Danish Gymnasts Perform Here

By MICHELLE BUTTS

A troupe of 29 Danish gymnasts arrived in Prestonsburg Sept. 30 for a series of local performances. Sponsored by the Eastern Kentucky Concert Series, the Danes performed that evening in the Prestonsburg High School gymnasium.

In smaller groups the Danes visited local elementary schools last Wednesday to perform for the students, hoping to arouse their interest in gymnastics. At each school the children were extremely enthusiastic and began imitating the movements of the Danes, who were delighted by their response.

At 8:30 a.m. the Danish groups entertained students at both Prestonsburg and Porter elementary schools. Afterwards, they ate lunch and talked with students. That afternoon, they performed at Clark and Betsy Layne elementary schools in this county and for the students at W.R. Castle and Central elementary schools in Johnson county.

Following their appearances at the elementary schools, the Danes gathered in the Martin Student Center to relax or go sightseeing. Escorting and chauffeuring the Danes around Prestonsburg and to see a strip mine, a coal tippie and crushing plant, and Jenny Wiley State Park were James Ratcliff, coordinator of community services and continuing education; Michele Butts, assistant professor of history and journalism; Michael Meade and Jack Childers, student-photographer and business manager, respectively, of the Highlander. The Danes participated last Wednesday in an area folk college meeting.

Last Thursday morning, the gymnasts visited Appalachian artist Russell May's shop to learn a little about his work, prior to entertaining the patients at Riverview Manor Nursing Home. For the patients who were able to come to the dining room, the gymnasts sang Danish folk songs and performed traditional folk dances. Afterwards, they went upstairs to sing for the patients who were unable to attend the performance in the dining room.

At the Archer Senior Citizens Center, the Danes performed their floor exercise routines for the 75 persons present, Thursday noon. Following their brief performance, the Danes were treated to a potluck luncheon, planned by Center Director Patsy Evans and provided by Center participants. After lunch the visiting gymnasts sang Danish folk songs and performed traditional folk dances.

During their visit to this area, the Danes stayed with local families in Floyd and Johnson counties, to observe American life styles.

The troupe began its tour of Kentucky September 25 at Berea College. After their opening performance at Berea, the Danes visited and performed in London and Somerset prior to their arrival in Prestonsburg. The tour is being conducted by Berea College and The Danish Gymnastic and Youth Organization which encourages voluntary activities and sports among Danish citizens. One in five Danes belong to this organization which selected the group of visiting Danes to represent it during the 1980 Danish-American exchange series.

The gymnasts were young working people who chose to spend their vacations touring the United States in this manner; they were primarily cultural ambassadors, not professional gymnasts. Arne Rasmussen, president of The Danish Gymnastic and Youth Organization, accompanied the troupe.

Coordinating the local tour were John Ramsey, recreational director of Berea College; James Ratcliff, coordinator of Prestonsburg Community College's community services and continuing educator program; Gus Kalos, professor of music at PCC; Michelle Butts, assistant professor of history and journalism; and Jake Fraley, office manager of Machinery, Inc.

Flood Control Meeting Date Set Saturday

An aftermath of President Carter's signing of the bill authorizing $284 million for flood control measures on the Levisa and Tug forks of the Big Sandy and in the Cumberland River valley was an invitation from Congressman Carl D. Perkins "to everyone interested in flood protection to meet with me at 11 a.m. Saturday, Oct. 11 at the Eastern (Allen Central) High School."

"The Corps of Engineers will be there, and we need to demonstrate to them our interest in flood protection and to discuss solutions with them," Perkins added.

The congressman also announced that two other flood protection meetings have been scheduled the same day—at 2 p.m. at Pikeville High School and at 7 p.m. at Belfry High School.

Funding for the river valley projects was included in the Energy and Water Development appropriations bill signed by President Carter last Wednesday. The bill also includes $2 million for construction of the Yatesville Dam in Lawrence county—a project which the President had earlier frowned on as unnecessary but which Congressman Perkins continued to push.

The bill also had the strong support of Kentucky Senators Ford and Huddleston.

Freedom Week Observance Scheduled

An eight-foot bow will be hung above the courthouse entrance here and yellow ribbons will be tied on the Freedom Tree on the courthouse lawn in ceremonies to be held at noon Saturday, October 18, which is Red, White, and Blue Day. These special events, sponsored by the Martin Jaycee-ettes, will highlight Freedom Week U.S.A., a national Jaycee-ette project, which will be observed in this county from October 11 through October 18.

The observance has been organized to demonstrate the public's concern over the plight of the hostages in Iran, and the yellow ribbon symbolizes that they are remembered. Everyone is being urged by Martin Jaycee-ettes to tie a big yellow ribbon around a tree in their yard.

A member of the sponsoring group said, "We know that this will not really change anything, but we feel that observances of this kind mean a lot to the families of the hostages."

"THE BLUE LAGOON"

When the cast and crew of Columbia Pictures' "The Blue Lagoon" settled down for three months of location shooting in Fiji, they discovered a time problem.

The normal work-call for seven a.m. each day didn't give them enough daylight shooting hours, since they had to tramp through jungles and over hills to get from their base camp to several selected sites.

To solve it, and still keep everyone happy, co-producers Richard Franklin and Randal Kleiser (who also directed) instigated "Bula Daylight Savings Time" — from the Fijian word for welcome — by setting all watches ahead one hour.

They got away with it for one good reason: Fiji is the only land mass in the world bisected by the International Date Line.

"No one was ever sure what day it was," explains Franklin, "let alone whether it was six o'clock or seven."

"The Blue Lagoon," which opens Friday at the Prestonsburg Drive-In Theatre, is a Columbia Pictures release starring Brooke Shields and Chris Atkins, and also starring Leo McKern, William Daniels, Elva Josephson and Glenn Kohan. Co-produced by Randal Kleiser and Richard Franklin, it was directed by Kleiser from Douglas Day Stewart's screenplay, based on the novel by Henry De Vere Stacpole. Nestor Almendros was director of photography.

Miss Duff, Mr. Hall Exchange Vows

The candlelight wedding of Miss Karen Rene Duff and Mr. Denzil Ray Hall was solemnized July 5, at the Church of Christ, Hueysville. The double ring ceremony was performed by Cohen Campbell, minister of Calvary Baptist Church, Betsy Layne, Ky.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Duff, of Hueysville, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Troy Hall, of Allen.

Preceding the ceremony, vocal selections, "My Sweet Lady Song," "Wedding Song," and "The Promise" were presented by Miss Carol Tackett, of Ivel.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a classic wedding gown of Alencon lace and organza with a sheer illusion neckline and a standup collar of lace, with a long puffy sleeve with a cuff and a matching lace ruffle. The full skirt had a sunburst pleated apron, the overskirt trimmed with lace. A sweeping chapel train flowed from the barb of the gown. The bride wore a lace touched hat with an upturned brim with satin ribbons and sheer veiling. She carried a bouquet of shonia roses.

The matron of honor, Mrs. Rita Ann Osborne, sister of the bride, was attired in a floor-length gown of peach polished dacron polyester with a white picture hat encircled by peach lace.

The bridal attendants, Mrs. Reva Carol Tackett, sister of the bride, of Lexington, Miss Sandra Dee Duff, cousin of the bride, of Hueysville, Mrs. Sharon Kay Hall, cousin of the bride, of Woodhaven, Michigan, Mrs. Helen Marie VanHoose, sister of the groom, of Lexington, wore gowns identical to that of the matron of honor. Each carried a simple bouquet of shonia roses with white streamers.

Flower girls were Miss Angie Bowen and Miss Michele Meek, both nieces of the groom. Miss Mary Combs, of Hindman, presided at the register.

Mr. William Michael Hall, brother of the groom, served as best man. Groomsmen included Larry Joe Osborne, of Hueysville, Ken Webb, of Langley, Paul Neil Allen and Jimmy Blackburn, both of Prestonsburg. Kenneth Todd Hall, nephew of the groom, was ringbearer.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Duff chose a floor-length gown of peach polyester knit, and Mrs. Hall, mother of the groom, wore a floor-length gown of lavender polyester knit.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held at the J.H. Allen Central High School. Assisting at the reception were Miss Nora Hicks, of Prestonsburg, Mrs. Linda Sue Hueseman, of Salyersville, Iris Chapman, of Prestonsburg, Mrs. Venita Woods, Mrs. Debra Lake, and Mrs. Betty Lawson, of Cynthiana, and Mrs. Louise West, of New Carlisle, Ohio.

At the reception, music was provided by the Gum Branch Heartbreakers, including Mike Hall, Dr. Carl E. Tackett, Dave Sizemore, Paul Neil Allen, Denzil Ray Hall, and Clifford Branham.

