

Board Acts To Condemn School Site

Elementary School Property Expansion Being Planned Here

The Floyd County Board of Education decided at its meeting last Wednesday evening to file condemnation proceedings to acquire a site for expansion of the Prestonsburg Elementary School.

The location sought for the building lies across Highland Avenue, opposite the property already occupied by the school, and is owned by the Harkins estate. It is proposed that a building to house the three upper grades be constructed there, to relieve crowded conditions in the main school building.

Supt. of Schools Pete Grigsby, Jr. said the condemnation action follows negotiations with the property-owners over a period of a year, "during which we got nowhere."

The board also directed that non-tenure teachers be notified of the possibility that they will not be re-employed for the coming school term. The notice stems from the possibility that fewer teachers will be needed because of a loss in enrollment and ADA (average daily attendance). School officials also are in doubt about what the legislature has done for or against them, moneywise.

The school calendar was amended, and the board of education will ask the State Department of Education to grant the Home Branch (of Buffalo) school 10 "calamity days" because of the time lost while the community was torn by near-feud conditions. If the calamity days request is granted, the school term there will end June 10; if not, June 24.

The revised calendar provides that the last in-service day for teachers will be held on election day, May 27. That would, if there is no further loss of time, bring the end of school on May 30 for all other schools except six. Martin, Betsy Layne and Spruce Pine would close out on June 2; Osborne, on June 3; John M. Stumbo and Wheelwright High, June 4.

Closing date for troubled Allen Central High remains uncertain.

The board gave its answer to the ministerial group which had requested a change in the time for board meetings to enable ministers and laymen who attend Wednesday evening church services to have a part in meetings of the board. It replied that it would move the beginning

This Town...That World

Ready to burst into leaf, an entire hillside across the river from here had a reddish tinge this week, reminiscent of its appearance at one stage of last fall's Art Show.

We dumb adults say it's the wind whirling around the corners of the house, but a youngster heard the same sound and opined that the house cried. Under the lash of a March wind, I wouldn't be surprised.

GHOSTLY FADEOUT

Except for a sketchy report of a poltergeist who made merry with chairs and bric-a-brac a few years ago, we haven't had anything on the ghostly population in years.

Time was when almost every community had its haunted house or some desolate spot where h'ants were seen, but we've become too materialistic, I suppose, to consider the fact that, maybe, a spectre of some sort might be hanging around.

One of the thrills these modern-day youngsters are missing are the stories of strange sights and sounds and sensations. Conjure up a room in semi-darkness, with the light of a coal fire in the grate flickering onto the ceiling, a knot of poyeyed youngsters circled about, listening to an old man's or old woman's whispery voice dropping into sepulchral tones, telling of the clank of chains heard upstairs in the old house and a phantom face glimpsed in the window, then hear the narrator give an eerie moan—and you have a good sample of what we older folks encountered in the thrills department when we were young.

A batch of foolishness, you say? But no more so than those horoscopes which so many trust as Very Truth, these days.

SCRATCH ONE CANDIDATE

I hereby withdraw any notion I may have expressed that "Snow" White is the man for Poke Warden. He's tactful, circumspect, not hasty in either movement or speech, patient enough, and generally qualified. But, he has a fatal weakness: he doesn't know a poke stalk when he sees it. Came in this week, saw the big stalk left by Dave Tufts and asked the question that put him out of the running: "What is that thing?"

Allen Central Damage Heavy; Probe Started

An arson team from the Kentucky State Police was investigating early this week the fire which created heavy damage at Allen Central High School early last Friday morning.

There was no official estimate of the damage Monday, but Supt. of Schools Pete Grigsby, Jr. said he doubted it would run as high as $100,000 earlier reported, unless damage to the roof of the building is more severe than expected.

Supt. Grigsby said the blaze was one of four or five that have broken out in the building within the last few weeks. Although he declined to describe the fire as arson-motivated, he did say there are eight to ten suspects.

He quoted J. O. Dingus, principal of the school, as saying the fire was discovered at 7:35 a.m., soon after the arrival of two or three busloads of pupils. The fire started in a storage room, the center of a six-classroom area, and most of the loss was confined to that room except for roof damage. Intense heat damaged the electrical system in the six-room area. Books, paper supplies and other items stored in shelves of the storage room were destroyed.

The blaze was fought by the fire departments of Martin, Maytown and Prestonsburg.

An extra security guard was posted at the school, around the clock, after the fire, pending the arson squad probe and an assessment of the loss. A nightwatchman is on regular duty at the school.

Date of reopening the school for classwork was uncertain Monday but it was expected by mid-week.

Supt. Grigsby pointed out that the incidents that have occurred at the school should not reflect adversely on the faculty and student body as a whole. "It's just a case of a few bad apples," he said.

W'wright Gas System Gets $344,509 Loan

A $344,509 loan for the Wheelwright Municipal Gas System was approved in Frankfort last week by the Gas System Restoration Project Account Review Board.

The loan will be used for the complete restoration of Wheelwright's 40-year-old gas system. A board member said the gas system currently "has excessive line loss (of gas) upwards of 25 percent."

Included in the reconstruction project will be the reworking of two gas wells owned by the city, one of which produces five percent of the gas the city uses. Board members are optimistic that with renovation the wells could produce as much as 25 percent of the gas Wheelwright needs.

The Wheelwright gas system presently serves 318 customers.

Before funds can be allocated by the board to start the project, the loan must be approved by the U.S. Department of Transportation, Office of Pipeline Safety, in Atlanta.

Board members required as a condition of the loan that Wheelwright's board of trustees and the public utility commission insure in writing that gas rates can be adequately adjusted to insure repayment of the loan.

Ella Jane Hall, chairwoman of the board of trustees, who attended the board meeting with Debbie Hall, of Wheelwright, and Big Sandy Area Development District technical assistance director, Roger Recktenwald, told board members the city is willing to pay higher gas rates to have a gas system.

"Considering the shape it's in now, we can't go on," she said.

According to Recktenwald, a comprehensive gas leak detection survey of the city late last year revealed numerous gas leaks under homes served by the system. Those leaks have since been repaired, he said.

Terms of the 6.25 percent, 30-year loan require that Wheelwright submit a fiscal and management audit to the board biannually and that the gas system comply with regulations of the state fire marshal's office.

Other conditions included in the loan require that Wheelwright's gas system have at least one operator attend an educational seminar sponsored by the Kentucky Gas Association, and that the system have an approved maintenance plan.

Established in 1979, the seven-member Gas System Restoration Project Account Review Board is responsible for allocating $3.7 million from a revolving loan fund to finance reconstruction and

Meade Hearing Again Delayed

A preliminary hearing in the case of Ben and Olive Ann Meade, scheduled for Monday this week, was postponed when an attorney for Mrs. Meade failed to appear in district court.

Some court officials expressed surprise when told the attorney, Asst. Public Advocate Richard Burmeister, was on vacation. The fact was confirmed by a secretary in the public advocacy office, who also confirmed reports that Burmeister has tendered his resignation from that office.

The hearing for the defendants, accused of abusing their four-month-old child, has been rescheduled for next Tuesday, April 15, at 10 a.m. Burmeister is reportedly quitting his present post at the end of next week, to join a private law office in Somerset.

Ben Meade is represented in the case by Prestonsburg attorney Sam Doyle.

Martin Mayor Voices Optimism In Report at Council Meeting

"Martin is on the go," affirmed Mayor Larry B. Hall after a meeting of the city council last Wednesday. As evidence, Hall pointed to the council's commitment to improving the city's recreational facilities and to a planned county-wide public transportation system which, he predicted, would make Martin the "apex of the county."

Bide Click was named "honorary mayor" for one week in recognition of his services to the Martin Junior Pro Basketball League and was appointed Parks Commissioner, on the understanding that he would oversee the upgrading of the city ball park and organize the Little League this summer.

On a motion of Councilman Alan Whicker, the council voted to provide earth fill for reconstruction of the park and a parks commission was named to assist Click in the project.

The decision followed complaints by Click about the deterioration of the ballfield and by Thomasine Whicker about the city's sports teams having to pay to compete in out-of-town tournaments for want of adequate facilities at home. Mrs. Whicker manages a girls' softball team in Martin.

In the course of discussion of the need to apply for federal recreational monies, some asked where recreation funds supposedly allocated during the previous city administration had gone, one resident accusing the city utilities commission of diverting athletics money toward purchase of a backhoe.

According to county records, $21,997 was allocated to the Martin "Fire Department and Recreation Project" over the past two years, a part of which sum was said to be for purchase of a backhoe bought by the city last year.

Woman Found Innocent in Murder Case

After deliberating for a little over an hour, the jury in the murder trial of Kathy Johnson Phillips returned a verdict of not guilty late yesterday (Tuesday) afternoon. The 20-year-old Wheelwright woman had been accused of slaying her husband, Eugene, September 15, 1978, a few days after his 21st birthday. The case heard in circuit court here, was concluded in two days.

Testimony was heard that, several days before his death, Phillips beat his wife, causing her to flee the couple's home with her two small children. On the day of his death, it was said, Phillips returned home from his work as a coalminer, four friends joining him to drink beer and smoke marijuana. As the party left the house, Mrs. Phillips reportedly emerged from a neighboring property, firing three shots from a revolver, one of which hit Phillips in the forehead, killing him.

The case drew the attention of a group of women here because of allegations that Phillips had beaten his wife frequently

Name Change Accompanies 1st Nat. Fed-State Status Switch

The First National Bank here this week joined a growing number of banks nationwide that are changing from federal to state status.

"The First Commonwealth Bank of Prestonsburg, Inc." is the way operators began answering the telephone at the 76-year-old institution, beginning Monday morning.

Burl Wells Spurlock, president of the First Commonwealth and its predecessor, said customers will notice little difference other than the name change.

"This will enable us to free up some non-interest bearing reserves which the federal system requires us to maintain," he said. "All or part of these funds we can now re-invest in government and municipal interest-bearing bonds, allowing us to keep the same liquidity with increased earnings."

Under the state system, he added, the bank can also provide greater lending limits to its customers.

Spurlock said there is a growing national trend of federal banks changing over to state banks, with more than 400 banks nationwide reported recently as applying for state charters.

The bank's board of directors met last Friday, April 4, to adopt officially the status change, which was approved earlier last week by the Kentucky Commissioner of Banking and Securities. The new bank's articles of incorporation were filed with the Secretary of State and a new charter was issued on April 2.

All of the present officers and directors of the First National Bank were re-elected to their respective positions in the First Commonwealth Bank, Spurlock said.

Officers elected include Burl Wells Spurlock, president; Mrs. Nancy Hill Howard, vice-president and cashier; C. E. Brewer, executive vice-president; Clifford B. Latta, Sr., vice-president; directors, Mrs. Burl Spurlock, A. B. Meade, Marvin Music, Jr., Woodrow W. Burchett and Blaine R. Hall.

Spurlock also announced that the bank's FDIC insurance has recently been increased from $40,000 to $100,000 for better protection to depositors, though that was unrelated to the conversion from national to state.

MARCH OF DIMES HAILS 25th POLIO VACCINE ANNIVERSARY

In 1938 President Franklin D. Roosevelt created The National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, known today as the March of Dimes Birth Defects Foundation. The early purpose of the Foundation was to find a protection against the polio virus which had plagued mankind for centuries.

Seventeen years later, through the dedicated efforts of scientists and the lay public, the world was promised freedom from the crippling, even fatal threat of polio. Dr. Jonas Salk had developed a vaccine, which on April 12, 1955, was declared to be safe, potent and effective against the poliomyelitis virus.

WORD OF THE VACCINE spread rapidly. The result, lines of people waited their turn for protection against the dreaded disease.

POLIO EPIDEMICS filled hospital wards. When the disease struck, it could leave victims crippled for life. Iron lungs often provided the only help for paralyzed patients who could not breathe on their own.

THE RACE WAS ON. Pharmaceutical houses rushed to keep up with demand for the polio vaccine.

COMMUNITY SPIRIT was characteristic. Volunteers gave widespread support to health professionals during field trials and full-scale immunization.

"SAFE, POTENT AND EFFECTIVE" were the words spoken by Dr. Thomas Francis, Jr. (left), after nine months of reviewing reports from the polio vaccine field trials. Basil O'Connor (center), March of Dimes president, and Dr. Jonas Salk, who developed the vaccine, looked on as history was made.

The Death-Watch Continues

Dewey Lake is full again after its winter drawdown, all its sedimentation and most of its problems concealed by its inviting waters.

That leaves its sand pretty damp for the old ostrich act, but the composite head of all concerned with the impoundment still is being buried.

The sedimentation survey that has been done there over a period of years is expected to be resumed. Carefully, engineers have marked on the occasion of each survey the water levels, the sedimentation increases, and have dutifully reported their findings.

But that is all. The patient is sick, may be dying, but no remedy is suggested, even hinted. What beneficial purpose these studies of water that has been studied to death will serve, is no clearer than the lake itself is most of the year.

The Corps of Engineers, or even a guy named Joe, can in one sentence, or even one word, write the diagnosis. Then why study, if nothing is to be done?

In better days than these, economy-wise, a remedy was prescribed: build small dams near the mouths of feeder streams to stop their heavy loads of sedimentation from strip-mining from entering the lake. That, it was argued, was the least and also the best that could be done, since it was obvious that neither the state nor the federal government would take the extreme measure of calling a halt to upstream mining.

But even this has not been done. Instead, the surveys are to continue. They're "keeping an eye on the lake," as they say, even if the attention given the impoundment is no more than a death-watch.

