Commission Approves Operational Transfer Of Floyd Gas System

The state Energy Regulatory Commission has approved the transfer of operations of a Floyd county natural gas system from Ohio-Kentucky Utilities, Inc. to East Kentucky Utilities, Inc.

The transfer is necessary so the system can become eligible for a federal grant that will permit the upgrading of the system. The upgrading is needed so the system can comply with governing regulations.

Approximately 1,300 customers in the county are served by the system. Communities served are Allen, Dwayne, Hueysville, Garrett, Lackey, Estill and Wayland.

Some 1.1 million disadvantaged youths participated in a nine week summer jobs program during the 1978 fiscal year, according to the 66th annual report of the U.S. Department of Labor.

Garrett School First To Get Commandments

Mrs. Nora Martin, chairwoman of social concerns of the Garrett United Methodist Church, has announced that the Garrett Elementary School is the first Floyd school to receive framed copies of the Ten Commandments.

Fifteen copies were presented to Ralph O'Quinn, principal of the school, by C. D. Francis, chairman of the administrative board of the Garrett church. This provides one copy for each classroom and one for the principal's office.

Mrs. Martin explained how the Ten Commandments may be available:

Have your pastor or leader of any other organization collect $10 for each classroom. When you have collected the full amount needed, mail the money to Kentucky Heritage Foundation, 143 East Broadway, Louisville, Ky. 40204, then call 502-584-3639 to set a date for picking up or delivering the framed copies.

CARD OF THANKS

We would like to take this means of thanking all those who were so kind to us upon our recent bereavement. We want to thank the doctors and nurses at Highlands Regional Medical Center for taking such good care of our sweet mother, Merl Campbell. We would also like to thank all the good friends who stood by us in our hour of sorrow, who sent flowers and brought food, and the ministers, Revs. Wallace Calhoun, Jack Moore, Delman Stanley, and Ed Campbell for their kind words, and the Floyd Funeral Home for their kindness at this sad time.

We want everyone to know how much we thank them. Bless you all.

JOE and NANCY,
LYNN and DAVE CAMPBELL

While the U.S. Labor Department concentrated much of its effort on putting people to work during the 1978 fiscal year, it also improved the performance of its programs to improve the quality of worklife for all Americans, according to the department's annual report.

'A Christmas Carol,' First Presentation by New Group

Prestonsburg Community College's Community Theatre made local history last week by giving its first performance.

The success was achieved by combining the efforts of two drama groups which have been working since early September. The newly formed organizations which function under the Community Service Program are the PCC Community Drama Group, composed of PCC students and other adults in the community, and the Children's Drama Club.

These groups combined to produce Dickens' "A Christmas Carol," by Julian Lee, on the evenings of December 6, 7, and 8, followed by a matinee performance December 9. The performances were attended by a total of 173 persons 87 children and 86 adults.

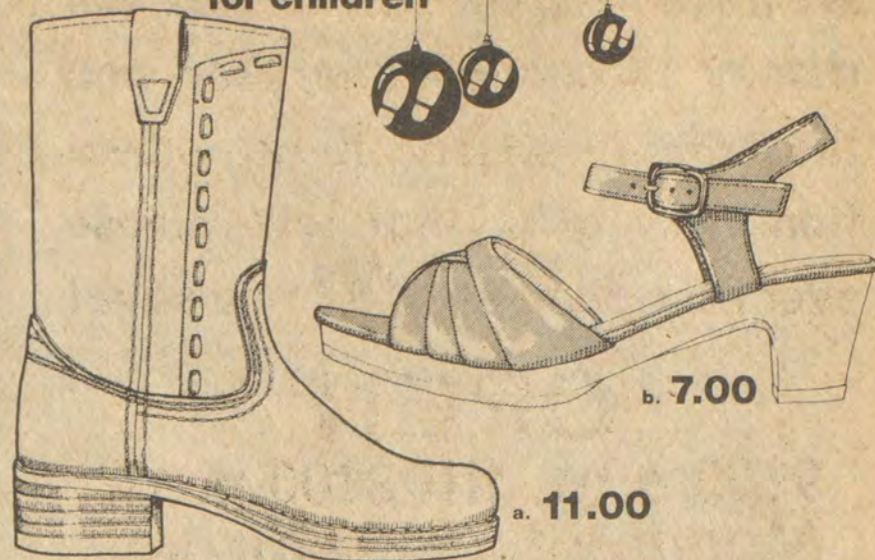

Ebenezer Scrooge was played by Timothy Parker, Fred by David Jones, Bob Cratchit by Ken Wallace. The roles of the ghosts were enacted by Lana Goble, Desi Whitt, Audrey Hudson and Brian Leach, and Tiny Tim was played by Scott Bentley. Other members of the cast included Elizabeth Anne Leslie, Theresa Whitt, Ashley Bailey, Robyn Allen, Amy Allen, Lara Leslie, Larry Leslie, Mary Music, Debi Scutchfield, Kimberly Pugh and Helen Miller. Support personnel included Gordon Lafferty, Cathy Rowe and Gina Perry. The Jenny Wiley Drama Association made costumes available for the play.

Teacher and director of the two groups is Dorothy Anne Howard, a graduate of PCC who has received her B.A. in theatre and dance from Western Kentucky University. Before returning to this area, she participated in a number of professional performances as choreographer, director, actress and dancer. She began teaching disco dance through the Community Services Program during the fall of 1978. During the past summer she taught creative drama and dance in the Summer College for Youth program.