After a wedding trip to Gatlinburg, Tennessee, Mr. and Mrs. Hall are residing at Allen.

Among those from out-of-town who attended the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Troy Hall, Jr., Nicky and Amy, of Tennessee; Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Conn, Kristie and Dina, of Somerset; Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Randall Burchett, Tina and Tabitha, Mr. and Mrs. James Kenneth Hall, Patricia Bowen and Chris, Mr. and Mrs. Darrell Meek, Ralph Mitchell, all of Louisville; Michael Tackett and Erin Elizabeth, Ernie Van Hoose, Mr. and Mrs. Van Underwood, all of Lexington; Orville Lawson, William Lake, Jesse Woods, Jr., all of Cynthiana; James C. West and Kevin, of New Carlisle, Ohio; Doug Hall and Jami Kaye, of Woodhaven, Michigan.

Cooking With Crabs

Crabs are popular shellfish because of their tender meat and distinctive flavor. Crab meat is an excellent source of high-quality proteins, vitamins, and minerals needed for good nutrition, and modern processing and marketing methods make crabs available almost everywhere.

Four principal kinds of crabs are taken from our marine waters: from the Atlantic and Gulf coasts come blue crabs (comprising about three-fourths of all the crabs marketed in this country); Dungeness crabs are found on the Pacific coast from Alaska to Mexico; King crabs come from the North Pacific off Alaska; and Rock crabs are taken on the New England and California coasts.

The fresh cooked meat of crabs is the most common market form. Picked from hard-shell crabs, packed, chilled, and sold by the pound, it can be bought in many styles.

The meat from all kinds of crabs can be used interchangeably in recipes. Thus, the kind selected will depend largely on the kind available and the cost. Crab meat in any of its market forms is in large demand for cocktails, salads, and cakes.

Cleaning Crabs

To clean a whole, cooked crab, first grasp the legs firmly with one hand and with the other hand, pull off the back. Then break the crab in half.

To clean a live crab, grasp the legs firmly and bring the crab down swiftly—abdomen first—over a solid object such as the edge of a sturdy box or the center of a divided sink. This will kill the crab instantly, will remove the back, and will split the crab in two.

Discard the back, the belly flap, mouth parts, and the gray feather-like gills. Wash away the viscera under a stream of cold water.

Cooking Crabs

It is important to cook crabs live or immediately after they are killed. Any dead crabs should be discarded.

Fill a deep kettle with water up to 6 inches of the rim. You'll need this 6-inch margin to prevent messy boil-overs.

To each gallon of water used, add ¼ cup salt and bring the water to a rolling boil.

Add whole live crab or crab halves, but do not place more crabs in the kettle than will be covered by the water.

Cook whole crabs 18-20 minutes and cleaned crab halves 14-15 minutes. When boiling time is up, remove crabs from the kettle with tongs.

Crabs are delicious hot! If you don't plan to eat them right away, it is important to cool them quickly by plunging them into icy cold salted water and then draining.

Never put hot crabs into a refrigerator to cool—the crabs won't cool fast enough to prevent formation of harmful bacteria and their odor will spread to other foods.

To shake crab meat out of its shell, use what the pros use—a crab block and mallet and a sturdy container to catch the meat. The meat will fall out more easily if you shake crabs while they are hot.

To shake the body meat, grasp half a crab in one hand with your thumb folded over the underside of the legs. Then squeeze the body section with the other hand to break up the cartilage.

Remove any loose pieces of cartilage. Sharply rap the body section over a heavy bowl or sturdy container.

Crab 'N' Crackers

 ¼ cup cream cheese
 1 T. horseradish

Combine all ingredients in an oven-proof dish. Heat in a 350° F oven for 15 minutes. Serve hot as a dip for crackers or as a spread for buttered bread rounds. Makes 2 cups dip.

Stumbo Attends District Meeting

Ronald J. Wright, income maintenance supervisor here for the Bureau of Social Insurance, presents Dr. Grady Stumbo (left), secretary of the Department for Human Resources, a Russell May print.

Dr. Grady Stumbo, secretary of the Department for Human Resources, addressed the Kentucky Human Services Association at its final District 11 meeting for 1980 recently at the Riverview Manor Nursing Home here. Members of the association, representing Pike, Floyd, Magoffin, Johnson, and Martin counties, were welcomed by State Representative Greg Stumbo. Dr. Stumbo reviewed the work of the department and explained in detail the necessity for cut-backs and re-assignments in staffing patterns. Mrs. Eleanor Robinson, administrator of Riverview Manor, served the meal and directed a tour of the facility for those present.

Public Housing Development Gets Under Way in Martin Co.

With approval of a federal grant to build a sewage treatment plant, groundbreaking is scheduled Oct. 20 for one of eastern Kentucky's largest publicly financed multi-family housing developments.

The start of construction of the Dempsey housing project will mark nearly three years of intensive federal, state and private efforts to provide critically needed housing to Martin county, says Wilburn Pratt, commissioner of the state Department for Local Government.

The Dempsey project will provide 160 rent-subsidized townhouses for low-income residents. Completion of the $6.1 million project is expected in mid-1982. The complex will be located on a 24-acre tract about one mile north of the community of Warfield. Martin county lies along the West Virginia border about 50 miles south of Ashland.

Pratt announced today that the Appalachian Regional commission has awarded $150,000 to build a sewage treatment plant for the project. Including today's grant, the Local Government Department has obtained nearly $1 million in state and federal funds for planning and site development, Pratt said.

Pratt said the project will be the largest built under the Appalachian Housing Program, which is administered by the Department for Local Government and the Kentucky Housing Corp.

The department is one of a number of federal and state agencies that aided the Martin County Housing Agency in launching the housing project, Pratt said. The federal Farmers Home Administration and the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development are among others taking part, he said. HUD is subsidizing the rent for the townhouses through its Section 8 program.

Private financing also played a crucial role in getting the project off the ground, he said.

"This was truly a joint effort. It's gratifying to see what can be accomplished when the public and private sectors work toward a goal," Pratt said.

Pratt noted a 1978 study found more than 1,700 local families needed housing assistance.

PTA Declares October 19-25 "TV Is for Learning" Week

Television is a powerful learning tool in education today. More than half a million students in Kentucky used instructional programming during the past school year.

In an effort to make Kentuckians more aware of the role of television in the classroom, the Kentucky Congress of Parents and Teachers has declared the week of October 19-25 "Television Is For Learning" Week.

During the week, PTA officials and the Instructional Television (ITV) staff at KET will be working throughout the state to promote awareness of instructional television through workshops, speaking engagements and on-air promotion over KET channels.

Each school day KET offers instructional daytime series, more than 90 in all, designed especially for elementary and secondary students. Programs—which usually average 15 minutes in length—run the gamut, covering anything from science to civics, poetry to physical fitness.

Among the 22 new series purchased for the 1980-81 year are: "On The Level," a health series for grades nine through 12 which deals with issues of personal and social growth and the interaction of emotional and physical health; "By The People," a social studies series for grades nine through 12 designed to help students fulfill their responsibilities as citizens; and, "The Body Works," a physical education and nutrition series for grades two through six.

Also new to KET's daytime, instructional schedule are three series previously aired by KET on evenings and weekends. "3-2-1 Contact," which reached an estimated audience of over 23 million home viewers in its premiere season last year, will be shown to grades three through six as part of a science curriculum. "The Advocates in Brief," a current events and public affairs series, has been condensed into half-hour programs for classroom use in grades seven through 12. "Footsteps," a series which explores the responsibilities and problems of parenthood, is being offered for the senior high school level.

For much of its programming KET provides free accompanying teacher print material.

KET also provides technical backup and support services to teachers and school districts in the state. A staff of six specialists, former teachers themselves, assist teachers in the use of instructional television by conducting workshops, individual and small-group consultations, school and classroom visits and advisory services.

In addition, a team of four engineers assist schools with reception problems, advice in planning or improving antenna or closed circuit systems, and help in choosing, purchasing or using video equipment.

5 Instructional television programs can be seen on KET, Monday through Friday, while school is in session from 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Your local PTA and KET invite you to tune in, particularly during "Television Is For Learning" Week, and see what your children are learning from educational television.

AAA Group Tours State

A 39-member group of American Automobile Association officials has completed a tour of Kentucky to see what the state has to offer tourists. State officials hope the travel experts will go home eager to recommend the Bluegrass State as a fine place to spend a vacation.

States represented by the group were Florida, Illinois, Maryland, Michigan, Missouri, New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, Texas and Virginia.

Expenses were paid by the Tourism Department and by private businesses such as restaurants sponsoring some tour stops.

