

David Residents Debate Charter

At a stormy public meeting in David last week, townspeople debated the consequences of a proposed expansion of coal-mining in the area, and the merits of incorporation as a strategy to contain it.

The meeting last Tuesday, which was the second on the subject in the past three weeks, followed the disclosure by Branham and Baker Coal Company late last month that the company intends to file for permits for a new deep mine and extensive stripmining there.

The company is said to be planning a deep mine near the existing ballpark, mountaintop removal along the ridges skirting the town on both sides, one or more silt dams, and a hollow-fill in the area of the old reservoir.

Opposition to the project has focussed on increased local truck traffic, already said by some to be a menace to safety, the risk of a silt-dam breach, and environmental damage.

Officers of the David Community Development Corporation (DCDC) are known to be concerned about the possible adverse effect of the expanded mining on the sale of houses being constructed by DCDC on KY 404 and in Schoolhouse Hollow. One plan, which Branham and Baker is said to be considering, would situate a silt dam within a quarter-mile of the Schoolhouse Hollow subdivision. The development operation which owns much of the town's heavily-mortgaged property, is dependent on the sale of homes in the two subdivisions to pay off much of its own indebtedness.

Incorporation as a city, an idea that has waxed and waned several times in recent years, has surfaced again among opponents of the mining expansion as offering a possibility of controlling the expansion through zoning ordinances.

By no means all of David residents appear opposed to the mining expansion, however, and still fewer favor incorporation. "All it would mean," said Bennie Shepherd this week, "is more taxes, without doing any good."

As Vertis Pitts sees it, there is no point in trying to halt the inevitable. Of Branham and Baker, he said this week, "They've got the coal; they're going to mine it."

Highlands Loses Bid To Expand

$7 Million Project Deferred by Action Of Planning Council

"On the one hand, they praise us as a textbook example of what they are trying to achieve; but, on the other hand, they won't let us complete the job. Sometimes we get kind of frustrated."

That was the sentiment of Russell Dean, director of development and public relations at Highlands Regional Medical Center (HRMC), when state health planners voted last week to defer the hospital's application for approval of its $7 million expansion project.

The HRMC proposal, for an expansion to accommodate 47 more acute care beds and additional ancillary services, was turned down by the Eastern Kentucky Health Systems Agency (EKHSA) in July, as being out of conformity with the existing state health plan.

Backers of the proposal decided, however, to press their case last week before the State Comprehensive Health Planning Council, in the hope that the state planning agency would so revise its plan as to put the HRMC proposal in conformity.

The state agency, at its meeting last

Lawson Is Shot In Search Try

Prestonsburg Policeman Keith Lawson was shot and seriously wounded early Tuesday night as he, Prestonsburg Police Chief Dick Campbell and officers Murdock and Wright attempted to serve a search warrant at the West Prestonsburg residence of Robert Craft, Sr.

Lawson, 32, was reportedly shot once in the back with a .38-caliber handgun as he and the other officers entered the Craft home. Craft and a son, Eddie, later surrendered after State Police arrived on the scene.

In addition to Craft and his son, a number of other persons, mostly relatives of Craft, who were present at the scene of the shooting were taken to the Floyd county courthouse for questioning. State Police Detective Keith Scott said Tuesday night the elder Craft would be lodged at the county jail on a charge of assault in the first degree. Also taking part in the investigation are Commonwealth Attorney James R. Allen, State Police Detectives Gary Rose and Danny Stumbo and other state police officers.

Lawson was feared in critical condition Tuesday night suffering apparent spinal and other internal injuries.

This Town...That World

There is a flower which some call Farewell to Summer. Wonder if it isn't ready to bloom?

We may be jumping both the gun and the thermometer, but it requires no taxing of the imagination to hear, as the shadows troop in late of an afternoon, and if you can get far enough from the roar of traffic, unmistakable sounds of autumn. The incessant sound of a myriad insects has been around all summer, but there are new notes now. The katydid and the cicada (which I know as a jar-fly) are teaming up for daily evening performances. And it's all for free.

HOME IS THE HUNTED

Six years ago, Charlie the Basset risked life and limb in an encounter which he lost to a German Shepherd. He left the field of battle, the worse for wear, and disappeared over the river bank here.

That was the last his owners, Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Damron, saw of the dog. Continued search was fruitless. Charlie was given up as dead.

But two weeks ago, as he drove down Town Branch, across the Big Sandy from here, Mr. Damron saw a basset that

Fire Threat Closes Streets

Although little damage resulted when an electric line in a wall of Wells-Hamilton Sporting Goods overheated late Tuesday morning, the potential for a serious blaze downtown caused the Prestonsburg Fire Department to block the Court Street section to traffic for about two hours.

Court Street Mud Sources Debated

One of the steep, and severely eroded, bike trails above Prestonsburg, said by some to have been the real source of tons of mud and sand which washed down onto Court Street after heavy rain last week.

"We don't have any problem with the bike riders, but we don't like to be blamed for the mud," Diane Turner said this week, referring to the tons of the stuff that washed down into Court Street after recent heavy rains.

Mrs. Turner and her husband, Neil, are building a house at the crest of Court Street, which was cited by City Manager Jack Clark Hyden last week as a major cause of the mud flow that clogged city drains and took a work crew hours to clear away.

The real source of the mud, Mrs. Turner said, is the dirt-bike trails that criss-cross the hilltop immediately above the Turner property, and the access road leading to the trail area. Both the road and trails, she said, were on city property.

Hyden admitted this week that he had based his judgment on first appearances, and on his past experience of erosion from hillside construction sites. "But the bikes were up there long before the house," he added, "and we have never had a problem like this before."

Hyden said that he would investigate the alleged erosion from the bike trails. However, without an engineering study, he said, he could not say whether the trails or access road were the responsibility of the city or not.

Juveniles Arrested In Martin Lootings

State Police Detective Danny Stumbo last Tuesday arrested three juveniles in the burglarizing of two Martin business places from which more than $7,000 worth of merchandise was taken earlier in the month. He recovered almost all the stolen items.

A juvenile hearing was held last Wednesday and two of the accused youths were remanded to the juvenile center here for a full hearing today (Wednesday). Although no order has been entered in the case of the third, Judge Stumbo held that an out-of-court confession by a juvenile is not admissible. If the order to that effect is entered, County Attorney Arnold Turner indicated that he will appeal the ruling.

The arrests followed State Police investigation of a series of breaks at Martin during which two business places were entered three times within a period of two weeks. Guns and knives valued at $1736 were taken August 9 from the Jewel Hardware Company and on successive nights, Aug. 18 and 19, the haul from the Western Auto Store three was guns, knives, stereos, tapes and speakers valued at $5,500.

County Fair To Open Next Week

The fair will begin Wednesday, Sept. 5, and continue through the following Saturday.

All exhibits, except livestock, poultry and flowers, must be listed with department chairmen of the fair between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m., Wednesday. Flowers are to be entered between 9 a.m. and 12 noon Friday, and livestock and poultry must be entered by 11 a.m. Saturday. All exhibits must remain at the fair until 2 p.m. Saturday, and those removed before that time will forfeit all prizes earned by the exhibitor.

Kids' Day will be on Friday till 3 p.m., with two bicycles to be awarded. Tickets to Kids' Day will be distributed by the county superintendent's office.

CORRECTION

The Times report of a liquor raid last week on the Auxier road stated that a quantity of beer was confiscated from the home of William R. Wells, Jr. The beer was, in fact, recovered from an abandoned vehicle. The Times regrets this reporting error.

Gene So Is Named New Head Of Reclamation Office Here

Gene So, 33, has been named by Bureau of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement Commissioner Gene Brandenburg as regional engineer for this area. So took over Monday as head of the troubled stripmine reclamation office here.

The Indonesian-born engineer succeeds Gene Stewart, who resigned from the position recently to enter private industry.

Stewart and Nevard Wells, chief reclamation inspector here, had been accused earlier this year of irregularities in their dealings with local mine operators and subsequently cleared of the charges, only to have the investigation of their conduct reopened two weeks ago at the direction of C. Frank Harscher III, Secretary of the Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection (DNREP).

Without commenting directly on the charges leveled at Stewart and Wells, So said this week that "things will definitely change" at the Prestonsburg reclamation office. There will be "more vigorous, more conscientious, and fairer enforcement than under the previous administration," he said.

An immigrant from East Java, So settled in Kentucky in 1966, graduating from the University of Kentucky with an engineering degree in 1972. After several years with a Lexington firm of consulting engineers, and another in private practice in Pikeville, So joined the Pikeville DNREP office in April last year, where he remains acting regional engineer.

Describing the Pikeville office under his administration as "probably the toughest in the state," So admitted that he was proud of its reputation. "I strongly dislike any suggestion of a 'sweetheart' relationship between the coal industry and us," he said.

"In an area like this you can hardly help having friends in the coal industry," So said, "but the policy I have established for inspectors in this department is that, even in their private lives, they should be careful. They should not give even the appearance of impropriety."

"As for receiving gifts from mine operators" within their inspection area,

CONCERNING THE CONSTRUCTION OF A SANDSTONE QUARRY TO BE LOCATED NEAR MARTIN, KY.

The Grayson Coal and Stone Company, Inc. has applied to the Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection for a permit to construct a sandstone quarry to be located on New Ky 80, 1.5 miles north of Martin, Kentucky.

The application proposes the construction of facilities for receiving, crushing, screening, conveying, and stockpiling sandstone. Air pollution control measures proposed by the application include the use of enclosures and wet suppression using high pressure fogging nozzles.

This proposed construction is subject to the Kentucky Air Pollution Control Regulations for New Source Review of Fugitive Dust Operations. The use of control technology proposed is considered sufficient to assure that the construction will not result in a violation of the applicable emission or air quality standards. Therefore, a preliminary determination has been made to grant the permit to construct.

Copies of the report of this determination are available for public inspection during normal business hours at the following locations:
Division of Air Pollution Control, Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection, West Frankfort Office Complex, 1050 U.S. 127 By-Pass South, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601, and Division of Air Pollution Control, Hazard Regional Office, 825 High Street, 3rd Floor, Hazard, Kentucky 41101, and County Clerk's Office, Floyd County Courthouse, Prestonsburg, Kentucky 41653.

Musicians Ready for Rock Fest

When the mists rise in the Kentucky hills and soften peaks to a faint blue-violet, fiddlers, banjo pickers and guitar players gather on front porches in the Highlands to play their music.

No one calls it "practice" but they are tuning up for the 14th annual Kentucky Highlands Folk Festival at Jenny Wiley State Park Amphitheatre Sept. 7-9. It's then the resort park comes alive with the sounds and sights of Highland culture.

Mrs. Edith James, of Prestonsburg, began the folk festival during the Depression years, and today's version captures both the songs of poverty of that era and newer ballads touting coal mining and other regional industry. Ancient songs that came across the Atlantic with early settlers are also performed.

"Our aim is to preserve and encourage the continued use of traditional expressions of our people," said Kathryn S. Frazier, program director.

Friday and Saturday evenings the festival will be devoted to music and dance of Appalachia. Saturday is for arts and crafts exhibits, poetry reading, tale telling, more dancing, musical workshops and a general sharing of Appalachia.

There will be demonstrations of pottery making, woodcarving, knitting and crocheting, broom making, ceramics, painting, leatherwork, quilt making and an old-fashioned mill that grinds fresh corn meal for sale.

Artists, craftspeople and anyone who wants to be a part of the festival should contact Judith Carr, Flat Gap, Ky. 41219, phone 265-3245.

Sunday afternoon the Highlands gathering will feature religious music. Mountain people will sing solo or blend their voices on the hymns and songs from earliest forms of worship all the way through to music of today.

"We feel that the culture of this area is too precious to be allowed to fall into disuse," Frazier said. "We think the innate honesty of expression of hill people is beautiful. It was established by our ancestors who had to possess a lot of courage and patience to cope with the wilderness. When the going was rough, they sang a song or made up one. When work was done for the day, they could make music before calling it a day, feeling they had earned their rest. The homemade music and handmade crafts of that day are even more lovely today, and we want to preserve as much of it as we can.

"And if you have a song to sing, a banjo to pick or a story to tell, come be with us," Mrs. Frazier added. "Together we will share the lore and beauty of the southern mountains."

Ky. Leads Job Gains In 8 S.E. States

A recent survey of eight southeastern states by the U.S. Department of Labor shows Kentucky's employment situation is improving fastest.

In February 1979 Kentucky added 22,500 jobs, compared to 21,500 in Florida. No other state in the survey came close to Kentucky's figure during the one-month period. Mississippi was last with only 1,900 new jobs in February.

The survey, which was published in Florida Trend magazine, also showed Kentucky ranked second among the eight states in the number of new jobs in the one-year period beginning March 1978.

Kentucky added 96,300 jobs during that period, behind Florida with 146,700 additional jobs. Mississippi was last with 37,800 for the year.

State Commerce Commissioner Carroll Knically attributes the improving job market in Kentucky to the business and labor climate.

"I feel the thrust is evident of a cumulative effort by the business and labor forces here," Knically said. "It shows a fine initiative in industrial development, not only by the Commerce Department, but by the Kentucky Industrial Development Council."

In another survey by the Conference of State Manufacturers Association (COSMA), Kentucky was ranked 12th among the 48 contiguous states in the number of manufacturing jobs gained from 1968 to 1978, with 56,000 additional jobs during those 10 years.

"Kentucky's current economic stability and growth is a result of a statewide developmental plan instigated by Gov. Carroll in his early months in office," Commissioner Knically said.

Jewelry Firm Claims To Be State's Largest

C & H Rauch, has announced that with the opening of its Mt. Sterling store, in the Montgomery Square Plaza there the firm is now the No. 1 jewelry chain in the state. The Mt. Sterling store brings the firm's total of Kentucky locations to 10. There are three stores in Lexington and stores located in Pikeville, Morehead, Hazard, Somerset, Richmond, Frankfort and now Mt. Sterling.

Expansion plans for 1980 include 10 additional locations in Kentucky including three in Louisville. Other states under consideration for possible locations are Indiana, Ohio and West Virginia.

Prayer in Schools Has Legal Support

Despite a 1962 Supreme Court ruling that voluntary prayers in public-school classrooms were unconstitutional, three out of four Americans still believe prayers belong in the schools, and there is substantial legal opinion that agrees with them.

Harvard Law Dean Erwin Griswold has said: "We have a spiritual and cultural tradition of which we ought not to be deprived by judges carrying into effect...absolutist notions not expressed in the Constitution itself and surely never contemplated by those who put the constitutional provisions into effect. To say that they require that all trace of religion be kept out of any sort of public activity is sheer invention."

Increasingly, pressure is being mounted in the Congress to restore voluntary prayers to the classroom. One amendment, introduced by Sen. Jesse

Helms (R., N.C.) has already cleared the Senate by a 51-40 vote; it is currently "bottled" in a House committee and may not come to the floor.

