Stumbo Conviction In 1979 Slaying Upheld by Court

The new trial of John Henry Newsome, accused of killing Gerald McBrayer here four years ago, has been set for March 3 in circuit court.

Newsome, 32, has been returned to the Floyd county jail from the state penitentiary at Eddyville. A hearing is pending on his motion for release while awaiting trial.

His conviction of first-degree manslaughter in 1977 was overturned by the state Supreme Court last month. Upheld by the Supreme Court recently was the conviction of Steve Stumbo in the slaying of Larry Johnson in July, 1979.

Johnson died of a gunshot wound in the stomach during a fist fight between him and Stumbo's cousin, Milton, at a turkey shoot on the old Middle Creek road near West Prestonsburg. Stumbo was said to have been trying to break up the fight when the revolver he was carrying discharged. Johnson was his brother-in-law and was described during the trial as his close friend.

In appealing his conviction, Stumbo argued that the trial court erred in allowing a private attorney to assist

Holbrook Said Poison Victim; Wife Arrested

Suspicion of murder by poisoning was voiced after the death at Highlands Medical Center here Dec. 13 of Paintsville Policeman Bill Holbrook, 30, and a subsequent autopsy ordered by Coroner James J. Carter resulted in a Louisville pathologist's report that arsenic in abnormal amounts had been found in his body.

The policeman's wife, Lynn Griswold Holbrook, was later arrested in connection with the death. She now is at liberty under $20,000 bond.

Authorities say the couple had had domestic difficulties, and police were quoted as saying that Mrs. Holbrook had on one occasion told them of her connection with her husband's death.

Tests had been made while Holbrook was yet a patient at the hospital here, and the autopsy was performed before the pathologist's report had been received by Johnson County Coroner Bill Phelps.

The coroner termed the arsenic detected in Holbrook's body as being in "gross, excessive" quantities. One hundred milligrams of arsenic in the human body is considered "high normal." As much as 8,200 milligrams was found in the officer's body, it was reported.

The defendant is scheduled for arraignment Jan. 14 in Johnson circuit court. Meanwhile, the Johnson grand jury may be asked to investigate the death prior to the arraignment date, it was said Monday.

Special Parking Rate

Prestonsburg Post Office patrons may park for 15 minutes in the municipal parking lot for a dime, according to a recent city council decision aimed at relieving traffic congestion in the area. Those parking longer than 15 minutes will be charged at the usual rate.

'Squad Six Rescue' Meets 78 Emergency Situations

Residents of Prestonsburg now have some place to turn when help from normal channels is not available to them in an emergency situation. This is Squad Six Rescue, a unit of the Prestonsburg Fire Department, composed of 15 members who have to date answered 78 requests for help.

Presently, five of the squad members are emergency medical technicians, but six other members will have completed their E.M.T. training by January 1, thus making the squad one of the best trained units in Eastern Kentucky for handling almost any kind of emergency. Members attend training seminars at least once monthly that extend their training beyond the requirements of any other organization of its type.

This Town...That World

NEW YEAR'S RESOLUTION:
I will write it 1981—eventually.

Sounds of Christmas surely belong at the top of the list of intangibles, they so quickly become mere memories of distant echoes. The old carols no longer await for the carolers; each electronic device competes with the other and obtrudes on all with words and music, then suddenly quits. Period.

All very beautiful, despite the artificiality. But even as they are heard these songs of Christmas bring a sense of loneliness, because the hearer knows they will not be heard again till another Christmas.

FOR BETTER OR WORSE

Friend of mine was naive enough this week to call on me for a word on what I saw down the road for the new year. I am no dispenser of good cheer, all bubbly and up to the brim with confidence that the next twelve months will bring no crisis for us, individually or collectively. The fact is, I may at this stage of the game be a view-with-alarm.

Chief of Police At Martin Sues For Back Wages

A long-standing dispute between the city of Martin and its police and fire chief wound up in circuit court this week, with the filing of a complaint against the city by Eugene F. Land, commissioner of the state Department of Labor.

According to the complaint, filed on behalf of Police Chief Hershel Lester, the city owes Lester $25,000 in unpaid wages.

Lester said this week he has been employed by the city as a law officer and firefighter since 1971, for most of that time as the city's only policeman. He has routinely answered calls both day and night, he said, but has never been paid overtime. The present suit cites only the period between December, 1974 and the present as the period in dispute.

Complaints to the present and previous city administrations have been unproductive, according to Lester, who said the current city council appeared reluctant to discuss the issue and had made no offer of a settlement.

In addition to the back wages, the suit asks for $25,000 in damages and a fine between $100 and $500 for each time the city failed to compensate the police officer at the lawful rate. It also asks that the city administration be enjoined from further violations of state labor laws.

May, Brighton Founder, Retiring After 31 Years

William H. May, the former Prestonsburg man who is chairman of the board of Brighton Engineering Co., Frankfort, is retiring today (Wednesday) from active participation in the company which he founded 31 years ago.

Announcement of Mr. May's retirement and that of Ike A. Noe, the company's vice-president and treasurer, was made Monday by James A. May, Brighton president.

May also announced that William S. May, son of Brighton's founder, will continue as chief operating officer and president of Versailles Properties, Inc., which consists of the family's real estate and agricultural holdings.

Retiring at 72, the company founder said he plans to devote most of his attention to "the continued development

Carter, Others Draw Med Examiner Praise

Though critical of Kentucky's coroner system generally, Dr. William Hamilton, state associate medical examiner for Central and Eastern Kentucky, last week commended coroners of Floyd, Breathitt, Rowan, Bourbon and Scott counties.

Hamilton said that Bell and Franklin counties are "two of several counties where I would deem it safe to commit a murder," alleging that in these counties coroners do not think it necessary to conduct complete post-mortem examinations.

On the other hand, Hamilton listed Floyd and four other counties as among those which murderers should avoid because chances of getting caught are greater in them.

Almost simultaneously with the high rating given by Dr. Hamilton to Floyd county and the coroner's office here, Coroner James J. Carter was ordering an autopsy which resulted last week in the arrest of a Johnson county woman who later was accused of the fatal poisoning of her husband. At the same time, the investigation of the death of an unidentified man in a Wayland fire was nearer grand jury action as the result of the painstaking work of Carter, State Detective Danny Stumbo, the Commonwealth Attorney's office and a forensic pathologist with the state examiner's office.

Hamilton said training for coroners should be mandated by law. (Coroner Carter is one of 50 to 55 of the 120 coroners in the state who annually receive such training.)

Hamilton said he was not singling out Bell and Franklin to embarrass their coroners—"It's not the coroner's fault; he didn't create the system"—but to demonstrate his belief that Kentucky's 19th-century coroner system is no longer adequate to deal with 20th-century crime.

That is the main reason the 36-year-old Alabama native has resigned his $36,000-a-year position to return to North Carolina, where he received much of his medical experience and training as a forensic pathologist.

"After working with it for a while (14 months), I am satisfied the (Kentucky) system is not professionally satisfactory for me. You can't function as a forensic pathologist under this system...it's still in the middle of the 19th century," Hamilton said.

Hoosier's Extradition Expected After Four Coochounds Missing

Because a Floyd county man's four coochounds were missing, and two still are, an Indian is expected to get a free ride back to this county.

Virgil Hale was under arrest this week at Warsaw, Ind., and authorities here were preparing to call on Governor Brown to ask Hale's extradition back to this county for possible trial on a charge of possessing stolen property.

The four blue-lick hounds disappeared from the premises of their owner, Bennie Sammons, near Martin, Dec. 4. Later, an Ohio woman, observing tattoo marks on one of the dogs, notified Sammons.

The four dogs are valued at $1000, or more, since the owner has been quoted as saying he would not sell one of the four for $500.

Flu Epidemic Is Feared

"Just about everyone you meet seems to have a virus of some kind," noted Earl Compton, director of the Floyd Health Department, "but how many are flu viruses as distinct from common colds, I couldn't say."

There have been as yet no reports in this county of Type A influenza, otherwise known as "the Bangkok flu," though reporting of this kind of thing is somewhat sporadic, he added.

Some area hospitals are reporting increased numbers of flu victims seeking emergency room treatment, though viruses are not routinely typed here and, in any case, the time taken to complete viral studies—about a month—would make this relatively ineffective for predicting the outbreak of an epidemic in the area, it was said.

While Edward Collins, administrator at McDowell Appalachian Regional Hospital, said there has been little increase in emergency room activity there, spokesmen for Our Lady of the Way Hospital at Martin and Highlands Regional Medical Center report higher than normal numbers with flu symptoms.

"We sure have a flu problem—our emergency room was very busy last week," said Robert Rigel, administrator at the Martin hospital. Last week was also a busy one at Highlands, said Dr. Mark Watson, a physician in the emergency room there. Almost a quarter of those he treated last Saturday were flu victims.

The recent discovery of Type A influenza in Huntington has prompted some observers there to predict a possible major flu epidemic in the region this year. The flu season is generally reckoned to run from November through March.

Dr. Watson estimates he has treated about twice as many flu patients at Highlands this year as in the corresponding period last year. Typical symptoms, he said, are a cough, fever, pain in the joints and muscles, tiredness, vomiting and diarrhea.

By the time many patients visit hospital emergency rooms their illness is compounded by pneumonia, bronchitis or other respiratory tract ailments, he noted. A more appropriate response to the flu, he said, is for the victim to consult his or her family doctor at the first appearance of symptoms.

Many physicians advise that people over 50 and those with heart or respiratory problems be vaccinated against the flu. The vaccine currently in use protects against the three major strains of flu anticipated in a given season. Those vaccinated are said to become resistant two or three weeks after vaccination.

Floyd Horseman Brings Racing to E. Ky.

Early morning dew glistens as sleek thoroughbreds graze and frolic in an open field. Stable doors creak open and a well-muscled stallion is led from its stall by a trainer for a walk.

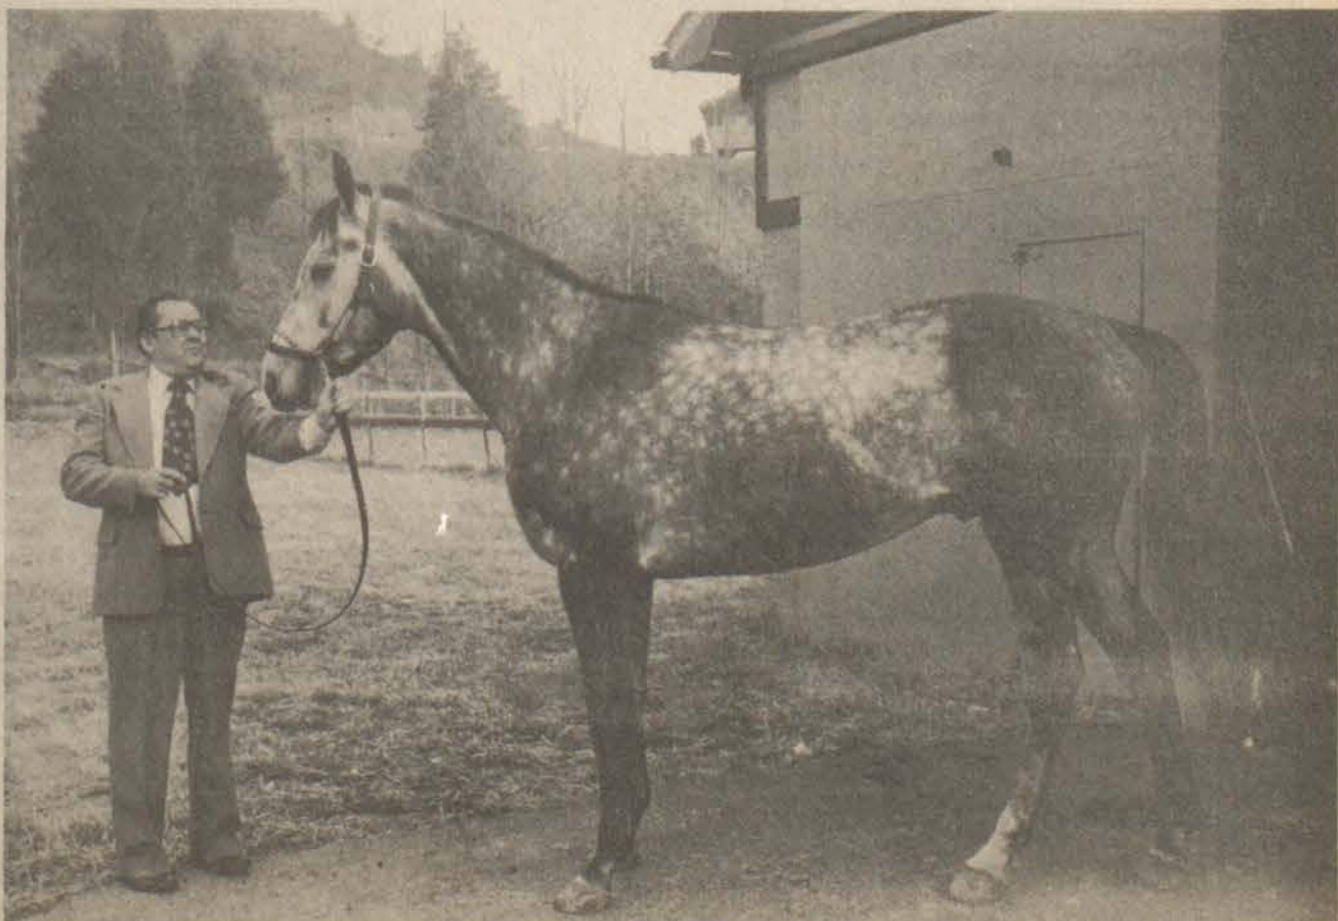

The scene evokes images of the Kentucky Bluegrass, but the gently-rolling countryside and placid vistas of that region are conspicuously absent—instead, the skyline is ringed by stark hills and saw-tooth ridges, and the rumble of a coal truck adds to an already incongruous scene.

