municipal road aid program was established in 1973 to help incorporated communities and eligible unincorporated areas maintain and improve city streets. It is financed with a portion of the state motor fuel tax.

ANNUAL MEET ANNOUNCED

Mrs. Frances Pitts, Floyd county extension agent, has announced that the county's annual Homemakers' meeting will be held at the Maytown Grade School cafeteria Wednesday, August 8. Registration will be from 10 to 10:30 a.m. All Homemakers are asked to bring food for the covered-dish luncheon and arts and crafts for the display. Persons who attended the recent Cultural Arts camp are encouraged to bring what they made there (even if it is not yet finished). The speaker will be Suellen Zornes, of Ashland. Homemakers who have car room are being asked to share transportation to those in need of rides to the meeting.

Students from this Area To Receive Degrees

RICHMOND, KY.—Eastern Kentucky University will confer degrees upon 720 candidates at its 72nd summer commencement tomorrow (Thursday) including four from Floyd county. They are the following:

Patricia A. Hites, of Prestonsburg, bachelor of science; Worley Johnson, of Halo, master of public administration; Marsha W. Sherman, of Prestonsburg, master of arts in education, and Joe B. Vance, of Prestonsburg, master of science.

EKU president Dr. J.C. Powell will present the degrees at the graduation program, beginning at 8 p.m. in the Van Peursem Pavilion.

He will also present the honorary degree of doctor of laws to Dr. Dero G. Downing, president emeritus of Western Kentucky University, Eastern's summer commencement speaker.

PUBLIC NOTICE

NOTICE OF INTENTION TO MINE

1. In accordance with the provisions of KRS 350.055, notice is hereby given that Bebe Coal Corp. Rt. 1, Box 125, Harold, Kentucky intends to file an application for the surface disturbance mining of approximately 5 acres located South of Boldman in Floyd County. The proposed operation is approximately 3/4 miles southwest of Keathly Branch Road's junction with Toler Creek Road, and located northwest of Keathly Branch latitude 37 d. 27' 27", longitude 82 d. 37' 00". The surface of the area to be mined is owned by: Western Pocahontas Land Corp. and Leo Roberts. A brief description of the kind of mining activity proposed is: Surface Disturbance of Underground Mining. The application will be filed at the Bureau of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement, Prestonsburg Area Office, 41653.

Persons wishing to file written objections and/or request a formal administrative hearing in regard to the above described surface mine should notify the Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection within 30 days of the date of this notice. A copy of the newspaper clipping must be attached to the written objection. The objection or request for a hearing will reference application number 036-5035. Such objection or request must be in accordance with KRS 224.081 (2), and must be forwarded to the Director of Permits, Bureau of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement, Capital Plaza Tower, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601.

2. Notice is hereby provided pursuant to 30 CFR 715.13 (d) (10) and KRS 350 that the proposed post mining land use does not constitute a change from the premining land use. Public comment regarding a proposed change in land use may be submitted to the address listed above.

PUBLIC NOTICE

The State Historic Preservation Officer for Kentucky announces that the Samuel May House, Northlake Drive, Prestonsburg, Kentucky will be considered by the Kentucky Historic Preservation Review Board for nomination to the National Register of Historic Places. On September 11, 1979, 1:00 p.m. a meeting of the Board will be held at the Brown-Pusey House, 128 N. Main Street, Elizabethtown, Kentucky.

If approved by the Review Board, the nomination will be forwarded to Washington, D.C., for final review. The National Register serves to identify "districts, sites, buildings, structures, and objects significant in American history, architecture, archaeology, and culture."

Property owners are assured that listing on the National Register gives no control over the property to local, State, or Federal governments. Rather, it provides protection from inadvertent alteration or destruction by Federal projects, under existing laws relating to historic and prehistoric sites. Placement on the Register also makes a property eligible for participation in Federal and State grants programs for restoration of sites. Procedural questions and comments concerning the merits of the sites should be addressed to the State Historic Preservation Officer, Kentucky Heritage Commission, 104 Bridge Street, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601 Phone: (502) 564-6683, preferably in writing and prior to the meeting, which is open to the public.

Coal Firm Asks $700,000 Claim

Alleging that its property in the vicinity of Eastern is being trespassed upon by the Northern Elkhorn Coal Company and the F. Taylor Mining Corp., the Beech Grove Coal Company has filed suit in the Floyd circuit court, asking $500,000 actual damages and $200,000 punitive damages.

The suit claims that the F. Taylor firm is mining coal on an adjoining tract and hauling it across the property of Beech Grove and has processed coal from other land through its tipples.

Plaintiff asks that an injunction be issued against defendants, that they be required to pay a reasonable wheelage fee and also make a full accounting of all coal moved from tracts that are not a portion of plaintiff's land.

Involved in the action are surface rights, railroad sidings, tipples and other mining equipment conveyed to Beech Grove July 21, 1977 by J.A. Gayheart and others.

(Reports of damage suits give only the plaintiff's side of the case at issue.)

Truman Messer, Sportsman

By KENNY RICE
Martin businessman Truman Messer deserves an appearance on ABC-TV's fine outdoor series. "The American Sportsman." Messer has all the skills necessary for an outdoor sportsman. All he needs is to go hunting or fishing some day with a celebrity, say James Garner, and he might qualify.

Truman would be a natural stalking antelope in the Teton Salt River Range in western Wyoming or hunting moose in the wilderness of Chapuleau, Ontario or bass fishing on Florida's famed St. Johns River. He has already been on successful ventures in each of these places and many more.

The paper work is quickly pushed aside on the desk of his department store office when the topics of hunting and fishing are mentioned. Messer has a lifetime of tales about climbing hills and paddling rivers in search of game.

"I've hunted all my life. Really, I can't remember when I first hunted; I just remember I was hunting squirrel in the Quicksand area (where he grew up) when I was still a child," Messer recalled. "Hunting was something that everybody did when I was growing up, just as children today play baseball or basketball."

He returned from Chapuleau two weeks ago where he had been fishing for pike with Steve Stout, of Martin, and Kenneth "Buzz" Allen, of Allen. It was in that same region of Canada's Ontario province in the mid-1970's when Messer shot a three-quarter-ton moose with a 61-inch antler spread. That moose was the largest killed in that section in this decade until a year ago when a man shot one measuring 63 inches across the antlers.

After seeing the moose rack and several deer racks on display in the den of his home, it is not surprising that Messer's favorite game is the deer. He has killed more than 20 deer, both white tailed and a spotted European breed, during his hunting life in addition to the antelope and elk and three moose he has bagged.

His next prey in the antler family is the caribou.

"I enjoy deer hunting more than any other. Some hunters disagree with me but I think the white-tail deer is the smartest wild game animal. They have adapted to live around people and still stay clear of them. They are the only big game that will hide in the brush and watch the hunter go by. They are a browsing animal that can live off small bushes. They don't need a heavily wooded area to exist, which is one reason there are as many deer in Kentucky now as in the days of Daniel Boone," Messer notes.

He also enjoys bird hunting and has hunted grouse, quail, duck and pheasant.

He has hunted fox, squirrel, groundhog and rabbit. As a matter of fact it's hard to name any wild game he hasn't hunted.

Truman has one rule he has never broken as a hunter. "I never would shoot anything I wouldn't eat," he explains. "I could never see the point of killing something just to kill it."

He is famous for giving away the meat and fish he brings back from his expeditions. Truman has probably given away more wild game than anyone in the state. He simply likes "to share with my friends, that's another part of hunting which I like."

Since 1960, he has made an annual January trek to Florida to bass fish on the St. Johns River. The St. Johns once was known as the "bass capital of the world," but Truman says, "The bass have fallen off some. The Corps of Engineers in that area have straightened some of the bends and sprayed in the area and that might have affected the bass."

As the case with his hunting, so it is with his fishing. Messer has just about fished for every type. He has fished creeks, rivers, lakes, and oceans. After 19 consecutive winters fishing for bass down south, it is obvious what is his favorite kind of fishing.

The Canadian fishing trip has been an annual happening for the past three years and he is very fond of the "fisherman's paradise," up north. The fishermen are flown into the forest between 27 and 45 air miles from the nearest road, and left there for a week to fish. The forest area fishing trip is part of Sunset View Camps package deals. Later on in the year the package will include moose hunting. Truman has killed three moose on three successive trips.

He has fished in some of the deepest waters off the Florida coast, he has scaled mountains 10,000 feet above sea level to hunt antelope and has never had an unsuccessful expedition, yet there is still a region Truman Messer wants to hunt and visit.

"I've always wanted to go to Alaska. I'm getting a little old and you have to be in good shape to make the trip and hunt when you get there, but maybe I'll get a chance to go, some day," he added. "It would definitely be an adventure."

An adventure is part of the outdoorsman's life and Truman Messer has experienced more than his share in the mountains and on the waters. It's hard to keep a hunter down when he sets his sights on something and Truman's Alaska trip may not be that far off.

Now if he could only get James Garner to go along, I'm sure ABC would be interested in sending along a camera crew.

TICKETS ON SALE
Season tickets for Prestonsburg's six home football games are now on sale at the Fountain Korner Drug, Francis, Castle's Jewelry, Rose's Drug and Prestonsburg High School.

Coach Phillip Haywood, his staff, and a squad of 35 players left Sunday for a two-week football camp at Millersburg Military Institute.

Haywood followed his tradition of being cautious about any pre-season claims, saying only, "It's too early to tell about the way the team will shape up. By the end of this week I hope to have a better indication."

Miss Akers at Age 14 French Lick Golf Star

Libby, 14-year-old daughter of Charles and Leslie Shaw Akers, formerly of this county, is perhaps the best female golfer in the French Lick, Ind. area.

She recently won the Ladies' Wood Capital open at French Lick with an 82 for 18 holes. A year ago, at 13, she won the French Lick Ladies Club title.

At least one university was interested in enrolling her on a golf scholarship—until it learned that she must first get through high school.

Miss Akers' father is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Cleo Akers, of Dwale, and is head football coach at French Lick High School.

Near-Miss for Little League All Stars

The Prestonsburg Little League All Stars missed by only one game a trip to the state tournament in Owensboro.

Led by the pitching of Gordie Ratliff and Todd Nairn, the team won the area 1-2 tournament in Paintsville, July 17-21, defeating Harold-Allen (13-3) and Paintsville (6-5). The boys then traveled to Pikeville July 24, where they trounced Pikeville, 15-10, only to be defeated the following evening by a strong Ashland team, 4-0.

One of the most successful Little League teams from the area in recent years, the All Stars enjoyed strong hometown support.

Martin Class of '64 Holds Dinner-Dance

Martin High School, class of 1964, celebrated its 15-year reunion on Saturday, May 26, at the John's Branch Fish and Game Club clubhouse, with a dinner and dance, with music provided by the Dixie Bridge, of Salyersville.

The invocation was given by Earl Collins, and after dinner, certificates were presented in the following categories:

Traveling the farthest—Gary Butler; Youngest Child—Ann Allen Davis; Oldest Child—Bill Barnett; Stayed single longest—Linda Gail Skeans; Married longest—Theresa Dermont Webb; Married shortest—Loretta Hunter Hagestad; Changed most—Bill Barnett; Changed least—Diane Music Collins; Longest time away from Floyd county—Kay Allen Gwinn.

A poem by Helen Steiner Rice, "Death is Only a Part of Life" was read by Marena Watson Hale in memory of James W. Salisbury, Jimmy Wayne Martin, and Cledith Ray Baraett.

Guests of the class included Coach Denzil Halbert and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Gordon Allen.

Those attending were as follows: Ann Allen Davis and husband, George, Kay Allen, Jerri Ann Artrip Campbell, Bill Barnett and wife, Judy, Juanita Barnett Wright, Gary Butler and wife, Sandy, Bobby Caudill and wife, Pat, Parthena Click Martin and husband, Denny, Kay Conn, Theresa Dermont Webb, Yvonne Dingus Mosley, Raymond Griffith, Jr., and wife, Donna, Bobby Hackworth and wife, Janie, Jonette Rae Halbert Osborne and husband, Freddie, Hershel Ray Hale and Marena Watson Hale, Loretta Hunter Hagestad and husband, Jack, Norman Hunter and wife, Trudy, Morris Isaac and wife, Hope, Virginia Jenkins Twiss, Sheila Justice Akers and husband, Kenneth Ray, Don Marshall and wife, Judy, Diana Music Collins and husband, Earl, William Ousley and wife, Michele, Linda Gail Skeans and Leon Neilsen, Artie Sue Tackett Thornsby and husband, Larry.

BETSY LAYNE COMMUNITY NEWS

Many friends of Kenneth Stephens attended his baptism at Calvary Baptist Church last Sunday.

