Garbage Fees Upped, Airport in Question

An increase in garbage collection fees for Prestonsburg residents is included in the proposed city budget for next year, it was announced at the city council meeting Monday.

Effective January 1, residential rates will be increased from $1.75 to $4 a month for the twice-weekly pickup, according to the proposal. Rates for commercial subscribers will also be studied, with a view to a possible in-

According to a news release, current operating costs for the city's sanitation department amount to $100,000, excluding any provision for new trucks. Receipts total $82,000. The deficit is expected to increase owing to rising fuel costs and higher fees for use of the new county landfill.

Free Parking Here Is Christmas Bonus

As the result of a lease agreement entered into between downtown merchants and the City of Prestonsburg, recently, parking for shoppers in the usiness district here will be free, now hrough Christmas.

Employees of downtown businesses are being encouraged to park in muncipal lots to provide space for cars along Court Street, it was said.

The proposed new rate will still be less than that currently charged in neighboring communities, it was pointed out. Pikeville is said to charge $8.50 for its twice-weekly pickup and Paintsville $5 for a weekly pickup.

Prestonsburg and Paintsville may not own the tract on which the airport serving the two cities is located, Dr. David White, a member of the airport board, told the council. Apparently, the state government claims ownership of the property, he said.

The dispute came to light when the airport board sought reimbursement from the state for fencing recently installed on the airport perimeter. State authorities balked at releasing the funds until the question of title could be clarified, White said.

The Transportation Department's aeronautics division is said to have put up money previously for the installation of fuel tanks at the airport, and a question exists as to whether airport property may have been mortgaged to finance the project.

Some of the original owners of the properties condemned for the airport construction still claim an interest in the property and have suits pending in the state Appeals Court.

Concern about ownership of the land has been heightened by the recent designation of a Martin county tract as the site for a new regional airport and the possibility that the existing airport site might again be marketable.

The council voted to seek a clarification of the issue by aeronautics of-

Lunch Program Move Rouses Controversy

In the language of the federal bureaucracy, it is a "congregate feeding program." For many of the nation's older citizens it is both their one tunity to be with friends. And for some residents of Martin's Town Center housing project, it has become an issue that baffles and angers them.

For the past four years, Town Center residents have been able to take their lunch, under a federally subsidized senior citizens' program, in the recreation room at that facility. Two months ago the program was moved, across KY 80, to premises formerly occupied by Reid's pharmacy.

About 20 of the housing project's elderly residents signed a petition protesting the move, some claiming it means they are no longer able to share in the daily meal. Many of them are seriously disabled, according to Martin Housing Authority Director Helen Ison, and are unable to negotiate the bad weather, traffic, and a high step involved in walking each day to the new

"We feel we're being discriminated against," she complained recently.

Not so, replies Dee Burchett, director of the senior citizens' center. The move was necessary because of a lack of space in the Town Center building. where lunchroom gatherings in excess of 30 persons already contravened state fire marshal's regulations, she

The program she administers is regional in scope, Mrs. Burchett emphasized, serving elderly people in an area that includes Left and Right Beaver Creeks and the Big Sandy valley as far south as Harold. A bus is available to transport Town Center residents who have difficulty making the trip to the center on foot and meals are served on trays to any bedfast clients, she said.

"To my knowledge no offer has been made to pick our people up for lunch,' Mrs. Ison replied, "and, in any case, this would not be satisfactory for most of the people here." Getting on and off a bus represents a hardship to the housing facility's less agile residents, she explained

FIVE YEARS AHEAD

Only 21 days till, lo: 1981. And I am reminded that in 1986, only five years ahead, Haley's comet will return to view after wandering out there in the lostness of space since last it came into our ken, back in the good year 1910.

Hope it doesn't panic the populace as it did, the other time around. We took the newspapers' word for it, back then, and they had a field day, quoting this and that astronomer. The worst prediction of the lot was that on the day when the "tail" of the comet would sweep nearest the earth the temperature would soar and poisonous gases might be stifling or fatal.

Some devoted time to winding up their affairs. Some got a touch of religion. But the expected doomsday came, I remember so well, and it was the coolest, fairest day in weeks.

Strange that an astronomer can accurately predict the return of this or that planet to view or the eclipse of the sun or moon, years ahead of the occurence, and still they can't predict the weather long enough ahead for a-body to go fishing. (See Story No. 4, Page 4)

New Hi School Grounds May Be Mock Mine Site

If space can be found for it on the grounds of the to-be-built Betsy Layne High School, and if its installation will in no way interfere with regular school activities, the Floyd County Board of Education will make available to the State Vocational Division a site for a proposed mock coal mine to serve mining technology students in this and surrounding counties

The mine would require a minimum of two acres, Supt. of Schools Pete Grigsby, Jr. said he has been told. A mock mine to serve students of the area has been urged by the Mayo State Vocational School at Paintsville. The board of education has directed its architect to supply needed information before it makes a final commitment. If the site is used, the board would lease the required acreage to the state.

Supt. Grigsby said this week that acquisition of property here for an elementary building continues and that some progress has been made. If the owner of the proposed site, Donald Ray Pelphrey, can get the Piggly Wiggly Store to relinquish its lease on the property, purchase by the school board is expected.

These and other matters were discussed at last Wednesday's meeting of the education board, its last for that its water and sewage problems could mean the loss of federal funds for development projects, the city of Martin received notice this week that a proposed housing project there would not be recommended for funding. In a letter to Martin Housing Authority Director Helen Ison, Bob Leonard, manager of the State Clearinghouse, said that, in view of a report by state environmental authorities that the city's water and sewage systems are "below minimum standards," that office "has no alternative but to recommend that the Department of Housing and Urban Development not approve the proposal.

The proposal was for 100 units of lowand moderate-income housing to be built on a landfill created, just south of the city, by construction of the new KY

The threat to future funding was also raised as an argument in support of an ordinance creating a new city utilities commission, which received its first reading at a meeting of the city council last Wednesday.

Proposed by Councilman Phillip Jenkins, the ordinance ratifies the recent appointments to the city water commission, but sets a term of office for each commissioner, provides that

High School Youth Wounded by Shot

A 15-year student at Allen Central High School was wounded by a shot fired from a passing automobile at 1:15 p.m. Tuesday and was treated at Our Lady of the Way Hospital, Martin.

The wounded youth, William Vance, had been issued a departure slip and was awaiting a ride home when the shot was fired. The bullet entered his left little finger, damaging ligaments to the extent that the finger was amputated at the hospital.

State police are investigating the incident. J. O. Dingus, principal of the school, said young Vance has said he does not know the identity of the person who fired the shot Critically wounded and in the UK Medical Center are 30-year-old Randy Blankenship and his wife, Judith, 19, both shot in the arm and side at a range of only a few feet by blasts from a .12-gauge sawed-off shotgun. Their son, Eric, was struck by three pellets and was said at the McDowell Regional Hospital to be in good condition.

Few But Faithful . . .

Former Pastor Here Ministers To Congregation of Only Two

The Rev. Paul Stoneking, former pastor of the First United Methodist Church here, is now pastor of the Louisa and Busseyville Methodist

It's his pastorate of the Busseyville church that makes news. For the usual congregation there is composed of two elderly women

Twice a month the minister drives over to Busseyville from Louisa to preach. Before he arrives, 73-year-old Myrtle Meek, who lives nearby, has a fire going in the potbellied stove, if the weather is cool, has done a bit of dusting and has rung the huge, old bell, calling the countryside to worship.

But, usually, only one other shows up or service-her older sister. Mexie Hughes, who lives "just a hop, skip and a jump" on down the road.

The 80-year-old church was dedicated for a congregation of 300, but now, the sisters admit, they're struggling "to keep going.

What happened? Mrs. Meek explains; "So many of the folks are buried in the cemetery, out back Others have moved away. That's progress, I guess. We still manage to have good time in the Lord's house.

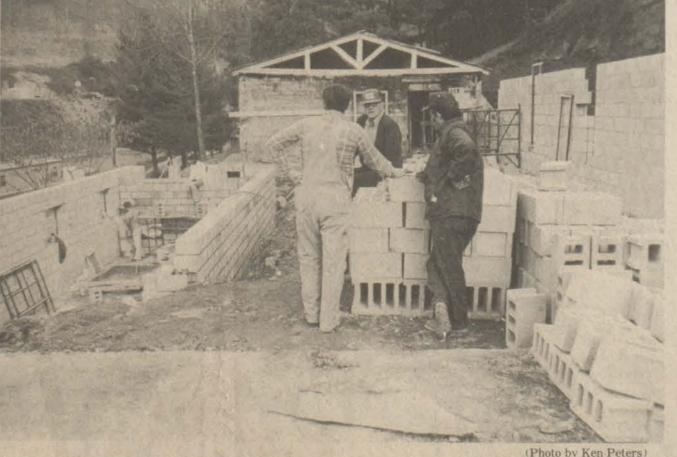

Except when the roads are too bad during January and February and sometimes in March, the preacher drives over from Louisa, two Sundays a month. The sisters pay him $30 a month to cover expenses. 'He always brings a fine message to Mexie and me," Mrs. Meeks says. I play the piano. Never had a lesson, but at least the tune sounds good to me...One day last summer we had nine people show up, and you could have heard us for a mile.

Mrs. Meek, who can't remember the last time she missed a service, has been attending the church all her life. "The family farm is less than a quarter of a mile away, and it was only natural that when I was saved I joined the church. In those days the church was always filled on Sunday. There weren't a lot of cars, but people weren't afraid to walk.

However faithful Myrtle Meek and Mexie Hughes and their preacher are, Busseyville United's days apparently are numbered. It's in the path of the proposed Yatesville Reservoir.

But Mrs. Meek says loss of her old church will not keep her from Sunday services. "After the church is gone, Brother Stoneking is going to get a little mini-bus and take Mexie and me to town every week," she said.

WORK TO REBUILD the Faith Bible Church near Martin was well under way this week following an Oct. 14 fire which ruined the 22-year-old structure. Church member George Barnett, of Martin, who is directing the work, said the new building, which will be of block and brick construction, will feature added basement classrooms as well as an expanded top floor. Although certain jobs on the project have been contracted, volunteer labor and contributions in excess of $20,000 "have helped considerably," according to Barnett, who pointed out that the building was insured for only $14,000 at the time of the fire. As for a completion date, Barnett commented, "The pews will be delivered February 2, so we intend to be ready for them." Pastor of the church is the Rev. Bob Martin.

Low-Interest Mortgage Rates Qualified Buyers

We care about the housing needs of Floyd County and Eastern Kentucky. That's why we've been the leading lending institution under the Floyd County Bond Program, with loans closed and committed in excess of $4,000,000.00, and why we've processed nearly $2,000,000.00 worth of Kentucky Housing loans since 1979.

Now The Bank Josephine, in conjunction with Kentucky Housing Corporation, has additional funds available for use by qualified home buyers. And our lending staff is prepared to see that all these funds are committed before the December 31 deadline!

So if you're in the housing market and can meet the following criteria, chances are that you qualify for a low-interest Kentucky Housing loan. And that's very important with today's conventional interest rates!

- 1. Total purchase price of home (new or used) cannot exceed $52,000.00.
- 2. Gross annual income may not exceed:
 - a. $19,000 per year for single person
 - b. $20,000.00 per year for married couple (families may add an additional $1,000.00 for each child).

Even if you feel you don't qualify, we still have Floyd County Bond funds available in addition to most conventional loan programs. For further details or information, call our Mortgage Loan Department at 886-9101. Let us help. Because we care.

Make Toy Safety a Part of Christmas Cheer

UK Information Services

Christmas season rings thoughts of gifts, celeration, decorations and merriment. Many of the gifts will come from Santa Claus' bag

Whether reindeers really know how to fly is questionable, but one thing that isn't questionable is the amount of money that goes into toy purchases annually in the U.S. Manufacturers' sales of toys Christmas decorations total almost $4 billion this year.

This volume has brought about an awareness of toy safety and has resulted in a voluntary campaign for toy safety by the Toy Manufacturers of America, Inc. in cooperation with the U.S. Department of Commerce National Bureau of Standards. But the first responsibility for safety lies with parents, ays Gail Bjorkland, assistant professor of family studies and Extension specialist in child development in the Uni-of Home Economics. "Parents should choose toys carefully for their children, basing their decisions on the child's age and his or her ability to handle certain

versity of Kentucky College

oys," Dr. Bjorkland said.
"One of the things that leads to child injuries is the younger children trying to play with a toy intended for an older child," she added.

A toy intended for a 10year-old may not be safe for a four-year-old. Parents should check toys to see that they don't have sharp edges, protrusions or broken parts. This is particularly true of toys that are presented to the children by people other than the parents

Dr. Bjorkland said that among the toys parents shouldn't buy are:

Electrical toys can be dangerous if used in wet or damp places. Toys that aren't prop-

Toys that shoot projectiles; toys with parts that will allow the child to get his head. feet or hands stuck in holes; toys that have long strings that could wrap around a child's neck and strangle him; toys that have small parts that can be swallowed by very young children; toys made of hard brittle plastic that will leave sharp, jagged edges if broken; and toys that erly grounded can cause a severe or fatal electric shock if a short circuit occurs while the toy is handled in a damp yard or basement.

The National Electronic Injury Surveillance System keeps records of toy-related injuries to children. The organization notes that toy-related accidents are few compared to the number of accidents children suffer in falls make unusually loud noises from bicycles, tricycles, stairways and ladders. These are still the most serious threat to small children.

> The Toy Manufacturers of America, Inc. promotes toy safety and urges parents to buy toys appropriate to the age of the child. One large toy company has its own test area where children play with new toys to determine if a potential danger exists.

More homemade toys are being produced and the numbers of toys being imported are increasing, and this probably increases the risk for injury, Dr. Bjorkland said. Toy safety standards for imported toys aren't as high as standards for toys manufactured in the U.S., she added.

"The possible harmful effects of war toys should be considered by parents. Children show aggressive tendencies and use war toys in the manner that they are intended to be used. The aggressive behavior in itself may be mostly make-believe, but the aggressive activity may cause a child to be injured in carrying out simulated war games," she said.

"There's been a lot of progress in recent years in making toys safer for children. Rather than adapting strict government standards, volunteer guidelines have been used by toy manufacturers. Despite those standards, parents should be aware of safety as they select toys and should instruct children in the proper use of toys.

"Misuse of toys can lead to injuries and accidents,' said Dr. Bjorkland,

When my oldest newspaper friend, Earl Kinner, died recently, I felt the urge to express something of my personal loss in this column. I resisted the tempation, reasoning that few were interested in my personal feelings.

And now, at this late date, I do not propose to write of our long and pleasant association, of our friendship and the thinking that we shared. Let me, then, say simply this:

Earl Kinner not only was a good newspaperman. He was much more. He was a good man, good in the deepest sense of the word.

