

Late Judge's Grandsons Unveil Plaque Honoring Park Founder

Cub scouts of Pack 56, Allen, present the flag during ceremonies dedicating the new Floyd county park at Allen, Sunday, to the memory of Judge Henry Stumbo.

Under cloudless skies, the new county park at Allen was dedicated Sunday to the memory of the late Judge Henry Stumbo.

Several hundred people turned out for the simple ceremony, which concluded with the judge's grandsons' unveiling a plaque proclaiming the park "the Judge's most cherished project for all the people of Floyd County."

Commonwealth's Attorney James R. Allen told the audience, which included Judge Stumbo's widow, his daughter, the present Floyd county judge-executive, Yvonne S. Jones, and county officials, that the park would not exist today but for Judge Stumbo's "dream" and commitment.

Allen said that the county also "owed a debt of gratitude" to George E. Evans, Jr., National Mines, Inc. executive, who donated to the county the greater part of the property on which the park stands. A smaller parcel of property was purchased for the park from the C & O railroad.

While disclaiming responsibility for creating the park, Congressman Carl D. Perkins pledged to "make sure it does not get washed off," by working for construction of the Haysi (Va.) dam.

Tennis courts, a baseball field, and a little league field are already in use at the park; a contract has been let for construction of a multi-purpose building and bathhouse, and bids are to be opened October 26 for construction of the swimming pool.

Betsy Layne High School band and majorettes and the Allen cub scouts participated in the afternoon's ceremony.

It's Fire Prevention Week . . .

Here's How To Prevent Tragedy

Safety through consumer education is one objective of National Fire Prevention Week, Oct. 7 through 13. The Department for Human Resources, in conjunction with the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission, today released a list of "do's and don'ts" concerning common fire hazards in homes and automobiles.

With the rising trend of consumer awareness, more and more people are taking added precaution when dealing with fire hazards, says Edsel Moore, manager of the department's consumer product safety branch. However, says Moore, there are still deaths and injuries occurring that could have been prevented with simple precautions.

Moore listed these cold weather fire-prevention do's and don'ts:

- Locate heat sources away from furniture, drapes and high-traffic areas.
- Start charcoal and wood fires only with fuels explicitly labeled as starter fluids, not gasoline. Never add lighter fluid to a fire after it is started. Fire can travel up to the can and cause an explosion.
- Do not store large amounts of kindling or newspaper inside the house.
- Do not use a wood-burning stove or a fireplace as an incinerator. Many types of trash can produce toxic or flammable gases when burned.

-Discard any gasoline used in lawnmowers or power tools that won't be used in the winter.

-Store flammable liquids only in cool, well-ventilated areas with no nearby sources in ignition, such as a gas hot water heater, electric motor or gas furnace.

-Store flammable liquids only in approved and labeled containers. Never store flammable liquids in glass containers.

-Do not store gasoline in the trunk of a car. Gasoline in the trunk can be ignited by a spark from a tail light or a minor traffic accident.

-Place at least one fire extinguisher in your home, preferably near the kitchen.

-Place at least one smoke detector near the bedrooms of your home.

-When fuses blow out, only use properly rated fuses to replace them. If a 15 amp fuse blows, replace it with a 15 amp fuse.

-Make sure any children in the household know what to do in case of a fire. Have a point well away from the house for everyone to meet if a fire should occur.

GREEK INFLATION TO HIT 18.5 PERCENT

ATHENS, Greece—Inflation will hit 18.5 percent in Greece this year because of increased fuel prices and readjustments after joining the Common Market, Premier Constantine Caramanlis said yesterday in an annual fiscal address. Inflation was 11.5 percent last year.

Utilities' Purchases of Fuels To Be Matched by Commissions

Greater scrutiny of utilities' fuel purchasing practices is but one of the changes that became effective Oct. 1 with the reorganization of the state's Energy and Utility Regulatory Commissions.

In his executive order, which approves the commissions' proposals, Gov. Julian Carroll said "analysis of utility fuel procurement" will be "a principal duty" of the commissions' Office of Executive Director.

The director, according to the order, "shall have the responsibility for ensuring that the fuel procurement practices of all regulated utilities are conducted with the utmost integrity and all fuel is purchased at the most reasonable price." The commission wanted this ability so that utilities' buying procedures are aimed at getting fuel at the best price.

Some utilities have been criticized for how they get their fuel and the price they pay for it.

Other changes include the establishment of the Division of Analysis, Research and Statistics; the Division of Utility Engineering and Services; and the Division of Rates and Tariffs.

The Division of Analysis, Research and Statistics will perform economic analysis, rate research and analysis, data processing system development and maintenance of a data base. It will also provide position papers and may provide policy alternatives that relate to state and federal legislation.

The Division of Utility Engineering and Services will supervise utilities' services and establish service standards. It will inspect pipeline and safety violations, examine consumer complaints and assist utilities in addressing long-range growth plans.

The Division of Rates and Tariffs will supervise the accounting, reporting and recordkeeping of the utilities. It will conduct audits, investigations and analyses.

These two areas were separate but because they concern how much is paid for the service and who pays it, they were bought together under the reorganization.

DEAR ABBY:

I am a pretty town in Eastern Kentucky (my friends say I have a nice personality), but lately I have felt very neglected. Sometimes I think no one cares about me. I am dirty and kind of run down, but only get a good cleaning once every year or so. Some people who used to visit me regularly now go to see my neighbors instead (whom I will call Paintsville and Pikeville). Finances are not a problem, and I do not need a raise in my allowance. I feel like the main thing I need is some ATTENTION, given on a REGULAR basis. Can you help?

Sincerely, PRESTONSBURG

DEAR PRESTONSBURG,

I would certainly like to help you. I have always believed that if a good town is kept clean, neat and attractive, it will have plenty of friends and visitors. I call on all my readers who are concerned with your problems, to get behind me and you, and working together, I think we can help. Do not despair, I really care about you and your problems.

Sincerely, ABBY

Grub, Lice Control Said Advisable Now

Measures aimed at controlling cattle grubs should be taken by the end of October, according to Chris Christensen, Extension entomologist in the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

At the same time, treatment to control lice on cattle is advised by the specialist.

Christensen says when treating cattle for grubs, the sprays, pour-ons or spot-on type insecticides also will control the adult and nymph stage lice on animals. However, these treatments will not control lice eggs.

"If you want to get rid of lice, it is necessary to treat cattle again two to three weeks after grub control treatment," he says, explaining that the second treatment kills lice hatched since the first treatment.

Another application of either an insecticide spray, pour-on or spot-on designed specifically for lice control should do the job. Christensen stresses the importance of reading labels to make sure the first type of treatment can be followed with a second application in two to three weeks.

Christensen notes that for this type of lice control program to be successful, it is necessary that all animals in the herd be treated since lice are transmitted through body contact.

"After treatment, isolate non-treated animals, and if you get new cattle, keep them quarantined until treatment," advises the specialist. Following these recommendations should preclude the need for lice control later in the year.

This type of program is recommended for beef cattle and nonlactating dairy cattle.

NUNN ENDORSED by State Pro-Life POLITICAL ACTION COMMITTEE

Former Gov. Louie B. Nunn has been endorsed in his bid for a second term by the Kentucky Pro-Life Political Action Committee.

"Louie B. Nunn will provide strong moral leadership in support of the right to life," the committee announced recently. The committee is the political arm of the Kentucky Right to Life Association.

"Not only has Governor Nunn taken pro-life positions on all major issues related to the right to life, he has also taken his pro-life positions openly and firmly, and has made them a major part of his campaign," the committee said.

Nunn opposes abortion on demand and supports the adoption of the proposed Human Life Amendment to the U.S. Constitution, which would overturn the U.S. Supreme Court decision legalizing abortion.