Friends of Mrs. Gary Daniels and family were saddened to learn of the death of her sister, Merle Meade Taner. Funeral services were held Wednesday at the Betsy Layne Freewill Baptist Church. Mrs. Taner died in Louisville.

Sympathy is extended to the family of Roger Hinkle, who passed away at Jackson, Ky. Mr. Hinkle was the brother of Kathryn Hinkle Blackburn and Donald Jackson, of Pikeville. Mr. Hinkle attended Betsy Layne High School. Funeral services were held at the Call Brothers Funeral Home last Friday, by the Rev. Cohen Campbell officiating.

Miss Kathryn Blackburn entered Jewish Hospital in Louisville, where she will soon undergo heart surgery.

Squire and Betty Hall, of Lexington, spent the week-end visiting her mother, Elizabeth Spears, and other relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Larson and Robin have had as houseguests for several days Mr. Larson's brother and family from Carson City, Calif.

Friends of Mrs. Myra Walters Ambury are glad to learn she has returned to her home after a brief stay in Mountain Manor Nursing Home.

Thanks to James Eddie Adkins for his fine display of community spirit as he cleaned up and cut weeds around the Betsy Layne fire house, all free of charge.

Mr. and Mrs. Larry Collins, their son, Jason, and a friend, Shelia Cole, of Albion, Mich., have been visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Castle Collins, and grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Lynch, for the past week.

Butch Clark is home after having surgery. All wish him a speedy recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. Castle Collins, their sons, Larry Collins and Danny Collins and families were visiting the Breaks Interstate Park last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Coleman, of Louisville, spent a few days visiting Mrs. Coleman's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Lynch.

Visiting Mr. and Mrs. Danny Collins last week-end was Berry Selack, of Albion, Mich.

Richard Davis, of Charleston, W. Va., a graduate of Betsy Layne High School, attended his class reunion at the Holiday Inn, Pikeville, and a get-together at the home of Roma Lou Clark McClahan, of Pikeville.

Robert and Francis Foley Patrick, of Ashland, are visiting her mother, Mrs. Ethel Foley, and sister, Lois Walters. While here Mrs. Patrick was given a birthday dinner July 29th at the home of her mother.

John A. (Buddy) Stratton was a houseguest of Mrs. Ethel Foley last week-end.

Mrs. Corene Dye and Mrs. Marie Dotson, of Pikeville, visited their brother, Richard Leedy, of Portsmouth, Ohio, last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Coie Sammons and family, have returned from a visit to Florida.

A party given for the youth of Betsy Layne United Methodist Church was given by Mr. and Mrs. Dale Meade, at their home. A cook out and swimming were enjoyed.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Walters, of Hamilton, Ohio, were visiting Mrs. Lois Walters and family last week-end.

Travis Elswick, of Grove City, Ohio, was a houseguest of Mrs. Ethel Foley this week.

Mrs. Nettie Akers is improved after a recent fall.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Fife and Mrs. Fife's parents were in Ohio last week-end visiting Mrs. Fife's sister and family.

IN HOSPITAL HERE

Ed Davis, of Printer, is a patient at Highlands Medical Center, undergoing examination. He entered the hospital last week.

Jenny Wiley Beauty Pageant Set at Amphitheatre, Aug. 13

The Miss Jenny Wiley beauty pageant will be held on Monday, August 13, at 7 p.m. at the Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre, Jenny Wiley State Park, near Prestonsburg.

Awards and prizes will be presented to winners in four age groups in the pageant. These are Tiny Miss Jenny Wiley, age three through kindergarten; Little Miss Jenny Wiley, first grade through fourth grade; Junior Miss Jenny Wiley, fifth grade through eighth grade, and Miss Jenny Wiley, ninth grade through age 18. The contestants will compete in dress and sportswear competition and will be judged on the basis of beauty, charm and poise.

Anyone interested in entering the pageant may call Peggy Arnett, 874-9408 or the Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre, 886-9274. Late registration will be held at the theatre at 2 p.m. Sunday, August 12. An entry fee will be charged.

The Jenny Wiley Drama Association, the Pike County Jaycee Wives, and the

Floyd, Pike and Johnson County Jaycee-Ettes are sponsoring the pageant because the Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre may not be able to continue its current format of producing four shows each summer without an immediate financial boost.

Rainy weather this summer has cut attendance at the theatre since it opened in June, and public response to the theatre's requests for help has not been adequate to meet its financial needs. Proceeds from the pageant will go to help the theatre.

Peggy Arnett, drama association member assisting with the project, said the theatre is "in dire need of money. We need everybody we can get to come out and try to help the theatre this season."

In addition to attending the pageant, those wishing to help the theatre may make donations. Information concerning donations may be obtained by calling 886-9274.

FAMILY REUNION

The R. E. (Dodd) Blackburn family reunion and picnic were held at Jenny Wiley State Park, Saturday, July 28. Relatives enjoying this occasion were Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Lafferty, Prestonsburg; Mr. and Mrs. James Taylor and children, Saunders Lynne, Larry Stanley, Jamie Sue, and Duyane, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Taylor and children, Kimberely Kay, Joey Jay, Bucky, Glenn W., and Melissa Ann, all of Pikeville; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Blackburn, Dayton, Ohio; Mrs. Hyllis Thomas and children, Margaret Beth, Charles Dodd, and Rebekah Lea, and Mr. and Mrs. Joe Blackburn, of Tifton, Georgia; Sarah Anne and McKinley Mullins and daughters, Kathy and Kindra, of McCombs; Mr. and Mrs. Crit Blackburn and children, Gregory Crit, Diana P., and Raleigh Pete, of Gulfport. A brother, Colonel J. Blackburn, and family, of Ypsilanti, Mich., were the only family members unable to attend. This was the first reunion of the family in seven years. The family has decided to make it a yearly event.

Host chapters and regents were John Graham Chapter, Mrs. James B. Goble, Prestonsburg; Harmon Station Chapter, Mrs. R. C. Morris, Paintsville; Indian Mound Chapter, Mrs. D. Glen Salyers, Salyersville; Breathitt County Chapter, Mrs. J. Everett Bach, Jackson; and Jane Owen West Chapter, Miss Helen Williamson, Belfry.

State Vice-Regent Mrs. Roy Nestor, presiding officer, called the meeting to order and Mrs. Robert L. Klaren, state chaplain, offered the invocation. Mrs. R. C. Morris led the group in the pledge to the Flag of the United States of America, followed by the American Creed led by Mrs. Samuel F. Lindsay. Mrs. Klaren led the group in the singing of the national anthem, with Mrs. J. Everett Bach, regent, Breathitt County Chapter, welcoming the state officers, regents, and sixth district members.

Reports were presented by state officers, and Mrs. George Mays, sixth district director in charge of the program, was introduced by Mrs. Nestor, presented the sixth district chapters and held a roll call which included the chapters regents and members as follows:

Poage Chapter, Mrs. Allen C. Hopes, Ashland; Troublesome Creek, Mrs. Samuel Gearhart, Hindman; Louisa Chapter, Mrs. Paul Wright, Louisa; James T. Morehead Chapter, Miss Frances Helphinstine, Morehead; Pikeville Chapter, Mrs. Sallie Dotson, Pikeville; Morgan County Chapter, Mrs. Vernice Wilson Rose, West Liberty; and Pine Mountain Chapter, Mrs. Clara Shaw, Whitesburg. Hazard Chapter was unable to attend. A number of reports were given by the state chairmen, with Mrs. J. G. Stepp presenting the credentials report. Mrs. Thomas Burchett, State Regent, presented the state regent's message.

Special recognition was given to four John Graham Chapter members, the four being sisters and members of the same chapter: Mrs. James B. Goble, regent; Mrs. Mae Kendrick, second vice-regent; Mrs. J. G. Stepp, recording secretary; and Mrs. Opal S. May, chaplain. Benediction by Mrs. Klaren, state chaplain, concluded the sixth district meeting.

At the luncheon held at the dining room, Mrs. James B. Goble presented the state officers, Mrs. Mays, and Mrs. J. Frank Preston, district press chairman, with plaques created by John Graham Chapter members, Mrs. Eleanor Horn, Mrs. J. G. Stepp, Mrs. Opal S. May, Mrs. Goble, Ms. Alice Harris, and Mrs. Margaret Collins.

Miss Rhondetta Goble and Miss Margaret Jane Lambert served as pages, and Mrs. Margaret Hernandez was time keeper.

Mrs. Opal S. May, Mrs. Eleanor Horn, and Mrs. J. G. Stepp, registered members and guests, and Mrs. Frances Preston Brackett was in charge of luncheon reservations and flower arrangements.

Ten Years Too Long To Wait For Switch to Coal, Perkins Says

Congressman Carl D. Perkins last Thursday called upon President Carter to speed up the timetable for requiring oil and gas-burning utilities to switch back to coal.

In his July 15 address to the nation, the President called on Congress to require by law that utility companies cut their use of oil by 50 percent in 10 years and switch to coal.

"With the national emergency upon us allowing these plants a decade to switch just halfway back to coal is unthinkable," Perkins told the President.

The Kentucky Congressman reminded President Carter that in the early 1950's when foreign oil imports began to grow at a fast rate, most of the major northern and northeastern utilities switched from coal to oil or gas in a matter of a year or two. Of the President's recommendation that the utilities start switching back to coal, Mr. Perkins said, "I must be frank to tell you that this goal is inadequate and the opportunity for real savings in petroleum is not seized."

He praised the President's call for boldness in dealing with the energy situation and advised him to suit action to the words.

VA Pension Rate Better for Some

A recent increase of nearly 10 percent in some Veterans Administration pension rates may prompt some veterans to take another look at the improved VA pension plan passed last year by Congress.

VA said the rate increase under the newest VA pension program is tied directly to increases in Social Security payments. The latter were raised 9.9 percent as of June 1, 1979.

Nearly 432,000 veterans have asked the VA to switch their pensions to the improved plan.

And VA reminded eligible veterans who haven't made up their minds whether to "stay put" or switch that they have only until October 1 to qualify for retroactive benefits.

The improved plan offers substantially higher pension rates than the old program, but changes in some income counted under the new plan may make it advisable for certain veterans to remain under their current plan.

In establishing the improved pension plan, Congress stipulated that veterans may switch to it at any time, but must do so before October 1 if they wish the higher rates it provides to take effect retroactively to January 1, 1979.

VA pensions are based on income and go to eligible wartime veterans who are permanently and totally disabled from causes not traceable to their service, and who are in financial need.

Pensions are also paid to certain needy survivors of wartime veterans. Under the new pension rates, a single veteran may receive a maximum pension of $3,902 a year, up from $2,364.

Because certain income that is ignored under the old plan is counted in computing eligibility for the improved plan, VA said some veterans will be better off not to switch plans.

In cases where it is not to the veteran's advantage to elect the new program, VA has been advising them to remain under the old pension program.

END USE DICTATES WOOD FINISH

Woods found in every home need surface protection against wear, soil and stains. Apply finishes to woods to provide this protection and enhance natural beauty.

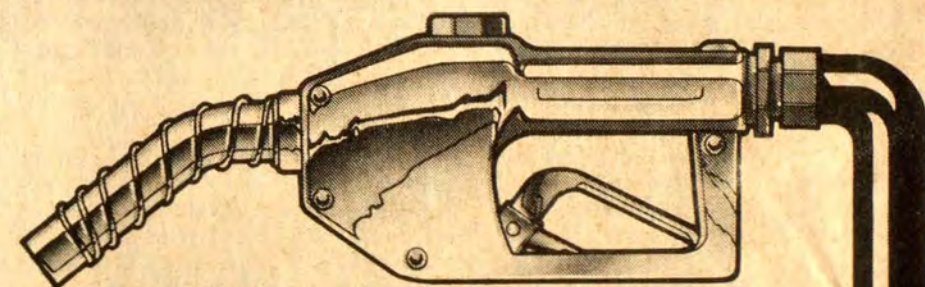

Unfinished woods shrink to dry, hot air and swell in moist air. They are also marred and soiled in everyday use.

Finish wood to: (1) retard changes caused by variations in moisture and temperature and (2) close the porous surface to reduce contamination by handling, atmospheric grime and food, thus making cleaning easier.

When you finish wood, consider its final use before determining what kind of coat to apply. Finishes for floors should have high resistance to abrasive wear; finishes for kitchen cupboards should be resistant to marring and abrasion. The type of wood paneling finishes you use depends on the paneling location.

Before selecting a particular finish, decide what characteristics it must have to give you good service.

