

County's Assessment Ratio Said over 100%

If Department of Revenue figures are correct, Floyd is one of 41 counties in the state that have their 1980 assessments at more than the 100 per cent ideal sought by the department.

But Lovel Hall, property valuation administrator (tax commissioner) for this county, doubts that they are.

And if the figures released by the department, showing that Floyd county has a 1980 property tax assessment-sales ratio of 107.7 are accurate, Hall said, "I wouldn't see anything illegal about reducing the assessment total for this county by 7.7 per cent, since 100 per cent was all they demanded."

The Department of Revenue says that care should be taken in interpreting the assessment-cost ratios released to newspapers, admitting that, while the ratio is the best available measure of assessment based on the market, "it is not perfect."

Hall sees one cause of the higher assessment-cost ratio to be the inflation factor of 18 per cent which was imposed by the state last year. This means, he said, that a home which sold for $50,000 in 1979, say, would in 1980 have 19 per cent, or $9,000, added to its evaluation.

"But that is unjust," he pointed out, "because a slower economy and high interest rates kept such an increase in the sale price of such property down."

The Department of Revenue has held that if a county's assessment-sales ratio is within 10 per cent of the 100 per cent ideal—90 or 110—it is still considered acceptable.

That still would leave a county such as Pike, which has a ratio of 84.8 per cent, subject to being required to bring its total assessment up to 90 per cent, Hall said.

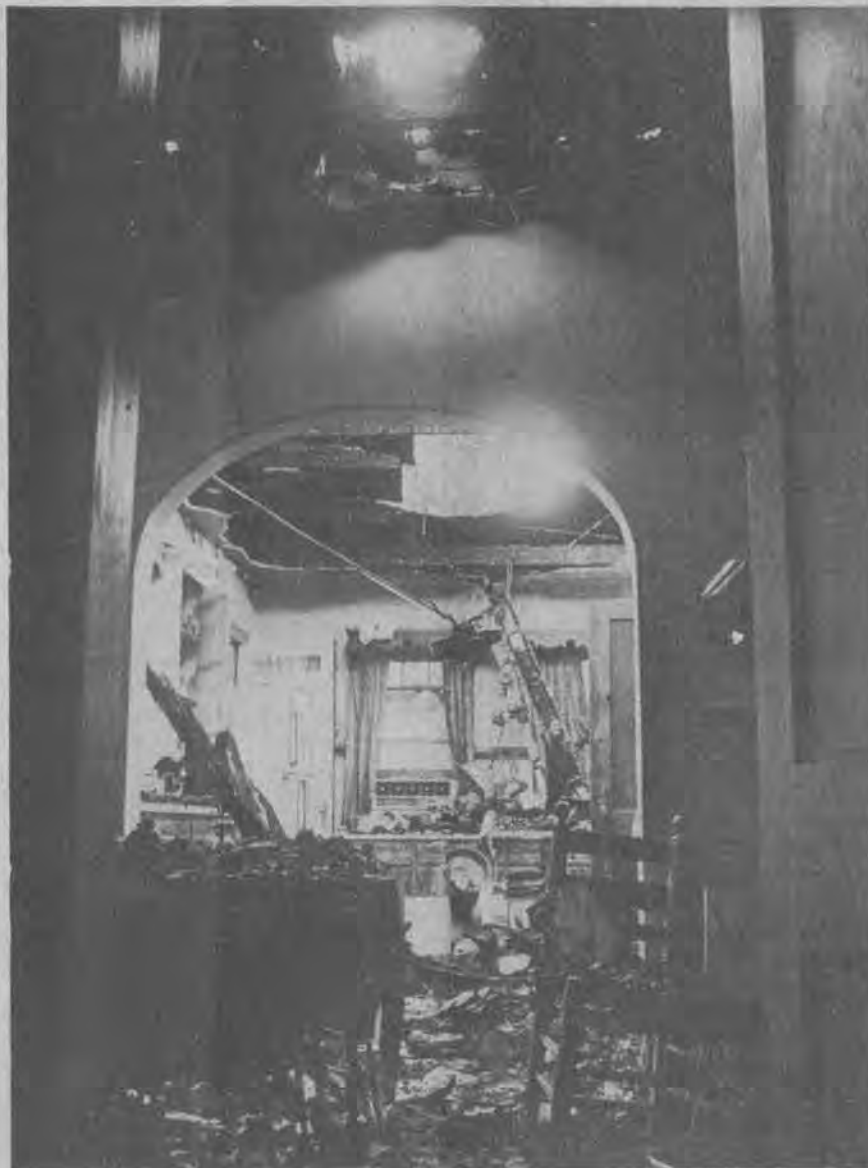

Other Eastern Kentucky counties above the 100 per cent level are Knott (104.5), Lee (110.9), Magoffin (100.6), Martin (101.4), Menifee (107.5), Powell (102), Rowan (108.4), Wolfe (102.8).

Spencer county had a ratio of 117.8, highest reported.

Harlan county had the lowest (67.7), but it is one of 16 counties which won a court fight to prevent the increase of their assessments beyond the total reported by their tax commissioners. Jefferson county's ratio was a low 71.9, but it, too, was one of the counties which joined in the suit. Others were Barren, Bell, Boone, Boyd, Carter, Franklin, Grant, Greenup, Logan, Morgan, Nicholas, Pendleton, Shelby and Simpson.

Floyd county's total assessment for 1980 was $389,650,000, of which $170,370 was listed as real estate.

"One thing is certain," Mr. Hall said. "There will be no increase in 1981, unless the state sends its own people in to do the raising. The court decision relieves property valuation administrators of that. In fact, the assessment could be lower this year."

