ACA Promises Improved Patient Care

Cheryl Prater, laboratory technician, recently completed a week-long training session on the operation and maintenance of the "aca" at Dupont's training center in Wilmington, Delaware.

Better patient care through improved 24-hours-a-day laboratory service is a goal of Our Lady of the Way Hospital. For this reason, the hospital installed an automatic clinical analyzer (aca) in 1976.

This system, developed by the DuPont Company, performs rapid and accurate chemical analyses of body fluids 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

According to Robert R. Rigel, administrator at Our Lady of the Way, "The 'aca' represented a major investment for our hospital and gave our laboratory the added capacity to respond to the growing need for quick and accurate diagnostic tests day or night."

"Chemical analyses represent the largest group of clinical tests performed in our laboratory," says Cheryl Prater. "The 'aca' enables existing staff to accept this increasing workload without compromising efficiency or quality. We can obtain the first test result from the instrument in less than eight minutes, making it extremely beneficial in emergency cases."

The 'aca' has the basic capability of performing up to 60 diagnostic tests, in any order. These tests range from the analysis of glucose (sugar) in the blood to more sophisticated methods, such as the analysis of liverlactic dehydrogenase, used in suspected cases of liver disease.

Oppenheimer Reunion

Charles Oppenheimer
Members of the families of approximately 100 living descendants of Charles Oppenheimer celebrated their heritage of faith and love Sunday, June 1, at the home of a granddaughter, Marjorie Holbrook, on Tick Ridge in Carter County.

Mr. Oppenheimer immigrated to the United States from Germany in 1881 at the age of 16. He was preceded to the U.S. by two brothers who had settled in Carter and Elliott Counties. One of the brothers later moved to Paintsville. In 1914, Mr. Oppenheimer, with other family members, moved to Prestonsburg where he lived until his death in 1942. The most outstanding legacy left by Mr. Oppenheimer to his family and all who knew him was his warm and loving devotion to his Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ.

Among the 45 descendants who attended the reunion and visited the family cemeteries at Lawton and Tick Ridge were the following from Prestonsburg: two daughters and their families, Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Worland, Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Worland, Jr., Kristen, Teddy, Alice, and Julie, of Cincinnati; Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Clark, Mrs. Joe A. Burchett, Kathy and Jennifer.

Mrs. Dennis Stephens, of Lexington; two granddaughters and their families, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Haywood, Miss Rebecca Haywood, of Falmouth; Mrs. Phyllis Ranier, Harry H. Ranier, Toni Kay, Lorin, and Lea, of Lexington. Other descendants present numbered 14 grandchildren, seven great-grandchildren and two great-great-grandchildren.

Allen Grade School Students, 1952

Town of David Plans Birthday-Reunion

The rejuvenated town of David will have its fifth "birthday" celebration and reunion of past and present residents Saturday, it is announced by Dorothy Clark, executive director of the David Community Development Corporation.

"Our last celebration was in 1977, and at that time we didn't have a lot to show, but now have much that we want our visitors to see," she said.

A sports program at 11:30 a.m. will be followed by remarks by a guest-speaker and a performance by gospel singers. At 2 p.m. horseshoe pitching and baseball will be enjoyed by all who wish to participate.

All friends of the community as well as past and present residents are invited, Mrs. Clark said.

About 60 percent of waste oil is generated by vehicle owners who change their own oil.

Four Years Old

Sean Keith Robinson, son of Larry D. Robinson of the Clark Addition, Prestonsburg celebrated his fourth birthday with a party at his home, May 25. Several friends and relatives attended.

Historical Society To Meet June 21st

The regular summer meeting of the Big Sandy Valley Historical Society will be held at the Breaks of the Mountains Interstate Park, near Elkhorn City, Saturday, June 21.

Beginning with a noon Luncheon, the program will feature selections of Appalachian ballads and folksongs by the Jennie Wiley Chantresses, directed by Edith F. James, of Prestonsburg. The speaker will be the society president, Emory L. Hamilton, of Wise, Va., whose address will be, "Virginia Revolutionary War Veterans Who Settled in Kentucky." Hamilton, one of the foremost authorities in the United States on early American history and genealogy, has made a special study of the pioneers of southwest Virginia and eastern Kentucky, and this study will be the basis of his address.

Persons planning to attend the program should notify the society president by June 18 by writing to Box 639, Wise, Virginia 24293; or by calling 703-328-8850.

It's Do-or-Die Season For JW Music Theatre

On a recent Sunday afternoon the Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre company gathered for its first meeting of the season. Actors, singers, dancers and technicians met at the theatre to begin rehearsals for the theatre's 16th anniversary season, which includes productions of "Jenny Wiley," "Hello, Dolly," "Lil' Abner," and "Fiddler on the Roof."

Members of the Jenny Wiley Drama Association watched as each cast member performed an audition number. Jack Wicker, general manager of the theatre, said the audition served two purposes.

"We want to show the Drama Association how much talent we have this year," he said. "Besides, we need to cast some of the numbers for our new cabaret show on Friday and Saturday nights after the regular performances. This is a good way to see the types of songs that come off best."

"I'm extremely proud of this cast," he said later. "I believe this is the most talented cast we've ever had out here."

Wicker and the Jenny Wiley Drama Association have more than the cast to be proud of. At times, it has appeared that the theatre would not open at all this season. Last summer's season, although an artistic success, was a financial disaster. The gasoline crunch, combined with a lack of publicity, brought small crowds and hard times to the theatre.

During the winter, Peggy Arnett, president of the drama association, set to work to bring the theatre back to life. In spite of doubts as to whether or not the theatre would open, four shows were scheduled, and Wicker was hired. He and several members of the drama association attended auditions in Prestonsburg, Lexington and Nashville.

"Everyone in this company knows that this season must be a success or the theatre could die," Wicker said. "We're all ready to really work."

Such somber thoughts were not apparent from the performances of the cast on the opening day, however. The cast members were all smiles as they performed numbers from shows like "The Music Man," "Pippin," "Annie" and "1776." After each number, the other members of the cast applauded along with the drama association members.

Despite all of that enthusiasm, there are still some problems that need to be ironed out. One of them is a lack of people.

"We need people to play Indians in 'Jenny Wiley!'" Wicker said. They need not be able to sing or dance. All they need to be able to do is walk around without bumping into things."

There also needs to be some cleaning and repairs done on the theatre itself before the June 18 opening of "Jenny Wiley!"

Wicker is not worried, though. "We're going to have a great season out here," he said. "And I'm sure there will be many more to come."

"Jenny Wiley!" will run Wednesdays through Sundays, June 18-29 and Friday evenings through August 15. Ticket information can be obtained by calling (606) 886-9274 or by writing the theatre at Box 22, Prestonsburg, Ky. 41653.

Anyone interested in appearing as an extra in "Jenny Wiley!" should contact Jack Wicker or Susan Conaty by coming to the theatre at Jenny Wiley State Park or by calling 886-9274.

HEALTH NOTES

By Janet E. Hicks

Diabetes is the sixth leading cause of death in the state of Kentucky. In the United States, diabetes ranks third as a killer disease while also being the second leading cause of blindness.

There are about a million and half Americans who know they have diabetes and are working with their physicians to control their disease. But medical authorities estimate that there are just as many diabetics who do not know that they are really sick. They think they are just tired and run down or have a minor complaint which will go away.

But diabetes doesn't go away. It can be treated with diet, exercise, medication, and regular living habits. The sooner diabetes is diagnosed and treated, the better are a diabetic's chances to live a full and long life.

The Floyd County Health Department offers diabetes screening to the public on Mondays, Wednesday, and Friday of each week from 8 a.m. to 12 and 1 to 4 p.m.

If you or any member of your family think you may have symptoms of diabetes, it would be well worth your time to come to the health department to obtain free diabetes screening.

Ladies, has it been a year since you have had your Pap test? You may have heard or already know that in order to have continuing protection against cervical cancer, a woman should have a Pap test at least once a year.

Pap tests will be given free of charge this Friday, June 13, from 8:30 to 11:30 and 1 to 2 at the Floyd County Health Department.

The regularly scheduled Bypro Outpost Clinic will be conducted at Ethel Osborne's Store, Monday, June 16, from 10 a.m. to 12 and 1 to 2 p.m.. Immunizations, TB skin tests, diabetes screening, and blood pressures will be available at this clinic.

The Floyd County Health Department invites all persons to attend this clinic for these free services.

Also on Monday, June 16, there will be a glaucoma clinic conducted at the Floyd County Health Department from 10 a.m. to 12 and 1 p.m. to 3 p.m..

All persons age 35 and older are urged to attend this clinic to be screened, free of charge, for glaucoma - is a disease that can result in blindness.

WINS SCHOLARSHIP

Miss Flora Flanery, of Martin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. B. Flanery, has received a Presidential Scholarship from Pikeville College for academic excellence. She was graduated in May from Prestonsburg Community college, was a member of the Homecoming Court, the Beta Club as treasurer and of Future Homemakers of America.

She plays piano and teaches Sunday School class at the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

Roadsides Mowed Less
As Fuel Ecomomizer

The Department of Transportation will save an estimated 114,000 gallons of fuel this summer by reducing the number of times Kentucky roadsides will be mowed from three to two.

"With the shortfall of revenues in the Road Fund, it is necessary that we cut our expenditures wherever possible," Transportation Secretary Frank Metts said. "This is one area where we can cut expenses without inconveniencing the driving public."

