Labor Dept. Facility Set for Discussion At Future Meeting

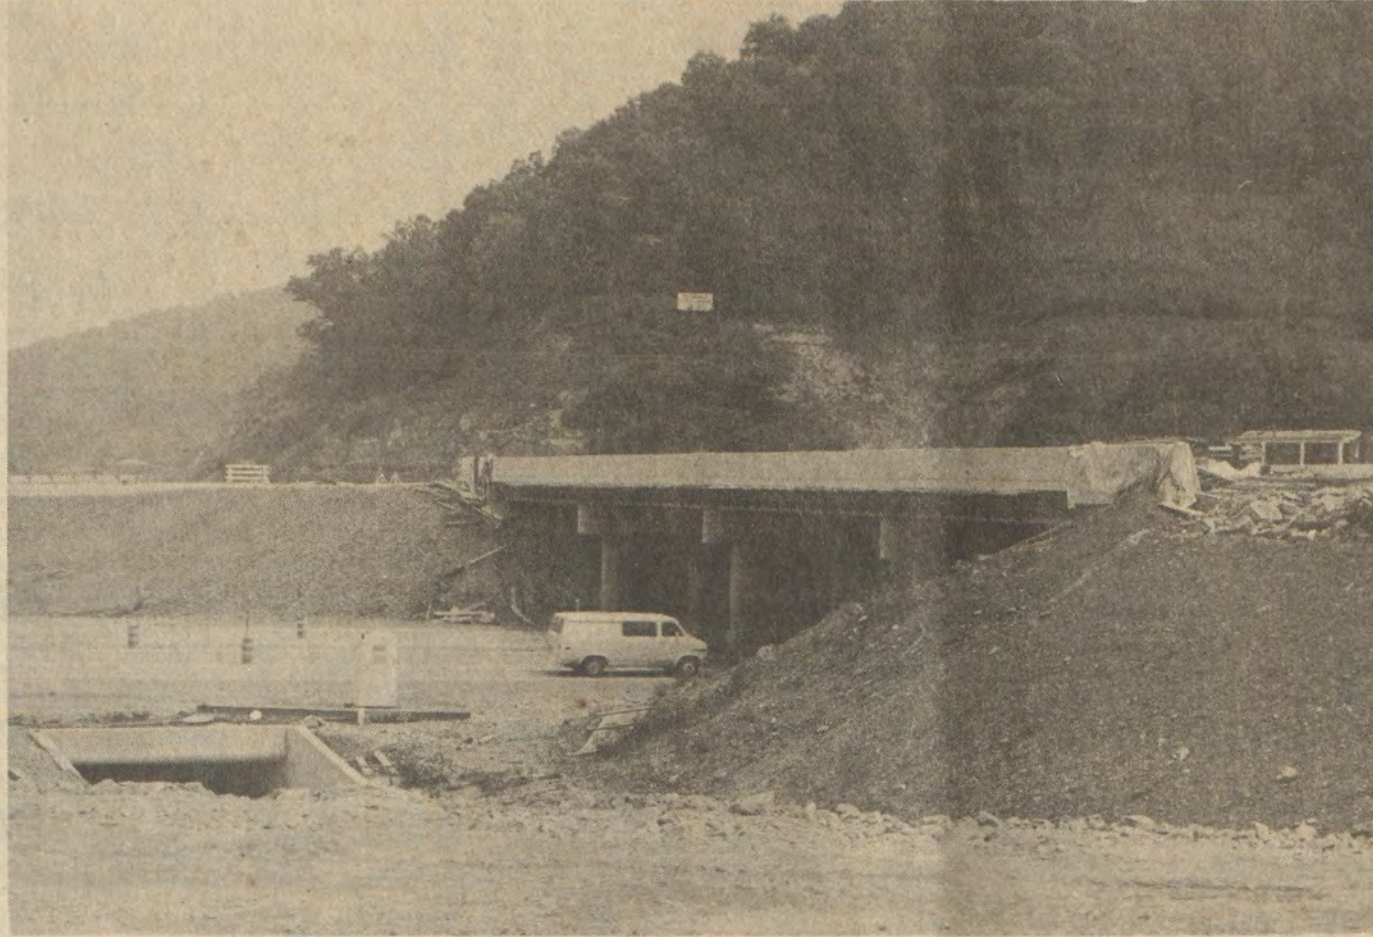

What is Job Corps center? Is one about to be located in the Goble-Roberts Addition? What is the position of the Prestonsburg City Council on the matter?

These were the questions, Mrs. Jewell Bays told Prestonsburg councilmen at their regular meeting Monday, to which she and other Goble-Roberts residents wanted straight answers.

Mayor Harold Cooley said he would rather leave it to the Department of Labor (DOL) to explain what a Job Corps center is. No councilman ventured an opinion as to whether one would or would not be located at Goble-Roberts. And, as to the merits of such a proposal, the council's position proved as elusive as quicksilver.

The issue has arisen as the result of a proposal first put to the city council about 18 months ago. At the time, the U.S. Shoe Corporation had indicated its intention of closing its plant at Goble-Roberts. In response to a Department of Labor (See Story No. 1, Page 4)

Bridge Work Ending at Water Gap

Only clean-up operations remain on this bridge, at the intersection of the new KY 80 and US 23, at Water Gap. Engineers began preparing the ground surface last week for a temporary road, running south from the new bridge, to serve Bull Creek residents. A permanent pavement will not be laid, engineer Mike Poer said this week, until the road is ready to be surfaced from Water Gap to Hazard.

Court Sets Up Its Own Pickup In Some Areas

While a permanent waste disposal plan is being developed, the Floyd fiscal court made emergency arrangements at a special meeting Saturday to pick up garbage itself.

Apparently in response to widespread reports of uncollected garbage, especially in the first magisterial district, the court announced Monday that the county road department would begin collecting garbage next Monday in the unincorporated areas of all four magisterial districts.

The twice-a-month pickup service would be free to residents of these unincorporated areas, but the court order indicated that cost of the service would be charged to the franchise-holders, Floyd Sanitation and District Four Sanitation.

Both Adrian Lafferty, of Floyd Sanitation, and Okie Lawson, of District Four, expressed surprise when told of the court action, and it appeared at the fiscal court's regular meeting Tuesday that use (See Story No. 2, Page 4)

$9.36 Million Budget Adopted To Erase School Board Deficit

Vowing to balance the books this year, the Floyd Board of Education at its regular meeting last week approved a $9,360,262 general budget which will absorb the $208,000 deficit left at the end of the 1978-79 school year.

Budget categories representing substantial increases over last year's estimates include repair and maintenance of buildings grounds, and equipment—up from $375,800 last year to $458,000 this year; and transportation costs—up from $590,000 to $762,171.

School Transportation Coordinator Wayne W. Ratliff, explained that the increase in the price of gasoline was a major contributor to the rising transportation costs. School activity trips will have to be looked at closely this year, with a view to reducing their number, Ratliff said.

Instruction costs including teachers' salaries, represent the largest single budget item—$6,476,711. Other estimates for the current school year include administration, $204,825; attendance services, $121,973; health services, $11,000; operation of plant, $648,000; and food services, $352,824.

The budget now goes to the State Board of Education for its approval. (See complete budget, published elsewhere in this issue). State approval of a school tax rate of 20.5 cents per $100 property valuation, which is expected to raise a total of $616,874 for the current year, is being sought.

Fire Chief Tom Blackburn told the meeting that the state fire marshal's office had drawn up a priority list of fire code violations at the high school and grade school in Prestonsburg, to be remedied in varying periods ranging from 15 to 90 days.

Heading the high school list is the replacement of the fire alarm system. The existing system was interrupted when the alarm box and control panel were taken out during the removal of asbestos from walls and ceilings at the school earlier this year. A sprinkler system is to be installed in the grade school basement, where classes are conducted. Breaches are also to be repaired in the walls and ceiling isolating the boiler room from the rest of the grade school building.

In response to a recent engineering report of possible corrosion of the steel structure at Prestonsburg High, the school board's architect, Marvin Crider, told last week's meeting that he had inspected the building and found it to be "in fine shape." A further engineering study will be made of the high school, however, as will one at Garrett grade school.

The board heard from its transportation department a discussion of what may be expected during the term as a result of the uncertain fuel supply. Aside from gasoline prices which continue to rise, an actual shortage of gas for school buses may develop, it was said. It was pointed out that some stations exhaust their gasoline quotas by the end of the month and that this could affect school bus operation.

"We may have to limit the use of buses," Supt. Grigsby commented later. "The gas shortage could curtail some school activities, but these are things we will have to play by ear because we can't know exactly what is ahead."

The board voted a salary increase of 5 percent for all non-certified personnel, which includes cooks, clerks, bus drivers, janitors and maintenance workers. No pay increase was made last year.

For substitute teachers a new salary schedule assures substantial increases. The lowest paid, an emergency teacher with 64 college hours or less and experience from zero to three years, will be paid $22 a day. The highest paid, a teacher in Rank I (MA degree, plus 30 hours and 10 or more years' experience) will receive $42 per day.

The $73,248 bid of Drennan Educational Equipment Co., Anchorage, Ky., to supply three relocatable classroom units for the Title I program was accepted. Other contracts awarded on bids:

Stoker coal, C. & B. Coal Co., Manton, $41 per ton, delivered; mine-run coal, Carry Back Coal Co., Cow Creek, $21 per ton, delivered; printing of 3,000 copies of the 1979-'80 school annual, Eddie Taylor, of Martin, the only bidder.

The board signed an agreement with the Floyd fiscal court for the founding and joint operation of a recreation area at the J.M. Stumbo School. The area will be used by the school during school hours and by the general public at times when it is not being used by the school. The fiscal court, it was said, has appropriated $35,000 for initial work on the site.

PERSONNEL EMPLOYED:

Grand Jury Back For Extra Days; Probe Continues

With its session already three days old, the grand jury returned yesterday (Tuesday) for sessions which will require at least two more days. It will conclude its work with its final report Friday to Circuit Judge Hollie Conley.

Indictments voted earlier will not be reported till Judge Conley returns to the bench Friday. The court will not resume trial of cases till September, it was said Monday.

Election commissioners were heard Tuesday in the jury investigation of shortages of officers at the polls at the May primary in some precincts and an over-supply in others. Also to be resumed is the probe into the Eagles Club situation.

Since the Fraternal Order of Eagles operates the club under license granted by the city of Prestonsburg, any steps taken against it should be taken "within the confines of the controlling Kentucky statutes in the Prestonsburg city ordinance," County Attorney Arnold Turner, Jr. wrote Sheriff Doug Lewis last week after reviewing Lewis' report on his inspection visit to the club.

The city ordinance, he pointed out, has a section providing that "any convictions for drunken behavior or use of alcohol on the premises shall be grounds for revocation of that permit." He also pointed out that upon conviction of any person on the premises for drunkenness, the law provides that the judgment of the district court can also provide for revocation of the permit.

So he suggested that county and city officers review their records of convictions for drunkenness or for offenses involving alcoholic beverages on the club premises, ask the city attorney's cooperation and call on the grand jury to give any assistance possible.

This Town...That World

The mockingbirds which drew downcast stares upward to see whence came the song apparently have completed the business of raising a family for the year and have either gone elsewhere or are keeping quiet, fearing they'll awaken the young'uns.

A wide variety of bird life continues to visit our feeders, and among them is an albino sparrow...None, however, dashes into the midst of the feeding crowd with the air of here-I-am-and-what-are-you-gonna-do-about-it as the jay, the Peck's bad boy of the feathered gang.

ON SECOND THOUGHT

Was at the point of lying in ambush for a certain cat after learning that he (or she) had made off with one of our redbirds. But then I recalled that the crime was a result of feline instinct and that the crimes I once committed with a .22 rifle, taking potshots at birds, all and sundry, could not be blamed on nature but upon my own onriness and ignorance...I might even find it possible to forgive the cat, but it shouldn't count on it.

MR. CARTER COULD HELP

If the President can trouble himself with the small matter of telephone service for a Kentucky woman, he might be persuaded to consider our plight with no air-conditioning. So I propose to write him, pointing out that the heat in this office, according to at least five or our employees, stood at not less than 90 every day for three weeks while a search was presumably being made for the defective part. That's item 1.

New Cliff Road Plan Considered by Court

At its regular meeting Tuesday, the Floyd fiscal court considered a compromise plan for re-routing a controversial road at Cliff, designed to provide access to a proposed housing project and industrial park in that area.

The road, as originally designed, has been opposed by some Cliff residents as causing unnecessary relocation of several area residences.

According to the compromise plan, described for the court by Anna Jean Tackett, director of the Floyd County-Prestonsburg Community Development and Urban Renewal Agency, the access road would be re-routed around existing residences, without additional cost or undue delay.

In opposing the compromise plan, Big Sandy AD District Director Joe McCauley said that relocating the road would necessitate "going back to scratch," causing additional cost and delay, and risking the loss of Appalachian Regional Commission approval for the project. "If you try to change the road," he said, "you will have a 90 percent chance of losing it."

McCauley was echoed by Julia May, chairwoman of the Prestonsburg Housing Authority, and several area businessmen who have been instrumental in planning industrial development in the area, including auto dealer Ed Music and First National Bank President Burl Wells Spurlock.

Cliff residents, both those opposed to the proposed projects and those favoring them, were also heard at the meeting. One area resident opposed to construction of a planned federally-subsidized apartment complex at Cliff told the court, "It is not going to benefit me to be surrounded by a housing project. It is not my idea of living."

On the other hand, Kelly Moore, claiming to represent property owners in the area, said, "We are for the road. We expect it to be built. And we expect it to be built the way the Department of Transportation originally engineered it." "If we don't get the road," Moore added, "it will knock out the industrial site, which we need to upgrade the income of the community."

The court voted to invite representatives of the Department of Transportation and the Appalachian Regional Commission to attend the court's September 11 meeting, in order to explain the available alternatives.

In other business, the court, following the recommendation of the Floyd Cable TV Commission, ordered forfeiture of the $5000 performance bond of TV franchise-holder Jim Daniels, ordered Daniels to post another bond and to comply fully with the conditions of his franchise, and directed the CATV Commission to order the cable operator to show cause, at the Commission's next meeting, why his franchise should not be revoked.