Swigart Asks Support From Mine Inspectors

Secretary of the Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection, Jackie Swigart, shoulders a great load in administering the various agencies under her, but she has over 200 right arms to help make the task easier.

Those right arms are what Mrs. Swigart calls the mining reclamation inspectors who work the many field offices under the Bureau of Service Mining. The first group of inspectors gathered at Eastern Kentucky University last week to begin two-and-one-half weeks of intensive training required under the Uniform Service Mining Act of 1977 and offered through a pilot program developed by the Applied Science Associates (ASA) of Pittsburgh.

"No one person in Frankfort can solve the problems out in the field," Mrs. Swigart told the inspectors. "You are my right arm and I don't feel I can do this job without you."

"I do not want to demean past work, but we have a tremendous opportunity in Kentucky to do some great things in recreation," said the secretary as she talked about primacy, a word familiar to many Kentuckians through the state's quest to obtain federal approval of its program to regulate strip mining. "If you understand my thinking, we can help people in the industry by letting them know what to expect."

'55-Please' Plea Cuts Mishaps, Says Ky. Police Commissioner

Kentucky State Police troopers worked 29,088 hours of overtime and wrote 19,456 speeding tickets under the federally funded 55-Please anti-speeding program.

The program began March 1. The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration grant for the program has expired but was renewed. State police received $554,000 to continue the anti-speeding program. The state police were awarded the grant to step up enforcement of the 55 mph speed limit.

At the start of the program, State Police Commissioner Kenneth Brandenburgh said the program was intended to reduce the number of speeders and the number of fatal accidents. State police estimated nearly 40 percent of last year's traffic fatalities were caused by speeding drivers.

To date there have been 582 traffic fatalities, 12 percent fewer than were reported at this time last year. Injury accidents have decreased 8 percent, with 20 percent fewer persons injured.

Reported property damage accidents are down 14 percent from this time last year. Overall, state police

WHEN THINGS WERE TURNED AROUND...The front of the Garfield Place faces the Big Sandy, the main artery of traffic in the days when the stately old structure was built and a few years later when Col. James A. Garfield himself no doubt gazed from the front porch across the river and to the ridges beyond. Then the highways and motorcars came and houses came to face opposite the river. Some might say, that from that day on things really got turned around.

Renfro Valley, Springfield Festivals Set

Two of the sweetest festivals in Kentucky are set the weekend of Oct. 10-12. The Renfro Valley 'Lasses Makin' Country Music Gatherin' will take place at a location that made old-time country music and musicians famous. On the second Saturday in October, a sorghum festival and flea market is scheduled in Springfield.

At both the Renfro Valley gathering and the Springfield cookoff, sorghum molasses is made the old-time way. When they raise cane, the people in Rockcastle and Washington counties really raise it.

The cane stalks are cut in the field, stripped of seed heads and transported to the cane mill site. Here a mule or horse goes around and around in a seemingly endless circle, providing the power to operate a mill that squeezes sweet juice from each cane stalk. The juice is funneled through a pipe—sometimes a handmade wooden trough—to the evaporator pans.

The "pans" is a table-like metal piece of equipment under which a hot fire is built to heat the green cane juice. The equipment is designed with a series of compartments. When the cane juice is in the first compartments it usually is green. As it cooks it is pushed along into the divisions until it is amber-gold and tastes like nectar.

In days gone by, the foam that remained in the pans was what the countryside had turned out for. With a piece of cane stalk in hand, each visitor dipped into the warm, sweet foam to taste again the tang of molasses made the country way, the natural way.

"The sorghum will be cooking all day long at the courthouse in Springfield," according to J.W. Janes of the Springfield-Washington County Chamber of Commerce. "The flea market will be set up on Lincoln Road running from Main Street to High Street on both sides down the center. In event of rain, the flea market will be moved to the new Home Tobacco Warehouse one block off Main Street."

The Springfield event also features country ham sandwiches, fried sausage, popcorn, candy, fresh cider, cakes and pies. Further information is available from the Chamber of Commerce, 201 Lincoln Park Road, Springfield, or by phoning (606) 336-3810.

At Renfro Valley October is Country Music Month and any event in this famous section of the commonwealth includes music. It was at Renfro Valley that such stars as Red Foley, Homer and Jethro, Lily May and the Coon Creek Girls, Old Joe Clark, Merle Travis and scores of others started on musical careers.

Each day of the molasses making at Renfro Valley will include turkey shoots, horseshoe pitching, arts and crafts, specialties, concessions and cider making. While they're making molasses "on the grounds," they also ask everyone to bring along a guitar, banjo or fiddle for country music jam on the spot.

The Renfro Valley Festival starts 1 p.m. Oct. 10 and continues that day till 6 p.m. A special show in the big Renfro Valley Barn is set for 8 p.m. Saturday hours are 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. for the festival doin's, with a country music talent hunt all day and special shows in the barn. On Sunday, a special gospel music will be featured from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Renfro Valley is "The valley where time stands still" and is located on I-75 at the Mt. Vernon exit. For reservations or information contact Renfro Valley Folks Inc. at Renfro Valley or by telephoning (606) 256-2664.

Both events - the one at Springfield and the other at Renfro Valley - emphasize that raisin' cane the right way is the way to family fun and entertainment.

Grants to College At $317,750 Total

Last week was one of Pikeville College's better weeks.

News was received of a $200,000 grant from the Steele-Reese Foundation, of New York, and almost at the same time came an announcement from Congressman Carl D. Perkins that the college will receive a grant of $117,750 from the Appalachian Regional Commission for the continued operation of the Coal Industry Technical Assistance Center (CITAC) there.

CITAC's primary service area is Pike and surrounding counties, an area which has some 1400 coal producers. "This program," said Congressman Perkins, "is an excellent resource for the coal industry."

The Steele-Reese grant, awarded on the basis of the college's mission in Central Appalachia, will be a one-time-only stipend, payable in $50,000 increments over the next four years.

Send in the coupon above and we'll tell you about a special heating system that heats your home and water at a new, lower electric rate.

It's called Electric Thermal Storage. ETS, for short.

It includes a furnace, a water heater, even individual room heaters, too.

ETS works differently from any furnace and water heater you might be using now. That's because ETS stores heat. At night. Then, releases the heat to warm your home and provide hot water throughout the day.

Because Kentucky Power can supply electricity at a lower cost during the "Off-Peak" hours of 11 p.m. to 7 a.m., we can offer ETS customers a reduced nighttime rate. This rate is in effect every week night, plus all weekend hours, too.

Add up those hours and you'll see that the lower rate applies to more than half the weekly hours your household uses electricity.

That can amount to substantial savings.

So take the first step. Learn more about ETS by sending in this coupon. It'll bring you our ETS brochure.

You'll find ETS is worth looking into.

Let Birthday Children Help Plan Party

Birthday parties are more meaningful to a child's development if he or she is involved in planning and hosting the celebration, according to leading authorities in child psychology. In various interviews the experts agreed that even very young children can play some role in party planning, the degree of participation depending on the child's age.

Parents should remember to involve the birthday child as much as possible in deciding on party themes, decorations, invitations, and refreshments. A birthday party is an opportunity for children to learn how to socialize with others. They can practice their developing skills by writing invitations and helping to organize activities, crafts and decorations. Children can even design their own birthday cake, using squeeze tubes of colored icing or shake-on trimmings.

The psychologists pointed out that problems usually arise if the child of honor, the birthday boy or girl, feels things are not going the way they should. Be available if the children want you but stay in the background when they do not.

serve as an excuse for a gathering of relatives and close friends; often, no children are present. Children of this age tend to play with a favorite toy while the party is going on. Unfamiliar faces may cause the child to be cranky if he is not used to large numbers of people. Keep in mind that the child relates best to one person at a time.

Simon will help discharge built-up tension. This game gives children a leadership experience in gaining the cooperation of others, and of course, the role of leader may be rotated. If prizes are given, have enough on hand so each child comes away feeling 'a winner.'

Five- to Eight-Year-Olds

Unlike older children, five- to eight-year-olds do not separate boy and girl playmates, and mixed parties for this age group are common. School age children sometimes become noisy, and it is helpful to set the tone of a party at the beginning by involving the birthday child as host to set an example of good behavior.

Children may choose to make home-made invitations, or write in time and place on purchased ones. Games such as "Pin the Tail on the Donkey" are popular among this age group.

Eight- to Eleven-Year-Olds

This age group will reverse roles and expect the adults to advise them, while the children undertake increasing responsibility for planning and running the party.

Parties for eight- to eleven-year-olds tend to be either all boys or girls, in keeping with the child's sex. This inclination allows children to group together and identify with those of the same sex before reaching adolescence when interest in the opposite sex reappears. Adults should respect this need by avoiding emphasis on mixed social activities.