Conventional finishes include varnish, lacquer, oil and penetrating seals. Other finishes for homeowners' use are the epoxies and urethanes. Consider cost and your application skills, and to assure performance satisfaction, consider how the wood surface will be treated in use.

PARASITES—a Frequent Problem in Pets

By ROBERT L. STEAR, D.V.M.
Manager of Veterinary Services
Norden Laboratories

Intestinal parasites are a chronic problem with many pets, and worm medicines are some of the most common non-prescription pet medicines sold. These medicines may be more beneficial if pet owners understand some basic information about parasites and their control.

First, you should know that pets usually acquire worms from fecal material containing worm eggs, and fleas carrying immature worms. Puppies may even be born with worms that migrated into the mother's womb. Pets do not automatically develop worms from eating sweets, milk or certain other foods.

Second, the symptoms of worm infestation can vary greatly, depending upon the type of parasite and the age of your dog or cat. Some pets with worms lose weight, become anemic and have dull coats or potbellies. Others show few signs, if any. Generally, young animals are more susceptible to the effects of internal parasites than older pets, which may develop some resistance to parasitic attacks.

Any pet that harbors a large number of parasites runs the risk of serious physical injury. Worms that travel from one organ to another damage tissues and interfere with the proper functioning of the body's systems. With heavy infestation, a critical amount of blood may be lost and young animals may die. Those that survive may be permanently stunted. Adult animals may become sluggish, have diarrhea and generally appear ill.

Your veterinarian can determine if worms are present by examining a fecal sample under a microscope. He or she may also examine the area around the pet's anus for rice-like particles that are tapeworm segments.

Worms are controlled by medications given by mouth or by injection. Generally, two or more doses are given, two to three weeks apart. The first treatment will kill the adult worms; the others will eliminate the young worms that hatch from remaining eggs.

If you decide to treat the pet yourself, remember that a worm medicine is not a cure-all. Too many pet owners turn to this medication at the first sign of any sickness in their pets. A definite diagnosis of a worm problem is necessary if the medicine is to be effective. Vague symptoms such as fever or diarrhea are not positive signs of worm infestations. Many individuals worsen the situation by overdosing, or worming a pet that is sick for another reason.

The common internal parasites found in pets include roundworms, hookworms and tapeworms. These worms reside in the intestinal tract and rob cats and dogs of vital nutrients by feeding on intestinal contents or drawing blood from the mucous membranes lining the intestinal walls.

Successful worm control procedures combine the use of a worming agent with a thorough cleaning of the animal's living quarters. Check with your veterinarian regarding a disinfectant suitable for use in kennels and other pet areas. To help prevent reinfection of your pet, plan on regular removal of waste from litter pans and runs, plus a flea control program.

Because your pet can become infected with a wide variety of internal parasites, and because identification of the parasite is necessary before treatment, I strongly suggest you consult your veterinarian in order to establish a worming program for your cat or dog.

Errors Corrected

In the obituary of Alvin Moore, published last week, four errors occurred. Correctly, these items of the obituary should have read:

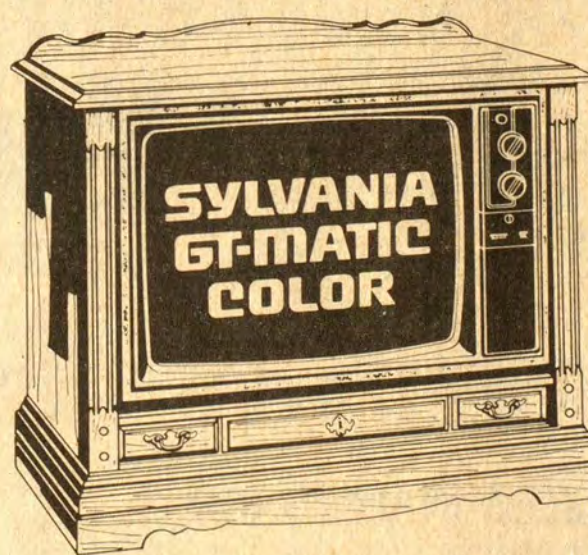

His first wife, Gracie Shepherd Moore, died in 1944 (not in 1935, as stated); his three daughters are Mrs. Eva Nolen, Mrs. Pearlie Jones and Mrs. Polly Ann Patrick; his son's name is Johnnie Moore, and his surviving brother's name is Linzie Moore.

The Magnificent Magnolia

By NEVYLE SHACKELFORD
(UK College of Agriculture)

While its wood may be of limited value as lumber, it would be hard indeed to find a tree that holds a more sentimental spot in regional affection than the magnificent southern magnolia. Blooming right now in large creamy-white, delightfully-fragrant flowers, it symbolizes all the romance, glamor, and gallantry of the legendary Old South.

In fact, this state flower of Mississippi and Louisiana is the glory of the South in song and story. It is the tree that President Andrew Jackson ordered planted near the south portico of the White House as "something green in memory of Rachel," his beloved wife.

Traditions surrounding the magnolia are as ancient as they are many. The genus was named in honor of Dr. Pierre Magnol, celebrated 17th century French botanist and physician to King Louis XIV. Incidentally, Dr. Magnol was one of the first men to classify plants by botanical families.

But long before the 17th century, magnolias were cultivated by the Chinese who preserved the buds for medical use and for seasoning rice. Much later in 1770 or thereabouts when Swedish botanist Peter Kalm was traveling over America in search of "beneficial plants" for the Swedish Academy of Sciences he discovered Pennsylvanians steeping the red seeds of the magnolia in rum and brandy for use in treating "pectoral diseases."

"The virtues of this remedy," Kalm reported to his superiors, "are universally extolled, and even praised for their salutary effects in consumption."

Kalm also described the odor of magnolia blossoms to be "agreeable beyond description" which, indeed, it is.

According to dendrologists, the magnolia can be traced back to the Cretaceous period of geological history when dinosaurs stalked the earth. Fossils of this tree have been found as far north

Past Country Music Greats To Be on KET

Country music legends give fans a taste of the past on "CMA Family Reunion," which airs Wednesday, August 8 at 8 p.m. (ET) on KET.

The Country Music Association program taped at Nashville's annual Fan Fair during 1978 features songwriters, singers and musicians who re-create the old days of country music radio, minus the bad reception.

Opening the "CMA Family Reunion Show" is the band that invented western swing, Bob Wills' Texas Playboys. Although Wills died in 1975, the band has continued to play the sound they spread through Texas and Oklahoma in the early thirties.

Also featured on the show are such greats as Grandpa Jones, famous banjo player and member of the "Hee Haw" cast; Jimmie Davis, singer and former governor of Louisiana; Lula Belle and Scotty, a husband and wife team from the early National Barn Dance in Chicago; Pee Wee King; and, Redd Stewart and the Golden West Cowboys, well-known for their performances of the famous "Tennessee Waltz"—plus many others.

ADVERTISEMENT FOR BIDS

Sealed bids for the construction of the Multipurpose Building and Bathhouse will be received by the Floyd Co. Fiscal Court, Prestonsburg, Ky., at the Floyd County Courthouse, Annex Building, Room 105 on August 14, 1979 at 1:00 p.m. local time.

Plans and Specifications and Contract Documents may be examined at the following locations:

Office of Judge Yvonne S. Jones, Floyd Co. Courthouse Annex, Prestonsburg, Ky. Kenco Associates, Inc. U.S. 60 West, Ashland, Kentucky, and F.W. Dodge Corporation Plan Rooms at Lexington, Kentucky; Charleston, West Virginia.

Copies may be obtained from Kenco Associates, Inc., U.S. 60 West, Route 2, Box 101, Ashland, Kentucky, 41101; telephone: 606-928-6486; upon payment of a $100.00 plan deposit.

Any contractor making a legal bid to the Floyd County Fiscal Court upon returning such set of plans, specifications, and contract documents in good condition within ten days after bid opening date, will be returned his deposit in full. No other deposits will be refunded.

No bidder may withdraw his bid for a period of 30 days after the date set for opening of bids.

Bids shall be accompanied by certified check or bid bond payable to the Floyd County Fiscal Court in an amount not less than 5 percent of the base bid, as guaranty that if the bid is accepted, a contract will be entered into and its performance secured within ten days after written notification of acceptance is sent.

A Performance-Payment Bond in the amount of 100 percent of the contract price issued by responsible surety will be required by the successful bidder.

Bids received after the scheduled closing time for the reception of bids will be returned unopened to the bidder.

The Floyd County Fiscal Court reserves the right to accept or to reject any and all bids and to waive informalities, should it deem it to be in the best interest of the Floyd County Fiscal Court.

as Alaska and Greenland. The southern magnolia, however, grows as a native only in the coastal plain running from southeastern North Carolina to central Florida and west to eastern Texas. Cultivation has extended its range considerably.

Sometimes known as bay laurel, sweet bay, and bull bay, the magnolia shoots up in a tower of glossy leaves with a bell-shaped or cylindrical crown that is, in itself, a thing of beauty and much to be desired as an ornamental. Most of its lumber goes into furniture and because the wood resists twisting and cupping, much of it is used in the manufacture of venetian blinds.

Pike Firms Adversely Affected

The Kentucky Department for Human Resources announced last Wednesday that the federal government has certified two Pikeville firms as "adversely affected employers" under the Trade Readjustment Act of 1974. The act is designed to aid industries hurt by import competition.

The firms are Standard Sign and Signal Co. and Raccoon Elkhorn Coal Co. Both companies were certified July 19.

Jack Waddell, acting commissioner of the department's Bureau for Social Insurance, said Standard's certification covers all workers engaged in coal production. Eligible workers are those laid off on or after May 24, 1978 because of lack of work.

Raccoon Elkhorn's certification also covers all workers engaged in coal production. Eligible workers are those laid off on or after Sept. 1, 1978.

Qualified workers in the two firms now are eligible to apply for financial assistance or training opportunities. Benefit payments for eligible workers may be made up to 52 weeks. Workers selected for approved training may qualify for 26 additional weeks of benefits.

All Standard and all Raccoon Elkhorn workers may apply for assistance at their local Department for Human Resources Unemployment Insurance office.

JOB OPENING

Applications are now being taken for the position of police officer with the Prestonsburg Police Department. Requirements are as follows: Must pass a written test; must be at least 21 years old; must attend and pass 10-week training course at Eastern Kentucky State University; Must have high school diploma or GED; must be in good physical condition.

There is a six-month probationary period for new police officers. Application forms can be picked up at the City Hall and all applications must be in by August 8, 1979.

UNIVERSITY OF KENTUCKY • COLLEGE OF AGRICULTURE

Dog days are upon us and will be for sometime yet to come—until August 11, to be exact—but don't worry. All scientific evidence points to the fact that there is not a bit of truth in the old beliefs that during this period dogs go mad with greater frequency; that serpents are more inclined to bite the heels of unwary hikers; that marriages contracted are much less likely to endure; that the "summer complaint" will be more widespread among the populace; and that if it didn't rain during the first three days of the season, there will be no precipitation for the next 40.

ocean water is drawn into the air by the millions of tons per second. As the air becomes more and more saturated on a hot summer day, the humidity becomes oppressive. In this ocean of moisture people perspire, wood warps, metal rusts, leather molds, gnats bite harder and mildew has a field day. Because of the discomfort, tempers of both man and beast grow short and as a result, sickness, death and crime increase. Humid weather aggravates heart and respiratory diseases and ulcers and it is little wonder that, in their lack of scientific information, the old folks dreaded the onset of dog days.

For the reasons listed above, dog days are still to be dreaded. And if it can be of any consolation they have been affecting people in the same way since the ancient Egyptian astronomers first noted the dog star. There is just one way to lessen the discomfort of these days of the large dog in the constellation of Canis Major, which rises with the sun in midsummer, and which the ancients believed intensified the heat of the sun. That way is to follow the advice of the Grecian poet, Hesiod.

Writing about this summer phenomenon in the 8th century before Christ, Hesiod had this to say: "When Sirius parches head and knees, and the body is dried up by reason of the heat, then sit in the shade and drink."

Meteorologists and astronomers say that although the rising of Sirius, the dog star, which gives us dog days, had nothing to do with these old beliefs per se, people of olden times who fostered them were not without some justification. And here's why.

By July and August, say the weathermen, oceans have lost their winter chill. Days are long and the sun beats down fiercely from high in the sky. As temperatures rise, more moisture evaporates. The air becomes muggy and from every pond, stream and

Gardening Tips from Extension Specialists at the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture

It is a whole lot of pleasure to talk to old-time farmers and gardeners, especially to those who still cling to the quaint old methods of planting and harvesting crops. Just like a good friend who at 90-odd years of age still "would rather work in a garden than eat" and does.