The committee said that its endorsement process includes a questionnaire and a personal interview. It said that John Y. Brown Jr., the Democratic nominee, "declined our requests to complete the questionnaire" and waited four months to grant an interview request.

"It became evident during the interview that Mr. Brown does not share our sense of urgency and commitment to the task of protecting the lives of unborn," the committee said. "He prefers to stand aside and take a hands-off attitude."

"We conclude, therefore, that Mr. Brown, if elected Governor, will not provide the strong moral leadership necessary to promote the right to life cause," the committee said.

Schoolwork Isn't Hard Enough, Teenagers Say in Gallup Poll

About half of America's teenagers say that students are not being asked to work hard enough either in school or on homework assignments, according to a Gallup poll conducted for the Charles F. Kettering Foundation.

and 44 percent of whites judged them to be too low. Other findings are: —79 percent of teenagers surveyed believed the U.S. is still the land of opportunity. —88 percent are willing to perform community service such as working in a hospital or recreation center, beautifying parks, or helping law enforcement officers during their junior and senior years of high school if given course credit.

Safety Tips for Hallowe'en

The end of October not only brings falling leaves and chilly nights but also small ghosts and goblins trekking from door-to-door in the annual search for tricks or treats. While Halloween is a candy heaven for youngsters, it is often a cause for worry among concerned parents.

—Have children wear light-colored costumes and, if at all possible, sew reflective tape or reflective material to the costume. —Don't let children wear a mask. "Masks are a real problem. They make visibility very poor for kids. But if they must wear them, select a mask with eye openings that are large enough for the child to see out of properly," Maffet said.

NEW PROGRAMS FOR A NEW DIRECTION FOR PRESTONSBURG

Program No. 1—CREATION OF A FULL TIME STREET DEPARTMENT . . to repair and maintain our existing streets and sidewalks, and to construct new sidewalks where they are needed.

METHOD OF FUNDING One thing to do here is use the money already allocated in the budget. Last year, approximately $15,000.00 budgeted for the street department was not used. Also, state gasoline tax money is available. Let's use it!

Program No. 2—CREATION OF A SPRING CLEAN-UP PROGRAM . . Beginning each May, using high school and college boys to cut weeds, clean vacant lots, and sweep the streets and sidewalks

METHOD OF FUNDING Federal Revenue Sharing Money—WE DID IT YEARS AGO—WHY NOT NOW?

Program No. 3—APPOINT A COMMISSION TO STUDY THE DRAINAGE PROBLEMS OF THE CITY FROM GOBLE-ROBERTS TO WEST PRESTONSBURG . . . This is a big task and desperately needs to be started NOW.

METHOD OF FUNDING Use available state and federal monies to build an adequate drainage system for ALL of Prestonsburg.

Program No. 4—ESTABLISH A PROGRAM OF EQUALITY OF GOVERNMENT . . . Equal services to ALL AREAS of the City . . . As well as COURTESY AND CONCERN for all citizens who bring their problems before the city council.

METHOD OF FUNDING It costs nothing to be courteous to all citizens . . . It pays!

The members of the New Direction Ticket wholeheartedly endorse the work of the Downtown Merchants Association in their efforts to develop downtown Prestonsburg. WE also pledge our active support and all available resources to speed up the revitalization of downtown Prestonsburg.

It does not take new taxes to have a clean and growing town. All it takes is a willingness to work together, responsible spending of our tax dollars already budgeted, and a total commitment to be THE LEADING COMMUNITY ON THE BIG SANDY ONCE AGAIN.

The new Chryslers and Plymouths have arrived in the showroom. So now you can see for yourself why the Chrysler-Plymouth engineers are calling 1980 their year.

Look at the new LeBaron. It's been restyled for 1980 with a new grille and dramatic new hood and roof lines. And Chrysler's engineers have made the 2-door model smaller than last year, while increasing interior headroom and rear shoulder room.

Cordoba's totally redesigned for 1980. The engineers wanted to get the gas mileage up, so they made Cordoba shorter—but with more interior leg room—and over 400 pounds lighter than last year. And Cordoba's still a classic personal car.

New Yorker for 1980 is the ultimate Chrysler. Engineered from the inside out to be a true luxury car. New Yorker owners say its luxury and comfort put it in a class with Cadillac or Lincoln.

Volare is engineered for Plymouth value. Nothing else on the compact market offers Volare's features at Volare's price. That's Plymouth value.

Champ is one of the Plymouth imports built by Mitsubishi. They're the most technologically advanced Japanese cars you can buy. And Champ is the highest gasoline mileage car you can get. Champ is available with your choice of three transmissions. 4-speed manual. 3-speed automatic. Or the unique Twin Stick that lets you select Economy or Power performance in any gear.

Can Ky. Defend Against Nuclear Plant Construction in Other States?

The Interim Joint Committee on Health and Welfare today agreed to ask the attorney general's office to research whether the state can defend itself against the construction of nuclear plants in other states as a public nuisance.

The committee also asked the Division of Disaster and Emergency Services to see whether nuclear power companies can be required to develop or to pay for the development of evacuation plans that could be needed if a disaster would occur at the plant.

In addition, the committee approved a resolution by Sen. John Berry (D-New Castle) that a task force be formed to study the development of power plants in the Ohio River Valley.

Berry argued that since there is an "imminent...or substantial threat" to the health and welfare of Kentucky citizens and a reduction in property values in affected counties the state should be able to defend itself against the "conduct of the people of another state."

David Martin, director of environmental law in the attorney general's office, said Berry's argument was a "classical nuisance theory" in civil law. But, he said, since nuclear plants are protected and regulated by federal law, "I wouldn't want to put any money on a (federal) court determining that it was a nuisance."

The committee also heard from Clyde Greenwood, county judge-executive of Trimble county. Greenwood said 80 percent of the people of Trimble county lived within 10 miles of the nuclear plant under construction at Marble Hill (Ind.) (Ten miles is the distance the federal Nuclear Regulatory Commission has said would be affected if there were an accident at a nuclear plant.)

Greenwood said the lights at Marble Hill are visible at night in Trimble county, "glaring" across the peaceful acres we once knew as a sedate, peaceful place to live. "It would have been a lot more difficult politically to have located a nuclear facility in Northern Indiana, but the sparsely populated (5,800 people) Trimble county location represented 'genocide for fewer people,' he said. Greenwood also said the county was "hurting" for money to develop disaster plans and facilities.

In other action today the committee approved pre-filed bills that would:

—Require glue and paint frequently "sniffed" by youngsters to contain unpleasant additives that would discourage breathing the fumes, and;

—Raise the fee for a marriage license from $4 to $10, with the additional $6 to go to fund centers for spouses who have been physically abused by their mates.

The committee also heard a report that recommended reimbursing pharmacists who distributed drugs under Kentucky's Medical Assistance Program on a variable rate rather than on a fixed rate. The rate would vary according to the pharmacy's cost in preparing the prescription, under recommendations in the report.

The committee also heard E. P. Hilton, chairman of the supportive services subcommittee of the Special Advisory Commission of Senior Citizens, deliver recommendations of this group. Hilton suggested older people be maintained in their own homes as long as possible rather than being put in nursing homes.

He also recommended that "multi-purpose" centers be established throughout the state to act as a referral agency and to tell older persons what services are available to them. Such centers could allow those with the ability to pay for such services to do so, he said, and could recommend reliable persons to provide plumbing, maid and other services to older people.

Experiment in Burning Coal To Produce Gas Held Success

PRINCETOWN, W. Va.—Federal researchers say they have had surprising success with a West Virginia experiment in obtaining gas from coal in hard-to-reach seams.

"We're going after unmineable coal," says Edward Burwell, program manager for the Department of Energy in Germantown, Md. "Seams that are too deep, too steep or too thin."