THE STRAW NOTE

The twelve good men (and women) and true that comprise juries have for a long while now supplied their part of the ancedotes heard around the courthouses. This is one I heard quite recently

These two brothers were engaged in a bit of moonshining, and had done a good job of keeping the matter secret until the neighbor's hogs began rooting around and uncovered some of the mash which they had buried.

The brothers were a bit riled but contrived to reconceal the evidence, and while about this chore decided to butcher one of the hogs to pay them for their time. They divided the porker and went their separate ways, but this time the law reached out and nabbed them.

There had been an unseen eyewitness. The case came to court, and their lawyer advised them that their best hope lay in pleading guilty (since everybody knew it, anyhow) and plead

Newsome Files For New Trial, Prison Release

Motions were filed in circuit court here this week on behalf of John Henry Newsome, who was sentenced in 1977 to 15 years in prison for the 1976 slaying of Gerald McBrayer

His conviction in the case was overturned by the state Supreme Court last month and the case remanded for new trial, on the grounds that the trial court erred in not instructing the jury on the possibility of returning second-degree manslaughter or reckless homicide verdicts in the case. Newsome was convicted of first-degree manslaughter.

Representing Newsome, Prestonsburg Attorney Gary Johnson moved this week to have him returned to this county from the state penitentiary at Eddyville, to have the case re-tried promptly, and to have his client released in the meantime.

Prior to the original trial, Newsome was free on bond. He could be released at this time either on bond or on personal recognizance.

Newsome has served more than three years of his sentence and might have been already released under parole. His refusal to admit guilt in the slaying is said to have precluded that possibility, however.

A hearing on the new motions is scheduled for 9 a.m. Friday.

Letters to the Editor

Writer Says There Was Skullduggery At Polls

This year I was looking forward to voting my first time for the President of the United States. I felt that it was an honor to be able to vote for the person I thought most fit to run the country.

After casting my vote, I was never more dismayed in my life to find the kind of corruption that was at this election. People who couldn't read were shown which lever to pull. Others received a pint of liquor or some money in exchange for their vote.

This goes totally against the principles set forth in the Constitution. The basic freedom of voting for who you felt was right, rather than who someone else felt was right has been violated. If this continues, where will this country finally end? A country run by the rich and the powerful?

I feel that in order to stop this kind of graft, there should be stronger law enforcement at election grounds. People should not be allowed to sell their country short. I know that no one will ever buy my vote and I feel that no one should sell theirs.

Are You Ready?

This is a very serious problem throughout the nation. At the age of 18 many men and women are considered adults. I don't believe it's the age of a person that makes them an adult, but how mature or grown up they are. Being of legal age does not make one mature. Many men and women have children before they have reached maturity, mentally and physically. This could create a problem. Usually, if they become parents before maturity, the child may suffer. But I must note that this is not always true. If a child does not have a strong hand for leadership or to lean on, the growing up for the child could crumble at his feet. If one is planning on having children, then it should be a necessity, that he or she is ready. Have you asked yourself, is this what I truly want, to be responsible for another human life? Will I be able to support him and give him all the things a growing child needs, like an education, clean clothes to wear daily, plenty of nourishing food and plenty of love? If one thinks he or she is not able to provide the child with these things, then a second thought for raising children should be considered. Make sure to think twice about this subject, that could change your life style drastically, not only for your sake, but the child's too.

(Continued from Page One) future appointments will be by the mayor, with council approval, and holds the commission accountable to the city council for its management of the water and sewer systems. Raymond Griffith, commission chairman, was appointed for a twoyear term, Steve Jenkins for four years, and McDouglas Whicker for six Mayor Larry Hall, apparently piqued by the move to confirm the appointment of the three men, argued that the new ordinance would be illegal, since it alters the conditions under which water system bonds have been sold.

Jenkins rejected the argument, however, and was supported by Roger Recktenwald, an adviser with the Big Sandy Area Development District, who said bondholders would not oppose changes designed to ensure better management of the system.

The city might seek a community development block grant to rebuild and extend the water system, Hall indicated. Councilmen were invited to submit names of those who might serve on a citizens' group to monitor such a grant.

The mayor was again rebuffed in his attempt to name a replacement on the Martin Housing Authority for Thomasine Whicker, whose term has expired. While David Chaffins and J. R. Key supported his nomination of Georgeann Wells for that post, a majority of the council, who favor reappointment of Mrs. Whicker, opposed it Unless the matter can be negotiated, the council faces legal action by the state Labor Department regarding a $20,000 wage claim against the city by Police Chief Hershel Lester, it was said. A special meeting of the council was proposed to deal with the matter.

Members of the audience at last week's council meeting questioned what they termed an inconsistent enforcement of the city's new auto sticker fee, Gwen Hall complaining that those in compliance with the ordinance were being penalized and Lou Ann Hutchinson demanding her money back unless the fee was exacted of all vehicle owners.

"Sue me," Councilman Jenkins taunted the complainants.

To a further complaint by the two women that "no parking" signs, intended for a section of KY 80 on the city's northern end, had never been erected, Jenkins replied, "Why don't you put them up yourselves?"

Mayor Hall and several members of the audience rebuked Jenkins for what they apparently considered flippant responses to the women's complaints, the mayor summarily calling a halt to the meeting.

Decision By Proxy

We voters are very grateful to all the non-voters for leaving the decision up to us to elect officials to guide our country the next two to six years. We hope we have not let you (those who did not vote) down, since it was not worth standing in line for you to vote, or your vote doesn't matter.

Of course, not all of us who voted picked a winner. In fact, over 35 million of us voted for a losing candidate. But, now that we have made the decision you asked us to make for you, hope you like it and appreciate it.

Praises TV System

As a resident of Betsy Layne, I would like to compliment the Harold cable system on the recent availability of Ch. 17 from Atlanta, Ga. It is a welcome

Sometimes, we as paying customers tend to criticize rather than praise the few good things that the Harold system does. Sure, we've had our problems with reception and payments, but it seems lately that everything has improved. We are now receiving very good reception in addition of the Atlanta station and, soon, Home Box Office.

It is the responsibility of us as paying customers to praise companies on their good jobs more often than criticize them on their bad ones

Seeks Info On Mayo

My name is James Terill Wilson and I reside in Somerset, Kentucky. I am a senior at the University of Kentucky. majoring in Appalachian Studies. For the past two years I have been researching and am presently writing a biography of John C. C. Mayo, Sr., of Paintsville, Kentucky. Mr. Mayo lived from September of 1864 to May of 1914.

While completing my research I have uncovered many forgotten achievements of Mr. Mayo. Among these were the organization of Northern Coal and Coke Company (1901), reorganizing Consolidation Coal Company (1902), organization of the Paintsville National Bank (1902 - presently First National Bank of Paintsville), founding of Mayo College, Paintsville (presently Mayo State Vocational School), construction of the Mayo Mansion and Mayo Methodist Church (1904-1912), both of Paintsville.

In addition, Mayo was the primary force in bringing the B & O, C & O and L & N Railroads into East Kentucky. At one time John C. C. Mayo controlled through leases, deeds, and options over one-fourth of Eastern Kentucky's mineral wealth. Mayo also was responsible for implementing the Broad-Form deed throughout Central Appalachia.

I would sincerely appreciate any information which you or your readers might have on the life of John C. C. Mayo. I assure you that proper acknowledgement and documentation will be given to anyone who can be of assistance in helping give this man credit long past due him. Anyone having anything to tell about Mayo's story may write within the next few weeks to my address:

The testing was made of homes whose occupants had complained of burning eyes, dizziness, nausea, etc.

Public Programs Set This Month By Big Sandy Health Care

A program discussing how to take medications wisely will be presented in Wheelwright and Mud Creek this

Thursday. December 11, the Wheelwright Clinic will present the program at 12:30 at the Wheelwright Senior Citizen Center. At Mud Creek it will be held at the Mud Creek Clinic, Wednesday, Dec. 17, at 11. The program, which will include a film and discussion, is geared toward the elderly but everyone is welcome. A nurse will be available to answer questions, and pamphlets will be handed out giving hints to help handle medications responsibly. Transportation can be arranged by calling the Wheelwright Senior Citizen Center or Mud Creek

The Senior Citizens Center and the clinics are cooperating to provide this program because they are aware of the need for the public to take medications seriously in order to avoid possible problems, and problems taking medications can easily occur. Keeping track of when to take daily medications can be difficult especially for the elderly person who might have a number of prescriptions. Problems also occur if persons fail to tell the doctor what drugs they are currently taking. The doctor, for example, may prescribe a type of drug that conflicts with one of the present medications.

The program is designed to give ideas to help avoid these problems and to give information on concerns ranging from how to get easier-to-open lids for prescription containers to what do do if medications cause side effects.

IN APPRECIATION

The family of Mary Anne Adkins, of Wayland, would like to thank everyone who sent flowers, visited, brought food, and gave of their love and prayers to be of help to the family in the loss of our loved one. We also want to thank Rev. Gus Andrews and the members of the Church of Christ of Hueysville for their words of comfort and beautiful music and Hall Funeral Home for their efficient service.

Leisure Time

For most of us, there are just two things to do with money-save it or spend it (with a heavy emphasis on the latter). There is another possibility: collect it.

Coin collecting as a hobby goes back thousands of years, as far back as coins themselves. It has increased significantly in the last several years for the same reason art or antique collecting has. Coin collecting can be an excellent hedge inflation.

Collectors maintain that the value of their coins has increased far more than has the stock market. They also note that coin collecting usually dees not require as much initial cash as art or antiques.

There is one thing the novice coin collector should know right away. The value of a coin has nothing to do with the value of gold, silver or any other precious metal. Gold pieces in large supply do have a tendency to move up as the price of bullion increases. But rarer gold coins are thousands of times more valuable than any gold they may

Beware of Speculators

Prices of rare coins increased dramatically during the early 1970s because many people did confuse the price of bullion with the price of coins. The professional speculators had a field day and many novices, who had put their collections together in a hurry, lost out when the bubble burst a few years later.

Relative normalcy has returned to coin collecting and the several million numismatists, as they call themselves, in the United States alone. Serious investors, however, number less than 500,000.

As in the stock market, the key is to buy a relatively cheap coin today, hold onto it, and watch the value appreciate. As with the stock market, the trick is to know which coins will appreciate the most.

One source of information is Coin Collecting, a magazine guide to the investment potential of coins and paper money. It's available at newsstands and coin shops or directly from Krause Publications, 700 East State St., Iola, WI.

Krause also publishes The Standard Catalog of World Coins, which covers 200 years of world coinage through 1979. The catalog contains some 35,000 photographs of coins. It sells for $24.50 at book stores and hobby shops

To become a serious collector, you do NOT have to spend $10,000 for some rare nickel. Many collectors are content to get an uncirculated series of coins from a mint, stash them away and pick up their profits 15 or 20 years later. The most recent edition of Coin Collecting, for example, notes that Franklin half dollars might make an excellent investment; Kennedy half dollars almost certainly will not.

The Treasury Department has been minting the Kennedy half dollar since 1964, and few ever turn up in your change. Many people, for reasons more of nostalgia than investment, have been hoarding the Kennedys. The result is that the Kennedy half dollar is virtually worthless, at least as an investment.

What To Look For

What, then, makes any particular coin a good investment? The factors include: How old is it? Was it miscast, an error by the mint that got through to the public? Is the coin in good condition, uncirculated?

Increasingly, numismatists are also asking: What country minted the coin? As more collectors get into the game, the emphasis is shifting to foreign currency as well.

As in other types of collecting, there are times when one type of coin is in more demand than others. A few years ago, gold coins were very active. More recently, Indian head pennies have increased dramatically in value.

CARD OF THANKS

We would express our sincere appreciation to the following people for their prayers, services, and kindness extended to us at the passing of our mother, mother-in-law, and grandmother, Mrs. Alice Ball; the Highlands Regional Medical Center, the nursing staff of the intensive care unit of this hospital, Dr. James D. Adams, Dr. Ronald Leslie, Dr. S. Akhtar, the Miriam Rebekah Lodge for the beautiful services, and the friends and neighbors on Riverside Drive for their beautiful floral arrangements and food. A special thanks goes to our pastor of the First United Methodist Church, the Rev. Ted Nicholas, for his words of comfort, prayers, and expressions of love extended to us, and for officiating at the final services for her. We would like to thank Mrs. Ball's grandson, the Rev. Ronald L. Ball, of Georgia, for delivering the eulogy, the Senior Citizens and their bus driver who were so kind to take her to the hospital, and Mrs. Paul Francis for staying with her until her family arrived. We also appreciate the efficient services, concern, and kindness of the Carter Funeral Home THE FAMILY weight in gold.

A revival at the Zion Deliverance Church at Wayland is set to begin Sunday, Dec. 7, at 7 p.m. Featured evangelist will be Arnold Reyes, of coin a phrase, much more than their Dayton, Ohio. Ada Mosley, pastor, invites all to attend.

THANKSGIVING REUNION

Thanksgiving week-end became a family reunion for Mr. and Mrs. Joe H. Arnett. Meeting at the home of their oldest son, Joe, on the Bardstown Road, they were joined by their other two children, Lolita Campbell and Glenn Philip Arnett, along with their families. This was the first time the Arnetts had been with all nine grandchildren at the same time.

Also enjoying the occasion were Donna Lafferty, of Martin, and Laurie Cooper, of Lexington.

Traditional food, games, singing and home movies added to the pleasure of the holiday week-end.

Ailens Must Report Ownership Of Farmland

Aliens who own or have a 5 percent interest in farmland in Floyd county must report ownership at the Agricultural Stablization and Conservation Service (ASCS) office. ASCS offices across the nation have the job of keeping track of how much farmland is owned or controlled by foreign individuals or interests.

Aliens, foreign governments or foreign interests who owned land on February 1, 1979 should have reported by August 1, 1979. Those acquiring land after February 1, 1979 must report the transfer within 90 days. Failure to report could result in a fine of up to 25% of the property's fair market value.

For reporting purposes, USDA considers agricultural land as any tract of more than one acre in agricultural, forestry or timber production. Idle land use for agriculture within the past five years must also be reported.

For further details, investors in agricultural land should contact their local ASCS Office. In Floyd County, the ASCS Office is located at 105 Court St., Prestonsburg, Phone 886-2802.

Candy Hearts and Yarn Stockings

No one in Appalachia could grow up not knowing the true meaning of Christmas Long on church and Sunday school, Wednesday night prayer meeting and holiday programs, children learn early the reasons for such a tremendous celebration.

Through their lives in the Appalachian mountains, Eastern Kentuckians worked hard to make the holiday season one of love and sharing.

"The two biggest things during Christmas 50 years ago were candy hearts and homemade yarn stockings," wrote the late Bernard E. Whitt, of Morgan county, in a Christmas piece for The Licking Valley Courier in West Liberty. The piece, written during the 1950s, gives Whitt's observances of his childhood in 1900.

The late Earl W. Kinner, publisher and editor of The Courier, agreed that the 1950s article was about the easiest editing he has done. Just a few marks to indicate a paragraph now and then—when Whitt got going on his memoirs, he was hard to stop.