But an article in the September Reader's Digest—"Should Prayer Be Restored to Our Public Schools?"—indicates that the public, by a healthy majority, wants the right to pray restored, and a subsequent bill may clear the way for this.

According to the article, written by Eugene H. Methvin, "the Constitution provides two clear ways to limit the Supreme Court's role in the interpretation of our constitutional rights. 'Article III empowers Congress to make "exceptions and regulations" to the Court's appellate jurisdiction, while the Fourteenth Amendment provides: "The Congress shall have power to enforce, by appropriate legislation," the rights the amendment creates. "So," Methvin writes, "if the legislators disapprove of the Court's rulings, presumably they can pass statutes—by a simple majority—substituting their own rules."

"Regardless of our views on voluntary classroom religious exercises," he continues, "all Americans...have cause for alarm when a group of officials in Washington claim the right to dictate radical changes in our lives without consulting us. By debating and deciding such matters locally, we actually strengthen our democratic traditions of tolerance and liberty."

Muhammad Ali Guest On Dick Cavett Show

Three-time heavyweight boxing champion Muhammad Ali is Dick Cavett's guest in a special re-broadcast of "The Dick Cavett Show," airing Monday and Tuesday, September 3 and 4 at 7:30 p.m. (ET), on KET.

The two-part program shows Cavett sparring verbally with Ali aboard the Riverboat Natchez in New Orleans—an entertaining encounter which originally aired on KET last February.

The Ali interview kicks off two weeks of appearances by sports figures on "The Dick Cavett Show." Upcoming guests include gymnast Kurt Thomas (Wednesday, September 5), basketball stars Julius Erving and Pete Maravich (Thursday, September 6), a panel of sports writers (Saturday, September 8; Monday, September 10; and Tuesday, September 11), and a panel of baseball greats (Wednesday, September 12; Thursday, September 13; and Saturday, September 15). Pitts acknowledged that the new mining is going to damage the environment. He thinks that fears of a silt-dam breach are justified, that the coal truck traffic is already dangerous, and that the proposed mining expansion "is not going to help the sale of houses."

"But I like to see industry grow," Pitts added, "and I think they can lessen the damage, and maybe hold down the truck speed."

"The coal company's not that bad," said Arlen Shepherd. "I don't think they're going to run over people all that much. In any case, it's hard to stop them. I think the landowners and the company had better try to get along together."

"The idea of incorporation," explained Rev. William Thomas, who is sympathetic to the proposal, "is to try to make the coal operators more responsible to the town." Branham and Baker, he said, had declined invitations to attend public meetings, apparently because "they are not going to fool" with local townspeople.

"But they are going to have to fool with us," Thomas asserted. "As surface owners, we have some rights." No spokesman for Branham and Baker was available for comment this week.

One local coal company that has been represented at the public meetings is Middle States Coal Co., which is in the process of constructing a coal-washing facility at David. Middle States spokesman Bill Hotman denied some reports that his firm's expansion would increase truck traffic through the town.

"There will be no increase in our production," Hotman said this week, adding that the new facility would enable the company to remove stockpiled coal from the vicinity of KY 404, that discharge from the plant would be treated and solid waste hauled away, and that it would be an enclosed, "good looking" facility.

"What some people here fear," said David resident Tony Bentley, "is the possibility of extensive mining without any consideration for the town." Bentley conceded, however, that Branham and Baker has taken a cooperative attitude in the past. "I like to think," he added, "that that attitude will continue."

David School's Closing Sought By Fire Marshal

The state fire marshal's office has gone to court in an effort to close the David School until it is brought in line with fire and safety code regulations.

The school, which is privately operated for the education and training of male youths who have dropped out of the regular school process, was scheduled to reopen for the 1979-'80 term, early next month. Its reopening on schedule now appears to be doubtful.

The court action, filed last Friday by the state fire marshal's office, reviews the school problems:

1. On Oct. 27, 1978 an inspection of the premises by Deputy Fire Marshal Howard Hughes revealed alleged violations of two sections of the statutes and certain provisions of the Life Safety Code.

2. A reinspection was made Dec. 1, and the required corrections had not been made.

3. Daniel J. Greene, director of the school, and the school last Feb. 5 entered into an agreed order, waiving any right to a hearing and agreeing to arrange to correct admitted deficiencies, or to abandon the facility on Aug. 1 until the corrections were made.

The agreed order provided that the school would have a structural engineer certify that the school building is structurally sound; that the second floor would not be used at night; that wiring be checked and brought into compliance with the National Electrical Code; that the kitchen be separate from the remainder of the building; that all combustible materials be removed from the basement and all waste materials from the shop area and outside the building be removed.

But the suit alleges the terms of the agreement have not been kept, presenting "such hazard to human life and limb that public safety imperatively requires emergency action."

State Fire Marshal Bob Estep asked the court for a temporary restraining order and a permanent injunction ordering the school closed to the public for all purposes except the correction of the violations cited, unless the listed deficiencies are corrected.

looked familiar. He went back later for closer inspection, compared the dog with photos of the long-lost Charlie. When he asked who owned the dog, he was told, "Nobody. He just wandered in here, years ago. Been sleeping under a trailer." He was welcome to the dog.

Mrs. Damron said this week that she can't prove this skin-and-bones specimen that they now have is their lost dog, but his beelin return to Charlie's favorite place of repose—a certain couch—makes it pretty certain.

Wanderer, derelict, or really Charlie? No sweat. All concerned are happy about the conclusion to the matter.

MERTON RIDES AGAIN

The letter addressed to "Ink" Allen arrived last week, and it was instantly recognized as coming from Bob Harlowe, writing from Blue Springs, Missouri. Apparently led by some sentence to realize that I, too, was fed up to here with bureaucracy, he sent me the following which dealt with the War Production Board, way back during WWII:

WAR PRODUCTION BOARD
(Hereafter referred to as W.P.B.)
As the head of the division of provision for revision

Was a man of prompt decision, Merton Quirk.

Ph. D. in calisthenics, PDQ in pathogenics, He had just the proper background for the work.

From the pastoral aroma of Aloma, Oklahoma, With a pittance of a salary in hand, His acceptance had been whetted, even aided and abetted,

By emolument that netted some five grand. So with energy ecstatic this fanatic left his attic, and hastened on to Washington, D.C., Where with verve and vim and vigor, he went hunting for the nigger In the woodpile of the W.P.B.

After months of patient process, Merton's spicular probosis Had unearthed a reprehensible hiatus; In reply by Blair and Blair, to the thirteenth questionnaire, In connection with their inventory status;

They had written "Your directive when effective was defective

In its ultimate objective, and what's more,

Neolithic hieroglyphic is, to us, much more specific

Than the drivell you keep dumping at our door."

This sacrilege discovered, Merton fainted, but recovered

Sufficiently to write, "We are convinced That sabotage is camouflaged behind perverted persiflage; Expect me on the twenty second inst." But, first he sent a checker, and then a checker's checker;

Still nothing was discovered as being wrong.

So a checker's checker checker came to check the checker's checker

And the process was laborious and long. Then followed a procession of the follow-up profession,

Through the records of the firm of Blair and Blair;

From breakfast until supper, some new supper-follow-upper

Tore his hair because of Merton's questionnaire.

The file is closed, completed, though our hero, undefeated,

Carries on in some department as before. And victory is in sight, not because of,

but in spite of Merton's mighty effort in the war.

The Victoria Regia water lilies of South America are large and strong enough to bear a small child.

North To Meet South, Labor Day

By JOD NEACE

A bit of Kentucky's past will be relived Labor Day when Union and Confederate troops skirmish at White Hall State Shrine near Richmond. The skirmishers, members of the North-South Skirmish Association, wear uniforms typical of those worn in the War Between the States.

This year's skirmish is the highlight of a weekend that features an outdoor arts and crafts fair and a flea market, both of which open Aug. 31 and run through Sept. 2.

North-South skirmish teams will compete for marksmanship medals throughout the weekend, and then a black powder shoot is scheduled Monday, Sept. 3, open to the public. Live entertainment Saturday night, Sept. 1, will feature the Li'l Kentucky Colonels, world grand champion cloggers.

The 44-room White Hall mansion will be open until 1 a.m., Saturday and Sunday, for candlelight tours. The home of antislavery leader Cassius Marcellus Clay (1810-1903), it was unique in its day for having a central heating system and indoor plumbing.

White Hall is accessible from Highway 1-75 via the Boonesboro-Winchester exit west (exit 95), a few miles south of Lexington.

Information about the skirmish, as well as the arts and crafts fair and the flea market, may be obtained by writing Vicki Smith, White Hall State Shrine, P.O. Box 517, Richmond, Ky. 40475.

Burial will be made in the Hayes cemetery at Hueysville under direction of Hall Brothers Funeral Home.

Martin Man Accused Of Stumbo Stabbing

A warrant charging Doug Sexton, of Pageant Hills, Martin, with first degree assault was issued by the district judge's office Monday morning after Sexton had allegedly stabbed Joe David Stumbo in the stomach. The alleged stabbing took place Sunday, according to Marietta Adams, of Millard, O., who swore out the warrant.

Environment Is Topic Of Governors' Meet

The agenda for the Fourth Annual Governor's Conference on the Environment offers something for everyone this year. The conference, to be held Sept. 19-21, serves as a forum for people from across the state and around the nation to learn more about various environmental concerns, including surface mining, air pollution, flood control, forestry management, water quality and hazardous waste. This year the conference, sponsored by the Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection, will be held in Owensboro at the Executive Inn Rivermont. Registration begins Wednesday afternoon. A reception is scheduled for 7 p.m. The opening assembly will begin Thursday at 9 a.m., followed by morning and afternoon sessions on specific environmental topics. Several interest sessions will continue Friday, and at 12:30 p.m. the Governor's Environmental Awards Luncheon will begin. The luncheon will honor outstanding Kentucky industries, organizations and individuals who have excelled in various environmental categories. The program will cover all areas of environmental concern, with additional emphasis this year on hazardous material. Discussions will include such topics as new directions in solid waste management and alternatives for coal. A panel format will be used during the sessions so participants can more effectively voice their questions and concerns. "We are looking forward to another exceptional conference this year, where environmentally concerned individuals can get together to make plans for a productive, yet conserving, future for Kentucky," said Frank Harscher, secretary of the Natural Resources Department.

New Bill Would Deter Glue Sniffing

A bill draft approved last week would ban state sale of glue, cement or paint with intoxicating properties unless a substance is added which would discourage use as an intoxicant.

Under the proposed legislation, products of this type could not be sold or distributed in Kentucky unless oil of mustard or some equally effective deterrent was added. The additive could not be harmful and would be subject to approval by the commissioner of the state Bureau for Health Services.

The Subcommittee on Drug Abuse approved the bill draft this morning and planned to submit it to the full Health and Welfare Committee this afternoon.

Rep. Dottie Priddy (D-Louisville), subcommittee chairman, said this bill draft and future proposed legislation are results of a series of public hearings on drug abuse held around the state.

Priddy said the last hearing will be in Jefferson County Sept. 20 at 7 p.m. Tentative location for the hearing is the Central Government Center in the Outer Loop.

After the last hearing, the subcommittee will submit a final report and additional bill drafts to the Health and Welfare Committee, she said.

Bill drafts concerning penalties for possession and sale of marijuana were also discussed by the subcommittee today. After several changes were suggested, the bill drafts were resubmitted to a staff member for rewriting. These changes will be incorporated into one bill draft.

The bill draft will propose changing Kentucky law so severity of penalties for possession of marijuana would be tied to the amount: 30 grams or less, confinement in the county jail for not more than 90 days or a fine not more than $250; More than 30 grams but less than 50 pounds of marijuana would carry the penalty of penitentiary confinement for one to five years plus a fine from $1,000 to $5,000; and more than 50 pounds, 10 to 20 years plus a $250,000 fine.

Currently state law levies the same penalty for possessors regardless of amount: confinement in the county jail for not more than 90 days or a fine of not more than $250.

The draft will also propose changes to the Kentucky Revised Statutes section relating to manufacture, sale and possession with intent to sell. "Intent to sell" would be eliminated from this section since possessors of large amounts could receive stiff penalties without prosecution proving intent.

Penalties for manufacture and sale would be increased to penitentiary confinement of one to five years or a fine of $3,000 to $5,000. Currently the penalty is not more than a year in the county jail or a fine not exceeding $500, or both.

The subcommittee asked the draft include a provision requiring those convicted of offenses other than possession to serve at least a third of their sentence.

In addition, the subcommittee asked that the draft make selling drugs to a minor or using a minor in drug trafficking a Class D felony, carrying a penalty of one to five years of a $3,000 to $5,000 fine.

Clean-Up Backed by State Litter Dept.

The Litter Control and Beautification Section of the Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection has announced a stream clean-up and beautification project for the fall. Organizations interested in the preservation and beautification of Kentucky waterways are being asked to take part in the project.

Floyd county areas suggested by Litter Control as targets of the clean-up project are Dewey Dam and Lake, Camp Chatterwaha, and the Big Sandy. The government agency will supply 33-gallon bags to volunteer groups, share in landfill costs, help organize the local community, and offer cash awards to groups recycling the most collected material.

Organizations wishing to take part in the project are asked to notify Walter Anderson, Litter Control Section, 1121 Louisville Rd., Frankfort, Ky. 40601, Phone: (502) 564-6716. Closing date for volunteers is September 7.

Task Force Suggests District Jail System

Following a year-long study of Kentucky's legal system, a special task force today approved several subcommittee recommendations including creation of a district jail system.

Recommendations from the Special Task Force to Study the Commonwealth's Legal System will be sent to the governor and to the Legislative Research Commission for possible action by the 1980 General Assembly. Some recommendations are already in bill form.

The task force was composed of legislators, jailers, representatives of the legal system and the commissioner of corrections. Recommendations were submitted by five task force subcommittees.

The subcommittee on courts suggested: —No new correctional or major legislative changes are necessary since internal improvements can take care of most problems in the 3-year-old court system.

—Additional district judges are needed. Salaries should be upgraded since inflation has diminished the effective salaries by 30 percent. The formula for courthouse rental of district court space should be revised to give greater incentives.

World's Greatest Dad"

I'm so very proud of my father, Dan Goble. As a young boy, he had to be a man.

He has worked hard to raise and educate six children, but he never complained.

He gave us all things he never had, and most of all he gave us "all his love."

My dad has a heart of pure gold, and to me he will always be "The World's Greatest Dad."

Happy Birthday, Dad . . . I love you with all my heart.

Your daughter,
Karla

Named Most Valuable Player

Jamie Martin, six-year-old pitcher for the McDowell Pee Wee team, is shown above receiving Most Valuable Player trophy from his coach, Carl Tuttle. Young Martin, described by his father as "40 pounds soaking wet" was also named most valuable player for his team last year. In two seasons, he and his team have racked up an impressive 14-1 record. Martin, who is in second grade at McDowell, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Martin, of East McDowell.