State Transfer Of Funds Hinted A Turning Point

Long hailed as a potential boon to Beaver Creek communities, funded by Congressional appropriation some 12 years ago, usually dormant but periodically revived, the Beaver Creek channelization project may now be dead.

According to the plan, some 4.5 miles of Beaver Creek in the Martin vicinity would have been straightened and widened. The improved water flow, it was predicted, would substantially mitigate the flood hazard on the creek, some estimating that the 1977 flood level might have been reduced by as much as five feet had the project been completed.

A sign that the plan had slipped a notch in official priorities came earlier this month, when state funds intended for it were transferred to another Martin project. At the request of Congressman Carl D. Perkins, a long-time backer of the channel project, and Floyd Judge-Executive Bill Wells, Natural Resources Secretary Jackie Swigart agreed January 19 to transfer (See Story No. 1, Page 4)

Road, 3 Bridges Seen In State 5-Year Plan

"It's an awfully small thing for a five-year plan," commented District 1 Magistrate Ray Wilcox on a state plan for highway and bridge construction unveiled by Gov. John Y. Brown in Frankfort last Friday.

Four projects, estimated to cost $4.8 million, are listed for this county. They are the access road to the newly-built housing project at Cliff and replacement of bridges at Allen, German and Tram.

The five-year plan for the state, which Gov. Brown said removes politics from road building, will cost $1.1 billion in federal and state funds. More than $326 million is planned for interstate projects through 1985, including the reconstruction of I-65 in Jefferson, Bullitt and Hardin counties and rehabilitation projects on I-75 and I-64.

About $203 million is earmarked for state and federal highway projects and over $178 million will be used to replace nearly 300 outdated bridges throughout the state.

Transportation Secretary Frank Metts said at a news conference Friday he anticipates that some people will not be totally happy with the new construction plan because it does not address all the state's road problems. More projects will be unveiled when the economic development road program, to be funded by a $300,000 bond sale, is announced later this year, he said.

"Even with the bond package, the Transportation Department does not have enough money to solve every road problem in the state; this is something we must live with until better funding alternatives can be found," Metts said. The five-year plan will be updated periodically to add new projects and make cost adjustments, he added.

Construction of the Cliff road and replacement of the Tram bridge are scheduled for completion in 1982. Rights of way for the long-awaited Tram bridge have been acquired and utilities are presently being relocated prior to the construction phase of the project, State Rep. Greg Stumbo said this week. Replacement of the Allen and German bridges is scheduled for 1983.

Nine projects are scheduled in Pike county, to cost $48.8 million; seven in Martin county ($38.8 million); two in Johnson county ($600,000); and one in Magoffin county ($800,000). No projects are listed for Knott county, although about $38 million in road construction—mostly for the new KY 80—is under way there.

Metts said the five-year program is the result of 12 months of study. When he was named Transportation Secretary in December, 1979, there were over 900 active projects in some stage of design and about $700 million worth of construction underway, he (See Story No. 2, Page 4)

Rescuers Save P'burg Man Who Had Despaired of Life

C. J. McNally, Prestonsburg businessman, is enjoying life and the comforts of home more, these days, than ever before, although he is sore and aching in every muscle, the black-and-blue from bruises covers his body, and he has a broken collarbone.

He is almost literally back from the dead.

On his way here from work at Trip in Mingo county, W. Va., Sunday afternoon, Jan. 25, he was pinned beneath his truck when it left the Middle Fork road in Martin county on a stiff curve and hurtled, end over end, to land on its top in the waist-deep water of Rockcastle Creek.

He was pinned beneath the dashboard of the vehicle. His head was submerged, and then began his losing battle for life. Conscious and fully aware of the situation, he struggled to free himself, but in vain.

"I held my breath as long as I could," Mr. McNally recalls, "and finally I could no longer. Then I blacked out after I drank a lot of water."

This Town...That World

This column played hooky last week, and the silent protest was deafening.

"BACKWARD, TURN—"

While I was vacationing after a fashion, I was enjoying a bit of second childhood—re-reading for I know not how many times "Huckleberry Finn." They don't write like that any more.

LOST AND FOUND

Found another dime on the sidewalk, the other day, and was reminded that I've picked up more lost items—coins, pencils, pens, the like—in the last few years than in all the rest of my life. It's not that the eyesight is becoming keener, these days; I find more things underfoot now because I watch the faltering step more closely.

When a fellow is a young sprout, he sallies forth, shoulders squared, eyes set far ahead, mind a-wing as much as the feet, and a speck or so of stardust in his eye. Little wonder that he seldom sees those tawdry things below.

NEW SENSATION

Our youngest grandchild paid us his first visit recently, and such a commotion he created! I am reminded that his presence caused as much excitement as the foaling of a thoroughbred colt created on a Blue Grass horse farm where I spent a night, some years ago.

THANKFUL...BUT—

Acquaintance of ours spoke solemnly of how he had prayed for the American hostages and their release; spoke of answered prayer, of how thankful to God he was. Then added: "But I still say Carter should have gone in and got 'em!"

Sign on a car bumper: "Have you hugged an old codger today?" One cynic suggested another strip reading, "If you have, explain why."

Second Woman Fatally Burned

Mrs. Mary Catherine Hutsiniller Smith, 49, last Saturday morning became the second Prestonsburg woman to die in her burning home within a period of a few weeks.

The first such fatality was the death of Frances Jones, former Prestonsburg teacher, on Dec. 18.

The fire in which Mrs. Smith died was discovered around 5 o'clock Saturday morning after an explosion had awakened Mr. and Mrs. Gorman Collins, next-door neighbors. Cause of the blaze has not been determined. Fire Chief Tom Blackburn said the fire did not begin with the explosion. Instead, he said, the blast was caused by backdraft from the fire. He and other members of the fire department were joined by Arson Investigator McKenzie in theorizing that the fire originated in a faulty extension cord or from a cigarette in the left rear area of the residence which was used as a television room, and where Mrs. Smith also slept.

