

Court Moves To Strengthen Waste Agency

Twenty-Year Contract With Exclusive Rights Gets Court Approval

The fiscal court moved last week to strengthen its newly-operating solid waste agency, authorizing Judge-Executive Bill Wells to negotiate a 20-year contract which will give the agency exclusive operating rights in this county.

The move, which was approved over the opposition of Magistrate Kenneth Roberts, was viewed by some as a means of forestalling any attempt by an incoming county administration to dismantle the agency and return to the franchise system it replaced.

Bob McAninch, chairman of the solid waste agency, said the fiscal court decision was designed to protect investors holding $1.5 million in bonds financing the system.

Tardy collection of fees is reported to be dogging the new system, although McAninch said the collection rate will not be known until the first billing cycle is complete, in a week or two.

Sherrill Frazier, of Martin, was appointed to the solid waste system's rate-setting agency, replacing Henry Harris, Jr., who resigned. McAninch and Magistrate Hershel Hamilton also serve on the agency.

Reluctance on the part of District 1 Magistrate Ray Wilcox threatened to frustrate proponents of two projects in that district—construction of a community park at Auxier and of a bridge to span Middle Creek at Mill Branch.

When Harry Hager asked that Martin architects Hoffmann and Burchett be authorized to design the park project.

Floyd Countian, Prison Escapee, Slain, Pal Shot

Greenberry Tackett, 39, the former Mud Creek man who has been sought since his "escape" from Kentucky state reformatory custody July 10, was shot and killed in Pasadena, Calif., last Thursday, authorities here have been notified.

A companion, Ronald McGroarty, 41, was critically wounded at the same time.

According to reports received here, the two were shot by a Pasadena man after they had forced their way into a house there.

The two are said to have gone to the house and to have forced their way in after being refused entry by Francell Peck, 75, who had answered the door.

The ensuing commotion reportedly attracted the attention of Walter Cleveland, 39, who was upstairs at the time.

Cleveland confronted Tackett on a stairway, wrested a .41 magnum revolver from him, and shot him in the course of a scuffle, according to the reports.

Cleveland is then said to have pursued McGroarty, shooting him in the doorway of the house. Tackett died later at a nearby hospital, where McGroarty was taken in critical condition.

Both men are reported to have been in Las Vegas, Nev., prior to the incident. Police are also seeking a third suspect and a black Dodge pickup.

At the time of his escape, Tackett was serving a 21-year prison term for the slaying in this county of Carlos (Dicky) Hall. He had been assigned to work on the prison farm and was paroled for a visit to relatives in this county "to refamiliarize himself with his family," authorities here said. He did not return to the prison and had been hunted since that time.

Club Asks New Road Named for Carroll

Spearheading a move that is under way in other counties of the area, the Prestonsburg Kiwanis Club adopted at its meeting last week a resolution asking that new KY 80 be officially designated the Julian Carroll Parkway in honor of the former Kentucky governor who is responsible for the building of the highway.

The resolution, signed by Leonard D. Grant, club president, pointed out, in part:

"Julian Carroll as a Governor of Kentucky, from the flat-lands of Western Kentucky, recognized the need of a modern highway connecting Hazard and Prestonsburg;

District Health Plan Nears Approval Here

Floyd health officials appear likely to yield soon to mounting state pressure aimed at welding four Big Sandy-area health departments into a single district.

The pressure results from a statewide plan to shift public health responsibilities from individual counties to multicounty districts.

The original plan called for a health district to be made of the five health departments of the Big Sandy area. However, recent indications are that Pike county will be permitted to remain independent.

Floyd Health Department Administrator Earl Compton said this week that the department's board of directors may soon ask for a fiscal court resolution that would pave the way for Floyd county's amalgamation with Johnson, Martin and Magoffin health departments under a single district administration.

Johnson and Magoffin fiscal courts have already voted to join the district.

While Human Resources Secretary Grady Stumbo had yet to convince him of the value of "districting," Compton said, the state's considerable influence on local health department budgets leaves individual counties with little choice in the matter.

Of the $635,000 budgeted for the Floyd health department this year, about $420,000 is expected to come from federal sources and $75,000 from the state. However, the state has made about a quarter of its allocation—nearly $20,000—dependent on the local health department's agreement to join a district.

The likelihood that, after October, federal dollars for public health will also be channeled through block grants to the states means that those funds, too, will fall increasingly under state control.

In Compton's view, the state has so far failed to prove its contention that districting will yield equivalent or better services at equivalent or reduced cost. "Because they were unable to sell their (districting) plan on its merits, they have resorted to blackmail," he said.

Under the state plan, Floyd county will be forced to bear a disproportionate share of the cost of providing public health services in the four-county district, Compton said.

Nevertheless, Floyd would enjoy greater representation on the district health board overseeing health departments in the four counties, since board membership would be based partly on population.

Under the state formula, Floyd could expect to have five members, including the county judge-executive, on the district board. Johnson county would have three representatives, and Martin and Magoffin counties two apiece.

Kentucky has traditionally had 120 county health departments, operated by local health boards under state guidelines. Thirty-seven counties are currently amalgamated in nine health districts. Of the 83 health departments still independent at the beginning of this year, 32 have voted to join districts.

Counties have until the end of this month to accept the districting plan or else forfeit at least 25 percent of their state health funds, state officials have said.

One issue in the districting controversy is the question of local control. Under the state plan, most power would rest with the district health boards, which would design and control programs and hire district administrators and medical directors.

While local officials would retain control over local health taxes, they would be reduced to "figurehead" status, in Compton's view.

In any event, people would still receive public health services at county health centers.

The Floyd health department employs a staff of 21, including the administrator, two environmentalists, five registered nurses, a licensed practical nurse, two community health workers, a nutritionist, a health educator, seven clerk-typists, and a physician.

Huddleston Meet Set

Juvenile Center Operation Seen For 7 Counties

The juvenile detention center here, vacant since the state Department for Human Resources withdrew June 1, may begin operation again under the management of a non-profit corporation.

The Floyd fiscal court last week approved a resolution committing the county to the project, a joint venture with neighboring counties. Human Resources Secretary Grady Stumbo indicated that the state would provide some financial support, without yet specifying the amount.

Under the plan, the facility would double its occupancy rate, which averaged around 10 youths daily last year, and would operate with an expanded staff. The center is designed to accommodate 25 inmates.

One DHR staff report calls for the expansion of the staff from 11 to 15 and estimates that, with a daily occupancy of 20, about $200,000 would be required for a year's operation. In addition to the anticipated state funds, participating counties will be asked to support the facility in proportion to the use they make of it.

Besides this county, Johnson, Magoffin, Knott, Martin, Morgan and Lawrence counties are said to have in-

Detective Says Prater Cr. Man To Be Charged

Although investigators of the abduction-murder of Michael Dwayne Cline, 17-year-old Emma youth whose body was found in Perry county late Saturday afternoon, have not admitted having firm proof of the identity of his slayer, State Detective Danny Stumbo said Tuesday morning that he would swear out a murder warrant later in the day for Elisha Branham, Jr., 23.

Branham, the last person known to have been with Cline at the Allen service station where Cline was employed, also is missing.

His father, Elisha Branham, Sr., of Prater Creek, has told investigators that he thinks his son also has been killed.

The warrant is expected to bring the Federal Bureau of Investigation into the search for the missing man.

Earlier in the course of the investigation, Detective Stumbo named Branham in a warrant alleging robbery. It was said that $1344 was taken from the service station cash register, the night the two disappeared.

Murder-Robbery Seen by Probers; One Yet Missing

The weeks-long search for the whereabouts of Michael Dwayne Cline, Emma youth who had been missing since the night of July 9, ended late last Saturday afternoon in the discovery of his body on Brown's Fork, Perry County.

The decomposed body was found by a squirrel-hunter, approximately 150 feet off the Daniel Boone Parkway and about five miles from Hazard.

The youthful victim would have been 18 today (Wednesday) and would have been a member of the senior class at Prestonsburg High School which opened Monday.

Identification of the body was made from a billfold containing young Cline's driver's license and from clothing. After the body had been taken to the Engle Funeral Home at Hazard, it was sent to Louisville for autopsy by Dr. George Nichols, chief state medical examiner, who awaited only the arrival of dental records to make identification as the missing youth complete. Those records were supplied Tuesday.

Mrs. Dove Brashear, who assisted her husband, Deputy Coroner Denny Brashear, in removing the body to Hazard, said a white towel was tied around both legs.

Dr. Nichols said the victim had been shot twice in his head and one time in his leg. A small-calibre weapon was used, it was indicated.

Joining in the investigation were State Detectives Richard Ray, Don Weedman and Danny Stumbo and Commonwealth's Detective Tom Halbert.

Discovery of the body was the first break in the mystery surrounding the disappearance of Cline and Branham. The search in which several hundred participated did not extend to Perry county.

FIRST DAY OF SCHOOL for Floyd pupils, Monday, brought long faces to many youngsters who, no doubt, experienced something of a "sinking" feeling as they entered through foreboding school doors, thereby bidding an official farewell to summer vacation. But by the time play period rolled around, most seemed well satisfied to take advantage of playground equipment and renew old acquaintances, as in this photo taken during recess at Prestonsburg Elementary.

Jury To Decide Murder Penalty

Five times Charles Douglas Miracle changed his pleas from guilty to not guilty and vice versa after he had been charged with the murder of Lexington cab driver John Willard in Johnson county, finally going to trial last week in the Johnson circuit court on a plea of not guilty. But the trail jury apparently settled the matter. It held him guilty.

The conviction, which could result in the death penalty, will be followed next Monday by formal sentencing. Attorneys for the prosecution and defense will present to the jury arguments emphasizing on the one hand the enormity of his crime and on the other any mitigating circumstances. The jury then will pass sentence.

The Lexington man's body was found last March 1 on the rural Little Mud Lick road in Johnson county. He had been shot several times in his back. Miracle was arrested the following day in Salyersville, where the taxicab was found.

The defendant is a multiple sclerosis sufferer.

Ky's Swiss Heritage Focus of Festival

A parade, exhibits, folk dancing and a visit by a top Swiss diplomat are among highlights of a centennial celebration scheduled for Aug. 21-22 near London.

The festivities mark the anniversary of the settlement of the Bernstadt community by more than 100 Swiss families.

In 1881 a group of mostly rural Swiss citizens banded together and immigrated to the U.S. It is unclear why they chose to do so and why they decided to move inland to Kentucky, says Elden Keller, an organizer of the celebration. Keller is a member of a local historical group called the Association of Swiss Descendants.

In any event, the group settled in Laurel county named the new community Bernstadt, after the Swiss city of Bern.

Several descendants of the original families are expected to be on hand for the celebration, which will begin at 8 p.m. Friday, Aug. 21, at Levi Jackson State Park. Swiss Consul General for the Southeastern U.S., Hector E. Graber, is expected to speak. Also scheduled to deliver remarks is Ted Sauer, director of the state Commerce Cabinet's international division.

A parade and beauty pageant are planned for Saturday in London, with participants dressed in traditional Swiss costumes.

Also planned for the weekend are exhibits, yodeling demonstrations, Swiss dancing and other attractions. Levi Jackson's gift shop will feature items from Switzerland.

Ministers-On-Call

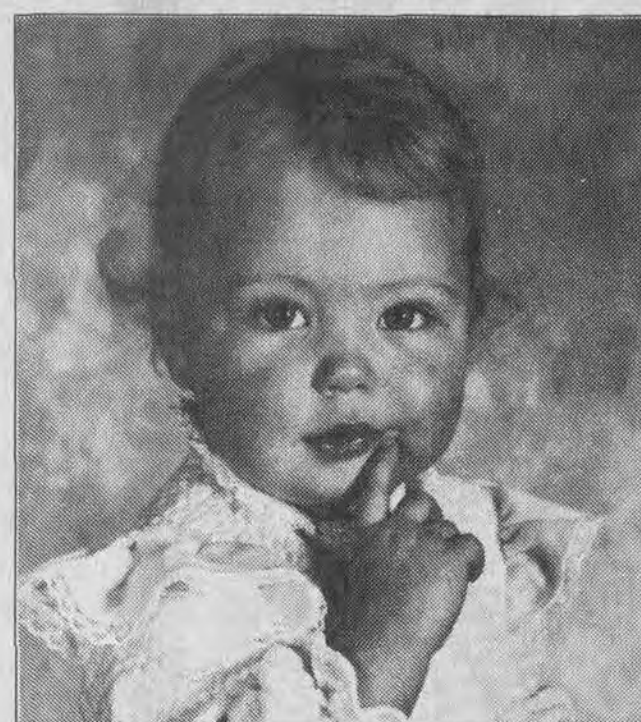

All area ministers are being encouraged to attend an organizational meeting for the new Minister-on-Call program at Highlands Regional Medical Center.