Often older children choose to have activity parties such as bowling, ice skating, swimming, or slumber parties. Games and sports provide the children opportunities for healthy competition according to structured rules.

Birthday Party Checklist

Dr. Kevin O'Shea, child psychologist and educator, offers the following basic tips to keep in mind in planning any children's birthday party:

- Involve the birthday child as much as possible, deciding on a theme, who should attend, decorations, food, and activities. Encourage the birthday child to act as host.
- Limit the children to a manageable number, determined by their age, activities, and available space. For example:

- 1-year-olds (no other children necessary)
- 2- and 3-year-olds (3 to 5 children)
- 4- and 5-year-olds (4 to 8 children)
- 5- to 8-year-olds (6 to 10 children)
- 8- to 11-year-olds (8 to 15 children, depending on space, type of party)

• For younger children (under 8) arrange for assistance by another adult or teenager. Having a friend over to share the fun and lend a hand makes the party more enjoyable for you.

• Involve the birthday guests in activities and refreshments. One idea: have a cupcake decorating contest using squeeze tubes of colored icing. Have enough prizes so every child comes away a "winner."

• Do not over-organize the party, and leave some unstructured time for play. A time limit of two hours should be set for most ages. (Exceptions: 1-½ hours sufficient for pre-schoolers; children 10-11 may prefer more time.)

• Keep a watchful eye, but do not intrude on the birthday child. After all, he or she is what the party is all about.

Why Birthdays Are Significant

For a child, the reason to have a birthday party is simply to have fun. However, it may be that they mean more to us than we realize.

Because they recur regularly, birthdays are among the more meaningful occasions in our lives. They enhance our adult sense of personal identity by linking the past to the present, while introducing an air of mystery for children as they seek to comprehend their origin and ancestry, authorities say.

Refreshments

For many children, refreshments are what a party is all about.

Many children enjoy helping an adult bake and decorate a cake or cookies. The end product is something which can not only be enjoyed for its good taste, but may be admired as an artistic creation. Children may add their own personal touch with decorating icings that come in squeeze tubes.

Instead of having a purchased cake which is already decorated, the children may enjoy writing their own names or special messages on the cake or individual cupcakes with colorful icings.

When the candles on the cake are lit, it is the most exciting part of the party for many children. Before blowing out the candles, the birthday child is told to close his eyes and make a good wish. This appeals to a child's way of looking at the world as a place where things happen if only you wish strongly enough—a form of magical thinking which we never completely outgrow, the experts point out.

Party Planning

Birthday parties can be pleasant and painless with a small amount of planning and preparation, especially if the characteristics of the children's age group is kept in mind.

Psychologists offer the following tips and guidelines in planning parties for children of various age groups:

First Birthday

A child's first birthday tends to

Two-Year-Olds

The developing mobility and speech of a two-year-old toddler provide the beginnings of an independent personality. For this age group, only three or four children should be invited, especially since careful supervision is necessary.

Long celebrations should be avoided because of the child's short attention span, and a time limit of one-and-a-half to two hours should be set on the festivities. Listening to records and playing with toys are the best activities.

An adult should be there to encourage the children to share when cries of "Mine! Mine!" arise. Two-year-olds tend to play separately, unlike older children who enjoy playing with friends.

Three-Year-Olds

Three-year-olds are ready to be consulted about birthday guests, decorations, games, prizes and food, although adults need to assume the major responsibility.

Three-year-olds enjoy listening to stories, drawing, playing with clay, blocks, watching short movies and cartoons. Their interest in colors, shapes and letters may be utilized in paper and craft projects, and even in helping to decorate party refreshments.

Spread out some decorating squeeze tubes which come in a variety of colors. The children may then use their own creativity to decorate individual cupcakes. Do not expect young children to consume much in the way of food or sweets; many will eat only small servings of cookies, cake or ice cream.

Four- and Five-Year-Olds

Four- and five-year-olds like to choose their own birthday themes such as "Snoopy," "Star Trek," or other current cartoon or movie characters. Supervised games are the order of the day and, weather permitting, may also include outdoor running games such as Hide and Seek.

If the party is held indoors, a muscle-stretching game of Simple

Martin Co. Kiwanis Club Chartered

The newly formed Martin County Kiwanis Club, sponsored by the Prestonsburg and Paintsville clubs, received its Kiwanis International charter in a presentation made by H.C. "Huck" Francis, governor of the Kentucky-Tennessee District, to Mr. Duncan at a dinner held recently at May Lodge, here.

Addresses of congratulation were made by Gov. Francis, of Prestonsburg, past Lt. Gov. John Strohm, of Ashland, and Lt. Gov.-elect George Wolford, of Ashland. In addition to the club banner, a podium, gavel, and gong were presented by Paul Day and Charles Patton, on behalf of the Prestonsburg and Paintsville Kiwanis clubs.

The new Martin county club is the ninth Kiwanis club organized in the Kentucky-Tennessee District during 1979-80, and more than 100 members and their wives attended from Ashland, Jenkins, Paintsville, Pikeville, Prestonsburg, and Salyersville.

School Inspections Top Priority For State Fire Marshall's Office

Schools are back in session and the state fire marshal's office is back in school.

Annual school inspections, which began immediately after the start of the new school year, are a top priority with the fire marshal's office.

Deputy State Fire Marshal Mary Kelly said that besides schools and colleges, hospitals and nursing homes also receive extra attention.

"Anywhere there are a lot of people in a relatively small area there's a potential hazard," she said. Lower priority buildings such as the mini-marts, beauty shops and smaller office buildings are inspected less frequently, officials said.

Violations are divided into two groups: general housekeeping—the proper storage of flammables and cleared stairwells—and maintenance—keeping fire extinguishers charged and in the proper place, and having proper emergency lighting and exit signs.

After inspection, a letter and written report are sent to school officials. The report covers eight safety-related categories and includes space for inspectors to note other violations not listed.

"You'd be surprised how many schools will let an exit sign light burn out and not replace it because of limited operating budgets and low supplies," Kelly said. "I show them how to drill a series of holes in the sign's case to allow the heat to dissipate and help extend the life of the bulb."

Insufficient or inoperative emergency lighting bothers Kelly more than any other single violation. "Regardless of how many exits you have, if you can't see them they won't do you any good," she said.

She also warned about overuse of extension cords. "You wouldn't believe how many (cords) some people string together," she said. "They're really only designed as temporary extensions and should not be left permanently."

Although a major fire hazard cannot be corrected by a school child, the fire marshal's office offers these suggestions if a fire does occur:

—Know your exits, and notify school officials if they become blocked or locked.

—During planned drills be serious. Stay in line and follow directions. Your life or that of a friend may depend on it.

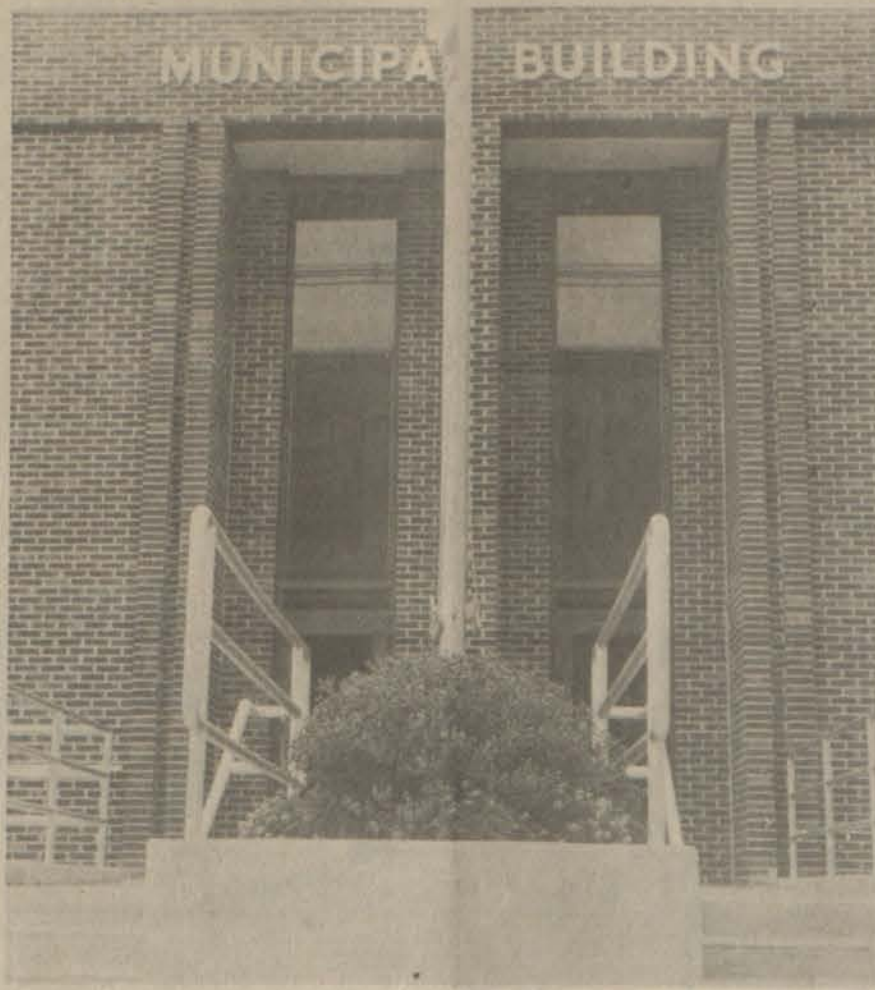

—Use the buddy system.