Next spring, the two drama groups will continue, but at the end of the semester they will present separate performances. The adult drama group will be offered for credit. Those interested in joining and supporting these organizations should contact the Office of Community Services at Prestonsburg Community College.

Staff Sponsors Party At Riverview Manor

Approximately 200 persons attended the Christmas party sponsored last Friday evening by the staff of Riverview Manor Nursing Home. Riverview's 12-foot Christmas tree, with its home-crafted decorations, was loaded with gifts. A contata presented by the staff, a visit from Santa and a banquet meal for all featured the evening.

Pharmacy Footnotes

by Harold Cooley

Selection of reliable sources of health information and advice is of course very important to consumer health. In addition to that provided by television, radio, magazines, newspapers, etc., official health information should be carefully appraised along scientific guidelines as both reliable and unreliable sources of health information exist. Then a selection of products and services needed by the health consumer can be made intelligently. The most important question to ask is whether this health information comes from a reliable source.

At COOLEY APOTHECARY, No. 2 Town Center Bldg., Prestonsburg, 886-8106, our registered pharmacist is a reliable source of health information. We do not play doctor, but we do render assistance, offer alternatives to a problem and advise when first aid is appropriate. At COOLEY APOTHECARY we specialize in personalized service. We are small enough to know you and large enough to serve you. We are open for your convenience 9-5:30 PM Mon.-Fri.; 9-5 PM Sat.

Fall Festival Royalty

Miss Rachel Osborne and David Joe Wallen, fifth grade students of Prestonsburg Elementary School, were named queen and king of the Fall Festival. They are both in Mrs. Velva Compton's home room.

Miss Osborne is the daughter of Jim Clay Osborne and granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earnest Osborne, all of Prestonsburg.

Mr. Wallen is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Sammy K. Wallen, of Prestonsburg, and the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Troy Compton, also of Prestonsburg, and Mr. and Mrs. George Samuel Wallen, of Allen.

Bill Would Permit Charges to Students In Some Cases

A bill that would allow public schools to charge students fees under some circumstances was approved last week by the special committee to examine the student fee structure.

The committee is a special Legislative Research Commission body and its recommendations will be forwarded to the Interim Joint Committee on Education.

The bill as approved would allow schools to charge students for "necessary fees and transportation costs for cultural enrichment programs, field trips or co-curricular activities" when:

-Participation is voluntary and not necessary to fulfill the requirements of any course of study.

-The activity is of a type authorized by the local board of education.

-The activity is approved by the superintendent.

-The program or trip is for other than an athletic activity.

-The local school board has arranged to pay for those students who couldn't participate otherwise.

The proposed bill also would eliminate the requirement that local school districts account for at least $5 per child of the funds spent for consumable classroom supplemental instructional materials. The state allots $20.44 per student to pay for such things as materials used in science labs. Prior to the $20.44 per student appropriated by the 1978 legislative session, students were required to pay fees for some materials and activities.

All but one committee member voted for the bill. The dissenting member, Bill Burr, of Bardstown, said that he would like to submit a minority report on the bill. Burr had objected earlier in the meeting that in order for schools to charge for activities, student participation had to be voluntary. He had said that this could be a problem for such activities as participation in summer band camps.

CARD OF THANKS

The family of Lou Hall Osborne wishes to express its deep gratitude and appreciation to all who were so kind to us upon our recent bereavement. We thank all the friends and neighbors who brought food and sent flowers, the staff of Highlands Hospital and Dr. James D. Adams, and Riverview Manor Nursing Home for their care and kindness. We would also thank the ministers for their words of comfort and Hall Funeral Home for its courteous, efficient service.

ANNOUNCEMENT

By Dearing Motor Sales Wayland, Ky.

On Oct. 18, 1979, I sent a letter to Chevrolet Motor Division resigning as dealer after 43 years which my brother-in-law, Ray Fraley, and I signed up for about May, 1936, and which I have carried on since Mr. Fraley retired about 1967. About the year 1969 we signed up for the Oldsmobile franchise which also has now been resigned.

I wish to state that it has been a pleasure being in this business, and I wish to thank our many customers, and revere you very highly. My thanks, also, to Chevrolet and Olds for their many courtesies. I only wish the best for our successors, the Village Chevrolet and Olds, Inc., headed by Mr. Ballard Crum and son Tony and Mr. Sam Doyle, the new owners. My hope and wish is that it will be a most aggressive dealership that will be a credit and benefit for our people at Wayland and surrounding communities.

I still have a few good used cars and trucks and one beautiful 1979 Olds four-door on hand and for sale.

Baril Trial
Set Jan. 15

The murder trial of Tony Baril, which was scheduled for Tuesday of this week, has been continued to Jan. 15 on motion of his attorney, it was announced Monday by Commonwealth's Attorney James R. Allen.

The attorney, Bart Adams, of Louisville, said in the motion filed with circuit court here that the defendant had not been "staffed for release" in time for the trial. Baril has been in a Louisville hospital for psychiatric evaluation after a reported suicide attempt a few weeks ago.

Baril is accused of the knife-slashing near here of Earl Chester Porter. At an earlier trial which resulted in a "hung" jury he was represented by the Public Advocacy office. His new counsel is a private attorney.

PHS's Layne Named To All-State Team

Dewey Layne, standout performer for the Prestonsburg Blackcats grid team over the past four years, was named this week to the Lexington Herald-Leader's prestigious All-State football first team.

