

New Airport Location Argued before Court

Truck Collision With Bus Spurs Court Comment

The location of the planned Big Sandy regional airport and the competence of county truck drivers were issues debated at last Wednesday's meeting of the Floyd fiscal court.

Following the recent announcement of the approval by the Federal Aviation Administration of a site in Martin county, near its junction with Floyd and Johnson counties, for the airport, a new move has begun to have the airport built in Floyd county.

Commonwealth's Attorney James R. Allen, who appeared before the Prestonsburg city council last week to urge that body's support for a Mayo Hollow site, near Jenny Wiley State Park, made the same case before the fiscal court, claiming that it is the site most suitable for the airport.

Allen cited an engineer's report which demonstrates, he said, that two 6000-foot runways could be constructed on the site, which is currently being stripmined by Bizzack Bros. Construction Co. for JRM Coal Company. While acknowledging that he represents JRM Coal, owners of the coal there, Allen claimed that objective observers could readily see that the Floyd site is more central to the Big Sandy area development district and more accessible to southern Floyd, Magoffin, Knott and Letcher county residents.

Neither JRM Coal nor Bizzack Brothers stand to gain financially by selection of the Floyd site, Allen said, since neither owns the surface in that area.

Allen cited the Mayo Hollow site's proximity to May Lodge, and the potential for developing other accommodations and recreational facilities nearby, as other reasons for building the airport there.

FAA approval of the Martin location should not be taken as a final decision to

Jury Is Quickly Seated for 2nd Trial of Baril

The jury for the second trial of Tony Baril, charged with the knife-murder of Earl Chester Porter at Katy Friend, near here, had been empaneled by noon Tuesday and testimony was being heard that afternoon.

Because of the brief time required for the seating of a jury, the trial may be completed today (Wednesday).

The jury in the first trial of the case failed to reach a verdict. The defendant was returned here last week after spending some time undergoing psychiatric evaluation after he had cut his arm while a prisoner in the county jail here.

Porter was found dead at a roadside service station. No eyewitness to the slaying has been found, and the Commonwealth has based its case against Baril on circumstantial evidence.

The trial of Bob Craft on a first degree assault charge in connection with the wounding of Prestonsburg Policeman Keith Lawson during a liquor raid on Craft's home at West Prestonsburg has been docketed for Jan. 31. Commonwealth's Attorney James R. Allen said he will resist any motion for continuation of the case.

New Water District Ownership Proposed

Operation and management of the infant Abbott-Little Paint Water District has, in effect, been placed in the hands of the Prestonsburg Water System.

The Prestonsburg system has received from the water district a letter of intent which provides for the purchase of the district system by Prestonsburg's, and conclusion of the transaction awaits necessary paper work and instructions from federal agencies as to procedure.

The Prestonsburg system would assume the bond indebtedness of the district and handle all operation and maintenance of that system. The debt amounts to about $150,000 at 5 per cent interest over a period of 40 years.

The Prestonsburg system has read the district's meters and will do its billing this month.

The change in management-operation was made, it was said, "from the standpoint of economy," continued operation

MORE ABOUT PELICANS

I am almost ashamed to look a jaybird in the face, these days. For I have a feeling that I let the whole feathered kingdom down in this very space last week by calling a flamingo (?) a pelican.

I do not plead ignorance, but I should.

The fallout has been considerable since we pulled that one, and the outlying precincts, including the west coast, are yet to report. An anonymous reader attached our picture of the bird and my identification to a sheet of paper and gleefully addressed "the chief ornithologist" in words to this effect:

"If the critter shown here is a pelican, Tom Oak McGuire's dog is an armadillo. A pelican is a bird whose bill holds more than his belly can, and this ain't it."

And The Times' own Jimmy Goble took pen in hand to parody (these modern tinkers with the language would say, "to parodize") Dixon Lanier Merritt, to-wit:

What a wonderful bird
Is the pelican!
His beak can hold more
Than his bellycan.
He can hold in his beak
Enough grub for a week—

Mud Cr. Crossing Collision Claims Adams Brothers

Two of three brothers who occupied the truck which was struck by a train near Harold last Wednesday afternoon were killed and the third was seriously injured.

Dead are Bobby Gene Adams, 27, of Prestonsburg, and Norman C. Adams, 24, of the Mullins Addition, Pikeville. Their brother, David, 25, of the Meta vicinity, was listed in "fair condition" at the Methodist Hospital, Pikeville.

The collision took place at what is known as the Churchhouse Crossing on the spur line up Mud Creek, near the junction of Big and Little Mud. The truck was smashed by a 131-car train pulling more than 15,000 tons of coal.

Investigators said the brothers apparently neither saw nor heard the approaching train as they drove onto the crossing. Bobby Gene Adams was dead at the scene of the collision, and Norman C. Adams, who was said to have been the driver of the truck, was dead on arrival at the Pikeville hospital. Bobby Gene Adams was trapped inside the wreckage an hour before members of the Pike County Rescue Squad extricated him. Both victims apparently died of skull fracture.

State troopers Hall and Tackett were joined at the scene by Coroner Carter and Deputy Sheriff Randall Lewis.

Joint funeral services for the brothers were conducted Saturday from the J.W. Call and Son Funeral Home, Pikeville, and burial was in the Akers cemetery on Island Creek. They were sons of Mrs. Rebecca Adkins Adams and the late Bennie Adams. Bobby Gene Adams is survived by his widow, Mrs. Cassie Elkins Adams, and a son, Robert Jeremiah. Norman Adams leaves his widow, Genece Spears Adams, a son, Norman, Jr., of Columbus, O., and three step-children. The two victims also are survived by three brothers and two sisters, Franklin Adams, of Virgie, Ronald Adams, Detroit, Mich., David Adams, of Meta, Mrs. Ruth Reed, of Pikeville, and Mrs. Annie Anderson, Louisville.

Junk Cars Benefit Rescue Squad

The sum represents proceeds from the sale of 192 junk cars collected in the county as part of a clean-up project sponsored by the Department of Transportation. Squad members obtained releases of the cars from property owners on whose premises they were parked or abandoned, freeing them for collection and sale by the state.

Prestonsburg High School Athletic Department procured releases on seven of the junkers, netting a profit of $196.

Airport Hassle Goes Before City Council

If Prestonsburg or Floyd county chooses to act on its own, it will destroy the regional airport project, Allan "Bud" Perry, chairman of the regional airport board, told the Prestonsburg city council Monday.

Perry was referring to recent moves, spearheaded by Commonwealth Attorney James R. Allen, to have a Floyd site considered as the location of the planned airport. The airport board, composed of representatives of Floyd, Johnson, Magoffin and Martin counties, has chosen a Martin county site, near the Johnson and Floyd county lines, for the airport.

With the master plan complete, the site approved by federal aviation authorities, and the project ready to move into the design and engineering phase, the airport board intends to file its pre-application for construction monies later this month, Perry said. Those funds could be jeopardized if a division among the four counties arose at this stage, he warned.

"If we stick together, we can get something; if we split, we could lose everything," Perry said.

Allen said that he had met last week with Sen. Walter "Dee" Huddleston, however, who told him his staff had researched the proposed Floyd, Martin and Pike county sites, and that "he (Huddleston) would not be for the Martin county site."

Allen stressed that he did not want to jeopardize the regional airport but wanted to have the Floyd site, in Mayo Hollow, near here, considered by the board before a final decision was taken. Responding to objections that preparing a new master plan would unduly delay the project and would not be eligible for government funds, Allen said that an investigation of the Mayo Hollow site could be completed in a few months and that JRM Coal Company, which owns the coal being mined there, had offered to pay for the study.

If the Mayo Hollow location is good enough for an airport, it would be good enough for an industrial or housing site, Perry said, adding that its proximity to Prestonsburg made the site unsuitable for an airport. The prospect of aircraft noise near a population center made it unlikely that the site would meet federal environmental standards, he said.

The council referred the matter to a committee, which will confer with state aviation officials and report to the council at its next meeting. A public information meeting on the airport project has been scheduled by the airport board for 7 p.m., Thursday, Jan. 24, at Prestonsburg Community College.

Floyd Health Department Administrator Earl Compton told the council

Officials Learn $50,000 Marked For System Here

Announcement last week by Congressman Carl D. Perkins and Senators Ford and Huddleston that the city of Prestonsburg will receive $500,000 in community development block funds from HUD places the Prestonsburg water system within striking distance of its goal of a greater water supply and expansion of the system.

Mayor Harold W. Cooley said the HUD grant is a vital part of the $3,400,000 projected cost of the proposed undertaking.

Other funding committed to the project includes $900,000 from the Economic Development Administration, $700,000 from the Appalachian Regional Commission and $1,300,000 in grant and loan from the Farmers Home Administration.

These funds will finance a project which will:

—Double the present capacity of the water plant to 3,000,000 gallons per day.

—Extend the 12-inch main from the plant through Prestonsburg and replace the old 150,000-gallon reservoir here with one of 500,000-gallon capacity.

—Extend the 10-inch main from the Columbia Gas pipeyard, between Prestonsburg and Emma, on through Emma and Dwale to New Allen, from there extend the system with 10- and 8-inch main upriver to Mare Creek, and build a 300,000-gallon reservoir near the existing tank at New Allen.

—Connect the Prestonsburg system with the Sandy Valley Water District so

Martin Council Eyes Financial Status at Meet

"We need to find out who we owe, how much we owe, and who owes us," Mayor Larry B. Hall told a meeting of the Martin city council in a call for tighter accounting of the city's finances last Wednesday.

Singling out the fire department and water commission budgets for particular attention, Hall directed City Clerk Terry Sizemore to summon the water commission to appear before the next council meeting with a copy of its operating budget.

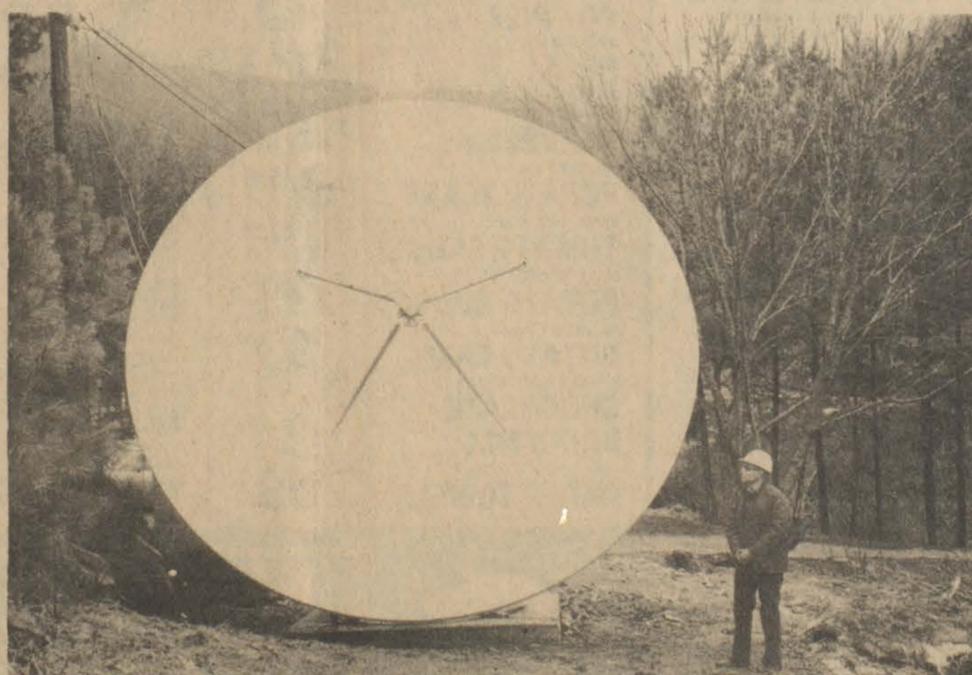

Council members expressed some dismay at a $4049 bill for firefighting equipment inherited from the previous administration. A coal severance tax allocation was apparently supposed to pay for the equipment, but only $1309 remains in that account, according to the city clerk.

County records show that $21,997 has been allocated to the Martin "Fire Department and Recreation Project" over the past two years, when the equipment was purchased, but at least part of that sum was intended to pay for a backhoe bought by the city last year.

Much of the fire equipment purchased was unnecessary or inappropriate, said Asst. Fire Chief Robert Campbell, citing a $2341 water cannon, which he said was too big for the city's fire truck, and a $379 nozzle. The cannon and nozzle were

TV Company Gears Up for Satellite Reception

SATELLITE SIGNALS will soon be received by this five-meter dish antenna, recently installed in Knotley Hollow, just south of here, by Flanery and Dingus TV, one of a number of Floyd cable TV companies currently gearing up for satellite reception.

Dave M. Flanery (pictured), local manager of the company, said that station WTBS, out of Atlanta, will be on the air within 10 days, and that reception on all channels of the system will be markedly improved.

Hueysville Tot Is Fire Victim

A two-year-old child died in an early morning fire which last Wednesday destroyed the mobile home of his parents at Reed Branch, near Hueysville.

The victim, Larry Eugene Hicks, Jr., son of Larry Eugene Hicks and Judy Carol Jones Hicks, is believed to have died of smoke inhalation before the flames that swept the trailer reached him, but no official finding by James McKenzie, arson investigator with the State Fire Marshal's office, had been made Monday, according to Coroner James J. Carter.

Body of the child was found beneath a bed by members of the Floyd County Emergency and Rescue Squad after the fire had been extinguished by the Wayland fire department.

McKenzie was joined by State Detective Danny Stumbo in the investigation of the tragedy. Coroner Carter said he was told the child was sleeping in a bedroom at the end of the trailer and that his mother was asleep in another room at the opposite end when she awoke to find the home on fire. Fire and smoke prevented her from reaching the tot. Her mother, Mrs. Tina Reffett, opened the rear door but was forced back by the fire. Later, a window was smashed by a neighbor, James Bailey, and Roger Hicks, an uncle of the victim, made a hurried and unsuccessful search for the trapped child.

Surviving are the parents and grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Hicks, of Hueysville. Harold Jones, of Langley, and Mrs. Gladys Jones, of Means, Ky.

Funeral Rites were conducted at 11 a.m. Friday from the Hueysville Church of Christ, with Rondal Hayes and Gus Andrews the officiating ministers. Burial in the Hicks cemetery at Hippo was directed by the Hall Funeral Home.

Awaiting Heart Remedy, Prisoner Flees Custody

Doctors are convinced that 32-year-old Harold E. Rose has a heart condition but he isn't too sick to escape custody.

The Middlesboro resident, formerly of the Melvin area, was taken from the county jail Monday afternoon to Highlands Medical Center for examination, then returned to jail Tuesday morning, the hospital called to report that the prisoner's EKG test had shown he needed further examination. Jailer Lawrence Hale returned him, unmanacled, to the hospital.

In the hospital awaiting tests, Rose caught the jailer with his back turned to him. He disappeared, and had not been found Tuesday afternoon.

Named on several charges, including driving under the influence, leaving the scene of an accident, drunkenness, and no insurance on his auto, Rose had been given a six-month jail term.

Conviction of jail escape could mean a pen term of five years.

Rose's supply of medicine remains in the jailer's office.

Buying a Condominium

By Lois Schmitt

When the central air conditioning system in an Arizona condominium broke down beyond repair, the home owners association voted against replacing it—and everyone had to go along with the majority decision. To make matters worse, a noise clause in the contract prohibited the installation of window units. The alternatives: live uncomfortably or sell at a loss.

A builder who couldn't sell all of his condominium units rented the remainder as apartments. This changed the character of the entire condominium from a community of home owners into one primarily of tenants. Accompanying this change was a drop in property values. The owners soon found their units worth less than they had originally paid for them.

The home owners of a problem-plagued New York condominium voted 81-5 to dissolve the condominium and sell it back to the parent savings and loan association. While most states require 100% of the owners to agree to terminate a condominium, New York only requires an 80% agreement. The five dissenters had to abide by the decision.

These are not isolated cases. The problems of condominium ownership are many. Still, a condominium can offer both financial advantages and an attractive way of life, if you know what to look for and what to avoid.