The experiment is being made in Witzel county.

The technique makes gas without removing coal from the ground. Wells are sunk into a coal seam and air and steam are injected to create a porous pathway through the coal. The seam is ignited and gas flows up the well.

"It could be used when you can't mine a coal seam any other way," Burwell said.

The technique has been successfully tested in the West, Burwell said. But because of differences between Western and Eastern coal, researchers were uncertain whether the technique would work in West Virginia.

Researchers feared that Eastern coal would swell when heated, blocking the flow of air and shutting down the combustion that produces the gas. But the Pricetown seam has been burning since May, according to William Overby, senior scientist with DOE's Energy Technology Center in Morgantown.

Burwell says the process does have some environmental problems. It causes subsidence, which is the settling of ground on top of a coal seam that has been mined.

"But then you have a subsidence problem whenever you have underground mining. It's there, but we think we can handle it. We don't think it's a showstopper," Burwell said.

"Vision is the art of seeing things invisible."

James Earl Jones in KET Robeson Special

James Earl Jones brings Phillip Hayes Dean's controversial play, "Paul Robeson" to KET Monday, October 8 at 9 p.m.

Paul Robeson, one of the leading black artists of his generation, was a Phi Beta Kappa, an all-American football player at Rutgers and a world-renowned actor and singer. Robeson, who died in 1979, was surrounded by political turmoil all his life, partly because he refused to withhold its deep-seated views on racism.

"I'll not be found staggering through Harlem chasing a ghost of what I might have been," vows Jones in his portrayal of Robeson. "they'll not do that to me."

MSU Prof. Aims To Learn All He Can About Habits of Kentucky Snakes

Professor Meade with one of the objects of his research.

By the end of 1980, Les Meade of Morehead State University hopes to know as much about Kentucky snakes as a person can.

Meade, assistant professor of biology at MUS, is currently involved in a systematic study of the different forms of snakes for his doctoral dissertation at the University of Southern Mississippi.

"My study involves a systematic study of the variations and distribution of snakes in Kentucky," Meade said. "I'm involved with the measurements, scale count, tail length, body length and total length as well as the differences in males and females."

He continued: "With the tail, it is common to find that males and females have different tail lengths in many species. For example, in copperheads, the difference is not really clear but in garter snakes there is a definite difference."

His primary study is based on preserved snakes with only a few live specimens on hand including small copperheads, black racer, garter snakes and rat snakes.

"I'm also looking at scale patterns on the head where there are some variations," Meade added. "I also count the scales in three different places on the body and study the color variations because some snakes vary in color with age. For example, the black rat snake is blotched when young but the mature adults are almost solid black."

One concern when working closely with snakes is being bitten. Meade said he hasn't been bitten by a poisonous snake but has been bitten by a rat snake which "feels like getting scratched by a briar."

Sufficient time and finances prevent Meade from spending very much time in the field, searching for specimens.

"I've had residents from the region contact me about snakes in their area and now and then someone will bring me a snake," he added. "I also contacted every major museum in the nation and have received some information from them on Kentucky snakes."

He continued: "Of the different forms of Kentucky snakes, not all occur in Eastern Kentucky. There are several that occur only in the coastal plain area of Western Kentucky and a few in Southern Kentucky and few that extend into the northern areas."

"One of the most common snakes in Eastern Kentucky is the black rat snake which grows to about eight feet," Meade added. "But, of the different forms of snakes in Kentucky, only six are venomous."

Only Bow Hunting Will Be Permitted In Dewey Lake Area

Bow hunting for deer will be permitted on Dewey Lake Wildlife Management Area, Oct. 13 through Nov. 9, according to Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources regulations.

This area, which is composed of public lands around the shoreline of Dewey Lake, is the only portion of Floyd county open for any type of deer hunting this year.

Archers may use longbows or compound bows, but no crossbows will be allowed. Arrows must conform to statewide regulations—barbless broadhead points at least seven-eighths inch wide and no chemically treated arrows or attachments containing chemicals.

Bows cannot be fitted with any device which holds an arrow at full draw without aid from the archer.

A check station for those taking deer on the area has been established at the Brandy Keg Boat Dock. All deer taken must be checked at the check station or by a conservation officer by 9 a.m. on the day after it was taken.

The purpose of check stations is to give wildlife biologists a quick and accurate count of the state's deer harvest.

The Kentucky Chapter of The Arthritis Foundation states that with early diagnosis and proper care, many of the victims in Floyd county can be helped. The local health agency needs your support during its current fund drive to continue and expand its programs for victims of the disease.

Surgery for joints damaged by arthritis is one of the major medical breakthroughs in recent years, reports The Arthritis Foundation. Today, doctors are able to replace hips, knees, wrists and elbows with artificial joints, freeing many arthritis sufferers from pain and disability. You help continue this important research when you give to the Kentucky Chapter of The Arthritis Foundation.

Wildlife Smuggling Reaps Huge Profits

Sales of illegally imported wildlife in the U.S. now run into tens of millions of dollars a year, earning for an international network of smugglers profit margins comparable to those in the drug trade, according to the current issue of National Wildlife magazine.

Illegal trade in products made from wildlife, such as ocelot fur jackets and crocodile shoes, is even greater in volume, reports the National Wildlife Federation's bimonthly publication.

"The most sobering fact is that much of this traffic involves protected wildlife—including many species whose existence is threatened or endangered," the magazine observes. "The rarer the creature, the higher the price. And the higher the potential profit, the greater the incentive to smuggle."

As examples of rare and valuable wildlife often smuggled into the U.S., the magazine cites the unusual hyacinthine macaws from the jungles of southern Brazil, which bring as much as $8,000 apiece. And a shipment of 375 threatened Indonesian cockatoos seized two years ago was valued at $750,000.

There is a "seemingly insatiable appetite" in Europe, the U.S., and Japan for exotic wildlife, and the market is supplied by an international network of poachers, middlemen, brokers, and dealers, says the magazine report. "The markups are staggering," the report adds "and the risks, at least in the past, have been low."

Most of the illegal wildlife comes from the jungles and tropical rain forests of Asia, South America, and Africa. For impoverished natives, collecting mammals, birds, and reptiles is a source of income. Dealers in Bangkok, Singapore, Barranquilla (Columbia), Asuncion (Paraguay), and certain other cities buy up the harvest for a fraction of the final retail price, and they, in turn, supply dealers and brokers in Europe, the U.S., and Japan.

How are the animals smuggled into the U.S.? Many younger animals are crammed into small crates and die in transit. Endangered radiated tortoises from Madagascar were found under the false bottom of a crate containing poisonous snakes. Rare Australian parrots were concealed in a shipment of race horses. Parrots were found stuffed in nylon stockings and stashed in automobile door panels.

"Up to ten animals may perish for every one that reaches its destination alive," National Wildlife estimates.

Most often, illicit wildlife and their products come into the U.S. shielded by false or misleading documents, and this is what makes the illegal trade so difficult to control. Clark Bavin, Chief of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service's Law Enforcement Division explained to National Wildlife that with just 210 agents and 35 inspectors at work it's nearly impossible to stem the flow of illegal imports. "We suspect that there's a large volume of illegal traffic that we're nowhere near approaching," Bavin said.

In addition, penalties for those animal smugglers who are caught have been little more than hand slaps, the magazine reports. There were 584 convictions, with fines totalling just $31,117. Jail sentences totalled only 2,015 days.

Now, however, the word is out that the U.S. is cracking down on animal smugglers. The Fish and Wildlife Service, the Justice Department, and the Customs Service are all stepping up their efforts to catch and convict smugglers, brokers, and dealers.

