It may storm, the temperature may jump up or down, hair may fall, lightning strike, the air-conditioning is already out, and anything may betide, but one thing, we can tell you now, will not happen. This desk will not be struck by a bright idea.

HE SAID IT—NOT I

Larry Webster, of The News-Express, Pikeville, tells in a recent column how to spot a Pike countian on a strange beach—Myrtle Beach, for one. Just watch, he says, till you see somebody tossing plastic jugs into the ocean, and you've got your man.

QUESTION: If the sun and the winds could be harnessed tomorrow to provide all the heat and electric power needed by every American, completely freeing the nation of its dependence on sheikh-down oil and guaranteeing the U.S. all the energy it will need till doom's-day, but putting coal, oil and natural gas on the shelf and separating most of us from our accustomed sources of income—ask yourself (if you've breath left after struggling through this long sentence), how many of us would protest?

And how many public officials who are now so distraught about the situation that they're plumb eloquent about it, would vote for the country and stand pat against private and vested interests?

Flash Flood Hits McDowell

Workmen remove damaged carpeting from a classroom building at McDowell High School following Thursday night's flash flood.

Torrential rain which fell in some parts of Floyd county late Thursday night caused considerable damage to property, primarily in the McDowell section, as the result of flash flooding which was felt in a wide area of Eastern Kentucky, West Virginia and Southern Ohio.

Although residents throughout the county experienced particularly violent thunderstorms Thursday night, the duration and intensity of accompanying rains apparently varied widely from place to place with a reported 4-5 inches falling in the Frazier's Creek section at McDowell within little more than an hour.

McDowell high school and grade school, which are located a short distance up Frazier's Creek, were particularly hard hit as the creek overflowed its banks a short time after the storm began at about 10:30 p.m. The silt-laden water entered all buildings associated with the schools except for the high school gymnasium and two or three trailer classroom structures which rested on elevated foundations. Although the water level rose to about three feet in one lowlying structure, levels of six inches to a foot were common in most buildings. A (See Story No. 1, Page 4)

Board Rejects Alternate Site Here for Field

The dispute over the site for the proposed regional airport took some new turns this week, following moves by James R. Allen, commonwealth's attorney here, to advance consideration of a Floyd county site as an alternative to the Martin county location already proposed by the regional airport board.

At a special meeting of the airport board last Wednesday, Allen urged the board to adopt a resolution noting its continued support for the Pevler mine site in Martin county as its "number one priority," but recommending that, in the event the Pevler site is turned down by the board, the Mayo Hollow site, adjacent to Jenny Wiley State Park, be considered an alternative site.

The two Floyd county board members, Edgar Jones and Morris Isaac, voted for the resolution, with Raymond Bradbury, Martin county member, and Luther Green Carpenter, of Magoffin county, opposing it, and Board Chairman Allan "Bud" Perry, of Paintsville, casting the deciding vote in opposition.

Allen took the matter to the (See Story No. 3, Page 4)

Stolen Diamonds Valued at $12,000

Prestonsburg jeweler Clyde Burchett reported the theft last Thursday of four diamond rings valued at $12,000. Burchett said a tray containing four ladies' rings was discovered to be missing from a window display case at the end of trading Thursday. How the gems were taken remains something of a mystery, however, since entry to the display case would have to have been forced yet no evidence of force was found.

Last week's theft is the first he has incurred in his 24 years of business here, Burchett said. The merchandise was not insured.

Raniers Back New TV Outlet

A fourth commercial television station is in prospect at Lexington, and if it materializes its major financing may come from Prestonsburg interests.

The FCC recently reassigned Channel 62 to Lexington, opening the way for applications for license to build and operate a new station there.

One of the applicants will be Famtel, Inc., in which Harry Hale Ranier, formerly of Prestonsburg, now of Mt. Sterling, and his mother, Mrs. Harry B. Ranier, of Prestonsburg, are reported to be the principal financial backers. Associated with them in the venture is Jim Stone, president of Gospel Graphics, Inc.

If Famtel is granted the license, Stone was quoted as saying, it will offer programs from the Christian Broadcasting Network, including "The 700 Club" and "The PTL Club," plus network reruns.

"We want to offer good family entertainment as well as Christian programming," Stone said. Programs would include some of the better family shows and news, possibly from the Independent News Service.

Floyd Schools Lose $205,000 As State Budget Cut, Report

Although the Floyd County Board of Education has shed most of its financial woes after winding up the fiscal year with a healthy balance, Supt. of Schools Pete Grigsby, Jr. said Monday that all is not clear sailing.

This view was taken after his office had assessed the effect of the recent executive order issued by Governor Brown to keep expenditures within the confines of a sharply restricted state budget.

His order affecting the budgets of colleges, universities and public schools has resulted in a loss to the Floyd county school system during the fiscal year beginning July 1 of $205,000, Grigsby said.

"And that may not be all we will lose," he added. "It means that we have a fight on our hands to keep

Council Gives 'Last Straw' Help As Shelter Treasury Is Bare

"If we get nothing from the city tonight, we'll no longer be a functioning organization," Floyd County Humane Society President Eva Belcher told the Prestonsburg city council Monday. At the same time, Mrs. Belcher made it clear that the continued existence of the animal shelter which the Humane Society conducts here depends primarily on funding by the Floyd fiscal court.

Earlier this year, the city council contributed $6000 toward the operation of the shelter and another $2500 some months later, realized through sale of part of the property on which the facility stands. The fiscal court has been paying $350 a month toward the dog warden's salary and was expected to budget further funds for the shelter in July. The court now pleads, however, that it has no monies available for that purpose.

Operation of the facility costs some $25,000 annually, outstanding bills total $1454, and the shelter's cash assets stand currently at $7.81, the council was told. $400 would pay the shelter's two employees another two weeks, Mrs. Belcher said, by which time the Humane Society would again press the fiscal court to come up with its share of the operating costs.

The six council members present split evenly on a motion by Billy Ray Collins to contribute the needed $400—with Carolyn Ford and Cloyd Johnson joining Collins in the motion and Tommy Rose, Dixon Nunnery and Dick Clark opposing it—and Mayor Harold Cooley broke the tie with an affirmative vote.

Some of those opposed argued that the city has no further funds for the shelter and that allowing it to close might be the most effective way of convincing county officials of the shelter's importance to the county.

Mrs. Belcher said the fiscal court would soon be offered a contract with the Humane Society. "If they do not accept the contract, we will not provide the services. We cannot go on without support," she said. An appeal for private donations is also being launched, she said.

Should other measures fail, the Humane Society would also consider filing suit against the county, Mrs. Belcher added, on the basis of a state statute requiring that the county provide an animal pound and holding individual magistrates liable for damages caused by stray animals in the absence of such a pound.

In the absence of Councilmen Estill Lee Carter and Paul Phillip Hughes, the council voted unanimously to place Police Chief Keith Lawson on permanent status. Discussion of Lawson's (See Story No. 4, Page 4)

Recount Scheduled By Census Bureau

The Census Bureau will conduct a recount in Floyd county this week and next, bureau officials told Prestonsburg City Manager David Evans this week. Evans urged citizens to cooperate fully with the census takers, since federal funds depend partly on the thoroughness of the population count.

Prestonsburg and Floyd officials recently lodged objections to the preliminary census count, citing doubts about the accuracy of its figures.

FAIR BEGINS MONDAY

The Floyd County Fair gets under way here Monday with a full schedule of activities and will run through Sept. 6, residents are reminded.

Leaders Tell ARC's Smith Views on Community Needs

Al Smith, federal co-chairman of the Appalachian Regional Commission, is flanked by Prestonsburg Mayor Harold Cooley, left, and former Paintsville Mayor J. B. Wells, at a May Lodge luncheon during the ARC official's visit to eastern Kentucky last week.

While giving the obligatory nod to the need to diversify the region's economy, an official of the Appalachian Regional Commission (ARC), in eastern Kentucky last week to discuss development projects with local leaders, used the occasion to boost the coal industry.

Describing the region as the answer to the nation's energy problems, ARC Federal Co-chairman Al Smith identified coal operators as the "big key" to the region's economy and spoke of the "partnership" being fostered between the ARC leadership and Energy Secretary William B. Sturgill.

Smith's remarks came in the course of an informal response to a litany of requests recited by area officials during a May Lodge luncheon last Wednesday.

Smith and ARC Executive-Director Henry Krevor, on a tour of the Bluegrass, Big Sandy and Kentucky River Area Development districts, were accompanied by Wilburn Pratt, commissioner of the Department for Local Government (DLG). DLG administers the state's ARC program and has been allocated more than $10 million this year for development projects in eastern Kentucky.

Among local leaders present to press their causes, Chalmer Frazier, executive secretary of the Floyd County Chamber of Commerce, argued for construction of KY 3, and Paintsville businessman J. B. Wells spoke for completion of US 23 as a four-lane highway. Prestonsburg Mayor Harold Cooley and Grady Conley, of Salyersville, urged diversifying the economy as a means of creating more jobs, while Salyersville Mayor Tim Bostic stressed the need for water in that county.

The ARC officials also visited David and Highlands Regional Medical Center before moving on to sites in Pike, Letcher and Perry counties.

14 Months After Its Opening, Animal Shelter Near Closing

The Floyd County Animal Shelter, now 14 months in operation, may soon close its doors.

Its trouble is money, or the lack thereof. As of this week, it had $51 on hand, with bills mounting and payrolls to meet—and with the hope of any new source of income slim.

So it is that the dream of a small group, composed mainly of young people, may end. Five years ago, when a Middlesboro woman left a bequest of $25,000 to the county for an animal shelter, contingent on public support, the Floyd County Humane Society was organized. Its leaders won the financial backing that was required, and a modern animal shelter was built on the Middle Creek road.

The hope that the county was well on the way to solving its dog problem was bright.

But there are the salaries of a dog warden and his assistant (in this case, his wife) to meet. The dogs and cats taken to the shelter must be fed. Operation of the dog warden's truck has become costlier.

Meanwhile, financial support has faltered. The Floyd fiscal court pledged

NLRB To Hear Miners' Petition For Union Vote

Apparently, the United Mine Workers of America are moving to make good on their plans for further unionization of the Eastern Kentucky coal field.

Workers at three non-union mines were reported this week as having signed petitions asking for a union vote. These include the L.T. Ruth Coal Company in Martin county, the C&B Coal Co. at David in this county and the Call and Ramsey Coal Co. at Meta, Pike county.

A National Labor Relations Board (NLRB) said a hearing on the C & B employees' petition has been scheduled here tomorrow (Thursday).

If more than 50 per cent of the employees of a mine vote to join the union, the UMW becomes the bargaining agent. Petitions for elections must contain signatures of at least 30 per cent of the employees.

J.B. Trout, Pikeville, international executive board member for district 50, UMW, said, "Usually, you want better than 50 per cent before you go into an election. If you can't get more than 30 per cent you might as well quit."

It is said that the only UMW workings in Martin county are several small strip-mining operations working under contract for the Island Creek Coal Company. Larger mines of the county, the state's No. 2 coal-producing county, are independent.

Officials of larger mines credit much of the county's record production of 13 million tons of coal last year to its non-union status.

$12,000 a year to help meet operating expenses—"as long as possible." Now, with a tighter state budget, county officials say $12,000 isn't possible. Last year, according to the Humane Society the county contributed $6,000 and the dog warden's salary (about $4,200). This year, it says money may not be available. The City of Prestonsburg, described by Humane Society officials "as more than helpful," provided $6,000.

"It was on that $6,000 that we got by, the first six months," said Mrs. John Burke, Jr., who with her husband has been a moving force in the effort to care for homeless animals and at the same time reduce the number of strays on streets and roadsides.

The animal shelter's expenses run between $1,600 and $1,800 a month. Except for the funds hoped for from city and county governments, the only income lies in two sources—25¢ for each dog license sold and about $15 for each unclaimed dog that is "adopted out."

The Society has made appeals for help from citizens. A few $5 contributions have been received. It recently staged a benefit supper—"and loads of food was left, untouched," the net gain negligible.

What to do? "We'll go back to the fiscal court, Sept. 3, hoping they can find a way to help, but we're not sure the animal shelter can last that long," says Mrs. Burke.

As a last resort, the Society has been told, it could invoke the state law which requires every county to maintain some type of animal shelter.

Water District Chairman Says 'No Reluctance'

"I want no argument with anybody, but I feel that we should be cleared of this charge of being reluctant to help the town of Martin with its water problem," said Gary Martin, chairman of the Beaver-Elkhorn Water District, this week.

Both Mayor Larry Hall and Ron Reynolds, chairman of the Martin Water Commission, last week were critical of Beaver-Elkhorn's reaction to a call for water for the town.

Said the Beaver-Elkhorn chairman: "They (Mayor Hall and Mr. Reynolds) called me where I was working at the courthouse here, about 2:30 Wednesday afternoon, the day after they lost water service. I at once began trying to get water to them, but we had trouble at Lackey with our own system, and we had to restore service to our own customers. At Martin we found that all line connections we had there had been taken out, and we had to make a whole new connection of our 10-inch line to their smaller service line. By 7:30 p.m. that same day, we had water in their lines."

$2.7 Million Works Approved To Relieve Tug Fork Flooding

Secretary of the Interior Cecil D. Andrus today approved $2.7 million to reclaim two areas in Pike and Martin Counties, Kentucky, that have contributed significantly to flooding problems in the Tug Fork Valley.

One project, for $2,079,336, is on Peter Branch of Blackberry Creek, which runs into Tug Fork near Freeburn in Pike county. The area is approximately seven miles south of Belfry and twenty-three miles east-southeast of Pikeville.

The other, for $662,000, is approximately 5 miles southwest of Inez, in Martin County, in the Bent Branch sub-watershed of Rockhouse Fork, which drains into the Tug Fork.

"Hundreds of residents of both the Kentucky and West Virginia sides of the Tug Fork Valley have had to endure serious flooding for years, a problem which was aggravated by inadequate reclamation following past mining," said Walter N. Heine, Director of Interior's Office of Surface Mining (OSM), which is undertaking the project under a cooperative agreement with Kentucky. "This project is a large step along the path to correcting such abuses."

David C. Short, OSM's Region II Director in Knoxville, Tennessee, said the Peter Branch subwatershed is one of the major contributors to sedimentation of the Tug Fork from the Kentucky side. That sedimentation, in turn, is a major factor in flooding problems in the valley.

"Virtually the entire hollow included in this project has been disturbed in the process of mining four different coal seams, by means of surface, auger and underground mining," Short said. The surface mining was done in the 1960's and early 1970's.

"Most of the benches from the abandoned strip mining are unstable and contribute substantial amounts of sediment to Peter Branch, Blackberry Creek and, ultimately, Tug fork," Short said. "At least sixty-five homes located near or on Peter Branch are very vulnerable to flooding, in addition to many others which are affected downstream on Blackberry Creek and the Tug Fork," Short said.