At his position as fullback for PHS last year Layne rushed for 900 yards and scored nine touchdowns but his first three years as a starter for the Blackcats was as a linebacker and it was for his skills as a defensive back that Layne was included on the All-State defensive first string line-up.

Of the six-foot, 215-lb. Layne, Prestonsburg Head Football Coach Phillip Haywood said: "I think his aggressiveness and determination are his key strengths. He constantly attacks and never lets up. That's the thing college coaches seem to like most."

During the past year Layne was also named to the Louisville Courier-Journal's first team all-state in Class AA and for the second year in a row to The Ashland Daily Independent's all-area grid team as linebacker. In addition, Layne was voted Most Valuable Player by his Blackcat teammates for the past two years.

Kentucky, Eastern Kentucky, Morehead, East Tennessee and Middle Tennessee are among the schools interested in Layne who is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Jake Layne, of Prestonsburg.

GRANTS FOR ARTS GROUPS TO TOTAL NEAR $26 MILLION

The National Endowment for the Arts has announced 120 Challenge Grants for fiscal 1980 which total nearly $26 million for arts organizations nationwide.

The grant requires a private match of $3 or more in new money over a three-year period for each federal dollar awarded.

Livingston L. Biddle, Jr., endowment chairman, said 161 cultural organizations have received Challenge Grants—59 in the combined 1977-78 round and 102 in the 1979 round—totaling $57 million in federal money.

By LARRY BURKE

There is a story told about a man riding down the beach on a bicycle and he saw a young man out in the water calling for help. Immediately the man jumped from his bicycle and swam to the boy's rescue.

"Thanks, mister, for saving my life," said the boy. "That's all right, son; just prove that your life was worth saving."

You may feel that the man made a rather crude remark, and in a sense it is rather a hard way of looking at the situation. Or is it? There are so many blessings in the lives of all of us that we take for granted. The cost and sacrifices that have been made for us are so often forgotten.

Our freedom was won by others—and by looking today at many of our actions they could easily say, "Were they worth it?"

It was Goethe who said: "... each generation must win anew its basic freedoms." In a sense, we must start from scratch, and that is a great responsibility.

Poinsettias are the traditional Christmas plant. In addition to red, white, pink and bicolor poinsettias are available. Many new long lasting varieties are available. If cared for properly they may last a month or more after Christmas.

CHOOSING A PLANT

The bracts should have an intense color and be free of blemishes. The true flowers (yellow in color) should not be mature. If three to five large bracts are grown per pot, they should all be of uniform height. If many smaller bract heads are produced per plant, the pot should be rounded in shape. Make sure the leaves are dark green and do not show insect, disease or physical damage.

CARING FOR THE PLANT

Poinsettias use a lot of water. Check the pot daily. Make sure it remains moist but do not overwater.

Keep the plants out of drafts. Excessively hot, dry air from heating ducts will cause the plant to deteriorate rapidly. Poinsettias are sensitive to cold so avoid location near outside doors where they will receive drafts of chilling air.

Keep the plant at temperatures from 65 to 70 degrees. Red poinsettias will retain their color bracts for four to six weeks and white poinsettias for up to two months if the temperature is kept around 60 degrees. Don't allow temperatures to drop below 55. Whenever the soil feels dry, water the poinsettia thoroughly but never let it stand in water.

REBLOOMING POINSETTIAS

The poinsettia is one of the most difficult flowering potted plants to rebloom in the home. Unless you plan to make exceptional efforts, discard the plant after flowering.

After the bracts fall, gradually withhold water. The plant will become dormant and the leaves will yellow and fall. Store the dormant plant in a cool location (50-60 degrees) until spring. Water only enough to keep the roots from drying out.

Around March 1, gradually reduce watering until the soil is very dry, but not so dry that the stems shrivel. Then store the plant in an airy place where the temperature remains about 60 degrees. In mid-April, cut the stems back to six inches above the soil and replant the plant in a container 1-2 inches larger than the original container. Use a good potting soil mixture such as 2 parts soil, 1 part coarse sphagnum peat moss, and 1 part medium to coarse perlite, by volume.

Water the plant thoroughly and put it near a southern window in a 70-75 degree temperature. Water the soil surface whenever it feels dry. When new growth appears, begin fertilizing every two weeks with a complete analysis water soluble fertilizer, using the rate recommended on the label.

Move the plant outdoors in early June to a location that's lightly shaded, and continue watering and fertilizing. Between August 15 and September 1 cut the stems back allowing three to four leaves to remain on each shoot. Bring the plant indoors and put it near a window where it will get southern exposure. Keep it in a 65-70 degree temperature and continue watering and fertilizing.

Poinsettias flower about 10 weeks after the length of daylight shortens to 11 hours and less. So to have the plant in full bloom by Christmas, it must be kept in complete darkness from 5 p.m. to 8 a.m. starting the first part of October and continuing until Thanksgiving. Flowering will be delayed if plants are exposed to any kind of light during the 5-8 period. You can put the plant in a closet or cover it with an opaque box or cloth to keep it in the dark. In the daytime, the plant must be near a sunny window. Continue fertilizing until mid-December.

For best results, follow the directions carefully, making sure you water the poinsettia correctly, give it enough sunlight at the right times and cut back the stems when specified.

SOME FURNITURE STYLES
MAKE YOU FEEL WARMER

The types of furniture you choose, and where you put it, can make you feel warmer this winter. Keep this in mind when you're buying furniture and arranging it in your home. Making the right choices can mean you'll feel warmer when the thermostat is turned down to 65 degrees F.