"Most of the stores had a stock of candy hearts and a few toys, such as dolls, for Christmas," Whitt wrote. The hearts were hollow, about four of five inches, colored nicely and inscribed with the words 'I Love You.' Most were given to girls, and some men gave them to their wives. There also were candy hearts about the size of a quarter in different colors with verses of love written on them.

"These and sawlog sticks of candy made up most of the gifts for Christmas. Sometimes small dolls were given to the girls and knives to the boys.

"Tangerines, oranges and bananas were hardly found anywhere. Modern methods of cold storage were unknown, and the monstrous, snubnose trucks and paved highways to Florida and the South did not exist then," Whitt added.

"Children pinned their stockings together and hung them over the back of a chair in front of the fireplace for Santa Claus who would come down the chimney to bring something for Christmas. The children were then hurried off to bed so Santa would come. I know, for I peeped out from under the quilts to watch for him, but always fell asleep before he came.

"Early Christmas morning we jumped from the bed and ran to our stockings to see what he had brought. We found some candy, sometimes an apple and maybe a stick of Long Tom chewing gum. I have often wondered lately whey they have quit making Long Tom. It was wrapped in separate sticks in pretty silk paper. It was the best and lasted longer than any other gum I have ever chewed.

"There were few things adults bought and gave—sometimes a picture album or a Bible. There were very few things for Christmas in the stores. There was but little cash anyway, and this was used for sugar, coffee and

"How different today. Last Friday night I went through a big store in the city with an acre of floor space filled with hundreds and hundreds of things for Christmas, and hundreds of people were rushing and scrambling like bees in a hive shopping for Christmas.

"I think the business of making and selling Christmas gifts and shopping has taken the spirit of love and Christ out of Christmas. The questions are, 'What can I get to give and what do I want someone to give me?" Some people don't believe there is a Santa Claus. Fifty years ago (1900) I believed there was a Santa Claus. I believe there is a Santa Claus today, if we could only find a place for him in our lives in the busy world of today.

"I believe some people in the churches and clubs have found him in making plans and taking gifts to needy families. However, there are other places and things where Santa Claus can be found. The spirit of love and Christ can be written on candy hearts and put in stockings before the fireside at home as it was then.

"It is not in the value or in the number of gifts that makes Christmas, but in the spirit and love of the giver."

To All The People In The Interest of District 4:

The young, the old, the retired, the working people, both men and women, school children, churches, businesses, and especially to the voters in this area who reserve the right to choose who they want to be their Magistrate.

At this time, I would like to give all the people a candidate who can fullfull the office with pride, honesty, and as a hard-working person.

My name is LOWELL SAMONS of Prater Creek. I am from a family of nine children: seven brothers, and two sisters, and am proud to say that my parents are Hezzie Samons and Bessie Conn Samons, also of Prater Creek. My father's parents are the late Grover Samons and Virgie Akers Samons of Betsy Layne, Ky. My mother is the daughter of the late Ike Conn and Geneva Boyd Conn of Dana, Ky.

I have worked in the coal mines for 10 years.

I am 42 years old and a family man myself—one son, two daughters, and one grandson.

I want to take this opportunity to announce my candidacy for Magistrate of District 4 in the May 1981 Primary Election.

Your support as voters of Magisterial District 4 will be appreciated.

McDowell Wins Three Games

By C. "OLLIE" ROBINSON

The McDowell Daredevils won three games last week and now have a 10 and record. Allen Central and Betsy layne picked up two wins. Prestonsburg won over Magoffin County, and the Allen Central Rebelettes remain imdefeated.

The Daredevils won over Morgan County, 66 to 41, and on Friday night defeated the Magoffin County Hornets by a score of 81 to 54. Stewart Osborne fired in 23 points, while teammates Pete Grigsby and Jimmy D. Turner each had 18 points. Chester Newsome connected for 14 points. Mark Bailey led the Hornets with 15 points. On Saturday night the Daredevils won over the Dorton Wildcats, 65 to 64. The Devils had five in double figures: Johnson 15, Osborne 14, Grigsby 13 and Newsome and Turner each had 10.

The Betsy Layne Bobcats also won two games last week defeating the Sheldon Clark Cardinals, 56 to 46, and Wheelwright, 80 to 60. Jimmy Hall ired in 21 points against Sheldon Clark, but scoring honors went to Frank Robinson with 27. The Bobcats broke the Wheelwright game open in he second half after leading at halftime by only five points. Sophomore Dwight Newsome pumped in 28 points and Wheelwright's Gilford Hall followed with 22 points. Earlier in the week. Wheelwright lost to Jenkins, 49 to 45. Betsy Layne now has a record of 6-2; Wheelwright is 1 and 5.

Allen Central won last Tuesday night by defeating Fleming-Neon, 70 to 45. Bruce Mullins led the attack with 18 points and 19 rebounds. Randy Conley had 15 points and 9 rebounds. Wally Ridener followed with 14 points, and Tim Lawson connected for 10. Saturday night the Rebels won over Mt. ming 75 to 43 Shawn Franci led the Rebel attack with 18 points, and Randy Conley fired in 16. Allen Central how has a record of 5 and 5.

The Prestonsburg Blackcats won over Magoffin County Tuesday night, 58 to 55. Joe Marson won scoring honors with 23 points. Sophomore Kenny Music had 15. Robin Jordan led the Hornets with 16 points. Friday night, the Blackcats traveled to Sheldon Clark and lost, 74 to 44.

Pike Co. Team Downs Melvin In Tourney

By W.H.S. Journalism (Kim Davis and Karen McKinney) In the Invitational Tournament hosted by Osborne Elementary, the Robinson Creek Zebras defeated the Melvin Cougars by a score of 68-38 in a game played Tuesday, November 25.

The Zebras top three scorers were Jeff Damron with 18 points, Todd Roberts, 16 points and Ralph Taylor with 12 points.

The Cougars were led by Tim Burke with 18 points. Terry Conley added 16 points and Phillip Burke completed scoring with four points.

The Zebras displayed impressive shooting ability with the help of Jeff Damron and Todd Roberts contributing 10 points each in the first half. The Zebras had the Cougars by a 12-point margin with a half time score

The second half showed much effort on the Cougars' part as Terry Conley came in for 10 points and teammates Tim Burke and Phillip Burke completed the score with four points each. With seconds left in the game the Zebras advanced the lead to 68-38 and the buzzer sounded.

In the opening game of the tourney The Wayland Wasps defeated the Allen Eagles by a score of 43-37.

"We would run electric lights outside at night so we could keep playing basketball on the dirt court," David Turner, McDowell's basketball coach, recalled growing up in the Ernest and Mae Turner home." In the winter, we would burn tires outside and run the lights outside. This way we had heat and light. It ran the electric bill up and sometimes we burned some of Dad's tires that we thought were no good any more but they actually were, but our parents always encouraged us to play basketball.

Ernest and Mae's sons, Ray, Bobby, Jimmy "Gabe" and David, spent hundreds of hours, probably put an extra hundred dollars or so on the electric bill and ruined enough good tires to outfit nine or ten cars for a thousand more miles, but they had fun and they became outstanding basketball

The Turner brothers became legends at McDowell High. They helped McDowell establish its rich basketball tradition. McDowell basketball and the Turner family are synonymous.

Ray was the first to star on a McDowell team. He played from 1945 to 1947 and then went on to play at Kentucky Wesleyan. Next came Bobby, who starred on the 1948-'49 squads. Jimmy "Gabe" was a starter for the Daredevils from 1952-1954 and got a scholarship to Kentucky Wesleyan. David was the third three-year starter in the family, 1961-63, and became the first brother to win All-State honors. David went on to play basketball for Morehead State.

All had one major thing in common on the court. They could all shoot with uncanny accuracy from almost unlimited range. Great shooters they remain today, although their range has shortened by a few feet.

'My brothers would always play against each other and I was too young to play, but I wanted to play with them real bad," David recalls. "So they fixed a smaller goal for me and nailed it on the side of the wash house. I was about four or five at the time and I shot on that small goal until I was able to move up to the regulation goal.

"In age, I'm closer to my nephews, so when they got about four and five and wanted to shoot with me, I fixed them a small goal like my older brothers had fixed for me. There was a net and a backboard, it was official except for the size. We had a nine-foot ceiling in my parents' home and we would go in there during the winter and put up the goals and shoot."

Shooting on the smaller goals paid off for the next generation of Turners at McDowell. Ray's sons, Johnny Ray ('66-'67) and Mike ('70-'71); Bobby's sons, Glenn ('69-'70-'71), Neil ('72-'73) and Brian ('78-'79); Jimmy's son, Jimmy Dale ('80, present) carried on the family name on the McDowell court.

Glenn and Mike helped McDowell to the 15th Regional crown in '71. Glenn earned All-State Tournament and All-State honors that season and signed a scholarship with Morehead State. A reverse on that team, Neil led McDowell to the Sweet 16 in '73, earned All-State honors and went on to play at Morehead State.

The Turner sons are chips off the old blocks. They are all noted for their shooting ability. They have had some of the world's greatest H-O-R-S-E games, and have played in unusual

"Our dad used to own the Drift Theater. After they closed it down, quit showing movies, we turned it into a coliseum. We put goals up and had clocks and took turns refereeing while the others played. We were always playing basketball. Our mom has always been our biggest fan," David reflects.

Gabe's son Jimmy Dale is a 6-8 sophomore, and still growing, who had a fine freshman season and is on his way to becoming the first four-year starter among the Turner boys.

Trojans Fall To BL In JW Consolation

(A. Tackett and A. Thornsberry) The Betsy Layne Bobcats over powered the Wheelwright Trojans for third place in the recent Jenny Wiley Tournament held here by a score of Betsy Layne's Dwight Newsome scored an impressive 26 points and gave three assists and received an All-Tourney Trophy, Dwayne Likens scored 13 points with seven rebounds and also received an All-Tourney Trophy for his play. Marty Meade scored 10 points for the Bobcats, Terry Case and Ronnie Hall both contributed eight points, and James Hall and Gary Keathley helped in the scoring with six points. Johnny Little came off the bench to score five points, Ernie Tackett, four points, Steve Case, three points, Coy Samons, two and Allen Roop scored one point.

The Wheelwright Trojans' leading scorer was Gerald Osborne who scored 18 points and received an All-Tourney Trophy for his effort. Gilford Hall got eight rebounds and three assists scored 14 points for the Trojans and received an All-Tourney Trophy. David Slone contributed nine points to the Trojans cause, and Mark Curry, scored eight points and received the Individual Free-Throw Trophy.

Bob Tallent's "Tiny Terrors" To Open 1980-81 Cage Season

George Washington University's basketball team, dubbed "Tallent's Tiny Terrors" by one local sportswriter, open the 1980-81 season today (Wednesday) when the Colonials play host to Richmond in the 8 p.m. opener at Smith Center.

GW Coach Bob Tallent, a native of Langley, isn't quite sure what to expect from his club that has worked much of the preseason without any of the five starters who fashioned a respectable 15-11 record a year ago.

"We're small, young and inexperienced," says a candid Tallent, who enters his seventh year as head coach at GW with a 6-year record of 94-65. "Hopefully, Curtis Jeffries and Oscar Wilmington will regain their health, and the rest of the team improve as the season progresses so by Eastern Eight Tournament time in March, we will be solid club reaching its peak.

Tallent says the Colonials have been working extremely hard at rebounding, blocking out and foul shooting during the preseason. "We're going to have to be a good foul shooting team this year," he says, "if we're going to win our share of games."
Tallent was himself a GW player.

KENTUCKY AFIELD

"Right now, it looks like Kentucky's duck and goose hunters are in for a good season," says Vernon Anderson, the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources' waterfowl biologists.

Goose populations are about the same as last year, Anderson says, but a lack of food and water farther north should force more geese than usual into Kentucky.

Duck populations are down, but the same conditions which will give us more geese should also bring a lot of ducks into the commonwealth this season, Anderson believes.

The lack of food and water farther north is the result of the summer drought which afflicted much of the midwest. The breeding areas in Western Canada were affected, causing lower than normal reproduction among ducks there.

However, the eastern provinces of Canada escaped the worst of the dry weather and duck reproduction from there looks good, according to Anderson. Ducks from both Western and Eastern Canada use the Mississippi Flyway and show up in Kentucky each year.

The second phase of Kentucky's split duck season runs from Dec. 7 through Jan. 20, 1981. Goose season, which opened Nov. 12, will also continue through Jan. 20.

Duck hunters will again use the point system to determine bag and possession limits. Under this system, each species of duck is assigned a point value and the hunter reaches his daily limit when the point value of the last duck taken, added to the total point values of the other ducks taken during that day, reaches or exceeds 100 points.

The possession limit is the maximum number of ducks of those species and sexes which could have legally been taken in two days.

Point values are unchanged from last year, but in case you don't remember all of them, canvasbacks are 100 point ducks, while hen mallards, black ducks, wc_d ducks, hooded mergansers and redheads are worth 70 points each. Pintails, bluewinged teal, cinnamon teal, greenwinged teal, gadwalls, shovelers, scaup, widgeons and all other mergansers except the hooded are 10 point birds. Drake mallards and all other duck species are 25-point ducks.

Coots have a point value of zero but there is a daily limit of 15 and a possession limit of 30 on these birds.

The daily limit on geese five, with no more than two Canada geese and two white-fronted geese allowed in the daily bag. The possession limit is 10 geese in any combination which does not include more than four Canada and four white-fronted geese.

In addition to a valid Kentucky hunting license, waterfowl hunters must also carry a federal duck validated by the hunter's signature across the face stamp. Duck stamps are sold at post offices

A complete rundown of state and federal waterfowl hunting regulations is available from the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, Frankfort, Ky. 40601. Ask for the 1980-81 Waterfowl Hunting Guide.

Strip-Mine Permit Deadline Extension Still in Effect

The state Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection is continuing to accept applications for surface-mining permits under the interim regulatory program, Secretary Jackie Swigart said last Legislation approved by the 1980 General Assembly set a moratorium on permit applications under the interim program as of Dec. 1. That deadline was eliminated, however, as the result of a restraining order issued in the Martin circuit court, Oct. 31.

Elmore Grim, commissioner of the department's Bureau of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement, said applications will be accepted and processed until the restraining order is dissolved or a further order issued by

The restraining order issued by Martin Circuit Judge W. B. Hazelrigg prohibits the state from resubmitting its proposed permanent regulatory program to the federal Office of Surface Mining but requires the department to continue working on the program.

Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus announced partial approval of Kentucky's regulatory program during a visit to Frankfort Oct. 13. The schedule calls for revisions to be submitted by Dec. 22, with a decision to be announced Jan. 3 on whether to grant primacy, or primary responsibility for surface mining, to Kentucky.

The restraining order says the department must continue the permitting and enforcement provisions of the interim program, under which responsibility for surface coal mining is shared by the federal surface mining office and the state.

