

Highland Terrace Apts Opened Sunday

"Open House" at Highland Terrace, the mouth of Mays Branch, gave visitors an opportunity to inspect the apartment complex, Sunday. The four-story structure contains 80 single units, most of them already occupied, for the elderly and handicapped.

The $2.8 million project, construction which began 17 months ago, is the fruit of the planning of Highland Terrace of Prestonsburg, Inc., the Prestonsburg Housing Authority, and the Church Housing Association. $50,000 was contributed to the building cost as part of the bequest of Ethel Cheairs, of Winchester, with the balance of the funds coming from the Department for Housing and Urban Development and the Appalachian Regional Commission.

The general contractor for the project is J. T. Goggins, of Danville.

State Aid Asked To Restore Order

Governor Told Of Home Branch School Closing

District Judge Harold J. Stumbo called on Governor Carroll's office Monday for special protection for the Home Branch school at Endicott which has been closed since Oct. 18 by repeated acts of violence allegedly committed by residents of the community.

The governor's special assistant indicated that the call for help from the state would be considered a formal request and that action may be expected.

Judge Stumbo explained that he called on Frankfort for help because law and order have broken down in the community and all local efforts to reestablish order to the point that school children and their parents would not be victims of fear have failed.

He stressed the point that his call on the Governor is no reflection on officers who have been working the Home Branch trouble. "It's simply a situation that we can't afford to ignore," he said.

The latest of a series of shootings occurred the night of Oct. 30 when Kelvin Sherman, of Endicott, suffered a shattered knee from a gunshot. He is in the U.K. Medical Center, Lexington.

Two days later, Detective Lt. D. VanMeter, of the State Police, swore out a warrant for the arrest of Donald Newsome, alleging that Newsome shot Sherman.

Sherman is the third person to be (See Story No. 5, Page 4)

Thi Town...That World

This newspaper ballooned last week to 72 pages. This week, with the political campaign ended, it would appear that the balloon has gone bust.

THE BEST VOTE

The are ballots and ballots—voted, unvoted, spoiled, absentee, sample, straw counted, uncounted—and the worst of these is the unvoted. The only vote that is ever really lost, whoever wins or is defeated, is the vote that is not cast.

On: in a great while, we in the newspaper business do something for which we later are glad. For example: Our cry about that gallant lady, Winnie Johr, last week, only a few days before her passing.

The morning papers report the death of Al Gpp, cartoonist-creator of Li'l Abner, Day May, Marryin' Sam, Squire Harkins, Ole Man Mose, others. I had a special affinity for Joe Phxzft! (spelling of last name not guaranteed), the little guy of I omen who went about with a dark cloud hovering, halo-like, over his head.

A) COPY

If you think there is no such thing as adventures in editing, consider the piece of advertising copy which passed across my desk recently. It was written clearly, in what you might think was an educated land, and in describing the house offered or sale were these words: "four stair urrnace."

We almost called a staff conference on that one. (See Story No. 3, Page 4)

Only 1 Building At Wheelwright Bought on Bids

Only one building changed hands when the Kentucky Housing Corporation opened bids in Frankfort last week for the commercial properties it holds in Wheelwright.

The Floyd County Community Development and Urban Renewal Agency purchased the maintenance shop, which will be used by the city-owned utilities system. The agency paid $100,000 for the 11,000-square-foot, single-story brick and concrete block structure, which contains 10 rooms and has an 800-square foot garage.

Fourteen other lots were offered for sale, several bids were rejected as too low, and negotiations are said to be continuing on several properties. While some interest has been shown by area businessmen, most seem to be taking a cautious wait-and-see attitude, Floyd County Community Development Director Anna Jean Tackett said this week.

Meanwhile, laborers are expected to be hired this afternoon (Wednesday) and work is scheduled to begin Thursday on the rehabilitation of family residences which will then be offered for sale to their present occupants.

A federal Department of Labor grant of $186,000 will permit the hiring of a supervisor and 16 carpenters for the rebuilding project. In the first year of (See Story No. 6, Page 4)

Judge Sentences Floyd Brothers To Prison Terms

Frankie and Donald Newsome, brothers, were sentenced to serve prison terms of 10 years each last Friday by Circuit Judge Hollie Conley. Their sentencing followed conviction in circuit court on first degree assault in the wounding of Bill Tom Shepherd.

Judge Conley stipulated that the new term and a three-year sentence previously imposed on Donald Newsome will run concurrently and that both are to receive credit for the time they already have spent in jail.

A strong plea for a new trial for Frankie Newsome was made by his attorney, Gary Johnson, who pointed to the recommendation made by the trial jury that his client be probated. He contended that if the jury had known that probation would not be granted, it would not have voted his conviction.

Asked if they wished to make a statement preceding the passing of sentence, Frankie Newsome said, "If he (See Story No. 1, Page 4)

Scattered statewide returns early Tuesday night indicate that John Young Brown, Jr., Democrat, has defeated Louie B. Nunn, Republican, for governor, and that the entire Democratic slate has easily won the election.

In this county unofficial returns indicated that Bill Wells, Democrat, has defeated Ronald Frasure, Republican, for the unexpired term for county judge-executive.

More complete returns, all unofficial, show that all incumbents for city offices in Prestonsburg and Martin have lost their bids for re-election.

Louisville television stations as early as 8 p.m. were predicting a landslide victory for Brown, some guessing his victory margin may exceed 250,000. Brown headquarters announced that the apparent winner of the gubernatorial post would have no statement to make until Ex-Governor Nunn had conceded.

The G. O. P. candidate for county-judge executive was quoted as saying early in the vote count here that it appeared Wells, former District 1 magistrate, had won by around 1,200 votes. Others said Wells' margin will run higher.

In Prestonsburg seven of the eight candidates on the New Direction ticket for city council were elected. The eighth post on the council was won, according to unofficial returns, by Bill Ray Collins, independent.

The municipal election at Martin saw Mayor E. P. Grigsby, Sr. unseated by Larry Hall, pharmacist and a newcomer to city politics. Anti-administration forces also apparently swept the six city council places.

The unofficial vote for council winners in Prestonsburg:

Tom Rose, 944; Estill Lee Carter, 927; Cloyd Johnson, 891; Bill Ray Collins, 878; Paul Phillip Hughes, 861; Dick Clark, 844; Byron Dixon Nunnery, 697; Carolyn Ford, 680.

Larry Hall polled 196 votes in Martin's two precincts to win the office of mayor. Raymond Griffith, Sr. polled 155, and Mayor Grigsby, 93.

The six leaders for city council at Martin are:

Raymond "Mugsy" Griffith, 184; David Chaffins, 160; Bobby Dingus, 153; J. R. Key, 146; Allen Whicker, 144; Gaylord Caudill, 143.

These totals did not include absentee ballots, however.

A relatively heavy vote was cast in the county, with city elections swelling the totals.

Business Normal At Jenny Wiley, Despite 'Crunch'

Not only is Jenny Wiley state park weathering the gas crunch but it is offering visitors a new attraction, park officials said this week.

Lodge and cottage bookings are running at a normal rate and a 20 percent drop-off in day visitors this year is attributable more to the unusually wet summer than to the gas shortage, according to park superintendent Lowell Baker.

In this, Jenny Wiley reflects the experience of the parks system statewide, which reports an increase this year in use of lodging facilities, with a decrease in campground and beach activity. Kentucky Department of Parks Director Bruce Montgomery announced this week that revenue from state parks for the first eight months of this calendar year is about $20 million, compared with about $17 million during the corresponding months of 1978.

3 Projects Reviewed As Funding Sought

Three area health projects seeking federal dollars are being reviewed this week. Under scrutiny Tuesday by the project review committee of the East Kentucky Health Systems Agency and the EKHS governing board today (Wednesday) are applications by Big Sandy Health Care Inc., of Prestonsburg, Mountain Health Services Inc., of McDowell, and Paintsville Hospital.