Kenneth Berlin, who runs the Justice Department's Wildlife Enforcement Program, told National Wildlife that in the future, U.S. attorneys will be pressing for tougher sentences for wildlife smugglers. And the Fish and Wildlife Service is preparing new regulations requiring all wildlife importers and exporters to get federal licenses. That way, a conviction for illegal trade could cause a license revocation and put the dealer out of business.

President Carter announced in his August environmental message that he would submit to Congress a bill strengthening the federal government's power to control illegal smuggling of wildlife and wildlife products. In addition, Carter announced the establishment of a Department of Justice "strike force," to crack down on violators, especially those trading in protected wildlife species.

With the risks of conviction and punishment much greater, officials now hope illicit wildlife trade will cease to be such a lucrative international crime. Until then, the earth's beleaguered wildlife will be helpless victims. As Joseph O'Kane, a U.S. Customs agent, told National Wildlife, "You can't equate wildlife smuggling solely in terms of dollars. You must also think in terms of when something becomes extinct."

Maintenance Stressed To Hold Down Spending On Parts by State

The state Department of Transportation spent more than $1.4 million last year for spare parts to keep more than 9,000 pieces of machinery operating. But plans to cut down on repairs through a uniform preventative maintenance program were initiated this month by the department's Division of Equipment.

According to state Transportation Secretary Calvin Grayson, such a program is essential. "We have a loss of $23 million in revenue facing us in the upcoming year as well as increasingly expensive operational costs. It is imperative that we maintain the equipment we have," he said.

While preventative maintenance has always existed to some degree within the department, there has never been a formal program. Now operators of heavy equipment will attend training sessions to teach them how to prevent the need for serious repairs to their machines and, therefore, avoid expensive downtime.

"We believe that the best way to assure that equipment is maintained properly is to work directly with the operators who run the equipment every day," Sandy Hockensmith, assistant division director, said recently.

WANTED

Eligible, Omitted Names For Archer Park War Memorial

Information has reached us since the construction of the Archer Park WAR MEMORIAL that many eligible deceased veterans are not listed. We are extremely sorry that this occurred. We did advertise widely for help in collecting the names of all Floyd Countians killed in World War I, World War II, Korea and Vietnam.

To correct these omissions, Walter Karr Bowling Post No. 5839, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Prestonsburg, Ky., is planning to erect another plaque at the memorial, adding names of all the eligible deceased that we omitted. We need your help in supplying names for this new plaque. Please assist by contacting one of the following members by mail, phone or in person, and furnish the information needed:

WATTS THE PRICE?

By Bryna Brennan

Remember all the old-fashioned methods of cooking, cleaning and taking care of a home? Then technology stepped in and eased the drudgery and effort of housework. In light of the fuel crises, the question now is: are today's time-saving devices also energy wasters? And are they skyrocketing your utility bills?

Look at some of your convenient household appliances. Do you know how much energy they consume? How can you tell what it's costing you to use them?

Figuring Out the Cost

The first thing to do is determine the number of watts that the appliance uses. According to Mr. Michael Segel, Director of Public Information at the Edison Electric Institute, you'll find in general that heat-producing devices (such as toasters, waffle irons, etc.) will use more energy than ones that are motor operated.

Edison Electric Institute publishes a pamphlet which gives a national average for the energy consumption of a variety of household appliances. You can also get a rough idea of your actual energy consumption for each appliance by noting the watts that the appliance uses (see the appliance label) and multiplying that figure by the number of hours you use it.

Take an electric fry pan, for example. We've come a long way from the day of the heavy cast iron pan. Today, you can get a no-stick, no-scour, fully electric fry pan with a decorative finish in the color of your choice. You can cook away from the stove just by plugging your electric frying pan into a nearby outlet. That electric pan (average 1,200 watts) uses roughly 100 kilowatt hours (kwh) per year, according to the Edison Institute.

Lump together some of the larger items that we consider absolute necessities: a dishwasher, refrigerator with automatic defrost, a clothes dryer, washer, iron, water heater and room air conditioner. These devices, which have become as much a part of day-to-day living as brushing your teeth, will cost you an estimated $376.40 per year using an estimated 9,410 kwh per year. Sure it's easier to throw the dishes in a bin and have someone or something else do them, but at what price?

Has technology gone to far? Probably not—but chances are, it is at odds with energy conservation.

Did you know that you could buy an electric, automatic hot dog and roll steamer? It, too, costs money and energy. The average sandwich grill consumes 1,161 watts of electricity. Did you know about an electric corn popper (575 watts) that guarantees four quarts of pop corn in five minutes, without messy oil?

It can be used in any room complete with a butter melter attachment. What would your grandmother say?

She'd probably say it was great. In granny's era, even making bread was a chore. It offered ample rewards, but it took time to knead the dough to its proper consistency. Today's modern homemaker needn't worry about wasting all that time. For 450 watts, an electric multi-purpose mixer will do the work in a fraction of the time it used to take granny. But granny saved us the energy we are using today.

Electric blenders and food processors have gained great popularity in today's kitchen. Why not? They can do practically everything. Several manufacturers have put out blenders and food processors that can cut french fries, slice, shred, grind, mash, puree, dice, chop, mince and even peel potatoes. All you do is turn on the machine and the blades and the electricity do the rest. The average blender consumes 300 watts of electricity.

Cutting meat by hand can be messy and produce uneven slices. An electric carving knife can eliminate that—at a cost, of course. A typical carving knife uses about 92 watts of electricity. Even more sophisticated for home slicing is the new meat slicer, similar to the one professional butchers use.

Some of the New Conveniences

For your electricity, a variety of appliances can offer you everything from soup (just open a can) to nuts (ground to order).

An automatic juice extractor: It's easy to operate. Well, anything beats the old fashioned squeezers. It will separate the pulp, it's easy to clean, it's stainless steel to prevent rusting, and it's long-lasting and easy to store.

Dehydrators: It used to be that to preserve food you had to either freeze or can them. Now, a manufacturer has put on the market an electric food dehydrator to preserve fruit, vegetables, meat, fish and poultry.

Ice cream makers: you can make ice cream, sherbet and frozen yogurt at home, a half gallon at a time. Thermostatically controlled to shut off automatically when the iced dessert is ready, it certainly is easier than cranking that old wooden crank.

Steamers: There used to be one way to steam foods. Now you can get a steam cooker with three separate compartments that can cook your family's entire meal in about 30 minutes. By pouring water, or any other liquid you might want for flavoring, into the bottom section of the three-tiered cooker, you can put your main course and two separate vegetables or side dishes in the trays. The appliance uses 750 watts of power.

A salad cutter: In a hurry to make a beautiful salad? A contraption to make a fast, evenly cut salad is on the market. You add all the salad ingredients into one end, and they come out the other, evenly sliced. You can put all your vegetables in and empty them right into the salad bowl.

Super mixers: Grandma used to mix by hand. Later, electric mixers for cakes or eggs became the rage. Today you can buy a mixer that even kneads dough. Several of these super mixers have automatic timers that stop at the end of the mixing at the time you select.

Coffee mills and grinders: Technology has taken us a far cry from turning the old crank to change coffee beans into freshly ground coffee. The mill and the grinder can also be used for grains, nuts and spices. In only minutes you can have a cup, or several cups, of freshly perked coffee. A standard mill uses about .10 kwh per month. A coffee maker uses about 1,200 watts of electricity.

Electric can openers: They've been around for years, but they're constantly changing. You can select a "tall" can opener, one with a knife sharpener and automatic shut-off, all for 100 watts.

Microwave ovens: One of the latest gadgets offered for kitchen relief, today's microwave ovens are chock full of extras. Some companies offer models that include digital clocks, on/off lights, automatic timers, recall, and complete temperature control. Some can read and remember recipe cards. You can leave home knowing that your meal will start and stop automatically. The average microwave oven uses 1,450 watts of power. A microwave range with oven uses 12,200 watts of electricity.