The court action follows long-standing complaints of poor or non-existent service on the part of Daniels' Auxier-area (See Story No. 3, Page 4)

Funeral Home Under Construction

Architect's rendering of future Carter Funeral Home.

The Carter Funeral Home this week announced that its new mortuary on which construction is under way is expected to be completed and occupied before January 1.

The 80 x 80-foot brick-and-steel structure will be erected on a 135x200-foot lot between the Floyd Cleaners and the Arrowood Hardware branch buildings on South Lake Drive. Facing South Lake Drive, its 6,400 square feet of floor space will include a chapel seating 182, three slumber rooms, a flower alcove, a lounge for smokers, rest rooms which will accommodate the physically handicapped, central heat and air-conditioning.

The contractor is the Consultative Development Corp. (ConDeCor, Inc.), of Swainsboro, Ga., and Berea, Ky. The structure has been designed by J. Carroll McGill & Associates, Berea architects.

Besides adequate parking at the new funeral home itself, the location is within half a block of the city's three municipal parking lots, it was pointed out.

The funeral home is owned and operated by James J. Carter, who founded the business in 1946, and is a continuation of the mortuary service begun in 1925 by the late E. P. Arnold. Associated with Mr. Carter is his son, James J. Carter, II.

"We have worked to give the public the best possible service, and now in this new building we will offer the finest in facilities," Mr. Carter said.

Pikeville College To Offer Exam Prep Course this Fall

An interesting new graduate course is on the docket at Pikeville College from Morehead State University this fall. As a result of an increasing demand from students who are required to take the Graduate Record Exam to complete requirements for an M.A., a course will be offered entitled "Logical Reasoning for the SAT (Scholastic Aptitude Test), GRE (Graduate Record Examination), NTE (National Teachers Examination) and the LSAT (Law School Admission Test). The course will offer three hours of graduate credit in English and can be taken by anyone who has completed a bachelor's degree or who is within six hours of doing so.

Some people are paralyzed with fear at the thought of taking a standardized test, but this is entirely unnecessary, according to Dr. Lewis Barnes, the course instructor. In this English workshop, Dr. Barnes focuses on expanding vocabulary and language skills and on learning to read questions carefully in order to understand the intention of the question preparer. The logical reasoning skills he teaches are useful for anyone preparing to take any general standardized test. Dr. Barnes taught a graduate course similar to this one at Pikeville last fall, and his students later performed very well on the GRE.

Tests dates for the Graduate Record Examination at Pikeville College this year are October 20, 1979, January 12, 1980, and April 26, 1980. Applications for the GRE are available from the Appalachian Graduate consortium at 432-9391. It is necessary to apply for the test at least a month before the test date.

The National Teachers Examination will be given at Pikeville College this year on November 10, February 16, 1980, and July 19, 1980. Applications for this test will be available in the Graduate Consortium office soon.

Applications for the SAT, ACT, LSAT, and GED examinations are available from the Special Services Office at Pikeville College. Glenda Tackett, the college counselor, can provide information about those tests. She can be reached at 432-9312.

Choir Attends Florida Festival

The Wesley Bell Choir of the First United Methodist Church were among 1,600 ringers who recently attended the American Guild of English Handbell Ringers Silver Anniversary Festival in Orlando, Florida. The Choir participated in the solo ringing and massed ringing concerts as well as classes in advanced techniques.

The choir, which began in 1976, has made several appearances during the past year. Concerts were presented at Union College, Barbourville, Ky. First United Methodist Church, Williamson, W. Va., First United Methodist Church, Paintsville and Pikeville, Highland Folk Festival, Prestonsburg Womans Club as well as frequent participation in the worship services of the First United Methodist Church, Prestonsburg.

In the future, the choir will again appear in the Sunday program of the Highland Folk Festival and will give a concert in the First United Methodist Church of Versailles, Kentucky.

High Loan Payback By Rural Students

While the national default rate on student loans soars somewhere between 10 and 13 percent, the Kentucky Department of Agriculture has a program that has maintained less than a 2 percent default rate since it began in 1973.

Glen Wilson has administered the program since the first loan was approved for a Rowan County student on his way to Morehead State University six years ago. Since that time, 254 other loans have been made. Only four students have neglected their payments or filed for bankruptcy.

"I was the only representative at the national meeting last year without a single delinquency," Wilson said. "All kinds of things can happen in the lending business, and our success far exceeds my expectations."

Wilson said he won't approve a loan until he has had "eyeball to eyeball" contact with the applicant. He talks easily of past and present students in the program, their college majors and current occupations.

"One girl considered going on to medical school but wasn't sure she could handle the time and effort required," he said. "She majored in animal science, got her master's in biochemistry and eventually secured a commission in the Navy. I heard from her not too long ago and she was on her way to Iceland."

Although students are required to come from a rural farming background to be eligible for these loans, they are not required to pursue a similar career while attending college.

"I don't think students should be restricted in their career choices," Wilson said. "We have students who majored in dentistry and chemical and electrical engineering, and three students graduated from veterinary school this past spring." Nearly two-thirds of the students have selected agricultural areas, he pointed out.

Roger Sharp, deputy director of loan programs for the Kentucky Higher Education Assistance Authority (KHEAA), agrees that Wilson maintains a unique lending program because of the care that is taken to interview applicants.

Recommendations are submitted to Wilson by a rural rehabilitation committee in each county. The committee includes a Farmers Home Administration county supervisor who serves as chairman, a vocational-agricultural teacher and the county superintendent of schools.

"These people generally know the student and his or her family," Sharp said. "They know how the student is regarded throughout the community and something about his school records. I think this technique helps keep the default rate down."

To be eligible, students must be Kentucky residents, have been accepted to an institution that has been approved by the federal education department and carry at least half the hours required by a full-time student. Most importantly, students must come from a farming background and have been unable to secure the kind of loan from other lending institutions.

Students may borrow up to $2,500 per academic year or up to $7,500 while attending undergraduate school. Graduate students are eligible for $5,000 per year, up to a $15,000 total.

The average amount requested for loans in 1978 was $2,000 per year per student, which is double the average when the program began in 1973.

Wilson said students using the agriculture program are "a pretty good character of youth."

"While about 10 percent continued on to graduate school, only about six of 10 requested additional financial assistance, he added.

Though students who have used the agricultural loans have attended a variety of out-of-state schools, Wilson said the vast majority have selected schools in Kentucky and remained in the state following graduation.

proposal to buy the building, a meeting of city, county, Big Sandy ADD, U.S. Shoe, and bank representatives agreed that U.S. Shoe would redeem the municipal bonds which had financed the purchase of its Goble-Roberts factory, thus enabling the company to sell the building to the Labor Department.

U.S. Shoe was subsequently persuaded to relocate at its present site in the former KAI building in West Prestonsburg.

At the time of the transfer of the Goble-Roberts building to DOL, according to Mayor Cooley, the city was unaware that the building was to be used for a Job Corps center. From then until the present, he said at Monday's meeting, the city council's only official action on the matter has been to permit U.S. Shoe to retire its municipal bonds without requiring the 90-day grace period on which the city was entitled to insist.

Apart from waiving the 90-day waiting period, Councilman Ron Hager added, the city had no responsibility for the transfer of the building, which was a purely private transaction between the Labor Department and U.S. Shoe.

At least as early as last October, however, when the deal received city council approval, it was widely known that DOL intended to use the building as a Job Corps center. The project enjoyed the strong support of Congressman Carl Perkins, principal architect of legislation establishing the Job Corps, and of Gov. Julian Carroll.

The center was described as a facility to provide 165 youths with education, vocational skills training, work experience counseling, and health services. In a letter to Gov. Carroll, Secretary of Labor Roy Marshall described the prospective trainees as unemployed high-school dropouts, mainly Kentucky residents, from poor, mostly minority group, families. It would be a voluntary program for 16- to 21-year-olds, Secretary Marshall wrote, aimed at securing for them productive jobs, further schooling, or careers in the armed services.

The Labor Department emphasized what it described as the Job Corps center's positive economic impact on the community. Fifty-five staff positions would be created. A dormitory and staff housing would be constructed. The existing building would be renovated. A $2 million investment over 18 months was anticipated.

By March of this year, sufficient community opposition had surfaced to persuade the city council to oppose the project, a fact emphasized by Councilman Edgill "Shag" Branham at this week's council meeting. Not mentioned, however, was the fact that, within a few days of its negative vote, the council, meeting in informal session, reversed its earlier decision, voting by a slim margin to invite the Job Corps to the area.

Local opposition to the project, fired by media reports of rising crime allegedly associated with a similar center in Charleston, W. Va., continued to grow. Some Goble-Roberts residents interviewed during the past week said they do not trust the intentions of the Department of Labor.

They fear, they said, that the center will be used to house poorly supervised juvenile offenders, mostly from black, out-of-state, urban ghettos; and that it will result in increased drug and alcohol use in the community, a soaring crime rate, depressed property values and the flight of business from Prestonsburg.

Job Corps center opponents claim to have gathered more than 500 signatures on a petition to stop the project, and another 100 are said to have responded to a newspaper advertisement appealing to Floyd county residents opposed to what the advertisement described as "the juvenile offender facility" planned for Goble-Roberts.

Delegations of both the city council and Goble-Roberts residents recently made separate inspections of the Job Corps facility at Frenchburg, in Menifee county, but drew such contrasting conclusions as to prompt one councilman to comment that "we each seem to have visited different facilities," and another to remark that "the director (of the Frenchburg facility) has obviously lied to one or the other of us."

In response to allegations of "murder, drugs, alcohol, and sex," said by Goble-Roberts resident Clyde McGuire to follow the establishment of Job Corps facilities, Mayor Cooley repeatedly challenged McGuire to authenticate his claims, and pointed out that not all Job Corps facilities are alike.

"Fear of the unknown," the Mayor counseled, is often a factor in situations such as this.

The mayor acknowledged, however, having "mixed emotions" regarding DOL plans for a Job Corps center at Goble-Roberts, and agreed to attend a citizens' meeting on the subject, to which Mrs. Jewell Bays said she had also invited Congressman Perkins and Labor Department representatives.

of the emergency system may not be as widespread or prolonged as at first anticipated.

District four Magistrate Hershell Hamilton emphasized that the emergency county pickup was not intended as a continuous service, and he expressed doubts that it would be needed in his district at all. Second district Magistrate Kenneth Roberts, who opposed the emergency order, indicated that it would not be employed in his district. It seemed possible, moreover, that Floyd Sanitation might be able to improve its service in the first district. "If Adrian Lafferty gets back in business," said County Judge-Executive Yvonne S. Jones Tuesday, "the court will be out of the business."

Where the emergency service is needed, and for as long as it is needed, county road trucks will operate weekly, Monday through Friday, according to the following schedule:

residents. The court also considered plans by the National Weather Service to upgrade the flash flood warning system in eastern Kentucky, incorporated the Clark Addition road into the county roads system, denied a request by County Surveyor Elmer Rice for additional office equipment, and rejected the only bid for construction of a mini-park on the John M. Stumbo school property.

The court postponed awarding a contract for construction of a multi-purpose building and bath house at the Floyd county park until its September 11 meeting. Four bids for the contract were opened Tuesday.

At a special meeting last Saturday the court, besides establishing an emergency garbage pickup service (reported elsewhere in this issue), paid Blackburn's Nursery and Landscaping $10,000 for landscaping work at the Floyd county park and set the hearing on the proposed new tax rate for the county at 12:30 p.m. Sept. 11 at the courthouse annex.

The 1978 rate of 18.4 cents per $100 valuation brought in $462,264. One proposed new rate of 17.2 cents would realize $517,572, and a compensating rate of 16.5 cents to realize $469,508 is mentioned in the order setting the date of the hearing. State law forbids, without a popular vote, an annual increase of more than 4 percent in tax income.

Item 2. Since the temperature of this office has been at least 12 degrees above the 78 called for by the President, we should be given credit for using no energy whatsoever on air-conditioning for the three weeks and after we do get the contraction going again we should be permitted to set the thermostat 12 degrees below the ideal of 78.

Item 3, Mr. President. No gasoline has been used in getting that part to us. It was reported shipped 10 days ago from Charleston, W. Va., and it hasn't arrived to this good day. Apparently, it is moving by dogsled and the lead dog has taken time off to have pups.

OLD TINK

Our neighbor, George Brown, tells of the brushes with disaster that a certain cat yclept Old Tink made almost a daily exercise in living dangerously—all to prove that a cat does have nine lives, if not a dozen or so.

This cat frequented Brown Produce, some years ago. All invitations to make himself scarce—seats, switches, sticks—failed to produce. He always contrived to get inside one of the five doors of the place. The health department, forgetting his services as a mouser, threatened on one occasion to have him more or less formally executed. And while all this was going on, Old Tink was flirting with cars, crossing the street almost beneath whizzing tires, and not a hair was ruffled.

Finally, one day, Mr. Brown recalls, he upped with a hickory ax handle and let Old Tink have it, sent him sprawling galley-west, and expected him to pass from this troubled earth peacefully. But the indestructible Tink arose, h'isted his tail and sailed across the street to hide beneath some rubbish.

Next day, Mr. Brown saw him up the street, cavorting about like a kitten, living up every life he had.

RERUN

In view of this yarn, I hope I may be forgiven if I again print the story told by the late Ham Wallen to end all cat stories. I'll be brief.

Ham said he decided to kill this sorry, old tomcat. Tied him to a bush and took target practise on him with a .22-calibre rifle. Shot him in the body, in the head, time after time, then ventured near to view the remains. The cat spat at him.

So he outs with his rancho, cuts off the cat's head, threw the head in one direction over the hill, the body in another, and decided to go home.

But, hearing a noise downhill, he stopped. And, would you believe it?—here comes that cat back up the hill, carrying his head in his mouth!

East Point Raid Nets Drug Haul Set at $125,000

What may have been Eastern Kentucky's biggest narcotics haul was made Sunday afternoon at East Point where approximately a pound of cocaine was seized and six men were arrested by state police officers and a Johnson county deputy sheriff.