With New Coach, Grid Program At Betsy Layne Is Extended

The uncertainty surrounding the future of the football program at Betsy Layne appeared to have cleared up as of Tuesday with the announcement that Don Daniels, former Wheelwright grid coach, will replace Jimmie Cecil as head coach to lead the Bobcats through an abbreviated season.

As late as Monday no firm decision had been reached on whether to scrap the three-year-old program or not. According to Betsy Layne Principal Russell Frazier the team had only 21 or 22 players, "and only eight or nine of them had played ball before. The rest of the players were pick-ups." It was then that school officials decided to "try it again" and called on Daniels, a teacher at Wheelwright who had resigned his coaching duties there during the summer.

Daniels agreed to meet with Frazier Monday afternoon and when a gathering of students was called to determine interest in the program, "some 50 to 55 kids showed up and we found out there were a lot of kids interested in playing football," according to Daniels.

Betsy Layne, which has had football for only three years, had a nine-game schedule lined up for this year. When the number of experienced players dwindled, last Friday's game with Virgie was canceled. So were games with Paintsville on Sept. 14 and Wheelwright on Sept. 21. Daniels said he expected no difficulty canceling games with Phelps this Friday and Knott County Central, Sept. 7. If Daniels can adequately prepare his new squad in three weeks, Betsy Layne will face Hurley, Va. in a home game, Sept. 28. (Bobcat home games are played on the Prestonsburg High School field.)

Daniels, who will continue as a teacher at Wheelwright, will be officially hired by the Floyd County Board of Education at its next business session but according to Daniels, "I'm starting today."

"I don't want to elaborate on what the problems were at Betsy Layne, but we're going to make every last-ditch effort to salvage the program," Daniels said.

OVERSEAS VETS CLUB TO ELECT OFFICERS

The Floyd County Overseas Veterans Club will nominate and elect officers for the coming year at a meeting scheduled at 7 p.m. Monday at the Walter Karr Bowling Post No. 5839 in Lancer addition.

Team of Trophy Collectors

The team, undefeated in district play, won both the district and regional tournaments with an impressive 23-0 record.

Council Is Told Town Br. Wants To Be Annexed

Bearing a petition on behalf of other Town Branch residents, Ted Nelson told the Prestonsburg City Council at its meeting this week that a substantial majority of his community's residents favor annexation with Prestonsburg.

Nelson said that all but six families in that area had been polled, and only "six or eight" homeowners had opposed the idea.

Mayor Harold W. Cooley said that the engineer responsible for surveying areas on the city perimeter, with a view to possible annexation, had told him Monday that the Town Branch area and two other areas would be surveyed "in a very short time."

The other two areas are believed to lie to the north of the city, toward Highlands Regional Medical Center, and to the south, around the junction of the Mountain Parkway and U.S. 23.

The petition for annexation follows a report by Floyd Health Department Administrator Earl Compton, two weeks ago, of "numerous complaints" to the Health Department by Town Branch residents concerning sewage disposal in that area. At that time, Mayor Cooley said that Prestonsburg would consider annexing the area if local residents desired it. Annexation could pave the way for the connection of Town Branch to the Prestonsburg sewage disposal system.

The city council also heard a complaint by Thomas E. Horn, of West Prestonsburg, that the Dowell Division of the Dow Chemical Company was operating noisy machinery in that area until 2 or 3 o'clock, some mornings.

"The later it gets, the louder it gets," Horn told the council. City police had told him that they could do nothing about the problem, he added. Mayor Cooley told Horn that the council would "try every way to see if we can get the problem remedied."

The council voted to accept some amendments to the license fee rules and regulations under the occupational license ordinance. The amendments represent the addition of some categories of workers and a raise in fees for some existing categories. The amendments follow:

- Non-profit organizations with no sales, $25 per day; repair or installation (awnings, gutters, siding, roofing, and underpinning), $5 per day, $25 per week, $50 per year; motels and hotels, $25 per year; nursery (landscaping), $25 per year; chiropractors, chiropractors, osteopaths, $40 per year; physical therapists, pharmacists, psychologists, sociologists, physician assistants, $20 per year; all commercial trucks loading or unloading in the city, not operating under an ICC license or other city license, $150 per year; yard or junk sales, $5 per three consecutive days; retail sales from non-permanent structure, $300; carpenters, electricians, plumbers, painters, masons, welders, etc., not connected with licensed business, $12.50 per year; restaurants, $20 per year.

Belfry Bombs Blackcats, 26-6

Belfry spans Prestonsburg, 26-6. So close, yet so far. That was how Prestonsburg's head football coach Philip Haywood summed it up after Friday night's 26-6 loss to Belfry.

Coach Haywood said, "I think our players were confused as to what game they were playing. They must have thought it was horseshoes. They came close, but even in horseshoes the idea is to throw a ringer."

Belfry scored the first two times they had the ball and it looked like it would be a long night for the Cats. But Prestonsburg came back with a good drive of its own with Denny Layne going over from the two making the score 12-6. The Blackcats received the second half kick-off and began a drive on their own 20, taking it to the Belfry 15, before Layne fumbled, stopping the drive. Belfry immediately drove the length of the field for its third TD of the night scoring on a 40-yard pass play that caught the Blackcat secondary flat-footed. Prestonsburg came right back, however, and looked as if they were going to score. On a second and 10 situation on the Belfry 18, the Cats ran their wishbone option to the Belfry 5, but a motion penalty brought the ball back, and Belfry held on downs. The Pirates then mounted a time-consuming drive and scored their final TD with four seconds left in the game.

Coach Haywood wasn't overly pleased with his team's performance, even though he admitted that Belfry had a good football team. He said, "offensively, we moved the ball well, though our execution wasn't what I would like to have. And even though our execution wasn't that good, Belfry didn't stop us. The big problem was that we didn't stop them. To put it bluntly, the defense was terrible. Our defensive players must have been reading the newspapers about how we are supposed to have a good defensive team this year. Our kicking game didn't help us much, either. I hope we learned something from this game. I know one thing, we sure have a lot of work to do."

The Blackcats have filled the open date they had on the schedule and will travel to Greenup county this Friday to take on the AAAA Musketeers.

Rice's Crispies . . .

By KENNY RICE

Five Floyd countians were selected to either the first or second all-star units in the "Eastern Kentucky High School Football Preview" magazine.

Prestonsburg had three players on the squad. Dwayne Rodebaugh was picked on the first team offense as kicker, Keith Colvin was defensive end, and Dewey Layne as a linebacker.

Two players who will not get to play football this season were picked on the second team squads. Betsy Layne linebacker Don Chaffins (whose school dropped the sport) made the defensive team, and Wheelwright center Don Daniels (who will not play this season due to illness) was chosen on the offense.

Local Sports

By C. "OLLIE" ROBINSON
Football in Eastern Kentucky got under way last weekend with several surprises and some that were not surprises.

The Prestonsburg Blackcats opened their 1979 season with the always powerful Belfry Pirates and the Blackcats lost, 26 to 6. The score, however, doesn't indicate how close the game really was. In fact, Belfry scored its last eight points in the final six seconds of the game.

The Cats' running game was especially good at times, with Dewey Layne, Tom Hastings and the injured Wayne Rodebaugh leading in that department. Layne scored Prestonsburg's lone touchdown in the second quarter on a two-yard plunge. He carried the ball 20 times for a total of 116 yards. The Blackcats will play Greenup County there this week-end and will be away the following week-end at Pikeville.

Pikeville opened its season last week-end at Louisa and won over the Bulldogs, 21 to 0, as Roger Caudill connected on three of four passing attempts for 100 yards scored one touchdown to lead Pikeville. Bo Adkins scored one touchdown and Pikeville put the game away with a 40-yard scoring pass from Caudill to Mark Fryman. Pikeville will entertain Whitesburg this week-end.

Here's how some other teams which Prestonsburg will play later fared last week

Corbin defeated Hazard, 6-0; Johnson Central lost to Madison Central; Leslie County thumped Breathitt County, and two of the Cats' future opponents faced each other as Raceland defeated Morgan County, 13-0.

Prestonsburg Team Named Babe Ruth League Champs

Sweeping a doubleheader from previously undefeated McDowell, Prestonsburg's Babe Ruth Team won the playoff championship of the league.

In the opening game, Prestonsburg was defeated by Drift's Kim Horn who struck out 12 Prestonsburg batters for a 6 to 5 win. Prestonsburg's ace righthander, Bobby Tackett, also struck out 12 McDowell hitters.

Hall and Birdsall led Drift in hitting while Randy Griffith and Freddie Hackworth collected two hits each for Prestonsburg.

August 16, Prestonsburg defeated Garrett, 9 to 8, behind lefthander Randy Griffith, who also had three hits. Joe Weddington scored three runs on three hits and stole four bases. Kelly Cecil contributed two hits with four runs batted in.

This win led to a re-match between Drift and Prestonsburg. The latter, led by all-star catcher, John Burchett, with four runs batted in, won over Drift, 12-0. Pitcher Robby Tackett allowed only two hits and Randy Griffith had two hits each. Tackett scored four runs and Freddie Hackworth, three. In addition, the first three games were highlighted by the timely hitting of Barry Slone.

The opening game of the finals, August 19, saw undefeated McDowell pitted against once-defeated Prestonsburg with lefthander, Randy Griffith, for Prestonsburg facing righthander Tuttle for McDowell. In a hard-fought game, Prestonsburg won 8 to 5. McDowell was led by Stumbo with three hits, while Randy Griffith had three hits with three runs scored for Prestonsburg, and John Gilliam was outstanding in the field and was credited with three RBI's. Jeff Hylton had three singles and three runs batted in.

The final game for all the marbles saw Prestonsburg once again rely on Bobby Tackett, facing Chester Newsome for McDowell. In the first inning, McDowell scored two runs on a leadoff single by Kinner, a fielder's choice by Tuttle and Newsome and an outfield error which permitted two unearned runs to score. Prestonsburg came back to score three runs in the bottom of the first when Randy Griffith singled and stole second and third, scoring when John Gilliam bounced one back to Chester Newsome. Bobby Tackett doubled and scored on Jeff Hylton's triple. In the second inning, McDowell was limited to a single by Moore and did not score during the remainder of the game.

Tackett allowed only two more hits, one by Kinney in the fifth and Moore in the seventh inning. Prestonsburg scored in the third when Randy Griffith walked and scored on Freddie Hackworth's line shot to right field. Kelly Cecil tripled in the fourth, but failed to score. In the fifth inning, Randy Griffith led off with a single, stole second and third, scoring, on a single to center by John Gilliam. Jeff Hilton then drove in two runs by Tackett and Gilliam with a triple to deep centerfield. The final run was scored by Kelly Cecil in the sixth inning, taking a walk to first after being hit, stealing second and scoring on R. Griffith's third hit.

The team was coached by Ralph Gilliam, Truman Griffith and manager Joe D. Weddington who commended the bench for their contribution to the championship. The coaching staff and manager recognized the outstanding contribution of Steve Rice during the past season. Rice was sidelined during the playoffs by an injury.

Team members in alphabetical order and their position are listed as follows: John Burchett, C; Kelly Cecil, LF; Eddie Compton, OF; Todd Daniels, OF; John Gilliam, 2B; Keith Griffith, OF; Randy Griffith, P-OF; Freddie Hackworth, CF-P; Jeff Hilton, 1B-P; Todd Johnson, 1B; Jimmy Music, 2B; Steve Rice, 3B; Barry Slone, OF; Robby Tackett, SS-P; Joe D. Miss Hall-Mr. Smothers Wed

Mr. and Mrs. Hobert Mullett, of Weeksbury, announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Rita Ann Hall, to Mr. Chester Dean Smothers, of South Haven.

The wedding was solemnized Saturday, July 21, at the First Free Will Baptist Church in South Haven by the Revs. J. B. Tolbert and Rev. Roger Daniels.

Given in marriage by her brother, Ronald Hall, the bride wore a traditional wedding gown of white bridal satin with a chapel veil, both made by her mother. She carried a bouquet of blue-tipped sweetheart roses interspersed with baby's breath.

Maid of honor was Miss Dora Tackett, of Weeksbury, and bridesmaid was Miss Kathy Brandlee, of South Haven. Flower girls, Veronica Hall and Teresa Johnson, are both nieces of the bride.

Best man was Jim Holmes, of South Haven, and groomsman was Harold Hall, of Weeksbury, brother of the bride. Ushers were Mitchell Smothers, of South Haven, brother of the groom, and Eddie Johnson.

Immediately following the wedding, a reception was held at the home of the bride's sister in Glenn, Michigan.

The bride, who is the daughter of the late Press Hall is employed at the South Haven Community Hospital as a personnel assistant.

Mr. Smothers is a machinist with Bohn Aluminum and Brass Company in South Haven, where the couple will reside.

KET To Fight Decision On Ticket Selling by Teacher

Calling a recent Kentucky Court of Appeals decision requiring a Hardin county teacher to "sell tickets and work at the concession stands" a setback to the status of teachers, Kentucky Education Association president June Lee said KEA will file a petition for a rehearing by the court.

Backed by KEA, teacher Deborah Guillemine Whelan had brought suit against her local school board, superintendent, and principal to challenge the requirement that she attend ball games during the school year for the purpose of selling soft drinks, taking tickets, and controlling crowds.

"These bear no relationship to the purpose for which teachers are employed," said KEA president Lee.

"Kentucky teachers are now required by state law and regulation to have a master's degree to keep their teaching certificate," she noted. "KEA believes that requiring these teachers to sell soft drinks, take tickets, and control crowds is extremely poor utilization of a professionally trained person."

Mrs. Lee said the court based its decision on a California case that required teachers to supervise students and protect their welfare at school athletic and social activities.

She pointed out that "KEA has never in the past nor does it now object to teachers attending school functions when the purpose is to supervise students, meet with parents, and the like."

But KEA does object to using teachers the way Mrs. Whelan was used by the Hardin county school system.

Mrs. Lee said the fact that Hardin county required teachers to perform such extra duties at ball games "is perhaps a telling comment on the attitude of school boards and administrators toward education of the children in Kentucky."

"While KEA certainly does not object to athletic programs, it does object to use of highly trained teachers as an unpaid labor force in a money-making activity. We hope the day will come when such importance will be placed on reading, mathematics, or social studies programs."

"Today we are constantly confronted with poor achievement test scores, lawsuits being filed by graduates who can't read their diplomas, and, in the state of Kentucky, continuing complaints about our educational system," Mrs. Lee said.

"This decision by the Court of Appeals points up one of the many reasons why we have problems. Teachers should teach our children. They should not be required to be soft drink vendors and bouncers at ball games."

Court Rules Signers Of Rutherford Loan Violated State Law

Seven Pike countians who were co-signers of a loan toward financing the campaign of Pike County Judge Wayne T. Rutherford for lieutenant governor in the May, 1975 Democratic primary violated the state campaign contribution law, the Pike circuit court has ruled.

The court said that endorsement of the $125,000 loan constitutes a contribution as defined by state law and that an endorsement making the endorser liable for a sum in excess of $3,000 is a violation of the state law that limits contributions by an individual to any one candidate.