"Why, we always did things that way," she said, "but we always raised plenty. Maybe we would have anyway, but we always planted corn when we heard the first whippoorwill holler in the spring and Irish potatoes during the dark nights of March.

who tells me how to keep down the bugs, keep blight from my tomatoes, and the best fertilizer to use now that I have no barnyard manure... but as I said before, I like to do some things the old way."

"I'm a lot like that, too," said another old friend.

"Well, it's like this: I've got a tractor and a 'rototiller', but I always keep a good work horse or mule around too. There's nothing like a good work animal to break up a tater patch in the spring and do other little gin jobs. It don't take half an acre for a mule to turn around in and it won't tromp down the plants. Besides, it makes a man feel good to follow a plow in the spring with robins and cowbirds tracking behind to pick up the worms.

"A tractor scares off the birds and stinks up the air so you can't smell the odor of the rich earth or the apple blossoms, but you can get a lot more done with it. To be honest about it, I don't think I'd like to go back to the walking plow and other horse drawn tools, even if I was able."

Yes, it is a pleasure and one can learn much about man's first employment by visiting with our older generation of gardeners. They serve as a good example of that old dictum, "Be not the first by which the new is tried, nor yet the last to lay the old aside."

"We planted our first beans on Good Friday; sowed oats in the mud and wheat in the dust; soaked watermelons and muskmelons overnight before planting so as to have sweeter fruit, and pulled our potato onions before the first rain in July to keep them from rotting.

"When we had a dry spell we went to a meeting and prayed for rain. When we had too much rain and crabgrass was taking the sorghum patch, we prayed for it to stop. When hail riddled the tobacco and wind blew down the corn, papa always said man proposes but God disposes and let it go at that. Yeah, I still follow some of the old farm and garden ways. Maybe if I didn't, I'd raise good garden truck anyway, but I don't like to take chances. I get a lot of help, too, from my County Extension Agent

In Berea's Rising Seniors Work

BEREA, KY—A Beaver, Ky. resident, Ethel Hamilton, participated in the Rising Seniors program at Berea College this summer.

The four-week program which offers college credit to outstanding high school students began on June 10 and attracted 61 from throughout Berea's admissions territory. Those attending were housed in college dormitories and worked in the on-campus student labor program.

Miss Hamilton was a student in the wildlife biology class which was taught by Dr. Claude Gentry. Funded by a grant from the National Science Foundation, the course offered a combination of laboratory and field work, with students making field trips to Bernheim Forest, Red River Gorge and to a fish hatchery. Students enrolled in the program studied the various aspects of biology, forestry and the conservation and management of wildlife. Their student labor involved clearing trails in the college forest.

Miss Hamilton is the daughter of Mrs. Pauline Hamilton, of Beaver. She attends McDowell High School.

Safe Food Supply State Fair Priority

Cotton candy, corn dogs, cheeseburgers and popcorn are part of the fun at the Kentucky State Fair and the Department for Human Resources will see that all foods sold at the fair Aug. 9-18 in Louisville are safe as well as fun.

The department, with the assistance of 16 environmentalists from local health departments in Kentucky, will inspect all food booths at the fair.

Irving Bell, director of the Human Resources division of health officials protection, said today the health officials will check each of the estimated 130 food booths twice a day to see they comply with state laws governing temporary food facilities.

Contamination can occur when hot food is stored at temperatures below 140 degrees and cold food is stored at temperatures above 45 degrees.

Health violations will be handled on the spot, Bell said. For serious infractions, vendors can be ordered to take corrective action immediately. In the worst cases, booths can be closed, Bell noted.

The inspection program also serves as a training ground for the 16 environmentalists. Experience at the fair will help the environmentalists who enforce regulations at other events which attract temporary food outlets, such as county fairs.

The health officials will work from 9:30 a.m. to 11:30 p.m. in two shifts. The department will set up a temporary office at the State Fair and Exposition Center, Bell said.

In addition to booth inspections, the environmentalists will examine water supplies, dispose of litter and ensure the proper sewage disposal from recreational vehicles parked at the campgrounds.

The control branch will provide continuous milk inspection and sample analysis during the time dairy animals are shown at the fair. Sanitary quality, antibiotic and abnormal-milk checks also will be run.

Soap was absolutely unknown until about the beginning of the Christian Era.

Lawn Mowing Can Be Hazardous Occupation

In spite of efforts to increase consumer awareness, there are still large numbers of Kentuckians being severely injured in power mower-related accidents, according to the Department for Human Resources.

During the months of April, May and June, there were five reported accidental amputations, says Edsel Moore, Prestonsburg native who is manager of the department's consumer product safety branch.

The branch estimates as many as 25 such amputations went unreported in the state, as well as more than 350 other serious power-mower-related injuries.

Almost all these injuries can be attributed to carelessness, says Moore. "Improper footwear and the absence of parental supervision seems to be evident in most of these accidents," he added.

The ages of the five amputation victims range from 9 years to 26 years,

Moore stated. "All but one victim lost his fingers or toes. The 9-year-old lost half of his foot."

Moore stressed anyone who uses a power mower should use common sense and follow these rules:

Do not allow young children to operate or even be near a running power mower.

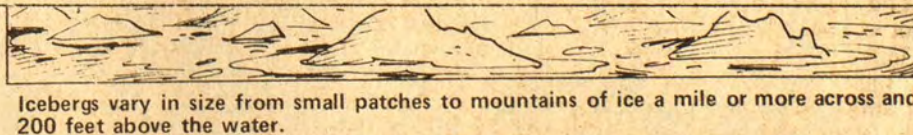

Be sure you have good footing. Never work with power mower equipment when the ground is wet and slippery.

When mowing a hill with a push mower, mow from side to side. On a riding mower, work up and down hill.

Do not pull a mower towards yourself. Never clean the discharge chute with mower running.

Inspect lawns before mowing for debris.

TURNIP DAY SIGNALS FALL GARDENING

"On the 26th of July, sow turnips, wet or dry" goes an old saying that turnips sown on the 26th of July grow better than those sown on the 25th or 27th, we are reminded that it is time to sow seeds for the fall garden.

Along with turnips, crops that are part of a fall garden are well adapted to cool weather. The same crops grown in the spring garden will do well in the fall. The turnip, however, is generally found in the spring and fall garden for different reasons. In spring, it is grown for greens, while in fall it is grown mainly for roots.

Other plants often a part of the fall garden include Chinese cabbage, leaf lettuce, semi-head lettuce (Bibb, Buttercrunch and similar varieties), radish, beet, spinach, kale, cabbage and broccoli. Although they are not a cool weather crop, green beans may also be planted for a fall crop. The bush varieties germinate rapidly and are able to produce a crop in about two months.

Success of these fall planted crops depends on germinating the seeds quickly and growing the plants rapidly. The vegetables have plenty of time to mature.

Vegetables such as leaf lettuce require only 40 days to mature. Minimum time needs for other crops are as follows: Semi-heading lettuce, 50 days; radishes, 30 days; bush beans, 55 days; turnips, 60 days; beets, 60 days; and Chinese cabbage, 70 days. Cabbage, broccoli and cauliflower may also be used in the fall planting, but they take longer to develop fully and should have been started from seeds in mid-July. If transplants are available, these may be planted.

The fall garden can be located in spots where earlier crops, such as onions, potatoes, corn and spring vegetables have been harvested. To prepare for the fall garden, remove the old crop completely, and clean out all debris and weeds. If soil has been very dry, water it thoroughly before working and allow it to dry enough so that it's not muddy or work.

Apply about one pound of a complete garden fertilizer, such as 12-12-12 per 100 square feet of planting area. If the previous crop was fertilized well and grew vigorously, additional fertilizer may not be necessary. However, plants did not grow well, or produced poorly, a slightly higher rate of fertilizer should be used. After the fertilizer has been scattered over the area, the soil should be dug or tilled deeply.

After the seeds have been planted, the soil should be kept moist until germination has taken place. Heavy showers may crust over the soil and make emergence of the small seedlings difficult.

By keeping the surface moistened each day, seedlings will be able to break through. If daily sprinkling is not convenient, the rows may be covered with boards, burlap strips or weighted paper until the seedlings have come through. Keep daily watch, as the coverings must be removed promptly. This watch should start about the third or fourth day after planting.

After removing the covering, water promptly. Many gardeners prefer to remove such coverings in the evening and provide partial cover during the first day or two until seedlings have greened up and adjusted.

Watch closely for insect attacks. Serious damage to any small plant stunts growth and means less chance of a good crop as plants race with the coming of fall frosts.

RENOVATION OF STRAWBERRY BEDS

Your strawberry yields next season depend largely on the condition and care of your plants following harvest this year. Proper fertilization, weed control and adequate moisture are necessary. Vigorous plantings may be renewed, and kept for another season. Older plantings in poor condition should be plowed up and replanted later.

Renovation should be done as soon after harvest as possible. The tops of the plants should be mown off using a "high" mower. (2 inches) setting. If insect and disease problems are serious, the leaves and mulch should be raked off and burned. If these problems are not serious, leaves and mulch may be incorporated into the soil.

Narrow the rows to about 12 to 18 inches with a light plow or rototiller. Rows can be narrowed in small patches by removing the plants with a hoe.

Fertilize the bed after mowing and tilling. If you added fertilizer on the basis of a soil test when planting, probably only nitrogen will be necessary. Apply 3 pounds of ammonium nitrate or its equivalent per 1,000 square feet of strawberry bed. If phosphorus and potash are low or you haven't had the soil tested, apply 10 to 15 pounds of 10-10-10 or 12-12-12 per 1,000 foot.

The fertilizer should not remain in contact with the leaves but should be brushed off after application.

Irrigation during dry periods, proper insect and disease and weed control during the summer will mean better berries next season. Herbicides for weed control should be applied after tilling. Contact John Sparks, County Extension Agent for further information on chemical pest control in strawberry plantings.

Heyerdahl's Last Voyage Encores on KET, August 2

In 1947, Thor Heyerdahl earned a lasting international reputation when he sailed the balsa-log raft Kon-Tiki from Peru to Polynesia. Considered by some as the world's greatest living explorer, Heyerdahl expanded his reputation with his trans-Atlantic Ra expeditions. In November of 1977, Heyerdahl launched an expedition to discover even more about the history of men and the mysteries of early navigation during what he considers to be his last venture across the oceans.

Thursday, August 2, KET broadcasts "The Tigris Expedition," a National Geographic special that vividly portrays all the excitement of that perilous, picturesque open-sea voyage. The special, which originally aired in April, also provides a probing look at this ageless, ever-curious explorer whose name has become synonymous with adventure and discovery.

"The Tigris Expedition" airs Thursday, August 2 at 8 p.m. (ET), with a repeat Sunday, August 5 at 12 noon (ET). The Sunday repeat is captioned for the hearing-impaired.

Begun in Iraq's legendary Tigris River, the four-month voyage took Heyerdahl and his crew of 10 down the Persian Gulf, across the Arabian Sea to Pakistan and back again, and finally to the entrance of the Red Sea—a journey of 4,200 miles in a craft that was only 60 feet long and 20 feet wide.

Ports of call for the bardi reed craft—which had set out to discover if the ancient Sumerians could have spread their culture in similar vessels—included the island of Bahrain, the little-known Sultanate of Oman and the Indus Valley region of Pakistan.

The Tigris' voyage, which Heyerdahl claims is his last, came to a premature end just outside the entrance of the Red Sea in the tiny, new nation of Djibouti. Tigris was fully capable of continuing, but many of the nations in the Red Sea area were at war and Djibouti was the only country in the region that would permit the reed ship to land.

Anger and sadness compelled the crew to make a startling decision. By unanimous vote, they resolved to burn Tigris to protest the arms sales that fueled the fighting surrounding them, and the "stupidity of war."

IS CLUB SPEAKER

During a recent meeting of the Jenny Wiley Shrine Club, Mrs. Maxine Bierman, representing the Prestonsburg Woman's Club, introduced Mrs. Edith James, another member of the Woman's Club, who spoke to the group on "Our Heritage". Mrs. James presented to the Shriners' Club a spinning wheel, which had been in her family for many years, to be displayed, along with the grist-mill already owned by the Shriners, at the Red, White and Blue Day celebration here in October. Mrs. James told the group that the spinning wheel was made many years ago by Bill Adams, of Middle Creek. She added, "Any credit that may be due for this presentation should go to Sister Winnie (Johns)."

BIBLE SCHOOL UNDER WAY

Facts on No-Fault Auto Insurance

By Joan McClusky

The next time you're at a party, if things get a little slow, just stand in the middle of the room and yell "No-fault!" The conversation is bound to keep going for another two hours. Although 24 states have adopted some form of no-fault insurance, limits on compensation payments and restrictions on law suits vary widely, and the system has been the subject of much criticism.