A hazard that exists in some older schools is the presence of a lethal chemical, said Kelly. Picric acid—a poisonous, yellow, crystalline, bitter acid—was used in school labs to make dyes and in analytical chemistry. Last year more than 60 pounds of the chemical was located in various Jefferson County schools.

The chemical is dangerous and should be removed from school labs, said Kelly. If a school official finds some of the acid, the local fire department or the state fire marshal's office should be contacted for disposal instructions, she said.

October is National Fire Prevention Month. Schools and businesses are encouraged to stress fire safety and emergency fire drills, Kelly said. If further information is needed, contact your local fire department or the state fire marshal's office in Frankfort.

Club Project Graces City Hall

Dogwoods and shrubs gracing the front of the Municipal Building are the fruit of a Prestonsburg Woman's Club project. The organization raised $300 for the landscaping from a fashion show held earlier this year.

Accountants Urge State Tax Reform

The Kentucky Society of Certified Public Accountants expressed strong support recently for reform and simplification of filing individual income state tax returns.

According to Alfred K. Carpenter, president of the organization, "Our main goals are to minimize differences between state and federal tax legislation and to eliminate duplication of tax returns. In support for their position, the CPAs offer the following:

1) Approximately 250,000 Kentucky taxpayers file Kentucky returns although they owe no tax, or so little as to appear administratively and economically impractical to collect.

2) There were 17 differences between the Kentucky and federal law in 1979 that unnecessarily complicated preparation of the return for both the taxpayers and the preparers.

3) Present law requires duplication of most federal forms and schedules, thereby unnecessarily increasing the cost to taxpayers of their state return.

By way of reform, the organization has recommended any or all of the following:

1) Legislation that will have the effect of eliminating filing requirements for those low-income Kentucky taxpayers who are not required to file federal returns.

2) Legislation that will bring closer conformity of the Kentucky individual income tax laws with those of the federal government.

3) A constitutional amendment, if necessary, to permit adoption by Kentucky of federal income tax regulations and/or allow the initial collection of the state individual income tax by the federal government (commonly called "piggybacking").

4) Legislation to simplify the computation of the Kentucky individual income tax and reduce the number of supporting schedules.

Praise, Pleas, Presents in Gov.'s Mail

INTERESTING MAIL TO OPEN - Mark Neff, right, administrative assistant to Gov. John Y. Brown Jr. and staff assistant Pam Gilmer sort through letters and packages mailed to the governor. According to Neff, Gov. Brown receives an average of 115 pieces of mail per day, which sometimes include gifts such as these replica casts of Abraham Lincoln's face and hands.

Although the majority of mail Gov. John Y. Brown Jr. receives is strictly business, Brown gets his share of fan mail.

According to administrative assistant Mark Neff, the governor receives approximately 115 pieces of mail on an average day, and it is not unusual for these to include gifts and requests for autographs.

Neff, who helps the governor answer his mail, said his office receives a number of requests for the governor's autograph on everything from matchbooks to pieces of quilting material for embroidery.

Among the more unusual gifts received by Gov. Brown, Neff said, are replica casts of Abraham Lincoln's face and hands and knitted sweaters for Phyllis George Brown's two dogs.

The governor also receives a large number of letters from school children. Neff said Gov. and Mrs. Brown are keeping a scrapbook of all the letters they receive from children.

"Most of the mail the governor gets is positive," said Pat Gilmer, Neff's staff assistant. "We have people who have become regular writers. It's as if they're writing to a member of the family."

Gilmer said the governor does get letters of complaint through the mail, but these letters also tell Brown he is doing a good job.

Neff said every effort is made to answer all the letters the governor receives and to grant most requests. "We don't answer something just for the sake of answering it," Neff said. "We want to address an individual's specific concern."

However, there are some requests, such as for monetary donations, that cannot possibly be met, Neff said. "We get some very depressing mail," he said. "People write to the governor (asking for money) as a last resort because they do not qualify for (state or federal) aid."

"What do you write back to someone who writes and says, 'I have no hope, I have no future', Neff said. In such an instance the person is referred to community agencies for aid if all other avenues for state and federal aid have failed, Neff added.

The governor's office also gets requests for Kentucky Colonelcies to honor the state's outstanding citizens. Neff said requests for these range from persons wanting to recognize outstanding leaders in their community to school-age children requesting them for their fathers.

Neff said the governor's office also receives requests for letters of commendation and letters of commemoration from community and state organizations. He said these types of requests should be sent to the governor well in advance of their presentation to ensure they can be processed in time.

If Pest Birds Annoy You...

Try Fake Snakes To Scare Them

Are you bothered by pest birds in your garden? Do feathered marauders feast on your strawberries, blueberries and cherries before you can pluck them?

There's an answer to this problem, according to Ranger Rick's Nature Magazine. It consists of fake "snakes" purchased at novelty stores or fashioned from black rubber hoses.

Birds are afraid of snakes—which eat their eggs and their young—and so "they recognize the snake shape—and stay away," according to the National Wildlife Federation's monthly magazine for children.

One family with a lakeside home found that a pair of feisty Canada geese were terrorizing their children and pets, Ranger Rick reports. After they cut a black rubber hose into four-foot lengths and placed them around the property, "the geese disappeared over the lake, never to be seen in that yard again."

Fake snakes can also be used to protect other property, according to Ranger Rick, who cites the owner of a sports airplane who drapes a make-believe rattlesnake over the air intakes of his engine to keep birds out.

American tarantulas are said to show intelligence and learn to recognize their owners.

Vermont Bicycle Touring Keeps Rolling Along

This year, like never before, Americans and Canadians can turn to their bicycles for both transportation and pleasure. To stimulate their further conservation of fuel, the nation's leading operator of bicycle tours has introduced an imaginative program of Fuel Saver's Discounts. Vermont Bicycle Touring has actually lowered prices for bicyclists who use public transportation, car pools, or their own power to reach its tours.

"The 1980s promise to be the decade of bicycle touring in North America," according to John S. Freidin, founder of Vermont Bicycle Touring (VBT), which pioneered the much-imitated concept of inn-to-inn bicycle tours for adults and families. "Since VBT began in 1972, our business has steadily increased, but this season we want to offer something special to encourage the conservation of fuel," he said. So VBT is giving its cyclists 50 percent off the cost of bicycle rentals, if they arrive by public transportation; 50 percent off the cost of the first two bicycle rentals, if they come four-in-a-car; and 15 percent off the entire cost of a tour, if they arrive by bicycle from 75 miles or on foot from 20 miles.

Faithful to the simple idea that people love to bicycle when they know the safest and most beautiful roads, when they are freed of mechanical worries, and when they have comfortable lodging and homecooked meals at country inns, Vermont Bicycle Touring has established itself as the most successful operation of its kind in the U.S. During the past eight seasons, 12,000 persons from 44 states and seven countries have bicycled 1,250,000 miles on VBT tours.

Vermont Bicycle Touring runs tours of two, three, five, and seven days which may be combined without repetition into trips of up to twenty-nine days. Tours are offered for every level of cyclist—from fifteen miles a day on level roads to seventy-five a day over the Green Mountains. Each person is given a map and written directions and rides at his or her own pace. And everyone can choose the distance he or she feels like cycling because VBT offers several routes of different lengths each day. VBT leaders, who are good mechanics, accompany every tour. On five and seven-day tours, a well-equipped van also goes along to carry luggage and spare parts and to give lifts to cyclists who tire.

Most VBT riders are between twenty-five and fifty-five; about half are single and half couples. But VBT has had riders from six to seventy-six, and on one tour last year members of three generations of the same family rode together.

The days are leisurely, and there are many opportunities to do things other than bicycle. Every tour is designed so there is time to swim, browse in antique shops, visit historical sites, picnic on village greens, and just relax amid the special sights and sounds of Vermont. Most weekend tours also offer tennis and golf. In fact two new tours have been scheduled this year to stay at an inn with the full facilities of a lakeside country club.