The place is Mud Creek and although separated by little more than 100 miles from the Bluegrass with its remnants of an aristocratic, Old South environment, the stable of Cline Mitchell, near Harold, is still a world away. But the thoroughbreds which are boarded, trained, fed and pampered there could care less about the terrain and the coal trucks, and their wins on the track bear that out.

It was just a year ago that Mitchell, former Grethel lumberman and coal operator, became involved with thoroughbred horses. A racing enthusiast for some time, he discussed the possible purchase of some horses with his brother-in-law, Link Hamilton, who had returned to the area after 20 years in Columbus, Ohio.

And, according to Mitchell, "We just took a notion to buy us a bunch, so that's what we did."

Mrs. Pate, a native of Texas and holder of a Master of Religious Education degree from the Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary, has exhibited in Michigan, Indiana, West Virginia and Texas, although the current display of her work here constitutes her first "one man" art show.

Mrs. Pate is married to John F. Pate and has four children.

Clifton Honored Posthumously

Trooper Jerome S. Clifton has been posthumously awarded the Kentucky State Police Guthrie Crowe Medal.

The medal was presented to Mrs. Freda Clifton, widow of the trooper, by Gov. John Y. Brown, Jr. at formal decoration ceremonies held Dec. 19 in Frankfort. A total of 28 medals were presented to 26 state police officers.

The Guthrie Crowe Medal is named after the first state police commissioner and is given to troopers who are injured in the line of duty.

Clifton died Oct. 1, victim of a gunshot wound received three weeks earlier in Pike county. He was wounded while assisting other state police officers who were attempting to disarm a suspect who had barricaded himself and his two children in a house after allegedly shooting his wife.

State police detective Don K. Weedman was also wounded in that incident.

Clifton was a Floyd county native who attended Prestonsburg High School. He entered the state police academy in July, 1971. After being sworn in as a trooper, he was assigned to the Pikeville post where he served until his death.

East Point Lodge Elects '81 Officers

East Point Lodge 657, F. & A.M. elected the following officers for the coming year at a meeting, December 27:

Master, Jerry Pelphrey; senior warden, Loyal D. Tackett; junior warden, Palmer Gillespie; secretary, W. L. Baldrige; treasurer, Ralph G. Hager; chaplain, Tom Leake; Tyler, Tom Howard; senior deacon, Darrell Stephens; junior deacon, John F. Compton, and stewards, Denver Akers and Herman Wells.

Abraham Lincoln made only one political speech in his native state, an effort made for presidential candidate William Henry Harrison in 1840. He led a parade from Shawneetown, Ill. across to Union County. The cannon used for the salute burst upon being fired; its breech is at the Kentucky Historical Society Museum in Frankfort.

Permits To Mine Issued

The division of permits in the state Department of Natural Resources and Environmental Protection issued 198 mining permits during November, and of these only seven were for Floyd county acreage.

The number and type of permits issued included 85 original permits, 79 revision permits, 18 amendment permits, one renewal permit, two repermits and 13 succession permits. Of the total issued, 122 were for surface-mining operations, 58 were for underground mining operations, 12 for preparation-plant facilities and refuse areas and six were four-haul roads.

Permitting activities for November authorized the disturbance of 5,265.3 new acres of land and resulted in the collection of $290,955 in fees.

On Floyd county land were:

Surface mine permits to Cager Branch Coal Co., 12.7 acres, and Western Coal Co., 220 acres. Five permits for underground mines in this county were issued to Turner Coal Co., 1 acre; T. & H. Coal Co. 1.9 acres; Lower Hurricane Mining, 6.9 acres; D. M. T. Coal Co., 3.7 acres; Mine Branch Coal Co., 1.8 acres.

During November seven permits were issued for Johnson county, 12 for Knott county, four for Magoffin, 24 for Martin and 19 for Pike.

Reagan Backer Won 1-Cent Piece Worth $118 as Rare Coin

Former Floyd countian Mickey Childers has no complaints about the way the presidential election went. First of all, the avid Reagan supporter had the satisfaction of seeing his choice win, and secondly, he himself won a bet made with a fellow employee at Atlas Crankshaft Company in Fostoria, Ohio.

Childers, who is the son of the late Ballard and Maude Mosley Childers, of Emma, said he didn't really expect the loser, Paul Comer, to ante up, but Comer insisted. A few days later, he showed up with 10,000 pennies of which Childers will bank only 9,999, for he doubled his money when he found a 1921 serial S penny worth $118 in the pile.

So it is that a bet not taken too seriously and payment made as a joke, have wound up a profitable venture for Childers. He has been a guest on Channel 13, WTVG television in Toledo, Ohio, and the subject of feature articles in at least two Ohio papers.

"I really would like to attend the inauguration, and I hope someone in Washington will see some of the publicity," Childers said last week.

He was here visiting friends and relatives.

A NEW THREAT

Now comes word of a new holiday. We already have a glut of Days and Weeks... Dog Days, for example, Be-Kind-to-Animals Week, and so on. This one on which I report is in the finest holiday tradition; it's so unimportant for most of us.

This day, which could eventually close postoffices, banks, courthouses, pawnshops and the like, will (if it is proposed) be observed on August 13, each year, as International Left-handers' Day.

Left-handers International was founded only a few years ago and it already has 8000 members. Ex-President Gerald Ford is on its board of trustees. The organization publishes a quarterly magazine and does a good job of discouraging the use of the word, "left," in the negative sense. That, for example, would eliminate such terms as "leftovers," "left out," and the like. It has for its motto, "Left On," and its Bill of Lefts contains 10 articles.

They had a Left-handers' convention in Kansas City last year, and, naturally, nobody was left out.

I am not, by nature, a jinner but would enlist in this one for the duration if I could qualify. But I am a right-hander and I fear I may be—er, left out. Unless I can qualify with a dance floor reputation of having two left feet.

Whether swinging from the starboard or port side of the plate, hope you all will stand in there and take your cuts during 1981... Happy, prosperous New Year!

Alleges Unfair Dealings

I think I probably speak for more people than just myself when I say that some utility companies, landlords and businesses here in eastern Kentucky employ unfair and underhanded business practices.

It is not unusual to find that utility companies continue to send bills month after month to a person after he or she has vacated a property and notified such company to read meters and cut off utilities. (I wonder if this is a ruse set up with some landlords to get the utility payments made while a property is vacant?) Also, utility companies neglect to refund deposits made by customers. When erroneous billings are brought to their attention, little is done to assure fair and courteous service to the consumer. I am thinking of one such recent experience with the Martin Gas Co. which has billed me since being notified on Sept. 30 to discontinue service, as I intended to move...

Landlords are unfair to tenants, also, I had to bring legal action against one before he would return all of my deposit; he had no cause for keeping it, other than he maintained that the apartment had not been cleaned. But I had given him early notice that I was moving, so he could have another renter ready. Boy, was he ready! The landlord allowed the renters to move in on me even before I finished moving out! I don't know how he could expect one to clean up under such circumstances.

I walked into a grocery one day and bought a cart of groceries; as I checked out, the cashier came to the two boxes of jello, plainly marked 2/45c. She said, "These are two for seventy-five cents, 2/75c." I told her I didn't want them. Then she finally came to the four yellow apples that were marked in produce at 15 cents each; she said, "These are four for $1.38." I said, "Lady, the jello and the apples are 2/45c and 4 for 60; that's the price marked on them. If you raise that price, you will have violated a federal law and this store could be sued for such action."

Anyway, the point I wish to make concerning such incidents is that consumers do have rights and they should assert them.

I would suggest to them that when they deal with utility companies, do as follows:

- (1) Keep all receipts and cancelled checks. (2) Watch the dates of service on the billing receipts. Very important! (3) Refuse to pay bills you do not owe.

the commonwealth's attorney in prosecuting the case. Commonwealth's Attorney James Allen questioned potential jurors and sat at the lawyers' table during the trial, which was otherwise prosecuted by Lester Burns, private counsel retained by Johnson's mother.

Remarks made by Burns during cross-examination and closing argument were prejudicial to him and calculated to inflame the jury, Stumbo argued. He complained that Burns referred to the victim as "the dead boy" ten times during the trial, repeatedly shouted at witnesses, flourished the murder weapon in the faces of jurors and witnesses, called Stumbo "Johnny Murder Boy," referred to Johnson's death as "an execution" and "cold-blooded murder," characterized the defense as "a cock and bull story," asked for a guilty verdict to prevent murder cases from being "stacked up" in Floyd county, opined in his closing argument that Stumbo "committed the crime of murder," asked questions of defense witnesses he knew would be denied and for which no proof would be offered, and repeated questions previously ruled inadmissible.

The Supreme Court ruled that Burns was properly allowed to assist in the prosecution and that, while some of his conduct during the trial was improper, it did not substantially prejudice the trial.

According to the court opinion, "the most serious lapse in prosecutorial discipline occurred when Mr. Burns asked questions of Milton Stumbo in cross-examination calculated to put matters before the jury that were not in evidence." The court concluded, however, that the admonition given the jury by the trial judge "effectively cured the prejudice resulting" from Burns' misconduct.

Evidence of Stumbo's guilt in intentionally causing Johnson's death "is not overwhelming," the Supreme Court concludes. However, the court notes, the jury found the defendant guilty of first degree murder. He received a 20-year prison sentence for the crime.

Stumbo's attorney, Gary Johnson, said this week he has asked for a rehearing of the appeal and is considering other legal remedies. Stumbo has been free on bond pending the outcome of his appeal.

(4) When moving, notify the company of the date you wish meters to be read, in writing and in advance. Certify your letter.

(5) After you have moved, check back in a few days to see if your name has been removed from the company's billing, for your previous address. (Landlords may want the billing to continue in your name, so they won't have to pay for the service while the house is unoccupied.)

(6) Ask the company to notify you in writing as to the date it will or it has discontinued service in your name.

(6) If you receive unfair and dishonest treatment, here are some persons and agencies to whom you can turn:

A. Your county attorney can advise you.

B. You can go to the Circuit Court Clerk and file summons in Small Claims Court against the person who owes you. A small fee of about $11.00 is charged, but is supposed to be refunded to you by the defendant, if he loses.

C. Report the matter to the Consumer Protection Division, 209 St. Clair Street, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601.

D. Write the Public Service Commission 730 Schenck Lane, Frankfort, Ky. if you have complaints against utility companies.

E. Contact your state legislators, Greg Stumbo (representative) or Benny Ray Bailey (senator) at the state capital, Frankfort, and let them know that you need stronger consumer protection laws.

As concerns landlords, they do not have the right to hold your deposit; if they refuse to return it, take action against them in Small Claims court, too. And, whether you give 30 days' notice or not, a landlord does not have the authority to charge you for any days other than those in which you occupied his property—providing that you have not put anything in writing to such effect otherwise.