Trash compactors: There will be no need to take the trash out each night if you buy a trash compactor. You can put all your trash, bottles, cans and cartons into the compactor and have it reduced in volume by almost 75%. Trash compactors use roughly 400 watts of power.

Garbage disposals: Well, you can't or shouldn't, put all of your garbage into a trash compactor but you can also get rid of your garbage with a built-in electrical garbage disposal: All sorts of garbage can slide down your drain into the seemingly magical jaws of your disposal. At the flick of a switch you grind away all the mess. A disposal uses about 445 watts.

Energy Round-Up

Aside from those electrical supplies listed, here are some other appliances we use, some on a daily basis, with their combined energy usage. Let's say you make eggs with an egg cooker and have two pieces of toast and a side order of waffles for breakfast. There are some leftovers, so you put them in your automatic defrost freezer. You take a shower, which uses your quick-recovery water heater. You turn on the humidifier while dressing. You shave with an electric razor, dry your hair with an electric dryer and brush your teeth with an electric toothbrush. You run the vacuum cleaner and then turn on the radio. It's all routine and powered by 10,000 watts of electricity.

There are many convenient household items on the market. If you have a tendency to be feulish, you might want to check out the wattage of the products you use. There's no need to set back the clocks and return to a bygone era. Many of the manufacturers, in fact, have taken steps to assure the maximum output of their products with the least amount of power outlay.

Just remember what all this convenience costs. It's a flip of a switch, but we all pay the price.

On the average nationally, a kilowatt hour (kwh) costs about 4¢. If you want to get an exact figure to determine the cost of the various appliances you use in your household, look on your utility bill for the charge per kilowatt hour. If the charge is not listed, call your utility and ask for the figure. Then chart the use of your appliances (5 minutes, an hour, etc.) on a daily or monthly basis and multiply this figure by the number of watts the appliance uses. This figure, times the cost per kilowatt hour, is what you pay to use that appliance.

Unemployment Lower in Area

Unemployment in the eastern Kentucky area decreased from 21,341 in July to 20,644 in August. The area's unemployment rate dropped from 7.1 percent in July to 6.8 percent in August.

Robert MacDonald, chief labor market analyst for the state Department for Human Resources, said the decrease in unemployment was primarily due to people returning to work after short layoffs.

Martin county had the area's lowest unemployment rate at 3.6 percent. Letcher county had the highest, 13 percent.

The state's unemployment rate remained unchanged from July to August at 5.6 percent. The national unemployment rate for August was 5.9 percent.

Energy Will Be Major Topic Of Region Wide Conference

Energy, the most critical issue for the Appalachian Region in the 1980s, will be the major topic of the third annual regionwide conference of the Appalachian Commission October 22-24 in Binghamton, New York.

The purpose of the conference will be to define the role Appalachia will play in resolving the nation's energy crisis while ensuring that demands of increased energy production will not threaten health, safety or environmental standards in the Region. The conference will also examine ways to contain the rising cost of health care, a serious threat to the economic security of the Region's people.

New York Governor Hugh L. Carey, ARC States' Co-chairman and conference host, said, "Possessing a major share of the nation's domestic energy reserves, Appalachia is a key to any solution of our energy problems. The ARC federal-state partnership can serve as a vehicle for the cooperation we must have between Frostbelt and Sunbelt to meet national energy goals and to guarantee Appalachia's citizen their full share of the economic growth we expect from expanded energy production."

ARC Acting Federal Co-chairman William E. Albers said, "ARC and its member states are actively developing energy from all the Region's rich resources: coal, water, wood and sun. The conference will help catalog our experiences in the energy field and demonstrate our readiness to lead the rest of the nation toward the energy goals now being developed by the Administration and Congress."

The conference, to be held at the Holiday Inn Arena in Binghamton, will be attended by Governors of the Appalachian states, delegates from each state selected by the Governors, federal officials and citizens of the Region.

Registration will begin on October 22. On October 23, conference participants will attend energy panels on: Replacing Oil with Coal; Coal Switching and Conversion; Organizational Arrangements and Institutional Barriers; Unconventional Sources and Energy Conservation; Energy-Efficient Transportation of Resources, People and Goods; and Protecting Life and the Environment. A health panel will deal with health care cost control.

Panel findings and recommendations will be presented at a plenary session on the morning of October 24. The Appalachian Regional Commission will meet that afternoon with recommendations from the conference as the major item of business.

Infant Death Rate Is Down

The state's infant mortality rate dropped significantly from 1977 to 1978, a state health official said today.

The rate declined from 14.4 deaths per thousand to 12.5 per thousand, reported Dr. Patricia Nicol, division director for maternal and child health services in the Department for Human Resources. That data was recently compiled by the department's vital statistics office.

The data also shows a decrease in neonatal mortality, from 9.8 to 8.6 per 1,000.

The study defines infants as babies under one year of age. The neonatal figures refer to babies less than 28 days old.

Nicol said the figures are based on the study of all birth and death certificates in the state during those years.

"We consider the decreases to be significant, and we're working to ensure the trend will continue," Nicol said.

She noted that both infant and neonatal mortality has dropped in the past five years. Infant mortality decreased from 16.7 per thousand in 1974 to 12.5 in 1978. For neonatal deaths, the drop was from 12.2 to 8.6.

Nicol said she believes increased cooperation among state and federal governments, physicians, hospitals and health departments is one reason for the downward trend.

"Good maternal and infant care depends on the coordination of many health services. These figures suggest our efforts are being rewarded," she said.

Nicol said the department has developed a number of programs in the past two years aimed at improving maternal and infant care. Two of these programs are directed toward educating health professionals on new methods in the treatment of critically-ill infants. Related to these is the development throughout the state of intensive care units for newborns.

The department now is moving toward helping develop more facilities to provide a unified system of health care, Nicol said.

Eastern Kentucky is changing from a region where people "come from" to one where people "go to". That is one conclusion reached by Dr. Gary Cox in a recent publication, "An Analysis of Population Changes in Eastern Kentucky 1970-2000", published at Morehead State University by the Appalachian Development Center. As a native of Eastern Kentucky, and as Head of the Department of Geography at Morehead State, Dr. Cox has been a long-time observer of changes in the Kentucky mountain region.

on local tax revenues and could mean higher taxes in the future. Strategies for future growth and development of the region will change to accommodate this older population. The most probable change will be more emphasis on expanding the small business sector and less emphasis on "industry-hunting".

Consumer Comments

ROBERT F. STEPHENS
 Attorney General

Shopping by mail can be very convenient. However, when your order arrives six months late or doesn't arrive at all, it can be very inconvenient. Many Kentucky consumers have had problems with mail order companies and the Consumer Protection Division has received more complaints concerning mail order problems than almost any other subject.

If you shop by mail, you should be aware of your rights as a mail order consumer.

When you order merchandise through the mail, you have the right to know when you can expect your merchandise to be delivered. If a mail order company's advertisement or brochure states you will receive your order within a certain period, you must be sent the merchandise within that period. If no period is specified, the merchandise must be shipped to you within 30 days.

If a seller does not ship your merchandise within the proper period, you have the right to cancel your order. The seller must then return your money within seven days after you cancel your purchase. When a sale is made on credit, the seller has one billing cycle to adjust your account.

There are exceptions to your rights of cancellation. The cancellation rule does not apply to service like photo-finishing, magazine subscriptions, seeds and plants, or negative option plans (shipments which come automatically with club memberships).

When ordering products by mail, smart consumers take precautions. It is always a good idea to read the product description several times. Don't ever rely on pictures only. Make note of the delivery time given and allow plenty of time before holidays or birthdays so you won't be disappointed by late delivery. Find out what the company's return policy is before you order.