Paintsville Hospital's $7 million rebuilding bid and Mountain Health Service's request for a $269,000 Rural Health Initiative grant were both approved last month by the Big Sandy Sub-Area Council. Big Sandy Health Care's application for $854,000 in HEW funds was received too late for review by the council, which asked that a public hearing be scheduled to hear comments on the application.

At the hearing last Thursday, which attracted about 100 persons, patients of the clinics conducted by Big Sandy Health Care at Mud Creek, Wheelwright, Salyersville and Phelps spoke in favor of a continuation of the agency's government funding.

In arguing for approval of the continuation grant, Big Sandy Health Care Executive-Director Roger Marshall cited the agency's "track record," while its medical director, Dr. Ellen Joyce, stressed the agency's commitment to providing care for poorer patients, its adoption of stricter hiring procedures, and its use of mid-level practitioners, (See Story No. 2, Page 4)

Regulations Being Planned To Protect Kentucky Coal

State legislation now being planned is designed so that the 1977 federal strip-mining act will not destroy the coal industry in Kentucky, said Frank Harscher, secretary of the state Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection, last week.

"We're gearing up now to guarantee this," Harscher told a Frankfort news conference.

Three panels, one representing environmentalists and citizens' groups, another the coal industry and the third coal customers and coal-related support industries, are being formed to meet separately with two departmental task forces and a special staff of department personnel toward hammering out such regulations.

Meanwhile, a legislative sub-committee headed by State Rep. James

"Jitter" Allen, of this county, will remain active till Dec. 15 to assist the department in drawing up the Kentucky regulations.

Permanent state regulations are required under the federal Strip Mining Act if the state is to attain primary responsibility for enforcing it within the state.

"We want...to find the best plan we can develop, one that is developed in Kentucky language, with Kentucky conditions in mind," he said. "This is critical in order for us to achieve primacy," and primacy, he said, "is our most critical objective."

A list of those being considered for the panels was released. Harscher promised they will have direct input, suggestions, criticism and advice on the formulation (See Story No. 4, Page 4)

George Hurt in Truck Mishap

Rescuers labor to free Eddie A. George from the wreckage of his pickup truck Tuesday afternoon after the East Point resident apparently failed to negotiate the curve at the approach to the Cliff bridge from Abbott Mountain. Reportedly travelling at high speed, the vehicle was said to have shot through the air for 20-30 feet after leaving the road on the downriver side of the bridge approach before "free-falling" about 75 feet to the low bottom bordering the Cliff road. Members of the Prestonsburg Fire Department and city rescue unit worked for about an hour to free George who was taken to Highlands Regional Medical Center reportedly suffering a number of bone fractures. There were no passengers in the vehicle. Prestonsburg police investigated the mishap.

Proposed Act Would Set Marijuana Sale Penalties

Proposed legislation which would establish a graduated set of penalties for possession and sale of marijuana was approved today by the Subcommittee on Drug Abuse.

Bill Request 340 will be submitted to the full Health and Welfare Committee during its Nov. 8 meeting.

The penalties for adult offenders under the proposed law would be as follows:
 - Possession of less than 30 grams (two grams more than an ounce), 90 days in the county jail or a $250 fine;
 - Sale of 30 grams or less, up to one year in the county jail, a $500 fine, or both;

- Possession or sale of 30 grams but less than five pounds, one to five years in the penitentiary and a fine of $1,000 to $5,000;
 - Possession or sale of five to 50 pounds, five to 10 years in the penitentiary and a fine of $5,000 to $10,000;
 - Possession or sale of more than 50 pounds, 10 to 20 years in the penitentiary and a $250,000 fine.

Under current Kentucky law, the same penalty for marijuana possessors is levied regardless of amount: confinement in the county jail for not more than 90 days or a fine of not more than $250.

Anyone manufacturing, selling or possessing with intent to sell can now be confined for the first offense in the county jail for no more than a year, fined no more than $500, or both. Subsequent offenses can result in penitentiary confinement for one to five years, a $3,000 fine, or both.

The proposed bill would eliminate the "intent to sell" offense currently in force since under the graduated possession scale persons with large amounts of marijuana could already receive stiff penalties without proof of such intent.

Additional changes under BR 340 would include a new subsection requiring completion of at least one-third of a sentence for trafficking in any controlled substance.

Another new subsection would subject persons convicted of involving minors in the sale of controlled substances to a sentence of one to five years in the penitentiary and a fine of from $3,000 to $5,000.

The proposed legislation would combine subsections presently contained in Kentucky law regarding treatment and rehabilitation of offenders found guilty of possessing non-narcotic drugs (those not containing opium or an opium derivative) or marijuana.

During the Nov. 8 subcommittee meeting, Rep. Dottie Priddy (D-Louisville) said the members will consider a resolution requesting additional drug treatment facilities in Kentucky. Priddy is the subcommittee chairman.

Today two DHR officials testified concerning present Human Resources Department facilities available. Testifying were Mike Townsend, manager of the Alcohol and Drug Branch, and Verna Fairchild, acting director of the Division for Mental Health.

Students May Have To Pay Cleaning Bill

Students may be charged a fee to have their band uniforms cleaned, according to an attorney general's opinion.

Statutes provide that no public school will charge a fee or rental, or require a student to purchase instructional materials.

The statute exempts fees for items of personal attire, purchase or rental of musical instruments, or materials which become the property of the pupil.

Since band uniforms are considered items of personal attire it is a "logical extension of that position" that payment for the care of the uniforms could be required of the students, the opinion said.

Robert Storer, assistant principal of Scott High School in Covington, requested the opinion. John F. Zink, assistant attorney general, authored the opinion.

Red Cross and UNICEF Get Food to Cambodia

The International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC) and the United Nations Children's Fund (UNICEF) have launched a large-scale emergency relief operation to aid the starving population of Kampuchea (Cambodia). The country's authorities, after a preliminary meeting in Phnom Penh in late July 1979 with ICRC and UNICEF representatives, agreed to the opening of a joint ICRC-UNICEF office in Phnom Penh to direct the emergency action plan of distributing food and medicine.

Representatives of both organizations are ensuring that distribution of supplies is both quick and consistent with the principles of impartiality and non-discrimination. The agreement took special note of the thousands of refugees stranded near the Thailand border. Delegates from both organizations will be permitted in this area and others to assure that the relief will be given without discrimination.

ICRC and UNICEF are now scheduling two round-trip shuttles each day from Bangkok, and have already contributed the equivalent of 3 million U.S. dollars to the relief operation. Other assistance consisting of three boats carrying 6,000 tons of food arrived by sea October 28.

The two operations for the next six months will cost the equivalent of 111 million U.S. dollars. This estimate includes food supplies for 2.5 million people. In addition, cloth, sewing machines, seeds, tools, and other essential supplies are needed and will be sent along with trucks and Land Rovers to transport and deliver them.

The ICRC has called upon all peoples and their governments that wish to alleviate the suffering of the Cambodian people to give their utmost support to the relief operations that are now under way.

The American Red Cross is accepting cash contributions from interested persons and organizations wishing to assist the ICRC-UNICEF relief efforts. Funds will be forwarded direct to the ICRC by the American Red Cross. Contributions should be earmarked "For Cambodian Relief."

West Ky. Program Offers In-Home Care for Elderly

Suggestions and testimony today before the Subcommittee on Long Term Care last week revolved around the merits and possible expansion of Project Independence, the Bureau for Social Service's program to fund community-based services which provide the elderly an alternative for institutionalization in a nursing home.

Assuring an interested, and mostly elderly, audience which almost filled the House of Representatives chamber, Rep. Gerta Bendl (D-Louisville), the subcommittee chairman, said she would "fight" for the state government programs helping to create an atmosphere for the elderly to live in dignity.