Street value of the cocaine was estimated at $125,000.

Arrested and now held in the Johnson county jail in lieu of $20,000 bond each are Douglas Music, of East Point, Donald Schumm, Jr., Watson McCray, Tom Hoffman, Jim Brayback and Randy Burris, all of whom gave Ohio addresses.

The raid followed receipt by state police of an anonymous tip. The officers included State Police Detectives Kenneth Deboard and Keith Scott and Troopers Earl Gurrell and Phillip Nickles and Deputy Sheriff Guy Dickey.

Mrs. Roberts Honored at Meet Here

Members of the Floyd County Retired Teachers' Association held their regular quarterly luncheon-meeting at noon Saturday at the Emma Wells May Cultural Center here. Mrs. Mae K. Roberts, president, introduced the Rev. Dean L. Pack, pastor of Irene Cole Memorial (First) Baptist Church, who brought the devotionals.

The president presented the guest-speaker, Dr. J. Marvin Dodson, executive director and secretary of K.R.T.A., who discussed memberships, and its relation to the Legislative program; cost-of-living increases for retired teachers; increase in benefits for retired teaching service, and other topics of interest.

Mrs. Dodson, who accompanied her husband here, was introduced by Mrs. Roberts.

Two copies of the book, "The Big Sandy" were presented by members of the F.C.R.T. to the Floyd County Library, in memory of a departed member, Mrs. Irene P. Stephens, who taught for many years at Prestonsburg High School.

The treasurer, Mrs. Anna May Mellon, reported that F.C.R.T. now has 104 paid members.

The president, Mrs. Roberts, announced that a K.R.T.A. workshop will be held at Morehead State University, October 2.

Members who represented the local chapter, at the N.R.T.A. workshop, in Morehead, July 31, were Mesdames Mae K. Roberts, Norma S. Stepp, Minnie Grace Sutherland, Opal S. May, and Virginia S. Goble.

At the conclusion of the business meeting, Mrs. Sutherland, on behalf of the members of the association, paid tribute to Mrs. Mae K. Roberts, who was not only the group's first president but had served in that capacity for the past eight years. Then, as a token of appreciation for the service and leadership rendered by Mrs. Roberts, and the support given to her and to the organization by her husband, E. D. Roberts, during this time, Mrs. Sutherland presented to them, on behalf of the group, a painting, entitled, "Mountain Lake," by one of Mrs. Roberts' former students, local artist, Russell May. The couple was given a standing ovation by officers and members of the group and their guests, and they expressed their gratitude to those present.

Mrs. Roberts presented the new officers, selected by the nominating committee, as follows: President, Mrs. Norma S. Stepp; first vice-president, Mrs. Minnie Grace Sutherland; second vice-president, Mrs. Goldia Williams; secretary, Mrs. Opal S. May and treasurer, Mrs. Anna May Mellon.

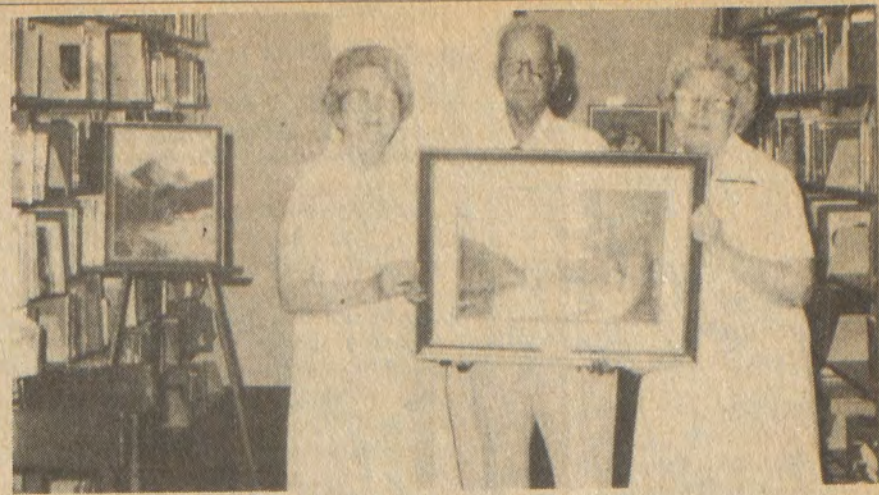

The remainder of the meeting was conducted by the new president, Mrs. Stepp, and she selected as her committees for the year 1979-80:

It was decided that "get-well" cards would be sent to Mrs. Mildred Hall, Mrs. Frankie Best, Mrs. Martha Allen and Alton Crisp.

With Mrs. Mae K. Roberts, Miss Alice Harris, Mrs. Docia B. Woods, Mrs. Elizabeth Bailey and Mrs. Grace Sutherland serving as hostesses, lunch was enjoyed by the Rev. Dean Pack, Dr. and Mrs. J. Marvin Dodson, Mrs. Edith James, Mrs. Virginia Jeffries, Mrs. Sherrill Frazier, Mrs. Zella Archer, and Messrs E. D. Roberts, William A. Salisbury, Audie Elkins, Columbus Jacobs, and Arnold Lowe, guests; Mr. and Mrs. Adrian Hall, Miss Elsie M. Stephens, Mrs. Anna Belle Harris, Mrs. Virginia S. Goble, and Mrs. Imogene Caldwell, new members; and other members, Mesdames Norma S. Stepp, Anna May Mellon, Mildred S. Salisbury, Margaret Collins, Opal S. May, Lucy Regan, Oma P. Elkins, Victoria Spradlin, Goldia Williams, Grace Conley, Ethel Ratliff, Alma Lowe, Edith Hopkins, Myrtle Jacobs, and Rozella Lewis; Misses Lexie Allen, Anna M. One of Brothers Held in Murder Is Jailed Here

One of two brothers accused of the kidnap-murder last year of James Leonard Wells, Paintsville motel clerk, is a maximum security prisoner in the Floyd county jail.

Bond of $450,000 each has been asked for the release of the prisoner, James Arthur King, and his brother, David Lowe King, who was taken to the Pike county jail for safekeeping.

The bound, bullet-riddled body of Wells, a former Prestonsburg Community College student, was found May 3, 1978, hours after his disappearance from the Paintsville motel where he was employed as night clerk.

Both of the Kings, who are former residents of Sitka, Johnson county, have entered pleas of not guilty. James Arthur King was returned to Paintsville from Ohio, where he was serving a 29-year pen term for felonious assault and robbery. His brother, who was serving a 20-year term in Florida for kidnapping and robbery, fought extradition. He was returned to Johnson county last Thursday.

Murder indictments were voted recently by a Johnson county grand jury against the two. Trial date for the brothers is expected to be set at an Aug. 30 circuit court session.

Judge Proposes Labor Program In Lieu of Jail

District Judge Harold Stumbo said last week he will initiate, if fiscal court cooperation is assured, an alternate program which would afford prisoners on misdemeanor counts the opportunity to work out reduced jail terms.

The only cooperation needed from the fiscal court, he said, is for it to pay the cost of compensation insurance on prisoners while they are working.

The proposed program would give persons convicted of misdemeanor charges the choice of working on public property, county or city, or their equipment, with the prison terms reduced; or, if the work offer is rejected, the prisoner would serve the full term in jail.

Working out a sentence could be made mandatory only by the trial jury.

"I believe most prisoners would prefer work at shorter terms than lying in jail, doing nothing," Judge Stumbo said.

He added that he believes such a program—work on roads, cleanup projects and the like—could be very beneficial to the county.

Such an alternate system is in effect in about eight Kentucky counties, with good results, he said.

Stumbo said there is some misunderstanding of his court's handling of some misdemeanor prisoners out on bond within 10 hours. If a person is fined, the court also is required to set up time payments of the fine, if requested.

Early bond must be set for an offense even as serious as armed robbery, he added, but the court in such cases may set the bond at a figure which will hold the prisoner.

PHS STUDENT BODY is pictured gathering Monday morning in the school gymnasium for orientation in a scene which was repeated in schools throughout the county as students returned for the ominous first day of school. The opening day was made less painful for grumping returnees by a timely change in the oppressive heat and humidity of the previous week.

CONSTRUCTION IS STALLED on these homes at David, due to a temporary failure of Farmers Home Administration funds. The five houses, on KY 404, are being built with federal backing for low and moderate income families. A nationwide "pooling" of FmHA monies this week is expected to result in a release of funds for the project.

State Fair... a big adventure for 4-H'ers

The Kentucky State Fair is always a big adventure for Kentucky 4-H'ers as the young people compete in showing off their skills in project contests that vary from the handling of bicycles to tractors, exhibiting livestock in the show ring to demonstrating skills in cooking and crafts. A trip to the State Fair is a highlight of 4-H experiences and even though there's a lot of work involved in preparing for the competition and the actual display of their skills, there's always a lot of fun involved. It was no exception at the 1979 Kentucky State Fair.

YOU'VE GOT TO BE HANDY WITH A PITCHFORK—It's fun showing livestock at the 1979 Kentucky State Fair, but Mike Travis, a 15-year-old Spencer County 4-H'er, admits there's plenty of work involved. The son of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Travis, Taylorsville, he has to spend considerable time with his pitchfork to keep the stall area "fluffed up" and clean for his Holsteins he showed in the 4-H dairy show.

THE "THREE LITTLE PIGS" ARE CHAMPS—Anette Ellis proudly accepts the championship ribbon and trophy for her pen of market hogs at the 4-H swine show of the 1979 Kentucky State Fair. The 13-year-old Boyle County 4-H'er is presented the trophy by David Allen, representative of a feed company that gave the swine show trophies. Anette is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dale Ellis, Danville.

IT TAKES CONCENTRATION—Rhonda Skinner, 13-year-old Harrison County 4-H'er, proves that tractor driving isn't left up to boys only. She's showing some real concentration as she competes in the state 4-H tractor driving contest at the 1979 Kentucky State Fair. Rhonda is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Meredith Skinner of Cynthiana and gets a lot of real experience driving a tractor in routine work on her parents' farm.

"THIS IS HOW YOU DO IT"—Letha Bishop, Owenton, shows how to make a terrarium as she competes in the 4-H junior horticulture demonstrations at the 1979 Kentucky State Fair. The 10-year-old Owen County 4-H'er is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Bishop, Jr.

C. & O. Coal Gons Derail at Lackey

Twelve loaded coal gondolas of a C. & O. train jumped the tracks Thursday morning near the Floyd-Knott county line at Lackey as the latest in a number of derailments which have occurred in the same vicinity in recent years. Although coal was spilled in yards of some residents who live adjacent to the tracks, no injury or property loss was reported. The tracks were returned to service the following day.

To the Editor

Thanks to Somebody

I don't know who did this, but whoever did, thanks for putting a "No Passing" Zone through Punkin Center (below Estill). This is a 35-m.p.h. zone but is seldom observed. It is a congested area and many children and older people walk the road. Cars and trucks are still exceeding the speed limit, but I have noticed that they are not passing as much, which is a big help. I have complained about this for years to whoever would listen.

I don't know who really listened, but thanks to who ever did. It may save someone's life.

From an Old Grad

The Prestonsburg High School Class of 1959 had its twenty-year reunion last Saturday.

More than fifty percent of the class was present to renew friendships and share memories of those glorious years, 1955-1959.

Some members of the class traveled great distances for this first reunion and the opportunity to reminisce. Even though we have scattered all over the country and pursued a wide range of careers, a common thread runs among us.

As classmates we shared joy and sorrow, victory and defeat, laughter and tears, A's and F's, helping hands and shoulders to lean on.

The art of sharing is not unique to any group and is available to all. It was and is the common thread which united us as friends and classmates. For this I am grateful.

A special thanks is extended to the reunion committee whose effort made this special function possible. They are: Madelyn Porter Burchett, Mary Lynne Sharp Pigman, Kathryn Parker Poe, Janice Warrix James, Terry Webb Buchanan, Judith Howard Carter, Lydia Shepherd Hackworth, Martha May Hicks and Klora Lafferty Osborne (we missed you, Klora.)

Thanks also to our teachers who were present. We seem to be catching up with them in age.

Gymnast of Month

Duke Martin, 11-year-old son of Dr. and Mrs. Lowell Martin, of Langley, has been named "Gymnast of the Month" by Eastern Kentucky Gymnastics, of Prestonsburg.

The title was awarded young Martin after he was named the most improved gymnast at the recent National Gymnastics Institute Camp. E.K.G. Coach Young, who called the youngster "a gymnast to keep an eye on in the future," pointed out that Duke has only been a member of the gymnastics program for a short time.

Viet Cong Carpet-Baggers

Much like the aftermath of the Civil War in this country, the North Viet Carpet-Baggers are swarming over the South with their machine guns and primitive business and farming methods. You can imagine the contempt and frustration these Americanized South Viets would feel for these backward people who by a cruel twist of fate have been placed as lords and masters over them.

Is it any wonder that what is left of the intelligentsia of this country has fled, or is in the process of fleeing in whatever manner they can?

Caught up in the struggle between China and Russia for local and world domination, this could be a forerunner of what is in store for the rest of us. As this struggle intensifies, the whole world may become embroiled, and until we get the space shuttle, we will have no place to flee.

Little Mud Road Hopes Dashed

A seven-month struggle by residents of Little Mud Creek ended in defeat this week when State Transportation Department officials denied them funds for the improvement of the Little Mud road.

Area residents have held monthly meetings on the road issue since February, have sent several delegations to Frankfort, and had been reassured as recently as two weeks ago that their road was on the Transportation Department's repair schedule for this year, said Janice Pullium, who spearheaded the community road drive.

Two months ago, Mrs. Pullium said, State Senator Jim Hammond had told a meeting of the Little Mud Community Development Association, "I have good news for you. Your road project has been approved."

According to Hammond, an early supporter of the local road effort, plans approved by the state Department of Transportation called for draining and ditching, straightening out four sharp curves in the road, and an unspecified amount of blacktopping.

Only two weeks ago, Mrs. Pullium said, she heard Deputy Transportation Commissioner Otto Ingram repeat, over a speaker phone in Sen. Hammond's Frankfort office, his commitment to the repair this year of the Little Mud road.