The project approved by Andrus today covers the first two parts of a four-phase program designed to stabilize the watershed. The first two phases are expected to take about two years.

Phase I will seek to stabilize the slopes and control sedimentation on approximately 280 acres at the head of the hollow. Part of the early work will be to use personnel under the Young Adult Conservation Corps program to build sedimentation check-dams in the hollow.

Then, following extensive design and engineering work, temporary sediment control structures will be built on both forks of Peter Branch and the area graded for drainage and water diversion. Significant sources of acid mine drainage will be sealed, sediment will be cleaned out of the creek bed and the stream channel restored. All unstable outcrops will be revegetated.

Phase II will involve a study of the remaining approximate 770 acres in the watershed to identify and evaluate other major problem areas. Reclamation on that part of the watershed will be undertaken later (Phases III and IV), under a separate cooperative agreement.

"In the Martin County project, many of the outcrops in the Bent Branch sub-watershed are unstable as a result of mining activity in the early 1970's," Short said. "Substantial amounts of sediment from those outcrops are washed into Bent Branch and subsequently Rockhouse Fork, significantly worsening flooding problems there," he added.

"Five homes near the mouth of Bent Branch frequently are threatened by flooding and many other homes downstream along the valley bottom are also affected," Short said.

"The first phase of the project,"

Short said, "will include building sediment control structures, providing for proper drainage, removing material which was shoved onto the slopes during mining, revegetating the area and removing sediment from the stream bed, thereby restoring the original channel."

"A second phase will involve a study of the remaining 5,400 acres of the Rockhouse Fork watershed to identify and evaluate other major problem areas. Reclamation of that remaining area will be done later, under a separate contract," Short said.

Funds for the work will come from the Federal share of reclamation fees levied on current coal production for reclaiming abandoned lands under the 1977 Federal Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act.

"The sedimentation of stream beds in the Tug Fork watershed is a major cause of chronic flooding problems in that valley," Short said. "These projects are two of several which we have in various stages of implementation to help relieve the problem—something which probably would not be possible without funds made available under the Federal Surface Mining Act."

"One of the primary purposes of the Federal Surface Mining Act is to keep residents of our nation's coal fields from having to endure in the future problems such as those which have afflicted residents of the Tug Fork Valley, as a result of coal mining activity," Short said. "With the ongoing reclamation required by that act, we no longer should see surface coal mining creating the kind of erosion and sedimentation seen in the Tug Fork Valley. The public should know that coal can be mined without a disregard for the environment, and it is a joint Federal-State responsibility to see to it," Short said.

thick layer of mud ruined hundreds of books, school supplies and equipment, including several band instruments and newly-purchased band uniforms.

One large frame classroom structure was moved off its foundation by the current. It will be repaired.

Hugo E. Miller, principal of McDowell High School, and grade school principal Phillip Chaffins said "clean-up would require about a week. Just as we were getting the school year under way, something like this happens," Miller commented. They said that, although similar flooding had damaged the grade school in past years, Thursday was the first time high water from flash flooding had affected the high school.

Superintendent of Schools Pête Grigsby, Jr. said the Floyd County Board of Education has flood insurance on the damaged structures. No dollars and cents estimate of the damage had been established early this week.

Rescue squads and fire departments from the Left Beaver area, Martin and Maytown worked through the weekend at the schools along with volunteers—and heavy equipment and workmen from the state highway department were called to the scene upon the recommendation of State Senator Benny Ray Bailey. Miller said Monday most of the cleanup work had been completed. "Now it's mainly a matter of waiting on the drying out process," he commented.

A number of homes were also damaged as a result of the flooding in the Frazier's Creek area. A foot of water entered five houses in the Royal Hollow section less than a mile above the school, and a mother and child in the same area were reported to have been knocked down and carried a short distance by the torrent as they crossed the paved road by the hollow. They were apparently uninjured.

Some residences were also flooded on the Bill Hall Branch of Frazier's Creek and considerable loss was reported by Sam Hall whose house was flooded after two drain pipes in front of his home were knocked loose by the water and deflected much of the flow directly onto his property. Most of the Hall family's furnishings were removed to an upper story of the house although the water all but covered Hall's Cadillac and ruined the family swimming pool.

Light damage was also reported along some sections of Mud Creek in Thursday night's storm which ravaged the Martin county community of Beauty and caused extensive property loss in the mountainous areas of adjacent states.

position took place in executive session and the vote, moved by Dixon Nunery and seconded by Dick Clark in open session, was taken without comment.

Lawson has denied reported suggestions that his fitness for the office was at issue in the council's deferring a decision on his status two weeks ago. He said that, contrary to the reports, he has been under no medication since the shooting, during a liquor raid last year, which left him partially paralyzed. Moreover, his abbreviated daytime working hours are compensated for by extensive night duty, he added.

County Attorney Arnold Turner Jr. urged the council to seek an agreement with the fiscal court over fees to be levied on the city for garbage collection when the county assumes control of waste disposal through its newly-created agency, Floyd County Solid Waste, Inc.

The city should not rely on its long-term contract with Adrian Lafferty, until now holder of the franchise for garbage collection in the Prestonsburg area, Turner advised. The county attorney opined that the contract would not stand up in court and in any case, he argued, the county will soon control access to the only legal landfill here.

LOOKING AHEAD

The thermometer hadn't dropped more than five degrees till we began hearing some wondering out loud if we would have a hard winter, since the summer bed of roses had pretty consistently run to thorns. Now, the check of the woolly bears will begin, and if a spider gets careless about his engineering and weaves a web higher from the ground than usual, it will be interpreted as a sure sign of deep snows ahead.

Maybe so. At the moment, darkling skies, snow, ice, whistling winds fail to concern me as much as the fear that the Evening Grosbeaks may not return to resume that misunderstanding that we had going, a couple of winters back.

Prestonsburg city council Monday, urging the council to adopt a stronger resolution in favor of the Floyd site.

In the absence of Councilmen Estill Lee Carter and Paul Phillip Hughes, the council unanimously adopted the resolution, recommending that the state consider the Mayo Hollow site "independent of any other sites presently under consideration" for the airport.

Of the milder resolution, for which he argued before the airport board, Allen said he did not intend it as a threat to the Martin county site but merely to ensure that, were that site rejected, the Floyd site would not then be overlooked.

There has been recent speculation that, in view of the Department of Transportation's "freeze" on design funds for the new KY 3—a highway which would serve the proposed Martin county airport site—the chances for state approval of that site are considerably diminished.

While the Martin location is best suited to serve coal interests, Allen argued, the Floyd site is the more accessible to the majority of the region's people.

Perry said a majority on the airport board felt that, since the Martin site has already been selected by the board, $40,000 has been spent on the selection process, preliminary design work has been done on the site, monies are on hand for continued design work, a master plan has been prepared, and an application for construction monies has been submitted to the Federal Aviation Authority, there is "no reason to change course" at this point.

The airport board has $70,000 on hand, to be matched by the state in the same amount, for design work on the Martin county site, and a decision on that site is expected soon from the Department of Transportation's aeronautics division, Perry said. FAA requires state approval of the site before it will grant construction monies for the project.

The airport is expected to cost $4.8 million, of which 80 percent is being sought from the federal government, 10 percent from the state, and 10 percent from local sources.

In moving the city council resolution in support of the Mayo Hollow site, Councilman Tommy Rose argued that endorsement of the site by the council and the Floyd fiscal court could assist State Rep. Greg Stumbo and State Sen. Benny Ray Bailey in convincing Gov. John Y. Brown of the merits of the airport location in this county.

Mud Cr. Man Appeals District Court Verdict

Convicted by a district court jury of a charge of illegal possession of alcoholic beverages and fined $135.50, Forrest Hall, of the Harold area, has filed an appeal to circuit court.

Sixty-eight cases of beer were confiscated by sheriff's officers after issuance of a search warrant on the basis of an affidavit in which an officer claimed an unidentified person had seen beer being unloaded at Hall's home four days before the affidavit was made, the appellant points out. In his appeal he claims he was not present at the time of the search and seizure; that there was no testimony that he was present when the beer was unloaded, or that he asked that it be unloaded, and that the appellant did not have a reputation for selling whiskey.

The appeal questions the authority of a trial commissioner to issue a search warrant and also challenges the affidavit on which the search warrant was issued. The brief contends defendant's rights under the Fourth Amendment were violated.

Martin added that he and David Reed, another water commissioner, had in 1979 fired a former Beaver-Elkhorn superintendent for failing to help the town of Martin in a similar situation.

Reynolds said this week that Bob Hackworth, former water system superintendent at Martin, and now employed by Beaver-Elkhorn, was at the Martin water plant Tuesday afternoon, the first day of the recent outage, and knew of the city's need of water. Moreover, Reynolds said, he explicitly asked Gary Martin for a Beaver-Elkhorn hook-up as early as 10 o'clock Wednesday morning.

Beaver Elkhorn should not have waited on the decision of Mayor Hall, Reynolds added, since the Martin water commission is the authority responsible for decisions affecting the water supply.

Meanwhile, the water commission posted a $200 reward this week for information leading to the arrest and conviction of any person or persons discharging water from the Martin system without authority. Someone has apparently been drawing large volumes of water from the system at night, Reynolds said.

The unauthorized taps have occurred about every other night for the past two weeks, sometimes draining the city's 60,000-gallon reservoir, but the source of the loss is still unknown, Reynolds said.

Arrests Listed

A listing of those booked at the county jail during the past week, charges against them, and arresting officers follows:

LETTERS To the Editor

Roadsides Need Clearing

I was born in Floyd county at Langley, Ky. in 1903. I am now 77 years young. I have been a resident of Garrett since I was 18, and I have never seen the roads we have to travel in such a shape as they are now. Now school has started and the roads are so dangerous on account of the weeds when you stop at a stop sign, you can't see whether there are any cars coming or not for the weeds being so high. The cars hit the trees as they go through, the weeds have grown so thick. Also bad is the litter on the roadside. Everyone should fight for better roads and be clean. Just take a good look.

My father was a Robinson, and my mother was a Collins. My name is Kate Robinson Conley, and I've lived at Garrett since I've been married. My husband is Pearl Conley, and we are both too disabled to do anything. So please cut the weeds by the roads land up our road where we live.

MRS. PEARL CONLEY
 Rt. 2, Box 15
 Garrett, Ky.

Thanks For Help

I want to thank Mr. Larry Hall, Mayor of Martin, Mr. Robert Campbell and the Martin Fire Department, and Mr. Bob Carpenter and the Floyd County Rescue Squad for their interest and assistance during the recent water outage in Martin.

After many inquiries, the Floyd County Rescue Squad, with the help of Mr. Ellis Osborne and the Army Reserve in Pikeville, was able to secure a water tanker for use by the patients of Our Lady of the Way Hospital.

The immediate efforts of the people lessen the impact of a water shortage for the hospital's patients. The resources of Eastern Kentucky are sometimes limited but the cooperation of many concerned people are unlimited and make this a great place to live and work.

Thank you very much.
 ROBERT R. RIGEL
 Administrator, Our Lady of the Way Hospital

McDowell, Class of '56

McDowell High School, class of 1956, will gather sometime in 1981 for our 25th reunion. If you have not received an invitation or have not yet responded to your invitation, please contact me as soon as possible. We need to start planning now to make this an affair to remember. Hoping to see you all next year!

A Good Reunion

I came home, Aug. 16 for the Class of '42 reunion at May Lodge and it was one of the happiest times of my life. Many thanks to all of you who worked so hard—special thanks to Peachie, Garnet and Burieta. I'm so proud of all my classmates and teachers.

THELMA JEANNE TACKETT
 504 5th Ave.

OBSERVE 25th ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Layne, of West Prestonsburg, observed their silver wedding anniversary recently and were honored with a surprise party at the home of Mrs. Layne's brother, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Tussey. The event was hosted by their children and Mr. Layne's mother, Mrs. Judy Layne.

Mr. and Mrs. Layne were married August 19, 1955 by the Rev. Glenn Whitaker in Prestonsburg, and are the parents of three children, Mrs. Rita Morrison, David Keith Layne and Danny Lee Layne, and three grandchildren, all of West Prestonsburg.

Those attending the party were Mrs. Layne's father, the Rev. L. P. Tussey, Mr. and Mrs. Ballard Tussey, Lisa and B. J. Tussey, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Tussey, Greg and George Tussey, Mr. and Mrs. Burl Shepherd, Mr. and Mrs. Steve Rose, Misty Rose, Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Layne, Missy and Michael Layne, Mr. and Mrs. Worth McGuire, Worthy McGuire, Mrs. Darcus Fannin, Mrs. Judy Layne, Mr. and Mrs. Danny Layne, Scott and Crystal Layne, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Morrison, Jenny Morrison and David Keith Layne.

BIRTH ANNOUNCEMENT

Mr. and Mrs. Frankie Webb, of Dickey Town, announce the birth of their second child, Phillip Taylor Webb, born Thursday, August 21, at Highlands Regional Medical Center. Mrs. Webb is the former Teresa Calhoun.

CONCLUDE VISIT

Mrs. Luther Youn and sons, Matthew, Mark and Robert, of Greenville S.C., recently completed a visit with her mother, Mrs. Malinda Conley here.

Unemployment Claims May Force Ky. To Borrow from Trust Fund

Unemployment continues to be a problem with unemployment insurance claims "off the chart" so far for 1980, said Human Resources Secretary Grady Stumbo.

Stumbo, speaking to the Interim Joint Committee on Labor and Industry Tuesday afternoon, said there were five major causes of the problem: inflation, the economic climate, an increase in benefits, the taxable base staying the same and the large amount of negative-balance employers.

Employers must pay into a trust fund which pays benefits of 55 percent of the average weekly wage statewide ($217 per week) to workers when they are unemployed. When the benefits are increased, as they were by the 1978 General Assembly from 50 to 55 percent, without raising the tax base (that part of the worker's salary which is taxed) more money will be going out than is coming in. A deficit is created, Stumbo explained.

Another problem is the negative-balance employer, one who puts less in the fund than his employees are taking out. Of 65,000 employers in the state, 10,000 are negative-balance employers, he added.

At the present time, one out of five employees covered has made application for unemployment insurance benefits in the past 12 months. In Kentucky 97 percent of all employees are insured.

In January, the trust fund held $148 million but was down in July to $98 million. If the fund is less than $100 million by the first of the year, a $30 million increase passed by the 1980 General Assembly will be put into effect, Stumbo said. It is an actual increase from 2.7 to 3.2 percent on the first $6,000 the employee earns.

If a deficit still occurs, according to Stumbo, the state will be forced to borrow from the National Trust fund for the first time. Although no interest is charged and there is no mechanism to pay back the loan, it only would be putting off the problem, said Stumbo.

In trying to bring new employers into the state to help stop the unemployment problem, Kentucky is "approaching areas that haven't been approached before," said Deputy Secretary of Development Bruce Lunsford.

