

Middle School Here Given No. 1 Priority

Cliff Area Site Being Considered As School Site

The county's most urgent need, as far as school construction is concerned, is a new middle school in Prestonsburg. That is the position taken by the Floyd Board of Education in a list of building priorities recently submitted by the board to the state Division of Buildings and Grounds.

The school board's recommendations are in response to a five-year school building plan drawn up earlier this year by a state inspection team. Differences in the local and state plans will need to be resolved by negotiation before a final plan is adopted. The priorities established for each school district are used as guidelines for the allocation of state school construction funds.

While the state plan calls for new elementary schools at Allen, Garrett and Prestonsburg—in that order—the Floyd board plan lifts the Prestonsburg school to the top of the list and calls for a middle school—serving grades 6, 7, and 8—rather than an elementary school.

Five Face Trial In Powder Deal

The trial of Teaberry coal operator and merchant Sterling Hamilton, 54, and five other defendants on charges of trading in stolen explosives began Monday in U.S. district court at Pikeville.

A nine-count indictment, read to the jury by Assistant U. S. Attorney Tom Self, accused Hamilton, his son Scotty, also of Teaberry, Earl Wayne "Mussey" Wright, of Drift, James E. Turner, Jr., of Wheelwright, Mary Joyce Hall, of Price, and Anthony Salisbury, of Hunter, of conspiring to deal and dealing in dynamite without a federal license. All but the younger Hamilton are also accused of dealing in the explosives, knowing they were stolen.

Wright is charged as well with receiving explosives after having been convicted of a felony—a reference to November, 1979 convictions for receiving stolen property and wanton endangerment. Salisbury and the elder Hamilton are also charged with improperly storing the explosives.

Named as co-conspirator but not indicted was Birchel Brein Reid, of Price, who reportedly assisted the prosecution in the case. Tape recordings of conversations between Reid and his alleged confederates, made by a device hidden on his body by state police, are expected to be tendered as evidence in the case.

Self said the government would prove Wright and Reid broke into the Garth Hollow powder magazine of Elkhorn Explosives, using a key stolen from magazine caretaker Ray Walters, of Minnie, in March last year.

This Town...That World

Among our visitors this week was a six-week-old bloodhound, a piece of property I would not mind taking off the hands of the owner, Denzil Ray Hall, of Allen. This is the kind of dog I like. You can't get on his nerves, because, as far as I can determine, he hasn't any.

TROUBLE IN PARADISE

Maurice Isbell, who flies all over the world when he's not being a mere earthling at his home near here, stopped by the other day to tell me of his recent trip to Alaska, of a glacier-fed lake he visited, and of the big rainbow trout he and his party caught. All this added up for me to earthly paradise till he happened to mention that big Alaskan brown bears sometimes insist on sharing fishing rights with you.

HO, HUM...

What effect has the baseball strike had on fan interest? I can't answer that one, but I can report that I went to bed on the All-Star game, in the fourth inning, with the score tied. Could be that I'm getting old, but, somehow, it didn't matter if my National League favorites won the game or the lights went out or everybody decided it was too hot and decided to finish the game next year.

AS THE RESULT OF AN AGREEMENT said to be the first of its kind in this county, a coal operator and state highways authorities jointly undertook repair of the Turkey Creek road last week.

Mine operator Fields Taylor contributed 218 tons of hot mix—valued at over $46,000—to the project, the state matching another 200 tons. About three miles of pavement was restored in the joint venture.

Huddleston To Lead Public Meeting Here

Senator Walter (Dee) Huddleston will hold a public meeting Thursday, August 20 for residents of Floyd county and six other Eastern Kentucky counties.

The 10 a.m. meeting will be in the courthouse, here, where Senator Huddleston will be available to deal with problems anyone may be having with the federal government and to discuss issues of interest to individuals in the area.

Huddleston will also be the speaker at noon that day for the Pikeville Kiwanis Club.

Huddleston is the ranking Democrat on the Senate Agriculture Committee, serves on the Senate Small Business Committee and is a member of the Senate Appropriations Committee.

The public meeting for these Eastern Kentucky counties is one of a series of meetings Senator Huddleston has scheduled throughout Kentucky.

But Financial Trouble Seen As Funds Cut

For the second straight year, the Floyd school district will be ending in the black, Asst. Superintendent Ray Brackett reported at last Wednesday's Board of Education meeting.

"We have retained our surplus (from last year) and added to it," Brackett said, but he warned that state and federal budget cuts would mean difficult times ahead for the district.

The school district will close its books on the 1980-81 fiscal year with a balance of $376,404. Last year's closing balance was $287,393.

While obviously satisfying to school officials, the surplus represents only a tiny fraction of the district's $14 million budget and could easily be eroded by funding cuts at the national and state level, they pointed out.

Financial experts recommend that school districts carry a 10 percent surplus against contingencies, Brackett noted. As it is, the Floyd district's surplus could pay the bills for only six days, he reckoned.

As anticipated, those who pay for school lunches will be paying more this year, as a result of cuts in federal reimbursement for the school lunch program. According to a board decision, grade schoolers will pay 60 cents a meal, high schoolers 65 cents, and adults (mostly teachers) 85 cents.

Contract bus drivers will be asked to contract this year at last year's rate, (See Story No. 4, Page 4)

Community Pressure Viewed Answer to Drive-In Problem

Community pressure may prove the best means of controlling live entertainment at the Prestonsburg Drive-In, complainants were advised at a city council meeting Monday.

Members of the council audience had complained of a series of events, most recently a "wet nightgown contest," held at the drive-in some Saturdays to entertain the audience between movies.

Typically, several young women in flimsy attire are wet down and encouraged to dance and expose themselves for cash prizes, it was claimed. Young children are among those viewing the contests, it was said.

The complainants sought passage of a city ordinance to restrict the contests.

Wade Martin Hughes, pastor of the First Assembly of God at West Prestonsburg, said the drive-in entertainment was "becoming more and more ungodly every week" and predicted the council would soon hear "an outcry from people demanding that something be done" about the contests.

Hughes said a group he was organizing planned to monitor future performances at the theater and possibly publicize the names of those participating in the contests.

Beverly Corbett, the first to complain publicly of the contests, said she had begun circulating a petition to protest the performance, had secured 162 signatures in less than two hours, and met only one person who declined to sign.

Jack Absher, Jr., manager of the theater, defended the contests as "a lot of clean fun," adding, "I don't know what is wrong with exposing a body."

Absher conceded that operating a drive-in is "a pretty nasty business," facing stiff opposition from TV movies, and that his live entertainment occasionally "gets out of hand."

He would see that it didn't happen again, he said.

City Attorney Paul Burchett, citing state statutes prohibiting indecent exposure and trafficking in pornography with minors, said there is "not a whole lot" a city can do by way of ordinance to restrict the performances.

"We are certainly not going to let the drive-in turn into a wild place," said Councilman Paul Philip Hughes, indicating that state laws should be sufficient to curb the contests.

While he would check to see if any state law is being violated at the drive-in, Mayor Harold Cooley said, he added that community pressure on the theater management would probably prove more effective than legal redress.

Requests for "speed bumps" on three city streets—Riverside Drive, Mays Avenue in the Goble Roberts Addition, and Cooley Street at Lancer—also exercised the council.

Following a heated controversy among Riverside Avenue residents concerning the speed bumps recently installed on that street, the council decided to schedule public hearings on all requests for the speed deterrents.

A hearing on the current applications, including that for Riverside Drive, will be held at 6 p.m. Monday, August 24, it was decided.

A public hearing on city streets to be blacktopped with gasoline tax funds was set for 6:30 p.m. Monday, August 17.

Garland and Wonnell Godsey complained to the council of damage done to their property on Arnold Avenue by long tractor-trailers attempting to negotiate the turn onto Arnold Avenue from Goble Street.

Youths Yet Missing, And So Is Convict, Fugitive from Pen

Officers involved in the search for Michael Dwayne Cline, of Emma, and Elijah Branham, Jr., of Prater Creek, who disappeared the night of July 9, said this week no clue to their whereabouts has been uncovered.

Nor have two vehicles, a truck owned by young Tackett's father and a pickup truck reported stolen from an Allen car lot the night of the youths' disappearance, been found.

State Police and other officers, who were alerted to the escape of Greenberry Tackett from the LaGrange prison the day of the youths' disappearance, are still seeking his whereabouts. Tackett failed to return to the prison after having been permitted to visit a sister in this county. He was under 20-year sentence for murder.

Board Skirts Plan To Curb Enrollment at Clark School

Attempts by two groups to draw policy statements from the Floyd Board of Education met with resistance at last week's regular board meeting.

The board turned down one policy proposal designed to relieve overcrowding at Clark grade school, Superintendent Pete Grigsby, Jr. arguing that the school principal has authority to implement the proposal.

Also rejected was a proposal to define more specifically the conduct for which a teacher might be fired, the board contending that the issue is already addressed by state statute.

Board member Dr. J. D. Adams presented a policy proposal drafted by John Rosenberg, a Prestonsburg attorney whose two children attend Clark. The proposal, intended to alleviate crowding in any of the county's elementary schools, grew out of discussions among Clark parents and teachers concerning a crowding problem there that last year saw as many as 45 pupils in a single class.

Immigration of students from areas other than that traditionally served by Clark has been cited frequently as a major cause of the overcrowding.

According to the proposal, state accreditation guidelines—which suggest 30 as the maximum enrollment in grades 1-3 and 35 in grades 4-8—would be adopted as a general norm. Where it was found necessary to exceed that norm, only those pupils would be enrolled who lived in the area traditionally served by the school and on the regular school bus routes.

Exceptions would be made in the case of immigrant students enrolled the previous year in the school, their siblings, and special education students.

While several board members appeared open to the suggestion, Supl. Grigsby spoke against its adoption as board policy, arguing that school principals already had the authority to act on the proposal.

Clark Principal John Pitts later expressed surprise at the superintendent's response. Principals faced with controversial administrative decisions should have a written board policy to refer to, he said.

Following a meeting with school principals Monday, Grigsby said that, to prevent overcrowding, principals have the authority to limit classroom enrollment to residents of the community traditionally served by a school.

While the school board is philosophically opposed to any form of school districting, he said, an administrative regulation in effect for some years permits principals to resolve overcrowding problems in the manner outlined by Rosenberg's proposal.

Enrollment at Harold and McDowell schools has been contained in previous years by this method, he said.

Pitts said he would probably act on the proposal in the event Clark faces further overcrowding problems this year.

In response to a petition presented to the board at its July meeting, which called for a board policy defining as grounds for dismissal a school employee's advocacy or use of illicit drugs, Grigsby said attorneys had confirmed his belief that the board could not adopt a policy more stringent than the state law which provides for dismissal of a teacher for "immoral conduct."

While reiterating the board's commitment to implement a drug education program in the schools this year, Asst. Superintendent Ron Hager said Gov. John Y. Brown's elimination of (See Story No. 3, Page 4)

Spy Pilot Powers Would Talk Only to Newsman from Floyd

When U-2 pilot Frances Gary Powers was freed after he had been shot down over Russia, there was only one reporter in all journalism—newspaper, television or radio, to whom he would give an interview.