The mowing reductions will take place on routes that normally receive three or more mowing each year. Under the current mowing program, all state routes will receive at least two mowings this season.

"We have been hindered in getting our mowing operation under way this spring because of the late growing season and wet conditions. Plans are now being formulated to schedule the minimum two mowings so that maximum efficiency can be obtained," Metts said.

Jenny Wiley Trail Opens, June 21

A long, winding trail wends its path from the modern 1980s through nine Eastern Kentucky counties and all the way back to the red man and pioneer heroine Jenny Wiley. The trail is the scenic and historic Jenny Wiley Trail, 180 miles of spectacular Kentucky vistas. Grand opening of the trail is scheduled June 21. The ceremony will be sponsored by the Jenny Wiley Trail Conference.

Supporting the trail conference in the grand opening will be Area 11 Girl Scouts who invite everyone to attend the opening and join the hike. The scouts will lead a five mile hike and point out the genuine natural beauty of the trail.

Along with the trail conference and Girl Scouts, dignitaries from Kentucky's Department of Parks and state government will extend a welcome to people in the Tri-State (Kentucky, Ohio and West Virginia).

Carl Curnutte, 35, of Ashland was the first person to complete the 180-mile trail.

Mushroom Cans Get Botulism Inspection

Kentucky health department sanitarians will soon begin checking nursing homes, hospitals and other institutions and food service establishments in a regional recall of canned mushrooms that may contain the deadly botulism toxin.

The recall began this week after the Food and Drug Administration found botulism toxin in mushroom stems and pieces packed in cans manufactured by Emil Lerch Inc. of Hatfield, Pa. The No. 10 size cans have been distributed by the Pennsylvania firm since February 1977. The mushrooms were sold in 19 Eastern and Southern states.

The exact number of 4-pound, 4-ounce cans involved in the recall is not known, federal officials said. The company has produced 450,000 such cans since last October.

Botulism is a food poisoning that causes death in some 65 percent of persons ingesting the toxin.

Department for Human Resources official John Draper said today health department officials will be asked in the next day or two to check institutions and food service establishments for the mushrooms, which were packed under 12 brand names. He said health departments will concentrate on institutions because they are the most likely purchasers of the bulk quantity cans. The check will take about a week, he said. Draper is manager of the department's food control branch.

If any cans are found, they will be removed from sale or use and held for pick up or disposal by the Pennsylvania company, Draper said.

The mushrooms were packed under these labels: Even Tide, Chef's Finest, Friends Golden Glow, Elizabeth Park, Railtons Natural and Railtons Barco, Romayo, Mijla Special Mushrooms, Mando's Pizza Systems Inc., Veteran and Pomoco.

The cans can be identified by the letters "E" and "L" on the top of a two-line code stamped on an end of the can, Draper said.

Consumers discovering such cans should return them to the place of purchase, Draper said.

"It just makes you think and be thankful that God put such beautiful country here," he said after finishing his seven-day journey in April.

Curnutte is chairman of the trail conference and familiar with hiking trails and nature. While not advocating that others do the same, he said he used crystal clear streams, from South Portsmouth to Jenny Wiley State Resort Park, for his drinking water.

Some sectors of the trail pass through privately-owned farmland. All hikers are requested to observe trail rules and hiking regulations. The trail first was planned in the early 1970s and has about 20 shelters to accommodate overnight hikers.

Its beginning is in Greenup county. The trail travels ridgetops through Carter and Elliott counties, reaches into rugged Devils Fork in Morgan county and goes on through valleys, meadows and rocky peaks through Johnson and Floyd counties. The 180 miles end at Goble Branch campground area in Jenny Wiley State Resort Park.

The grand opening ceremony for the trail will be at 1 p.m. at the South Portsmouth end, across from Portsmouth bridge. Guests are advised to arrive any time from 9 to 11 a.m. to start the five-mile special hike. At the end of the five-mile hike, buses will take hikers back for a program at which descendants of Jenny Wiley will cut the ribbon to officially open the trail.

The day's schedule includes: 9 to 11 a.m. - opportunity to hike five miles of the trail; 11:30 a.m. - canoe races on the Ohio River with men's and women's divisions, mixed, over-18 and unlimited; noon - fun and games for children; 12:30 p.m. - Kentucky Long Rifles exhibition; 1 p.m. - ribbon-cutting and dedication; 2 p.m. - O.A. Indian Dancers.

Orville Wheeler, author of "White Squaw," the story of Jenny Wiley, will autograph copies of the book during the opening day ceremonies.

Curnutte has information about the trail, the grand opening activities and entry rules for the canoe races. Contact him at 3465 Boy Scout Road, Ashland, Ky. 41101 or by phoning (606) 324-6930.

Pikeville Man Fined $1,000 For Mining Without Permit

It was announced in Frankfort that Flem Justice, Jr., of Pikeville, has been found guilty of strip mining without a permit and was fined $1,000 and ordered to reclaim the affected two acres.

The Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection said that Pike District Judge Richard Elswick suspended a 90-day jail sentence with probation on the condition that Justice reclaim the land he illegally mined by June 31.

KET Cuts Saturday Broadcast Hours

Ket announced today reduced broadcast hours for the summer in the face of budget cutbacks and personnel shortages at several KET transmitter sites.

Immediately affected is KET's Saturday schedule. On June 21, the statewide television network will begin broadcasting at 5:00 p.m., instead of the usual 12:00 p.m. sign-on.

According to Associate Executive Director for Broadcasting Sandy Welch, KET, hit hard by the spiraling costs of doing business in inflationary times, has been looking for ways to reduce operating costs. Recent personnel shortages at several of KET's 15 transmitter sites have served to worsen the situation.

Welch characterized the KET decision as drastic, but necessary. "It's always difficult and painful to cut broadcast hours," Welch said, "but we tried to look for areas that would be least disruptive to our schedule."

Under the new plan, some KET programs which originally aired Saturday mornings and afternoons move to a later time period, while still others have been completed or discontinued.

Beginning June 21, "Personal Time Management," a course on personal and professional time, will air Saturdays at 5:00 p.m. "New Shapes: Education," a discussion of developments in Kentucky education, can be seen at 6:00 p.m.

Several TV courses offered for college credit which were part of the Saturday schedule last spring have completed their broadcast cycle and are expected to return in the fall.

Saturday musical specials and repeat programs from a current broadcast of "GED," the KET-produced series designed to prepare adults to obtain their high school equivalency diplomas, will be discontinued for the summer. KET will continue to air "GED" on Tuesdays and Thursdays at 6:30 p.m., noted Welch.

116 Attend Fellowship Fete

By Barbara Wynsma
 "Say It With Flowers" a buffet dinner honoring mothers, daughters and friends, was held May 9 at May Lodge, Jenny Wiley State Park. One hundred sixteen women and girls attended this special event.
 Handmade floral arrangements and floating flower candles decorated the tables. Following the program, many of those attending received the bouquets for various honors, such as the oldest mother, who was Mrs. Amerzee Storie, all high school seniors, and those awarded in "Posey Fun."
 Miss Barbara Wynsma presided as toastmistress and Miss Angela Elliott served as official welcome person. Mrs. Alice Skeans, president of the Independent Woman's Fellowship (sponsoring group) served in many capacities. Mrs. Esther Williams, of Flat Gap, gave a tribute to daughters, and her daughter, Mrs. Marylyn Preston, gave an equally memorable tribute to mothers.
 Taking part in the style show entitled, "Hilarious Honeys," were Sherry Hall, Joyce Ousley, Annette Kidd, Sarah Helmentoler, Kathy Keithman, Missey Elliott, Angela Elliott, Kathy Crum, with Alice Skean narrating. Patricia Watson, of Risner, modeled a "Flower Garden" dress.
 One of the highlights of the program was the presentation to Mrs. Sadie Ratliff (formerly of Martin) the Christian Mother of the Year Award. Her five daughters were there to share in this memorable time. They were Doris Martin, Dixie Hyden, Treva Martin, Wanda Caudill and Barbara Tackett. A special plaque was presented Mrs. Ratliff. The second honoree of the evening was Mrs. Penny Stumbo, of Martin. After reminiscing of past days, she was presented an award for outstanding public service. She is the dedicated nurse working with Dr. Lowell Martin. Her daughter, Thede Barnett, was there also.

 Thrilling the audience again with their music were Mrs. Leah Bowers and daughter, Bonnie, who have been at the three previous banquets. Two of her students at Calvary Christian Academy, Whitesburg, Ky., Miss Rebecca Clark and Miss Teresa Pace, also inspired the audience with their music.
 The speaker of the evening was Mrs. Sue MaGee, of Lexington. Her talk began with a Bible quotation, "The grass withereth, the flower fadeth, but the Word of our God shall stand forever." She spoke of satisfaction to be found only in Jesus Christ.
 It was the fourth annual banquet sponsored by the Independent Christian Woman's Fellowship. Those serving on the committees for "Say It With Flowers" were Barrie Johnson, Lois Holmquist, Joyce Ousley, Sherry Hall, Barbara Wynsma, Angela and Missey Elliott, Patricia Watson, Alice Skeans, Virginia Hall, Kathy Keithman, Olga Martin, Sarah Helmentoler, Sandra and Cathy Crum, Kathrine Hall, Georgia Faye and women from the Flat Gap area.