Interested ministers will meet August 25, at 2 p.m. in the second floor conference room of HRMC. Input and suggestions from all will be sought.

The program involves regular visits to the hospital during a given week that a minister is on call and being available for emergency visits. Future plans are to pre-record the minister-on-call's sermon to be broadcast on the hospital's television system each Sunday.

Ministers interested in joining the program or have any questions about it are being asked to contact Billie Goble, director of Social Services, at 886-8511, extension 257.

Celebration Like Friendly Visit

Hominy and homemade soap will be two old-fashioned stars of a Down-on-the-Farm Festival, Sept. 4-7, at the Jackson Farm near Wellington, Ky. Wellington is in Menifee county, just on the edge of Daniel Boone National Forest, northeast of Natural Bridge.

Festival organizer Lee Jackson says the celebration will be like an old-fashioned visit among friends; and activities will be kept as simple and as old-time as possible. There will be soup beans simmering outdoors in a 60-gallon kettle, homemade soap boiling over an open fire and bubbling hominy cooking nearby.

Jackson says her festival evolved from an annual homecoming that was held for persons in Menifee county many years ago, and it eventually "got out of hand." "Next thing we knew, there were people from all over the state coming to the county homecoming (that was held one weekend each year). This year we have people coming from as far as New York City to the festival."

She said the event is also an effort to attract revenue into Menifee county. "With our county being among the highest in unemployment, we thought we would do our part in bringing more money into the county," she said.

Hayrides will be offered over the 160-acre farm and, according to Jackson, there's great fishing and swimming in a nearby mountain-fed creek as well as hiking in Daniel Boone National Forest.

Old-time craft demonstrations, lots of good food and plenty of music will be there and about 80 dealers will display and sell flea-market items.

Most of the activity will center around an old cabin on the Jackson Farm, filled with craft demonstrations during the four days. In the evenings, the cabin's front porch will become a stage for musicians.

The festival gets underway about 9 a.m. Friday, Sept. 4, and runs until 6 p.m. Monday. Admission and all activities are free to the public. Camping on the farm is $2 per night.

Visitors traveling I-64 should take US-460 about 3 miles west of Mount Sterling to Wellington and then follow the signs to the Jackson Farm on Ky-1693.

More information may be obtained by writing Lee or John Jackson, Box 56, Wellington, KY 40387, or calling (606) 768-2482.

About one-fifth of the 4.3 million eligible veterans will lose their eligibility for benefits this year, according to the Veterans Administration. The law permits a veteran to use the education benefits within 10 years following discharge from service, or by Dec. 31, 1989, whichever is earlier.

A new program, which requires financial participation by service personnel, is available for those who entered the military after Dec. 31, 1976.

Carroll Is Due the Honor

The Times would add a hearty "amen" to the resolution adopted this week by the Prestonsburg Kiwanis Club, asking state officials to designate new KY 80, the modern four-lane highway from Water Gap in this county to Hazard in Perry county, the Julian Carroll Parkway.

Nobody has with justification ever objected to the naming of the Mountain Parkway in honor of Former Governor Bert Combs, for Bert Combs dared to build this, the first modern highway linking the Blue Grass with the Mountains. The same can be said for naming new KY 80 for Ex-Governor Carroll.

Although Carroll had help from many, including Congressman Carl D. Perkins, it was the Kentucky governor who planned and led legislation through the General Assembly, making financing of the stupendous road-building venture possible. It was he who as one observer said, "took the heat."

Next to Governor Combs, he was possibly the best friend this area has had in the governor's office. When a portion of new KY 80 was dedicated at Water Gap, shortly before his term of office expired, Governor Carroll pointed out that the road was being built to an unusual thickness to stand up under the heavy traffic it would bear and that he had seen to it that, no matter who succeeded him as governor, nobody could ever stop its construction.

It is not taking away from any other deserving leader honor due for honorable services rendered to name this road for Julian Carroll. It is the least we can do to urge such recognition for a flatlander who sympathized with the highlands' plight and did something about it.

ject, Wilcox ignored a request by Judge-Executive Wells for a motion to that effect, and other magistrates were unwilling to tamper with a court custom of deferring to a fellow-magistrate on issues particular to his own district.

The issue was shelved until later in the meeting when Wilcox agreed to make the necessary motion, which passed unanimously.

Bob Burchett, of Prestonsburg, offered to deed land to the county for a 700-foot road to serve Mill Branch, on which a farm he owns is located, and to build a bridge across Middle Creek there, provided the fiscal court would accept the bridge and road on the county road program.

Wells repeatedly sought a motion approving the deal, arguing that a housing development planned by Burchett and Tom O. McGuire would be of benefit to citizens in that section.

The county's acceptance of responsibility for the project would also enable the developers to bypass permitting requirements of the Department for Natural Resources and the Army Corps of Engineers, it was said.

Over the objection of Magistrate Wilcox, who argued against the county's accepting the road until the project was complete, Wells himself moved to accept the offer. Wilcox was persuaded to second the motion, which passed without further objection.

Auxiliary residents again complained of drainage problems in that section, and urged the court to block access to an illegal dump there. Judge Wells urged the complainants to file suit against individuals said to be responsible for the drainage problems but offered no immediate solution for the illegal dumping.

The county road serving the dump could not be closed, he said, and policing the area effectively would be impracticable.

Representatives of two child-care agencies who sought financial assistance from the court received sympathy but little more. Verna Cole, area supervisor for the Floyd County Rural Child Care/Head Start Program, which serves preschoolers at Drift and Dwaile, said the group needs a mini-bus and must also replace equipment recently damaged by flooding.

Cleda Wells, director of the Floyd County Developmental Child Care Program, asked for the court's assistance in replacing a teacher lost as a result of the phase-out of the CETA program.

Dinwood residents successfully resisted a move by Morris Isaacs, representing a coal tippie there, to have the 10-ton weight limit removed from the road serving the area.

While Isaacs disclaimed any intention of hauling coal over the road, the court chose to let the weight limit stand.

In response to requests for financial assistance to extend Beaver-Elkhorn Water District lines on Salt Lick Creek and at Hite, Judge Wells urged that engineers study the proposals and make recommendations before county funds are committed to the work.

dedicated support for the project. In the past, Floyd juveniles have represented 38 percent of the center's population.

The plan for reopening the facility was discussed at a July 27 meeting between Dr. Stumbo and representatives of five participating counties. District judges in the area, including Floyd District Judge Harold Stumbo, had strongly urged continued operation of the center, which has housed an average of 218 juvenile offenders annually since its opening and housed 295-236 males and 59 females—in 1979-80, its peak operating year.

According to the DHR staff report quoted earlier, the juvenile detention center here was "a very efficient operation."

Named as Floyd county representatives on the corporation being set up to manage the facility were Judge-Executive Bill Wells, Frank Arnett, and Teresa Fitzpatrick.

A pickup truck stolen from the Big Y used car lot, the night the two disappeared, was found last week on Salt Lick Creek. It had been burned.

For Cline's parents the finding of their son's body climaxed weeks of worry and grief. They had offered a reward of $2000 for information leading to the finding of their son and had received scores of false reports.

His mother was quoted as saying, "We'd like to thank all our friends and neighbors. We just thank God that we found him."

When and if the mystery surrounding the case is cleared, the trial of young Cline's abductor and the robbery of the cash register at the Texaco Self-Service Station at Allen where the youth worked will be heard in circuit court here. Unless it is proved that his death occurred elsewhere, the resulting murder case would be heard in Perry county.

Commonwealth's Attorney James R. Allen said Tuesday:

"This was a premeditated crime."

The victim was the son of James Claude Cline and Edith McPeak Cline, of Emma. He was born at Paintsville, Aug. 19, 1963. Besides his parents, he is survived by one brother, Earl Allen Cline, and a sister, Mrs. Teresa Spurlock, both of Emma. His funeral will be conducted at 1 p.m. tomorrow (Thursday) from the chapel of the Hall Funeral Home by the Rev. Bill Campbell. Burial will be made in Davidson Memorial Gardens at Ivel.

The robbery warrant was procured to enter Branham's name in the nationwide computer-system search.

Also missing is the automobile owned by young Branham's father.

"We've not heard one thing," the elder Branham was quoted as saying. "There's been no trace of the car or my boy. My feeling is, my boy is killed too."

He fears that whoever killed young Cline also killed his son.

Charles Dickens' pen name was "Boz".

Those Who Care

In this world of push and shove, it's not every day we find someone who still takes time out of a busy day to care about his friends and neighbors.

If they were giving out awards for the Good Citizen of the Day I'm sure Mr. and Mrs. Homer Hall, of Weeksbury, who run Hall's Bypro Market, would get the largest award.

They are always there to help a neighbor, and I've not heard it fail that when there is a death in the area, they send boxes of food to help out the family in their time of need.

Maybe, in our time of sorrow, we forget to say thanks. I'm sure we've heard the old saying, "you've got to stop and smell the roses." I think we should also stop and recognize our good people in this old world.

MR. AND MRS. FREEMAN PATRICK Bypro, Ky.

From a Chaplain

In writing to the Church at Corinth the Apostle Paul stated in 1 Cor. 9:22b-23, "I am made all things to all men, that I might by all means save some. And this I do for the gospel's sake, that I might be partaker thereof with you."

To me, as battalion chaplain, this scripture does not mean that I curse with those who curse; or drink alcoholic beverages with those who drink in order to share with them in their times of depression or loneliness or in an effort to seek to win them to Christ. But to me it means that I cannot totally isolate myself from those who choose this way of life. To me it means that I have to be willing to associate myself with Battalion personnel wherever they are, whether on the job site or in their off-duty hours, to prove to them that I do not consider myself to be above associating with them in all their activities in order that I may be available to share with them a better way of life when the opportunity affords itself.

Further, it means that I, as chaplain, also have to deal with a multi-believing community of persons from all walks of life and religious backgrounds, beliefs and communities. But, again, it does not mean that when I am around a Pentecostal I act and lead them to believe that I am a Pentecostal or when around a Presbyterian I act and lead the person to think that I am in total agreement with all that he or she believes. But it means that I must try to minister to this multi-believing community, while holding true to my own Christian beliefs. Sometimes this becomes a very difficult task as some see the chaplain as too religious, i.e., strict in his or her convictions, while others say that all chaplains are lost and are just there to fill a billet.

The Chaplain's School motto is, "Cooperation without compromise," and that is my stand, but being a chaplain within a military community is a very difficult and arduous task, with long hours and little thanks. My reason for sharing this article with you is not for pats on the back, but to help you to better understand the dilemma with which a chaplain is faced.

A remark that is sometimes overheard is, "Oh, no, here comes the chaplain, it must be bad news." But I thank God that during Bible studies, Praise and Prayer meetings and on Sundays that I can stand and say, "Praise God, I'm here to bring the Good News, i.e., the gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ."

This message comes to you from Diego Garcia, a little speck in the Indian Ocean, an uttermost part of the earth.

Trial of Mother For Tot Assault Back on Docket

A plea-bargaining settlement of the charges against Ben and Olive Meade, Prestonsburg couple accused of assaulting their four-month-old daughter, was overturned last Friday, and Mrs. Meade's trial was docketed for Nov. 30.

Late in June, Mrs. Meade agreed to plead guilty to two assault charges, the penalty for which would be two four-year pen terms. At the same time, the charge against her husband was dismissed.

Later, when it was represented to the court that Mr. Meade could not begin work at a job offered him until a formal dismissal order was entered, the order was made. According to court officials, Mrs. Meade then filed a motion to withdraw her guilty plea.

Provoked by what he termed "reneging on an agreement" on the part of the woman, Commonwealth's Attorney, James R. Allen said this week there will be no more plea-bargaining of the case and that it will go to trial.

Trial of the husband, who has not been directly linked with the child's injury, may depend on the outcome of his wife's hearing.

The couple was charged with the offense after Dobby Jean Meade, one of triplets, had been taken to a Louisville hospital where it was said she had suffered fractures of the skull, ribs and legs. The child died later of a congenital illness. Another of the triplets, Billy Joe, died Feb. 17, 1980. The third was stillborn.

District Court Jury Still Out In Trial of Six

After a day's deliberation, the jury which heard the case against Sterling Hamilton and five other defendants on charges of trading in stolen explosives recessed Tuesday night without returning verdicts.

The case, which is being tried before Judge Green Wix Unthank in U.S. district court in Pikeville, enters its eighth day today (Wednesday).

Hamilton, a Teaberry coal operator, Earl Wayne "Mussey" Wright, James E. Turner, Jr., Mary Joyce Hall, and Tony Salisbury have been charged with dealing in stolen dynamite and blasting caps. Together with the other defendants, Hamilton's son, Scotty, is accused of conspiring to deal and dealing in dynamite without a federal license. Wright is further charged with receiving explosives after having been convicted of a felony.