Also, when someone quotes you a price for a job or service he will provide, ask him or her to give you an estimate in writing. Why? Well, I thought I would have to pay $150.00 when I got moved—that was the quoted price. In the middle of the job, the movers decided they'd have to check back with the "boss" on that price. The result was that they charged me $230. Also, a few days ago, a neighbor had a quoted price of $200 to have his trailer moved; when moving day came, someone upped the price to $250.00! Another time, I asked for a price on some car repairs and was told $20. When I went to get my car, I had to pay $25. (Some mechanics/garages will not release your auto until you pay the bill owed them.)

So, always get quoted prices in writing when you are doing business. Then, if someone practices a little chicanery such as price-gouging, report him to the Better Business Bureau, or to the Consumer Protection Agency.

Consumers, remember that if you don't care, nobody else will. If you want better treatment and fair practices, you must expect and insist upon it and refuse to be abused, refuse to tolerate such indignities to yourself. Stand up for your rights.

Suspects Bendectin

I am the parent of a child with a birth defect that I feel is associated with my use of the anti-nauseant Bendectin during my pregnancy. Recently, Bendectin has become the center of a growing controversy due to its association with various birth defects, including limb reductions. Many legal and medical experts have suggested that Bendectin is a low-level teratogen with even more insidious side effects than thalidomide.

I feel that it is important for others in our community who may have been affected by this drug to know about this controversy and where to obtain more information on this subject. An organization called The Association of Bendectin Children has been formed which publishes a monthly newsletter on birth defects and the Bendectin issue. If you would like to receive this newsletter or learn more about Bendectin, just send your name and address to: Association of Bendectin Children, 3201 E. Crystal Lk. Ave., Orlando, Florida 32806.

From Oberndorf to Cincinnati... 'Silent Night, Holy Night'

By HELEN PRICE STACY
Is the name Mohr—perhaps written Moore today—or the name Gruber in your family background? If so you might feel a special emotion during the holidays when congregations and carolers sing the beautiful, "Silent Night."
On Christmas Day 1818, Franz Gruber wrote the music to accompany the words to "Silent Night" written by a young Austrian priest Joseph Mohr. It was said Father Mohr sat in his home in Oberndorf, high in the Austrian Alps, the night before Christmas and meditated about the holiness of the season. More than anything he wished silently for a song that would portray the night more than 2,000 years ago when the Christ Child was born.

As he thought, he looked out upon his mountain setting and the words "Stille Nacht, Heilige Nacht" came to him. He started taking down the words as they flowed through his mind.

Early next morning he hurried through the snow to the home of Gruber. When Gruber heard the words he turned to Father Mohr and said, "Your words almost sing themselves."

As easily as the words came to Mohr, the music came to Gruber. That night the two men sang the song together at the village church.

Had a church organ not needed repairing, "Silent Night, Holy Night" might have remained a Tyrolean folk song, but the following year when the church organ needed repairs, the workman asked Gruber to play something on the organ to test his work.

Gruber thought for a moment, then started playing "Silent Night, Holy Night." The repairman was so entranced by the song and music he obtained a copy and sent it across the Alps to his native village. The song continued to travel and eventually reached Cincinnati where a brother of the musician settled after coming to America to make his home.

"The song may have affected my whole life. The song gives me inspiration. It says more than words can speak," said Hazel Wiley, of Marietta, Ohio, a grand-niece of Gruber. "I think of it throughout the year and it gives me a little lift-up when I get down in the dumps every now and then. It seems to help me for the whole week."

Fiber and Fabric Care

Garment care is becoming increasingly important as the price of clothing goes higher and higher. Listed here are general tips for keeping your clothes looking their best.

Always check the care directions provided by the manufacturer on the label of the garment before laundering. This is especially important with clothing made from natural and synthetic fibers since the blending tends to lower the temperature required for ironing.

Natural Fibers

Cotton: Wash in hot water. Press at high iron setting while damp until completely dry, or use the steam feature at the same high setting.

Linen: Wash in hot water if pre-shrunk. Tumble dry, and remove and iron while still damp. Iron at high setting unless label suggests otherwise.

Silk: Dry clean unless labeled washable. Press on wrong side with warm iron when damp, or use a low steam setting.

Wool: Dry clean unless labeled otherwise. If washable, follow manufacturer's instructions. Steam press at medium-high setting on the wrong side of the fabric. Never press wool completely dry.

Synthetic Fibers

Acetate: Dry clean unless labeled washable. If washable, use mild soap and warm or cold water. Iron while damp on the wrong side and at the lowest temperature. Or, iron the right side using a press cloth and steam iron.

Acrylic: Dry cleanable or washable. Use low iron setting and press on wrong side of fabric.

Metallic: Dry cleanable or washable. Press at a low heat setting.

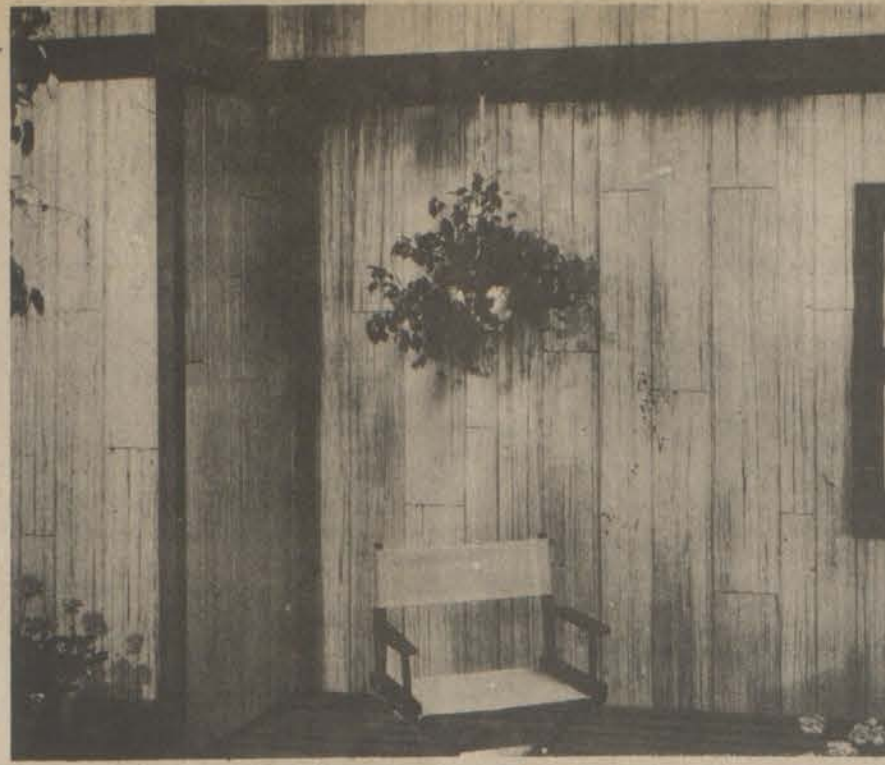

Nylon: Machine washable. Use low temperature to iron, and press on wrong side of fabric.

Polyester: Machine wash and tumble dry. Iron on a medium warm setting, or use a low steam setting.

Rayon: Usually requires dry cleaning. If washable, however, use gentle detergent and warm water. Iron while damp at a moderate setting and on the wrong side to prevent shine.

Spandex: Hand or machine wash. Tumble dry at cool setting or drip dry. Iron at low temperature, if necessary.

Triacetate: Machine wash, tumble dry. Iron at moderate setting. Use low steam setting if moisture is necessary.

A new prefinished hardboard siding simulates the distinctive textured look of redwood planking.

Called PlankSide, it is available in 4' x 8' and 4' x 9' panels in two colors: Monterey Red and Misty Gray.

Vertical and horizontal grooves deeply set into the 7/16" thick hardboard produce the look of random-width and random-length redwood planks with a coloration that resembles the effects of long weathering in the forest.

Shiplapped edges provide weather-tight installation using ordinary carpentry tools. PlankSide siding is available initially in 25 states in the Midwest, South and Southeast.

Pharmacy Footnotes

by HAROLD COOLEY

Children should not take the same aspirin dosages as adults. Read the label on the bottle for information on a proper child's dosage. Usually, it will not exceed one grain per year of the child's age up to five grains. If they do not want to take aspirin straight, children can take it crushed in a little applesauce, jelly or honey. If they are able to take it straight, make sure they drink a full glass of liquid at the same time. Another alternative is flavored children's aspirin in correct dosage.

At COOLEY APOTHECARY INC., there is always a registered pharmacist on duty to serve you. We don't play doctor but we do render assistance and offer appropriate advice on treatment and treatment alternatives. We make sure all our customers know proper dosage for all their prescriptions and other medication. See us at 2 Town Center Building, 886-8106. Mon.-Fri. 9-5:30; Sat. 9-5.

HELPFUL HINT:

Adults should not take more than two or three aspirin at one time. Follow dosage instructions on the label or the advice of your physician.

Driveway Sealing Deals

Now is the time for homeowners to be on the watch for doorbell ringing alleged contractors who want to pave or seal the driveway.

The fast talking contractors will pull up to the door and give the resident a bargain that cannot be resisted to seal or pave the drive. That bargain, at the cost of a hundred or more, may be no more than a plain old oiling which, of course, might wash away with the first rain. Or, the drive could be sealed but with a compound that might not last out the month.

All home improvement contractors and driveway pavers who are home improvement contractors should be registered with the Department of Consumer Protection and licensed to do business.

If a pleasant appearing person, with shiny new vehicles and equipment knocks on your door and offers you a made-in-heaven bargain, first ask if he is registered with the State

Consumer Protection Agency and ask to see the registration card.

Itinerant contractors skim all the money they can from any consumer, particularly the elderly who seem to be a particular target.

If the contractor cannot show a legitimate registration certificate with number, call your local police department and alert them and the Department of Consumer Protection.

Top quality paving contractors who have long been and are doing legitimate business will not hesitate to show a registration card or to provide a written specification, contract and guarantee.

Call the Better Business Bureau or check with the Building Inspector's department to check on a contractor whom you are contemplating hiring. Don't give anyone money at the outset and be sure to get written estimates.

Make Someone Happy: Mail Right

Don't blame the reindeer when your Christmas package or card does not arrive on time. Failure to wrap and mail your gifts properly is probably the culprit.

You can prevent potential disappointment by following 10 postal tips from Pitney Bowes, manufacturer of mailing equipment and copiers. They're the same tips the company gives its close to one million customers to insure prompt delivery of mail.

"The U.S. Postal Service offers many services and programs," notes Cliff Bennett, Pitney Bowes Coordinator of Postal Education. "Knowing how to use them is the key to having your mail reach its destination on time and intact."

Here's his advice:
When mailing Christmas greeting cards, take note that "oddly shaped" mail will have a 7-cent surcharge as will envelopes more than 6-1/8 inches high and 11-1/2 inches long or 1/4 inch thick. And undersized envelopes—less than 3-1/2 inches high or 5 inches long—will no longer be accepted by the post office.

Send cards and letters before lunchtime. The major flurry of mail each day occurs around 5 p.m. Anything processed before that time won't get slowed by the rush.

Use certified mail rather than the more expensive registered mail if all you're seeking is a receipt. Use registered mail for irreplaceable items, and those worth more than $200. The cost is $3.00 plus postage including $100 insurance on articles mailed within the United States.

Cushion the inner package with crumpled newspapers. Shake the gift box once it's wrapped. If the contents don't rattle, you've padded it properly.

Wrap your packages carefully. Mr. Bennett recommends using strong, corrugated fiberboard boxes to prevent damage from handling, transportation and compression.

The best way to seal your package is with reinforced tape. Use it for closures, flaps and seams.

Make sure the address with zip code and your return address are clearly visible. As an extra precaution, include your return inside the package.

You can enclose a first-class letter in parcels without paying first-class postage on the package. Simply mark the package "First Class Mail Enclosed," and add the letter postage to the parcel's package. Or, tape the letter to the package with its own postage.

If you've waited until the last minute to send gifts a long distance, consider Express Mail, the Postal Service's guaranteed, overnight delivery service. An item deposited in person at a post office counter by 5 p.m. can be picked up at the post office of destination as early as 10 a.m. the next business day. Or the package can be delivered directly to an addressee's residence.

If the package you sent or received is delayed or damaged, don't suffer in silence. Complete the Consumer Service Card, available at post offices or from your letter carrier. A copy of the card is sent to your Postmaster and to the Consumer Advocate at the Postal Service for analysis.

GIFT RETURNS ARE EASY
WITH PROPER PROCEDURE

If inside those brightly wrapped Christmas packages you discovered something that isn't quite you, it's time to work your way to the gift return line. In the past, returning an unwanted gift was routine, but recently, stores have experienced considerable losses due to theft and consumer abuse making that practice more difficult.