Since lack of sites is not a problem and the labor force is competitive, promotion programs are being pushed. "Figures are staggering which show the number of people that don't know what we have to offer," said Lunsford.

Applications for $42 million of the $100 million industrial revenue bonds authorized by the 1980 Legislature have been received by the state, he said.

The foreign market also looks promising, but Kentucky is in a "get acquainted period" there, Lunsford said. Selling Kentucky products and getting foreign businesses in Kentucky are both being emphasized, according to Lunsford.

Rounding out the meeting, John Clarke, director of community relations for the General Electric Corp. said that as the state's no. 1 private employer its ties to Kentucky are strong and enduring. "As goes Kentucky, so goes GE," he said.

Since "mother nature moved in" with hot weather, a record number of refrigerators and air conditioners have been sold by the company, he said. GE will probably start hiring back workers in September, he added.

Warns Benefits Deadline Near

Certain wives whose husbands are listed as MIAs or were POWs for ninety days or more will lose eligibility for valuable Veterans Administration education benefits if they don't act within the next six months.

Eligibility for the VA Survivors' and Dependents' Education program expires for this select group Dec. 24, 1980, or ten years from the date the listing was made, whichever is later, according to Lee Caudill, director of the VA regional office in Louisville.

The program, which is also open to children of POW-MIAs, provides tuition assistance for the spouses and children of veterans who died or suffered total and permanent disability resulting from their military service.

Caudill said since 1956, VA has spent some $1.7 billion to educate and train some 409,000 eligibles including 193 wives and children of POW-MIAs.

Education payments are available for up to 45 months of schooling or the equivalent in part-time training at the following monthly rates: $311 for full-time students; $233 for three-quarter time; and $156 for half-time.

Tuition cost only—limited to $156—will be paid to less than half-time students and $78 for one-quarter-time or less.

For information how to apply, what type of training qualifies for benefits and eligibility information, contact the VA regional office in Louisville at 600 Federal Place. Toll-free numbers are listed in the white pages of the telephone book under "U.S. Government."

 The Steering Committee of the Concerned Citizens of the Mud Creek section of Floyd county and all the residents there would like to express our gratitude to the Ky. Highway Dept. and to Edd Patton and the Pikeville District office for the wonderful job that was done on Ky. 979, the Mud Creek road. We understand their busy schedule, with all the roads all over this district deteriorating so rapidly through the winter weather and with so many coal-haul roads and interstate highways to keep maintained on such a limited budget.

We can understand the Ky. Dept. of Highways is so busy with all overdue work needed to be done. We are sure if the people will be patient and work with the Highway Dept. and give them their support that they will do a great job. Again we thank you.

East Point Club Begins Annual Apple Butter Work

The work started bright and early Saturday morning with a few "hard core" apple butter makers showing up as early as 6 o'clock to make preparations for the day's labor, and by noon, the business of peeling, slicing, cooking, stirring and canning was under way in assembly line fashion. The day marked the first work toward this year's stock of apple butter which is sold each year at Johnson county's Apple Day by the East Point Community Development Club. From now till Apple Day in October, club members and residents from the East Point-Little Paint area will work each Saturday toward a goal of about 2,000 quarts of the traditional delicacy. In photos, workers peel and slice the apples while outside the club building men take shifts stirring the butter in copper kettles. The final step is the canning shown at bottom left.

National Mines Employee Wins Reinstatement

The National Mines Corporation, of Wayland, has been declared in default following a complaint filed by a worker discharged by the company nearly two years ago. The miner, Jackie Ray Hammonds, of Allen, charged that he was fired because of his union activities and his concern for safety at the company's Mine No. 33 in Knott county, near the Floyd county line.

The default decision was handed down by Judge William Fauver, of the Federal Mine Safety and Health Review Commission, by virtue of National Mines' failure to respond adequately to a series of questions submitted to the company by the miner's attorneys.

In his complaint, Hammonds said that, shortly before beginning work on the midnight shift at the mine on November 7, 1978, he was instructed by a supervisor to operate a roof-bolting machine but refused to do so unless he was provided with suitable gloves. Heavy leather gloves, which permit the operator to handle hot drill bits safely, are generally used by roof-bolters.

According to Hammonds, he was offered two pairs of gloves—a pair of regular work gloves and a pair of welder's gloves—both of which he considered unsafe. The miner, who customarily operated a tractor at the mine, also claimed that he was neither trained nor qualified for the "extremely hazardous" and technical roof-bolting job.

On his refusal to operate the roof-bolting machine, Hammonds was served a notice of discharge by the mine's manager of industrial relations.

Hammonds charged that Johnny Collins, the mine superintendent who ordered him to operate the mine-bolting machine, had threatened him the week before, following Hammonds' filing of two grievances against National Mines for alleged violations of the UMWA contract with the company.

Hammonds said he was an active union member and had made "numerous complaints" about unsafe conditions in the mine. In August, 1978, he and his brother filed a grievance, alleging that they had been improperly taken off their jobs, and in October Hammonds and three other miners filed another grievance alleging that supervisors were performing classified work—both said to be in violation of the union contract.

Hammonds charged that he had been subject to harassment because of his complaints about safety and because of his "firm union beliefs." Superintendent Collins said to him, one week before the roof-bolting incident, "I'll see to it that you don't work," Hammonds alleged.

National Mines' attorneys denied any discrimination in the firing of Hammonds.

An arbitrator, called in to determine if Hammonds was discharged for just cause, concluded that the roof-bolting machine could be operated safely with either of the two pairs of gloves offered by the company and denied the miner's grievance.

Hammonds' attorneys argued that the arbitrator had not considered the issues of whether his client had been dismissed on account of his union activities and safety complaints or whether his lack of training made operation of the roof-bolting machine unsafe for him.

Judge Fauver ruled on August 14 that, in response to 18 interrogatories—written questions submitted to National Mines by Hammonds' attorneys—the company had supplied seven documents answering only five of the questions submitted. The judge, concluding that National Mines had been given "more than a fair opportunity to comply" with the requests for information, adjudged the company in default. National Mines "is deemed to have waived its right to a hearing" and Hammonds' allegations "shall be deemed to be true," according to the decision.

Hammonds' attorneys seek, besides a ruling that the miner was discriminated against, reinstatement to his former position with back pay and interest, adjustment of his seniority rights, and an expunging from his personnel file of all references to the present case. National Mines will have seven days to respond to the proposed decision and order.

Hammonds is represented in the case by Stephen A. Sanders and Tony Oppgard, of the Appalachian Research and Defense Fund. National Mines is represented by the Lexington firm of Harbison, Kessinger, Lisle and Bush.

Billy Jean's Champion Twirlers

By KENNY RICE
As Billie Jean Osborne talks about the Betsy Layne band and majorettes, her words exude a contagious enthusiasm to the listener. The more she speaks, the brighter her eyes twinkle and her voice conveys sincerity. It's as if she is talking about a member of the family, a close one at that.
In a sense, Mrs. Osborne is talking about her family. After 21 years of directing the Betsy Layne band and majorettes, she has a deep love for music and for those who have studied music under her supervision. This is a twofold love. Former students still stop by to say hello to "Mrs. Billie Jean." Ex-majorettes drop by to offer encouragement to the present squad and let them know how lucky they are to have Mrs. Osborne guiding them.

Directing Betsy Layne's music department is a year-round job for Mrs. Osborne, who started teaching music at Wheelwright High at the age of 17 before returning to her native Betsy Layne.

Her hard work has brought national recognition to Betsy Layne's band. They won the Mardi Gras band competition this year and they have a standing invitation to return to New Orleans. Calls come in from all over, inviting the band to festivals. Two weeks ago, the Betsy Layne majorettes won the Kentucky State Fair Majorette Championship. It seemed inevitable the lovely ladies in the Blue and White would win the state title.

"All summer these girls have prepared for the State Fair competition," Mrs. Osborne said. "It has been continuous work for them. There was only one week all summer they didn't work as a group. There was no way these girls could enter a state competition just after school had resumed if they hadn't worked this summer."

When the thermometer was gasping around the 110 degree mark, the majorettes were on the Prestonsburg football field, honing their routine that would bring them the first place trophy. When the girls weren't able to use the Prestonsburg field or the Mullins field, Mrs. Osborne got a bag of flour and marked off a 50-yard area on the blacktop of the Betsy Layne parking lot for the practice sessions to continue. Because the actual competition took place at Fairgrounds Stadium in Louisville, it was a must the majorettes prepare on a football field or at least a simulated one.

During the practices, this year's majorettes were thinking about their predecessors who twirled for the Bobcats. In the last eight years, the Betsy Layne majorettes have finished in the top three of the State Fair competition. They had come so close to winning it all—and there were times when the crowd felt the girls from Floyd county were the best—that this year seemed to be THE year.

With all the hard work and the rich tradition going for them, the majorettes were ready when their bus pulled into the Fairgrounds parking lot.

"We were going for the championship. I thought in the past that we would win it and our squads had made great showings. This year we preached championship," Mrs. Osborne smiled. "Before the girls went out onto the field we had a prayer huddle. I was very touched and so were the girls. When they went out on the field, they did a one spin all down the line and our band stood up and cheered and so did the crowd. The girls seemed to float after that and I knew they would win."

Betsy Layne's majorettes—field commanders Lisa Meade and Shelia Watson, head majorettes Melody Conn and Anita Smith, and Missy Reynolds, Lisa Williams, Belinda Stumbo and Missy Johnson—did more than their share of keeping the Bobcats twirlers highly respected throughout the Commonwealth. They have won a state title and Betsy Layne remains the winning band and majorette group in Kentucky.

Billie Jean Osborne has never been one to rest on her laurels. Every weekday morning at 8, a half hour before school begins, her champion twirlers are practicing in the D.W. Howard Fieldhouse, getting ready for a shot at the next championship.

DANIELS GOING TO ALC

Prestonsburg's All-Region catcher, Dan Daniels, has signed to play baseball for Alice Lloyd College. Daniels is the fifth Floyd countian to decide on the ALC baseball team. Wheelwright's Monroe Jones, Strawn Berger, Donnie Daniels and Tony Hall signed earlier this summer. Betsy Layne's Ronnie Akers, Gary Kidd and Darrell Newsome have signed basketball scholarships with Alice Lloyd.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

The KHSAA member schools recently voted not to have a class system for high school basketball in the state. It was a close vote this time around, the closest yet, 149-145 against classes.

It is interesting to look at The Courier-Journal preseason poll of high school football teams and note that in every class an eastern Kentucky team is among the top twenty. Actually in the classes that are right around us, AAA, AA and A, there is a mountain team in each top ten.

In 4-A, Laurel County and Boyd County are ranked in the top 25. In AAA, Belfry is ranked 5th and Russell 7th. In AA, Corbin is 3rd, Pikeville 4th, Somerset 10th, Hazard 12th and Rowan County 18th. In A, Paintsville is 3rd and Elkhorn City is 10th.

The class system has made area football teams state title chances very promising.

Allen Students Attend MSU Basketball Camp

At UK Basketball Camp

Johnny Runyon, 11-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. John B. Runyon, of Honaker, is shown above getting a few ball-handling tips from Joe B. Hall, head basketball coach at the University of Kentucky where young Runyon attended basketball camp this summer.

Runyon is a student at the Harold Grade School where he will play ball this year.

Blackcats To Test Belfry In Opener Friday Night

The Prestonsburg Blackcats will travel to Belfry this Friday night for the season's opening game against the Pirates, a team that went to the state AAA finals last year.

Belfry's Pirates return this year with 17 of their 22 starters, but among the missing are two all-stars, tackle Bennie Allen and all-purpose back Greg Varney, along with outstanding running back Curtis Childress.

Prestonsburg, on the other hand, returns six starters on defense, but only three on offense. Missing from the Cats lineup will be All-State linebacker Dewey Layne and Thomas Hastings, who rushed for over 1,000 yards last year. On the plus side for the Cats is the number of players who were not full-time starters but who had a lot of playing time last year.

Belfry won their opening game last week in the Recreation Bowl at Mt. Sterling over Montgomery County, 12-0, and has an explosive offense keyed around tailback Jimmy Bevins, who was presented the Star of Stars award at the Montgomery County game. Their defense is solid and quick.

The Blackcats, who have looked young and enthusiastic, defeated Montgomery County, one of the top teams in the AAA, by a touchdown in a scrimmage game, and defeated Greenup County in their other scrimmage, 20-0. Commenting on the opener with Belfry, head football coach Phillip Haywood said only, "The game will be won on the line of scrimmage."

The game is shaping up as a big one, and the young Blackcat team will get its first big test in a hurry.

Cats To Open Season Against Tough Belfry

By C. "OLLIE" ROBINSON

The Prestonsburg Blackcats and the Wheelwright Trojans both will travel this week-end and will face opponents who won bowl games last week-end. The Trojans (1-0) will face the Fleming-Neon Pirates there, Friday night. The Pirates opened their season last week by winning the Laurel bowl over Pineville, 28 to 0.

The Trojans opened their season last Friday night at home and won over the Virgie Eagles, 16 to 6. Virgie fired first in the first quarter on a 19-yard run by Jeff Branham. The run failed for the extra points, however. From that point the Trojans defense was outstanding as they held the Eagles scoreless. Allard Tackett scored for the Trojans on a 23-yard run and also the extra points in the second quarter. Eddie Little romped for the Trojans' second t.d. in the first half and Allan Tackett scored the extra points on a run. That was all the scoring.

The Blackcats will travel to Belfry and take on the Pirates, a team that is touted as one of the top teams in Class AAA. Belfry won 12 straight games last year before being thumped by Franklin Simpson, 33 to 0. Last Saturday night in the Recreation Bowl at Mt. Sterling, it was all Belfry defense and the running of Jimmy Bevins, who was selected as the star of the game. Bevins scored one touchdown, caught a 30-yard pass to set up the other touchdown, rushed 88 yards on 18 tries, did the punting chores and played safety on defense.

The Betsy Layne Bobcats will also open their season Friday night, taking on the Paintsville Tigers, one of the top teams in Class A. Last week, the Tigers opened their season with a loss at Russell by a score of 12 to 7. Both teams from Johnson county lost last week-end. Johnson Central lost to Breathitt County, 15 to 12.

The Pikeville Panthers opened their season and lost to Lexington Henry Clay, 12 to 6; Phelps lost to Jenkins, 32 to 22; Mullins lost to M.C. Napier, 22 to 0; Virgie lost to Wheelwright, 16 to 6; Whitesburg shut out and surprized Elkhorn City, 24 to 0.

Football Notes

The Prestonsburg Blackcats and Paintsville renew their rivalry on Sept. 5 at Paintsville. Coach Walter Brugh of Paintsville will start his 25th season at Paintsville. In the past 25 seasons, he has composed a record of 181 wins and 70 losses and five ties.

Prestonsburg's first home game will be on Oct. 3, when they entertain Evarts. On Sept. 26, Prestonsburg will play Morgan county at West Liberty in their annual Sorgham Bowl. Betsy Layne will play Paintsville Friday night at Paintsville. This will be the first time in their history that they have played Paintsville.