Mrs. Moore Named Langley CF Chairman

Mrs. Carolyn Moore has been appointed Chairperson of the Cystic Fibrosis "Makin' Tracks" event in Langley. "Mrs. Moore has agreed to direct this community campaign, and we are truly grateful for this commitment," said Charles Thayer, president of the Kentucky/West Virginia Chapter of the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation.

This campaign is an annual function which generates revenue in support of research, improved patient care, and disease detection for Cystic Fibrosis patients. Not only is the campaign designed to raise funds for the CF Foundation, but it also serves to increase public awareness.

As Chairperson, Mrs. Moore will work to encourage public support of this "Makin' Tracks" event.

Reed Concert Among P-burg Boosters Club Fund-Raising Projects

One of country music's most popular performers, singer-songwriter-superpicker-actor Jerry Reed, will appear at the Prestonsburg High School football field at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon in a concert sponsored by the Prestonsburg Boosters Club.

The performance by Reed, "the Alabama Wildman," who is known for such songs as "When You're Hot You're Hot," and as co-star with Burt Reynolds and Sally Fields in the "Smokey and the Bandit" movie series, is being brought here as the latest in a long list of fund-raising efforts on the part of the boosters club, which over the past five years has contributed significantly to the PHS athletic program, in particular, and to the school generally.

In recent years the club has listed the following among its contributions: sowed and mowed football field; renovated bleachers; budgeted money for all sports except baseball which is always supported through the work of Coach Shepherd; accomplished work, inside and out, renovating boys locker-room and shower facilities which are used by both the football and basketball teams; built partition in boys locker room, separating shower area from dressing room; contributed $2,000 to school for general use.

At present, the club is helping to retire a considerable debt inherited from as much as 8-10 years ago, and the proceeds from Sunday's show will be used at the high school, at the discretion of Principal Robert May, and Assistant Principal and Athletic Director Ralph Roberts.

(Information on Sunday's concert may be obtained by referring to advertisement in this week's issue.)

Hot Mix Error

Hot mix may be costly, but not as costly as a typographical error in last week's edition made it appear.

In lines accompanying a picture of a Turkey Creek road project, coal operator Fields Taylor was reported to have contributed 218 tons of hot mix "valued at more than $46,000" to the project. That should have read, "valued at more than $6000"

Future Called Bright For Grain Exports

The future for U.S. grain exports over the next decade is "rosy," according to University of Kentucky agricultural economist Dr. Larry Jones.

Jones addressed the Kentucky Council on Agriculture Monday on the worldwide grain marketing outlook, which includes wheat, soybeans and corn.

"Livestock production has increased dramatically worldwide and subsequently expanded the grain market," Jones said. "There are no more huge government surplus stores of grains, and the U.S. is controlling the lion's share of that export market."

The U.S. produces 19 percent of the world's grain crop, and it controls almost 60 percent of the export market. Of the various grain commodities, the U.S. has "no peers" when it comes to corn production, according to Jones, and Kentucky is the nation's largest producer of white corn.

The supply of usable fresh water stored within the first half-mile of the earth's surface (called groundwater) is at least 20 times greater than the amount held in all U.S. rivers and streams.

The first gold nugget discovered in the U.S. turned up at what became the Reed Mine in 1799 in Concord, North Carolina, the nation's foremost gold mining state until 1850.

The real Red Baron was the World War I German flying ace, Baron Manfred Von Richtofen. He was dubbed the Red Baron because of the bright red plane he flew. After this daring pilot was shot down over France on April 21, 1918, reportedly by Canadian flyer Roy Brown, he was given a hero's burial by the Allies.

Undersea Waves Considered Possible Threat at Sea

Scientific accounts of huge "undersea waves" off the Malay Peninsula have drawn attention to the significance of such dangerous phenomena regarding off-shore drilling operations and the safe navigation of submarines.

Carefully measured during a recent oceanographic study was the occurrence of large internal waves more than 150 feet high.

This and a study by the National Oceanographic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA), off the Phillipines, show that large vertical motions, equal to the height of internal waves, occur with the passage of such waves—there and elsewhere in the world.

Such a phenomenon, suddenly taking a craft below its safe operating depth, could account for various submarine disappearances.

HUNTING SAFETY TIPS

Here are some reminders for hunting safety.

-Be sure of your footing when walking through thick brush or over rocky ground.

-Unload before attempting to cross fences, downed trees or entering a vehicle.

-Always be sure of your target before you shoot.

-Always tell another person about your planned location and time of return.

HOME ECONOMICS TIPS

-Regular sweeping keeps dirt from the deep recesses of embossed flooring. A soft, nylon birstle brush won't scratch floor surfaces.

-In heavy traffic areas where the no-wax finish is dull or worn, shine up with acrylic floor finish. Always apply to a clean, dry floor using a damp sponge mop.

CLERKS WORK ON TAX LISTS WITHOUT PAY

Services Unrewarded as Result of Recent Ruling

PROTEST OPINION

County clerks from all parts of the state are in a turmoil as the result of a ruling made by Attorney General Frank E. Daugherty upon a bill fixing payment for clerks on tax books, an Associated Press dispatch states.

The bill, approved March 27, 1926, and known as chapter 173 in the acts of 1926, says that:

"After the county clerks of the state shall have completed the services now required of them, upon delivery of the tax books and schedules to them by the county tax commissioners, they shall, in addition thereto, calculate the taxes due the state, county, school, county polls and school polls for each individual taxpayer, opposite their name in said tax book, upon the form that may hereafter be prescribed by the State Tax Commission. Said books and forms to hereafter be permanent record of the county clerk's office.

"For performing said services, the county clerk shall be paid the sum of twelve cents per line across the page of the tax book, one-half of said sum to be paid by the state of Kentucky, the other half to be paid by the county."

The county clerks have done the work as prescribed in the first section of the law, and have presented their claims as prescribed in the second section.

Upon the presentation of these claims, Daugherty ruled, that the clerks were not entitled to the increase in compensation, as the Constitution of the state forbids the pay of any elective or appointive officer to be increased during his term of office.

Daugherty in his ruling cites that the clerks now holding office were elected in 1924, and that the bill was passed in 1926, and would be effective with the next county clerks. In writing the several county clerks, Daugherty said:

"We have heretofore held that this act causes an increase in the compensation of clerks now in office, and therefore under the Constitution of the state they are not entitled to the twelve cents per line mentioned in the act. This opinion is based upon the case of Neutzel vs. Fiscal Court, Jefferson County, 183, Ky. 1."

County clerks have been registering their disapproval with both Daugherty and the State Tax Commission, and the last session of the State County Clerks' Association adopted resolutions opposing the ruling of Daugherty, and have appointed a committee to bring suit to test the validity of the law.

MALT DEALERS' ARREST ORDERED

All merchants or wholesale agents or persons handling in any way or form any of the malt extracts now on the market are subject to arrest, as the result of an order made by United States District Attorney Sawyer A. Smith, of Covington, instructing Clark S. Day, federal prohibition agent, to take this action against those dealing in such extracts.

Mr. Day has passed out warning that he will begin making arrests immediately of all persons selling malt extracts, he said recently.

Hundreds Attend Barbecue, Rally

Though handicapped by inclement weather, hundreds of persons attended the Democratic rally and barbecue here Wednesday and heard Ex-Senator A. O. Stanley speak upon the issues of the present gubernatorial campaign in Kentucky.

Mr. Stanley was introduced by O. C. Hall, who was preceded by Doug Hays, Democratic campaign chairman for Floyd county. A campaign orator of marked ability, Mr. Stanley made a scathing attack upon the racing interests in Kentucky, and struck out at Judge Sampson the Republican gubernatorial candidate, and prominent Republicans who are supporting him.

The day passed without disorder, and the crowd was creditably quiet.

Caney Creek Net Team Bests Maytown 46-21

In a game with the Caney Creek Community Center basketball team at Maytown Saturday morning, the Maytown Consolidated School quintette lost by the lopsided score of 46 to 21.

Maytown suffered from the loss of two of the most reliable members of its team when Wayne Allen and Taylor Ratcliff were absent from the lineup. Claude "Speed" May, former Maytown student, starred on the visiting five.

Players were: For Maytown—Ray Stephens, Ray Allen, Homer Carroll, Oliver Reynolds, Venice Bentley and one substitute; for Caney Creek—Claude May, Den Martin, Homer Jones, Corbett Franklin, and Everett Hall.

Both teams were handicapped by the wet earth court. Maytown is represented by a strong team, and one which is expected to grow stronger as the season progresses. A rather lengthy schedule has been arranged for the team, and a game with the Prestonsburg High School quintette may be staged later in the season.

October 28, Temperance Day In County Schools

Friday, October 28, has been designated by McHenry Rhodes, state superintendent of public instruction, as Temperance Day in schools throughout the state. Programs for the day are being mailed from the county superintendent's office here to teachers throughout Floyd county, and it is being urged that the day be observed, that the teachings of a great moral issue be impressed upon school children of this county.

Miss Josephine Davidson returned Friday after a visit of several weeks in Lexington with her brother, W. B. Davidson, and in Hazard with Mrs. Anna Laura Garnett.

CITIZENS PLAN TO FINISH ROAD

To Hold Good Roads Meeting at Weeksbury, Sunday

Citizens of the Left Beaver Creek section of this county and the Indian Creek community of Pike will gather Sunday in a Good-Roads meeting at Weeksbury to discuss means of completing a graded road between the Abner Fork of Left Beaver and Indian Creek, Pike county, across the hill from Weeksbury.

Some time ago the Floyd fiscal court made an appropriation of $8,000 for the grade and drain of this road, but the amount was insufficient, it is said, to complete the route. At Sunday's meeting efforts will be made to raise by subscription funds necessary to complete by subscription necessary to complete the work, and plans will be laid for resumption of construction.

This route will give Weeksbury and vicinity quick access to Pikeville, and, though this line of travel will take into Pike county much of the trade which otherwise would go to Floyd, it will be of great convenience to that section of the county.

Plant For School Here One of The Most Modern Available

One of the most modern heating and ventilating plants available has been purchased by the city and county boards of education for the new high school building here from the Columbus Heating & Ventilating Company, it was announced this week.

It is in use by schools in all of the larger cities.

The heating and ventilating plant will be installed at once, it is said. The building is expected to be ready at some date in November.

Letcher County Girl Held in Detroit, Mich.

Miss Ada Marksbury, 21 years old, Seco, Ky., was placed under arrest in Detroit, Mich., Monday charged with the theft of jewelry and clothing worth $1,000 from Mrs. George O'Keefe, Detroit, whom she is alleged to have persuaded to go to Columbus, Ohio, as her guest at a football game after she had posed as an Ohio State co-ed, a newspaper dispatch says.

Detroit police say Miss Marksbury forced David Klein, Ohio State dentistry student, to return with her to Detroit after she had taken Mrs. O'Keefe's property.

The property was recovered, police said, with Miss Marksbury's arrest in a Detroit hotel. William J. Murphy, Columbus detective sergeant, came to Detroit Monday for Miss Marksbury. He said that Klein told him he was forced at the point of a gun to accompany the young woman to Detroit.

Klein has returned to Columbus, the detective said, adding that he did not believe Klein was associated with the alleged theft.

Ashland Film Star In Marriage Game

Ada Mae Vaughan, featured motion picture actress, and sister of Alberta Vaughan, both former Ashland residents, has been married, divorced, and will be married again within a few weeks, all to the same man.

Filing a final decree of divorce, yesterday disclosed for the first time to members of the movie colony in Los Angeles Miss Vaughan's entrance into the field of matrimony.

Albert R. Hindman, Los Angeles contractor, is the discovered husband and future bridegroom. The first marriage occurred in May, 1926, and ended a few months later because of what Miss Vaughan termed "foolish and silly" reasons.

"We intend to be married again as soon as we can," the film actress said, "we are sure this marriage will be successful and happy."

MANY ATTEND BURIAL FRIDAY

Adah Chapter in Service at Funeral of Mrs. Hatcher

The funeral of Mrs. Nannie Hatcher, which was conducted Friday afternoon at one o'clock at Harold, was attended by a large crowd formed by her neighbors and friends and relatives from Prestonsburg, Ashland, Pikeville and other Big Sandy towns.

Rev. M. C. Reynolds, a lifelong friend of the deceased, conducted the funeral, delivering an impressive sermon from the text in Proverbs 31:29, "Many daughters have done virtuously, but thou excellest them all." Assisting in the funeral was the Rev. F. E. Jenkins, pastor of the Pikeville M. E. Church, South.

After the funeral service at the home, the body was conveyed to the family cemetery, where members of Adah Chapter, Order of Eastern Star, from this place conducted a beautiful service. Floral offerings were many and beautifully expressed the high esteem in which Mrs. Hatcher was held by hundreds of persons throughout this section. Funeral and burial were under the direction of E. P. Arnold and Company.