HOLD JOINT PROGRAM

Members of the Annie Allen and 'Mommie" Ransdall Circles of the Irene Cole Memorial (First) Baptist W.M.U. held a joint Christmas dinner and program at the church annex Monday evening, December 1. Following the dinner, Mrs. Sarah Laven, president of the Annie Allen Circle, read the watchwords, "Neighbors together with God," and discussed the Week of Prayer which was observed last week. Mrs. Lucy Ransdall reported that a package of church quarterlies had been mailed to the group of Indians in New Mexico which is being helped by the group, and added that used clothing and toys were needed for these people. Mrs. Nawonie Conley read a letter from Miss Mary H. Sampson, missionary in Taiwan, to Mrs. Ransdall, thanking her and the other members of the circle for their help, and telling of her work there. It was decided that $10.00 would be sent to Miss Sampson as a Christmas gift. Mrs. Lois Williams reported on the progress made by the G. A. church group, which she sponsors. Mrs. Conley thanked the members for their remembering her when she underwent surgery at a Lexington hosptal.

Mrs. Lucy Regan was assisted by Mrs. Helen Clark in the presentation of the program for the evening. A candlelight service, the theme of which was, "I am the Light of the world," was presented by the members. Prayers for missionaries in foreign fields was held.

Fruit for the shut-ins was brought and distributed. Present for the dinner were, the Rev. Dean Pack and daughter, Kara, and for the dinner and meeting, a guest, Miss Myrtle Pugsley, and members, Mesdames Julia Harrington, Lois Williams, Lucy Ransdall, Patsy Evans, Ruth Isbell, Susie Ryan, Beatrice Collins, Versa Moore, Eva Collins, Ora Bussey, Nawonie Conley, Docia Woods, Janice Pack, Maman Leslie, Goldia Williams, Sarah Laven, Ora Lee Wireman, and Helen Clark. The next regular meeting will be held Monday evening, January 5.

Pikeville College announces a change in procedure in their Homecoming plans this year beginning on Friday, December 12. Because of a scheduling conflict with Cumberland College, the Homecoming basketball game will follow rather than precede the Homecoming Dance as it always has in previous years. The dance will be held on Friday from 8 p.m. until midnight at the Blue Goose. It will be formal and open to alumni and students at no charge. It is sponsored by the Student Government Association (SGA), and is under the direction of Lyle Blackburn, vice-president of the SGA.

Saturday's game against Cumberland College, KIAC rivals to the Bears, will also be in the evening beginning at 7:30 at the gym on the lower campus.

During halftime, the Homecoming Queen and her Court will be presented as customary. Former Homecoming Queens, basketball players and cheerleaders will also be honored. Finally, Ed Elder and Bob Tarbeck will be made honorary members of the Alumni Association at halftime. These awards will be made in recognition of their outstanding support of the Pikeville College Bears and the cheerleaders. Saturday, the 13th, is a day packed with Homecoming activity beginning with an Alumni Association meeting at 10 a.m. in the Harman House. At 2 p.m. the traditional Homecoming Parade will begin with alumnus Donnis Butcher leading the parade as grand marshall. A pre-game dinner in the college cafeteria will offer former Georgetown basketball coach Bob Davis as principal speaker.

On Sunday, December 14, alumni are invited to attend services at the First Presbyterian Church of Pikeville. Later, at 2 p.m. a Christmas concert is to be held in Faith Chapel on campus. It will feature the Pikeville college Chorale under Jeffrey Sandborg, assistant professor of music, and the Symphonic Wind Ensemble under the direction of Dr. Stanley Schumacher. Jim Andy Caudill will direct two jazz arrangements of popular Christmas music. The concert is being dedicated to the alumni of Pikeville college this

U.S. Census Bureau To Take Employment Survey, Dec. 15-19

Local representatives of the Bureau of the Census will conduct a survey of employment in this area during the work week of December 15-19, 1980, Joseph R. Norwood, director of the Bureau's Regional Office in Charlotte, N.C., announced this week.

The survey is conducted for the U.S. Department of Labor in a scientifically designed sample of approximately 84,000 households throughout the United States. Employment and unemployment statistics based on results of this survey are used to provide a continuing measure of the economic health of the nation.

For example, in October the survey indicated that of the 105.2 million men and women in the civilian labor force, 97.2 million were employed. The nation's unemployment rate was 7.6 percent, about the same as in the prior 2 months.

Information supplied by individuals participating in the survey is kept strictly confidential by law and the results are used only to compile statistical totals. Interviewers who will visit households in this area include Patricia A. Walters, of East Point

Energy Adventure Slated At PHS

"Energy Adventure," a fast-paced presentation describing current energy issues, will appear at 9:40 a.m., Thursday, Dec. 11, in the Prestonsburg high school auditorium according to Bert Layne, asst. principal.

Produced by Oak Ridge Associated Universities (ORAU), "Energy Adventure" answers questions about where energy comes from, how it is used, and why it is becoming scarce and expensive. This ORAU presentation is sponsored by Ashland Oil, Inc.

Focusing on an array of colorful graphic and electronic teaching devices, "Energy Adventure" features a see-saw that demonstrates the principle of supply and demand, a wisecracking gasoline pump, and a hand pump to compare human energy with other energy forms. Audience members participate in most of the demonstrations.

Debbie Cagle, the ORAU teacher-demonstrator, uses these electronic teaching aids to put complex energy issues in a fresh and entertaining perspective. Debbie, who holds a degree from Tennessee Tech., has received special additional training from ORAU about the complexities of energy.

The "Energy Adventure" unit is one of 32 similar energy exhibits appearing daily at high schools throughout the country. Part of an extensive traveling exhibits program designed to bring a greater understanding of energy and its impact, "Energy Adventure" is modeled after other ORAU programs, "This Atomic World," and "Energy Today and Tomorrow."

ORAU is a nonprofit education and research consortium of 50 colleges and universities.

School Thieves Fail To Get Clark Funds

"I don't know if it was vandalism or if they were after money—perhaps a bit of both," Clark School Principal John Pitts said of a break-in at the school last Thursday night. If it was money, though, the thief or thieves went away empty-handed.

After entering the building by breaking a window, the intruders broke into a trophy case and then apparently used some of the trophies to break into the school office and a paper-dispensing machine there, it was reported.

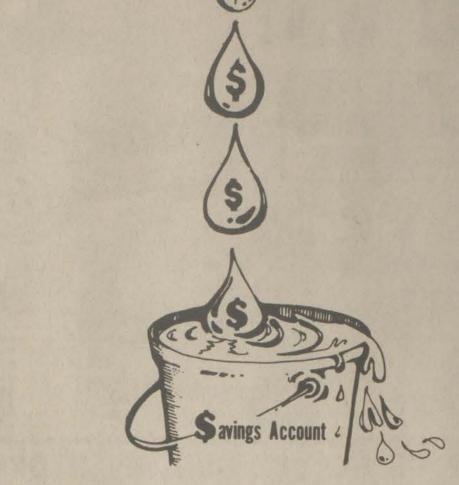

Cash is removed daily from the school's dispensing machines, Pitts said, and no money was taken.

Samples of blood, apparently spilled when the window was shattered to gain entry, were taken for analysis by state police

Getting Hooked On Cable

By Jeffrey Curtis

If the fledging yet rapidly growing cable television industry has not infiltrated your home as of yet, sit tight, it may be just a commercial break away. Reports indicate that the $3.5 billion industry will be in the living rooms of 30 percent of American homes by 1982. By 1995, nearly 50 percent of all American homes will be wired, with over 90 percent having the capability of being so. Why has cable become so immensely popular and, specifically, why has it become so of late after more than 20 years of lazing about, stretching and yawning?

The initial interest in cable television was due to the poor reception in mountainous and rural areas. Early cable television investors began to see potential in the new industry and had visions of a wired America with countless entertainment alternatives. They waited and waited for the industry to skyrocket but, unfortunately, so did the rest of us. The big boom that was supposed to be, turned out to be rather like a long sigh. Until recently. The long-awaited resurgence of cable television has come at the hands of the programmers through many varied forms of entertainmentmovies, sports and special events. Indeed, a recent survey by Bob Schultz, president of Video Probe Index, indicates that 60 percent of all people subscribing to cable television are doing so because of more programming alternatives, whereas only 40 percent subscribe for better reception and UHF channels.

There are essentially two forms of cable television-basic cable and pay cable. Basic cable refers to programming from local area stations. An "expanded" basic would also include a selection of educational, religious and children's programming along with possibly weather, stocks and other automated channels.

But it is pay cable that has supplied the foundation for the recent accelerated growth of the cable industry by offering a diverse line-up of recently released movies, entertainment specials and sporting events. The largest of the pay services is Home Box Office (HBO), with 5 million subscribers paying between $6.45 and $10.00 a month. The next largest service is Showtime, with 1.1 million subscribers paying roughly the same rate as HBO subscribers.

You might wish to influence your local cable company to carry certain programming that is particularly appealing to your community. Here is a list of what can become available

Appalachian Community Service Network (ACSN) consists of public service programming plus viewing for college credit.

Attends Coroners' Training At EKU

Coroner James J. Carter attended a two-day Coroner In-Service training program held at Eastern Kentucky University, Richmond, last Tuesday and Wednesday.

Subjects included legal aspects, evidence, pre-trial identification, search and seizure, confessions, Kentucky criminal law, Kentucky revised statutes for coroners and medical examiner laws. The courses were taught by A. J. May, former judge, now director of the Bureau of Training, Legal Department, a federal and state agency. Assisting him were Bill Edmondson, assistant director, Bureau of Training, and David Jones, director of the Medical Examiners' and Coroners' Program of the state.

Mr. Carter last year attended a 30-hour, week-long course offered at Eastern State University. These courses are designed to aid coroners in keeping abreast of the latest techniques and developments in forensic medicine and laws governing them.

Floyd Unit of Ky. Heart Association Organized Here

Organized support from this county for the American Heart Association was assured Thursday night as a Floyd county unit board was formed in a meeting at Riverview Manor here.

Directing Thursday's meet was Sharon O'Brien, of Ashland, Northeast Area Heart Association director. She explained the functioning and purpose of the District association within the Kentucky Heart Association and larger national organization, and pointed out that this county's board was one of four which have been formed thus far among the 16 committees which comprise the Northeast Division. A slide presentation gave an overview of Heart Association research projects. clinics, and public information func-

To coordinate activities county-wide, in preparation for February's annual fund drive, the following were named to the new board:

Syed Akhtar, M.D., president; Delores Dingus, vice-president; Carla Boyd, secretary; Virginia Watson, treasurer; Janis Hall, memorial chairman; Larry Leslie, M.D., nominating chairman; Ken Peters and Paul N. Allen, public relations-award cochairman; Fave Stumbo and Carrie Branham, programs co-chairman, and Eleanor Robinson, fund-raising chair-

In reviewing past fund-raising efforts in this county, the Northeast association director pointed out that the "rock'n roll" held last year at Riverview Manor and Mountain Manor here was second, statewide, in the total amount of funds raised. She also stressed that the Kentucky Heart Association is the lowest in management costs of all volunteer health associations.

It was also pointed out at the meet that in the 1978-79 fiscal year, the Kentucky Heart Association through the work of local boards and support of the public was able to train 20,500 residents in cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR); screen 20,952 residents for high blood pressure; conduct 227 heart clinics with other public health agencies and the association's two medical schools where 7,831 patients were given diagnostic assistance for heart disease, and fund 22 research investigators at the Commonwealth's two medical schools with a total of

ADVENT

Advent is a season for looking back across the years to the first coming of Christ at Christmas. Advent is also a season for Coming of Christ. No one knew the exact time of His first Coming before it happened. No one knows the exact time of His Second Coming. None of us is ever perfectly ready for an encounter with the Lord Jesus Christ face to face. The watching, and waiting. God is able to do great things to and through us. His Coming does not depend on our state of readiness. God's life and actions are not controlled by our wishes, wants or desires. You and I are called to be ready at all times to be 'surprised by God'

Let us during this holy season of Advent prepare in heart, mind and spirit to go even unto Bethlehem and beyond to meet the Prince of Peace. He is ready. Are you?

Donate blood. It only hurts when you don't.

Hit By Two Trucks, Sustains Mere Scratch

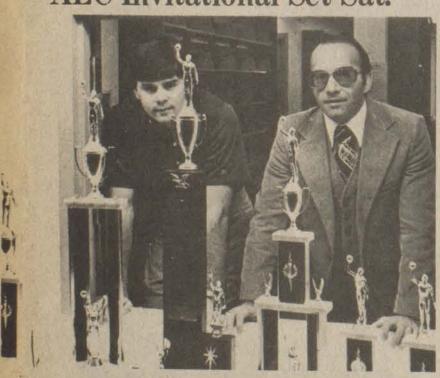

Joe Wallen, of Allen, escaped with only a scratch on his nose last Tuesday afternoon when his car was struck by not one but two semi-trailers. The accident occurred on U.S. 23 near Dwale, blocking the north bound lane for over one hour.

Wallen said his car stalled but before he had time to pull off the road he was struck in the rear by one of the trucks, which knocked him into the path of the second.

Gunshot Death Of Wicker Under Investigation

State Police were continuing an investigation this week into the death of 23-year-old Dennis Wicker, whose body was found Sunday night at the mouth of Four Mile Hollow at Mousie.

The victim, whose body was discovered by passers-by at about 9 p.m., died as the result of a single gunshot wound to the right temple, according to a State Police spokesman in Hazard. The shot was fired from a .44 magnum handgun, it was said.

State Police said Wicker was a resident of Mousie, although information provided by family members gave his address as Kendallville, Indiana. The victim was visiting relatives in the area, it was said.

A son of Frank and Minnie Yates, of Kendallville, he was born March 5, 1957 at Garrett, Indiana. Survivors, besides the parents, include two brothers. Ricky and Kenneth Wicker, both of Kendallville, and a sister, Lena Huelsenbeck, of Avilla, Indiana.

Funeral rites will be conducted tomorrow (Thursday) at the Ball Branch Regular Baptist Church at Mousie with ministers of that church officiating. Burial will be made in the Chaffins cemetery at Mousie under the direction of the Hall Funeral Home.

To Speak At Convention

Bonnie Grabowski, pharmacy director at Highlands Regional Medical Center will present a management case Thursday at the mid-year clinical meeting of the American Society for Hospital Pharmacists in San Francisco. Her speech, entitled "Implementation of an Innovative Staffing Plan for Providing Comprehensive Pharmacy Services" deals with the Medication Team System at HRMC. The system, in which the Pharmacy Department supervises the medication administration personnel, is the only one of its kind in Kentucky. "The system at Highlands Regional has a more efficient follow-through," said Mrs. Grabowski. "It provides continuity and checks and balances to assure accuracy.

Mrs. Grabowski is looking forward to the presentation before 300 other pharmacists from across the country. "I'm excited to have this opportunity to promote HRMC and the innovative programs in which we're involved, she said. Mrs. Grabowski is originally from Omaha, Nebraska. She received her pharmacy education at the University of Nebraska. She and her husband, Michael, also a pharmacist, joined the HRMC staff in 1978.