TRIVIA CORNER

A newspaper office is a crazy collection of oddities, if not oddballs. You never know what you'll see. The other morning I was greeted on entering with the spectacle of a plucked chicken hanging from the ceiling over Jon Lindstrom's worktable where he does advertising layout. It wasn't till I had touched it and found it was a "rubber" fowl that I was certain somebody hadn't gone bananas. Then there is that marble paperweight that's somewhere on this desk. It reads (unable to find it, I quote from memory): "A cluttered desk is a sign of genius."

VERBATIM

I am assured that the following are actual quotes from insurance reports given by drivers after involvement in accidents:
 "Getting home, I drove into the wrong house and collided with a tree I don't have."
 "I thought my window was down, but I found out it was up when I put my hand through it."
 "A truck backed through my windshield and into my wife's face."
 "The guy was all over the road. I had to swerve a number of times before I hit him."
 And:
 "I was on my way to the doctor with rear end trouble when my universal joint gave way, causing me to have an accident."

Eastern Kentucky mining is in the doldrums, but it's just the slack time of the year folks had forgotten about during the war and post-war boom days, said a well-known coal operator here this week... Born to: Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Porter, of Allen, a daughter, Sunday at the Beaver Valley hospital, Martin; to Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Taylor, a daughter, Patty Ann, April 5 at the Prestonsburg General hospital... There died: Mrs. Eva Layne, 49, Sunday at her home at Dema; Mrs. Maggie Stanley Smith, 22, at the home of her parents at Garrett, with tuberculosis listed as the cause of death; Mrs. Mary Fraley Walker, 65, last Tuesday at the home of a daughter at Drift; John David Fraley, 63, Sunday at the home of a son at Hi Hat.

Forty Years Ago

(April 11, 1940)

A modern, brick grade school building containing eight class rooms and an auditorium seating 400 and which will cost approximately $30,000, will replace the present wood structure at Allen, it was decided by the Floyd county board of education meeting in Superintendent Town Hall's office... Far from refusing to sponsor the Floyd county sewing centers of the WPA unless changes were made in regulations refusing employment to women without sufficient educational qualifications, a move threatened Feb. 29, the Floyd fiscal court called Monday on the WPA for the establishment of two more such projects, one at Bosco and the other at McDowell... Five men and a woman convicted in the Floyd circuit court last week on charges of carrying concealed deadly weapons caught the full blast of the court's "crack-down" on pistol "toters"... That the district office of the Kentucky state re-employment service may be moved from Pikeville to Prestonsburg within the next few months is highly probable... Twenty-five Floyd county boys were taken to the National Guard Armory at Pikeville today (Thursday), where they will take examinations for enrollment in the CCC... There died: Circuit Judge John W. Caudill, 55, at Paintsville hospital; Mrs. Betty Hall Robinette, 78, Harold, at her home; Oliver Hanson Stumbo, Jr., 21, at the Methodist hospital, Pikeville; Bobby, new-born 27th son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Stamper, Prestonsburg, at the Martin General hospital.

Stumbo Draws 20-Year Term In Trial Here

A circuit court jury which deliberated almost 12 hours on two days last week held Stevie Stumbo guilty of the slaying near here of his brother-in-law, Larry Johnson, and set his prison sentence at 20 years.

The verdict, reached Friday afternoon, is being appealed and the defendant has been released under bond.

The three Commonwealth witnesses—Leonard "Lightning" Joseph, Jr., Willie Hale, Jr. and Joe Clark—joined in testifying that they saw Stumbo jab Johnson with a handgun immediately before the shot was fired. Joseph said he saw the defendant punch Johnson in the stomach twice with the gun and that the shot was fired at the second jab. One said Johnson and Milton Stumbo had fought and that the former was on the ground, Johnson standing over him, when Stevie Stumbo jumped in.

All three testified that immediately after the shot was fired Stumbo exclaimed, "Oh, God! I didn't know it was cocked."

Testifying for the defense, Milton Stumbo said he was the one who fought with Johnson and that he threw the weapon, a .357 Magnum, in a car seat and that the weapon was cocked. After that, he said he did not know what happened. The defendant himself contended that when Milton Stumbo tossed the pistol onto the car seat he seized it to keep Milton from regaining possession of it. His wife testified that her husband and brother were "the best of friends."

For the first time in circuit court here a video tape deposition was used in a murder trial. The tape, by means of which Major Presley Kendall, former State Police firearms examiner, was shown testifying via television, was used to prove that the gun had a hair trigger.

Another defense witness, Allen Hammond, State Police firearms examiner, disputed the testimony that the weapon had a hair trigger but said its pull was only a half-pound higher than the minimum allowed by law for that type of firearm.

Commonwealth's Attorney James R. Allen was assisted by Lester Burns in the prosecution. Gary Johnson was the defense counsel.

Administrator Says Protection of Rink Promised by Police

Susan Johnson, Archer Park administrator, this week made the following statement to clarify, she said, "the recent unfavorable reflection on the Archer Park roller rink facility":

"The Prestonsburg Park Commission's goals include encouraging good, clean forms of recreation for the area residents. The Archer Park roller rink is a supervising community recreation program. All participants are notified of the rules governing the rink which include: no alcoholic beverages, drugs, rough play and loitering in the rink. These rules are strictly enforced, and violators are expelled from the rink. Problems arising in the open area outside the rink building are a police enforcement responsibility. I am assured that every effort, including extra patrolling and an auxiliary police at the rink, will reduce and eliminate the recent problems and discourage any future problems with so called park 'toughs'.

(The statement referred to a report published by The Times of a statement made by Chief of Police Keith Lawson at a recent meeting of the City Council.)

"Archer Park is for everyone to enjoy, and every possible effort will be made to keep the facility a clean form of recreation for children and adults," the park administrator added.

She also said the park is now providing special sessions for children 12 years of age and under on Saturdays from 3 to 5 p.m.; family sessions on Sundays from 1 to 6 p.m., and Tuesdays, 7 to 10 p.m., and a session for women on Thursdays from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. renovation of deteriorating gas systems in the state.

Money in the loan fund was contributed by the Federal Economic Development Administration, the Appalachian Regional Commission and the governor's Capital Construction Contingency Fund.

A consulting firm contracted by the Department for Local Government in 1979 studied the feasibility of restoring 27 gas systems in 10 eastern Kentucky counties which were identified by the state Energy Regulatory Commission as needing assistance.

Wheelwright's system is the third applicant to receive a restoration loan from the board, according to Don Erickson, gas system restoration project manager, Department for Local Government.

Erickson said Elam Utilities, of West Liberty, received a $589,100 loan, and North Middletown Municipal Water and Gas Co., of Pulaski county, received $150,000.

Erickson said he expects the remainder of $2,625,392 left in the loan fund to be allocated within the next few months.

As money is repaid on those loans, more money can be allocated to other gas systems, he said.

during their 17-month marriage, allegations that figured largely in the woman's defense.

Defense attorneys sought to show that, having returned to the house with the gun in order to shoot away a padlock and recover her children's clothes, Mrs. Phillips found herself in jeopardy and shot Phillips to protect her own life.

The prosecuting attorney argued that no evidence was presented that Mrs. Phillips was under the immediate threat of death or serious injury that might have justified the homicide. The defendant returned to the house when she had reason to believe Phillips was inside, intending to confront him, and slew him in the absence of any immediate threat to herself, it was argued.

In testimony punctuated by periodic sobbing, Mrs. Phillips said her husband had frequently beaten her around the head, had twice raped her, had beaten the children, and once shaved the hair off the head of their 6½-month-old infant.

Under cross examination, the defendant conceded she had never filed for a divorce or sought the protection of the law and that she had passed up an opportunity to retrieve the children's clothes when Phillips was absent from the house. Few witnesses claimed to have seen evidence of the alleged beatings and, in any event, refuge was available for Mrs. Phillips at her mother's house, the prosecutor argued.

Dr. Edward Stambaugh, a clinical psychologist at the Lansdowne Mental Health Center in Ashland, characterized the defendant as suffering from hysterical neurosis, as terrorized by random violence, and as very dependent on her husband. Her dependence was probably intensified by a sense of gratitude for Phillips' marrying her though she had borne a child of a previous relationship, the psychologist argued.

Cross-examined, Stambaugh conceded that nothing in his examination of Mrs. Phillips' case suggested that she was unaware of what she was doing at the time of Phillips' death or that she was ignorant of the distinction between right and wrong.

Also testifying in the case were Phillips' companions at the time of his death, Leslie Grigsby, Anthony Wright, Timothy Slope, and Ricky Johnson, brother of the defendant.

Assistant Commonwealth's Attorney R. Donald Goble prosecuted the case, while the defense was argued by Gary Johnson, and Public Advocates Nora McCormack and Neal Walker.

Goble had previously moved unsuccessfully for a continuation of the trial, citing potentially prejudicial publicity arising from efforts by Mrs. Phillips' supporters to publicize the issue of spouse abuse.

Following emotional courtroom demonstrations by Mrs. Phillips' supporters and by members of Eugene Phillips' family after the verdict was announced, defense attorney Johnson said the defense team had not intended in any way to discredit the family. "The sorrow they feel, we feel," he asserted, adding that he felt the jury had prevented the occurrence of a second tragedy.

ADD BEAUTY TO YOUR HOME WITH COLOR

To most folks, springtime means sprucing up the house. Color is the least expensive way to beautify your home. The more you know about color, the more you can do with it.

The walls, floor and ceilings of a room are the background for your furnishings. You need to concentrate on these areas in developing your color plan. Since they represent a major investment, plan them carefully.

You will find the results more pleasing if you keep the background soft and soothing. Remember that colors should blend well; they must be seen together.

Mix both warm and cool colors—as well as light and dark colors—in each room. However, don't use colors in equal proportion in any one room. Also, don't have all shiny or all rough textured finishes in any one room. Vary them for interest.

Use light colors in a small room to make it look larger. Paint the ceiling of a room slightly darker than the walls if the ceiling is very high. To "shorten" a room that is too tall, emphasize horizontal lines; emphasize vertical lines in a room with a low ceiling.

Remember that color in a large area always looks darker. Your color sample should be lighter than what you really want. Study the swatches in daytime and also at night.

Your window treatment also is an important part of your background. Put emphasis on yellows and reds in rooms that are windowless or face the northeast. The colors add warmth.

Don't paint the woodwork and trim in a small room different from the wall color. It will clutter up the room. Also, don't paint such features as radiators to contrast with their background. The emphasis should not be on these objects.

Your chairs and sofa represent the second area of color in a room. Use brighter, stronger, deeper colors here. A good rule of thumb is to use not more than three colors, no matter how many pieces of furniture you have. The smaller the piece, the brighter the tone can be.

Accents and accessories are the bright sparks. They include lamp bases, ash trays, pictures, pillows and other decorative accessories. You can let yourself go here with sharper, vivid colors. But be sure these accents relate to the background and upholstery.

Don't forget the wood tones. The color of the tables and other wood is important in developing your color plan. Your color scheme should blend with the finish of each individual piece. However, don't try to match each individual piece.

BARBECUING ECONOMY CUTS OF MEAT

A barbecue doesn't need to destroy your food budget. Many less expensive cuts of meat can be used successfully on the grill.

Marinating these cuts several hours or overnight will make them tender enough to barbecue. The marinade, which is an oil and acid mixture, will tenderize the meat. With a marinade, the flavor gets into the meat while a sauce flavors only the surface.

Slide marinated cubes of beef or pork onto a skewer for kabobs. Make separate skewers of green pepper, onion, mushroom or other vegetables. The meat will need to cook longer than the vegetables. One tasty marinade is commercial Italian-style salad dressing.

By cutting up a large economical beef cut, such as a chuck blade roast, you can get steaks to grill plus meat for kabobs. Choose a roast which is at least two inches thick and weighs 3½ to five pounds.

Cut away the round muscle which is the farthest away from the bone. Slice it into two steaks and grill to rare or medium doneness. These are excellent substitutes for rib steaks. The other pieces can be used for kabobs.

To cut up this and other roasts easily, partially freeze the meat so you can cut the roast more easily across the grain and into small cubes.

Meat from the seven-bone chuck roast can also be cut up and barbecued. Choose a roast at least two inches thick and weighing about six pounds. To cut up, place with the bone extension facing away from you.

The top left muscle is the most tender and can be sliced across the grain into two steaks. The small section on the top right as well as the bottom muscle can be cut up and marinated for kabobs. The long middle muscle can be cut into four thin steaks, marinated and grilled.

To use the popular round steak, choose one that weighs about five pounds and is 1¼ to 1½ inches thick. Cut away the largest muscle, marinate and grill. Carve in thin slices across the grain for four to six servings. The other sections can be marinated and used in kabobs.

A medium fire should be used for cooking these steaks and kabobs. To test if the coals are the right temperature, hold your hand where the meat will be. Count the seconds you can hold it there comfortably. For medium fire, it should be three to four seconds.

The following recipe is for a basic marinade that can be used with roasts, steaks and kabobs: ½ cup catsup; ½ cup water, ¼ cup packed brown sugar; ¼ cup cooking oil; ¼ cup white vinegar; 1 onion, thinly sliced; 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce; 1½ teaspoons liquid smoke; ¼ teaspoon black pepper; 1 lemon slice.

Combine all ingredients. Place meat in a large plastic bag. Put bag in a bowl and pour marinade over meat in the bag. Tie bag closed. Marinate meat several hours overnight. Brush marinade on during grilling also.