Consumers should keep good records of mail order sales just as they should for other sales. You should keep a copy of any order blank you fill out and save cancelled checks and charge account records.

If you have questions or complaints concerning mail order buying, or any other consumer problem, write the Office of the Attorney General, Consumer Protection Division, Frankfort, Ky. 40601, or call the toll-free consumer hotline at 1-800-372-2960.

Saint Juliana Church Celebrates 25th Anniversary

Saint Juliana Catholic Church, in Martin, will observe the twenty-fifth anniversary of its founding October 14 with a Mass of Thanksgiving at 12 noon, to be followed by a buffet dinner at May Lodge. In 1955 the church was dedicated by then-Bishop William T. Mulloy. Sacred Heart Church was closed in Wayland, and Saint Juliana was opened in Martin.

The founding pastor, Rev. George Nerbonne (now pastor of Saint Agatha Church, Winchester) will give the sermon. Mrs. Betty Preflatish, an early member, will reflect on "the good ol' days" at the dinner. Rev. William Poole has pastored Saint Juliana Church since 1968 (as well as Saint Theodore Church in Prestonsburg since 1965).

All friends and former members are invited to attend the celebration and may make their reservations for the buffet by calling Mrs. C. J. Cahill at 285-3227.

Leaky Line Repair Funding Provided

The Economic Development Administration created a $2.7 million revolving loan program last week to assist Kentucky communities in restoring deteriorating privately-owned natural gas distribution systems.

Another $500,000 would be available from the Appalachian Regional Commission.

EDA said there are 23 such systems that it now considers threats to public safety.

Among those eligible for assistance are gas distribution systems in Ashland, Bowling Green, Pikeville and West Liberty.

The decaying lines, most of which are in Eastern Kentucky, have been declared "imminent threats to public safety" by the U.S. Department of Transportation. The danger of explosions from leaking gas lines in Kentucky is among the most serious in the nation, the department said.

The lines generally carry gas from nearby Appalachian fields. Many of them were built before World War II.

Although 18 towns and cities are involved, 25 gas company systems are eligible for the program because some towns have more than one leaky system.

Among the cities involved are Ashland, Prestonsburg, Paintsville, West Liberty, Van Lear, Allen and Olive Hill.

The program was announced by Rep. Carl Perkins, D-7th District, and Sen. Wendell Ford, D-KY.

Wanted: Farmers with Land Who Desire To Make Money

If you have 120 to 150 acres of level land in Kentucky and a strong enough desire to make $50,000 or more profit a year to learn how to grow tomatoes, you're the kind of farmer tomato processing companies are looking for.

Tomatoes are a money crop with a high return per acre for a good grower who can meet the demands of the processing industry, according to C. R. Roberts, Extension vegetable crops specialist in the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

Kentucky farmers already producing tomatoes for processing are getting yields of more than 20 tons per acre. With a net return of about $68 per ton after growing, harvesting and transportation costs are paid, the grower makes about $1,360 per acre, according to Roberts.

You need enough land to grow 40 to 50 acres of tomatoes a year, rotating tomatoes with other crops to control diseases. That much annual production is needed, Roberts said, to justify the purchase of a mechanical harvester. Land should be level or only slightly rolling for operation of the harvester.

Tomatoes are being grown successfully for processing in Kentucky, as a result of contacts made with canning companies by Roberts four years ago. He invited them to come to Kentucky and talk to farmers about developing the state's potential for tomato production.

Three companies started by contracting with farmers to produce nearly 1,000 acres. Hunt-Wesson Foods, Inc., Perrysburg, Ohio, initially contracted for 600 acres. Libby-McNiel-Libby Co., Inc., Leipsic, Ohio, started with 150 acres, and Naas Foods, Inc., Portland, Indiana, contracted 100-200 acres.

Kentucky is ideally located for growing processing tomatoes, according to Roberts. The companies to the north of the Bluegrass State can start canning a couple weeks earlier in the season by contracting tomato production farther south and they can extend processing time because of Kentucky's longer growing season.

Kentucky tomato growers are 250 to 300 miles from the canneries. However, this is no problem, according to Roberts, because new varieties can be shipped that far without losing quality.

"The problem is finding farmers willing to grow tomatoes," Roberts said. "A harvester costs $45,000 to $50,000, farmers aren't used to growing tomatoes, and the risk scares off many potential producers."

Kentucky has the potential for growing tomatoes for processing but whether it will be developed depends on grower interest. "If the companies can't get more acreage soon, they will pull out of the state," Roberts said.

If interested in getting into tomato production, contact Roberts in the UK Horticulture Department at Lexington or your county Extension agent for agriculture.

Floyd Gets $18,525 For Communications

Gov. Julian M. Carroll has approved an $18,525 grant to Floyd county to be used in purchasing communications equipment.

The governor made the award after receiving favorable recommendation from the September session of the Kentucky Crime Commission.

The Law Enforcement Assistance Administration is providing $16,672 of the total amount. The remainder will come from state and local funds.

Property Tax Law Not Retroactive

A bill passed during the 1979 General Assembly extraordinary session which limits annual increase in state property tax from real property to 4 percent cannot be applied retroactively to governmental units operating on a calendar year basis, according to an attorney general's opinion.

Two previously issued opinions concerning House Bill 44 have generated confusion concerning whether the new statute amendment can be retroactive, said Joseph R. Johnson, assistant attorney general and author of the Oct. 1 opinion.

HB 44 became effective Feb. 13, 1979 under an emergency clause in the statute. The first opinion issued concluded it could not be retroactive. A second attorney general's opinion withdrew that conclusion, said Johnson.

However, after considering the practical consequences of the second opinion the attorney general's office decided to reinstate and reaffirm the original opinion, he said.

The opinion was requested by R. Michael Amyx, executive director of the Kentucky Municipal League.

Kentucky needs a man who can get things done.

It's been said the world is divided into two kinds of people: talkers and doers. Most politicians are talkers. They're full of fancy words, glib phrases, and empty promises.

But John Y. Brown, Jr. isn't a politician, and he isn't just a talker. John Y. Brown, Jr. is a businessman, and an achiever.

Look at his achievements

As an Encyclopedia Britannica salesman working his way through law school, John Y. Brown, Jr. managed a district office that broke a national company record. As President of Kentucky Fried Chicken, he achieved legendary success making KFC the largest franchised restaurant company in the world.

As fund raiser for the National Democratic Party, John Y. Brown, Jr. organized the most successful political fund raising events in history—the 1972-73-74-75 Democratic Telethons—raising $19 million to help get the Democratic Party out of bankruptcy.

The best is yet to come

An innovator, a businessman, a proven leader, John Y. Brown, Jr. is the kind of man Kentucky needs to make government run efficiently. His independence from special interests will give him the freedom to work for all the people. His proven skills and credibility will allow him to bring in more business, more jobs, and more investment money to Kentucky.

John Y. himself puts it best: "I'm not a politician. I'm a businessman. State government is this State's largest business and ought to be managed soundly and for the benefit of the people of Kentucky."

John Y. Brown, Jr. the achiever, will do it. John Y. Brown, Jr. cares about Kentucky. He needs your help.

Coal-Based Electric Systems Ahead of Synthetic Gas, Claim

A coal-based electric system is more efficient in providing residential energy requirements than a synthetic gas system using a coal-gasification process, according to a study released last week by the American Electric Power Service Corporation.

W.S. White, Jr., chairman of the board and chief executive officer of AEP, which serves 6,000,000 people in seven states, including Kentucky, said the "Study is significant because it utilizes independent data as the basis for the assumptions and conclusions." Kentucky Power Company, which serves a 20-county area of eastern Kentucky, is a part of the AEP System.