"Now," she says ruefully, "Mr. Ingram says that he meant, not the Mud Creek road, but the Mare Creek road." "It is a tremendous letdown," Mrs. Pullium added. "I don't know how we are going to face another winter, with our road the way it is. All this time, they have just been leading us along."

Dwale Residents Address Drainage Problems

In photo at left volunteer workers dig a ditch along a Dwale roadway in an effort to remedy drainage problems which plague the community's lowest end. Problem is typified by photo at right.

In the face of bureaucratic red tape and diminishing funds for public works, a number of smaller communities in Floyd county and elsewhere have begun, in recent years, to solve their own problems through fund drives, volunteer labor and the like.

When a group of Dwale citizens mounted a money-raising effort back in April it was not the first time that residents of that town had organized in a self-help effort. It was in the same town about four years ago that a group of women, fed up with bone-jarring potholes and mud puddles that never seem to dry up, bought gravel and red dog and proceeded to fill up sections of broken pavement.

The present community effort is aimed at improving drainage in the lower end of Dwale where swampy conditions exist and runoff is practically non-existent. After money was first raised by selling chances on a shotgun, several Dwale men began ditching along roads and a backhoe was leased to speed up the work. As in any such project some residents viewed the work with suspicion wondering, no doubt, what the volunteers were "getting out of it." What the workers are attempting to achieve, however, according to one spokesman, is "to provide someplace for the water to go," and, although some improved drainage has been accomplished, "there's still a lot more work to do."

At present, the group's money is exhausted and help is being sought from the county. "The gas company's helped us some, too, but it's going to take a lot more work to see a big change," a volunteer noted.

RETURN TO N.C.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Mays, formerly of Price, have returned to their home in Tranquill Harbour, Long Beach, N.C. after a month's camping trip to Kentucky. While here they were visited by many friends throughout the county.

Vote-Leader Named To Morehead Council

The City Council of Morehead recently named Dr. Randall Wells, formerly of Prestonsburg, to fill the unexpired term of Councilman Dick Staggs.

Wells, who served as a member of the Morehead council from 1976 to 1978, was the top vote-getter in the primary held this year to nominate new members. He has been vice-chairman of Gateway Community Services and of the Gateway Head Start board of directors. A graduate of Morehead State University, he received his Ph. D. from Union Graduate School. He formerly was band director at Rowan County High School and currently is associate professor of education at Morehead State.

Dr. Wells, who is a son of Mrs. Sam Wells, of Prestonsburg, and the late Mr. Wells, led all City Council contenders in the Morehead city primary by 58 votes over the second-place finisher.

When Eight—and Thirteen— Is Not Enough

By Nancy Kaplan

A bill which would have lowered the age of sexual consent from 16 to 13 sparked attention and controversy in New Jersey last May. A hasty revision returning the age of consent to 16 was passed (by a 71-2 vote in the Assembly, and a 36-1 vote in the Senate) before the lowered age of consent could go into effect; but the problems posed by this complex issue are not as readily solved.

The original law, known as the "carnal abuse statute," goes back to 1898, and defines sexual relations between a female under 16 and a male over 16 as statutory rape. Conviction under this law means five to ten years in prison.

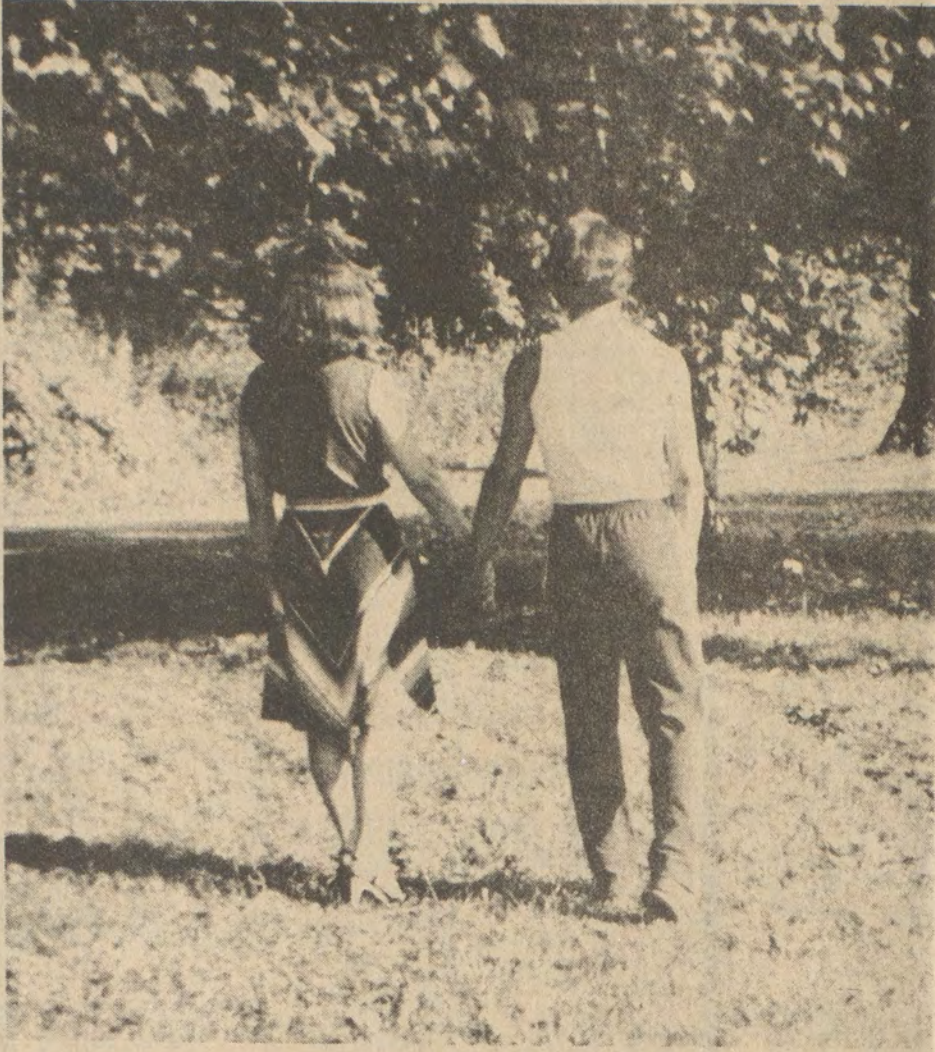

The revised law, which would have lowered the age of consent to 13, specifically stated that intercourse with a child under 13 is a crime, with one exception: if one of the participants is under 13, but the other is less than four years older. The code allowed consenting 13, 14 or 15-year-olds the legal right to have intercourse with anyone except a teacher, employer, parent, foster parent, or other adult in a supervisory position.

The bill to retain criminal penalties for persons over the age of 16 who engage in consensual sexual activity with persons under 16 was passed in what appeared to be response to overwhelming public pressure. All this controversy raised serious questions about the extent to which the law can or should control teenage sexual activities.

The Law and Morality

Opponents of the bill which would have lowered the consent age (including parents, law enforcement officials and legislators) were quite outspoken on this issue. They argued strongly that this new legislation undermined and usurped parental authority, since the law would have allowed their children to have intercourse at an age when they, as parents, believed the children were unprepared for it.

Many parents said they felt that their young teenagers lacked the maturity to make such decisions themselves; these parents saw the bill as condoning—even encouraging—teen sex. As concerned parents, they said they wanted laws which would reflect and support their own views on morality.

While the code had proposed lowering the age of consent to 13, it still made it criminal for anyone under 16 to have sexual relations with a partner four or more years younger. In other words, a 15-year-old would be criminally prosecuted for sexual activities with a 10-year-old. The revised code restoring the age of consent to 16 does not offer the same protection. Legislators pointed out the irony of the bill as it was finally passed: activities between a 15 and 10-year-old are now legal, but those between a 15 and 16-year-old are criminal.

Those who favored the bill lowering the age of consent (which was proposed and endorsed by a coalition of women's groups) stated that the law simply attempted to keep consenting teenagers out of the criminal justice system; the law, they said, was not an attempt to legislate morality. They said they had wanted to revise the code to get rid of archaic statutes and to keep on the books only those laws which were actually being enforced. (Prosecutors have consistently refused to indict teens such as a 17-year-old whose 15-year-old girlfriend is engaging in intercourse with him voluntarily.) The bill was meant to extend maximum protection to those children involved in consensual activities with someone their own age.

Is the Law Effective

Statistics point to an increase in sexual activity among adolescents. Studies in hospital clinics have shown that 50% of 15-year-old boys and 25% of 15-year-old girls have experienced intercourse. A survey taken in 1976 revealed that at least 18% of all 15-year-olds had already had sexual relations, a statistic supported by the rise of the birth rate among 13 to 15-year-olds.

To what extent can the law restrict the sexual activity of teenagers? Experts in the field have found that teenagers are less aware of the law than adults are. (Even adults laws, such as those which govern adultery and gambling, are hardly the deterrents they were intended to be.)

Is the law a factor which affects the sexual activities of young teens? Is the possibility of arrest a deterrent to a teenager's activities with a boy- or girlfriend? Or are teens more concerned about how their parents would react if they knew about their child's sexual activity?

There is no question that adolescents are facing adult situations at an increasingly early age; and problems will naturally occur when teens are expected to act and think as adults in some ways, and yet remain children in others. New Jersey does not have the nation's lowest consent age by any means—in Georgia, the age is 14—nor is New Jersey the only state where parents and teenagers are facing this complex issue. Whether the law, the school, the community or the family can offer the best guidance, and what affect they will have, remains to be seen.

MEETINGS TO GATHER IDEAS ON KY. PARKS

Frankfort, Ky.—The Governor's Commission on State Parks Development will hold three public hearings around Kentucky this month to gather citizen ideas on possible expansions or changes in state parks.

Hearings will be held at the First Christian Church in Richmond, 7:30 p.m. Aug. 23; Rowan County High School cafeteria, Morehead, 8 p.m. Aug. 28; and Clark County Courthouse in Winchester, second floor courtroom, 7 p.m. Aug. 30.

Wallen's Retirement, a Surprise

By KENNY RICE

Wendell Wallen was prepared to enter his eighth year as head basketball coach at Johnson Central and his 19th year in the coaching business. He was planning his strategy for a team that would be in a rebuilding season. His family, friends, team and even Wallen himself saw no reason why he wouldn't coach the Golden Eagles during the 1979-'80 season.

All that changed August 10. After some problems within the coaching staff, the dean of 15th Region coaches decided he had had enough of the headaches and heartaches of the trade. He went to the Johnson county superintendent and told him of his desire to resign from the coaching job at Central.

"He (the superintendent) told me to think about it over the week-end before making any final decisions," Wallen said. "After a lot of discussion with my family and people I've been associated with over the past years I decided that for my part, that of my family and for the school I would get out of coaching."

"Some of the conflicts that would not have disturbed me in past seasons were bothering me now and I felt getting away from coaching would be the best step for everyone concerned," he added.

Wallen, whose 11 Meade Memorial teams won seven district and three regional crowns and whose seven Johnson Central teams won four district titles and one regional championship, says he will not return to the coaching profession.

"I imagine I'm hanging it up for good. My plans are to not go back into coaching. I can go to Howard's games (his son who is head coach at Allen Central) and watch his team play without trying to figure out a way to beat them as I had to do when I was coaching. There are some things to be done around the house and I'll have more time to do those things, I'll have more time to relax."

Always a man of class, Wallen says he is leaving the job at Johnson Central without any bitterness over the circumstances that led to his departure.

"Johnson Central has achieved a lot as a total program over the years. For 11 years four years as athletic director before taking over as coach) my association with the school has been rewarding. The football people at the school now are energetic, they are working hard to bring the school a good football program. They have the enthusiasm the basketball program has tried to maintain and I'm glad to see still another part of the school improving. I'd like to see all departments at the school energetic and having unity and being at peace," Wallen said sincerely.

He has made a request that the board of education place him in the Johnson Central elementary school as an aid to the principal and as a teacher. The asked-for move is to alleviate any problems from arising at the high school.

"I don't want to be hanging around over there (the high school) where my presence might be a nuisance to the new coach," Wallen explained. "I want the new coach to have the full possibilities for a successful program. Whomever my replacement is, I wish him the best and I support him. I hope my successor will have those mutual feelings."

Wallen's performance as a coach and person, have earned him the respect of basketball coaches, players and fans in Kentucky. Goodbye to a fine coach and good luck to a good man.

SOFTBALL WINNERS

Archer Park has been the site of two softball tournaments within a 10-day span, and another tourney is nearing completion as the softball season draws to an end.

Town and Country Motors won the Class AA Regional, and Salyersville National Bank finished second. Petry's won the District 40 Tournament with Triple Elkhorn finishing second and Lloyd's Hardware coming in third.

The Class A Regional Tournament is scheduled to finish this week.

ALL STARS

Commissioner Billy Ray Collins has announced the Archer Park Softball League (District 40) all-star team as voted by the 24 league managers.

Pitcher, Jerry Hensley (Salyers' Coal); catcher, George Akers (Petry's Furniture); first base, Keith Lawson (National Mines); second base, Barry Hall (Town and Country); third base, Larry Woods (Harold Telephone); shortstop, Joe Castle (Salyersville National Bank); left field, Jerry Holbrook (Salyersville National Bank); center field, Bruce Sheldon (Town and Country); right field, Phillip Tucker (National Mines); rover, Gary Holbrook (Town and Country).

Jeff Wells (Town and Country) was voted the league's best offensive player and his teammate Sheldon was picked as the best defensive player in the league. Woods won his second straight home run trophy.

Town and Country won the league title, edging National Mines, Salyersville National Bank finished third. Prestonsburg Businessmen was voted the most improved team; Kentucky State Police was chosen as the best new team, and Allen Methodist won the sportsmanship trophy.

10,000-METER RUN

The Pikeville Jaycees are sponsoring a Coal Country 10,000-meter run on September 2 at 3:30. The race course will cover the downtown area and the new cut-through section of Pikeville.

The race will have a new twist for such events. "Teams" can enter. To have a team in the run there must be seven members of the team. Team and individual awards will be given according to age and sex. For further info, contact the Pike County Chamber of Commerce, 432-5865.