Reclamation Grant Totalling $123,230 Approved For Ky.

Kentucky will get $123,230 to develop the first annual work plan for reclamation of abandoned coal mine land under the Federal Surface Mining control and Reclamation Act, Secretary of the Interior Cecil D. Andrus announced last week

The money became available upon signing of a cooperative agreement with Interior's Office Mining (OSM).

The 1977 Federal Act levies a fee against current coal operations which goes into an Abandoned Mine Land Reclamation Fund. Each coal mining state can receive up to 50 per cent of reclamation fees collected in that state once it has an approved regulatory program and reclamation plan.

"The key to a state's reclamation plan is a priority listing of reclamation projects, a description of each project's impact on public health, safety and welfare and the total estimated cost," said OSM Director Walter N. Heine. "These funds will prepare this

Under the agreement, the $123,230 will be transferred to Kentucky's Department of Natural Resources and Environmental Protection.

A rough estimate by the Bureau of Mines several years ago put the extent of abandoned mine land in Kentucky at more than 110,000 acres, including 22,900 acres of coal refuse piles.

Upon approval of its regulatory program and reclamation plan, Kentucky will be entitled to receive more than $34 million as its share of reclamation fees collected from October 1, 1977, through March 31, 1980. The funds are held in the U.S. Treasury and are allocated at the end of each fiscal year.

HOSTESS TO DISTRICT LODGES

Miriam Rebekah Lodge No. 31 Prestonsburg was hostess to the lodges in District 4 Sat. night, Dec. 6. Dinner was served preceding the meeting, and door prizes were awarded, with Mr. and Mrs. James B. She is survived by one daughter, Lillie B. Hood, of Wheelwright, nine grandchildren and eight great-

Funeral services will be today (Wednesday) at 11:00 a.m., at the Friendship Baptist Church, Wheelwright, with the Rev. E. H. Terry officiating. Burial will be made in the Community cemetery at Wheelwright under direction of Merion Funeral Chapel.

Mayme Patrick

Mayme Patrick, 82, of Leander, died Wednesday, December 3, at the Riverview Manor Nursing Home, Prestonsburg.

Born November 14, 1898, she was a daughter of the late Charles B. and Dora B. Howard Combs, and was preceded in death by her husband, Hershell Patrick. She was a member of the Methodist Church.

Survivors include a son, Hershell Jackson Patrick, of New Carlisle, Ohio; two daughters, Anna Louise Snyder, of New Comerstown, Ohio, and Eleanor Robinson, of East point; one brother, Virgil Combs, of East Point; three sisters, Dora Lou Crider, of Lexington, Anna Stapleton, of Springfield, Ohio, and Olive Behrle, of Cincinnati, Ohio; 10 grandchildren, and three great-grandchildren.

Funeral services were held Friday, at 2:30 p.m. in the Jones-Preston Funeral Home chapel with the Rev. T.S. Biggs officiating. Burial was made in the family cemetery at Leander.

Angeline B. DeRossett

Angeline Bengey DeRossett, 65, of Hager Hill, died November 26, at the Highlands Regional Medical Center following an extended illness.

Born April 19, 1915, in Floyd county, she was a daughter of the late John Bengey and Maude Harris Bengey.

She is survived by her husband, the Rev. Jack DeRossett; one brother, Malcom Bengey, of Columbus, Ohio, and one sister, Martella Gunnels, also of Columbus.

Mrs. DeRossett formerly resided at Water Gap and was a member of the Community Free Will Baptist Church, Goble-Roberts Addition.

Funeral services were held Friday at 1 p.m. at the Floyd Funeral Home chapel. Officiating ministers were the Revs. Richard Crisp, Charlie Rowe, and Kenneth Ray Daniels.

Burial was made in the DeRossett cemetery, at Water Gap, under direction of Floyd Funeral Home.

Engineers Selected For Big Sandy Reg. Airport Project Work

Haworth, Meyer & Boleyn, Inc., professional engineers with offices in Frankfort, Martin and Paintsville, have been selected as consultants for final design and construction engineering of the new Big Sandy Regional Airport.

A spokesman for the four-county airport board said negotiations are being initiated on a working contract, which is subject to approval by the Kentucky Department of Transportation, Division of Aeronautics, and by the Federal Aviation Administration.

Design, through the construction bidding stage, is expected to take from four to six months to complete.

The airport project, which will provide a 5,000-foot landing strip with parallel taxiway, will cost an estimated $4.8 million. The 150-acre site, on land being donated by Pocohontas-Kentucky Land Company, is a reclaimed section of Island Creek's Pevler Mine in Martin county, at the juncture of Johnson, Martin and Floyd counties.

The board spokesman said 14 engineering firms had expressed interest in the project, and that Haworth had been selected after an extensive review of all proposals.

The Frankfort-based engineering

The Frankfort-based engineering group has a broad background in Kentucky's airport development, including projects at Glasgow, London-Corbin, Taylor County, Lebanon-Springfield, Frankfort, Danville-Boyle County, Hopkinsville-Christian County, and Williamsburg-Cumberland Falls.

Current Haworth projects include phases of the Inez-Ulysses road in Martin county and of new Route 80.

Traffic accidents in Kentucky are the leading cause of death among persons under the age of 25.

Dr. Stumbo Planning 34 Health Districts

Grady Stumbo predicts that within 18 months all but two of Kentucky's 84 county health departments will be replaced by district departments.

Under Stumbo's plan, counties would be grouped together to form health districts and the counties within each district would pool the resources of their current health departments.

Because of their size and history, Stumbo said, Fayette and Jefferson counties will continue to have their own health departments after the reorganization.

Under the plan, if one county now has a service that the others do not have, a trained person from that county could travel to the other counties to provide the service. Dr. Stumbo said that under the new system Kentucky's residents will be able to receive more and better ser-

"The average prson in a district health department is going to get more services for more times of the day and week," Stumbo said. "It's going to be easier access, and the types of services that are now offered in his local area, in almost every case, will be expand-

Stumbo and state Health Service commissioner Dr. David Allen are traveling around the state in an effort to sell the plan to local officials.

Stumbo stressed that no local health department facilities would be closed part of the district departments.

However, the administrators of the county health departments would be replaced by a district administrator.

Stumbo and Allen are armed with charts and figures that Stumbo said clearly show the benefits of the district

For example, the charts project that counties with a local health department will average $12.35 per capita in expenditures in budget year 1981 if they have no administrative staff and $18.38 per capita if they do.

District health departments, by contrast, will average $30.02 per capita in expenditures, the chart shows.

Stumbo says one of the big differences is the ability to attract federal

Many counties are now too poor to be able to participate in a federal program, but they could do so if they pooled their resources, Stumbo said.

For example, he said, many counties could get money under the federal nutrition program, but they can't afford to hire a nutritionist.

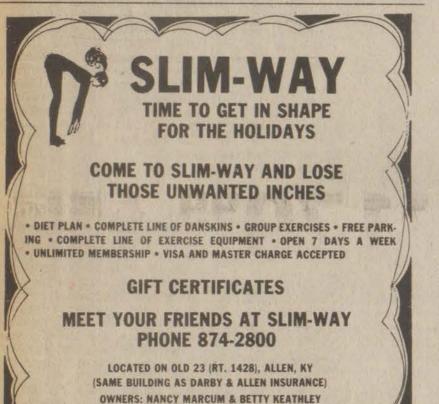

But under his plan several counties could hire one nutritionist to serve the entire district, he said.

Stumbo said no decision has been made as to how the counties will be grouped, but expects for the most part that the health districts will follow the lines of the 15 Area Development Districts.

Thirty-six counties now are in nine health districts. These districts were not formed under Stumbo's proposed reorganization.,

However, Stumbo said he is sounding out local officials and will work with them in establishing the districts.

Stumbo said some districts are close to formation, but he declined to iden-

MINI BUS TO SERVE SENIORS

A new 15-passenger bus was the center of attention at the Martin Senior Center last Wednesday afternoon. This is the second bus for the area that serves Right Beaver Creek, Martin, Harold and outlying areas. Shown in the picture are a few of the daily visitors. In front of the bus is Floyd County Judge-Executive Bill Wells presenting the keys to Dee Burchett, director of the center. On his right is Trilby May, member of the Council on Aging, and Gladys Frazier, who served as chairman and treasurer for the group in raising funds to help defray costs. They expressed their appreciation to all who bought their crafts or made cash donations to make this effort a success.

Area Job Lag Continues

Thirty-eight Kentucky counties posted October unemployment rates above 10 percent as people continued to enter the labor market at a faster rate than jobs became available.

Floyd county had 1305 unemployed out of a work force of 13,603 for a rate of 9.6 per cent.

According to figures released last week by the Department for Human Resources, more than three-fourths of the 120 counties had jobless rates above 7 percent for the month. The state's unemployment rate in October was 7.8 percent, compared to 7.1 percent for the nation.

Robert MacDonald, chief labor market analyst for the department, said manufacturing and construction industries have been hit hardest by the recession. In October, 30,453 of the 129,000 Kentuckians looking for work were unemployed from the two major Manufacturing industries had the highest jobless rate among the major industry groups, 8.5 percent, more than double the rate recorded one year ago. The unemployment rate in Kentucky's construction industry in October was 8.3 percent.

"While that is a high rate, it is substantially below the 26.5 percent recorded in the construction industry in February of this year," MacDonald

The bituminous coal mining industry experienced a 6.4 percent jobless rate for the month and continues to be depressed, which MacDonald attributed to the lack of demand for

All other major industries within the state had October unemployment rates below 3.5 percent.

Buying Photographic Equipment

The array of equipment in a typical photography store can be bewildering and intimidating. But take heart, because coupled with knowledgeable advice from a salesperson, this variety is an asset that allows you to find exactly the right devices to fit existing needs and budget.

The would-be or experienced camera enthusiast should narrow down and examine photographic interests before attempting to buy equipment. Concentrating on price can prove costly. Especially be wary of discounters who claim huge reductions off the "list price" or 'suggested retail price" of expensive photo equipment.

What the amateur photographer needs most is to find a wellinformed, sympathetic dealer willing to explain the virtues and limitations of different types of equipment. Look, too, for the availability of service after the sale, reliable warranties, repairs made on the premises, a wide stock of replacement parts, and good advice on accessories

Avoid the temptation to load up on unneeded options. A photographer, even a pro, shooting outdoors on sunny days who can keep subjects a prescribed distance from the lens opening, does not need sophisticated light control devices. Cameras without any mechanical aid in focusing are capable of producing pictures that are just as sharp and accurate as those made by much more complex cameras.

Likewise, the limitation of a fixed shutter opening can be overcome, to a large extent, by film selection, since both color and black-and-white film are available in all ranges of sensitivity to light. It is not necessary, therefore, to buy the most expensive camera on the market to get desired results. In fact, fresh film can have a more dramatic impact on picture quality than the fine tuning of a light dial. Never skimp on

Consider carefully the features of any camera before buying it. Is it bulky or compact, heavy or light? Are lenses interchangeable among other cameras of the same type? Is the negative large enough to produce prints without the added expense of enlarging each frame? Do built-in systems such as sophisticated lightcontrol devices actually stifle the creativity of the serious photographer by limiting the speed of films that can be used? Arrange to borrow or rent a potential cameraespecially an expensive or complicated model-to test leisurely at

Accessories

Experienced photographers are divided on the advisability or necessity of accessories. Some devices are just gimmicks; others, like exposure meters, are valuable additions to the photographic arsenal. In buying a meter, look for one that will operate across the entire light range of the camera and accommodate all types of film likely

If a gadget bag is desired, get one large enough to carry everything yet not so bulky as to be a burden. Adjustable compartments, small pockets to keep filters from getting lost in the bottom of the bag, and a shoulder strap are desirable

In buying a flash unit, as opposed to a built-in flash mechanism, consider price, portability, whether it has an adjustable reflector, and whether it can be used off the camera by an extension cord to create special effects.

Slide projectors range from the hand-held single-slide viewer to fully automated models. Remote controls, editing and previewing devices, and automatic focusing and leveling are convenient but not essential. Remember, the simpler the mechanism, the less likely it is to need repair. Be sure any electrical projector carries the Underwriters' Laboratory scal.

Selecting photographic equipment is a major decision. Get recommendations from professional photographers and contact the Better Business Bureau for a reliability report on a specific photo or camera

Visit several retailers and compare prices. Check particularly on their return policies and exactly what the warranties do and do not cover. Try to get a statement in writing from the dealer providing for the replacement of any equipment that fails to function properly.

Catalog of World Paper Money The third (1980) edition of the Standard Catalog of World Paper Money by Albert Pick has just been released.

The 1980 edition has been expanded considerably over the previous edition released in 1977. More than 26,000 notes are listed by date in the catalog, accompanied by more than 7,000 original photographs, many of notes never before published. The listings include etailed descriptions of designs.

Paper money of over 300 countries is 'govered in the catalog's 1,088 pages. Coverage for most nations goes back at least to the late 1700s and continues through 1979.

For the first time, the Standard Catalog of World Paper Money has been published with a hard cover. Other improvements include a glossary which explains the terms sed in the world paper money collecting hobby. A comprehensive index identifies every note listed in the Republica fractional series. the book.

All early listings for the British, French and Portuguese Colonies have been expanded. Argentina is now complete from 1884 including extensive listings of the Bancos Nacionales Garantidos of 1888 and

In the United States section, issues from the Confederate States now include specialized listings of watermark and plate varieties, series and types.

As an investment that will be used for a long time to come, cookware deserves more careful investigation.. The prudent shopper should know ow well the different types perform and what to look for when buying saucepans and skillets.

To begin with, most cookware is made of metal-aluminum, cast iron, stainless steel, and copperand each has its attributes.

Aluminum is by far the most popular metal for cookware and for good reason. It's an excellent conductor of heat and cooks food fast and evenly. Also, it's lightweight and relatively inexpensive. Appalachian Poets Rediscovered

George Ella Lyon, of Centre College, and Gurney Norman, of the University of Kentucky, are the prime movers in the new Appalachian Poetry Project at UK.

Petite George Ella Lyon (nee Hoskins), native of Harlan, has fierce convictions about the use of poetry and the value of the Appalachian Poetry Project she's coordinating.

"Poetry," she says, "is a healing art," which by metaphor can "balance forces which are irreconcilable.

Poetry can heal mountain people whose lives and whose landscapes have been radically changed, she says. "A poem recovers something you thought you had lost, and heals you by showing some possibility of maintaining your identity

Dr. Lyon, a poet and parttime English professor at Centre College, Danville, was hired as executive director of the Appalachian Poetry Project at the University of Kentucky's Appalachian Center in Lexington. She has published some 80 poems in "little" magazines and journals over the last 10 years, among them "California Quarterly," "Prairie Schooner" and 'Modern Poetry Studies.