A high-backed or wing-backed upholstered chair is your best bet for thermal comfort. When you're relaxing or reading, the high-backed chair helps to confine your body heat. Face the chair toward the fireplace and you won't realize the thermostat is turned down low. A footstool will keep your feet off cool or drafty floors.

In winter, upholstered furniture is warmer than wood. But wood is warmer than metal. Stay away from chairs with open backs. They won't trap the heat around you, and you'll feel colder.

Where you put furniture in a room makes a difference on how warm you feel, too. Keep chairs and sofas away from windows and exterior walls in the winter. Put massive, closed pieces of furniture, such as bookcases or china cabinets, on outside walls. They'll act as insulators.

Bach Salute on KET

"The Joy Bach," a salute to Johann Sebastian Bach's influence on two centuries of serious and popular music, encores on KET, Sunday, December 23 at 8 p.m. The one-hour special traces Bach's career and the continued appreciation his work enjoys today in concert halls, churches and even discos.

The show features performances by famous artists and renowned musical groups including violinists Yehudi Menuhin, Rosalyn Tureck and the Berlin Chamber Orchestra. Together they reveal the classical treatment given Bach's music.

The modern-day "Bach revolution" is evident in the use of music synthesizers, the psychedelic translation of a Bach fugue by organist Virgil Fox and the demonstration of dancing to Bach in a disco club.

Actor Brian Blessed, a Bach look-alike, narrates the special and portrays the musician in several dramatic vignettes.

Wellman Appointed, 5 Regional Offices Ended by Governor

In his first official acts as governor, John Y. Brown Jr. last Tuesday appointed Billy G. Wellman the state's adjutant-general and signed executive orders eliminating the five regional governor's offices in Kentucky and the Secretary of the Cabinet position.

He also signed appointment orders for cabinet secretaries he had already appointed. Sworn in, at Brown's office at the Capitol, were Geroge Atkins, secretary of finance; William B. Sturgill, secretary of energy; Frank Metts, secretary of transportation; Larry Townsend, secretary of development, and Wellman, adjutant-general.

According to Kentucky law, the adjutant-general must be appointed and sworn in immediately after the inauguration of the governor. Deputy Adjutant-General Taylor Davidson says the tradition probably stems from early Kentucky history when the governor needed the military forces on his side immediately after taking the oath of office.

Ministerial Group Adopts Resolution

Members of the Floyd Ministerial Association, meeting at the Floyd County Library December 18, passed the following resolution in regard to the Iranian crisis:

"(1) That we encourage all our citizens to engage in personal and corporate prayer for the safe release of the hostages and a peaceful and just solution to the Iranian crisis;

"(2) Particularly, that on Christmas Sunday, December 23, and during Christmas services, that prayers of intercession be offered in our churches for peace on earth and for brotherhood among the peoples of the world;

"(3) That churches ring church bells each day at noon until the hostages are released as a reminder to our citizens to pause and pray for their release.

"We commend these measures to the people of Floyd county as a means of keeping these concerns before us."

Tables, covered with white cloths, were enhanced by Christmas decorations made by members of the group. Favors, donated by business firms, were placed at each plate. With Mrs. Becky Short and Mrs. Darlene Jones serving as hostesses, the luncheon was enjoyed by guests, Mrs. Edith James, Miss Alice Harris, Mrs. Virginia Goble, Mrs. Margaret Alley and Mrs. Betsy Rennick, and members, Mesdames Phyllis Herrick, Eleanor Horn, Mary Jane Brown, Mae Kendrick, Beatrice Collins, Pat Necessary, Mabel Donahoe, Dorothy Burke, Lucy Regan, Frances Pitts, Julia Stephens, Norma Stepp, Mae K. Roberts, Minnie Grace Sutherland, Docia Woods, Mary Sue Moore, Fannie Runnels, Catherine Stephens, Gertrude Bradbury, Ruth Francis, Peg Hewlett, and Gladys Blackburn.

Following the distribution of the gifts by the president, assisted by Mrs. Mary Sue Moore, Mrs. Edith James played Christmas Carols, with members and guests joining in the singing. The next meeting of the club will be at 1 p.m. Tuesday, January 8, at the church, with Mrs. Peg Hewlett and Mrs. Gladys Blackburn as hostesses.

New Food Stamp Rules
In Effect, Jan. 1st

New food stamp eligibility rules to help households with elderly or disabled members will go into effect Jan. 1.

The new rules provide special medical and shelter deductions for households containing persons age 60 or older or persons who receive Supplemental Security Income or Social Security disability payments.

According to the Department of Human Resources, which administers the federal food stamp program in Kentucky, households making application for food stamps will be able to deduct from their incomes all medical expenses in excess of $35 per month incurred by an elderly or disabled person in that household. Food stamp eligibility and benefits are based generally on household size and net monthly income after deductions are subtracted.

Under the new rule, medical expenses of elderly or disabled persons are not deductible if such expenses are covered by an insurance policy or other reimbursing plan. The medical expenses of other household members are not allowable deductions.

After Jan. 1, households with elderly or disabled members also may deduct the full amount of shelter costs if those costs exceed half of the household's adjusted income. For all other households, the excess shelter deduction remains limited to $90.

The food stamp program lists allowable shelter costs as rent and mortgage payments, utility bills, property taxes and insurance on a home.

Persons who think they may qualify for the new deductions should contact their local food stamp office or call toll-free 1-800-372-2973.

Who Wants To Count Birds On Christmas Day?