And—would you believe it?—that reporter was from Auxier?

It was while Jim Clarke, who grew up in Auxier and graduated from high school there, was news director of WGH radio, Newport News, Va., that Powers, a mountain man himself, from Big Stone Gap, Va., refused all interviews except one and that to Clarke.

Before that, the former Floyd countyman won world attention with his exclusive telephone interviews with Ernest Hemingway and Errol Flynn on their impressions of the Cuban Revolution. That international "first" came after he became associate editor of Radio Press International.

Jim Clarke spent a year at Berea College after leaving Auxier. Then—perhaps because his mother, Mrs. Lee Clarke, was residing in New York City where she was a registered nurse—he enrolled at Fordham University from which he received a B.S. degree in communication arts.

He began his journalistic career as a copy boy with NBC News, then spent two years in the Army before returning to an editorship with Radio Press International. Since that time he has won eight Emmy Awards, among others.

Joining WJLA-TV, Washington, D.C., in 1962, he established himself as an investigative reporter, producing a series of hard-hitting reports on diverse subjects such as drug abuse, draft dodgers, deserters, child abuse, high school violence and a White House gate-crasher.

Jim Clarke

In his series of exclusive reports Clarke uncovered what may be a national nightmare: exposure to the extremely toxic PBS. His discovery of PBS leaks from electric transformers and illegally stored barrels triggered a congressional probe, and a new law that will tighten PBS controls has been drafted.

Three of his eight Emmy Awards were won this year—two for his investigative report, "D.C.D.C.," and one for the news series, "Keep the Coal Rollin'." The first uncovered cost overruns, shoddy work and construction delays by the District of Columbia's non-profit rehabilitation agency. In

"Keep the Coal Rollin'," Clark examined coal mining and West Virginia miners as their union contract was near expiration.

Clarke's other awards include: The Headliner Award, two Emmys and the Metropolitan Area Mass Media Award for his investigation of St. Elizabeth's Hospital for the mentally ill, where patients have reportedly died of neglect; The National Press Club's consumer Reporting Award for a series of reports on fraud and abuses by auto and television repair shops; The Metropolitan Area Mass Media Award for his exclusive report on allegations of torture and systematic abuse of elderly residents of private care homes on Kent Island in Chesapeake Bay; The Ted Yates Award for vision, courage and excellence in broadcast journalism.

Clarke's work has not been restricted to the United States. He covered the SST controversy in England, and from that trip won the pool TV reporter assignment on the Concord's first flight from Heathrow to Dulles.

In January this year when the hostages' release from Iran seemed imminent, WJLA-TV sent Clarke with a camera crew to Wiesbaden, West Germany. There he broke the story that the hostages had been terrorized and abused by their Iranian captors, and he obtained an exclusive interview with two members of the medical team that treated the hostages in West Germany.

Mr. Clarke resides with his family in Annandale, Virginia. His mother is now a resident of Manassas.

FIRST AVENUE DOWNTOWN PRESTONSBURG

Season Ending Week For Theatre Nears

On August 19 the curtain goes up for the final week of what is hailed as one of the finest seasons ever at the Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre.

More than 8,000 persons have attended Summer Season '81, which has included George M!, Godspell, The Roar Of The Greasepaint-The smell of the crowd and Okalahoma!

"We have had a lot of new people in the Theatre this year," General Manager John McCann said. The response upon their first visit to has been very positive. A musical is to be enjoyed and the four we are presenting this year are sheer enjoyment," added McCann.

George M!, a lively musical biography of composer George M. Cohan, is filled with flags, fireworks, dancing and such memorable All-American tunes as "Give My Regards To Broadway," "I'm A Yankee Doodle Dandy," and "Over There." Godspell, based on the Gospel according to St. Matthew, takes an updated look at modern Christianity through music and dance. The season favorite is Okalahoma!, the first collaborative effort of Richard Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstien. Featuring wonderful choreography, classic songs and a Western flavor, Okalahoma! plays August 12, 13, and 20. A new show for Eastern Kentucky is The Roar of the Greasepaint-The smell of the crowd. Greasepaint shows us the "haves" and "have nots" in our society. Although the Anthony Newley musical is thought provoking in a very original way, it is still very lively and entertaining.

"We want everyone to have a chance to see the shows. It seems that each year, in September, we talk to people who just put off coming," said McCann. "We want everyone to have the chance to attend, so we recommend making reservations as soon as possible. We are offering several discounts for the remainder of the season, including WPRT Night on Thursday, August 13 to see Okalahoma!

The schedule for the final week is: Wednesday, August 19, The Roar of the Greasepaint-The smell of the crowd; Thursday, August 20, Okalahoma! Friday, August 21, George M!; Saturday, August 22, The Roar of the Greasepaint-The smell of the crowd; and Sunday, August 23, Godspell. Curtain time is 8:30 p.m.

Tickets are in limited supply for the final week and are available by calling 886-9274 or by writing: Box Office, Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre, P.O. Box 22, Prestonsburg, Ky., 41653. The box office opens daily at 10 a.m. Tickets are $5 for adults, Wednesday, Thursday and Sunday nights, and $7 on Friday and Saturday nights. Student tickets are $3.50 for all performances. Children under 6 are admitted free and discounts are available for groups of 10 or more and also for senior citizens.

Questions That Remain

When the national economy is discussed and the talk runs to billions, not to mere millions, there occasionally is some simple soul around to wonder what is going to happen to the individual engaged in the business of making ends meet.

The Reagan administration has won strong support in its broad battle plan against inflation, its determination to balance the national budget, a new tax program and the plan to get Big Government off the backs of the people.

This may be descending from the sublime to the ridiculous, but the question remains:

What of the immediate prospects of the elderly and others who are on fixed incomes mainly represented by small monthly Social Security checks while the cost of food for the table and the rates charged for fuel—natural gas, oil, electricity—continue to mount?

For the old, the sick, those who cannot earn wages or strike for higher wages, the only prospects that really mean much are immediate, and they are not bright. Such people as these find it difficult to reconcile the curb inflation philosophy with what is actually happening to them.

Gas companies insist they must charge their customers more because federal law permits more to be charged for the gas they buy from other producers. It should be remembered, however, that that law became a necessity because oil and gas producers argued, and with considerable effect, that they could not afford to gamble millions in new drilling and exploration of unproved fields at the old rates allowed them.

That situation is only a part of the economic syndrome in which the individual is the unhappy victim. Prices rise, and the worker affected by the increase must have higher wages. Wages rise, and the cost of the goods they produce must increase apace.

What is to put an end to the "vicious circle"? Anything short of those hated controls that might hold both wages and prices still long enough for the man or woman on a small, fixed income to survive financially, even physically?

two in-service days from the school calendar left the board in a quandary. Three of the four in-service days originally scheduled this year were to be used for schooling teachers in the drug program, Hager explained.

If the legislature accepts the governor's proposal, the local school district would itself have to pay teachers' salaries for the two lost training days if the drug program were to be implemented, Hager said. A day's wages for the district's 400 teachers is estimated to be $33,684.

The board accepted Hager's recommendation that the four drug education programs under consideration be studied by a committee of teachers, administrators, parents and students and that a decision on implementing a program be postponed until February, when the legislature will presumably have addressed the governor's budget proposals.

GOOD OLD TV Talked to my daughter in Lexington today, and, as usual, hard put for material for this column, asked her if she had heard any stale jokes recently. No, she replied—yes, there was one she heard, but it was dirty and couldn't be cleaned up. Heard it on television.

FISHING REPORT

My public has been clamoring his head off for a fishing report from me. I had to wait till I went fishing, which I did on a Friday afternoon, the last in July. The following transcribed interview tells the story:

Q. How many did you— A. The lake was beautiful, and all of us, including a dozen or so water skiers, had a great time.

Q. But how many— A. We saw a doe and her twin fawns, beautiful things, watering at the edge of the lake. Why anybody would want to kill one—

Q. But I asked you— A. Counting deer flies, I had a dozen or so bites.

The two are accused of stealing 60 cases of dynamite and 12 cases of blasting caps on that occasion and delivering them to Sterling Hamilton for $1500.

The prosecutors allege that Wright, Turner, Salisbury and Reid returned to the magazine a month later, forcing an entry with cutting torches, and stole 200 cases of dynamite. Half the booty was allegedly delivered to Hamilton and half stored in Salisbury's mobile home at Hunter.

The scheme was exposed, according to Self, when Salisbury's trailer began to buckle under the weight of the dynamite, which was then removed to a spot up Hiram Salisbury Hollow, about a mile below Drift. A man gathering polk greens in the area reportedly came upon the cache and informed authorities.

An attorney for Mary Joyce Hall, who is said to have rented a truck to haul the dynamite taken in the second burglary, argued in an opening statement that there is no evidence his client knew what the truck was to be used for. An attorney for Salisbury, who is said to have complained that Hamilton owed him money for the second dynamite delivery, contended that the money Salisbury referred to was due him for work he had done as a heavy equipment operator.

The prosecutor indicated he might call as many as 12 witnesses in the case, which was expected to last three or four days.

Hamilton also faces a federal charge of obstruction of justice, in connection with threats he allegedly made to witnesses in a U. S. district court case in July.

SPEAKS AT CHURCH

The Rev. Stephen Englehart, director of the Wesley Foundation at Morehead State University, was the guest-speaker at the First United Methodist Church during Sunday morning's services.

ANNUAL PICNIC HELD

The annual covered-dish picnic of the Annie Allen Circle, Baptist W.M.U., was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gorman Collins, Sr., Monday evening, August 3, with several members and guests in attendance. Following the dinner, a brief business session was held, with the president, Mrs. Sarah Laven, presiding. The meeting was opened with prayer, and with the watchword said in unison.

Mrs. Zella Archer presented a report on the luncheon, given recently by the W.M.U. for Mrs. Oue, missionary to Japan, during her recent visit with the church here. At the suggestion of Mrs. Lucy Regan, a subscription for a magazine, to be used in the local Child Care program, was authorized. Mrs. Nawonie Conley, chairman of the Nominating committee, gave the list of officers for the coming year, as follows: President, Mrs. Sarah Laven, vice-president, Mrs. Patsy Evans; treasurer, Mrs. Julia Harrington; secretary, Mrs. Helen Clark; Mission Action, Mrs. Lucy Ransdell; Mission Support, Mrs. Lucy Regan; Mrs. Nawonie Conley and Mrs. Maman Leslie.

Letters to the Editor

The views expressed here are those of the writers, and not necessarily those of this newspaper. No unsigned contributions will be published.

APATHY OR ACTION

Webster's definition for apathy is lack of feeling, indifference. Action is defined the bringing about of. Our community needs some action to force some changes. Please respond to make our city a better place to live in.

Our youth are being exploited at our local drive-in. We are concerned over activities that are permitted to be practiced, because no one will stand up to say, NO! We are against the "Tight Pants," "Wet T Shirt," "Sexiest Nightie" and any other contest devised to expose the body.