Project Independence was initiated in 1976 in the 8-county Purchase area development district in western Kentucky and funded in-home services to the persons over 60 years of age who might otherwise require care in a nursing home. According to Dianne Roberts, director of aging for Ballard county, funds from Project Independence have helped provide many in-home services the elderly in that county would not have otherwise. Transportation, home repair, home weatherization, medical screening and the delivery of meals are among the services provided in Ballard county under Project Independence, said Roberts.

The average monthly cost of providing services to an elderly person at home is $175 as opposed to an average monthly cost of $600 for nursing home care in that region, according to Roberts.

Carroll Urges Tourism Program in Kentucky

If Kentucky's tourism industry is to survive, Kentucky must get the tourist and bring him to Kentucky, Gov. Julian Carroll said here today at the Fall Conference on Tourism. Carroll told the crowd of more than 250 travel and tourism representatives that convincing tourists Kentucky is close and offers diversity is the key to helping the tourism industry survive the energy crunch.

"America's population can't go to Florida just to see a sandy beach," Carroll said, "when they can come half as far to Kentucky."

Kentucky should buy or lease a train to transport tourists from cities such as Chicago or New York, Carroll said. Chartered airline flights would be an alternative form of transportation for tourists traveling to Kentucky, he added.

To expand state parks, the 1980 General Assembly should authorize bonds for $100-$200 million, Carroll said. It is worth it to make a good investment on state parks when they'll bring a substantial return, he explained.

Another Way of Getting "Drunk"

(Part II of a series)

There is no doubt that a drug-oriented society exists in North America. Continued development of new mood-modifying chemicals has become the dedicated enterprise of reputable pharmaceutical companies as well as of illegal laboratories and street-corner pharmacologists.

One group of the psychoactive drugs, the barbiturates, has legitimate medical uses. However, because this group of mind-affecting drugs has the ability to modify mood and behavior, they have a high potential not only for misuse but also for abuse in the human search for pleasure and escape.

Phenobarbital, a derivative of barbituric acid, was introduced in 1912 under the trade name Luminal. Later, more than 2,500 other barbiturates were developed and some fifty of them were accepted for medical use. Among them are secobarbital (Seconal), pentobarbital (Nembutal), Lily F-40's, and Tuinals. They are used medically as sedatives, as sleeping pills, and in the treatment of hypertension (high blood pressure) to name a few. Long-acting barbiturates (phenobarbital) were developed for daytime sedation; short-acting barbiturates (Nembutal and Seconal) for prompt sedation and for inducing sleep without delay. Combinations were also introduced—a short acting barbiturate to put you to sleep combined with a long acting one to keep you asleep.

Until 1940 barbiturates were used medically in relative safety; then we saw the explosion of illicit barbiturate use following warnings, publicity, punitive arrests, and restrictive laws. Barbiturates came to be known as "thrill pills;" this should have taught us a lesson. Yet during the 1960's the same policies were followed with respect to LSD and marijuana, with much the same results but on an even larger scale. We might conclude, then, that the more we warn, predict doom, and fill the air with emotion-laden messages, the greater are our chances of popularizing the drug under attack.

Today at least one in three family medicine chests contains some sort of barbiturate or addicting tranquilizer. Kids start as young as early grade school to find out what is in those interesting looking bottles. If you are one of those people wondering why they do it, remember that getting stoned on barbiturates is fun. It's something like a super-alcohol high with the inconvenience practically gone. In fact, there is evidence indicating the parallel between barbiturates and alcohol. There is more startling evidence to indicate that these two substances are producing many of the same effects. The barbiturates might be labeled a "solid alcohol" while alcohol could be classed as a "liquid barbiturate."

The trouble could end here, but it does not; a common finding is that persons using barbiturates often combine them with alcohol. In the case of these two drugs, one plus one does not equal two. In other words, the effects of barbiturates and alcohol taken together are greater than the effects of either taken alone. This intensifying effect the one drug has on the other is called synergism. Many barbiturate overdoses (most of them unintentional) that happen to steady users, businessmen, housewives, etc. are due to alcohol being used in addition to the barbiturate.

Earlier it was mentioned that mood-modifying chemicals are constantly being developed; this makes for wide availability. But perhaps there is a more subtle force at work behind the epidemic of barbiturate misuse and abuse. The fact that many drugs do have beneficial effects has given lots of people the notion that pills will solve all human problems. Happiness has become a universal expectation today, so psychoactive drugs are being used to eliminate those painful realities of daily life that formerly served as motivation for human progress.

With abolition of unhappiness seemingly assured through drug use, some questions arise. What is likely to occur in a society when the circumstances giving rise to unhappiness remain while the unhappy person is only temporarily altered or pacified? What will happen when unhappiness is viewed as a negative and totally unnecessary emotion?

Retired Can Avoid Quarterly Tax Pay

Retired taxpayers who do not wish to make quarterly estimated tax payments should file a special withholding statement to have taxes withheld from their pension checks, the Internal Revenue advised.

Retired taxpayers can have federal income tax withheld from their pensions just as it was withheld from their salaries, the Internal Revenue advised.

By filing a Form W-4P, "Annuitant's Request for Federal Income Tax Withholding," with the payer of the annuity or pension, retirees can have federal income tax withheld from their pensions, instead of making estimated tax payments. Further, taxpayers with gross income from other sources of at least $500 who will owe more than $100 in tax may increase the amount withheld on their annuities to avoid making the estimated tax installments which are due on April 15, June 15, September 15 and January 15.

More information on Form W-4P and the filing requirements and tax benefits for older Americans are available by calling IRS toll free at 584-1361 in Louisville, 255-2333 in Lexington, 628-0055 in Covington and 1-800-428-9100 elsewhere in Kentucky.

To Ask Help on Arson Probes

At its final meeting today, the Interim Joint Committee on Banking and Insurance approved for prefiling bills requiring insurance companies to cooperate with arson investigations and raising minimum capital stock requirements for banks.

Under the first bill, any arson investigator looking into fire losses could request an insurance company to release information it has regarding the loss. This could include the insurance policy and application, policy premium payment records, a history of previous claims made by the insured for fire losses and other relevant evidence.

In addition, it would exempt insurance companies from liability for furnishing such information as long as there was no fraud or malice.

The latter bill would raise the minimum capital stock requirements for banks effective July 1, 1980 to $750,000 (from $25,000) for cities of up to 7,999 residents; to $1 million (from $50,000) for cities of 7,999 to 18,999; to $1.5 million (from $100,000) for cities of from 20,000 to 100,000; and to $2 million (from $200,000) for cities of more than 100,000 population.

The committee also approved for prefiling bills that would:

—Make it illegal for an insurance company to refuse to renew an automobile insurance policy solely because of the age of the driver. It would also require that the reason for non-renewal be included in a notice from the company.

—Require insurers writing workmen's compensation policies or self-insurers to report to the state the direct premiums written and earned, losses paid and other information. The Department of Insurance would then be required to review the information and determine whether the rate is "excessive, inadequate or unfairly discriminatory." If after further review the department determined that the rate met the previous criteria, it could order a new rate.

—Restructure the board of the Kentucky Housing Corp.

—Require insurance companies to pay fire damage claims immediately or deposit the amount of the claim in a bank or other financial institution so the money could earn interest. If the claim were found valid, the insured would be paid the claim plus the interest.

The committee took no action today on a bill that would restructure the state Insurance Regulatory Board, which sets state insurance rates.

It approved reports by the Subcommittee on Banking on the KHC and a report by the Insurance Subcommittee.

Resolution Asks Per Pupil Cost Pilot Program

A joint resolution directing the Department of Education to develop a pilot program to determine the actual cost per pupil of programs funded through the foundation program will be recommended to the Interim Joint Committee on Education by the Subcommittee on Education and the Arts.