On arrival at the scene firemen searched the smoke-filled building for its occupant but failed to find Mrs. Smith. After the fire had been brought under control her body was found in the TV area, within six feet of the rear door.

An autopsy was ordered by Coroner James J. Carter.

Fire damage was confined mainly to the TV area and an adjoining first-floor room and the attic. Other parts of the building suffered smoke and water damage.

Mrs. Smith was the daughter of the late Charles L. and Maxie Allen Hutsiniller and was a native of Prestonsburg. She is survived by her husband, Jonah Smith, and one daughter, Laura Lee Holland, of Lexington.

Funeral rites were conducted at 2 p.m. Tuesday from the chapel of the Floyd Funeral Home by the Rev. John Wood. Burial was in Davidson Memorial Gardens.

Pallbearers were Orville Cooley, Bev Burchett, Joe A. Spradlin, Johnny Ribble and W. A. Spradlin.

Rain Halts Forest Fire Spread in Wintertime

A slow, all-day rain Sunday did more than break a drought which had beset Floyd county, almost all of Kentucky and a large part of the country. It halted the growing spread of forest fires.

Last week, while woodland areas continued to dry out, 14 fires burned more than 400 acres of timberland in this county, District Forester Art Leach said. Most destructive of the blazes were reported in the Big Branch section of Dewey Lake (240 acres) and the Harold-Mud Creek area (180 acres).

A spotty snowfall of two to four inches last Thursday helped with the fire situation but only in parts of the county. In Prestonsburg the snow was a mere "skiff." Farther north, there was no accumulation, and there were some in the extreme northern end of the county who were unable to understand why schools were closed for the day. They were unaware that snow ranging from two to four inches had fallen in the opposite end of the county.

Sunday's rain was followed Monday by general, light snow and temperature lows of around 5.

Slayings of Two Probed As Jury Begins Session

The grand jury convened Monday morning for a three-day session, and the first cases to be investigated were those involving the slaying of a Garrett man by his brother and a Printer woman by her husband.

When empanelled Jan. 5, the jury was instructed by Circuit Judge Hollie Conley to concentrate on road and stream littering and the spread of drugs, particularly in the schools.

The jury lost its second day, Tuesday, because of snow and ice, and is not expected to adjourn till tomorrow (Thursday).

Named defendants in the slaying under investigation are Frankie Gibson, accused of the shooting of his brother, Grover, at Garrett, and Torrence Wright, who is under $20,000 bond in the recent shooting-death near Printer of his wife, Barbara. Indictments against the two are believed to have been made Monday, but no indictments will be reported until time for jury adjournment.

Wright's bond remained unchanged after a preliminary hearing was held in district court last Thursday. The only witness to be heard at the hearing was State Detective Don Weedman, whose testimony was restricted to basic facts in the case. No defense testimony was heard.

School Repair For McDowell Awaits Funds

Floyd school officials are still awaiting word on the fate of funds intended to repair classrooms at McDowell that were damaged by floodwaters last year.

The Kentucky School Building Authority authorized $505,000 to replace school buildings damaged by the flash flood which struck in August, but the emergency funds were among those subsequently frozen by order of Gov. John Y. Brown.

While State Schools Superintendent Raymond Barber indicated earlier that the monies would be released early this year, that prospect now appears in some doubt. A meeting with Frankfort officials scheduled last week to discuss the emergency funds was postponed. Floyd Schools Superintendent E. P. Grigsby, Jr. said this week, A new date for the meeting is expected to be announced soon, he said.

Of three McDowell high school classes formerly housed in a wood-frame building which was swept from its foundation by the flood, two are presently meeting in the school auditorium, according to Principal Hugo Miller. The school P.T.O. has petitioned the governor for release of the repair monies, he said.

Also frozen is $45,000 in funding for repair of roads damaged by the flood, Judge-Executive Bill Wells said this week.

Job Corps Holds Open House

Barbara Hall, left, kitchen aide at the new Prestonsburg Job Corps Center, and Gary Lilly, food service supervisor, will soon be responsible for feeding the center's 165 trainees, the first of whom are expected to arrive today (Wednesday).

Their task was considerably easier Sunday, however, when Print Ball, right, stopped by for a cup of coffee and a chat during the center's official open house held through the day.

Helping Children Make Career Plans

Career decision making is a process, not an event that occurs at a given time. Your child's future career will be influenced by events that occur beginning in the pre-school years and continuing through all of adult life. Here are some ways in which you can aid your child in positive career development:

- Encourage your child to ask and think about the question, "What will I be when I grow up?" In the early years, children's hopes are often expressed in fantasy terms, especially during play. You will hear things such as, "I'm Daddy and I'm Superman, and you're Mommy and You're Wonder Woman." Don't criticize such statements. Your child is exploring who he or she is and the kind of persons they are becoming. It will help you to understand him or her better if you let your child talk in this way. Provide toys that encourage experimentation through play with many different jobs.
- Don't discourage your child from planning particular careers at an early age. It is better to ask, "Why does this appeal to you?" than it is to say something like "You wouldn't like to do that" or "That's completely unrealistic." Until major action decisions have to be made, it is better to let your child think about any possible job choice.
- Try to help your child think about alternate choices. The question, "If for some reason, you couldn't do this, what other things would you want to do?" is a good one to raise. It will help you learn more about your child, and will also help him or her broaden the basis for career decision-making. Talking about your own alternate career choices will also help in this. For example, discuss jobs you've had in the past or changes you might be considering in your present occupation.