The Proposed Development

Buying into a new development can be risky. If you're looking into one where the units are not yet completed, insist upon examining the floor plans and site layouts. Carefully note the exact measurements of each room. Beware of the model apartments—they can be deceiving. Tiny rooms don't seem so tiny when decorated with small scale furniture, and floor-to-ceiling mirrors give the illusion of more space than there is. If there are no state laws to stop him, the developer may construct his models to a scale larger than the actual units.

Examine the plans for all recreational facilities and other jointly owned properties. Check that they are large enough for the number of families that will be living in the condominium. Make sure that the developer is required to expand these facilities if he builds additional units. Failure to get an assurance of this in writing could result in overcrowded conditions in the development. For example, a parking lot that is large enough for the original 100 families may be inadequate if an extra 50 apartments are added.

The Developer

Check out the reputation of the developer. If FHA or VA financing is involved, he'll have to meet minimum requirements; but you still should investigate. Find out if he has developed or managed other condominiums. Has he ever gone bankrupt or defaulted on any project? It's also important to check if there are any pending lawsuits.

Find out about long term control of any aspect of the condominium by the developer. Usually the developer builds the condominium and gets out soon after all the units are sold, leaving the management to the home owners association. In some instances, he may retain control of one or more of the facilities, such as the swimming pool, and lease this property to the home owners association. He can then raise the monthly usage fee as he sees fit.

Does the developer retain the right to rent unsold apartments? If so, you may find that your unit will decrease in value because of the conversion.

Stay away from any developer who won't permit you to look at all the legal documents until you're ready to buy. All papers should be available for you to examine and you should read everything carefully.

The Documents

Not only should you make sure that all promises, claims, and guarantees are in writing, you should also make sure that the various documents don't contradict each other. (The papers for a condominium can run over one hundred pages.) Something guaranteed in one place shouldn't be prohibited or restricted in another.

The first thing to check in the documents is who owns what. This information will be found in the declaration, also called the master deed. In some townhouse clusters the jointly owned property may be only a parking lot and some landscaping, while in a condominium apartment building the owners may control halls, elevators, heating and cooling systems, and elaborate recreational facilities. Remember, the cost of maintenance must be voted upon by the home owners association, so the more property that is jointly owned, the less control you have.

Check the proposed condominium assessment budget. This estimates the monthly fee for maintenance of all jointly owned property. Make sure that the projected charge realistically covers all likely expenses. Sometimes a developer will estimate an unrealistically low fee to entice buyers. There should be a reserve fund of about 3-5% of the total budget set aside for major repairs.

Examine the house rules. These are restrictions on what you can and cannot do and they affect your day to day living in the condominium. They may bar pets. They may also prohibit any commercial business in the development. Although you probably weren't planning to open a machine shop in your unit, keep in mind that this rule can prevent you from giving piano lessons or taking in sewing.

Study the bylaws. They describe the powers of the home owners association and set the rules for the internal government of the condominium. It's important to check how much control you have as an individual owner and to make sure that your rights are safeguarded. One point that you should check is whether you are protected against an owner who doesn't pay his monthly assessment fees. Also make sure that your right to resell your unit isn't restricted. Some condominiums require that the association be given the first opportunity to buy back a unit while others give the association the right to clear any prospective purchaser. Finally, if there are no state laws requiring that 100% of the owners must agree to dissolve a condominium, make sure that such a provision is included in the bylaws.

The Home Owners Association

In the case of an existing condominium where the home owners association is already established, it's important for you to find out as much as possible about this group. Make sure that your lifestyle is compatible with the other owners. For example, if most of the residents are parents of young children and you are a retiree, you could find yourself constantly outvoted on matters concerning expenditures for playground equipment and other child oriented facilities.

Find out who controls the association. Is it democratic or is it run by a clique? See if the development has many investor-owners. These are people who buy for an investment and then rent their units. Nonresident owners and their tenants don't do very much to help an association.

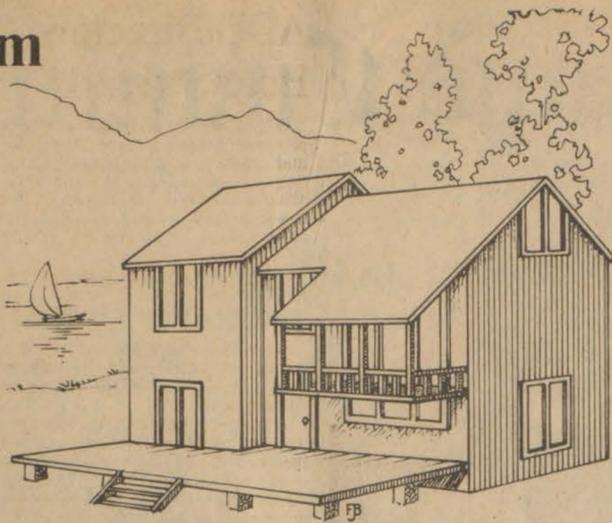

Make sure that the home owners association is, enforcing all of the condominium's regulations. If not, they risk forfeiting future legal protection under a particular ruling. For example, suppose guests are not permitted to use the swimming pool but Mrs. Smith's mother, who visits for only one week every year, is overlooked. This could denote tacit consent and when Mrs. Jones wants to bring five friends to the pool every weekend, the association may find that they've lost their power to enforce this regulation.

Financial Perils

There are certain pitfalls in condominium ownership that can be costly. If you're buying into an existing development, you might find that the building is in need of expensive repairs. Insist on getting a licensed engineer's report and make sure it includes an estimate of the cost of any repairs and replacements.

If you're buying a condominium that was just converted from an apartment, make sure it's legal. In some states conversions are only permitted if a certain percentage of the tenants agree to the change. Buying into a condominium of questionable legality could involve you in a costly court case.

Don't sign a sales contract unless there is a provision that enables you to back out, without losing your deposit, if you can't get a mortgage. In situations involving a proposed condominium, it is advantageous to have your deposit placed in an escrow account. This way, if the project isn't completed, you stand a better chance of getting your money returned.

The final piece of advice for anyone who is about to buy a condominium is to retain a lawyer who specializes in this field. Your family attorney, who deals in general house closings, may not have much experience in this area. If you don't know of a good condominium lawyer, check with your local bar association.

Buying a condominium is a complicated process. Don't let the ramifications scare you. Just be sure to research thoroughly.

28 House Bills Are Introduced

Twenty-eight bills were introduced in the House of Representatives last Thursday, and the body approved a resolution requiring the recitation of the Pledge of Allegiance to the flag each day at the start of the session.

The House voted to suspend temporary rules that bills first to be assigned to and considered by a committee, in order to pass House Resolution 14, sponsored by Rep. Ronald R. Cyrus (D-Flatwoods).

Permanent proposed rules of operation for the House were filed by the Committee on Committees, and Rep. Bobby Richardson (D-Glasgow) explained some of the rule changes. Richardson, house majority leader, said the changes had already been discussed in Republican and Democratic Party caucuses.

He briefly singled out three changes for explanation. One change would transfer some functions of the House clerk's office to the Legislative Research Commission, he said. Another would give the Committee on Committees authority to reschedule meetings of the chambers in inclement weather. A third change would increase the membership of the House Rules Committee.

In other action, Dexter Wright (R-Louisville) introduced a concurrent resolution calling for the Committee for Program Review and Investigation to look into the state Energy Cost Assistance Program. Wright complained the program, which gives elderly and low-income persons financial assistance on their utility bills, cost $436,000 in administration costs to distribute $1.5 million in aid.

He said a television newscast had reported that one woman received $200 in help for utility bills when she had not paid a utility bill in 17 years. He added the report said that when the woman tried to return the money, she was told to keep it.

Other bills introduced in the House included several dealing with tax measures. The wide range of bills introduced also included measures governing funeral directors, the Capitol garage and polygraph tests.

Documentary on Cancer To Air on KET, Jan. 26

Joan Robinson died of cancer on August 14, 1975. For 22 months before her death, cameras filmed her battle with the too-often fatal disease. The resulting documentary, "Joan Robinson: One woman's Story," is an intimate record of a woman, her husband, doctor and friends trying to cope with the anguish of terminal illness. The two and a half-hour special airs Monday, January 21 at 8 p.m. (ET), 7 p.m. (CT) on KET.

At age 41, Joan Robinson was dying of cancer and wanted her story to be told. As a writer and editor, she considered writing a book, but discovered that treatments at Boston's University Hospital prevented sustained work. Mrs. Robinson turned to her friend Mary Feldhaus-Weber—a producer, director and writer—and agreed to the filing of what were to become the last months of her life.

The camera followed Mrs. Robinson as her illness progressed, revealing her fear, anger and guilt. It chronicled her treatment under cancer-care specialist Dr. Peter Mozdzen; her marriage to university professor Eric Robinson, her frequent remissions and her struggle with and final acceptance of the notice of death.

As it unfolds Mrs. Robinson's personal struggle for survival, the program addresses virtually every issue involved in cancer care and treatment in the frankest of terms. Questions of medical culpability, pain management and the patient's right to die are dealt with, as well as issues of hospital versus home care, discontinuing treatment and maintaining family and social relations.

"I'm not going to die happily because of this film project," Mrs. Robinson stated during her last year of life. "But I do know that I'm going to leave something important behind, something that may help other cancer patients as they confront their life with this disease, and their eventual death."

Following the documentary, a half-hour follow-up, "Joan Robinson Epilogue: Five Years Later," will present experts in various fields who discuss issues which emerge from the film and advances in cancer treatment that have taken place since Mrs. Robinson's death. The follow-up also includes interviews with Joan Robinson's husband and doctor, as well as state and national toll-free telephone lines for cancer information services.

ADD Directors Hear Swigart

"Environmental problems are people problems, problems caused by people that can be solved by people," Jackie Swigart, secretary of the Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection told the January meeting of area development district (ADD) directors here Thursday.

The first step in solving environmental problems, she said, is to open communications with people on the local level.

"I can't solve these problems myself," she said. "I not only need every departmental employee, but also all those citizens out there."

Swigart, who has worked with the ADD directors for several years, requested their help "to let people know that I'll treat them fairly."

"The people who are regulated by the department are willing to be regulated," she said, "if we let them know what is expected of them and give them a voice in decision-making."

She asked help from the group to "calm coal miners' fears" that she is trying to "cram this surface mining program down their throats."

Swigart agreed with Joe McCauley, director of the Big Sandy ADD who called the return to original contour section of the proposed surface mining regulations "asinine."

"But it is a part of the federal law," the secretary stressed.

Swigart assured Neil Farris, director of the Kentuckiana Regional Planning and Development Agency, that her department will maintain a liaison person with the ADDs.

And she agreed to consider a proposal by Jack Eversole, director of the Barren River ADD, suggesting that the department use the ADD's network of people to do research rather than paying private consulting firms.

John Adams, Pennyrite ADD director, said the natural resources committees of each ADD have not been fully utilized by the agency and that they could become a "good grass-roots base" for the Natural Resources Department.

Swigart said ADDs could provide input to the department because they "have a better feel for the local level, and they can make state government more understandable to people out in the state."

And the bird in your column Wasn't one. With apologies from Goble to Merritt...with apologies from y'rs truly to everybody, including the birds.

Speaking of birds, which have been conspicuously scarce around our place this winter, I report the return over the last week or so of a few cardinals, some nuthatches, a few chickadees, several boisterous jays, a variety of sparrows and so on. These visitors have stayed away so consistently that I at one time considered a New Year resolution never again to insult an evening grosbeak again, however impudent he might become—if they would only show up.

THE UNDESIRABLE

This character was speaking of a newcomer to his street. "Had a mind to protest havin' him around," he said. "Why? Color? Race?" "No, none of that." "A criminal?" "No, right peaceable sort. But he damages my reputation." "How?" "He can tell a bigger lie than I can."

of three public nuisances, two of which he described as "explosive situations." Improper sewage on Town Branch, where raw sewage lies in a ditchline by the road, constitutes a public health hazard, Compton said, adding, "We are lucky we have had no outbreaks of hepatitis there."

A swamp bordering Earl Street and lying behind the G & H Laundromat, on the city's southern end, is "another hazardous situation," Compton said. Sewers discharge into the swamp, mosquitoes breed there, and children play in the vicinity, he added.

Speaking as a private citizen, Compton also complained of a pack of dogs running loose in the Mayo Bottom section, where he lives. He noted that he had brought all three matters to the attention of the previous city administration.

The council referred to the water and gas commission the question of extending the Prestonsburg sewage system to Town Branch, instructed a committee to consult with Water Superintendent Bill H. Howard on draining the Earl Street site, and invited Compton to bring his complaint about the dog pack before the county dog warden at the council's next meeting.

In other business, the council rescinded a resolution adopted by the previous administration barring fire runs outside the city limits and approved a $1.50 rate increase for Flanery and Dingus TV, beginning March 1.

that in emergencies that system may procure water from Prestonsburg.

The doubled water supply will also provide adequate water along the river and to Prater Creek when and if a water district is established there and will assure the Abbott-Little Paint and Bull Creek-Water Gap Water Districts with adequate water.

Mayor Cooley said the proposed expansion and plant enlargement is designed to meet water demands of the area for the next 15 to 20 years.

Bill H. Howard, water system superintendent, said the $500,000 HUD grant was "the part of the package we've been waiting for," adding that, although the EDA, FMHA and ARC funds are "committed," a lot of paper work remains to be done before it's all official.

"Let's say we're now 98 per cent home on financing this project," he said.

Howard said the funding represents a lot of work and cooperation in which city officials, the fiscal court, Big Sandy ADD, Congressman Perkins, Senators Huddleston and Ford, the Community Action Program and other agencies have joined over a period of three years.

"It has been a fight over many years to finally receive this last little bit of funding for this project," Congressman Perkins said. "I am proud to have been of service to the people of Prestonsburg and Floyd county."

BRITAIN-RHODESIA AIR SERVICE RESUMES AFTER 14-YEAR HIATUS
LONDON—The first air-passenger service in 14 years between Britain and Rhodesia began recently.

Planes will leave London on Wednesdays and Fridays, returning from Salisbury on Thursdays and Saturdays.

Direct service between London and Salisbury was halted on Jan. 26, 1966, after the British colony's then all-white government led by Ian Smith declared independence in a bid to forestall balk rule.

Service resumes now that economic sanctions have been lifted and a British governor, Lord Soames, is in charge of the African country during the transition to new elections and independence.

build the airport there, Allen said, but only as indicating its eligibility for federal funds. The fiscal court should press the four-county airport board to seek approval for the Floyd site as well before making a final decision, he said, adding that that site has never been considered by the board.

Betty Johnson, a planner with the Big Sandy Area Development District, countered Allen's proposal, arguing that two-and-a-half years of work and $40,000 has already been invested in researching and designing the Martin site, at Island Creek's Pevler Mine, off KY 3, where Pocahontas Kentucky Land Co. has offered 150 acres for the project.

The preliminary design calls for a 5000-foot runway, with parallel taxiway, and associated facilities there. The area is already reclaimed, work is ready to proceed, and the site will be served by the new highway to replace KY 3, Miss Johnson argued. No further funding is available for researching new sites, she said, noting that 90 percent of the planning funds had come from federal sources and 5 percent from state sources. Allen said he felt confident that other monies could be found and that local interest is such that a substantial amount could be raised here.

The court voted to urge the airport board to consider the Floyd site before making a final decision on the airport location.

The competence of county truck drivers, responsibility for hiring them, and maintenance of the trucks are questions deserving urgent consideration, following the collision two weeks ago between a county gravel truck and a school bus on Mud Creek, County Judge-Executive Bill Wells told the court.

The Mud Creek collision was the fourth recent incident involving a county truck, it was said.

Confusion over who is responsible for the condition of the trucks and the qualifications of their drivers is a large part of the present problem, Wells indicated, urging individual magistrates to recognize the full authority of County Road Foreman Sam Fitzpatrick in those areas.

Fitzpatrick told the court that he had received reports of unauthorized use of county trucks and of unauthorized drivers, sometimes allegedly drunk, operating them.

District Four Magistrate Hershel Hamilton said that the truck involved in the school bus collision had left the garage that day with its regular driver at the wheel. Another driver, Otis Martin, 21, of Beaver, was driving the truck at the time of the accident, according to a police report.

"Until we get organized, the problem (of unqualified drivers) will continue, and it will get us into trouble," Wells predicted.