Several situations are classified as consumer abuse: returning merchandise to a store that sells a particular brand product and expecting a refund or exchange even though the merchandise wasn't purchased there, waiting several weeks to return a purchase, using the merchandise before returning it, and not returning the hang tags, warranties or other relevant information.

But if you must return an item, there are several things you can do to ease the task. Ask the giver to exchange the gift for you or request the sales receipt so that you can make the return yourself. Next, find out the policy of the store regarding returns. Some stores do not accept returns, and others only exchange a return for other merchandise.

If a replacement is not available, the store will probably give you a credit slip for a later purchase. But if a cash refund is offered, find out if it is for the price paid for the item or the price at which the merchandise is currently selling. If the item has been placed on sale, there can be a substantial difference in the prices.

Remember, too, that because of after Christmas sales to clear away fall and winter stock, many stores have a time limit for accepting returns. A store doesn't want seasonal merchandise returned after all its stock has been sold.

To avoid any misunderstandings with returns this year follow the store policy, returning purchases promptly, and presenting all supporting materials intact. Finally, have a good reason for the return.

Install Ceramic Tile Yourself

So you want to tile-it-yourself? Good for you, for putting in your own tile has got to be the most rewarding do-it-yourself project of them all, and easier than you'd think, if you're reasonably handy. Of course, common sense IS in order. Start small. Good first projects would be a kitchen backsplash area, kitchen or vanity counter, a tub wall, or an entrance hall floor. Then you can go on to bigger things. But DO leave very complicated installations, such as sunken tubs, to the professional.

Shopping for Tile

Buy enough tile to do the job, so you don't have to run back to the distributor for a few pieces. Choose fairly conservatively, since ceramic tile is so permanent. Avoid outlandish colors that you will tire of quickly unless wild patterns and bright colors turn you on. Find out from the distributor about the latest easy-does-it installation methods and aids. Today there are quick-set adhesives, mastics for special conditions, mildew and stain-resistant grouts, pre-mixed this and that, and special trim pieces.

Bring a photo or sketch of the area to be tiled to your dealer, with dimensions clearly indicated. Be prepared to answer questions about the surface to be tiled. Let the dealer help you lay out the job, and make very sure you read and follow the manufacturer's instructions for whatever material you're using.

Most do-it-yourselfers probably have the basic tile setting tools around the house already: straight edge, tape rule, chalk line, square, sandpaper or carborundum stone, sponge, and cleaning rags.

Then you'll also need a tile cutter, a notched trowel, a rubber trowel or squeegee, and possibly a tile nipper. They can be rented from your tile dealer for a few dollars.

Surface Preparation

You'll be happy to know you can tile over almost any structurally sound, dry, clean and level surface. This includes double wood flooring, 1/2" exterior type plywood, ceramic tile, steel-troweled cement, and asphalt or vinyl tile or sheet flooring.

Loose and damaged plaster, wallpaper and paint should be removed before tiling. Grease is a no-no, too. Newly plastered walls should be sealed. Glossy or painted surfaces should be sanded.

Don't lay tile over a springy floor. Nail down loose flooring. If that doesn't do the trick, cover the floor with exterior grade plywood (at least 3/8" thick) before tiling.

For a floor that needs leveling, trowel plastic underlayment from feathered edge to 5/16" thickness in one coat and cover with 3/8" exterior grade plywood.

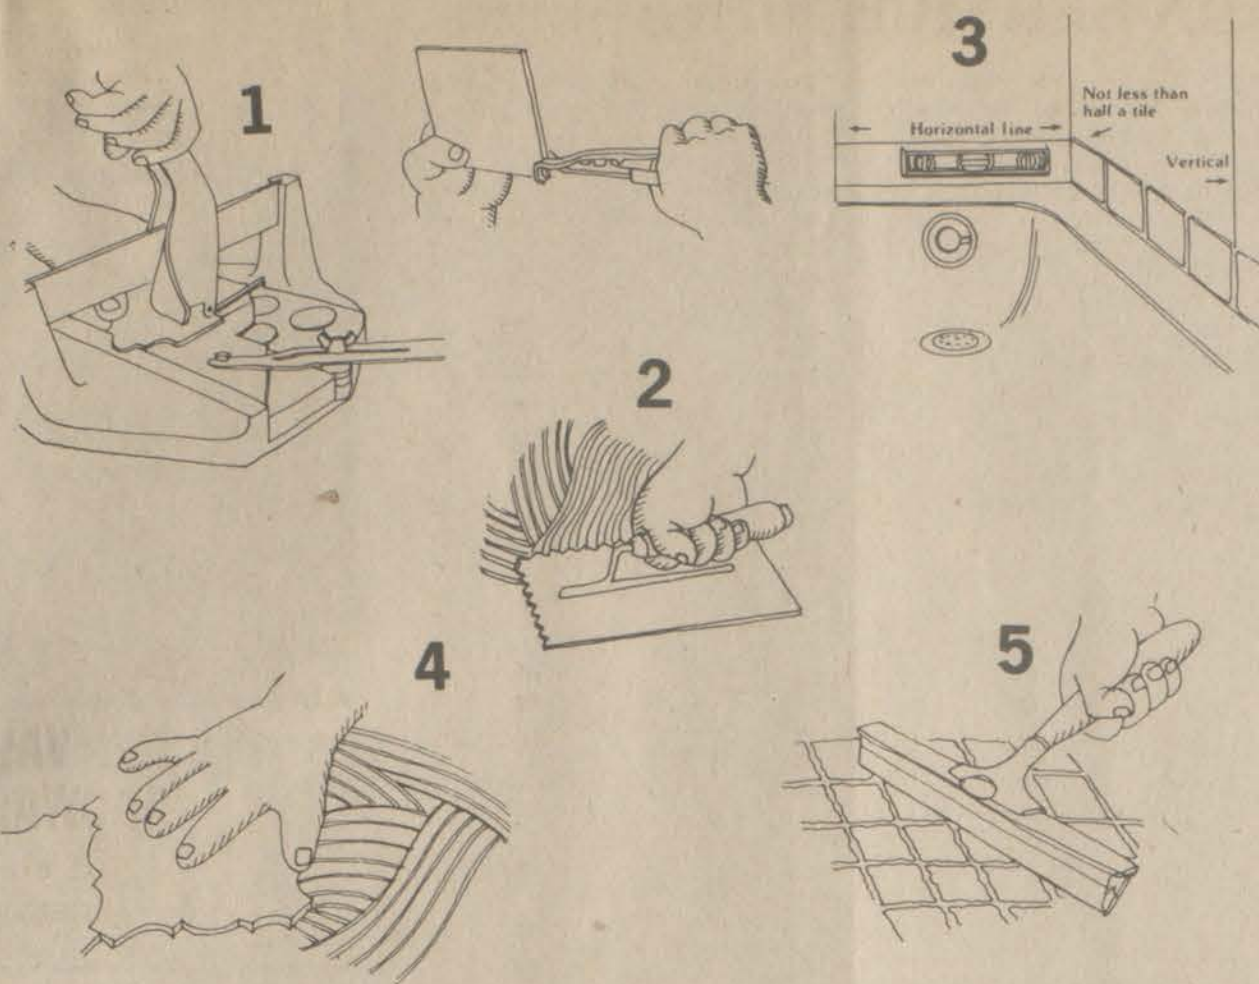

When a plywood subfloor is applied, use a primer and seal edges of panels before nailing in place. Space 6d ring-shank nails every six inches along floor joists. Allow 1/8" expansion joints between plywood edge and wall. Fill expansion joints with tile adhesive.

Always make sure you tell the dealer exactly what sort of surface, you'll be tiling, so he can recommend the proper primer (if necessary), adhesive and grout.

Where to Start

Whether you're tiling a floor or a wall, you should start somewhere in the middle.

If it's a floor, snap your chalk line

- 1.) A tile cutter can be rented for a few dollars and is easy to use. A tile nipper is what you need to shape cuts to fit around pipes.
- 2.) Apply the adhesive with a notched trowel. Hold the trowel at a 45° angle.
- 3.) If you're tiling a tub wall, you should draw the horizontal starting line a full tile above the low point of the tub edge.
- 4.) Set each tile with a slight twisting motion. Press firmly into place.
- 5.) Apply the grout with a rubber float or squeegee, spreading it diagonally across the joints.

from wall to wall, and lay out the tile (loose, of course) to make sure you don't wind up with less than a tile at the edge.

Snap another chalk line between the other two walls. Use a square to check that the lines cross at right angles of 90°. Again adjust the starting point, so you don't wind up with less than half a tile at outer edges.

If it's a wall, use plumb line and/or level to draw horizontal and vertical lines in the center. Lay out a course of loose tile and adjust the vertical line to the left or right so the least amounts of cuts are necessary, and preferably never less than half a tile.

If you're tiling a tub wall, draw your horizontal line a full tile above the low point of the tub edge.

Setting the Tile

Apply the adhesive with the notched trowel, but be careful not to cover up your directional lines. Hold the trowel at a 45° angle for 100 percent coverage. Spread only a small area at a time, so adhesive doesn't dry until the tile is in.

Set each tile with a slight twisting motion, and press each one firmly into place. Align the tile so that all the joints are uniform and straight. Most tile today comes with built-in spacers, so the joints are sure to be uniform. However, if a line isn't straight, merely wiggle the tiles back into place.

Clean off excess adhesive on the face of the tile right away.

Your rented tile cutter is simple to use. Have the dealer show you how it works before you take it home, and practice on a couple of tiles before you start your project.

Few corners are perfectly plumb, so don't cut a whole row of tiles at a time. Cut each one as you get to the end.

The tile nipper is used for shaping cuts to fit around pipes, etc. Nip off little bits at a time, or the tile might break. Carborundum stone is the way to smooth rough edges. Don't bother to hone down tile that will be hidden under fixtures, sink rims, tile trim, etc.

Grouting

After 24 hours or so you can begin grouting. Mix and use the grout according to the manufacturer's instructions. Work the grout into the joints with a rubber trowel or squeegee. Wash off excess grout with a wet sponge.

To shape the grout lines in wall tiles, strike the joints with the handle of a toothbrush. Clean the tiles and dress the joints with a damp sponge. When the walls are dry, polish them with a clean cloth. Follow the grout manufacturer's directions when grouting floors.

Consider one of today's colorful grouts to add to the beauty of your ceramic tile. You can accentuate white tile with brown, for example, or use a blue grout to emphasize blue-on-white Delft-like tile.

Illustrated leaflets, available from the Tile Council of America, Dept. DIY, P.O. Box 2222, Princeton, N.J. 08540, describe how to tile a floor and wall. (25 cents.)

BETSY LAYNE COMMUNITY NEWS

Mr. and Mrs. Dick Layne spent Christmas with their daughter and her husband, Low Dolling, in Bristol, Tenn. Mr. and Mrs. Dolling and son, Sammy, and wife visited the Laynes before Christmas.

The Betsy Layne United Methodist Church presented its Christmas program, "The Hanging of the Greens," under the direction of Mrs. Glenda Larson and Mrs. Billie Jean Osborne.

Sympathy is extended to the families of relatives and friends in the passing of Harry Stamper, the son-in-law of Mrs. Robert Jones, whose funeral was conducted Dec. 20 at the Immanuel Baptist Mission in the Mullins Addition.

Friends extend sympathy to many relatives of this section and especially to the immediate family of Mrs. Draxie Johns, formerly of Harold, late of Charlestown, Indiana. She is survived by four children, several grandchildren and great-grandchildren and a sister and brother, Mrs. Della Stumbo and McKinley Hopkins, of Harold, in addition to several nieces and nephews and many friends. The formal candlelight wedding of Miss Barbara Lynn Howard and Mr. William Franklin Moyer was solemnized August 30 at 6 p.m. at the First Baptist Church in Prestonsburg by the Rev. Dean Pack, pastor of the church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Harvey Howard, of Prestonsburg, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John William Moyer, of York, Pennsylvania.

Pre-nuptial music included "The Greatest of These Is Love," sung by Mr. Gus Kalos, and selections played by Mrs. Alice Gray Buchanan, organist, which included "Liebestraum," "Thee Will I Love." Mrs. Howard, mother of the bride, and Mrs. Moyer, mother of the groom, were escorted to the altar where they lightened one of three candles symbolizing the union of their son and daughter.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a classic gown of white silk organza, trimmed with Venise lace which formed the fitted bodice and circled the sheer point d'sprit yoke and high neckline. The bishop sleeves of organza were accented with a point d'sprit inset and lined with Venise lace. The gathered Watteau back extended to form a chapel-length train, and the skirt was edged with Venise lace. The bride wore a Victorian picture hat covered with point d'sprit and Venise lace with a bow of illusion and chapel-length veil attached.