We are concerned for the youth of our community and therefore demand our local authorities act immediately to take all the legal avenues to halt this. The paper last week stated... "the city is hardly enthusiastic about getting caught in the sticky web of anti-obscenity laws..." Why? What is a good reason to permit this to occur continually? Dante once said, "The hottest places in Hell are reserved for those in a time of great moral crisis, maintain their neutrality. We need on our city books laws, something to permanently stop exposure of bodies in public domain. Also if we don't block these activities, what is on the agenda next? A belt only?

"People got carried away Saturday. It won't happen again" the owner was quoted in last week's paper. Now, who will believe that, when the advertisement suggested a "sheer nightgown."? Furthermore, this was not a one night stand, young ladies have been exposing their bodies there for over a year. It won't happen again if we the people take a stand and cry out.

Let's address the age of those involved and watching the "action" and we don't want to get involved? We must! When 10-year-olds watch a Flesh Show, we must act.

Next, we address ourselves to the young girls exposing their bodies. Debbie, does your mother know what kind of contest you enter to exhibit your flesh? Do the young ladies not understand that God Almighty records their actions? Is the money worth it? Hereafter we will try to publicize the names of all contestants that partake in these sinful activities.

City Manager Evans acknowledge other complaints of opposition have been lodged, and still no action. It's time to move "City Hall," if we could enact today it would be to late to undo some damage.

Attention, Ministers! Have you made your people aware of the exploitation of our young ladies exposing their bodies? It wouldn't take two paragraphs in your bulletin and two minutes in your pulpit to do so. The results would be astounding. Knowledge without action is dead.

What can you do to help our youth and our community to progress? (1) Call the Mayor, Mr. Harold Cooley, City Manager Dave Evans, and Chief of Police Keith Lawson. Keep your call short, just inform them of our alarm and we feel it's time for action. (2) Get up petitions and get neighbors to sign. (3) Call your City Council members or voice your opinion at Council meetings on Monday nights.

Apathy or Action, that's the Question? Will you do your part or sit back and count on others? If you don't write and call, don't complain about the filth in our community.

HONOR MRS. HUMPHREYS

Mrs. Virginia Jeffries and Mrs. Victoria Spradin were co-hostesses at their home, last Thursday evening, honoring Mrs. Charles Humphreys, of Holopaw, Fla., her daughter-in-law, Mrs. William Newman, and daughters, Susan and Nancy, of St. Cloud, Fla., who were visiting here. Guests were the honorees, and the following from Prestonsburg: Mr. and Mrs. Ray Collins, Mrs. Homer Salisbury, Miss Maureen Mayo, Mrs. Margaret P. Alley, and Miss Mary Elizabeth Powers. Following the dinner, a social hour was enjoyed.

One expert describes the burro as "500 pounds of free enterprise." The August Reader's Digest says it may have contributed more to the winning of the West than any other animal. Suited to its desert habitat, it only needs a drink every 24 hours in summertime; once every three days in winter.

Protests Use of Funds

My attention has been called to an article in the Courier Journal of July 28 (front page), telling of the recent dedication of Keyser Heights Division in Pikeville.

While I and others are pleased at the ability of the state and the contractors to promote more housing for more people on an unused state property, many of us, as retired teachers, who taught many years under rather rough circumstances (and we taught the children basics, morals and spiritual values), sometimes for very meager salaries, are disturbed by the writer's inference that our Governor, John Y. Brown, and Transportation Secretary Frank C. Metts might consider using some of the teacher retirement funds to infuse the building of new homes.

We call upon and implore our State Senators and Representatives, as well as Gov. Brown and Sec. Metts to give this matter careful consideration before doing anything rash. It could be another case of "robbing Peter to pay Paul."

I and other teachers are Christians. We support missionary and Church efforts, help people in distress and hope that everyone can have a home. We believe in living and let live, "but we think Teacher Retirement, so well earned, should not be tampered with.

We thank God for what we have. We live sparingly. We share and we drive and operate the cheapest vehicles.

We are law abiding citizens, as are many others. We wish for all to know and live by Christian principles, to treat others as we wish to be treated.

We also do not wish to have the little Retirement and Social Security that God has allowed us strength to earn, turned into some other channel.

If this is a real effort to borrow from the Teacher Retirement Fund, what do our other retired teachers and organization think of it?

If I am wrong, I stand ready to be corrected.

Thank you for printing my confusions. Perhaps, through this, I may either be reassured or continue to "wave my pen, or entreaty for justice.

MRS. ANGELINE S. GEORGE Betsy Layne, Ky.

Both local and state officials agree that a new school is needed here—a site at Cliff is said to be under consideration—to relieve overcrowding at Clark and Prestonsburg grade schools. Unlike the state plan, however, the local plan makes no mention of consolidating Auxier and Bonanza schools in the new Prestonsburg facility.

In fact, all references to consolidation in the state plan have been deleted by Floyd officials, who declare themselves philosophically opposed to the concept.

Accordingly, a state proposal to consolidate McDowell and Wheelwright high schools is rejected in favor of replacing both facilities. And state plans to merge Auxier, Melvin and Prater Creek grade schools with larger schools are likewise rejected by the local board.

In its response to the state, the Floyd board makes no bones about the fact that its rearrangement of the state priorities is in part politically motivated. The board is known to be considering a utility tax to help finance school construction and will need all the support it can muster if the tax is to win public acceptance.

The board's recommendations for capital outlay, in order of priority, are: a new middle school in Prestonsburg; rebuild Allen Elementary, to serve 600; replace McDowell High School; renovate Prestonsburg High School, adding classes for industrial education; replace Garrett Elementary; replace Wheelwright High School; replace Maytown Elementary; add eight classrooms at Betsy Layne Elementary; add four classrooms and a cafeteria at Martin Elementary; renovate Prestonsburg Elementary; renovate Auxier Elementary; add four classrooms at Clark Elementary; renovate Wayland Elementary; add four classrooms at John M. Stumbo and Harold grade schools.

Listed as "interim centers"—and so vulnerable to consolidation—under both state and local plans are Bonanza, Daniels Creek, Drift, Home Branch, and Spruce Pine schools.

Season-Ending Week For Theatre Nears

On August 19 the curtain goes up for the final week of what is hailed as one of the finest seasons ever at the Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre.

More than 8,000 persons have attended Summer Season '81, which has included George M!, Godspell, The Roar Of The Greasepaint-The Smell of the Crowd and Oklahoma!

"We have had a lot of new people in the Theatre this year," General Manager John McCann said. The response upon their first visit has been very positive. A musical is to be enjoyed and the four we are presenting this year are sheer enjoyment," added McCann.

George M!, a lively musical biography of composer George M. Cohan, is filled with flags, fireworks, dancing and such memorable All-American tunes as "Give My Regards To Broadway," "I'm A Yankee Doodle Dandy," and "Over There." Godspell, based on the Gospel according to St. Matthew, takes an updated look at modern Christianity through music and dance. The season favorite is Oklahoma!, the first collaborative effort of Richard Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstein. Featuring wonderful choreography, classic songs and a Western flavor, Oklahoma! plays August 12, 13, and 20. A new show for Eastern Kentucky is The Roar of the Greasepaint-The Smell of the Crowd. Greasepaint shows us the "haves" and "have nots" in our society. Although the Anthony Newley musical is thought provoking in a very original way, it is still very lively and entertaining.

"We want everyone to have a chance to see the shows. It seems that each year, in September, we talk to people who just put off coming," said McCann. "We want everyone to have the chance to attend, so we recommend making reservations as soon as possible. We are offering several discounts for the remainder of the season, including WPRT Night on Thursday, August 13 to see Oklahoma!"

The schedule for the final week is: Wednesday, August 19, The Roar of the Greasepaint-The Smell of the Crowd; Thursday, August 20, Oklahoma! Friday, August 21, George M!; Saturday, August 22, The Roar of the Greasepaint-The Smell of the Crowd; and Sunday, August 23, Godspell. Curtain time is 8:30 p.m.

Tickets are in limited supply for the final week and are available by calling 886-9274 or by writing: Box Office, Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre, P.O. Box 22, Prestonsburg, Ky., 41653. The box office opens daily at 10 a.m. Tickets are $5 for adults, Wednesday, Thursday and Sunday nights, and $7 on Friday and Saturday nights. Student tickets are $3.50 for all performances. Children under 6 are admitted free and discounts are available for groups of 10 or more and also for senior citizens.

Boone Forest Offers Firewood and Solace

The hot, humid days and nights Kentuckians have been experiencing recently have them thinking about air conditioners, fans and other ways to beat the heat.

It is not too soon, however, to start thinking about the cold, bleak winter months ahead and what can be done to help cut down on the high cost of fuel needed to heat homes.

William A. Williams, Timber, Fire and Wildlife Staff Officer on the Daniel Boone National Forest offers one solution. He invites persons to visit this vast forest, which covers over 666,000 acres located in portions of 22 eastern Kentucky counties, to cut firewood for home use. It is available for the taking on all seven of the forest's ranger districts provided certain procedures are followed. The wood is given free of charge as long as it is for personal use and not sold. Before it can be cut and hauled away, a free use permit must be obtained either from the ranger on whose district the wood is located, or from the forest supervisor's office. Persons desiring to sell firewood to others can arrange to purchase timber by contacting any of the seven district rangers or the forest supervisor's office in Winchester.

The harvest of firewood for home use has shown a steady increase on the forest for the past three fiscal years. A total of 1,614 permits were issued in 1978. In 1979, the permits numbered 2,192, and in 1980, they totaled 2,947 in number.

The forest's recreation staff officer, Robert K. Strosnider, has a partial solution to help beat the sweltering heat. He suggests that persons visit the forest to take advantage of the various opportunities to relax and cool off. The many streams which run through the land once explored by Daniel Boone offer a cool trip by canoe or john boat. Swimming, water-skiing and boating at Cave Run Lake are cooling experiences as are boating and water-skiing at Laurel River Lake. A leisurely hike in the deep woods at such places as the Red River Gorge, Natural Arch and Yahoo Falls scenic areas, and the Beaver Creek Wilderness provides a chance to get away from the sounds, smells, and hot pavements of the city and the opportunity to breathe clean, cool, fresh air while observing nature's handiwork.

When Residents May Speak Out

Residents of this area will have the chance to express their concerns in a face-to-face meeting with their elected legislators tomorrow (Thursday), when the Kentucky General Assembly's Citizens Speak Out series holds a session in the circuit courtroom of the Pike county courthouse.

The Citizens Speak Out program, which has been called "participatory democracy in its purest sense," is now in its third year. In those three years, thousands of Kentuckians in communities all across the state have met with legislators from their area to discuss issues of concern to them.

The Pikeville meeting, which begins at 7:30 p.m., is one of 17 such sessions scheduled statewide this summer. The Pikeville meeting, which begins at 7:30 p.m., is one of 17 such sessions scheduled statewide this summer.

Legislators at the meeting will be prepared to discuss and hear comment on such issues as: unemployment insurance; worker's compensation; reform of prevailing wage, and other laws affecting small business; coal transportation problems; state road construction and financing and syn-fuels.

Time will also be set aside to hear comment on other issues raised by citizens in the audience. Rep. Herbie Deskins, D-Pikeville, is scheduled to serve as moderator for the event.