Cecil Sturgill, a member of the Floyd County Housing Authority, asked that that body be given an option on 10 acres of county property on Mare Creek, in order to build public housing there. A housing project now appears feasible there, Sturgill explained, because the Sandy Valley Water Commission intends to locate a filtration plant and water tank nearby.

A community meeting to discuss the proposal has been scheduled for 7 p.m. Tuesday, Jan. 22, at the Church of Christ on Mare Creek.

Doug Rice, captain of the Left Beaver Rescue Squad, appealed to the court for financial aid to help maintain the squad's tree ambulance service. The rescue unit received generous praise and a tentative offer of assistance.

Residents of Mare Creek and of the left and right forks of Big Branch of Little Mud Creek pressed complaints about the condition of their roads, and Astor Hall complained again of illegal burning and trespassing on the county landfill on Little Mud Creek.

An application for a second Appalachian project similar to the Middle Creek project now under development was sent to Frankfort Saturday by the Floyd County ASCS Committee. This new proposal covers the Bull Creek, Dwale and Emma sections of the county. Areas that would be included are Town Branch, Bull Creek, including all the land in both forks which drain into Bull Creek. According to the application this will affect approximately 11,500 acres. Inadequate toilet facilities, sub par lighting and a shortage of facilities are listed at the Martin school by Dan Dixon, Supervisor of General Sanitation Services Program. The Commonwealth of Kentucky and the City of Prestonsburg joined Monday in a circuit court action to close the Eagles club here. It has been alleged that within the past year the premises, or a portion of the premises, have been used for the purpose of unlawfully selling and (or) passing intoxicating liquors in dry territory. A meeting of Allen City officials with an EDA representative on a proposed public improvement there was broken up last Thursday when plaster from the ceiling of the meeting-place, Ann's Bar-B-Q, fell injuring one member of the party. James Webb, Jr. member of the town board of trustees, suffered a head laceration which required 14 stitches. Born: to Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Woodrow Allen, a son, Chad Woodrow at Grayson, on Dec. 29; Mr. and Mrs. Denzil Hall, of Grethel, their second child, a daughter, Danita Dawn, at McDowell hospital. There died: Charles Everett (Bunk) Friend, 58, at the Prestonsburg General hospital; Mrs. Irene Hobson, 65, of Allen, at Our Lady of the Way hospital; Mrs. Mary Alice Branham, 91, at her home at Weeksbury; Mrs. Beulah Dotson, 70, of West Prestonsburg, at the Prestonsburg General hospital; Elisha Hall, 73, of Orkney, at the McDowell hospital; Winford Cisco, 49, near Eastern in a car accident.

Twenty Years Ago

(January 21, 1960)

An unanimous decision of the Kentucky Court of Appeals ruled Tuesday that the veterans' bonus proposal approved by the voters in November is constitutional. The appellate ruling reversed the finding of Judge William B. Ardery of the Franklin Circuit Court who held it invalid. A flu epidemic affecting hundreds of Floyd Countians has lightened in some areas and maintained itself in others. Two new cases of hepatitis has been reported this week. Prestonsburg flood gates can be closed in three to four hours after the key has been turned on the gates, Dick Davis, Superintendent of the Flood Wall, said this week. Plans have been made to add, if possible, two men from the Fire Department, Emergency Squad and Water Department, Davis said, for around the clock shifts. Born: to Mr. and Mrs. Carl Wise, a son, at Paintsville hospital on Jan. 15. There died: Rev. Charles H. Nicholls, former pastor of Irene Cole Baptist Church, at the age of 81, at his home in Owensboro. Mrs. Alice Hall, 60, at her home at Mare Creek; Estill Douglas Crace, 48, of West Prestonsburg, at the National Health Institute, Bethesda, Md.; Ernest Dye, 63, of Bypro, at the McDowell Memorial hospital; Mrs. Dora Bailey, 58, at her home on Town Branch; Henry Hale, 64, of Middle Creek, at a Norfolk hospital.

Thirty Years Ago

(January 19, 1950)

Extension of Prestonsburg's corporate limits remained an undecided question this week, despite the work of Mayor Curtis Clark last week to explain to residents of the northern suburban section benefits he claimed they will receive through annexation. Floyd County teachers do not like the state budget as it affects them, and they propose to make their dislike of it known as a unit. Hours during which roadhouses may operate in this county were designated Wednesday by an official of County Judge Henry Stumbo. These hours are: Monday through Friday, from 6 a.m. to 10 p.m.; Saturdays, 6 a.m. to 12 midnight. The eight counties in the Seventh Congressional district received $8,835.69 as aid in their fight against polio in 1949. Heavy end of the docket of circuit court is just ahead, with six murder cases listed for trial, after a half month of rather desultory court work. The law enforcement launched by Sheriff A. B. Meade ran into the bizarre this week. It literally unearthed a fugitive from arrest. It brought here a juke box and its contents—several records, one of which was "My Bucket's Got a Hole In It," and five half-pints of whiskey. Guy Bates, the fugitive, was found in a cave of his own fashioning—a sizeable room furnished for comparatively comfortable residence. Bates is scheduled to face charges of liquor-selling, carrying a concealed deadly weapon, and destruction of property. Born: to Mr. and Mrs. Z. C. Dings, of Martin, a son, in Our Lady of the Way hospital. There died: Mrs. Charity Henson, 64, at the home near Ligon, of her daughter; Marton (Billie) Allen, 54, at his home at Midas; Rev. William Warrick, 71, at the Beaver Valley hospital, Martin; Joel Crisp, 82, of Martin, at the home of a daughter in Wayne, Michigan; Noah Melvin Frazier, 73, at his home near Martin; Robert Akers, 68, at the Beaver Valley hospital at Martin.

Forty Years Ago

(January 18, 1940)

Almost half a million dollars has been allocated by the works projects administration for the construction of roads in Floyd County this year, Congressman A. J. May, last week notified County Judge E. P. Hill, Jr. Yet undecided as to the feasibility of purchasing the holdings of the Prestonsburg Water Company and operating the system as a municipal project, the city council discussed the matter at length during its meeting Monday. Passenger rates charged by the Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad in Kentucky east of Lexington were ordered returned to 2 cents a mile after January 24 by the State Railroad Commission. Stockholders of the First National Bank, in their annual meeting, Jan. 9, elected Circuit Judge Henry Stephens as president of the institution, at the same time naming G. C. Spradlin executive vice-president and F. C. Hall as cashier to succeed Jude Stephens. B. M. Spurlock, former president of the bank, was named vice-president. Richard Spurlock was chosen assistant cashier. Nineteen Floyd county youths were accepted into the Civilian Conservation Corps at the certifying agent's office and sent to camp at night, in Pike county. Born: to Mr. and Mrs. Tom F. Hamilton, of Prestonsburg, a son, Harry L., Jan. 11; to Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Hamilton, a son, Jan. 13; to Mr. and Mrs. George Johnson, of Bevinville, a son, Jan. 5; to Mr. and Mrs. Ardie Elkins, of Martin, a son, Archie, Jr., Jan. 14; to Mr. and Mrs. Everett Akers, of Martin, a son, Jan. 14. There died: Mrs. Hattie Robbins, 70, of Tram, Monday at the home of a daughter; Joe Stanley, of Hueysville, last week at the Stumbo Memorial hospital. Lackey, W. M. Layne, 84, Monday at the home of his brother at Garrett; John E. Blaton, 32, Thursday at his home at Amba; John Elkins, 37, of Gearheart, Monday in a mine of the Payne-Baker Coal Co. at Fed.

Gasoline Tax

Not the Answer

A 50-cent gallon federal gasoline tax and a tariff on imported oil have been supported to reduce gasoline use in the nation. This thinking, however, omits an important consideration: many people are locked in to using their cars for business or driving to work from outlying areas. Mass transit is not adequate nationally for a majority of the people to depend upon. Severe taxes or tariffs could ruin those who cannot cut individual travel without sacrificing themselves financially.

Rather than drastically increase prices, the Administration and motorists must address three specific areas:

First, gasoline conservation can no longer be a goal. It is a necessity. Industry has done an admirable job showing the potential of voluntary conservation...but then, conservation makes good economic sense. In view of the current oil situation, the Blue Grass Automobile Club (AAA) believes individuals are now responding to the need to conserve.

Second, we must maximize the production of existing energy sources. There is a positive climate for removing some of the regulatory obstacles inhibiting production and use of existing sources.

Third, we must take necessary steps to develop alternate sources. AAA has evaluated possible alternatives as they relate to motor vehicle fuels and has recognized that alcohol stands above other candidate fuels.

A gas tax or oil tariff would quicken steps toward forced conservation. But, the responsibility rests on the government to encourage development of alternate sources and on all of us to make a determined, voluntary effort to conserve.

DAY HOMEMAKERS MEET

Members of the Day Homemakers' Club met last Tuesday at the First United Methodist Church, with the president, Mrs. Phyllis Herrick, in charge. The devotionals were brought by Mrs. Darlene Jones, whose topic was, "Faith, Hope and Love." The minutes were read by Mrs. Becky Short, who also gave the treasurer's report. Mrs. Short read a "thank you" note from Mrs. Frances Pitts, county home economist, for the club's Christmas gift to her. The president reminded the members that dues for the new club year are now due.

Mrs. Beatrice Collins and Mrs. Darlene Jones gave an interesting program on "Food Buying and Budgeting." Mrs. Pitts demonstrated some new food products now found on the market. A discussion was held regarding the local Drug-Alcohol Abuse program, of which Mrs. Becky Short serves as chairman.

Mrs. Pitts announced that a new Homemakers' club had been organized on Middle Creek, and that this club would meet at the David School in February.

The hostesses, Mrs. Peg Hewlett and Mrs. Gladys Blackburn, served refreshments to Mesdames Eva Collins, Mrs. Stella Spurlock, Phyllis Herrick, Becky Short, Mabel Donahoe, Kay Bates, Lucy Regan, Pat Necessary, Mae K. Roberts, Dorothy Burke, Mary Sue Moore, Frances Pitts, Docia Woods, Gertrude Bradbury, Catherine Stephens, Ruth Francis, Julia Stephens, Beatrice Collins, Darlene Jones and Mary Jane Brown.

The next meeting will be Tuesday afternoon, Feb. 12, at 1 o'clock, at the church, with Mrs. Herrick and Mrs. Woods as hostesses.

A Tribute to Sister Annie

There is one empty space in our church today
God called his dear saint "Sister Annie" away.
But she would say, "Now, children, shed not a tear,
For I've just gone home; God must have needed me here."

Someone else will soon sit in that one empty space
But no one else will replace that sweet smiling face.
When she spoke of her Lord, Heaven's joys would shine through
And she would clap her sweet hands...I can see her now, can't you?

Someone has said, "We lost a rose from our midst"
And to call her a flower somehow seems to fit.
For the garden she toiled in for hours on end
Gave beauty and pleasure she could share with her friends.

We'll never forget in the years that lay ahead
The souls that she touched and the life that she led.
She walked with her Lord whom she knew could not fail
And we're glad she walked with us for a while, our sister,
Annie Hale.

COST OF PHONE TOKENS

IS GOING UP IN ITALY
ROME—The Italians trying to double their money were snapping up the tokens used for public telephones before a new price increase went into effect Saturday. The government, in a new round of austerity measures, raised the price of the tokens from 6 to 12 cents.

Why Not Scrip?

We are facing an unprecedented financial crisis with our oil purchases, and purchases abroad, and our national debt increasing to around 60 billion dollars a year. We have got to do something. Governments can go bankrupt, the same as families. Inflation, the slowdown of world credits and suspension of world trade could throw us into a tailspin of depression from which there could be no recovery. What did Kruschew mean when he said, "We will bury you"? Did he mean in debt?

If our leaders and our people have the courage, there may be a way out. Many of us remember working in the mines when there were slow or no paydays. We had to resort to scrip with discounts of up to 20 percent for cash. With our dollar taking a nosedive in value, we are going to have to have a new world medium of exchange. Why not have scrip for all of our world purchases? This scrip should be redeemable only in American products. This could insure a more equitable balance of trade.

There may be some resistance, but as we can control most of the world's markets, 22 percent of the oil and an abundance of food and manufacturing surplus we should overcome.

Did Not Seek City Post

In last week's newspaper, the Times stated that I was not rehired by the new city council. I would like to clarify this statement. On December 20, 1979, Mayor Cooley received my letter of resignation (which was printed in the Times), effective January 6, 1980. My letter stated that I no longer wished to continue as City Administrator. I would like to make it clear that I did not apply nor ask any of the new city council for the job of City Administrator, as was implied by your story. I would like to set the record straight. At no time did I express an interest or a desire to work for the new administration.

designed for use with a system delivering 1000 gallons of water per minute, Campbell said, while the Martin system delivers about half that volume.

Purchase of the equipment, from Allegheny Fire Equipment, of Huntington, was "just a waste of money," Campbell said this week.

Bill Dings, the previous city clerk, told the meeting that former Mayor E. P. Grigsby, Sr. "signed all fire department checks" and "handled all transfers from the fire department to the general fund." Neither the present city clerk nor Councilman Joe Everage, both of whom served under the previous administration, could shed any light this week on the general accounting procedures followed or on the specific circumstances of the fire equipment purchases.

"I don't even know if the backhoe has been paid for," Everage said. "We may get a bill on that yet."

Mayor Hall asked the city clerk to "bring all accounts up to date" and directed that all future checks be cosigned by himself and a finance committee, to include Councilmen Raymond Griffith Jr. and J. R. Key, and the city clerk. On a motion of Councilman Everage, the council directed the city clerk to report all income and expenditures to the council's monthly meetings. Hall and Everage also called for an audit of the city's books.

Asst. Fire Chief Campbell said that an order for fire truck repairs, authorized by the previous council, had been rescinded by the city clerk, apparently at Mayor Grigsby's direction, a few days after the November election. The present council authorized the fire department to proceed with the repairs.

Campbell asked the council about the city's current fire insurance classification, citing rumors that it had declined from a class 8 to a class 10 rating, following a recent inspection by the Kentucky Insurance Board. Fire Chief Hershel Lester said he understood that Martin had been given a class 10 rating, owing to inadequacies in the city's water intake.

Charlotte Hall requested the council's assistance in eliminating a pond of water and sewage which she said has accumulated on a section of the old county road paralleling the railroad tracks above the railway depot. Bulldozers used in constructing the Martin access to the new KY 80 have exacerbated the problem, she said, and the closing of the county road south of Bucks Branch leaves local residents no egress except over the flooded section.

Mrs. Hall said that complaints to Haworth and Associates, the consulting engineers for that section of KY 80, and to the Department of Transportation have been fruitless, and that recent patchwork done by the road contractors is inadequate.

The council set the first Wednesday of the month, at 7 p.m., as the time for its regular meeting.

THAT ROOF NEEDS REPLACING
TOLEDO, Ohio—Shingles with curled edges may mark the beginning of the end for homeowner's roof.

Curled shingles, says Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp., a shingle manufacturer, can allow water to penetrate and damage the roof of a home.

Shingles curl when they get old and lose their elasticity, the firm says. Curling can be the first indication that the roof should be replaced.

McANINCH, D.A.R. SPEAKER

John Graham Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, held its regular monthly meeting at 3 p.m. last Tuesday at the Emma Wells May Cultural Center, with Mrs. James B. Goble, regent, presiding. The ritualistic service was conducted by Mrs. Opal May. The flag salute was led by Mrs. Victor Hale. The President General's Message, entitled, "God's Day," was read by Mrs. Sallye Clark. The National Defense program on "How Much is Freedom Worth?" was given by Mrs. Virginia Goble. Mrs. Frances Brackett, Mrs. Norma Stepp and Mrs. Virginia Goble were appointed to decide on the amounts of donations to be made by the chapter to various organizations. Mrs. Edith James, director of the Jenny Wiley Chantresses, invited the members to attend the Old Christmas party at May Lodge, January 13. Following the business session, the president, Mrs. Goble, presented the leader, Miss Alice Harris, who introduced the speaker, Robert McAninch, Professor of Political Science and Philosophy at Prestonsburg Community College. Mr. McAninch gave the background, and reviewed the main points, of the Salt II Treaty. He shared with the group his recent visit at the White House, where he and others were briefed on the Treaty, and also explained President Carter's recommendation of four billion dollars to the military budget. He added that this was not to be spent for strategic arms, since the United States has ample nuclear power, but should be used in developing rapid transportation for troops. A lively discussion, led by Mrs. Jane Combs, coordinator of the program, followed Prof. McAninch's talk. The hostess, Mrs. Carl Horn, served refreshments to Prof. McAninch, Miss Alice Harris and Mesdames Edith James, Sallye Clark, Jane Combs, Opal May, Vivian Hale, Virginia Goble, Olga Preston, Norma Stepp, Frances Brackett and Mae Kendrick. The next meeting of the chapter will be on Tuesday, Feb. 12, at 3 p.m., at the Library here, with Mrs. Kendrick as hostess, and Mrs. Stepp as leader.