The matron of honor, Mrs. Debra Kay Dixon, sister of the bride, was attired in a floor-length gown of scarlet silk organza. She wore a matching pillbox hat with net veiling.

Thomas, of Prestonsburg, wore gowns identical to that of the matron of honor, and each carried a bouquet of white carnations and baby's breath secured with red and white streamers.

Flower girls were Miss Kelly Elizabeth Langford and Miss Addie Brooke Langford, cousins of the bride. The satin and lace covered Bible was placed on the prayer bench by Miss Tracy Goble, also cousin of the bride. All three were dressed in identical red and white scalloped brocade floor-length dresses with matching head-dresses of red and white roses.

Mr. Bob Martin, of York, Pa., brother-in-law of the groom, was best man, and groomsmen were Mr. Gregory Dixon and Mr. Roger Rectenwald, both of Prestonsburg, and Dr. Norris M. Langford, Jr., of Louisville. Ringbearer was Master Jimmy Martin, nephew of the groom, and candelighters were James Allen Goble and Shag Branham, both of Prestonsburg.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Howard wore a floor-length gown of soft pink with matching jacket. Mrs. Moyer, mother of the groom, chose a floor-length gown of turquoise.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held in the church reception hall where the bride's table displayed a beautiful four-tiered wedding cake with fountain.

OSM Modifies Contour Rule

Coal operators seeking variances now to the federal requirement to return lands mined in steep slope areas to their approximate original contour (AOC) have been given a glimmer of green light by the Department of the Interior's Office of Surface Mining (OSM).

Final regulations issued Dec. 18 make it possible for coal mine operators in the present interim program to retain benches in steep slope areas as a variance from the requirement that mined lands be returned to their approximate original (pre-mined) contours. A variance may be issued only if the operator can show that the variance would improve watershed control of the area and that it would allow the lands within the permit area to be used for post mining industrial, commercial, residential or public use, including recreation facilities.

"These revised regulations provide a more flexible alternative for coal operators in promoting environmentally sound reclamation," said OSM Director Walter N. Heine. "They should bring about a more consistent and logical application of the federal surface mining law that will add to a better understanding of our program."

Under the new rules, every permittee who obtains a variance would be required to:

—Improve the watershed control of the area by reducing total suspended solids or flooding;

—Completely backfill the highwall with spoil material;

—Place only as much spoil off the mine bench as is necessary to achieve the postmining land use.

The permittee may disturb land above the highwall, with permission of the regulatory agency, only if necessary to blend highwall and backfill to control run-off or to gain access to the area above the highwall.

The regulatory authority would be required to inspect each variance within three years of the permit's date.

The 35-Year Story of a Rural Church

The original Spurlock Community Church (above); at right, the present church built on the site first occupied by the church 35 years ago.

In 1945 several of the residents of Dock, on the Spurlock Fork of Middle Creek, felt the need for a church in their community. Mr. and Mrs. Willie Haywood, Fred Tussey, Jim Tussey, Green Tussey, the Rev. Bob Martin and others hauled wood from a sawmill and built what was then Spurlock Community Church.

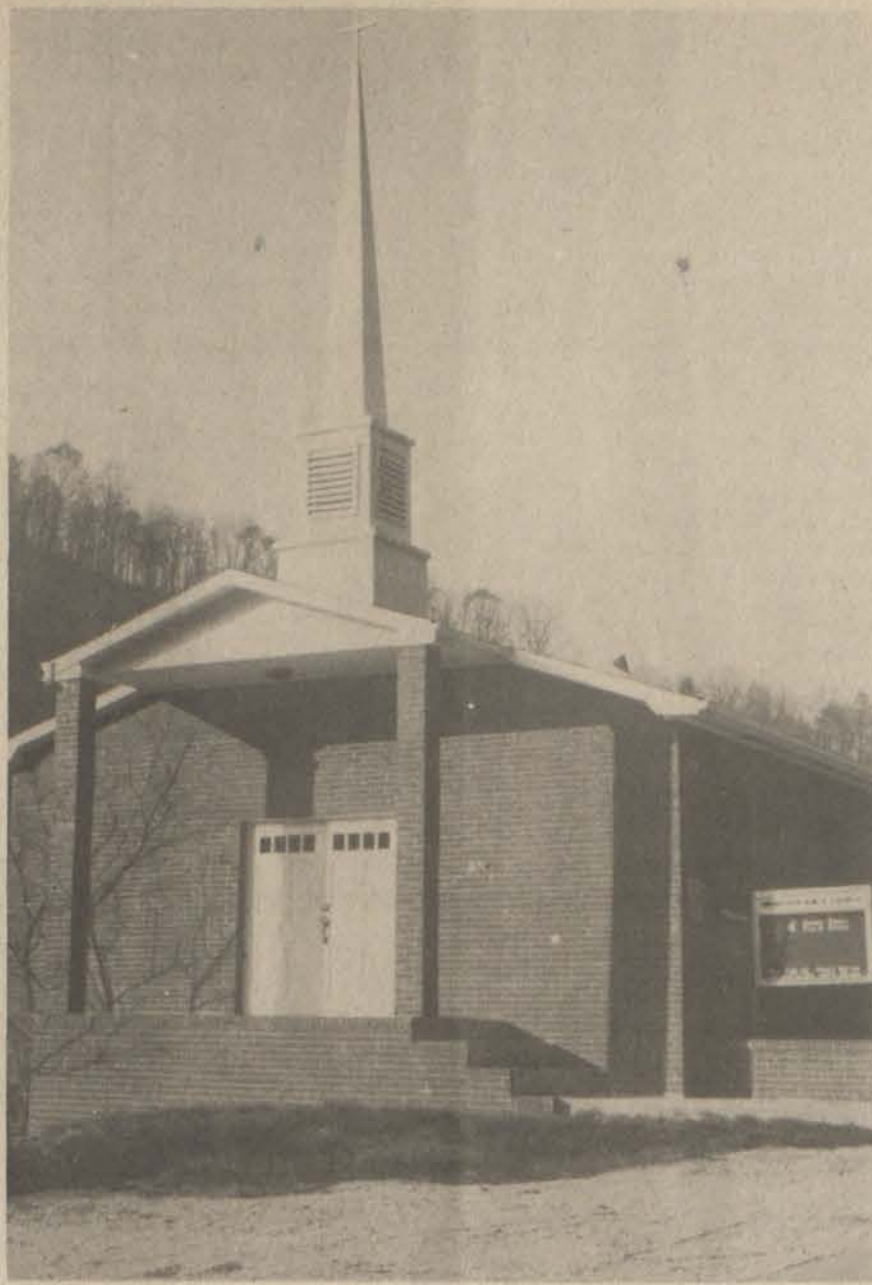

The Rev. Martin, Rev. John Camp, Rev. Andrew Burnside, Rev. Randolph Crisp, are some of the men who have ministered at the church. Miss Sarah Helmantoler and the late Ruth Sippel kept the church going, holding Sunday School and prayer meetings during the times the church was without a pastor.

In 1954 the Rev. Dan Heintzelman became the pastor. Sunday School and prayer meetings were held and after about a year worship services were begun. They continue without interruption.

In 1968 a new building was built on the same site as the old church. The church was organized with a board of deacons and trustees and incorporated as The Spurlock Bible Church. In 1980, an addition was built, adding Sunday School rooms and a baptistry. Electric heating was installed, and the entire church bricked. Cost of the new addition is placed at $87,000, and the entire church plant is valued at $125,000.

The Rev. Heintzelman has been pastor for 26½ years. He says that all this was accomplished by the hard work and love of the members. Last October 19, the church was dedicated. As the board members stood at the front of the church, Rev. Kenneth Tuinstra, president of Southland Bible Institute, charged them always to lift up Jesus and put Him first.

The pastor welcomes everyone to Spurlock Bible Church.

X-Ray Warning Sounded

While X-rays may be helpful in determining the evidence of serious disease, unnecessary X-rays may cause more harm than good.

According to Dr. David Allen, commissioner of the Department for Human Resources, Bureau for Health Services, even small risks from radiation exposure shouldn't be taken without good reason.

Large amounts of radiation can increase the chances of cancer in later years, he said. If radiation reaches reproductive organs, genes can be damaged. Radiation to the abdomen of a pregnant woman can harm the unborn child and may increase later susceptibility to certain diseases, including cancer.

The Food and Drug Administration is conducting an educational campaign to inform the public about the possible hazards connected to unnecessary x-rays. Kentucky is one of the 40 states participating in the campaign.

To avoid unnecessary x-rays, the Department for Human Resources officials suggest these precautions be taken:

—Feel free to talk with your doctor about why x-rays are being taken. Ask how x-rays will help to find out what's wrong.

—Do not refuse an x-ray if the doctor satisfactorily explains why it is needed. The risk of not having a needed x-ray could be greater than the small risk from the radiation.

—Do not insist on an x-ray. Not every medical condition calls for one.

—If you are pregnant or even think you are, make sure your doctor knows about it before you have an x-ray.

—Ask if a shield can be used if you or your children are to have x-rays of the lower back, abdomen or near the sex organs.

—Keep an x-ray card for you and your family that shows the date, the type of x-ray and the name of the facility in which it was taken. This can help avoid unnecessary duplication of x-rays. A record card and an information packet about x-rays are available free of charge from the Radiation Control Branch, 275 E. Main Street, Frankfort, Ky. 40621.

New Subscription Rates

Reluctantly, The Times announces new subscription rates, effective Jan. 1, 1981. Beginning with that date, the rates per year will be: In Floyd county, $8; in other Kentucky counties, $10; outside Kentucky, $12.50.

Several circumstances make higher subscription prices necessary. First of all, the cost of newsprint has risen from $165 per ton two years ago to $423.50 per ton as of this date, with another increase threatened in 1981. Add to this a series of increases in postal rates, higher production costs in all departments, and the plight of this newspaper and other publications should be more understandable.

New or renewed subscriptions entered after Dec. 31, this year, at the old rates will not be credited for an entire year but only for the period covered by the payment.

Because of the uncertainty of cost increases that may be imposed on us in the future, no subscription will be accepted for longer than one year.

Most Valuable Freshman

Dewey Layne, of Manton, who graduated last year from Prestonsburg High School, was recently honored at the annual football banquet of Hillsdale College, Hillsdale, Michigan. The former high school star received a special award as the Hillsdale Chargers' Most Valuable Freshman. The 6-foot, 210-pound Layne is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Jake Layne. He went to Hillsdale on a football scholarship. Dick Lowry, son-in-law of B.F. Reed, of Drift, is football coach at Hillsdale. Lowry's team won the Great Lakes Conference championship this year, the first year of his tenure as coach there.

1980: It Was a Good Year

By KENNY RICE
Reminiscing. New year's Eve is an ideal occasion for this.

It is especially enjoyable to look back on the good times, the successes over the past 364 days. On the Floyd County sports scene, there were plenty of memorable moments, more so than in recent years.

One of the highlights of the year occurred during the summer, beginning at Archer Park and ending in Bowling Green. National Mines won the Kentucky State Class A Softball Tournament and finished fourth in the Mid-West Regional. The Miners were not the only team to prove the Archer Park Softball League produces some of the best teams in the state. Anixter Cable placed fifth in the powerful State Major Tournament and Lloyd's Hardware finished seventh in the State Class A for women.

Commissioner Billy Ray Collins' smile was brighter than usual for the success of these talented clubs. He also was pleased with the overall caliber of play in the men and women leagues at Archer Park, calling it "the most balanced and competitive ever."

Archer Park's league continued to draw impressive crowds for the July 4th and the post season tournaments. Collins and those associated with the league had a truly great year, a year that will always be remembered by local softball enthusiasts.

High school basketball remained THE sport in the county with another exciting season that saw the 58th District turn out one of Kentucky's winningest clubs, Allen Central. Howard Wallen's Rebels went 30-6 and won the Floyd County Conference crown with Wallen being tabbed the FCC "Coach of the Year," for a third time.

While Central grabbed most of the regular season glory, Betsy Layne shined in the post season. William Newsome, Jr. guided the Bobcats to their second straight district title. Betsy Layne was the last Floyd county team of the 1970's to win the 15th Region ('76), and they became the first team to win the region in this decade. The Bobcats put on a great show at the Sweet 16, the best performance by a regional club since 1976.