Friday Night Scores

Wheelwright 16, Virgie 6; Russell 12, Paintsville 7; Breathitt 15, Johnson Central 12; Whitesburg 24, Elkhorn City 0; Lewis Co. 7, Lawrence Co. 6; Jenkins 32, Phelps 22; Lexington Henry Clay 12, Pikeville 6; Hazard 15, Knott Co. Central 14; Ashland 35, Scott Co. 0; West Carter 12, Maysville 6; East Carter 44, Fairview 14; Laurel co. 17, Leslie Co. 13; M. C. Napier 22, Mullins 0; Belfry 12, Montgomery Co. 0; Fleming-Neon 28, Pineville 0.

Week-End Schedule

Shaker Music, Dance, Craft To Mark Heritage Weekends

Shaker music and dance presentations of professional merit are noteworthy events for the Shaker Heritage weekends during September at the Shaker Village of Pleasant Hill. This year the village has scheduled four weekends, September 6-7, 13-14, 20-21, and 27-28, one more than in 1979.

The University of Kentucky Choristers perform "A Shaker Worship Service" on Sept., 6-7. This is their third appearance at Pleasant Hill, but the first for 1980. They won wide acclaim in 1979 for their choral and dramatic artistry in this published work of Shaker folk music. Performance times are 11:00 a.m., 2:00 and 4:30 on Saturday and 2:00, 3:00, and 4:30 p.m. on Sunday.

The Louisville Ballet Company dances their fall presentation of "The Shakers" on Saturday, September 13. Performance times are 11:00 a.m., 1:00, 2:30, 4:00 and 5:15 p.m.

A small section of the Musical Antiqua choral group has performed at Pleasant Hill for several years, but for the 1980 celebration the group has been enlarged to present a program entitled, "The Shakers Sing." They are coming on Sunday, September 20-21. Performance times are 11:00 a.m., 2:00, 3:00 and 4:00 p.m. on Saturday and 1:00, 2:00, 3:00 and 4:00 p.m. on Sunday.

The South Union Singers return to the village for the third year to sing selections from their pageant, "Shakertown Revisted," which is staged by Shakertown at South Union each July. Performance times are 11:00 a.m., 1:00, 2:30, 4:00 and 5:15 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday, September 27-28.

Each year the village arranges a special exhibit for September. 1980 features two, an exhibit of Kentucky baskets and a quilt exhibit. Edward Nickels, director of collections at Shakertown, is hanging the basket exhibit with examples of Kentucky craftsmanship collected by private individuals and loaned to the village for this September only. The quilt exhibit features a selection of traditional quilts created by the Lexington Quiltmakers and the village's own collection of appliqued quilts designed from Shaker spirit drawings. The Lexington Quiltmakers and the village quilter are demonstrating their stitchery techniques.

Captain Jim Cross brings his paddle-wheeler riverboat to Shaker Landing to offer visitors excursions up the Kentucky River from September 6 throughout the north. Many nature lovers and boat lovers enjoyed this event in October of 1979, so Captain Cross is coming for September and October both this year.

The Shaker Heritage weekends always feature many skilled craftsmen. In 1980, two new crafts are included, leather and penter work for September 20-21.

On all four weekends, blacksmithing, candle-dipping, basketweaving, tole painting are demonstrated and the University of Kentucky School of Pharmacy students show the historic processing and uses of medicinal herbs.

A pole-lathe cabinetmaker comes for the first three weekends; a tinsmith on September 6-7 and 27-28; silhouette cutters capture visitors' likenesses on September 6-7, 20-21, and 27-28; a potter throws clay vessels on September 13-14.

In 1979 the village herbalist originated a new September event, a tasting kitchen of herb cooking. It repeats this year along with demonstrations of historic baking techniques in beehive ovens. All craft demonstrations are presented mid-morning and mid-afternoon.

A horse-drawn wagon offers visitors rides around the village each Saturday and Sunday afternoon from 1:00 to 5:00 p.m. The Little Antique shops will be open for visitors' browsing and shopping.

The Shaker village of Pleasant Hill is open from 9:00 - 6:00 daily. Tour tickets are sold from 9:00 - 5:00 and include admission to all special Shaker Heritage events except wagon rides, which are 50 cents per person.

On Friday and Saturday nights in September, lodging reservations have been filled for several weeks. Sunday nights are available. Lunch reservations are still available, but Saturday dinner seatings are filled.

For a program of events or lunch reservations, write to Shakertown at Pleasant Hill, Route 4, Harrodsburg, Kentucky 40330 or call (606) 734-5311.

Burial was made in the Joe Reynolds cemetery under direction of Hall Funeral Home.

Brown Names Study Group On Asbestos

The state of Kentucky moved last week to join the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency in a work which mainly inspired by the Prestonsburg High School asbestos controversy.

A task force, originally created by Governor Carroll, has been re-established by Governor Brown to deal with the asbestos problem in Kentucky schools. Brown revived the task force to coordinate state efforts with any possible action by the federal agency.

Besides determining how many schools in the state have used asbestos insulation in their construction, the task force will also help school officials and architects determine corrective measures to eliminate health hazards caused by the suspected cancer-causing agent.

It was said, after the Prestonsburg situation was cleared, that no other Floyd county school presented an asbestos problem.

Supt. of Public Instruction Raymond Barber was named chairman of the task force. Other members are Natural Resources Secretary Jackie Swigart, Human Resources Secretary Grady Stumbo, State Senator Benny Ray Bailey, of Hindman, State Rep. Terry Mann, Newport, and Foster Pettit, secretary of the Public Protection and Regulation cabinets.

Caravan Planned For Belfry Opener

There will be a caravan of cars leaving Prestonsburg High School Friday, August 29, at 6 p.m. to go to the Blackcats opening game at Belfry. Blackcat fans of any age group who wish to be in this caravan of cars are to meet at the high school in front of the gymnasium.

Though no dress code is required, plenty of red, white, and hats, especially cowboy hats, seem to be the "in" attire.

For further information contact caravan leader Donnie Goble or the Prestonsburg Blackcats cheerleaders.

To Perform in Highlands Folk Festival

Among those who will make the rafters ring and demonstrate the kind of dancing that goes best with the toe-tapping, foot-stomping rhythms played at the 15th annual Kentucky Highlands Folk Festival will be this county's own Fiddlin' Dewey Shepherd and George Tucker, and the Hill Billy Square Dancers, of Elkhorn City, with Kelter Stiltner, caller.

Mrs. Kathryn Frazier, director of the festival which will be held at Jenny Wiley State Park amphitheatre, September 5, 6, 7, said this week that details of the program will be released next week. The event, which annually attracts performers and audience from a wide area, was founded by Mrs. Edith F. James, who is nationally known for her work in folk music.

FLOYD COUNTY HEALTH NOTES

By JANET E. HICKS Health Educator

Thursday, August 28, the regularly scheduled Mud Creek Outpost Clinic will be conducted in the library of the John M. Stumbo School in Grethel. A nurse from the Floyd County Health Department will be at this clinic offering immunizations, TB skin tests, urinalyses, and blood pressures between the hours of 9 until 1.

This clinic is a free service and the public is welcome to attend.

The Floyd County Health Department will be closed Monday, September 1, in observance of the Labor Day holiday. Regular business hours will resume the following Tuesday at 8 a.m.

Central Computer Aids Police

It's a hot Sunday afternoon in a small Kentucky town.

A local man, who has lived in town for about five years, robs a small grocery store and police begin searching for him.

Most people who know him can't believe it. He seems like such a nice man. He certainly hasn't done anything like that before.

He may not have done anything criminal in that town before but the local police, by calling Frankfort, can find out if he has ever done anything like that anywhere else in the state.

The Central Repository Unit of the Kentucky State Police's Criminal Justice Information Section has approximately 180,000 individual criminal records that are available to police departments and other authorized agencies.

The computerized records, which list arrests as well as convictions, are available to the proper agencies 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

They show a person's complete criminal record in Kentucky and are invaluable not only to police departments but also to pretrial release officers.

When a person is charged with a felony, the Administrative Office of the Courts assigns a pretrial release officer to investigate the case. As part of that investigation, the officer must contact the central repository.

A criminal record could make a difference in whether or not the judge allows the person to be released on bail. A record could also help determine the amount of the bail.

John B. Lee, commander of the unit, estimates that 40 percent of the requests his office receives are from pretrial release offices. Other agencies that contact the unit include the Office of Public Advocacy and commonwealth's attorneys.

Lee said that 10 people work in the office during normal hours and that personnel from the state police's Identification Unit handle requests during nights and on weekends.

The unit conducted more than 40,000 searches for information during the 1979-80 fiscal year, he said.

The records mostly concern felonies but some misdemeanors are included. "We keep records on shoplifting as mandated by law," Lee said, "and misdemeanors relating to drugs and alcohol. They can become felonies on subsequent charges."

Some police departments request that certain misdemeanors, such as carrying a concealed deadly weapon, be filed because of their possible importance in the future, he said.

As in the hypothetical robbery case, such information could prepare the police for a potentially dangerous situation and could possibly save a life.

Program Questions Influence Of TV on Political System

In the wake of the nationally televised political party conventions, a public television special questions television's powerful influence on today's political system.

The half-hour report, "TV Democracy" from the "U.S. Chronicle" series, airs Sunday, August 31 at 10 p.m. on KET and is repeated Thursday, September 4 at 9 p.m.

The program maintains that political campaigns and even the day-to-day business of running the country have undergone radical change due to the influence of television. The report examines this phenomenon of political issues and events being squeezed through the "magic box" of television. "TV Democracy" talks with a variety of experts, including CBS Newsmen Dan Rather, former cabinet secretary James Schlesinger, FCC Chairman Charles Ferris, Democratic Party Chairman John White, and Republican Party Chairman Bill Brock. Their comments describe a TV democracy in which television has gained influence, sometimes decisive, over virtually every aspect of the political system.

In reference to the energy crisis, Schlesinger says, "The inability (of TV) to convey to the American people the fundamental nature of the energy problem...is a reflection to the weaknesses of the medium. The energy problem in the public's mind became something like a war on the oil companies...instead of what is a fundamental geological problem for all mankind."

"I can't imagine any other phenomenon that has more of an inflationary impact," says Wall Street businessman Nathaniel Samuels, chairman of the Olivetti Corporation, of television. "It enables people to see how other people dress, how they look...and this, I think...raises their level of desire as to what life can bring."

Political analyst Richard Reeves comments, "On television, everybody is the same size. The President of the United States comes across the same size as Mary Tyler Moore, comes across the same size as Captain Kangaroo...There is no sense of awe on television."

NBC Vice Chairman Richard Salant is asked whether the fact that the world is complicated doesn't scare him regarding television's potential for dealing with it. "It doesn't scare me vis-a-vis a potential," Salant replies. "It scares me vis-a-vis the actuality."

"TV Democracy" was produced by WBGH, Boston, in cooperation with the Institute of Politics at the John F. Kennedy School of Government, Harvard University.

July Unemployed in Kentucky At Highest Rate Since 1970

The economic recession continues to adversely affect Kentucky's labor force as the number of unemployed Kentuckians reached the highest point since 1970 during July, according to Department for Human Resources statistics released today.

Prior to 1979 the department computed unemployment statistics differently, said Robert MacDonald, the department's chief labor market analyst. "Therefore, the July figures probably indicate the largest number of unemployed workers in the state since the 1930 Depression," he said.

Department labor market estimates indicated there were 126,000 unemployed Kentuckians last month, forcing the state's unemployment rate to rise 0.4 percentage points to equal the federal July rate, 7.9 percent.

The number of employed Kentuckians last month was 1,454,200. This figure is 21,000 less than in June and 16,700 below the July 1979 level.

Usually unemployment in Kentucky peaks in June because of the influx of students and graduates in the labor force, said Robert MacDonald. "Because the recession shows little sign of slowing, I feel the state's unemployment may have not yet peaked and may continue to rise for the next couple of months," MacDonald said.

It is highly probable that the state's unemployment rate will exceed the national unemployment rate in the months to come, according to MacDonald. "The present unemployment figures are running about even with the figures of the 1975 recession."

MacDonald attributes the increase in unemployment within the state primarily to recession layoffs. The recession has caused a lower demand for goods, which leads to lower levels of production and eventually layoffs, plant closings and less money to be spent by the public.

"At this point it looks like there are many more layoffs to come within the state," he said.

Kentucky's non-agricultural wage and salary employment continued to drop for the third straight month as recession-motivated layoffs increased in July, said MacDonald. According to department statistics based on monthly employer surveys, the number of non-agricultural wage and salary jobs in Kentucky was 1,189,400 in mid-July. That number is 14,200 less than in June and 54,600 below the July 1979 figure. According to MacDonald, the mid-June non-farm employment figures revealed the lowest number of employed non-agricultural workers in the state since March 1978.

Elliott County Honors Tobacco

By HELEN PRICE STACY

Burley in the field has a "greenback" look, and burley in the barn, curing for its trip to market, takes on tinges of gold. For all its value to the economy of Eastern Kentucky, tobacco will be honored by Elliott county residents during the annual Elliott County Tobacco Festival Aug. 29-31.

Sandy Hook is a Main Street town, and all activities of the festival are scheduled for this part of the county seat. Some events will take place near the Elliott County High School complex. Others will be held at the courthouse—all within seeing distance and voice range.

A highlight of the tobacco fest will be a mutton roast on the courthouse lawn. Local chefs will start Friday night, preparing the pit and the spit for the mutton. Serving will start early Saturday.

Gwenda Adkins, who is in charge of the People's Store, asks area residents to bring any excess vegetables, home canned goods, shucky beans, dried apples and the like to the store to sell.

Artists and craftspeople will sell quilts—all the way from crazy patchwork to Wedding Ring and Lover's Knot—afghans, crocheted centerpieces and other linen work, pillows, dolls, candy, cookies and pies in special booths on Main Street.

The winner of the Miss Tobacco Festival beauty pageant at Sandy Hook Elementary School Friday at 7:30 p.m. will receive a trophy, crown and sash, cash prizes and numerous gift certificates. Mrs. Bruce Addington is in charge of the pageant. Only girls who attend Elliott County High School may enter, she said.

There also will be a baby contest for different age groups and a Little Miss Beauty pageant on Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at the elementary school.

"Through our pageants we involve many children and young people," said Mrs. Addington. "This experience helps give them stage presence."

Mr. Cartoon, a Huntington, W. Va., television personality will serve as grand marshal for the festival parade at 1 p.m. Saturday. School bands, clubs, businesses and organizations will participate.

There will be contests for everyone, including horseshoe pitching, pipe smoking, tobacco spitting, basketball toss, three-legged race, tug of war, dance contest, raw egg toss, greasy pig, plus a pretty leg contest for men and women. In addition, there will be square dancing, a cranial, dunking tank and plenty of music—bluegrass country and western, rock and roll and gospel.