Miss Marcum-Mr. Clifton Wed

Wedding vows were exchanged by Miss Kimberly Marcum and Mr. Joseph Clifton, in a candlelight ceremony August 25, 1979, at the Allen United Methodist Church, Allen.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Marcum of Allen.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Dave Clifton of Lancer.

The double-ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Kenneth Lemaster at 6 p.m. following a program of nuptial selections presented by Ruth Karen Marcum, aunt of the bride, vocalist and pianist. The selections included "Wedding Song," "Until It's Time For You To Go," "Lord's Prayer."

The white draped altar was enhanced on either side by two large spiral brass candelabra holding lighted tapers entwined with white carnations and stephanotis. In the center at the rear and on each side of the altar were baskets of red and white flowers and at one side three white candles were placed and lighted by the couple symbolizing uniting of their separate lives as one.

The couple wrote and expressed their own vows along with the traditional wedding vows.

During the wedding procession, the bride presented a red rose to her mother and during the recession she presented a red rose to the bridegroom's mother.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a princess silhouette gown of white satin layered with white chiffon, fashioned with an open neckline, accented with French embroidered lace and appliqued with seed pearls and featuring long sleeves. The skirt flowed from an empire waist and featured a chiffon ruffle etched with French embroidered lace extending into a chapel train. Her fingertip mantilla was secured by a camelot cap of matching French lace and seed pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of white and red sweetheart roses, baby's breath and stephanotis.

Miss Pamela Wilson, maid of honor, wore a red with white dotted swiss gown, styled with an empire bodice and round neckline. She carried a long-stemmed white rose with stephanotis and baby's breath.

Bridesmaid was Miss Renee Marshall and junior bridesmaid was Miss Robin Thompson, cousin of the bride. Their gowns matched that of the maid of honor with a reverse in colors. They carried a long-stemmed red rose with stephanotis and baby's breath. Miss Heidi Thompson, cousin of the bride, was flower girl. Her gown was identical to that of the maid of honor, and she carried a basket of red and white flowers. Master Matthew Thompson, cousin of the bride, served as ringbearer.

Mr. Cletus Gibson served as best man, and groomsmen were Bill Marcum, brother of the bride, and David O. Clifton, nephew of the groom.

The bridegroom's mother wore a three-piece lilac ensemble of polyester with matching accessories. Her corsage was of white roses and baby's breath.

The reception following the ceremony was held at May Lodge. Red and white which was the theme of the wedding was also carried out at the reception. The three-tiered wedding cake surrounded with four heart shaped cakes was served by Mrs. Gertrude Preston, who planned the reception. Mrs. Betty Keathley served the groom's cake, and Mrs. Jacqueline Thompson served punch.

Miss Glenna Marcum, aunt of the bride, presided at the guest register.

Out-of-town guests include Mr. and Mrs. James Swartz, Mr. and Mrs. Tib Congleton, Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Jamison, Terry Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. Gary Thompson, Mrs. Rebecca Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. James Doss, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Cooper; Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Bache, Mr. and Mrs. Leon Preston.

★ Consumer Comments ★

The furnace inspector who drops in to check your furnace free of charge may warm your heart, but he may not warm your house. Beware of phony furnace inspectors who may try to persuade you to have unnecessary work done on your furnace.

As the weather turns colder, consumers are reminded to have their furnaces inspected, cleaned and repaired—if repairs are needed. There are many reputable firms to do the repairs.

There also may be others who want to sell you unnecessary parts or an entire new furnace.

Let's review the guidelines to protect yourself against unscrupulous furnace repairmen:

—Be cautious when approached by anyone who offers a free furnace inspection.

—Don't let anyone take your furnace apart for inspection or cleaning unless you are sure he is qualified to do so. Make certain both the inspection and reassembly will be free of charge.

Don't take an inspector's word that he is qualified. Investigate every home improvement firm you deal with. Call the Consumer Protection Division, the Better Business Bureau, the National Home Improvement Council, the National Remodelers Association or a local home builders group. Ask around about the in-pector's qualifications.

—Investigate inspectors and dealers in advance, if possible. If there is ever a real danger of an explosion or of poisonous fumes, you will want to act quickly to have your furnace repaired. Advance checking can do away with the possibility that an inspector might use scare tactics to get you to sign a contract too quickly. Always check past service of the company and shop for the best price.

—During an inspection, watch carefully. A fraudulent inspector may bring his own broken parts with him and pretend they are yours.

—After an inspection, get a second opinion. If you've been told your furnace is beyond repair, have it confirmed by a heating engineer. If an inspector recommends a particular heating engineer, it could mean that the inspector and the engineer are working together. Find your own.

—Obtain written estimates or competitive bids on replacements or major overhauls. Beware of unusually low bids.

—As always, get any guarantee or warranty in writing.

If you have a consumer complaint, write to the Attorney General's Office, Consumer Protection Division, 209 St. Clair Street, Frankfort, Ky. 40601. Kentucky residents may use the toll-free hotline: 1-800-372-2960.

A MESSAGE FROM
GREG STUMBO
YOUR STATE REPRESENTATIVE
95TH DISTRICT

The 1980 Legislature is now under way and it will be a very important one for the people of Eastern Kentucky. Governor Brown has given the General Assembly "independence" and as a result several Eastern Kentucky legislators are in key positions of leadership and serve on important committees.

I have been selected to serve on the Energy, Natural Resources and Transportation Committees. I was also chosen as one of three members for the Steering Committee of the New Legislators Caucus.

What all this means to our people in the 95th District is that I will be involved in all legislation dealing with Coal and Roads and I feel honored to have already earned the respect of my fellow legislators.

I believe that one of the biggest problems these days with government is that it has forgotten that government exists only to serve the people.

You are entitled to know what your legislator is doing, and to assist you in that below are several telephone numbers by which you can contact me at Frankfort during the General Assembly:

1-800-372-7194 — This number is for information concerning the status of Bills or Resolutions that you may be interested in.

1-800-372-7164 or 1-800-372-7165 — By calling either one of these numbers you may leave your name and telephone number and I will return your call as soon as possible.

At night you may contact me in Lexington, where I will be staying during the session, at 272-5110 or on the weekends in Prestonsburg at 886-9953.

Clip these numbers out. They may be of use to you. And don't be surprised if sometime between now and April 15th, the last scheduled day of the 1980 General Assembly, you receive a phone call from me asking about your thoughts and observations concerning this Legislature. Each night I will be calling numbers chosen at random throughout the 95th District to check with you, the people.

Remember government exists "of the people, by the people, and for the people." It is your government and as your State Representative I want and need to know what you are thinking and what your problems are.

Let's all work together to make the 1980's the decade of Eastern Kentucky. This General Assembly is the first step toward the future of our area.

Let us take that step together.

THANK YOU,
GREG

More Funds To Pay Energy Bills

Gov. John Y. Brown Jr. and Department of Human Resources Secretary Dr. Grady Stumbo announced at a news conference last Thursday that Kentucky has received an additional $9.5 million in federal energy assistance funds under the Supplemental Energy Allowance Program.

Brown said that with the new federal funds the state has more than $21 million in energy assistance money available to qualified recipients. The Department for Human Resources administers the three programs through which the funds are channeled.

About one-third, or $3.9 million, of the new money is being added to the state's allocation for the Federal Energy Crisis Assistance Program, which began last Dec. 1.

He said the remaining $5.6 million, nearly two-thirds of the new program fund, will go to help those households receiving Aid to Families with Dependent Children, which provides money to needy children who have lost financial support through a parent's death, absence or incapacity.

The amount of the one-time payment will depend on the number of children in the household. A family with one child qualifies for $50. A family with two or more children in the household may receive $100 maximum, Stumbo said.

The state expects to help about 60,000 households with the additional program funds. Checks should be in the mail by Jan. 25, according to Brown.

Persons residing in public housing who are on a subsidized rent program and receiving Aid to Families with Dependent Children may not be eligible for the new money, Brown said.

According to Stumbo, the department plans to request a list of residents from the state's public housing projects. The names would be matched with the department's list of Aid to Families with Dependent Children recipients to determine who would qualify for the program.

Kentucky's other energy assistance programs total $12.9 million and include the state Energy Cost Assistance Program as well as the Federal Energy Crisis Assistance Program.

As of Jan. 3 the federal program has committed $3.7 million, Stumbo said. "This represents about 70 percent of the initial allocation and does not include the funds announced today."

The Federal Energy Cost Assistance Program is designed to channel emergency funds to low-income households who are in crisis situation and facing a utility cut-off. Under this program a household may collect up to $400 per fiscal year.

The state has spent $3 million out of an initial federal allocation of $5.3 million, with $700,000 set aside for pending cases.

The state's Energy Cost Assistance Program, which aids persons age 62 or older or blind or disabled and receiving Supplemental Security Income or Medicaid benefits, has helped 26,000 households and paid out $4.6 million, with an additional $750,000 in pending cases.

This year's allocation of $7.6 million includes almost $3 million in unspent funds from last year's program.

Early Chapter in E. Ky. Coal

The above photos, made around the turn of the century, show views of the Louisa Coal Company's mining operation at Torchlight (Lawrence county), the company's tippie (top), and the head house where a cable carried buckets of coal across the Big Sandy River to "fire" steamboats which plied the river in those days.

Kelly Hughes, of Martin, who made the photos available to The Times, said the Lawrence county operation represented the farthest extension of the railroad into that section with the N. & W. line picking up coal there. Hughes, who said the Torchlight mines were the first company mines in Eastern Kentucky, provided a list of Floyd countians, living and dead, who had worked at this pioneer operation. The early miners included Hughes' father, Eugene Hughes as well as the following: Mont Gibson and Brian Miller, Prestonsburg; Lee Shannon, Denver Shannon, Jeff Shannon and Arthur Foster, Drift, and Arley Adkins, Betsy Layne.

How Much Should You Save?

What Is Savings?

Savings are funds you put aside in a place that is safe and offers ready access. Savings should involve little or no risk; at our bank, for example, savings accounts as well as all bank deposits, are insured up to $40,000 by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, an agency of the U.S. Government. Savings should also provide you with a return on your money. We have and will continue to pay the maximum bank interest rates permitted by law on all of our various savings plans.

We believe that saving money should be as systematic and effortless as possible. And that's why we've designed a variety of savings plans for you to choose. Below, you will find some helpful hints that may help you develop the regular savings habit.

How Much Is Enough?

Most of us are familiar with a number of ways to save, ranging from a cookie jar or mattress to a full service bank. Because there are so many places to save, you should shop around to see which method of savings is right for you. Your decision should be based not only on the interest your money will earn, but on the service and convenience you may require.

How much you should save is a personal decision. While it used to be that saving four to six months of your annual salary after taxes was a rule of thumb; insurance, social security, and pension plans somewhat reduce the amount you should keep in emergency funds. Today, anywhere from 3-8% of your monthly income after taxes is a good amount to save each month.

Establish A Savings Goal

In establishing your savings goal, consider your personal commitments and planned expenses like an upcoming vacation, a major purchase, or college expenses. If in doubt as to how much you should save, stop by and ask our advice. We feel you should know as much as possible about money matters and we'll be glad to help.

Louisa Youth Stabbed

A Louisa youth was stabbed in the side during a fight Wednesday morning at Lawrence County High School.

Lowell Bush, 15, son of Gene Bush, of Louisa, is listed in satisfactory condition at St. Mary's Hospital in Huntington.

The other student, a juvenile, was taken from the school by authorities. Superintendent Paul Wright and Principal Bob Prichard said the fight broke out just after the homeroom period at the school, around 8:45 a.m.

They said they understood the conflict to be a continuation of family problems which had occurred outside the school and apparently already had been in court.

The wounding occurred as the two struggled near lockers in an open hallway which faces the school library. The boy with the knife told school authorities he did not intend to cut Bush, but the wounding occurred when Bush swung at him.

212 Bills Already Introduced

In a brief session in the House of Representatives Friday 24 bills were introduced bringing the total number of bills thus far to 212.

Formally introduced was House Resolution 17, the proposed operating rules of the House of Representatives. The rules will be considered by the chamber Thursday, Jan. 17.

There were 145 bills prefiled in the House before the session began and 43 House bills were filed earlier last week. Among the bills introduced Friday were: —House Bill (HB) 193, which would exempt federal civil service retirement annuities from the state income tax.

—HB 194, which would exempt "energy saving devices" such as woodburning stoves from the state sales and use tax. HB 200, which would set life imprisonment without parole as the penalty for a Class A felony.

—HB 202, which would transfer responsibility for licensing and registration from the circuit clerk to the county clerk.

—HB 209, which would give state income tax credits of up to $1,000 for 25 percent of the cost of solar heating or cooling devices.

—HB 211, which would phase in a four year driver's licensing costing $8.

—HB 212, which would change the apportionment of the state road fund.

The forty-three bills introduced in the House of Representatives this week dealt with everything from revising state income tax to where the legislators may park.

Bills referred to the Appropriations and Revenue Committee for consideration are: —HB 146, which would reconstruct the property tax calendar.

—HB 147, which would require General Assembly approval of certain state fiscal obligations including the issuing of revenue bonds. It would require appropriation of the first year's debt service.

Other bills relating to property tax include: —HB 161, which would define "property subject to taxation," and would revise several procedures by which the property tax administrator would assess property, to conform to HB 44, passed during the 1978 Special Session.

—HB 171, which would require property valuation administrators to include along with assessment notices an explanation of the assessment appeals process.

—HB 160, which would define adjusted gross income as it is defined in the Internal Revenue Code with appropriate Kentucky adjustments. It would revise Kentucky income tax in various other ways as well.

Other bills dealing with taxes include: —HB 172, which proposes an amendment to the Kentucky Constitution which would require the electorate to vote on any action by the General Assembly to increase taxes and would deny veto power by the governor.

Two bills deal with interest rates: —HB 159, would hold interest rates to the limit set by national banking associations on loans of $15,000 or less.

—HB 185, similarly, would prohibit interest rates in excess of 8.5 percent of the rate allowed by law, whichever is greater, on loans of $15,000 or less.

HB 187, a bill with 50 sponsors, would require school teachers to allow one minute of silent prayer in the classroom in the morning, excusing students not willing to participate.

HB 182, which would allow local government to prohibit only non-essential business from opening on Sundays between 6 a.m. and noon.

HB 154, which would increase the county road aid allotment from nine-tenths of one cent to 14 percent of the amount of motor fuels taxes received from the state; and would increase municipal road allotment from one-half one cent to 8 percent of the motor fuels taxes received.

HB 180, which would appropriate $5 million for each of fiscal years 1980-81 and 1981-82 to continue the Energy Cost Assistance Program.

HB 164, which would prohibit employers other than banks, savings and loans, and law enforcement agencies from requiring employees or prospective employees to submit to polygraph tests.

HB 176, which would change the date for the presidential primary from the first Tuesday after the fourth Monday in May to the third Tuesday in March, effective 1984.

In the Senate last week there were 15 bills introduced bringing the total number of bills before the body to 80. There were 65 bills prefiled in the Senate before the session began.

One bill would require the state to notify a county fiscal court at least four months in advance of elimination of a portion of road or street from the state primary road system.

Senate Bill (SB) 68 would also amend Kentucky law so that a road eliminated from the system would continue to be a public road, whether or not it is established as a county road. The bill, sponsored by Sen. Bill Quinlan (D-Louisville), has been assigned to the Highways and Traffic Safety Committee for consideration.

Here are eight bills introduced in the Senate through the first three legislative days Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. Six bills introduced are presently facing committee assignment.