The co-signers of the May 14, 1975 loan from Citizens Bank of Pikeville were Robert Holcomb, Terrill Coleman, Hobert E. Potter, William M. Deskins, John Jack Adkins, F. M. Burke and Marris Allen May.

Southern Bell Denied Increase Of $44 Million

The Utility Regulatory Commission has denied a proposed $44.6 million rate hike by South Central Bell Telephone Co. Instead, the commission granted an increase of slightly more than $8 million.

The increase was sought by South Central to bring its net income up to projected operating levels, according to the application filed with the commission.

In requesting the change, South Central cited a number of areas in which its net income has been or will be reduced. These include contributions, membership dues and fees, abandoned projects, elimination of employee discounts, advertising, income from its parent company and an increase in interest charges and income taxes paid by the utility.

The commission disagreed with the company in most areas stating that "the proposed rates were unfair and would produce excess revenues."

In support of the decision, the commission reported that over the past three years South Central Bell had disregarded customer complaints resulting in an "excessive" number of unresolved problems. The company reported a backlog of nearly 20,000 requests for changes from four- and eight-party lines to private or two-party lines.

Further, the commission felt the utility had, over the same period of time, disregarded customer requests for better services while continuing a large-scale building program aimed at expansion rather than improving present facilities.

As a result of the findings, South Central was granted an $8,052,000 increase affecting service charges only. These include reconnection charges, directory listings and number changes.

In addition, South Central was ordered to clear up all complaints and eliminate all four- and eight-party lines.

The Kentucky utility serves customers in 78 counties throughout the state.

Womens Apprenticeship Conference Set

An informal conference, "Opportunities for Women through Apprenticeship," will be held Saturday, Sept. 15, in Louisville.

The Kentucky Department of Labor's Apprenticeship and Training Council, in cooperation with the Bureau of Apprenticeship and Training of the U.S. Department of Labor, will co-sponsor the conference on apprenticeship opportunities for women.

The purpose of the conference is to help Kentucky women understand the full meaning and advantages of apprenticeship; to become better informed of job and career opportunities available through apprenticeship in non-traditional trades; to identify problems associated with women in building and construction trades and how to overcome them; and to help them decide which of these profitable occupations they feel best suited for after having a better understanding of the trade.

The conference schedule (9 a.m. until 4 p.m.) includes welcoming remarks from Commissioner James R. Yocom of the Kentucky Department of Labor; Frank Stegald, Region IV director, Bureau of Apprenticeship and Training; and Robert J. McConnon, administrator of the Bureau of Apprenticeship and Training; and Robert J. McConnon, administrator of the Bureau of Apprenticeship and Training in Washington, D.C.

Kentucky State Director Robert W. Hardley of the Bureau of Apprenticeship and Training will outline the purpose of the conference.

Elmer Steier, supervisor of the Kentucky Apprenticeship and Training Council, will discuss what is being done in this state for women in non-traditional apprenticeship programs.

A film, "Equal to the Task," will show what is happening in one state for women interested in getting into non-traditional, top-paying jobs in new areas.

Workshops will run in 30-minute sessions to give conference participants an opportunity to attend three. The workshops cover opportunities in sheetmetal, plumbing, pipe fitting, bricklaying, operating engineering, ironworking, cement masonry, carpentry, electricity, asbestos work, millwright, machinery, painting, roofing and millwork. Each workshop will be conducted by a representative of that particular trade.

After lunch, the keynote speaker will be Virginia Gee from Stanford University in California.

A panel of women who are currently in non-traditional apprenticeship programs or have already completed their apprenticeship and are journey persons employed in a non-traditional occupation will conduct a discussion on the progress women are making in the non-traditional trades.

Local agencies will provide information on how they lend assistance to women who are interested in the apprenticeship programs mentioned.

The conference will be held at Louisville's Holiday Inn South, 3317 Fern Valley Road. Anyone interested in attending can call (502) 588-4466 for more information.

Possum Has Learned Secret of Survival

The possum isn't the prettiest little thing and not a good candidate for a household pet, but it certainly gets full marks for survival—the animal has been around for 70 million years. According to an article in the September Reader's Digest, this makes the possum America's oldest wild animal, "a living fossil that should be admired for what it has accomplished merely by staying alive."

Even though it hasn't some of the superior characteristics that we admire in other wildlife, there is enough going for the possum. It isn't as good a climber as the racoon, but good enough—and its clawed feet not only help climb but dig for food as well.

The same is true for speed. The possum is no long-distance runner, but it's speedy in sprints and is a strong and fast swimmer. It manages to evade most predators.

"One thing is certain," the Digest article points out. "This living fossil is as much a survival wonder as those architectural relics that mankind holds in such awe—the Acropolis in Greece, the Colosseum in Italy, Egypt's pyramids.

"The possum also is older. And in much better shape."

Growing Tomatoes in Wire Cages

Billie and Eukie Merritt gathering tomatoes grown in wire cages.

By JOHN SPARKS
Extension Agent-Agriculture

Home gardeners are changing from the traditional way of staking tomatoes to growing them in wire cages.

Last month a garden demonstration was held at the farm of Billy and Eukie Merritt, of Bonanza. Those who braved the rainy weather were able to see caged tomatoes on black plastic as compared to staked tomatoes on straw.

According to the Merritts, they noticed that the caged tomatoes did a lot better than the ones staked. And if you do grow tomatoes in a wire cage they will perform better if they are suckered at least up to the 4th leaf. The taller varieties of tomatoes such as Jet Star or Rampao growing in a 60 inch cage need to be staked so that they don't blow over during heavy winds.

Some of the advantages of growing tomatoes in wire cages are:
Holds fruit off of the ground and prevents loss of fruit to ground rot; less space is required for plant growth; plants are easier to work around; works very well with a 1/2 mil. black plastic mulch.

Another highlight of the garden demonstration was the results of the Rampao and Jetstar (varieties that have some resistance to the tomato blight), with the cool nights and humid days causing a problem of late blight with other varieties. These two were doing very good in producing big tomatoes with good foliage. It is still best to spray with Manzate 200 or Dithane M-45 in controlling or preventing the tomato blight.

Those who attended were treated to homemade doughnuts, courtesy of Mrs. Wayne Ratliff. For more information on building your own wire cages, contact the County Extension Office (886-2668).

EKU Will Continue Breathalyzer Training

Eastern Kentucky University plans to continue its breathalyzer training when federal funding for the program ends September 30.

Eastern's Board of Regents recently approved allocation of $66,428 to support the program from October 1 to June 30 of next year and inclusion in the University's next budget request to the legislature of an amount sufficient to continue the program.

The breathalyzer is used by police to determine the degree of intoxication of drivers. Every breathalyzer operator in Kentucky is trained by the Traffic Safety Institute in Eastern's College of Law Enforcement.

The institute has operated the program for more than 10 years in its specifically designed laboratories in the Stratton building with all direct costs paid from federal funds.

Floyd County Historical Notes

FLOYD AKERS

Comes to hand a manuscript on the Akers family prepared by Floyd Akers, of Prater Creek. The paper, especially in its closing paragraphs, is strongly reminiscent of the faith of the patriarchal Hebrew fathers.

While the manuscript deals chiefly with the writers own family there is data of general interest to others. It is reprinted below:

I was born on Prater Creek, Dana, Floyd County, Kentucky, near the mouth of Wm. Akers Branch and was raised to manhood on Prater Creek, date of birth, April 15, 1869. I was the son of Levi and Nancy Hall Akers, the grandson of Elijah and Peggy Hall, on the maternal side. My paternal grandparents were Davy and Polly Marshall Akers. Elijah Hall was born in 1813. Davy Akers was born near the date of 1780. My father Levi, was born in 1823. My post office at the time of my birth was Laynesville, near where the present post office which is now called Harold, in an old log house. William Greer was postmaster when I was young. He was the son-in-law of Dr. S.M. Ferguson, who was a Captain in the Civil War.

I well remember when my father died April 12, 1899. He was buried in the Rice cemetery, and I remember the text Elder John M. Akers used from the 14th chapter of Job, 14th verse. Elder Rube Tipton's text: "I can't see him now but will see him nigh." Both were old Regular Baptist Elders. Elder Rube Tipton was born June 13, 1839, Elder John M. Akers was born Oct. 11, 1855.

My mother, Nancy Hall Akers, was born March 23, 1833, deceased Jan. 12, 1888. My father, Levi Akers, was born July 20, 1823. Both father and mother are sleeping in the Rice cemetery on Prater Creek, Dana, Kentucky, where my first wife and the following children are sleeping: Preston, Walker, Payten and two of my children of my first marriage are buried on Little Mud in the Kidd cemetery, to-wit: Effa and Etta.

To my first marriage were born seven children, three boys and four girls; I was married to Nana Justice, daughter of P.C. and Hannah Justice, Dec. 24, 1890. She united with the old Regular Baptist Church 1st Saturday in June 1896, and was baptised by Elder Bill Layne. She departed this life Feb. 5, 1905. I was married to Christina Jarrell, daughter of Parks and Jane Jarrell, Dec. 23, 1907, and to this union were born seven children, four boys and three girls. She joined the old Regular Baptist Church 1st Saturday in July, 1920, and departed this life April 22, 1946. Four of her children preceded her in death, and three survive.

I was married to Mary E. Hunter, Oct. 5, 1946. At present I have 63 grandchildren and great-grandchildren; and I request that when I am gone, to be buried in the Rice cemetery on Prater Creek. My choice of ministers to preach my funeral are; first, Elder Willard Akers; second, Elder Tack Hall; third, Elder Banner Manns and fourth, Elder Johnnie Hall. The opening song to be, "There Is a Call for you, My Friends," Composed by my kinsman Stephen Akers.

Children of the first marriage:
Effa E., born Oct. 12, 1892, died Feb. 19, 1930; John M. (Preston) born March 8, 1894, died June 14, 1928; Kenas Walker, born Dec. 28, 1895, died April 2, 1937; Levi Payton, born April 15, 1898, died Nov. 1, 1923; Mary Etta, born Feb. 27, 1900, died May 16, 1936; Minnie E. born April 10, 1902, living; Ada A. born Sept. 1, 1904, died Nov. 5, 1974.

Children of the second marriage:
Oka Akers, born Feb. 8, 1907 died May 10, 1907; Anna J. Akers born Feb. 14, 1908; living; Sheridan, born Feb. 4, 1912, died Aug. 21, 1912; Julia, born June 15, 1914, died Oct. 4, 1931; Bertha May, born June 19, 1916, living; Matt, born Dec. 6, 1918, died July 26, 1919; Jeffa L., born March 23, 1910, died March 4, 1973.

I, being one of Floyd Akers' grandchildren, will finish the manuscript on the Akers family.

I remember him very well, and loved him very much. I thought he was a wonderful man.

Floyd (Pap) Akers died April 5, 1955. Jeff died March 4, 1973. Aunt Ada died November 5, 1974. She was a wonderful person, like a mother. She and Uncle Elmon Akers practically raised me. My children thought of her as a grandmother.

Three of Paps children are still living—Aunt Minnie, of Beaver, Ohio, Aunt Annie, of New London, Ohio, Aunt Mae, of Albin, Mich. His third wife Eva is still living.

I will write about my own family, which is three generations on the akers side.

I am the daughter of Mary Etta Akers Case. She had eight children: Okie, born June 30, 1920, died March 27, 1971; Bert, born Nov. 8, 1922, living at Harold, Ky., Margaret, November 17, 1923, living at Prestonsburg, Ky., Floyd and Bernis died as infants; Margie Lee, born March 5, 1929, living at Dana, Ky.; Nanna Mae, born Feb. 27, 1931, living at Banner, Ky., Thomas Eugene, born May 6, 1933, living at Roseville, Mich.

I married Eddie Estel Conn, Jan. 3, 1946, at Prestonsburg, Ky. Unto this union were born four children:

Vetta, born Dec. 14, 1946, Phillip, born July 23, 1949; Stella Louise, born March 30, 1954, Donna Kay, born August 10, 1961.

Vetta married Ronald Lynn Jones, Aug. 14, 1965 at Dana, Ky. To this union were born three children, Ronald Anthony, born April 30, 1971, Scott Douglas, born Jan. 23, 1973, and Rebecca Ellen, born Feb. 7, 1977.

Phillip married Jacqueline Zeller, Sept. 21, 1968. To this union were born two children, Philip Edward, born Jan. 6, 1971, and Kristie Lynn, born Sept. 26, 1973.

Stella married William James Carpenter April 27, 1971. To this union were born two children, Jason Matthew June, 17, 1975; Jared Micheal, born Feb. 24, 1978.

Donna Kay married Eric Kremer, Oct. 21, 1978. To this union a son, Eric Ryan, was born May 26, 1979.

I think we've been a very lucky family. We've always been together, to have lost our mother while we were all so very young. We loved our father very much. He was Andrew Jackson Case. He lived to be 90 years old. He was a member of the Freewill Baptist Church. Okie joined, but I feel his soul is at rest. Bert belongs to the Church of Christ. Margaret belongs to the Methodist Church. Mae is a member of the United Baptist Church. Tom doesn't belong to a church but I'm sure he has faith in the Lord.

I joined the Old Regular Baptist Church, April 30, 1965, and was baptized by Brother Liney Boyd and Brother Jacobs in the creek at the mouth of Happy Hollow on Prater. My letter is at Little Salem Church at Dana, Ky. I hope my husband and children knew how much I love them, but ever since I learned to love my Jesus I love everyone.

I knew my first born, Vetta, knows how I feel. She accepted Jesus and was baptized in the Freewill Baptist Church.

I knew my husband and children have faith and will see the light some day. I feel deep down in my heart I will see Jesus some day and all my loved ones that have gone. I hope my grandchildren will keep the Akers history going when I am gone.

By: FLOYD (PAP) AKERS' Granddaughter, MARGIE LEE CONN it.

Exceptional Child Workshops Held for Teachers, Admins.

In order to fulfill requests from local school districts, the Kentucky Department of Education is holding a series of workshops on state administrative regulations regarding the education of exceptional children.

By the time of the last workshop in Jefferson County on Sept. 5, approximately 1,200 teachers and administrators from 37 districts will have attended the sessions. Carlene Gobert, coordinator for program development in the Bureau of Education for Exceptional Children, said that the emphasis of the workshops has been to train local staff members on how to use the regulations and find the applicable portions when they need to refer to them.

Exceptional children differ from normal children in one or more aspects of physical, mental, learning or emotional characteristics to the degree that they cannot gain the maximum benefit from regular school programs.

Gobert described Kentucky's regulations as "very child-oriented and child-protective, but they also provide a lot of protection for parents and school districts, too." The regulations cover such areas as identifying, evaluating and placing exceptional children into programs which best serve their needs, individual education plans and procedures which safeguard the rights of the child and his or her parents.