The program should provide information which would enable the General Assembly to appropriate funds for distribution to school districts on the basis of a weighted pupil classroom unit.

If the Bill Request recommended by the Subcommittee on Issues and Legislative Proposals is passed by the 1980 General Assembly it will require not less than 10 representative school districts to voluntarily serve as pilot sites during the 1980-81 and 1981-82 school years.

The resolution would require that an advisory committee of 15 members be appointed by mid-1980 and that the Department of Education employ personnel as needed to implement the project.

It also asks that $10,000 be appropriated from the General Fund to the Department of Education for the 79-80 fiscal year, $225,000 for the 80-81 fiscal year and $250,000 for the 81-82 fiscal year to fund the pilot program.

In other action, the subcommittee approved a prefiled bill which would require the board of education in each public school district to establish a policy and develop procedures by Aug. 1, 1980 for each elementary and secondary school student to participate in the pledge of allegiance to the American flag at the beginning of each school day.

The subcommittee also approved the final subcommittee report to the Interim Joint Committee on Education in which it recommended legislation concerning:—prefiling of a bill which would reduce from 9¼ to 7¼ the number of months used to calculate Average Daily Attendance (ADA) for the foundation program.

—prefiling of a bill which would establish in statute the method by which local school districts record attendance for make-up days.

—prefiling a joint resolution directing the Legislation Research Commission to appoint a special committee to study alternative taxes to replace the property tax as the major source of local school district revenue.

In other action the subcommittee accepted a letter from Superintendent of Public Instruction James B. Graham in which he said he will recommend to the state Board for Elementary and Secondary Education that a certification process be passed for school nurses but that school districts not be limited to employing nurses with certification.

The subcommittee took no action on a bill request relating to prayer in public schools.

Cancer Hopeline

Ephraim McDowell Community Cancer Network
915 S. Limestone
Lexington, Kentucky 40536

Q—We do know that some substances cause cancers in humans or in several kinds of animals. Why aren't these banned?

A—There have been some attempts to do so. Great Britain and Italy, for example, have tried to stop the manufacture of benzidine, an ingredient of dyes, that is known to cause bladder cancer in humans, and since the Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) issued a standard on benzidine as part of its regulation on fourteen carcinogens, its major manufacturers in this country have radically reduced production of this chemical. However, a large number of factories that use it in the production of dyes are now making their own benzidine, with workers still being exposed. In a sense, the obvious conclusion could be that our society values certain shades of colors for its textiles over the health of its workers and perhaps over the health of the general population, since benzidine wastes from manufacturing plants were and still may be released into our waterways.

Kentucky Afield

By JOHN WILSON

Nov. 1 marked the beginning of a new kind of fishing season on three of Kentucky's lakes. On this date, commercial fishermen began using gill and trammel nets on Kentucky, Barkley and Rough River lakes under a newly instituted "special permit" system of commercial fishing.

The holders of these special permits have paid $500 each for them, in addition to the regular commercial fishing licenses ($6.50 resident, $12.50 non-resident) for themselves and the one assistant each permit holder is allowed.

These fishermen are required to fish at least 800 yards of nets for at least 25 percent of the season, which runs through March 31, 1980.

Gill and trammel nets were banned on most Kentucky waters in 1976. However, these nets remain the most effective means of harvesting certain kinds of rough fish, according to Charlie Bowers, director of the Fish and Wildlife Department's fisheries division.

"The high populations of carp and buffalo, particularly in Kentucky and Barkley lakes, need to be controlled for the good of the ecological balance in these waters," Bowers says. "Without some check on their numbers, sport fishing could suffer."

The carp and buffalo in Kentucky and Barkley represent a potential resource worth $4 million, Bowers says, a resource which could represent new income for the local areas around the lakes. So, according to Bowers, this commercial fishing should help both the sport angler and the local economy.

"By setting this season during the winter, we hope to avoid most interference with sport fishermen," Bowers says, adding that the netting will be carefully monitored. The permit holders are required to keep daily catch records and mail these, along with copies of receipts for all fish sold, to the Department of Fish and Wildlife each week.

These commercial nets can either be set and left for up to 24 hours in travel lanes or near concentrations of carp and buffalo or can be fished as "whip sets," where the fish are driven into the nets.

During warm spells in the winter, carp and buffalo will move into shallow flats at night to feed. The fisherman sets his net at the mouth of the cove, then spooks the fish into the nets by beating the water or the side of the boat with a paddle.

"Set and left" nets must have a minimum mesh size of 3 1/2 inches, while 3-inch mesh may be used for whip sets, which must be attended constantly. Both these mesh sizes, Bowers says, are large enough to allow most game fish to swim through them.

"In a study conducted on Kentucky Lake by the U.S. Department of Commerce and the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, 296 gill nets, 100 yards long each, caught 954 fish," Bowers says. "Of these, only 30 were game fish—six crappie, 22 sauger, one largemouth bass and one yellow bass."

All game fish taken by commercial gear must be returned to the water immediately, Bowers says, adding that any commercial fisherman keeping game fish stands to lose his permit, his commercial license and his gear.

"With over $600 invested in licenses and permits and at least another $2,400 nets, these fishermen are not going to risk keeping the few game fish which they might take in their nets," Bowers says. "In spite of the opinion of some uninformed individuals, commercial netting of rough fish will not harm game fish populations. It should, in fact, improve conditions for sport fishermen."

To date, 19 of these special permits have been issued, Bowers says. They are valid for only one season, and in future years additional lakes may be opened or closed as the biological need arises.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of Willard K. Collins who passed away Nov. 3, 1978: Oh, Daddy, I have a vacancy in my heart, and now it seems we're farther apart. I moved far away from your burial place, but, Daddy, I'll never forget your loving face.

I love you, Daddy, I always will, now I have something on my heart, I have to spill

Friends, please cherish and love your Dad today, for tomorrow it may be too late and he'll be taken away. My Mom is still living, so I'll say it now: I love you, Mom, I always will.

The vacant spot in my heart will never be filled, but I know with time and God's help it will be healed.

Sadly missed by your eldest daughter: GERTY, JOHNNY, CHRIS AND CANDICE

Suit Filed Against Government Claims Unsafe Mines Not Closed

Federal mine safety inspectors have failed to cite thousands of safety violations in the nation's coal mines, according to a law suit filed against the Department of Labor recently in federal district court in Washington, D.C. The Council of the Southern Mountains (CSM) and two local unions of the United Mine Workers of America (UMWA) brought the action to challenge the lack of enforcement of federal mine safety laws by the Mine Safety and Health Administration (MSHA). According to the suit, inspectors failed to issue more than 70,000 citations and closure orders in a 10-month period from May 30, 1978, to April 4, 1979, during inspections of all coal, metal, and non-metal mines nationwide. Computer print-outs from the federal agency revealed that conditions noted in inspection reports should have required the issuance of 50,000 automatic shutdowns in coal mines and more than 20,000 in metal and non-metal mines. Instead, MSHA issued less than 1,800 "unwarrantable failure" notices and closure orders during that period. The suit seeks an injunction which would direct the federal government to issue the appropriate notices and closure orders under section 104 (d) of the Federal Mine Safety and Health Act of 1977.

All-Time Labor Force High Noted In Sept.

Kentucky's labor force reached an all-time high in September, the Department for Human Resources reported recently. The state's labor force numbered 1,606,600 persons during September. That is 20,700 more than the number of persons working or available for work in August, says Robert MacDonald, chief labor market analyst for the department. The preliminary unemployment rate for September was 5.3 percent of the labor force, down 0.3 percentage points from August. The number of unemployed Kentuckians in September dropped 5,700 from August, primarily because of increased hiring by government and trade and agriculture industries, says MacDonald. "Manufacturing employment, primarily in the metals, apparel and chemical industries, continued on a downward trend," he says. Unemployment during 1979 has been at about the same level as during 1978. MacDonald says the rate of growth of new jobs apparently has been sufficient to take care of persons entering the labor force but not great enough to reduce the overall level of unemployment. The national unemployment for September was 5.6 percent.