According to Freidin, a special enthusiasm develops on VBT's tours. "There's something about the exhilaration of cycling, the encouragement of good company, and the beauty of Vermont that draws people together. The friendly inns make a great difference too. People simply relax and enjoy themselves immensely. To bicycle is to steep yourself in an environment; to do so in Vermont is to fall in love with both the place and the pedaling."

During the 1980 season, Vermont Bicycle Touring is offering 139 tours plus four five-day Bicycle Repair Clinics and a Bicycle Tour Planning Service. The Planning Service helps individuals and groups make independent tours. VBT's season began May 9 and will run through October 26. The cost of tours—$96 for a weekend, $143 for three days, $239 for five days, and $329 for seven days less Fuel Saver's Discounts and reduced prices for groups and children—covers lodging, breakfasts, dinners, gratuities, and taxes. VBT rents lightweight, ten-speed Motobecane and Fuji bicycles, fitted with Avocet saddles, Eclipse handlebar bags, luggage racks, water bottles, and bicycle flags.

Pharmacy Footnotes

by HAROLD COOLEY

Many people feel that there is a cycle to the common cold. They are three days coming, three days here and three days going. Unfortunately, not all colds are that predictable. Some are mild and of short duration while others are severe and tend to linger. So far, all that can be done is to get a lot of rest and drink plenty of non-alcoholic fluids. Relieve symptoms of discomfort by taking aspirin, cough syrup, antihistamines or other preparations as necessary. If symptoms persist, visit a doctor. No cure for the common cold? No, not yet.

Even though there is no cure for the cold, there are a number of items that help relieve the symptoms. Come to COOLEY APOTHECARY INC. for a good selection of these and other home health and convalescent aid products. We also have an excellent, professional prescription service. We are small enough to know you and large enough to serve you. Open at 2 Town Center Building, 886-8106 Mon.-Fri. 9-5; Sat. 9-5.

Sturgill Heads Coal Promotion

Kentucky is fast becoming the focal point of the crucial nationwide effort to make the United States energy independent.

It is estimated there is three times more energy in American coal than in all the Arabian Gulf oil, and Kentucky leads the nation in coal production and technology.

The man charged by Gov. John Y. Brown Jr. with developing Kentucky's vast energy resources is William B. Sturgill.

Sturgill has brought to the Secretary of Energy post a background rich in experience as a successful businessman and as a leader of Kentucky's coal industry.

He has served as chairman of the board of directors of the Kentucky Coal Association and presently serves on the board and executive committee of that organization. Secretary Sturgill was also one of the original members of the advisory commission to the Kentucky Reclamation and Environmental Protection Agency.

Additionally, Sturgill is chairman of the Fourth Street Fertilizer Co. Inc. of Lexington; chairman of the Hazard Explosives Co. Inc.; secretary and board member of the Fayette County Urban Airport Authority; member of the Board of Trustees of the Appalachian Regional Hospitals; board member of Kentuckians for Better Transportation; a director of Seaboard Coast Lines Inc. of Jacksonville, Fla.; a director of First Security Bank and Trust Co. of Lexington; a director of First Security Corp. of Kentucky; a director of the Flat Top Insurance Agency of Bluefield, W. Va.; former director of the Kentucky Chamber of Commerce and Spindletop Research.

When Sturgill was named Energy Secretary last December, he was charged by Brown with reorganizing his department and moving Kentucky coal. That reorganization is complete and a staggeringly ambitious multibillion-dollar program is well under way to establish a new synthetic fuels industry that will provide vast new markets for high-sulfur coal.

"In Western Kentucky there are people resources and natural resources that are very meaningful to the future of not only the region but to Kentucky and this nation as a whole," Sturgill said. "The region will play a strategic role in the future of this generation and the next." At the same time, he has stressed that the region's quality of life must be preserved and its environment protected.

Sturgill also noted the technology for today's coal conversion and coal conversion processes is being further developed and refined at the Kentucky Center for Energy Research laboratory. It is this technology that has moved the commonwealth into a position of leadership for the nation's synfuels program.

Plants now planned include the Solvent Refined Coal (SRC-1) Plant at Newman in Daviess county; the H-Coal Plant in Breckinridge county; a coal-to-gasoline plant to be built at Baskett in Henderson county and the Tri-State

Methods Discussed For Protection Of Farm Land

In protection of agricultural land, "the action is at the state and local levels," Robert Gray, director of the National Agricultural Lands Study, told the Kentucky Association of Conservation Districts.

Gray cited three methods identified in the national study—zoning, purchase of development rights and agricultural districting—as successful state and local efforts.

Zoning works only as a part of a comprehensive plan which locates areas to be developed for residential, industrial or other non-agricultural use, Gray said.

Purchase of development rights or paying the farmer the difference between the value of his land as agricultural land and fair market value is a very expensive method, Gray said. The federal study shows less than 50,000 acres nationwide has been protected through this means.

The final method cited by Gray, agricultural districting, protects farms from highways, power lines and other uses which could take the land under eminent domain.

Kentucky speakers said a survey of Kentucky's 6 million acres of prime agricultural land is available. They also noted that most of Kentucky's counties have planning councils, even if they have not yet developed a county-wide zoning plan.

Project employing SASOL-type technology near Henderson.

"It is clear to those of us who are giving our time and attention to the energy problems of Kentucky and this nation that if we are to have an adequate supply of energy and an independent energy policy we must move forward immediately to the utilization of our coal reserves," Sturgill said, "and adopt policies for the promotion of coal at both the state and federal levels."

While Sturgill is committed to doing just that, he also assumes a wide range of civic obligations. He is chairman of the Board of Trustees at the University of Kentucky, where he graduated in 1946, and he is a member of the Executive Committee of the UK Development Council.

Sturgill, a Floyd county native, is also an elder and member of the official governing board of the Crestwood Christian Church in Lexington. He and his wife, the former Eloise Williams, of Prestonsburg, have three children.

Dairy Queen Bike Winners

Winner of a 10-speed Huffy bicycle at the Prestonsburg Dairy Queen was Bennie Blankenship, shown above with his sons, Timmy and Phillip, and Dairy Queen manager, Janice Henson.

The bike was given in conjunction with the Real Treat Sweepstakes in which 3,200 Dairy Queens participated nationally. Held from June 1 to August 31, the sweepstakes also offered five grand prizes—a Hawaiian vacation, a Mazda GLC car, two Arctic Cat snowmobiles, and a Lund runabout boat with Spirit motor or two Wetbikes. The drawing for the bike was held here September 20, and the grand prize drawing was held in Minnesota, October 7.

County FmHA Helps Set Statewide 1981 Goals

Farmers Home Administration (FmHA) County Supervisor Kenneth Slone and his staff last week helped set the agency's statewide plan for investing some $350 million through its farm, housing, community and business-industry programs in fiscal year 1981.

The county office staff joined with other FmHA county, district and state officials at a three-day meeting in Owensboro to review the FmHA Kentucky State Management Plan. The plans set the agency's goals and objectives for the coming year.

"We expressed our views directly to the National FmHA Administrator Gordon Cavanaugh and State director Bill Burnette," Mr. Slone said. "We worked with about 240 other FmHA people to iron out the details of next year's plan."

Slone said one of the major objectives is to work more closely with other federal and state agencies as well as with planning districts and local communities. Many of these groups were consulted before the draft of the management plan was put together.

"In addition to the planning, we had the opportunity to tell Administrator Gordon Cavanaugh, who came in from Washington, about some of the problems we face on the county level. We expressed our concerns about not having enough staff and program funds to help as many people as we would like," Slone said.

IN APPRECIATION

Our family would like to express our appreciation and sincere thanks to all who were so kind to us upon the death of our father and husband John Berger.

We give special thanks to those who sent flowers and food or who contributed anything to us. We want to thank the McDowell hospital staff, especially Dr. Hall; the Left Beaver Rescue Squad; the Joppa Regular Baptist Church and its ministers for giving us their words of comfort; and Merion Funeral Chapel, for its kind and efficient services.

Annual Farm Tax Workshops Planned

A schedule of 14 farm tax workshops has been announced by the University of Kentucky, the Internal Revenue Service and the Kentucky Department of Revenue.

The workshops will be held to bring preparers of tax returns up-to-date on the latest tax law changes, particularly those changes related to farmers and agriculture, and to serve as a basic review of filing procedures and form usage.

In the Floyd county area, a farm tax workshop is scheduled for Dec. 9-10 at May Lodge, Jenny Wiley State Park. Daily hours will be 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

A $30 enrollment fee is charged for the two-day workshop. Brochures with registration blanks are available at the local county extension offices. Interested participants should try to have their registration filed by October 20.