Fire Protection Rises—Ins. Rates Lower

Pictured above is part of the 21-member Maytown Volunteer Fire Department which recently received an insurance rating that will mean saving to a large number of homeowners in the Maytown section. The rating will, at first, cover an area of three road miles from the fire station and those living within 1,000 feet of a fire hydrant will have a Level 8 insurance rating. For those living more than 1,000 feet from a hydrant, a Level 9 rating will be assigned. After completion of new KY 80, the area of coverage will be increased. Chief of the Maytown squad is Edward F. Robinson.

PINNING CEREMONIES...Connie Pelphrey, of Prestonsburg, was among 11 graduates of the Medical Assisting program pinned during recent ceremonies at Morehead State University. Medical Assisting is an associate degree offered in the School of Applied Sciences and Technology.
 Miss Pelphrey is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald R. Pelphrey.

Jobs in Demand Listed by DOL

The U.S. Labor Department listed 97 high demand occupations for young jobseekers generally requiring high school or college preparation.

The special edition of "Occupations in Demand" is geared to assist young job aspirants who will begin looking for permanent jobs once the school year is over. The lists also are useful to jobseekers of all ages.

The bulletin covers jobs most frequently listed by employers at the 2,500 Job Service offices throughout the country during the January-March period.

For each occupation listed, the publication contains (1) local areas having large numbers of openings, (2) industries requesting such workers, (3) pay ranges, and (4) average number of openings available. It also lists jobs not requiring previous work experience.

The purpose of the extra edition of "Occupations in Demand at Job Service Offices," produced by the Labor Department's U.S. Employment Service, is to help students and recent graduates make better informed career and job search decisions.

Twenty-one occupations requiring high school education averaged over 1,000 job openings listed each month during the first quarter of calendar 1980. The highest averaged over 11,000 openings. In rank order of highest demand first, they are as follows: clerk-typist, clerk, secretary, administrative clerk, survey worker, receptionist, accounting clerk, full charge bookkeeper, keypunch operator, shipping and receiving clerk, insurance sales agent, management trainee, typist, teller, statistical clerk, bookkeeper, legal secretary, teacher aid, stenographer, cashier, community org. worker.

Five jobs requiring education beyond high school averaged over 1,000 job openings each month during the first quarter of calendar 1980. In rank order, they are: accountant, practical nurse (LPN), general duty nurse, electronics technician.

Employers listed a monthly average of 107,839 openings in the "demand" occupations at public employment service Job Banks during the three-month period. An average of 57,658 openings in these occupations were still available at the end of each month.

In addition, the special edition lists 14 groups of occupations which state Job Services had difficulty filling. These include occupations covering areas such as accounting and auditing, electronic and electrical production, installation and repair, engineering, medicine and health, medical support, nursing, real estate and insurance sales, education, social and welfare work, and stenographers.

The special issue has been mailed to agencies and organizations that regularly receive the "Occupations in Demand" bulletin. Copies are available at local Job Service offices, and single copies may be obtained by writing: Consumer Information Center, Pueblo, Colorado 81009.

According to the state Department of Human Resources food stamp program if egg prices had increased at the same rate as transportation costs over the past 20 years, eggs would cost $3.41 per dozen.

Unearthing America's Prehistoric Past

By Madeleine Jacobs
Smithsonian News Service

For most of us, American history begins in the 1600s when European colonists settled on the East Coast. But clues to America's more distant past may actually be buried in our own backyards, especially those in the Mississippi Valley. For it is there, in the rich, fertile floodplains of the valley, that many "prehistoric" Indians, living hundreds of years ago and predating modern Indian tribes, built their homes and left evidence of their cultures.

Time and dirt have covered these over, but, increasingly, archaeologists looking for America's roots are digging into these prehistoric sites. Among these modern-day explorers is Dr. Bruce Smith of the Smithsonian Institution's Museum of Natural History in Washington, D. C. "We now know that man lived in America for many thousands of years before European explorers and settlers arrived and we want to learn more about these cultures," he explains. "Unfortunately, many sites are disappearing because of construction and agricultural practices.

"By the year 2000, virtually all evidence of prehistoric occupation of the Mississippi Valley will have vanished. If we don't make an attempt now, we'll never know about these cultures."

Smith has studied the "Temple Mound builders," who lived between 800 and 1600 A.D. in the Mississippi Valley and elsewhere in the United States. His research is an out-growth of pioneering studies of these indigenous American Indians by the Smithsonian's Mound Exploration Division nearly 100 years ago.

"From their research, we know that the Temple Mound builders were primarily farmers who attained the highest level of cultural development in North America prior to the European involvement," Smith says. "This took the form of a sophisticated 'chiefdom' level of organization, with an elite group that made many of the decisions facing their society."

The mounds themselves marked the ceremonial, administrative and defensive center of the chiefdom, which ranged in size from 500 to more than 1,000 people. Most of these people lived in small villages and on single-family farmsteads. The elite, however, lived in a fortified ceremonial center with their structures and houses built on rectangular, flat-topped earthen mounds, constructed from thousands of basketloads of dirt from the river valley.

One of the 1,600 mound centers investigated by the Mound Exploration Division was the Powers "Fort" in southeastern Missouri. Division members excavated and described the ceremonial center of the chiefdom in the early 1880s, but further research was not undertaken until the late 1960s when a University of Michigan research team, including Smith, excavated several outlying villages. In 1974 Smith directed a group of students in the first excavation of a single-family farmstead of the Powers Chiefdom. "Our goal was to learn more about the everyday life of an average, non-elite Indian family," he recalls.

How does an archaeologist reconstruct the lives of people who left only fragmentary shreds of their existence?

"It's like putting together the pieces of a complex puzzle," he says. "The objects by themselves do not tell us very much—we have to see how they are located in relationship to each other and in what context they are found. That's why excavations are so slow and tedious. Also, even before you select a site you have to know what questions you want answered."

Smith wanted to learn how long and during what seasons the site was occupied, the size and composition of the occupying group, activities carried out at the site and the overall role of the site in the chiefdom.

Working under the hot Missouri sun, student archaeologists took 10 weeks to excavate the 8,000-square-foot site. Soil disturbed by the plow was first removed, revealing the remains of two houses and series of pits where different activities such as butchering and cooking apparently were carried out. Soil was then carefully scraped away with small trowels, grapefruit knives and spoons, uncovering additional artifacts one by one. Each item was photographed in place, assigned a number and bagged. Next, all dirt excavated was washed through a fine screen, revealing very small items. The steps were repeated until sterile soil was reached.

Ultimately, almost 50,000 objects—ranging from flakes of stone and ceramics, clay fragments, bones of small animals and fish, nut fragments, seeds and other plant remains—were recovered from the entire site.

Smith personally examined each of these items and was able to identify the function of about half, a process that took 3 years and hundreds of laboratory hours. To distinguish man-related artifacts from those formed by nature, objects were compared with other known and documented objects and with those found at the site. Patterns of wear were examined with a microscope; radiocarbon dating helped determine the age of organic materials, such as charred wood from the house posts.

Armed with this detailed analysis, Smith began to put together a picture of life at the farmstead. He concluded that around 1300 A.D. an extended family of five to seven males and females lived at this site for 1 to 3 years.

"From bones and tools found, we know that the males hunted white-tailed deer, racoon, fox, squirrel, beaver, rabbit and wild turkey during the fall and winter and fish and waterfowl during the spring and summer," he says.

"One of the two houses seemed to be used for sleeping and keeping warm during the winter. The other house was the center of daily life at the farm, with broken pottery vessels and tools recovered from inside testifying to the wide variety of activities that were carried out there. From this evidence, we concluded that the site was occupied year-round."

He also found evidence of food preparation such as cooking equipment and remains of wild plants and nuts from hickory and oak trees. Just as hunting is traditionally a male-oriented activity in Indian cultures, food preparation is the province of females, Smith says. Both males and females, however, probably raised squash, corn and beans in a domesticated garden. The farmstead was about 2 miles from the fortified mound village and Smith believes that the family went to the village for important ceremonies and to seek protection against attacks.

Concluding his story, Smith says, "These prehistoric Indians were not eking out a precarious hand-to-mouth existence in a hostile landscape. Far from it. They existed in a naturally abundant environment and used a variety of its energy sources in a way that did not endanger nor drastically modify it."

The single-family farmstead provided a piece of the puzzle, but the larger puzzle is how the mound-building way of life developed and how chiefdoms emerged from earlier cultures. Smith plans to continue this investigation in an area about 100 miles north-east of the Powers Chiefdom. The goal of this long-term project is to determine changes in settlement and subsistence patterns throughout the entire prehistoric period in this particular region.

On a more philosophical level, there are many questions that will never be answered—What, for example, were the hopes and aspirations of these peoples? "We may never figure out what caused these cultures to decline and fade away around 1500 A.D.," Smith says, "but perhaps we can learn something from these people who lived so successfully with their environment for hundreds of years."