The 58th District was once again the strongest of the four regional districts, with everyone having a shot at the district title when March came. It is this consistency—"you never know what will happen in Floyd during March," that makes 58th District basketball so appealing.

Allen Central also had one of the winningest girls teams in the state. Judy Eversole's Lady Rebs were 28-6, won their second district title in as many years and reached the semi-finals of the regional tourney.

Johnny Ray Turner coached McDowell to their second district runner-up in a row. Betsy Layne, Wheelwright and Prestonsburg were among the youngest teams in the mountains and all showed promise of a prosperous future.

Individually, it was a good year for county basketball players. Phil Slone of Allen Central and Betsy Layne's Ronnie Akers received All-State honors. Betsy Layne's Darrell Newsome and Paul Layne, Allen Central's Mark Martin, Wheelwright's Monroe Jones and David Pitt of Prestonsburg, all were honorable mention All-Staters.

Allen Central's Tammy Martin, Trena Hensley and Kristi Frye, Cindy Wells and Barbara Crager of Prestonsburg and McDowell's Melinda Hopkins were honorable mention All-Staters.

Betsy Layne was the county overall sport champ after Jim Cecil's club won the district baseball championship. Danny Dawson guided Wheelwright into the regional as the district runners-up.

High school baseball in the county benefitted from improved Babe Ruth and Little League programs, but it still made only small advances in the scheduling of games and the drawing of fans to the games.

Prestonsburg and Wheelwright football teams were in contention for a district title again in 1980. The Blackcats of Phillip Haywood lost to Class AA's fifth ranked Pikeville Panthers in the second district title game. Wilbur Jamerson had Wheelwright in the running for the Class A, Region four, District two championship until the final game of the season when the Trojans lost to then top ranked Paintsville.

The pride and tradition of Prestonsburg and Wheelwright football gets stronger each year and give Floyd county a chance of winning district titles in Class AA and Class A.

Betsy Layne's football program got off to a rocky start in 1980 but Don Daniels had the Bobcats in every game this season and the young Cats even had a two-game winning streak. If Betsy Layne can begin preseason practice on time next season, the two-game winning streak could become a longer one.

Tennis and golf tourneys continue to increase in participation each year and 1980 was the best yet for tourneys at Archer Park and Jenny Wiley.

Floyd county even had a cheerleading squad in a national tourney, when Allen Central got an invitation. Betsy Layne's majorettes won the State Fair Championship to add to their overflowing trophy case.

1980 was a good year to be covering sports in the county, and the prospects look great for 1981.

Happy New Year.

93-Year-Old Assists With College Class

Tommie Moore, 93-year-old Maytown man, was the special guest-performer in the recent Folk Literature class taught here by Dr. Lewis Barnes, of Morehead State University. Mr. Moore entertained the class with his wit and knowledge of folk tales, early customs and medicines. Mr. Moore also sang favorite hymns at the class session.

Members of the class were amazed to learn that despite his years, he could easily touch his toes.

Tips . . .

On Holiday Drinking

By DON GOBLE (MCCC)

The human brain has often been compared to a computer. Like a computer, the brain handles incoming data, then draws conclusions and makes decisions. However, unlike the computer the brain takes a longer time to solve some problems and frequently makes mistakes. Unfortunately, some mistakes are fatal especially those made behind the wheel of a car.

Approximately 50,000 people lose their lives every year in traffic accidents, and about half of all traffic deaths result from accidents involving drinking drivers—drivers whose brains are "impaired" as a result of consuming alcohol.

In most states a blood alcohol concentration of one-tenth of one percent is considered evidence of drunk driving. The average person would have to drink four beers or mixed drinks in one hour or five in two hours or six in three hours to reach this blood-alcohol concentration since the body burns up alcohol at the rate of about one beer or mixed drink or glass of wine per hour.

There are two methods by which researchers study the effects of alcohol as it relates to highway accidents. One is to give experienced drivers measured amounts of alcohol then observe their actual driving performance in specially designed road tests. Another method is to test the effects of alcohol on various components of driving skill while the subject is seated in a laboratory. One such test was conducted by Dr. Leonard Goldberg of Sweden's Caroline Institute. He chose 37 expert drivers most of whom were driving instructors and gave them enough to drink to produce blood-alcohol concentrations of .05%. The drivers performed a number of tests on a closed course and their initial sober scores were compared with their performance after drinking. Dr. Goldberg concluded that even a slight amount of alcohol caused a deterioration of between 25 and 30 percent in driving performance of expert drivers. And on three tests most closely corresponding to actual driving ability was impaired on the average of 41.8 percent. These tests conclude that impairment is significant after as little as two beers or mixed drinks at a blood alcohol level of .05%, half of what is considered evidence of drunk driving. Yes, half drunk drivers are dangerous too!

The last installment discussed some sources of alcohol fuels information as distributed by the U. S. Department of Energy (DOE) in their periodical, "The Energy Consumer," obtainable free from the U.S. DOE Office of Consumer Affairs, Room 8G082, Washington, D.C. 20585. This article continues that listing.

Available from the U. S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C. 20402 at $3.50, "Gasohol—A Technical Memorandum," order number 052-003-00706-1, discusses the resource base and production methods for alcohol; the economics, environmental problems and benefits of using gasohol; and the social and international issues in using agricultural products for energy. Estimates of gasohol usage and cost and the future prospects of ethanol production are also examined.

There are many tax benefits accruing from gasohol production and usage. Investment tax credits and tax exemptions are available; for information, obtain a copy of publication 572 from a local IRS office. Alcohol fuels and many other topics are covered in "Citizens Energy Directory," a 200-page state-by-state guide to resources (publications, schools, individuals, organizations, manufacturers, etc.) in wood, wind, water, solar, biomass conversion, and geothermal energy, all extensively cross-indexed. It is available from Citizens Energy Project, 1110 Sixth Street N.W., Washington, D. C. 20001 for $11.

The "A. T. Times," a newsletter published by the National Center for Appropriate Technology, P. O. Box 3838, Butte, Montana 59701, carries articles about alcohol fuels, in addition to items about appropriate solutions to community energy, housing, food and health problems. The newsletter is free to alternate energy and anti-poverty groups, but is $10 for 12 issues to others.

DOE's "Alcohol Fuels Policy Review," available for $6.50, assesses the potential for ethanol and methanol production and discusses major alcohol fuels issues (food vs. fuel, raw materials availability, small scale production, net energy balance, and economics of alcohol production). Other publication DOE/PE0012 from National Technical Information Service, Springfield, Virginia 22161.

Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Boyd, of Banner, announce the engagement and forthcoming engagement of their son, Steve, to Suzy Burns, of Mount Sterling, Ky.
Both are students at Eastern Kentucky University, Richmond, where they will graduate in May.
A May 17 date has been set for the wedding.

Restraint Writ By Martin Court Stalls Primacy

The state Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection was prepared to resubmit its proposed regulatory program for surface coal mining but was unable to do so because of a restraining order issued in Martin circuit court.
"With all the work that has gone into this program during the past year, we are very disappointed that we are prohibited from submitting it at this time to the federal Office of Surface Mining," Natural Resources Secretary Jackie Swigart said. "However, we have met the deadline and the permanent program is ready for resubmittal."

Elmore Grim, commissioner of the department's Bureau of Surface Mining, said the revised regulatory package addresses some 200 "findings" by OSM on Kentucky's plan, which is designed to gain for the state the right to control surface mining under its own laws and regulations.
Grim said his bureau will be utilizing the time that it is under the restraining order "to fine-tune the program" and to educate the public and the coal industry about the requirements that will be in effect when Kentucky receives primacy, or primary responsibility for surface mining.

The restraining order was issued by Martin Circuit Judge W. B. Hazelrigg as the result of a suit filed Oct. 31 by three Eastern Kentucky coal companies. The order required the department to continue working on the proposed permanent regulatory program but prevented it from resubmitting revisions to OSM.

Under a timetable established by OSM, the state's program was originally submitted Feb. 29, with the first set of revisions going to OSM June 12. Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus announced on Oct. 13 that Kentucky's plan was being granted partial approval.

Grim noted that the department had previously anticipated receiving primacy sometime in January. However, while the interim program remains in effect, responsibility for regulating surface mining will continue to be shared by the state and OSM, he said.

"The department is ready to assume primacy, but will use this additional time to the state's advantage to improve the program," Grim said. "We will continue working on the package and preparing for its implementation."

The department has taken no action on the restraining order, but the state will be ready for resubmittal at any time if the order should be dissolved, Grim said. Otherwise, the interim program will remain in effect for up to one year from the date the order was issued, he explained.

Columbia Gas Rate Freeze For Five Months Ordered

The Federal Energy Regulatory Commission has suspended for five months the rate increase requested by Columbia Gas Transmission Corp., which supplies several Kentucky utilities including Columbia Gas.

The state Energy Regulatory Commission has set aside several rate increases it approved in October for nine gas companies which filed for purchased gas adjustments.

Among these companies are: —Columbia Gas. The purchased gas adjustment would have raised the gas company's rates $2,336,600. The average annual increase per residential customer would be $10.94. Columbia serves 102,659 residential, 10,283 small commercial and 92 large industrial customers in 31 counties.

—Johnson County Gas Co. The adjustment would have increased rates $4,749.32. The average residential customer increase would be $10.94. The company serves 876 residential customers. Johnson Gas is supplied by Columbia Gas which is, in turn, supplied by Columbia Transmission.

—Elzie Neeley Gas Co. The increase would have been $1,145.78 or $10.94 per year for each of 90 residential customers. The company is supplied by Columbia Gas.

—Phelps Gas Co. The rate increases would have totaled $2,648.68 or an average annual increase of $10.94 per residential customer. The company, based in Pikeville, serves 310 residential customers. It is supplied by Columbia Gas.

—Martin Gas Co. The increase would have been $5,482.18 or $10.64 per year per residential customer. Martin Gas, based in Prestonsburg, serves 470 residential customers. It is supplied by Columbia Gas.

If any utility has already begun charging increased rates under the revoked adjustment, the company must issue customer refunds. The companies may apply for new purchased gas adjustments if the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission grants Columbia Gas Transmission an increase in the future.

December Fuel Gauge Survey

Kentucky motorists can expect to pay more for gasoline this holiday season, according to the Blue Grass Automobile Club-AAA December fuel gauge survey of service stations along the state's major highways.

The average price per gallon at full-service pumps increased one and a half cents over last month; and self-service prices increased almost three cents per gallon, AAA says. Prices at full-service pumps are $1.25 for regular, $1.32 for premium, $1.29 for no-lead; and $1.20 for diesel. Self-service prices are $1.16 for regular, $1.26 for premium, and $1.23 for no-lead.

The survey also shows a slight increase in availability, with 63% of the stations staying open after 8 p.m. on weekdays; 71% open past 6 p.m. on Saturday; 63% open on Sunday; and 5% open 24-hours a day, seven days a week.

During the holidays, 34% of the stations are expected to be open on Christmas Day, with 54% open on New Year's Day.

Hospital Christmas Party

Our Lady of the Way Hospital held a Christmas party at the Maytown Fish and Game Club building, Saturday night, Dec. 13. Approximately 200 attended. Music was furnished by the Dixie Bridge band from Salyersville. The medical staff funded the party.

Co-chairwomen, Margaret Hoover and Lyda Ward, were assisted by the following, who planned and hosted the affairs: Charles Frye, Jim Osborne, Annette Cash, Toby Bingham, Connie Stumbo, Erma Triplett, Pat Howard, Janet Little, Janice Little, Ruth Shelton and Sister Jeannette.

Margaret Hoover was surprised with the presentation of an engraved plaque and a dozen red roses in appreciation of 12 years of dedicated service to the hospital.

The fourth grade students and several third graders of the Martin Elementary School sang songs for the patients and personnel of the hospital at 1:15 p.m. Wednesday, December 17. After the singing, the children were treated to punch and cookies in the hospital dining room.

CARD OF THANKS

The family of Elder Jim Buck Vanderpool would like to take this opportunity to thank everyone for their consideration, sympathy, and kindness given upon the recent death of our father and grandfather. We can not express in words the appreciation we owe to the Rebecca Regular Baptist Church, of Plymouth, Ohio, to the Regular Baptist Philadelphia Church, of Hippo, to the great number of preachers who attended services, to the people who brought food, to the relatives and friends who came so many miles from other states, and also for sympathetic words from all of his brothers and sisters of the churches, and friends who were not able to attend service. Thanks to the Hall Funeral Home of Martin for their kind and efficient service.