- Try to eliminate sex bias in thinking about your child's future career. Your daughter may very well wish to enter an occupation you now think of as "masculine," or your son enter one that you consider "feminine." Don't discourage them from thinking about such occupations. Times are changing, and they will need extra measures of your emotional support. If the child next door discourages your daughter from being a doctor because "girls are nurses," take your daughter to a woman doctor. Point out women who are in traditionally male jobs. Say things like, "A person's sex really doesn't matter, it's ability that counts."

- Don't hesitate to respond when your child asks, "What do you think I should be when I grow up?" Try to make it clear that it is more important that he or she be happy than become what you would like. However, you can point out particular talents that he or she possesses and discuss the jobs that these would be helpful in.

- Tell your child about the work that you do. Try to do so in a positive way so that your child will gain respect for you by respecting what you do. Neither encourage nor discourage your child from considering your occupation. The important thing is that your child sees that you, through your work, are making contributions to society.

- Encourage your child to ask people about their jobs. Make use of your friends who are in the occupations your child is considering. Emphasize to your child that she or he should seek information, not firm advice, from such persons. If your child is particularly interested, ask a friend if your child can visit to see what the job actually involves.

- Take your child on field trips to see various people at work in factories, offices, automechanic shops, etc. This is very helpful in letting children acquire a realistic view of a variety of jobs.

- Help your child explore hobbies and other leisure-time activities that are productive and useful. Sometimes such activities can lead to career choices. Whether they do or not is unimportant. What is important is that they can help your child see himself or herself as one who can accomplish something successfully.

- Help your child understand how very important his or her school work will be in later job decisions. Show them how such subjects as reading, arithmetic, and communications are used in almost all occupations. In short, help them understand that there are more important reasons for going to school than simply going to school.

- Encourage your child to engage in part-time work outside the home. If such work is done for pay, you can talk to your child about basic elements in the free enterprise system. Whether or not the work is for pay, it can help your child explore career interests and discover the sense of accomplishment and self pride that can come from work.

- Encourage your child to visit with teachers and counselors about career plans and hopes. After such visits, talk with your children about what they learned. Feel free to tell them what you think. In doing so, make it clear that you are expressing your opinion, not telling them what to do with their lives. Don't refuse to discuss such matters with your children just because you don't know the answers.

Your child's career choices will certainly affect your future as well as your child's. In this sense, you have a right, as well as a responsibility, to be active in helping your child make career plans.

Local Men Assigned Following Training Course

Charles L. Harmon, Jr., son of Leffie and Marie Harmon, of Bays Branch, and Steve Greer, son of Raymond and Edie Greer, of Abbott Creek, recently completed a 12-week training course in telephone installation and maintenance conducted by C. & C. Teletronics in Lexington.

Since completion of the course, Harmon and Greer have been employed by a Georgia-based firm and are working on a large telephone installation project at the Albany Medical Center, Albany, New York. Following their work in New York, they will be transferred to another project in Las Vegas, Nevada.

Kentucky Coal Wins Over Ohio Interests

Coal interests in Eastern Kentucky and West Virginia have won another battle over their Ohio colleagues.

The U. S. Environmental Protection Agency has again decided that Ohio cannot invoke a special part of the 1977 Clean Air Act to cut off sales of low-sulfur Appalachian coal to Ohio utilities.

Such an action, the agency says, "would delay environmental cleanup, lead to higher electric bills for many Ohio consumers and businesses, and adversely affect coal-mining areas of Eastern Kentucky and southern West Virginia."

The agency's decision, which is similar to a preliminary finding in September 1979, was released last week by the office of U. S. Rep. Carl Perkins.

Perkins aide David Whalin said, "It preserves some fairly significant markets in Ohio for Eastern Kentucky coal."

The EPA decision, dated Jan. 16, is also preliminary. The public will have 30 days to comment on the decision after it's published in the Federal Register, which Whalin said should be within a few days.

The EPA will then issue a final decision. Despite the fact that there is a new administration in power, Whalin said he believes there is little chance that the final version will differ from the preliminary one.

Stuart Eizenstat, domestic affairs assistant to former President Carter, told Perkins in a recent letter. "I know that this decision will be very important to your state, and I am pleased that we were able to finalize it before the end of this administration."

Corps Says Levisa Cleanout Cleared Away Local Resentment

Whenever the Army Corps of Engineers conducts a stream cleanout, there's often much resentment among residents who live where the cleanout is taking place. Much of that resentment focuses on the perception that stream cleaning will damage riverbanks and surrounding land, making both more vulnerable to minor floods.

The perception is false, but getting residents to believe otherwise is the problem, the Corps says. Changing perceptions isn't easy, but it can be done. The Corps' recently completed Levisa Fork stream Rehabilitation Project in Eastern Kentucky offers ample testimony.

Before the $650,000 project began, area residents objected to having their streams "dredged", fearing erosion of riverbanks and adjacent properties. But by the time the project was finished, they were happy the streams had been cleaned.

Then why the protests? Capt. William Roudabush, Levisa project engineer, feels objections surface because people don't see any advantages. "They have to see the benefits," he says, "otherwise, they don't want it."

Another reason, according to Dale Smith, one of the project's area supervisors, is that residents view the Corps the same way they do others who have previously entered their region to do certain work. In many cases, the area was left in worse shape than it was found, leaving residents extremely bitter.

In Capt. Roudabush's opinion, getting residents to understand the nature of the Corps' work is a large part of successfully completing a stream rehabilitation project. Without that understanding, residents remain hostile and stream cleaning, for the most part, goes unfinished.

The reason for this is that before stream cleanouts can begin, the Corps must have written permission from private property owners whose land is adjacent to where stream cleanouts are conducted. Landowners have the right to say, "No," and in that case, the Corps has to pack its equipment and vacate.