The No-Fault Concept

Most people don't argue with the basic idea behind no-fault car insurance: to give priority to the victim in a car accident, regardless of who was at fault.

In the 26 states which still operate under the tort (fault-based) system, before payment can be made to anyone, it must be determined who was at fault. In the 24 states which have no-fault insurance, the insured driver, passengers and any pedestrians injured in a car accident are compensated directly through the driver's insurance company.

Although criticized by some as a "radical" plan, no-fault car insurance resembles homeowner's, medical, and hospital insurance in that you recover your losses from your own insurance carrier. Instead of being set by a court or jury, compensation is set by an objectively determined economic loss (medical bills and lost wages) and the level of protection the insured driver has purchased.

No-fault insurance is purchased as a package through an insurance company. If you live in a no-fault state, you must purchase first-party insurance (the insurance company pays you even if someone else is responsible). Rates are determined as they were under the fault-based system, through composite loss experience of large groups of drivers categorized by age and sex; by make and model of car, how much the car is used, and accident and violation records.

Having no-fault insurance doesn't mean you can't be sued. Under all no-fault plans, victims or their survivors can sue the party "at fault" if the accident resulted in permanent, serious disablement or disfigurement, or in death. In 16 of the 24 no-fault states, there are restrictions on law suits; for example, you cannot be sued for "pain and suffering." In the other eight states, having no-fault insurance simply means that your insurance company pays your costs even if you weren't at fault, and there are no restrictions on law suits.

If you live in a no-fault state where you can be sued, it's a good idea to carry bodily injury liability insurance, because in all but three of the no-fault states, established "thresholds" limit the amount of no-fault benefits an injured person can collect. If you've injured a person whose medical bills exceed that threshold, you can be sued; your bodily liability insurance will pay any additional court awarded costs.

It's also a good idea to have uninsured motorist and collision or property insurance. Uninsured motorist insurance covers your costs (if they exceed the threshold) if you are in an accident with a driver who does not have bodily liability insurance. Collision insurance is necessary because most no-fault plans don't cover property damage to your car. The other driver can be sued for property damage, or you can collect from your own company.

Under no-fault insurance, you can collect from your own insurance company and still sue the other driver. Although it varies from state to state and between insurance companies, if your suit is successful, usually you must reimburse your insurance company for the amount they paid you that you received from the other driver.

This is the basic no-fault system. Is it working? Many feel that it is. Some criticize it for what are said to be the results of the states' inadequacies in setting up the plan, rather than flaws in the basic concept.

Many people disagree with the philosophy of no-fault, and argue that the system protects the careless driver, who should be responsible for the damage he causes. They see the tort system as a deterrent, which allows victims the moral right to sue for compensation over and above medical expenses. Here are what experts believe to be the major advantages and disadvantages of no-fault car insurance.

Advantages

Distribution of Payments. Under the fault-based system, you can't collect benefits unless it can be proved that the other driver's negligence caused your injuries. This excludes all victims in one-car accidents, which make up a third of all fatal accidents, and victims of accidents in which fault is equal or can't be determined. A Massachusetts study showed that the percentage of claims being paid in single car accidents rose from 2.9% to 22.2% after adoption of the no-fault system.

Equitability of Payments. Those seriously injured are compensated for only about 30% of their economic loss under the tort system, according to a Department of Transportation study. Those with minor injuries receive much more than their economic loss, usually three to four times the amount, because even paying the inflated damages it is still cheaper for the insurance company to settle out of court. In serious injury cases, the time it takes to conduct the trial eats up a third to a half of any money the victim receives; only 25¢ of the insurance dollar finally goes to the victim for compensation of actual expenses.

By limiting lawsuits to only serious cases, and paying victims only for their economic loss, insurance companies hope to balance out the system, awarding less to those with minor injuries and more to those who really need it.

Increase in Recipients. No-fault is providing more payments to more people. The Insurance Association of Connecticut reports that one-third more people have received compensation since the state instituted the no-fault system in 1973. It has been estimated that there has been an overall increase of about 50% in the number of people receiving compensation since the no-fault system was instituted.

Speed of Payments. Victims generally receive payments much more quickly with the no-fault system. One study showed that in New Jersey, 80% of people injured in automobile accidents between January and July were paid off by the end of September; under the old liability law, less than 50% had received benefits during comparable periods.

Reduction in Law Suits. By its very nature, no-fault insurance reduces the number of court cases. In Colorado, which adopted the no-fault system in 1974, it was estimated that the number of court cases had declined by 75%. In other states, including New York and Pennsylvania, it was estimated that the number of court cases involving car accidents had been cut by 50%.

Disadvantages

Level of Thresholds. Only one state, Hawaii, has included some kind of allowance for inflation in its no-fault package. Rising medical costs mean more and more people are reaching threshold levels and in many places, simply having another test or staying in the hospital another night pushes the recipient over the level of costs covered by no-fault. There have been many cases of doctors padding patients' bills so that the accident victims can go to court to sue for higher damages.

Level of Compensation. In Pennsylvania, Michigan and New Jersey, there is no limit on medical payments. Insurance companies which cannot afford to keep the hundreds of thousands of dollars sometimes necessary to pay off a single case, and unable to raise premiums enough to compensate, are unable to stay in business in that state.

Restrictions on Lawsuits. Although no-fault has decreased the overall number of law suits, most states still do not have restrictions strong enough to balance out money saved on general damages, legal fees and claims adjustment with the extra money needed to pay out the increased benefits of the no-fault system.

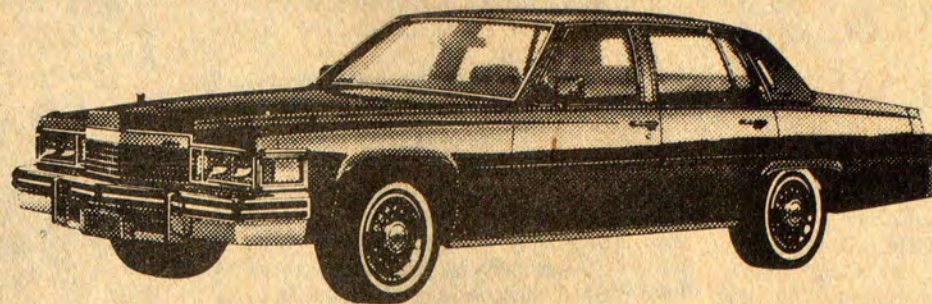

Rates

One of the major criticisms of no-fault insurance is that when first proposed, much was made over the fact that insurance rates would probably decline under the system, and that in fact most have risen, and sharply—38% in one two-year period. According to state officials and insurance executives, the reason for the increase is the rising cost of medical care and auto parts, coupled with inflation. In most no-fault states, rates are still no higher than they were when no-fault became effective. In several states, companies were forced to reduce rates when no-fault came into effect in anticipation of the expected decline the system would generate. Because the system did not lower insurance rates, companies have been forced to cover inflationary prices by raising rates.

Many feel that the problems associated with no-fault insurance could be solved if the system became regulated by the Federal Government. Congress has been considering Federal Legislation of no-fault insurance since 1970, and President Carter has given his support to legislation which would require every state to have a no-fault insurance plan which met minimum Federal Standards. All attempts to pass this legislation have failed.

Now that you have the facts on no-fault, you can argue with the best of them in this ten-year old debate. The controversy is bound to last for a while both on the national and state level; pro or con, both sides are finding "fault" with each other on this one.

Cadillac DeVilles and Fleetwood Brougham:

EPA ESTIMATED MPG	ESTIMATED DRIVING RANGE	HIGHWAY ESTIMATED MPG	ESTIMATED HIGHWAY RANGE
14	350 MILES	20	500 MILES

Driving range estimates are obtained by multiplying the EPA and highway estimates by the standard fuel tank capacity ratings (DeVilles and Fleetwood Brougham, 25 gals.). In some cases, Cadillac's superior range estimate is due to a larger fuel tank capacity. Remember: The circled EPA estimate is for comparison to other cars. Your mileage and range will probably be less than the highway estimates. Cadillacs are equipped with GM-built engines produced by various divisions. See your Cadillac dealer for details.

Zerelda James Home To Be Restored Soon

By JOD NEACE

Plans are in the works to restore the home of Frank and Jesse James' mother, Zerelda Cole James, and make it one of the finer dining establishments in the Bluegrass region.

Known as the Offutt-Cole Tavern, the building is at the crossroads of Old Frankfort Pike and the Midway-Versailles Pike in Woodford county and is probably the oldest structure in this region. It was built around 1773.

Horatio Offutt was owner of the tavern from 1802 to 1804 and operated it as Offutt Inn. Isaac Pierson owned it until 1812, when it was purchased by Richard Cole Jr., who renamed it Black Horse Inn.

Cole was the grandfather of Zerelda Cole James, whose sons became notorious as the James boys. When her father died, Zerelda and her mother lived with Cole until his death in 1839. Zerelda's mother remarried and moved with her husband to Missouri, while Zerelda stayed in Kentucky with an uncle in Scott county. There she met Robert Sallee James, at that time a junior at Georgetown College. They married and eventually moved to Missouri, where their four children, including Frank and Jesse, were born.

The Woodford County Historical Society recently acquired the Offutt-Cole property and is planning to restore the two-story structure to its early days as a tavern, 1802-12. As an inn it was the first stage stop to accommodate travelers between Frankfort and Lexington overnight.

Jim Sames, publicity chairman of the project, said restoration will start in October. The dining room will serve regional dishes in an atmosphere similar to that of Shaker Village at Pleasant Hill, Elmwood Inn at Perryville and other restaurants of similar reputation. "We are planning to reconstruct a blacksmith shop, a carriage house and servants'

Big Sandy Village To Open Thursday

The grand opening ceremonies for the 76,537 square-foot Big Sandy Village in Pikeville, will be held Thursday, August 2, beginning at 9 a.m.

A development by CBL & Associates, Inc., of Chattanooga, Tenn., Big Sandy Village, developed on a nine-acre site fronting on U.S. 23 on the north side of Pikeville at Coal Run, will have five stores open August 2, including K Mart Department Store, occupying 68,337 square feet.

Joining with K Mart in the official grand opening will be Bed 'N Bath, Max Roberts Music Store, Radio Shack, and Shoe Show, Inc.

The grand opening ceremonies, marking the official opening of Big Sandy Village, will find three full days of activities and special promotions taking place at the new shopping center complex.

Joining with the merchants who will be celebrating the gala grand opening will be officials of CBL & Associates, Inc., of Chattanooga, Tenn., the shopping center development firm which is developing Big Sandy Village, as well as local and area public officials and dignitaries who will participate in the ribbon cutting ceremonies designating the grand opening.

Dr. William C. Hambley, mayor of Pikeville, and Wayne T. Rutherford, Pike County Judge, will be among the dignitaries cutting the ribbon Thursday morning.

CLEARANCE

Check the MPG mileage stars at your Chrysler dealer today.

It's going on right now! Your Chrysler dealer's big Five Star Clearance. A perfect time for you to get a good deal on any '79 Chrysler in stock. New Yorkers, Newports, Cordobas and LeBarons. The selection is big. So are the values. Because every car is priced to go! And remember: for all their luxury, these fine Chryslers provide impressive mileage.

New Yorker. Elegant. Distinctive. And New Yorker, with no charge 318 V-8 option, gets better gas mileage than Olds 98 or Buick Electra.

Newport. A full-sized Chrysler that's right, right now... engineered for luxury and efficiency.

Cordoba. The contemporary classic. And Cordoba gets better EPA estimated mileage than Ford Thunderbird or Cougar XR-7.

LeBaron. A personal car with style and class. It's the most affordable Chrysler of them all!

Your Chrysler dealer's Five Star Clearance is going on now! So come in today... the values may never be better!

*Use EPA estimated MPG numbers for comparison; your mileage may differ depending on speed, trip length and weather. All models equipped with standard engines except for New Yorker which has a 318 V-8 no cost engine option.

