Tour Commercial Apple Orchards

By JOHN E. SPARKS
County Extension Agent for Agriculture

Thirty-seven Floyd and Johnson county apple growers attended the recent commercial apple orchards tour sponsored by the Johnson County Extension Service. Four University of Kentucky Extension Specialists discussed weed control, insect and disease control. Two of the common insect problems noticed were Japanese beetles and red mites. Red mites build up during hot weather after sprays of Sevin are used to control Japanese beetles. Sprays of Kelthane 10 days apart will take care of the mite problem which causes the apple leaves to have a bronze appearance.

Two of the most common diseases noticed were cedar-apple rust and black rot. Cedar and apple trees serve as host for one another. Cedar trees within a three-mile radius will cause the disease. Early application of a fungicide during pre-pink will help control the infection which appears on the leaves as a yellow to orange circle which causes leaves to drop off. Black rot is a fungus which causes the leaves to have brown spots and apples to rot around the calyx end. Pruning off dead limbs and good fungicide spray and phalation in summer months will help control this disease.

For the back yard gardeners apple scab and disease resistant trees will help in not having to worry about spraying. Two good varieties are Prima and Priscilla.

Tips on How To Beat the Heat

As temperatures continue to reach 90 degrees and above throughout Kentucky, state agencies are concentrating on special information to help citizens "beat the heat."

The Department for Human Resources is particularly concerned with early identification of heat exhaustion and heat stroke and actions to be taken in each of these instances.

This department is also placing emphasis on the elderly.

In Barren River Area Development District, a department social worker's pleas for fans for the elderly brought quick action from the district.

An air-conditioned senior nutrition site in each of the district's 10 counties has been designated a 24-hour shelter for older persons who can't keep cool as the mercury climbs. "We don't have money to buy fans or air conditioners," Bill Guthrie, director of Barren River ADD, said, "but we can open our senior centers."

Local Civil Defense crews will help man the centers to keep them open 24 hours a day. Nearby Fort Campbell is loaning the district 75 to 100 cots to set up in the centers. Red Cross personnel are assisting with transportation. The local comprehensive care center is accepting calls on its 24-hour help line from older Kentuckians to take the following precautions:

- Ask someone to check on you daily with a phone call or visit.
- If you have air conditioning and know of someone whose home doesn't have air conditioning, invite them in to cool off.
- Drink plenty of liquids, especially water. Avoid coffee, tea and alcoholic beverages.
- Rest during the hottest hours of the day.
- Buy foods that can be stored for a long period of time to cut down on trips to the stores.
- Prepare cooked foods either early in the morning or in the late evening.
- Older persons with poor circulation, high blood pressure, breathing problems or diabetes should contact a physician for special instructions during hot weather.

Disaster and Emergency Services is also sending out some warnings to all Kentuckians about the dangers of the high heat.

These officials warn that all age groups can be affected by dehydration, overweight, alcoholic excess or lack of sleep.

Dehydration can be fatal, the officials warn. A loss of two quarts of body fluid decreases efficiency by 25 percent and a loss of fluid equal to 15 percent of body weight is usually fatal. Thirst is not an adequate warning of dehydration as the sensation may not be felt until there is a body deficit of one to two quarts of water.

Disaster officials recommend drinking small quantities of water often rather than large quantities occasionally.

A general collapse of the body's cooling system will lead to heat stroke, which is potentially fatal. If a person expends more calories than they take in, they can be prone to heat illnesses, the officials warn. Since most persons lose their desire for food in very hot weather they must be encouraged to eat. The heavier meal of the day should be scheduled for the cooler hours.

High heat for a long period of time is not only fatiguing and dangerous to people but also to their vehicles.

Disaster and Emergency Services officials offer some advice when traveling in hot weather.

Vehicle cooling and lubrication are interdependent, and malfunction of one will rapidly place the other under severe strain.

All engines are prone to overheat to some degree. This can lead to excessive wear and ultimately leaking oil seals in the power packs.

Cooling hoses should be kept tight. A drip a second is seven gallons in 24 hours.

Batteries will not hold their charge efficiently in intense heat. Batteries should be kept full but not overfilled.

Vapor locks occur many times in this type weather when gasoline vaporizes in the fuel line. The only remedy for this problem is to cool off the line.

Persons should use common sense and travel only when necessary. Trips should be planned for the early morning or later afternoon.

Regional Hospitals, RNs Sign Contract

Following negotiations that were extended past the June 30 deadline, Appalachian Regional Hospitals and the Kentucky and West Virginia Nurses Associations which represent registered nurses at four ARH hospitals, have reached agreement on a new two-year contract, effective July 1.

The announcement was made last week by Pat Tanner, chief negotiator for the associations, and Ron Vance, for the hospital system.

Registered nurses at Hazard ARH and South Williamson ARH in Kentucky, and at Beckley and Man in West Virginia are covered by the contract.

The new contract expands coverage of medical benefits, increases shift differential pay and establishes a new wage structure for R.N.'s. Effective July 1, the minimum salary for registered nurses is $13,600 per year. The agreement also calls for additional salary increases, effective March 1, 1981, July 1, 1981 and March 1, 1982.

Protect Your Family From Fire

By Iris Rosenberg

Could your family survive a fire in our home? This year, friends and relatives of nearly seven thousand families will sadly discover the answer is "no." More than half of the twelve thousand fatalities from fire will die in their homes. Another three hundred thousand people will survive with injuries. The cost of fire will approach 11.4 billion dollars.

What should you know about fire protection? What are some of the most common fire hazards? How can you defend yourself against them?

Carelessness causes much of the problem; more than half of the home fires in the United States result from careless smoking. Fires originate in bedding or upholstery nearly 50 percent of the time. Half of all home fires start in the bedroom or the living room, and 35 percent of all home fires begin in basements, utility rooms, and kitchens. Perhaps most frightening of all, most fatal home fires start at night, while people sleep.

Fire detection and prevention begin with these facts: three out of four fires begin slowly, with smoldering and smoke. Most fire deaths result from inhaling smoke and poisonous gases, before there is exposure to flames.

All fires pass through four phases in their development. At first, carbon monoxide and poisonous gases are given off, in a largely invisible or "incipient" phase. Then a combination of visible and invisible smoke is released, capable of asphyxiating people. Flames don't appear until the third phase, and finally a period of "high heat" occurs, when all living things can instantly perish.

Flames are recognized as dangerous, but smoke is thought of as merely threatening, giving advance warning of developing fire. In reality, smoke creates panic, and can be the most dangerous element in a fire, with its blinding and irritating qualities, and its serious impact on the respiratory system.

Begin at Home

Preventing fires at home begins with precautionary measures, and lots of them. To begin with, large fire-proof ash-trays should be placed in every room and kept clean. Matches, cigarettes, cigars, pipes, and tobaccos should be thoroughly put out.

Electrical circuits are dangerous when overloaded; they frequently cause fuses to blow out. Avoid using extension cords and plugs, especially ones with multiple sprockets. Fifteen-ampere fuses on lighting circuits are preferable.