By Lia Herse

Are you a devoted nature lover and a serious, not necessarily professional, bird watcher? You might be interested in volunteering your services to participate in hiking trips organized by dedicated ornithologists working out of the offices of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Services, the National Audubon Society, and the Research Center of Cornell University Laboratory of Ornithology.

These walking-watching outings are prepared and planned for one specific purpose: keeping track of the North American bird population. Its fluctuations during its annual cycle, as well as the various changes that take place in the bird habitat, are recorded.

The Christmas Count

Each field trip, which is an annual event, is open to all bird lovers—professional as well as amateur. One trip, known throughout the bird watcher's world as the "Christmas Day Bird Count," is scheduled every year between the middle and the end of December. It derives its name from the tradition initiated at the turn of the century by Frank M. Chapman, a dedicated, self-taught ornithologist who set out with several other amateur bird watchers to hike and count on birds on Christmas Day in 1900.

The tradition continued through the decades that followed. The only difference today is that you can choose any day between the middle and the end of December. Also, as a result of expanded interest in conservation projects and wildlife, the modern-day Christmas census involves the cooperation of several thousand youngsters and women of all ages. In recent years they have made a valuable contribution to the winter research.

In order to qualify as a "Christmas" birder, an individual must be willing, his or her health permitting, to spend at least eight hours in the field (beginning at any time) during one day. The bird count could start at midnight or in the early-morning hours, depending on a bird watcher's interest. For those interested in nocturnal birds, such as owls, hawks and other birds of prey, the darkness of the night will play an important part in the bird count.

The mode of transportation is a matter of choice: bicycles, snowshoes, boats and snowmobiles are all good, depending on the geography and climate of the region. Good legwork means walking and basic field hiking.

Birders report at the end of their workday to a group leader in a prearranged location, often a restaurant or local hotel. Here they exchange notes and observations. Compiled lists are sent into the National Audubon Society's headquarters in New York. In a recent survey more than 200 species of birds were observed in one day for a total bird count of over 70 million!

The Spring Count

Another bird count field trip open to all amateur and professional bird watchers is conducted by the Ornithology Center of Cornell University in the spring of each year. The purpose of this study is to record the habits of nesting birds.

By counting and recording territorial calls in early spring and by studying types of nesting sites and incubating activities of various birds, naturalists and conservation specialists are able to detect any change that might effect the annual life cycle of wild birds. In recent years this study, along with the Christmas Day Bird Count, has been responsible for the restoration of almost-extinct birds of prey, such as the bald eagle and the peregrine falcon, to areas of the country where these birds had almost been decimated by the constant use of DDT.

Also to its credit, the Cornell Laboratory has successfully launched a program for the promotion of advanced clinical ornithology, the author-ornithologists who direct the program recently succeeded in doctoring and hatching DDT burdened wild bird eggs which were too thin-shelled to hatch in their natural state.

For more information about the spring bird nesting study, you can write to Cornell University Laboratory of Ornithology, 159 Sapsucker Woods Road, Ithaca, New York 14853.