Credit Unions Accent Consumer Service

When Mark, a sixteen-year old newsboy, saw an opportunity to buy his own newsstand, money was no object. Local 628 I.B.T. Federal Credit Union in Philadelphia lent him the $4,000 he needed with his father's co-signature.

The credit union's treasurer noted that many young people do the same work as their adult counterparts. "This fact makes them worthy of loan consideration," he said. "Ability to repay, not age, should be the main guide for any credit union credit committee." Mark's loan demonstrates that his credit union agreed.

Another example is more common. A city employee in El Paso, Texas was $8,500 in debt and could see no way out. With the help of financial counseling at the Government Employees Credit Union of El Paso, he was completely debt-free in less than one year. The credit union placed him on a strict budget through payroll deduction and paid his debtors for him each month.

"My first question" he recalls "was how much all of this service would cost me. When the financial counselor told me not one cent, I'm sure my state of shock was visible. Today, I've got a good credit rating, and I owe it all to the credit union."

For members of the McGuire-Community Federal Credit Union in New Jersey, saving up to $1,000 on a new car is not unusual. The credit union participates in a new auto-buying service that allows credit union members to pay only $125 over the wholesale price of the car, plus car preparation and some advertising costs. For purchasers, that can mean substantial savings.

These unusual benefits—plus many more typical ones—are the reasons that credit unions continue to be the fastest growing financial institutions in the country. Consumers from all walks of life are turning to credit unions for an ever-increasing variety of consumer services, often including services specifically tailored to a person's unique financial situation.

"Our emphasis has always been on helping people with their savings and borrowing needs," explained Jim Williams, chairman of the Credit Union National Association, Inc. (CUNA) and manager of San Antonio Governmental Employees Credit Union, one of the nation's largest.

"We have never been commercially oriented, and our present growth indicates a continuing satisfaction with and demand for valuable, convenient consumer services. We expect that's where our dedication will remain," he added.

Legislation Grants New Powers

When the most significant credit union legislation in 44 years was signed by President Carter in 1977, federal credit unions were able to expand their lending, saving and investment options.

Credit unions have become the fastest growing provider of financial services in the nation by becoming an important source of credit at competitively low rates and by providing a high rate of return on deposits to millions of consumer members.

There are now more than 22,000 credit unions in the U.S. Nearly 37 million people belong. Between 1970 and 1977, credit unions' total assets tripled to $54.1 billion.

The main attractions of the nation's credit unions are still savings accounts and installment loans. Credit unions are best known as America's consumer lenders. Between 1970 and 1977, credit union share of the consumer installment loan market jumped from 12.7 percent to 17.2 percent. At the end of 1977, loans outstanding totaled more than $35 billion.

The largest single portion of the overall credit union loan portfolio was the $18.1 billion held in automobile loans, accounting for 23 percent of the total auto lending market and a 21 percent increase of the share of this market in a year when all other lenders lost ground.

Credit unions in 1977 showed a 58 percent increase over 1976 in dollar value of auto loans, running well ahead of the 31 percent increase recorded by all lenders combined. Loans for other durable goods—such as boats, furniture, and home furnishings—comprise about 13 percent of the credit unions' loan portfolio. Residential and home improvement loans account for about 10.5 percent. Personal loans for such things as vacations, education, medical expenses, tax payment, and debt consolidations account for about 35 percent. This personal loan category is where credit unions most visibly continue to fill a void left by other lenders who either are not willing to offer such loans, or offer them only at very high interest rates.

Low Interest Costs

One of the main reasons Americans are turning to credit unions is their low interest rates. Each of the nation's more than 13,000 federally-chartered credit unions is prohibited by law from charging more than 12 percent annual percentage rate (APR) on any loan. Although a number of the 9,000 state-chartered credit unions are permitted by their state regulators to charge higher interest rates, few have exceeded the traditional 12 percent limit. Many charge even less on certain loans, particularly auto loans.

Nationally, the average rate that credit unions charge for short-term personal loans is 11.54 percent compared with 13.46 percent at banks and 20.41 percent at consumer finance companies. For a typical new car loan, a credit union member would recently have had to pay 10.83 percent APR against 10.86 percent at a commercial bank and 13.1 percent at a finance company.

"Even if a credit union doesn't charge the lowest interest rate on a loan in a particular area, it still has a positive effect on the consumer," says Herb Wegner, president of the Credit Union National Association, Inc. (CUNA), the national trade association for U.S. credit unions. "You can be sure that the institution that beats our rate wouldn't be offering such a deal if we weren't in there competing," he explained.

On the savings side, nearly two-thirds of all credit unions return better than 5-1/2 percent on member savings accounts—compared with legal ceilings of 5 percent for regular commercial bank savings accounts and 5-1/4 percent at savings and loans.

Credit unions are permitted to offer members the higher return since they are cooperatives, operated not for profit but to provide thrift services to members united by a common bond of employment, association, or residence. Extra earnings, after operating expenses and reserves, are returned to the member owners in the form of dividends or new and better services.

In 1966, total credit union savings deposits were $10.1 billion. By 1976, they had more than tripled to $39.1 billion. Today, they exceed $45 billion.

High Savings Yield

Saving at a credit union is becoming even more attractive as federal credit unions can now join the many state-chartered credit unions in offering share certificates that pay up to 7-3/4 percent on $500 or more for periods ranging from 90 days to six years, as well as three new types of savings accounts, each with a different twist to give savers more flexibility.

Notice accounts require members to give at least 90 days written notice of intent to withdraw funds from higher yield accounts; minimum balance accounts require a specified amount to be kept in for an entire dividend period; split-rate accounts pay one rate for a minimum balance and a higher rate on funds in excess of that balance. Each of these accounts allows members to decide which method of savings is in their best financial interest for their own lifestyle.

While loans and savings accounts remain the primary credit union focus, many credit unions are expanding their value to members by using modern technology to implement services that will provide for all their consumer financial needs.

Together, credit unions are in the process of developing a national financial and support system to facilitate liquidity management and the clearing and settlement of transactions (see background). This system will enable credit unions to efficiently offer such modern services as share drafts, VISA credit cards, 30-year mortgage loans, and funds transfer services.

"We cannot afford to go into the 1980's with 1960's technology," explains Wegner. "This country is entering its most competitive era for financial services. Electronic banking is here. More sophisticated methods of handling financial transactions are around the corner. Those who are prepared for this revolution will survive. Credit unions, the only not-for-profit cooperatives among the financial institutions, must and will survive," he said.

Credit union progress in harnessing the new technology to benefit consumers has been impressive. The share draft program enables some 500,000 members of more than 1,000 credit unions to receive earnings on funds that can be conveniently withdrawn while making purchases or paying bills.

"Consumers should not have to sacrifice earnings as the price of conveniently accessing their funds," comments Wegner on the share draft program. "Since we aren't operating for profit, it makes sense that credit unions would provide members with both convenience and earnings," he added.

Convenient access to low cost credit makes the fledgling credit union VISA card program an important consumer service. Members can use credit union issued VISA cards at any of the thousands of retail and service outlets that accept the well-known convenience instruments. Most of the 54 credit unions presently issuing VISA cards are charging 12 percent APR on VISA card charges, computed from the date of posting.

Where state law requires a grace period, a higher interest rate may be charged. Other VISA card issuers generally charge up to 18 percent APR. The program, which began late in 1977, already services 3,000 card users and is expected to expand rapidly in future months.

"By operating on a pro-consumer, pro-competitive basis, rather than from a profit motive, credit unions are continuing to be a valuable part of the nation's economic system," comments CUNA President Wegner.

"The basic intent to encourage thrift and to provide personalized financial service to American consumers will remain unchanged even as credit union operations become more sophisticated to take advantage of the new technology," Wegner adds. "The technological advancements will make it easier for consumers to have access to these services and their money, but the services themselves will be basically the same. The bottom line, as always, will be the member's financial well-being."

Hearing Set Here Jan. 6 On Waste Management

Copies of the Kentucky Waste Management plan are available for public inspection at the Prestonsburg regional offices of the Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection's division of hazardous material and waste management, department officials have announced.

Containing descriptions of current waste-disposal methods and problems in Kentucky, the five-year plan includes departmental recommendations for improved services.

Citizen comments and recommendations received during the comment period will be summarized and presented at a series of three public hearings on the plan in early January. One of the hearings will be held at 10 a.m. Jan. 6 in the Pike building, Prestonsburg Community College.

Upon the urging of many of my friends and supporters, I have agreed to become a democratic candidate for Sheriff in May of 1981. Although I am not now actively campaigning, I would like to say that my experience both as a former State Representative and Sheriff is needed to restore the office of Sheriff to its full capacity in serving the people of Floyd County. I am calling upon all my supporters, to pitch in and help me in the up-coming campaign so that the office of Sheriff might again serve all of the people of Floyd County fairly.

Folk Toys Create Bond Of Memories

By HELEN PRICE STACY

In Western Kentucky a man works at a bench in a corner garage workshop. He is whittling Christmas memories into a piece of wood. With his pocket knife he smooths a small round disk of wood and cuts out two holes in the center. He then sands the disc until it feels soft as a chicken feather.

The Buzz Saw he is making is carved from memories of watching his father make a similar holiday toy for him when he was 7. His grandfather had made such a "play-purty" for his father.

A credible Buzz Saw also can be made with a large button by threading two pieces of string or strong thread through the two holes of a button, then tie the ends. Holding one end in each hand start winding the button over and over. With practice, you can move your hands in and out with the pull and release of the string and make a sawing sound. Older generations also carved wooden handles for each end of the string, which made the toy more "like something to get in a stocking."

Throughout the commonwealth small shops are specializing in folk toys, but sometimes the joy of giving such a toy is in the making.

"If I had been a writer," said a Martin County woman, "I would have put down on paper the stories I made up as my little ones listened wide-eyed. I knitted finger-puppets, each taking only minutes. I slipped as many as I needed on as many fingers and started out."

"Usually, I would begin by saying, 'In the Kentucky mountains there lived a brother and sister whose names were...' Here I would put in the names of my children or their friends. They always had a pet—and I always had a tiny puppet crocheted or knitted with ears for a dog, a bit of fluff for a kitty," she explained.

In the early settlement days of Kentucky, folk toys were not Christmas gifts but were made on cold winter nights to pacify a child.

A Lewis County resident remembers hours of fun with a ball-and-cup toy her grandfather made for her. "Mama would make dolls for us, but Grandpa liked to whittle. He lived with us. He whittled out a cup with a handle—one time he just made a small bowl—and made a hole in the handle for a piece of string," she says.

He made a small wooden ball and tacked the string on it, the string went through the handle. The game was to see how many times you could hold the toy with one hand and try to get the ball to land in the cup."

Most Kentuckians are familiar with the Limber-Jack or Dancing Clogger, a more complicated toy made with strings that manipulate the wooden figure in the manner of marionettes.

A Letcher County man said he used to make himself a new slingshot every Christmas. "I took mine to the woods with me. I stunned a rabbit once," he said.

Whatever could be carved with a pocket knife was the gift found in a stocking hung on the back of a chair or from the mantle. There were Bolos, climbing monkeys, bears or other animals, Smoke Grinder, Whimmydiddle, Hoop Roller.

Tucked away in many attics are wooden tops, balance toys, bean shooters, marvelous puzzles, boats and even story-book characters such as Humpty-Dumpty with jointed arms and legs and Chicken Little who when pulled with a string pecked for food.

Folk toys have always been a magical part of Christmas giving and receiving. As the wood shavings fall and tumble around the maker, they seem to reach out to the little one who will receive a handmade toy, creating an unforgettable bond of memories.

Health Manpower Program "Worked"

Following a recent reorganization, the Big Sandy/FIVCO AHES becomes Region IV of the Area Health Education System. The Big Sandy/FIVCO AHES was responsible for coordinating preceptorships in the region for health students, with recruitment of the students as a goal. Members of the organization saw the program as one that had worked and one in which state government, a local advisory group, and the universities could plan together.

The organization was founded in January, 1975 by a group of concerned citizens, in the Big Sandy and FIVCO Area Development Districts, who joined together to form a consortium to work toward solving the area's health manpower needs. The organization received designation as part of the state's Area Health Education System in April, 1975.

Forty-one students to date have returned to the area for employment. The first physician returned this year as a family practitioner in Martin. Since April, 1975, approximately 450 health students have had clinical rotations in the ten-county area of the Big Sandy/FIVCO region.