Storage areas should be kept rubbish-free, and oily rags or old papers should be removed. An oily rag is best kept in a metal container, and stored in a safe and well-ventilated space. Ashes are also best stored in metal receptacles without holes.

Each room in a house has its own special requirements. For the kitchen, begin with the stove: nothing should be stored above it. To prevent burns, pot handles should be turned to keep children from pulling them down. Tight sleeves worn while cooking won't catch fire as easily as loose ones. Curtains in the kitchen should be fire-proof.

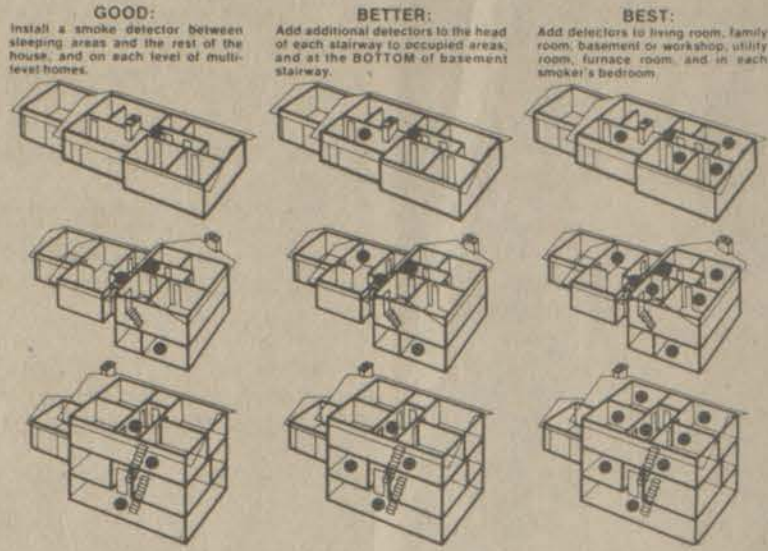

In the living room, search out all lit cigarettes and extinguish them before going to bed. The chimney should be checked and cleaned regularly; a fireproof screen made of metal is best. All lighters and matches should be kept away from children, and electrical outlets should be covered to keep small fingers away. Maintaining air space around the television and the stereo prevents over-heating. Space heaters should be kept isolated from people and combustibles.

Fire Resistant Construction

In buying and building houses, fire resistant construction should be sought or planned for. Two exits for each room should be available, with windows low enough to serve as exits. Chimneys should be approved by the Underwriter's Laboratory, and fire stopping should be properly in place where sections of the attic and the cellar are left unfinished. All gas or oil-fired utilities should be looked at yearly by a trained repairman. Rural home-owners must attend to threats from grass fires and burning trees, and danger from lightning in exposed locations.

Keeping the lawn mowed and cutting off dead tree branches are essential; equipping the roof with terminals which are connected to adequate conductors and grounds is important. In addition, the electrical grounds for telephones, televisions, and electricity must be connected to the lightning ground, and arresters installed on antennae as well. Sheet metal duct work and iron floor beams must also connect with the lightning ground conductor.

Even with satisfactory precautions in effect, fire is still a possibility. Fire claims its victims mainly among children and the elderly. Their particular needs must be planned for when escape plans are created.

Hold fire drills, and teach children how to escape through windows.

By keeping bedroom doors closed, death by asphyxiation is minimized. Since hot gases rise, upper bedrooms are particularly vulnerable. Doors should not be opened when the knobs are hot. All family members should know where to go once outside. Trapped people shouldn't hide, but stand near a window.

Nobody should return to a burning building! The fire department telephone number should be memorized or kept handy; fire alarm boxes should be located. People who catch fire can put themselves out by dropping to the ground and rolling back and forth until the fire is extinguished.

Detectors—How Many? Which Kind?

In addition to these contingency plans, smoke detectors can be installed, and houses may be equipped with fire extinguishers and escape ladders. Because fires become noticeable only well into their development, smoke detectors provide an earlier warning and thereby reduce the obstacles to escape. Placed high on a wall or on the ceiling, they activate before smoke engulfs a room. A loud alarm sounds to warn people. By contrast, heat sensors take precious minutes more to register the presence of fire.

Although smoke detectors have existed for a long time, they were primarily confined to industrial use until a few years ago. Recently however, their production for homes has become more common, with some question over which serve best.

Smoke detectors come in two kinds: ionization units and photoelectric models. Ionization units respond to smoke when small americium particles create an electric conductivity in the air. Smoke entering the ionization chamber disturbs the electric current, and trips the alarm.

Photoelectric units contain a light bulb and a photocell. Smoke entering its chamber causes the photoelectric unit to respond when light from the bulb reflects off the smoke particles and hits the photocell. This sounds the alarm.

The Americium oxide in ionization units is radioactive, and has been charged with causing cancer. Its presence raised objections from Ralph Nader and others, but the emission is less than what is commonly found in watches with radium dials. The choice to be made between the two types of smoke detectors turns on other qualities.

Ionization units react most quickly to bright fires which flare with little or no smoke, while photoelectric models respond best to smoldering smoky fires. But both provide sufficiently greater protection than using nothing, and some suggest using both. Each costs about sixty dollars. Both come powered either by batteries or house current, with neither option presenting significant drawbacks.

Fire extinguishers should be purchased with a view to what kinds of fires are likely in the home. There are extinguishers which work effectively on Class A, B, or C fires. Class A fires involving wood, grass, papers, etc., require water or a cooling agent. Class B fires with gas, oils, greases, and liquids, need to be smothered in foam, powder, or an inert gas like carbon dioxide. Class C fires in live electrical equipment call for a non-conducting extinguisher with dry powder, or carbon dioxide.

Controversial are escape ladders, judged by Consumer Reports to require clumsy and awkward contortions of people trying to use them. Seven out of nine brands were found unacceptable for use with some even too painful to grip or climb.

Precaution, vigilance, and contingency planning can help eliminate most home fires; detection devices help.

Tel-Com Draws Customers' Ire

Even as the cable TV company plans an ambitious expansion here, Tel-Com, Inc., of Harold, came under fire again this week from customers unhappy with TV reception and service.

Bert Layne, of Eastern, presented a petition bearing 110 signatures to the Floyd County Cable TV Commission Friday seeking revocation of Tel-Com's franchise in that area. Since Tel-Com took over the system several months ago from Hamilton Cablevision, which had itself drawn criticism for the quality of its service, service has not improved for some subscribers and may even have deteriorated, the petitioners said.
Similar complaints were also voiced by a group of Tel-Com's Wheelwright customers.
On a motion of Anthony Castle, the commission voted to give the company 15 days to "bring service into compliance" in the Eastern area. A further motion by Castle, to revoke Tel-Com's franchise for Eastern and Wheelwright and to re-advertise those areas, failed for want of a second.

A letter sent by County Attorney Arnold Turner, Jr., to Paul Butcher, owner of Big Sandy TV Cable, giving the operator 30 days to begin extending a line to Little Paint residents or face legal action, drew a counter-threat of legal action from Butcher's attorney, claiming unlawful interference by the commission in the operator's affairs.