BABE RUTH PLAYOFFS

The Floyd County Babe Ruth League is scheduled to wrap up its season this week with its annual post-season playoffs. The double elimination tournament was set to start Monday and have two games each night, beginning at 6 o'clock, the remainder of the week. The tourney officials are hoping to get the playoffs completed by this week-end because school is back in session and also because some of the Babe Ruth players are playing high school football.

The playoffs are being played at the Floyd County Park, near Allen. There is plenty of free, lighted parking and there is no admission charge for any of the games. All six of the county's teams are participating.

MAX PATKIN TONIGHT

Max Patkin, labeled "The Clown Prince of Baseball," and a popular drawing card for minor league baseball teams everywhere, is scheduled to entertain tonight (Wednesday) at the Johnson Central Park before and during the Paintsville Yankees-Bluefield Orioles game. Game time is 7:30.

Former Floyd Coach Honored

Former Wheelwright High basketball coach Don Wallen has been named "Coach of the Year" by the Florida Athletic Coaches Association. It is the fourth time he has received the award. Wallen has been head coach of the Martin County (Fla.) High basketball team since 1966. In that time, his teams have won 321 games while losing only 68.

At Wheelwright High during the 1960's, teams coached by Wallen enjoyed a 218-37 record and captured 12 titles.

Martin County High won this year's AAAA state championship—the third garnered by Wallen-coached teams. His teams have won, in all, 32 titles, and his overall record stands at 539-105.

"In most instances, when a coach receives an award like this," Wallen is quoted as saying recently, "it is directly related to the kind of record his team compiled."

"In accepting this award," he continued, "I do so on behalf of a lot of people—my past and present players, other members of my coaching staff, and all the fans."

Softball Tourney Set August 22, at New Floyd County Park

The first mens' softball tournament to be held at the new Floyd County Park playing field is scheduled for Aug. 24-26.

Deadline for teams to register for the tourney, which is being sponsored by the Petrey Furniture softball team, is Aug. 22. Teams may contact Carl Hall, 874-9117, or any member of the Petrey Furniture team.

Energy Update

Fan-cy Cooling Ideas

Remember watching old movies on television and catching a glimpse of ceiling fans spinning above the bar? You should be seeing these fans around more often, but in a contemporary setting. They have proven to be valuable as both nostalgic conversation pieces and, more importantly, as effective energy savers.

Though widely used in the early part of the century, as air-conditioners became more common, the use of the ceiling fans as cooling systems declined. With renewed interest in products of yesteryear, these fans seem to be gaining popularity.

Undoubtedly the biggest selling feature of these fans is that they save money in energy costs. They make cooling systems more effective because they keep the air circulating. During the summer, a well-placed ceiling fan will allow the homeowner to set his air-conditioning thermostat six to eight degrees above his normal setting and still maintain the same level of cooling comfort.

The savings to the consumer is quite incredible; the fan operates on the same power as a light bulb, so it requires far less energy to run than an air conditioner.

As with the earlier fans, today's have a life expectancy of over 40 years. They come in two standard sizes: 36-inch or 52-inch diameter blades. The average price for one of these fans is about $200, but before you buy, look in your attic. You may have one of the old originals hiding in the cobwebs!

Oven-Wise

There are several ways to cut energy costs in the kitchen, especially if you do a lot of cooking and baking. To get maximum efficiency and minimum energy waste while using your oven, try these suggestions:

- Preheat oven only when it is necessary for a specific recipe. Many foods can be started in a cold oven.
- Cook foods that require the same amount of oven time and temperature together. Stagger baking for foods that need the same temperature but require different amounts of cooking time. Whatever requires the most oven time gets put in first. If oven temperature is not crucial for a particular food, bake it with other dishes, but compensate for temperature by either lengthening or shortening the amount of cooking time.
- Do not open the oven door unnecessarily. Instead, use a timer to remind you when to put in or take out foods.
- Shallow baking dishes permit faster heating penetration, so use them whenever you can.
- Turn off the oven several minutes before the allotted cooking time, leaving food to finish baking. And keep the oven door shut.
- Finally, if you have a self-cleaning oven, turn it on directly after roasting or baking to take advantage of the heat already in the oven.

Some Shady Information

Energy saving devices don't necessarily have to be costly to work. A common household window shade has proven to be highly efficient in cutting cooling costs in the summer. These are some facts from a study conducted at the Illinois Institute of Technology:

- During the summer months, window shades block out 63 percent of the sunlight heat that enters the home. Shades also cut heat from incoming air by 25 percent.
- When shades keep out hot air and sunlight, air conditioners need not work so hard. Homeowners can save 21 percent on cooling costs by using less electricity to operate their air-conditioners.
- When a window is unshaded, the sun's penetrating rays create a heat buildup. Opaque shades will block out and deflect these rays, and they do the job 60% better than venetian blinds, and 20% better than draperies.

Endorse Funding of Clinch River Plant

The Republican Policy Committee today gave unanimous support to H. R. 3000 which authorizes Federal expenditures in Fiscal 1980 for civilian research and development of fossil energy, nuclear energy, solar and geothermal energy, conservation, environment and safety programs and other energy R&D activities, including $183.8 million for the Clinch River Breeder Reactor Project (CRBRP).

In a formal policy statement the Committee stated it's strong opposition to the Carter Administration's "unilateral decision to terminate the CRBRP ostensibly for the purpose of influencing an international nuclear nonproliferation policy." The statement noted that in 1978, the Carter Administration proposed to replace this breeder plant commitment by a paper study on the basis that the plant size is too small and the design obsolete. The Policy Committee stated its own concern over the proliferation of nuclear weapons but said that modern technology and safeguards are adequate protection, such as the CIVEX diversion-resistant scheme to reprocess nuclear fuel which will blunt any terrorist threat. "Thus," the statement continued, "the Policy Committee does not believe that continuation of CRBRP activity will accelerate proliferation."

Noting that several nations have indicated that they will proceed with their own breeder reactor programs whether or not the United States proceeds with the Clinch River Breeder Reactor Project, the Committee said "Congress has a responsibility to continue development of breeder technology and reprocessing to a level of large-scale technical demonstration. "To abandon or defer such a major and promising source of energy at this time," the statement said, "would be irresponsible. As a positive response to our domestic energy supply problem Congress should retain funding for the Clinch River Breeder Reactor Project in H.R. 3000. Deferring development of the CRBRP in view of our growing domestic energy demand could result in abandoning an energy option essential to meeting this nation's future requirements. We must retain a national commitment to build a breeder reactor plant; we cannot settle for a paper study!"

Knott County Housing Group Hosts Mountain Council Meet

The 67th annual meeting of the Council of the Southern Mountains (CSM) attracted community leaders from several Appalachian states into the isolated Ogden Creek hollow, near Hindman, August 4.

Two Knott county community groups, the Citizens for Social and Equal Opportunity (CSEO) and the Citizens for Social and Economic Justice (CSEJ), hosted the regional event.

More than 100 participants representing dozens of community organizations in Virginia, West Virginia, Tennessee, Kentucky, Ohio, and North Carolina assembled at the Montgomery United Baptist Church. The meeting provided a first-hand look at the problems resulting from the ongoing construction of State Highway 80. Ogden Creek residents are surrounded on three sides by a massive landfill, whose steep slopes tower over much of the community. On the other side of the valley, residents live beneath an active strip-mine, which itself is becoming a potential threat to the homes below. The only road out of the hollow is a narrow, winding, and badly rutted dirt road.

During the Council meeting, CSEO President Carl "Jake" Ritchie described the two-year fight between his community at Ogden Creek and the State Department of Highways, which he claims has "tried their best to box us in here with no way to get in and get out." According to Ritchie, the CSEO successfully blocked the construction of Highway 80 last year until the highway department agreed to provide residents some access over the construction project.

In recent weeks the local organization has been arguing in the state courts with a coal company over the use of an abandoned strip-mine bench above

Ogden Creek. The CSEO purchased the property last February and plans to begin construction of a government-financed housing project early next year.

In spite of the problems the community has faced with the highway department and the Highland Coal Company, CSEO members highlighted the Council meeting with a sign-raising. The new billboard now publicly announces to persons driving across the new highway that the site above is the "Future Home of Ogden Gap View—CSEO Housing Project."

Health Notes

By JANET E. HICKS
Health Educator
The new school year has begun and it's time to prepare for another year of the fluoride mouthrinse program in Floyd County's schools.

All county elementary schools have participated in the program since the fall school year in 1977. The mouthrinse program is sponsored by the Bureau for Health Services, Department for Human Resources, local health departments and boards of education across Kentucky.

Tooth decay is prevalent among school-age children. One of the best ways to prevent tooth decay (cavities) is by using fluoride mouthrinse. With weekly use the fluoride mouthrinse makes the teeth tough enough to resist decay, so there are fewer cavities. In fact, when fluoride mouthrinse is used regularly by children who are 5 to 14 years of age, there are 30 to 40 percent fewer cavities. The Food and Drug Administration in Washington has ruled that the fluoride mouthrinse is safe and will reduce tooth decay when used as a rinse once a week.

The fluoride mouthrinse is available to every child in Floyd county's elementary schools. Most children have had access to the mouthrinse in the past school years; however, any child, whether a new student (kindergarten, first grade, or transfer student) or a non-participant in the past school fluoride programs, can enroll in the program this fall.

Clinics for the coming week:
Friday, August 17, there will be a pap smear clinic at the Floyd County Health Department from 8:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. All women needing their annual pap smear are urged to attend for this free screening service.

Monday, August 20, the regularly scheduled Bypro outpost clinic will be conducted at Ehtel Osborne's store of Bypro. Clinic hours will be from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Services offered will include immunizations, TB skin tests, diabetes screening, and blood pressures. The clinic is a free service, and the public is welcome to attend.

How to save a child's life...

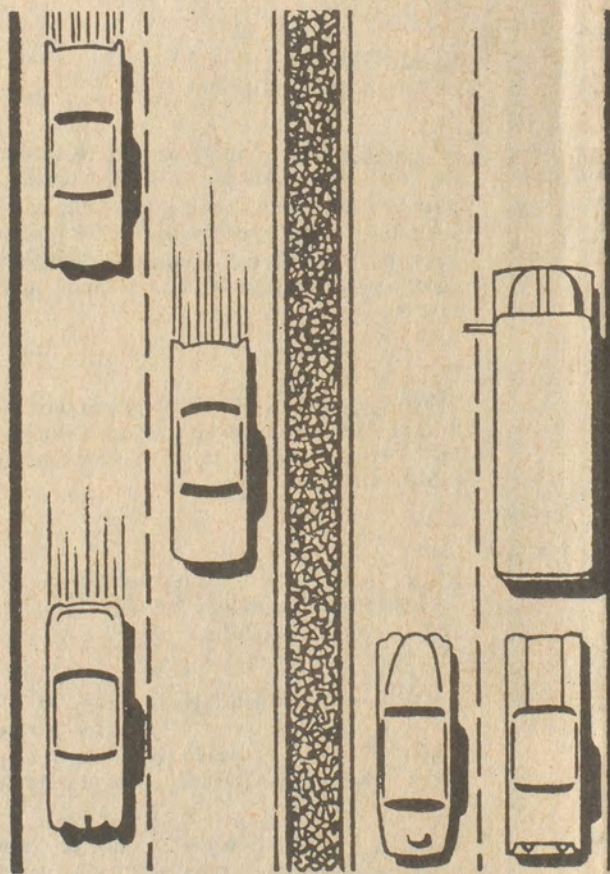

Every school bus is a 'STOP' signal

No Median-
All traffic STOPS

Median Strip-
Traffic moving in bus
direction STOPS

The bright yellow school bus, laden with children going to or from school, is a familiar sight on Kentucky highways.

It travels in the early morning, at midday, during afternoon rush hours, and, all too often, after dark. Whenever it travels, however, you, the motorist, must exercise special caution to protect the lives of its young passengers. A bus loading or unloading children will display a STOP sign and flashing red lights.

If you meet a school bus loading or unloading children on a highway that is not divided by a median, you must stop—no matter which direction you are going—and wait until the bus moves on. On a divided highway, you must only stop if you are going in the same direction as the school bus; if you are across the median going in the opposite direction, you may proceed with caution. A painted area in the middle of the road is not a median and cars going in both directions must stop.

The STOP sign that swings out from the side of the school bus places the safety responsibility squarely on your shoulders. So be careful—the child you save may be your own.

Kentucky Revised Statute 189.370 States:

"Whenever any school bus or church bus used in the transportation of children is stopped upon a highway for the purpose of receiving or discharging passengers, the operator of a vehicle approaching from any direction shall bring his vehicle to a complete stop and shall not start up or attempt to pass until the bus has completed receiving or discharging passengers and has been put into motion; provided, that this stop requirement shall not apply to vehicles proceeding in the opposite direction from a church or school bus which is stopped upon a highway where multi-lane roadways providing for opposite directions of travel are separated by a raised, depressed, mountable or non-mountable median."

Census Bureau Sets Employment Survey

Local representatives of the Bureau of the Census will conduct a survey of employment in this area during the work week of August 20-24.
The survey will be conducted for the U.S. Department of Labor in a scientifically designed sample of approximately 76,000 households throughout the United States. Employment and unemployment statistics based on results of this survey are used to provide a continuing measure of the economic health of the Nation.
For example, in June the survey indicated that of the 102.5 million men and women in the civilian labor force, 96.8 million were employed. The Nation's unemployment rate was 5.6 percent; it has been in the 5.7 to 5.9 percent range for most of the past year.

Information supplied by individuals participating in the survey is kept strictly confidential by law and the results are used only to compile statistical totals.
Interviewers who will visit households in this area include Mrs. Caulene B. Martin, of Garrett, Ky. and Mrs. Patricia A. Walters, East Point.

Martin Van Buren was the first president to be born a U.S. citizen. He was born in 1782.

Media To Help Stress Safety

Every school bus is a "STOP" signal, and newspapers, radio and television stations all across the state are helping the Kentucky Department of Education stress this vital fact.

"We rarely go through a school year without seeing one or two children killed or injured as they get on or off a bus," said Paul Jones, director of the division of pupil transportation.