The regulations also spell out the membership of a school-based admissions and release committee: the school principal or another staff member designated by the principal, the child's parents, teachers, other professionals who can help evaluate and plan for the child, and the child, if this participation is appropriate.

"One surprise to many workshop participants has been the fact that every school's staff needs to know how the committee is formed and what its responsibilities are, whether they have an exceptional child enrolled now or not," Gobert said. Some have also been surprised to learn that work done in special education classes can be applied towards a high school diploma, she said. "More important, though, is the fact that with these committees, no one person is making decisions about a child's education," she added. "We're trying not to mislabel a child or overlook services and programs a student might need in order to get the most benefit out of school."

Dr. Hyden To Head Election Campaign

Dr. Joe Taylor Hyden, of Martin, has been named chairman of Floyd county's United Democratic Committee for the fall election, it was announced this week.

County Democratic Chairman Paul P. Burchett made the appointment at an organizational meeting held Aug. 16. Named co-chairwoman was Mrs. Bertha Clifton.

"We are going to work hard to support all our Democratic candidates, from the Governor's race to our local elections," Dr. Hyden said. He announced that a second organizational meeting will be held Thursday, Aug. 30 at 7:30 p.m. in the circuit court room here.

Dr. Hyden named the following committee chairmen to work in the fall campaign: Kenneth Wells, youth chairman; Bob Pitts, senior citizens chairman; Ann Latta, publicity chairman.

A fund-raising dinner and rally will be held later in the fall, Dr. Hyden said.

CONDITION IMPROVING

Amanda, small daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Rose, who spent several weeks as a patient at the University of Kentucky Medical Center, Lexington, is showing marked improvement. She is at home.

Miss Layne-Mr. Thacker Wed

Miss Ginger Rose Layne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Layne, of Harold, and bridesmaids were Lucinda Tackett, Mrs. Sylvia Thacker and the late Willie Thacker, of Route 3, Pikeville, were united in marriage on Friday, June 15 at 6 p.m., at the Boldman Free Will Baptist Church. The Rev. Arnold B. Johnson, pastor of the church, performed the wedding ceremony.

Miss Layne's maid of honor was Kimberly Leigh Clark, of Harold, and bridesmaids were Lucinda Tackett, Lucie Smith and Denita Thacker, all of the Pikeville area. Junior bridesmaids were Kimberly Dawn Justice, of Pikeville, and Tracey Lynn Damron, of Orlando, Florida, nieces of the bride.

Mr. Russell Thacker, of Pikeville, brother of the groom, served as best man. Other groomsmen were Michael Steel and Tracy Hamilton, of Pikeville. The ushers were Michael Damron, of Downers Grove, Illinois, and Paul Anthony Justice, of Pikeville, nephews of the bride, and Joey Thacker, of Collins, nephew of the groom.

Misses Vanessa and Katina Maynard, of Keene Village, were the flower girls. Robyn Renee Justice, niece of the bride, and Lana Marie Layne, sister of the bride, carried Bibles.

The ringbearers were Robert Douglas Damron, nephew of the bride, and Keith Gillespie, nephew of the groom.

Musical selections included "Evergreen," "The First Time Ever I Saw Your Face," and "The Wedding Prayer." The soloist was Sharon Woods and pianist was Debbie Bradley. Kay Bolen served at the guest registry, and Bobbie Phillips directed the wedding.

The bride selected flowers from an old-fashioned garden for her wedding. White wicker baskets on the altar held pink roses; lavender, white and pink carnations; pastel-colored daisy pom poms; baby's breath; fern; sprengeri and leather leaf. Similar arrangements with white tapers were placed in the windows in the sanctuary. Bouquets of the same combination of flowers, tied with white satin ribbons, marked the pews. At the center of the altar, flanking a white kneeling bench, two antique white candelabra held eighteen white tapers. A garland of sprengeri and white ribbons was draped across the balustrade and two palm trees completed the garden setting.

Immediately preceding the entrance of the wedding party, the parents of the prospective bride and groom carried lighted, white candles into the church, to be placed on the altar symbolizing the giving of their children in marriage. These were later used by the newlyweds to light a single taper, representing the beginning of their life together. During the candle-lighting ceremony, Billy Thacker, eldest brother of the bridegroom, acted on behalf of his late father.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of chantilly lace, designed in cascading, scalloped ruffles which swept into a longer than cathedral train. The bodice was fashioned into a delicate sabrina neckline, lightly beaded and sequined, and softly rounded by chantilly lace scallops. The long, fitted sleeves were of chantilly lace ending in bridal points. The bridal veil was of white illusion, trimmed around the bottom tier with matching chantilly lace from the gown. This was fastened to a lace and taffeta headpiece and cascaded into the train of the bridal gown.

The bride carried an old-fashioned bouquet of pink sweetheart roses; baby's breath; pink, white and lavender daisy pom poms; fern and sprengeri. A duplicate bouquet for throwing was created in silk, allowing the bride to retain the original as a keepsake. For something new, she wore pearl earrings, a gift from her mother. For something old, she wore an antique quartz and sterling necklace, belonging to her grandmother.

All the bridal attendants wore floor-length, drop-shouldered gowns of white nylon and nylon net. The fitted, double-layered bodices of the gowns were embroidered with tiny, pink rosebuds and green leaves as were short, sheer, puffed sleeves. The skirts of the gowns were very full, Southern bouffant, made up of numerous rows of cascading, nylon ruffles, alternated by rows of net. The waist of each gown was encircled by a narrow, pink ribbon to which was attached a silk rose matching the trio of roses worn in each attendant's hair. Each attendant carried a colonial bouquet with pink ribbon streamers.

The flowergirls in the wedding party wore floor-length gowns of double-layered, pink chiffon with skirts and short sleeves of fashioned rows of cascading, pink ruffles, and the bodices were fitted with jewel necklines. They carried white baskets containing pink rose petals. All four girls wore hairpieces of pink sweetheart roses, baby's breath and fern. The white, pearl Bible carried by Miss Lana Layne during the ceremony, was purchased in Israel by the bride's maternal grandparents. The white, leather Bible carried by Miss Robyn Justice had belonged to the groom's father.

For her daughter's wedding, the mother of the bride wore an orchid, polyester, floor-length gown, the groom's mother wore a floor-length gown of sky blue polyester. The bride's maternal grandmother wore a floor-length gown of coral chiffon with ecru lace trim and her paternal grandmother wore a street-length dress of rose polyester. All four women wore orchid corsages.

A reception was held immediately following the ceremony in the church fellowship hall. Hostesses were Mrs. Johnny Gillespie; Mrs. Jack Bush, Mrs. Mason Holt, Mrs. Paul West, Mrs. Charlie Yuhauz, Mrs. Daniel Fly, Mrs. Billy R. Maynard, Mrs. John Knauz, and Miss Sandi Phillips.

At the center of the bride's table, the double-tiered, wedding cake, with fountain was flanked by crystal candelabra. The cake and matching sheet cakes were baked by Mrs. Jack Hunt, a friend of the bride and her family.

Following a short wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Thacker are now at home to friends at Route 3, Pikeville. Mr. Thacker is a 1977 graduate of Mullins High School and is employed by Elliott Glass, Inc., Pikeville. Mrs. Thacker is a 1979 graduate of Mullins High School and is employed by M & M Toyota, Inc., Pikeville.

The bride is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Layne, of Harold, and Mr. and Mrs. David L. Justice, of Route 3, Pikeville. She is the great-granddaughter of Elder Johnnie King, of Amba.

Hawaii's Hokule'a Trip To Be on KET

Blessed by ancient ceremonies and stirred by tearful alohas, 15 crewmen boarded the giant sailing canoe Hokule'a on May 1, 1976. A few brief months of training were all they had to prepare them for a monumental challenge—to sail the 60-foot double-hulled canoe across the open Pacific without navigational instruments for a 3,000 mile journey from Hawaii to Tahiti.

Less than a month after Hawaii celebrates its 20th year of statehood, KET rebroadcasts "The Voyage of the Hokule'a," a tribute to the maritime skills of the Polynesians. "The National Geographic Special" airs Thursday, September 6 at 8 p.m. (ET), with a captioned repeat Sunday, September 9 at 12 noon (ET), on KET.

The Hokule'a was built by the Polynesian Voyaging Society as the official Bicentennial project of the state of Hawaii. Three men, fascinated by what the ancient Polynesians had accomplished in sailing their double-hulled vessels across the open Pacific to Hawaii, designed the canoe from records and drawings made by early European explorers. The design for the Hokule'a's crab-shaped sails were taken from petroglyphs, stone drawings made hundreds of years ago.

Similar in design to the sailing canoes used to settle Hawaii over 800 years ago, the Hokule'a was built with modern fiberglass and plywood. Her sails were made of canvas. But she was not equipped with navigational instruments because the Polynesian Voyaging Society intended to scientifically prove that Polynesian methods of navigation could take her to her destination.

While studying the design of the Polynesian sailing canoes, the Society had also learned the types of food, animals and plants that the settlers had brought with them to Hawaii. Hokule'a was provisioned, equipped and manned as nearly like the Polynesian settlers' vessels as possible.

Pius "Mau" Pailug, a native of the Micronesian island of Satawal, navigated Hokule'a as she set out on her historic journey. Trained from age six in the Polynesian method of noninstrument, starpath navigation, Pailug charted the canoe's course at night by the stars. He held his course throughout the 35-day journey by constantly studying the ocean swells and the prevailing winds.

"The voyage worked because of the amazing brain picture that Pailug carries within himself of the lines between his point of departure and destination and his amazing ability to calculate whether he's left or right of that line," relief captain Dave Lyman said.

Thirty five days after the voyage began, the canoe landed at Papeete and was greeted by 15,000 enthusiastic Tahitians—the largest crowd ever to assemble on the island since the arrival of Captain Cook two centuries ago.

"We did exactly what we wanted to do, and we were overjoyed," says Ben Finney, a crewman and president of the Polynesian Voyaging Society. "We navigated without instruments and the canoe performed beautifully."

IN RE: The Incorporation of a City of the Sixth Class Known as Dwale, Kentucky NOTICE

Notice is hereby given that a Petition seeking the incorporation of a sixth class city to be known as Dwale, located on the waters of the Big Sandy River, Floyd County, Kentucky, has been filed in the Floyd Circuit Court, designated as CR No. 79-CI-375, by Jack Nelson and others. The exact boundaries of the proposed corporation are as follows:

Beginning at a Railroad Valuation station 4380 50, thence northwest to a point on the top of a knob, thence with the meander of the ridge westward to a point on the dividing ridge between Levisa Fork of Big Sandy River and its tributary Bull Creek. Thence with this dividing ridge northwesterly 1000' more or less to a high knob of the aforesaid ridge. Thence leaving said ridge a northeasterly bearing following the meander of the watershed divide between the communities of Dwale and Water Gap to a point on the center line of US 23, survey station 237 58. Thence leaving the survey of US 23 continuing to follow the watershed divide between the communities of Dwale and Water Gap to a knob, thence turning in an eastward direction and following the ridge dividing the watersheds of Dwale and an unnamed hollow immediately north of Dwale, to a point, said point being opposite C&O Railway valuation station 4328 00, and on the watershed divide, thence to C&O Railway valuation station 4328 00. Thence radially to the Railway a southeastern course to the low water mark of the Levisa Fork of the Big Sandy River, thence with the low water mark of the River southwestward to a point perpendicular to C&O valuation station 4380 50, thence from said point to point of beginning.

The purpose of this notice is to advise all affected residents of the pending of the same. Said notice to run two (2) consecutive weeks in this publication.

Cumberland's South Fork Offers Prime Wild River Experience

The Big South Fork on the Cumberland River flows into Kentucky from Tennessee in McCreary county. The guidebook says that it is "large, beautiful, and remote," and little exception can be taken to this description.

The stream is over 100 feet wide and flows well throughout the year. A mixed deciduous and coniferous forest grows to the edge of the stream, and near the Kentucky-Tennessee border its flow 26 miles without access from a paved road.

Except for Devil's Jump, near Blue Heron, Kentucky, and Angel Falls in Tennessee, the Big South Fork is an International Class II stream, although its length and remoteness probably would make it a difficult Class II. Devil's Jump is Class IV; local legend has it that the streambed below Devil's Jump is paved from bank to bank with Leica cameras and Omega watches. The intelligent canoeist will portage here.

The best place to put in seems to be Leatherwood Ford, west of Oneida, Tennessee, about nine miles from the Kentucky line. Oneida is readily accessible on U.S. 27 and can be reached by the Williamsburg, Kentucky or Caryville, Tennessee exits from I-75, less than four hours from Cincinnati or Chattanooga.

Tobe's Motel and Restaurant on U.S. 27 in Oneida welcomes paddlers, and the Scott county Rescue Squad has been known to provide shuttle service to the Kentucky 92 bridge at Yamacraw. Their number is (615) 569-8200.

Good campsites are abundant on the river, but the river rises quickly following a rain. Recommended take-out is at the Kentucky 92 bridge at Yamacraw, west of Stearns, Kentucky, 26 miles away. There is a restaurant at Stearns and motels in Whitley City, just down the road. Somerset, 30 miles north on U.S. 27, is a progressive city with several chain operations—Holiday Inn, Kentucky Fried, etc. Be prepared to re-enter contemporary America here.

If you can't outfit yourself, getting a canoe for the Big South Fork trip may be a bit of a problem, since there is no longer a livery at Leatherwood Ford. Both Rockcastle Adventures in London and SAGE in Lexington will outfit expeditions and provide transportation, put-in and take-out services with prior arrangement. They will not rent a canoe to a stranger on a drop-in basis for this trip. The additional expense for an expedition is, of course, best distributed over a large group. Rockcastle Adventures, Box 662, London, Kentucky 40741, (606) 864-9407; SAGE, 209 East High Street, Lexington, Kentucky 40507, (606) 255-1547.

The Big South Fork is a fine canoeing stream of International Class II water, except for two Class IV rapids which are easily portaged. It is a good trip for canoe campers and wildlife watchers. The problems of inaccessibility are not insurmountable, and a little inaccessibility is a good thing sometimes.

Virtually all the right bank of the Big South Fork from the Tennessee line to Blue Heron is U.S. Forest Service property, and they have no objection to camping on this land. There are many good campsites to choose from, but camping is best at Bear Creek where the river turns northerly after flowing east. Here you'll find a sheltered (if steep) landing and high ground. A gauging station with a tower that stands out like a beacon is situated at the mouth of Bear Creek to help you pinpoint its location. Both game and rough fish may be caught in the Big South Fork's waters. A jig, such as Doll Fly, or small spinners and crank baits are recommended for walleye, crappie and bass (smallmouth, white, spotted and largemouth). Poppers or light-spinning tackle should take longer sunfish and bluegill as well as bass.

Authorized March 7, 1974 by Public Law 93-251, the Big South Fork National Recreation Area will include 125,000 acres on the Oneida, Tennessee-Stearns, Kentucky axis. The project will cost an estimated $140 million to purchase and develop portions of McCreary county in Kentucky and Pentress, Scott, Pickett and Morgan counties in Tennessee.