Albert A. Burchett has been retained as counsel by the fiscal court to deal with legal matters pertaining to the cable TV commission and the county solid waste agency.

Pharmacy Footnotes
by HAROLD COOLEY

At one time in history, it would have been impossible to distinguish between pharmacists and doctors. All medical work was performed by one person. This included diagnosis of diseases and preparation of cures to the application of medication. Like many things, however, specialization hit the medical arts. Preparation of treatments and treatments themselves utilize different and highly trained practitioners. As a team, the pharmacist and doctor work toward better health.
The pharmacists at COOLEY APOTHECARY INC., 2 Town Center Bldg., 886-8106, take their responsibility as your physician's consultant seriously. We keep you up to date about developments in medication, we interpret your doctor's prescription for you and we make sure that all the medication you are taking is compatible. For personal, professional service, see us. Mon.-Fri. 9-5:30; Sat. 9-5.

To Make Refunds On Litter Tax

Commissioner of Revenue Robert Allphin announced today the Department of Revenue has begun notifying eligible businesses that payments made by them under the Litter Control Act will be refunded.

The Kentucky Supreme Court recently declared the Litter Tax unconstitutional. Commissioner Allphin said nearly $2 million was collected from Kentucky businesses during the period the law was in force. The 1978 General Assembly enacted the litter assessment, making it effective in June of that year. The Supreme Court decision invalidating it was handed down on May 14.

Allphin said the Department of Revenue is making the refund notifications based on its files. Applications for refunds are not necessary except in the case of those taxpayers who remitted less than $1, he added.

The commissioner indicated the refund checks would be in the mail within the next 90 days.

Extension Service Notes

By JOHN E. SPARKS County Extension Agent for Agriculture

REWORK OLD STRAWBERRY BEDS

The key to a good strawberry crop is mid-summer care. Now is the time to renovate and rebuild the strawberry patch for good production and large, high-quality berries. Renovation at this time includes mowing off old leaves, thinning plants, fertilizing and weeding. Renovation should be done after the plants have finished fruiting. Before renewing a bed of strawberries, decide if it is really worthwhile. If a lot of problems exist, such as poor production, disease, heavy grass and weed infestation, it may be better to dig out the entire planting and start with new, clean plants early next spring. An old bed may sometimes contain vigorous plants that do not fruit, or produce only small berries. This sometimes happens when seeds from rotten berries left in the bed germinate to produce young plants that are not productive. These young plants grow rapidly and often produce runners freely, so you have many plants of the same poor quality. Non-productive plants crowd out more productive plants. If a bed is predominantly made up of such plants it should be dug up. When selecting plants for a new bed or reworking, try to select parent plants or runners from plants known to be good producers. If the plants in the bed have been fairly heavily infected with leaf spot, mow off these old leaves before renovation is begun. The mower blade should be set high so that the main growing point or crown of each plant is not injured. If leaf problems aren't apparent, this step is not essential. The infected leaves which have been mowed off should be removed and destroyed. Thinning is also an important part of strawberry renewal. Young plants produce the most and the largest berries. Narrow the rows by cultivating out unwanted plants at this time. A healthy band of plants 6 to 10 inches wide provides abundant runner plants that will develop in the space next to them. Vigorous runner plants produce the main portion of the crop next year. Normally, about 30 inches should be kept open between these bands of old plants. In a fairly new planting that is only one or two years old, clean out only enough runners to keep the planting from becoming too dense. This means thinning now and again in early August to maintain about five to seven plants per square foot. If soil has relatively good fertility, only a nitrogen fertilizer is necessary at renewal time. Use about one pound of ammonium nitrate per 100 feet of row. A garden fertilizer, such as a 10-10-10, might be used if soil is known to have an overall low fertility. From 3 to 5 pounds per 100 feet of row might be necessary. Apply fertilizer before the rows are thinned and worked over. In this way the fertilizer will be worked into the soil and extra tillage is unnecessary. Fertilize again in September just as flower buds for next year's crop are developing. Use 1 to 2 pounds of ammonium nitrate per 100 feet of row. Be sure to brush fertilizer granules off the leaves to avoid plant injury and water the plants well following fertilizer application.

PH. 886-9181, SO. LAKE DRIVE PRESTONSBURG

Miss Loshier, Mr. Hicks Wed, June 1

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Hicks, of Roann, Ind., formerly of this county, wish to announce the marriage of their son, Mark Kenton Hicks, to Miss Michelle Lynn Loshier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Loshier, R.R. 2, Richvalley, Indiana.

The bridegroom is a grandson of Norman Hicks and the late Sadie Hicks, of David, and the late Bud and Elizabeth Hicks, of Pyramid.

The double-ring, candlelight service took place June 1 in the Richvalley United Methodist Church.

The bride wore a white nylon gown with empire bodice. The Queen Anne neckline was of re-embroidered lace, and the A-line skirt had a cathedral train. A Juliet cap secured the chapel length veil and the bride carried a cascade of peach roses, miniature carnations, daisies and stephanotis.

Bridal attendants carried nosegays of pastel miniature carnations and daisies secured by rainbow streamers. Their dresses were fashioned with floor-length pleated skirts and blouson bodices.

Maid of honor was Tracy Martin, of Largo, Ind., and bridesmaids were Janet Dyson, of Roann; Rita Patton, of Wabash, Ind., and Beth Hicks, the bridegroom's sister, of Roann. Flower girl Amanda Yoder, of Wabash carried a wicker basket filled with rose petals. She wore a floor-length cotton voile screen print dress with matching cap. Ringbearer was Brandon Cooper, also of Wabash.

Jeff Wood, of Wabash, served as best man, and groomsmen were Walter Shultz, Steve McBrayer and Barry Hicks, the bridegroom's brother, all of Roann. Joe Yoder and Steve Hicks, the bridegroom's brother, lighted candles and distributed programs. Ushers were Jeff Loshier, the bride's brother, and David Harrell.

The reception was held at the Richvalley Community Building. Serving were Mrs. Scott Cooper, Mrs. Jerry Garber, and Mrs. Hugh Waymire, the bride's aunts. Mariann Neyer registered guests and Janet Christie cared for gifts.

Mrs. Hicks, a graduate of Northfield High School, is employed at Wabash Healthcare Center. Mr. Hicks, a graduate of Northfield High School, is employed by General Tire and Rubber Co., of Wabash.

Mr. and Mrs. Hicks are at home at 1645 N. Miami St., Wabash, Indiana.

Workmen's Comp Rates Are Reduced

Employers in Kentucky will pay lower insurance premiums for workers' compensation coverage under rate reductions ordered last Tuesday by state Insurance Department Commissioner Daniel Briscoe.

Rate reductions for workers' compensation insurance were mandated under new legislation supported by Gov. John Y. Brown, Jr.

Commissioner Briscoe announced he has ordered into effect an overall 29.7 percent reduction in industrial workers' compensation insurance rates. Simultaneously, Briscoe ordered a 27 percent decrease in insurance rates paid by coal mine employers.