Jones said newspapers will be running public service ads reminding drivers they are required by law to stop for buses which are loading or unloading students. Public service announcements are being sent to radio and TV stations.

In addition, the department's television program, "New Shapes: Education," will devote an upcoming show to school bus safety.

Kentucky's school bus law provides for penalties up to $500, imprisonment up to six months, or both, for anyone who passes a bus while it is stopped for loading or unloading.

Under the law, drivers must stop for a bus whether it is going in the same direction they are or in the opposite direction.

The one exception is on divided highways where opposing lanes are separated by a definite median strip. Drivers going in the opposite direction may proceed with caution. Jones said painted lines are not medians and cars going in both directions must stop.

Kentucky school districts transport 475,000 pupils every school day. "The buses may be out early, at mid-day, mid-afternoon or even, unfortunately, after dark," Jones added. School buses loading or unloading children display a STOP sign and flashing red lights.

The school bus law also covers church buses which are transporting children, he said, but the church buses do not have the warning lights.

Jones advises parents to teach their children to wait until a bus is completely stopped before crossing a road to get aboard. If they must cross a street or road after getting off the bus, they should do so right away while the bus driver waits with the lights flashing, he said.

Clark School Nature Trails Laid Out

Redbud, poplar, sycamore, Virginia pine—all marked for conservation, as forestry officials and teenagers from the Youth Conservation Corps cut a trail in the hillside behind Clark Elementary School recently.

Several nature trails will lead past points of ecological interest—including examples of most eastern Kentucky tree species—as part of the school's program of environmental education.

In the picture above, Dewey Lake state forest administrator Randy Hjetland uses plastic ribbons for marking the trail and designating trees to be conserved.

'Low-Dose' X-Rays Go to 21 Counties

The Department for Human Resources respiratory disease program is enabling local health departments using older X-ray machines to switch to a "low-dose" system.

Using the new technology, radiation exposure to both operator and patient can be reduced as much as 75 percent, according to data gathered by the department's radiation control branch.

The new system uses films and screens which need much less radiation to produce clear images. (X-ray film works on the same principle as camera film; screens are panels of special crystals which surround a sheet of film, bouncing light from the X-ray beams through the film repeatedly to provide a brighter image.)

Because less energy is needed for each exposure, the new system is expected to increase the life of the X-ray tube, said Chuck Hardin, radiation control branch manager. Since less time is needed for each exposure, fewer films will be ruined by "blurring" resulting from the movement of patients, Hardin added.

The respiratory disease program has purchased nine sets of screens to be shared by 21 health departments during regular chest and heart clinics. The sets cost about $800 each.

Participating in the program are Crittenden, Livingston, Muhlenburg, Fulton, Carlisle, Todd, Trigg, Lincoln, Mercer, Jessamine, Lewis, Fleming, Elliott, Bell, Powell, Estill, Magoffin, Martin, Owsley, Rowan and Morgan county health departments.

LRC Says Sewage Disposal-Treatment Is Statewide Problem in Kentucky

Frankfort, Ky.—A research report released by the Legislative Research Commission (LRC) says that sewage treatment and disposal is a statewide problem in Kentucky, and more information is needed to determine what the state's response should be.

"The available information is scattered and primarily based on best estimates," the study says, "However, there does appear to be general agreement that the problem of sewage disposal is not localized but occurs statewide and that sewage disposal is considered to be a problem by professionals and citizens alike."

In 1970, the study says, slightly more than half the state's homes were served by sewers and about thirty percent had septic tanks, according to figures from the U.S. Census. The same figures show the remaining 20 percent use "on-site" sewage processing other than septic tanks or no processing at all.

Estimates by the Division of Plumbing in the state Department of Housing, Buildings and Construction indicate that about 43 percent of the state's households are now served by sewers, the study says.

A resolution passed by the 1978 General Assembly directed a study of alternative on-site sewage disposal systems for rural Kentucky. On-site sewage disposal includes systems such as septic tanks, which do not rely on central processing plants and sanitary sewers.

The LRC report includes a study of alternative systems for sewage disposal and examines the effectiveness and cost of each.

It recommends that the state begin collecting data on sewage disposal in Kentucky; examine the problem of on-site system failures; assign a legislative committee to oversee state policies dealing with on-site sewage disposal; enact legislation to provide for management of on-site sewage disposal and develop techniques for coping with failures in such systems.

The research report, "On-site Disposal in Rural Kentucky", was prepared by Peggy Hyland of the LRC staff and persons wishing to obtain a copy of the report may write the commission at the Capitol, Frankfort, Ky. 40601 or call its toll-free number 1-800-372-7194.

East Point Girl Enlists

Pamela Ann Foster, daughter of Mrs. James R. Auxier, of East Point, enlisted in the U.S. Air Force, July 11, according to T-Sgt Jim Brooks, Air Force recruiter in Ashland.

A graduate of Johnson Central High School, she is scheduled to depart for active duty, on August 8. Upon graduation from the Air Force's six weeks basic training at Lackland Air Force Base, Texas, she will receive technical training in the mechanical career field.

Can't Add Charge for Gas Credit Card

The Federal Trade Commission (FTC) and the Department of Energy (DOE) are advising gasoline-station retailers that they are prohibited from imposing a surcharge on customers who use a credit card rather than paying in cash.

The warning is prompted by reports that some gasoline retailers have begun imposing credit card surcharges.

While a surcharge is not prohibited by the new DOE pricing regulation, this practice is a violation of the Truth in Lending Act.

A station that imposes a surcharge for use of a credit card would be liable, under Federal law for minimum damages of $100.00 and reasonable attorney's fees.

In 1974, one of DOE's predecessor agencies enacted regulations prohibiting retailers of gasoline from changing their credit card practices in any way that would circumvent the price restrictions on the sale of gasoline. Among other things these regulations prohibited surcharges for the use of credit cards in sales of gasoline. Subsequently, amendments to the Truth in Lending Act prohibited surcharges for the use of credit cards in all sales transactions.

The recent amendments to the DOE price regulations effectively remove the restrictions previously imposed by the DOE price regulations on changes in the credit practices of independent retailers of gasoline. The elimination of these restrictions, however, does not in anyway affect the requirements and prohibitions of other federal and state laws or the provisions of any contract a dealer has with a credit card issuer. Retailers should be aware of these requirements before making any changes to their credit practices.

The ancient Greeks believed that the right side is associated with masculinity, the left side with femininity.

Although Squirrel Season's Here Hunters May Do Better To Wait

By JOHN WILSON

The first phase of Kentucky's squirrel seasons opens Aug. 18 but the average hunter might have better luck if he waits a few weeks before taking to the woods, said Chief Forest Game Biologist Harold Barber of the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources.

With a few exceptions, August squirrel hunting generally isn't very productive and most of the squirrels will be scattered throughout the woods feeding on a variety of items—everything from mushrooms to blackberries, Barber said. This makes locating them difficult.

The heavy foliage of late summer compounds the problem by making it difficult to see the squirrels. And without the dry leaves that will be common later in the fall, the hunter can't even use sound to help him locate his quarry.

"There are some hunters who go out a few times August, don't have much luck and conclude that there just aren't any squirrels left," Barber said. "But if they would just go back any time after the second week in September, they could very likely find excellent hunting in the same areas that seemed vacant in August."

Barber expects squirrel populations to be average across the state this year. Although squirrel numbers will be down somewhat in East Kentucky, Western Kentucky hunters can look forward to a higher than average population.

Barber bases his prediction on last year's mast production. A good crop of nuts, seeds and other foods will mean plentiful squirrels the following season. But if mast production is down, squirrel populations will fall the next year.

Kentucky has both gray squirrels and fox squirrels. Although both species are found statewide, grays are more common in mature hardwood forests, while the larger fox squirrel will often be found in smaller woodlots, wooded fence rows and along stream banks.

Early season hunters in East Kentucky should check ridge tops for ripening red hickories, Barber says. Hunters who find a good stand can often take a limit from one location.

There's apparently a good crop of hickory nut ripening in some sections of Western Kentucky, so hunters there could also find concentrations of squirrels early in the season.

In the central regions of the state, buckeyes often provide early season squirrel food. Stream banks seem productive most of the time, so wading a stream or floating in a canoe or small johnboat can be an excellent way to hunt, particularly during hot August weather.

The first phase of the season will close Oct. 31. Squirrel season will reopen with the rest of the small game seasons (Nov. 15) and run through Nov. 30. After closing for the gun deer hunt, the season will reopen Dec. 4 and run through Dec. 31.

The limits remain at six daily and 12 in possession after two or more days of hunting. Squirrel hunters may not use breech-loading rifles of .240 caliber or larger (any caliber muzzle-loader is permitted) nor may they possess shotgun slugs or buckshot while squirrel hunting.

And finally, remember that it's a legal requirement, as well as common courtesy, to ask permission before hunting on someone else's property.

Gasoline Prices Increase 16 Cents in Three Months

Gasoline prices at full-service pumps rose slightly more than half a cent a gallon last week, while self-service prices increased one and a half cents, according to the Blue Grass Automobile Club's (AAA) weekly fuel gauge report.

"The week's figures represent an average increase of almost 16 cents a gallon in the past three months at full-service pumps and more than 13 cents in self-service prices," said AAA spokesman Bob Owen.

Full-service stations reported an average cost of 96.9 cents for regular, $1 for premium, 99.5 cents for no-lead, and 97.9 cents for diesel. Self-service prices were 90 cents for regular, 98 cents for premium and 94.4 cents for no-lead.

The weekly survey also showed somewhat shorter operating hours for service stations in central and eastern Kentucky. Only 30 percent of the stations contacted will be open past 8 p.m. during this week, compared with 35 percent last week; and 9 percent will be open Sunday, compared with 18 percent last week. Sixty-three percent will be open past 6 p.m. Saturday, which is two percent better than last week.

Home Health Care for Elderly

Lexington Health Department workers and health care representatives from across the state recommended last week that the Subcommittee on Long-Term Care consider more support for home health care for the elderly as an alternative to institutionalization.

The subcommittee, which met in Lexington-Payette County Health Department, heard testimony from representatives of home health agency and homemaker programs, the Senior Citizen's Clinic, the Elderly Health Maintenance Program and the Adult Day Care program.

Legislation should be adopted requiring insurance companies to provide for home health care costs in their policies, according to Dorothy Peterson, executive director of Community Health Services, Nazareth Home Health Agency in Nelson County. Most home health agencies depend on Medicare and Medicaid for their costs and are not reimbursed by private insurance, she said.

Peterson said Medicare follows strict guidelines for reimbursements and will not pay for any "preventive" care. One of the aims of a home health agency is to maintain good health and prevent hospitalization, Peterson said.

Preventive health care is also a goal of the Elderly Health Maintenance Program in Lexington. Under the program, health departments nurses visit about 700 elderly persons in four highrise apartment complexes.

"With a little help and some social stimulation, many of them can live in the high-rises," said Joan Lassanske, acting director of the Health Department's Division for Long-Term Care.

There is an "institutional bias" in medical care that results in money flowing into the insurance industry and funds for skilled care and nursing homes rather than home health efforts, according to Bob Day, aging services specialist with the county office on aging.

More support for day care centers and home health care and continued support for the Senior Citizen's Clinic was urged by Day.

"I don't believe we should continue to bankrupt older people until they are eligible for Medicaid," Day said.

Urges Hearing Test For School Pupils

"With the start of a new school year, parents should make certain their children will not be attempting to learn while studying under the handicap of an undetected hearing loss."

This is the advice of Lawrence M. Posen, President of Beltone Electronics Corporation and director of the Beltone Crusade for Hearing Conservation. The Crusade is designed to promote hearing conservation and to build public awareness of the problems of hearing impairment.

"The student with an undetected hearing loss is at a distinct disadvantage, not only in the classroom, but in many instances also in social activities," Posen said. He pointed out that the hard-of-hearing child may not only do poorly in school, but also is likely to exhibit antisocial behavior toward other youngsters.

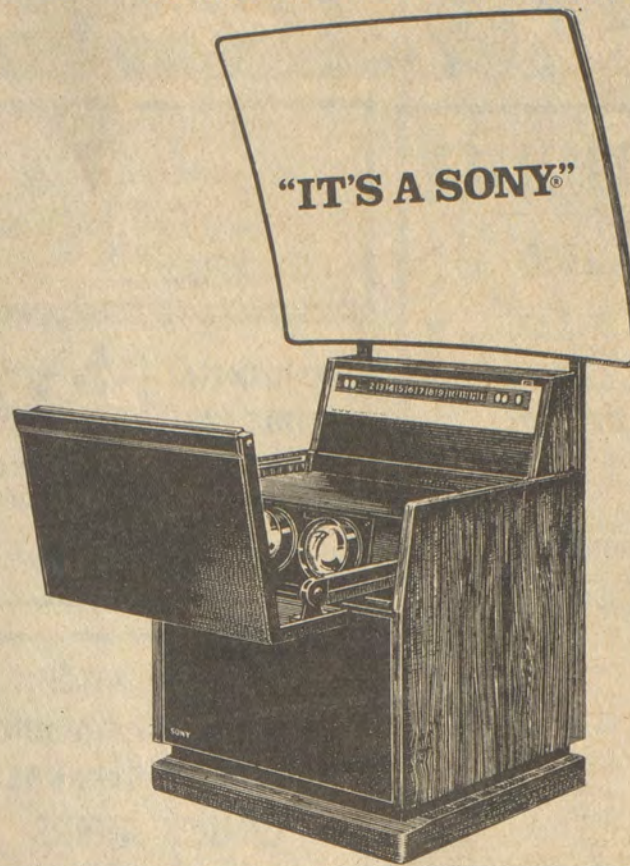

Unfortunately, many teachers and parents do not readily recognize the symptoms of a hearing loss, and sometimes the child is considered to be uninterested in school work, a behavioral problem or just plain dumb.

"For this reason, if local schools do not conduct periodic hearing tests for students, parents should arrange for such tests through private facilities before the opening of the school year," Posen stressed.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics was created by Congress in 1884 and made a part of the Labor Department in 1913.