By virtue of a judgment and Order of Sale of the Floyd Circuit Court rendered at the June 14, 1979 term in the above styled cause I shall proceed to offer for sale at the Courthouse door in Prestonsburg, Kentucky, to the highest and best bidder, at public auction, on the 3rd day of August, 1979 at 10:30 a.m., same being a day of the regular term of the Floyd Circuit Court, for cash or upon a credit of six (6) months, the following described property, to-wit:

The entire interest of the parties to this action in the remaining portion of that certain tract of land lying and being on the waters of Stone Coal Creek, a tributary of the Right hand Fork of Beaver Creek in Floyd County, Kentucky, that was conveyed Dollie G. Pratt by John and Zella Moore on October 22, 1935, as recorded in Deed Book 104, page 521 on March 25, 1936, embracing 132 acres, more or less, and more particularly described as follows, viz:

Beginning at the willow tree near Stone Coal Creek across the creek to the County Road; thence down with the road to a small drain; thence across Stone Coal Creek with bank of the creek change to the base of the hill to Baxter Wallen's line; thence with said line back across creek and County Road to a beech tree up the hill with Henry Pratt's line to the line of Lizzie Scotts; thence a straight line to the ridge to the line of Rose Lee Lesleys; thence running with same to corner and line of the late Anderson Hoover's line; thence with said Hoover line to the line of Custer Pratt's line and corner; thence running down the Custer Pratt's line to what is known as the School House Branch near Custer Pratt's house; thence running with said branch to Stone Coal Creek; thence down with said Stone Coal Creek, above the Old Pratt Home Place; thence with the base of the hill to the garden fence; thence with same to a branch near Russell Pratt's house; thence with the branch to the willow tree, the beginning. To be their undivided interest in the described boundary herein.

There is to be excepted from this sale those portions of this tract as conveyed in the following conveyances, viz:

Tract of 70 acres conveyed John Pratt, et al, by Commissioner's Deed on February 6, 1939, as recorded in Deed Book 111, page 61 on February 22, 1939.

Deed for one acre to Granville and Liza Hoover on December 9, 1948, as recorded in Deed Book 141, page 2 on February 1, 1949.

Deed for three lots to John Pratt on December 26, 1951, as recorded in Deed Book 150, page 15 on January 2, 1952.

Deed for 1 1/2 acres to John Pratt on September 30, 1953, as recorded in Deed Book 154, page 611 on October 12, 1953.

Deed for small parcel to James Bartley on August 4, 1951, as recorded in Deed Book 161, page 33 on November 16, 1955.

Deed for right of way to Commonwealth of Kentucky, Department of Transportation on April 20, 1955, as recorded in Deed Book 178, page 12.

This property is now divided into three tracts, Tract No. 1 is located on the right side of Kentucky Route 777 in an upstream direction between the highway and the waters of Stone Coal Creek.

Tract No. 2 is located on the right, assending bank of Stone Coal Creek and across the creek from tract No. 1, and includes a 12 foot wide right of way across the lower end of tract No. 1 to KY 777.

Tract No. 3 is located on the left side of Kentucky Route 777 proceeding in an upstream direction across the highway from tract No. 1.

Tract No. 1 is being sold subject to a right of way 12 feet wide across the downstream end of the tract to provide an easement from tract No. 2 to Kentucky Route 777.

Each parcel will be cried off separately and after final bids have been received on all three parcels, the entire tract will be offered for sale for a bid of not less than the aggregate sum of the bids on the three parcels.

This property is being sold to settle the estate of the late Dollie G. Pratt.

The amount of money to be raised by this sale shall include the costs of this action, including costs of advertising of this sale and the fees and commissions for conducting this sale.

For the purchase price the purchaser must execute bond with approved surety or sureties, bearing legal interest from the day of sale until paid and having the force and effect of a judgment with a lien retained upon said property as a further security. Bidders will be prepared to comply with these terms.

Given under my hand, this 12th day of July, 1979.

Lift Oil Controls, Simon Says

America's former "energy czar" and Secretary of the Treasury says that the blame for the current oil crisis lays "squarely on the government" and that a way out is to "put our trust in the normal market mechanism."

Writing in the August Reader's Digest, William E. Simon says that former President Ford could have erased "the grotesquerie of controls" by decontrolling oil prices in 1975. Instead, Simon says, Mr. Ford strengthened their grip by signing "one of the most perniciously inane pieces of legislation in recent years: the Energy Policy and Conservation Act of 1975."

The act, coupled with the introduction of the catalytic converter which requires the use of unleaded fuel in cars, strangled the oil companies' ability to search for new sources of oil. In addition, Simon writes, refiners face a maze of regulations in their attempts to build necessary new refineries. "Since the early 1960s," he says, "19 major refinery projects have been abandoned because of governmental regulations. Only two major refineries have been built in the past ten years."

How to resolve the problem now? Mr. Simon thinks that a move by President Carter to decontrol oil prices would help. Price, he notes, has three basic effects: 1) It produces by offering oil companies enough incentive to warrant the highly risky business of exploratory drilling; 2) It conserves, by forcing more careful use (such as development of lighter cars, better-insulated buildings, more careful use of power by industry); and 3) It develops alternatives; "prior to the 1973 embargo, how many times did you hear solar energy discussed?" he asks as one example.

Turning to the "normal market mechanism," Mr. Simon argues, would allow prices to increase so as to accomplish those three goals. He recommends three additional steps: 1) Expedite the opening of public lands for exploration. At least six to seven million offshore acres should be leased each year to maintain present production levels. But since 1970 federal offshore leasing has averaged only 1.04 million acres a year. We must speed up the leasing process, Simon argues. 2) Insure an adequate strategic reserve. Simon notes that legislation to create a billion-barrel oil reserve by 1985 was first devised four years ago. But to date, the Dept. of Energy has stored only 84 million barrels, less than a tenth of the goal. 3) Keep a close eye on the Environmental Protection Agency, which can be excessively zealous in its attempts to force through restrictive rules in the name of "protecting" the environment.

"A free market will not instantly flood us with gasoline," Simon writes. "But let's give it a chance to work for us. If we leave it alone, we will have all the energy we will need."

Floyd County Health Notes

JANET E. HICKS
Health Educator

Effective this spring, the Floyd County Health Department has accepted full responsibility for the EPSDT-KMAP Program in outreach and follow-up services. This new responsibility goes along with the regular screening program in EPSDT-KMAP which the health department has actively participated in since 1972. EPSDT-KMAP stands for early periodic screening, diagnosis, and treatment as it relates to the Kentucky Medical Assistance Program.

Under this program, children age 21 and under receiving state medical aid may come to the health department, or any other agency participating in the EPSDT program, to be screened for health problems. If any health problems are found, the children are referred by the health department to a physician for further diagnosis and treatment. In addition, the health department must assure that each eligible person who is scheduled to be screened at a EPSDT clinic will come to the clinic, and if a medical problem is found in this clinic, make sure that he will keep his doctor's appointment in order to receive proper diagnosis and treatment. This task of outreach and followup in the EPSDT Program was transferred to the health department from the state Bureau for Social Services.

The Floyd County Health Department has hired three new staff members, two of whom will assist in the implementation of the EPSDT-KMAP outreach and follow-up program at the health department. Mrs. Myrtle Jo Potter, of Prestonsburg, was hired as a Community Health Worker III, and Mrs. Georgia Moore, also of Prestonsburg, was hired as a Clerk Typist II. Both are doing all outreach and follow-up services for the EPSDT Program.

Mrs. Ann Rollings, of Martin, was hired as a nutritionist and will assist in the EPSDT-KMAP Program also.

There will be no nursing services at the Floyd County Health Department starting Tuesday, July 24 through Friday, July 27. Nursing services will resume Monday, July 30.

Film Explains School Boards

Available for the first time to community groups, a narrated filmstrip has been developed by the Kentucky School Boards Association (KSBA), according to an announcement by William L. Land, Eminence, President of KSBA.

The 18-minute presentation entitled, "School Boards: Your Voice in Education", depicts the role of the local school board in Kentucky's system of public education and outlines the basic structure of Kentucky's education system.

"With so much misunderstanding about the functions of public education," said Land, "it is a welcome relief to see a film which 'pulls no punches' in revealing the full role of the local school board."

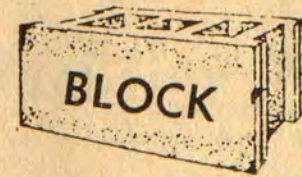

The film strip has been distributed to school districts in each Kentucky county. There is no charge for the use of the filmstrip and tape cassette by local organizations. Upon request, a representative of the school will bring a projector and conduct the program, including information about the local district.

To schedule a showing at one of your meetings, simply call the local superintendent of schools or the chairman of the board of education.

Some consider it bad luck to drop a bunch of keys.

DEADLY TO FLYING INSECTS

FLOWTRON electronic bug killer

MODEL BK-2500

ENJOY OUTDOOR LIVING!
ATTRACTS AND ELECTROCUTES NIGHT FLYING INSECTS

Ecologically safe, effective, economical. Flowtron does it all electronically. There's really no better way!

Flowtron outdoor models feature a unique lantern style construction that will enhance any landscape. A combination of black light and black light blue lamps, provide maximum effectiveness for luring and killing night-flying insects up to 1/4 acre. Protective outer screens insure complete safety for children, pets, birds and butterflies, while flies, mosquitoes and other pests fly through to the charged grids and are immediately electrocuted.

CLASS OF '39 IN REUNION HERE
For the first time since their graduation from high school, members of the class of '39 of Prestonsburg High School met in reunion at May Lodge, last Friday evening. A total of 52 graduates, faculty members and guests were present. Honored guests were former superintendent of Prestonsburg city schools, Ishmael Triplett, of Lexington, and high school principal during that time, Claybourne Stephens. Other guests were the present high school principal, John Shepherd and Mrs. Shepherd, and 1939 faculty members, Mrs. Jane R. Combs, Mrs. Kathryn Frazier, Miss Alice Harris, Mrs. Virginia Murrill Jeffries, Mrs. May K. Roberts and Mrs. Grace Sutherland. Dr. William Francis Clarke, of Lexington, presided at the dinner. Other class officers present were: vice-president, Dr. Porter Mayo, Jr., of Lexington, and class treasurer, Mrs. Thomas LeMaster, of Prestonsburg. Hosts and hostesses for the reunion were Mr. and Mrs. Thomas LeMaster, Mr. and Mrs. James J. Carter and Miss Linda Stephens, all of Prestonsburg.

The invocation was offered by Mrs. LeMaster, after which a brief memorial service was conducted by Dr. Clarke for the 13 deceased members of the original graduating class of 55. Those to whom tribute was paid were Jack Linvel Blackburn, (World War II, Pearl Harbor casualty), Barbara Butler, James Polk Coburn, Jr., Thomas Harris, Mary Irene James Spears, Betty Bailey Music, Robert Leslie Runnels (World War II, Battle of the Bulge casualty), Mary Ruth Smith, Homer Spurlock, Jr., Dr. Raymond N. Stephens, Nick Clark Wallen and Obus Whitaker.

As a memorial to these, the class voted to purchase a useful gift for Prestonsburg High School, to be designated by Principal John Wayne Shepherd, with the assistance of a class committee composed of Jack Carter, Clyde Burchett and Linda Stephens. Mr. Shepherd briefly discussed the topic of "P.H.S. Today." Additional remarks were made by Mr. Triplett and Mr. Stephens.

Other members of the class of '39 enjoying these homecoming events were Mrs. Ann Allen Neal and husband, and Mrs. Lorraine Smith, of Lexington; Mrs. Eula Crisp Spurlock, of Springfield, Ohio; Walter Gunnell, of Printer; Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Hall and Mr. and Mrs. Galloway Lafferty, of Allen; Mrs. Fannie McGuire Smith and husband, of Kingsport, Tenn.; Mrs. Alice Howard Raybourne and husband, of Ashland; Mrs. Flossie Patton Hall and husband, of Alger, Ohio; Mrs. Gloria Gressle, of Concord, N.C.; Howard Ray Osborne, of Louisville; Mrs. Pauline Nunnery Yantis, of St. Joseph, Missouri (who traveled the greatest distance); and Mr. and Mrs. Wade Burchett, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Burchett, Jack Carter, Mr. and Mrs. James J. Carter, Miss Anna Mae Harris, Tom LeMaster and Mr. and Mrs. William H. May, all of Prestonsburg. Attending from the class of '38 were Mrs. Faye Harris Patton and Chester Patton, of Abingdon, Virginia. Others in attendance were Chalmer Frazier, Elsie M. Stephens, of Prestonsburg, a son and daughter of Dr. Porter Mayo, of Lexington, and a California teacher friend of Mrs. Jane R. Combs.

Health Line

Bee Careful

Bees, wasps, hornets and yellow jackets cause close encounters of the painful kind—and worse. Allergic reactions to stinging insects account for about 40 to 50 deaths each year, and many summertime deaths reported from "unknown causes" are suspected to be insect related. Bees kill more people in the U.S. each year than all other poisonous animals combined.

Common allergic reactions to stinging insects include generalized swelling all over the body, shortness of breath, wheezing, swelling of the upper airway, collapse of the vascular system, and fainting.

Do you know if you're allergic to insect stings? Usually, the diagnosis comes as a result of a reaction to a sting, but there's also a new skin test that can tell you in 15 minutes.