MARTIN HOSPITAL WORKERS GO OUT TO AREA HOMES

For the past several years, Our Lady of the Way Hospital has sponsored an outreach program to homes in the area. Both the Social Service and Pastoral Care departments of the hospital regularly visit people.

Ms. Toby Bingham and Sister Judy Elder from Social Services, and Sisters Marie Gangwish and Betty Cahill from Pastoral Care have made over 600 visits and traveled over 6,000 miles since September, 1977. People who live alone or have recently lost a spouse or who have cancer are most frequently visited.

The goals of the two departments are slightly different. Social Service is more interested in child and spouse abuse, alcohol and drug use and abuse, the aged and family-centered problems. Pastoral Care assists in spiritual needs and offers prayer support.

In April, 1980, Mrs. Margaret O'Keefe, R.N., will join the Social Service staff to follow-up in the homes on former hospital patients.

Now Is Time To Think of Water Safety

One sure sign of spring is an increased number of fishing and pleasure boats on Kentucky's lakes and rivers.

For safe boaters the season begins while the boat is still on the trailer, according to Doug Shoulders, head of the Kentucky State Police Water Safety Section.

"The best way to insure a safe season is to check equipment before launching the boat," Shoulders said. "Each spring accidents occur when boaters hit the water before they check to make sure their boats are seaworthy."

Dry rot and rust take their toll while boats are dry-docked during the winter. Shoulders advises boaters also to check life vests, cushions and rubber seals for damage due to dry rot.

Boaters should also check oil levels and look for rust on equipment, especially on the steering linkage. "Some boaters don't find out the steering has rusted until after they're in the water with the motor running," he said.

Safety equipment, such as lights and fire extinguishers, should also be checked, he added.

Boaters and fishermen heading back to a favorite spot should remember that a change in water levels may have occurred, Shoulders said. Before running at high speeds, boaters should check for underwater obstacles.

Hypothermia, the sudden lowering of body temperature, is still a threat to anyone who falls in the water, Shoulders warned. Death can result from hypothermia within minutes.

"Although the air feels warm, the water temperature is still quite cold, and water takes heat from the body 25 times faster than air," he said. "Hypothermia will be a major factor in drownings until mid or late May."

Shoulders cautioned boaters and fishermen to wear a life preserver at all times and wear layers of warm clothing to prevent loss of body heat in case they accidentally fall in.

Last year 19 people died in Kentucky as a result of boating accidents, 12 fewer than in 1978 although the number of registered boats had increased.

In the seven years Shoulders has been with the water safety section, boating deaths have decreased by nearly 65 percent, a trend Shoulders said he would like to see continue.

"Be sure you have all the right equipment for your boat and check to see that it's in good condition before you head for the water," he said. "If you see a water safety officer, have him check your boat. It might keep you from getting a citation later on-or it might save a life."

Increased Interest In Ky. To Help Industrial Outlook

"I'm not promising any magic or secret weapons, just good old fashion hard work," Jack H. Segell, state Commerce commissioner told members of the Kentucky Industrial Development Council which met in Lexington, recently.

Segell's address to 75 industry leaders outlined five major areas of importance which now or soon will affect industrial development in Kentucky.

He pointed out that one of Gov. John Y. Brown Jr.'s campaign promises was to promote Kentucky's future development and commerce. "These promises are now being replaced with deeds," he said.

Interest in the state has increased at a fantastic rate as a result of what Segell calls the "John and Phyllis phenomenon."

"Whatever you call it," he said, "it's sweeping the nation and we plan to take advantage of the benefits."

Additional industrial growth and increased trade has come about through "a new spirit of cooperation between government agencies," Segell said. "We're talking more with each other and listening to what others are saying." This new effort to communicate will lead to a more efficient operation and better business relations," he added.

A new statewide and national media campaign is being planned for fall, he told council members. "We're looking for a common theme for the state that tells it all."

Segell said until the legislature approves a state budget, specific programs cannot get under way. But, he said, the department is "turned on" and ready to take on competition from other states that lure industry away from the commonwealth.

Lee Roy Sean, marketing director for the Louisville and Jefferson County Riverport Authority, expressed hope that Commissioner Segell and other state agencies would be supportive of the council's efforts to interest industry in locating in the commonwealth. Sean is secretary-treasurer for the council.

Council membership totals more than 120 industrial representatives including major utilities railroads and local industrial development agencies.

Bell's Photophone Marks 100th Year

"I have heard a ray of sun laugh and cough and sing," wrote Alexander Graham Bell in 1880 after inventing the photophone—a device to send messages through the air on beams of sunlight.

Bell's photophone will be on display in an exhibit at the National Geographic Society's Explorer's Hall in Washington, D.C., according to Phill Scott, local South Central Bell manager.

Entitled "The 100th Anniversary of the Photophone," the exhibit describes Bell's invention as well as today's lightweight communication systems that transmit information as pulses of laser light through hair-thin glass fibers.

The exhibit was designed by Bell Labs and prepared with the cooperation of the National Geographic Society, the Smithsonian Institution and the Library of Congress.

The exhibit features the first public display of Bell's original photophone, which he placed in storage at the Smithsonian Institution for safekeeping in the February, 1880. Also included are Bell's notes written as he perfected the apparatus, Mr. Scott said.

"Although Bell's invention was marvelous in its day, the photophone lacked practicality. Sunlight can be scattered by fog and rain and can't be relied upon as a source of light for a communications system," he said.

In the late 1950s, Charles Townes, a Bell Labs consultant, and Bell Labs scientist Arthur Schawlow, conceived the laser, an extremely intense, highly coherent source of light. The invention of the laser, along with the development of ultra-transparent glass fibers, perfected at Bell Labs and elsewhere, opened the way for practical lightweight communications.

Several Bell lightweight systems are already in place or on the drawing board, according to Mr. Scott.

Views 'Iron Curtain'

U.S. FORCES, Germany, April 7—Pfc. WeDonia L. Reffitt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Beverage Reffitt, Langley, Ky., recently toured the East German border with other members of the 377th Field Artillery.

The soldiers were able to observe the patrolling of the old and new guard towers, barbed wire and concrete barricades, and mine fields. Fences used by the East Germans are made of razor sharp steel that offer no hand holds for climbing. They are also booby trapped with sawed-off shotguns that are designed to kill or maim anyone attempting to escape.

Pfc. Reffitt is a Lance missile crew member in Herzogenaurach, Germany.

Solar Energy Study Asked by Weinberg

The future of solar energy in Kentucky will be studied if the General Assembly passes a resolution written by Representative Bill Weinberg, a Democrat from Knott County.

Weinberg's resolution (House Resolution 42) would establish a solar energy advisory committee to study renewable energy sources such as the sun and wind and analyze the future of those sources in Kentucky. The committee would then make recommendations on the subject to the 1982 General Assembly.

The resolution has been approved by the House of Representatives by a vote of 80-7 and is now being studied in the State Senate.

"This is the first piece of legislation dealing with renewable resources that has ever passed the House of Representatives," Weinberg said. "Practically every other state has some sort of renewable resource legislation on the books, but this would be a first for Kentucky."

Weinberg said he hopes the advisory committee would give the 1982 General Assembly recommendations which would lead to the creation of "some real programs to deal with solar and other renewable resources."

Studies have shown that, over the long run, the best ways to ease the nation's dependence on oil would be through conservation measures and the use of solar and renewable resources, according to Weinberg.

"We need to use more coal," Weinberg said. "But everyone agrees that if we do all of that, there still will not be enough coal to satisfy all of our energy demands."

In planning for the future, Weinberg said, the nation has got to conserve more energy and utilize all of the energy resources at its disposal, especially renewable resources.

Anyone wanting to contact Rep. Weinberg or any other legislator while the General Assembly is in session can do so by calling toll-free 1-800-372-7164. An operator will take your message and it will be delivered to the legislator.

People wishing to find out what is happening to any piece of legislation can do so by calling toll-free 1-800-372-7194.

MEMORIES

Of our dear brother, Burinda Johnson, whose life from this world expired March 31, 1979:

We used to watch each evening the beautiful sunset from brother Frank's porch, not realizing that our Savior had better plans for you very near, beyond our beautiful sunset where there would be no more earthly worries.

Ky. Gets Less Road Money

Kentucky will get approximately $35 million less in federal highway funds than anticipated, which will heavily curtail the state's road building and repair program.

The state's federal highway funds, frozen Feb. 14, were released last Thursday, but with what state Transportation Secretary Frank Metts referred to as "tremendous cutbacks."

A total of $75 million in federal funds has been scheduled for various road and bridge projects in Kentucky between now and Sept. 30, 1980. In figures released Thursday, that amount was reduced by $35 million to $39.6 million.

"When you reduce the amount of funding by almost half, it has a devastating effect on our plans," Metts said.

"Kentucky is fortunate," he added, "in that some of our legislators had the foresight to pass the tax increase on gasoline. With the road program in the shape that it was, and with this $35 million cutback over the next six months, without the increased revenue generated by the legislation just passed, Kentucky would have no road program."

Metts, who froze all projects pending with the Department of Transportation until a budget was approved, said, "I still intend to review and prioritize every project. Today's federal cutback makes that prioritization that much more important and that much harder to do."

Metts said until the revenue and priority is complete, it will be impossible to list the affected projects.

The guinea pig, a native of the Andean highlands of Peru, isn't a pig at all but a rodent related to the rabbit.

Celebrate 60th Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hobson, of Cowpen Creek, Pike county, celebrated their sixtieth wedding anniversary at Heritage House on Scott Avenue in Pikeville Sunday, March 23. Invitations were sent to Ohio, Indiana, Tennessee, Florida, Georgia, Michigan, Virginia, and much of Kentucky, and family and friends numbering 75 attended.

The couple was married by the late Reverend Whetsel Blair, March 18, 1920 at the bride's home on Millers Creek located in the Johns Creek section of Pike county. Mr. Hobson is the son of the late Butler Hobson and Laura Steele Hobson of Cow Pen. Mrs. Hobson is the daughter of the late Silas (Todge) Ratliff and Elizabeth (Sis) Ratliff, of Millers Creek.

They have two daughters and two sons, all of whom attended. Cleda Hall, of Prestonsburg, Ethel Wheeler, of Ashland, Hubert Hobson, of Trenton, Ohio, and Arthur Hobson, of Englewood also in Ohio. Belhasen Claims $5,000 Reward In Wells Murder Claiming that he supplied information which led to the arrest and conviction of David King for the May, 1978 abduction and murder of James Leonard Wells, Paintsville motel clerk, C.K. Belhasen, Paintsville attorney, has made formal demand for a $5000 reward.

Belhasen's letter to Bizzack Brothers Construction Co., in which he claims the reward, states the case "would not have been solved without the information that I provided."

The Heart O' Highlands Motel, from which Wells was abducted, is owned by Bizzack Brothers.

John Bizzack declined comment on Belhasen's request, however, that motel manager Gene Castle said he "had no knowledge" that a reward ever was offered for information. Castle, who was Wells' uncle, said the family was in no financial position to offer a reward.

"A law enforcement officer told me it would not be a good move" to set a reward, Castle said. "It would just bring a lot of oddballs looking for publicity," he said the officer told him.

Paintsville Police Chief Ross Spears said a reward was "discussed, but to my knowledge (was) never posted."

Belhasen's letter states "the accuracy of the information which I have provided" can be confirmed by police officers, if the Bizzacks doubt his claim.

According to Sheriff Frank Johnson's records, Belhasen contacted him on Jan. 27, 1979, the day after Ruby Jordan, Belhasen's sister-in-law, was arrested in Floyd county on charges of possessing forged checks.

Johnson said Belhasen gave "reasons he thought Ruby Jordan was implicated," and that Belhasen "told me he believed Ruby knew about the Wells case."

Miss Jordan gave a statement to Johnson and Paintsville Detective B.J. Music the following day.

Later, the King brothers were arrested and charged with robbery, kidnapping and murder.

David King recently pleaded guilty on two counts in Pike circuit court and was given two sentences of life imprisonment. James King still faces trial.

Miss Jordan was granted immunity by prosecutors, but that action has been challenged by James King's attorneys. Law enforcement officials agree that her testimony was the key to developing a case against the King brothers.

Belhasen's letter, dated March 27, begins by claiming he provided the information which resulted in the arrests. He also claims a $5,000 reward was offered.

"However, because of the position in which I find myself as a practicing attorney (with no attorney-client relationship with any concerned party)... I want to designate the proceeds of the reward to be equally divided between the Hope Haven Home in Paintsville and the Johnson County Humane Society."

Congressman Perkins is chairman of the Education and Labor Committee of the House, and has been an outspoken advocate of student aid programs, including federal scholarships, work-study and student loans. Reemployment Rights For Discharged Vets Subject of Flyer

The Veterans Administration and the Department of Labor have joined forces to remind recently discharged servicemen and women of their reemployment rights.

VA is including in an information kit it sends to new veterans a Labor Department flyer detailing the reemployment rights federal legislation mandates for them. Officials of the two agencies believe the flyer will aid veterans confronted with reemployment problems, many of whom are unaware of the rights they have in this area.

By law veterans are entitled to restoration in their previous job or to a similar one offering the same seniority, status and pay, including all benefits becoming due after reemployment which would have accrued by seniority.

Veterans must apply to their pre-service employer within 90 days after separation from active duty. There are special provisions for veterans who remain hospitalized following military service.

There are also special provisions for reservists and Air National Guard personnel.

For further information and assistance veterans should contact the nearest Veterans Administration regional office or Department of Labor field office.