Reduction of workers' compensation premiums by at least an average 27 percent for one year was mandated by House Bill 532, passed during the 1980 General Assembly session. HB 532 is a wholesale revision of Kentucky's workers' compensation law. It also increases weekly benefits for workers injured after July 15 and places a 425-week cap on payments made to partially disabled workers.

The one-year reductions should result in an estimated $68 million savings for non-coal industry employers and $14 million for coal industry employers, according to figures recently released by Gov. Brown's office.

Savings by coal industries will be less than non-coal industries since coal industries will be effected by a separate rate filing based on a federal law pertaining to black lung. HB 532 couldn't reduce possible increases under the new federal law. The Federal Black Lung Benefits Reform Act of 1977 was passed by Congress and, therefore, is outside the state legislature's jurisdiction.

Public hearings will be held in September on the third rate filing. Also hearings will be held on the two filings already approved, and the rates may be reduced even further.

New Property Tax Policy Sees Drop in Compliance

"Property has its duties as well as its rights," mused British statesman Thomas Drummond more than 150 years ago.

Happily or unhappily, every modern day property owner knows this old maxim still holds true and also knows one of those duties is property tax.

Property tax dates back to colonial times and was one of the first taxes levied in the Bluegrass State. For many years property tax was the primary source of local government revenue in Kentucky.

Property taxes are levied on realty—such as land; tangible personal property—motor vehicles for example; or intangible personal property—like stocks and bonds. Certain properties are taxed for state purposes only, others are subject to local taxation only, but most are subject to both.

The tax collection process moves along a framework established by the Kentucky property tax calendar. In tax year 1980, this calendar will remain the same as in past years. Then in 1981 new laws passed by the General Assembly will take effect resulting in calendar changes.

Basically, the present property tax calendar is as follows:

—Shortly before Jan. 1, the property valuation administrator in each county begins to publicize the assessment period. The PVA is a locally elected official who is directly supervised by the state Department of Revenue.

—From Jan. 1 to March 1, all owners or persons with an interest in taxable property must file a tax return with the PVA listing real and personal property and their fair cash value. The property valuation administrator then assesses the property and assigns a fair cash value to it.

The PVA must assess all property at its fair market cash value, uniformly and equally among all taxpayers. Before 1965 assessments had been made at a fraction of the fair market value. In a 1966 case, the Court of Appeals ruled that the state constitutional requirement for assessment at 100 percent of value still holds and theoretically ended that practice.

—After the completion of the assessment period, the PVA prepares a tax roll. The PVA is required to submit to the department a recap containing real estate values by classes (farm, residential, commercial) before the first Monday in May.

—Beginning with the first Monday in June the public has five days to inspect the tax roll. If a taxpayer is dissatisfied with the PVA's assessment of his property, he may file a written appeal with the county clerk during the week of inspection seeking to appear before the Board of Assessment Appeals which meets the second week in June.

—When the PVA has completed his changes and corrections on the tax roll, he submits a recapitulation or summary of the tax roll to the Department of Revenue not later than June 20 unless the time is extended by the Department.

—The Revenue Department then reviews the assessments of each county to see if the acceptable level of fair cash value is achieved.

This measurement is done by the use of sales ratio from each county on all classes of property. This ratio is developed by a comparison of sales prices of property that has sold against the assessment. If fair cash value requirement is met, then the department will certify. Those not certified are sent back to PVA for reassessment.

As of the week of June 26, 112 counties had submitted their first recapitulation but only 35 had been approved. Eight other counties hadn't sent in their recaps, according to Revenue Department records.

This is the first year that such a large number of recapitulations have not been accepted. In the past, the recaps were accepted if they had attained a 90 percent level of fair cash value on farm, residential and commercial categories. Now assessments in each category must be at least 95 percent attainment level of fair market value.

This is in line with a property tax policy established by the new Commissioner of Revenue, Robert Allphin. In a memo to all property valuation administrators, Allphin said the 1980 tax year will be one of "increased emphasis on compliance with the (state) constitutional and statutory requirements."

—After the recap is certified by the Revenue Department, a notice is sent to the local rate-making bodies informing them of the total assessment figures. The local school and government officials then adopt tax rates within legal limits.

—Tax bills for each property owner are computed by the county court clerk and turned over to the sheriff who is responsible for collecting the tax.

Next year there will be changes in the property tax calendar due to new state laws that were passed by the 1980 General Assembly.

House Bill 161 will speed up the setting of tax rates. In 1981 the Revenue Department will be able to set the state property tax rate after 75 percent of the counties have been certified rather than 75 percent of the total assessment value. In past years all the counties had to wait for the tax rate to be set if large counties with a big percentage of the assessment value were late in filing.

House Bill 146 will lengthen the time the public can inspect the tax rolls from five days to 12 days. This will also give people a longer period in which they can appeal assessments. It will also change the date for filing for agriculture exemptions from property tax from April 1 to March 1 so farmers have the same listing period as other property owners. The exemption allows assessment based on the land's value for agricultural purposes.

The bill also requires the PVA to keep a copy in his office of the assessment open for public inspection for five years from the date of certification. A taxpayer will be able to see the rolls as long as the inspection doesn't interfere with office operation. Previously, the law was interpreted that a taxpayer could only see the present tax roll during the five-day inspection period.

Other property tax changes coming in 1981 are under House Bill 109. This bill places a proposed constitutional amendment on the 1980 November ballot which would extend the Homestead Exemption to include disabled persons designated by a railroad retirement system or a federal agency. It now covers people 65 years old and over.

Senate Bill 44, effective in 1981, will make it easier to collect delinquent taxes on motor vehicles.

K-Men's Scholar

Keith Gillespie recently became the first recipient of a newly-created scholarship sponsored by the University of Kentucky K-Men's Association to attend the University of Kentucky this fall. After considering offers from several colleges Gillespie, a 1980 graduate of Paintsville High School, has decided to pursue his baseball interests at the University of Kentucky. "Keith was selected because we believe that he can help our baseball team quite a bit in the upcoming years," explained Jerry Beatty, incoming president of the K-men's Association, an organization of former lettermen in all sports at the university.

In his five years varsity baseball at Paintsville High Gillespie has batted well over .400 as well as shattering school records in triples collected in a single year, while tying the record for home runs. He also helped pace the Tigers in two consecutive state tournaments.

Gillespie's scholarship selection was also due to his scholastic attainments. He maintained a B+ average throughout high school and was selected for "Who's Who Among American High School Students" and "Who's Who Among American Athletes." He has also been active in both the Beta and Varsity Clubs, was chosen to receive the Kiwanian Outstanding Youth Award, and received the Oran C. Teater scholarship at Paintsville High. Gillespie was also proficient in football, recently participating in the Kentucky East-West All-Star game.

Keith is the son of Mr. and Mrs. David Gillespie, of Tutor Key, and the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Amram Garrett, of Prestonsburg.

Legend of John Fox, Jr., Lives On

Kentucky, of all the states, is the land of today and tomorrow. With its natural resources and its people, the commonwealth will continue to radiate its assets to touch many parts of the nation.