Another mountain writer, Bob Henry Baber, of Richwood, W. Va., serves as consulting director and workshop coordinator. Baber is well known as a community organizer in West Virginia. He has edited several poetry anthologies and served as a poet-in-the-schools. His own book of poetry, "Assorted Life-Savers," was published in 1976.

In charge of the whole thing is Gurney Norman, native of Hazard, UK professor and author ("Divine Right's Trip" and "Kinfolks."

A grant of $21,000 from the Witter Byner Foundation for Poetry, Inc. of Santa Fe, N.M., to the UK Appalachian Center made possible the project which covers five states-Kentucky, North Carolina, Tennessee, Virginia and West Virginia.

UK's Appalachian Center is now in contact with more than 400 writers through the poetry project. In effect, the project has revived the Southern Appalachian Writers Cooperative, a network of writers which published three books in the 1970s

Norman, Lyon and Baber have collected manuscripts for an anthology they hope will be published in 1981. Its tentative title is "Contemporary Ap-

The mountain writers found one another through some 19 workshops in 19 mountain places, each arranged by a local writer with a $300 stipend from poetry project funds.

Writers who have conducted workshops in their communities so far are Renee Stamper, Whitesburg; Mary Jane Coleman, Beckley, W. Va.; Paulette Hansel, Cincinnati; Maggie Anderson, Glen Easton, W. Va.; P. J. Laska, Morgantown, W. Va.; and Lee Howard and Dr. Lyon in Harlan; Sidney Farr, Mt. Vernon; Fred Milner, Bluefield, W. Va.; Peggy Hall, Norton, Va.; Barbara Smith, Phillipi, W. Va.; Bob Snyder, Charleston, W. Va.; John Coward, Seymour, Tenn.; Jim Webb and Gail Amburgey, Williamson, W. Va.; Joy Bannerman, Montreat, N.C.; Mary Jane Putzell, Boone, N.C.; Madeline Flannery, East Stone Gap, Va.; Marita Garin, Johnson City, Tenn.; Jim Stokely, Newport, Tenn.; and Jeff Kiser and Jack Wright, Hazard.

Christmas Traditions, Fables and Fantasies

Many of the traditions, and much of the lore and superstition which surrounds the Christmas season originated during Medieval times. Here are a few beliefs associated with the Yule season you may or may not have heard:

If the first food you eat on Christnas morn is a raw egg, you will not be struck by lightning for the year

One must never launder a gift before giving it as this washes out the good

A mandrake tucked in the right armpit of a claimant in a lawsuit guarantees its successful issue.

Mistletoe-a Christmas decoration-men are by custom priviledged to kiss women standing under it. The diamond was presumed to give strength in battle; the sapphire, considered the perfect kingly jewel, was believed to increase devotion and cure ulcers

The ancient Christmas custom of burning the yule log was supposed to bring good luck during the coming year and the promise of long feating.

Women teachers in public schools in Kentucky outnumber men 74 percent to 26 percent.

BLINDED BY THE LIGHT

Jimmy and Kristy McNichol (pictured) make their dramatic film debut together as stars of the thriller, 'Blind-ed by the Light,' a powerful new mo-tion picture-for-television dramatizing the brainwashing of a young man by a youth religious cult, to be broadcast on The CBS Tuesday Night Movies. TUESDAY, DECEMBER 16.

sentence, and those who have served prison sentences of up to, but not including, two years will be eligible for reviews after four months.

Prisoners serving terms of more than 39 years have until now been eligible for an initial parole review after serving six years of their term.

Charles W. Weaver Jr., executive director of the Kentucky parole board, told the Administrative Review Subcommittee, which approved the regulations that the board's previous regulations governing initial parole review were "unfair and inequitable."

Charles Hagan, of the Jefferson county Commonwealth's attorney's office, said the new regulations are lenient and would turn many criminals back onto the streets too soon. He said federal prisoners must serve at least one-third of their terms to become eligible for initial parole review.

But Weaver said the new regulations were drafted after more than 18 months of review by the parole board, and added that more stringent parole regulations, requiring prisoners to wait longer for a parole review, would crowd the prisons and have an enormous fiscal impact on the state.

If all Kentucky prisoners, he said, had to serve, at the minimum, onethird of their sentences before becoming eligible for parole, the state would have at least 1,000 additional inmates, and the care for each would cost $17 a day. Construction of a new facility to house them, he added, would cost about $75,000 a bed.

Weaver stressed that an initial parole review does not automatically mean parole for a prisoner. He said a major concern of the parole board is that a parolee is not dangerous to the

According to Weaver, a Kentucky prisoner now serves about 19 percent of his term before coming to the parole board the first time.

He said of the 2,025 state convicts paroled during the first 11 months of this year, 418, or about 18 percent, were returned to prison for violations of their parole conditions.

However, only 135, or about 6 percent, were returned to prison for new felony convictions.

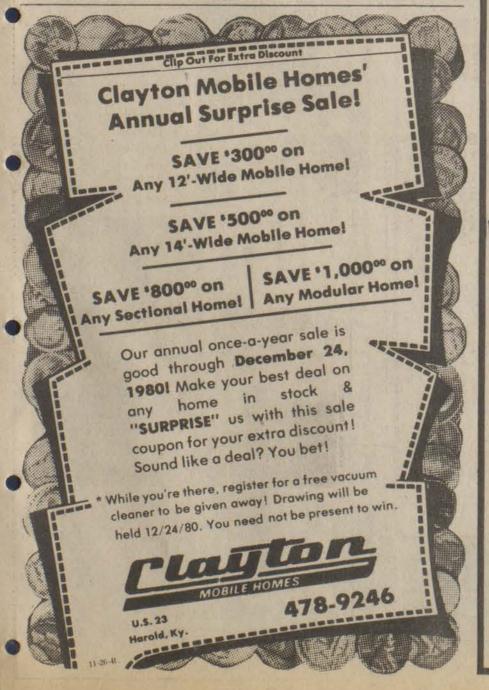

The national average for parolees recommitting felonies is higher, between 12 and 15 percent, Weaver said. According to Weaver, combined suits filed by prisoners at the state prison in Eddyville and the reformatory in LaGrange for crowded conditions have required the state to move 600 prisoners from those facilities by Nov. 28 and another 600 by May of next year. He said, however, that would not be achieved by "opening doors and dumping people out."

They will be placed in other facilities, he said, including a new 400-bed prison being built in Oldham county that will be in use by January or February.

The subcommittee, which meets monthly to check all state agency regulations to insure they follow legislative intent and statutory authority, also approved regulations restructuring the state medical review board and establishing criteria for paraprofessional and volunteer personnel in state schools.

Caffeine And Pregnancy

Pregnant women are being cautioned to watch their consumption of food and drugs containing caffeine, according to Attorney General Steve Beshear

"The advice from the Food and Drug Administration" says Beshear, "is to avoid caffeine-containing foods and drugs, if possible, or consume them only sparingly.

Experiments by the Food and Drug Administration have shown caffeine, when fed to pregnant rats and other animals, can cause birth defects and delay skeletal or bone development in their offspring.

This does not mean pregnant women who consume a lot of caffeine will give birth to children with congenital defects. No evidence exists proving caffeine can cause, or has ever caused, a birth defect in humans. Federal health experts stress that more definite studies are needed and will be sought by the Food and Drug Administration to resolve such questions.

Beshear said information supplied by the Food and Drug Administration about caffeine is necessary in evaluating its effects: -Caffeine is a drug that has been part of the human diet for several thousand years. It is a natural ingredient in coffee, tea, chocolate, cocoa and some soft drinks. It is also added to many cola and pepper-type sodas. It can be found in such over-the-counter drugs as headache, cold, allergy and stayawake pills and in some prescription drugs. Various menstrual and painkilling compounds contain caffeine.

-Caffeine is widely consumed by people even before birth because it is a compound that can cross the placenta to reach the fetus. It also has been detected in the milk of breast-feeding mothers.

-As a drug, caffeine acts as a stimulant to the central nervous system. Its effect varies with the individual and amount consumed. In many people it can cause insomnia, nervousness, irritability, anxiety and disturbances in the heart rate and rhythm. It can also affect coronary circulation, blood pressure and secretion of gastric acids. The amount of caffeine varies in different products and can vary according to how the beverages are prepared and which brands are used.

If you have a consumer complaint, call the Consumer Protection Holline (toll-free) 1-800-432-9257 to request a complaint form or contact Susie Oldham, Attorney General's Office, 209 St. Clair St., Frankfort, Ky. 40601.

Antlers Are A Valuable Appendage, Serving Deer, Squirrels, Even Trees

They may look excess baggage, but nature has adorned most male deer with antlers for some very good reasons, according to the current issue of Ranger Rick's Nature Magazine. They're handy as weapons in the mating season, serve as "air conditioners" in hot weather, and provide nourishment for other animals after they're shed.

Antlers begin to grow in early spring. starting as soft, swollen pads on the skull, and lengthening into club-like structures, the National Wildlife Federation monthly publication reports. While growing, antlers are covered with a soft brown-haired skin called "velvet." Right under this skin are many tiny blood vessels that carry food and minerals to the growing

While the antlers are in velvet, they can be hurt very easily. A male deer in velvet is careful to jump out of the way of low-hanging branches. If an antler is knocked against a tree during the velvet stage, it will bleed.

Within four and a half months or so, the antlers are full-sized. On the moose, full-sized can mean more than seven feet wide from tip to tip, and a weight of more than 45 pounds, according to the Ranger Rick report. They attain these impressive proportions in just three to four months, making them the fastest growing tissue known.

During mating, or rutting season, a

UK Seeking Old Maps

The University of Kentucky is looking for an old map of your town that you may have had tucked away for years in a drawer somewhere.

Such maps are valuable to scholars and researchers who study the development of Kentucky towns and

The old maps will become a part of an already-established map collection at the UK library.

Right now, however, UK's map collection of everything from road maps and topographic maps to aerial photographs lacks maps from many Kentucky towns.

Of particular interest and value, library officials say, are the old Sanborn insurance maps of Kentucky cities and whiskey distilleries.

These maps, mostly dated around the turn of the century, show the outline of buildings and the type of construction. They were originally used by fire insurance underwriters and are now a valuable source of historic information for a number of Kentucky cities and towns.

Persons interested in donating their old maps should mail them to: Map Collection, King Library South, University of Kentucky, Lexington, Ky. 40506. Further information may be obtained by calling Mrs. Gwen Curtis at (606) 257-1853.

The present map collection at UK is open from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday. A library staff member is always available to assist the public.

ASCS Taking Applications For New Burley Quotas

Farmers may apply for new burley tobacco quotas on their farms, any time through February 15, 1981.

To be eligible, the applicant must not have any interest in another farm in the United States on which a quota is established, have readily available the necessary equipment for production, must expect to obtain more than 50% of his current year income from farming, must have experience in producing tobacco during two of the previous five years, and must own the farm for which the application is being made.

Persons who feel they are eligible may apply at the Floyd County ASCS during office hours.

buck uses his antlers to fight other males. With a quick lunge one male will attack a rival, head on, and lock antlers. After a few minutes of shoving and pushing, during which pieces of antler may be broken, the weaker male will usually retreat, leaving the victor to mate with the female deer in his ter-

Heavy as they are, antlers are helpful during hot weather. "During the summer when a buck's antlers are growing, they act as an air conditioner to help get rid of extra body heat, notes Ranger Rick.

At full size, antlers harden beneath their velvet and the blood supply stops. The dead and dry velvet peels off in strips, aided by the buck's vigorous rubbing against trees and bushes. The antlers are now bone-hard, with furrowed bases and pointed tines, ready for the challenges of the rutting season.

When the mating is over, the antlers suddenly drop from the buck's head, leaving only a pair of bony bases from which next year's set will grow

This cycle is the same with all of the more than 50 kinds of deer in the world except the Himalayan musk deer, which have long curved teeth to protect them from their enemies, and the Chinese water deer, which have long, sharp tusks. The female caribou and reindeer are the only female deer that grow antlers.

Shed antlers no longer serve the deer, but they are a welcome sight to other forest dwellers. Because they are made of calcium, salt, and other minerals important in the diet of many animals, such creatures as mice, chipmunks, squirrels, and porcupines gnaw away at them. What's left decays and is an enriching addition to the soil, so even plants and trees benefit from

A Guide to Selecting Skis

By G. Donald Hillary

About 15 years ago, selecting a pair of downhill skis was relatively easy for most people. There were basically two varieties: new and used. That's not so today, much to the confusion of many newcomers to skiing.

Now there are more than a dozen ski manufacturers, each making perhaps a dozen models of skis designed for varying types of performance. Skiing is now a $100-million-a-year industry in the United States. There are an estimated 5.5 million active skiers; those who experimented with skiing at one time or another total more than twice that figure.

Space age technology has entered the realm of downhill skiing, an activity some found too fast moving even in its comparatively primitive

Today there are short skis, long skis, narrow skis, wide skis, compact skis, soft skis, stiff skis, mogul or "bump" skis, slalom skis, grand slalom skis, "hot dog" or acrobatic skis, skis with special edges and skis with a range of combined designs.

For the beginner who wants to go on from rental equipment after having graduated from the bunny slope, selecting a first set of skis can be almost as unnerving as one's first descent.

Evolution of Skis

Some guidelines to help the beginner pick a pair of skis will follow later; the reasons behind the changes in ski technology over the years are interesting and worth looking at first.

An important point to keep in mind is that you can't just slide down the hill on skis. Shoner or later, you have to slow down, steer and stop. This is done by turning skis on their edge and carving a path across the side of a slope.

In the old days, skis were made of hickory wood. More than anything else, they resembled today's cross-country skis. They were comparatively inexpensive, but they lacked the flexibility and camber (degree of bowing) that was later found to be critical in helping a skier carve a sturn into a snow-packed surface.

Next in the evolution of skis came metal skis. Metal skis, perfected by designer Howard Head, provided new and greatly appreciated flexibility and strength for skiers. For years the startling black-finished Head Standard ski reigned as a worldwide status symbol in skiing. Many are still in use. They are close to indestructible.

The Modern Ski

Then came the fiberglass ski, the basis for the modern ski. It provided strength and great flexibility. It was lightweight. It could be easily molded and manufactured in different ways with varying core materials for different ski performance. It was an engineering ingredient that helped liken ski manufacturing to sports car design.

Nothing has been the same since.

"Everybody got a little more sophisticated," says Tim O'Connor, assistant product manager at Head Ski.

A Primer On Skis

Where a person likes to ski is the most important point to be considered in purchasing a pair of skis, according to O'Connor.

Beginners have different ski needs than those who prefer faster cruising on steeper grades or those who like to turn quickly and sharply and dart down through a field of moguls.

If you started your skiing experience on rental skis, you've probably been skiing on short and wide skis, maybe 150-160 centimeters long. They're good for a beginner because on gradual slopes they give a comfortable feeling of stability and allow early fears to dissipate. However, they can lead to a false security.

"The advantage of a longer ski," explains O'Connor, "is that it will give you more stability and you can go faster."