Fun? Yes. But there's purpose. All proceeds from any event will go to purchase a new fire truck for the county.

Elliott county has magnificent scenery, Grayson Lake State Park, historical sites, a diamond mine and beautiful people. Sandy Hook is on KY Rt. 7, accessible from Interstate-64 or cross-country from Mountain Parkway through West Liberty.

Grand Old Opry Returns To KET

One of public television's most popular shows, "Grand Old Opry," returns to KET with many of country music's best artists performing at Nashville's famous music house. The two-part, three-hour specials encore Monday, August 25 and Thursday, August 28—both at 8 p.m.

Included in Monday night's line-up on "Grand Old Opry, Part I" are country and western greats Barbara Mandrell, Dottie West, Grandpa Jones, Ronnie Milsap and Minnie Pearl.

On Thursday night's "Grand Old Opry, Part II," Marty Robbins and Ray Pillow join other members of the Opry "family" for the continuation of the special.

The specials, which originally aired on KET as one six-hour program, are among the most-watched entertainment ever broadcast on public television. In its premiere this last spring, "Grand Old Opry" drew a national television audience of nearly 11 million, making it the third most-viewed program in public television history.

"Grand Old Opry, Parts I and II" is a production of WDCN-TV, Nashville.

ALLEN COMMUNITY NEWS

Mrs. Kelly Kendrick, of Huntington, West Virginia, was guest of her daughters, Mrs. Martha Jane Porter and Mrs. Vernon Porter, Sr., and their families, last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Ashford Thomas have returned home after spending a week visiting her son, Forest Westfall, and Mrs. Westfall, of Lebanon, Ohio. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas also visited other relatives in the area.

Mrs. Terry L. Hicks and son, Jeremy Michael, of Millard, were weekend guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Crisp, and Nancy Jo, while Mr. Hicks was attending a manager's meeting at Beckley, West Virginia.

Mrs. Pauline Crisp Woods, who underwent surgery recently at Our Lady of the Way Hospital at Martin, is home and recuperating nicely.

Mrs. Leeman Bevins, Jr., and daughter, Sandi, recently visited her mother, Mrs. Jennings Reed, and other family members at Coalton, West Virginia, for several weeks.

Austin Lumpkins, young son of Mrs. Debbie Lumpkins, was a patient at Pikeville Methodist Hospital for three days last week. He has been released from the hospital and is doing well.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Crisp, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Brackett and Steve Brackett, all of Allen, Joe Ferguson and Reverend Richard Radcliff, of Paintsville, and Mrs. Howard H. Moore, of Louisa, visited Mr. and Mrs. J. Frank Preston at Ulysses over the weekend.

O.B. Crisp accompanied Webb Hamilton to the Veterans' Hospital at Lexington where Mr. Hamilton remained for two weeks for treatment. Mr. Hamilton has now been allowed to return home.

Ed Rickman was a patient at Our Lady of the Way Hospital at Martin for three weeks. Among visitors at the hospital to see him were Mrs. Rickman, Pam Porter, Nancy Jo Crisp, and Mrs. Linda Blair.

The family of Mrs. Kelly Kendrick, of Huntington, West Virginia, enjoyed a reunion at Camden Park, Sunday, August 25. Family members attending from Allen were Mrs. Martha Jane Porter, Paula Porter, Jamie Honeycutt, Mr. and Mrs. James L. Porter and family, Mary Lynn, Frankie, and Kevin, Mrs. Linda Blair and daughters, Angie and Michelle, Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Porter, Sr., Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Porter, Jr., and family, Jessica, Brian, and Matthew, and Mr. and Mrs. Randy Porter and family. Mrs. Kendrick is a former resident of Emma.

Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy D. Gray and son, Todd, and Mr. and Mrs. Teddy Allen and daughters, Christina and Jessica, of Pyramid, were among approximately 20 members attending the Allen family reunion held at the home of Cotton Allen in Winchester last weekend.

Betty Jean Grey returned to the University of Kentucky at Lexington, Sunday, where she will be a senior this year. She is a daughter of Frank Grey.

Auxier Fire Department Receives Forestry Check

Chief Howard Ferguson, of the Auxier Volunteer Fire Department, was presented last Friday a check for $325 by Arthur Leach, district forester, Kentucky Division of Forestry.

The check was in payment of a matching fund grant that the fire department received from the Division of Forestry. Ferguson said the funds will be used to purchase badly needed hose and fittings.

Leach said that the grant was one of the 155 made to rural fire departments this year. The grants require the recipients to match them, dollar for dollar, and use the funds to purchase needed equipment. The funds are distributed by the U.S. Forest Service to the Division of Forestry, which, in turn, makes the grants available to the local fire departments.

The program seeks to identify needs and reach solutions to problems faced by rural communities in conducting a fire protection program. Limited to rural communities of 10,000 population or less, the funds are distributed on the basis of need, with special consideration given to present protection levels, ability of the community to help itself, values protected, and past fire protection.

Kentucky Is Focus of New KET Series

There's more Kentucky on KET and the two newest KET productions, "Bywords" and "Kentucky Journal," prove just that. Premiering Monday, September 8, both series look at the state from different perspectives.

"Bywords" is a nightly (Sunday through Thursday) conversation show by and about Kentuckians. This interesting half-hour of "good Kentucky talk" airs at 8:30 p.m.

"There are a lot of remarkable people in Kentucky that other Kentuckians don't know anything about," says associate producer Jody Hein. "Every state has its own favorite sons—Kentucky is no different. 'Bywords' is spotlighting not only Kentucky favorites but everyday people who may not be in the limelight but who are just as interesting."

"Bywords" will travel the state bringing Kentuckians a closer look at their own people. Each week's program will center around a single host or hostess who will interview personalities they would like their fellow Kentuckians to meet.

"For example," continues Hein, "in Paducah we plan to talk to the retired professor who has researched a Kentuckian who claims to have invented and first transmitted on the radio—a man never given credit for this invention."

Also, according to Hein, there are plans to interview the Louisville doctor who pioneered the practice of surrogate motherhood. "Our hosts will be talking to people with all sorts of expertise in everything from horse racing, to cooking, to politics, to bluegrass music, to health, to sports and issues of human rights."

On the premiere program of "Bywords," Louisville political reporter Ferrell Wellman interviews Pikeville mayor William Hambley, Pike County health department director Dr. Mary Fox, coal operator Paul Patton and Paul Fyffe, baseball team owner.

"Kentucky Journal," KET's answer to the national news program, "The MacNeil-Lehrer Report," airs Monday through Thursday at 7:30 p.m., beginning September 8. The multi-faceted news program will be divided into four segments: the lead story, an in-depth coverage of a specific news story or topic; a summary of the state's news; an information segment covering topics such as estate planning, adoption procedures and holistic medicine; and a segment called "Opinion," where viewers will be given a chance to respond to issues discussed on the program or take a stand on an issue of importance to them.

"With 'Kentucky Journal' we are making a serious attempt to cover in-depth some important Kentucky stories—issues and problems of statewide importance."

"Each night we will bring together in our studio two or three people of varying philosophies on an issue and examine the subject with them. This moderated discussion format will allow presentation of both sides of an issue. We expect to give this kind of detailed coverage to all kinds of stories, from synthetic fuels to hazardous waste disposal."

"This is an approach to news coverage that hasn't been used in Kentucky," says co-producer Jonas Chaney, "in that it will provide on a statewide basis in-depth coverage of single issues."

"Kentucky Journal," continues Chaney, "will also provide more minority-issue coverage than ever before. For example, during the first month, we plan to cover some of the issues discussed at the state NAACP Convention, issues such as housing discrimination, voter registration, the future of Kentucky State University and unemployment."

There are plans for extensive use of interns from the UK Journalism School in researching topics, reading newspapers arriving daily from across the state, and for providing other production help as needed, says Thompson.

Also, during the first month of "Kentucky Journal" topics such as contract negotiations in the coal industry, teen-age pregnancy, nursing home regulation changes and the progress of the presidential race in the state will be covered.

Both producers echoed what an "exciting challenge" "Kentucky Journal" is for them as journalists, to make the most of this nightly, live format. "We hope, as well, that the people who will profit the most are the viewers."

Home Resale Climbs

Existing home sales climbed an impressive 17 percent in July to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 2.9 million units, Dr. Jack Carlson, executive vice president and chief economist of the National Association of Realtors, reported today.

"Over the last two months," Carlson said, "resale activity has grown 26 percent, or by 600,000 units, since the market bottomed out at a sales rate of 2.3 million units in May."

All regions of the country, the continued, are participating in the sales expansion. However, the sunbelt areas of the South and West are reporting a larger increase than the Northeast and North Central states, where the recession has struck hard.

"Considering the level of interest rates and economic conditions, the gain in resale activity is encouraging," he added. "However, we must keep in mind that despite these recent improvements, existing home sales are still 23 percent below the same period a year earlier."

Proposes Tougher Checks On Food Stamp Applicants

People applying for food stamps could be asked to provide more proof of information on their applications under a rule proposed today by the Department of Agriculture.

Currently, all persons applying for food stamps must document their income, social security number, and certain medical and utility expenses. Persons who are not U.S. citizens must prove that they are legal aliens who have been admitted to this country for permanent residence.

States are also permitted to require all applicants to provide proof of their liquid assets. In addition, States must require proof of a number of other eligibility factors, such as rent or household composition, whenever the information provided by an applicant is questionable.

The proposed rule would give States authority to conduct additional verification by allowing States to require proof from every applicant of all shelter expenses, all child care expenses, and household size. The proposed rule would allow States to develop a profile of the types of food stamp cases and eligibility factors that are most subject to error. States would then be able to require verification of all information and food stamp cases that fit into these categories shown to be "error prone."

"The error-prone profile can be an important management tool," Assistant Secretary Carol Tucker Foreman said. "States should be able to use it to target their verification efforts on the information and cases most likely to cause errors. This can help to promote administrative efficiency while reducing errors at the same time."

Other changes in the new regulations would expand the authority of States to conduct home visits and contact persons who may have information about applicants, require verification of household identity and residency in every case, and permit more verification of information provided by destitute households seeking emergency food stamps.

The proposed rule is the latest in a series of Departmental and Congress-sional efforts to tighten food stamp management. Starting on June 1, the Department required States to obtain social security numbers from applicants to facilitate cross-checks of information about applicants. Other rules put into effect at that time required persons disqualified for food stamp fraud to arrange to pay back the value of the stamps they received before being allowed to rejoin the program. These changes were authorized by legislation proposed by Congress last summer.

While the new proposal should help reduce food stamp errors, Assistant Secretary Foreman expressed concern that the rules could have limited impact in those States that lack the staff to conduct sufficient verification. "We are worried that some States do not have enough staff to check out information on food stamp applications with sufficient thoroughness," she said. "No matter what the verification rules are, the job cannot be done properly if States are short on staff."

The new rules appeared in the Federal Register on Tuesday, Aug. 12. Comments on the proposal must be received by Oct. 13 and should be addressed to: Alberta Frost, Deputy Administrator for Family Nutrition Programs, Food and Nutrition Service, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C., 20250.

INVITATION FOR BIDS

Sealed proposals will be received by the Floyd County Board of Education, Prestonsburg, Kentucky (Floyd County), at the office of the Superintendent on September 3, 1980 at 7:00 p.m. Daylight Savings Time, at which time and place they will be publicly opened and read aloud for the furnishing of all materials and labor and performing all work as set forth by this Invitation for Bids, the Instructions to Bidders, the General Conditions of the Contract, the Specifications and Drawings prepared by Marvin Crider & Associates, Architect, 315 North Lake Drive, Prestonsburg, Kentucky.

THE WORK TO BE BID UPON:
NEW BETSY LAYNE HIGH SCHOOL,
BETSY LAYNE, KENTUCKY 41601.

PROPOSALS WILL BE RECEIVED AS FOLLOWS: PROPOSAL NO. 1: To include entire project.

Plans, Specifications and Contract Documents, may be examined at the following places: Builders Exchange of Louisville, Kentucky; Dodge Corporation of Knoxville, Tennessee; Charleston, W. Va.; and Lexington, Ky.; and at the office of Marvin Crider & Associates, 315 North Lake Drive, Prestonsburg, Kentucky.

Copies of the documents, not to exceed two (2) sets, for the General Contractors, and his major Subcontractors; Mechanical, Air Conditioning, Plumbing and Electrical only, may be secured from the Architect, Marvin Crider & Associates, Prestonsburg Office, upon payment of $100.00 per set, which payment will be refunded upon return of the plans, specifications, and other documents, in good condition, within ten (10) days after date of bid opening. If more than two sets of documents are requested, they may be obtained upon payment of $60.00, which payment will not be subject to refund. All deposits on hand after expiration of the ten-day period, become the property of the Architect.

All Subcontractors, material suppliers, and other interested parties, may obtain a full set of Drawings and Specifications for a total deposit of $100.00, made payable to Marvin Crider, Jr. & Associates, in two separate checks; one in the amount of $75.00 - completely refundable; and one in the amount of $25.00 - not subject to refund; or they may obtain the necessary sheets required to estimate their work, upon payment of $5.00 per sheet of the drawings, which charge will include the corresponding section, or sections of the specifications.

Bids must be accompanied by a bid bond payable to the Owner in an amount not less than five percent (5%) of the Base Bid.

Bids received after the scheduled closing time for the reception of the Bids, will be returned, unopened to the bidders.

DOCUMENTS AVAILABLE, ON OR ABOUT AUGUST 18, 1980.

In the event an award is made, and the successful bidder fails to furnish a satisfactory performance bond within fifteen (15) days after written notification of acceptance of the Proposal, and fails to execute a Contract for the construction of the work under the award, then the bid bond shall be forfeited as liquidated damages for such failure.

Notice of Requirement for Certification of Nonsegregated Facilities: Bidders are cautioned as follows: By signing this bid, the bidder will be deemed to have signed and agreed to the provisions of the "Certification of Nonsegregated Facilities" in this solicitation. The Certification provides that the bidder does not maintain or provide for his employees facilities which are segregated on a basis of race, creed, color, or national origin, whether such facilities are segregated by directive or on a de facto basis. The Certification also provides that he will not maintain such segregated facilities. Failure of a bidder to agree to the "Certification of Nonsegregated Facilities", will render his bid nonresponsive to the terms of solicitations involving awards of contracts exceeding $10,000, which are not exempt from the provisions of the Equal Opportunity Clause.

The Proposals including the Bid Bond, shall be in a sealed envelope, bearing the Bidder's Identification, addressed to the:

FLOYD COUNTY BOARD OF EDUCATION
PRESTONSBURG, KENTUCKY 41653
and labeled in the lower lefthand corner:

PROPOSAL: NEW BETSY LAYNE HIGH SCHOOL, BETSY LAYNE KENTUCKY.

The Owner reserves the right to reject any or all bids and to waive informalities.