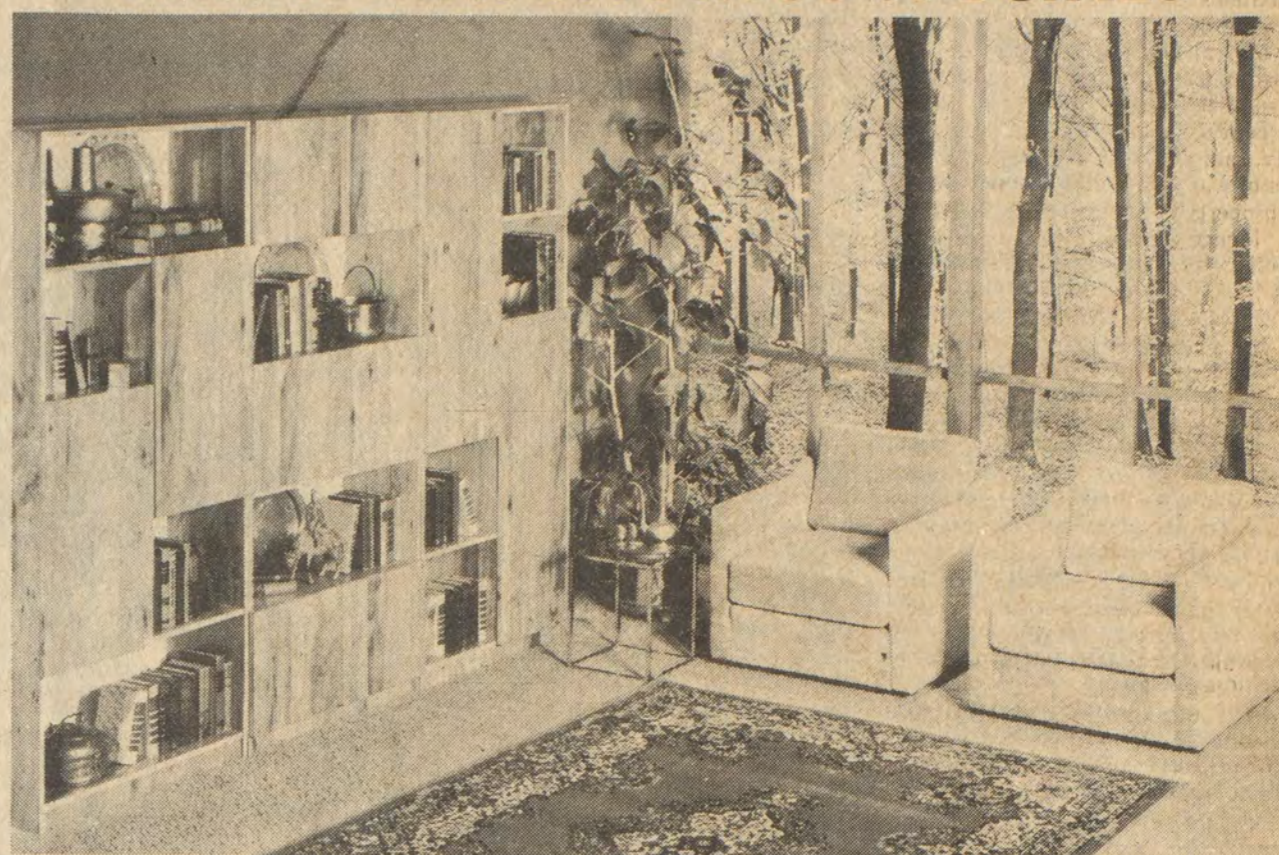

Bird lovers interested in specialized bird counts, such as the one-day bald eagle count in the Great Lakes region or the falcon census of the California coastline, can get detailed information by writing to the Bird Research Laboratory, U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, Laurel, Maryland 20810.

Those interested in joining the Christmas Day bird census can write to the National Audubon Society, 950 Third Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022.

Surface Mining Regulations Being Written, Harscher Says

Regulations are now being written by the Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection with the aim of achieving state primacy in implementing the federal surface mining law, Natural Resources Secretary Frank Harscher said last week.

Harscher told the Subcommittee on Surface Mining that drafts on three sections of the regulations already are being reviewed by outside groups composed of industrial consumers, citizens and environmentalists, and coal industry people.

Review by the three groups is designed to bring more public involvement into the process in addition to the usual citizen input, he said. Sections being reviewed now deal with the hearing process, inspection and enforcement, and definitions.

By March 3, 1980, Kentucky must change its statutes to comply with the federal surface mining law, have a program for implementing the law and permanent regulations.

If a state does not comply with the federal law by June 3, then the federal government will administer the law.

Harscher said if the state does become the primary enforcer of the surface mining law, it will mean re-issuing about 6,000 mining permits. Miners who believe they will be mining eight months from the date Kentucky achieves primacy must refile within 60 days of the primacy date.

Two advantages to Kentucky being the primary enforcer are that the state can then receive funding for an abandoned land program and can retain control over coal industry regulation, said Gene Brandenburg, commissioner of the department's Bureau of Surface Mining.

About $25 to $35 million each year would be available for an abandoned land program through a 15-cent per ton surface mining charge and a 25-cent per ton underground mining charge, said

Brandenburg. The money currently goes to the federal government.

Harscher said Kentucky has received a $1.2 million federal grant to develop an abandoned lands program. The state has also received an $8.2 million grant to begin a small mine operators assistance program, he said. This assistance program would help operators mining less than 100,000 tons each year with gathering mandatory hydrologic data.

The Natural Resources secretary said the main reason for his subcommittee appearance was to get a sense of what the legislators want concerning the surface mining law.

Sen. Kenneth Gibson (D-Madisonville) said he feels the General Assembly should consider statute revisions relating to surface mining soon after convening in January.

Rep. James Allen (D-Martin) asked why the legislature couldn't adopt the entire federal surface mine law as state law. Allen, chairman of the Agriculture and Natural Resources Subcommittee, is not returning to legislature next year.

Harscher said there would be problems with enacting the federal law as a state statute. One reason is that federal law is written for various terrains across the country and would not apply to Kentucky, he said. In addition, the issue is retaining state control, or primacy, over the regulation of surface mining, said Harscher.

National advertising in U.S. daily newspapers climbed 8.2 percent to $1.8 billion in 1978.

Announcement of the action was made by Dr. Charles L. Payne, chairman of the Commission on Occupational Educational Institutions, during the Association's recent 84th annual meeting in Atlanta.

This reaffirmation is based on a formal evaluation to determine that the institution continues to meet not only the standards of quality of the Commission, but also the needs of students, the community, and employers.

Finding productive employment for people needing jobs was the U.S. Department of Labor's "top priority" during the fiscal year, according to Secretary of Labor Ray Marshall.

Buy Fertilizer Now Advises Economist

The ground is frozen and this year's crops are barely out of the fields, but an economist in the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture says it's not too early to buy fertilizer for next year's crops.
Stephen Q. Allen, farm management Extension specialist, says the price of fertilizer is going up and farmers who wait until spring to buy might have difficulty getting delivery.
"The price of all fertilizer will probably increase 10-15 percent by spring," estimates Allen. Inflation and a change in supply will be the main reasons for higher prices, according to the specialist. He explained that some of the country's ammonia plants have closed because of the rising price of natural gas and production in others has slowed.
Allen noted that some farmers anticipate good grain prices next year, and this could prompt greater use of fertilizer. Also if farmers decide to grow more corn and less soybeans, the demand for fertilizer would be driven up.
Also affecting the fertilizer supply for U.S. farmers is the controlled production and rail transportation problems in Canada where the U.S. gets about 75 percent of its potash.
"Farmers should remember that purchasing feed and fertilizer in advance should not materially distort yearly income," reminds Allen. However, the economist said the Internal Revenue Service frowns upon such purchases when there is no sound business reason behind the purchases.