And yet, for all its potential, Kentucky's attraction for many visitors is its ties with yesterday, its romance, its adventure and its independent people.

There are those who still speak of the late John Fox, Jr. as though he lived just over the mountain, sitting on his cabin porch, taking notes or traveling across mountain gaps.

Memories of the popular writer abound throughout Kentucky.

"My father was a personal friend of John Fox, Jr.," writes Alexine Talbot of Louisville. "He autographed a copy of 'The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come' and gave it to my father. We prized it highly but loaned it out and it never returned."

Fox was born in 1863 near Paris (Bourbon county) and was a graduate of Transylvania University. He later attended Harvard and worked in New York.

But he still is thought of by some as a mountain man.

He traveled to Kentucky's southern mountains after his health prevented further newspaper work in New York. With his father and brother he ventured into the mining business, but soon found himself and his friends involved in bringing law and order to the region.

"He was a strong one for all his story writin' and had a way of makin' friends all over," recalled a Letcher county man. "He'd ride up the creek and folk'd come to their porches to say 'howdy' to him."

There isn't much water in Kingdom Come Creek in dry weather. In small pockets of water minnows dart like silver needles stitching reflections from a denim sky.

Fox traveled up and down this creek, rode paths that wound around Big Black Mountain and Pine Mountain, crossed Scuttle Hole Gap and other gaps in the peaks and rode a high ridge rimmed by tall pines (today the Little Shepherd Trail). Much of his destiny remained across the state line in Virginia, where he died at Big Stone Gap.

Travelers up Kingdom Come Creek today can pass the school, log barns and cabins and continue through a small valley shadowed by mountains to see the house where Fox lived, worked and wrote some of his stories. They can pass through a gate at the lane, walk a path past an apple tree and sit on the front porch to ponder the man whose books and stories will be forever a part of Kentucky.

While writing or taking notes about his 45 short stories and his dozen best-selling novels, he was enjoying the best years of his life in Letcher, Leslie, Clay, Perry, Harlan and other nearby counties. A soldier in the Spanish-American War and man of many interests and abilities, it was his love for the southern mountains and their people that continued to pull him back to the area.

Fox's feeling for mountain people of his era still lives during the summer at The Little Shepherd Amphitheatre at Van, five miles north of Whitesburg on KY 15. Here, surrounded by the sights and sounds of a mountain evening, a cast portrays "The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come." When the drama starts at 8:30 p.m. each Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Chad Buford and Margaret live out one of Fox's stories.

For information about the drama contact Clifton Caudill, P.O. Box 7, Carcrossonne, Ky. 41806 or phone (606) 633-7962.

For a trip back to the days when John Fox, Jr. lived and worked in the region of Kingdom Come Creek, visit the Fox log cabin. Sit on the porch and listen to the small sounds of evening that comforted him and told him all was well. You might also travel the Little Shepherd Trail that surveys miles of magnificent scenery and know the pull of the mountains just as Fox did.

Immunizations Set For Pre-Schoolers

To help parents get their preschool children ready for their first school year, preschool immunization clinics ("Get Ready Time") are currently being conducted at the Floyd County Health Department daily until August 1. Clinic hours are from 8 to 12 and 1 to 4.

On Thursday, July 24, the regularly scheduled Mud Creek Outpost Clinic will be conducted in the library of the John M. Stumbo School in Grethel. Immunizations, TB skin tests, and blood pressures will be available at this clinic from 9 until 1.

In Select Program

Tony Stumbo, of McDowell, participated in the Rising Seniors program at Berea College this summer. The four-week program, which offers college credit to outstanding high school students, began June 16 and attracted 108 from 15 states. Those attending were housed in college dormitories and worked in Berea's on-campus labor program.
 The Floyd student, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Clark Stumbo, was in the topology class, instructed by Dr. Phillip Schmidt, assistant professor of mathematics at the college.

Homecoming Speaker

Speaker for the Maytown Homecoming in the school auditorium, Saturday, July 26, will be Dr. Russell Anderson, of Ypsilanti, Mich., who was reared at Hunter.

Widely known across the nation as a challenging speaker, he has spoken in colleges and universities, for civic organizations and churches, and has also appeared in Canada and in Korea. As a young man Dr. Anderson worked at a sawmill on Turkey Creek, in mines of this county for several years. He left this section, made his first million at age 37, and now owns six businesses in Ypsilanti. Dr. Anderson is co-founder of Hyles-Anderson College in Hammond, Indiana, and the author of an intriguing book, "Things a Millionaire Can't Afford," which he dedicated to his wife, a Kentuckian from Somerset. They have three daughters.

Rev. George Robinson, pastor of the Garrett Baptist Church, native of Maytown, will introduce the speaker. Howard Ramey will be master of ceremonies. Lowell Martin will be Friday night's m.c. The auditorium was air-conditioned last week.

Since some always miss a Times issue or item we repeat here that there will be no registration fee; however, every individual, including local residents, of any age must register to get the count, and check address file. Registration starts Friday, July 25, at 1 p.m. in the school cafeteria, where identification badges will be provided. I.D. badges are to be worn the entire celebration, as a ticket of admission to both programs and the reunion breakfasts Saturday morning, which are open to all Maytownites.

Fifty-eight sixth grade students from the Martin Elementary School were guests of Our Lady of the Way Hospital during hospital week. They were greeted in the main lobby by Bob Rigel, administrator. This day was set aside for the students to tour the different departments of the hospital under the direction of Mrs. Waneta P. Newsome. The tour allowed the youngsters a look at the hospital and how it takes all the departments pulling together to give better care to the sick.

The students had participated in a poster contest with the theme, "What does a hospital mean to me?" The posters were hung in the lobby so everyone could see what the students had done.

Cookies and punch were served to the students and then awards of Susan B. Anthony dollars were given for the selection of the best posters. Prizes were presented by Bob Rigel to first winner, Michele Cole; second, Michael McKinney; third, Duke Martin; fourth, Sean Ousley, and fifth, Roger Blevins. The two honorable mentions were awarded to Vanessa Burke and Sherry Webb.

The hospital congratulates William Hughes, principal, Mrs. Ruth Reynolds, and Marcella Bailey on the well-behaved students who visited the hospital.

By FAUN FISHBACK
 What can you do when it's too hot to go fishing?
 Sit down in the coolest, shadiest spot you can find, get a tall cold drink and think cool thoughts.

Think about a crisp October day, the fall leaves rustling beneath your feet, the sky a deep, deep blue and the autumn colors of the squirrel woods showing sharply through the clear air.

Think about the sights and smells of a pre-dawn November morning as you shiver in your tree stand, waiting for daylight and that trophy buck that's bound to come your way this year.

Imagine the sound a sharp-December wind makes rustling through the dry corn stalks of your blind as you scan the sky for the sight of ducks among the lowering clouds and the occasional snowflake.

Hear in your mind the way a beagle sounds on a January morning, when his baying interrupts your second cup of coffee. You put on boots and a heavy jacket, grab your shotgun and pocket of shells and follow his tracks in the new snow to where he picked up the scent of the rabbit, then wait for the two of them to complete the circle.