To avoid being stung, your best bet is to stay out of harm's way. Watch out for wasp nests, which are commonly found hanging from eaves of buildings. Bald-faced hornets attach their oval, paper-like nests to tree branches.

You'll find yellow jackets in holes, hollow trees and under eaves. Solitary wasps make mud nests and burrow in pith, wood or soil.

Honey bees and bumble bees find flowers fascinating, so stay away while they're pollinating. While outdoors, it would be wise to keep away from cosmetics, hairsprays, deodorants, perfumes and suntan lotions. Insects are also attracted by bright colored clothing, food and cooking odors. Insect repellents are not very effective, unfortunately.

What if you are trapped in a car with a stinging insect? Don't panic. Stop the car, roll down the windows and carefully get the insect out.

Despite your precautions, you may still get stung. What should you do? Immediately remove the stinger and attached venom sac, if left behind. Gently scrape it out with a fingernail or knife; do not squeeze or press it. The honey bee's venom sac continues to push venom through the stinger for some time after being torn from the insect, so act quickly. Wash the affected area thoroughly.

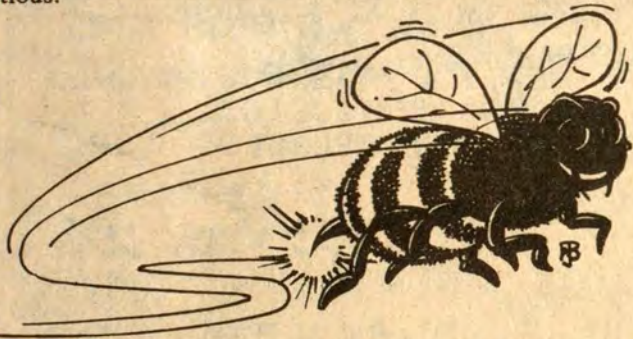

In a normal reaction, ice may lessen the discomfort and swelling. Aspirin or codeine can also ease the pain. Calamine solution or 1/4 teaspoon of meat tenderizer dissolved in one or two teaspoons of water can be rubbed on the skin to reduce pain and swelling. Treat a toxic reaction the same way; other medication, including antibiotics to control secondary infections, may also be necessary. Remove the stinger and apply a tourniquet above the sting site if it's on an arm or leg. Loosen the tourniquet every ten minutes so as not to impair circulation.

A physician treats any allergic reaction to a sting as an emergency because he cannot predict when a slight or moderate reaction will progress to anaphylactic shock. The doctor will inject adrenaline if necessary and he may administer antihistamine. Adrenal corticosteroids may be given for persistent symptoms such as severe itching, swelling, and hives. Medications may be given for several days for a delayed allergic reaction to a sting.

If you have a history of allergic reaction to insect stings, prompt treatment is essential. Wear a Medic Alert bracelet or necklace and/or carry an identification card stating the allergy. Such a tag is vital if you faint or are unable to explain what is wrong.

Ask your physician about an emergency insect sting treatment kit. Available only with a doctor's prescription, the kit is not intended to replace medical assistance; it simply provides precious time to prevent severe complications.

Some physicians suggest immunization, using injections prepared from insect venom. A vaccine to prevent allergic reactions from occurring is in the research stage. Until a vaccine is available, your best protection right now is to stay alert, carry a treatment kit, and be cautious.

BASKETS CAN BE COLORFUL

Natural wicker baskets can be dyed for a new look. Shades can be pale or vibrant, but for best results, use stronger shades, such as royal blue, cocoa brown, purple, forest green and scarlet.

Choose a natural wicker with a dull finish. Pour one package of powder or one bottle of liquid dye into one pint of hot water. Heat it over low heat to dissolve thoroughly.

Use rubber gloves and work on a plastic surface. Apply the dye with a sponge, brush or simply by dipping. The longer the basket is in the dye the deeper the color. About 20 minutes is a good average for dipping; if you apply the dye with a sponge, additional coats will deepen the color.

Color will dry lighter than it appears when the piece is wet. Dry overnight.

For a satin finish rub with lemon oil, then apply a clear shellac or protective plastic spray.

SUMMER COMFORT RELATED TO CLOTHING

Summer in Kentucky is usually hot and humid. You can play it cool and comfortable by selecting the right clothes to wear.

Because humans are warm-blooded, they possess some internal mechanisms for maintaining body temperature. Some of these include sweating, shivering and expansion or contraction of blood vessels so that varying amounts of heat are given off with changes in temperature and humidity. Heat can be lost through the skin by radiation, convection and conduction.

Sweating is the body's major defense against overheating. If the outside temperature is greater than that of the body, sweating is the only means of cooling the skin. Choose clothing that helps your body lose sweat and you'll keep cool.

Clothes made of 100 percent cotton or a cotton-polyester blend absorb sweat and speed the body's cooling mechanism. Good choices are 100 percent cotton T-shirts and jeans for children. Adults will like the comfort of cotton-polyester blends in pants, skirts and tops. Wearing absorbent undergarments will make you more comfortable and discourage skin rash.

Clothes made of non-absorbent fibers such as nylon or polyester allow sweat to collect on skin. This makes you feel "sticky".

It is especially important for women who wear panty hose to wear absorbent underpants. Doctors report that there is a definite relationship between wearing underpants and bikinis made of synthetic fibers in humid climates and the incidence of parasites and fungi.

Wearing garments of knit or loosely woven fabric will keep you cool. These fabrics allow air to penetrate and circulate around the body.

Clothes that stand away from the body and allow air to circulate next to the skin

CARD OF THANKS

We would like to express our deep appreciation and sincere thanks to all those who were so kind to us upon the death of our loved one, William J. Mathews.

We especially thank all those who sent food and flowers, the Jehovah's Witnesses, the Prestonsburg Lodge No. 293, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, and the Hall Brothers Funeral Home for its kind and courteous service.

MRS. BEULAH MATHEWS

help keep you cool. Clothes that fit tightly or cling to the skin reduce the effectiveness of air surrounding the body. Avoid tight belts, ties, sleeves, etc.

Light colored clothing reflects the sun's heat rays and helps keep you cool. Try an experiment. Place two garments in the sun. One should be white or pastel and the other black or another dark color. After 30 minutes in the sun, feel both garments. You should have no difficulty deciding which would be more comfortable to wear.

Skin between fingers, underarms, and between legs radiates heat to adjacent skin areas. Skin rash or irritation may be caused by the sweat and heat. Rubbing these areas with powder can clean up the problem. Either feminine smelling powders or no-scent masculine powders are available at many retail stores.

Elderhostel: Summer Fun For Older Americans

By Edward R. Walsh

How would you like a summer vacation that offers travel, recreation and informal learning? If you're over 60, you qualify for Elderhostel, a low-cost program that combines the best traditions of education and hosting. Guided by the needs of older citizens on the move, it provides intellectual stimulation with physical adventure.

Elderhostel started four summers ago with only five New Hampshire colleges participating, and has mushroomed into a network of over 200 colleges and universities in 25 states, featuring one-week residential academic programs. They begin Sunday evening and end Saturday morning, with no more than 40 elders per group. Participants share meals with other summer students in campus cafeterias and are encouraged to explore the environmental and cultural resources of the areas they are visiting.

Hostelers may take up to three courses per week at each campus. Regular faculty members teach the non-credit courses, which presuppose no prior knowledge of the subject. Lack of formal education is no barrier, and there are no exams, grades or required homework. The only essential is a love for learning and an adventuresome spirit.

Elderhostel works as well in small, rural, private liberal arts colleges as it does in large, urban public universities. Little known institutions compete with nationally famous colleges for enrollments. Some campuses have charming old buildings; others have new, impressive physical plants. Elder learners live simply in either single or double rooms in a college dormitory chosen for its ease of entry and its proximity to dining halls and classrooms.

The senior citizens benefit from social interaction with younger classmates and their own peers. One Elderhostel director stated that the shared spiritual experience he observed one year was more important than the intellectual exchange. "There was the feeling that we'd given them something new in life," noted Robert Fuessle of Bridgeport, Conn.

Young people also benefit from such interaction. They come to realize that the myths about old age don't match the reality of their elderhostel classmates. "There's been a marvelous rapport," reported one volunteer coordinator. "The students have been able to see an image of an elderly person who doesn't go by calendar age."

Elderhostel philosophy, point out the organizers, is consistent with traditional hosteling. Originally the word hostel described an overnight facility, plain in appearance and modest in cost, to help travelers as they journey to more distant points. The dorms offer no luxury accommodations; the food, wholesome and nutritious, is not gourmet fare.

On the other hand, the bills won't break the bank. The maximum charge is $115 per week. In some areas, grants allow colleges to reduce tuition rates. To register, participants must pay in full or forward a $25 per week deposit. Check, money order, and some charge cards may be used. For older adults who find even these modest fees beyond their means, a hostel fund supported by a number of national organizations can help.

Participants are encouraged to use the Elderhostel network to schedule an ambitious summer of educational hosteling. You can travel from one campus to another or integrate a number of weeks into a longer trip to visit family or see a new part of America. Most institutions have agreed to provide overnight accommodations for Saturday night to encourage elderhostelers on the move. While some single rooms are available, they're generally reserved for those with medical or special needs.

Many schools will accept local residents on a commuting basis, with costs varying from campus to campus. The local Elderhostel director will explain arrangements. Another bonus for elderhostelers is a varied extracurricular schedule. In most cases the college has already planned plays, lectures and exhibits. Special events may be added in some instances. There will be plenty of free time for participants to explore the area and get to know each other.

This year, for the first time, you'll be able to register for all Elderhostel programs through the national office by phone or by mail. Additionally, a number of state and regional offices will have registration capabilities of their own. For a free catalog, write Elderhostel, 55 Chapel St., Newton, MA 02160.

"Eagerness to learn knows no age limits or national boundaries," adds Peggy Houston, Elderhostel director at the University of Iowa.

If you're a senior citizen who yearns to learn while making new friends, consider Elderhostel. It may prove to be a summer vacation bargain you'll want to recommend to others.

Millions Needed for Local Dams

Community-owned dams jeopardizing lives and homes is a critical problem that needs to be addressed in the budget requests for the division of water resources, Director Dave Rosebaum told a legislative subcommittee today.

In preparation for the 1980 budget, the Subcommittee on Budget Review investigated current expenditures and projected increases for the divisions of conservation, forestry and water resources in the Bureau of Natural Resources, Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection.

According to Rosebaum, it would cost $15 million to bring the local dams within acceptable safety limits. Usually lakes can be drained to eliminate the hazard, but many of these 50 community-owned dams contain community water supplies, he said.

Much of the division's budget will depend on management plans being developed for several creeks, Rosebaum said.

Forestry Director Elmore Grim told the subcommittee there is a great need for expanded education among timber owners and users. Wood can be, in light of the growing search for alternative fuels, a very valuable Kentucky asset, Grim said.

The Division of Forestry is currently working with industries in the state to promote the use of wood residue as a generating fuel for steam and electricity. Swedish processes involving wood generation are also being studied by the department.

Through the Cooperative Forest Management Program, the department is seeking to help timber owners develop and expand their markets. Currently only 2 percent of Kentucky's forest landowners are being reached by the staff of 30 field workers.

Among the projected needs of the forestry department are new appropriations for heavy equipment and updated radio equipment. Officials testified that current radio equipment is "twenty years behind time." High-frequency radio equipment will greatly improve service in mountainous and inaccessible areas, Grim said.

Grim also stated that $150,000 to $200,000 in additional appropriations will be needed to upgrade salaries of forestry aides.

The division of conservation will need, at least $100,000 to replace federal CETA funds that will be discontinued to the state Sept. 30, said Stanley Head, division director.

"We're really strained" in the revolving equipment fund, Head said. The fund lends more than $2 million yearly to help provide soil conservation equipment for the division and conservation districts. The division has not been able to make as many loans this year because it doesn't have the funds, Head said.

Head also predicted the division will need at least $100,000 more than the previous budget to combat the effects of inflation.

YOU AND YOUR PET

By ROBERT L. STEAR, D.V.M.
Manager of Veterinary Services
Norden Laboratories

Many pet foods are advertised as complete foods or balanced diets for cats or dogs, and they probably fill the nutritional needs of most household pets. However, some pets have special dietary needs; young animals, those recovering from an illness, pregnant pets and some others have nutritional requirements that differ from the healthy adult.

Your veterinarian is the best person to consult about your pet's diet. He or she can determine whether the food you feed your pet provides balanced nutrition, or requires additional supplementation.

A properly balanced pet diet should provide about a dozen basic vitamins. If one or more of these essential vitamins is missing, the pet could be in poor condition, and may lack energy. Certain medical problems may also develop, depending upon the specific vitamin deficiency.