Most objections are put to rest once residents realize why the work has to be done and how they benefit as a result, a Corps spokesman said recently. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Blair, of Sitka, are prime examples.

The Blairs were convinced stream rehabilitation would blemish the riverbanks and adjoining properties. Their minds changed when Smith explained why and how the work was done and escorted them to a nearby work site. There they saw, first-hand, how stream cleaning is accomplished and how it serves the landowner for the better.

This prompted a thank-you letter from the Blairs to the Corps which ends:

"This (stream cleanout) was just a drop in the bucket of what needs to be done. But with the Corps of Engineers working for us, we feel they know their job and will help us all they can. For the first time, we feel our tax dollars were well spent."

Stream rehabilitation is vital to such areas as Levisa Fork, where much of the land is hilly and flat land is scarce. Such areas are especially flood prone. But because funding for stream rehabilitation is limited, only certain sections are selected for cleaning.

The cleanouts help to protect riverbanks and surrounding land from minor flooding by lowering the water level in streams. This is done by removing rubbish from streams that causes water to flow slowly. Debris such as fallen trees and sand bars are removed, creating a swifter water flow, which lowers the water level and decreases the chances of minor floods.

If the debris isn't eliminated, the water level rises even more during rains, increasing the possibility of flooding. In addition, riverbanks and surrounding properties suffer more erosion than if there had been no stream rehabilitating effort.

David Water Rate Increase Approved

The state Utility Regulatory Commission has approved rate increases for all classes of customers served by David Water District, a non-profit water distribution system which serves 78 customers.

Originally, the utility had only requested an increase in rates charged to large industrial customers. The commission required David Water District to spread the increase among all the customers. However, the bulk of the rate hike will still be levied on large use customers.

The monthly minimum for a five-eighths inch meter, used by residential customers, will increase 20 cents from $6 to $6.20 for the first 2,000 gallons.

At the other end of the scale, the minimum monthly bill for two-inch meters will increase from $92.50 for the first 50,000 gallons to $111 for the first 50,000.

Laser Revolutionizes Surgery

An invisible stream of light with amazing curative powers has broadened the scope of surgery and improved patient recovery. The new device is the laser, an acronym for "light amplification by stimulated emission of radiation," Stanley Englehardt explains in the January Reader's Digest.

What lasers have made possible includes repairing torn retinas without conventional surgery, sealing leaking blood vessels in the stomach, opening blocked fallopian tubes without costly reconstructive surgery and vaporizing polyps and birthmarks.

Lasers vary in makeup and can select their targets accordingly. Ruby-based lasers, for instance, are attracted to blue-pigmented material. More recently argon and CO2 lasers have been used. Argon can be controlled so precisely that it burns no deeper than the skin of a tomato, and thus is tremendously effective in removing unsightly birthmarks.

CO2 laser puts out a wavelength that is absorbed entirely by water. Since biological tissue is constituted primarily of water, the CO2 can be used almost anywhere on the body. "Because the beam seals smaller capillary vessels as it cuts along," Englehardt writes, "there is none of the effusive bleeding that marks most operations." Unquestionably, this is a major operating-room advance.

More than 80 percent of all fatal accidents reported on Kentucky's highways occur within 25 miles of the driver's home.

Scarlet, black, white and chestnut oaks and hickory trees occupy steep slopes with southern exposures in Kentucky forests.

Floyd Heart Chapt. Makes Fund Plans

Formulation of a plan for the annual fund drive for the American Heart Association was the focus of last Tuesday's meeting of the Floyd County Chapter of the association, held at Riverview Manor Nursing Home here.

Floyd county's goal for this year's drive has been set at $6,000, it was announced.

After the meeting was called to order by chapter president, Dr. Syed Akhtar, it was announced that Heart Week will be observed February 22-28. A "Jump-Rope for Heart" was discussed by the group for March 7 and Vice-President Delores Dingus will explain the program to Floyd county schools to see which will be able to participate. Mrs. Dingus also accepted responsibility of contacting Helen Omerod at Riverview Manor for planning of the Rock'n Roll event which has been a major factor in the success of fund drives in past years.

It was announced at the meeting that a dance, featuring Marlow Tackett and Southern Comfort, will be held for Heart, February 28 at the Martin Gymnasium, and canisters for donations will be distributed to Floyd county business establishments in March.

Heart will sponsor a blood pressure clinic at the Martin Volunteer Fire Department with the help of department members, February 6 from 2-6 p.m. at City Hall, and again on Saturday at City Hall from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Edith Burchett will assist with registration at the clinics.

It was decided at the meet to let area physicians know what literature is available to them from the AMA and members were assigned to contact doctors in various sections of the county.

Present at the meeting were the following: Audrey Kendrick, Edith Burchett, Beverly Morrison, Zina Goble, Syed Akhtar, M.D., Malik Akhtar, Ken Peters, Sharon O'Bryan, Dorothy Harris, Delores Dingus and Carla Boyd.

COMMONWEALTH OF KENTUCKY DEPARTMENT OF BANKING AND SECURITIES NOTICE

The Department of Banking and Securities of the Commonwealth of Kentucky has received an application from US Life Industrial Credit Corporation for an Industrial Loan Certificate to be located at U.S. 23 North Lake Drive, Prestonsburg, Floyd County, Kentucky, jointly with an existing small loan license already operating at the same address.

KRS 291.440 directs the Commissioner of Banking and Securities to issue an Industrial Loan Certificate if: (1) the moral character and financial responsibility of the Incorporators and principals justify public confidence and insure the reasonable probability of success of the corporation; (2) compliance with the provisions of the industrial loan law relating to incorporation and corporate power has occurred; and (3) it appears that no undue injury will result from approval of the application to any properly-conducted, existing industrial loan companies. In addition to these criteria, the commissioner's investigation shall address itself to the public necessity for an industrial loan certificate in the community to be served.