Pharmacy Footnotes by HAROLD COOLEY. Relaxation is different from rest. When actually resting, there is no obvious activity. Relaxation may include reduced action without abolishing the tension necessary for good performance. This holds true for a performer as well as for a spectator. A relaxed person usually finds more satisfaction in recreational activities than the person who remains tension filled. However, although relaxation and recreation are not the same, they do compliment each other. Rest itself, however, remains a necessity for all of us. Our bodies still need to recuperate our strength. You can relax if you know your health is in good hands. That means you can relax if you do business with COOLEY APOTHECARY, 2 Town Center Bldg., 886-8106. We are small enough to know you and large enough to serve you. You can trust our professional, high quality service. There is no waiting. And don't forget, prescriptions are tax deductible items. See us for canes, walkers, and crutches also. We're open Mon.-Fri. 9-5:30; Sat. 9-5. HELPFUL HINT: Make cracks in dishes invisible by boiling them in sweet milk for about an hour under low heat.

"Rational Suicide" Documentary On KET

"I don't think of myself now as killing myself. I feel no desire to kill, or injure, or maim. To me, that's the difference between rational and irrational suicide; irrational is neurotically involved with killing..."

These words, spoken by New York artist and psychotherapist Jo Roman 32 days before carrying out her carefully planned suicide, are the opening words of "Choosing Suicide," premiering Monday, June 16 at 9 p.m., on KET. This one-hour documentary focuses on Roman's determination to end her life with dignity and on her own terms.

Roman believed in planned self-termination and opposed forced prolongation of life upon anyone who wished to end it.

For the last ten years Roman had intended to end her life sometime in her 70s and was writing a book advocating her thoughts on "rational suicide." At 62 Roman discovered she had breast cancer and began organizing for an early cancer departure.

When the advance of the disease seemed to threaten her ability to finish the book, Roman asked her friend, documentary producer Richard Ellison, to record her ideas and plans on tape. Ellison in turn recruited videomakers Leah Siegel and Don Blauvelt. Together they taped 19 hours of intimate conversations and confrontations with close friends and relatives, some of whom strongly opposed Roman's intentions.

Jo Roman ended her life exactly as she had envisioned. She wrote farewell letters to 60 friends and an obituary for the New York Times. The last evening was spent in her New York City apartment with her husband, her daughter and a close family friend working on her final creation, a coffin-shaped "life sculpture." Then in the early morning hours of June 10, 1979, 62-year-old Jo Roman washed down 35 sleeping pills with a glass of champagne. Husband, Mel Roman, a professor of psychiatry, was with her in her final moments. "She was," he said, "completely without fear or ambivalence."

Immediately following "Choosing Suicide," at 10 p.m. "Choosing Suicide: The Implications" with host, Hugh Downs, examines the issue of rational suicide.

Nursing Homes To Be More Closely Eyed

State Human Resources Secretary Grady Stumbo has announced plans to reform state regulation of nursing homes. Stumbo disclosed the proposed changes following a Louisville Courier-Journal series of articles detailing deficiencies in the regulation and operation of nursing homes.

Among Stumbo's proposals are these: --The Human Resources Department will work with the Interim Committee on Health and Welfare to prepare the governor's reform package on legislation governing nursing homes.

--The department will prepare a directory of all nursing homes in the state and will include a rating of the homes.

--The department will begin automatically revoking the licenses of nursing homes that fail to promptly correct problems.

--If authority from Gov. John Y. Brown Jr. is granted, Stumbo will have the option of cutting off Medicaid and Medicare funding of nursing homes that violate regulations.

In announcing the plans this week, Stumbo said reform has long been needed in the nursing home industry.

"We're going to act promptly and decisively to end the lax enforcement of nursing home regulations that the state has had for years. We have a serious problem and we need solutions now," Stumbo said.

He said the reforms will take place over the next several months.

Inmates working on prison farms produce 68 percent of the meat and vegetables consumed in the state's 10 correctional institutions. Prison farms total 1,986 acres in cultivated land and 3,700 in pasture.

Greenhouse Crew Brings Splash of Color to City

PLANTING MARIGOLDS in the municipal parking lot last week were workers from Mountain Comprehensive Care Center's Auxier greenhouse.

Howard characterized the greenhouse program as one that "has proven itself over the years as one of the most practical ways of helping disabled clients." The greenhouse, he added, is currently selling a wide variety of bedding plants for the home gardener.

SPORTS AFIELD

Conservationists and sportsmen from across the commonwealth will gather at Kentucky Dam Willage State Resort Park, Gilbertsville, June 27-28 for two important annual events.

The first, scheduled for 8 p.m. June 27, is a banquet to honor the winners of the 14th annual Governors' Conservation Achievement Awards program.

This award program, sponsored by the League of Kentucky Sportsmen and the Kentucky Wildlife Federation Foundation, is designed to "give proper recognition to those persons and organizations who make outstanding educational and informational contributions to the natural resources welfare of the community, the county and the state."

Winners in each of 10 categories are picked from a judging panel composed of members of the league, the foundation and the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources. Each winner will receive a trophy in addition to being honored at the dinner.

In addition to the Conservationist of the Year, awards will be presented to those making outstanding contributions in wildlife, forest soil and water conservation. An outstanding high school student, college student, educator, communicator and organization will also be recognized.

Saturday morning, June 28, the League of Kentucky Sportsmen convention will begin. The League, formed in 1935, is composed of sportsmen's club members and interested individuals. It is the state affiliate of the National Wildlife Federation.

The league convention offers sportsmen from all across Kentucky and those with divergent interests—coon hunting, bass fishing, or whatever—a chance to get together and discuss common problems and set common goals for the coming year.

Each member club sends voting delegates to the league meeting. A part of the business conducted is a vote on a series of resolutions about fish, wildlife and conservation matters.

Many of these resolutions ask the Kentucky Fish and Wildlife Commission to consider certain issues or problems. This resolution procedure is one of the primary ways the needs and wants of the state's sportsmen are brought to the attention of the commission.

Food Facts

Suddenly, vitamins are "in." Millions of us, each day, take a multivitamin pill. In addition, countless people reach for vitamin C during the cold season, and others take vitamin E to boost their sex lives or vitamin B12 for extra energy. Your family can probably be counted among these people.

Now food manufacturers have caught on to the public's interest in vitamins by adding vitamins to foods. The food industry, according to some critics, uses vitamins as a promotional gimmick to increase profits.

Vitamins are added to "fortify" foods—meaning that nutrients which do not occur naturally in the food are added (vitamin C in cereal); or to "enrich" foods—to increase the levels of naturally occurring nutrients (B-vitamins in many cereals); or to "restore" foods—to replace nutrients that have been lost in processing (B-vitamins in flour).

prevents heart disease, you have probably heard a great deal about the "wonder-drug" effects of vitamins.

These claims have come under strong attack, and are controversial. The U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare have questioned what they term the "myths of vitamins." The position of the Food and Drug Administration about vitamin supplements is basically that you don't need them; Americans get all the nutrients necessary to prevent deficiencies of the most common vitamins, such as C and E. Furthermore, they argue, most claims for vitamin supplements are either untrue or have no scientific proof. The government report acknowledges that some research with vitamin C showed that massive doses reduced the occurrence and time of a cold by about 25 percent; but it concludes that vitamin C does not cure or completely prevent colds.

All of these processes ignore the nutritional facts of life by placing emphasis on the added vitamins alone for their nutritional claims. Nutrition is measured by protein, fiber, calories, and carbohydrates, as well as by vitamins and minerals which may not be contained in the food, including important trace elements (calcium, phosphorus, magnesium, etc.) Nutrients act in complex complementary patterns which cannot be duplicated by the addition of random vitamins or minerals to a food product.

For the same reason, it is not a good idea to depend on vitamin pills alone for good nutrition. If you are under a lot of stress, and miss meals (because you're rushed or because you're dieting—two very common reasons for missed meals), swallowing vitamins and minerals in megadoses is not going to keep you healthy. Supplements are only part of the picture. You need a balanced diet, and that means real food in two or three well-balanced meals daily.

What about the claims for megavitamin therapy for a variety of ills? Given the fact that nourishing food is basic to good health, can heavy doses of vitamins and minerals provide added benefits—even prevent illnesses or cure illnesses? From claims for vitamin C in preventing and/or curing the common cold to claims that vitamin E

More alarmingly, some critics of megavitamins charge that you can actually "overdose" on certain vitamins. That is, as noted in a recent Consumer Reports, vitamin C can lead to diarrhea or even kidney problems, if consumed to excess. Other problems may occur with huge amounts of vitamin A, vitamin D, or potassium chloride, and severe side effects have been reported.

But it is important to point out that studies are not conclusive. Claims for success with megavitamins, with optimistic results of research, continue alongside the disclaimers. For example, Consumer Reports has stated that treating schizophrenia with megavitamin therapy has been unsuccessful. There may even be adverse effects in such treatment. But according to the Do It Now Foundation, a national organization involved in educating people about drugs, megavitamin therapy of schizophrenics has been highly successful. The organization notes that the Committee on Therapy of the American Schizophrenia Association reports an 85 percent improvement rate with niacin therapy. Vitamin C is used along with this therapy. Large doses of vitamin C and niacin, the group claims, will also help amphetamine users in lessening the intensity of a "comedown" off the use of amphetamines.

Summer Youth Jobs Okayed For Funding

Department for Human Resources Secretary Grady Stumbo announced today, on behalf of Gov. John Y. Brown Jr., the authorization of funding for 1,517 summer jobs for economically disadvantaged youths.

The jobs are being made available through two programs that were developed as a reaction to current economic conditions, said Stumbo.