Pretty Baby Winner

Amy Jo Reynolds, daughter of Chuck and Joann Reynolds, of Martin, was the winner of the Pretty Baby Contest for ages one to two years at Martin's July 4th celebration.

She is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Reynolds, of Martin, and Mr. and Mrs. Estill Ousley, of Water Gap.

Jobless Rate Dips Slightly

Kentucky's unemployment rate in June was 7.5 percent compared to 7.6 percent in May, Department for Human Resources announced today.

"More than 37,000 persons found jobs during month, due to the settlement of the coal strike and an increase in agricultural wage and salary employment," said Dr. Grady Stumbo, secretary of the Department for Human Resources.

In June, 33 of the 120 counties had unemployment rates of 10 percent or higher. Statewide, Menifee county had the highest rate of 27 percent, while Woodford county had the lowest at 3.2 percent.

PUBLIC NOTICE TO OWNERS OF RENTAL HOUSING

The Floyd County Housing Authority is administering a Section 8 Moderate Rehabilitation Program in Floyd County using funds provided by the Department of Housing and Urban Development. Under this program, owners will rehabilitate rental units which are now substandard or have major building systems or components requiring repair or replacement. The cost of this work, which must total at least $1000 per unit, may be financed by a local lending institution, by the owner, or by any other source available to the owner. The agency does not make rehabilitation loans or grants, but will assist owners to obtain financing.

After required rehabilitation work has been completed, the agency and the owner will execute a contract which establishes a rent for the unit(s) that will cover rehabilitation costs, meet monthly operating expenses, and allow a reasonable profit on the owner's investment. For a fifteen year period, the owner will rent the rehabilitated unit(s) to eligible lower income tenants, who will pay approximately 25 percent of their income toward the rent. The agency will pay the remainder of the rent directly to the owner. The initial occupant of a rehabilitated unit may be the owner's present eligible tenant. After rehabilitation the rent (including utilities) cannot exceed the following Maximum Rents:

BEDROOM SIZE
206	244	282	319

The agency's current funds will allow rehabilitation of 35 units of rental housing as follows:

1 BR	2 BR	3 BR	4 BR
8	18	7	2

No unit will be assisted which results in the permanent displacement of a current tenant. Proposals from owners will be received by the Housing Authority until further notice. Owners who wish to submit a proposal must obtain an application form from:

Floyd County Housing Authority
Housing Office
Green Acres
Prestonsburg, Ky. 41653
Telephone No. 886-2717
Office Hours: 8:30-12:00 and 1:00-4:30

Big Week For Yanks

The Paintsville Tri-County Yankees won five of six games in three nights at Kingsport, Aug. 3-5, and split a six-game series with hard-charging Elizabethton, Aug. 6-9, to maintain a 3 1/2 game Appalachian League lead.

First-baseman Orestes Destrade was called to New York to play with Bradenton (Gulf Coast League) against the parent club in a two-game series at Yankee Stadium. Destrade pounded five home runs, three against Kingsport and two in the opening doubleheader against Elizabethton, prior to departing for New York for the Friday-Saturday exhibitions.

And how was the trip? "The big guys really made us feel good," said Destrade. Bradenton and the parent club split the series, the rookies winning 2-0, losing 4-2. "Everybody was friendly, and that was nice."

Destrade was held hitless in the opener, and had a single in three trips to the plate in the second game.

The yankees will play their last home game of the season, Aug. 27.

Twin Graduates

Miss. Cindy Lee and Cathy Ann Branham won graduated from East Jackson High School, Jackson, dMich., June 27. They are the twin daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Datsie Branham, of Grass Lake, Mich., and are the granddaughters of Dollie Branham, of Martin, and the late Hatch Branham, also the great-granddaughters of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Pitts, of the Middle Creek road.

Mulch As You Mow

No matter which way you cut it, your lawn may do better with a mower that's designed to help keep your lawn green . . . naturally.

This means a mulching mower that will not only clip your grass, but is designed to cut those clippings into smaller lengths before they fall back to the turf. This will enable the clippings to fall farther into the turfgrass canopy in a way that is more favorable for rapid decomposition and recycling.

A mulching mower designed to cut and recut your grass into such a fine mulch was developed by Bolens. The tiny clippings become a protective layer of mulch which keeps your lawn looking healthier while you use less fertilizer.

Happily, mulching mowers also cut the time and the work it takes to cut your grass. There's no bagging or raking, and no clean-up. It's great for leaves, too, because it chops them finely and blows them into a naturally nutritious mulch . . . putting mulching mowers a cut above all other mowers.

Herb Teas

Herb teas have been around since ancient times, when they were thought to be remedies for many ailments. The ancient Greeks, Romans and Europeans reportedly considered herb teas as remedies for colds, flu and nerves. Some of the Roman emperors had botanists in all parts of the empire gathering herbs to be sent back to the capital. These men were instructed to find new herbs and cures, and for the most part, they checked cures against actual cases before passing them on to the emperor.

Pharmacy Footnotes

by HAROLD COOLEY

Eating to satisfy the energy needs of the body and to maintain one's weight sets a pattern that is usually maintained, with minor changes, as one grows older and/or changes patterns of activity. Eating to lose weight rapidly frequently leaves an individual dissatisfied and sets a pattern which is not likely to be followed when returning to normal weight. The weakness of most reducing diets is that they are temporary. They do not represent an effort to establish a dietary pattern which the individual can or will continue for extended periods of time.

The staff members at COOLEY APOTHECARY INC. are interested in your good health. The pharmacist on duty will always be happy to answer your questions about health and health related items. We do our utmost to keep up with advances in the field so that we can provide you with the most up-to-date products and information. We're in 2 Town Center Building, Mon.-Fri. 9-5:30; Sat. 9-5. 886-8106. We are your one stop pharmacy.

WHAT'S YOUR ANSWER?

A few days ago a survey about your electrical needs may have arrived at your home and at several other residences in your RECC's service area.

It is a brief, easy-to-answer questionnaire that will provide us valuable information in deciding how much electricity you're going to need in the near future.

Many RECC members have returned this very important survey, but there are many who are still being counted on to send in their responses.

If the results are going to help us continue planning efficiently for future electrical requirements, a high percentage of the surveys must be returned to us as soon as possible.

The survey is easy to mark, extremely important, and will cost you nothing except a little time. This is your chance to help us and yourself in planning for our energy future today.

Forests, A Resource

For Present and Future

Great oaks from little acorns grow—sometimes. Fortunately, the forest that meet our growing needs for wood, paper and chemicals grow with the help of planning, labor and love.

Forest products companies are concerned not only with supplying today's needs, but with ensuring that these forests, our greatest renewable resource, will continue to bestow their abundance and beauty on the generations to come, as well.

To ensure rapid, healthy growth, these companies make sure that their forest lands are as "well-bred" as possible. "Supertrees" are one object of breeding practices.

One commonly used technique is to cut a scion branch from a select mature tree. A Douglas fir, for instance, grafted onto root stock, will produce a seed-producing tree. Small, grafted trees take on the characteristics of the Douglas fir from which the scion was cut. The seeds they produce contain the height, shape and growth characteristics for which the trees were chosen.

The seeds will be grown at nurseries into foot-high superseedlings to reforest harvested timberland with fast-growing trees of superior size and shape.

Average Blood Donations Here Fall Short of 30 Pints a Week

Although many Floyd countians have donated blood in the 13 months the Central Kentucky Blood Center has been in operation here, weekly collections are not meeting the necessary 30 pints to keep the center going.

In its final year 922 pints were drawn at the donor station here. During that same period 1168 pints were used at the three medical facilities in Floyd county and still more blood was used by some Floyd county patients in Lexington hospitals.

There are still some businesses and civic organizations in and around Prestonsburg who are not participants in a Group Blood Donor Program which would help bring in more donors. If 20% of the employees of an organization or business donate blood each year, then all the members and their families have their blood needs assured.

Anyone interested in becoming a blood donor, or in a group blood donor program or further information should contact the Prestonsburg Station at 886-1557.

Floyd One of 44 Counties Listed in Area Disaster

Floyd is one of the 44 Kentucky counties which the Farmers Home Administration has designated as agricultural disaster areas, it was announced Monday by the office of Gov. John Y. Brown, Jr.

The designation means that these counties will be eligible for 5 per cent federal loans to cover crop losses to flooding earlier this year.

Other area counties so designated are Boyd, Elliott, Greenup, Magoffin, Menifee, Pike, Breathitt, Clay, Owsley. The Kentucky Council on Agriculture estimates that the 44 counties approved for low-interest loans suffered losses totalling $50.5 million.

Pictured are David School students Eugene Hughes, son of Mr. and Mrs. Willard Hughes, of Wayland, Robbie Chaffins, son of Mrs. Corbett Howell, also of Wayland and Steve Farley, of Mousie.

The students are displaying the electric guitars they made in their instrument making class, under the direction of Mr. Clarence Hayes.

The David School Woodshop puts emphasis on the creative aspects as well as the fundamental skills of woodworking. Boys and girls make a variety of toys, candle holders, cutting boards, planters and wood turnings.

Last fall, the students began a series of unique projects. Instructor and instrument maker, Clarence Hayes, guided them toward his own craft. Their first project was a dulcimer, a mountain instrument that found its origin in the ballads and bagpipes of the Scotch-Irish settlers.

Students Michael Elkins and Eugene Hughes set out to make their first instruments. They selected pinewood for a resonant soundboard, and Floyd county walnut and poplar for the back and sides. These instruments were saved and shaped entirely from rough lumber. The finished dulcimers were displayed in the Prestonsburg Community College library.

During the second semester, the students made a rapid transition from the old to the new as they began to design and construct electric guitars.

They used two-inch mahogany boards to cut out the bodies and to shape the necks of the guitars. The bulk of this work was done by hand. To economize, they found formica for pick guards, used electrical wiring pickups, and aluminum bars were cut and drilled for bridges. Finally, they used a stop sign which they cut and drilled for bridges. Finally, they used a stop sign which they ground and shaped into tailpieces, buffed to a shiny finish.

The students worked for the school on maintenance and renovations to pay for the supplies. The long weeks of tedious work were rewarded when Steve Farley, Eugene Hughes and Robbie Chaffins strung their instruments for the first time. Another student, Marvin Conley refinished and rewired a used guitar.

Early in the semester, the students signed up for beginning guitar lessons, given weekly at the school. The students not only built their own electric guitars, but now they can play them too.

Summer Vacations, Fall Epidemics

Children returning from summer camp sometimes bring home more than the pot holders they made in arts and crafts.

In recent years there have been increasing numbers of epidemics of head lice among children at camps. The director of the Parasitic Diseases Division of the Center for Disease Control (CDC), has observed, "there is ample opportunity for transmission during the summer when children may become infested while at summer camp, or while vacationing in another state or another country."

Although head lice outbreaks are often associated with the opening of school, the CDC specialist has suggested that there is greater recognition of the problem when school nurses examine children's heads looking for lice. Therefore, he advises, routine examinations in camps and schools can halt the problem before it really starts.