He noted that the study should prove valuable in the current discussions over enactment of legislation to fund research and development projects involving gasification and liquefaction of coal.

The report pointed out that the coal-gasification systems now undergoing examination have not been tested on a commercial scale. However, the report added, the available data from many sources, including the government, indicate the superior efficiency of coal-based electric generation systems.

At the same time, the report's authors, Blair A. Ross, vice-president - energy resources planning Department, and William R. Coleman, director - residential and commercial services, Customer Services Department, both of the American Electric Power Service Corporation, New York, made this observation:

"While the Lurgi Process coal-gasification system currently being considered does not use coal resources as effectively now as the electric power system for residential service, research of this and other coal-gasification technologies should be actively pursued and encouraged."

White also stressed that AEP was not advocating abandonment of the coal-gasification process.

"What this study proves is that all energy sources and fuel use systems need to be studied to determine their place in the energy mix," he added. "This country must explore every possible avenue of energy supply and development for use now and in the years ahead into the 21st century. All we are saying right now is that, when you take all the available independent data and measure it carefully for meeting residential energy needs, the electric system is more efficient. Our conclusion is that the research on coal-gasification should proceed apace so that this system can hopefully become a valuable aid sometime in the future."

Museum Depicts Empire Period

Kentucky was a lively place during the Empire Period, 1820-1850.

Trade between Kentucky and the East was flourishing, making a wide variety of goods available to those who could afford them. Fine fabrics were being imported, and prosperous Kentuckians could obtain such luxuries as fresh oysters, Jamaican rum and French wines, brandies and champagnes.

Today, everyone can see what life was like during that era by visiting the newly designed Empire Room in the Old Capitol Annex in Frankfort. This authentic period setting is called "The Genteel Tradition: Greek Revival in Kentucky," and was created by Elizabeth Perkins, curator of the Kentucky Historical Society History Museum.

Perkins researched the period for many months, gleaming most of her information from newspaper and magazine advertisements, inventories and wills. Cabinetmaker Lynn Sweet, museum assistant Cathy Zwyer and summer intern Jamie May helped furnish the room.

"The furniture and clothing of the period were influenced by Napoleon Bonaparte, emperor of France (1804-14), who combined features of both the Greek and Roman cultures," Perkins said. "The Empire Room attempts to display furniture, clothing and decorative objects used by upper-middle class Kentuckians during the Empire Period."

The room includes mannequins in period dress showing Kentucky ladies wore youthful-looking clothes with ankle-length skirts, leghorn bonnets, leg-of-mutton sleeves and Indian shawls. Men wore narrow trousers, coats with wide lapels and top hats.

The era was marked by a growing interest and enthusiasm, not only for fashion, but for cultural attainment, social reform and horse racing.

The growing interest in education and cultural attainment during the era is evident from an abundance of books, a pianoforte made by a London firm in 1820, prints and lithographs.

Two 1870 glass cases contain 79 pieces of silver and more than 30 items of glassware and china from the society's collection. Most of these pieces were made or used by Kentuckians.

Although portraits, prints and lithographs were very popular, mirrors were the most common form of wall decoration, Perkins said. Among those in the Empire Room is a "mantel glass" mirror, which is on loan from Mrs. E. H. Taylor Hay, of Frankfort.

Perkins cut the pattern for the "very simple" curtains from a design which she found in an 1833 London upholsterers' book. She used about 40 yards of white muslin to make the curtains which hang from brass rods borrowed from Liberty Hall.

The dark green Empire sofas were also borrowed from Liberty Hall, and Perkins replaced the fringe. The 1840 ingrain carpet in rose, pale green and shades of brown came from the society's collection. Perkins and Zwyer painted the walls rose, a documented color borrowed from the Old Capitol next door to the annex.

"Argand lamps were an improved oil-burning lamp, designed to let air flow inside and outside the flame," Perkins explained. Two examples of this kind of lamp can be seen on the Federal mantel. A "solar lamp," another type of oil-burning lamp, rests on the center of the mahogany card table.

This period setting is one in a series scheduled to be completed by next year. Already completed are the Victorian Room and the Country Store. Perkins, who designs all the exhibits, submitted a grant proposal to the National Endowment for Humanities and secured funds for the unique series of displays at the Old Capitol Annex.

Almost ready for opening is the Folk Arts Room, which will contain furniture and other items made by Kentuckians. Perkins will then begin work on the "Forces of Change" exhibit, depicting changes brought on by industrialization.

The history museum is open daily from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. and on Sundays from 1 to 5 p.m. The museum is closed only four holidays: Thanksgiving, Christmas, New Year's Day and Easter.

Camera Three Premieres; Sneak Previews Return

During the new fall season, KET continues to explore the arts and culture of our times as "Camera Three" premieres, and "Sneak Previews" returns for its second season.

For 25 years, "Camera Three" was a Sunday morning staple on the CBS television network, offering viewers an ever-changing look at the creative arts throughout the world. On Thursday, October 4 at 9:30 p.m. (ET), "Camera Three" returns to the air on KET, in the premiere of a new series that combines the best of the old series with all-new productions.

Like its acclaimed predecessor, the new "Camera Three" explores the human creative spirit and examines the techniques and skills of innovators in the arts. The first program takes a look at contemporary composer Marvin Hamlisch.

Immediately preceding "Camera Three," "Sneak Previews" offers its viewers a guide to the movies as noted film critics Roger Ebert and Gene Siskel provide their recommendations concerning recent films.

This season, "Sneak Previews" promises to be more lively than ever, as it airs on a weekly basis beginning Thursday, October 4 at 9 p.m.

Every other week, Ebert and Siskel candidly critique several currently-running motion pictures, bringing to the series an unabashed (and occasionally combative) approach to their evaluations.

On alternate weeks, a new feature entitled "Sneak Previews: Take 2" presents a look at film trends past and present, with Ebert and Siskel raising such questions as:

- Are today's horror movies scarier? What makes a star? Which Oscar losers should have won? Who's funnier—Mel Brooks or Woody Allen? "Sneak Previews" is repeated Sundays at 3:30 p.m.

Animals such as dogs whimper when they are upset, but the only non-human creatures that actually cry are the great apes and a few monkeys, according to Ranger Rick's Nature Magazine for children. Those anthropoids, like man, often shed tears when they are hurt.

ten percent (10) of the bid, such deposit to be forfeited in the event a successful bidder fails to purchase the property by December 15, 1979. Bidders must make their own arrangements for financing the purchases.

No bidder may withdraw his bid for a period of sixty (60) days after the date set for the opening of bids.

Bids will be opened on October 31, 1979, at noon, at the offices of the Kentucky Housing Corporation.

The Kentucky Housing Corporation reserves the right to reject any and all bids and to waive formalities.

U.S. and West Germany In Geothermal Project

The United States and the Federal Republic of Germany last week signed a four-year International Energy Agency (IEA) agreement for cooperation in a geothermal hot, dry rock project.

The project, initiated in 1974, is being conducted at Fenton Hill, near Santa Fe, New Mexico. It is designed to demonstrate a technique for extracting heat from geothermal dry rock formations.

Cold water is pumped into an underground rock formation, which has been fractured, and is heated by the hot rock. Then it is returned to the surface where heat is extracted from the water.

Paving New KY 80 Sector Among New Road Projects

State Transportation Secretary Calvin Grayson has awarded 16 contracts totaling $9.9 million for improvements to Eastern Kentucky roads and bridges, including two in Floyd county.

The contracts stemmed from a bid letting held August 17. In all, $32 million in contracts were awarded statewide.

The largest contract went to Shamrock Corp. of Kentuckiana, Louisville, for concrete pavement and incidental construction on the Hazard-Water Gap road (KY 80) in Knott county. The $8.1 million contract calls for work to begin about one-half mile west of Talcum and extend east to about one-half mile west of Montgomery Creek, a distance of 4.8 miles.