Anyone desiring to comment on these criteria shall submit written comments within twenty (20) days of publication of this notice to the Commissioner of Banking and Securities, Department of Banking and Securities, 911 Leewood Drive, Frankfort, Kentucky, 40601. Anyone desiring to present evidence at a public hearing shall direct a written request for hearing to the commissioner within twenty (20) days of receipt of this notice.

The public file on this application may be examined by interested parties during regular business hours at the offices of the Department of Banking and Securities.

$100,000, previously allocated to the channel improvement, to the flood-proofing of Martin's proposed new water plant.

The $100,000 in flood abatement funds would have been used to reimburse the county for the cost of acquiring right-of-way for the wider channel. According to one county official, the transfer was prompted by fears that, having lain unused for years, the funds were about to be withdrawn by Gov. John Y. Brown. In another view, the installation of President Ronald Reagan effectively doomed whatever prospects the project enjoyed.

"It is never dead; it can still be done," Martin Mayor Larry B. Hall insisted this week. But other officials concede the channelization might indeed be a lost cause.

"It is needed; there's no question about that. But the future looks dark," said Judge Wells. And County Attorney Arnold Turner, Jr., perhaps the county official most identified with attempts to further the project, expressed dismay when told this week of the loss of state funds for the work.

"It could very well kill the project," he said of the fund transfer.

A modest sum when compared to the project's total cost—estimated at $3.3 million when federal funds were appropriated in 1968, and thought to be more than double that figure now—the state money was nevertheless critical to the project.

Funding for preliminary legal and engineering work and for acquiring easements, for which the county and city of Martin are responsible, has long been an obstacle to the project. That problem appeared nearer to resolution, however, following a recent pledge of Big Sandy Area Development District funds to hire an engineer to prepare the necessary property maps.

While strictly a reimbursement rather than a grant, the $100,000 in flood abatement monies could be applied, it was thought, to the cost of acquiring property for the project. With that money gone, a link in the funding chain has collapsed.

Meanwhile, the Army Corps of Engineers, which would be responsible for the channeling, is pressing the county to document progress on the property acquisition and funding arrangements to be completed before channel construction could begin.

In a January 27 letter to Judge Wells, Col. James H. Higan, Huntington district engineer for the Corps, suggests that Congressional funds previously appropriated for the channel could be reprogrammed, allowing construction to begin, except for the delay in securing right of way.

While 33 condemnation suits have been filed by the county since February, "to date none of these cases have progressed to the point where title has passed to Floyd County," he notes.

Corps representatives met with county and Martin officials four times last year "to revitalize the real estate acquisition" for the channel project. Higan wrote, adding that the Corps has no evidence that the county has made any progress on the work.

As if a reminder were needed, Col. Higan also noted that arrangements will be necessary to pay the costs incurred by the county and the city of Martin.

Even as many Beaver Creek residents express fears that construction of KY 80 may exacerbate the hazard of flooding in their communities, county officials indicate little enthusiasm for pursuing sometimes controversial property suits at this time.

And, with the loss of funds that might have made it possible, the task appears as remote as it has ever been.

Sandy river is muddy. Dewey Lake, which normally becomes muddy in November and remains so till April or May, has been summertime clear all winter. The drought, however, has not lowered its level.

Elsewhere in the state, impoundments are far below normal pool, and some municipal reservoirs have become almost dry. The week-end rain flushed streams and gave hope of improved water supplies to towns and cities across the commonwealth.

Yet whatever relief is now being enjoyed is the proverbial drop-in-the-bucket. The water table is far down, and unless heavier rains and snows come the situation could become critical for farmers later in the year.

Although Marconi is credited with inventing radio, British inventor David Edward Hughes demonstrated in 1879 that radio signals could be received from a spark transmitter located several hundred yards away.

"I looked at those plans and then studied the funding forecasts of the various road programs. It was at that point that I realized there was no possibility of completing all the planned projects in the near future, and some direction must be given the Transportation Department's construction plans," he said.

"There are no 'dream roads' in this program and it has been balanced with the revenue estimates anticipated through 1985. We fully intend to follow through on each and every project and to adhere to the schedules to the best of our abilities," Metts said.

- 2:30 a.m.—Throw everything except the kitchen sink in the pickup.
- 3 a.m.—Leave for the deep woods.
- 3:15 a.m.—Drive back home and pick up gun.
- 3:30 a.m.—Drive like heck to get to the woods before daylight.
- 4 a.m.—Set up camp. Forgot the tent.
- 4:30 a.m.—Head into the woods.
- 6:05 a.m.—See eight deer.
- 6:06 a.m.—Take aim and squeeze trigger.
- 6:07 a.m.—"Click."
- 6:08 a.m.—Load gun while watching deer go over the hill.
- 8 a.m.—Head back to camp.
- 9 a.m.—Still looking for camp.
- 10 a.m.—Realize you don't know where camp is.
- Noon—Fire gun for help—eat wildberries.
- 12:15 p.m.—Run out of bullets—eight deer come back.
- 12:20 p.m.—Strange feeling in stomach.
- 12:30 p.m.—Realize you ate poison berries.
- 12:45 p.m.—Rescued!
- 3 p.m.—Arrive back in camp.
- 3:30 p.m.—Leave camp to kill deer.
- 4 p.m.—Return to camp for bullets.
- 4:01—Load gun—leave camp again.
- 5 p.m.—Empty gun at squirrel that's bugging you.
- 6 p.m.—Arrive at camp—see deer grazing at camp.
- 6:01 p.m.—Load gun.
- 6:02 p.m.—Fire gun.
- 6:03 p.m.—One dead pickup.
- 6:05 p.m.—Hunting partner returns to camp dragging deer.
- 6:06 p.m.—Repress strong desire to shoot hunting partner.
- 6:07 p.m.—Fall into fire.
- 6:10 p.m.—Change clothes, throw burned ones into fire.
- 6:15 p.m.—Take pickup, leave partner and his deer in the woods.
- 6:25 p.m.—Pickup boils over—hole shot in block.

of reviving him. How many seconds is anybody's guess."