—SB 66, sponsored by the Interim Joint Committee on Health and Welfare with a recommendation for passage, would require the state Department for Human Resources to operate a program to improve state emergency medical services, create a state emergency medical services advisory committee of 15 members, and create a state matching fund for ambulance, equipment and personnel funding.

—SB 67, sponsored by Sen. Quinlan, would define and create a 15-member public transportation advisory council and appropriate $16,000 for such purpose.

—SB 69, sponsored by Sen. John Berry (D-Turners Station), the Senate majority leader, would amend state law concerning workmen's compensation to eliminate hearing officers now authorized and require that proof be shown by depositions from claimants.

—SB 70, sponsored by Sen. Quinlan, would remove amateur boxing from the jurisdiction of the Kentucky Athletic Commission and repeal the statute requiring permits for amateur matches or exhibitions.

—SB 71, sponsored by Sen. Nelson Allen (D-Russell), would allow teachers' unused accumulated sick leave up to 180 days to be calculated as service credit for teachers' retirement benefits.

—SB 73, sponsored by Sen. William Sullivan (D-Henderson), would limit the taxation of radio and television towers not essential in the broadcast of a signal to the state property tax.

—SB 74, sponsored by Sen. Allen and Sen. Danny Meyer (D-Louisville), would require the Bureau of State Police to allow payroll deductions for dues to the Kentucky State Police Professional Association when so authorized by an officer.

Say Road Cut by Water

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Hamilton and family observed the Christmas holiday together in Lexington.

WATER PONDING on old county road running parallel to railroad, above depot at Martin, is said to be causing problems for the 15 or so families living there. Construction of the Martin access to new KY 80 has blocked the road at its upper end; road at lower end is easily cut off by water, residents say.

Filling the depression could solve the problem, according to Wesley L. Hall, who says he has written the Department of Transportation and Haworth and Associates, the highway design engineers, concerning the problem.

Court Enjoins Burton Antenna To Curb Rates

An order enjoining Mike Little, owner of the Burton Antenna System, from raising his cable TV rates was entered Monday by Judge Hollie Conley in the Floyd Circuit Court.

Under the order Little may not raise his rates above the $6 per month he is presently authorized to collect until his application for a rate increase is again considered by the Floyd Cable TV Commission at its February 8 meeting.

At its December meeting, the commission denied an $8 rate sought by Little, granting him a $7.50 rate instead. Little said at the time he intended to charge his customers $8, notwithstanding the commission's ruling.

In seeking an injunction against Little, Floyd County Attorney Arnold Turner, Jr. argued that the rate should be held at $6, pending the operator's submission of financial records justifying an increase. The court order directs that any fees collected in excess of $6 be held in escrow, subject to refund or adjustment pending the decision of the commission, and that any increase granted to the operator be made retroactive to January 1.

Little, who was one of several cable TV operators appearing before the TV commission at its regular meeting last Friday, complained that he had not been given an opportunity to present his case for a rate increase.

A number of Right Beaver customers of the Phil Hamilton TV System complained of poor service in that section, but Hamilton said he had not previously heard of the complaints. Noting that the commission received more complaints about the Hamilton system than any other, Chairman Charles Clark urged consumers to contact the system operators rather than the commission in the first instance.

Hamilton had been given 30 days at the commission's last meeting to effect improvements to his system. In response to a question by Clark as to whether any improvements had been made in the interim, Hamilton said that he had spent $2500 in improvements, had resolved some Turkey Creek problems, and would address other complaints without delay. The commission gave the operator another 30 days to "bring the system up to standard."

After hearing complaints about TV reception on Abbott Creek, Dave M. Flanery, of Flanery and Dingus TV, conceded that service had deteriorated because of rapid growth in that section, and promised improved service there. The commission granted him a $1.50 rate increase, effective once his satellite signal is on the line.

The operator had previously withdrawn his rate hike application, Paul Gearheart, owner of Tel-Com Inc., heard a number of complaints from Martin, Mud Creek and Wheelwright consumers. Commission Chairman Clark asked the operator to conduct extensive monitoring on Toler Creek, because of a concentration of complaints there.

The problem of unfranchised areas without any TV service was again brought to the commission's attention by Little Paint and Johns Branch residents. The Floyd fiscal court "did a bum job" in only franchising areas already being served when the franchise system was established last year, opined commission member Albert Burchett.

"They took the sweet and left the bitter," said Burchett, referring to the fact that operators frequently excluded from their franchise areas heads of hollows and other more remote, less profitable areas. County Attorney Turner replied that the fiscal court probably had no constitutional right to force operators to serve unprofitable areas, noting that the county ordinance requires service to be given only where there are at least 10 customers per mile.

LOVING MEMORIES

In memory of Oscar Tackett, who passed away Jan. 6, 1979: Your gentle face and patient smile With sadness we recall, You had a kindly word for each And died beloved by all.

The voice is mute and stilled the heart, That loved us well and true, Oh, bitter was the trial to part From one so loved as you.

You are not forgotten, Daddy, Nor will you ever be, As long as life and memory last We will remember thee.

We miss you now, our hearts are sore, As time goes by we miss you more, Your loving smile, your gentle face, No one can fill your vacant place.

Sadly missed by WIFE AND CHILDREN

Miss Clissandra Radliff visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Radliff, for about three weeks during the Christmas-New Year season but was ill most of that time. She is studying at the Medical University, Charleston, S. C., majoring in allied sciences and psychology.

Friends are happy to learn that Mrs. Mildred Brooks has recovered enough to return to her teaching post after problems caused by a household accident several months ago.

Folks are glad to have Mrs. Luther Tibbs back at home for a short stay. She

1,215 Cited For Traffic Violations

State police at Pikeville have reported ticketing 1,215 motorists for traffic violations within their five-county patrol area during November.

The November citation totals, as released by KSP Commissioner Kenneth E. Brandenburg, were among the latest figures available on state police activity in the Pikeville post area. That area includes Floyd, Johnson, Magoffin, Martin and Pike counties.

Brandenburg also noted that the number of traffic accidents investigated was down almost 13 percent, from 300 in October to 262 for November.

Five traffic fatalities during the month—one each in Pike, Johnson and Magoffin counties and two in Floyd county—raised the overall traffic death toll within the Pikeville post area to 42 since last January.

Other November activity totals for the Pikeville post area included 60 criminal arrests, 165 arrests for public intoxication, 137 motorists assisted, 104 crime prevention program contacts and 10 safety education presentations. Seventeen stolen vehicles, valued at $75,600, also were recovered.

Statewide, the Ksp reported 15,942 traffic citations, 1,155 criminal arrests and 183 stolen vehicle recoveries valued at nearly $850,000.

New Legislators Take Office

Three Floyd countians, all elected to the Kentucky General Assembly first time last November and at their first appearance on a ballot, took their oaths of office at Frankfort, Jan. 8.

Although one of the trio, State Senator John Doug Hays, represents Pike county, he is a native of this county and is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Wickliffe Hays, formerly of the Harold section.

"It's a little scary," said the 35-year-old Hays, shortly before he and Sen. Benny Ray Bailey, 33, of Malle and McDowell, took the oath in Senate chamber.

"I'm looking forward to it, but it's going to take a while to understand how the legislature works," said Bailey, who has received national recognition for the World Health Services Clinic he and Dr.

Grady Stumbo, now secretary of the Department for Human Resources, founded at Malle in 1972.

While Bailey and Hays were taking the oath in the Senate shortly after noon Tuesday, 28-year-old Rep. Greg Stumbo, of Prestonsburg, was in the House chamber waiting along with 98 of his peers to take the same oath from Chief Justice John Palmore.

"It's all pretty exciting. I've been looking forward to this for quite a while," Stumbo said. "It's certainly a new situation for me, and I feel just a little apprehensive," he added.

Watching from the gallery while Stumbo took the oath were his wife, Debbie, his two sisters, his mother, Mrs. Harold J. Stumbo, and a friend, architect Paul Hoffman, who came along to take pictures. (Judicial duties here ordered his father, District Judge Harold Stumbo, form attending his induction to office.)

Watching Bailey take the oath in the Senate were his wife Nikki and a contingent of friends, and on hand to see Hays sworn in were his wife, Sophia, 14-year-old daughter, Kim, 17-year-old son John and son Seth, only 10 weeks old.

Hays recalled his grandfather, the late "Sawloggin" Doug Hays, of McDowell. His grandfather, Hays said, represented Floyd, Knott and Martin counties in the Senate from 1944 until his death in 1957.

"I always think of my grandfather's philosophy at times like this," he said. "He always wanted to leave the wood pile just a little higher than he found it. I hope to follow that philosophy while I'm here."

In May, 1979, Hays defeated Friend in a rough primary election battle. Last week he found himself assigned to the desk that had been Friend's for eight years.

That also was the case for Bailey, who represents the 29th district, which covers Floyd, Knott, Martin and a part of Perry counties. He was assigned the desk once occupied by his predecessor, former Sen. Jim Hammond, of Prestonsburg, who did not seek reelection.

While he's at that desk, Bailey said his chief concern will be the coal severance tax. Returning more tax revenues to coal producing counties "is a moral issue. I feel that strongly about it," he said.

Without more coal tax money for their own development, coal counties, particularly those in Northeastern Kentucky, will never be able to develop, he said.

"If we're going to have the same life chance as the rest of the state, it's going to have to come from coal," Bailey said.

Officials Hopeful State To Enforce Stripmine Laws

State and federal officials are now optimistic Kentucky can earn the right to enforce its own surface mining regulations.

"For the first time in months, the ball is starting to move down the field," U.S. Surface Mining Director Walter Heine told reporters following a key meeting called by Secretary Jackie Swigart of the Kentucky Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection.

"She (Swigart) is making a very strong effort," Heine added.

The meeting, held January 9 in Frankfort, brought together legislators, environmentalists and coal industry leaders, in addition to state and federal officials.

"We're down to the wire, folks," Swigart told the group as it began four hours of talks on needed legislation and regulations.

"Kentucky's regulations don't have to track or clone the federal act," Heine stated. "We have made that clear in comments to the department. What we want (you) to come up with is the kind of program that is going to withstand court tests."

Most of the issues that were considered during the conference have been discussed many times before.

But both Swigart and Heine indicated that, although some differences remain over distinguishing statutory and regulatory requirements, federal and state officials are much closer to agreement than in the past.

Some of the issues that were debated during the meeting include the right of citizens to accompany inspectors onto a mine site and the method to be used in determining what land might be unsuitable for mining.

Another question involved in cessation orders, the authority of inspectors to require immediate compliance with regulations or order mining to cease. Although Heine did not directly say that those provisions must be legislated, he made it clear that OSM expects such situations to be immediately enforceable.

Tom Duncan, president of the Kentucky Coal Association, said he was concerned that poorly trained or vindictive inspectors might unnecessarily close down a mining operation.

Swigart said she was aware of pay scale problems and the need for proper training of surface mining inspectors and explained that training procedures are being improved.

She noted that cessation authority would not be delegated wholesale but would be scaled to the inspector's qualifications and classifications with the state government system.

Also discussed during the session were those areas of the federal regulations where states have some flexibility. These are called "state window" provisions.

In summing up the day's work, Swigart said, "It's going to take all of us working together to bring primacy to Kentucky. The time for rhetoric is over," Heine said. "We have to move a lot of paper in a short time."

Heine explained that after the proposed regulations and legislation are submitted in March the state will have until June 15 to make additions. Then by September 3, Andrus will approve or reject the program. If the plan is rejected, it can be resubmitted for a final ruling by January 3, 1981.

She was referring to March 3, the federal deadline for Kentucky to submit its proposed legislation and regulations to the U.S. Office of Surface Mining (OSM).

If the proposals are ultimately approved by Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus, Kentucky will implement and enforce its own surface mining regulations. If they are denied, a federal program will govern the state's surface mining industry.

"If we continue to cooperate the way we have been," Swigart told reporters, "there is no reason to fear losing state primacy."

"We now recognize that we have a federal framework to work in," she continued. "Now we will go back to the drawing board immediately and have a draft of surface mining regulations within a week or ten days."

SMCRA Permitting Procedures, Topic Of P.C.C. Seminar

Now that Kentucky has deciphered the federal regulations stemming from the 1977 Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act and established its permanent regulatory program, coal operators need to be informed.

That is the purpose of the Permitting Procedures for Surface Mining and Surface Effects of Underground Mining Seminar at Prestonsburg Community College. The seminar will explain the environmental data requirements for the permanent program permit application as established by the Kentucky Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection (DNR&EP).

Specifically, baseline data requirements for surface and ground water, geology, fish and wildlife, and archaeological and historical areas, as well as federal data sources will be presented by members from DNR&EP and the Office of Surface Mining, Region II.

The seminar will be held February 11-12 at Prestonsburg Community College, from 6 to 9 p.m. Registration fee is $25 or $30 including the banquet. For more information, contact the Institute for Mining and Minerals Research Office for Informational Services and Technical Liaison (IMMR-OISTL), at (606) 252-5535. The seminar is sponsored by DNR&EP, in cooperation with IMMR-OISTL, Kentucky Society of Engineering Continuing Education and Extension Office, Prestonsburg Community College and the Coal Industry Technical Assistance Center (CITAC) at Pikeville College.

A team of U.S. Department of Agriculture scientists are testing an inexpensive process to make hospital linens that fight infection. They are also working on socks that stop athlete's foot and clothes that ward off body odor. Textiles are dipped into a solution of hydrogen peroxide and other chemicals, then dried and cured. Cotton works best, it turns out, and produces a fabric that bleaches itself when laundered. But before the process can be used commercially, it must undergo more tests for safety and reliability.

Among the churches which celebrated the last hours of the old year in services honoring the Lord and welcoming the New Year 1980, were the Church of Christ, and Calvary Baptist Church. Sympathy of friends and neighbors is extended to the members of the family of Mrs. Perry Stumbo, Sr.
Among those visiting relatives recently, were Charles Walters, formerly of Betsy Layne, and his daughter, who visited Mrs. Myra Walters Amburgy and other relatives.

Mrs. C. H. Furman and her daughter, Beth, a former missionary to Africa, are continuing with Bible lessons, formerly presented by the Rev. and Mrs. Furman at the Mullins School in Pike County. They served many years in Floyd county.
Other missionaries who have served and reached so many, especially children, in Floyd county, include Mr. Elmer (Eileen) Martin, Mr. and Mrs. Fred McGinnis, Miss Mary Lou Rhodes (now a missionary in Liberia, Africa) and Miss Elanor Acker, still serving in the Mud Creek, Prater, Toler, Harold and Betsy Layne section.
Several members of the Gearheart family gathered at the home of Mrs. Kelsa G. Elliot on Christmas Day for dinner and a renewal of family ties.
Verbal Meek and Geneva Hamilton, former teachers here, now employed by the Virginia Board of Education, spent the holidays with their family at Betsy Layne.
Orphie Spears was married Jan. 4 in Clintwood, Va. to Bill Kitchener, of Piketon, Ohio. After a wedding supper at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Millard Gibson, they left for a honeymoon in Florida. They will make their home in Piketon.
Angel Justice, daughter of Billie Joe and Sherlie Stamper Justice, celebrated her 10th birthday with a skating party at the Archer Park roller rink. Among those attending were, Harria Stamper and Bobby Jones. Birthday cake was served and a party was given for those attending.

Small Mine Operators' Meeting to Explain Assistance Programs

Several assistance programs concerning compliance with the 1977 Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act (SMCRA) are being offered to small coal operators in Kentucky. Now coal operators need assistance in determining which program does what for whom.
Those questions will be answered in a Small Operators, Assistance Program (SOAP) Conference to be held in January. The conference will introduce the federal, state and private assistance programs available and are designed for independent coal operators, consulting engineers, regulatory personnel, faculty and students serving the mining industry.
Representatives or managers of each SOAP program will explain their program's function. Speakers include Charles Ferst, Office of Surface Mining, Region II; Steve Brown, Department of Natural Resources and Environmental Protection; John Thurman, Tennessee Valley Authority; and Mike Templeman, Kentucky Small Operators Technical Assistance Program. Kentucky-Tennessee Coal Association President David O. Smith will moderate the conference.
The conference will be held January 31 at Pikeville College, Pikeville. The conference will be held from 6 to 9 p.m.
The conference is sponsored by the University of Kentucky Institute for Mining and Minerals Research, the UK College of Engineering Continuing Education and Extension Office, the Office for Informational Services and Technical Liaison and the Tennessee Valley Authority in cooperation with the Kentucky Department of Energy, the colleges and participating agencies.