Ledford Named To Chair Cancer Drive

Cawood Ledford, the voice of the Kentucky Wildcats and one of the nation's leading horse racing announcers, has been named 1980 crusade chairman for the American Cancer Society's Kentucky division. The announcement was made by George R. Anderson, of Louisville, chairman of the state crusade committee.

Ledford, who has been voted Kentucky's "Sportscaster of the Year" eleven times and chosen the top college basketball announcer in the nation four times, will lead approximately 26,000 volunteers this month in a state-wide campaign to raise a goal of $1,118,760.

Last year's Kentucky crusade raised $984,815—an increase of 16.2% over the previous year's total—and one of the highest percentage gains in the nation. Ledford said the 1979 crusade was the most successful effort ever held by the society's Kentucky division.

Funds raised for the American Cancer Society will be used to support such cancer control programs as service and rehabilitation, public and professional education, and research. With more world-wide attention being focused on children, the society noted that childhood cancer deaths have decreased nearly 40 percent in the United States over the past two decades and treatment of cancer in children in Kentucky has shown remarkable progress during this same period.

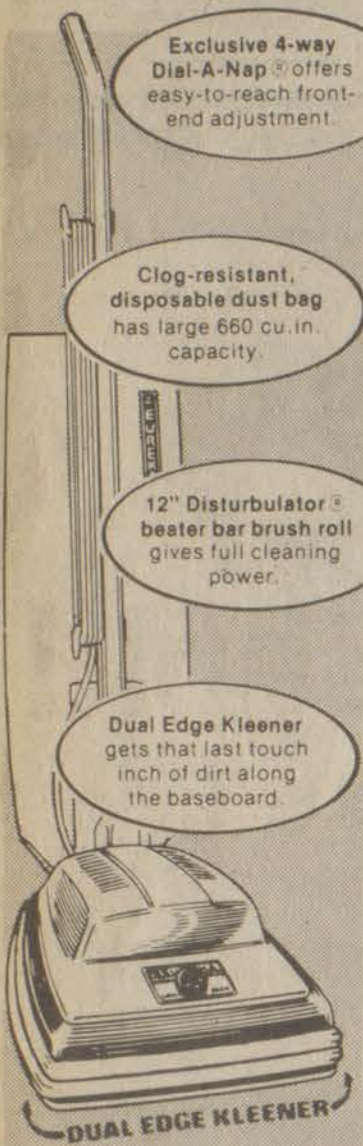

The 1980 crusade chairman has already kicked off regional crusade rallies in Lexington and Newport and has scheduled appearances in other cities throughout the state.

Ledford is president of his own company in Lexington, where he resides with his wife. He has been the "voice of the Kentucky Wildcats" in football and basketball for the past 27 years.

Attend Dept. of Ed. Meet In Louisville

In order to help teachers and administrators do a better job in meeting the needs of boys and girls, the Kentucky Department of Education held a meeting in Louisville on April 1 and 2 to demonstrate new programs in reading, math, and guidance. The programs are all guaranteed as outstanding and workable by the U.S. Office of Education.

Raymond Barber, superintendent of public instruction, told the educators, "The time has come when we can no longer afford to throw dollars at our problems. We must start throwing ideas at them. The Department of Education is presenting examples of outstanding programs from throughout the nation which can be adopted by those Kentucky school districts which need assistance in working with their remediation programs for the Education Improvement Program mandated by the legislature."

Those attending from the Floyd county school system were Roberta Davidson, Anna Sue Stumbo, and Audrey Pratt.

UNDERGOES SURGERY

Gini Carter Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Carter, of McDowell, underwent surgery March 14 at King's Daughters' Hospital in Frankfort. Her parents spent two weeks with her recently.

By LARRY BURKE

"A narrow window may let in light, A tiny star dispel the gloom of night, A little deed an ancient wrong set right."

For most of us great earth-shaking achievements will never be ours. We will very likely never be known throughout the world for our accomplishments. Nor will we be known as failures because this recognition never came to us.

The most successful of all people are those who have accomplished indirect achievements. The little tasks we perform. Year after year a person who gives his best to needy neighbors, and through this effort he helps them gain triumph.

Who can determine how many people see a tiny star. How can we determine the good that comes from a single unselfish deed.

OUR THOUGHT TO REMEMBER: "One look, and there may be an end to strife; one smile, and hate may sheathe her cruel knife."

BETSY LAYNE COMMUNITY NEWS

By PAULINE T. JONES
Sympathy is extended to the Rev. Cohen Campbell in the recent passing of his brother who expired in a Lexington hospital.

Friends extend sympathy to Mrs. Hettie Johnston and other relatives, upon the passing of Lowell Gilliam, of Cincinnati, Ohio, formerly of Pike county and a graduate of Betsy Layne High School in 1929. His mother spent her last few years here and others of the family who have been, or are, residents of Betsy Layne, are Mrs. Luther Tibbs, Mrs. Verda Christian, and Keith Gilliam.

Mr. and Mrs. James George visited her uncle, John Taylor, and wife, Zella, at Allen last Sunday following church services. Mr. Taylor's sister, Elizabeth Spears, and his nephew, Glen Blackburn, had visited him on the previous Thursday. Mr. Taylor is recuperating from illness. He was treated recently at the Pikeville Methodist Hospital.

Mrs. Laura Smith returned home March 30 from a visit with her daughter and son-in-law, in Accoville, W. Va.

Mrs. Cora Branham is still a patient at the Pikeville Methodist Hospital, but is reported improving after having surgery for a fractured hip. A daughter, Juanita, and husband, Earl Rucker, of California, are in attendance and will be prepared to take care of her when she returns home.

Mrs. Pauline Stumbo, of the nearby vicinity, and Miss Emma Grace Hartley are improving at their homes after surgery at the Methodist Hospital.

Mrs. D. W. Howard is a patient at the Highlands Regional Medical Center, where she is undergoing tests.

Mrs. Eliza Blackburn is doing reasonably well after being a patient in the Pikeville Hospital recently.

Dr. June Brose, D.D.S., entertained as week-end guests, her brother Dr. Paul Brose and family, of Defiance, Ohio. She left Sunday afternoon, flying to St. Louis, Mo., for a dental convention for two days.

The Betsy Layne United Methodist Church, pastored by the Rev. Kaminski Robinson, held a week-end revival, March 28-30, using the theme, "Proclaim the Good News." The messages were delivered by the Rev. James Doughton, pastor of the Raceland United Methodist Church, and the attendance and spirit were fine.

The Community greets as new citizens Mr. and Mrs. Gregory Stone and daughter, now living in the property of Mr. and Mrs. Willard Ratliff. Mrs. Stone is a teacher in the Pikeville school and Mr. Stone does substitute teaching and operates a salvage yard, near the Piggly Wiggly Store.

Many are interested in Earl Brooks, of Layne Bottom, who has been a patient at the Pikeville Methodist Hospital for a few days, and will have surgery soon. Their daughter, Earlena, of Michigan, has been with her parents for several days.

Joie and Betty Bartley were Easter week-end guests of her grandmother, Pauline Jones. They attend Eastern Kentucky University and live in Lexington.

Sheri Mahan, daughter of Beth and Carl Mahan, won first place in flute solo and first place in flute duet at Lexington. She is the granddaughter of Pauline Jones and Jess Mahan, and a great-granddaughter of Mrs. C. R. Tankersley.

Citizens were sorry to learn of the death of Avalia Cecil, 87. Mrs. Cecil was liked by all who knew her. We offer our sympathy to her family.

Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo Stratton, of Ivel, visited Otis Foley last week.

Lula Belle Hall will undergo surgery Wednesday at the Pikeville Methodist Hospital.

A household shower was given at the Free Will Baptist Church for Mrs. Epling who lost all her belongings in a fire which destroyed her home recently. She received many useful items.

Visiting Ethel Foley and Lois Walters recently were Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Elswick and children, of Columbus, Ohio, Mrs. Evalee Walters and family, of Johnstown, Ohio, Mr. and Mrs. Gale Bertke and son, of Chelsea, Mich., Mrs. Gina Lentz and son, of Manchester, Mich., and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Patrick and children, of Ashland.

Otis Foley has been released from the Mountain Manor Nursing Home of Pikeville and is now at the home of his mother, Ethel Foley.

Eugene and Christine Akers spent Easter with her parents in Big Rock, Va.

Mr. and Mrs. Homer Skaggs and children, of London, Ohio, were visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Rhoda Stone, recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Johnnie Billiter, of Bridgeport, Va., were visiting Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Lynch, Easter week-end.

A household shower was given for Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Burton, of Marcello, Ky., Saturday evening in the basement of the Betsy Layne United Methodist Church. They received many useful gifts from friends and relatives. Mrs. Burton is the former Georgia Rose Gibson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Millard Gibson.

Mary Gibson, of Lexington, and Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Burton, of Marcello, Ky., were week-end guests of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Millard Gibson.

Corene Leedy Dye and daughter, of Pikeville, attended the household shower for Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Burton.

Citizens of Betsy Layne wish to remember in prayer the sick and needy in our community. Those known at this time are the family of Avalia Cecil, the family of Lowell Gilliam, Myra Walters Amburgey, Earl Brooks, Lula Belle Hall, Roxie Hall, Georgia Lewis, Pauline Stumbo, Elijah Collins, the Cohen Campbell family, Otis Foley, Mary Green, Mamie Stanfield, Maude Colegrove, Lee and Mae Cecil, John L. HBO Available Here In May, Newell Says

Dick Newell, area manager for Midwest Corporation, owners of Flanery & Dingus Cable T.V., has announced their plans for bringing HBO to Prestonsburg in May.

"We know people have been waiting for Home Box Office (HBO) for some time," says Newell. "We would have liked to have offered it sooner but we have to complete certain changes to the cable system first. We have improved the off the air stations and added Channel 17, Atlanta, and a Christian Channel but have quite a bit more to do. The Prestonsburg system, like most other systems was built long before anyone ever heard of satellite TV," he explained. "Now we have to upgrade the entire system. We will be making further improvements to the off the air stations as well as improving reception in the areas outside of Prestonsburg such as the Bonanza area. These improvements will be going on all summer. We will be ready to offer HBO on most of the system in May. Once we are ready, we will offer everyone who is on the system a chance to see what HBO has to offer. We will also have a special hook-up rate during the first few weeks," Newell pointed out.

Exact dates of HBO availability will appear in future issues of The Times.

The gracious custom of open church will be observed.

Water Expansion 'On Dead Center' As Funds Needed

Prestonsburg utilities commissioners met last Thursday with representatives of the Farmers Home Administration in an effort to agree on terms for repaying the FmHA loan which will help finance upgrading and expansion of the city's water system.

Approval of a loan of up to $2 million was announced last month as the final piece of the grant and loan package financing the project. The figure has come into question, however, apparently as a result of concerns about the city's ability to repay it without a substantial rate increase for the system's existing customers.

Alternatives reportedly being considered include reduction of the loan ceiling, perhaps by as much as 50 percent, seeking an increase in the amount of grant money for the project, and securing firm commitments from potential customers of the expanded system.

If plans to establish a water district in the Prater Creek area materialize, and if water purchase contracts are concluded with that district and the Sandy Valley district, FmHA officials might consider the loan more favorably, Utilities Superintendent Bill H. Howard indicated this week.

As of this date, negotiations with the federal officials are "still on dead center," he said.

UK Seniors Battle Former Kentucky Greats

Area basketball fans were treated to some of the best action to be seen in their favorite sport as graduating UK Wildcats Kyle Macy, LaVon Williams and Jay Shidler along with recent Kentucky stars Truman Claytor and Dwayne Casey clashed with an all-star squad of former UK greats, Friday night at the Prestonsburg high school gymnasium. In two 20-minute halves governed by a combination of international and professional basketball regulations, the former UK stars led by All-American, All-Pro Louie Dampier and including Jim Andrews, Ronnie Lyons, Larry Stamper and John Adams, were able to down the senior 'Cats by a final score of 138-125.

A special treat for many of the estimated 2,000 fans who attended was the opportunity to talk with the UK seniors during autograph sessions before, at half-time and after the game.

Paul Day, president of the Prestonburg Kiwanis Club, sponsor of the game, said about half of the proceeds will go to the club. "These funds will go back into the community, primarily to projects to help area children," Day pointed out.

Jewell Ramey, of Lowmansville, is pictured with three of her paintings, many of which are on display now through April 19 at the Floyd County Library. The artist, an employee at Mountain Comprehensive Care Center's Greenhouse Training Project, is completely self-taught and deals mainly in acrylics and water color. As she said, "It seems like everytime I see something pretty I have to paint it."

Some of her work, chiefly composed of landscapes and still lifes, are for sale.

Media Vote Bailey 'Outstanding'

The Capitol Press Corps, newspaper, radio, and television personnel who cover the State Legislature have announced that State Senator Benny Ray Bailey has been selected as the Outstanding Freshman Senator during the recently completed legislative session.

In announcing the selection of Senator Bailey, the Press Corps noted Bailey's work on the Senate Appropriations and Revenue and Health and Welfare committees. The Press Corps also noted Bailey's work on the coal severance tax plan which was adopted by the legislature and which will provide monies to county and city government for regional development over the coming years.

Upon receiving the news of his selection Bailey said, "I am quite pleased that the Press Corps selected me. The State Senate has a great many outstanding men in its membership and I am fortunate to have been chosen as the Outstanding Freshman Senator. I believe our East Kentucky area fared very well in the 1980 session and that we will see the results of our labors here in East Kentucky far into the future. The amount of money coming to counties for road work will double in Fiscal Year 1981 and the amount of real dollars coming back to our counties from the coal severance tax will triple in the next two years. Our people have the ambition, the drive and the intelligence to solve our problems when given the adequate tools to work with. I think the actions of the 1980 legislative session has gone a long way in providing these tools."