Among those attending the funeral from Prestonsburg were Mr. and Mrs. Jo M. Davidson, Mrs. A. J. May, S. C. Ferguson, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Harkins, T. J. FOUR FALL TO GUN IN SINGLE DAY IN FLOYD

Three Die in Martin Battle Sunday; Mullins Killed

ANOTHER MAY DIE

Three men are dead and two others were believed dying Tuesday as the result of shooting affrays in this county Sunday afternoon and night.

W. L. (Billy Lou) Osborn, chief of police at Martin, and his 17-year-old son, Joe Ed Osborn, fell Sunday afternoon at Martin before the gun of Felix Flanery—the officer dead and his son mortally wounded, to die 40 minutes later in the Beaver Valley hospital there—and when the fusillade of shots was over Flanery himself lay, probably fatally wounded, on the ground with his victims.

Flanery is now in the hospital at Martin, paralyzed, it is said, from the neck down and with the barest chance of recovery.

Killed by Brother-in-Law

At Johnsonia, on Left Beaver Creek, Sunday night, Jim Roe Mullins, 35 years old, was shot through the heart and killed by his brother-in-law Wes Hall as the result of a dispute arising between the two men as to the bravery of Harry Hall, the slayer's brother. Wes Hall lies near the point of death from injuries sustained when Mullins struck him over the head with a shotgun a moment before Hall began firing. He is being guarded at the mouth of Clear Creek by Deputy Sheriff Andy Gearheart. Injuries to the brain are expected to prove fatal.

The Martin gun battle took place late Sunday afternoon, after Chief of Police Osborn had taken Flanery into custody, holding him on a capias for a fine of $50 imposed upon him in the Martin police court by Police Judge W. J. Conley several months ago.

Fine, Cause of Tragedy

Stopping in front of the Day and Night Restaurant there, Judge Conley, Osborn and Flanery engaged in conversation. Judge Conley told Flanery that the fine had been due for months, and that he had done all he could, adding that however he and Osborn arranged the matter would be satisfactory with him. He then started off.

As Judge Conley reached the porch of the restaurant, he heard Mr. Osborn call his name, it is stated. Turning, he saw Flanery with his revolver leveled at him. Judge Conley jerked his own pistol, but when Osborn turned to call to him Flanery threw his gun on the officer, it is said.

"Put up your hands or I'll kill you," he is said to have told Osborn.

"You don't mean you'd shoot me, do you?" the officer replied, hesitatingly. "Yes, I'll shoot you. I'll die before I'll be placed in jail, and if you don't put your hands up I'll blow your brains out," Flanery is quoted here as saying.

Osborn then began to raise his hands slowly, but when they were half-lifted somebody warned Flanery to watch out. (Continued on page 8)

BRING IN 150 BARREL WELL

Reports received here Thursday state that George H. Dimick and Thomas E. Dimick, of Huntington, W. Va., who are well-known in Prestonsburg and throughout Floyd county, brought in a 150-barrel oil well in wildcat territory near Owensboro last Saturday.

The Owensboro oil field is a rich one, recent drillings show. The Dimicks are said to have about 1,500 acres under lease in that field, and will, in all probability, rush its development.

MISS PATTON HOSTESS TO GROUP OF FRIENDS

Miss Irene Patton delightfully entertained Saturday evening a number of friends at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Patton. Dancing was enjoyed during the course of a pleasant evening, at the close of which Miss Patton served a candy course.

Guests were Misses Angeline Layne, Margaret Dingus, Margaret Elizabeth May, Frances Elam, Welma Burchett, Ruth Francis, and Messrs. Andrew Spradlin, Willie Mellon, T. Y. Harmon, Dr. A. E. Higginbotham, Bill Bowling, and Messrs. Keek and Dixon.

OLW "Volunteers" Recognized

Several members of Our Lady of the Way Hospital's "Volunteers" gathered Thursday for a party given by the hospital in recognition of the group's summer of volunteer service to the facility. Present were Debbie Hutchinson, Kathy Martin, Gina Marshall, Lynn Hughes, Tina Ritchie, Deeneen Martin, Stacia Sexton, Missy Sammons, Sharon Webb, and Tana Marie Salyers. Other members of the group, which consists of young people of high school age who serve as volunteer "candy strippers" at the hospital, included Pam Ison, Stephanie Barnett, Johnene Reynolds, Shirley Fugate and Kim Laferty.

This summer's program represented the first "candy stripe" volunteer work at the hospital in recent years, although a number of other volunteers of varying ages regularly serve the Martin medical facility, according to Sr. Jeanette, director of the volunteer program.

Ann Caudill and Geraldine Thorpe provided decorations for the party, which coincided with the young volunteers' last day of work at the hospital before returning to school, and Sr. Rose Elizabeth baked the cake for the group.

Most Area Grid Teams Begin 1981 Season

By C. "OLLIE" ROBINSON

The first week-end of football is a big one with most area football teams in action except the Prestonsburg Blackcats. The Cats won't open up until August 28 when they will go to Estill County, and the Paintsville Tigers will open that same week-end against the Betsy Layne Bobcats.

Coach Wilbur Jamerson's Wheelwright Trojans will travel to Virgie Friday night to battle the Virgie Eagles; the Betsy Layne Bobcats with their new coach, John (Wimpy) Clark, will go to Fleming-Neon, also slated for Friday night.

Sheldon Clark, playing junior varsity last year, has made a big jump into the Triple A class and will be in Region 4, District 2 with Belfry, Johnson Central and Russell. Sheldon Clark will play its first five games away from home opening at Lawrence County. While Sheldon Clark moved to Triple A, the Pikeville Panthers drop to Class A. Pikeville will be in Region 4, District 2, Sub-District 2. This will put the powers, Paintsville and Pikeville, together. The two will close at Paintsville, October 16.

The switch of classes leaves a three-team race where the Panthers had once dominated. Prestonsburg, Lawrence County and Morgan County will be figuring things out to be the new representative in the play offs. The early favorites appear to be Prestonsburg (8-3 last year).

This is how the 1981 district alignment shapes up for Eastern Kentucky teams:

Class A (enrollment up to 425)—Region 4, District 2, Sub-District 1, Elkhorn City, Fleming Neon, Jenkins, Phelps, and Virgie; Sub-Dist. 2, Betsy Layne, Mullins, Paintsville, Pikeville and Wheelwright.

Class AA (enrollment 426 to 625)—Region 4, District 1, Hazard, Johns Creek, M.C. Napier and Whitesburg; District 2, Prestonsburg, Morgan County and Lawrence County.

Class A A A (enrollment 626-1000)—Region 4, District 1, Breathitt County, Knott County Central and Leslie County; District 2, Belfry, Johnson Central, Russell and Sheldon Clark.

The Blackcats will pay their district opponents on Oct. 9 at Lawrence County and entertain Morgan County on November 6.

This week's schedule (all games on Friday):

Wheelwright at Virgie
Betsy Layne at Fleming-Neon
Johnson Central at Breathitt Co.
Whitesburg at Elkhorn City
Jenkins at Phelps
Hazard at Knott Co.
Central Sheldon Clark at Lawrence Co.
Pikeville at Lexington Henry Clay

Lands Big Musky

How to enjoy a vacation? Ask Larry Wayne Hamilton.

While he was visiting his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Hamilton, of McDowell, the 12-year-old from Wabash Ind. went fishing Aug. 8 at Cave Run Lake, and he landed the musky pictured above—49 inches that weighed in at 25½ pounds.

A Big Big Sandy Catfish

Ask W.E. Miller, of Prestonsburg where he'd rather fish in this section and he'll tell you the Big Sandy River everytime. Although catfish the size of this 37-pound monster caught last Wednesday are by no means an everyday occurrence, Miller hauls out plenty of "cats" in the 10-12-lb. range while trotline fishing in the river in the Prestonsburg area.

Anixter, National Eliminated

By C. OLLIE ROBINSON

Anixter Cable and National Mines were eliminated in the open class of the men's Slo-pitch state softball tournament held in Lexington over the week-end. Each lost its second game Saturday.

to Tennessee Pride, 16 to 2. Tennessee Pride scored 14 runs in the first inning. Then Saturday night Salyers, of London, Ky., eliminated National Mines, 16 to 5.

In the women's state softball tournament at Corbin, Hilltop Mining won its opener by defeating the Rebels, 17 to 1. Catbird, Chopper, Kim, and Carol all homered for Hilltop. UK School Year Ready To Start Trunks, boxes and portable clothes racks will be the scene Sunday, Aug. 23, when University of Kentucky residence halls open at noon.

Some 5,400 spaces are available on campus for undergraduates, but as of Aug. 3, a total of 765 students were on the waiting list for campus housing, according to Jean Lindley, director of UK housing operations.

UK classes begin Wednesday, Aug. 26.

Registration of new students already cleared for admission but who did not register in advance, will be conducted in Memorial Coliseum Monday, Aug. 24. This includes graduate students, undergraduates, readmission, transfer, auditors and non-degree students, according to George N. Gaddie, UK director of admissions.

On Tuesday, Aug. 25, centralized add-drop of classes for advance registered students will be conducted in Memorial Coliseum.

Late registration will be conducted Aug. 26 through Sept. 1 for returning students who did not advance register and new students already cleared for admission. A $20 fee is assessed students who register late.

New or readmitted students registering late should go to the mezzanine of the Patterson Office Tower Aug. 26 and 27 or to Room 204 of Miller Hall Aug. 28-Sept. 1. Continuing students who register late and who have not advance registered should go to their college dean's office, except students in the College of Arts and Sciences who should go to the mezzanine or to Miller Hall.

Large Enrollment Seen For P.C.C.

Prestonsburg Community College is expecting one of the largest enrollments ever when the college begins its 1981 fall semester next week.

The college recently experienced the largest summer session enrollment in its history and, according to Dr. Henry A. Campbell, director, that session enrollment is indicative of the number of students who will be enrolling for the fall semester.

Another reason for the anticipated increase in enrollment is the number of applications received and processed by the admissions office. The number of new applicants is 60 percent above the number on file this time a year ago.

Since a large number of students are expected during the registration on Monday and Tuesday, Aug. 24-25, Brenda Music, admissions financial aid officer, is urging all prospective students to submit all their admission credentials prior to the registration period so that they will be able to register without any delay or complications. Registration will be held both days from 8:30 a.m. to 8 p.m. Classwork will begin Wednesday, August 26.

RECORD NUCLEAR POWER PLANT RECORD HOLDER

The world's record for total output by a nuclear plant is fifty billion kilowatt hours. The record is held by Connecticut Yankee, a 575 megawatt power plant with a pressurized water reactor system. In 12 years it's produced more electricity than any of the other 194 nuclear units currently in operation in the world today.

Mock Bus Wreck Tests Emergency Response

Nowadays, it is a requirement that hospitals conduct mock disaster drills to demonstrate their ability to handle real life emergencies, should they arise. Our Lady of the Way Hospital at Martin staged such a drill, Thursday, and during the approximately hour-and-a-half exercise, there was no lack of realism.

The scenario was as follows: a bus, loaded with high school-age girls, returning from 4-H camp, left the roadway at Martin striking the gasoline pumps of the Gulf service station there. "Injuries" to the occupants of the bus were simulated through the use of plastic "stick-on" burns, lesions and broken bones, and several of the "victims" were even equipped with hand-operated bulbs which produced a realistic flow of "blood" from the wounds.

Responding to the situation were units from the Floyd County Emergency & Rescue Squad, Martin Fire Department, P. & B. Ambulance Service and Prestonsburg emergency workers and technicians.

Efficiency of the rescue units was tested as well as the emergency capability of the hospital which quickly screened incoming patients and assigned priorities according to "injury."

Members of the hospital's "Volunteers" group, high school students who served in a volunteer capacity at Our Lady of the Way over the past summer, served as the disaster victims.

Governor Proclaims Korea Year In Ky.

Gov. John Y. Brown Jr. has proclaimed 1982 Korea Year in Kentucky to recognize the close ties between Korea and the commonwealth.

With the proclamation, Kentucky becomes the first state to officially observe the 100th anniversary of the signing of the Korean-American Treaty. The agreement, signed May 22, 1882, opened communications between Korea and the Western world.

Brown also announced the creation of a committee to plan programs and events culminating in a Korea Week celebration scheduled for May 1982 in Louisville.

The governor's proclamation came at the request of Korea's newly appointed Consul General in New York, Se Jin Kim. Consul General Kim has special ties to Kentucky, having taught six years at Eastern Kentucky University during the 1960s.

Kentucky enjoys an active trade relationship with Korea, noted Commerce Secretary Bruce Lunsford. Kentucky firms sell to Korea manufactured products such as chemicals, assembly and storage equipment, commercial cooking equipment, heaters, air filters and packaging equipment.