Red Tape To Blame For Employee Loss

The Department of Transportation's inability to compete with salaries in private industry and red tape involved in hiring new personnel have contributed to a yearly employee turnover rate of 25 percent, said Transportation Secretary Calvin Grayson.

Grayson appeared before the Subcommittee on Cost and Efficiency in State Government to answer questions concerning personnel problems and practices within his department.

The most serious personnel problem for the Transportation Department is the length of time between initial contact with an applicant and the final hiring, said Grayson. It takes an average 27-29 working days to hire a new employee.

"Good applicants seldom wait for us to get through the red tape. They simply find another job," he said. Grayson suggested cabinets need more flexibility to deal with personnel matters, less red tape in hiring and better salary administration.

In a related matter, Grayson told the state government subcommittee a new 1979-80 revenue estimate for his department is down $23 million from an earlier estimate. Projected revenue is $387 million compared to $410 million originally predicted.

The drop in estimated revenue is due in part to a decrease in revenue from the 5 percent vehicle usage tax since people are buying smaller, less expensive vehicles.

Volunteers Work in West Liberty

There's no generation gap when there is a common interest in a project and volunteer workers to get the job done.

It happened in West Liberty. The Morgan County seat is where people working together have accomplished much. Years ago a community swimming pool was built for $11,000 cash and with thousands of dollars worth of elbow grease.

More recently, community effort has resulted in a recreational complex that would cost an estimated $150,000 if let to bids. When local volunteers took control the cost was only $8,000—plus, of course, the elbow grease.

Independence Day celebration and dedication of modern softball and baseball fields was cancelled by an all-day rain, but two West Liberty men were recipients of the annual West Liberty Kiwanis Club Citizen Awards for their part in this meaningful project. Mayor Scottyee Franklin gave Carl Burton and Langley Franklin keys to the city during the ceremony.

Burton taught school and coached in Morgan county about 15 years. He also taught school, coached and did government work in Dayton, Ohio for more than 30 years. In 1974 he returned to his native eastern Kentucky to retire.

"Every town needs good ball fields where youngsters can play ball and use up energy," former coach Burton said. "Every town needs a recreation complex for oldsters to come and watch their children and grandchildren, and sometimes pick up a bat and take a swing just to keep in practice."

Franklin, 26, is deputy circuit court clerk in Morgan county. Outside his regular working hours, he spends time in community work.

The young man and the retired coach worked together on the community project.

"It took us a year to get the land cleared legally," Franklin explained. "Lenora Reed Franklin gave us a 10-year lease on the land. The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, who had the land under easement, gave us a guideline as to what we could and could not do, then gave us their blessing."

The park consists of a little league baseball field, a lighted men's softball and baseball field and an almost completed women's softball field. All fields adjoin or are separated only by a narrow street. There are bleachers, adequate parking areas for each park and concessions, all enclosed by chain link fencing. Two years ago the land was a swamp with thick, wild vegetation.

The complex is within one plot of joining the Kiwanis Community playground, picnic grounds and swimming pool built in 1954. "We need a larger, more modern pool," Franklin said, "and we're hoping to get grant money to help us on that."

Club members and "outside" volunteers have updated four tennis courts and a basketball court. They are working on a shelter house. If the missing-link can be leased, it will be developed into the complex for a continuous park of 35 or 45 acres. All the complex is within the city limits and within sight of Main Street.

Burton and Franklin, widely separated in age but completely harmonious in spirit and heart, agree most thanks should go to the many volunteers who spent hours at the site working.

"Our thanks," both chorused, "is daily seeing hundreds of people, young and old, enjoying themselves in good, clean fun and entertainment."

Chicken Said To Be Cheap, Nutritious

If you have a family to feed, you're probably trying as hard as President Carter to hold down inflation—at least at the dinner table. One likely ally in kitchen economy and nutrition is that familiar fowl, the chicken.

According to an article in the August Reader's Digest, a whole chicken costs just over 70 cents a pound, compared to the $1.60 or more per pound that hamburger commands. And for nutrition's sake, a half chicken breast supplies 50 percent of our daily protein and amino acids requirements plus lots of essential vitamins, and weighs in at only about 160 calories.

Chicken is also highly digestible, and low in both cholesterol and salt. Small wonder, says the Digest article, that chicken consumption in the U.S. will reach 17 birds for each man, woman, and child this year.

Keeping this huge national appetite satisfied is becoming an increasingly streamlined operation, writes author Jack Denton Scott. No longer a hit-or-miss "backyard" business, poultry breeding is now an efficient industry, with 90 per cent of the country's 10.9 billion pounds of chicken bred this year coming from just five breeding companies. On mammoth farms, manned by scientists, geneticists, and computer-trained technicians, breeders have cut down the growth time of a marketable chicken from 13 weeks to 7½ in the last 25 years. That means lower feed costs and plenty of economical chicken coming across your table.

If all those facts sound a bit tiresome, just think of the varied poultry preparations you can try...from cacciatore to teriyaki, coq au vin to southern fried. And, adds Scott, don't forget who brought you the egg.

Have Canoe, Will Travel

By Ruth Messinger

For an inexpensive weekend or vacation, canoeing affords a rich variety of pleasures. Paddle on a quiet lake, or enjoy the excitement of shooting river rapids. Rig your canoe with a sail one day, row it with an outboard motor the next. A canoe is light enough to carry overland or tote on your car top, making it ideal for camping trips.

The American Indians built canoes by covering wooden shells with birch bark. Modern canoes, which are slicker and more durable, are usually made of aluminum, fiberglass or plastic. They come in a large range of models and sizes. Your selection depends on what you are going to do with your canoe.

If you just want to paddle or sail it, the traditional double-end canoe, with its two curved ends, will give you speed and maneuverability. If you plan to travel long-distances on exploring or fishing trips, you may want a square-stern model, which has a flat back to accommodate an outboard motor. Popular sizes are 13'-18' long. For family use, a 17' or 18' canoe is most practical, as it is roomy enough to carry several people with a reasonable amount of equipment.

Most canoes used today on lakes or easy rivers are made of aluminum. Besides being economical, they are lightweight and resistant to punctures and tears. Moreover, they require little care: you can leave them outdoors in all seasons. Disadvantages? An aluminum craft absorbs heat and cold, and waves make a slapping sound on its sides, but to many people such things are insignificant.

Are you attracted by the traditional and romantic canvas-covered wooden canoe? Remember that it is heavy, it tends to absorb water, and the canvas can tear on rocks and snags. This canoe is preferred by fishermen, however, because it moves silently in the water.

Fiberglass is beautiful, tough and lends itself to a variety of shapes. Like wood, it is silent in the water.

Plastic canoes are fast-moving and highly resistant. A vacuum-formed canoe is a good choice for running rapids. Even if you dash it against a rock, it will snap back into shape.

The price of a new canoe ranges from about $400 for a 13' aluminum model, good for a single paddler, to more than $1,000 for a handcrafted wooden one. Paddles cost about $11 to $40 apiece. Before you decide what kind of canoe to buy, rent one and try it out.

If you do not already know how to paddle, you will have more fun by starting with proper training. The American Canoe Association, a volunteer organization, has an instructor certification program in still water and river paddling. Courses in basic skills are offered through ACA Divisions, canoe liveries and outfitters, and local canoe clubs. The advantage of joining a club is that you are taken out on trips right away by experienced people. Another excellent way to learn paddling is to take free lessons offered by a local Red Cross chapter.

What kind of clothes should you wear? In hot weather, your bathing suit and sneakers are fine, but you will need protection from the sun. Take along slacks or jeans, a shirt with long sleeves, and a hat with a wide brim. Sunglasses, suntan lotion, insect repellent and a first-aid kit are other essentials. For your Personal Flotation Device (required by law for each person in a canoe) you should have a life jacket.

An overnight camping trip calls for complete self-sufficiency. Besides extra clothing, your food supply and equipment for cooking and shelter all go into the canoe. If you take an extended trip (at least four days), you can rent all your gear, including lightweight food, at one of the outfitters located on many popular waterways. As an added convenience, the outfitter will take you to the launching spot and supply a pick-up service.

The fastest-growing version of this sport is whitewater canoeing, so named because of the way the rapids foam and froth. This type of canoeing requires expert maneuvering. You should attempt it only if you are an experienced canoeist. Here are some other safety rules to remember:

- Never run a river that you don't know. Waterfalls and dams are difficult to spot, as height is deceptive. The volume of water below a dam creates a backwater that could trap you.
- Don't boat alone. Travel in a group of at least three boats and keep the one behind you in sight.
- Guard against the danger of cold water. A wet suit, made with foam rubber or plastic, will counteract the effect of chilling spring waters.
- Always wear your life jacket. If you fall overboard, just float with your toes up and let it support you.

You'll find the speed of going downstream in white water exhilarating once you are confident that you can meet the challenge and maintain control of your craft.

Dutch Elm Disease—What To Do About It

By JOHN E. SPARKS
County Extension Agent for Agriculture

If your American elm tree is dying it is probably dying because of dutch elm disease. Dutch elm disease is a tree disease also known as vascular wilt. It is a highly fatal and transmissible disease attacking American and other elm species. The fungus plugs the water-conducting vessels of the tree causing the tree to wilt.

Dutch elm disease spreads by elm bark beetles carrying disease spores from an infected elm tree after pupation. The beetle feeds on a healthy elm tree and the spores of Dutch elm disease are deposited in the feeding scar and infection takes place. Another method of transmission is by underground root grafts. Elms growing within 50 to 50 feet of diseased trees can be infected in this way.

How do you recognize dutch elm disease? Visual symptoms first show up on the leaves. These symptoms range from dwarfing of the leaves to wilting, yellowing (flagging), and premature defoliation. Another symptom is the brown or blackish flecks or streaks in the sapwood. They may occur as a series of dots or a brown ring.

Five steps to consider in reducing loss to dutch elm disease:

1. Remove all sources of dead and severely dying elm trees.
2. Control elm bark beetle.
3. Eliminate infected roots from grafting on to healthy roots. (Trench or fix a barrier between trees.)
4. Use an appropriate fungicide such as Correx.
5. Don't use infected elm tree for firewood. (Good habitat for elm beetles to overwinter.)

To apply the fungicide Correx you will need to purchase an Elm treater.

(An apparatus used to inject fungicide into the tree.)

Elm trees that are isolated from diseased trees could wait until 5 percent of the tree is showing infection, then prune down to 10 feet below infected area and use the Correx treatment.

Lt. Col. Sword To Command Pikeville State Police Post

State Police Commissioner Kenneth E. Brandenburg yesterday announced the appointment of a new director of Field Operations for the Kentucky State Police.

The new man, who will oversee KSP operations at all 16 of Kentucky's state police posts, is Lt. Col. William O. Bradley, a native of Beattyville and career state police officer since 1953. For the past year, Bradley has been serving as a major and deputy to Lt. Col. Douglas L. Sword whom he now replaces.

Sword, in turn, has been named to take command of the state police post at Pikeville.

Brandenburgh said that the change was being made to honor a request by Sword that he be permitted "to move back into a field police command."

The commissioner said that he had agreed to Sword's request, "only with the greatest reluctance because his long experience as a police officer and commander in the field has been invaluable to us here, but I also could understand his desire to get back to doing what he always liked most."

Sword, 48, first became a state policeman in 1953 and had served continuously "in the field", first as a trooper and then as post commander at Pikeville, Hazard, Morehead and Ashland, before coming to Frankfort slightly more than two years ago.

The Pikeville post, which Sword now will command for the second time in his career and at which he also once worked as a radio operator before becoming a trooper, is located in especially familiar territory for Sword, who, Brandenburgh noted, also happens to be a Pike county native.

Capt. Don Powers, the last post commander at Pikeville, is being reassigned to Frankfort where he will take over command of the KSP Supply Unit from Capt. William O. Newman who retired from the KSP on July 31.

Bradley, 52, was described by Brandenburgh "as an outstanding choice to take over the post of director of state police field operations, for he brings to that job the same sort of background that proved so beneficial while Lt. Col. Sword was serving in that capacity."

A trooper for 10 years, Bradley then went on to become an assistant post commander at London and, later post commander at Ashland, Dry Ridge and Richmond before transferring to Frankfort in 1978 to become Sword's deputy.

Miss Carter and Mr. Smith plan to be united in marriage August 31 at 7 p.m. The ceremony will be solemnized at the Irene Cole Memorial Baptist Church in Prestonsburg with the Rev. Dean L. Pack officiating.

The gracious custom of an open church wedding will be observed. A reception in honor of Gini and Bobby will be held immediately after the ceremony in the church annex.

Children May Be Eligible for SSI

Blind or disabled children can qualify for supplemental security income (SSI) payments, no matter how young they are, according to Jim Kelly, social security director for the Big Sandy area.

SSI is a federal program that makes monthly cash payments to aged, disabled, or blind people who do not own much in the way of property or other assets and who do not have much income.

To be considered disabled for SSI, a person must have a physical or mental impairment which has lasted, or is expected to last 12 months or more or which will result in death. For a person 18 or over, the condition must prevent him or her from engaging in substantial gainful work. For a child under 18, the impairment must be comparable in severity to one that would prevent an adult from engaging in substantial gainful work.

Blindness is defined as central visual acuity of 20-200 or less in the better eye with the use of a corrective lens or reduction of the visual field to 20 degrees or less.

Anyone who knows of a disabled or blind child who may qualify for SSI checks should suggest that the person responsible for the child get in touch with the Prestonsburg social security office. The people there will explain the SSI program and help complete an application.

The Prestonsburg social security office is located on U.S. 23 near the Auxier entrance to Jenny Wiley State Park.

Kelly said Floyd countians should call 886-8525 for more information.

Interior Specialists Report
Silt Ponds Not Flooding Cause

A team of specialists from the Department of the Interior's office of surface mining has determined that silt structures from strip mining operations did not contribute to the recent flash flood in Pike county.

David C. Short, regional director for OSM's Region II, based in Knoxville, Tenn., said that the team found only four silt structures out of 200 had been breached. In three of those cases, the team reported, the excess water from the silt ponds was caught by rock dams or other structures further down the slope and so did not contribute to the flooding. The fourth was holding very little water and released it gradually.