No Bid shall be withdrawn for a period of sixty (60) days subsequent to the opening of the bids, without the consent of the Owner. 8-20-21.

To Unveil 'World of Stuart'

Admirers of famed Kentucky author Jesse Stuart will get a glimpse of the world he lives in and the world he created in print during a Jesse Stuart Weekend scheduled for Sept. 19-21 at Greenbo Lake State Resort Park, near Greenup.

Stuart, a Greenup county native, has written 54 books, including "The Thread That Runs So True" and "Man with a Bull-Tongue Plow." He is considered one of the most important regional writers of contemporary American fiction.

Registration for the weekend is scheduled for Friday at the Jesse Stuart Lodge at Greenbo. Folk musicians Dick and Anne Albin will cap the evening with a performance of their own special band of folk music.

A tour of the land Stuart immortalized, W-Hollow, is scheduled to begin at 9 a.m. Saturday. The visit will give visitors an opportunity to see the land Stuart loves so much, some of his favorite sport and the land where he grew up. A 715-acre parcel of W-Hollow recently was dedicated at the Jesse Stuart Nature Preserve. Stuart and his wife, Naomi Deane, continue to live in their house at W-Hollow. During the W-Hollow tour, state naturalist Ed Henson will identify wildlife and plants.

Saturday evening will be highlighted by an appearance by Greenup county native Lee Pennington, a former Stuart pupil who has made his own mark in writing. Pennington has published and taught poetry and has written many published short stories, articles and novels. He also composes music. Pennington will talk about Stuart and his works and will sing.

Weekend participants are invited to attend the Greenup County Historical Society's annual Jesse Stuart meeting at 2 p.m. Sunday. University of Louisville professor Dr. Harold Richardson will speak to the society on his biography of Stuart, currently in progress.

Lodge reservations are still available by contacting the park at (606) 473-7324.

Benjamin Franklin said "He that falls in love with himself will have no rivals."

Kentucky Power To Issue Refunds

Kentucky Power Company today announced that refund checks totaling about $7.5-million are being mailed to its customers this week.

The refund, which amounts to about 9½ percent of customers' bills for the period of December 1, 1979 to June 27, 1980, is for the difference in rates charged by the company during that period and rates approved by the Kentucky Energy Regulatory Commission (ERC) on June 27.

Kentucky Power had filed for approval of the new rates a year earlier, on June 11, 1979. In accordance with Kentucky statutes, the company placed the new rates into effect on Dec. 1, subject to refund.

"A typical residential customer," said W. W. Zoellers, Pikeville division manager, "will average about 864 kilowatt-hours usage per month for the period. Based on that, the refund would be $20.50 plus 91 cents interest for a total of $21.41, but the individual refunds will vary with electricity usage."

All customers with usage for the December 1-July 27 period will receive refund checks, according to Zoellers, with the exception of those who have an outstanding account balance. In those cases, either all or a portion of the refund will be applied as a credit to their accounts and those customers will be notified as to the amount credited.

CARD OF THANKS

The family of Verble Lee Bishop would like to extend its thanks and appreciation to all our friends and neighbors in our time of sorrow.

NOTICE OF INTENTION TO MINE

In accordance with the provisions of KRS 350.055, notice is hereby given that: Sun Coal Co., Inc., Box 27, Virgie, Kentucky, 41572 intends to file an application for the surface disturbance mining of approximately 15 acres located east of Galveston in Floyd County. The proposed operation is approximately 3 miles southwest of State Route 1426's junction with Akers Branch and located southwest of Toler Gap, latitude 37d 25'35", longitude 82d 36' 25". The surface of the area to be mined is owned by Glen Spears, America Hall, Patrick Hall, Homer Hall, Rastus Rogers, Isaac Keathley, Opal Foster, Dan Johnson, Glen Roberts, Albert Irick Heirs, Verlie Call and Red Cedar Coal Corp. A brief description of the kind of mining activity proposed is deep mine. The application will be filed at the Bureau of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement, Prestonsburg Area Office, 405 South Lake Drive, Prestonsburg, Kentucky 41653.

Persons wishing to file written objections and/or request a formal administrative hearing in regard to the above described surface mine should notify the Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection within 30 days of the date of this notice. A copy of the newspaper clipping must be attached to the written objection. The objection or request for a hearing will reference application No. 036-5109. Such objection or request must be in accordance with KRS 224.081 (2) and must be forwarded to the Director of Permits, Bureau of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement, Capital Plaza Tower, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601.

2. Notice is hereby provided pursuant to 30 CFR 715.13 (d) (10) and KRS 350 that the proposed post mining land use does not constitute a change from the pre-mining land use. Public comment regarding a proposed change in land use may be submitted to the address listed above.

FFA Selects 1980-81 Leaders

The Prestonsburg Chapter of the Future Farmers of America recently chose their officers and committee chairmen for the 1980-81 school year.

These boys will be responsible for carrying out the chapter's program of activities.

Brown Urges Coal Policy Council To Maintain State's Nat. Lead

Governor John Y. Brown, Jr. last Tuesday urged his new Coal Policy Council to provide the direction that Kentucky's coal industry must have to maintain its lead in national energy production and move ahead with development of a critically needed synthetic fuels industry.

Brown spoke at the 32-member council's organizational meeting at the Kentucky Energy Center on Iron Works Pike in Lexington. The Governor created the council last June 18 by executive order.

"We have a lot of problems (in the coal industry) that I want us to face up to," Brown said. "I think together we're going to come up with a direction for Kentucky."

The Governor said he wants Kentucky to take the lead in solving America's energy needs, so the nation will no longer have to depend on foreign oil. At the same time, he said, developing Kentucky coal means developing Kentucky's economy.

"We need your help, your influence, your active involvement," Brown told the group, which includes a broad range of representatives from the coal industry, banking, government, education and business. "I think this council can make a difference."

Brown said ways must be found to produce and utilize Kentucky coal in a responsible way, adding that "we're not going to sell out the future for the present."

William B. Sturgill, Kentucky Secretary of Energy and chairman of the council, agreed that the thousands of tons of coal that will feed the state's new synthetic fuel industry must be mined properly, but that it must be mined.

"We must dig it. We must haul it, and we must see it burned and consumed in an environmentally safe way," Sturgill told the group.

He called the advent of the synfuel industry the greatest thing that has happened not only to the state's coal industry but also the most significant thing that has happened to boost Kentucky's economy.

And Sturgill praised Brown for being more concerned and more compassionate toward the coal industry than any other governor of our time.

As the new council was organized today, standing committees were appointed by Sturgill and other officers were chosen.

Stonie Barker Jr., President of Island Creek Coal Co. in Lexington, was elected vice chairman of the council, and Art Nicholson, Commissioner of the Energy Department's Bureau of Energy Production and Utilization, was named secretary.

HALL REUNION SET

Before joining the college, she was employed by The Bank Josephine and The First National Bank here.

Seek Locations For Food Stamp Workfare Pilot

The Department of Agriculture is seeking communities interested in joining a pilot program requiring food stamp clients to work off the value of their food stamps. Currently, workfare pilot programs are operating in seven locations throughout the country. Legislation passed this May provided money to expand this number of sites to fourteen and also authorized the project to run for another year beyond its originally scheduled expiration next month.

Sites that are selected to operate workfare pilot projects will receive federal reimbursement for 50 percent of their administrative costs under today's new rules.

In signing the emergency final regulations, Assistant Secretary Carol Tucker Foreman said the cities, counties, or other political subdivisions that already sponsor public service employment programs or that have demonstrated an ability to operate such a program are eligible to conduct the projects.

Legislation passed in 1977 specified that the workfare projects be carried out in one urban and one rural area in each of the seven administrative regions of USDA's Food and Nutrition Service. At the national level, the demonstration is administered jointly by the Departments of Agriculture and Labor. Legislation passed in May provides for extension of the projects through September 1981, and for the addition of federal funding for administrative expenses.

Potential sponsors must submit an application within the next 30 days if they want to operate a workfare pilot project, Foreman said. She added that the department is actively seeking cities, counties and other political subdivisions that might participate. It is up to the sponsor to determine what type of jobs food stamp recipients will do.

Workfare projects are currently operating in Sussex county, N.J.; Rusk county, Wis.; Muskingum county, Ohio; Berkeley county, S.C.; the city of Morristown, Tenn.; Clay county, S.D.; and two welfare districts in the county of San Diego, Cal.

Political subdivisions wishing additional information and application kits should call: Claire Lipsman, director, Program Development Division, Family Nutrition Programs, Food and Nutrition Service, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250, (202) 447-8325.

The final regulations appeared in the Aug. 15 Federal Register.

IN APPRECIATION
The family of Evan Barnett wishes to express its sincere gratitude for the many kindnesses of friends, neighbors and relatives during our bereavement. We especially thank all those who sent flowers, food or assisted in any way. We also extend our thanks to Elder Bill Campbell and Lenville Campbell for their consoling words and to the Katy Friend church and singers. And our thanks to the Floyd Funeral Home for its efficient service. These kindnesses will long be remembered by us.

Observes Birthday

Elizabeth Ann Preston celebrated her third birthday Aug. 19 at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. David Preston, in Chattanooga, Tennessee. She is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Chaffins, of Prestonsburg, and Mr. and Mrs. Ray Preston, of West Van Lear.

Louisville To Host Bluegrass Festival

Top recording artist Emmylou Harris, 15 bands and thousands of bluegrass music fans will gather in downtown Louisville, Ky., Sept. 5-7, for the eighth annual Bluegrass Music Festival of the United States. The festival also celebrates the 90th birthday of Colonel Harland Sanders, founder of Kentucky Fried Chicken, whose corporate offices are in Louisville.

All festivities will be held at Louisville's Riverfront Plaza-Belvedere and are free to the public.

According to director Jack Trawick, the festival gets underway on Friday, Sept. 5, at 12 noon, and runs until 10 p.m., Sunday.

Bands performing on Friday include Buck White and the White Girls with Jerry Douglas and Ricky Skaggs; Hot Rize; The Reel World String Band; Kentucky Blend; Old Louisville Express, and Bluegrass Heritage. At 2:15 and 9:15, Bill Monroe, founder in the 1940's of the bluegrass sound, will perform with his band the Blue Grass Boys.

Saturday's program starts at 11 a.m., with a cake cutting ceremony celebrating Col. Sanders' birthday featuring music by Cheatum County. A bluegrass band competition begins at 12 noon. Six bands have been invited to compete for the top three prizes (totaling $4,500, trophies and a chance at a recording session).

Workshops will be held from 3:15 to 4:30 p.m., Saturday. Musicians can bring their own instruments and join members of Hot Rize on the Belvedere to discuss musical technique. Or visitors can come to 5th Street and listen to Byron Berline, John Hickman, Dan Crary and Beverly Cotton discuss bluegrass music. Cotton will also give a demonstration in clog dancing.

The big event is 8 p.m., Saturday night, when Emmylou Harris and her group, Hot Band, play on the Belvedere stage. A fireworks display will follow the concert. Festival officials say that, in case of severe weather, the concert will be held at Commonwealth Convention Center between Market and Jefferson streets.

On Sunday, music begins at noon and ends at 10 p.m., with a break from 5 to 6 p.m. Scheduled Sunday are Herb Clinard and the Bluegrass Strings, the McClain Family Band from Berea, Cole Creek, The Reasonable Band, Whole Wheat and Michael, McCreesh and Campbell. In addition, Berline, Hickman and Crary will perform at 3:35 and 9:15. First-place winners of the bluegrass band contest will perform at 2:10 p.m.

Trawick said the festival has grown to be so popular that it is "quickly becoming to Louisville what the jazz festival is to Newport. The festival has been identified as a prestige event by bluegrass music fans across the country." Trawick added that more than 75,000 fans are expected to attend this year.

The festival is sponsored by Kentucky Fried Chicken and Louisville Central Area Inc., an organization for the development of downtown Louisville. More information can be obtained by writing Jack Trawick, Louisville Central Area Inc., 2125 Citizens Plaza, Louisville, KY 40202.

HOMEMAKERS' LUNCHEON

Mrs. Frances Pitts, Floyd county home economist, announces that the Floyd County Homemakers will hold their annual covered-dish luncheon, today (Wednesday) at the First United Methodist Church.

Homemaker Project Coordinator Named

Coordinators at 10 University of Kentucky Community Colleges have been named for the new Displaced Homemaker Project.

At Prestonsburg Community College, Patricia McKenzie, (telephone 886-3863) has been named.

A national project to create programs for displaced homemakers was approved in 1979. Approximately $2 million was made available for the Kentucky phase of the project through the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA).

Participants will be offered counseling, assessment of job skills and needs, programs for on-the-job training and referral services.

Persons meeting one or more of the following requirements may participate:

Has not worked in the labor force for a number of years but has worked in a home providing unpaid services for a family; has been dependent on public assistance or income by another family member and is no longer supported by that income and is unemployed or underemployed and having difficulty obtaining or upgrading employment.

Several government agencies are assisting the UK Community College System with the project.

To Build Church

The Rev. Jay Tackett, son of the late Hampton and Mirty Tackett, of Beaver, received a Doctor of Divinity degree recently from the United Christian International Bible Academy in Cleveland, Tenn.

Rev. Tackett, who has established five churches in the past 20 years, has built the foundation for a community church at Beaver. His plans include a tent revival in the area in late September.

Reed-Cline

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Reed, of Paintsville, announce the marriage of their daughter, Maltie, to Eleanore Cline, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eli Cline, of Prestonsburg.

The wedding was solemnized at 7 p.m. Sat., Aug. 16, at the Lancer Baptist Church by Rev. Lloyd Senters.

Hall Reunion

The family of the late Wilburn and Rachel (Osborne) Hall will hold its reunion August 31 on the farm of the late Dock Johnson on the Poplar Grove at Weebury.

Carter Caves Fest Set Sept. 12-14

Mountain-music lovers will get a chance to hear some of the best mountain musicians, Sept. 12-14, at the Carter Caves State Resort Park amphitheater.

The Fraley Family Mountain Music Festival is an annual event that brings together musicians and fans dedicated to preserving Appalachia's musical roots.

The weekend kicks off Friday, Sept. 12, at 7 p.m. with a mountain-music concert featuring the many performers invited by the Fraleys.

All day Saturday, musicians can swap tunes around the amphitheater or take part in workshops on the fiddle, banjo and dulcimer.

The evening hours will be devoted to more mountain music and square dancing. Musicians who can still hit a lick by Sunday afternoon will have their chance during a 1 p.m. -to-dusk musical session.

Admission is $5 per day or $10 for the weekend. Children under age 12 are admitted free for the weekend. Camping is available at Carter Caves.

While the amphitheater is the focus for the festival, other Carter Caves attractions also will be available.

Carter Caves is in northeastern Kentucky near Olive Hill. To get there, take Interstate 64 to the KY 182 exit.

IN APPRECIATION The family of Bob Damron would like to express their many thanks to all who helped during our time of bereavement.