Its Time To Mix Old and New

Maysville, Owensboro and others on the Ohio as well as towns along Big Sandy, Kentucky, the Green, other navigable streams enjoyed exotic trimmings and gifts and strange, sometimes fancy foods.
During the holidays, boats would bring candy in silk paper from New York, glass birds and tin ornaments from Germany, oranges and bananas from the south and many gifts from the Orient. In early days, families would meet the boats at their landings as later they went to the depots to meet the trains.
Some families keep old toys to place under the tree as decorations. Gooseneck sleighs, rusty ice skates, antique hobby horses, sawdust dolls with china heads - all have a way of recapturing joys of past holidays.
Today's holiday decor will sometimes be like today's homes: eclectic. Mixes of the old with the new add warm memories with modern conveniences.
Whatever the decor, make sure the home exudes friendship and a true valuation of the season. Add a red velvet bookmark to the chapter of Luke in the Bible or sprigs of pine and holly to candles in a workshop center for the home.
Don't overdo with fussiness. Better to omit some things and keep harmony, even to setting up and trimming the tree. Make the hearth a welcome to all visitors, and make this Kentucky Christmas the best yet, to be remembered in years to come.
River towns like Ashland, Louisville,

These homes would have vases filled with pine branches on each side of the mantle and a bucket of pine cones on the hearth. The homes that boasted Christmas trees in the parlor had them bright with small candles in metal holders to be clipped on the branches, blown-glass ornaments, some beautifully colored and some frosted.
In the mountains, children sat by the hour stringing popcorn to wind around the tree and also red corn to use the same way. Small hands tied hanks of saved twine into tiny dolls to hang on the tree.
In small towns, children saved bits of foil to cover walnuts for tree ornaments and even colored paper from Long Tom chewing gum or fancy candy with which to trim the tree.
Soft, downy quilt batting not only made a snowy base for the tree, but bits of the white cotton tossed onto the tree made it look for all the world like snow had fallen.
In Western Kentucky, an aged volume of Dickens' "A Christmas Carol" was removed from the shelf to be placed on a table by the chair of the one who on Christmas Eve would partly tell and partly read this familiar story.

Magisterial District Reapportionment Guide Set by Atty. General

A statement that the Department for Local Government has proposed to use to notify the public of reapportionments of magisterial districts is inadequate, according to an opinion from the attorney general's office.
William S. O'Daniel, commissioner of the Department for Local Government, asked the attorney general's office for an opinion of the notice. Under Kentucky law the county judge-executive must publish a notice that the county plans to reapportion its magisterial districts, making them more nearly equal in population.
Charles Runyan, who wrote the opinion, said the notice must be more than a "bare and cryptic" statement. To be adequate, he said, the statement should be published listing the timetable of events that comprise a reapportionment including:
1. The county judge executive publishes a notice of reapportionment.
2. Within 60 days of the notice, the county judge-executive appoints three commissioners to reapportion.
3. Within 60 days after this appointment, commissioners must reapportion the county and file a report with a county clerk.
4. Within 20 days after the report is filed, any county resident may file exceptions.
5. The district court sets a trial date on exceptions not later than 10 days after the deadline for filing exceptions.

Governor Abolishes Two Task Forces

The Citizen's Task Force on Education, the Governor's Task Force on State Parks Development, and the Government Structures Commission were abolished under an executive order signed by Gov. John Y. Brown Jr.
The units were eliminated by the same executive order which did away with the office of Secretary of the Cabinet and the five regional state offices and was signed by Brown Dec. 11. They will go out of existence Dec. 16, according to the order.

UK Gets Federal Grant For Stripmine Research

With $380,699 in U.S. funds, six research teams at the University of Kentucky are looking—in various UK laboratories—at the impact of the Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act of 1977 (the "strip mine" law). Projects are funded through Title III of the act and administered through the Institute for Mining and Minerals Research (IMMR) at UK.

Dr. John Walker, chairman of UK's department of agricultural engineering and IMMR associate director, said the six projects include one aimed at reducing erodibility and sediment yield from surface mine spoil and reconstructed top soil, experiments at separating sediment from water in catch ponds below surface mines and the introduction of "good fungi" into reclaimed—and usually sterile—land so that trees will root and grow again.

Yet another UK research project aims at describing the storm water runoff from surface mined land. Another involves collection of engineering and geological data for surface-mine design and reclamation, and one more is looking into ways to utilize wastes from coal production plants as an energy source and to reduce the amount of waste material.

During the year that UK has been working as a Title III institute, Walker says, the Department of the Interior has granted UK nearly $750,000 to support education, training and research in the mining and minerals area.

It is an interdisciplinary research effort. Involved are five UK departments (agronomy, forestry, horticulture, plant pathology and agricultural engineering) in the College of Agriculture, three (chemistry, geology and political science) in the College of Arts and Sciences and four (civil, mechanical, mining and continuing education) in the College of Engineering as well as the Kentucky Geological Survey and the Kentucky Center for Energy Research laboratory.

Walker believes UK's early leadership in the Title III program is based in large measure upon the excellence of its research professors in the surface mining area before passage of the act.

One example is the sediment and hydrology research of Billy Barfield, agricultural engineering, and C. T. Hahn, formerly of that same department. Their work has been published in book form by the office of continuing education in the College of Engineering as has sold a brisk 2,000 copies under the title "Hydrology and Sedimentology of Surface Mined Lands."