No way could Edison have foreseen what harnessing electricity could mean for modern man. Among other impressive statistics, the January Reader's Digest reveals that Americans relax before 125 million TV sets, converse over 30 million CB radios, cook on eight million microwave ovens and use half a million miles of high-voltage power lines.

Rebels Win "Important" Tourney

By KENNY RICE

Allen Central's 72-70 victory over Pulaski County in the finals of the Pulaski Invitational Tournament on January 5 gave the Rebels their second tourney title of the season (they also won the Preseason), ending a two-year home winning streak for Pulaski County. Coach Howard Wallen feels the win also gave his club a boost heading into the last month and a half of the regular season.

"It gave the boys more tournament experience and it gave them confidence by winning a tournament on the other team's court in front of a partisan crowd. I am pleased with the overall performance of the team at Pulaski, and I think playing in their tourney has helped our team," Wallen said.

Central advanced to the finals of the four-team affair by defeating 12th Region contender Monticello, 71-60. Central played all but five minutes of that game without 6-4 center Randy Conley who left in the first quarter with an injured thigh. Phil Stone led everybody in scoring with 32, followed by Mark Martin with 12 (and 12 assists), Jeff Bailey 12, Bruce Mullins 9 (and a game high 11 rebounds) and Claude Allen tossed in 6. Allen provided a big spark for the Rebs when he came in after Conley was sidelined with the injury.

In the win over defending 13th Region champ, Pulaski County, Central missed six free throws, including the front end of three bonus attempts in the final quarter, but Wallen was glad to overlook that for awhile until practice resumed.

"It was a little nerveracking, seeing all those missed free throws, but the boys played hard and it was a balanced attack," Wallen said. "Everyone played an important role for us in the Pulaski win and that is always pleasing to a coach when he has solid team play."

Stone led the Rebs with 19, even though he fouled out of the game and played only 24 minutes. Martin had 17 and 10 assists, Mullins scored 15 and pulled down a career high 19 rebounds, Bailey had 11 points and 8 assists, Allen scored 8 and dished out 6 assists and Conley, who sat out the first half, came in the second half to score 2, grab 6 rebounds and play aggressive defense.

"It was a team win for us," Wallen said.

And an important one also.

MEMORIES

Central athletic director Gene Frasure probably has a few memories after the Rebels beat Monticello in the first round of the tourney.

The last time a team Frasure was connected with met Monticello was in 1969 in the first round of the state tournament. The Frasure-coached Maytown Wildcats beat Monticello, 70-66, to advance to the second round of the state tourney where they upset Clark County, 80-74, to gain the semi-finals against eventual state champions, Louisville Central.

LIT BEGINS THIS WEEK

The Louisville Invitational Tournament begins Thursday and ends Saturday. No 15th Region club was invited to the LIT this year but 14th Region favorite Hazard and 16th Region leader Ashland were chosen from Eastern Kentucky to compete in the 16 team field.

GETTING A LIFT

Prestonsburg's football team has started its winter weight-lifting program under the direction of Coach Phillip Haywood and assistant coach Tony Burchett.

"Football is a game of strength, speed, quickness and agility and we try to accomplish all these things in the winter program," Haywood said. "We work on the aspect of being bigger, faster and stronger. We will go as a group for three months, and continue on through April and May and into the summer. We lift on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, right now."

Prestonsburg's players were encouraged by their strong finish last season and they are lifting now with the hopes of a district title for next season.

Split end and safety Greg Haywood, a junior, is hoping to increase his quickness through the winter weight program. "The main lift I'm working on is the squats to increase my leg strength and help improve my speed and quickness for next season."

Lineman Terry Click, 6-2, 235-pound junior, has stayed close to his playing weight since the season ended and he feels the weight program can help him stay close to his weight and maybe add a few pounds.

Another of the Blackcats' returning linemen, 6-2, 260-pound junior Raymond Gibson was lifting a week before the program officially began.

FCC STANDINGS

The Floyd County Conference standings (not including last night's games) are: Boys—Allen Central 4-0; Betsy Layne 2-3; Wheelwright 2-3; Prestonsburg 2-3; McDowell 2-3. Girls: Allen Central 4-0; McDowell 4-1; Betsy Layne 2-3; Prestonsburg 2-3; Wheelwright 1-4.

Fishing Contest Winners Listed

Right Beaver Creek anglers dominate the list of winners in the 1979 fishing contest sponsored by the Floyd County Fish and Game Club.

In the bass division John R. Baldrige, of Warco, landed the biggest largemouth, a 20 1/2-inch taken from Dewey Lake on a Rapala, and the top smallmouth of 21 inches was caught by Jerry Bailey, of Hippo, in Carr Fork Lake, casting a spinner bait.

Forrest Dudley, of Langley, captured two prizes with a 12 1/2-inch white bass caught at Dewey Lake on a Nippo minnow and a 27 1/2-inch carp snared on a doughball from Right Beaver Creek. Other winners are:

Eugene Hamilton, of McDowell, 46 1/4-inch muskie, casting an artificial lure in Cave Run Lake; Cleetus Setser, of Endicott, 13 1/2-inch crappie, Dewey Lake, on a live minnow; James Earl Moore, rock bass, 9 1/4 inches, Right Beaver Creek on a live worm; Larry Hicks, 8 1/4-inch bluegill caught on a live worm in Right Beaver Creek; Claude Reffitt, of Langley, 32 1/4-inch catfish, on a live minnow in Right Beaver Creek.

The 1980 budget of the fish and game club includes funds for restocking foxes and raccoons under the game propagation program and for the purchased of seed for quail food plots. The club meets at its Johns Branch clubhouse the first Monday night of each month and welcomes all sportsmen.

Lady Cats Defeat Lady Trojans, 53-45

By W.I.S. JOURNALISM
 After leading by one point at half time (24-23), the Prestonsburg Lady Cats moved ahead Friday night (Jan. 5) to defeat the Lady Trojans 53-45. The Lady Cats' record now stands at 3-8. The Lady Trojans win-loss record is now 4-7 as they picked up this loss.

Leading in scoring for the Lady Trojans was junior Janet Little with 20 points. Kim Bailey followed Little in scoring with 11 points. Rounding off the scoring for the Lady Trojans was co-captain Sabrina Couch with five points, Evelena Johnson with four and Anna Thornsberry with three points.

Cindy Wells dominated the scoring for the Lady Cats with 21 points. Guard Pam Dingus followed Wells with 10 points. Rounding off the scoring for the Lady Cats were Jane Pitts with eight, Brenda Music with six, Barbara Crager and Drema Webb each with four points.

After a tough, seesaw battle throughout much of the game, the Lady Cats began to increase their lead in the fourth quarter earning nine points to Wheelwright's one point in the first two minutes of the quarter. With 3:40 left in the quarter, the Lady Cats led the Lady Trojans 48-35. On two steals, Janet Little and Kim Bailey cut the Lady Cats lead by four points and brought the score to 48-40. But this eight-point margin was as close as the Lady Trojans were to come to victory as the clock ticked away in the quarter. Jane Pitts fouled out of the game for the Lady Cats with a minute of play left. Janet Little picked up the last two points of the game for the Lady Trojans at the foul line as she was fouled by Betty Hyden. Sabrina Couch stole the ball from the Lady Cats and drove for the basket as the buzzer sounded to end the game. The Lady Cats still maintained their eight-point lead as they defeated the Lady Trojans, 53-45.

Eagles Defeat Trojans In Overtime, 85-81

By ROBBIE BERGER
 The Virgie Eagles defeated the Wheelwright Trojans last Tuesday night in overtime, 85-81.

Virgie was led in scoring by 6'7" sophomore center Todd May with 29 points while Rodney Rowe had 20 points, Greg Napier, 15, Byron Johnson, 11, David Hall, six and Terry Spears, four.

Wheelwright was led in scoring by Monroe Jones with 27 points. Gilford Hall followed Jones with 20. Completing the double figure scoring for the Trojans were Henry Isaac with 14 and Strawn Berger with 12 points. Also scoring for the Trojans were Tony Hall with six and Gerald Osborne with two points.

The early moments of the first quarter typified the closeness that was to dominate the rest of the quarter. The lead changed hands several times and as the quarter ended, Virgie led by one point, 13-12.

The second and third quarter of play saw the score change hands several times as each team battled physically and mentally for control of the game.

The fourth quarter was probably the most critical quarter for the Wheelwright Trojans as four Trojans began to experience foul trouble. Monroe Jones, Henry Isaac, Tony Hall, and Strawn Berger were all having some foul trouble and the Trojans were still behind. But baskets by Monroe Jones and Gilford Hall helped tie the game up and put it into overtime.

In overtime, Virgie began to move the ball inside and as they did so, Wheelwright's foul trouble continued. Virgie took command of the free throw effort as Rodney Rowe was for four from the line. As the overtime ended, Virgie had won, 85-81.

Osborne Teams, Winners Over Garrett, Jan. 7

By ROBIN JOHNSON (W.I.S. JOURNALISM)
 The Osborne Eagles added another victory to their record last Monday night when they defeated the Garrett Black Devils in a home game in the Wheelwright gym by a score of 57-45. The Eagles were led in scoring by four players who scored in double figures. Gerald Osborne led the Osborne quintet with twenty points. Kevin Grigsby followed Osborne closely with 16 points and teammates Tim Cole and Tim Harris each scored 10 points to complete the double figure scoring.

Tim Lawson led the way for the Black Devils with 12 points and D. Moore and D. Handshoe each contributed eight points for Garrett. Finishing off the scoring for the Devils were D. Green with six, M. Rister with five, R. Turner with four and K. Lawson with two.

In a closer game the same night, the Osborne girls' basketball team defeated Garrett by a score of 37-32.

Mia Jones dominated scoring for the Osborne Eagles with 23 points. Teammates Evelyn Boyd contributed six; Jerri Tackett, four. Connie Johnson and Dena Curry each had two points.

The Garrett team was led by Lisa Green with 17 points. Debbie Bolen had 11 points and Beth Hackett and Jennifer Ousley each had two points.

At the end of the first quarter, Garrett led the Osborne team 7-6. Things changed in the second quarter as the Osborne girls began to go to the boards. They picked up 10 points to Garrett's five in this quarter. The Eagles strengthened their lead in the third quarter of play and as the buzzer sounded they led the Garrett team 28-19. Although the Garrett girls came on strong in the fourth quarter of play, they were not able to catch up to the Osborne Eagles.

W'wright Picks Up 10th Win of Season By Defeating Blackcats

By W. H. S. JOURNALISM
 After losing four of their last five games, the Trojans of Wheelwright pushed ahead Friday night, Jan. 5 to defeat the Prestonsburg Blackcats, 61-50 at Prestonsburg.

The Trojans had a slim lead over the Blackcats at the end of the first quarter of play, but the Blackcats tied the game up by half time, 24-24. In the third quarter, the Trojans went to the boards and began to score, pulling away from the Cats.

Leading in scoring for the Wheelwright Trojans was center Henry Isaac who has returned to play after being out for Wheelwright's last five games. Isaac, who injured his leg prior to a game with Allen Central in December, put in 19 points for his team. Guard Monroe Jones followed Isaac closely in scoring with 18 points. Also scoring in double figures for the Trojans was senior guard Tony B. Hall with 14 points and Strawn Berger with four.

The Blackcats were led in scoring by Mark McGuire with 15 points and center David Pitts with 14. Rounding off the scoring for the Cats were Tommy Wilson with eight, Jack Wells with seven, Chris Stephens with four, and Russell Music with one point.

After a tie score of 24-24 at half-time, Prestonsburg began the third quarter with two baskets by Wells and McGuire giving them a four-point lead over the Trojans. Monroe Jones took the lead back for the Trojans as he drove in on the next three trips down the floor earning six points for Wheelwright. Tony Hall strengthened the Trojan lead with another basket as he intercepted a Prestonsburg pass. As Wheelwright put on an all-court press, the Cats began to have trouble holding onto the ball. With less than two minutes of play left in the third quarter, the Cats had earned only four points. Wheelwright had picked up 16 additional points by this time.

With less than 45 seconds of play left, the Blackcats had reduced the Trojan lead to seven points. Jones, fouled by Chris Stephens, put the Trojans out in the lead by nine points as he picked up two points from the foul line. Despite attempts by McGuire and Stephens, Prestonsburg was not to score again in the game. Gerald Osborne made the last two points of the game as he drove in for a lay-up and Mark McGuire fired the last shot for Prestonsburg as the buzzer sounded to end the game.

Wheelwright picked up their 10th win of the season as they defeated the Prestonsburg Blackcats, 61-50.

 The Betsy Layne Bobcats had their worst week of basketball in many seasons when they lost three games within the week. The Bobcats hadn't played since Dec. 20 when they faced the Prestonsburg Blackcats last Tuesday night. The Blackcats trailed at the end of the first quarter by seven points but in the second quarter Chris Stephens and Danny Daniels came off the bench and put the spark in the Cats and host team outscored the Bobcats by 11 points and led at halftime, 33 to 29. Both teams scored 10 points in the third quarter and 15 points in the fourth for the Blackcats' 4-point victory.

That same night at Wheelwright, the Virgie Eagles won over the Trojans in an overtime, 85 to 81. Todd May had 29 and teammate Rodney Rowe connected for 20. Monroe Jones led the Trojans attack with 27 points, while teammate Gilford Hall had 20 points.

McDowell traveled to Knott Co. Central and lost to the Patriots, 94 to 69. King of Knott Co. poured in 43 points, Hugh Hall had 24 points for the Daredevils. On Wednesday night the Daredevils traveled back to the 14th region and won over the Cordia Lions, 71 to 67. Jimmy Turner 6-7 freshman, pumped in 24 points to lead the Daredevil attack. Friday night, the Daredevils traveled to Virgie and lost by 95 to 68. That same night at the D.W. Howard Fieldhouse, the Betsy Layne Bobcats lost their second game of the week, losing to the Wheelwright Trojans, 75 to 74.

Friday night at the Prestonsburg Fieldhouse, the Blackcats were set to pull their second upset of the week. Allen Central got off to an 18 to 8 first quarter score, and in the second quarter the Blackcats got fired up and came within three points. However, in the closing minute of the first half the Rebels pulled away and led at halftime, 30 to 24. In the second half the Rebels pulled away and won, 64 to 39.

Last Saturday night was the first home game for Allen Central since Nov. 30, and the Rebels won over the Bobcats, 69 to 56. The game was much closer, however, than the score indicates. The Rebels led at halftime by four points and by three points going into the fourth quarter. In the closing minute the Rebels pulled away and won, 69 to 56. The Rebels connected on 17 out of 18 tries from the free throw line.

In other regional play Sheldon Clark won the annual Paintsville Invitational Tournament by defeating Tollesboro, 77 to 47. Elmer Kirk was named the Most Valuable Player. Irvin Stepp fired in 50 points to lead his team to capture their own Phelps tournament by defeating Whitewood, Va., 93 to 79. The night before, Stepp scored 65 points as Phelps defeated Hurley, Va., 106 to 63. In 13 games Stepp has scored 693 points for an average of 53.3 points per game. He leads the nation in scoring. Phelps has a record of 10 and 3.

May Lodge, Site Of Old Christmas

The centuries-old tradition of Old Christmas, long forgotten by residents in most sections of the county, was observed at May Lodge, Jenny Wiley State Park, Sunday afternoon.

As has become customary since Edith F. James revived the tradition in the 1930's, Sunday's observance featured old-time music, dancing, recitations and refreshments and was attended by a large crowd of area residents with a few from distant areas present.

Entertaining at this year's Old Christmas were the following: The Young'uns, dance group from Prestonsburg Elementary; Beatrice Collins, reading; Prestonsburg High School ensemble; Prestonsburg Community College square dance group under the direction of Jake Fraley; Laura Weddle, reading, and musicians including Buddy and Steve Ratcliff, L. B. Fairchild, Dave Sizemore, Dr. Lowell Martin, Denzil and Mike Hall, Dr. Carl Tackett, Clifford Branham, Marcus Owens, Ollie Wallen, Paul Neil Allen and Gheard Martin, Garnet Fairchild and Ethel Burke were in charge of refreshments and decorations.