"You have more ski absorbing the shock. With a short ski you can almost turn them at will, but once you get into high speeds, it's like being on a pair of roller skates."

O'Connor advises that if a beginner has progressed well and is ready to go a little faster, a somewhat taller and more narrow ski should be considered. Just how narrow (or tapered toward the middle) the ski should be depends on the type of skiing, or turning, most frequently enjoyed by the individual. The ski's profile, or "side cut," affects how it will make a turn when put on its edge.

Skiers are turning on their skiedges from 75-90% of the time they're going down hill. Therefore, the type of turn most frequently performed and the way the ski itself is designed to turn are critical factors.

"People like flashy looks in skis today," O'Connor says. Cosmetics in ski design are a big factor. I don't think anybody likes to get on an ugly ski. The ski is part of your outfit."

Grants Workshop Set At Jenny Wiley, Jan. 12

The Kentucky Department of Energy will conduct a workshop Jan. 12 at Jenny Wiley State Park for persons interested in applying to the federal Appropriate Technology Small Grants Program.

The department's workshop will assist applicants in preparing their proposals for grants of up to $50,000 for the development or demonstration of innovative energy-saving products and technologies. The federal Department of Energy program is open to individuals, local non-profit organizations and institutions, state and local agencies. Indian tribes and small businesses.

"This program provides the average citizen with an opportunity to contribute ideas on non-traditional energy technologies and make a real contribution to the nation as well," state Energy Secretary William B. Sturgill said

The workshop will be held from 7 p.m. until 9 p.m. For more information, call the Department of Energy's division of alternate energy toll-free at (800) 432-9014.

C. J. Strickland, founder and president of the Automobile Safety League of America, advocated factory installation of seat belts in motor vehicles in 1935.

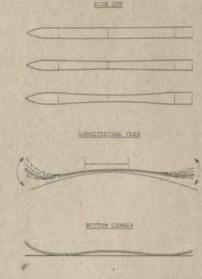

How to spend without worry.

Buying the things you want makes you feel good.
But spending that "little extra" you should be saving makes you feel guilty. And you worry.

One answer is to buy U.S. Savings Bonds through the Payroll Savings Plan. They'll take out that "little extra" from each paycheck for Bonds.

You're automatically saving the amount you want to save, without ever seeing it. So you can't spend it. You won't even miss it. But you can spend what's left of your pay (after bills) without feeling guilty.

Take

Ski turns are divided broadly into two categories: long radius turns and short radius turns. There are skis designed for each.

Long radius turns are the gradual, graceful, wide-arcing carved turns many skiers like to use when they come down a mountainside. Short radius turns are sudden, tight and quick turns.

"When a ski with a long radius side cut is put on its edge it's naturally going to carve a long radius turn. High speed and smooth conditions when you just want to motor down the mountain are ideal for long radius turns," says O'Connor.

"At high speeds, the long radius ski should have less vibration than the short radius ski. You're not making as many quick turns. You're just letting them fly."

A short radius ski is more tapered at the waist, or middle, than a long radius ski. It is said to have more "side cut." Because of that, when you put it on its edges, it is going to carve a short radius turn.

"This type of ski is a better turning ski for those short, quick turns needed for skiing in moguls or for quick, tight turns down the fall line," says O'Connor.

To aid the consumer, most skis are labeled either SR or LR for short radius and long radius.

"This doesn't mean that either one of these skis can't be used for the same thing, but each one is designed with a special type of performance in mind," says O'Connor.

In selecting the correct length for a ski, the beginner should probably pick a ski that is about as high as the range between his chin and eyes. Generally, the more aggressive a skier you are or plan to be, the taller your skis should be, until they reach the top of your head. Some skiers prefer an especially stable ride and like even taller skis, although they are somewhat more difficult to turn for the less accomplished skier.

Another aspect of ski design is flex. This is the amount of deflection in the forebody (front) and afterbody (rear) of the ski. Generally, the best modern skis have a flex distribution that is nearly equal or with an afterbody portion slightly stiffer than the front. A ski must be flexed to carve a turn or absorb concave terrain. Mogul skis are usually softer in the front than other skis because they have to absorb more bumps more often. Skis designed for use in deep, westernstyle powder also are softer in the front.

Cosmetics

Although there are many other measurements for good skis, these are the basics. Ski manufacturers, however, say that despite all their efforts in developing a modern, well-engineered ski, trade studies show that the ski's appearance is still a very important factor in whether or not it will be a big seller. Ski makers refer to the bold colors, graphics and designs on skis today as "cosmetics."

Holidays Fine for Searching Premises for Museum Treasure

By HELEN PRICE STACY

In a Magoffin county home, a woman raised the lid of a brass-bound trunk in an upstairs room. "Oh, I felt so flossy in this," remembered the 95-year-old. "See these sleeves, Gibson Girl, all the rage then."

"See," she held a sheer bit of cloth to the window, and the light made a gossamer film of her wedding dress. "White mull over silk, all these tiny, lovely tucks and delicate appliques of lace." The white satin sash encircled a 19-inch waist on that long ago wedding

KET Specials Ring In The Holiday Season

With the "season to be jolly" upon us once again, two KEt programs raise some provocative questions about the real meaning of Christmas and the holiday season.

"Christmas Heritage," airing Saturday, December 20 at 2 p.m. seeks out customs and traditions observed all over the country, from New England lighthouses to Navajo canyon homes, as it presents six different interpretations of the Christmas tradition, each hosted by a well-known author or historian.

The one-hour program, produced by WGBH, Boston, features, among others, a segment on Edward Rowe Snow, "The Flying Santa," who for the past 42 years has delivered presents to lighthouse keepers up and down the East coast; a tour of the Barenholtz collection of antique toys with American Heritage founder Oliver Jensen; a series of silent movie and later film clips presented by former movie critic Alistair Cooke that show how Christmas was first envsioned on the screen; and, a trip to the Southwest where Navajo Indians still cling to ancestral beliefs and customs, explains Pulitzer Prize winning author N. Scott Momaday.

Later at 8 p.m. in what one critic called "the film equivalent of a beautiful Christmas card," cartoonist and designer R. O. Blechman brings together artists and animators for the richly illustrated special about the meaning of Christmas, "Simple Gifts; Six Episodes For Christmas."

Introduced by actress Colleen Dewhurst, "Simple Gifts" consists of an overture and six self-contained segments, each about a holiday gift of one sort or another. According to Blechman, they are about "gifts of giving and gifts withheld; gifts promised, and promises not always fulfilled."

"The Christmas Boy" by award-winning author and illustrator of children's books, Maurice Sendak, introduces the program. In a colorful animated segment, a shoeless, ragged waif transforms himself into a richly glowing Christmas tree—illustrating the ultimate gift of all, the gift of giving oneself for the sake of others. Sendak's artwork has been animated by Ed Smith

In "A Memory of Christmas," a series of dramatic photographs illustrate playwright Moss Hart's achingly impoverisheld childhood reminscence. The text, adapted from Hart's autobiography, "Act One," describes two Christmas holidays that illustrate the gap that existed between him and his father, and how that gap was finally bridged. Jose Ferrer narrates.

"Lost and Found" brings back to life in a Christmas episode the well-loved trolley car and Toonerville folks created by the late Fontaine Fox. This segment is animated by William Littlejohn, who animated the original Toonerville Trolley shorts.

Other vignettes include: a charming episode from Virginia Woolf's "Orlando," the love story of a simple young nobleman and a mysterious Russian princess, narrated by Hermione Gingold with artwork by Seymour Chwast and Tissa David; "My Christmas," an entry from young Teddy Roosevelt's diary written in Rome on his 11th Christmas, illustrated by Chas. B. Slackman; "December 25th, 1914," a tale of an extraordinary two-day truce which took place on a Christmas day during World War I with artwork by watercolorist James McMullan; and finally, "No Room At The Inn," an animated retelling of the traditional Christmas story by artists Ed Smith and Lu Gar-that would highlight a Kentucky museum devoted to preserving these important bits and pieces of the state's culture.

The holidays are busy—each moment packed closer than spoons in a cutlery drawer—but they can also be days for cleaning high shelves in closets, pulling out crumbly cardboard shoe boxes and other cartons from dark basement corners, looking through trunks and climbing narrow stairs to mysterious attics in old, old homes.

What might be found are the things that make museums and help foster the commonwealth's important tourism industry.

What could hold more dreams and love in a corner of a museum than a doll, a dollhouse or those pint-size pieces of furniture that packpeddlers once carried as samples through the countryside.

Attics sometimes reveal a boy's sled, faded red paint and curved runners a bit rusty, or fancy ice skales that grandfather used on the pond as a boy. Holdovers of an era when there was all the time in the world to coast down a hill, sparkly with new snow. Perfect treasures for a state, county or city museum to show today's youngsters how grandma or granddad enjoyed winter days of yesterday.

Today's homes are built with living space and of necessity are short on storage for ribbon-tied packets of old letters, stacks of books, papers and magazines, and trunks.

Instead of indiscriminately tossing away memorabilia, call or write a nearby history museum, the Kentucky Heritage Commission or the Kentucky Historical Society in Frankfort. They might have a perfect spot for a spinning wheel, wool winder, old coverlet, stone jar, butter mold, dough tray—anything that has been an important part of a particular era or decade.

Many curators of museums will make room for special pieces or collections that might otherwise be close to destruction.

Sort out the country school desk and lunch pail, a schoolboy's linsey-woolsey outfit (the jeans of another period) or a schoolgirl's calico frock and apron, old painting, the letter from a Civil War or World War I soldier, the top hat and cane, the hay rake with wooden teeth, the yellowed newspaper, the magizine with Christie girls on the cover, school slate, McGuffey Reader, the coin silver spoon.

Such contributions to the state's heritage will be a way of preserving family history and permanently providing the family name a link with to-

Fix-Ups With Petroleum Jelly

Skateboarders use it to keep their wheels running smoothly. Photographers rub it into negatives to eliminate scratches. Beauty contestants smooth it on their teeth so their smiles will shine. Do-it-yourselfers keep their tools rust-free with it. Fishermen use it as trout bait.

This do-it-all substance is petroleum jelly, discovered more than 100 years ago as an inexpensive soothing ointment, and now used all over the world in hundreds of ways. And it's still inexpensive.

It all began in 1859 when Robert Chesebrough, a 22-year-old Brooklyn chemist who was in the business of refining coal oil into kerosene, heard about the first petroleum strikes in Pennsylvania. Worried about his business, he went to see for himself.

Looking around, Chesebrough Jearned that the drillers' biggest complaint was a mysterious substance they called "rod wax" because it stuck to the oil pump rods and they had to continuously clean it off their drilling machinery.

However, in the process of cleaning, the workmen discovered that the substance seemed to help heal the cuts and scratches they constantly received on the job.

So Robert Chesebrough took some of the oil residue home to analyze it and experiment. After several months, he developed a way to extract a concentrated, translucent jelly from the "rod wax."

He bottled it, coined the name "Vaseline" (no one is sure, but the word probably comes from the German word "wasser" or "vasser" meaning water, and the Greek word "elaion" meaning olive oil), and gave it away to workmen, farmers and housewives to test it. It passed with flying colors and Robert Chesebrough knew he was in business.

Hardly a home now is without a jar of petroleum jelly, and the uses for petroleum jelly have multiplied. Its effectiveness for many aspects of skin care is well known.

Less known are the many ways it can be put to good use in the home as a household lubricant and rust retarder. Here are a few you'll find helpful:

Living Room

· Hinges Folding bridge tables have a way of stubbornly refusing to unfold just about the time bridgeplaying guests arrive. To save time (and temper), protect table hinges against dampness and rust by an occasional lubrication with petroleum jelly.

· Leather The best of leather coverings for books and desk accessories will often lose pliancy in dry, over-heated rooms. To soften and protect leather, to help it retain its flexibility, smooth on a film of petroleum jelly as a lubricant.

· Stereo Record turntables need careful lubrication. Petroleum jelly is a perfect choice. It will not drip, it's non-corroding, and it won't damage rubber.

Quick Repairs

If your summertime quest for physical fitness is making your athletic equipment unfit for use, you can restore much of it to tip-top shape with a few simple repair tricks.

Has the rubber sole come loose from your expensive jogging or tennis shoes? Does your golf bag or tennis racquet case look as if it's seasoned a summer storm? Are the rubber foot pads or handlebar grips coming loose from your bicycle? Are the hand grips on golf clubs or tennis or racquet ball racquets detaching themselves from the handles' There's no reason to round out summer in ragged condition or to invest in new equipment just as the season is about to reach its peak.

Late summer is the time for quick but lasting repairs. A cyanoacrylate adhesive forms strong bonds between many like and unlike materials including rubber, metals, most plastics, ceramics and hardwoods. It's useful for bonding rubber to vinyl (sneakers), rubber to wood (racquets), rubber to metal (golf clubs, bicycles), plastics to themselves (sporting equipment bags), as well as surfaces in other combinations.

· Windows Painting window frames in the living room or in any area of the home can be messy and discouraging. To avoid paint spatters on window panes, coat glass adjacent to window woodwork with a thin should be kept rust free. To protect film of petroleum jelly. When the these items from dampness and paint dries, remove the petroleum possible rust, coat the working jelly with a dry cheesecloth. This method is simple and easier than running tape around the edge of the windows may settle in and refuse to budge at spring's beginning. Coat a small pointed stick with petroleum jelly and lubricate the grooves on all sides of each window. This will unstick it.

· Screens Summertime window screens that weather many rains may stick tight at summer's end. Dip a small pointed stick in petroleum jelly and coat the tracks (or grooves) of the screens for easy removal.

· Sliding Doors Doors that operate on sliding tracks need lubrication. Take time to add a film of petroleum jelly to door tracks every time you corrosion and rust of metals in damp decide doors need cleaning.

parts in the blender, juicer and mixer. When the hinges on an electric broiler or waffle iron are not for hinges on refrigerator doors and cabinet doors.

· Kitchen Pipes Drain pipes under the sink and other pipes in the home or outside the home need lubrication to make a tighter connection or to make disconnecting easier. A thin film of petroleum jelly on pipe threads will insure success.

· Stiff Bolts Seldom-opened bolts on kitchen equipment (or on some lighting fixtures throughout the home) may become stiff or squeaky. Brush off any rust particles and lubricate bolts with petroleum jelly for ease in opening. · Forward Glide Do this to your shopping cart to make it glide forward easily: Protect metal with a coating of petroleum jelly on hinges and on the spokes near center of · Drawers and Bins Drawers or bins that operate on a slide or tracking device will glide easily when lubricated with petroleum jelly.

· Oven Doors One solution for a removable oven door that is not working easily is: a) remove door, b) coat a small wooden stick with petroleum jelly and lubricate hinges before placing door back on oven. For a non-removable oven door that sticks first, clean the hinge areas, then use petroleum jelly to lubricate hinge crevices.

· Oven Racks Perfect remedy for oven racks that stick: Wipe off runners to make certain they are clean, then dry, and coat lightly with a film of petroleum jelly. Racks will glide easily.