Picture the way a full moon shines on deep snow. An owl hoots in the distance and is answered by one just over on the next hill. Then their dialogue is joined by the sounds of a pack of foxhounds in full cry. The heat of the campfire is warm on your legs as you listen, imagining the unseen chase in your mind.

Remember how cold your feet can get when it's 12 below and you're standing in knee-deep water in a goose blind. But it's the last day of the season and, cold or not, you're going to stick it out.

Recall the sound of ice breaking beneath your boat as you work your way slowly toward the open water of mid-lake. You know that ice will form in the guides of your rod, but the crappie are there, willing to bite even though made sluggish by the numbing waters.

You think of February, with its dark, dreary days, the hunting seasons closed but still too early for fishing. Remember how, then, you sat by the wood stove and imagined that its warmth was the heat of the July sun, and that you were casting a top-water lure towards a clump of green cattails, as dragonflies hovered over the surface of the pond.

These cooling thoughts and pleasant memories have been made possible partly through the money you spend on hunting and fishing licenses, funds which help the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources provide outdoor sports for you and for your children.

So even when it's too hot to do anything but sit in the shade, you're still getting some good out of the money you spent for your licenses.

Rural Child Care Taking Applications For 1980-'81 Year

Applications are now being taken for the 1980-81 Rural Child Care Head Start Program Year. Parents of eligible preschool children (3, 4, 5 years of age) may apply for enrollment Monday-Friday, 8:30-4 p.m. at the Rural Child Care Head Start Office in the Floyd County Rescue Squad Building, Prestonsburg. Head Start personnel will be at the office to assist with recruitment. Parents are asked to bring with them verification of income and child's shot record if available.

Project Head Start is a federally-funded child development program serving 3 to 6-year-old children from low income families. Ten percent of the children may be from families whose income exceeds federal poverty guidelines. Another ten percent of the children, those with handicapping conditions, are provided with experiences to play and learn with non-handicapped children.

Head Start programs operate under annual grants from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare Administration for children, youth and families. Program staff plan Head Start activities and services with the assistance of parents and area residents. They also work with other community agencies to ensure that children and families receive needed services.

If you are interested in enrolling your child in the Rural Child Care Head Start Program, contact Rural Child Care Head Start Office, Floyd County Rescue Squad Building, Prestonsburg, Ky. Phone 886-3548.

Sale of Junkers to Aid Fire, Rescue Groups

Forty-three junkers were collected in the first week of the operation, which is expected to continue for another six weeks. Proceeds from sale of the autos will go to aid the participating groups.

Pictured at the scene of the operation is Judge-Executive Bill Wells, flanked by County Planner Dick Leslie, on his right, and Jim Denton, supervisor of the junk car removal project, on his left.

Those wishing to have junked cars removed from their properties are urged to contact their local fire department or rescue squad.

The Story Behind Gold Medal Cheese

In cool dark storerooms across Kentucky, cheddar cheeses have been aging quietly for up to nearly a year—some with a special goal in mind. Among the cheeses are several whose owners are trying to develop the exacting fine flavor characteristics required to compete for a gold medal at the 1980 Kentucky State Fair.

"Development of the fine cheddar flavor necessary to win the gold medal starts on Kentucky's many dairy farms that supply the high quality milk needed for cheesemaking," says Edward Aylward, Extension dairy products specialist in the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

Beginning as early as August 1979, skilled cheesemakers turned milk into young or "green" cheese ready for aging. During the aging process milk fat and protein are changed to create the sharp, clean acid flavor associated with aged cheddar cheese.

On August 6, 1980 Kentucky cheesemakers will have their best cheddar cheeses judged at the State Fair by an out-of-state expert, Ed Custer of Mississippi State University. The cheese with the most appealing natural cheddar flavor will be declared the gold medal winner and sold by auction, with the proceeds going to charity.

Manufacturer of the runner-up cheese will receive a silver medal, and the cheese will be presented to the Governor of Kentucky.

The auction and presentation will take place August 8, following the annual dairy dinner which starts with a cheese tasting session at 6 p.m.

"Anyone may purchase a ticket to this lively event and participate in the fun of bidding for the gold medal cheese," says Aylward.

The highest bidder wins a trophy, the cheese and the right to designate the charity to receive the auction proceeds. Last year, Armour Foods, Elizabethtown, manufactured the gold medal cheese which was bought by Convenient Foods in the auction for $130 per pound.

As an added attraction to the event this year, the Kentucky Beekeepers Association will provide 10 pounds of blue ribbon honey to be auctioned for charity. "The best cheese and the best honey Kentucky has to offer will be available to the highest bidders," says Aylward.

For more information or tickets to the dinner and auction, contact Glenn Cross at the Dairy Products Association of Kentucky by phone 505-896-1377.

FRANKIE POWERS, of Van Lear, readies another bag of aluminum cans while Ricky Powers, of Auxier, feeds one bag into the hopper for crushing. Frankie and his brother Bob helped their father gather 135 pounds of the metal for this load, netting themselves $37.75.

For Gilbert Powers, the boys' father, the project is a "great way to clean up the highways" as well as giving his boys an opportunity to earn some money toward school clothes.

Johnny Burke, Jr., and Frank Fitzpatrick, who originated the project, report a growing stream of customers since it first began a few weeks ago. The chance to earn some extra income, concern to clean up the area, and an appreciation of the energy saved by recycling are all factors that figure in the ready response, they said.

At present, a stationary unit is set up to receive the cans in a lot just north of the Pic Pac store on the Auxier road, but it is hoped that a mobile unit will soon be operating throughout the county.

Students shouldn't have to worry about paying for Hospital or Doctor bills.

And neither should parents.

Blue Cross - Blue Shield of Kentucky

With all their studies, social activities and decisions for the future to worry about, college aged students don't need the added burden of potential hospital or medical bills. And neither do their parents.

Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Kentucky can help—with a pre-paid health care plan designed specifically for college aged students. This Student Plan offers comprehensive hospital benefits plus surgical and medical benefits, so it gives the students the protection they need and parents the peace of mind they want.

To be eligible for the Student Program you must be a full-time student, enrolled in a Kentucky college or university, junior college, vocational, business, nursing or practical nursing school, or a Kentucky resident attending an accredited out-of-state school; and, under 27 years old. District Court Costs Up $5 in Some Cases

Effective July 15, the costs on all criminal traffic and misdemeanor cases in the district court were increased by $5. That means that the $15 court cost for a prepaid citation is now $20 and the court cost for a court appearance has been increased from $20 to $25.

The Administrative Office of the Courts has told Circuit Clerk Frank DeRossett that he will face several different decisions based upon circumstances:

—"A prepayable citation which is mailed in that was issued prior to July 15 and the police officer has not included the additional $5 in the amount he was indicated for the offender to pay; you will accept the amount tendered."

—"If the offender walks into your office to tender payment even though the citation was issued prior to July 15, you will request payment including the additional $5 fee."