PHS Band Competes at State Fair

Besides long hours of drill and rehearsal, preparation for the trip to the Louisville band competition included the considerable job of packing instruments, uniforms and suitcases on the bus.

Through the generosity of several area businesses and professional people the Prestonsburg High School marching band was able to travel to Louisville in August for the Kentucky State Fair Marching Band Competition, an annual event which features some of the best performing high school bands in the state. Although the band was not one to pick up any awards during the competition, about 75 young people were able to travel 250 miles and experience the event and gain exposure to the styles and skill of scores of other high school marching groups.

Band Director Wally Ratliff, band members and boosters extended their thanks to the following sponsors who made the trip possible:

All Sports Week On KET'S 'Bywords'

"Bywords," KET's new nightly (Sunday through Thursday) half-hours of on-location conversations with and about Kentuckians, features Billy Reed, sports editor for the Courier-Journal, as guest host for a special "all sports" week October 12 through 16.

The special week premieres on Sunday at 10:30 p.m. when Reed interviews William H. King, president and general manager of Louisville Downs Trotting Track and former promoter of Muhammad Ali. King and Reed talk about racing and Ali's early boxing career.

On Monday, October 13, at 8:30 p.m., Reed interviews Mike Barry, controversial racing columnist for the Louisville Times; and Jim Bolus, Louisville Times racing writer who has just completed a book on the Kentucky Derby called "Run For The Roses." Both guests talk to Reed about the Kentucky Derby, past and present.

Paul Hornung, former Green Bay Packer and player for Notre Dame, is Reed's guest on Tuesday, October 14. Hornung grew up in Kentucky and now works with an Atlanta television network.

Reed talks to Bill Olsen, athletic director and assistant basketball coach at the University of Louisville; and Jerry Eaves, University of Louisville basketball player, on Wednesday's "Bywords."

To round out the week of sports focus on "Bywords," Reed interviews Pee Wee Reese, former shortstop and captain of the Brooklyn Dodgers in the 40's and 50's. Reese grew up in Louisville and now works as a liaison between a major Louisville bat manufacturer and major league players.

"Bywords" is a KET production and is seen Sundays at 10:30 p.m. and Monday through Thursday at 8:30 p.m.

School Workshop Given By Ky. Arts Commission

The Kentucky Arts Commission has announced that two programs for public and private schools, the Artist-in-the-Schools Theater Program and the Teacher Initiated Residency Program, will be implemented in the spring of 1981.

The theater program will place a professional theater artist in a school for one or two weeks to work with classes and do teacher workshops. The artist can also work with community workshops.

The cost to the school for these classes and workshops is $200 per week. The remainder of the program cost is paid by a grant from the National Endowment for the Arts.

The Teacher Initiated Residency Program allows individual teachers or groups of teachers to apply directly for an artist residency in their classroom. These applications should be for projects which involve students in architecture and environmental arts, creative writing, dance, drama, music, folk arts, film and video, photography, visual arts and crafts.

The Arts Commission is interested only in projects which directly involve students in art projects. Teacher workshops and performances can be included as part of the program.

The application deadline for both programs is Nov. 1. For more information and application forms, write or call Nancy Carpenter, Kentucky Arts Commission, Frankfort, Ky. 40601, (502) 564-3757.

Net Magistrate Hamilton

The Hershel Hamilton listed in last week's Times as having been arrested on DUI and possession of marijuana charges is not Magistrate Hershel Hamilton. The man who was arrested lives at Galveston, Ky., State Police said.

Astra 8 Arrives at Highlands Regional

Larry Daniels, HRMC medical technologist, examines the hospital's new blood chemistry analyzer, Astra 8. The machine is expected to be fully operational after several weeks of testing and calibration.

Astra 8 has come to Highlands Regional Medical Center! It sounds like something from the space age, and that's not far from the truth. Astra 8 is a sophisticated blood chemistry analyzer, the fastest analyzer currently available.

According to Don Hicks, Highlands laboratory supervisor, Astra 8 can perform 10 tests in less than a minute. These tests usually take 12 to 15 minutes to run by hand. Astra 8 should improve the laboratory's ability to deliver test results, and the hospital will be able to offer same-day results to area doctors and patients on their blood tests, he said.

Two technologists from Highlands, Don Hicks and Larry Daniels, recently attended a one week training school on the instrument.

Reading Program Here To Serve 700 Pupils

The Prestonsburg Elementary PTA is sponsoring a Reading Is Fundamental (RIF) program, October 6-10. The project will serve approximately 700 children in the school.

RIF is a national nonprofit organization designed to motivate children to read. This motivation is attained through freedom of choice and pride of ownership. Children in RIF projects may choose from a wide variety of books that interest them and they may keep for their own at no cost. Every child from K-6 grades in the school will be allowed to have one free book.

AMERICA

My country, tis of thee,
Sweet land of liberty,
Of thee I sing!
Land where our fathers died,
Land of the Pilgrims' pride;
From ev'ry mountain side
Let freedom ring!

My native country, thee,
Land of the noble free,
Thy name I love.
I love thy rock and rills,
Thy woods and templed hills;
My heart with rapture thrills
Like that above.

Let music swell the breeze,
And ring from all the trees
Sweet freedom's song.
Let mortal tongues awake,
Let all that breathe partake,
Let rocks their silence break,
The sound prolong.

Our fathers; God, to Thee,
Author of liberty,
To thee we sing.
Long may our land be bright
With freedom's holy light;
Protect us by Thy might,
Great God, our King!

AMERICA, THE BEAUTIFUL

O beautiful for spacious skies,
For amber waves of grain,
For purple mountain majesties
America! America!
God shed His grace on thee,
And crown thy good with brotherhood
From sea to shining sea!

O beautiful for pilgrim feet,
Whose stern impassioned stress
A thoroughfare for freedom beat
Across the wilderness!
America! America!
God mend thine ev'ry flaw,
Confirm thy soul in self-control,
Thy liberty in law!

O beautiful for heroes proved
In liberating strife,
Who more than self their country loved,
And mercy more than life!
America! America!
May God thy gold refine,
Till all success be nobleness,
And ev'ry gain divine!

O beautiful for patriot dream
That sees beyond the years
Thine alabaster cities gleam
Undimmed by human tears!
America! America!
God shed His grace on thee,
And crown thy good with brotherhood,
From sea to shining sea!

Sabrina, singing her song, "Tomorrow."

Sabrina West, seven-year-old daughter of Patty and Danny West, of Stanville, was recently contacted by WSAZ-TV in Huntington to audition for Columbia Pictures' new motion picture, "Annie." She later went to Cincinnati, Ohio where more than 500 little girls, ages 6-10, showed up for the audition. Garrison True, national talent scout, headed the talent search group.

Each half-hour about 100 were eliminated, and Sabrina made it to the "Top 20." She was competing with children who had been in commercials and on stage since they were tiny tots.

Although Sabrina will not be portraying "Annie," she did get to sing on television, was interviewed by Ohio radio stations and photographed by The Cincinnati Enquirer and Teen Magazine.

Flood-Warning System Grant OK'd

A $300,000 Appalachian Regional Commission grant to develop a centralized flood-warning system for eastern Kentucky has been approved, according to state Local Government Commissioner Wilburn Pratt.

The aim of the flood-warning project is to eliminate flood-caused deaths and to substantially reduce property damage, said Pratt. Gov. John Y. Brown Jr.'s alternate to the Appalachian Regional Commission:

The funds will be used to expand and improve a pilot flood-warning system begun last year in Pike, Johnson, Floyd, Martin and Magoffin counties in Kentucky and seven counties in West Virginia and Virginia with $150,000 in commission funds. More than 60 volunteer stream and rainfall observers in the five Kentucky counties are involved in the program.

The flood-warning system, which will be implemented in all 21 counties by the middle of next year, is the first of its type in the nation and will be used as a model for other systems in the country, said Pratt.

Communications equipment purchased with the new grant will link the five counties and 16 others with a mini-computer being installed in Frankfort by the Department of Military Affairs' division of disaster and emergency services.

Rainfall information received in Frankfort will be transmitted to the National Weather Service offices in Louisville, Huntington, W. Va., and Cincinnati to predict possible flooding conditions in a faster time than now possible.

Additional equipment required to complete the second and final phase of the new system consists of radio-reporting rain gauges, flash-flood alarms, emergency warning repeaters and 21 sets of communications equipment for each of the county emergency operations centers. The National Weather Service has made $400,000 available for the project.