Senator Bailey is the son of Viola Bailey, of Orkney; is married to the former Nikki Rieck, and has three sons.

Economic Hitches Delay Paintsville Motel Work Start

Blake Ratliff, of Paintsville, announced last Friday that the scheduled groundbreaking ceremonies for the new 153-room motel-convention complex planned for Paintsville's urban renewal site tomorrow (Thursday), have been postponed.

In his statement Ratliff said, "The uncertain state of the nation's economic policies and their impact on the present and future costs of labor, material and supplies as well as their impact on transportation costs have made it advisable that I postpone the start of construction on our motel. I regret the economic realities which make this decision necessary."

Ratliff added: "I am still committed to the eventual development of this motel-convention complex here in Paintsville. As soon as long-range economic factors are stabilized we will go ahead as quickly as possible with construction."

The Minority Women Employment Program places unemployed and underemployed college-educated minority women in managerial, professional, and technical jobs. The program, funded by the U.S. Labor Department, is administered by the Recruitment and Training Program. Operations were launched in Atlanta in 1972 and programs are now operating also in Houston, Dallas, New Orleans, Tulsa, Cincinnati, Los Angeles and Boston.

Forestry Dept. Launches Tree Planting Project

The U.S. Department of Agriculture's Forest Service is celebrating its 75th birthday in an unusual way and is inviting everybody to join in the celebration.

Individuals, groups, organizations, companies, communities, cities, and counties are asked to celebrate by planting a tree to mark special events such as birthdays or other significant milestones during the year. In this way, people can give themselves and their country a living, lasting present. The goal is to plant 75 million more trees in the United States during 1980 than were planted in 1979.

In Kentucky, Governor John Y. Brown, Jr. issued a proclamation on March 13 designating 1980 as the "Plant a Birthday Tree" Year in the Commonwealth. He urges citizens to participate in this campaign by giving themselves and their country a living, lasting gift through the planting of a tree to commemorate a special occasion of a loved one.

The Forest Service was "born" in 1905 when President Theodore Roosevelt signed the Transfer Act transferring the country's forest reserves from the Department of the Interior to the Department of Agriculture. The Secretary of Agriculture instructed Gifford Pinchot, America's first professionally trained native forester and first Chief of the newly created Forest Service, to administer the forest reserves, renamed National Forests in 1907. "from the standpoint of the greatest good of the greatest number in the long run." This philosophy still guides the Forest Service which is dedicated to multiple-use management of the Nation's forest resources for sustained yields of water, forage, wildlife, wood and recreation.

During the tree planting season in most states, members of the American Association of Nurserymen who grow and sell trees, will have special birthday trees appropriate for each area. For every birthday tree sold, the participating nurseryman will make a donation to Woody Owl's environmental education program.

Trees can be grown from different sources—seeds, cuttings or sprouts. County extension agents or public foresters can provide more information about the characteristics, growth and planting methods for various species.

For more information on the "Plant a Birthday Tree" program, write to Forest Supervisor, Daniel Boone National Forest, 100 Vaught Road, Winchester, KY 40391.

Nine Years Old

Dawn Salyers celebrated her ninth birthday Friday, March 28, at the Burger Queen in Prestonsburg. Guests were Sandy Salyers, Cindy Cartwright, Scottie and Belinda Powers, Susan Cartwright, Sue Rodebaugh, Connie Prater, Beth Cochran, Betty Jo Taylor, Missy Webb, Joann Cartwright, and Brenda Powers. Cake and ice cream were served by Kay Prater and Jeanie Howard, of the Burger Queen staff.

Seven Series On KET Have Closed Captions

Closed captions, or dialogue printed invisibly on the television screen to be picked up and revealed by a special decoding device, are available in seven series broadcast each week on KET.

Ranging from "Over Easy" for the prime generation at 3:30 p.m. weekdays, to "Once Upon A Classic" for children Saturdays at 7 p.m. and Sundays at 11:30 a.m., programs with closed captions for the hearing impaired are available at all age levels.

On Tuesdays, KET offers "Nova," a science series for curious adults at 9 p.m., and "Mystery!" for fans of the "who-dun-it" at 10 p.m.

Sunday nights also have two programs with closed captions: "Odyssey," a series that roams the globe as it examines stories about humans and their culture, airs at 8 p.m., and "Masterpiece Theatre" at 9 p.m.

Unlike earlier open captions, a special decoder is needed to see the words (closed captions) on the television screen.

KET currently has one of the decoders. Paul Smith, director of field services, says if anyone would like to see it or wants to see how it works, he will be glad to show it to them. Smith can be contacted at (606) 233-3000.

Currently there is only one decoder being sold commercially, Smith says, but its distributor hopes to have television sets with built-in decoders available for purchasing within the next year.

Smith also pointed out that PBS (the Public Broadcasting Service) has had closed captioning available for an experimental period, but it was only recently that the Federal Communications Commission acted on their request to authorize closed captioning on a regular basis.

Since the FCC approved the request, two commercial networks have also added closed captions to some of their programs.

Although KET has participated in the experimental stages of PBS' closed captioning by working with the Kentucky School for the Deaf to acquire a decoder, KET does not yet have the capability to provide closed captions for its own productions.

Bob Klein, director of engineering, says KET plans to purchase the equipment needed to insert closed captions in its productions as soon as the encoder becomes available and KET's budget will allow it.

'MacNeil/Lehrer' Tops KET Viewer Poll

"The MacNeil/Lehrer Report" emerged as the number one series viewers would like to see KET purchase for the coming year, according to a recent viewer preference survey conducted by the Programming Division at KET. The half-hour, weeknight news series received 943 votes out of 1,443 responses.

Approximately 5,000 surveys were sent statewide. KET viewers were presented with a hypothetical situation, a scaled-down version of a real situation faced by the programming staff every spring: With a budget of $100, select series for the coming year from a list of offerings with a total of $260.

The ten leading programs indicated by the survey were: "The MacNeil/Lehrer Report," "Nova," "The Dick Cavett Show," "Evening At Pops," "Great Performances," "Evening At Symphony," "Bill Moyers' Journal," "Sesame Street," "Sneak Previews" and "Crockett's Victory Garden."

"Sneak Previews," a half-hour preview of recent film releases, made to the greatest headway in the polling, jumping from last year's 17th place into ninth position in the current standing. Last year's top vote-getter, "The Dick Cavett Show," fell to third place.

Three new series—one about Washington politics, one about health and one featuring old movies from the 30's and 40's—made the top twenty list. In their respective order, the next ranking programs were: "American Short Story," "Wall Street Week," "Electric Company," "Specials" fund, "Meeting of Minds," "Body In Question" (new), "Saturday Afternoon At The Bijour" (new), "Inside Washington" (new), "Mark Russell," and "World."

The viewer preference survey is one factor the KET programming staff considers when selecting programs for the coming year, according to programming specialist Mike Clark. Budget considerations, ascertainment data and recommendations from KET's Programming Advisory Committee are also weighed.

Clark says, "One of the most gratifying aspects of this year's poll is the broad base of viewers across the state whose responses are represented. We heard from communities—urban and rural, large and small—in every region of the Commonwealth."

"Small Is Beautiful" Idea Examined on KET

"Think Small" may be the motto of the future if "appropriate technologists" have their way. Concern about large impersonal technology that replaces or subordinates human beings has caused some people to rethink its role and place greater emphasis on technology as a tool for spiritual and physical well-being.

Wednesday, April 16 at 7:30 p.m., KET broadcasts "Are You Looking/Are You Listening," two 30-minute programs focusing on appropriate technology and the people who practice it.

"Our main objective," says one of the 12 leading American proponents of the new way of looking at technology, "is to create access to options in terms of self-reliance and energy and food for people."

Based on the philosophy of E.F. Schumacher, author of "Small is Beautiful," appropriate technology focuses on local, participatory, understandable, ecological methods for getting things done.

The two programs look at philosophical and practical dimensions of appropriate technology by visiting various sites around the country where it is being practiced. Among them are citizens groups who organized to fight coal stripmining in Montana and a group in Maine that is protesting nuclear power by disconnecting their homes from the local utility plant. "Are You Looking/Are You Listening" was produced by Martha Stuart Communications, Inc.

Dog of the Week

Joe is a real beauty—one year old. He is looking for a home with a small boy to play with and protect. Parrot Collie, part St. Bernard, male, Joe can be adopted. If interested, call 886-1042.

Missy To Speak At Open Meeting

Missy W. is 19 years old, and has already experienced many of the things the rest of us read about in the papers. Saturday night she's going to talk about it. Missy will be the featured speaker at an "open" Alateen meeting April 12, at 8 p.m., at the Floyd County Library.

Alateen is a program for the teen-age children of alcoholics who meet "to give aid and comfort to one another to learn to live comfortably in spite of the effects of alcoholism, and to grow spiritually." Asked what she'd say to someone to interest them in her program, Missy says "I come from a big family, where there were nine kids. I think other kids who feel like they're 'left out' or 'stuck in the middle' might be interested in my story."

Missy was initially involved in Alateen through her older sisters, who had joined as a result of their father's alcoholism. Though he's been sober long enough that Missy has few memories of his drinking, she has found Alateen to be helpful and supportive for her. She says when she experienced a feeling of personal crisis when an older friend committed suicide, she found herself even more grateful for Alateen. "I think Saturday night I'm just going to talk about my experience," she says. "I hope it can help someone."

Missy lives in Lexington now and frequently travels to talk to Alateen groups and conventions.

Alateen meets every Saturday at 11 a.m. at St. James Episcopal Church in Prestonsburg. For more information call 874-9740.

Hodding Carter U of L Address on KET

Few public figures have been so closely identified with a U.S. crisis as Hodding Carter III. During the Iranian crisis, the assistant secretary of state has publicly announced most of the State Department's statements as the hostage situation has developed.

On Friday, April 18 at 10 p.m., KET airs a special public affairs program featuring Carter's keynote address to the Thirtieth Annual Conference on Foreign Affairs, held this year in Louisville. The 60-minute special, produced by the University of Louisville, is entitled "State Department Briefing: Hodding Carter."

Carter's speech on American foreign policy is followed by questions from a panel of specialists in various areas of foreign relations. Included in the panel of specialists in various areas of foreign relations. Included in the panel are Edward H. Berman, associate professor of education at the University of Louisville, Maurice A. East, associate professor at the University of Kentucky, and Jonathan Van Dyke Norman III, secretary of the Louisville Committee on Foreign Relations. Charles M. Williams, a Louisville banker with extensive experience in international banking operations, moderates the panel segment.

Carter was born in New Orleans, La., attended local schools in Greenville, Miss., and graduated from Princeton University, summa cum laude, in 1957. In 1959, he began a long, distinguished career in journalism when he joined the Delta Democrat-Times in Greenville.

In 1965, Carter participated in the reformation of the Young Democratic Clubs of Mississippi as a biracial organization, and served as its co-chairman from 1965 to 1968. He was a founding member of the Loyal Democrats of Mississippi, now the Democratic Party of the State of Mississippi, a biracial coalition which challenged the seating of the regular Democratic Party state delegation at the Chicago Democratic national convention in 1968 and was seated in its place.

Carter also joined the campaign staffs of Johnson for President (1964), and the Carter-Mondale organization (1976). He has been a member of the Mississippi State Democratic Executive Committee since 1976.

CREDIT UNION CHARTERED FOR CENTRAL APPALACHIA

The National Credit Union Administration, Washington, D.C., notified the Mountain Education and Management Institute (MEMI), of Hindman, that it has approved the charter for a credit union to serve people in 19 communities of Central Appalachia. "We've long awaited this day," said Lew Hudson, president of the new organization, called the central Appalachian People's Federal Credit Union. "Now for the first time people of the deep mountains will have access to a savings, lending and insuring institution which they own and control. It's great to join the more than 43 million Americans who already benefit from this kind of service."

Coordination of the credit union members is provided by the Human Economic Appalachian Development (HEAD) Corporation, Berea, a federation of 19 cooperatives, community development corporations and non-profits corporations. Branch offices will be opened immediately to serve directors and employees of HEAD's member groups: the David Community Development Corporation and CHASE Options in David, Ky., Creekside Community Development Corporation, Abingdon, Va., Dickenson County Food Co-op, Clinchco, Va., Frontier Housing Corporation, Morehead, Ky., Grass Roots Economic Development Corporation, Jackson, Ky., HEAD and MATCH Corporations, Berea, Ky., Interfaith of Bell County, Pineville, Ky., Red Bird Mission, Beverly, Ky., Rugby Restoration, Rugby, Tenn., and Scott-Morgan Community Development Corporation, Robbins, Tenn.

CAPP HAS IT

Custom Homes

A Unique Idea—In 1946, Capp Homes created the Finish-It-Yourself House™ program.

Since then, over 60,000 Capp families have built their dream home and saved a bundle. You can too. Whether you build from your plans or ours, you get exactly what you want. Flexibility in custom-design is our passport.

You Become the General Contractor—General contractors buy the basic materials and pass it on to the buyer. They manage the project. We say you can do the same. Maybe better.

After Capp custom erects and encloses your home on the lot and foundation you provide, you take over. Do the finishing you want, and hire tradesmen for the rest. Of course, the more you do, the more you save.

Quality Finishing Touches—The kitchen cabinets are magnificent. All the finishing touches are coordinated to your taste. The lighting, carpeting and everything you select from Capp will say quality. And they're all included in the price you sign for.