Two lodges—one in Kentucky, one in Tennessee—are projected, together with access roads, canoe access points, a boat ramp, bridle, back packing and bike trails. The land purchase procedure started Oct. 1, 1978 and the project is expected to be completed in 10 years. The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers will perform the planning and development; the U.S. Forest Service is expected to transfer large tracts of land, and the U.S. Park Service will administer the completed project.

For further information, write, U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, P.O. Box 1070, Nashville, TN 37202. (Their "Cumberland River Basin Canoe Trail Guide" is a bargain at $35.)

Kentucky's top senior 4-H poultry judges, named at the State Fair in Louisville, are (from left) Todd O'Brien, of Floyd county, David England, of Lawrence county, and Sheri Martin and Melvin May, both of Floyd county.

Three Floyd county 4-H'ers and one from Greenup county were the top junior poultry judges at the recent Kentucky State Fair in Louisville. They are, from left, Mark Virgin, of Greenup county, and Terry Boyd, Barry Parsons and Randell Martin, all of Floyd county.

Floyd 4-H Boys Again Sweep State Fair Poultry Judging

Floyd county 4-H boys wrote a familiar story in the poultry judging competition at the recent Kentucky State Fair—they again won both the junior and senior championships, bringing home six of the eight trophies awarded.

Floyd teams, coached by Jack Friar, 4-H county extension agent, have won every poultry judging event at the State Fair since 1967.

In the senior division (ages 14-19) Todd O'Brien, 15, of Stanville, scored 1016 of a possible 1100 points to lead all competitors. Gail Martin, 16, of Garrett, and Melvin May, 18, of Langley, scored 983 and 970 points, respectively, to claim third and fourth places. These three and second-place winner, Mark Virgin, of Lawrence county, will represent Kentucky at the national 4-H poultry contest in Chicago, Nov. 14-16.

Other senior trophy winners from this county were Phillip Bush, 15, of Harold, fifth place, 965 points; Teddy Meadows, 18, Langley, 941, sixth, and Brian Sturgill, 15, Betsy Layne, 930, seventh.

Other senior 4-H judges were Keith Anderson, of Martin, Mike Bentley, Langley, and Tim Reynolds, Martin.

In the junior division (ages 9-13), Floyd boys won the first three top places. Twelve-year-old Barry Parsons, of Rt. 1, Printer (Little Mud Creek), won first place with 892 of 1000 possible points. Terry Boyd, 12, of Langley, was second, with 857 points, and Rondell Martin, 11, of Langley, took the third-place trophy with 834 points. Scott Tackett, 11, of Banner, and Clyde Reed, 12, of Hippo, won seventh and 10th places, respectively.

TO HOLD TALENT SHOW

The Allen Woman's Club will be sponsoring a benefit talent show Saturday, September 22, at the Jenny Wiley Amphitheatre. For entries, call 874-9480 or 874-2821. All proceeds will go to the Allen Volunteer Fire Department.

Alice Lloyd College Slates Eighth 'Our Appalachia Day'

The eighth annual "Our Appalachia Day" will be held at Alice Lloyd College, Pippa Passes, September 15. The music and crafts festival, sponsored by the college, is free and open to the public.

Music will begin at 10 a.m. and continue until 6:30 p.m. Folk dancing will start at 6:30 p.m. and last for about one hour. Area craftpersons will be displaying and demonstrating their abilities throughout the day. The college will provide its traditional soup bean supper at 4:30 p.m. for the crowd. The meal is free.

A baking contest will be held again this year. The desserts and breads entered in the contest will be enjoyed by the crowd while eating the soup bean meal. Awards will be given for cakes, best old fashioned cakes, pies, cobblers, cookies, candies and breads. The purpose of the "bake-off" is to demonstrate that cooking is an art. Participants may bring items not to be judged by just to be eaten by the crowd. Old-fashion recipes are encouraged.

For information about the festival and for musicians wishing to play, contact Ron Daley at Alice Lloyd College. Electrical instruments and drums are not allowed. An exception is made for an electric bass. Craftpersons should contact Kathy Martin, crafts coordinator.

In case of rain, all events will be held in the college gymnasium.

IN APPRECIATION

We would like to take this opportunity to thank all those who brought food, flowers or helped in any way during the illness and passing of our loved one, Larry D. Johnson. A special thanks to Cassie Allen, the staff of Highlands Regional Medical Center, Carter Funeral Home and the pallbearers and the good brothers of the United Baptist Church. Also, thanks to Our Lady of the Way hospital and the Kentucky State Police for their efforts in supplying blood, and Bros. Wallace Calhoun and Arthur and Tom Priest.

Moving? Return a Phone and Save $4

You've scheduled the moving van for next Tuesday, cancelled the newspaper and picked up medical records. What was once your home is now a storehouse of boxes and crates. You're all set to make the move. Then, you hear it. Your telephone rings. What do you do about that?

"Call the phone company and arrange a convenient date to have your service disconnected," said Phill Scott, local South Central Bell manager.

"If you're moving out of town and your telephones are modular (which means the wire snaps into the wall) unplug them and bring them to the Phonecenter Store," he explained. "If you bring them back on the day they're disconnected, you'll get a $4 credit on your final bill."

"If you're moving locally, call the phone company and ask that your service be transferred to your new address. Then, providing your phones are modular, unplug them and either take them with you or trade them in at the Phonecenter Store for new styles or colors. If your new home has modular outlets, you can plug the phones in—and save," Scott noted.

Nearby Phonecenter Stores are located in Paintsville and Prestonsburg. They're open Monday through Friday 9 until 5 p.m. in Paintsville and 9 a.m. until 4:30 p.m. in Prestonsburg.

"If you're new in town and need telephones, you can pick them up at the Phonecenter Store," said Scott. "All our phones and services are displayed and you'll save money if you pick up your telephones and take them home."

Area Theatre Group To Perform in N.Y.

Roadside will also be performing its new production, "Brother Jack," the previous night, August 30 at 8 p.m. at the Manhattan Theatre Club.

Layne Family Reunion

The annual reunion of the Moses S. Layne family will be held Sept. 3, at the Kelly Layne ball park at Ivel, beginning at 11 a.m., with dinner on the grounds. The Rev. Carl Layne, other ministers and special singing groups have been invited. All relatives and friends are welcome.

Resist the Temptation To Switch to Leaded

Gas prices are rising, and unleaded gas is sometimes difficult to find. The result for some motorists is a strong temptation to put leaded gas in cars requiring unleaded. It's a temptation that should be resisted.

True, leaded gas is less expensive—usually 4 cents per gallon less—than unleaded. But pennies saved at the pump by "fuel switching" may later lead to additional dollars in repair bills.

For example, most drivers of cars requiring unleaded gas may not realize that the use of leaded gas necessitates changing oil and spark plugs twice as often as the manufacturer recommends for lead-free fuel. Failure to "double-up" on this maintenance may result in mechanical problems and accelerated engine wear. Similarly, other car parts, especially the carburetor and exhaust system, may deteriorate more quickly with leaded gas. Tests by the Amoco Oil Co. in 1972 on a fleet of vehicles showed that lifetime repair costs associated with leaded fuel amounted to 4.5 cents per gallon more (at least 7 cents in today's dollars) than for unleaded.

In addition, fuel switching may void a car's warranty coverage for emission components damaged by lead deposits from leaded fuel. Switching also may increase the difficulty of maintaining warranty coverage for other engine parts susceptible to failure from leaded gas.

Certainly these economic considerations are important. But another compelling reason exists for sticking with unleaded gas if that's what your car requires. This reason is your and your neighbor's health.

A car whose catalyst has been poisoned with two or three tankfuls of leaded gas emits at least twice, and perhaps as much as eight times, the amount of lung-damaging, eye-stinging pollution as a car whose catalyst is working properly. Obviously, additional pollution further complicates the job of achieving clean air in many urban areas still struggling to meet health-protecting standards. These same areas will receive added bursts of airborne lead from leaded gas that may aggravate undesirably high levels of this toxic metal in the blood of city children. In short, fuel switching, whatever it may do to your pocketbook, is an extremely bad bargain for your health.

One frequently heard argument in favor of switching is that leaded gas will improve the miles per gallon of unleaded cars. However, as arguments go, this one is strictly low-octane.

Fuel economy is a function of a gasoline's "heat of combustion," that is the amount of energy it releases when burned. The heat of combustion of unleaded gas is higher than leaded, so logically one would expect better m.p.g. from the unleaded fuel. Some tests have shown this. For example, last year the Exxon Co. tested eight major gas brands and found that unleaded gas gave slightly better miles per gallon than leaded gas—14.9 versus 14.7. More dramatic is the difference for the 1979 Datsun B-210 (5-speed manual transmission): 35 m.p.g. for the unleaded model versus 28 m.p.g. for the leaded version. EPA knows of no scientific support for the contention that unleaded gas inhibits a car's miles per gallon.

Federal rules under the Clean Air Act make it illegal for service station attendants to put leaded fuel in unleaded cars. They may be fined up to $10,000 for doing so. Federal law doesn't penalize the individual car owner or driver, but EPA is on the opinion that 34 State rules do prohibit fuel switching by individual drivers or bar them from operating cars with poisoned catalysts.

One exception to these prohibitions is the emergency use of a small amount of leaded in a catalyst car whose tank is nearly empty in an area without unleaded gas nearby.

In any case, legal sanctions may matter little when the driver of an unleaded vehicle (perhaps after a long wait) faces a pump of leaded gas a nickel per gallon cheaper than the required fuel. Here the right choice depends upon his or her conscience and common sense. Switching is short-sighted economics and a blow to breathable air.

New Criteria for School Breakfasts

A new U.S. Department of Agriculture rule should result in more consistent state standards for defining schools in severe need of a breakfast program. Such schools may qualify for higher rates of reimbursement.

The new rule will make breakfast available to more needy children on a more equitable basis.

In the past, state agencies have used many different criteria to assess need for higher reimbursement rates for the breakfast program. Under the new rule, a school is in severe need if 40 percent or more of lunches served under the school lunch program are provided free or at reduced prices, or if the school is required by state law to serve breakfast. These criteria are required by the Child Nutrition Amendments of 1978, enacted in November.

The rule also clarifies the reimbursement procedures for school food authorities which have schools in severe need.

The rule was proposed in January and 14 comments were received. The final rule, which was published in the Aug. 17 Federal Register, became effective July 1.

Aid Offered for Labor Day Travelers

If you are like most people, Labor Day means one last chance to send summer off with style—to go on the picnic you have promised the kids all summer or the boating trip that you meant to take on Memorial Day weekend or that one final trip to a state park.

Wherever you are headed this holiday weekend, which gets under way Aug. 31, the state Department of Transportation officials are determined to see that you make it there safely.

According to transportation records, 1,181 accidents occurred on Kentucky highways last Labor Day weekend. In addition, many more travelers encountered difficulties ranging from running out of gas to serious car repairs, from minor first aid needs to emergency attention.

If you are traveling by interstate or parkway and encounter problems this year, you can count on help from one of the courtesy patrols operated by the Department of Transportation on Friday, Aug. 31, and Monday, Sept. 3.

According to Col. Dick Horn, director of highway enforcement, all 74 highway enforcement officers will be patrolling the interstates to provide any emergency service motorists might need. "Our officers will help with flat tires, jump batteries, supply water and take motorists to service areas to arrange for repairs," he said.

The officers also have the power of arrest and will stop drunk and reckless drivers, Horn said. He added that motorists should wait in their cars until a patrol vehicle arrives. The white courtesy cars will be operating during heavy traffic hours of Friday and Monday.

Holiday travelers on the state's parkways will also have the benefit of a courtesy patrol from 6 p.m. to midnight on Friday, Aug. 31, and Monday, Sept. 3, according to the department's toll facilities division.

C. E. Brown, division director, said that stranded motorists should look for state pickup trucks which will be carrying emergency assistance equipment. The employees on patrol are all trained in first aid.

Meanwhile, officers in the division of water enforcement will spend their weekend encouraging safe boating and swimming. According to Doug Shoulders, division director, the number of water-related accidents is down this year. "To date, 78 people have died in water-related accidents in Kentucky. Last year at this time, there were 111 fatalities," Shoulders said.

Shoulders attributes the 31 percent drop in deaths to a better-informed, more safety-conscious public, an unusually rainy summer which kept people out of the water and the gasoline shortage. "We have no fuel shortage on the water itself," Shoulders said, "but many people have had trouble getting the gas to travel to the state's water recreational areas."

While Shoulders is pleased with the decrease in the number of deaths, he adds that all water enforcement officers will be on duty Labor Day weekend "to make sure the number stays low."

SHE DOESN'T FIDDLE AROUND—Angie Ratcliff, eastern Kentucky fiddle champion, and her father, Buddy Ratcliff, of Beeks Branch, near Martin, recently entertained at the state library picnic at Berry Hill in Frankfort. Mr. Ratcliff was one of the bookmobile librarians honored at the picnic, which kicked off the 25th anniversary of bookmobile use by the state.

$89,097 ARC Grant Goes to Olive Hill

Gov. Julian Carroll last week announced the awarding of an $89,097 grant from the Appalachian Regional Commission (ARC) for site development at a housing complex for senior citizens and the handicapped in Olive Hill (Carter county).

Development Secretary William Short said the grant will be used for excavation, grading, streets, sidewalks and parking areas at the 7.36-acre site, which adjoins an existing public housing development. The Development Cabinet administers the state's ARC programs.

The Housing Authority of Olive Hill is sponsoring the $1.2 million project. There will be 44 one-bedroom units and two two-bedroom units in the complex. Additional financing will come from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, which also will provide subsidies for rental costs in excess of 25 percent of residents' income.

There is a simple way to tell if your skin is dry, oily, or normal. When you wake up in the morning, after your glands have been at work uninterrupted for a time, press a piece of brown wrapping paper to your forehead, nose, side of your nose, cheeks, and chin. If it becomes transparent, your skin is normal; and if there are no stains, your skin is dry. Once determining in which category your skin falls, buy the appropriate soaps and skin care items.

At COOLEY APOTHECARY, No. 2 Town Center Building, Prestonsburg, 886-8106, we offer the most complete professional prescription service in the area. Let our Registered Pharmacist help you meet your special skin care needs. Either have your Dermatologist give us a call or allow our pharmacist to advise and assist you. At COOLEY APOTHECARY we are small enough to know you and your personal needs. We are open to serve you 9-5:30 p.m., Mon.-Fri.; 9-5:00, Sat. We accept Visa and Master Charge.

Our Fragile Earth

By DR. JERRY HOWELL
Director of Environmental Studies
Morehead State University

Portions of the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) report, "Southeast Environmental Profiles, 1977" dealt with solid waste and toxicant advances and problems in the southeastern states, including Kentucky.