· Refrigerator Care For an easyglide of refrigerator shelves, lubricate with petroleum jelly and remove any excess with a paper kitchen towel.

· Kitchen Shears Poultry shears, and other kitchen shears and tongs, mechanism with a thin film of petroleum jelly.

Bathroom

· Tracks and Slides When the sliding stop on a medicine cabinet door is creaky, smooth on a coating of petroleum jelly to lubricate metal · Storm Windows Winter storm and eliminate noise. To insure "workable" sliding or tracking of shower rod or dressing-room closet rod, add a film of this same lubricant, petroleum jelly, for good tracking results.

· Moisture and Metals Bathroom moisture may cause stiffness and faulty operation of door knobs, door locks, window locks, and exposed under-sink plumbing. Smooth a film of petroleum jelly on and into all these metal items. Be certain to lubricate the tiny pipe threads inside the coupling on under-sink plumbing. This procedure will help retard

. Tracking To be certain of easy . Wall Hampers Don't forget that built-in wall hampers need lubrication at times. Add a light film of · Stains When white water stains petroleum jelly for an easy working operation.

Storage Room or Closet

. Sewing Song The balance wheel of your sewing machine will sing while it works if lubricated with a light film of petroleum jelly. This jellied substance won't drip on sewing fabric, and will protect the machine while it is stored between · Skate Smooth Ice skates that are ready and willing to perform for you need protection from rust, especially when stored where there might be dampness. The best way is to lubricate skate blades with a coating of petroleum jelly.

· Ski Storage Treat skiis with special care. Coat bindings and metal edges with petroleum jelly before storing. · Metal Storage Metal tools and cutlery not needed daily should be protected from rust before being stored. Use petroleum jelly to lubricate tools. It will prevent deterioration and ease any stiffness when implements are needed

· Grill Storage Protect an outdoor grill before storing by lubricating the metal with a coating of petroleum

· Paint Care Small cans of paint stored for future use will be easier to re-open if the rim of the can is coated with a film of petroleum jelly before the top is pressed into place. Can will be airtight, but paint will not congeal and clog rim.

· Pliable Brushes After using paint brushes, always wash them thoroughly, dry, and then coat them with a thin film of petroleum jelly. This will protect the brush against dryness and will keep bristles supple.

RECENT ACTVITIES AT FIRST CHRISTIAN CHURCH

Members and friends of First Christian Church held their annual Christmas dinner at the home of T.O. and Orella McGuire, Saturday at 6:30 p.m. The event was enhanced by the Christmas decorations which had been made by Mrs. McGuire. Games were played and the evening was enjoyed by all. Those enjoying the occasion were: Mr. and Mrs. Clyde George, Mr. and Mrs. John Kelley and Mark, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Thompson and Paul Norman and Charles, Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Kinzer and Brandon, Mr. and Mrs. C M. Isaacs, Mr. and Mrs. Walt Staude and Rebecca, Mr. and Mrs. John Horn. Brent, Cathy and Jake, Mr. and Mrs. John Curry, Mr. and Mrs. John Cummings, Mrs. Evelyn Goble, Leona Winkler, Anna Burchett, Miss Brenda Kay Music, Mr. and Mrs. T.O. McGuire and Mark.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Thompson, of Trimble Branch, were welcomed into the First Christian Church, November 30, transferring membership from Sharpsburg, Ky. Mr. Thompson is owner and manager of IGA stores in this area. During a recent revival, Mark McGuire, Cathy Horn and Brenda Kay Music were baptized and welcomed to the First Christian Church on N. Arnold Avenue

First Christian Church enjoyed the presence of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Adams at the services on Sunday morning. Mr. Adams is recovering from a recent illness while at home in Paintsville.

Dr. Donald A. Nash and the ensemble, Foundation, of Kentucky Christian College, Grayson, Ky., visited First Christian for the Sunday morning worship service with their singing. Dr. Nash taught the adult class for Sunday School and enlightened everyone with his morning message. Following the service, a fellowship dinner served by the ladies of the church, was held in the dining hall. Mrs. Rose Isaacs' delicious turkey which she prepared for the Christmas dinner, was prepared in another delightful way for the followup meal after church. Mrs. Isaacs is one of the many fine cooks among the church women.

Cold water is very beneficial in relieving the pain of first or second degree burns and insect bites. If the burned area is immersed in cold water, or a cold compress applied, pain will quickly be relieved. Applying a cold compress to an insect bite will cut down on itching. Additional treatment with burns involves firm application of a dressing to limit or prevent infection in blistering. Be careful with fire and heat sources and use a good insect repellent as a preventive measure.

For first aid items to treat burns, insect bites, and other minor injuries, come to COOLEY APOTHE-CARY, INC. We have a full inventory of health aids. United Federal Savings & Loan Association explains the NOW account.

What you should know about the checking account

Lately, there's been a lot of talk about a new type of checking account service to begin the first of next year. It's called the NOW account. Chances are you've heard about it yourself and wondered what it is.

At United Federal Savings and Loan Association, we feel it's our duty as a leader to tell you about the NOW account today. That way, you'll be able to take full advantage of it later.

Checking with interest.

To begin with, NOW stands for Negotiable Order of Withdrawal. That's technical language for a concept which is really quite simple. You see, a NOW account is simply a checking account that earns interest.

Effective January 1, 1981, federal law will permit savings and loans to offer up to 54% interest on checking in NOW accounts.

Naturally, United Federal Savings and Loan Association will offer this exciting new service. And in future advertising, we will give specific details about requirements for NOW accounts.

If you'd like to know more about NOW accounts, savings, or any other savings and loan service, stop by any of our offices and talk with any of our staff. We want you to know more about your financial opportunities. Because the more you know, the more likely you are to have your savings and checking accounts with us.

The Years Ahead

Violence Against Elderly

Senior citizens abused in their own homes by their own families has been documented in a study citing various forms of mistreatment of older persons, including confinement, battering, sexual abuse, malnutrition and over-sedation.

Social workers now report that many seniors suffer physical injury and abuse from those who are supposed to care for them. Called "granny bashing," violence against the elderly is apparently a widespread occurrence which has, up until now, received very little public attention.

Massachusetts Study

Over 1,000 professionals and paraprofessionals provided data for a report entitled Elder Abuse in Massachusetts. Among the more significant results of the study, conducted by Legal Research and Services for the Elderly (LRSE), are the following preliminary findings:

80 percent of the victims are women
 In 86 percent of the cited

abuses, the abuser is a relative of the victim

• In 75 percent of the cases, the

Only 24 percent of the cases cited are reported by the victim

* In 63 percent of the cases reported, the victims are a source of stress to the abuser

 Almost half of the victims have bruises, welts, cuts, fractures and/or other visible injuries.

Stressful Homes

Old age is sometimes described as a return to childhood. One unfortunate similarity lies in the patterns of abuse. Victims of both child and elder abuse are often caught in the midst of a stressful home situation—alcoholism or drug abuse often play a major role.

There are other parallels between children and dependent seniors: they rely on others for the most basic needs; family members often view them as heavy burdens, financially, emotionally, and physically. As in-home victims, they are removed from public view, cut off from detection and relief.

Some seniors may not even recognize some of the less blatantly violent forms of abuse leveled against them. Family members may regularly force their hand in legal and financial matters, keep them oversedated and docile, or simply

Even when they are painfully aware of abuse many seniors choose not to report it, preferring the devil they know at home to the one they don't in an old age home. Some would rather suffer silently than expose their children to public shame.

Predicting Successful Aging

Are you looking forward to retirement as a time when you can lie in bed all day if you darn well feel like it? Do you plan to get rid of all those outside commitments and divide your time among family, friends and daytime television?

Before you answer, you might want to hear what a Duke University Medical Center sociologist found in a 20-year study of "successful aging." Dr. Erdman Palmore, professor of medical sociology, says people who remain physically active and continue to participate in outside organizations are far more likely to age successfully than those who don't.

His study, which analyzed information gathered on 155 older people between 1955 and 1976, defined successful aging as a combination of longevity, health and happiness.

"In the past, studies of successful aging have looked either at health and longevity or at happiness, but it's possible to be healthy without being happy and it's possible to be happy in later life without being particularly healthy." Palmore said in an interview.

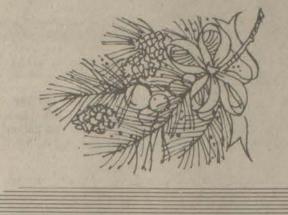

"One of the interesting things we found," he said, "is that it's not how many friends you have or how you interact with your family that contributes to successful aging, but whether you maintain your activity outside this immediate circle."

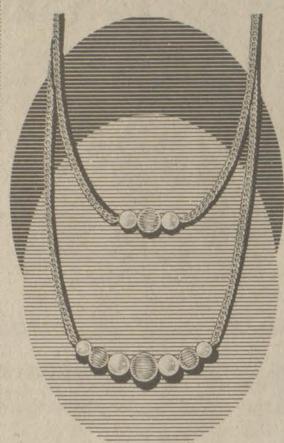

"One way to explain this is that most older people have family and friends, and so there is nothing unusual about that. The above average person, however, goes outside the home and continues his or her involvement with clubs, churches, educational institutions, civic groups, unions, etc."

Our Fragile Earth

By DR. JERRY HOWELI Department of Biological and Environmental Science Morehead State University

The fact that alcohol fuels are not new stands out in an historical article, written by Ken Bossong of the Citizens Energy Project, which appeared in the January, 1980 issue of "The Energy Consumer," published by the U.S. Department of Energy.

Because it was clean and odorless, alcohol replaced whale oil in lamps in the mid-1800s. By the turn of the century, primarily due to Henry Ford's designs and insistence, alcohol was used as automotive fuel. Despite intense competition from gasoline, alcohol powered automobiles well into the 1920s and 30s. Alcohol production persevered after the stock market crash of 1929 because it was an alternative industrial market for farm crops. For example, in 1938 some 18 million gallons of ethanol were produced at one Kansas plant and distributed to some 2,000 independent regional service stations.

Prior to World War II, even more alcohol was being used in other countries. Some 40 nations blended alcohol. into their fuel base and in at least 10 of these countries, the use of 10-25 percent alcohol blends was mandatory. In some countries, such as Australia, pure alcohol was used as automotive fuel.

The onset of World War II prompted an even greater reliance on alcohol fuel sources. Throughout much of Europe, alcohol was a primary fuel source for motor vehicles and Germany converted its aircraft and war machinery to use the fuel. In the U.S., alcohol usage surged because it served as a feedstock for synthetic rubber plants, was used to power submarines and jet aircraft, and was a primary industrial power source. Production of U.S. alcohol increased six fold during the war by 1944, nearly 600 million gallons were produced annually, about 100 million gallons more than will be produced in 1980.

A postwar slump followed and by 1949, less than 10 percent of U.S. industrial alcohol was produced from grain; the rest was distilled with a new and cheaper process using natural gas. Production of ethanol and methanol slowed through the 1950s and 60s. In the early 70s rising gasoline prices and the continuing search for new agricultural markets sparked gasohol production

In recent years many demonstration projects have been completed and by 1980 over 2,800 service stations were selling gasohol. Many recent projects have concentrated on producing alcohol from farm wastes and diseased crop residues. The alcohol age may have permanently arrived. Next: alcohol fuels information.

POINSETTIA, THE CHRISTMAS FLOWER

Potted poinsettias in white, pink and red are the traditional plants for the December holidays. The plant as we know it is almost entirely a creation of the 20th century. The poinsettia was cultivated by the Aztecs in Mexico long before this country was discovered. It was considered a symbol of purity and highly prized by the Aztec Kings.

Poinsettias were first used in Christian Christmas activities by Franciscan priests near Taxco, Mexico in the 17th century. Because of its flowering time, it was used in nativity proces-

Poinsettias were introduced to the United States in 1828 by Joel Poinsett, the first Ambassador to Mexico. The plant was named after him and called Euphorbia poinsettia. It was later discovered the plant had been previously named Euphorbia pulcherrima, the scientific name it retains today. The term poinsettia is still the accepted common name in most countries.

Poinsettias did not instantly become Christmas flowers because the plants were scarce. Early varieties offered little as pot plants; they grew too tall and often dropped all their leaves before Christmas

The poinsettia, as we know it, started with the introduction of a variety called "Oakleaf" by a Mrs. Enteman in New Jersey. Between 1923 and 1960 most of the principal introductions were sports of deviations of this original "Oakleaf". Selections were made for short growth, large bracts, better color and leaf retention.

During the 1950's poinsettia breeding became popular. One of the first commercial introductions was the variety, 'Paul Millelson', named for its originator. The plant offered a number of desirable qualities and selections in several colors. Eckespoint C-1 was introduced in 1965 and is now one of the leading varieties grown. It too offers superior qualities and a variety of col-

When selecting poinsettias for a gift or personal pleasure there are certain points to look for. The bracts should have an intense color and be free of blemishes. The true (yellow) flowers should not be mature. The bracts should be of uniform height or the plant should be rounded in shape

Poinsettias use a great deal of water. The growing medium should be moist. Check the pot daily, but don't over-

Select a location where the plant receives good light, but not direct sun. Temperatures between 65-70 degrees are ideal but the bracts may be retain-

TOBACCO QUOTA MEETING SET

A public meeting to discuss the proposed national marketing quota for 1981-crop burley tobacco will be held at 10 a.m., Dec. 16, in the E. S. Good Barn, near the Commonwealth Stadium, on the campus of the University of Kentucky in Lexington.

Officials of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Agricultural Stablization and Conservation Service will conduct the meeting.

Current law requires that the amount of the national quota for burley tobacco for the 1981-82 marketing year be announced by the U.S. Department of Agriculture no later than Feb. 1. The 1981 marketing year begins Oct. 1,

Persons unable to attend the Lexington meeting are invited to submit their comments in writing not later than Jan. 16 to the director, price support and loan division, ASCS-USDA, P.O. Box 2415, Washington, D.C., 20013.

All written comments will be available for public inspection during regular business hours at the office of the director, room 3741 of USDA's South building frequently opened outside doors. Reblooming the plants for next season is a chore. Unless there is special interest to try the technique, discard the plant after flowering. Contact John Sparks, county extension agent (886-2668) for information on reblooming poinsettias.

FALL IS A GOOD TIME FOR YARD CLEANUP

As we rake leaves and continue to mow our lawns, we should be aware of any other problem areas that should be attended to. Heat and snakes make people avoid cleaning up the old woodpile in back of the garage. Piles of building materials and yard litter (branches and twigs) are perfect places for mice to live out the winter and are cool retreats for snakes in summer. While the weather is pleasant and temperatures are ideal for yard work, take care of these problem areas.

firewood, mulch or for building that shed, stack them in neat piles raising them off the ground. Place compost piles away from valuable trees and shrubs to avoid mouse injury. Cut away or remove grass from around trees and shrubs so that mice won't nest near them and eat the bark off the trees during winter