The Navy's newest undersea vessel—the USS Ohio—is not just another nuclear-powered, missile-toting submarine. To begin with, its 42-foot-wide hull could accommodate four city buses side by side. Its 90,000 horsepower nuclear reactor can propel it underwater more than 400,000 miles—16 times around the world. And, according to the August Reader's Digest, the skipper will have at his fingertips the power to bring a total of 192 targets under nuclear attack.

Diet and Drugs Reduce Cholesterol

The low-cholesterol diet advocated by many physicians and other health professionals is not vigorous enough to make a significant impact on prevention of atherosclerosis and heart disease in this country, according to a University of Pittsburgh public health specialist.

Dr. Lewis Kuller, Professor and Chairman of the Department of Epidemiology at the University of Pittsburgh, said at a Heart Association symposium that major cultural and environmental changes would be required to lower cholesterol levels sufficiently.

Drugs that lower blood cholesterol levels and diets low in saturated fats in combination can play an important role in reducing high cholesterol levels in people with a family history of elevated serum lipid levels, Canadian lipid specialist Dr. Jean Davignon reported at the same New York symposium.

Dr. Davignon, director of the Department of Lipid Metabolism and Atherosclerosis at the Clinical Research Institute of Montreal, said that more research is required to predict individual patients' response to available cholesterol-lowering drugs.

Of the newer agents, Dr. Davignon said that probucol produces a striking reduction in serum cholesterol, but not in all patients. He predicted that several new drugs now available in Europe might add to the agents available here for treatment of patients with hyperlipidemia, but he stressed "for all types of hyperlipidemias, start with diet before adding any medication."

There are six schools of thought currently about the relationship between nutrition, lipoproteins, and coronary heart disease:

The "public health approach"—Increased cholesterol and/or saturated fat in the diet is the cause of atherosclerosis and heart disease and diet is the cause of atherosclerosis and heart disease. Diet should be modified.

Subgroups suggest that the basic Heart Association diet is not vigorous enough. Total calories should be restricted, too, and there should be an increase in polyunsaturated fat as well as a decrease in cholesterol and saturated fat.

The "preventive medicine model"—Diet is very important for people at high risk and for those with high cholesterol levels. Such individuals should be identified and treated.

The "genetic model"—High risk families should be identified through taking detailed family studies, and treated with diet and/or cholesterol-lowering drugs.

The "lipid-biochemist model"—Diet and drug treatment should be limited to individuals who have symptoms of disease. Vigorous dietary intervention is reported to actually cause regression of atherosclerosis.

The "clinical medicine model"—Diet and drug treatment should be limited to those individuals who already have clinical signs of disease.

The sixth and last group believes that nutritional intervention is ineffective and that there is no relationship between cholesterol and saturated fat in the diet and risk of heart attack. This group contends that the key factors are excess calories and obesity, lack of exercise, and the individual's personality type.

TO HEAD GIRL SCOUT FUND DRIVE

Martha Layne Collins, Lieutenant Governor of Kentucky, announces the appointment of Janet Stumbo as Girl Scout Fund Drive chairman in Floyd county (COUNTY) or Community).

This year, the Wilderness Road Girl Scout Council has set a goal of $65,000 to be raised through the forty-one fund drives being held in the communities without a United Way campaign. This money is used to provide professional support to volunteers, to pay for program materials, and to provide training and educational opportunities for the adults who are leading our girls.

Women Escape Rockslide

Danese Amburgey surveys the wreckage of the 1979 Chevrolet from which she and two companions, Glenda Blackburn and Florene Harris, narrowly escaped with their lives last week.

The three Cow Creek women were returning Tuesday from a funeral in Clintwood, Va., when they were caught in a rockslide on the Jonancy curve of U.S. 23, about five miles south of Virgie. "It looked like half the mountain slid down on us," Mrs. Amburgey said later. "It stopped us dead." The women escaped with relatively minor cuts and abrasions.

BUILDING HOMES FOR PEOPLE

ENERGY-CONSCIOUS AIR CONDITIONING USE

Room air conditioners go a long way toward helping make hot summer days more livable. However, a unit that is the wrong size for your home or apartment can be inefficient and cost you extra energy dollars, say home economists.

A too-small unit does not cool adequately and one that is too large cools a room too quickly and shuts off before it can do enough dehumidifying—leaving the room uncomfortably cool and clammy.

According to the home economists, when choosing an air conditioner it is important to know:

—How many rooms and connecting halls do you want to cool, and what are their sizes?

—How many windows, of what size and type, are in the rooms to be cooled? Are they on a shady or sunny side?

—Are the walls and ceiling insulated?

Having answers to these questions in hand when shopping for a new air conditioner can help you choose the most energy-efficient product for your home and family.

Children act fast. So do poisons! In Kentuckiana, 55 percent of all poisonings occur with children under age five. In case of accident, call your Poison Control Center at Kosair-Children's Hospital, (505) 589-8222.

Miracle's Trial Begins as Plea Again Changed

A Paintsville man who had since earlier changed his pleas to a murder charge has again shifted his plea to not guilty and was scheduled to go on trial Monday in the Johnson circuit court.

Charles Douglas Miracle, 19, charged in the shooting death of John Willard, last March 1, at first pleaded innocent to the charges, then asked the court to accept a plea of guilty in early June.

But, according to Commonwealth's Attorney Paul Deaton, Miracle again has changed his plea, returning to his claim of innocence.

Johnson Circuit Judge W.B. Hazelrigg has accepted the change in plea. Miracle was slated for trial on the murder charge, starting Monday of this week.

Miracle, who suffers from multiple sclerosis, was arrested near Salyersville last March after police found Willard's body dumped along a rural road in Johnson county. The cab driver had been shot in the back four times.

Willard's cab was found in Magoffin county the day after the body was found.

Deaton said Miracle, a convicted felon who was on probation at the time of his arrest, attempted to plead guilty in May, but Hazelrigg would not accept the plea.

He said Miracle then stated in open court that "he'd killed John Willard and wanted to be electrocuted for it."

Under the guilty plea, Miracle was entitled to a hearing in which a jury would determine whether he should be imprisoned or executed without considering guilt or innocence.

Now, with his renewed plea of not guilty, the case will go to a full trial, Deaton said. Miracle has been found competent to stand trial.

"Uncle" Tom Baldrige Is 98

"Uncle" Tom Baldrige relaxes on the front porch of the home of his daughter and son-in-law, Maudie and William Warrix.

Tom Baldrige observed his birthday, Friday. It was his 98th.

"Uncle Tom", as he is often referred to by close friends and relatives, has seen many birthdays pass, and oldtimers like Tom are not inclined to toot horns or wear gay party hats on such occasions. But he was more than willing to talk a bit about his life and even sing a couple of his beloved sacred songs for the small group which gathered at the home of his daughter on the Jane Brown Branch, on Auxier Road.

Baldrige was born in 1883 and spent his early years on the Little Paint farm of his parents, Bennie and Ann Stephens Baldrige. At age 18 he began work in the mines at Cannel Coal Gap on Abbott Creek, his first taste of many years of underground mining which would follow. After retiring from Princess Elkhorn Mining Co. at David, he moved to a farm in Ohio where he lived for a number of years.

Uncle Tom never had the time for the luxury of education, but like many older mountain people, he possesses an extensive knowledge of the Bible and is able to quote lengthy passages, word for word.

He takes deep satisfaction from his faith, and his rendition of two ancient gospel tunes, "Job" and "The Grumbler's Song," in a remarkably clear and youthful voice, demonstrated his enthusiasm.

Two years away from the century mark, he describes the reason for his long life in this manner: "I guess it was the way I've carried myself—after I was borned again, I've lived clean ever since."

VACATION IN SMOKIES

Mr. and Mrs. Eral Scutchfield, grandson, Stevie Frasure, and Mr. and Mrs. Wilse Rose and sons, Mike, Scottie and Kenton, spent the week of Aug. 1-9 vacationing in the Smoky Mountains and Cherokee, N.C. While there they toured Christus Gardens, where the life of Christ is portrayed, and hiked in the area of Clingman's Dome, which is 6,643 feet in elevation.

SOME INTERESTING FACTS ABOUT HELL

Jonah 2:2—Belly of Hell—not lake of fire; Psalm 16:10—not leave my soul in Hell; Acts 2:27; Acts 2:31—Resurrection of Christ, his soul was not left in Hell, grave from the Greek Hades.

Death and Hell (Hades) delivered up the dead, Rev. 20:13; Death and Hell (Hades) cast into the lake of fire, Rev. 20:14. Evidently the lake is hotter than Hell and Hell is not the lake, Rev. 20:15; Since Hell is cast into it, or is Hell (Hades) the grave? Mat. 10:28 says, but rather fear him who is able to destroy both body and soul in Hell (Gehenna). The soul can die, Ezek. 18:4, 20; Gen. 2:7, Man became a living soul; Jeremiah 2:34, Blood of the souls; Mat. 16:26, Lose his own soul; Acts 3:23, every soul (destroyed); James 5:20—Shall save a soul; Isaiah 53:12—Poured out his soul unto death; Rev. 16:3—Every living soul died in the sea; The dead know not anything—Eccl. 9:5, 10—Psalm 146:4 The first lie, Gen. 3:4, Ye shall not surely die is still being told by paid preachers. The soul does die—if there were no death there would be no need for a resurrection. A July 22 article, "Know Your Bible" paragraph 2 states that Hell is a real place. Paragraph 4 states that it is obvious that the scripture references regarding Hell are symbolic and figurative. Is this a contradiction or a case of not knowing "The Truth About Hell"? Or is it something hard to be understood which they that are unlearned and unstable, wrest, or twist as they do also the other scriptures, unto their own destruction (the wages of sin is death, not eternal torment—Rom. 6:23). Worms are not immortal—the lot of all fiars is the lake which is the second death, Rev. 21:8. The love of God through Jesus is a resurrection from the dead, John 5:28, 29; Acts 24:15; Rev. 20:13; Rev. 20:1-6. He has the keys of Hell and of death, Rev. 1:18.

Red Cross Fund Drive Under Way in County

The annual Red Cross fund-raising campaign is under way in this county, it was announced this week. Chairman Dave Evans and Chairwoman Judith Price are heading this year's effort.
The goal for this year's campaign has been set at $15,000, money which will be used for future relief efforts, it was said.
During the week, August 9-15, volunteers will be collecting door-to-door in communities throughout the county, and residents are urged to contribute only to persons having a Red Cross identification band. Collection points will be set up along roadsides, Saturday, August 15, and a Red Cross radiothon is planned on WDOC radio.

Advice to Parents

As the new school year is about to begin I realize that summer is once again almost over. For the children this brings the excitement and anxiety of going to school again, or for the first time, and making new friends. For many parents it must surely bring some relief and yet a rate of sadness that summer is over too soon. For the teachers it, hopefully, has been one of rest and probably preparation for another school year.

No doubt some anxieties must surely be felt by many teachers. Memories of over-crowded classrooms and the subsequent pressures upon the teachers and the children are hard to forget.