The average citizen thinks of solid waste material hauled off by the garbage man, but the term really implies much more. Solid waste is a broad array of waste materials, including garbage, refuse, and other discarded materials from community, commercial, agricultural, mining, and industrial activities. It also includes sludges from waste treatment plants, water supply treatment plants, and air pollution control facilities, as well as low-level radioactive material. Although complete recycling is the ideal way to solve our waste problems, we have not yet reached that stage. The sanitary landfill, an area used to properly bury solid waste, is the most common form of solid waste disposal in the United States.

According to EPA, only about 20 percent of the southeastern population were served by state authorized solid waste disposal facilities in 1971. This rose to 84 percent in 1977; Kentucky's percentage paralleled that of the region.

Toxicants, chemical substances or mixtures which present an unreasonable risk of injury to health or to the environment, are still very much a problem in the southeast, including Kentucky. Recent incidents in which toxicants, such as mercury, kepone, carbon tetrachloride, "hexa", PCB's, PBB's, and others, have been introduced into the environment have focused the public's attention on the dangers associated with their manufacture and use.

EPA's report, completed before Kentucky's "Valley of the Drums" was discovered, listed only one recognized problem area, the Ohio River from Ashland to Owensboro. However, three potential problem areas were listed. In far western Kentucky, the Tennessee River from the Calvert City Industrial Complex to its confluence with the Ohio River was listed as a potential toxicant source. In eastern Kentucky, Fishtrap and Dewey Lakes were mentioned. The Ohio River problem was with organic chemicals, the problem with Dewey and Fishtrap was heavy metals, and the Tennessee River problem was organics and heavy metals. Two old Kentucky problems, mercury in Kentucky Lake and the dumping of "hexa" in the Louisville sewer in 1977, were also mentioned by EPA.

One of the ways EPA evaluates toxicant risks is by studying areas with high cancer mortality rates. Four of the 23 southeastern counties with cancer rates higher than the U.S. average were in Kentucky. Boone, Campbell, Kenton, and Jefferson Counties in Kentucky follow the national pattern of high cancer rates along major rivers. Approximately 40 counties in Kentucky, including Pike, Letcher, Bell, Fayette, and Greenup, have cancer rates equal to the national average, while the majority of Kentucky's counties are below the national average.

Say Elect Assemblymen in Even Years

The Subcommittee on Legislative Effectiveness of the Interim Joint Committee on State Government met last week to discuss ways of increasing the legislative role in formulating and controlling the state budget.

The subcommittee reviewed suggestions for such improvement by Rep. Joe Clark (D-Danville), co-chairman of the Interim Joint Committee on Appropriations and Revenue (A&R).

Subcommittee Chairman Bill Weinberg (D-Hindman) summarized six issues from Clark's suggestions given at an earlier interview.

The first issue was a discussion of the proposed constitutional amendment on

More Dis. Judges Needed, Is Report

There need to be more district judges and they need to be paid more, according to findings of the Subcommittee on Courts of the Special Task Force to Study the Commonwealth's Legal System.

According to the subcommittee's recommendations, which will be presented to the task force tomorrow, there need to be several more district judges and additional circuit judges. The subcommittee recommended judges salaries be upgraded, particularly those of district judges, and that the salaries should be automatically adjusted each year to keep abreast of inflation.

Chief Justice John Palmore, a member of the subcommittee, said up to 50 percent of the district judges might not seek re-election unless salaries were made more attractive. Currently district judges earn $27,500.

Palmore noted the position is an uncertain one since judges can be defeated in reelection bids. Circuit judges earn $35,000 per year.

The subcommittee also said reimbursement to counties for use of courthouse space should be made more favorable and should be more closely tied to renovation and construction of court facilities.

Additional district judges were needed, according to the subcommittee's findings, in areas where single judge districts are overworked and in areas where travel time and "other business considerations" dictate.

The subcommittee also found that while extensive redistricting of judicial districts was unnecessary, about two circuit areas needed to be redefined.

Restoring Old Homes

By Joan McClusky

Your home may be your castle, but what if your castle has a leaky roof and the living room takes a decided bend in the middle? Time to move out? Maybe yes, for some, but for many it means you've just moved in. As prices for new homes continue to skyrocket—the national average now exceeds $57,500—many people, especially young couples, are finding themselves priced out of the new house market. Rather than selling their souls for a new two-bedroom and bath, many are opting for buying and rehabilitating an older home.

Renovating an older home is apt to take longer and cost more than initially expected; you're paying with labor and time rather than cash, but there are some immediate advantages. Since the cost of construction materials has increased by almost 50% since 1970, renovating an old home, and thereby using less materials, can cost much less than it would to buy or build a new house; this is especially true if you do some of the work yourself.

An old house may be more solidly built than a new one, and provide more living space (in some cases, double) for the same amount of money. An older house can have more character than a new one. Work can be done as money becomes available, and renovating an older home provides some solid tax advantages. Renovating an old house also gives you more flexibility to pick and choose the kind of area you'd like to live in, since you're not limited to buying a home in an area where new construction is taking place.

Urban Homesteading

The newest and largest group to discover the joys and aggravations of rehabilitation are buying older homes in or around major cities. Thousands of former apartment dwellers and the children of former city dwellers are taking up "urban homesteading," buying and renovating older homes at bargain prices compared to the cost of suburban housing. Urban homesteading is too new a trend for experts to be able to predict its ultimate importance, but interviews with civic leaders, real estate specialists and families have indicated that the rehabilitation and renovation of older homes has begun to affect the population patterns in some cities.

Those who are renovating older urban homes tend to be younger, have a higher income, and be better educated than the average city resident. Many of those moving back into the city are part of the World War II baby-boom, who have reached the home-buying age. Many simply cannot afford to move into a new home in the suburbs, and federal urban rehabilitation programs which have made available low-interest loans for rehabilitating older homes have encouraged younger people to take up urban homesteading.

There are problems involved in urban homesteading; as any city resident knows, crime and poor schools are two of them. Older, poorer neighbors may resent outsiders. Renovations are costly and take time, and financing may be difficult, although this has improved under recent government pressure to reduce "redlining"—the practice of denying mortgages for homes in city areas. The price of an older home has also risen, as demand increases. In certain areas of Philadelphia, for example, a shell that cost $1,500 eight years ago, now costs at least $15,000.

The advantages? Urban homesteaders are quick to point them out. Although prices have risen, the houses are still bargains, both financially and architecturally. There's the joy of discovering solid oak bannisters, and having 12' ceilings. You're more able to take advantage of a city's cultural opportunities. It often means an end to the expense and hassle of commuting. There is less of the "sameness" of suburban living, and more exposure to people of different backgrounds and races. As neighborhoods improve, crime decreases, and many people are willing to use caution and stick it out. Some parents find it necessary to send their children to private schools; others see exposure to inner city schools as an advantage.

Renovating old homes is also good for the community. It creates new jobs, and stimulates financial interest in old neighborhoods.

Finding an Old House

Finding an old house worth renovating takes time and energy. One of the best ways to find an old house, whether in the country or city, is to walk or drive through an area you're interested in, keeping an eye out for anything that looks promising. Do some research to find out if the area is on the "upswing", and talk to local residents. They'll tell you things a realtor might not, and you'll get a feeling for the kind of people you'll be living with, and their attitudes and commitments towards "improving" the neighborhood. Some cities and renovation associations are offering homes for practically nothing if the owner promises to renovate the house and live in it for a number of years.

Look at any possible choices both inside and out. Look at how the house is arranged and the kind of condition it's in. How is the foundation? Is the house free of decay and insect damage? Is the house designed for good livability? What would you have to do to bring it up to your standards?

Some of these questions are easy to answer. Others are more difficult. If you find a house you like, have it looked over by a professional housing inspector. He will provide specific estimates for rehabilitating a specific house, and will be able to tell you which problems are only cosmetic and which are repairable, as well as the amount of work involved, and which problems will make a house unsuitable for rehabilitation or renovation. The fee for this will run about $50 to $100, depending on the house and the number of rooms. If you're planning structural changes or want to gut the house and redesign it, an architect can be hired to answer a few questions for $25.00 an hour and up, or hired to arrange bids, prepare floor plans and specs, draw up contracts and oversee the job.

By systematically inspecting the house, you'll be able to weigh the cost of the work to be done against the value of the final product. Costs vary greatly, from $30 to $40 a square foot for simple renovation of construction to $50 to $100 a square foot for restoration (bringing the house into general conformity with the time it was built.)

Tax Advantages

By way of encouraging the rehabilitation of older homes, the federal government is offering tax credits and incentives for restoration work. The Revenue Act of 1978 provides a 10% investment tax credit for qualified rehabilitation expenses incurred after October 31, 1978. 10% of the cost of renovation is deducted directly from the taxes owed by the taxpayer. The building must have been in use for at least 20 years, and 75% or more of the external walls must remain in place after restoration.

You can also qualify for accelerated depreciation, if all or a part of the building is used to produce income, and is in a registered historic district.

The government is also encouraging financing for home improvements through the Federal Housing Administration's (FHA) Title I program. The program is run by the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD), and insures loans made by banks, savings and loans associations, and credit unions for money used for more improvements.

Doing the Work

You may be able to save 30% or more of renovating costs by doing some of the work yourself, especially general labor like tearing down ceilings and carting away plaster. In some cases, however, it pays to get professional help. Whether you hire individual workers and supervise the job yourself, or hire a contractor who will do this for you, get several bids on the job before making a decision. Find out the exact cost of the job, interest and payment schedules, and how long it will take.

If you've decided to restore or rehabilitate an old home, it will take time, thought and energy, as well as money and labor, but those who've done it feel the rewards are well worth the effort.

Propose Insurance As Medicare Aid

Minimum insurance standards to supplement medicare policies for the elderly will be outlined by the state Department of Insurance, a subcommittee on Banking and Insurance subcommittee requested standards be implemented to help prevent over-selling of health insurance to the elderly.

Harold McGuffey, commissioner of the Insurance Department, said insurance companies should be bound by two requirements: insurance policies must be outlined in "layman terms" and a summary of the medicare program must accompany the policy.

Joe Wright, chairman of a special senior citizens committee formed by the subcommittee, said insurance companies are discriminating against the elderly by terminating insurance policies and denying insurance because of age.

Wright proposed all insurance companies be required by law to state reasons and cause before terminating an insurance policy.

Other matters discussed were: —the automobile sticker law requiring people to have a car sticker and liability insurance.

—McGuffey recommended the amount of mortgage insurance limits be increased and rates decreased and inadequate disability rates be increased so insurance companies will once again offer the insurance.

Does $97.50 seem like a bargain?

That depends on what it buys. At Pikeville College it buys one semester's tuition in the Mining Technology Program.

Of course, books and materials are extra, but the fact remains that you could have a two-year associate degree for under $500.

Yes, that's a bargain.

All business projections point to a boom period for the coal industry in the eighties. Coal is the only alternative energy source with rich reserves to be tapped now, and with the technology at hand to make it practical.

There is still time to arrange for fall registration at Pikeville College, and day or evening classes are available. Remember, in many cases scholarship money is possible, or other sources of financial aid for those who qualify.

All the more reason to put your plans into action now!

In the eastern Kentucky area, Owsley county had the highest unemployment rate at 11.8 percent. Martin county was lowest with 3.5 percent.

Hammond Says Testimony Backs Claim That Ky. Comp Rates High

Testimony heard last week bears out the contention that Kentucky employers are paying high workmen's compensation premiums compared to other states while injured Kentucky workers receive low benefits, State Sen. James Hammond (D-Prestonsburg), chairman of the Subcommittee on Workmen's Compensation, said.

Testifying before the Labor and Industry Subcommittee were representatives from state workmen's compensation funds in West Virginia, Colorado, New York, Oregon, Montana and Nevada. All representatives were members of the American Association of State Compensation Insurance Funds legal committee.

Dan Blizzard, with the West Virginia state fund, said coal mine employers in that state pay a premium of $22.23 per $100 payroll. Injured or disabled coal miners can receive up to $237 per week in benefits.

In Kentucky, a coal mine employer pays $41.60 premium per $100 payroll but a coal miner can only receive a maximum $121 per week in benefits.

Kentucky does not have a state workmen's compensation fund or insurance provider. An employer can insure liability through self-insurance, group self-insurance or private insurance.

Premiums and maximum benefits for the logging industry in four states were also compared. Kentucky employers pay the highest premium, $56 per $100 payroll, but workers receive the lowest maximum weekly benefit, $121.

Logging industry figures from the three other states were: West Virginia, $13.27 premium, $237 maximum weekly benefit; Montana, $20.45 premium, (with logging its most hazardous occupation) and $198 maximum weekly benefit; and Oregon, $40 premium and $224.25 maximum weekly benefit.

All state funds presently operating allow or will soon allow self-insurance by fiscally able employers with the exceptions of North Dakota and Wyoming, said Blizzard.

Self-insured employers are those who have ability to directly pay workmen's compensation. Group self-insurance is two or more employers banding together to pool liabilities.

In addition to the state fund, West

Virginia allows self-insurance; Colorado, Oregon and Montana allow self-insurance and workmen's compensation insurance from private companies; New York allows self-insurance and group self-insurance; and Nevada will allow self-insurance effective Jan. 1, 1980.

All six state funds represented at last week's meeting were established from 1913-15. Sen. Hammond asked whether the representatives felt Kentucky could begin a state provider system now.

Colorado representative Feay-Burton Smith said he felt it was feasible for Kentucky to begin a state fund with General Fund money then repay that amount. Smith said Colorado was given $5,000 in 1915 to begin the fund but with mandatory participation by state agencies that amount was not used.

In answer to questions concerning allegations that state funds were operating on a bankrupt level, all the representatives indicated their funds are self-supporting.

Blizzard said the West Virginia fund has put its premiums in investments so more than $1.10 in benefits can be returned for every $1 in premiums. Benefits for older workers have been upgraded 33 one-third percent, he said. Hammond said he favors a state insurance provider which would compete with private industry and bring rates down. This would not be an exclusive state fund.

The subcommittee planned study of a bill draft for a state provider system. Hammond said the bill will be part of a package aimed at lowering premiums and raising worker benefits.

The package will contain several bills concerned with correcting alleged abuses in the industry classification system used to assign premium rates; a change in time of payment so it can be paid over a longer period of time rather than "up front" removal of impediments to self-insurance; and safe work experience credit resulting in lower rates for employers with good safety records.

Hammond said it seems Kentucky has been "derelict" in using innovative ways to give additional coverage to workers and reduced premiums for employers.

Kentucky ranks 14th nationally in high cost of premium rates but is 42nd in benefits paid to workers.

In addition to this subcommittee, a special Legislative Research Commission subcommittee is studying the problem. The special subcommittee includes members of the Labor and Industry Committee and the Banking and Insurance Committee.

Take a Rest From Stress

By Catherine Winters

Do you find it hard to get out of bed in the morning? Does the thought of the work week worry you? If your heart is racing and it isn't love, you are probably experiencing some form of stress. Just about everyone does.