—"If an offender has been reported to the Department of Transportation as a FTA, the amount that was reported to the Department of Transportation would be the amount that you would accept in settlement, even though you may receive it after July 15."

—"If a citation has been issued after July 15, and the officer has cited the wrong fine and cost, you must request payment for the difference."

DASH MEMBERS TO MEET

All DASH members are urged to attend the next meeting tomorrow (Thursday) at 6 p.m. in the conference room of Our Lady of the Way hospital, Martin.

Rural Child Care Recruits Children For Head Start

The Rural Child Care Project is recruiting handicapped children to take part in the program.

The children are being enrolled to use the full range of Head Start education, health, and other program services under a Congressional mandate providing 10 percent of Head Start enrollment nationwide for the handicapped.

The mixing of handicapped and non-handicapped children is expected to give all the children a valuable experience in learning to understand and respect differences among people.

For more information or to enroll a child, call 886-3548, or visit the Rural Child Care Project's county office on the second floor of the Floyd County Rescue Squad building here.

Parents of eligible pre-school children (3, 4, 5 years of age) may apply for enrollment, Monday-Friday, 8:30 a.m.-4 p.m. at the Rural Child Care Head Start office in the Floyd County Rescue Squad building. Head Start personnel will be at the office to assist with recruitment. Parents are asked to bring verification of income and child's vaccination record if available.

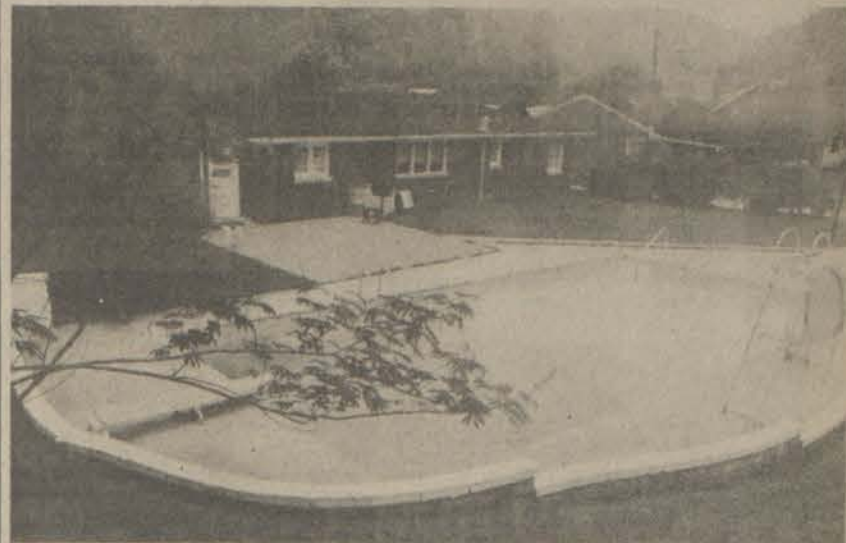

Project Head Start is a federally funded child development program serving 3 to six-year-old children from low income families. Ten per cent of the children may be from families whose income exceeds federal poverty guidelines. Another 10 per cent of the children, those with handicapping conditions, are provided with experiences to play and learn with non-handicapped children.

Driving Rx for Summer Rvs

By Ken Dowell

Despite inflation, despite gas shortages and despite special driving and safety considerations, some six million recreational vehicles are expected to be in use this summer.

If you expect to join the caravan of people who tote their vacation homes along with them, there are some things you should know. Which recreational vehicle best suits your needs? How much will it cost? How much gas will it use? Should you buy or rent? What safety hazards are involved?

An RV Guide

Recreational vehicles range from a virtual house on wheels to what is little more than a rolling tent. Here are the types of RV's available:

- Motor homes—This is the top of the line. Motor homes sleep up to seven, are from 16-35 feet long and are packed with luxuries. The average price is $21,000, but they can go as high as $55,000. If you are undeterred by the price tag, then you probably can shrug off the knowledge that a gallon of gas might not get you out of town.
- Mini motor homes are scaled-down motor homes. They cost a little less ($10,000-$20,000), get a few more miles to the gallon, and fall somewhat short of the bigger models on conveniences.
- Travel trailers—These vehicles come in a variety of shapes and sizes, as large as 35 feet long, and cost anywhere from $2,600-$25,000. Minimum furnishings include refrigerator, stove, heater and beds. If your car can handle one, its gas mileage will be cut by two to four miles per gallon. Special driving skill is required.
- Truck campers are campers mounted on pickup trucks. They range in price from $950-$5,000 and in length from 6-11½ feet. One inconvenience is the difficulty of mounting and dismounting. Safety problems include the possibility of popping or dislodging in stiff winds.
- Camping trailers are furnished tents. They are easier to store than travel trailers and are much less work for your car to tow along. Sleeping and cooking facilities are included. The price range is $1,400-$4,000.
- Van campers are vans made to live in. The top is converted to provide head room by installing a glass bubble or extended roof. The cost is $9,000-$15,000 and gas mileage is better than most RVs (12-14 mpg.) One advantage is that they can be useful when not on vacation. One disadvantage is trying to drive them on a windy day.

For years, recreational vehicles were sold on the basis of economy. Motel bills were supposed to become a thing of the past. Service station lines, skyrocketing fuel costs and dry gas pumps have given consumers second thoughts.

Gas Crisis: The Counterattack

Fuel wariness has affected the recreational vehicle market in much the same way it has influenced the auto industry. Emphasis has turned from the maxi to the mini. Manufacturers are hyping their scaled-down models while researchers are busying themselves with alternate fuel schemes.

The micro mini motor home typifies the trend in the recreational vehicle market. Fathered by the 1974 pop-top Chinook camper with a Toyota chassis, what was originally intended as a bottom-of-the-line item has become the fastest growing camper. Its selling point is a promise of 16-18 miles per gallon. The four-cylinder engine will not fly over hills but it is easier to drive, park and store. The average list price is $12,000.

The current micro mini bears little resemblance to the bottom-of-the-line pop-top. Some of the luxury of the full size version is missing, but its owners are not roughing it. It is designed to sleep four with a bed over the cab and a convertible sofa. Other features usually include a stove, refrigerator, sink, shower and toilet.

The micro mini's economy is based on lighter composition as well as its smaller engine. Plastic and fiberglass have replaced metal wherever possible.

Winnebago's answer to gas-conscious consumers is an RV that runs on either conventional fuel or LP gas. The factory installed conversion kit, which includes a 20 gallon LP gas tank, is priced at $599-$750. These dual fuel motor homes are just beginning to reach the market.

The main advantage of an LP gas option is the wide availability of the fuel. LP gas is also cheaper than gasoline and burns cleaner, thus saving on maintenance fees, although its mileage rating is lower than regular gas.

Motor grade LP should be used in these vehicles, but you can get by with cooking grade, the type used for most RV stoves and furnaces, and as long as the temperature is above freezing, propane-butane mixture cooking gas is acceptable.