Celebrate 50th Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Claude P. Hagans, of 2801 Hilton Avenue, Ashland, celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary with a reception in fellowship hall of Second Baptist church hosted by their children.

Mr. and Mrs. Hagans were married July 26, 1930 at Langley by the late Rev. O.P. Smith. Mr. Hagans, son of the late H. G. and Louisa Ratliff Hagans, is a retired employee of United Fuel Co. Mrs. Hagans is the former Nancy Jean Lambert, daughter of the late Thomas and Rose Meek Lambert.

They are the parents of three children, Mrs. Eileen Slone, of Burlington, Mich.; Mrs. Claudia Hayes, of Ashland and Alan Hagans, of Prestonsburg. They have 12 grandchildren, and five step-grandchildren, three great-grandchildren and two step-great-grandchildren.

Attending from out of town were:

Mrs. Elizabeth Owens, of Tucson, Ariz.; Mr. and Mrs. Bascom Lafferty and Lisa, of Columbus, Ohio; Mr. and Mrs. Miles L. Owens, of Dayton, Ohio; Reggie Owens, of Lincoln, Ill.; Mrs. Glenda Waggoner and Anita, of Sandy Hook, Ky.; Mr. and Mrs. Saul Williamson and family, of River, Ky.; Jeanne Lambert, Mark and Brian Bolyard, Mrs. Mildred Farnace and Melanie, all of Grafton, W. Va.; Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Hagans, of Wheelwright; Mrs. Betty Hagans and Vivian Hunter, of Prestonsburg; and Mr. John Slone and Renee, of Burlington, Mich.

'Circle of Gold' Quits Business

Attorney General Steven L. Beshear announced last week that two promoters of the Circle of Gold, a chain letter scheme in Western Kentucky, have entered into an assurance of voluntary compliance agreement filed in the Franklin Circuit Court.

John Lutz and Donald Rutledge, both of Sebree (Webster County), had received notices from the attorney general in June alleging they were promoting the Circle of Gold chain letter scheme in violation of the Kentucky Consumer Protection Act, other state and federal lottery laws, and postal fraud statutes.

Lutz and Rutledge, the promoters, in response to this action by the Attorney General's Consumer Protection Division, have agreed to cease and desist from mailing chain and promotional letters to consumers in furtherance of the Circle of Gold or any other chain letter or pyramid scheme.

Further, they will cease and desist from directly or indirectly representing that the Circle of Gold or any other chain letter scheme is legal or that it has been approved by the office of the attorney general or any other law enforcement agency.

Beshear said his office had made its position clear from the beginning concerning the illegal nature of the chain letter scheme. "My concern with the Circle of Gold scheme has been that many Kentuckians would lose their money by participating in this type of illegal activity. Hopefully we have been able to prevent this from occurring," Beshear said.

Kentucky law provides that the attorney general may accept an assurance of voluntary compliance with respect to any violation of the Consumer Protection Act. Any case handled with an assurance may be reopened at any time by the attorney general when he has reason to believe that violations of law are recurring.

Pikeville College Begins Freshman Orientation

Pikeville College announces freshman orientation programs will run from Wednesday through Friday, August 27 to August 29. It is a full schedule of important information for all incoming freshmen dealing with financial aid, student services and the structure of student government on campus. It will also be a time for placement testing and diagnostic reading exams. The last day will be largely devoted to meetings with advisors. Attendance for the three-day event is mandatory for all beginning students at Pikeville College on a full-time schedule.

Two-Career Families Held as Happy as One-Career Families

Dual career families in Kentucky are as satisfied as single career families, according to a 1979 random statewide survey conducted by the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture and Department of Sociology.

Satisfaction with family, job, job opportunities, life accomplishments and life itself were the different categories covered by the survey, entitled "Labor Force Participation and Life Satisfaction in Kentucky."

With 47 percent of the women in Kentucky working in 1979, an increase of 11 percent in 10 years, and 55 percent of married couples both working, more attention is being paid to the working woman.

Job opportunities are opening up for women, and the new survey shows women who work with working husbands are more satisfied with their life accomplishments without affecting their satisfaction with family life.

Satisfaction with the family ranked high with both men and women in Kentucky. While 90 percent of the married women said they were quite happy with their family life, women in non-metropolitan areas said they were happier with the family if they did not work.

Metropolitan and non-metropolitan women also differed in the fact that metropolitan women are more likely to work outside the home, although not necessarily by choice because women in non-metropolitan areas may not have the same job opportunities, the survey showed. Job opportunity ranked as a problem for women in both categories, even if job satisfaction was high.

According to the survey, metropolitan women are more satisfied with life in general than the non-metropolitan women.

In both categories there is a decline in women working from 25 to 34 years and an increase from 35 to 44 years, after they stopped having children. Two out of three women are working between the ages of 18 and 24.

The working pattern for men is fairly stable in comparison. Of the men in Kentucky, 90 percent work from 25 to 34 years, 83 percent from 35 to 44 years (67 percent for the non-metropolitan) and less than 20 percent of those more than 64 years old.

Throughout the survey, the women most satisfied with their jobs were the ones who lived in the metropolitan area and worked while their husbands stayed at home, although this number was small.

"For the most part, satisfaction with various aspects of life does not vary according to the employment pattern of the family," the study concluded.

Strengthens Work Requirement For Food Stamp Recipients

Able-bodied food stamp recipients must actively search for jobs or be dropped from the program, under regulations proposed by the U.S. Departments of Agriculture and Labor.

"Under the proposed rules, people who fail to look for a job on their own or who don't report for the interviews at their state employment office will find their household dropped from the food stamp program for two months," said Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Carol Tucker Foreman.

Those who are exempt from the work registration requirement are primarily the elderly and disabled, those already working, those responsible for the care of dependents and those already registered for work under the unemployment insurance and work incentive programs.

The rules also require recipients who register for work to be called in to their state employment service, now identified as job service in many states, for an interview and job classification. Foreman said under the existing program, funding limitations have prevented employment offices from actually calling in and interviewing any more than the most employable of the food stamp work registrants. Recipients who have registered for work but had few job skills have often not had the benefit of employment office services, Foreman said. Under the proposed rules, USDA would more than double the amount of funding to the U.S. Department of Labor, raising the annual amount to $70 million so that department can reach hard to place recipients.

State job service agencies would continue to refer registrants to potential employers, under the proposed rule. But food stamp job seekers would have to supplement this service with their own eight-week job search.

The proposed rules would establish as a standard that work registrants contact between eight to 24 potential employers within the eight week period, and also report for two follow-up interviews with their employment counselors, Foreman said. Requirements for each person's job search would depend on their individual circumstances and the availability of jobs in the community, as assessed by the job service counselor.

The state job services would report to state welfare agencies the names of food stamp job seekers who refuse to comply with the interviews or job search requirements, as well as those who find jobs.

While the work registration and job search regulations are expected to be in effect by early 1980, the two government agencies plan to run an 18-month demonstration project to test other ways, such as job-finding clubs, to match food stamp applicants with jobs. They will be seeking state welfare and job service agencies to sponsor the demonstration projects.

The proposed regulations complete implementation of major food stamp reforms enacted in 1977 and set uniform national standards for work registration and job search activities.

The proposed work registration and job search regulations, as well as proposed guidelines and notice of intent to seek sponsors for the demonstration project were published in the Aug. 8 Federal Register.

Comments on the proposed regulations should be sent by Oct. 7 to Alberta Frost, deputy administrator for family nutrition programs, Food and Nutrition Service, USDA, Washington, D.C. 20250.

Best Bets On the Barbecue Grill

By Jed Horowitz

Take your family out to eat this summer and save money in the bargain. Cheaper than a burger chain, it's the old-fashioned barbecue, an economical way to serve up tasty family meals.

Cooking outdoors can reward your pocketbook as well as your tastebuds. Charcoal cooking is about 50 percent more fuel-efficient than cooking a meal over a gas range. That may explain why three out of four households in these fuel-conscious times have charcoal grills.

Unfortunately, few people have mastered the simple cooking, cleaning and safety techniques that can turn outdoor meals into hassle-free feasts. Here, then, are some hints for better barbecuing—from laying the fire to cleaning up after the last roasted marshmallow.

To begin, set up your grill on an open, flat area cleared of dried leaves and brush, at least three feet away from buildings. Next, roll up your sleeves and tuck in any loose clothing. Barbecuing means cooking with fire, and too many summer accidents have flared up over outdoor grills.

Now you're ready to lay the fire. Cover the bottom of the grill pan with aluminum foil. This makes for easy clean-up later. The shiny foil also helps reflect heat toward the food you'll be grilling.

Next, pour out the charcoal. How much do you need? If you'll be cooking non-fatty foods (which require fast grilling to retain their juices), use more coals. For fatter foods, use fewer coals. No matter what food you grill, you'll never need more than one layer of charcoal under the cooking area.

Before you light the fire, stack the charcoal into a pyramid. This helps air circulate, so the coals will catch more quickly. After stacking the coals, get out the starter. If you're using an electric starter, make sure it's properly grounded. If you use a liquid starter, let it soak into the coals for about a minute before lighting. Remember: Never use gasoline or kerosene as a starter, and never add starter once the coals have caught. One final warning:

Don't use colored paper as a starter, since the color contains dangerous lead.

Your fire should be ready 30 to 40 minutes after lighting. The coals will be covered with a gray ash in daylight, or give off a bright red glow at night. Spread out the coals into a single layer, using long-handled tongs.

If you can hold your hand over the coals at cooking level for only two seconds, your cooking temperature is very high; if you can hold it for five seconds, the temperature is low. To raise the temperature, either lower the grid, push the coals closer together with the tongs, or tap ash from the coals. To lower the temperature, raise the grid or spread the coals away from each other.

Now, you can don your apron and spread your special barbecue sauce. Remember always to use long-handled utensils. As for the food you cook, there are no limitations. Burger, fish, fowl or franks—they all make great grilling. One hint, though: Always trim as much fat as possible from the raw food. Dripping fat causes flare-ups. You should always keep a spray container of water near the grill to douse an unexpected flame. (Or station one of the kids with a trusty water pistol nearby to act as assistant fire marshal).

When the food is ready, eat, enjoy and don't worry about the aftermeal mess. Sooty clean-up chores are easily avoided if you plan ahead. For example, spray the grid and cooking utensils with a nonstick vegetable coating to keep food from sticking. The coating also makes for easier handling of the food during grilling.

For a final cleaning, shake dry baking soda onto a moist sponge. This scouring mixture takes off grease and dried food particles. As for cleaning the coals in the grill pan, just fold up the corners of the foil and toss out the package. Make certain, of course, that the coals are dead cold before disposing.

Now, cover your grill and store it in a dry area. It will be in good condition for the next hot day when you have a yen to leave the kitchen and head outside for some tasty family fun.

Pageant Winners at Weeksbury

Winners of the Southeast Floyd County Volunteer Fire Department pageant held August 2 at the Weeksbury community center were, at left, Susan Hall, who was named Junior Miss, and Angela Branham, who won the Little Miss category.

Miss Hall is the 10-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Hall, of Melvin, and is in the fifth grade. Miss Branham, seven years old, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Doyle Branham, of Weeksbury, and is in the second grade. They are both students at Melvin Elementary School.

New Labels on Appliances Help Buyers Compare Energy Costs

According to Attorney General Steve Beshear, consumers will now be able to consider an appliance's energy cost when shopping.

The Federal Trade Commission is now requiring new energy labels on seven types of major appliances produced after July 3. These yellow stickers will help consumers compare shop by letting them know which models are the most energy efficient.

A label which appears on a refrigerator, freezer or water heater will tell what that model's yearly energy cost should be. It will also tell how that model compares with other models of the same capacity.

A label on a dishwasher or clothes washer will show two different costs based on whether a gas or an electric water heater is used.

Air conditioners will be labeled with an energy efficiency rating. The higher the number which appears on the sticker, the less energy that model will require to operate. Furnaces will be required to be labeled with stickers which refer consumers to information sheets available from furnace dealers. The energy cost of each type of appliance is based on standard government tests.

Since some appliances are sold through catalog orders, the Federal Trade Commission is also requiring appliance manufacturers to publish energy efficiency information in their catalogs which list the kinds of appliances covered by the labeling law.

Those manufacturers who do not publish this information and those who do not place energy labels on their products are subject to a maximum fine of $100 for every unit which is offered for sale. They may also be fined for removing a sticker already placed on an appliance.

Although energy consumption is important, it is not the only thing to consider when shopping for a major appliance. Here are some questions which you should ask yourself before you buy:

-How does the appliance's warranty compare with the warranties of other brands? How long does it stay in effect?

-Has this appliance been approved for safety by an independent testing group, such as Underwriters Laboratory, or a government agency?

-Will this model fill my future needs?

-Will the salesman demonstrate the product so I may see it is in working order and it is easy to operate?

-Do I have enough space in my home for this appliance?

-What kind of maintenance will this appliance need?

In addition, you should check on your appliance store's reputation by contacting some of the business's previous customers or by asking your local consumer protection agency. Read all agreements carefully and retain copies of everything you sign. Remember to look for the new energy labels so that you will be able to determine which appliance is your best energy buy. If you have questions about the new energy labels, or if you have consumer problems which you cannot resolve yourself, write: Office of the Attorney General, Consumer Protection Division, Frankfort, Ky. 40601, or call Yvonne York, Attorney General's Office, (502) 564-7600, or David Grise, Consumer Protection Division, (502) 564-2200.

State Compiling Accurate Coal Reserve Estimates

Estimates of Kentucky's total coal reserves have traditionally been as variable as the weather, but a new publication funded by the state Department of Energy goes far toward ending its speculation.

The Western Kentucky Coal Resources report says the Western Kentucky coalfields had a total original resource of 42 billion short tons, with about 2.3 billion tons having been mined and lost. The total remaining recoverable reserves are estimated to be about 16 billion tons in the western coalfields.

"At current mining productive levels," said state Energy Secretary William Sturgill, "the coal in these fields alone can provide clean energy in a variety of forms for hundreds of years to come."

The exhaustive study is the result of five years of field and compilation work by the University of Kentucky's Institute for Mining and Minerals Research and the Kentucky Geological Survey. The report contains maps and tables of the Western Kentucky coalfields listed by coal bed, county, reliability category, and overburden class.

Last year, the coal industry in Western Kentucky accounted for approximately 10,000 jobs, paid out $4.5 million in payroll and generated more than $40 million in severance taxes to the commonwealth.

The Western Kentucky Coal Resources report is the first in an energy resource series being produced by IMMR and the KGS for the state Department of Energy. A comparable study for the Eastern Kentucky coalfields is underway. This work will include an assessment of both the total reserves of coal as well as their chemical and physical nature.

Sturgill said, "The combination of this natural resource information with the development of new coal conversion and utilization technology is a key element in Kentucky's drive to fully develop its coal resources."

Magoffin Founders' Day Slated at 'Prater's Foot'

On Aug. 30, visitors to an Eastern Kentucky town can say no one but they have seen this community.