Director of the annual event is Mrs. Kathryn Frazier, of Prestonsburg.

PROSECUTORS TO SEEK DELAY IN ANTI-KLAN MURDER TRAIL GREENSBORO, N.C.

Prosecutors say they will seek a delay in trials for 14 men charged in connection with the shooting deaths of five communists at an anti-Ku Klux Klan rally Nov. 3.

District Attorney Michael Schlosser said Monday he wanted a postponement because most of the physical evidence in the case is under the control of the FBI, which is conducting its own investigation into the shootings.

The 14 men charged face arraignment Jan. 18 in the Superior Court.

LEAPING LIZARDS

Perhaps not unique in nature, but still noteworthy to be sure, is this two-tailed lizard which was caught by 14-year-old Joey Slone while "digging around" with his eight-year-old nephew Dougie Hagans on Turkey Creek at Maytown, Sunday. The lizard, a nine-lined skink, to be exact, was in good shape when it was photographed Tuesday morning, save for a slight wound to one tail suffered in an escape attempt and some post-hibernation sluggishness.

Brown Addresses Assembly

Using the abundance of resources which is Kentucky's heritage to compete economically in a modern world was the heart of Gov. John Y. Brown Jr.'s State of the Commonwealth Address on Tuesday evening.

The governor spoke before a joint session of the General Assembly in the House of Representatives chamber.

If a businessman had owned Kentucky when the nation was new, he would not have traded his state for any other state in the union, said Brown.

Kentucky is centrally located within 500 miles of 68 percent of the nation's population, has an abundance of natural resources, more navigable waterways than any state and unmatched natural beauty, said Gov. Brown.

And, most importantly, Kentucky has "a very special kind of people—family people—honest people—hardworking people who understand the work ethic," he said.

This is evidenced by the fact that in recent years Kentucky has ranked No. 1 in the U.S. in productivity, Brown said.

"I have one question for us to consider tonight—with all of this abundance of resources why has Kentucky always been among the lagging states in education, per capita income and in overall progress," asked Gov. Brown.

The governor called for the General Assembly to work with him toward the common goal of building this state. He said his "first show of good faith as governor was to encourage legislative independence by not interfering in the selection of your (legislative) leadership."

Gov. Brown said he encouraged this independence because by constitution the General Assembly is to be the voice of the people and because he wants the legislators as partners, not adversaries.

But although he has encouraged independence, it is not true that he would have a "hands off policy" and not be involved in the legislative process as reported in the media, he added.

Brown said that he would use the power as governor to "honor my commitments and to help implement into law the platform on which I was elected." Basically his platform was two-fold, Brown explained.

First, state government should be operated in a businesslike manner with qualified and committed people, he said.

The governor said his businesslike approach to state management "as we face declining revenues and depleted treasury, will be to establish a lean and productive work force that will give people of Kentucky their money's worth and the efficient service of state programs at the lowest cost."

Second, the governor said the cornerstone of his platform was economic development.

"I think our greatest problem in the past is that our priorities have been confused. Kentucky has spent more money on cutting weeds and grass on our highways than on economic development," he said.

Gov. Brown said he will ask for an expanded economic development budget so Kentucky can compete successfully.

There is no reason why this state cannot "create the most attractive and competitive lure to bring commerce and investment throughout our state—to provide better jobs and a stronger tax base to support our vital programs," he said.

"It would be a total lack of vision not to work progressively in promoting and expanding our three major industries of agriculture, coal and tourism," said Gov. Brown.

The governor also discussed some of the legislative proposals his administration will not require funding.

Later he will submit other pieces of legislation that will require funding, but will wait until "such time as I feel they can fit in our budget on a priority basis," said the governor.

Gov. Brown's proposals were: Changes in the state workmen's compensation law to reduce premium costs and raise benefits; revision of the state income tax with the goal of giving relief to low and middle income people while simplifying the tax code; Granting home rule to cities; professional negotiations for teachers; campaign finance reform; and consolidation and control over the state's bonding authorities.

Brown said professional negotiations for teachers, the "right to confer," the right to sit down once a year with the school board. These negotiations would be made public and the results would be advisory. There would be a no-strike clause, he added.

Film To Examine Gristmill Operation

WKYH-TV, Channel 57 in Hazard, will show the Appalshop film, "Waterground," Tuesday night, January 22, at 7:30 p.m. The film was made by Frances Morton, a filmmaker from Hazard, and will be shown on the new series, Headwaters.

Waterground is about a water-powered gristmill located in Meatecamp, North Carolina. The owner, Walter Wineburger is the fifth generation of his family to operate this one hundred-year-old gristmill. The mill, still powered solely by water, grinds flour and meal in the old fashioned way—as Wineburger puts it, "with nothing added, with nothing taken out."

"Waterground" is a film for the entire family, both entertaining and educational.

"... and there is nothing new under the sun." The above quote is a tragic statement, yet many people seem to be constantly making it.

If a person is living in such monotony that everything that happens is old and "routine," then their life must be most miserable.

If we were living in the period of history of a thousand years ago, this statement would have had some meaning.

Man's greatest achievement of a thousand years ago was the wheel, and his greatest achievement 500 years later was still the wheel. But, within the last twenty years there have been thousands of new and useful inventions. And every single one of them has been greater than the wheel.

A person today has at his beckoning more new and exciting things to see and experience than he can possibly perform.

Someone said: "Digest every day—break it apart in tiny bits—enjoy every moment."

Horse Drawn Sled Tours At Ky. Park

Visitors to the Kentucky Horse Park will be able to tour the back areas of the park by horse-drawn sled when the ground is covered with snow.

Park Director Don Wathen said the sled tours began last weekend and received an enthusiastic response from visitors to the park. The park is on Iron Works Pike at Interstate 75, north of Lexington.

Ed Brice, manager of the park's horse-drawn tours, said the 15-passenger sled is pulled by the Percheron and Belgian draft horses used on the regular wagon tours. The vehicle is a large sled rather than a sleigh, with passengers seated on a low platform mounted on runners, he explained.

The sled was built by park farrier John Botkins, who made the base and runners. Carpenter Bill Polsgrove constructed the bed.

Park officials said sled trips are offered daily at 11 a.m. and 1 and 3 p.m. Additional trips will be scheduled when there is sufficient demand. Cost of the sled trip is $1.50 for adults and $1 for children under 12. Children 5 and under are admitted free.

The Horse Park is open daily from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. during the winter months. Visitors can take the horse-drawn tour without paying the admission price for the park's other attractions.

The general admission price of $3.25 for adults and $2 for children under 12 includes an interpretive film, a tour of the International Museum of the Horse and a walking tour of a horse farm.

Two Years Old Saturday

Billy Joe Hunter was honored on his second birthday, Saturday, by his parents, Gordon and Jean Hunter, at their home on Cow Creek. MAYTOWN HOMEMAKERS VISIT CARE CENTER

Thursday, December 20, Trilby May, Marge Sammons, Alice Hayes, Alda Gibson, Helen Boyd and Betty Bentley, of the Maytown Homemakers Club, visited the Mountain Comprehensive Care Center in Maytown. Following visitation and a turkey dinner, gifts were presented to each participant of the center.

Trooper Says Drug Violation Arrests 'Most Difficult'

"Drug law violators are among the most difficult to arrest and prosecute, partly because the primary victim is often the individual buying drugs, and he obviously doesn't register a complaint with the police," Trooper Claude Tackett told Floyd county citizens Tuesday evening at a meeting of the local Alcohol and Drug Awareness Committee.

Tackett, a public affairs officer at the Pikeville State Police post, told the group that he felt education was the most effective way to deal with the drug dilemma faced by today's society. Many young offenders have observed their parents' abuse of prescription medications, and very early have an awareness of the likely effect of drugs because of such experience, he said.

Tackett alleged that alcohol and drugs are a factor in most crimes committed in Eastern Kentucky, and pointed to a dramatic increase in the number of homicides and other violent crimes as having a connection with the widespread abuse of legal and illegal substances. He also said that, since alcohol is the most abused and most troublesome drug, drug abuse education needs to have a focus on this easily available and cheap drug, especially since the use of pharmaceutical drugs appears to have "peaked" in this country and younger people are using alcohol more than other intoxicants. Younger people also know that drug dealers often "rip off" their customers by misrepresenting the substances sold, and Tackett said even state narcotics officers setting up an undercover purchase of illegal drugs have bought caffeine when they believed they were buying amphetamines, or LSD when they were told they were buying mescaline.

The trooper presented a slide show and brief lecture about drugs and their effects, exhibiting drug paraphernalia seized by law enforcement agents.

In the discussion following the presentation, several citizens indicated their belief that education should involve some local physicians and other health practitioners, so that they could learn more about the treatment of alcoholism and drug dependency. Charges were made that on occasion alcoholics have been treated in such a fashion that other addictive drugs were used to replace the alcohol, rather than using techniques to stop the abuse of all substances.

The Alcohol and Drug Awareness committee is a group of concerned citizens meeting on a monthly basis to set up community-based programs and other alternatives to deal with the problem. The meetings are open to the public. Currently, members indicated, they are gathering data about the problem, and are setting up goals for the committee's work in the future.

The next meeting of the committee will be Tuesday, February 19 at 7:30 p.m., at the Floyd County Library here, and Dr. Mary Fox will be the featured speaker. Interested citizens are encouraged to attend.

Homemakers Helping Themselves

By Jerry Yates

There is a new class of unemployed in America today, one that does not fit neatly into any of the previously recognized notions of the unemployed. They are not particularly young or old, they do not belong to any particular minority group and they are not physically or mentally handicapped.

They are displaced homemakers—women who by death, divorce, illness, abandonment or separation suddenly find themselves on their own, often for the first time in their lives, with little or no money and no work.

Tish Sommers, a divorcee who helped organize the Alliance for Displaced Homemakers in 1975, is credited with coining the phrase "displaced homemaker." When Sommers was divorced at age 57, she found that she had become part of an unrecognized problem, one of the women who were too young for social security, too old to be hired, and not eligible for unemployment insurance because homemaking is not considered work.

The Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) program, which provides nearly half of the funding for the Displaced Homemakers Network, the successor to Sommers' Alliance, defines the displaced homemaker as an individual who:

- Has not worked in the labor force for five years but has, during those years, worked in the home providing unpaid services for family members.

- Has been dependent on public assistance or on the income of another family member but is no longer supported by that income; or, is receiving public assistance on account of dependent children in the home, especially where such assistance will be terminated within two years; and is unemployed or underemployed and is experiencing difficulty in obtaining or upgrading employment.

It is impossible to say how many displaced homemakers there are in the country today, but estimates run as high as 12 million or more. Sommers estimates that there are at least three million.

Cynthia Marano, director of the displaced homemakers center in Baltimore and coordinator of the Displaced Homemakers Network, blames the problem on a wide range of social changes that have occurred over the past few years - rising divorce rates, unemployment, inflation, stubborn sexism and ageism.

Some statistics illustrate the root of the problem:

- Only 2% of divorced women with children receive more than $5,000 a year in support.

- Only 14% of divorce settlements include any alimony, and only 44% include child support. Less than half of either is paid regularly.

Lt. Gov. To Assume Added Responsibility

Gov. John Y. Brown Jr. has named Lt. Gov. Martha Layne Collins ex-officio member of the governor's cabinet.

Under the governor's executive order, Mrs. Collins is authorized to attend all cabinet meetings, "participate fully in the deliberations thereof, and have all rights and privileges appertaining to membership."

"It is considered advisable," Gov. Brown's order said, "that the lieutenant governor be brought more directly into the mainstream than has been historically done, and that that high officer of the state be made a part of the executive cabinet for purposes of assisting the governor in the formulation of policies and procedures."

- On the average, working women earn only 57% of men's wages.

- About one of every three marriages ends in divorce.

Other inequities make it still more difficult for a woman to survive the loss of a husband. A woman married less than 10 years is not eligible for social security benefits. If a woman is widowed and is neither the explicit beneficiary of her husband's estate nor the resident of one of the eight community property states, she will lose some or all of the assets jointly acquired during the marriage. She will also have to pay taxes on whatever she does inherit, although her husband would not be required to do so.

The Alliance for Displaced Homemakers, organized in May of 1975 by Sommers and Laurie Shields, who was widowed at age 50, was the beginning of a movement that now includes over 100 projects, programs and centers that provide a variety of services to prepare the displaced homemaker for entry or re-entry into the job market.

Shields and Sommers set out to get legislation passed in California that would establish centers for counseling, training and job placement for the displaced homemakers. With the help of other women's groups the bill was introduced, passed and a center opened, all within a year's time. A total of 25 states have now passed such legislation, and federal legislation provides funds for displaced homemakers through CETA.

The first national training conference on displaced homemakers, seen as a major turning point for the movement, was held in Baltimore in October of 1978. As a result of that conference, a national Displaced Homemakers Network was established. The network—composed of displaced homemakers, service providers, and supportive agencies, organizations and individuals—created regional organizations in each of 10 federal regions, naming advisory committees and a contact person in each region. A national office was established in Washington, D.C. in space provided by the Business and Professional Women's Foundation.

The functions of the national network, as defined by participants in the conference are:

- To give input to the Department of Labor's development of regulations for the new national CETA displaced homemaker program to insure that effective programs are funded.

- To collect and disseminate information concerning other funding sources, public and private, and to provide technical assistance on how to seek these funds.

- To observe the national legislative process and to keep network members informed on all issues that pertain to the displaced homemaker.

- To provide technical assistance, training materials, program resources and documentation to persons seeking to develop or expand displaced homemaker services.

- To publish a newsletter giving members the opportunity to learn what is happening in other programs, on the national scene, and in research on displaced homemakers.

- To provide a national clearinghouse on the displaced homemaker in which data collected in any part of the country might be maintained for the use of others.

- To continue the national public information campaign begun at the conference.

Marano, who headed the conference, made it clear that the newly formed network would be active in publicizing the problem of the displaced homemakers and bringing it to the attention of state and federal legislators.

The displaced homemakers center run by Marano in Baltimore is an example of what these centers can accomplish. The first thing the center does is to try to help the women overcome the psychological shock of suddenly being left on their own, not knowing what to do next. The counselors try to help the women establish a sense of control over their own lives.

One very important feature of the centers is that they are largely run by women who are or have been displaced homemakers. This creates an atmosphere of understanding that is invaluable in helping these women turn their lives around. A recent survey showed that nearly half of all staff members and 40% of the program directors are current or former displaced homemakers.

Many of the women who come to the Baltimore center are in deep financial trouble. Few of them have a yearly income of more than $6000, regardless of their status when they were married, very often because they find it impossible to collect child support. Overall, nearly 75% of the more than 13,000 displaced homemakers served by such centers since the first one opened in 1976 are over age 40 and have annual incomes of less than $5000. Widows who come to the centers are often faced with the possible loss of their homes, or important business decisions they may not be prepared to make.

The center helps these women get back on their feet by referring them to social services that deal with their particular problems, whether it be legal aid, housing or emergency loans, which the center itself provides.

After the critical problems are taken care of, the next step is a month-long series of workshops called Career Path. These workshops examine what is available in the job market, what employers are looking for, job training, the women's attitudes toward work and the experiences they may be exposed to because of age and sex discrimination.

Women who come to the center without a high school diploma can enroll in a 10 week high school equivalency program. When they pass the tests they can go on to work as interns in a wide variety of fields, and eventually may find permanent work with the employers they worked for as interns or with other employers they have found on their own or been referred to by the center. At the end of the Baltimore center's first year of operation, 65% of the interns were fully employed.

One of the biggest problems facing the centers is convincing women who have never worked outside the home that they do have marketable skills. Counselors at the Baltimore center say that many women who have stayed home to raise a family think they are devoid of ability, which of course they are not. A woman who has raised a family has skills in organization, budgeting and management, among others.

And there may be a greater range of jobs available than most women would suspect. Marano says the centers have learned to create jobs when there aren't any out there waiting to be taken. Her own success with the Baltimore center is an example. Eight cleaning businesses have been started by clients of the center.

The center also tries to place women in emerging fields like paralegal and paramedical services for the aging. In more traditional areas, the center hopes to develop services for businesses and community projects unable to hire full-time accountants.