AHES board members have stated that the AHES concept will continue. It has reached a stage in its development where it can be maintained with less staff support and community input. The counties of the FIVCO ADD had joined Buffalo Trace/Gateway and the counties of the Big Sandy have joined the Kentucky River area.

Board members include Dr. Henry Campbell, Dr. John W. Sutherland, Dr. Fred Meece, Jenny Bottoms, R.M., Donald Nunnery, and L. B. Lemaster, of Prestonsburg, and Annette Cash, R.N., of Martin.

Union Officer Urges Tougher Safety Act

Sam Church Jr., president of the United Mine Workers of America, today said that certain parts of the federal Coal Mine Health and Safety Act "definitely need to be clarified to assure a better balance of justice and protection of coal miners."

Church issued the statement in response to settlement of a Clinchfield Coal Co. case, arranged in a negotiated agreement Dec. 4 in U.S. District Court in Roanoke, Va.

Clinchfield pleaded guilty to four counts of federal mine safety violations and was fined $100,000 ($25,000 on each count) and placed on three years probation for the largest fine ever imposed against a coal company in the United States. Further, as agreed to by lawyers representing both the U.S. Attorney's Office in Roanoke and Clinchfield, if the company is convicted of another misdemeanor in the next three years, the violation will automatically become a felony and the fine will be doubled to $50,000 for each count.

Spokesmen for the U.S. Attorney's Office said charges against 11 Clinchfield employees had to be dropped because of indications by the court that Section 110-C of the law would be ruled "unconstitutional" in that corporate officials could be prosecuted, but non-corporate officials were not subject to the law.

"If the act were stronger," Church said, "those 11 employees might not have gotten off scot-free."

Noting that some coal operators "unreasonably claim they are burdened with over-regulation," Church said, "Anyone who saw the ravages of black lung and the dangerous conditions under which workers produce the vitally needed coal so this country can operate without foreign energy blackmail would be among the first to urge stricter regulations to protect coal mine health and safety."

Church noted that "these regulations would help solve the black lung problem, yet some coal companies tragically both fight the provisions and try to avoid paying for their black lung responsibilities."

SENIOR CITIZENS RECEIVE 5% DISCOUNT EVERY TUESDAY

It's nearly time to celebrate the New Year...but before you do...we want to be the first to say "Happy New Year one and all!" We especially thank our many dear patrons and our loyal friends.

Admonitions for a New Year

Down with the rosemary, and so
Down with the Baies and Mistletoe;
Down with the Holly, Ivie all
Wherewith ye dressed the Christmas Hall.
This quatrain written in the 17th century by Robert Herrick advised his neighbors and friends to take down holiday greens by Jan. 6.
Herrick, who lived from 1591 until 1633, believed as did his neighbors that if the greens were not removed goblins would move into the house.
Long ago Jan. 6 was Twelfth Night, the end of holiday activities and celebrations. In the early 1800s Winthrop Praed wrote a verse that included this couplet:
Good-night to the season! 'tis over!
Gay dwellings no longer are gay...
In addition to taking down the greenery, there are other certain dos and don'ts to abide by if things are to go well in the New Year. Things like eating cabbage and blackeyed peas on New Year's Day are supposed to ensure not only happiness throughout 1981 but money also.
There are other admonitions, other definitions of old sayings and evaluations.
Goode Husband, for example, on Jan. 1 might say as he twists the knob to see how the game is going on the other channel: "Goodwife, how comest thee has not swept me out of the house this day as wont is thy custom?"
"Prithee, but I want thee around in 1981, and if thy Goodwife sweepest the litter under thy feet this first day of 1981, thou knowest the portent."
She opens a book and points out to him: "Don't sweep thine house this day or surely thou will sweep out part of thine family."
She does not point out to him but he sees another sentence that says:
"Thou dost not dare carry out ashes from thy fireplace or thou might carry out part of thy family." He relaxes deeper into his chair, moving only to push the remote control buttons. She notices but decides to pamper him a bit with, "The ashes can wait till Jan. 2. I think I'll keep thee."
No one should trim or cut their hair, toenails or paper; they should not scrub floors, wash soiled clothes, sit at the loom or spin at the wheel - the cutting might cut good fortune and the tasks might prove burdensome all year.
He, in his easy chair, is feeling his oats, for he knows if Goodwife should ask him to remove hay from the barn loft or corns from the cribs he can say,
"Nay!"
He moves slightly, just enough to turn on his radio, the better to hear another game; then he lifts one arm to move the newspaper to his lap—the better to see the listings, the better to read the scores; the better to enjoy his day of abiding by all the old dos and don'ts.
She has cooked the cabbage, brought kraut from the stone jar in the cellar, made slaw, and for good measure slipped cabbage shreds in the pie. She looks slyly toward him. Ah! he still is mesmerized. He will never know about the cabbage shreds but one day during the year might wonder at all his good fortune.
She has cooked black-eyed peas. She has fried some of them, boiled some with the stew—and slipped a few in the pie. Now, all she has left to do is slip a silver coin under the bowls of cabbage and peas.

He dozes; she reaches for "Digges"
Prognostication" of 1956:
If New Year's Day falleth on Sunday,
then a pleasant winter doth ensue.
On a Monday, a winter somewhat uncomfortable.

On a Tuesday, a stormie winter, a wet summer.
On Wednesday, lo, a warm winter.
On Thursday, a cloudy summer.
On Friday, winds stormie, rain scant.
On Saturday, a mean winter, very not, old folks shall die in most places; fever shall grieve many people; great mutterings of warres, murders shall be suddenly committed in many places for light matters.
Happy New Year! It's not on Saturday!

Gov. Brown Appoints

★ KENTUCKY AFIELD ★

By JOHN WILSON

A lot of us wake up, perhaps not feeling too well, on New Year's morning and firmly resolve to mend our ways and straighten up our acts. After the usual resolution not to engage in any more New Year's Eve parties (at least for another year) we get down to the serious side of things.

Among the commitments to get more exercise, forego deserts, stick to the budget, pay more attention to the wife, kids and dog and not buy any more hunting and fishing gear than we absolutely need, we should take a close, hard and objective look at our conduct afield to see if there is room for improvement there.

Chances are there will be. Although the great majority of us outdoorsmen aren't full-blown slob, we do tend to get careless at times. This is something that it's becoming more and more important that we not do.

The hunter (and the fisherman) has been coming under attack in recent years from a small but noisy group of folks who are intent upon outlawing all hunting, fishing or trapping. These anti-hunters are hard-core and there's nothing much we can do to change their minds.

But we do need to be concerned about the non-hunting (as opposed to anti-hunting) public—the majority of people who just don't care either way. Let the anti-hunters get the voting majority on their side and we've got real troubles.

Studies have shown that while many people do not oppose hunting on moral, ethical or environmental grounds, they have a very negative attitude toward the hunter, seeing him as an unsafe, careless, trespassing slob.

Unfortunately, there are those few out there who do handle firearms unsafely, who do tromp over other people's property without asking permission, who do pepper road signs with shot, who do litter—the list could go on and on.

The problem is that these are the hunters who get all the notice. The safe, careful and ethical hunter does nothing to get attention or grab headlines. He leaves no trace of his having been in a particular area and he makes nobody mad—hence he doesn't get remembered or talked about.

So among our New Year's resolutions should be one in which we promise to take a close look at our attitudes and actions while we're engaged in hunting and fishing. Pay particular attention to those small, thoughtless, unconscious acts—throwing a can or sandwich wrapper on the ground, for example—which seem insignificant but which, when multiplied by all who do them, can have definite ill effects.

We should also resolve to learn more about the history of sportsman-financed conservation—how hunters and fishermen, through their license fees and excise taxes on their equipment, pay for wildlife programs to the tune of more than $200 million annually. We should be able to defend our sport with facts—and the facts are on our side, which is why the anti-hunter appeals only to the emotions.

Another good resolution is to get involved in conservation issues—to write that letter to your congressman, instead of just talking about it, to learn what problems confront wildlife and the out-of-doors in your area, to take action to assure the future of the outdoor sports you enjoy.

Finally, resolve to take a close look at line 20 of your Kentucky state income tax return. This line allows you to contribute a portion of your tax refund to wildlife. These tax deductible contributions will support non-game wildlife programs and the acquisition of natural areas by the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources and the Kentucky Nature Preserves Commission.

The promise of natural gas:

It can brighten your outlook about tomorrow's energy.

Natural gas holds bright prospects for our energy needs, with growing availability now, and the promise of supplies for decades to come. And beyond.

Columbia's current supply picture is such that we have been able to start making new customer connections again. So more homeowners are enjoying the benefits of natural gas. We're able to draw on increasing reserves—helped by our customers' conservation efforts which have reduced residential usage by approximately 15% over the last decade.

At the same time, projects underway will continue to add to future supply capabilities. Included are new wells, pipelines and storage facilities; plus investment in development of new gas-producing technologies.

It's estimated that there's enough natural gas still underground to take us well into the next century. Then supplies from new sources will be ready to give our future generations the energy they need.

Today it can be said of natural gas that it is your best energy value. With the promise of the future—and with continued conservation by our customers—Columbia is taking the steps to make sure natural gas remains available. And remains the best energy value.

COLUMBIA GAS
Still your best energy value.
And we want to keep it that way.

Highway Fund Crisis Is Now, Says Report

"The crisis in highway funding Kentuckians have been talking about for years, is here," according to John W. Fish, president of Kentuckians for Better Transportation (KBT).

The recent announcement by Kentucky Department of Transportation Secretary Frank Metts that revenue for the state highway system has fallen to the 1975-'76 level, Fish said, means that "much of Kentucky's road system is in a life-and-death struggle for survival."

"Because of this and the fact that it is already apparent there will be a serious shortfall at the end of the biennium," Fish said, KBT has established a Task Force on Highway Funding to study the highway financing problem and make recommendations for funding alternatives. William M. Cox, Madisonville, former Federal Highway Administrator, is chairman of the Task Force.

While the recession is obviously having an impact on the Kentucky Road Fund, Fish said, there are other serious, long term reasons for the state's road funding problem.

The most significant factor, according to Fish, is "the relentless impact of inflation on fixed highway user fees." Since 1967, the U.S. Consumer Price Index has risen by 150 percent. The Construction Index which is compiled by the Federal Highway Administration, has increased by nearly 250 percent. During the same period, Kentucky taxes paid by the average highway user into the State Road Fund have risen by only 76 percent, he noted.

In 1967, the average tax paid by the motorist—including fuels, license, registration and usage—was $71 for automobiles and trucks, Fish said. For the last fiscal year, the average was $125, which is, in 1967 dollars, $21 less than was paid in 1967.

While revenue from the percentage tax on gasoline will eventually compensate for the decline in consumption, net revenue will not be sufficient to keep pace with highway needs, warned Fish. With a 50 percent increase in the wholesale price of gasoline, the variable fuels tax will produce an additional $90 million annually. Because of inflation and rising construction costs, nearly twice that much is needed this year, however, to get the state back to the fiscal 1978-'79 level of performance, Fish said.

Fish said the $300 million in bonds authorized by the last session of the General Assembly is a temporary solution to the shortfall. "But, the bottom line is Kentucky must have more revenue or the value of our investment in highways will be lost as our roads continue to deteriorate."

Fish noted that only twice in 14 years has the Kentucky General Assembly enacted a general user fee increase. The fuels tax was raised from 7 cents to 9 cents in 1973. In 1969, the automobile license fee was raised to $11.50, and the 3 percent sales tax on vehicles was changed to a 5 percent usage tax. "The result of not keeping pace with inflation," Fish said, "has been a net effective tax decrease of 30 percent since 1967, in real dollars, for the average vehicle."

The second factor threatening to undermine the present system of financing highways, is the rapid conversion to fuel efficient cars, Fish said. The average car being purchased this year is 50 percent more efficient than other cars now on the road. Presently, the average car on Kentucky highways gets about 15 miles to the gallon. By 1990, that figure will likely have doubled. Some six-passenger cars, now being sold, get an estimated 40 miles per gallon on the highway.

"Up until now," Fish noted, "the fuels tax has been an effective means of levying a tax based on highway usage. While cars will be getting much better mileage, they will still be traveling about the same number of miles each year.

"If the fuels tax is to continue to be an effective means of raising revenues for highways, it will virtually have to double by 1990 to allow the state to collect the same tax per mile as today," Fish said.

The third major factor impacting on Kentucky's highway financing system, Fish said, is the growth of bonded indebtedness which must be paid from a dwindling road fund. This year, some 30 percent of the Road fund—$114.3 million—will go for bonded indebtedness, he noted.