Through local governments and private non-profit agencies in the 89 county Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) balance of state area, 1,280 jobs will be available. Federal CETA money is allocated to states for these types of projects.

The remaining jobs will be available through the Kentucky Association of Community Action Agencies.

The projects will be administered at the state level by the department's Bureau for Manpower Services, which also will be responsible for recruitment and placement of participants, said Bureau Commissioner Dr. John Wells.

"The present economy has forced these young people and many of their parents out of work," said Stumbo.

"Unfortunately, these economically disadvantaged youths are the ones who suffer the most in the long run."

These two programs are not "give away" programs, Stumbo stressed. "The young participants will work for their wages, and their work will benefit the local communities. Participants will be performing services such as road work, public park maintenance, services to the elderly and repair work on public schools," Stumbo said.

While these projects are not part of the CETA summer youth program, the work performed will be similar to CETA projects.

While working, the participants will acquire work experience and skills, Stumbo said. "The projects are designed to serve as an incentive for these young people to continue their education and to learn marketable skills and professions."

E.K.U. Summer Enrichment Program

Three McDowell junior high students will participate in a Summer Enrichment Program for Gifted and Talented Youth at Eastern Kentucky University, Richmond.

The program will begin June 16 and consist of four hours' classroom-type work daily, plus various enrichment activities including swimming, ceramics, tennis, field trips and piano.

The participants are:

-Shelia Slone, daughter of Ogie and Edward Slone, of Ligon. She was varsity cheerleader, is on the basketball and golf team, and was a member of the 1979-80 eighth grade graduating class.

-O. Timothy Newsome, son of Bonnie and Otis Newsome, of East McDowell; eight-year honor student, plays basketball and baseball.

-Douglas Hall, son of Donna and Denzil Hall, of McDowell; a seventh-grader and an honor student all seven years in grade school. He plays basketball and baseball.

Wayland Wins in 'Recount'

The Wayland Grade School cheerleaders still claim No. 1 ranking. Due to a mistake in the addition of score sheets, Allen Grade School was given the first place county trophy, it is explained. After the scores were finally given to the schools, the final result was that the Wayland cheerleaders had 180 points and Allen had 179.

The school superintendent decided that, since Allen already had the trophy, Wayland and Allen would be co-winners. In any other participation one point decides the winner; so Wayland's cheerleaders have now won the Floyd county cheerleading competition seven out of the last nine years.

Major Reclamation Project Under Way

Before (left) and after reclamation work now under way on David Community Development Corporation land. The work is being done under the Rural Abandoned Mine Program, which is administered by the U. S. Soil Conservation Service.

The first phase of a three-part major reclamation project under the USDA Soil Conservation Service's Rural Abandoned Mine Program (RAMP) was recently begun at David.

The Project is being constructed by Unity Structures, Inc., on severely disturbed mined land owned by the David Community Development Corporation.

The first phase of this particular project consists of regrading and shaping the mine spoil material and the removal of two large reddog and slag dump sites. Phases 2 and 3 will consist of the spreading of topsoil over the denuded areas, complete vegetation of the disturbed sites and the sealing off of four open mine shafts.

Although this is the first such project under the Soil Conservation Service RAMP Program to begin actual construction, many other hazardous abandoned mine sites have already been identified and are in the planning stages in the counties of the Big Sandy area, according to Joseph P. Green, district conservationist, USDA Soil Conservation Service.

Named Outstanding College Democrat

John McCauley, of Prestonsburg, was awarded the William Jones Memorial Award, naming him as the state's Outstanding College Young Democrat for 1979-80 at the Kentucky Young Democrats annual Awards Banquet, May 25 at the Hyatt Regency, Lexington.

McCauley, president of the Cumberland College Young Democrats, received the honor at the conclusion of the 1980 KY state convention. Special guests for the occasion included former Governor Julian Carroll, former Lt. Gov. Thelma Stovall, Sec. of State Frances Jones Mills, Speaker of the House William Kenton, Comm. of Agriculture Alben Barkley, II, and William "Bill" Cox, of Madisonville.

McCauley was also named to the 1980 Outstanding Young Men of America by the United States Jaycees, last week. McCauley, who will be a senior at Cumberland College next fall, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph McCauley, of Prestonsburg.

4 out of 5 people shop in our book before they shop in your store.

A recent survey proved it. Four out of five adults use the Yellow Pages to find the products and services they want. What's more, over eighty percent of those folks follow up their Yellow Pages references with a phone call or a visit.

These numbers confirm that an ad in the Yellow Pages is a powerful sales tool that can really deliver the customers. And with the ever increasing cost of gasoline, it's becoming an even more powerful sales tool.

If you want to sell, get in Bell, South Central Bell's Yellow Pages. And tell your prospective customers what they need to know about your business.

East Point Club Awards Scholarships

Herbert Spradlin (center), of the East Point Area Development Club, is pictured with this year's recipients of the Harry H. Hager Memorial Educational Fund scholarships, Thomas L. Webb, Jr. and Mary Elizabeth Bumgardner. The $500 scholarships were presented at last Thursday's meeting of the development club and represented the club's annual effort to provide deserving East Point area high school graduates with aid in furthering their education.

Miss Bumgardner is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jake Vaughn, of East Point, and Mr. Webb is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Webb, Sr., also of East Point. Both scholarship recipients plan to attend Prestonsburg Community College.

To Wed July 5

Mr. and Mrs. James A. Duff, of Hueysville, announce the engagement and forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Karen Rene, to Denzil Ray Hall, son of Mr. and Mrs. Troy Hall, of Allen.

Miss Duff is a graduate of J. H. Allen Central High School and the University of Kentucky. She is presently employed by the Floyd County Board of Education.

Mr. Hall is a graduate of Betsy Layne High School and Mayo Vocational School. He is presently employed by C & O Railroad.

The wedding will be solemnized July 5, at 3:30 p.m. at the Church of Christ in Hueysville. The gracious custom of open church will be observed.

A reception will be held immediately following the ceremony at the J. H. Allen Central High School.

State Begins Technical Help To Counties' Road Programs

The state Department of Transportation last week began supplying technical assistance on road programs to Kentucky's counties.

County judges have been notified of a toll-free number they may call to ask for assistance in planning their county road programs.

On July 1 counties will assume full responsibility for the county road program under House Bill 973, enacted by the 1980 General Assembly. The new law directs that each county's allocation from revenue produced by the motor fuels tax will be sent directly to that county's fiscal court, which must spend the money for construction, reconstruction and maintenance of county roads and bridges.

In mid-May transportation officials announced the formation of a technical assistance team, which would offer advice and guidance to any county requesting it during a 120-day transition period.

Transportation officials now say they can begin the service 30 days early. Technical assistance will still be offered for 120 days after the law becomes effective July 1.

The toll-free line will be available 24 hours a day and will provide county officials with direct telephone access to the technical assistance team. Transportation officials emphasized that the team is available for technical assistance. Any questions regarding the allotment or distribution of funds should be directed to the Department of Finance.

Related legislation enacted during the 1980 session requires that any governmental unit which expends state funds on its roads must hold a public hearing on its road program. Anyone wishing to speak on any proposed road project may do so. The counties and cities are directed to give due consideration to recommendations stemming from the meeting, but are not bound by them.

Paintsville Hi Football Star Wreck Victim

Hours after his graduation from Paintsville High School last Tuesday night, 18-year-old Robert Mullins was almost instantly killed when his auto left the Dewey Lake road (KY 3) and struck a boulder.

Cause of the accident, which occurred in the vicinity of the riding stables in Jenny Wiley State Park, has not been established.

Five others, four of whom had graduated that evening with Mullins, were injured. Mullins was dead at the scene of a broken neck. Doug Pugh, who was graduated from the school last year, was seriously injured, suffering a leg broken in three places and severe head lacerations. The others, all classmates of Mullins, are Robert Henson, Steve Priode, John T. Martin and Larry Maynard, all 18. They have been released from hospitals.

The death of young Mullins, star lineman on the school's football squad, left Paintsville in a state of shock. The 6-3, 235-pound 18-year-old had signed a letter of intent to play next fall with the University of Kentucky football team and was scheduled to play in the annual East-West high school classic next Friday.

Among the 1500 or more who packed the Paintsville High School gymnasium for his funeral last Friday was Fran Curci, UK football coach.

Surviving are his parents, B. E. and Maddalene Hill Mullins, and a brother, Richard Mullins, of Paintsville, and two sisters, Mrs. Susan Johnson, Tulsa, Okla., and Miss Venessa Mullins, of Lexington.

Officiating at the funeral were the Revs. Ellis Hamilton and Graham Abbott. Burial was made in Highland Memorial Park, Staffordsville, under direction of the Paintsville Funeral Home.

ART FAIR SCHEDULED

The Prestonsburg Community College Art Guild will sponsor an art fair at the Weddington Plaza, June 14. Exhibitors will show from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Among the exhibitors will be Roy May, of Martin, Peggy Wells, of Paintsville, Irene Ritchie, Jackie Griffith and Sandi Cooley, of Pikeville, and Tom J. Whitaker, of Salyersville.

BIBLE SCHOOL TO OPEN

There will be Bible School for children of kindergarten age through the eighth grade each evening, June 16 through June 20, from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. at the Wayland United Methodist Church. The theme will be, "Jesus, I believe in You." Church bus will run nightly.