Danish Group Here On Cultural Visit

One of the most revealing images Holger Johns took back to Denmark last month was a sign he saw in an Asheville, N.C., factory. "God helps those who help themselves," it read, "and the government helps the rest."

The implied put-down of those on government assistance shocked the visitor from Denmark, a welfare state almost all of whose five million citizens take for granted a wide range of tax-supported services, ranging from national health insurance to cultural and athletic programs.

For Johns, the heavy emphasis on free enterprise in this country smacks of an individualism alien to the spirit of cooperation and mutual support which he says characterizes his own nation. While most Danes surrender over half their income to the government in taxes, he feels that the social benefits are well worth it.

Johns found incredible the charges he heard here that government intervention in the economy spawns waste and blunts personal initiative. That has not been the experience of Denmark, where no stigma attaches to public welfare and where poverty is unknown, he claims.

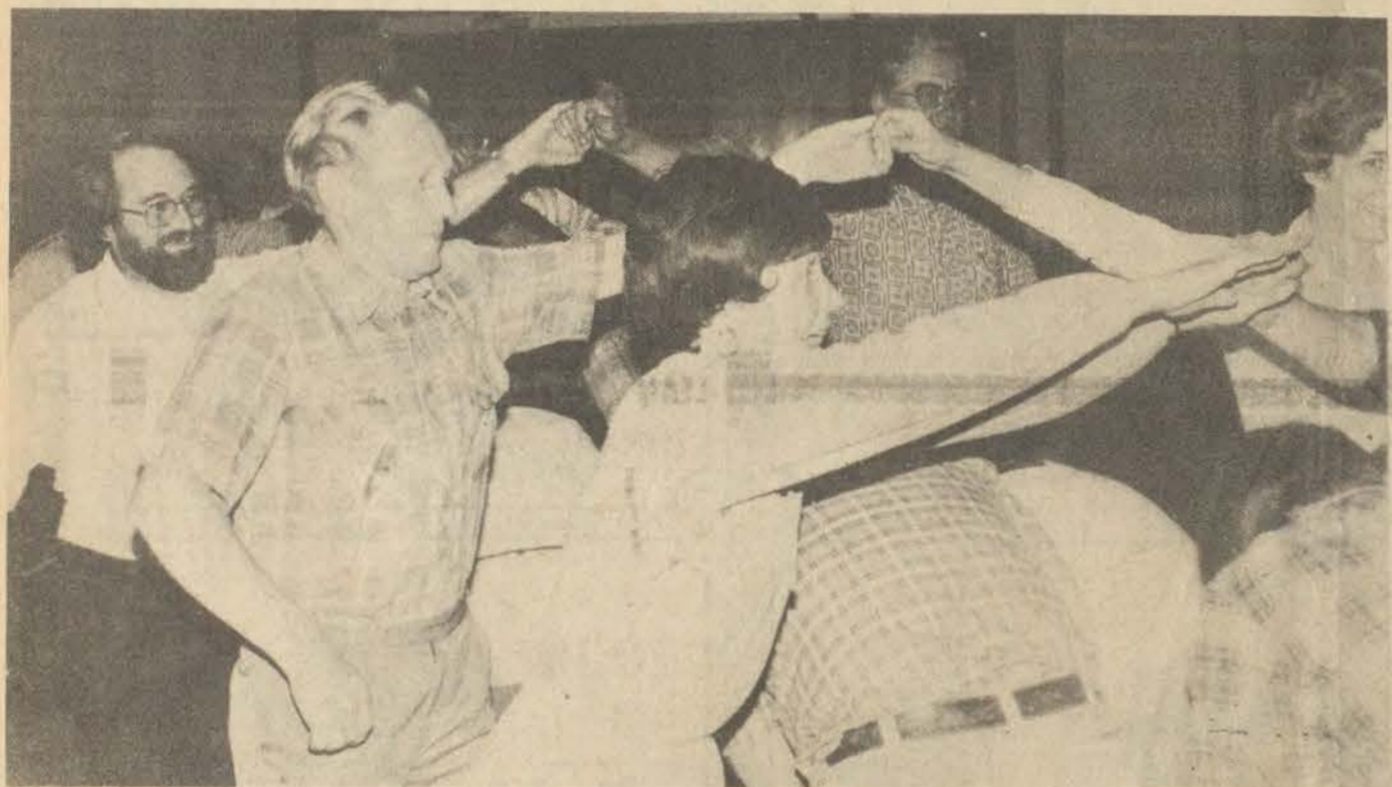

He is one of 15 Danes who visited various Appalachian states last month as part of a Danish-American cultural exchange program. They were hosted in Floyd county by Leo and Laura Weddle, members of the faculty at Prestonsburg Community College.

The visitors included farmers, teachers, a factory worker, an auditor and a mail carrier, and are all voluntary leaders of local, state-supported community athletic clubs in Denmark. The clubs are offshoots of the Danish Folk Schools, nationwide adult education centers inspired by a 19th-century Danish philosopher called Grundtvig and without close parallel in this country.

Originally rural in origin, the schools and clubs promote Danish culture and national pride, cooperative farming and a sense of personal responsibility, in an educational program which, its proponents say, caters to the whole person, "body and soul." The clubs' athletic activities, Johns notes by way of illustration, are pursued solely for enjoyment and the cooperation they foster. Himself national director of handball programming for the clubs, Johns contrasts the clubs' philosophy of sports with the fiercely competitive sports of the Olympic Games tradition.

At the start of their two-day stopover in Floyd county, the Danish party was introduced by Dr. John Ramsay, of Berea College, and was welcomed by Mayor Harold Cooley, PCC President Dr. Henry A. Campbell, and James Ratcliff, coordinator of community services at the college. During their stay, they toured the college, the Highland Terrace apartment complex, the Russell May art gallery, Riverview Manor Nursing home, the senior citizens' center at Archer Park and various sites in David, and attended a revival service at Garrett Church of God.

While they were here, the Danish visitors and Dr. Ramsay were lodged at the homes of Mr. and Mrs. Weddle, Mr. and Mrs. Chalmer Frazier, Mr. and Mrs. John Rosenberg, Ron Marstin and Dr. Ellen Joyce, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Necessary, Mr. and Mrs. Tim Sizemore, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Hobson, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Mickey Williams, and Mr. and Mrs. John Pitts.

DANISH VISITORS to Floyd county sample a variety of local social institutions and share some of their own. Scenes include (clockwise, from top left); Danish folk songs at Archer Park Senior Citizens' Center; a welcome to Prestonsburg Community College by Dr. Henry A. Campbell, college president; mountain

music by Mike Hall, Dave Sizemore and Paul Neil Allen; luncheon hosted by Archer Senior Citizens' Center Director Patsy Evans; folk dancing at PCC's Martin Student Center; and a visit to the David School, with Director Dan Green and teacher, Sr. Jean Ford, standing at right.

From leisure wear to high fashion, corduroy is a most versatile fabric. It's durable, comfortable, washable, soft and available in a variety of weights, rich earthy shades and prints.

Traditionally, corduroy has been an all-cotton fabric. Blends of cotton and polyester have become popular in the interest of greater shrinkage control and wash-and-wear characteristics. Corduroy is easy to identify by the narrow to wide wales or ribs on a plain or will weave backing.