I'm reminded of an article printed in the Floyd County Times before the school year ended last term. It was about the parents at Clark Elementary and their concern over these same problems of overcrowding and undue pressures upon their teachers. They were told that they had a "school great for kids but a problem just because of its quality."

As a parent of children at Harold Elementary I can certainly understand how these parents feel. We have overcrowding at our school, as well. On October 27, 1980 we had 432 children enrolled in a school built for something over 200 children. Our teachers had an average of 36-39 students per class. This made their job of teaching very difficult and yet, considering these circumstances, they continued to do their very best and tried to give the children the best education possible.

There are many problems that our teachers face that we parents know nothing about, and yet they affect our children's education.

As a parent of children at Harold Elementary I feel we should be proud to have our children in this school. We should support the school, the teacher and our children.

I sympathize with the parents at Clark Elementary, for I'm sure they value their children's education, but then so do we and I feel our teachers need to hear it.

I know that I speak for others when I say that hopefully some solutions can be found for the problem of overcrowding at both schools.

To all parents, regardless of school, I would urge you to become more involved with your children's education. Support your school and your teachers and, most of all, support your children.

MARIE CONN Dana, Ky.

Q. I have cancer and have been given the names of three surgeons. I'm not a doctor. How do I make an intelligent choice?

A. It's unfortunate that making such important decisions come along at the very time a patient is most upset and least able to reason. The main thing to remember is to check out a surgeon's credentials and the hospital where he will operate. It takes about a half-hour, and that's worth it when you will be spending hundreds of dollars for his knowledge and putting your life in his hands.

Get a copy of the Directory of Medical Specialists at the reference desk of your local library. The Directory of Medical Specialists lists only those physicians who are board-certified (those who have passed tests in their particular specialty).

If your library does not have the reference book, call the Kentucky Board of Medical Licensure in Louisville at (505) 456-2220 or the Cancer Hopeline for assistance.

Besides board certification and being a Fellow of the American College of Surgeons, remember to ask these questions, too:

Has he performed the operation many times?

Is he affiliated with a hospital which has an approved cancer program sponsored by the American College of Surgeons, is part of a comprehensive cancer center, or is directly affiliated with a medical school? At the very least, the hospital should be accredited by the Joint Commission on Accreditation for Hospitals or the American Osteopathic Association.

Is he willing to answer your questions and give you the time and attention you feel you need? Check on your understanding of what he has told you about the operation by repeating it to him in your own words.

If you wish to know, is the doctor willing to tell you the risks of the surgery based on your physical condition in relation to the usual results of the procedure? Also ask what the risks are if you do not have the surgery.

Is he willing to work with your original doctor so that your recovery and any follow-up treatment will be coordinated?

Is he part of a group which is hospital-based, since this will probably mean the best total care before and after surgery?

If you are getting a second opinion, it is best to get it outside the particular group practice where your first doctor or the first surgeon are located.

It is wise to get a second opinion before having surgery.

A brochure which you may find of help is "Communication Between You, the Cancer Patient, and Your Doctor." It is free.

To receive your brochure or for help with your cancer questions, call the Cancer Hopeline toll free at 1-800-432-9321 from 9-9 Monday-Thursday and 9-5 Friday. You may also write the Hopeline at 915 South Limestone Street, Lexington, KY 40536.

Recognizing a Stroke Emergency

In stroke as in heart attack, the speed with which friends or family members respond can make a big difference in the eventual outcome. If they recognize the condition immediately and get medical help, they may save their loved ones from death and disability.

Stroke occurs when the blood supply to part of the brain is cut off. A stroke may take hours or even days to develop, so early detection and treatment might save precious brain cells.

Unfortunately, many people do not know these seven early warning signs of stroke: (1) sudden, temporary weakness or numbness of the face, arm or leg; (2) temporary difficulty or loss of speech or trouble understanding speech; (3) sudden, temporary dimness or loss of vision; (4) an episode of double vision; (5) unexplained headaches, or a change in the pattern of headaches; (6) temporary dizziness or unsteadiness; and (7) recent change in personality or mental ability.

Stroke kills almost 200,000 Americans each year, making it the third leading cause of death in the U.S. However, more than two million Americans who have had strokes are alive today.

Research may someday lead to drugs that are effective in patients who do not reach medical attention immediately after a stroke. An American Heart Association Established Investigator is searching for a way to minimize the severity of brain damage from stroke even when treatment is delayed. In his research with gerbils, David E. Levy, M.D., at Cornell University Medical College in New York City is studying how brain cells are damaged in the hours and days following a stroke. Dr. Levy is testing various drugs in gerbils, hoping to find a treatment that saves brain cells from destruction.

Barbiturates — drugs used as sedatives and hypnotics — may be effective in reducing the damage from stroke. When Dr. Levy administers a barbiturate to a gerbil one hour after an experimentally produced stroke, the brain damage is less severe. One possible explanation for this effect: barbiturates may suppress the brain cells' energy demands.

Although some physicians have already started giving barbiturates to their stroke patients, Dr. Levy believes this medical practice is premature un-

State Police In Raid On Hamilton Premises

For the third time in a period of a few weeks the premises of Sterling Hamilton, former well-known mine operator, were raided last Wednesday, at Teaberry by State Police in search of illegal intoxicants.

The officers reported they confiscated 1149 cans of beer and 12 half-pints of whiskey found in Hamilton's residence. John Dee Martin was jailed here on a charge of possessing illegal alcoholic beverages for the purpose of sale.

Hamilton was not arrested at the time of the raid he was at work elsewhere, officers said but it was said a warrant would be sought from district court for his arrest on a possession for the purpose of sale charge.

Officers participating in the raid were Detectives Robert Forsyth and Don West, Sgt. Gary Rose, Trooper Joe West and ABC Agent Ted Salisbury.

★ KENTUCKY AFIELD ★

NO COLD FEETHIS DUCK SEASON

It's going to be hard to convince my feet that it's really duck season. You see, my feet have developed ways of telling what's going on. If I wrap them in old tennis shoes and try to drown them, they know it's creek fishin' time. Or when I try to walk them to death, they figure out that small game season has opened.

And they know that when it feels like I've struck them in the freezer and forgot about them, it's got to be duck season. So when I go hunting during Kentucky's new experimental duck season this September, my feet are going to be awfully confused.

This five day (Sept. 9-13) season is basically for teal and wood ducks, although the regulations allow one duck of any other species in the daily bag of four birds. So you can have four teal, four wood ducks or any combination of these two species, but only one mallard or other "big duck" in your daily bag. The possession limit is, as usual, double the daily limit.

Hunters will need, in addition to a valid Kentucky license and a federal "duck stamp," a special permit for this season. The permit consists of a two-part carbonless form. The hunter fills in his name, address and phone number, then tears off the top copy and gives it to the issuing agent. The bottom portion contains blanks for him to indicate the number of hours he hunted each day and the number of each species of duck he takes.

There is no charge for this permit and no limit on the number that will be issued. At the end of the five-day season, the hunter drops the permit in the mail (no postage is required). Those permits are for survey purposes only, since federal law requires that we keep a close count on the harvest for this experimental hunt.

"It's important that hunters cooperate by filling out and mailing in these permits," says Joe Bruna, director of the fish and wildlife department's wildlife division. "Unless we get good cooperation from Kentucky duck hunters, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service may not let us have another season like this one."

Permits will be available around the middle of August from conservation officers or wildlife biologists with the fish and wildlife department. They will also be available at some sporting goods stores or by writing the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, Division of Wildlife, 1 Game Farm Road, Frankfort, KY 40601.

The federal fish and wildlife service accepted proposals from Kentucky and Tennessee for an early duck season to let hunters in these two states take advantage of native wood duck populations. Wood ducks nest in the region in large numbers, but migrate south long before the November waterfowl season rolls around.

Teal, also early migrators, are passing through Kentucky in September. We have had a short September season for teal for several years but this is the first time this season will be open for all species of ducks.

The inclusion of one duck besides teal and wood ducks in the daily bag will allow hunters to make one (but only one!) mistake in on-the-wing identification without running into trouble with the law.

So get your permit and start scouting some local wood duck streams. And even if your feet are confused by this warm-weather duck hunting, they probably won't complain—in fact, they'll probably enjoy duck hunting for a change.

Age and Entry Requirements For Kindergarten, First Grade

By PETE GRIGSBY, JR.
Supt., of Floyd County Schools

The 1980 General Assembly revised the Kindergarten and First Grade entrance law by amending KRS 158:30. On April 15, 1980, the State Board for Elementary and Secondary Education, in an official meeting, amended 704 KAR 5:050 regarding Public School Programs. This regulation defined and prescribes the criteria for Kindergarten programs in the common schools and establishes the entrance age of pupils enrolling in a Kindergarten program.

Section 4 of the regulation was amended to permit any child who is five years of age, or who may become five years of age by October 1, 1980, and any year thereafter to enroll in a public school kindergarten. This section also specifies that any child who has attended nursery school and will be five years of age on or before December 31, 1980 shall be eligible for enrollment in a public kindergarten program in the 1980-81 school year and in the first grade during the 1981-82 school year.

Therefore, according to the above regulations, any child who may become five years of age on or before October 1, 1981 shall be eligible for enrollment in a public school kindergarten. Parents must submit proper age verification and immunization records of the child to the local elementary school principal prior to the actual enrollment in the Kindergarten Program. Kindergarten is not mandatory and is not a prerequisite for first grade admittance if other requirements are met.

Also, according to the amended regulations, any child who will be six years of age on or before October 1, 1981 must attend either a private or public school. Parents must submit the child's age verification and immunization records to the local elementary school principal upon enrollment of the child.

The only exception to the October 1, age regulation regards those children who attended nursery school in 1979-80, kindergarten private or public school. Parents must submit the child's age verification and immunization records to the local elementary school principal upon enrollment of the child.

The only exception to the October 1, age regulation regards those children who attended nursery school in 1979-80, kindergarten (private or public) in 1980-81 and will be six years of age on or before December 31, 1981. These children are eligible for enrollment in the first grade for the 1981-82 school year.

The exceptions in KRS 158:030 to the age of entry are only for a two year transition period and, barring amendment of the statute by the 1982 General Assembly, there will be no exceptions after the 1981-82 school year.

Students in grades 1 through 12 are to report to their respective schools on Monday, August 17.

Kindergarten students are to report to their respective schools on Wednesday, August 19.

Alcohol, Drug Unit Adds Staff member

The McDowell Appalachian Regional Hospital's C. P. I. unit, a program for the treatment of persons with chemical dependency problems, has added Glenda Lawson to its staff.

Miss Lawson is a graduate of Pikeville College with a B.S. degree in psychology. She earlier was alcohol outreach coordinator at the Mountain Comprehensive Care Center here and has worked with local schools, churches and community groups. She also helped establish the McDowell drug awareness group in her home town and assisted in coordinating a chemical dependency workshop for the five-county area from which a regional action committee has been established.

The CPI unit offers assessment and evaluation, detoxification upon entering treatment, group and family counseling, A.A. and ALANON involvement and after-care.