ENVIRONMENTAL EDUCATION it isn't. Outdated textbooks were dumped by the barrowload into Middle Creek the last day of the school semester, by Clark Elementary School students acting under instructions from Principal John K. Pitts. Pitts explained to angry neighbors that he hoped the books would help control erosion of the creek bank, that he regretted the resulting blight—and that no more textbooks will be dumped in the creek.

Scholarship Recipient

Alfred L. Pelphrey, son of Rev. and Mrs. John R. Pelphrey, of Allen, is the recipient of the Allen Woman's Club 1980-1981 scholarship. Each year the club presents a full tuition scholarship to Prestonsburg Community College to an Allen area graduating senior.

Pelphrey, who ranked 10th in the graduating class of 1980 at Prestonsburg High School, is a member of the National Honor Society, the Beta Club, the Society of Outstanding High School Seniors, Who's Who Among American High School Students and Teens Who Care. He has been an honor student for 12 years and has received numerous awards.

The scholarship recipient plans to study pre-medicine and transfer to Transylvania in Lexington, after graduating from PCC.

Woman's World

Women Take the Law Into Their Own Hands

With attorneys' fees at an all-time high and their credibility at an all-time low, more and more women are taking the law into their own hands. That is, they're handling legal matters themselves, actually serving as their own attorneys.

"Women are tired of paying an attorney between $25 and $100 an hour to resolve simple, routine legal matters," says attorney John Howell, author of The Citizens Law Library, a series of legal guides for the lay person. "The legal profession has long been clouded with mystique," Howell explains, "but at last, women are realizing that they can interpret 'legalese' as well, if not better than a lawyer in many instances."

Increasing numbers of business women are forming their own corporations; writing their own business contracts and partnership agreements; negotiating their own employment contracts; and handling their own estate planning and management. Women are also representing themselves in no-fault divorce cases; writing their own wills and cohabitation agreements; negotiating leases themselves and then following through with legal action when tenant-landlord disputes arise; and representing themselves in small claims court for cases involving money owed them, motor vehicle purchases, repairs, and accidents, and other matters.

"Of course, there are certain legal matters a woman should not handle herself," Howell cautions. She should avoid major criminal cases, tax litigation cases, appeal cases, and drawing up wills for large estates. She should also never attempt to be her own attorney in a contested family matter, such as a child custody or support battle. The emotional involvement is too great for her to remain objective.

But most other legal matters can be handled by women themselves, and Howell insists that no special training is necessary. "Lawyers go to law school to learn all the laws about everything, or at least how to research and find all the laws," Howell explains. "A lay person, however, needs only research the subject of her case—and who knows her case better than she does?"

Howell suggests several places for women to find the legal information they need. Perhaps the best place is the State Courthouse Law Library. This is the library used by trial judges, and it contains all the legal information a woman serving as her own attorney will require. Clerks are available at the State Courthouse Law Library to inform citizens about trial judges, court procedures, and how to find specific legal information pertaining to their cases.

The Supreme Court Library, located in the state capital, is where Supreme Court judges send their clerks to do research. If a woman confronts a particularly difficult legal issue, she may be able to hire a clerk to assist her with or to do her research for her.

Most states have other appeal courts where a woman conducting her own legal research can find a good law library.

Every state has at least one law school library, and since it's usually a state-supported institution, it's open to the public.

University libraries frequently have copies of state statutes, and possibly of case reports and jury instructions.

Generally, state statutes and sometimes case reports and jury instructions can be found at the public library too.

A final, but very viable source of legal information is a lawyer's office. Most large law firms have all of the basic law references. If a woman finds that her case is fairly complicated and involves a substantial sum of money, Howell recommends she talk with one of the younger lawyers within the firm. She should ask what his/her fees for representing her would be, and how he/she would handle her case. She can explain that she does not wish to retain an attorney at the present time, but that after completing her research she may determine that she needs counsel. In many cases, the attorney will be eager to help her find the legal information she needs.

Even if a woman intends to retain an attorney to represent her from the very start, she should still do a little legal homework. The woman who understands some of the legal principles and procedures involved in her case is better able to find and work with a capable attorney, thus saving herself hundreds, if not thousands of dollars in legal fees.

"I think that most women will find taking the law into their own hands is more than frugal," Howell predicts. "It is challenging, exciting, and very self-satisfying."

Howell provides lay persons with current legal information in "Citizen's Law Advisor," a quarterly tabloid published by The Citizens Law Library, which includes articles about the latest developments in law for the lay person; book reviews; questions and answers about various aspects of the law; and human interest stories pertaining to the lay person and the law. Subscription to "Citizen's Law Advisor" is $12 per year. Readers of this publication may obtain a free sample issue by writing or calling: The Citizens Law Library, 6 West Loudoun Street, Post Office Box 17405, Leesburg, Virginia 22075. (703) 777-2007.

Vocational Ed. Program Okayed

The state Board for Occupational Education approved the 1981 plan for Kentucky's vocational program during its quarterly meeting at Jenny Wiley State Park last week.

The plan was developed by the Bureau of Vocational Education to provide for expenditure of $13.7 million in federal funds. State and local matching funds totaled $73.5 million.

The plan was developed in cooperation with a planning committee consisting of representatives from local school boards, the Department of Education, representatives of community colleges, the Kentucky Council on Higher Education, the state Manpower Council and other vocational education representatives.

Of the estimated $13.7 million, 74 percent of those dollars are targeted for instruction in vocational programs. This includes support programs for the disadvantaged and handicapped as well as funds for post-secondary and adult programs. Also included are the day services for students with children and special programs for displaced homemakers.

Seventeen percent of the grant awards will be for research, curriculum development and innovative programs; 3 percent for special programs for the disadvantaged; 6 percent for programs in consumer and family life skills and comprehensive home economics programs; and a portion of 1 percent for planning, evaluation and accountability.

Don Coffman, director of planning and evaluation for the Bureau of Vocational Education, has more confidence in the effectiveness of the 1981 plan than those submitted in previous years. "There was no systematic review of programs, no guaranteed completeness in determining vocational priorities for Kentucky," he explained. "For the 1981 report, we reviewed 40 percent of the state's vocational programs in the past 18 months."

Kentucky's vocational plan will be submitted June 30 to the US Department of Education and office of civil rights for approval.

Getting More Out of Postal Service

By W. Brian Perry

Just what is the U.S. Postal Service, and why are people saying all those nasty things about it? With the Private Express Statute of 1972, Congress granted the Postal Service a monopoly over postal routes for letters, but in today's world of electronic communications, old definitions of postal routes are being outmoded.

The notion of sending a private letter instead of making a phone call is becoming almost quaint. Even with the modernization that followed the postal reorganization act of 1971, the Post Office is losing more and more ground to more efficient and profitable private companies, such as United Parcel Service (UPS) and Federal Express.

The Post Office is a half-breed, and that is one reason it gets flak from all sides. Although the 1971 reorganization depoliticized the postal service, granting it independence under a semi-autonomous board, it did not create a private corporation. Congress founded the service with an aim "to bind the nation," as a subsidy to national literacy, culture and unity.

Federal law made it unlawful for anyone but the Post Office to deliver first class mail, but many businessmen claim they can provide better service less expensively. There is mounting pressure to divest the Postal Service of its monopoly.

Fat, Indifferent and Lazy?

Critics have a point. The relatively small UPS handles 3 1/2 times as many parcels as the Post Office. The big leader in the $1.3 billion market for high-speed delivery of small packages is Federal Express. (The Postal Service's share last year was $88.6 million, or 6.8%.)

One small company offering mail delivery in Rochester, N.Y. for 10¢ was closed by the courts for violating the Postal Service monopoly. Observers comment that the prospering private companies are willing to hustle to compete for higher profits, whereas the declining Postal Service, protected by the government, is fat, indifferent and lazy.

In fact, claims Postmaster General William F. Bolger, the Postal Service is delivering 12% more mail with 85,000 fewer workers since the 1971 reorganization. The main rationalization for continuing the Postal Service, however, lies not in strict business comparisons, but in a larger social purpose. Like all common carriers (such as the phone company), the Postal Service is required by law to service every segment of the public at reasonable cost. To do that, common carriers must subsidize their most costly service (the lone phone atop a remote mountain, the mail boat to the Aleutian Islands) by their most profitable operations (big city commercial users).

Private companies can stick to profitable runs and ignore difficult ones, so they undercut the Postal Service's commercial rates. Moreover, private companies can capitalize on the shift to electronic communications, while the Postal Service must live up to its name and serve the old-fashioned, unprofitable sector that still sends personal letters.

The Post Office is making an effort to offer more competitive, more efficient service, but its main value is social rather than financial.

The Best Bargain in America Today

Remember the telephone drollery "It's your nickel, start talking"? With most inter-borough calls in New York City now costing 30¢, we have irretrievably entered post-five-and-dime times. Our last ace in the hole, called "the best bargain in America today" by a leading youth and religious clearinghouse, is the 10¢ postal card. Think about it—you can't get anything for a dime these days, much less first-class service. What's more, these compact cards have saved countless friendships for those who feel obliged to drop a note but don't have a page worth of friendly chatter in them.

The biggest bargains actually go to business users, rather than pen pals. Through efficiency procedures such as presorting their first class mail and using a postage meter to process their own letters and parcels, many businesses are cooperating with the Postal Service to save time and money for both parties. Second class mail (for sending newspapers and other periodicals) and third class mail (called advertising mail) are also primarily for commercial users.