Pinwale, the narrowest ribbing, is generally lightweight and suited for infants' wear, lounging apparel, bedspreads, curtains and pillows. Mid- and 7-wale are most popular for children's wear, sportswear and casual styles in suits and dresses. Wide-wale, a heavyweight corduroy with thick, plush pile, is often chosen for coats, suits and sportswear. Novelty weaves with sculptured or textured effects are popular in fashions and home furnishings.

Corduroy keeps its soft, plush feel washing after washing. Laundering corduroy often, before heavy soil and stains set in, maintains its good looks.

Before laundering, group similar colors and remove trims if necessary. Some bleeding of dark shades may occur, even after a number of washings. The specialist recommends washing colored pieces separately or with other dark items.

Pre-treat spots, stains or heavily soiled areas. Turn items inside out to prevent any lint from clinging to the pile. Check that washer and dryer lint screens are clean. Wash and dry small loads for minimum wrinkling. Use a permanent press cycle on both the washer and dryer for cotton-polyester blends. The wash temperature will depend on color as well as the degree of soil. Follow care instructions on label.

Machine drying restores fluffiness to corduroy and helps to eliminate the need for ironing. Remove articles from the dryer while still slightly damp to maintain fluff and prevent wrinkling. Smooth and shape garments on hangers. Straighten seams. Gently brush pile in one direction when dry.

A fabric softener, used in the washer or dryer helps fluff the pile and makes any touch-up ironing easier.

TO CONTROL LINT

If your laundry "breaks out" in lint periodically, something's wrong. Your laundry procedure may be the cause of your problems.

Sort lint givers, towels, flannels, sweaters, rugs and blankets from lint receivers, corduroy, synthetic garments and home furnishings. By washing the loads separately, heavy lint producers, such as chenille bedspreads, are best laundered alone.

Use the proper amount of detergent. Detergents act to increase the wetting of fabric surfaces. If too little detergent is used, the wetting action is reduced and lint adheres more readily.

A fabric softener eliminates static electricity that causes lint attraction to synthetics. Avoid overdrying; it builds up static on synthetics, thereby making them attract lint, and it causes cottons to rub together and shed lint.

Choose the right water level for the size of the load, and don't overload the washer or dryer. Clean out the lint filter after laundering.

Changes In Workmen's Comp. Being Drafted

Recommended changes in the state workmen's compensation law are being put into rough draft form for study by the Special Subcommittee on Workmen's Compensation later this month, said Rep. Lloyd Clapp, subcommittee chairman.

These recommendations will not be released in final form until after the Nov. 7 election to avoid the changes becoming a political issue, said Clapp.

Clapp said the subcommittee will ask permission from the Legislative Research Commission to meet past the Oct. 31 committee meeting deadline set by LRC.

Proposed changes in the law will be aimed at raising benefits to injured workers and reducing workmen's compensation premiums paid by state employers, he said.

Major recommendations include doubling the $121 maximum weekly benefit to permanently, totally disabled workers; placing a time limit, such as four years, on permanent partial disability benefits paid to workers who are back on the job with pay and chance for advancement equal to pre-injury levels; and establishment of a rehabilitation program for injured workers under a separate bill.

Doubling of permanent total benefits will not result in increased premiums for two reasons, according to Clapp. Benefits of this type account for only 5 to 6 percent of the total pay out, and, in addition, the legislators plan to tie these benefits to social security benefits, he said. This tie would mean a worker's compensation benefits would be reduced by the social security payment amount, said Rep. Clapp.

Placing a time limit on permanent partial disability benefit payment and establishing a rehabilitation program will contribute to premium reduction, said Clapp. Permanent partial benefits make up 63 percent of workmen's compensation payments, he said.

Insurance industry representatives said placing a four-year cap on permanent partial payments would reduce premiums by 30 percent, he added.

You know the story. The mild weather lulls some of us into a sense of security. Then, before we know it, winter blasts in to find us unprepared.

If you're an ant, you've assessed your heating situation and your budget situation. If you're a smart ant, you've already ordered your Buck Stove. (The genius ants got their Buck Stoves last year.) Smart ants face the winter season with confidence, a supply of hardwoods stacked nearby and a pocket full of money that they won't have to spend on high heating bills.

You grasshoppers, however, depend totally on last winter's expensive and limited methods—or you don't wise up and order your Buck Stove until after the pond freezes over. By then, of course, you may have to wait for the supply to catch up with the demand. You may even have to hock your fiddle to pay the heating bills.

Don't hang with the grasshoppers unless you need problems this winter. See us for wood-burning wisdom that can keep you snug. As a bug.

DON'T FIDDLE AWAY THE SEASON, GET YOUR BUCK STOVE BEFORE THEY GET SCARCE.

Clay County Miner First Sent to Jail For Strip Violations

A Clay county attorney has become the first coal mine operator in the country to be sentenced to prison for violating the Federal Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act of 1977.

U.S. District Judge Eugene Siler, Jr., last Wednesday sentenced Letcher T. White, of Manchester, to one year in prison, with all but 30 days suspended, for defying a cessation order issued by a Federal Office of Surface Mining (OSM) inspector. The order was issued for failing to correct two violations of the federal act—pushing spoil over the downslope and improper head-of-hollow fill construction.

In addition, Siler fined White $5,000 and fined his firm, W.D. Coal Co., $10,000 for those charges.

A jury had found White guilty of knowingly refusing to comply with the Federal Act last May, following the first criminal trial brought in the country under that Act.

Siler delayed sentencing White until the conclusion of a case against him on tax charges. He subsequently pleaded guilty of failing to file an income tax return for 1973 and was sentenced to one year in prison, with all but 90 days suspended, and fined $2,000 for those charges.

White's sentence is to be carried out in the Federal Correctional Institution at Lexington.

State Women's Clubs Plan Crime Prevention Role

The Kentucky Federation of Women's Clubs has invited the Office of Crime Prevention to train women in basic crime prevention techniques.

Mrs. Joe Hall, of Georgetown, chairwoman of the public affairs department and crime reduction committee for the Kentucky Federation of Women's Clubs, said that women's clubs around the state would use the training to help senior citizens with crime prevention and to work in areas with no crime prevention programs.

The training seminar will be held Thursday, Nov. 15, at the Lexington Sheraton Inn-South, beginning at 9:30 a.m.

Mrs. Hall said the training will give members of the women's clubs "the nuts and bolts" of Operation Identification and home and personal security.

Gary Bush, field supervisor for the Office of Crime Prevention, said the women's clubs will be filling a large void. "Most law enforcement agencies around the state have the crime prevention services, but don't have the time and manpower to go into homes and help install the locks and peep holes and other hardware," Bush said.

"These women will be able to assist those senior citizens who aren't physically able to engrave their valuables and make their homes more secure," he said.

Mrs. Hall said some areas in Eastern Kentucky don't have active crime prevention programs. She said the women's clubs in those areas will work with the Office of Crime Prevention to get Operation Identification going there.

Pharmacy Footnotes

by Harold Cooley

One thing that should be kept in the medicine cabinet is an analgesic antipyretic, or, in simpler terms, a bottle of aspirin. Aspirin is effective in reducing the discomfort of occasional headaches; menstrual cramps, and the aches and pains caused by a cold. If aspirin is used only occasionally then a 100 tablet bottle may be sufficient. Watch for excessive crumbling which means that the tablets are getting quite old, or the storage area is too high in humidity.

At COOLEY APOTHECARY, No. 2 Town Center Building, Prestonsburg, 886-8106, we offer a complete selection of aspirin products. We dispense only the very best quality ingredients available, for the money. Have your doctor call us with your next prescription. We'll have it ready to pick up with no waiting. At COOLEY APOTHECARY we also feature a wide variety of convalescent health care items including walkers, canes, crutches, and bed pans. Open 9-5:30 PM Mon.-Fri.; 9-5:00 PM Saturday.

HELPFUL HINT:

A child's dose of aspirin is generally no more than half the regular 5 grain dose for adults. It may be less depending on the age of the child.