The victim spent the next three days in Highlands Medical Center before returning home.

Mr. McNally says the last thing he remembers before lapsing into unconsciousness was that he had died. He remembers nothing till he was fully revived, some 10 minutes after his rescue.

"I remember thinking, just before I blacked out," he says, "that it's a shame to drown in Martin county where there is so little water."

Now, he's thankful above all for being alive and for those three who saved his life.

"It's obvious," he said later, "that I have more than one life, and I've used one of them."

'Where Is Everybody?'

Floyd county has a drug problem and we have to try to find a solution. That was the view of Dr. Doug Adams at the January meeting of the Board of Education.

People for Better Schools has tried in a small way to do something about drug abuse. We've helped implement a drug awareness and education group in Prestonsburg and have had drug information programs at a few of our meetings. Various members have been working on their own and with other groups in the county. We are very aware of the seriousness of drug abuse in this area and how it is gradually eating away at the minds of our "future leaders," our young people.

P.B.S. promoted a meeting held on January 27, at which an award-winning film on marijuana and its abuse was shown. Knowledgeable people from Mountain Comprehensive Care were there to answer questions and help us to understand and learn what we as concerned parents can do.

I personally invited area school administrators. Additional invitations were extended through local radio stations, newspapers and a Huntington TV station. Personal contacts were made with many members of this community.

Approximately 30 people were at the meeting. There are about 1800 students in Prestonsburg area schools. No representative from our school administration was there. Why? Where is everybody? Why weren't more people there?

One of the reasons our young people may be using alcohol and drugs could be that no one seems to care. Is it easier to sit in front of a TV and numb our brains than to face the problems of drug abuse? Why aren't there more school administrators and parents involved?

There are hundreds of people at weekly basketball games. Where are these people when we are talking about doing something to help our children find solutions to drug abuse?

We must take time to get involved with the lives of our children, educate ourselves, take time to ask questions, and to find answers. Our children should be learning from our knowledge and example. Resources in drug education are readily available. We have well-trained people to help us find solutions. Please take time to get involved before it is too late and your child is facing the frightening problems of drug abuse.

To quote an age-old axiom, "Is anybody there? Does anybody care?"

Circuit Court Judge Hollie Conley presents the "Freedom Bow," suspended from the courthouse since October in honor of the U.S. hostages in Iran, to Jayne Howard and Thomasine Whicker, vice-president and president, respectively, of the Martin-area Jayceettes, following a brief ceremony last Thursday in thanksgiving for the captives' release.

New Engineering Firm Employed For Martin Job

A spokesman for the Lexington engineering firm retained by the city of Martin since 1975 expressed "complete surprise" last week at Martin's hiring another firm to engineer its proposed water system improvements.

The city recently hired Haworth and Associates and Derrick Engineering, a Frankfort consortium, to prepare the preliminary engineering report and file the grant application for the planned water project.

In a January 27 letter to Raymond Griffith, chairman of the Martin utilities commission, John L. Wesley, Jr., of the Howard K. Bell engineering firm, claimed the city had contracted with the firm in 1975 to do the engineering for all phases of the city waterworks improvements.

The contract, which is said to have followed a meeting of Bell representatives with former Martin Mayor E. P. Grigsby and former Water Commission Chairman Ron Reynolds, "is still in effect legally until we receive a written request for its termination and payment for all services rendered in connection with improvements to the water system," Wesley wrote.

Among the services Bell rendered were two pieces of advice the city never heeded.

An investigation by the engineers in 1975 indicated that it would be cheaper for Martin to buy water from the Beaver-Elkhorn Water District than to treat and pump its own. The mayor and water commission felt there were "too many obstacles" to such an arrangement, according to Wesley.

Two years later, the engineers proposed two plans for increasing the city's water revenues, including a 35 percent "across the board" rate hike. The new rate schedule was necessary to avoid continuing the operation at a deficit and to provide money for upgrading the system, the engineers argued.

"To our knowledge these rates have never been adopted," Wesley noted in last week's correspondence.

Mayor Larry B. Hall this week disclaimed knowledge of the debts Wesley claims are due the engineers, but indicated that a written request for termination of contract could be easily provided.

Pharmacy Service At HRMC Expands

As with other services at Highlands Regional Medical Center, the pharmacy has experienced a tremendous increase in use for both inpatients and out-patients. As in all hospitals, a major emphasis in pharmacy must be placed on inpatient needs. However, with some 100 people a day requesting outpatient services, additional demands were creating hardships not only for staff but outpatients as well.

In response to this demand, Clarence Traum, administrator, announced recently that Michael Grabowski, registered pharmacist, has been assigned as the fulltime outpatient pharmacist.

The move is designed to lessen customer waiting and enhance inventory control and accounting procedures in the department and still maintain the high quality of pharmacy services provided to inpatients, according to Traum.

The HRMC Pharmacy is open weekdays from 9 to 5. Emergency Room prescriptions may be filled from 7 a.m. to 11 p.m.

Heating a house with a forced air system can be more energy efficient if you clean or replace the filter monthly.

Health Care's Bid for Clinic Up for Review

A proposal by Big Sandy Health Care Inc. to build a new clinic on Mud Creek goes before the East Kentucky Health Systems Agency (EKHSA) in Lexington for review this evening (Wednesday).