CALL OR VISIT YOUR CAPP REPRESENTATIVE FOR MORE INFORMATION ON OUR FINANCING PROGRAM.

Construction Financing

Stop Waiting—To stay ahead of inflation, you want to build now. Waiting for interest rates to drop next year may be a losing game. Today, your building lot and a small deposit may be all you need to get started with Capp.

Construction Money—As a qualified buyer, Capp can provide you with all the construction money you need to finish your home. This loan covers all the materials Capp provides, including all structural materials and our complement of finishing materials. It also includes extra funds to buy things that Capp doesn't sell, like your foundation, masonry work, landscaping, or paying off your building lot.

Delayed Payment Feature—Your construction loan works like a bank account. You draw on it as you need it, and you only pay interest on what you use. Then too, there's our liberal delayed payment feature. In fact, some Capp customers finish their new home and convert the total construction loan into permanent financing, before any construction loan payments fall due. Ask your Capp Representative for details.

Mortgage Money

Complete "One Stop" Home Financing—Capp Homes total financing program is one of the best available. In addition to a construction loan, Capp offers qualified buyers a long term, permanent mortgage at competitive rates.

Capp Mortgage Money—When you have completed the finishing work on your Capp Home, we can immediately help you convert your construction loan into a Capp permanent mortgage. Our full staff of financing experts will help you with all the details. We make it easy to build.

Your New Home—It's something you shouldn't wait for any longer. Next year, housing prices will inevitably go up. But if you order now, Capp will protect your price for six full months, provided you start building within that time. It's like getting a 1980 house at 1979 prices, with all the financing you need.

Capp can help make it easy for you to buy and build your dream home today. Get the 100-page Capp Home Planning Guide today by talking to your local Capp Representative. Or send the coupon below but do it now.

COAL.

It's one big reason your electric rates are below the national average.

It takes a lot of fuel to make the electricity our customers use. And because fuel is the major factor in the cost of producing electricity, your electric costs are directly affected by the kind of fuel we use.

Coal is the answer. It's cheaper to burn than oil. It's an abundant fuel source. And it's found right here in America.

Last year the American Electric Power System, which we're part of burned over 38 million tons of coal. And that saved our country over 150 million barrels of oil.

Just as important, it helped keep your electric rates below the national average. * And that's good news for all of us. We also have ways to help you keep your electric bill even more in line. They range from lending you money for insulating your home to the use of "off-peak" power and other energy-saving tips. Call the office nearest you and ask for Customer Services. We'll explain the programs and how each might help.

Niagara Falls: A Winter Wonderland

By Ladislav Reday

You don't have to be married to visit the falls, and you don't have to go in June. The price is right in February.

It is the cleanest show around and the most spectacular. A million gallons of sparkling water hurtle over a 176 foot cliff, pounding the rocks below while mist and spray rise up from the river.

In the winter, the colored lights playing on the falls, and the white snow and ice on the banks make this international show a special sight. The mist hovers high and unreal in the cold air.

The roar of the falls can be heard even before you can see them. Generations of visitors have flocked to this sight and sound since the falls were discovered.

Niagara in the winter is a cozy, charming place. Before the ice melts in the spring, this lower river is a jumbled winter wonderland. Freezing as much as fifty feet thick, the ice formations are contorted into strange white shapes. That ice bridge between the United States and Canada is dangerous, however, and walking across it is prohibited. Take the Rainbow Bridge and enjoy the view.

Above the falls it never freezes, except for rim ice on the banks. This ice melts during the spring, as does the "hoar frost" which forms from the mist and spray around the falls, freezing on the trees and bushes.

This extra water from Lake Erie and from melting along the banks makes the Falls wilder than ever. The lights are turned on from 7 to 10 p.m. on March first (7 to 9:30 in winter). Colored and white searchlights from the Canadian side flood the area for night viewing. The constant roar of the falls with the rising spray and mist give the whole place an eerie unreal atmosphere.

The "Maid of the Mist" and the "Maid of the Mist II" and "III" safely tied up for the winter, come out slowly from hibernation in June to mid-October, to cruise bravely right up to the base of the falls into the tossing and turbulent waters.

With oilskins and rain gear provided by the "Maid" the passengers are taken within spitting distance of the roaring falls. These boats have been delighting and soaking visitors since grandmother's time, with a watery view of the falls from the base. The $3.00 cost for adults (and half for children) includes the rain gear. The quarter that your grandmother used to pay now covers the elevator ride down to get aboard the boat.

You can go down to the base of the falls by land also, virtually under the falls on the American side. For a modest $2.50 you descend into the "Cave of the Winds" by elevator, again in oilskins and herded by a young and active guide. Visitors can walk along the wooden catwalks, onto "Hurricane Deck" for a shower and a sight of the famous Bridal Veil Falls. It is an awe-inspiring view that will silence even the most sophisticated traveller.

Hotels abound in the vicinity of the falls, both on the Canadian and American side. For $72 per night you can have the Honeymoon Suite at the Niagara Hilton (double occupancy). For $42 you can get in the Holiday Inn, even closer to the falls (also double). Farther down in price and quality is the nearby Travelodge. The manager at the Travelodge will furnish honeymooners with a certificate that you did, indeed, spend the time at Niagara Falls—signed by the mayor, too. Better than a marriage certificate, some say, or nearly as good as, others maintain.

Don't let the signs and the information bureau foist you off down the road to the so-called "motel area." It is from six to twelve miles to the Falls every time you want to revisit the area. Unless you want to save a dollar or two, it is a drag being so far from the falls and all the activity.

All the other attractions around the falls will keep the family occupied. You can drive out on Goat Island and dine at the restaurant. The Three Sisters islet is adjacent, where you can practically touch the green water before it hurls over the 170 foot brink.

More Sights and Scenes

After you have tried the Maid of the Mist, and the Cave of the Winds, and the observation tower, and you are not on your honeymoon, there are still more sights and scenes for the visitors.

Try the Niagara Gorge, along the Moses Parkway, toward Lewiston and Fort Niagara. The gorge is deep and complete with whirlpools at the State Park. The old homes on the river near Lewiston and the Artpark will delight the travellers.

Built by the French, occupied and enlarged by the British, and completed by the Americans, Old Fort Niagara is a showplace with costumed guides in season. You can wander about the area anytime, visit the lighthouse on Lake Niagara, and generally roam the countryside.

Meanwhile back at the falls, the water is still roaring on undiminished. You can brush up on geology at the Schoelkopf Geological Museum, or visit the nearby Aquarium and educate your bride or the children or both.

For the handicapped, there is the Viewmobile, which will take you around Goat Park for a dollar and stop off at each of the attractions.

For a clean, happy and healthy vacation for the whole family, Niagara Falls is an attractive institution. It is one of the natural wonders of the world, and G-rated. Canada and the United States share this place in a friendly attitude toward visitors of all countries.

Where am I going?

It is not only a question of eternity. It is a question of time. Where are you going right now? What are your goals? Jesus Christ offers goals for time and eternity. He says life is more than food, clothing and shelter. He says, "Seek first the kingdom, and His righteousness, and all these things shall be added to you." (Matthew 6:33) His kingdom is peace and love for today and hope for tomorrow. Trust Him for time and eternity and He will show you the way.

The Changing Shape of Women's Fashions

By MARY COMBS

Smithsonian News Service

Even as the United States was celebrating its first quarter-century of independence in 1801, American women were winning emancipation from a different sort of bondage. Gone were the layers of petticoats; gone the bustles and devices used to expand skirts during the 18th century; gone the tight-laced corsets. Women at last were free to display a natural shape and to wear as little underclothing as their figures, modesty—or mothers—would allow.

Yet the novelty of being able to breathe and move normally seems to have paled quickly under the tyranny of fashion, and the rest of the 19th century presents a picture, if appalling, illustration of the adage that "one must suffer to be beautiful."

During these years, women inexplicably accepted painful, disfiguring corsetry, heavy metal underpinnings and costumes so complicated that the only way to avoid entanglement or collision was to practice moving about in them.

The fleeting freedom in the early 1800s, brought about by a vogue for delicate classical dress and Oriental fabrics, demanded sacrifices. Although fashionable American women seem to have been generally more sensible than their European counterparts, who dampened their flimsy "Empire" gowns to display their charms—and subsequently succumbed to epidemics of consumption and influenza—it was difficult on both continents to be both elegant and warm at the same time, a dilemma appreciated by anyone who wore mini-skirts a decade ago.

The history of fashion and its chronicle of pain, inconvenience and caprice has challenged sociologists, artists, anthropologists, historians and humorists. Women have gone to drastic lengths, heights, breadths, widths and weights to conform to the dictates of fashion. "Sensible clothing does come into style," says Barbara Dickstein, museum specialist in the Division of Costume at the Smithsonian's National Museum of History and Technology, "but it doesn't always stay around."

One fixed point, however, has been the desirability of the relatively slim waist; pot-bellies have not been chic (for ladies) since the 16th century. Every other aspect of the silhouette has changed: bust, hips, thighs and rear padded or pushed up; the same features mercilessly suppressed. Skirts have swollen to 10 yards in diameter, narrowed to make a natural step possible, trailed along the ground and dwindled to a few inches in length.

"It would appear," as Harper's Bazaar observed in 1870, "that a woman, like a jack-in-the-box... could swell or collapse at the touch of some hidden spring. Fashion is certainly endowed with a mysterious power of suddenly metamorphosing the human being."

By the mid-1820s, the Grecian goddess had become a delicate, languishing, Romantic heroine, her readiness to faint at the drop of a handkerchief due less to spiritual sensitivity than the reality that her stays simply were pushing most of her internal organs up into her rib cage.

Once back in the grip of the corset, women clung to it steadfastly in the face of constant onslaughts by physicians, humorists and sensible persons of both sexes. In spite of the obviously mutilating effects and the illnesses attributed to tight-lacing, its defenders throughout the century claimed the corset was necessary to support the frail backs of the weaker sex—a self-fulfilling prophecy since children began wearing "supporters" in infancy. By dint of rigorous discipline, which sometimes included wearing stays to bed, a young woman might achieve the fashionable dimension, which ranged between 16 and 20 inches, by her 18th birthday.

What people will sometimes do for the sake of fashion is demonstrated by this 1831 Lady's Magazine illustration. Back then, fashionable young ladies wore their hair dressed high and their sleeves puffed wide—even if it meant going through the door sideways.

The silhouette above and below this tiny waist varied considerably. By 1830, ladies, like their grandmothers before them, were passing through doors sideways—not because of the width of their skirts, but the width of their huge puffed sleeves. An issue of Lady's Magazine of 1832 allowed that the ballooning sleeves, although hazardous in other circumstances, might be very useful as buoys in case of shipwreck.

As this fashion deflated, Philadelphia social observer John Watson recorded his approval: "The day of 5 feet high and 6 feet wide is gone, we trust forever,"—only to cry with disgust in 1856 "Hoops again!" Skirts, supported by stiffened petticoats, crinolines or an assortment of heavy metal contrivances, swelled to fill rooms, aisles and streets, giving birth to cartoons, comic songs, poems and anecdotes that ridiculed this inconvenient and sometimes dangerous fashion.

Poets deplored the difficulty of stealing a kiss; a Memphis newspaper attributed a lady's escape when struck by lightning to the conductive properties of her metal underpinnings, and in San Francisco, one young woman demurely popped her skirt over her unlicensed terrier, to the frustration of the dogcatchers and cheers of onlookers. More serious stories included accounts of smuggling supplies to troops during the Civil War as well as frequent reports of "crinoline accidents," usually tragic fires where rescue was hampered by the huge skirts of the victim or her would-be rescuers.

Watson considered the fashion not only ridiculous but indecent. Certainly, any sudden gust of wind or bending movement set it swinging. Young ladies practiced achieving a gentle, bell-like motion when walking, in addition to the ancient art of lifting the skirt to display just the right portion of ankle.

Pantalettes solved the problem of warmth and modesty, but English and American women who adopted the style drew the line at the "rational dress" proposed by Amelia Bloomer, suffragette and temperance advocate, in the early 1850s. Although this costume, a three-quarter-length gown over full trousers gathered at the ankles, was overwhelmed by a storm of ridicule and indignation, it immortalized its inventor in American slang.

The technological achievements of the 19th century revolutionized fashion; the textile industry produced an unprecedented volume and variety of fabric and trimmings, at high speed and low cost. All this had to go somewhere, and women ended up literally bearing the burden of conspicuous consumption.

The belle of the 1870s, now trailing her burden behind her in the shape of a flounced, ribboned, fringed, ruffled, tasseled bustle, may have been dressed in the aptly named mode "a la tapisserie—upholstery style. A favorite schoolboy's prank was to deposit a mouse, frog or perhaps the dictionary in the schoolteacher's bustle and enjoy his hapless prey's confusion.

The industrial revolution also saw the development of magazines published especially for women. With the same neutrality that today places recipes next to the latest diet and sun-bronzed models next to articles on skin cancer, magazines like Godey's Lady's Book and Harper's Bazaar published both sides of the corset, hoopskirt and bustle controversies. Advertisements, meanwhile, proclaimed the benefits of tortuous-looking garments, solemnly endorsed by physicians and persuasively labeled "patented," an adjective that seems to have carried all the psychological weight that "natural" does today.

The bustle, and the "Gibson Girl" silhouette that followed it, went the way of all styles; the early decades of the 20th century ushered in dramatic change. Women who had celebrated the turn of the century trussed up, with trains draped over their arms, sent their daughters off to parties in the abbreviated tunic-style dress of the 1920s flapper.