Korea also is becoming an increasingly important buyer of tobacco, hardwoods, ginseng, livestock, feed grains, soybeans and coal, said Ted Sauer, director of the Commerce Cabinet's international division. Among Korean products found in Kentucky are stainless steel, ceramics and textiles.

Activities planned during the Korea Year celebration are Korean art exhibitions, concerts, films and performances by traveling troupes of Korean dancers and acrobats, said Spencer Kim, a Louisville businessman and co-coordinator of the program.

"The focus is to show not so much what Korea was as what Korea is," he said. Some 5,000 persons of Korean descent live in Kentucky, he noted.

The more than 2.3 million marriages held in 1979 set a new record. The previous record was set in 1946.

Court Ruling Considered Conservation Victory

Federal acquisition of habitat vital to the millions of migratory ducks which breed in North Dakota every year can continue as a result of a decision recently handed down by the U.S. Court of Appeals in St. Louis, Mo.

The court decided in favor of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, which had sued the state of North Dakota in 1980, charging that bills passed by the state legislature in 1977 violated federal statutes protecting migratory birds.

"This decision represents a significant victory for wildlife and wildlife habitat," said Thomas Tomasello, attorney for the National Wildlife Federation, which along with the North Dakota Wildlife Federation, an NWF affiliate, had filed a friend-of-the-court brief on the side of the government. "It establishes the important precedent that states cannot enact legislation which would eliminate the Fish and Wildlife Service's ability to implement national wildlife programs. Specifically, the decision allows the Fish and Wildlife Service to acquire prairie pot-hole habitat in North Dakota, thus protecting it from further agricultural development."

Man first tried to classify dogs according to their breed in the fifth century B.C. The Romans determined that certain dogs came from Asia, others from Europe and some from Africa. The classifications established by the ancient Romans have not been contradicted to this day.

RECC Members Reject Subsidy For Poor, Elderly Consumers

Rural electric consumers in Kentucky believe everyone should pay his own way when it comes to electric rates.

That sentiment was expressed by an overwhelming majority of over 10,000 member/owner's polled in a recent statewide survey of rural electric membership. A random sampling of those surveyed indicates that seventy eight percent approved when asked if all consumers should be charged rates which accurately reflect the actual cost of the electric service.

Further substantiating this "pay your own way" philosophy, RECC members rejected any form of subsidy for low-income or elderly consumers. Seventy percent indicated that they would be unwilling to pay higher rates in order to allow lower rates for those over 65 years of age. Likewise, seventy five percent rejected the notion of similarly subsidizing rates for low income consumers.

In addition, nearly three-quarters of the respondents said they would not be willing to make up anticipated lost revenues through higher rates should cooperatives be prohibited by law from cutting off winter service to people who might choose not to pay their bills, should that legal possibility exist.

RECC members went a step further by saying that consumers using greater amounts of electricity than typical members should not be charged higher rates so that people using less could be charged lower rates per kilowatt hour. Only twenty eight percent believed that higher rates should penalize larger users of electricity.

The survey, which was conducted during a series of local electric cooperative annual meetings held during the month of July, indicate that ninety-three percent of the membership had taken specific steps to conserve energy during the last year. Over half use a wood-burning stove or fireplace for part of their home heating needs. As a possible step to implement further conservation plans, thirty-seven percent said they would seriously consider building a new home in an earth shelter or underground environment in order to lower heating and cooling costs.

The survey further indicates that ninety percent of the members polled were satisfied with the service provided by their rural electric cooperative, and over half said they personally knew at least one member of their local cooperative's Board of Directors.

According to Alpha Trivette, Director of Public Relations for the Kentucky Association of Electric Cooperatives, the survey was conducted as a biennial recording of co-op membership and attitudes and opinions. The association represents 27 cooperatives providing electric service throughout Kentucky.

DHR Job-Matching Is Now Nationwide

The Department for Human Resources' Manpower Services now has the capability of quickly matching job seekers with employers on a nationwide basis, according to Bureau Commissioner Dr. John C. Wells.

Kentucky, along with five other states, has been chosen to test a new computerized system that allows the bureau's Job Service Program to have instant access to the nation's largest computerized job bank, Wells said. The system is part of the federal interstate processing service.

When job applications are filed at local Bureau for Manpower Service offices, the computer will list all openings nationwide the applicant is qualified for, he said. Likewise, an employer within Kentucky seeking workers with certain skills can use the system to find potential employees.

"This service is very important to us because it saves job seekers time, expense and the inconvenience of traveling to areas that have no openings in their particular field," Wells said. "Also, this service eliminates expenses to employers who otherwise would have to send out recruiters and buy costly advertisements to find qualified employees."

According to Wells, the bureau has been using the computer to a limited extent for the last couple of weeks. The system will be fully operational the first week in September.

FLOYD COUNTY HEALTH NEWS

By JANE BOND
Health Educator

Glaucoma is the second leading cause of blindness in adults; it rarely occurs until after age 35. There are usually no symptoms noticed when glaucoma first strikes, and the best way to find out if you have glaucoma is to be screened for the disease. The Floyd County Health Department is having a glaucoma clinic on Wednesday, August 19, and on Monday, August 24. These clinics are open to persons of all ages but those persons age 35 and over are especially urged to take advantage of this free service.

Cancer of the uterus can be one of the most curable of all cancers. Yet, approximately 11,000 women in this country die of it each year. The main reason for the deaths is that the cancer was not detected early enough. The simple Pap test for uterine cancer can detect this cancer early when it is the most curable. The Floyd County Health Department is having a Pap clinic on Friday, August 21, from 9:00 until 11:30 and from 1:00 until 2:00. This clinic is a free service of the health department and all women who have not had a Pap test in the past year are urged to take advantage of this service.

KENTUCKY STATE POLICE Post 9, on U.S. 23 about three miles north of Pikeville, is to be replaced at a cost of $722,000. The existing building, erected in 1957, is said to be too small for the existing staff, now numbering about 50.

The new building, shown here in an architect's drawing, will house a radio room, barracks, offices and supply area. Lexington builder J.T. Goggans submitted the low bid for the project, which is expected to be completed within eight months of the awarding of the contract.

Utilities Firm Gets Increase

The state Public Service Commission has approved a natural gas rate increase for East-Kentucky Utilities of Prestonsburg but it is less than the amount requested by the utility.

The company had requested an annual increase in revenues of more than $73,000. The commission approved an increase of approximately $40,000.

The increase, claimed necessary because the company was experiencing a deficit, will raise the minimum monthly bill from $5 to $5.40. This will pay for the first 1,000 cubic feet of gas. The rate per 1,000 cu. ft. after the first 1,000 cu. ft. will increase from $1.95 to $2.36.

In addition to those rates, a customer charge of $3 per month and 26 cents per 1,000 cu. ft. will be charged for one year to pay off delinquent wholesale gas bills the company owes to its suppliers. The company owes $91,900 in delinquent gas bills. The commission approved a request by the company to borrow $50,000 to help pay some of those bills.

The new rates were effective Aug. 10. East Kentucky serves 1,350 customers in this county.

★ CONSUMER ALERT ★

It seems the new password in checking and banking is NOW—Negotiable Order of Withdrawal. What is a NOW account? Basically it is a savings account on which you can write checks. or, to put it another way, it is a checking account that pays you interest.

Attorney General Steve Beshear advised consumers that NOW accounts can be a good idea, if they know all the ground rules and have the money that would otherwise be in a passbook savings account.

The "ground rules" differ from bank to bank. Lending institutions all have minimum balances you must maintain. If your balance falls below the minimum, you will be charged a service fee. Many times the fee is more than the interest earned during the period. Some banks have a further minimum and once you fall below this amount, you will not receive interest on the balance.

For example, suppose you have a NOW account that requires a $1,000 minimum balance before charging a service fee of $4 and a $500 minimum below which no interest will be paid. At 5.25 percent interest, you would earn $54 annually in interest and pay no fee if your balance was always above $1,000. If your balance was $500, you would earn $27 but would pay a service fee of $48 yearly. That puts you $21 in the hole, Beshear noted.

However, if you had a regular checking account that had a monthly service fee of $3 ($36 yearly), you would still be a little better off with a NOW account. These figures would fluctuate, depending on your balance and how the bank or lending institution compounds interest.

Another new development in banking is that checking is no longer limited to commercial banks. Savings and loan associations and credit unions can also offer similar NOW accounts. Many savings and loans are now competing with commercial banks by offering lower minimum balances and service fees on checking accounts. A few are even offering "free checking" with no minimum balance or service charge.

Free checking almost became obsolete when NOW accounts began. Banks set minimum balances and fees for NOW accounts to offset the interest payments they were required to pay customers. Now that checking is not limited to commercial banks, the field is more competitive, and free checking may again become popular.

According to Beshear, "If you are positive you will not keep the minimum balance required before having a service fee imposed, you should probably shop around for a free checking regular account. If your community does not offer free checking, a NOW account with service charge may not be a bad idea, but you should keep the balance above the interest paying minimum. Also, you must report your earned interest to the IRS on your yearly tax form."

When shopping for a NOW account, you should compare features such as: 1) percentage of interest paid and how it is compounded (daily, monthly); 2) the minimum balance required before a service fee or loss of interest is imposed on the account; 3) whether minimum levels are calculated on a monthly average or a daily minimum; and 4) services provided, such as free checks and traveler's checks, etc.

Remember to compare features at several different lending institutions. "Be aware of your family's financial needs, wants and goals so you can shop around and obtain the checking plan that best suits you," said Beshear. If you have a consumer problem, write the Office of the Attorney General, Consumer Protection Division, Frankfort, Ky. 40601

Observes 90th Birthday

New Cardiac Care Equipment at HRMC

New nursing station and bedside cardiac monitors installed in the coronary care unit at Highlands Regional Medical Center being used by RN's Chicita Lykins and Chloe Welch.

To Observe Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Denver Osborne, of Rice, formerly of Wheelwright, will celebrate their 30th wedding anniversary, Sunday, August 23 at the Wheelwright Masonic Lodge from 2 until 5 p.m. All friends and relatives are invited to attend.

MARTIN NEWS

Mr. and Mrs. Stafford Tackett hosted a fish fry for friends and family recently at their home on Buck's Branch. Attending were Mr. and Mrs. Doc Hutchinson, Mr. and Mrs. Rodney Hutchinson and children, Olin Elliott, Dolly Branham, Mr. and Mrs. Doug Tackett and Dougie, Mrs. Loretta Reed and sons, Troy and John, Mrs. Maggie Hayes and Becky, Mr. and Mrs. Van Turner, Alan and Erica, Mr. and Mrs. Buddy Ratcliff, Miss Angie Ratcliff, Mr. and Mrs. Stevie Ratcliff, Kenny Ratcliff, Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Horton and children, Lovie, Sara and Gene, all of Martin; Mr. and Mrs. Butch Tackett and Stacy, of Lexington, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Hutchinson, Mary Ann and Jaclyn and Larry Williams, of Richmond.

David Hutchins and Lee Bryant have returned home after a three-week visit with their grandparents in Iowa.

Guests of Mr. and Mrs. Doc Hutchinson are Mr. and Mrs. Hershel Johnson, of Fall Branch, Tenn., Mr. and Mrs. George Ed Clark, of Harold, Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Thomas, Oakwood, O., Mr. and Mrs. Orville Morrison, of Ashland, Blanche Dingus, Polly Dingus and Myrtle Skeans, all of Martin.

The U. S. imported 42.4 percent of our total petroleum supplied for domestic use from the first six months of 1980 as compared to only 35 percent at the beginning of the Arab oil embargo in 1973.

The "latest" in cardiac monitoring equipment has been installed in the critical care unit at Highlands Regional Medical Center—bedside and central nursing station monitors that will enable the nursing staff to have comprehensive knowledge of the patient's total physical condition instantly.

The monitors replace existing sophisticated equipment for critically ill patients. "These monitoring devices are the best you can find anywhere," Clarence Traum, administrator at HRMC, said. "They're another example that shows Highlands can provide care equal to that of larger city hospitals."

The new monitors measure the heart rhythm, temperature, blood pressure and pressure within the heart and continuously display this information on clearly visible screens. Alarms sound to alert nurses of any cardiac irregularities.

Another innovative feature of the new monitors is that they are portable. This allows the heart patient to be monitored continuously, even if the patient must be moved to another department for more extensive tests. The units also can be operated by battery in the unlikely event of failure of the Hospital's emergency power supply system.

"We're pleased to have the best in cardiac equipment for our patients' care," Sherri Dingus, R.N., asst. nursing director critical care, said. "The new monitors will give us the complete picture of a patient's health status at all times."