Eye infections and reproductive problems occur when pets are fed foods low in vitamin A. Cats may also show a serious weight loss, with some weakness in the hind legs. Pet foods that are improperly stored or rancid can quickly lose their vitamin A content.

Vitamin D, in combination with calcium and phosphorus, is necessary for proper bone development. It may be lacking in kittens and puppies born during the winter who are kept in dimly lit quarters. Vitamin D-deficient pets will develop bowed legs and weak bones.

The term "vitamin B" describes a group or complex of related compounds, rather than a single chemical. The primary signs of vitamin B deficiency include lack of appetite, anemia and various nervous disorders. Most vitamin B supplements generally contain a blend of the major vitamin B factors.

Cats are more susceptible to vitamin E deficiencies than dogs. Felines develop a condition called steatitis or "yellow fat disease" in which the fatty areas of the cat's body become inflamed. The cat then loses its appetite and becomes sensitive to touch or pressure. Much of the vitamin E in a normal feline diet can be destroyed by the unsaturated fatty acids contained in fish oil. If your cat prefers a diet with high levels of fish, it might need a vitamin E supplement.

Scientists have discovered other indications of vitamin and mineral deficiencies in pets. Convulsions, prolonged bleeding, stomach disorders, even temporary paralysis can result from a poor diet.

Although there are quite a number of pet vitamins available, you need to be selective in choosing one for your pet. Cats have somewhat different needs than dogs and should receive dietary supplements designed especially for feline use.

The Natural Research Council, a private, non-profit organization of scientists, has established recommended levels of vitamins for good canine and feline nutrition. This information is readily available to your veterinarian. He or she can evaluate your pet's current diet against the model recommended for proper pet health. If your pet's diet meets or slightly exceeds the standards established by the NRC, you can be assured it is receiving the nutrients necessary for a healthy life. Generally, dog and cat food manufacturers produce quality products that prevent most dietary deficiencies. Veterinarians see dietary deficiencies that are usually caused by nutritional excesses and imbalances.

NOTICE OF BLASTING SCHEDULE

In accordance with the provisions of 405 KAR 1:090, Branham & Baker Coal Company, North Lake Drive, Prestonsburg, Ky. 41653 announces the following blasting schedule. The blasting sites are located in Floyd county as follows:

1. South of David at latitude 37 degrees, 34 min., 40 sec., and longitude 82 degrees, 53 min., 00 sec., approximately 293 acres.

Blasting will be done Monday through Saturday between the hours of 2 p.m. and 6 p.m. August 1, 1979 thru October 31, 1979.

A minimum of 10 minutes prior to blasting, all access roads will be barricaded and the following signal given: two (2) thirty (30) second soundings of a siren with a thirty (30) second pause between. After blasting, an all-clear signal consisting of one (1) thirty second sounding of a siren will be given.

Blasting may occur at times other than those outlined in the blasting schedule, if in the event that explosives are loaded and rain, lightning, atmospheric conditions, management problems, or safety to the operator or public deem it necessary to blast otherwise. If unscheduled blasting should become necessary, all personnel in the blasting area shall be notified and the siren signals as described above will be sounded before the detonation.

Milder Mining Regulations Believed Ahead, Says Harscher

Kentucky environmental officials say they are well aware that their draft of proposed surface mining regulations is less than popular with the mining industry.

But the soon-to-be top environmental chief, Frank Harscher, said that this dilemma may be changing in the near future.

Harscher, who will be sworn in this week as secretary of the state Natural Resources Department, said current federal regulations, to which Kentucky must adhere, stand a good chance of being altered to comply with the new emphasis the President has given to the use of coal.

The largest number of complaints the Natural Resources Department has received have concerned the strict federal surface mining regulations, Harscher said.

Kentucky is currently in the process of gathering citizens comments on the state's draft of proposed surface mining regulations. The state regulatory plan must be submitted to the federal Office of Surface Mining by August 3.

But, Kentucky officials are not closing the books on the public input on Aug. 3.

Harscher said the department will be receiving written comments from citizens for a least a 60-day period following the Aug. 3 filing date.

He said any input gathered through the public participation meetings the department has scheduled for later this week will be utilized in the drafting of the initial plan submission, which follows the current federal guidelines, and in any subsequent redrafting of the plan to accommodate any changes made in the federal regulations.

"I believe we will soon see an about-face in Washington on the unreasonable limitations forced on us by the federal surface mining regulations," Harscher said.

"Coal seems to have magically become a highly effective and important answer to our current energy problems. We have known that for some time here in Kentucky. I believe we will soon see many of the impractical regulations adjusted at the federal level through the leadership of the states," he said.

"However, in the event that we do redraft our state regulatory plan, we must be very careful to insure that we do not actually sanction a sacrificing of our physical environment and transportation systems for the expediency of getting coal out of the ground and to the marketplace," said Harscher.

Last week's public participation meetings across the Commonwealth were held as scheduled, one at Prestonsburg.

"I anticipate that a lot of the comments we will be receiving at these meetings will be in support of lifting some of the restrictive regulations," Harscher said. "However, we, as a state, really cannot deal with that until the federal government does, through the current legislative initiatives ongoing in Washington."

Many of the regulations contained in Kentucky's program draft can be adapted to local conditions, however.

"We will have to wait and see. Regardless of what falls out, we will be ready here in Kentucky," Harscher said.

Ever drink a toast and wonder who started the custom of clinking the glasses together? It is said that the Roman gladiators did when they toasted one another prior to each performance in the arena.

August Demonstrates First Premonitions of Autumn

By NEVYLE SHACKELFORD
UK College of Agriculture

Hastened onward by the dusty heat that has forever been typical of the month, the ripeness of August now starts creeping across the land. Already, too, the first stirrings of fall become evident on the landscape. Each day the green foliage of the fields and woodlands gradually loses succulence and begins to fade into the reds and the browns and the golds of maturity. The colors of age also show up in the russets of ripening fruit and the curling and crisping of leaf and blade.

August is the month when the wildflowers of summer start surrendering predominance to those of autumn; when tall ironweeds in the meadows put forth their purple blossoms and the brilliant red cardinal flowers enchant the swamps and margins of farm ponds. The white rosettes of Queen Anne's Lace turn brown and curl up at the edges to form hiding places for spiders to hide and ambush flies.

Then there is the strongly-scented tansy with its golden, bitter button blossoms and fernlike leaves which in the old days were used to keep flies away from freshly killed meat. Also in every fence corner tall goldenrods struggle for standing room and to lift their yellow plumes to the sun.

There is the purplish-flowered dittany along back country roadsides with which, according to ancient Indian legend, deer and wild goats wounded by arrows used to heal themselves, and the jewelweed, the medication of injured snakes, dangles its gold-flecked pendants.

For many forms of plant life, animal life and bird life, August is the month of waiting. It is the month when all nature seems poised on the crest of summer and sits waiting until the wave curls, breaks, and then in a slow slide slips downward into the placid, halcyon seas of a departing summer.

Rest is the order of the month for most of the things of nature. The time for sprouting and other forms of procreation is over and now comes the time of feeding and storing away in nut and rind and husk for leaner times to come.

The water level of the pond sinks lower and lower in August. The cool little branch in the back pasture that sang so merrily in the months before has silenced its voice to a whisper and along the still dark pools of the larger woodland stream, herons stalk young frogs and minnows hatched during the turbulence of spring. Gone are the songs of the tanager, the catbird and the wood thrush, and the sparkling tide that was summer ebbs and flows on the currents of time while the patient land waits and reflects on what is, what has been and what will be or may be again.

In August even the fearful winds of June and July seem to succumb to the lassitudes of the month. From time to time they awaken to strum a few melancholy bars on the power and telephone wires crossing the river or to slightly trouble the glassy dark surface of the ponds. Then they retire to indulge in fitful slumber in the pine forest in the back forty.

August is the month of katydids, jar-flies and mole crickets whose incessant, strident voices combine into dreamy nocturnes. It is the month that brings the first uneasy stirrings of the migratory instinct in birds and the end of life for the fireflies that through the long summer lifted their candles upward in the dusk.

All this and more is a part of August whose special flower is the poppy and the sardonyx its gem.

Francis Water Company Rate Increases Okehed

The Kentucky Utility Regulatory Commission has approved rate increases for the Francis Water Company, of Garrett.

Customers using small meters will now pay a minimum of $7.25 for the first 1,000 gallons of water.

The increase, which will produce estimated annual revenues of $29,067, was less than that sought by the company.

Last year, the company had an income of $19,178 and expenses of $31,523, with a $12,345 deficit. The new rates are calculated to provide a surplus of $1,733.

An etiquette writer of the mid-nineteenth century wrote that a lady could wipe her hands on the tablecloth but not blow her nose on it!

Independents Not To Use "Republican," "Democrat" Labels

The words "democrat" and "republican" cannot be used in the name of an independent political party, according to an opinion issued by the Office of the Attorney General.

The opinion was requested by a Greenup woman who plans to file an independent petition to fill a vacancy for an unexpired term of county clerk, and would like to name her independent party either "First Party Democrat" or "People's Choice Democrat."

Assistant Deputy Attorney General Walter C. Herdman, author of the opinion, states a person cannot use "democrat" or "republican" in the party name unless he or she is nominated by either party in the May primary or selected by the party to run for an expired term. According to state statutes, all independent candidates should be listed under the title of "independent," Herdman said.

The opinion states that when candidates designate an independent party title they cannot be listed as a member of either of the major political parties in any manner. This would defeat the requirement that major party candidates be nominated as a "Democrat" or "Republican," Herdman added. The designation of "First Party" or "People's Choice" could be used as long as the word "democrat" was not included.

Summer Theatre Begins Final Production of Season with 'Pippin'

Scene from 'Pippin,' now showing at Amphitheatre.

The Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre moves into the final production of its 15th anniversary season this week as it opens with the Broadway musical hit, "Pippin," this evening (Wednesday).

"Pippin" will be presented Wednesday, Thursday, Saturday and Sunday evenings through August 19. On Friday evenings through Aug. 17 the theatre will present "Starting Here, Starting Now," a musical revue. Curtain for all performances is 8:30 each evening. Tickets may be obtained by writing the theatre at Box 22, Prestonsburg, Ky. 41653 or by calling (606) 886-9274.

"Pippin" by Roger O. Hirson and Stephen Schwartz, is a musical loosely based on the life of the little-known son of the emperor Charlemagne. An extraordinary young man, young Pippin searches for complete fulfillment in a world of confusion. The play relates the adventures of Pippin as he tries war, sex, revolution and domesticity in his search for happiness.

Along the way, he and the cast present a lively, tuneful evening of entertainment that has made "Pippin" one of the most successful musicals ever to come to Broadway.

Opening in New York in October of 1972, "Pippin" ran for over 1,900 performances, breaking records previously held by shows like "The Sound of Music" and "Mame."

"Pippin" is the most challenging production for the Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre this season, according to Bill Campbell, general manager of the theatre. It is most challenging technically, he said. The sets for the show are elaborate, the lighting is complicated, and the script calls for several special effects. (One particular fire effect, he said, is "supposed to make the Fourth of July look like a dud.")

The show is currently posing a bigger problem than lighting and set design, however. Poor attendance and bad weather have caused Jenny Wiley some financial problems that are aggravated by doing a show as costly as "Pippin." According to Campbell, the theatre needs a large turnout for "Pippin" or it may not be able to operate next summer.

Whooping cranes now total 83 in the wild and 26 in captivity, up from a low of 21 in 1941, according to National Geographic.

Voc. Ed-Industry To Exchange Ideas

The Kentucky Department of Education will hold a two-day conference on "Vocational Staff-Industry Exchange" at the Hilton Inn, 1-75 and Newtown Pike, Lexington, on August 2-3.

The purpose of the conference is to allow business and industrial leaders and vocational educators to interchange ideas, in an effort to improve vocational education in the state, said John Lloyd director of the Staff-Industry Exchange Program in the department's Bureau of Vocational Education. Between 200 and 300 people are expected to participate in the conference.

Under a staff exchange program, vocational education teachers and administrators visit firms which may employ their students to learn new developments in the particular field and how they can best prepare students for future careers. In turn, business and industrial personnel may use their skills to supplement regular instruction.

Individuals wishing to attend the conference should contact John Lloyd, director of the Staff-Industry Exchange Program, Bureau of Vocational Education, Kentucky Department of Education, 2034 Capital Plaza Tower, Frankfort, Ky. 40601, Phone: (502) 564-3096. It is possible to attend individual sessions, Lloyd said.

The Friday session will be devoted to workshops for educators.