Save Geraniums from Frost

By NEVYLE SHACKLEFORD
UK College of Agriculture

A native of South Africa and Australia, Pelargonium, the Geranium, has a long and interesting story behind it. According to the quaint, old, and much quoted English botanist-surgeon, Dr. John Gerard, it has been known under such odd names as Dove's Foot, Pied Pigeon, Crane's Bill, and Stork's Beak. In a somewhat lengthy account of this "herbe," as he called it, Gerard said that its dried roots, beaten into a fine powder and given in half a spoonful of red claret at bedtime for 21 days, would cure ruptures as "myselfe have often proved, whereby I have gotten crownes and credit."

Dr. Gerard went on to say that this remedy was even more effective if the powder of nine "red snailles, those without shells, dried in an oven was added."

Flower lovers no longer grow the geranium for its medicinal value but for its beauty. It has become an all but universal favorite as a pot plant outdoors in summer and inside in winter. And with winter rapidly nearing the door, those who would save their geraniums from the frost and cold may do so by following the suggestions of David L. Hensley, Extension horticulturist in the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

Taking cuttings, he says, and starting new plants is the best approach, but whole plants can be overwintered. These are his suggestions for both methods:

To carry over plants from cutting, remove 3 to 4-inch cuttings from the tops of the plants. Remove the leaves from the bottom third or half of the cuttings and insert the cut end of the stems in damp perlite, vermiculite, peat, or sand.

Place cuttings out of direct sunlight and water as needed to keep the rooting medium moist. Cuttings should have roots one-half to one inch long in about 6 weeks. They can then be transplanted in 4-inch pots of houseplant potting soil. Grow them in a sunny window or under artificial light, watering whenever the soil feels dry.

Whole plants can be overwintered, bare root or potted. To preserve whole plants bare root, dig them before frost and tie in bundles. Then hang, root end up, in a cellar or other cool, moist area. Temperatures should remain around 45 degrees F and humidity at least 80 percent.

To pot up whole plants, dig before frost, taking as much of the root system as possible. Pot in containers big enough to accommodate the roots. A mixture of one part soil, one part sand, and one part peat makes an excellent potting material. Cut back the tops about one-half, water whenever the soil feels dry, and fertilize about once a month with a houseplant fertilizer, following label directions. Grow in a sunny window or under artificial lights.

In preparing your geraniums for the winter, it might be of added interest to know that they have probably done more to brighten the world than any cultivated flower. Whether for the gardener in the gardens of the rich or in a tin can on a window sill of the poor in a crowded ghetto, they will grow for anyone. It is also of interest to know that this flower has a cultivated ancestry of nearly three centuries since it was grown in the Baron of Burghley's gardens by old Dr. Gerard.

District Highway Office Organizes Speakers' Bureau

District Engineer Bert H. Banks, of the Kentucky Department of Transportation, has announced the organization of a speakers' bureau at the Pikeville district office.

Banks, who is in charge of KYDOT'S District 12, which includes Floyd, Johnson, Knott, Lawrence, Letcher, Martin and Pike Counties, said speakers will be available on request to church, civic and community groups of the area. Requests may be directed to him at the Kentucky Department of Transportation, P. O. Box 2468, Pikeville, Kentucky 41501; or by calling (606) 437-9691 at Pikeville.

The speakers' bureau is presently composed of Joe Dean Anderson, assistant district engineer for planning; John R. Bowlin, assistant district engineer for construction; Kirby Ison, district traffic engineer; Doyle Hicks, district design engineer; Wess Howard, district chief right-of-way agent, and Mr. Banks.

These people do not claim to be excellent public speakers, but they have many years of experience in the highway program and are particularly knowledgeable about their area of responsibility," Banks said. "They are willing to answer questions about local interests as well as discuss their special responsibilities and the activities of the department."

Long Lost 18th-Century Artist Rediscovered

These portraits of George Washington and George Washington Parke Custis, Martha Washington's grandson by her first marriage, were painted by Robert Edge Pine, a British artist who traveled to the United States in 1784 and portrayed many early American statesmen and revolutionary heroes. The paintings are part of an exhibit of Pine's work at the Smithsonian Institution's National Portrait Gallery in Washington, D.C.

By SANDRA WESTIN
 Smithsonian News Service
 Setting sail for America in 1784, Robert Edge Pine, a British portrait painter down on his luck, carried with him one very valuable asset—a letter of introduction to George Washington. Written by Virginian landowner George William Fairfax, an old neighbor and friend of Washington, the letter described Pine as "fine a gentleman can be, but he made so many enemies in this selfish nation that he is compelled to go to America to seek bread in this profession tho he is of the first Artists in the Isle."
 This was both the sad climax to Pine's British career and the happy beginning of the painter's brief but productive period immortalizing eminent American

JENNY WILEY TRAIL MEET
SLATED AT LODGE, NOV. 7
 The Jenny Wiley Trail Conference will meet tonight at 7 p.m. at May Lodge. Those attending will view a 30-minute color film, "Hiking the Appalachian Trail," and hear plans for future trails in the Prestonsburg area.
 For further information, those interested may call Myrna Hebert, 886-2711; M. Houston, 349-6269, or Bryan Mattingly, 739-5191.

statesmen and revolutionary heroes, among them, Benjamin Franklin, Gen. Washington and Declaration of Independence signers Robert Morris and Thomas Stone. The importance of Pine's work today, according to Robert G. Stewart, a curator at the Smithsonian's National Portrait Gallery, is that it "conveys a strong insight into the men who created this nation."
 Until recently, however, little was known about Pine. Several years ago, after the Portrait Gallery was given its first Pine portraits, those of Stone and his wife, Stewart began looking into the painter's background, both here and in England. He soon concluded that a major gap existed in American art history: nothing had been published about the artist.

Despite the importance of the subjects he painted, Pine's works generally were unknown, mainly because few of them survived. But once Stewart located a portrait of Robert Morris, the Portrait Gallery decided it was time to hold a show of this all-but-forgotten artist.

Born about 1720—the exact date is unknown, as is the extent of Pine's artistic education—the painter achieved early recognition in England, according to Stewart. Pine won prizes from the Society for the Encouragement of the Arts in 1750 and again in 1783. But he failed to be elected to the Royal Academy, possibly because of a long-smouldering rivalry with Sir Joshua Reynolds, another leading portraitist, and perhaps because of his own cantankerous temperament and well-known anti-monarchist politics. He left England, arriving in 1784 in Philadelphia, where he was joined later by his wife and daughters.

Although Pine's years in the New World were few—he died in 1788—his accomplishments were many Stewart says. In connection with an exhibition of his work, Pine published the first recorded art exhibition catalog printed in the United States. He was the first person in the New World to build an art gallery and he painted at least 88 portraits and partially completed four large historical paintings.

To paint portraits from life, Pine found it necessary to travel, visiting Mount Vernon in 1785 where George Washington, who was soon to be elected President, and Washington's adopted grandchildren sat for him. Pine then headed north to Annapolis. There, he later wrote Washington, he was "painting the portraits of Patriots, Legislators, Heros, and Beauties."

One of Pine's techniques, developed as a result of his travels, sometimes produced odd results. Because large canvases were too cumbersome to carry on the poor roads, Stewart explains, Pine's custom was to paint the heads of his subjects on small, thin pieces of canvas and then make pencil sketches of their figures on another surface. At home, Pine would paste the heads on large canvases and proceed to finish the bodies. But more than once, he confused one pencil sketch with another and gave his subjects bodies belonging to other individuals, resulting in the amusing substitution of a slender figure for a more portly one.