Diesel fuel presents another alternative. Motor homes are available that run on diesel fuel. One manufacturer of such units, Highland Motor Homes in El Monte, Calif., has developed a diesel engine to replace conventional gas burners. You will save money on fuel (the diesel gets as much as 14 miles to a gallon) but the transplant is priced at about $15,000.

Buying a Recreational Vehicle

If you are in the market for a recreational vehicle, think first of how it will be used. A family planning to use it for an annual two week vacation should not be looking at the larger more expensive models. In fact, such minimal use suggests that renting rather than buying would be appropriate.

Family size is an equally important consideration. Outings can be rained in, and a single day in an undersized camper can be nerve wracking for parents, children and pets alike. If your family is expected to grow in the next five years, that should be taken into account in selecting a vehicle.

Space is of utmost importance for RVs. You should be able to stand, especially in the "kitchen." Check the storage space. See if the double beds really can accommodate two people.

There are several clues that indicate the quality of the unit. See if the doors are hung properly. Examine the cabinets and paneling for workmanship. The appliances should bear the brand name of a reputable manufacturer. Find out whether the plumbing, heating and electrical systems have been approved by the American National Standards Institute.

Go to a recreational vehicle show at which a variety of vehicles can be scrutinized, or look up a retailer with diverse offerings. In dealing with a smaller manufacturer, remember that business failures are not uncommon in the recreational vehicle industry. In such cases warranties are worthless and replacement parts unobtainable.

Remember that a test drive is not enough. It is best to rent before you buy. Find out whether you are comfortable driving the vehicle of your choice. Is this type of vacation really for you?

Rental prices will start at $200-$300 per week with a mileage charge of 10¢-15¢ per mile for a motor-home, van or truck-camper. The deluxe models may run as high as $1,000 per week. Trailers are considerably less expensive to rent. Travel trailers are priced in the range of $65-$250 per week while the less elaborate camping trailers are rented at a weekly rate of $50-$120.

Some Words of Caution

The recreational vehicle industry is a fairly new one. In some instances this is reflected in the state of regulatory and safety standards.

The National Transportation Safety Board (NTSB) recently issued a number of safety warnings and recommendations for vans and van campers based on testing vans in slow to moderate speed crashes. The windshield of an alarming number of the vehicles tested could not withstand the impact. The steering columns on the vehicles, which enter the passenger area at a sharper angle than in cars, were proven to be a potential source of injury.

New standards are slated to go into effect this year and next to limit the steering column related dangers. Cushioning is to be required on steering assemblies to lessen impact injuries. Also, the maximum backward movement of the steering column and wheel will be restricted to five inches.

Some other safety problems are peculiar to the customized van camper. The do-it-yourselfer's repertoire of plywood, nails, screws and glue may produce a sturdy workmanlike product while the van is parked in the driveway, but the critical factor is how well the added fixtures, appliances and furniture will withstand a crash. The NTSB also frowns upon the popular practice of mounting captain's chairs in the front driver and passenger seat positions. Tests results revealed an inclination for these chairs to collapse backward.

All recreational vehicles, especially the trailer variety, require special maintenance and driving precautions. Improperly inflated tires, whether they be on the tow vehicle, trailer or other type of RV, are a commonly cited problem. The hazard is magnified by overloading. Underinflation may lead to loss of control, overheating or flats. Too much air can result in tire wear, irregular handling or blowouts.

Recreational vehicles are not recommended for the timid driver. You will have to get used to maneuvering a larger vehicle, accustom yourself to different sightlines and learn to deal with wind gusts. Before embarking on a trip, practice driving the vehicle. An empty parking lot or traffic free road can be used for training sessions, including parking, braking, shifting, accelerating and, in the case of trailers, hitching up the tow vehicle.

SHARKS

The story of the only man known to have survived an attack by a great white shark provides one of the exciting highlights in the real-life adventure special, 'Sharks: The Death Machines,' on NBC-TV TUESDAY, JULY 29.

Henry Fonda (pictured) is narrator of the special, which includes spectacular underwater footage of sharks.

Rodney Fox was the lucky man who survived the shark attack. He recounts the harrowing experience which took place 17 years ago off South Australia's Aldinga Reef.

Eye-riveting underwater scenes were taken by the world-renowned photography team of Ron and Valerie Taylor, whose footage dramatizes the incredible ordeal recalled by Fox.

Public Comments Sought On Strip Mining Plan

Public hearings set for July 22 and 23 in Kentucky on the adequacy of the state's proposal for enforcing the Federal Surface Mining Act also will include Secretary of the Interior Cecil Andrus' proposed deletion of certain parts of the state plan.

The hearing for this section of the state will be at the Hazard Community College, Highway 15, Hazard, today (Wednesday), beginning at 7:30 p.m.

Andrus is proposing to delete certain portions of the state proposal in response to a May 16 ruling by U.S. District Judge Thomas Flannery.

Flannery's ruling directed Andrus to delete from state primacy proposals and provisions incorporating Federal regulations that Andrus had suspended while the lawsuit was in progress or that Flannery had remanded to the agency for modification.

As a result, Andrus identified portions of several different sections of the state primacy proposal which he believed should be removed. He now is seeking comments from the public on whether they agree with his determination.

Comments on Andrus' decision, or in lieu of or to supplement other oral testimony at the public hearing, may be sent to David C. Short, Regional Director, Office of Surface Mining—Region II, 530 Gay Street, Knoxville, Tenn. 37902. Comments must be received by 4:30 p.m. July 28, to be considered.

Andrus will decide by August 29, whether Kentucky's proposal is adequate to gain primacy in enforcing the federal act. In making his decision, Andrus will utilize public comments received during this period as well as the analyses and recommendations of OSM.

If Andrus should disapprove the program, the state will have two months to revise and resubmit it. Andrus then will approve or disapprove the revised program by December 29, 1980.

Once Kentucky gains primacy in enforcing the regulatory program under the Federal Surface Mining Act, and has an approved state reclamation plan, it will be able to receive one-half the reclamation fees paid on current coal production to reclaim land that was mined and abandoned unreclaimed prior to August 3, 1977, the date the Federal Act was signed.

Kentucky's share of that money, which has been accumulating since enactment of the act, totalled $33.5 million through last March. The distribution of the remainder of the fund is: 20 per cent for abandoned mine land project undertaken by OSM, 20 per cent for a Rural Abandoned Mine Land Program through the U.S. Soil Conservation Service, and 10 per cent to fund OSM's Small Operators Assistance Program.

List 2 Mine Permits For County In June

The Division of Permits in the state Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection issued 127 mining permits during June.

The number and types issued included 56 original permits, 36 revision permits, 12 amendment permits, 16 renewal permits, two repermits and five succession permits. Of the total issued, 88 were for surface-mining operations, 34 were for underground-mining operations, four were for preparation plant facilities and one was for a haul road.

Permitting activities for June authorized the disturbance of 2,210.92 acres of land and resulted in the collection of $173,625 in fees.

Only two permits were issued in this county during June, one for renewal of permit to mine 220 acres in Martin and Floyd counties, and one to JRM Coal Company for underground mining of 1.9 acres.