In this county East Kentucky Paving Corp., Grayson, was awarded two contracts for $190,092 and $42,146 to resurface the Martin-Allen road (KY 80) from KY 122 Martin to U.S. 23 at Allen, a distance of 5.1 miles, and the Little Abbott Creek road from KY 1427 west for 1.7 miles.

KSBA Says Teachers Influence Policies

Despite some claims to the contrary, Kentucky classroom teachers are currently exercising influence on the decisions made by school boards. This is the conclusion of a statewide study on teacher input and involvement conducted recently by the Kentucky School Boards Association (KSBA).

The study shows that teachers serve throughout the state on numerous local school district committees which develop recommendations for consideration by the superintendent and board of education.

The results indicate the following average participation by Kentucky teachers on school district advisory committees:

Budget Development Committees—8 teachers participating; In-Service Education Committees—17 teachers participating; Textbook Evaluation Committees—33 teachers participating; Curriculum Committees—57 teachers participating; School Calendar Committees—28 teachers participating; Teacher Salary Committees—3 teachers participating; General Advisory Committees—17 teachers participating.

The KSBA survey includes data from 165 of Kentucky's 181 school districts, encompassing over 90 percent of the state's public school teachers.

"These figures show conclusively that Kentucky teachers not only have a voice in determining educational policy, salaries, and other working conditions, but that they are effectively exercising that voice," said William Land, President of KSBA.

NAME OMITTED

The name of a daughter, Polly Campbell, of the Abbott road, was inadvertently omitted from the list of survivors published in the obituary last week of Verlin Johnson.

Among other contracts awarded are three totalling more than $700,000 to Adams Construction Corp., Pikeville, for surfacing roads in Martin county. A $357,750 contract calls for surfacing on Turkey Creek-Inez road (KY 908) from KY 40 northeast for 3.3 miles and KY 292-Big Elk-Beauty road (KY 2031) from 1.5 miles southeast of KY 292, continuing southeast for 2.5 miles.

In the second Martin county contract for $279,998, Adams will surface the following roads:

Crum Branch road from KY 908 east for .3 mile; Pigeon Roost Fork from KY 1714 south for one-half mile; Trace Fork of Tomahawk road from KY 1224 southwest for one mile; various streets in Lovely totalling one mile.

Breathitt county—A contract awarded to Hinkle Contracting Corp., Paris, for $142,801 calls for surfacing for the Little, Sulphur Gap, Highland-Big Rock, Wolverine Hollow, Chestnut Gap and Collins roads.

In a second Breathitt county contract totalling $36,006, Kay and Kay Contracting Inc., London, will repair the bridge over Quicksand Creek on the Quicksand-Decoy road (KY 1098).

Q. I am a senior citizen, 75-years-old. I have a very bad pain in my back. I have read your article about pain clinics. Are there any in my area? Can you give me some advice? N.S., Alameda, CA.

A. While no pain center handles every type of pain, they are generally able to refer patients to pain centers with the particular specialty required. For localized pain, such as back trouble, some clinics are using the ancient Chinese art of acupuncture. While the medical community is uncertain whether the technique is a physical phenomenon or a suggestive one, it has found the technique helpful in some cases where other, more traditional forms of treatment have failed. In those cases, a clinician, following a chart that shows the acupuncture points in the human body, inserts from one to several needles—not necessarily in the pain area—and leaves them in for 20 or 30 minutes. Although several treatments, over a period of weeks, are often necessary, the pain has been relieved in some cases.

Self-induced hypnosis is another technique used in some pain clinics. Patients are taught to hypnotize themselves so they can control the pain. In general, the philosophy of many pain clinics is to treat pain without resorting to the traditional treatments of pills or surgery. Here is a partial list of pain clinics across the country:

Q. How can I tell the difference between No. 1 and No. 2 fuel oil? I pay for No. 1, which the oil man tells me I am getting. No. 2 oil is bought and burned by my neighbor. We get our oil from the same man, the same truck, the same time. How can I tell the Difference? B.W., Southington, CT.

A. The color and weight will tell you whether you have No. 1 or No. 2 oil. No. 1 oil, used in pot-type burners, is actually kerosene. It looks watery, almost white. It is lighter and more expensive than No. 2 fuel oil but it burns more cleanly. No. 2 fuel oil, in contrast, is a darker, heavier oil than No. 1. Its color may range from slightly blue to brownish tones. Used in gun-and rotary-type burners, it has a higher heat value per gallon than the No. 1 oil.

Q. We are senior citizens living on a fixed income, so every cent counts. Can you give us information on certificates of deposit that pay 7-1/2% interest and mature in four years, and information on the new six month money market certificates? Are they safe to buy in a Savings and Loan association that is insured by the F.S.L.I.C.? Would they pay us if the bank went bankrupt? E.L., East Chicago, IN.

A. Many institutions have raised interest rates to the legal maximum—7.75% for six-year term accounts at savings banks and savings and loans, and 7.5% at commercial banks. The financial picture for those on fixed incomes is brighter now than last year when there was a trend to reduce rates by 0.5%—even on passbook accounts—and completely eliminate six-year term accounts. The American Bankers Association reports that the trend is now for higher interest rates.

Compare interest rates before depositing your savings, because not all banks in a locality change their rates at the same time. Consider that a difference of .05% on a $5,000 long-term deposit adds up to $183 over five years. Look for an institution that compounds the interest daily rather than semiannually.

The six-month money-market certificate is a high-interest investment, compared with depositing savings in banks or thrift institutions. Since June last year, six-month certificates with a $10,000 minimum have been paying rates tied to Treasury bill rates. This means that the certificates are currently paying more than 9%, while passbook accounts pay only 5% at banks and 5 1/4% at thrift institutions. Small certificates of deposit may pay up to 8% annually, but only if they're held for eight years. Whatever savings plan you choose, your investment is safe if the account is insured through the F.D.I.C. or F.S.L.I.C. If the bank goes bankrupt, your account is insured up to $40,000.

Q. I've had some bad luck recently. First, I bought a camera with my credit card, but it didn't work properly. I returned it to the store, but the manager refused to exchange it, refund my money, or give me credit. Is the credit card company required to help me resolve this disagreement with the store? Not long after that, my home was burglarized. Five credit cards were stolen. Before I noticed they were taken, $15,000 in illegal charges were made. What is my liability? T.O., Mesa, AZ.

A. You're in luck on both counts. New laws make it mandatory that your credit card company help resolve disputes with merchants. And it doesn't matter how extensively your stolen card is misused; by law, you are only liable for $50 per card.

Q. Ever since my doctor told me that I have high blood pressure, I have noticed that electronic, coin-operated blood pressure machines are everywhere, even in such unlikely places as shopping malls, supermarkets, airports and hotel lobbies. I wonder how accurate they are, and whether they are a rip-off. Should I use them? R.R., St. Paul, MN.

A. High blood pressure may be the primary cause of death from stroke, heart attack and kidney failure, but it is a silent killer. It does not produce any signs of symptoms to warn the victim. In this sense, coin-operated blood pressure machines can be useful to alert you to a blood pressure problem.

Once you know you have a problem, it can be controlled. Your doctor can check your blood pressure, and if he finds it abnormal, he will tell you how to control it—probably with medication and diet.

Why not use a coin-operated machine? It's a good check, just remember that the results should not be used as a basis for self-medication or as a substitute for your doctor's orders, or as a reason to skip a physical examination.

A final caution: readings can be misleading. You can register a temporary high reading from some factor such as emotion, exertion or pain, or because the coin-operated machine has not been properly maintained and calibrated. Feel free to use the machines as an early warning system, but have your physician monitor any results they give.