It's Prater's Fork, for a day. Last year the town was called Adamsville. Most other days, it's known as Salyersville.

The county's annual Founder's Day celebration will honor Archibald Prater this year. Last year's event paid homage to "Uncle" Billy Adams. "This early settler, American Revolutionary soldier Archibald Prater, was born in 1755 in Virginia," explains Connie Arnett Wireman who is involved with Founders' Day projects. "We will have a booklet this year on the Prater family—if I can get it finished."

Every one in this scenic county is making preparation in some way for the big day. Many families, in addition to the Adamsons and Praters, are planning family reunions. School classes will also reunite during the celebration. "We would like for everyone to consider this a Magoffin county reunion or homecoming," Wireman said.

Archibald Prater brought his family to Kentucky soon after 1800. The family started out in a crude cabin in the upper reaches of the Licking River. When Indians came too close for comfort, they moved on. They lived for a time in the Nicholas-Fleming county area but returned to Eastern Kentucky's upper Licking River valley and built a fort near the present Salyersville.

Many Prater generations lived in the log house that later was covered with weatherboarding. On sunny days the hand-blown glass window panes sparkled like gems, and on any day circuit riding ministers and travelers found a refuge for tired bodies at the Prater home.

Prater later moved to the other end of the community, near the D.W. Gardner house on KY 7. Today, Archibald and wife, Sarah Fugate Prater, are resting on a grassy knoll near Salyers-ville Grade School, former location for Magoffin Institute.

Founder's Day activities begin Aug. 29 with a baby contest sponsored by the Salyersville Women's Club under direction of Alma Frazier. All babies will ride in Saturday's parade.

Founder's Day souvenirs will be available Saturday. These include a knife and wooden coin with a Prater legend inscribed. A collector's plate will be offered showing the Prater Homeplace on the front and a short history of Archibald Prater on the back.

"A high point of this year's activities will be the unveiling of a Magoffin county flag," says Wireman. "A contest was held in the spring in area grade schools and winning designs from the sixth and seventh grades were composed into a final drawing which was submitted to a flag company. Many of these flags will be in evidence. For this special occasion

Says Duplication Dogs Welfare System

Excessive paperwork and duplication of services are two areas of the state's welfare system that need revision, according to a report by the Governor's Task Force on Welfare Reform.

Dr. Lyman V. Ginger, director of the task force, said a study by the group found most welfare workers believe a computerized information system could greatly alleviate these two problems. Ginger submitted the task force report to a legislative Interim Joint Committee on Health and Welfare.

Some families reported they had as many as four workers visiting their homes. This duplication of services can be aided by better cooperation and coordination within and between many of the departments that render the services, the report said.

Prefer Work To Welfare

Most of the welfare recipients said they would rather work than be on welfare. Concerning the system, as it is administered now, many of them felt the time lapse between application and aid received was too great.

The general public's response to the survey showed the public believes able-bodied persons should work and the government should provide jobs for them in the public sector if there are no available jobs in the private arena. The group cited strict screening and enforcement of laws and regulations as the most desirable method to improve the system.

State Shrine Sets Antique Car Show

An antique and old car show, bluegrass music and an arts and crafts display will be part of the special Labor Day weekend activities at White Hall State Shrine.

About 100 antique cars will be displayed on the White Hall lawn during the contest Aug. 30-31. Trophies will be awarded to the winners.

During the Labor Day weekend, participants may go on the regularly scheduled tours of White Hall, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Aug. 29, 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Aug. 30-31 and 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sept. 1. The only fee for any of the weekend's activities is $1 for adult admission to the White Hall State Shrine.

To reach White Hall, travelers on I-75 should take the Boonesboro-Winchester exit west and go across US 25 to the road to the White Hall.

Congressman Carl D. Perkins has sent us a flag which was flown over the U.S. Capitol."

Another highlight of the weekend will be a drama written by Nina K. Flint and Betty Lykins. It will be performed by Madonna Adams' Magoffin County High School drama class. If weather permits, the drama will be presented outdoors. "Some local citizens—Paul Rowe, Tom Call, Russell Sparks and others—will build a replica of Prater's Fort to serve as a backdrop for the play, either in Ramey Park or beside the Community Center in downtown Salyersville."

A number of genealogists and genealogical publishers are expected to be present to help clue in families doing research. Taking part will be Todd Preston, president of the Magoffin County Historical Society.

Today, Burning Fork Community Church stands on the site of the old Prater house. A few years ago the house was razed when Prater descendants Fanny and Alma Prater decided it was time to remove the old logs and make way for bricks for a living testimony for faith. Part of the logs now are in the home of the David Prater family, Westmoreland Estates, Lexington.

There will be arts and crafts, speakers, foods and entertainment. And, it will be the only chance any one will have to say he or she has been to Prater's Fork in Magoffin county.

QUESTION:

"Our natural gas bills go up and down with the seasons. Any way to change that?"

ANSWER:

"Columbia's Budget Payment Plan evens them out. You pay the same every month, summer and winter."

August is sign-up month for the Columbia Budget Payment Plan. Which means that starting in September, your natural gas bills can be averaged out, and you'll have the same, predictable amount to pay each month. Summer and winter.

For example, a family with a total bill for the year of $564.00 will pay $47.00 each month on the Budget Payment Plan. And have the assurance of knowing what each bill will be. Without the Budget Payment Plan, a summer bill could be as low as $12.00, but their February bill could reach $95.00.

Gone are the extremes. You'll pay more in the summer, but you'll pay a lot less in the winter. And at the end of 12 months, if you've paid for more natural gas than you've used, you get a credit.

Over one-third of our residential customers are now using the Budget Payment Plan. And August is the month to sign up. So act soon. To start the Plan—or receive a brochure that explains it more fully—contact your Columbia Gas office. Also ask for a copy of our free conservation tips booklet, "The Everyday Energy Saver's Guide."

The Real Dirt on Cleaning Products

By Frances Goulart

Grime time is something we take seriously. In our pursuit of cleanliness, we pay twice as much as we should for more products than we need.

Of the two million chemicals in use, thousands are used (many in deadly combinations) in the products we use to clean house. Yet, only 10 percent have been tested for the carcinogenic, mutagenic, or other perils they pose.

Every year household cleaners kill thousands of children who swallow, inhale or handle ordinary household bleaches, dyes, polishes, waxes and drain purges. Every year at least 35,000 serious accidents befall the rest of us who use them.

Environmental Hazards

Unlike soap, all detergents are made from petroleum, a non-renewable resource. Soap, by contrast, is made from lye and fats or oils that are ever-renewing.

As one critic of these cures for the wash day blues observed, "Several years ago non-biodegradable detergents were causing spectacular foams in rivers and lakes. Then the detergent industry made all their products biodegradable and now it is the phosphates which are creating hell."

Phosphates go right through our sewage systems and cause accelerated growth of water plants and algae. This causes a plant jungle in our lakes. The decaying vegetation consumes the oxygen supply, killing the fish, and eventually takes over the body of water. Plants die and pile up, releasing more fertilizer into the deadly cycle. As the fish die and the dead plants accumulate, the lake becomes a swamp.

Eventually, as all growing things choke each other and die, the swamp dries up into a desert. This is what is killing Lake Erie. What a price to pay for a brighter wash! In Lake Erie, the detergent phosphate content of the sewage represents one-half or more of the total phosphate input, both natural and manmade.

Phosphate-free or low-phosphate laundry soaps may be better for our environment, but their substitutes leave much to be desired.

One consumer study has demonstrated that if a child's flame retardant sleepwear is laundered in detergent with a phosphate substitute such as a sodium-carbonate, the flame retardancy of the garments may be seriously impaired. It can be restored by re-washing in phosphate detergent or rinsing in a weak vinegar solution.

Furthermore, non-phosphate detergents are generally more alkaline and thus potentially more poisonous. This higher alkalinity, research indicates, can cause problems of

Alternatives

Does a surface cleaner like Fantastic get walls especially clean? No. Baking soda for bathroom tiles and walls does the job as well. It disinfects, gives bathrooms a clean smell and even removes soap and scum from the shower.

Do you really need Top Job to remove trouble spots at (5¢ per 50 sq. ft.) or Janitor in a Drum at 12¢? No. Simply use diluted laundry bleach. Wipe it on the surface with a bowl brush, leave it on and most of the dirt disappears.

Clothes Dryers

Most of us don't air our dirty laundry in public but we should to save money and to reduce germs. According to Mary Pickett, Professor of Family Environment at Iowa State University, "Another thing that has been shown to help control bacteria is to hang the wash out in the sunlight to dry."

Oven Cleaners

The best possible way to keep your oven clean? Prevent it from getting badly soiled. The best way is to wipe up spills and splashes before they become baked on or charred. If a spill occurs in a continuous-cleaning oven, wipe up with a sponge or cloth. In a continuous-cleaning oven, if a stain seems to be taking a long time to disappear, use a nylon brush and a mild detergent solution.

Or, sprinkle spills generously with salt while the oven is still hot. The burned deposit should scrape off with no trouble when the oven cools. For thorough cleaning, set an open shallow dish of full-strength ammonia inside the cold oven. Close the door and let it stand overnight. The ammonia gas from the solution is absorbed by the grease, which ends up like soap. Do not use this method on aluminum.

Window Cleaner

4 tablespoons ammonia, 2 tablespoons vinegar, and 1 quart water, followed by hot elbow grease with crumpled, old newspapers for a special sparkle.

Drain Cleaner

First, try a plunger. Then try ½ cup washing soda followed by 2 cups boiling water. For a stronger treatment, combine a handful of baking soda with ½ cup vinegar. Close the drain and let it sit, then flush with water. (Do this regularly to prevent buildup.)

Surface Cleaner

(For surfaces other than varnish, aluminum or asphalt tile): ¼ cup ammonia, ¼ cup vinegar, 1 tablespoon baking soda, and 1 quart water. Pour into glass or plastic bottle with a hand-squirter top.

severe injury to children who ingest non-phosphate detergent.

Sewage treatment engineers complain that detergents cause more problems than all other household wastes. Because they are so powerful, they emulsify other polluting waste and flush it right through the system into our water supply.

Household Hazards

In terms of their potential for damage to the household environment, many of the products under our sinks and over our washers present us with serious dilemmas. They must be powerful enough to be effective; but because they're powerful they must be handled with care.

But some products have such a high risk potential, they can't be handled with care.

Laundry boosters, for example, could literally burn your house down. As one consumer testing panel reported, "The labels warn about fire hazards... and sure enough, when we exposed the spray from Shout and Amway Aerosols to a lit candle they spewed two-foot-long flames."

At the very least, they could cost you the loss of a wall or kitchen counter. Small amounts of many laundry boosters, even in diluted form, left on aluminum, brass and painted surfaces over night, will leave semi-permanent or permanent marks behind.

When used full strength, Lestoil and Pine-Sol tend to remove paint. If not rinsed off quickly, all ammoniated liquids can strip some kinds of wax from floors.

In fact, all cleaners can stain, dull or pit surfaces they're supposed to clean. All can damage yellow brass, and most can damage aluminum and semi-gloss paint. Some can mar tile, glass, plastic and stainless steel.

Aerosol Cleaners

Eighty-five percent of aerosol cleaning and cosmetic products on the market now contain hydrocarbons. As a replacement for the ozone-destructive fluorocarbon propellants which were banned in December 1978, hydrocarbons make aerosols potentially more combustible than ever. A 1974 study by the Consumer Product Safety Commission concluded that the average severity rating for aerosol-related injuries was higher than the average severity rating estimated for all other consumer product injuries.

Bodily Harm

Most all-purpose cleaners can cause eye irritation. Worse, if an ammoniated all-purpose cleaner is mixed with a chlorine bleach, the two products produce a poisonous chlorine gas that can cause nausea, watery eyes or irritated lungs. Many products are strong enough to necessitate wearing rubber gloves to prevent skin irritation.

Nitrosamines can be carcinogenic at very low doses. According to one expert, Dr. Samuel S. Epstein, Professor of Pathology at Harvard Medical School and Boston Children's Hospital, "The U.S. is playing chemical roulette with these detergent compounds. We may well be jumping from the ecological frying pan into a toxicological fire."

Cleaners like Top Job and Mr. Clean turn in a top job as allergens, too. Household chemicals are often the unsuspected culprits, according to Connecticut Clinical Ecologist Dr. Marshall Mandell, in cases of "treatment-resistant" asthma in children and adults. "The chemically susceptible child's health greatly improves when he is separated from the chemical pollution of his mother's housekeeping procedures, which employ chlorinated cleansers and bleaches, furniture and floor polishes, room deodorizers, and insect sprays."

"If art gum erasers, soap-and-water and elbow grease don't get all the smudges off the walls," says consumer reporter Cynthia Adcock, "is it better to leave them for the next paint job or to run for an aerosol-foam wall cleaner with expensive packaging, high advertising costs, and several chemicals that have not been tested for their long-term effect on humans?"

A little dirt never hurt anyone. It's cleaning up that's doing us in.

Allen Receives Promotion

Robert E. Allen, associate director of Prestonsburg Community College, was recently promoted to the rank of professor in the University of Kentucky Community College System. Mr. Allen has been at the college since 1968 and has held positions as English instructor and admissions officer. Prior to joining the staff at the college, he served as a public relations director for the Kentucky Department of Education and as an English consultant and director of the Headstart Program for the Floyd county school system. Allen attended the University of Kentucky and holds two advance degrees from Morehead State University. He has received the honor of being named an Outstanding Alumni of Morehead State University.

Crafts, Music Planned For 'Our Appalachia Day'

Twenty-six individuals and six crafts groups have indicated that they will display and sell various crafts items at the ninth annual "Our Appalachia Day," September 13, of the Alice Lloyd College campus.

From Floyd county are: Norman Martin, of Langley; Carol Puckett, Grace Taylor, and Oma Kovolcik, all of Wayland; and a group representing David Appalachian Crafts.

Seven musical groups and twelve individuals have also indicated that they will perform on the day.

Indicating that they will perform from Floyd county are: The Big Sandy Valley Boys, McDowell; The Green Mountain Boys, Price; The Ratcliff Family Band, Martin; Benny Moore, Turkey Creek; Tommy Moore, Langley; and Fiddlin Dewey Shepherd, David.

The baking contest will receive entries through the day with judging being conducted at 2:30 p.m. The entries will be judged in the following divisions: cobblers, pies, cakes, old fashioned cakes, cookies, candies and breads. Entries should be made by 2:00 p.m. All of these baked delights will be enjoyed as a part of the soup bean supper.

The music will begin at 10:00 a.m. and continue through the day. Crafts displays, demonstrations and sales will begin at 10:00 a.m. also. Around 4:00 p.m. the college will provide the traditional soup bean supper. Folk dancing will begin after supper or around 6:00 p.m. All of these activities are free and open to the public. In case of rain, the festivities will be held in the college's gymnasium.