Alice Lloyd Students Entertain Children Here

The children and staff of the Floyd County Developmental Child Care Center, Prestonsburg, were entertained by the Alice Lloyd College Appalachian Summer Theatre, Tuesday, July 21. Everyone enjoyed the Jack Tales and other stories directed by Glenda Johnson, and presented by Debbie Blair, Allison Jacobs, Rosalyn Johnson, Cindy Manuel, Terry Manuel, Tim Parker, Mark Rowe, Kevin Patrick, and Rhonda Slone.

Farmers, Gardeners Fight Insects Pests With Germ Warfare

Insects can be real pests. They bite and sting us, often passing on serious diseases, destroy our crops, and as California's Mediterranean fruit fly epidemic demonstrates, they can threaten an entire state's economy. But according to the current issue of Ranger Rick's Nature Magazine, farmers and gardeners are fighting back without using harmful pesticides by "trying to give diseases to insects."

Many growers use a sort of "germ warfare" to rid their crops and gardens of harmful insects. Their weapons are various micro-organisms such as bacteria, viruses, protozoa, and fungi. The environmental advantage to these micro-organisms is that they are "species specific," meaning they do their dirty work on only one insect species. Unlike pesticides, they don't wipe out all the bugs in their path, some of which may be beneficial to the gardener.

The National Wildlife Federation monthly publication for young people notes that a strain of bacteria called milky spore disease is often used to kill Japanese beetles, a common garden pest. Cotton growers also use germ warfare to fight what is probably the most commercially damaging insect, the cotton bollworm. The insects' larvae are buried deep inside the cotton boll, where pesticides can't reach. So nematodes, tiny wormlike organisms usually regarded as pests themselves, are applied to the cotton crop. Carrying with them a bacteria that kills the bollworm larvae, the nematodes consume the dead embryo, leaving the plant intact. Certain bacteria-carrying nematodes are also responsible for leveling such insects as corn borers, cabbageworm larvae, and tobacco budworm larvae.

Unfortunately, some strains of micro-organisms can harm beneficial insects, for as Ranger Rick points out, "just like people, insects can be infected with different kinds of bacteria, viruses, and fungi." While we don't usually notice a bug "with a bug," the honeybee can be struck by two serious diseases feared by beekeepers.

"One of the worst diseases bee larvae can get is called foulbrood," says Ranger Rick. The disease is caused by a type of bacterium which kills the honeybee larvae, leaving behind a bad-smelling hive. No cure has been found.

Joins Rev. Tackett In Revival at Lancer

Geraldine Conway, who began her evangelistic ministry in 1948 at the First United Methodist Church here, will be participating with the Rev. Jay Tackett in a tent revival being held at the intersection of Lake road and KY 1428 at Lancer, she announced this week.

From a tent meeting which she held here later the Community United Methodist Church was built. Mrs. Conway, who is widely known as evangelist, author and radio and television personality, heads the non-profit religious corporation, Geraldine Conway & Associates, Inc., of Columbus, Ohio.

She has conducted revivals in the area surrounding Prestonsburg where she has many relatives, and in Paintsville, Salyersville, West Liberty, Louisa and other area towns.

"I know of the Rev. Tackett's work in Columbus, Ohio and am pleased to be a part of this team," she said here Monday.

"Our goal in this meeting," she added, "is to be used of God to meet individual and community needs and be a channel of blessing to people of all churches, faiths and those of no faith."

SCHOLARSHIPS OFFERED BY PRINCIPALS' ASSN.

More than 200 college scholarships, ranging from $500 to $10,000 each, will be awarded this fall to high school seniors across the United States in the Century III Leaders program.

Applications, which must be filed by October 16, 1981, are available through local school principal's offices. The scholarship awards will total more than $200,000.

Sponsored by the National Association of Secondary School Principals, which represents more than 35,000 secondary school administrators, the Century III Leaders program seeks to stimulate creative thinking among those young people who will be solving the problems of tomorrow.

The scholarship selection process begins at the local high school level. There, students are judged on their leadership abilities, community involvement and awareness of current events.

Advancing to the state level, each school winner then prepares a brief projection which outlines not only a particular need or challenge America is likely to face in its third Century but also how that problem should be solved. In each state (plus the District of Columbia) two finalists are awarded $1,500 scholarships and two alternates are given $500 scholarships.

These 102 finalists receive all-expense-paid trips to Colonial Williamsburg, Virginia, to attend the national Century III Leaders Alumni Program. In addition to receiving a newsletter, alumni may apply for grants of up to $5,000 (beginning in their senior year of college) for post-graduate study or to support research in a public service agency.

Funding for the Century III Leaders program is provided by Shell Oil Company, which has supported the program since 1976 when it was called "Bicentennial Seniors." The Century III Leaders program is an outgrowth of that project.

Use Of Electric Power Hit Record High, July 27

When the 89-degree temperature of July 27 combined with high humidity, electrical usage by Kentucky Power Company customers reached an all time high for summer months.

A new summer peak of 802,000 kilowatts was established that day, according to W. W. Zoellers, Pikeville division manager. That is an increase of 12,000 kilowatts over the August 11, 1980 peak of 790,000 kilowatts.

Zoellers said air conditioning is a major factor in setting a summer peak. "Despite the efforts of customers to conserve energy, high temperatures and humidity can get unbearable and air conditioners are turned on. When that happens, usage is increased and electric bills will reflect the energy consumed to cool homes and offices," he added.

"Citizens Speak Out" Slated Aug. 13 at Pike Courthouse

State legislators from the area will be on hand to meet with the public at a "Citizens Speak Out" session to be held Thursday, August 13, in the circuit courtroom, Pike county courthouse.

The session, which will begin at 7:30 p.m., will provide citizens an opportunity to express their views on a wide range of legislative issues important to all Kentuckians.

The Pikeville Speak Out session is the 10th of 17 such meetings scheduled this year at various locations around the state.

While the meeting will be open to the public for discussion of any topic, six issues are on the agenda for discussion and will be addressed by the legislators. They include unemployment insurance, worker's compensation, reform of prevailing wage, unemployment insurance, worker's compensation and other such laws affecting small business, coal transportation problems (vehicle regulation), state road construction and financing (highway and highway enforcement), synthetic fuels.

Representative Herbie Deskins is scheduled to serve as the moderator for the meeting.

The Citizens Speak Out program, which began in 1979, has become an annual initiative of the General Assembly and the Legislative Research Commission. It is designed to encourage citizen participation in the legislative process by providing Kentuckians with an opportunity to voice their views directly to the General Assembly in a town meeting setting, with area legislators serving on a panel, listening to constituents' comments, entertaining their questions and responding to their concerns.

Unit Pricing at Supermarket Can Make Comparisons Easier

Each time you go to the supermarket, it seems grocery shopping has become a little more confusing. The computer age has hit the supermarket, and such things as computerized check-outs, electronic scanners, unit pricing and product codes have made grocery shopping a complicated game.

Attorney General Steve Beshear advises Kentucky consumers to become aware of these new developments and learn to use them to obtain the most economical purchases.

Unit pricing was probably one of the first developments related to modern supermarket shopping. In most stores, the price of an item is marked on the product, and both the unit price and product price are marked on the shelf.

The unit price is the price you pay per unit of weight, count or measure (ounce, pound, etc.) for the product. For example, if a 28-ounce jar of peanut butter costs $3.64, divide 3.64 by 28 to get $.13 per ounce as the unit price.

When you know the price per ounce, you can compare several different sizes of peanut butter to find the one with the lowest price per ounce.

Remember, though, unit pricing is designed to help you in making price comparisons between various sizes and brands of a similar product. Like products must be compared—for instance, paper towels with paper towels, not paper towels with napkins, or per pound with per pound, not per pound with per quart.

When you compare cost per unit (ounce, serving, etc.) to see which item is most economical, it is not how much but "how much per—" that counts. Bigger may not always be better.

Many people select a larger product size and just assume the unit cost is lower. This is not always true. Store sales and price competition between stores can sometimes result in lower unit costs for smaller, more popular sizes.

By using the unit prices stores provide, you can determine which size is the best buy. If unit price information is not provided, or if the item is on special sale, a pocket calculator can easily give you the unit price for any item.

Be careful when using unit pricing. Remember to compare similar products and watch for errors in pricing—for example, two exact products, each marked with a different price.

Some stores have stopped marking product prices individually but are instead using only shelf pricing. This making it more difficult to compare product costs and to spot mistakes the check-out. Even though grocers claim shelf pricing will lower their costs and they may be able to pass this savings on to customers, consumer reaction to this new pricing policy will ultimately determine its future.

Those who think unit pricing is a bother or who are consistently brand loyal may benefit from taking a second look at comparison shopping with the help of unit pricing. Knowing how to read and use unit prices can save you money.

"Consumers should do some shopping around, checking and figuring prices, to obtain the best buy," Beshear says. "Wise shopping is the best way to win at the grocery game."

676,105 Columbia Gas customers are on the Budget Payment Plan. It's no surprise.

YOUR METER WILL STILL BE READ REGULARLY. THESE FIGURES SHOW THE AMOUNT OF GAS USED TO HELP YOU KEEP AN EYE ON CONSERVATION.

THIS IS HOW MUCH YOU PAID LAST MONTH... THE SAME MANAGEABLE PAYMENT AS THIS MONTH AND EVERY MONTH WHEN YOU'RE ON THE PLAN.

THESE FIGURES, BASED ON YOUR GAS USAGE, SHOW WHERE YOUR ACCOUNT STANDS EVERY MONTH.

THIS IS YOUR MONTHLY BUDGET PAYMENT AMOUNT TO JOIN THE PLAN, PAY THIS AMOUNT IN AUGUST.

EVEN WHEN YOUR "PRESENT ACCOUNT BALANCE" IS HIGHER, YOU'LL PAY ONLY THE BUDGET PAYMENT AMOUNT SHOWN HERE.

More and more people are keeping a lid on winter heating bills with Columbia's Budget Payment Plan. They pay a predictable amount for gas every month. No extremes. And no heating bill surprises when the temperature takes a dive.

Here's how it works. In August, Columbia Gas calculates what you will probably pay for natural gas during the next 12 months based on your previous usage. That cost is then averaged out so you pay a manageable amount each month.

To get on the Budget Payment Plan, simply pay the amount indicated as "MONTHLY BUDGET" on your August bill. Nothing further is needed. There's no service charge for this convenience. And next July, you will be billed your budget amount plus or minus any difference between your total annual budget and the actual amount used during the year.

The Columbia Gas Budget Payment Plan can make at least one part of your family budget predictable every month of the year. And August is the time to get on the plan. And while you're thinking about lower heating bills, ask for our "Everyday Energy Saver's Guide." It's free at any Columbia Gas office, and offers hundreds of tips on conserving energy.

Quilt-Maker Since Age 10
She's College Freshman at 78

STARTING COLLEGE—Lucy Butcher Parker, a great-great grandmother with 68 years of quilt-making experience, will enter Morehead State University this fall as a freshman. After completing speech and composition requirements this summer, she plans to enroll in shorthand and composition this fall.