Private customers can also benefit from a wide range of specialized mailing services. Taking the time to familiarize yourself with the variety of available options will pay off in quicker, more efficient, and sometimes less expensive mailing.

• First class mail: All personal correspondence, checks and money orders must go first class. It enjoys priority in shipment and privacy from postal inspection. You can expect first class mail to be delivered overnight intracity and to locally designated cities, on the second day to locally designated states, and on the third day to the remaining outlying areas. Because of increased automation, stricter requirements for envelope size have recently gone into effect. All mail must be at least 5" x 3 1/2". First class mail weighing one ounce or less is subject to a surcharge if it exceeds 11 1/2" x 6 1/8". All first class mail weighing over thirteen ounces is automatically called priority mail. (The maximum size is 100 inches in length and girth combined.)

Hurriers for Couriers

• Express mail service: The variety most applicable to private users is express mail next day service. Only designated post offices offer this service, and only to a limited number of destinations. There are two levels of service available at different rates. Post office to post office service guarantees that mail deposited by 5 p.m. will be shipped to the destination post office for customer pickup by 10 a.m. the next business day. With post office to addressee service, mail brought in by 5 p.m. will be delivered to the addressee by 3 p.m. the next day. Each domestic shipment is insured against loss or damage at no additional charge.

• Special delivery: You can pay for special delivery on all classes of mail, and it is generally available at city post offices and within a one mile radius of any post office. The unique feature comes in at the point of delivery, when the local postman must immediately get the goods to the addressee with some dispatch, i.e. by the quickest available means.

• Mailgram: Impact of a telegram at a fraction of the cost...you know the line. To send one for delivery with the next business day's mail, call Western Union at their toll-free 800 number listed in the white pages.

• Aerogramme: Not necessarily quicker, aerogramme is an economical and convenient way to pen felicitations to your foreign pals. A prestamped piece of stationery that folds into its own airmail envelope, it has long been a favorite with Europeans.

• Insurance: If all you want is proof of mailing and delivery, don't buy insurance. You can get simple proof of mailing, for a nominal charge, by requesting a certificate of mailing. It includes neither insurance nor a record at the post office.

• Certified mail: this service provides you with a mailing receipt and record of delivery at the addressee's post office. For an additional charge, you can request a proof-of-delivery receipt. This return receipt, which enables you to request restricted delivery and other specifications, is also available on registered and C.O.D. mail and mail insured for more than $15. Regular insurance is available on third class, parcel post and Priority mail, for articles of $200 value or less. Registered mail is the safest way to send valuable and irreplaceable goods. Included in the registration fee is insurance protection up to $10,000 for domestic mail.

Christmas Flood

The time most private customers use fourth class mail, or domestic parcel post, is the holiday season—when normal guidelines on wrapping and delivery dates don't apply. Weight restrictions do stay the same. Packages mailed between large post offices (check locally if you're not sure whether your office is large or small) may not exceed 40 lbs. in weight or 84" in combined length and girth (distance around parcel at thickest part). Packages sent to or from smaller post offices may not exceed 70 lbs. or 100" in length/girth.

The recommended mailing dates for before-Christmas delivery are: local, by Dec. 12; long distance, from Thanksgiving to Dec. 4. Mark it well, such advice is not exaggerated. For faster delivery of parcels over long distances, the Postal Service recommends use of special handling, priority mail (air parcel post), or express mail.

Wrapping It All Up

If you want to deprive mail handlers of the little satisfaction they find in mangling your parcels, follow these guidelines:

• First, find a box to match the weight and nature of the contents, preferably of corrugated fiberboard. If the weight of the contents is 5 lbs., the test strength of the box should be 125 lbs.; if 10 lbs., 175 lbs.; if 25 lbs., 200 lbs.; and if 50 lbs., 275 lbs.

• Regulations now prohibit the use of masking tape or cellophane for packaging and discourage the use of staples or twine. Reinforced filament tapes are ideal. One-half inch tape holds up to 140 lbs., the 3/4" tape up to 210 lbs.

• Don't leave empty space in boxes. Try to square off shipments to form a solid block. Split heavy shipments into two or more packages.

The parcel damage rate in the Postal Service is less than one package in 400. Good packaging techniques will make your individual odds that much better. You can obtain a free copy of the Postal Service pamphlet, "Packaging for Mailing," from your local post office. If you do have any service complaints that you can't resolve locally, write:

68 Drug Charges Filed Against 7

Seven persons posted bond after being arraigned Friday on a total of 68 drug charges in U. S. District Court at Catlettsburg.

All seven, who were indicted last week by a federal grand jury, pleaded innocent and were ordered to appear in U.S. District Court in Pikeville Oct. 20. No trial date has been set.

Jerry May, of Lexington, released on $7,500 bond, faces nine counts of possession of Schedule II narcotics and one count of possession of Schedule II non-narcotics.

James May, also of Lexington, was released on $5,000 bond. He has been charged with five counts of possession of Schedule II narcotics.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl May, Paintsville, were released on $1,000 bond each. May was charged with seven counts of possession of Schedule II narcotics, and his wife, Olean, was charged with four counts of possession of Schedule II narcotics and five counts of possession of Schedule II non-narcotics.

Dr. James E. Vanhoose, of Paintsville was released on $1,000 bond. He is charged with 10 counts of distributing Schedule II narcotics and five counts of distributing Schedule II non-narcotics.

Pharmacist Chauncey Young, also of Paintsville, faces eight counts of distributing Schedule II narcotics and six counts of distributing Schedule II non-narcotics. He was released on $1,000 bond.

Jill D. Wright, of Lexington, released on $1,000 bond, faces seven counts of possession of Schedule II narcotics.

All seven were named in a conspiracy count.

Vanhoose is accused of issuing "written orders purporting to be prescriptions" for Schedule II narcotics and non-narcotics.

Young is accused of filling prescriptions for the other defendants while knowing they would not be used for legitimate medicinal purposes.

The incidents leading to the charges allegedly occurred between Nov. 7, 1978, and July 7, 1979, in Johnson, Floyd, Anderson, Bourbon, Clark, Fayette, Franklin, Jessamine, Magoffin, Scott and Wolfe counties. The indictment said other pharmacists were involved, but they were not named.

App-a-latch-ia?...

Williams Speaks for the 'Natives'

"It's not app-a-lay-chia," he says. "Only non-natives and dictionaries pronounce it that way."

Cratis Williams should know how Appalachia is pronounced. He is an Eastern Kentuckian and respected scholar and founder of a phenomenon currently sweeping Appalachian campuses called Appalachian Studies.

Williams, professor of English, former dean of the Graduate School at Appalachian State University, Boone, N.C., and current special assistant to the chancellor, is a nationally recognized authority on the cultural heritage of Appalachia.

He will be among the guests at Morehead State University's fourth annual Appalachian Celebration, June 23-27, as a scholar-in-residence. The celebration, sponsored by MSU's Appalachian Development Center and the Department of Music, will feature Williams in a free concert on Monday at 8 p.m. with Appalachian musicians J.P. and Annadeene Fraley, Edna Ritchie Baker and Alfred Bailey.

In addition to the concert, Williams will conduct a one-hour session dealing with ballads, storytelling and collecting techniques each day in addition to a public program on Appalachian speech.

A native of the Big Sandy valley, Williams grew up on Cains Creek, about 25 miles southwest of Louisa in Lawrence county, and attended a one-room school.

"Cratis has always been proud of being an Eastern Kentuckian," says his sister Mabel Barber, a retired MSU faculty member. "Even when he was young, he like to visit and listen to older people talk. He was interested in the heritage of our people right from the beginning."

The eldest of five children, he spent a great deal of time with his grandfather who owned and operated a country store on Cains Creek. During those years, the country store was more than just a place to buy provisions; it was a kind of community center where people went to socialize.

By listening to the stories, the songs and the music, Williams developed an awareness of the Appalachian culture and heritage.

In high school, he began collecting and learning traditional and native ballads, songs and hymns exactly as they were sung, and studied the speech and rhetoric of the mountain folk.

His master's thesis on the ballads on the songs of Eastern Kentucky has been published and his doctoral dissertation has been considered "the most comprehensive and valuable current work on southern highland literature."

He has described the Appalachian people as the only major sub-culture still criticized for their heritage, but adds that the mountain people were really better educated than others at the time of early settlement.

"Our ancestors' education was, in spite of the criticism, superior to that of other colonials," he said. "Their schools were for both boys and girls and they were not taught English, but kept their original dialect."

He has said that people in other parts of the country "laugh at us for our curious English, but are 13 million people with their own history wrong? We're only different."

Nunery, they beat the Rangers 16 to 4. Friday they beat the Giants 18 to 1. Jeff Patrick pitched to his third victory without a defeat and got two hits to help his own cause. He was captain and played guard and was All District and Regional for three years, Honorable Mention All State for two years, Honorable Mention All American, and 3rd team All State. He averaged seven rebounds and 24 points per game. At age nineteen, King stands 6'3" and weighs 185.

In high school King was a member of the Honor Society and the Student Council. He chose PC largely on the recommendation of his brother, Larry, who is presently a student. Young Barry King expects to major in Physical Education. He is the son of Clyde and Louise King.