Women are also encouraged to train for jobs traditionally held by men. The Women's Development Center in Waukesha County, Wisconsin, brings women to the County Technical Institute's welding, electronics and machine-tool shops and introduces them to women already working in those areas.

This is the kind of creative thinking and action that is necessary for these women to find work in the face of high unemployment and undeniable age and sex discrimination. The displaced homemakers are for the most part victims of circumstance. But they need not be helpless victims bemoaning the loss of their means of support. With the help of each other and of women who have succeeded in overcoming similar obstacles, growing numbers of these women are learning to support themselves, and there is no reason why the trend shouldn't continue.

Following the dinner, Christmas carols were sung and musical selections were provided by Gerri Mast, Gwen Akers and Judy Mast at the piano. Small Christmas presents were exchanged and a period of great fellowship was enjoyed.

A Glimpse of History In Traveling Exhibit

"The Kentucky General Assembly: A Historic Glimpse, 1792 to Present," is the creation of Dan Zwyer, curator of the Kentucky Historical Society. Historymobile program—a new traveling exhibit designed to provide a historical perspective of legislative functions, state and national legislators involved in the law-making process and some of the important pieces of legislation passed.

The gavel used by Gov. William Goebel while he served as president pro-tem of the Senate, 1894-1900, and the bell from the Old Capitol, used in 1909 to convene legislative sessions, are two of the artifacts included in the exhibit. (Gov. Goebel later was assassinated.) The exhibit also includes a sampling of important laws and resolutions which have been passed by Kentucky legislatures, an act concerning the importation of slaves, a resolution which rejected President Lincoln's Emancipation Proclamation and the more modern act dealing with the coal severance tax.

Students of history are presented with comparative studies on how past legislatures have functioned since the first legislative body met under an elm tree at Boonesborough in May, 1775.

Since the Historymobile program began in 1973, more than 200,000 Kentuckians have seen the exhibits about Kentucky's coal industry and early pioneer life. The concept of a "traveling museum" was designed to bring Kentucky history to students and to those Kentuckians who might not have the opportunity to visit museums.

The exhibits are housed in 40-foot, air conditioned, tractor trailers, and they have audio-visual equipment for slide programs. This equipment is available upon request for students and groups involved in history projects.

For more information or scheduling or visiting the general assembly exhibit, contact Dan Zwyer at (502) 564-2662.

The U.S. Department of Labor's Mine Safety and Health Administration (MSHA) issues and enforces standards covering more than 20,000 mining and milling operations under provisions of the Mine Safety and Health Act of 1977.

Barber Sets Goals For School System

Finding a solution to school problems and discovering ways to improve educational opportunities for Kentuckians are two goals Raymond Barber has set for his administration as superintendent of public instruction.

In an interview prior to being sworn into office last Monday in the Capitol rotunda, Barber said, "The primary purpose of my administration is to meet the educational needs of Kentucky school children and participating adults. I am dedicating the full resources of my office and the Department of Education to cooperate with the governor, General Assembly, state boards of education and local citizens toward solving current school related problems and discovering ways of improving educational opportunities for all people in the commonwealth."

Specific goals set by Barber for his administration included education program expansion and improvement, through emphasis on teaching basic skills, full funding of a state kindergarten program with a pupil teacher ratio of 20 to 1, reduction of the basic classroom pupil-teacher ratio and the development of programs to meet the needs of exceptional children and gifted and talented children.

Barber hopes to work with local districts in seeking solutions to current discipline and vandalism problems, he said.

"It is my goal," Barber said, "to maintain salary improvements for certified and noncertified school employees in keeping with the increased cost-of-living demands."

One of the goals also set by Barber for his administration is that of expanding utilization of the vocational education facilities of the state to provide increased occupational training for Kentuckians.

A final goal set by Barber is that of "an aggressive endeavor to improve the image of public education throughout Kentucky." This will include, Barber said, the increased involvement of local schools and citizens in the development of department plans and policies.

Exploring the New Wine Territory

By Brian Perry

"In vino veritas," declared an old Roman, confident that if he did not uncover truth by emptying his present wine goblet, he would surely find it by getting to the bottom of the next one.

More and more North Americans are drinking from the same font of inspiration. Our annual per capita wine consumption doubled between 1960 and 1977 from 9 to 1.8 gallons. (Europeans enjoy 30 gallons or more each year.)

We are seeking the truth about wine, and the good news is that we no longer have to rely solely on European wines. California is producing a variety of distinguished, reasonably-priced wines.

In the mild, sunny climate of the west coast where they generally equate youth with beauty wine making, at least, has come of age. Vintners from California, and even Washington and Oregon, are ready to share the lovely fruits of their maturity with the world.

The Chardonnay is widely considered to be the aristocrat of California's white wine grapes. Cabernets and Zinfandels are other grape varieties that do especially well in California. Grape variety is one of the most important things to pay attention to when you choose a wine.

With a vintage wine (that is, one produced in a particular vineyard or region in a single season), the name of the grape will appear on the label along with other useful information. It is often convenient to ask for a wine by grape type: "Waiter, would you be so good as to recommend a very dry sauvignon blanc?" (It is also common, especially with French wines, to request wine by region: "Let me have a good, red Beaujolais, or a hearty white Bordeaux.")

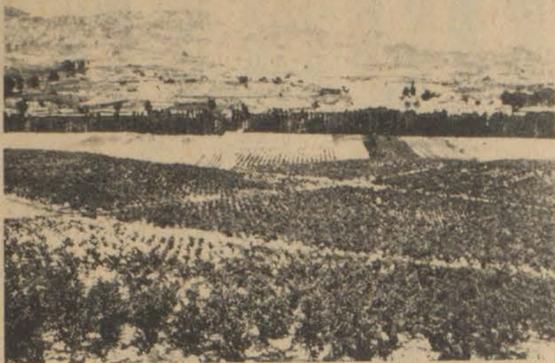

Once you've found that you like the product of a certain grape or region, you may want to find out which vineyards do greater justice to your chosen variety. California's Chateau St. John, for instance, is known for producing excellent Chardonnay, as the Ridge winery is noted for its Zinfandel. This information appears on the label and is easy to spot even on foreign bottles.

Wine houses in France are called a "chateau," and in Spain a "bodega." The Germans, true to form, print the information on their labels in a certain order, each item on a separate line. Reading down from the top, you'll find: year of vintage, village, vineyard, variety of grape, and producer or shipper.

The vintage is important. Until you become more expert, have someone recommend a special year to you.

Vintage Vocabulary

The above information, whether picked up from labels or garnered through recommendations, will be of little use unless you progress in developing your own taste. First, rely ultimately on your own standards. True, you should give unfamiliar wines second and third tastings in order to get properly acquainted. But, while some tastes may be acquired, many more are required, that is, pretended to under pressure of snobbery.

Keep in mind, too, that as your tastes become more refined, you tend to cut yourself off from the products of your less demanding days. Once you become used to $20 bottles, you may no longer be able to enjoy a perfectly good $4 selection you can't go home again.

"Pretty Good to Not-too-Bad"

All of which leads to another skill you must acquire to appreciate wine recommendations: wine talk. Not the muddled profundities of people under the influence, but the amazingly articulate and detailed criticisms that knowledgeable wine tasters make: such utterances as, "This wine has a generous, full-bodied flavor, more pleasantly harmonious than vintage X, which had a disappointing, expressionless bouquet."

Some people wonder if wine tasters use a fancy jargon just to convince their bosses and the public that they know something we don't. Although some wine talk does run to florid exaggeration, much of it is useful. In order to remember what you liked about which wine, and to investigate further along the same lines, you need to be able to say more than "This one was pretty good and that one wasn't too bad."

Wine tasters always look first at four qualities: color, bouquet, clarity, and flavor. It is not difficult to learn how to tilt a glass toward the light to view its representative color, or to swirl its contents to sniff the bouquet or aroma. But most laymen are years of experience away from detecting the nuances which wine-tasters see through these operations.

The new line in etiquette recommends foregoing these conventions if you don't know how to read the results. It can be useful, though, to inspect the clarity of the wine to guard against excessive sediment, which can interfere with the wine's intended flavor.

It is regarding flavor that wine vocabulary is most helpful to the general consumer. "Dry," of course, stands in contrast to "sweet," but it can further connote a "clean" taste or one that cuts off abruptly. A dry flavor would correspond to "mild" or "delicate" (acidity), "light" body (alcohol), "neutral" (aroma), and "young" (maturity). Conversely, you can expect a sweeter "juicy" flavor when you hear the terms "hearty" (acidity), full-bodied (heavier in alcohol), "fruity" (aroma) and "ripe" (maturity).

An Accounting For Taste

There's no need to file a report for each cup you drink, but remembering the above terms can help you recall which wines you liked for different occasions and enable you to sample new wines without blind trust to recommendations. Two good ways to try various vintages without investing in an entire bottle are through visits to wine bars and vineyard wine-tasting tours.

Wine Bars

The wine bar is growing more popular as the American palate warms to lighter fare in both food and drink. In England, where over 200 wine bars complement the famous pubs, wine is often the only spirit served. The fewer than twenty wine bars in America tend to include beer and liquor in their stores, as the wine drinker, here, is still the exception. New vigor now attaches to the phrase "wining and dining" as these taverns of taste promote food designed to complement wine, with the emphasis, naturally, on cheese. The dining is light. The reason, in part, is to keep the focus on appreciative sampling of various wines, ordered by the glass or the bottle. The Irish will tell you they prefer the drink to the food because it interferes less with conversation, and that's part of the wine bar's appeal, too. Less formal than snooty restaurants and less feverish than singles bars, wine bars are free to become galleries to the art of conversation.

A further value to seek in these establishments of sweetness and light is expertise. Many are the kinds of places in which the owner will serve only wines he has sampled and approved himself. Finding a trustworthy proprietor to recommend selections to match your taste and price range can be an ideal way to broaden your appreciation of the fruit of the vine.

Money can be an object. Most wine bars offer wine by the glass in the $1-$3 range, with special wines at $4-$6—actually fairer than cocktail prices when you consider that a fifth of whiskey can produce 24 one-ounce shots at about $2 a drink. Then again, any good wine bar will be only too glad to sell you a bottle of 1874 Lafite at $895.

Following are some good wines to ask for if you don't happen to know a trustworthy proprietor.

- Cabernets: Heitz Wine Cellars Martha's Vineyard 1974; Stag's Leap Wine Cellars 1974; Stonegate Winery 1975 Napa
- Chardonnays: Robert Keenan Winery 1977 Napa; Alexander Valley Vineyards 1976 Napa; St. Clement Vineyards 1977 Napa
- Fume blanc/sauvignon blanc: Mondavi 1977 fume blanc; Dry Creek Vineyards fume blanc; Wente Bros. sauvignon blanc
- Zinfandels: Monterey Vineyards 1975 Zinfandel; Ridge Winery Zinfandel; Sutter Home 1975 Zinfandel
- New York State wines: Bully Hill is becoming better known for putting out a good product, and Taylor wines are already recognized as a good value at a relatively inexpensive price

• Rioja wines, produced in Spanish climates similar to Bordeaux and Burgundy, have been compared in quality to those more expensive French wines; (recent Rioja vintages sell for $3 or $4 a bottle, compared to $5 or $6 for French varieties)

• The best known German wines are probably Riesling and Liebfraumilch; the latter, especially, will appeal to those who prefer a sweet wine.

Many vineyards conduct tours and wine tastings for the public. Consult your local directory to see if there is one near you. It will be an excursion where you can drink in more than scenery.

For further guidance, you can consult any of several good, quick reference guides available in paperback. The best advice on the subject, however, comes from an old Spanish proverb: "With wine and hope, anything is possible."

Kentucky Rivers Playing Vital Transportation Role

Many of us are unaware of the important role Kentucky's rivers will have in keeping us warm and getting us to work this winter.

When rivers are frozen or clogged with ice, commodities such as coal and highway salt are unable to reach communities in need of them, said James H. Nutter, Jr., executive director of the Kentucky Port and River Development Commission. Coal, heating oil and salt are transported on water because of their weight and volume, Nutter said.

Although ice can be a problem, it's unlikely it will hamper river transportation as it did in the severe winter of 1977.

Water temperature and level are the two factors that determine ice formation, explained Martin Pedigo, public information officer for the Army Corps of Engineers in Louisville.

Predictions from the National Weather Service indicate the Ohio River Valley will have colder than average winter temperatures this year, but water levels are above average, Pedigo said. When water levels are high, the river retains a higher temperature and does not freeze over as quickly as low-level water, he explained.

During the winter of 1977, ice formed all along the Ohio River, and commodity movement by river was at a virtual standstill for two weeks.

As a result people became more aware of the tremendous role the river plays in transportation of commodities, coal and petroleum products, Nutter said.

Northern Kentucky Riverport Director Pat Carigan said the ice delayed shipments of much-needed heating and fuel oil and salt.

"There's no question that ice frequently has a severe impact on economic activity," Carigan said. During 1977, some schools and factories were closed because of the fuel problem, he noted.

Carigan worked with the Corps for 28 years and served on the Ohio River Division Ice Committee.

Because of the prolonged cold spell and abnormally low water levels in 1977, ice thicknesses ranged up to 18 inches on tributaries and 12 inches on the upper Ohio River.

The ice never completely blocked navigation, because some high-powered towboats were able to get through, Pedigo said.

Several old-fashioned wooden wicket dams caused special problems because the wickets had to be lowered to avoid ice damage, Pedigo said. When the wickets were lowered, the water levels fell, making the river more susceptible to ice formation. Although all four wicket dams are still in place between Uniontown, Ky., and Cairo, Ill., the wickets won't be up this year because levels are high, Pedigo said.

Since the 1977 ice, the Corps and other organizations have become more prepared for bad weather, Pedigo said.

The Corps will emphasize passing ice through the dams to avoid a pile-up, rather than being overly concerned with water levels, Pedigo said. When ice is blocked in front of a dam, it catches other chunks and piles up.

The installation of air bubblers at the Markland Dam should improve travel there, Pedigo said. Air bubblers are placed at sharp bends in the river and break up light ice by keeping the water active.

After the winter of 1977, the Corps formed the Ohio River Ice Committee to investigate problems and solutions to river conditions.

The major improvement resulting from the committee's work has been better communications between the Corps and the U.S. Coast Guard, Pedigo said. Regular bulletins will be broadcast to towboats when hazardous conditions exist, he added.

Pedigo said commercial operators should make a special effort to keep aware of weather conditions during the coldest months. Those operating on the river should keep radio channels open and may need especially high-powered towboats to plow through ice, he said.

"Of course, the best thing to do is avoid getting out in the middle of a hazardous situation," he added.

Honored on Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Kendrick Johnson, of Teaberry, recently celebrated their 33rd anniversary. They were honored by their children with a dinner at their home where they received gifts and money from their family. They are the parents of nine children: Doug Johnson, Judy Hamilton, Myredia Howell, Jimmy Johnson, Jerry Johnson, Billy Joe Johnson, Roy Johnson, Rachel Johnson, all of Teaberry, and Emma Rogers, of Stanville.

Gasoline Prices In Two Rises

The average cost of gasoline has risen last Wednesday six cents a gallon at full-service pumps and four cents at self-service pumps in central and eastern Kentucky, according to the Blue Grass Automobile Club (AAA) Fuel Gauge Report and a day later another 3-cent jump was announced by three major oil companies. This is the largest monthly increase in full-service prices to date in the auto club's surveys.

The average cost at full-service stations was $1.11 for regular, $1.16 for premium, $1.15 for no-lead and $1.06 for diesel. Self-service prices are $1.04 for regular, $1.11 for premium and $1.07 for no-lead.

These averages represent an increase of 29 cents per gallon in full-service and 25 cents in self-service prices since May 11, 1979.

Twenty-seven percent of the stations contacted this month are open past 8 p.m. weekdays, compared with 39 percent last month. Sixty-four percent are open past 6 p.m. on Saturdays, and 32 percent are open on Sunday, compared with December's figures of 61 percent and 35 percent, respectively.

The U. S. Department of Labor's Office of Federal Contract Compliance Programs (OFCCP) was created to assure equal employment opportunity in federal contract and subcontract work.