Reunion Time at One-Room School

When former "scholars" and teachers of the old one-room Upper Little Paint School met Saturday for their first reunion it was a fun day and also a time for remembering.

Item One: A flag and pole were erected by Edward C. Boggs and Bill Williams on the spot where the original stood by the old school.

Item Two: The mock school day began by the ringing of the oldtime hand school bell. Special guest, Myrtle Pugsley, gave the opening prayer followed by the pledge to the flag led by Mrs. Carol Ann Derossett, who then led the group in singing "America the Beautiful" and "My Country Tis of Thee".

The crowd was estimated at more than 100. The speakers and former teachers were Myrtle Pugsley, Marvin Music, Susie Gray, Ed Music, Myrtle Hunt, Velva Compton, Wilma Snavelly, W.L. Baldrige, Jr., Virginia Derossett Whitt and Sarah Lavens.

The day was directed as much like an "old school day" as possible, with recesses and lunch time as before, with everyone bringing "brown paper bag" lunches. Games such as Round Town, the all-time favorite ball game were played. The old time star, Roy Rice, was struck out three times by Kenneth J. Derossett. Credit also goes to Virginia Whitt who was the catcher of these pro-like pitches. Horseshoe pitching followed, and Johnny Conley and Kenneth Derossett were declared the horse shoe champions of Little Paint Creek.

Classmates were visiting from Indiana, Ohio, various cities and towns in Kentucky.

The earliest known attendance at the school, among those participating in the reunion, was in 1910 by Mr. May.

The crowd voted to have another reunion next year and passed the hat for a collection to help with expenses of organization and communication for the 1982 event.

Names Incorrectly Listed

The name of one of the Branham twins pictured in last week's Times was incorrect. Correctly, the name should have been Danie Branham. Also erroneously listed was the name of Clara Burklow in the group attending the 64th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. R.L. (Bob) Pitts.

20th Annual Reunion Held

The 20th annual Kitchens-Ward family reunion was held August 2, at Central Park, Ashland.

Those who attended included: Celia Ward Little and McKinley, Paul E., Mylessin, Misty Anne and Paul Nicholas Little, all of Minnie; Ollie Ward Prichard and Robert, of Danville W. Va.; Barry, Mark and Helen Meyers, Charleston, W. Va.; Loran V. Ward, Alexandria, Va.; Martin V.B. Ward and Betty Holden, W. Health Line

Rx For the Best Antibiotic

Only a doctor can decide if you need an antibiotic and what kind, but you have the right and, in many cases, the need, to know about the drugs you are taking.

If you are well-informed, you are more likely to follow instructions and complete the full course of the antibiotic. You should not demand an antibiotic for an infection that is probably viral; you should also know that drug resistance is rapidly diminishing the effectiveness of many of our drugs.

Here is a list of questions to ask your physician when an antibiotic is prescribed:

- Why do I need an antibiotic? Do I have a bacterial infection?
- Does this antibiotic cover most kinds of bacteria that may be involved in my infection, including resistant strains?
- Does this drug cause reactions such as nausea, rash or diarrhea? Should I get back to you if it does?
- How often should I take this medication? If I miss a pill, should I wait until the next scheduled time and take two?

• Do I need to worry about taking this antibiotic with or between meals?

• Should I avoid other medications, foods or exposure to sunlight while I'm taking this drug?

• At what point should I call you if I don't feel better? Should I call if the symptoms reappear in a few weeks?

Doctors are especially concerned because a bacterium commonly involved in middle ear infections, bronchitis and pneumonia, is fast becoming immune to ampicillin, the drug most often prescribed for it. The bacteria, called Haemophilus influenzae, is also a major cause of meningitis.

If symptoms don't clear up within a few days of taking ampicillin, or if nausea, diarrhea, rash or vaginal infections become a problem, patients should check back with their physician. He or she may wish to switch antibiotics. There are several combination drugs and one new oral antibiotic that are effective alternatives to ampicillin.

Bran Robs Body Iron

Research indicates that bran, one of the most popular sources of dietary fiber, may not be the best possible means of including bulk after all.

According to Dr. Bessie Dituri, author of The Right Diet: How to Choose It, "large amounts of bran hinder the absorption of iron from the gastrointestinal tract... and forces it (iron) into the waste products of the bowel."

Bran itself is not the culprit, she says. Concentrations of phytic acid contained in bran is what robs the body of iron, calcium and important trace minerals, such as zinc and magnesium, that would ordinarily be absorbed into the blood stream.

To obtain the two grams of fiber per day recommended by physicians, Dr. Dituri suggests eating such fiber-rich plant foods as apples, cooked or raw peas, whole-wheat cereals, and leafy vegetables.

Almost three-fourths of the iron present in the adult human body is contained in the blood, and it is believed that lack of iron may be one of the most frequent diet deficiencies in this country.

Rinse Will Stop Tooth Decay

An expert advisory panel appointed by the Food and Drug Administration has found that dental rinses and gels containing fluorides are effective for preventing tooth decay.

The panel recommended that they be sold to consumers without prescription. Currently, rinses and gels are available only on prescription from a dentist or physician.

The panel also found fluoride toothpastes effective for preventing tooth decay and recommended daily use. Toothpastes with fluoride have been available for more than 20 years.

Consumers now spend about $600 million a year on dental rinses, gels and toothpastes.

The panel's report is one of a series in the agency's massive review of all drugs sold without prescription. Fluoride toothpastes are regarded as drugs because the label claims that the product will help prevent tooth decay.

The panel, chaired by Dr. Louis P. Gangarosa of the Medical College of Georgia in Augusta, said fluoride rinses and gels should be available to consumers in packages that contain no more than 120 milligrams of fluoride each and that the packages should be capped with child-resistant closures.

The panel recommended that a warning label for rinses and gels state, "Do not swallow. Developing teeth of children under 6 years of age may become permanently discolored if excessive amounts of fluoride are repeatedly swallowed." Gels are applied with a toothbrush and are spit out after one minute.

For all rinses and gels that contain stannous fluoride, the panel recommended this caution to users: "This product may produce surface staining of the teeth. Adequate brushing may prevent these stains which are not harmful and may be removed by your dentist."

Most people think heart disease happens only in the elderly.

If happens in children as well. Things like rheumatic heart disease and congenital heart defects. Each year, nearly one million Americans of all ages die of heart disease and stroke. And 20,000 of them die from childhood heart diseases.

The American Heart Association is fighting to reduce early death and disability from heart disease and stroke with research, professional and public education, and community service programs.

But more needs to be done. You can help us save young lives by sending your dollars today to your local Heart Association, listed in your telephone directory.

Put your money where your Heart is.

Summertime Brings New Health Hazards

Summer Hazards

Winter is commonly the time for colds and flu, but summer also brings some hazards to life and limb.

The American Medical Association points out that some of these are obvious. Heat strokes and sun strokes occur in July and August, not in January and February.

Sunburn has hospitalized many a vacationer. Everyone should know that you can't rush a sun tan. Gradual exposure, beginning with a few minutes per day on each side, is the recommended approach. But many of us forget to watch the clock and to take precautions against sunburn in the excitement of the first day at camp or at the seashore.

The bacteria that cause diarrhea multiply much faster in lukewarm foods, and it's important to keep cold foods in refrigeration and to keep hot foods hot.

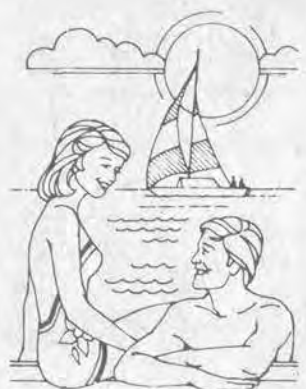

Swimming is fine exercise and good for cooling off on a hot day. Those with sinus or ear troubles should be careful about swimming. Swimmers should know that the water is safe from pollution. A clear mountain stream looks attractive. It also may be loaded with germs. There still are cases of typhoid and dysentery from drinking untreated water.

Campers or hikers can disinfect water by boiling or by commercial disinfectant tablets.

If there are horses or cows around, there is likely to be tetanus. Tetanus (lockjaw) is very serious. It can be prevented by injections of tetanus toxoid. If your family hasn't had tetanus boosters recently, get your shots before going to the country.

Flies, roaches, mosquitoes and ticks are troublesome in the hot months. Insecticides and screens usually can keep them under control indoors. Insect repellents can help ward them off outdoors. In tick country, make a close examination of the entire body after disrobing to remove all ticks.

You And Your Car

Tune-Up Savings Add Up

Automotive tune-ups are a "best buy" for consumers trying to stretch inflation dollars.

A well-maintained car will perform more reliably and economically, so periodic tune-ups actually can save money and can avoid an untimely "no-start" situation.

The following findings show how much gas an untuned engine wastes and how much fuel tuned vehicles can save:

The amount of fuel wasted every week by car owners because of lack of maintenance equals the amount of water that flows over Niagara Falls in one minute.

A major oil company's fuel-economy program found 23 percent of 120,000 cars studied did not meet energy-efficiency standards. Estimated fuel wastage of these non-efficient cars was as much as 140 gallons per year.

A study of New Jersey's vehicle inspection program revealed that untuned vehicles use 58 more gallons yearly than tuned vehicles. As a result of this study, the Department of Transportation projected that tuned vehicles could save five billion gallons of gasoline a year.

Another oil company study showed one misfiring spark plug can waste up to two gallons per tankful.

An automotive parts manufacturer's study found an 11.36 percent improvement average in fuel economy after tune-up.

The American Automobile Association says tune-ups result in an immediate 9 to 15 percent increase in mileage.

The Environmental Protection Agency says on the average a tuned-up vehicle gets approximately 4 to 12 percent better gas mileage than one that has not been properly maintained.

Car owners can best determine when to have their car tuned-up by following the recommended maintenance schedule found in the owner's manual.

Get Your Car Ready for Winter

Winter offers many pleasures, but even cold weather enthusiasts would not include driving among them. You can minimize your winter driving problems by taking a few simple precautions, some of which are tailor-made for do-it-yourselfers.

A good starting point is the car's battery. Be sure it is fully charged so it can provide extra power to start the car when the temperature is low. Also be certain that terminals are clean and tight and that the fluid level is adequate. Owners of "maintenance-free" batteries should read the fine print in the manufacturer's literature. Many of these units require periodic, though infrequent, checking.

Check Up With A Tuneup

A battery that's ready for winter needs a car that will make the most efficient use of its power. This means getting a tuneup, which includes a check of the car's fuel, ignition, electrical and emission control systems. If there are any problems in these systems, it's best to find and correct them in the cool months, not the cold ones.

A fall tuneup is a good idea anyway because an untuned engine can reduce gasoline mileage by as much as 15 percent.

The cooling system should also be checked when the car is tuned. Are there leaks in the radiator, water pump or hoses? Does the radiator cap seal tightly? Is the thermostat working?

Another essential fall checkup is the exhaust system. The danger of carbon monoxide poisoning is greatest during winter because motorists keep car windows closed. Make sure beforehand that there are no leaks in the exhaust system.

Winter Final Points

Snow tires can increase traction by 50 percent on loosely packed snow and most motorists prefer to use them. The car owner's manual or a reputable tire dealer should provide all the information that is needed about what type to buy. The manual also should be consulted for the correct tire pressure; tire pressure should not be reduced in winter.

Last year's snow tires should be inspected for tread depth and signs of wear. Some states prohibit or regulate studded tires, so the buyer should be aware of applicable laws.

A few other points of winterizing are important. A winter grade oil should be used as recommended in the owner's manual, because oil thickens in cold weather. Antifreeze solutions should be purchased for the windshield washer fluid.

Candidates for a cold weather kit, to be carried in the car during winter months, include jumper cables, an ice scraper and snow brush, de-icer, spare wiper blades, a flashlight and safety flares, rags (for headlights and the inside of windshields), and a small shovel.

These precautions will help you avoid most problems during winter months. However, avoid using your car when snow, ice or other weather conditions make the roads dangerous. A winterized car is more likely to make it to spring without problems than an unprepared one, but it isn't accident-proof.

Repair Costs Skyrocket

It would cost $26,418, (4½ times the original purchase price), to repair a totally wrecked 1979 standard-sized car, the Alliance of American Insurers reports.

26 Bluegrass Bands To Feature Louisville Festival, Sept. 11-13

A crescendo of bluegrass sounds will be heard from the riverfront Belvedere in Louisville, when thousands of persons converge for the 1981 Bluegrass Music Festival of the United States, Sept. 11-13.

More than 26 bands will be performing during the three-day event and topping the list will be the father of bluegrass music, Bill Monroe. Monroe and his Blue Grass Boys will be picking traditional tunes during their performances Friday, Sept. 11, and Saturday, Sept. 12.