The memory of Christian Dior's "New Look" of 1947, which brought back femininity with a vengeance in the shape of long skirts, layers of petticoats, under-wired bustlines and "Merry Widow" corsets, should prevent women from being too complacent. But it does seem reasonable to assume that they have achieved a permanent victory over that particular form of bondage. Or does it?

"You can't really make predictions," says Dickstein of the Smithsonian. "We know the eye gets bored...there's a psychological need for change. And you never know who—or what—is going to influence it."

And, it might be added, women have no way of knowing whether this year's styles will eventually be labeled quaint, outlandish, risqué or intriguing nostalgia. One thing is certain, though: Their children will consider these fashions "old-fashioned."

GI Bill Students May Get Loan Assistance

GI Bill students who have more books to finish than time to finish them may be eligible for a helping hand from the Veterans Administration.

VA chief Max Cleland said, "We can make low cost education loans in certain cases where veterans or their eligible spouses continue in school, but at their own expense, after their GI Bill delimiting date."

"We believe this loan provision is particularly helpful to veteran students in states where tuition costs are high," Cleland said.

The VA chief said such loans can be made to veterans who do not use all their GI Bill benefits before time runs out on them. Veterans generally have ten years from the date of discharge from active duty to make use of the GI Bill.

Under the law, Cleland said, a veteran or eligible spouse who was enrolled full-time and had not used all his or her GI Bill entitlement when the delimiting date was reached, qualifies for a VA education loan as long as full-time enrollment is maintained in the same program of study.

Gambling's Growing Popularity

By Catherine Winters

Life's a gamble, but that doesn't stop millions of people from taking a chance every now and then. Gambling is big business, not only in this country, but throughout the world. Glamorous resorts abound, from Las Vegas to Monte Carlo. Off-track betting offices dot cities from coast to coast. Lotteries are booming. Everyone, from mailmen to mothers, football fans to florists and business executives to barons, wants a piece of the action.

Why not? Played wisely, legal gambling can be both challenging and fun. While the gambler may risk losing his or her initial investment, the possibility that he or she may someday hit the jackpot is enough to keep even the most hard-hearted skeptic going.

Below is a sampling of some of the more popular games that people take a chance on.

State Lotteries

With 15 years behind them, state lotteries are bigger than ever. Most offer a standard system of prizes which reinforce public confidence and stir up headlines and sales. The lotteries feature lots of small prizes—free tickets, $5, $25, $100, for example—and a few mammoth windfalls—$50,000, or $1000 a week for a year, a guaranteed income for life.

The chances of winning the grand prize are slim, ensuring good press for the lottery system when someone does win it. The odds of winning one of the smaller prizes are better: Ten to one or one hundred to one, for instance—so nearly everyone in a state may know someone who has won something. That nodding acquaintance with Lady Luck is just enough of an incentive for people to keep buying the tickets week after week.

State lotteries mean extra monies for the state. In many cases, the state treasuries may pocket 35 to 45 cents out of every dollar spent once the lottery organization pays off its operating expenses. Though state lotteries are fun, keep in mind that most pay back only 45 cents for every dollar bet, compared with casino roulette, which returns 95 cents on each dollar; horsetrack betting, which pays 80 cents; slot machines which return 75 to 95 cents and illegal numbers which pay 60 to 74 cents.

Horseracing

Thoroughbred racing—in which the horse is ridden by a jockey—is the most popular form of legal gambling, followed by harness racing—in which the horse has a driver who rides behind it in a two-wheeled sulky. Visitors to the track can bet on horses to win, place or show. To cash a win ticket, the bettor must have selected a horse that finished first; for place, the horse must have finished first or second; for show, first, second or third.

Bets are usually made in amounts of $2, $5, $10, $50 and $100. Combination, or "across-the-board," bets can be made on horses to win, place and show for a bit more money.

Bets can become even more complicated. In the daily double, for instance, the bettor must pick the winners of two consecutive races. In the quinella, he must pick the two horses in one race that will finish first and second, either way. In the exacta or perfecta, the bettor selects the first and second place horses but in the exact order of their finish. In the twin double, he picks the winners of two consecutive races; if he wins, he turns in his ticket for another in which he picks the winners of yet another two races. In the triple, the bettor picks the three finishers in order of their finish.

Whatever your druthers, don't throw away your ticket until the race results are officially posted. Inquiries into race results are often made, and if the race stewards decide there has been an infraction, the picture can change.

Roulette

In this exciting casino game, the bettor can bet—or place chips—on a single number (a "straight up"), or on Red or Black, odd or even, or a combination of numbers. In this game, the dealer spins the roulette wheel in one direction and a small white ball in the opposite direction. When the ball stops, the dealer indicates the winning number.

In this card game, everyone plays against the dealer. The dealer deals each player two cards face up and gives himself one card up and one card down. The object of the game is to draw cards that add up to 21 or that come as close as possible to that number without going over it. If your total is nearer 21 than the dealer's, you win. If you go over 21, you lose. If you and the dealer have the same count, it's a draw.

Other games of chance include baccarat, which is played with eight full decks of cards, and craps, which is played with dice. If you've sworn off gambling, you might consider a new board game, "Las Vegas Junket," which enables you to gamble to your heart's content, in the comfort of your living room, without jeopardizing your bank account.

A New Approach to Cancer

Dr. Linus Pauling

By Chuck Bins

This year an estimated 750,000 Americans will be diagnosed as having cancer. One important factor in the effectiveness of any cancer treatment they receive will be their natural resistance to the disease. Nobel Prize winner Dr. Linus Pauling and others base their research on that fact and are seeking to unravel the complex workings of the metabolism which controls cell growth. A malignant tumor is, after all, only the abnormal growth of otherwise normal cells.

So far, their experimental evidence indicates massive doses of ascorbic acid (Vitamin C) can help to bolster that resistance and prolong life for many patients.

Until recently, cancer research has concentrated almost exclusively on the cell and ignored the complex gel surrounding it. This gelatinous substance is as important to proper cellular metabolism as a mother's embryonic fluid is to her unborn infant. Dr. Pauling hypothesizes that cells are normally restrained from proliferating by this cement-like substance.

Before a cell can split, it must break down the surrounding chemical bonds which act much like the wire mesh in reinforced concrete. The break up of this fibrous network is accomplished through the release of an enzyme. The process is kept in check by an inhibiting enzyme, PHI, which Pauling believes requires ascorbic acid for its synthesis. By increasing the production and release of PHI, abnormal cellular growth could be substantially subdued.

Vitamin C Treatment

While Pauling's experiment does not prove his hypothesis, it does seem to show that ascorbic acid can have a therapeutic effect in cancer treatment. At the Vale of Leven District General Hospital in Scotland, Drs. Ewan Cameron and Linus Pauling traced the survival of 100 ascorbate-treated patients from date of "untreatability." Each patient was matched with 10 other patients who had the same cancer and similar

Whether or not further studies will support Pauling's findings is still a question to be answered. At present his research is being conducted with the support of public and private contributions. The National Institute of Health and the American Cancer Society have turned a cold shoulder to his requests for funds.

A pioneer in molecular biology and the only living person to have won the Nobel Prize more than once, Pauling never had any problem in procuring grants before he became involved with vitamin C. Since then however, the American Cancer Society and the National Institute of Health have rejected his funding requests five times.

Vitamin C Versus Traditional Treatment

Unfortunately, Pauling's approach seems to fly in the face of traditional case histories. Of these 100 patients, each received 10 grams of ascorbate a day, (the minimum daily adult requirement is 30 milligrams), while those 1,000 in the control group did not. One year later, 22 of the 100 ascorbate-treated patients were still alive compared with only four of the 1,000 controls. The survival times varied with different types of cancer, but in every category the ascorbate-treated patients lived longer. Most of them (90 percent) lived three times as long as their controls on the average, while the remaining 10 percent lived an average of 20 times longer.

In one case, after this experiment was conducted, an advanced cancer patient experienced a complete remission within a month after beginning ascorbate treatment. When this treatment stopped, the patient's symptoms returned. Again ascorbic acid was administered, and again the patient recovered.

A more recent experiment, conducted at the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minnesota and published in the New England Journal of Medicine, failed to find any statistical difference between two groups of patients—one treated with vitamin C, the other with a placebo. The single, long-term survivor in the test received a placebo.

Conflicting Results

Although this study was largely regarded in the press as refuting Pauling's findings, the researchers themselves pointed to an important difference which many news sources failed to report. All but nine of their 123 patients had previously received radiation or chemotherapy, compared with only a small fraction of Pauling's patients. (These treatments are not as widely used in Scotland as in the U.S.) Since both chemotherapy and radiation, in fact, weaken host resistance, the researchers noted:

It is therefore impossible to draw any conclusions about the possible effectiveness of vitamin C in previously untreated patients. In Cameron and Campbell's report of a 10 percent regression rate in 50 patients with widely disseminated cancer, none had received definitive prior treatment and presumably were more immunocompetent than our patients. Since vitamin C may have an impact on host resistance to cancer we recognize that earlier immuno-suppressive treatment might have obscured any benefit provided by this agent.

They add, however, that in Pauling's experiment, the increased survival rates did, in fact, include some patients with previous immuno-suppressive therapy—a finding they failed to replicate.

treatment methods. Unlike surgery, radiation and chemotherapy, which aim to kill invading cancer cells, ascorbic acid treatments are designed only to restrain them, and ultimately to restore the cancerous cells to their normal behavior.

So far, ascorbic acid has only been used when all else fails. Because ascorbate treatments seem to be less effective following radiation or chemotherapy, if further research supports vitamin C, the approaches may prove to be mutually exclusive.

Pauling would disagree. He is not in favor of discarding traditional treatment methods. Instead, he contends that vitamin C could become a useful supplement during all phases of treatment and would prove particularly helpful in building up the body's immuno-system when either radiation or chemotherapy is the primary method of controlling the disease. The American Cancer Society and the National Institute of Health have yet to see it that way or to provide any substantive funding to further test the vitamin's worth.

Nevertheless, there are some strong arguments which suggest new avenues of approach, like vitamin C, are needed and deserve more funding. After 25 years of cancer research and billions of dollars spent on finding cures, survival rates for the most common types of cancer—accounting for about 80 percent of all cases—remain virtually unchanged and in some cases have worsened. Next year alone, some 400,000 people will die of cancer. Clearly, the war on this disease is not being won.

Furthermore, there is little room for improvement in traditional methods. Surgical treatment has evolved to such a degree that any major curative advance seems unlikely. In radiotherapy, although the practical techniques are still being refined, most radiotherapists would agree that such technical advances will produce only marginal improvement in cure rates.

Chemotherapy, which treats cancer with drugs, now offers prospects of cure for cancers previously regarded as hopeless. But there are over 100 distinct forms of cancer, and the types of cancers curable by chemotherapy are limited to a few special kinds occurring predominantly in children and adolescents.

Anti-Viral Treatment

The most promising new breakthrough in cancer treatment has come from the field of immunotherapy. A newly-discovered, anti-viral protein, dubbed Interferon (IF) sends a "warning" message from cell to cell, strengthening surrounding cells against an attack. Early studies suggest IF might be useful in treating some forms of cancer and may someday become as important to viral diseases as antibiotics are for bacterial infections. This immunological approach parallels what Dr. Pauling is trying to do—bolster host resistance.

Like the inhibitor enzyme PHI, the body's own cells produce IF. Unfortunately, it takes mass quantities of human blood to extract only a small amount of it, making Interferon prohibitively expensive. Ascorbic acid on the other hand, costs less than 60 cents for a 10 gram dose and may prove beneficial to a wide array of cancers.

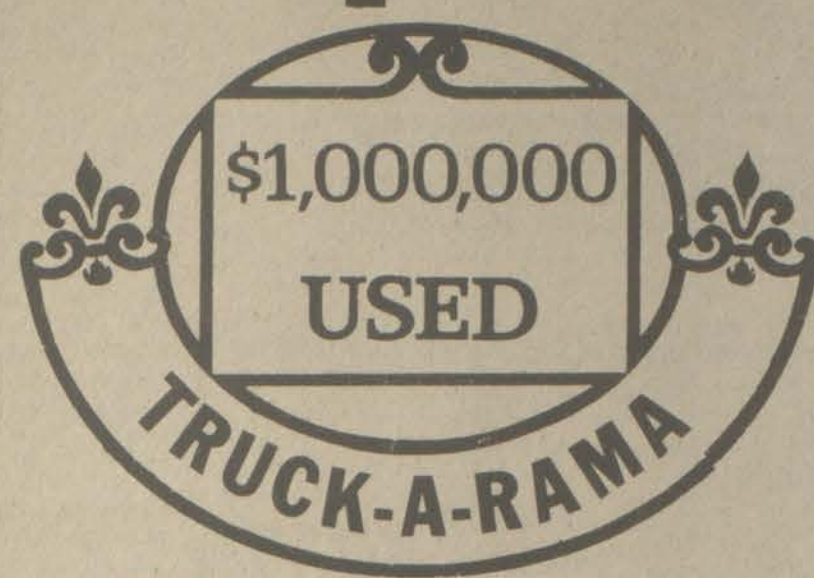

Ascorbate may hold the additional benefit of acting as an anti-bacterial, anti-viral agent. Although no human cancers have been proven to be caused by viruses, it is an important point since many cancer patients ultimately die of infection (due to their bodies' weakened defenses). Unlike traditional cancer treatments, ascorbic acid has no ill side-effects.