Public Hearing Set On High School Units

A public hearing on increasing the minimum units required for high school graduation will be held at 1:30 p.m. today (Wednesday) in the state board room, Capital Plaza Tower, Frankfort.

The hearing is open to any person wishing to comment on an amendment to the regulation setting the minimum required graduation credits. The amendment would require a total of 10 elective units to graduate beginning with the graduation class of 1984. Currently, eight electives are required.

The total number of required and elective course units for graduation would also be increased. The new total would be 20 units; the current total requirements is 18 for graduation.

Another change in the regulation would give the local board of education the authority to impose higher minimum requirements than those set by the state.

ROBERT F. STEPHENS Attorney General

Because of the volume of bills paid out each month, a business may mistakenly pay an unauthorized or "phony invoice." A phony invoice is a bill for services or supplies which have not been received. It can also be a solicitation which looks like an invoice.

Solicitations which appear to be invoices often arrive after a representative of the billing company calls a business asking questions about the business supplies and accounting procedures. Many times the company representative will misrepresent the company he works for. He may pretend to represent a company that the business has dealt with before.

Any solicitation which could be mistaken for an invoice is required to have the words "This is not a bill" printed on its face in easily readable type.

Some phony invoices charge for services or supplies which were never authorized or delivered. Larger businesses with separate accounting departments are particularly susceptible to this kind of deception. Close communication between receiving and accounting departments is necessary to avoid being taken by phony billing schemes.

Before paying a suspicious bill, compare it to the purchase order for that merchandise and check each invoice for proper signature, type of product, number of units, price per unit, total cost and date of delivery.

If the invoice does not contain the correct information or say "this is not a bill," report the company to the Attorney General's Consumer Protection Division or the Postal Inspection Service in Cincinnati, Ohio, 45201 for investigation.

Be cautious, do not take the honesty of billing companies for granted. Try to avoid paying for merchandise before it is delivered. If you do, you may end up paying for something you will never receive.

If you have questions or complaints concerning phony invoice problems, write the Office of the Attorney General, Consumer Protection Division, Frankfort, Ky. 40601 or call the toll-free consumer hotline number at 1-800-372-2960.

Appalshop Protrays Ky. Artists

Time has not dulled the creative urges of balladeer John Jacob Niles of Boot Hill Farm, Lexington, and basketmaker Oaksie Caudill of Cowan Creek in Letcher County, Ky. The two men, 87 and 64 years of age respectively, are the subjects of a KET special presentation which airs Wednesday, December 26 at 7:30 p.m.

The one-hour program, "Appalshop Special," features separate portraits of the two men.

In the first segment, songwriter, musician and folk music historian John Jacob Niles is profiled. Niles—who traveled the Appalachians in the Twenties and Thirties with photographer Doris Ulmann, collecting and recording folk songs—is shown performing and working at home on his music.

In part two of "Appalshop Special," a character sketch of folk artist Oaksie Caudill is presented. In contrast to Niles' performing life, Caudill spends most of his working days in solitude, hauling timber and splitting and weaving the pliable white oak with which he makes his baskets.

Caudill speaks reverently of the oak and the old ways of basketmaking he learned as a young boy in Letcher County.

Appalshop, which produced the film portraits, is an independent media center based in Whitesburg, Ky. The company produces films, records and publications about Appalachia.

Medicare Available For Kidney Failure

Almost everyone who requires kidney dialysis or kidney transplant because of permanent kidney failure is eligible for Medicare, Jim Kelly, social security director for the Big Sandy area, said recently.

Those eligible are workers insured under social security, as well as their dependents and/or survivors who have permanent kidney failure.

People with permanent kidney failure have the full protection of Medicare and are eligible for all covered benefits, not just those relating to their kidney problems, Kelly said.

Now, Medicare coverage can begin the month a course of dialysis begins if the patient participates in a self-dialysis training program and certain other conditions are met.

Also, Kelly said, Medicare can pay 100 percent of the cost of home dialysis equipment if certain conditions are met and help pay for the cost for almost all supplies, including disposable items.

Medicare can also help pay for periodic support services furnished by an approved facility or hospital to enable the patient to remain on home dialysis.

For people who receive a kidney transplant, Medicare coverage can continue for 36 months following the

Food Stamp Rules May Help Elderly

New food stamp eligibility rules to help households with elderly or disabled members go into effect Jan. 1.

The new rules provide special medical and shelter deductions for households containing persons age 60 or older or persons who receive Supplemental Security Income or Social Security disability payments.

According to the Department for Human Resources, which administers the federal food stamp program in Kentucky, households making application for food stamps will be able to deduct from their incomes all medical expenses in excess of $35 per month incurred by an elderly or disabled person in that household. Food stamp eligibility and benefits are based generally on household size and net monthly income after deductions are subtracted.

After Jan. 1, households with elderly or disabled members also may deduct the full amount of shelter costs if those costs exceed half of the household's adjusted income. For all other households, the excess shelter deduction remains limited to $90.

The food stamp program lists allowable shelter costs as rent and mortgage payments, utility bills, property taxes and insurance on a home.

Persons who think they may qualify for the new deductions should contact their local food stamp office or call toll-free 1-800-372-2973.

operation. And, if the transplant fails so that the patient needs maintenance dialysis or another transplant, Medicare will continue or be reinstated without any waiting period.

"The Medicare care protection for the kidney patient is worth thousands of dollars," Kelly said.

Anyone who wants more information about Medicare coverage for kidney patients can get it at the social security office. The telephone number is listed in your local directory. The people there will be glad to answer any questions.