Lucy Butcher Parker's 78th year has been filled with firsts. The Rowan county resident received her high school diploma through the GED program. She made her first visit to W-Hollow, the home of author Jesse Stuart. She publicly displayed the results of her 68 years of quilt-making experience and, at Morehead State University, she is enrolled in college for the first time in her life.

Mrs. Parker already has completed MSU's first summer session and is as nervous as any other freshman about her grades.

"I haven't received a grade for my speech class yet," she said. "But I feel sure I'll get at least a 'B'."

Born in Johnson county, Mrs. Parker has lived most of her life just outside Morehead. She was a mother to nine children and has 25 grandchildren, 22 great-grandchildren, and two great-great-grandchildren.

Quilting is the craftwork she has pursued most of her life and Mrs. Parker is known as one of the finest and most prolific quiltmakers in the Morehead area.

"I've been keeping a record since 1955," she said. "Since then, I've made more than 220 quilts but most of them have been sold to people who live away from here."

People always are responding to the hand-lettered "Quilts-Gifts" sign in front of her home in the community of Gates. Visitors from across the country stop to discuss quilts with her.

"A couple from Texas stopped the other day and wanted to know if I could make them a 'Lone Star' quilt," she said. "They wanted a particular color and, when they get the material back to me, I'll make it for them."

Mrs. Parker's quilting has come between periods in her life on the MSU campus. A student for one semester 61 years ago at the old Morehead Normal School, she still does not dream of what to do with a college degree but attends for the enjoyment of learning.

"I have bad ankles and I have to use a cane to get to class sometimes," she said. "But the students and professors treated me just like one of the bunch. I don't think I've ever had more fun."

In the fall semester, Mrs. Parker says she will continue her college experience in other classes. She plans to study composition, shorthand, and to take a Bible literature class.

Along with the study, Mrs. Parker has plans to fly to see relatives later this year and she also is going to see the ocean, two more things she has never done before. At the ocean, she plans to wear shorts and a swim suit for the first time.

Yes, Lucy B. Parker's 78th year has been a real experience!

State To Handle Block Grants

Kentucky will run the Small-Cities Community Development Block Grant Program in the state next year, not the federal government, Gov. John Y. Brown Jr. announced last Friday. The move is expected to make the program more responsive to Kentucky's needs.

To prepare for the changeover, the state Department of Community and Regional Development is revising the criteria it will use to select projects to be funded.

Usually the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development administers the block grant program for all states. The agency uses its own criteria for deciding which communities get grants. But last year Kentucky and Wisconsin successfully sought participation in a HUD demonstration program designed to judge the effect of letting states pick eligible communities.

"I support the concept of block grants because it reduces the administrative costs and unnecessary

The amount of money to be raised by this sale shall include costs of this action, including costs of advertising of this sale and the fees and commissions for conducting this sale. This property is being sold to settle the estate of the late Dennis and Brooksey Cordial.

For the purchase price the purchaser must execute bond with approved surety or sureties, bearing legal interest from the day of sale until paid and having the force and effect of a judgment with a lien retained upon said property as a further security. Bidders will be prepared to comply with these terms.

red tape that are associated with categorical grants. There is a parallel question such as funding. "Brown said. "In order to make the block grants work, adequate funds must be provided."

Small cities block grants are used to remove slums and blighted areas, improve public services such as water and sewer facilities, and carry out economic development activities. In 1980 Kentucky granted $10.5 million to 18 small cities.

Last year the department used selection criteria similar to those HUD used in other states, but taking into account Kentucky's needs, said Commerce Secretary Bruce Lunsford. This year the department is developing guidelines even more tailored to Kentucky, he added.

To help draft those guidelines the department is soliciting recommendations from several organizations through a policy advisory committee. A draft of the proposed criteria was submitted to the committee Aug. 4. Represented on the panel are these organizations: the Kentucky Municipal League, the Kentucky Association of County Officials, the Kentucky Council of Area Development Districts, the Kentucky Area Development District Directors Association, the Kentucky County Judges Association and the Community Development Directors Association.

After considering suggestions from that group, the department will develop a final draft of the criteria. That task is expected to be completed in early fall, according to department Commissioner Andrew "Skipper" Martin.

The state's allocation for the federal fiscal year is not yet known, he added.

Post Mined Land
Wildlife Seminar
Scheduled Here

Development of land for wildlife use, one of 11 post-mining land use alternatives allowed by the Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act, will be discussed for coal operators in two seminars August 13 and October 6.

The August 13 seminar will be held at May Lodge, Jenny Wiley State Park, and on October 6, the program will be repeated for operators in the Harlan area at Southeast Community College at Cumberland.

Proposal to Make PVAs Appointment Shelved by Panel

A proposal for appointing instead of electing property valuation administrators was shelved by a legislative subcommittee last week after Revenue Commissioner Robert Alphin indicated that he no longer is promoting the idea.

"I'm not going to press it," Alphin said after he spoke briefly to the subcommittee on property tax of the the interim Joint Committee on Appropriations and Revenue.

The commissioner also said that at the state PVA association's summer session it apparently voted 66-0 against the proposed change.

The proposal had been advocated as one means of removing local PVAs from political pressures to keep their assessments low and avoid antagonizing potential voters.

"It's awful hard to take this out of the political arena," Allen County PVA Roger Pitchford told the legislators.

Alphin indicated that he does not think his agency has lost any ground in the matter.

"If you read the (latest state) Supreme Court decision, you'll find the Revenue Department's authority is clearly delineated," he said. "I doubt if we could gain any more power if the PVAs were made appointive."

The Supreme Court's decision said the Revenue Department has the authority to order PVAs to increase real estate valuations. The decision came after scores of counties resisted the department's order to do so.

Horse Park Not Cut

The Kentucky Horse Park has received numerous telephone calls concerning the park's future operation in light of Gov. John Y. Brown, Jr.'s recent cutbacks of several state park operations, horse park officials say.

A spokesperson for the Horse Park said the park is not a state park, perse, inasmuch as it is operated by a board and an executive director; and its operating times will not be affected by the governor's recent budget cutting actions.

The park's hours are from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily, closed Mondays and Tuesdays from Nov. 1 to March 15; closed Thanksgiving Day, and closed for the holiday period Dec. 24 to Jan. 1. The campground is open year round without holidays, and operates on a reduced arate structure between Oct. 1 and March 31.

During the off season, Nov. 1 to March 15, the park has a reduced ticket structure, no general admission fee and no fee for parking.

The Kentucky Horse Park is six miles north of Lexington on Iron Works Pike, just off Highway 1-75.

PBS in the spotlight

Four PBS stations unite to present "Playhouse"

Estelle Parsons displays her flair for comedy as she portrays a middle-aged woman with psychic powers in the humorous teleplay, "Come Along With Me," which will be aired on PBS in 1982 as part of the new public television drama series, "Playhouse." Barbara Baxley and Sylvia Sidney are also starred in the program which was directed by Joanne Woodward. "Playhouse" will be televised nationally on Tuesday evenings over a period of 25 consecutive weeks, beginning Tuesday, January 5, 1982. Programs will vary in length from one to two hours each, and some productions will be aired in multiple episodes. "Playhouse" marks public television's first concerted effort at broadcasting a continuing series of high-quality dramatic productions. A consortium of four public television stations—KCET (Los Angeles), South Carolina ETV, WGBH (Boston) and WNET (New York)—will present the new offering. "Playhouse" is a cooperative drama venture designed to combine the best of original American production and programming from abroad," said David M. Davis, executive producer of the series. "It is hoped the project will attract the finest American creative talent from the independent film and video communities, production companies and public television stations." During its premiere season, "Playhouse" will offer original dramas by American authors; special adaptations drawn from the wealth of existing American literature; multi-part, episodic dramas especially created for television; and adaptations of important American stage works re-discovered for the television audience. Authors, writers and composers represented in "Playhouse" include: Ray Bradbury, Leon Capetanos, John Cheever, Tom Cole, Jacques Futrelle, Eric Stanley Gardner, Percy Granger, Micki Grant, Shirley Jackson, Frances and Richard Lockridge, B.J. Merholz and Julian Mitchell. The series will also feature an outstanding array of performers. To date, that roster includes: Barbara Baxley, Trazana Beverly, Scatman Crothers, John Cullum, Fred Gwynne, Lance Kerwin, Chris Makepeace, Barry Miller, Ed Olmos, Estelle Parsons, Telly Savalas, Sylvia Sidney and Sam Waterston.

THE MONASTERY

In the fifteen years since Vatican II, monastic communities have experienced a dramatic upheaval as ancient traditions of absolute silence, fasting and penance have given way to a modern search for God, human fulfillment and community.

ABC News "Closeup" goes behind the cloistered walls of a Trappist monastery to examine the effect the contemporary world has had on its centuries-old customs in "The Monastery," THURSDAY, AUGUST 20, on ABC-TV.

In the documentary, monks of all ages describe the personal sacrifices as well as the enormous gratification and feelings of joy which have resulted from their chosen way of life.

The report, produced by Helen Whitney, was filmed at St. Joseph's Abbey in Spencer, Massachusetts.

Auto Complaints Highest, Attorney-General Reports

"Tax dollars which went to support the consumer protection division in 1980 was money well spent," said Attorney General Steven L. Beshear in releasing the 1980 Report on the State of Consumer Affairs in Kentucky.

"More than $1 million was returned to the consumers in the commonwealth in the form of restitution and civil penalties in 1980, which is more than $350,000 over the consumer protection division's annual appropriation," said Beshear. This was the result of action taken by the division on 7,142 complaints and 88 court cases in 1980.

The overall productivity in the division of consumer protection increased by approximately 40 percent over 1979, based on the number of lawsuits, number of complaints handled and number of educational efforts per staff member. There was an increase of 15 percent in complaints received by the division, with a corresponding reduction in response time to new complaints. In addition, 76 percent of the complaints were satisfactorily resolved, with a majority of the other complaints being referred for investigation and possible litigation.

Automobile problems were the basis for more complaints than any other category in 1980. New car complaints totaled 487, while there were 422 complaints in the area of used-car sales. Mail order complaints ranked second with 526 received. Other areas receiving large numbers of complaints included utilities, insurance and fitness clubs.

"Because of my conviction that consumer education is the best long-term investment we can make in the consumer area, in 1980 the educational function of the division received major emphasis and reached more than 90,000 Kentuckians. A complete revision and reprinting of the division's literature was accomplished, and elderly and low-income consumers were targeted for special programs during this past year," said Beshear.

An educational program for senior citizens was developed, and workshops were held in each of the 15 area development districts in Kentucky during 1980. These workshops covered a variety of consumer topics which senior citizens had indicated were of concern to them.

In addition, the division formulated a program with the Department for Human Resources in an effort to distribute consumer educational materials especially designed for the low-income consumer. This pilot project in the Fayette County area will be evaluated for possible use statewide.

Included in their studies were seamanship, close order drill, Naval history and first aid. He joined the Navy in April.

Finally, in 1980 the division was awarded a $28,000 federal grant for the production of a consumer catalog for Kentucky. This catalog, which will be available in October 1981, will inform consumers of their rights and obligations, how to purchase goods and services, how to solve problems they experience in the marketplace and give them specific referrals to agencies which deal with consumer problems.