Among the other groups to perform are J.D. Crowe and the New South, Hot Rize, The David Grisman Quartet, Ralph Stanley and the Clinch Mountain Boys, The McLain Family Band and the Seldom Scene. Music will range from bluegrass to progressive bluegrass sounds.

The Green Grass Cloggers are to perform some of their fancy toe-tapping Saturday and Sunday of the festival.

Saturday, Kentucky Fried Chicken Corp., sponsor of the festival, will hold its second annual contest to name the "Best New Bluegrass Band," a trophy and a Nashville recording session.

T-shirts with the festival logo and posters will be for sale at the festival, and concessions are being catered by Kentucky Fried Chicken.

All performances are free and open to the public; festival goers are advised to bring lawn chairs or blankets to sit on. The festival opens Sept. 11 at noon, Sept. 12 at 10 a.m., and Sept. 13 at 11 a.m., with performances ending at 10 each evening.

The Belvedere is on Main Street between Fourth and Fifth streets in downtown Louisville.

More information may be obtained by contacting Clara Lamkin, Bluegrass Music Festival of the United States, P.O. Box 32070, Louisville, Ky. 40232, or calling (502) 456-8300.

THESE FIGURES, BASED ON YOUR GAS USAGE, SHOW WHERE YOUR ACCOUNT STANDS EVERY MONTH.

THIS IS YOUR MONTHLY BUDGET PAYMENT AMOUNT. TO JOIN THE PLAN, PAY THIS AMOUNT IN AUGUST.

EVEN WHEN YOUR "PRESENT ACCOUNT BALANCE" IS HIGHER, YOU'LL PAY ONLY THE BUDGET PAYMENT AMOUNT SHOWN HERE.

More and more people are keeping a lid on winter heating bills with Columbia's Budget Payment Plan. They pay a predictable amount for gas every month. No extremes. And no heating bill surprises when the temperature takes a dive.

Here's how it works. In August, Columbia Gas calculates what you will probably pay for natural gas during the next 12 months based on your previous usage. That cost is then averaged out so you pay a manageable amount each month.

To get on the Budget Payment Plan, simply pay the amount indicated as "MONTHLY BUDGET" on your August bill. Nothing further is needed. There's no service charge for this convenience. And next July, you will be billed your budget amount plus or minus any difference between your total annual budget and the actual amount used during the year.

The Columbia Gas Budget Payment Plan can make at least one part of your family budget predictable every month of the year. And August is the time to get on the plan. And while you're thinking about lower heating bills, ask for our "Everyday Energy Saver's Guide." It's free at any Columbia Gas office, and offers hundreds of tips on conserving energy.

DEATH PENALTY

David Labiosa plays Carlos Rivera, a teen-age gang member accused of slaying two other youths, and Colleen Dewhurst is Elaine Lipton, a psychologist who encounters hostility when she takes a personal interest in his case in "Death Penalty" on "NBC Monday Night at the Movies," MONDAY, AUGUST 24.

As Lipton begins to teach Rivera to read, she encounters skepticism from the assigned defense attorney (Dana Elcar) and hostility from a prosecutor (Joe Morton) determined to make the most of a sensational case.

Even after the jury delivers a guilty verdict, Lipton wages an all-out campaign to deter society from meting out the harshest punishment possible. Her efforts are tinged with frustration as she encounters apathy from Rivera's parents.

NERO WOLFE

Immediately after asking Nero Wolfe (William Conrad) to find out who has been threatening her husband's life, the wife of a former district attorney is burned to death in a suspicious auto fire in the "Murder in Question" episode of "Nero Wolfe," airing TUESDAY, AUGUST 25 on NBC-TV.

At the outset, the prime suspect seems to be ex-convict George Miller (Norman Alden), who was sent to prison by David Wharton (John Reilly), the former prosecutor whose wife was the victim of the blast. But other attempts are made on Wharton's life and, regrettably, it takes the murder of Wharton's secretary, Valerie (Diane Shalet), to get Nero Wolfe on the right trail.

Studies Office Automation

Brenda Hicks, assistant professor of Office Administration at Pikeville College, recently attended seminars geared toward the office of the future.

Brenda Hicks, of Floyd county, assistant professor of Office Administration at Pikeville College, was recently selected by Arkansas and Memphis State Universities to participate in seminars dealing with trends affecting the modern office and the office of the future.

The one-week workshops, "Office Automation for Business Educators" and "Information Systems in Word Processing", were intensive presentations concerning future technological concepts, computer literacy, word and data processing techniques, telecommunications, reprographics and micrographics procedures, and their impact on the modern office and office productivity. Sessions pertaining to the importance of good work attitudes and skills in the automated office were also attended.

In order to educate students for the office of the future, Pikeville College recently acquired several types of word and data processing equipment including: communicating, electronic, and text editing typewriters, TRS 80 microcomputers, transcribing machines and various electronic calculators. Curricula have been prepared and instruction on this equipment will begin this Fall semester.

Miss Hicks will be attending other training sessions this summer at Evansville, Ind., and Louisville and Lexington, Ky.

Want Personalized Plates? State Says Apply Now

Kentuckians who want a personalized 1983 license plate for the first time or as a renewal should apply now, Kentucky Department of Transportation officials said.

The deadline for submitting applications for personalized plates is Sept. 1. Applications can be obtained from the local county clerk's office or by calling or writing the division of motor vehicle licensing in Frankfort.

In an economy move, the state Transportation Department did not send out renewal notices in July, as it has done in the past. Applications for the following year are now accepted as soon as the new plates are distributed each November.

Initial cost of the personalized license plate is $25, and an additional $12.50 registration fee is charged when the plates are picked up.

More than 3,000 Kentuckians bought the plates last year. The creative messages varied from CATFAN, ULNCAA and HOTROD to TRY GOD, THE WHO and HAZARD.

Restrictions are set by the creativity of the applicant, said John Trager with motor vehicle licensing. The plates "can't offend public decency," and they "can't conflict with the numbering and lettering system already used by the state," he said. Regular Kentucky plates consist of three-letter, three-number combinations.

When mailing in an application, several choices for the message should be included, Trager said. "There is always a rush for certain combinations like GO CATS," he explained.

The person who had the plate with a particular message the year before has first choice for renewal. After that, it is on a first-come, first-served basis. If the applicant's choice is already taken or is not acceptable, the application will be mailed back with two weeks, he said.

"OLD WHISKERS"
"Old Whiskers" isn't much to look at, but he's living proof of the saying that beauty (or the lack of it) is only skin deep. Under the ugly skin deep. Under the ugly skin of a catfish there's some really beautiful meat just waiting to be turned into a mouthwatering fish fry.

And a catfish isn't as particular about what he eats as are some of the "fancier" game fish we often wear out our arms and our patience on. He'll take everything from an occasional artificial lure to special home-made concoctions which smell so bad the cat will try to bury them.

The variety of a catfish's appetite is matched only by the number of methods fishermen have devised for catching him. Kentucky anglers go after catfish with everything from can poles to rods and reels which look like they belong on a deep-sea fishing expedition.

The heaviest tackle will show up below the dams at Kentucky and Barkley Lakes, where anglers "fish the boils" for big blue, channel or flathead cats.

The "boils" are the turbulent areas immediately below the dams where water from the generator is discharged. The water will actually boil up, sometimes as much as 18 inches, above the surrounding surface. In addition to water, the generators also discharge fish which have been sucked into the intakes, and catfish gather at the outlets for an easy meal.

Many farm ponds throughout the state are stocked with channel catfish, and these small bodies of water can offer some fine fishing. Rivers and large streams also offer the opportunity to laze away a hot summer afternoon by sitting in the shade waiting for a catfish to pick up a bait from the bottom.

Or you can try trotlining or limb lining. A limb line is just that a line with a baited hook tied to an overhanging limb. The limb serves as a rod.

A trotline or limb line may be used by fishermen with a sport fishing license, but the trotlines must have no more than 50 hooks, with the hooks no closer together than 18 inches. These lines must be checked every 24 hours and must be removed from the water after use.

There's no statewide size or creel limit on catfish in Kentucky, and this species isn't really fished for as heavily here as in some other states. This makes it a natural for those wanting to fill a freezer with fresh fish, or to invite the friends and relations over for a fish fry.

And if you've never eaten fresh catfish, then you don't know what you're missing. The meat is white and firm, and the taste just about unbeatable.

So if you want to try some change-of-pace fishing this summer, give catfish a try. Or take along some catfish gear on your next fishing trip—if the bass or crappie won't cooperate, maybe old whiskers will.

New Construction May Cause Population Shift

The scheduled construction of four synthetic fuels plants and five coal-fired power plants in the western Kentucky area during the next 10 years will produce significant population change, but no major "boom," according to Douglas Nunn, director of the University of Louisville's Urban Studies Center.

The Urban Studies Center, which is the official source of population information and research for the commonwealth, was asked by the Kentucky Department of Energy to project the overall population changes that could occur in 13 Kentucky counties where the four synthetic fuels plants and five coal-fired power plants are to be built.

The population projections contained in the report are designed to help planners in both the residential and commercial sectors of the communities involved, as well as state officials.

Copies of the study have been distributed to personnel in state agencies who are involved in the socioeconomic planning and planners at the Green River and Lincoln Trail area development district offices.

The 13 Kentucky counties covered in the study are Meade, Hardin, Breckinridge, Grayson, Hancock, Ohio, Daviess, McLean, Henderson, Union, Webster, Hopkins and Muhlenberg.

School Days Reminder

The daily school journey is a serious matter for thousands of youngsters in Kentucky.

Although the 35 million students in the United States between the ages of 5 and 14 represent about 16% of the total population, they are involved in almost 32% of the annual pedestrian accidents, according to the Blue Grass Automobile Club-AAA.

AAA spokesman Bob Owen singled out their "School's Open—Drive Carefully" campaign as an effective way of alerting drivers to the presence of children walking, cycling or riding to and from school.

"Using common sense and observing safe driving tips will reduce school trip accidents substantially," Owen said. "Observe posted speed limits in school zone areas. Since primary age children generally do not recognize or comprehend the potential danger involved in entering or crossing a roadway, they often 'dart out' in front of vehicles, or cross streets without looking. Be particularly alert for children when making a right turn on a red traffic signal."

Owen also identified conditions which could interfere with a driver's ability to act quickly in case of an emergency. "Partially removed frost on windows, outside dirt on windows, and inside smoke film all reduce a driver's visibility, and all are easily corrected. However, early morning darkness and driving directly into the sun can have the same diminishing effect on visibility, and motorists should drive cautiously."

★ CANCER HOPELINE ★

Q. Next week I am having a biopsy done to find out if I have cancer. I'm upset and afraid I won't ask the right questions. Can you help me focus better?

A. There is no denying that the waiting game is very difficult. Assuming you get a cancer diagnosis, it would be a good idea to keep the following questions in mind:

Do I want to know exactly what treatment my doctor plans and what other alternatives are available? Knowledge of the treatment plan is necessary if you want to take part in deciding how and where you will receive treatment.

Do I want to have a second pathologist check my tests? The pathology report is the base on which all future treatment is built. You should discuss with your doctor how the pathology report was done, whether he has talked with the pathologist, and whether or not there is any question about your diagnosis. If there is, ask to have your tests submitted to the laboratory of a large hospital or medical center for a second opinion.

Do I want to know exactly what kind of cancer I have and what stage it is in (how far advanced)? Many people do. Others do not. If you should have a rare form of cancer, you should know about it so that you can decide whether you want to go to one of the cancer centers or medical schools specializing in your disease. At least, you should ask your doctor to confer by phone with a physician doing research in your cancer.

Do I want my doctor to consult with the nearest cancer center or cooperative group about my case? Do I want to make some phone calls myself? There are clinical cooperative groups specializing in the treatment of particular cancers in many parts of the country. Your doctor can get the latest information from them.

Do I want to go to a cancer center or medical school for treatment? This is a big decision. Doctors at such centers probably treat more patients with your particular cancer in a week than many local doctors see in a year. On the other hand, you also have to consider time and money for travel and your ability to withstand it. Your physical need for the best treatment as opposed to your emotional need to be in familiar surroundings with loved ones is also important.

For information or to discuss the options you have as a cancer patient, call the Cancer Hopeline toll free at 1-800-432-9321 from 9-9 Monday-Thursday and 9-5 Friday. All calls are confidential. You may write the Hopeline at 915 South Limestone Street, Lexington, KY 40536.

Operation Cleanup

The Kentucky Department of Transportation, in a joint effort with county and city officials, is planning a massive cleanup project that will eliminate the unsightly litter along Floyd county highways, roads, and countryside.

The cleaning project will begin August 24, and continue throughout the week. All civic clubs, development clubs, and schools are being asked to take part in the cleanup operations.

Interested individuals or clubs should contact the Bureau of Highways in Pikeville at 606-437-9691 to discuss what part they wish to take in this project.