Adults, both male and female, encounter stress on-the-job and on-the-homefront. Children can also encounter stress—as a result of heavy schoolwork, feuding parents or adolescent anxiety. In fact, a nationwide survey of 2500 people by the National Institute of Mental Health has found that many forms of stress may be serious enough to interfere with everyday life. Almost one third of the respondents reported that they had experienced high levels of stress during the year prior to the survey.

From Butterflies to Ulcers

How stress affects you depends upon your individual make-up. For some people, stress may cause anxiety or physical nervousness. For others, stress can result in despair and mental illness. Basically, stress is a reaction that occurs in both the mind and body when a person is forced to adapt or adjust to an event, whether it be the death of a loved one, the prospect of missing the bus, or the fear of failing an exam. Among the symptoms of stress are a racing heart, sweaty palms, butterflies in the stomach, light perspiration, pressure on the back of the neck, eating too much or too little, drinking or smoking too much, insomnia, diarrhea, menstrual irregularities, recurrent colds, vaginitis, bladder infections, and emotions such as unhappiness or depression.

Because stress is such a common phenomenon, you may tend to take it for granted and underestimate its seriousness. Don't. Linked to stress are between 50-80% of all diseases and physical ills, including ulcers, high blood pressure, headaches, and heart attacks. Some research indicates that even cancer may be linked to stress. 90% of all sudden deaths could be the result of severe emotional stress.

According to General Mills' report, "Family Health in an Era of Stress", more than four out of every five adult family members need to reduce stress in their daily lives. In this national sample of 1,254 of American's 58 million families, adult family members reported that the stress of everyday living is one of the main reasons why they are not as healthy as they might be.

Rising Prices—Rising Blood Pressure

What are the causes of stress among Americans today? Inflation, according to the General Mills report, is the major cause of stress in the country. Over half of the respondents blame their stress on the high cost of food; 24% on the high cost of medical care; 34% on the fear of not being able to meet bills; 32% on not being able to save for the future; 23% on family problems such as trouble with children, illness in the family, marital problems and caring for older parents; 20% on crime.

Stress figures so prominently in most Americans' lives that almost all of the respondents said that they felt a need to reduce the amount of stress they experience daily. Close to one out of every two Americans are finding it harder to cope with the problems of everyday living than they did a few years ago; very few find it easier these days. Lower income families and single parents are finding it especially difficult to cope.

While stress can affect anyone, two social psychiatrists—one from the University of Chicago and one from the National Institute of Mental Health—who have been following the stress experiences of 1100 Chicagoans since 1972, have found that women, the younger and lower income groups are particularly vulnerable in severe stress-producing situations. For example, losing a job is a stressful occurrence to which women are more prone. Women are more likely than men to be fired, to leave one job for another, to give up outside employment for homemaking and to enter or reenter the work force. Low income and low levels of education also increase the odds that a person will be fired or laid off, or leave a job for reasons of health.

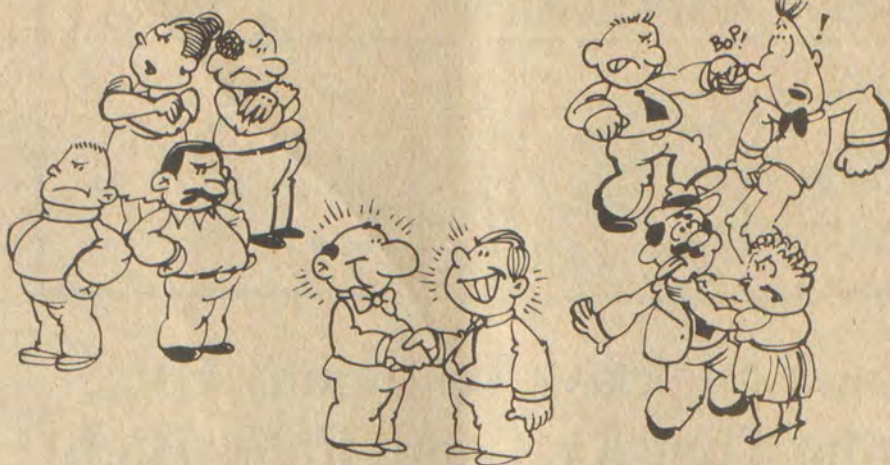

In addition, a 1977 study for the National Institute of Occupational Health ranked 130 jobs according to the incidence of reported mental illness experienced by individuals employed in such jobs (mental illness can be considered an indicator of stress.) The survey found that the most stress producing jobs were traditional female jobs such as nursing and other health related fields, waitressing and clerical work.

The Wages of Stress

According to some researchers, female clerical and sales workers are prone to stress because on-the-job they have a nonsupportive boss toward whom they harbor hostility. Black women, especially those who hold service jobs such as nursing aides or cleaning women, are more likely than other workers to find only part-time or temporary work and less likely to be able to find work when they need it: two reasons for their high incidence of hypertension—which can lead to heart disease and stroke.

According to 1973 census figures, black women are three times as likely as white women to earn incomes which place them below the nation's official poverty level, and they are more likely to be the sole support of their families—extremely high stress producing situations, and further evidence of the damaging effects of low status occupations on women. Married women who try to juggle career and domestic responsibilities simultaneously are also at high risk for stress-related ills.

A woman who ascends the corporate ladder may experience more stress not because she can't handle the job, but because she is one of the few women around and, thus, she feels, more pressure to succeed. It's been found, however, that women in high power jobs may experience less job-related stress simply because traditionally women have been taught to express their feelings instead of bottling them up—an example that many male executives would be wise to follow.

To Fight Back, Relax

Fortunately all this talk about stress doesn't have to make you stressful. There are ways to keep stress in check or to alleviate it altogether. Understanding what causes stress, how we react to it and how we can control it is important in determining just how to overcome it. At a ski and year-round resort in the Rocky Mountains, for example, physician-run summer workshops show individuals how to live less stressful lives. Individuals are taught how to relax, and techniques are explored to eliminate the mental and physical effects of stress. Achieving and maintaining sound health, important factors in controlling stress, are also taught.

Although 70% of the respondents in the General Mills survey are more committed to maintaining their health today than they were several years ago, only 36% of these individuals are committed to an ongoing exercise regimen. Less than half said that they are working harder at exercise than they did a year ago (9% are actually exercising less.)

Among the reasons these families cite for not exercising is, ironically, the need to relax from the daily stress of life. Yet, participation in a daily physical activity can actually reduce stress and tension. According to the Perrier Study, a national survey conducted by Louis Harris and Associates, 80% of the active participants in exercise report that they feel much better overall since starting their exercise regimen.

Less Stress

In addition to examining the reasons for your stress and engaging in exercise regularly, you might also, as many do, try meditation, jogging, warm baths or even a massage. If none of these appeal to you, consider the following suggestions for lessening or alleviating stress:

- Don't drink coffee or smoke all day. The caffeine in coffee will only make you jumpier than you are, and tobacco is not beneficial to your overall health. Opt for water or fruit juice instead.
- Don't overextend yourself to trying to do two or more tasks simultaneously. Don't set impossible standards for yourself, expecting to do everything right on time all the time. Take your time and complete tasks one at a time. After all, you're only human.
- Set aside a block of time for yourself every day away from business associates, family and friends. Stick to it. Often, time spent alone, whether you attend a movie, go on a shopping spree, read a good book, jog, or daydream can do a lot for your peace of mind as you'll be happy to discover.
- Don't be afraid to fantasize. Imagining the death or downfall of that crochety boss and your subsequent promotion to his or her spot, for example, can do worlds of good for your psyche the next time you feel anger welling up within you.
- Don't hesitate to discuss your feelings or problems with your employer or co-workers, with your spouse or teenager. Suppressing your feelings can only make you more tense than you are.
- Do take action. If you're unhappy with your working conditions, for example, do something about it. Find a new job, or examine your situation and decide what can be done to improve it. Sit down and have a heart-to-heart with that friend whose constant tardiness for movie dates is enough to drive you crazy.
- Consult a doctor if your feelings of stress are constantly interfering with your performance in everyday life. Don't put it off. Your health and peace of mind should come above all else!

State Would Process Timber

Although Kentucky is ranked fourth among all states in hardwood production and 50 percent of the state's land is covered with forests, only 25 percent of its lumber is processed in Kentucky.

The Commerce Department is working to change that through its newly formed marketing development division. Jack Scott, director, recently returned from a two-week visit to six foreign countries in an attempt to attract wood-processing companies and other wood-related investors to Kentucky.

"We generated a lot of interest in Kentucky," Scott said. "I think this trip was very important in opening more potentials for the timber we have here."

Scott said 13 companies have scheduled trips to Kentucky from late July to November. The companies are from Sweden, Belgium, Germany, Italy, Austria, and England and specialize mainly in lumber exporting, wood veneer, wood-working machinery and furniture dimension.

The Commerce Department also is trying to interest domestic companies in Kentucky's timber industry.

"We're talking to a lot of people in the United States about locating in Kentucky," he added. "A lot of the interest has come from the west coast."

Along with trying to increase business locally, Scott said there are other ways to help Kentucky companies improve themselves.

"We help them enlarge their facilities if they need it by assisting them in getting their loans and by increasing the volume of wood-related exports," he added.

The marketing development division of Commerce was formed June 1 by merging agribusiness with coal and natural resources divisions.

Alaska Line News Approval

The Federal Energy Regulatory Commission, by approving two major design elements of the Alaska Natural Gas Pipeline, today took another step toward final approval of the project.

The Commission determined for the Alaska segment both the size of the pipeline and the pipeline's operating pressure. Both are essential for the pipeline's builders to finalize cost estimates and obtain financing.

When fully operational the Alaskan Natural Gas Transportation System will bring Alaskan gas to the lower 48 states, supplying five percent of the nation's natural gas requirements. Congress and the President have declared the project to be vitally important to the nation's ability to obtain new sources of energy.

The Commission denied a request by the State of Alaska to delay a decision on pipeline design pending further factual inquiry. A delay in determining the pressure could have serious and wide ranging consequences in delaying the entire project, it said. "The one decision that we cannot and will not make is to delay making a decision," the Commission said.

The Commission approved a 48-inch diameter for the Alaskan portion of the system, and 1,260 psi (pounds per square inch) operating pressure. These were initially set by the President's September 1977 Decision approving the route, subject to review by the Commission. Last March the project sponsor, Alaskan Northwest Natural Gas Transportation Co., asked the Commission to confirm those design values so it could proceed with the preparation of a final cost and schedule estimate.

After asking for comments, the Commission said today no new information has been submitted to it which would call for a conclusion different from the capacity specified in the President's Decision.

The choice of operating pressure is important not only because of its relationship to capacity, but also because it affects the ability of the gas stream to carry natural gas liquids. The State of Alaska seeks to develop a worldclass petrochemical industry using gas liquids, and is concerned that the 1,260 operating pressure could preclude that development.

Mrs. Blair-Mrs. Akers CF Fund Drive Leaders

Mrs. Myrtle Blair will organize a door-to-door campaign in Watergap, and Mrs. Kay Akers will lead the same type of campaign in Lancer to benefit children with cystic fibrosis, according to Charles Taylor, president of the Bluegrass Chapter of the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation.

Mrs. Akers, has conducted a previous campaign for the foundation.

"Because of the continuing support and concern shown by people like Mrs. Akers, thousands of CF children everywhere are able to breathe a little easier," said Charles Thayer, President of the Bluegrass Chapter of the foundation.

Help for Small Operators Seen

Kentucky coal operators have found, as have mining personnel in other major coal-producing states, that their operations face a tough transition period resulting from the Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act of 1977 (SMCRA).

The weight of compliance will fall heaviest on the small independent coal operator, who must confront complex environmental, permitting and planning regulations without the benefit of in-house engineering expertise afforded by the larger coal companies.

But the load may be lifted—at least partially—for Kentucky coal operators, regulators and consultants through a cooperative demonstration program sponsored by the Tennessee Valley Authority (TVA) and the University of Kentucky Institute for Mining and Minerals Research (IMMR). TVA funding totalling $150,000 over a two-year period will enable the IMMR's Office for Information Services and Technical Liaison (OISTL) to conduct a Surface Mining Continuing Education and Extension Program that will address the SMCRA regulations.

The bulk of the program will be conducted through four extension offices located in the Kentucky coal fields. Three of the offices will be funded by TVA and located in Eastern Kentucky. The fourth office, located in Western Kentucky, will be funded by IMMR. The specific locations have not been determined. The TVA funding will expand the current program in Lexington, as well as provide the three extension offices in Eastern Kentucky. According to the TVA contract, the extension offices and local courses offerings are necessary because "operators cannot be expected to travel long distances (to Lexington) to attend a seminar."

The seminars will be geared toward small surface and deep mine coal operators producing fewer than 200,000 tons per year, consulting engineers, college faculty and students serving the mining industry and state and federal regulators. The IMMR program will be closely coordinated with the U.S. Department of the Interior, Office of Surface Mining Region II, Knoxville, Tennessee, and the Kentucky Bureau of Surface Mining.

Wheelwright To Get $3,974 for Streets

Wheelwright will receive $3,974 for municipal road improvements in fiscal year 1979-'80, according to state Transportation Secretary Calvin Grayson. The city will use the money for blacktop resurfacing on Back Street, Church Street, Dunbar School Road, First Avenue, First Street, Palmer Street, Second Avenue, Second Street and Stoker Branch Road.

BOOKMOBILE LIBRARIANS HONORED—Two bookmobile librarians from the Big Sandy Region were recently presented key rings commemorating 25 years of bookmobile use by Kentucky. The presentations were made by Barbara Williams, state librarian, formerly of Prestonsburg, at the state library picnic, which was the first of several events planned to honor bookmobile librarians in the coming year. Those attending included (from left): Buddy Ratcliff, of Beeks Branch near Martin; Wendell P. Butler, secretary of the Education and Arts Cabinet; Mrs. Williams; Paulette Reed, Magoffin county; and Homer Hall, regional librarian.

DID YOU KNOW THAT

The UK Donovan Program, which offers tuition-free courses for persons 65 or older, has attracted national attention and enrolled students from all over the U.S. and several foreign countries?

EQUAL RIGHTS

CANBERRA, Australia—Female jockeys in Australia were recently granted equal riding rights with men. Previously they could ride only in 12-horse events against other women.

The most economical distance between two points is long distance.

Consider the price of a gallon of gasoline.

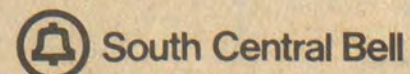

Now consider the price of a long distance call.

For 56¢ or less you can talk one minute across the country from 8 A.M. to 5 P.M. Additional minutes cost even less. So do calls after 5 P.M. and on weekends. That's for any out-of-state call dialed the 1+ way.*

At home, long distance sends greetings, visits relatives, and helps you handle personal business.

In business, long distance makes sales calls, attends meetings in other cities, and helps solve important problems.

Long distance gets you from point to point a lot cheaper than gasoline.

Long distance. Best mileage for your money.

*Low 1+ rates do not apply to operator-assisted or coin telephone calls.