Nevertheless, Pine was enthusiastically received in America, where his reputation became firmly established. Katherine MacCauley Graham, a prominent English intellectual and world traveler, viewing Pine's portrait of George Washington in 1786, said it "bore the strongest resemblance to the original of any I have seen." The noted American portrait painter Rembrandt Peale considered him "a conjurer, with his mahstick wand and the rainbow tints of his palette." The art historian William Dunlap concurred, commenting "that for coloring, Pine is much beyond any of the artists, his contemporaries in this country, Gilbert Stuart alone excepted."

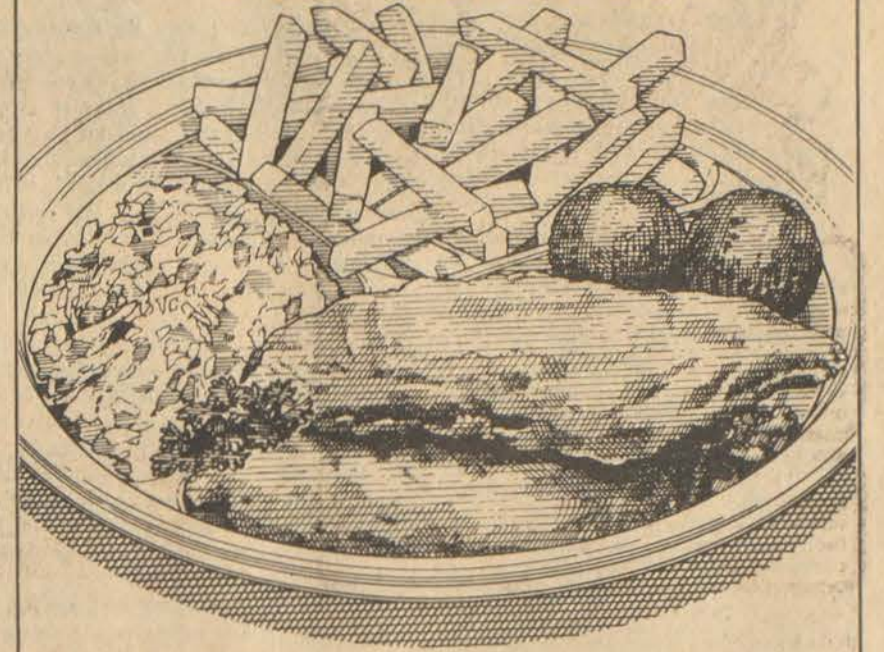

After Pine's death, his widow and her daughters sold his collection of paintings and returned to England. Daniel Bowen, one of America's earliest museum keepers, bought the bulk of the collection, moving the works to New York in April 1794 where they remained until the next year when Bowen's Columbian Museum on Boston opened. Tragically, in January 1803, fire destroyed the museum with all its collections, including Pine's British pictures and all his important American historical works.

It is only through the portraits that remained in private collections that anything of his style can be learned. Stewart tracked down these surviving Pine portraits, which are now on view until January 6, 1980, at the National Portrait Gallery in Washington, D.C. Included are the portraits of Washington, Stone, Morris and Franklin—all depicted as majestic, heroic figures. The ladies of the period, Mary Nevett, Lydia Ridgely, Betsy Patterson, are portrayed as totally feminine, glorified, sensual.

According to Stewart, "Robert Edge Pine's paintings of American leaders of the Revolution deserve an important place in history as perceptive portraits of the character and personality, the strengths and weaknesses of his subjects."

Care Needed for Cold Water Boating

Gone are the days of fun in the sun boating. As the cold days of winter roll in our weekend sports people who venture out on the icy waters for fishing or hunting need to be aware of the extra hazards inherent in cold water and how to protect themselves just in case they take an unexpected icy dip. If you're thinking this article doesn't apply to you, and if you ever go on the water in a boat then consider this: for every three victims of drowning or near drowning, two never intended to be in the water at all. Also, about one half of all boating related drownings occur in the autumn and spring months when the water is cold.

The first hazards an overboard boater faces are panic and shock. The initial shock can place a severe strain on the body, producing instant cardiac arrest.

Survivors of cold water accidents have reported their breath being driven from them on first impact with the water. Should your face be in the water during the first involuntary gasp for breath, it may well be water rather than air. Total disorientation may occur after cold water immersion. Persons have reported thrashing helplessly in the water for 30 seconds or more until they were able to get their bearings.

Immersion in cold water can quickly numb the extremities to the point of uselessness. Cold hands cannot fasten the straps of a life jacket, grasp a throw rescue line, or hold onto an overturned boat. Cold water robs the body's heat 32 times faster than cold air. Within minutes severe pain clouds rational thought. And finally, without rescue and proper first aid treatment, unconsciousness and death occur.

Now that you know what cold water can do to you, you should know how to protect yourself against it. There are two things you can do to protect yourself before you ever get into a perilous situation. First of all, the same multiple layers of loose clothing that protect you in the water: They will trap air bubbles to help keep you afloat and they will hold a layer of warm water against your body, the more loose clothing you have on, the greater the protection. Second, as important as it is for you to wear your Coast Guard approved personal flotation device (PFD) anytime you are using boats, it is absolutely essential in cold water. Remember: Cold water causes muscle rigidity. You may be fit to swim for the olympics, but if you can't move your arms and legs you can't stay afloat. In addition, the more you move around in cold water, the faster you cool.

In case you do fall in the water you can increase your chance for survival by using the following techniques. (1) Relax. Let your PFD and the air bubbles in your clothes float you. (2) Remain calm. If you thrash around this will not only eliminate the air bubbles but will bring a fresh flow of cold water through your clothes and speed up the dangerous cooling process. (3) Get out of the water. You should do this as soon as possible but move slowly. The best thing is to remain on your back and use your hands to propel yourself gently through the water back to your boat. Most boats will support the weight of their occupants even when filled with water. If you can right your boat, get in it and bail out the water. If you are unable to get in or on your boat then you must make the choice either to move, on your back, to shore or remain where you are until someone can rescue you.

To help you make the right choice you should know that few people can swim as far as a mile (that's only about 2,000 yards) in water of 50 degrees or colder. If you elect to remain and wait for rescue you can probably survive about four hours if you have your PFD on and use the H.E.L.P. posture.

H.E.L.P. stands for heat escape lessening posture. It is accomplished simply by holding your upper arms snugly against the sides of your trunk and crossing your forearms across your chest. Cross your legs and draw them up close to your chest.

Remember, as winter draws nearer and the waters get colder, there's no substitute for good preparation before going out on the water. Your best chance for surviving unexpected exposure to cold water is to wear a PFD.

54 Mineworkers In Martin County Cut from Jobs

(From The Martin Countian, Inez, Ky.)

Toptiki Coal Corporation, a subsidiary of Mid-American Pipeline Corporation (MAPCO), issued permanent layoff notices to 54 of the 117 workers employed at their Wolf Creek operations last week, sources say.

According to workers who received the notices, a letter informing them of their dismissal was issued with their paychecks on Friday. Those workers contacted by The Martin Countian indicated that there had been no prior notice of the layoffs and that no explanation other than the letter of dismissal was offered by supervisors.

In a letter signed by D.G. "Buddy" Reed, general supervisor of the Toptiki operations, each of the 54 workers was informed that he had been "permanently terminated" because of a decrease in coal sales, increased costs due to reclamation and an increased stripping ratio. No details were offered in the letters of dismissal, only the general reasons of increased costs and a decrease in sales.

The letter ordered the workers to turn in medical cards by October 26, the date it was received by the dismissed employees.

Each of the dismissed men stand to lose all seniority and Christmas bonuses and clothing bonuses they are awarded at the year's end.

In addition, one disgruntled worker points out that those who were with the company for less than three years will apparently lose all profit-sharing benefits that are offered by Toptiki as part of their wages.

The workers report that most of the men were at the Prestonsburg Unemployment office on Monday to sign up for benefits.