Three Sports Keep McGuire Busy

Senior Mark McGuire of Prestonsburg High has found plenty of ways to stay busy this spring.

Perhaps strangely enough, McGuire probably is glad to see the high school spring sports schedule end. Since mid-September, when the Prestonsburg basketball players started workouts, McGuire hasn't stopped. He started on the Blackcat basketball team, was the school's top golfer and ranked high in tennis.

And no matter what McGuire did, he did it well.

"I'd say he's a very good athlete," said Dola Music, wife of tennis coach Russell Music. "I don't know a great deal about his golfing or basketball playing, but he's an excellent tennis player."

McGuire upset the No. 1 seed in the Morehead Regional tennis tournament, Sheldon Clark's Tony Marcum, before falling in the semifinals to Russell High's Don Weller.

"He alternated between one and two for the tennis team," she said. "Mark worked out practicing with the tennis and golf coaches this spring and hasn't missed any matches in either sport. It didn't seem to bother him any."

McGuire's golf game didn't seem to suffer. The 6-foot-3, 160-pounder was regional medalist with a 77 on the Paintsville Country Club course, one of the toughest in Eastern Kentucky. However, he has an 83 and an 84 in the state tournament at Fort Knox.

"I think he has as much potential as half of the regional medalists at the state tournament," said Prestonsburg golf coach Sharon Meade. "I think his talent may be in golf. He was kind of disappointed at his play in the state, but these boys had never been to that course, and some of the other players' fathers were pros and had let them play the course."

"And I didn't think the course was in that great a shape," she added.

As much as anything, finding time to practice for both tennis and golf, with other spring sports going on, too, posed problems for McGuire.

"I'd say he has his pick," said Music. "He had a first-string position in basketball and was the top golfer. This is his fourth year of playing tennis but his first trip to the regionals. A death in the family kept him from going last year."

"For a lot of people, playing both would have been a problem," Meade said, "but it wasn't with him. His mother says he's never at home because he's out playing something. He's reserved, but definitely a leader—and a gentleman above all else."

His basketball coach, Ron Robinson, described him as having the most natural shot of any player he had ever coached. He was named to the All - Conference team in his senior year and was awarded a trophy for best free throw and best defensive player on the Blackcat team.

Despite his busy sort schedule, McGuire has managed to maintain a good academic record, having been on the honor roll throughout his four years of high school, was a member of the Beta Club, was chosen to be in Who's Who in American High Schools and was accepted as a member of Distinguished American High School Students.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Tom O McGuire and plans to attend Transylvania University.

Rice's Crispies . . .

Thanks, but No Thanks, Buster

By Kenny Rice
Friendship is a wonderful part of life. Having friends and being a friend is an enjoyable experience. It is tough for me to say no to a friend, but recently I had to turn down the invitation of a very good one.

Kenneth "Buster" Donta, formerly of Allen, is now a ranger at Fort Boonesborough State Park. Buster and I try to get together when he returns to Floyd county and round up some other friends for some dirt court basketball or just to shoot the breeze.

The last time Buster was in, he asked me to visit him and his wife Nancy sometime soon, and also invited me along on an outing with his father-in-law and brother-in-law this summer.

I was pretty interested in the outdoor trip, fresh air and all that, until I found out more about this expedition.

"We're going to hunt rattlesnakes," Buster said matter-of-factly. "I've gone in the past and it is an exciting experience. In Kentucky, rattlesnake hunting is one of the few outdoor sports where a great risk is involved on the part of the hunter. There is a certain mystique to hunting rattlers."

I explained to Buster that the mystique of chasing rattlesnakes through the hills never really appealed to me. Then he told me I would not have to exactly "chase after the snakes."

The goal of a good rattlesnake hunter is to sneak up on the snake and get it before it gets you. Most snakes try to slither away even when they are stopped but a rattler has a tendency to strike when stopped.

The rattlesnake hunter uses a stick about three feet long with a wire snare on the end. A bag, burlap is preferred, is the other tool or the hunter.

Buster explained the basic technique of tracking and capturing the rattler. "After the snake has been located, and they are pretty easy to locate when you get back in the hills, you position yourself so the snake can't escape. Keep alert and ease into position. If conditions permit, the wire snare on the end of the stick is where you want to catch the snake. Hit the snake on the back of the head with the snare and as the snake strikes at the stick, you snare it, then kill it by smashing its head, put it in the bag and it's on to the next snake."

"Gee, it sounds so easy and interesting," I laughed. "It doesn't sound very dangerous to hear you tell it."

"It is a sport where you have to be alert. When you catch one snake you have to be careful not to stumble across another in the process of snaring the first one. For safety, wear high top boots and have a reputable snake bite kit with you at all times. Sure, it's risky, but that's part of the thrill of rattlesnake hunting. If you're a beginner, just be sure to go along with a person who knows what he's doing."

Buster went on his first rattler hunt in the summer of 1978. Bill Koier, a forester for U.S. Steel in Harlan, and his son, Dan, who were the future in-laws of Buster's at that time took him along. "Wild Bill" Koier is a pro at catching rattlers. He enjoys it so much that he catches them for other people. He knew what he was doing and Buster says that's what made his first attempt at catching the snakes safe as well as exciting.

"Didn't you find it odd being asked to hunt rattlesnakes by your future father-in-law?" I thought out loud.

"Not at the time," he grinned. "He watched out for me."

Buster does his hunting in the large hills surrounding Lynch in Harlan County. He finds the area less inhabited than the hills in our area, but he says there are quite a few snakes locally for anyone interested in the sport.

"Well, when are you going with us?" Buster asked, adding, "We'll go at your convenience."

"I already have a busy summer planned," I responded. "So, thanks, but no thanks, Buster."

S-Mart Posts $1,000 Reward in Burglary

Burglars escaped with merchandise valued at $6,900 after breaking into the S-Mart Store, near Martin, the night of May 27, it was said this week.

A reward of $1000 has been posted for information leading to the arrest and conviction of those involved in the break, the store manager announced.

The loss was mainly in knives. Entrance into the building was effected through the rear.

CARD OF THANKS

The family of Charles Lee Hall wishes to express its deepest appreciation to all who were so kind to us upon our recent loss. We would especially thank all who sent food and flowers, and the Floyd County Emergency and Rescue Squad.

LITTLE MUD NEWS

The monthly meeting of the Little Mud Community Club was held Thursday, June 5, at 7 p.m. The first item discussed was our road improvement project. It was reported that the contract for blacktopping our road has been let to Medusa Aggregates, A.K.A. state contractors. We have been unable to contact the foreman, Fred Pack, to find out when construction will begin. Hopefully it will be soon.

The next item on the agenda was the community park project. We have had the blueprints drawn up, now all that remains is acquiring the funds needed to carry out our plans. Our next step is to check to see if there are any grant monies available for projects such as this. We decided to begin having fundraising events such as a community night with a dinner, Junior Miss beauty contest, a photographer to take family pictures, etc. A night of fun and fellowship for the whole community, and at the same time raise money for our community park.

Naomi Meade suggested we check with the youth corps to see if we could get jobs for some of the young boys in our community for the summer. Naomi was appointed chairman of that project.

The school principal, Mazie Tackett, was asked to make a list of supplies needed to paint and fix up the school this summer. Vance Akers is also checking into getting new seats.

The community club would like to thank everyone in the community who participated in our clean-up campaign. We were very happy with the cooperation we received from the community.

Members of our community club will be attending the northeast Kentucky Rural Community Development Association awards banquet this Saturday at 6:30 at the Abbott Creek school. We hope to bring home an award for our community.

Why Milk Fat Tests Vary

Temperature is one of many factors that can influence milk fat tests, according to William Crist, Extension dairy specialist in the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

Cool weather will increase milk fat while weather warmer than 70 degrees will result in .1 percent increase in the fat test for each 10 degrees rise in temperature. But other factors also affect milk fat tests.

An inadequate amount of forage will lower the fat content of milk. Generally, 10 to 15 pounds of forage dry matter per day in the form of hay, silage or pasture will maintain normal fat test for a 1000-pound cow, says Crist. He adds that if the crude fiber content of the total ration is not above the recommended level of 17 percent, the use of chemical additives such as sodium bicarbonate and magnesium oxide may help correct a depressed fat test.

Lactation stage and condition of the cow affect the fat test. Cows in good condition will test high for two months after calving, then the fat will decline to a low point between the third and seventh month of lactation. When lactation ends, fat test will increase again.

Milking practices affect the fat test. Slow or incomplete milking will result in a lower test. However, if a normal letdown occurs at the next milking, most of the fat will be obtained. Crist reminds dairymen that milking intervals can influence the fat test. "The fat test will be higher after the shorter interval and lower after the longer interval," he says.

Fat tests tend to decline when a cow ages and increase when there is a disease problem. Disease that causes a cow to go off feed and produce less milk will increase the fat test. Crist emphasizes that mastitis will cause a decrease in the test.

Fat tests may be affected by factors that dairymen have no control over. In one study fat tests were made on a herd every day for one month to determine normal daily variation in a herd. The highest test was 4.6 percent fat and the lowest was 3.4 percent. It was not uncommon for the fat test to vary by .3 percent to .5 percent from one day to the next. Another study showed that the daily fat test varied by more than .4 percent one-third of the time. "Individual cows will vary even more than this," says Crist.