Even if large dosages of vitamin C could effectively prolong life in only five to ten percent of cancer cases, it would lengthen the lives of some 20,000 to 40,000 patients in the U.S. alone who would otherwise die this year.

In the absence of any practical breakthroughs since the development of surgical treatment, radiotherapy, and chemotherapy, it seems that traditional treatment methods can only be honed so much before each additional research dollar yields smaller and smaller returns. And it appears this point has already been reached.

With more and more research indicating that many cancers are caused by carcinogens in our diet and environment, an effective cancer control, and possibly a cure, could come through an approach that would mobilize the body's own defense mechanisms.

'Once Upon A Classic' Presents 'Carrie's War'

The adventures of English children evacuated during World War II to the safety of the Welsh countryside are portrayed in "Once Upon A Classic's" "Carrie's War," a four-part dramatization beginning on KET Saturday, April 19 at 7 p.m., and repeated Sundays at 11:30 a.m.

Based on Nina Bawden's novel, the television series was filmed entirely on location in Dorset, Shropshire and South Wales, and stars Juliet Waley in the title role.

In episode one, the adventures of Carrie Willow begin as she, her nine-year-old brother Nick and their friend Albert Sand-wich are evacuated from London to a small Welsh mining village. Carrie and Nick live with Samuel Evans and his sister Lou, while Albert, unknown to the children, goes with Mr. Evans' estranged and aged sister Dilys Gotobed and her housekeeper Hepzibah.

Mr. Evans, a strict religious and dictatorial shopkeeper, makes it difficult for Carrie and Nick to follow his rules. Carrie helps in the store and learns to get along with him, but Mr. Evans frightens Nick.

The children learn from Aunt Lou that Mr. Evans and his sister have not talked since Mrs. Gotobed married an Englishman, who was also the son of the man who owned the mine in which their father was killed. Mrs. Gotobed, now a widow and semi-invalid, lives at Druid's Bottom, where she is cared for by Hepzibah and Mr. Johnny, a distant cousin.

Carrie and Nick are sent to Druid's Bottom on an errand one evening and have a frightening encounter.

"Once Upon A Classic" is presented on KET by WQED/Pittsburgh. "Carrie's War" is a co-production of Time-Life Television and BBC-TV.

Mrs. Hall Wins Head Start Parent Honor

Mrs. Erma Hall has been selected as the Big Sandy Area C.A.P., Inc. Head Start Parent-of-the-Year for 1979-80.

Mrs. Hall has two children, Timothy and William, and is married to Harold Hall. Timothy is enrolled in the Prater-Borders Head Start Center in Magoffin county. Her selection was based upon a letter submitted to the Big Sandy Area C.A.P., Inc. Head Start Policy Council entitled "What Head Start Means To Me."

Mrs. Hall's letter will be forwarded to the Kentucky State Head Start Association where she will compete with other parents across the state for the title of Kentucky Head Start Parent-of-the-Year. The Kentucky Parent-of-the-Year will receive an all expense paid trip to the National Head Start Association to be held in Miami Beach, Florida. Activities for the Big Sandy Parent-of-the-Year were coordinated by Sidney Jane Smith, Social Service and Parent Involvement Coordinator for the Big Sandy Area C.A.P., Inc. Head Start.

The Kentucky Head Start Association will be held in Louisville, Kentucky, at the Ramada Inn Convention Center. What are the reasons for overeating? Studies have isolated some of the most common, which are habits that we have learned. Following a family pattern of overeating is common as is overeating during a convalescence. People often eat to meet the needs of heavy activity, then reduce the activity without change in eating habits. Others from boredom, loneliness or discontent. Many overeat because of poor habits as snacking between meals and excessive use of carbohydrates and fats. Whatever the reason, the end result is always an overweight condition.

Whether you're overeating or experiencing any other form of ill health, we care about you at COOLEY APOTHECARY, No. 2 Town Center Bldg. (886-8106). We welcome you to have your doctor call us with your next prescription. We'll have it ready to pick up with no waiting. And don't forget, prescriptions are a tax deductible item. We offer the most complete and professional prescription service in the area. We're open 9-5:30 Mon.-Fri.; 9-5 Sat.

Annuals for Shade: Choose with Care

While almost every homeowner has a shady area in the yard where a colorful accent would be welcomed, only a few annual plants will provide that bright display when planted in shaded gardens or containers.

Trials at the Landscape Garden Center of the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture have pinpointed several plants suitable for shaded spots, according to Bob Anderson, Extension horticulturist.

"Impatiens will flower profusely in full shade and the colorful foliage of coleus and caladium will develop beautifully in shaded gardens," reports Anderson. In partially shaded situations, these plants plus salvia, or red sage, and some begonias will produce a colorful display.

Impatiens, also called sultana, bloomin' fool or busy lizzy, is the best flowering plant for shade or semi-shade gardens, the garden center trials showed. The flower colors include white, pink, salmon, orange, red and lavender, plus bicolor flower types which contrast with the vigorous green foliage.

Most impatiens are produced from seed. "Unfortunately," says Anderson, "the seed is difficult to germinate for most home gardeners." Cuttings can be taken in the fall and grown indoors through the winter if you have room in a window.

A new type of impatiens, called New Guinea hybrids, is produced only from cuttings. These are more difficult to grow but have beautifully variegated and colored foliage as well as large flowers, according to the specialist.

Coleus and caladium plants that produce colored foliage are also very good plants for shaded or semi-shaded areas. Coleus cultivars are available with leaves of every color except blue. Caladium foliage is highly variable, but generally only the types with red, green and white colors are available.

Coleus plants can be produced from cuttings or seed by the homeowner. Anderson says the newly developed dwarf cultivars have performed very well at the garden center. "You should consider purchasing these new types because they branch freely and remain small in your garden," he advises.

Caladium plants are produced from tubers which must be harvested from the garden before frost in the fall. The tubers should be stored at 55 degrees F during the winter, and in spring they can be forced to sprout faster if kept at 80-85 degrees F for four to six weeks.

Salvia and some begonias can be used in semi-shade garden locations. The plants require locations that receive four to six hours of full sun each day. Anderson pointed out that salvia, or red sage, has never performed well when grown in full sun during trials at the Landscape Garden Center.

The plants produce bright red flower spikes that will stand out in a partially shaded or semi-shaded area.

Begonias with green foliage are the only type of begonia that will grow well in semi-shaded gardens or containers, reports Anderson.

For gardens in the shade, the horticulturist advises having well-drained soil. "It will help to add extra organic matter to the soil to make it lighter and hold less water," he notes, adding that gardens in the shade tend to remain wet much longer than those in the sun because they lack the drying effect of the sun's heat.

Additional information on flower gardening and publications are available from County Extension offices.

To Class or Not To Class

The Kentucky High School Athletic Association may not have to go to court to settle the matter of classifying the high school basketball teams in the state.

The more than 300 high schools should have the ballots marked and returned by the middle of summer. Early speculation is the majority will vote not to change the present structure because of economics.

Sixteen of the 20 Eastern Kentuckians I asked at the Sweet 16 were against a class system. Everyone against it cited either economics, or changing the Sweet 16 format, or both.

Floyd County Board of Education member Ray "Shag" Campbell opposes the class system. "I think we should keep the Sweet 16 the way it has always been," he says.

Betsy Layne coach William Newsome, Jr., says he has changed his mind and now favors a class system. He pointed out that Betsy Layne, a single A football school, came within four points of Ashland, a 4A school, on the basketball court.

WHERE ARE THEY NOW? Faircie Woods is principal of Fleming County High and a KHSAA board member. Faircie played high school basketball at Garrett in the mid-40's and earned small college All-America honors at Kentucky Wesleyan.

Faircie and his friend and long time Breathitt county sports leader, J.P. Deaton, were talking with Don Byars during the state tourney. Together they set up Byars, who at 6-6 is one of the tallest referees I've seen.

Byars was asked by J.P. how high he threw the ball in jump ball situations? Byars responded by explaining the athlete of today jumps much higher than the athlete of a decade ago so if the player is 6-8 he throws the ball 11 or 12 feet in the air.

J.P., who stands 5-8, asked, "If Faircie and I were jumping, Don, would you hold the ball up and drop it?" Faircie and J.P. were a great duo when Woods was Breathitt County's head coach and J.P. was his assistant.

GOOD POINT

John Campbell, Jr., affectionately known as "Dog" to basketball fans, statewide, won more than 500 games in his 20-plus years as coach at Garrett High. Dog has hundreds of funny stories from his coaching days.

SEEDING

The Floyd County Conference coaches voted unanimously to keep the format of seeding the conference winners and runners-up. Former Wheelwright coach, James "Frankie" Francis, proposed the plan in 1976 and it has been a boost to interest in county competition.

"I think the conference seeding puts a greater emphasis on regular season games," Frankie says. "It gives Floyd county a chance to have their two best teams in the regional. It creates more interest among fans who know that a win against a county school not only means another victory but a chance to get seeded for the district tournament."

His plan has given Floyd county a true conference, one that is being copied by other district in the area.

MORE STATE TOURNEY NOTES

Harry Burke was once again at the Sweet 16. Harry looks as if he could still call the championship game of the tourney, something he did twice in his three times of refereeing the Sweet 16.

John Campbell, a member of the freshman basketball team and band at Betsy Layne, has seen five Sweet 16's already at the age of 14.

Pikeville's cheerleaders won the state-at-large cheerleading tournament for a second straight year, proving that 15th Region cheerleading squads can compete with any in the state.

Jim Cox, who played on the '63 Garrett state tournament team where he earned All-State honors along with teammate Keith Lawson, came from Manchester to watch the Sweet 16. Jim played college ball at East Carolina and coached for a season in the 15th Region, guiding Wayland to the 15th Region finals in 1969.

Floyd County Baseball Outlook

By KENNY RICE

Coach Dennis King is counting on a pitching staff with a lot of potential to help McDowell repeat as 58th district champions.

"We may have some problems in the early going with four starters in the infield gone from last year and our hitting is questionable but we have some good arms on this team and I think our pitching can come through for us," he says.

The "good arms" King is talking about are Jimmy Dale Turner, Kevin Stumbo, Bobby Caudill and Mike Birdsong. Mike Kinney is also a possible starter and will see relief action this season. Caudill was the starter for McDowell last season in the district final against Prestonsburg.

First baseman Gary Pack, shortstop Rick Kidd, third baseman Steve Kidd and catcher Doug Wicker graduated last year, leaving four vacancies in what was one of the area's stronger infields. Turner appears to have moved in to the spot at first and Kinney and Greg Kidd are vying for the shortstop position with Barry Hamilton and Denver Slone the top candidates behind the plate.

Tom Meade and Chester Newsome are set in the outfield and Hamilton may move to the outfield leaving the catching duties to Slone.

King says he will rely on several youngsters coming up from the McDowell and Drift Babe Ruth teams. Last summer, McDowell and Drift finished second and third in the county league.

"I really believe we have more talent this year than last. How well we'll do early depends on how fast the Babe Ruth players can adjust to high school ball. This team has confidence and they know we have a good baseball tradition at McDowell. When the tournament comes we'll be ready to defend," King noted.

PRESTONSBURG

Prestonsburg finished second in the district last season and Coach Russell Shepherd has 20 players returning from last season's 24-12 team, that was the eighth Prestonsburg club in 10 years to advance to the regional tournament.

Needless to say, the Blackcats are loaded with depth, experience and talent. Shepherd's starting eight consists of six seniors and two juniors. His pitching staff has four proven starters and four promising arms coming in.

Pitchers David Pitts, Tom Wilson and Dwayne Rodebaugh, all seniors, and junior Randy Griffith are back on the mound. Each have at least a year's pitching under the belt and Wilson is the only four-year starter on the club. Sophomores Jeff Hilton, Freddie Hackworth and Rob Tackett have good futures, moving up from All Star honors as Babe Ruth players.

When they are not pitching, Wilson returns to first base, Rodebaugh to second and Pitts to third. Senior Jamie Steffey is back at shortstop and senior Dan Daniels is back for another season behind the plate. The Blackcats are at least three deep at each infield spot with Griffith and Denny Ousley backing up Wilson at first.

If you think the infield is solid, just look at the outfield. Speedsters Randy Chaffin in left, Griffith in center and Gilliam in right anchor the outfield. Chaffin, a senior, is backed up by Sam Huffman. Hackworth spells Griffith in center when Randy takes the mound and Mike Wells will see action in right. With six talented outfielders, Prestonsburg is as deep as any club in Eastern Kentucky.

Seven newcomers to the team this season bring still more to the Blackcats. Sophomores Steve Rice and John Burchett are Babe Ruth All Stars with the potential to see quite a bit of action at third and catcher, respectively, this season. Freshmen Bobby Hackworth, Randy Watts and John Gilliam will see some action at various positions this season. Juniors Paul Sargent and Rob Shepherd return after a year off from baseball to bolster the outfield.

The top four home run hitters, Wilson, Rodebaugh, Pitts and Daniels, are capable of even more power this season. The defense is as reliable as any a Prestonsburg team has had in the past decade. The pitching has been good for the early part of the season. Shepherd knows he is blessed with a team that has the potential to become the first Prestonsburg team since 1970 to win the regional tournament.

"The players are anxious to play this season," he said. We have a senior ball club with good underclassmen, even our backup players have experience. We are a solid team and everyone is aware of the tradition Prestonsburg has in baseball and these boys want another trip to the regional."

Shepherd, who is in his ninth season with the Prestonsburg team, was recently named to the "Who's Who Among High School Baseball Coaches in America," joining only five other Kentucky coaches for the honor. A regional championship would be icing on the cake for him this season.