Other sedimentation ponds were 50 to 60 per cent filled with silt, indicating they were functioning as designed, Short added. OSM is presently enjoined from enforcing regulatory design and maintenance standards on sediment structures. Properly constructed and cleaned sediment ponds could have alleviated some flooding problems in the mined areas; however, OSM does not believe any approved sediment structure would have prevented or contributed to the flood.

The OSM team that visited the area included engineers, hydrologists and inspection personnel from Region II headquarters in Knoxville and OSM's Eastern Kentucky district office.

Right To Work Bill Gathers Supporters

Reed Larson, president of the National Right to Work Committee sent letters recently to 40 U.S. Congressmen commending them for their commitment to co-sponsor a bill to remove compulsory unionism authorizations from federal labor law.

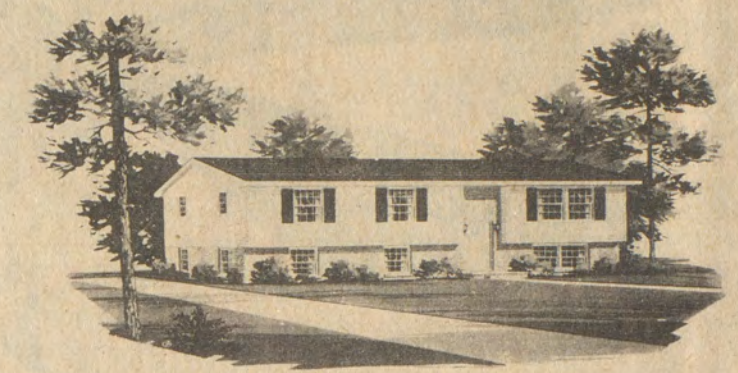

"Thank you for joining in this effort to guarantee freedom of choice to every American worker," said Larson. "This Congress has not reached the halfway mark and already we have more sponsors of Right to Work bills than ever before."

Introduced on June 28 by Oklahoma Congressman Mickey Edwards, the bill is the strongest Right to Work initiative ever to hit Capitol Hill. It carries with it the support of a sizable coalition of legislators from both sides of the aisle opposed to forced unionism.

If passed, the bill will outlaw nationwide job discrimination of any sort based on membership or non-membership in a labor organization. Its stated purpose is "to preserve and protect the free choice of individual employees to form, join or assist labor organizations, or to refrain from such activities."

The Office of Federal Contract Compliance Programs seeks to assure equal employment opportunity regardless of race, color, sex, religion, national origin, handicap or veteran's status in federally involved contract work.

Jenny Wiley Summer Theatre To End 15th Season This Week

The Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre will bring its 15th anniversary season to a close this week with the final performance of the musical revue, "Starting Here, Starting Now," and the Broadway musical hit, "Pippin."

Although bad weather has prevented heavy attendance most of the season, attendance for the last two weeks has been good, according to the theatre's general manager, Bill Campbell.

"It rained for eight weeks in a row there for a while," Campbell said. "When the weather finally broke, attendance started picking up." The first Saturday that "Pippin" was presented, the theatre was completely filled.

Despite the increase in attendance, the theatre is still in need of financial help. With this season's four productions costing around $130,000 to produce, Jenny Wiley is far from meeting its budget.

Last Monday's Miss Jenny Wiley Beauty Pageant, the proceeds of which went to the theatre, helped defray some of the season's production costs. Nevertheless, donations are being sought. Anyone interested in making a donation to the theatre should call 886-9274 or write Box 22, Prestonsburg.

Another way in which people can help the theatre is simply come out and see the shows this week.

"If we ended the season with good attendance, it would really help us," Campbell said, "If nothing else, people should just come out and see what the theatre looks like before the season is over."

Audiences who have attended "Pippin" have done more than just marvel at the theatre, however. Comment cards handed out to the audience for each performance have been returned containing nothing but compliments for the show. Most of the cards praise the excellent cast, one even saying the show was better than offerings on Broadway.

"Pippin" is a musical comedy that is loosely based on the life of the little-known son of the emperor Charlemagne. The show follows Pippin as he searches for complete fulfillment in his life. Along the way he tries war, murder and domesticity.

Pippin is aided in his search by a character known simply as "The Leading Player," a mysterious gentleman whose life's work seems to be the creation of magic. The 18 other cast members constantly shift from role to role in order to represent each step of Pippin's search. The show is highlighted by some dazzling technical and lighting effects and several lively musical numbers which are accompanied by the theatre's 12-piece orchestra.

"Pippin" will be presented on Wednesday, Thursday, Saturday and Sunday evenings at 8:30. The theatre's Friday evening production of "Starting Here, Starting Now," is a much more intimate show than "Pippin" having a three-member cast, which performs, accompanied by a three-piece combo.

"Starting Here, Starting Now" presents the works of the songwriting team of David Shire and Richard Maltby, Jr., whose songs have been recorded by such artists as Barbara Streisand, Roberta Flack and Robert Goulet. The cast presents an evening of song and dance that includes songs that range from comedy numbers to love songs.

Certain for the final performance of "Starting Here, Starting Now" is 8:30 on Friday evening.

According to Campbell, attendance for "Starting Here, Starting Now," has not been as good as he had expected, even though it has been presented every Friday this summer. He hopes that a lot of people come out and "discover" the show this weekend.

The reason is obvious, he said: "We want Jenny Wiley to go out in a blaze of glory this season."

Exceptional Child Workshop Scheduled

The Bureau of Education for Exceptional Children will conduct a workshop on the use of the Learning Accomplishment Profile Aug. 2-3 at the Hyatt Regency, Lexington.

The profile is a screening tool which helps a teacher assess a young child's strengths and weaknesses. Skills evaluated through the profile include how well a child uses both large muscles (climbing, balancing, jumping rope) and small ones (coloring, stringing beads and similar actions). Also included are appraisals of the way the child thinks through a problem and his/her language skills.

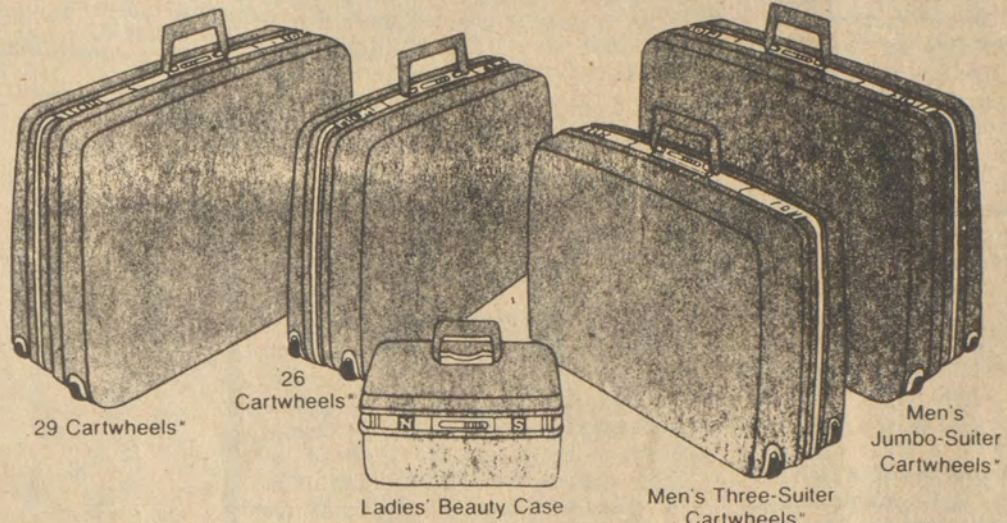

Approximately 100 supervisors and kindergarten teachers are expected to attend the workshop. The Bureau of Education for Exceptional Children is part of the Kentucky Department of Education.

Low Interest Loan Program Founded for E. Kentucky Housing

Gov. Julian Carroll has announced the establishment of a low-interest loan program to aid in the development of land for housing in Eastern Kentucky. He said loans will be available through the Kentucky Appalachian Housing Program, which is administered by the Kentucky Housing Corp. under the direction of the Development Cabinet. This month the Appalachian Regional Commission, a federal-state agency, approved a grant of $500,000 to set up the loan program.

Development Secretary William Short

said the Appalachian land development loan program is a milestone in housing assistance because private developers will be recruited to work with government agencies in housing development. "The loan program represents another step in finding incentives to spur low- and moderate-income housing development in Eastern Kentucky," said Ralph Coldiron, executive director of community and regional development in the Development Cabinet.

Eligible developers will receive the loans at 5.5 percent interest for a maximum period of two years. Loans may be used for housing improvements such as water lines and water supply installations, sewer lines and sewage disposal installations, gas and electric lines and installations, roads, curbs, gutters, recreation areas and sidewalks. The maximum amount for a loan will be based on the value of the property to be developed.

Proposed projects must contain between 15 and 50 dwelling units to qualify for the program. The Kentucky Housing Corp. will consider loans for larger developments in areas where there has been rapid growth as a result of coal production.

New developments of single-family units will be the principal housing type considered for the loans. Existing developments may receive loans for improvements only if they are substantially extended or enlarged.

Housing developers interested in obtaining a loan should call the office of community and regional development, telephone (502) 564-7670 or the Kentucky Housing Corp., telephone (502) 564-7630.

Aid to Victims Of Flood Seen

Gov. Julian Carroll last Friday announced Kentucky is receiving $1 million from the U.S. Department for Housing and Urban Development (HUD) to help handicapped, elderly and low-income victims of the December, 1978 flood.

The money comes from the HUD secretary's fund for disaster rehabilitation. The funds provides not only for repair of damages to homes but total construction needed to bring a structure up to construction standards.

Where feasible, the work will include elevating a home above flood levels and in some instances relocation outside the flood-prone area.

For a local government to be eligible for the program there must be participation in the flood insurance program.

Local governments participating in the rehabilitation grant are Oldham, Henry, Woodford, Wolfe, Breathitt, Morgan, Jessamine, Mercer, Lee, Powell, Clark, Lincoln, Franklin, Magoffin, Lawrence, Carter, Hardin, Anderson, Nelson, Bourbon, Rowan, Martin and Larue counties and the cities of Lebanon Junction, Salt Lick, Gratz, Prestonsville, Monterey and Carrollton.

The program will get under way today (Wednesday), with flood victims filing applications which will be processed by the local governments. The state Department for Local Government will administer the program once applications are approved.

Deadline for filing applications will be Sept. 30.

Kentucky's Geological Gem

By MAC LACY
Kentucky's Sky Ridge arches 30 feet above the forest floor, spanning 90 feet across the landscape spread beneath it. It is the product of forces of nature so subtle that their work was millions of years in the making, so powerful that they carved the towering arch from solid stone. And yet the formation is not alone. There are over 40 others, of various shapes and sizes, in the region, each an ancient resident in one of Kentucky's most spectacular natural preserves, the Red River Gorge Geological Area.

Contained within the Stanton district of the Daniel Boone National Forest, the geological area covers 26,000 acres near Slade, Ky. It rests in portions of Powell, Menifee and Wolfe counties. For more than 70 million years, its surfaces have been battered by wind and water, leaving today a primitive piece of land unique in its formations and fascinating in its abundance of plant and animal life.

The Gorge's terrain is characterized by dense, fern-laden forests, steep rock faces and deep valleys. Its natural arches are the result of the wearing away of softer sandstone beneath a stratum of material known as the Rockcastle conglomerate. These and other phenomena such as balanced rocks, caves and towering pinnacles treat the visitor to one of the most diverse geological landscapes found anywhere in the United States.

A favorite with hikers, the preserve's trail system includes 24 trails ranging from several hundred yards to over eight miles in length, leading to scenic formations such as Sky Ridge, Chimney Top Rock, Whistling Arch and Angel Windows. Four recreation areas are maintained by the National Forest Service at Koomer Ridge, Sky Bridge, Rock Bridge and Gray's Arch. All are accessible by trail, but only Koomer Ridge provides units for trailers or tents. Campers are accommodated on a first-come, first-served basis from Memorial Day to Labor Day. Facilities include picnic tables, fire grills, drinking water and pit toilets.

The flora and fauna found in the Gorge are remarkably diverse. There are more than 500 species of vascular plants which thrive here due to the varying topography and soil content. Several types of magnolias, cedars and nut trees flourish, as do many of the popular "backwoods" flora—sassafras, blueberry, blackberry, wahoo and persimmon. Animal life includes wild turkey, more than a dozen kinds of snakes, an equal number of types of frogs and salamanders and numerous fish.

Outdoor activity in the area is by no means limited to hiking. Accomplished canoeists and rafters enjoy floating the upper Red River, a Class III stream. The countless rock faces provide excellent challenges for rock climbing and rappelling, and certain points have proven prime lift-off areas for hang gliding.

More information about hiking, canoeing and similar activities may be obtained by contacting the District Ranger, U.S. Forest Service, Stanton, KY 40380, phone (606) 663-2852.

State Police Test Cars For Economy

State police have begun road testing six different 1979 model Ford, Chrysler and General Motors vehicles as the first step toward adoption next year of a new, more fuel-efficient car for general patrol use.

According to State Police Commissioner Kenneth E. Brandenburg, motorists will begin seeing the new vehicles immediately in KSP post areas around Mayfield, Bowling Green, Dry Ridge, Pikeville and Frankfort.

Their performance in terms of fuel economy, maneuverability, maintenance costs, safety and driver comfort will be evaluated under actual patrol conditions over the next six weeks.

The cars being tested are the Ford LTD and Ford Fairmont, Dodge St. Regis, Plymouth Volare, and the Chevrolet Impala and Malibu.

Selection of the five posts participating in the testing program was based on a need to see how the new vehicles will perform under widely different terrain, patrol and road conditions.

Twelve troopers of various ages, driving experience and physical size have been selected at each post to drive the vehicles and issue daily reports rating their various performance characteristics on a scale ranging from excellent to unacceptable.

Brandenburg said that each vehicle will be assigned two troopers, "so that they can drive 16 hours a day, for a minimum of 80 hours per week."

"In addition, we also have established a weekly rotation schedule that will allow each of the 12 officers to spend at least one week driving and evaluating all of the six vehicles," he said.