Flood-prone counties involved in the expansion of the system are Bell, Harlan, Knox, Whitley, Breathitt, Knott, Lee, Leslie, Letcher, Perry, Powell, Rowan, Wolfe, Morgan and Montgomery.

The flood-warning project is a collaborative effort of the state, the National Weather Service and the Central Appalachia Development Project, which was established by the Appalachian Regional Commission and the states of Kentucky, West Virginia and Tennessee after the floods of 1977. In that year, floods caused hundreds of millions of dollars damage in the 21 Kentucky counties in the system.

Change Projected In Guardianship Law

Kentucky's revised guardianship law does not go into effect until July 1, 1982, but reservations expressed by a legislative subcommittee indicate a major change is due before then.

House Bill 974, which deals with the determination of whether or not a person is mentally disabled and, if so, the appointment of a legal guardian, was passed during the twilight hours of the 1980 General Assembly. An amendment provided that the bill would not go into effect for two years. This, the lawmakers said, would give a legislative subcommittee and the general public a chance to study the law before enactment.

Major differences between the law and the existing one include formation of an evaluation team made up of a physician, social worker and psychologist; changing reference to the person from incompetent to disabled; definition of the powers and duties of guardians; placing responsibility for legal judgement of incompetency in district court, and establishing a central registry in the Department for Human Resources for listing those persons involved in any stage of the incompetency proceedings.

If the meeting, conducted by the Interim Joint Committee on Judiciary, is any indication of the bill's future it will be up to the 1982 General Assembly to amend or repeal it to include the changes.

RECYCLE CHILDREN'S CLOTHING...AND SAVE
 Children's clothing is more expensive than ever, and with the cost of school lunches, fees and supplies, cutting clothing costs may be a necessity. Children grow quickly and often outgrow clothing before it's worn. But with careful planning new life can be put into clothes by letting down hems, taking out darts and covering crease marks with braid or hand embroidery. This fall a skirt or jacket can get a new lease on life with the popular addition of embroidery or an applique. If garments are in good shape and yet fail to fit someone in your family, even with hems extended, see if a neighbor's child is the right size. Some communities have neighborhood cooperatives where parents exchange or sell not only clothes but also toys and equipment.

Old clothes in good shape also can become a new patchwork. Cut the best part of used garments into squares. Sew these together to make one large fabric piece. Then lay your pattern on top just as you would purchase yardage. Because of many seam areas, you may be happier lining all or parts of the finished garment. Consider making vests, ponchos, book satchels, blouses or skirts from patchwork fabric. Some seamstresses use cast-off jeans to make attractive patchwork jackets, shirts or carry-alls. Finally, the fabric that is too threadbare for patches still makes perfect dustcloths. In addition to these suggestions, resale shops are another place to find children's clothes that can be used either as they are or as fabric to make other garments. To convert recycled garments into fabric, look for large pieces with few seams. Select garments that have colors, designs and textures appropriate for children. To check for worn areas, hold the garment to the light. Women's skirts and dresses usually have enough fabric to make smaller dresses or separates. Men's trousers can be converted into pants for little boys or skirts for girls. Sometimes two garments can be coordinated and made into one child's garment. If you have a pattern you plan to use, take it with you as you shop at resale stores. When you get home with your bargain, wash it, take it apart and press the fabric pieces. Now, you're ready to cut out a new garment, but don't forget to reuse zippers, buttons or other parts that come free and will make your finished garment a real bargain.

Interviews With Metts To Be Aired Locally
 Kentucky's transportation programs will be discussed when a two-part interview with state Transportation Secretary Frank Metts is aired the weeks of Oct. 6 and Oct. 13. The interview, sponsored by Kentuckians for Better Transportation, will be carried by 32 radio stations across the state, including stations in Louisville, Paducah, Prestonsburg, Ashland, Bowling Green and Madisonville. It is part of a 10-week series of public service programming called "Kentucky on the Move." Topics discussed during the program will include the state's Road Fund and how to correct deficiencies in it, rail safety, commuter airports and development of riverports on Kentucky's waterways.

The oldest existing commercial newspaper, first published in 1856, is Haarlem, Netherlands' Haarlems Dagblad/Oprechte Courant. The first issue survives.

Chairman Says Commission Helps Kentucky Athletes

The work of the Kentucky Athletic Commission benefits both the state and the athletes, according to commission chairman Frank Sgroi.

The commission oversees all boxing and wrestling events in Kentucky, both amateur and professional. Sgroi says Kentucky's commission is one of the biggest in the country, averaging 54 shows a month.

"Illegal fights hurt everyone," he says. "We have no control over the officials, the state loses revenue and regulations which protect the athlete might not be observed."

Among the protective measures the commission enforces is the requirement that competitors have physical examinations before they enter the ring. This will ensure the fighters are fit. Also, a boxer who has been knocked out or injured in a fight is automatically suspended for at least 30 days. Sgroi and other states' boxing commissioners let each other know about suspensions and honor those from other states.

Promoters of professional events must get a license from the commission before an event. They must also post a $2,000 performance bond before receiving a license. Licenses are valid for one year.

"Right now we're operating in 77 cities and towns," Sgroi says. "We have almost 100 percent coverage of the state, from Paducah to Ashland and from the Ohio River to the Tennessee border." The commission has issued 106 active licenses to 16 promoters—a promoter must have a separate license for each location in which he operates.

Amateur events do not need to be licensed, but their sponsors must obtain the commission's permission to hold the event, Sgroi says. Even the Kentucky High School Athletic Association needs to obtain that permission for its wrestling events.

Sgroi says requiring sponsors to obtain permission keeps the commission aware of who is holding fights or matches and where they're being held. Without this provision, he says, a "wildcat" promoter could set up a program and claim it was an amateur event, even though it wasn't.

Under the pretext of holding an amateur event, the illegal promoter could avoid license fees, posting the bond and most especially, paying 5 percent of all gross receipts to the state.

Sgroi listens to the "grapevine" for rumors of illegal matches. If he learns of one to be held, he'll contact law enforcement agencies—usually the Kentucky State Police—and raid the event. Sgroi was named vice commissioner of the commission in 1972 and chairman in 1976. In the four years he has headed the commission, its activities have increased steadily. Commission receipts were up 29 percent in 1977-78. The next year, those figures were topped again, by 36 percent. And in 1979-80, receipts increased 34 percent.

"I love this job," Sgroi says. "It's interesting and my experience as a professional wrestler for 15 years, plus some promoting and announcing, has paid off." Wrestling is the "bread-and-butter" for the commission—about 85 percent of the events are wrestling programs.

Sgroi's work on behalf of sports has brought him national stature. He is currently secretary-treasurer of the National Wrestling Association and treasurer of the United States Boxing Association. He also serves on the executive boards of both organizations.

The other members of the Athletic Commission are vice chairman Roy Arnold, Ashland; Charles W. Curry, Lexington; and Patrick R. Gorman and Joseph G. Mozzali, both of Louisville.

Says CETA Program Boon For County

Larry Duncan believes the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act, otherwise known as CETA, is the best thing happening in this country. "It is turning tax recipients into taxpayers," says Duncan. "After this program I'll pay back enough in taxes to pay for my education and many other people's education."

Until late last year Duncan was a supervisor at the Lear Siegler plant in Somerset, but the plant closed and left town. Duncan, his wife and two children were forced to live on unemployment insurance benefits for six months.

"A lot of people think that being on unemployment insurance benefits is being on the gravy wagon," Duncan said. "Obviously they haven't tried to support a family on it."

Duncan now is enrolled in a CETA-funded diesel mechanic class at the Somerset State Vocational-Technical School. Federal CETA funds directed through the state's Department for Human Resources allow him to make ends meet while he is learning a new profession.

"Being without a job and not being able to find one made me realize that everyone needs a specific skill," Duncan said.

Since it looks like the energy shortage and high fuel costs are here to stay, Duncan decided to learn diesel mechanics. "Because the diesel engine is fuel-efficient, I think more and more people will be using them in their cars and trucks," he said.

"I feel that once that I develop into a good diesel mechanic, I will be able to provide financial security for my family. That's the main thing that I'm after," Duncan said. "I never want to be dependent on unemployment insurance again."

The Somerset State Vocational-Technical School provides a well-rounded education for its students, Duncan said.

"When I first came to the school, I didn't know the first thing about a diesel engine. Now I'm on my way to becoming a good mechanic," he said. "For me, the large amount of hands-on training is the best part of the school."

According to school principal James McCarty, more than 90 percent of the students graduating from the diesel mechanics course go directly into jobs. "Often, jobs are waiting for some of the students while they are still in school," McCarty said.

The CETA-funded diesel mechanic course is a good, practical course, McCarty said. "There always will be a demand for skilled, competent mechanics."