The Bureau of Highways will be increasing its mowing operations during this week, as well.

Trucks will be making runs to pick up bags of litter beside the highways by the various cooperating clubs or groups.

Pharmacy Footnotes

by HAROLD COOLEY

Scientists look upon the alcoholic as a mentally and physically ill person. They believe that he can be treated to the extent that his desire for alcohol can be arrested. An effective start toward the rehabilitation of the alcoholic is to identify his personality difficulty or the situation which made the alcohol so attractive. Treatment becomes a matter of re-educating, sound medical care, good nutrition, security and love. Experts say one seldom becomes an alcoholic alone, nor is his recovery accomplished in isolation.

When you want professionalism and personal service, come to COOLEY APOTHECARY INC, at Town Center Building. We always treat you like an individual. There are no lines to wait in for your prescription and you are clearly informed of all the terms of your medication. We are small enough to recognize you and large enough to serve you. WHAT'S YOUR ANSWER?

A few days ago a survey about your electrical needs may have arrived at your home and at several other residences in your RECC's service area.

It is a brief, easy-to-answer questionnaire that will provide us valuable information in deciding how much electricity you're going to need in the near future.

Many RECC members have returned this very important survey, but there are many who are still being counted on to send in their responses.

If the results are going to help us continue planning efficiently for future electrical requirements, a high percentage of the surveys must be returned to us as soon as possible.

The survey is easy to mark, extremely important, and will cost you nothing except a little time. This is your chance to help us and yourself in planning for our energy future today.

ARC Names Governor Brown

Governor John Y. Brown, Jr., was elected states' cochairman of the Appalachian Regional Commission last week by his fellow governors of the 13-state economic development agency.

Brown will take office in January for a term of one year. He succeeds Gov. Lamar Alexander of Tennessee.

During his term Brown will represent governors of the ARC states in forming Commission policy. He also will take the lead among the governors in fighting for the Commission's survival in the face of federal cutbacks. The ARC is expected to be funded at $215 million for 1982. It has spent over $500 million in Kentucky since 1965.

Al Smith, a London, (Ky.), newspaper publisher who now serves as the federal cochairman, praised the selection of Brown for the states' position after Brown was elected by the governors during a regular session of the ARC following the National Governors' Association meeting here.

"Governor Brown's willingness to take the cochairmanship is consistent with the strong support he has given the ARC during his entire term as governor," Smith said.

"In the current year while the national administration wanted to abolish the Commission, Governor Brown was especially effective in presenting the case for keeping it."

"Brown's pro-ARC recommendations before the Congress this spring have been incorporated in the Congressional action that will fund the ARC for the coming year."

Smith said that Governor Brown's wife Phyllis George, was a convincing advocate for the ARC during the Reagan Administration's initial efforts to abolish the Commission.

"Mrs. Brown took the pro-ARC side in a special meeting that she arranged with (OMB Director) David Stockman. The Browns' arguments before Stockman and the Governor's testimony to the Congress were especially effective in pointing out the need for continued economic development in Eastern Kentucky and other Appalachian areas covered by the ARC.

"Mrs. Brown is currently serving as a director of the Appalachian Community Service Network, an independent, nonprofit network created by ARC to provide educational TV programming via satellite to Appalachia.

"The recent action by Congress supporting the ARC clearly reflects the views expressed by Governor Brown at meetings of the Commission as well as before the Congress.

"I think that Brown's profile as a business-oriented, conservative Democrat should enable him to win an audience with the Reagan Administration when the critical decisions about Appalachia are made."

In accepting the position, Brown said that while he supports the Reagan Administration's effort to reduce the growth of the federal bureaucracy, the ARC has a proven track record of economic development achievement in Appalachia and should be continued in some form.

The Commission has made great progress in improving the economic conditions in Appalachia, Brown said. In Appalachian Kentucky, Brown said, the poverty level has been reduced from 58 percent to 29 percent and the average income level has increased from 46 percent of the national average in the mid 1960s to 67 percent.

"I got involved in the ARC because the program is needed in Kentucky and other Appalachian states," Brown said.

"And even though I may be better known for tight budgets and leaner bureaucracies, I am convinced that for the near future, at least, the ARC can best contribute to a stronger economy in Appalachia and a stronger role for the states in our federal system."

Kentucky has been allocated $14,681,000 for highways and access roads in 1982 by ARC.

Drag Can Increase Fuel Consumption

At current prices high gas consumption is a drag—and drag is a cause of high gas consumption.

Check your automatic brake adjusters: improper operation can create brake drag and increase fuel consumption.

When you have your car engine tuned, check to be sure that tires are properly balanced and wheels aligned properly. If not, they can create drag, forcing the engine to use more power—more gas—shortening tire life. A bent frame does the same.

Don't put luggage or other objects on top of the car unnecessarily. Wind drag is a gas stealer. You'll drag around a lot less if you fully release your parking brake.

Rusty Plates May Be Replaced, Free

Any Kentucky license plate that has rusted so it cannot be read will be replaced free of charge at the nearest county clerk's office.

James Runke, commissioner of vehicle regulation for the Department of Transportation, said some Kentucky plates are rusting to the extent letters and numbers are illegible.

To increase the rust protection for Kentucky license plates in the future, a new $20,000 chemical washer has been installed at LaGrange, where more than 3 million Kentucky plates for 1983 will be made. The new machine will coat the metal with an acid phosphate bath to aid in rust prevention, said Herb Slucher, director of the Kentucky correctional industries, which makes the plates at Kentucky State Reformatory in LaGrange.

"It is a way for us to improve the plates without passing on any cost increase to the public," Runke said.

The problem has been attributed to the type of material used as well as the length of time for which they are issued. Kentucky uses a galvanized steel, which at 30 cents a pound is much cheaper than more rust resistant materials.

"Our biggest problem is that we're forced to use three-year tags for five years because of cost," Runke said. Laminated or graphic tags as Indiana uses have a very long service life at twice the cost, he added.

If a more expensive material were used, a portion of the added expense would be passed on to the public, according to Slucher. "Some states pay from $25 to $50 for their plates compared to $12.50 for Kentucky," he said.

CHILD LABOR LAWS

The first legislation dealing with child labor was a Massachusetts Bay court order calling for town magistrates to investigate the possibility of "teaching the boys and girls in all towns the spinning of the yarn," according to "Labor Firsts in America," a U.S. Department of Labor publication.

Cattle Numbers Up Not Time To Expand

Beef cow-calf operators watching the cattle cycle for a signal to expand should wait awhile before adding cows to their herds.

This is the advice from an Extension livestock marketing specialist in the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture, following USDA's latest estimate of the number of cattle and calves in the U.S. The report shows a 2% increase in total number of cattle July 1 compared with a year earlier.

Dr. A. Lee Meyer said that the growth phase of the cattle cycle is continuing, and this is not the time for producers to expand herds. The liquidation phase, when the nation's cattle herd is decreasing in size, is the signal for individual producers to add cows to their herds, according to Meyer. He said it is his opinion that liquidation won't begin soon.

The puzzling question is why cattlemen continue to expand an unprofitable business. "No average cattle producer has earned enough to cover all costs during the past year," Meyer said. This applies whether the producer has a cow-calf operation or runs stockers and feeders.

Cow numbers are up 1/2 and replacement heifer numbers are up 7% in the U.S., according to the USDA estimate. In Kentucky, there are 20% more replacement heifers than a year ago.

The marketing specialist said two possible reasons explain why cattlemen generally are expanding unprofitable operations: (1) Cow-calf operators have forecast profitable prices in the next 1-8 years, which covers the productive life of a cow, or (2) They made decisions a year or two ago when cattle prices were higher and costs lower.

History of the cattle indicates it is the second reason. "Most cattlemen use their current profit situation to predict what will happen in the future," Meyer said. "So, when profits were good they kept back heifers for breeding. We are now seeing the results of those bad decisions of the past."

By looking to the future, herd size can be planned so that it is large when prices are good, according to the marketing specialist. This means bucking the trend, doing the opposite of what neighbors are doing—may even call for expanding an unprofitable business, Meyer said.

This explains his advice for cow-calf operators to wait until the liquidation phase of the cattle cycle begins before expanding. Increase when most cattlemen are decreasing.

Meyer said it works this way: "The sell-off of the nation's breeding herd temporarily increases the beef supply, pushing prices down and convincing more near-sighted producers that they also should sell. This often gives a producer a good chance to buy high quality stock at relatively low prices."

Even though cattle prices are not good now, producers are unwilling to sell young cows, Meyer said. He added that cattle prices may improve during the next 12-18 months as a result of the gradual buildup in cattle numbers and some other factors such as lower hog production.

Make Flood-Damaged Foods Safe For Eating
 The many lakes and rivers in Kentucky make the state a favorite recreational spot. But when summer storms come, heavy rains cause flooding in many areas. Families need to learn how to salvage or restore flood-damaged foods.
 In flooded areas, every precaution should be taken to make foods safe for eating. The care and use of flood-damaged foods are listed below:
 Wash all cooking and eating utensils in warm, soapy water and scald before using.
 Make sure to thoroughly wash and cook all raw foods, such as apples, carrots and turnips, before eating. Cabbage, potatoes and other vegetables in mounds or buried in sand should be washed thoroughly, then cooked before eating.
 For baked products, if the wrapping is broken the products should be discarded. If the seals on baked goods are not broken, but the package is damp, place the food in an oven and let it dry thoroughly.
 Damp flour, meal and cereal that have not been exposed to water should be emptied into pans and dried in a slow oven.
 All preserved foods (jelly, preserves and pickles) not in screw-top jars tightly sealed should be discarded if touched by flood waters. Also discard food in two-piece screw-top jars.
 Foods in one-piece screw-top or one-piece glass-top jars may be used if the seals are not broken or the jars cracked. However, it is suggested to thoroughly wash and disinfect the outside of the jars in water to which you have added 1 tablespoon of Clorox per gallon of water.
Frozen Foods
 If the freezer is not submerged in water, try to estimate how long the food will stay frozen. Food in a fully loaded cabinet will usually stay frozen two days. In a cabinet with less than half a load, it will not stay frozen for more than one day. Food in a well-filled, well-insulated 4-cubic-foot freezer will not begin to spoil in less than three days; in 12-to 36-cubic-foot freezers, less than 5 days.
 There are several factors to consider when estimating how long the food in the freezer will stay frozen:
 The amount of food in the freezer—A full freezer will stay cold many hours longer than a freezer only one-fourth full.
 The kind of food in the freezer—A freezer full of meat will not thaw as quickly as a freezer full of baked goods or sweetened fruits.
 The temperature of the food—The colder the food, the longer it will stay frozen.
 Insulation—The better insulated the freezer, the longer the food will stay frozen.
 Size of freezer—The larger the freezer, the longer the food will stay frozen.
Thawed Foods
 Fruits usually ferment when they start to spoil. A little fermentation will not make the fruits dangerous to eat, but it may spoil the flavor. If thawed fruits smell and taste good, they may be refrozen. Or, use them in cooked or baked goods, or for jams and jellies.
 Meats and poultry are unsafe to eat if they have the slightest odor, indicating spoilage has started. Examine each package carefully. If it contains some ice crystals, it may safely be refrozen, even though the quality may suffer.
 It is usually wiser to cook the food, cool, package and freeze it as cooked food than to refreeze uncooked meat after it has thawed. Do not refreeze vegetables, cooked foods or fish if they have thawed.
 To quickly refreeze food when the home freezer has defrosted, take the food to a locker plant if there is one close by. To refreeze food in the home freezer, rearrange the food to get the warmest packages against the refrigerated surfaces. Arrange packages so that air can get around them.

Use the correct amount of detergent or soap for the amount of soil on the clothes and the hardness of the water. Package directions will offer guidelines. Particularly with oily soils, be sure to use enough detergent or soap.
 Some permanent press finishes may be chlorine retentive; in this case, the fabric turns yellow if it comes in contact with chlorine bleach. Check the care label on the article for proper use of bleach.
 Keep washer loads small to avoid wrinkling. And select the wash temperature and time according to the degree of soil.
 A fabric softener, used either in the washer or dryer, reduces static electricity.

If your washer and dryer have permanent press cycles, be sure to use them with these fabrics.
 In the wash period, warm or hot water heats the finish making it soft and pliable. This removes any wrinkles made during wear. To avoid resetting wrinkles, the permanent press cycle of the washer provides cold rinses immediately after the wash and before or during the spin cycle in order to cool the fabric down. There is also a cold rinse period to reduce the possibility of wrinkling during the final rinse spin.
 A permanent press cycle in automatic dryers uses the same principles to keep wrinkles from setting as the cycle in automatic washers. Heat relaxes the fibers to remove wrinkles. Then a cool-down period, with air not heat, conditions or sets the garments. Again, keep loads small so that clothes have room to fluff out.