The new facility, intended to replace the clinic presently operated out of a house on Mink Branch, near Craynor, is to be built a short distance away on the Mud Creek road, near John Hall Branch.

Estimated to cost $483,310, the new clinic would more than triple the area available at the present facility, which is said to be severely cramped and ill-designed for the clinic's needs.

The Big Sandy Sub-Area Health Council recently gave a favorable recommendation to the project, which now goes before the EKHSA governing board and will be considered next month by the state Certificate of Need and Licensure Board.

As well as a certificate of need, required of any new health-related facility, Big Sandy Health Care also seeks a change in the licensure designation of its Mud Creek clinic, from ambulatory care to primary care. The federally funded agency also operates clinics in Wheelwright and Salyersville.

Arrests Listed

There follows a listing of those booked at the county jail during the past week, charges against them, and arresting officers:

- Sherman Posten, 22, theft, 2nd degree arson, by State Troopers D. Burdette and J. Rederick; Stanley A. Pack, 27, no operator's license, by State Trooper Rederick; Lonnie W. Spradlin, 25, failure to appear in court, by State Trooper Bradley; John Scott, 26, indecent exposure (warrant), by Prestonsburg policemen L. Woods and J. First Tumor Board Meet Held Jan. 20

The first meeting of the Regional Tumor Board of the Big Sandy area was held Jan. 20 at Our Lady of the Way Hospital, Martin. More than 25 representatives of the medical profession attended. Dr. Gan Maddiwar, of Martin, board coordinator said, "The sole purpose of these meetings will be to discuss individual cancer cases, present the details to the board and organize the further care for individual patients. Not only will this eliminate the need for patients to go to the University Center for advice and therapy, this will also help us to organize and collect data on cancer in this area. I hope, in the future, we will be able to establish protocols for each category."

Monthly meetings of the Regional Tumor Board will be held at area hospitals in rotation.

The Ephraim McDowell Cancer Network and the University of Kentucky Medical Center have expressed a desire to support this venture. The first meeting was very successful, and Dr. Maddiwar hopes more medical people attend future meetings.

Governor John Y. Brown recently appointed Dr. Maddiwar to the Kentucky Cancer Commission, and the American College of Surgeons in Chicago has appointed him as a field liaison for this area.

Grant Program Helps State Library Growth

Thirty years ago libraries were operating in only 30 counties in Kentucky. Today, 116 counties have their own libraries.

A major factor in this dramatic improvement has been the Demonstration Grant Program of the state Department of Library and Archives.

Ellen Hellard, director of the department's Field Services Division, said the goal of this program is to establish library services in counties where none or little now exist. The program has been assisting the counties since 1966. Hellard pointed out that "the demonstration grants have been responsible for initiating library service in half the state's counties since its beginning in 1966."

Four grants funded by the federal government have been announced for this year. Second year grants have been awarded to Madison and Montgomery counties. Madison received $100,000 to implement a county-wide library service program with libraries in Richmond and Berea and a bookmobile to serve the rest of the county.

Montgomery received $60,000 for a library in Mt. Sterling and for bookmobile service.

Initial grants went to Trigg and McCracken counties. A grant of $10,000 to McCracken county will provide bookmobile service to Ballard and Livingston counties. Trigg county received $30,000 for collection development. Trigg contracts with Caldwell county for bookmobile service.

Natural Gas Future Held Bright

Natural gas is the energy bright spot for 1981 and the years to come, according to Jack Stumbo, Columbia Gas of Kentucky manager in Prestonsburg.

Columbia, which services retail customers in seven states from Ohio to the East Coast through its distribution companies, entered this winter with the largest amount of gas ever in its underground storage system.

The company projects supplies of conventional gas will be ample for decades to come. Non-conventional supplies now being developed will be ready in years ahead to serve natural gas customers indefinitely.

"This stable supply plus the favorable cost of natural gas compared to other energy forms is a major factor in the number of new service and conversion requests we receive," Stumbo said.

Columbia serves a total of more than 113,700 residential, commercial and industrial customers in Kentucky. Nearly 90 percent of the natural gas to serve them currently comes from the southwestern United States including the Gulf of Mexico.

Future supplies will come increasingly from other areas of the United States and other countries, although imported gas will remain only a small percentage of Columbia's total supply.

Among several domestic areas now being developed is the highly-promising Appalachian region that overlaps much of the company's retail distribution territory.

"The cost of natural gas will continue to rise, as will all forms of energy, but its price will remain competitive," he noted.

The cost of newly-found gas is gradually being decontrolled under provisions of the Natural Gas Policy Act approved by Congress in 1978. The result of this act has been increased drilling in areas and formations which previously were too costly to develop. Stumbo pointed out that 1980 was the most active year since the mid-1950s in terms of drilling new gas and oil wells.

Although natural gas will remain one of the least expensive energy forms available, Columbia realizes that many customers may have difficulty paying their fuel bills Stumbo said. He recommended the company's budget payment plan for customers who anticipate problems in meeting their bill payments. The budget plan spreads winter heating costs in equal payments over a 12-month period.

The company also will help direct eligible customers to cash assistance programs available from community, state or federal agencies, he said. Finally, Stumbo urged customers to make use of every available conservation measure in their homes and businesses.

"Natural gas is abundant," he said, "but still we must continue to use it wisely."

Free conservation and energy cost-cutting information is available from Columbia's local office.

Celebrates Birthday

Tracey Michele Stallard celebrated her seventh birthday with a party at her home here, January 23. Friends and members of her family attending were Mr. and Mrs. Jake Runyn and children, Devonna and Devon, of Paintsville, the grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Lawsey Wicker, of Lackey, Mrs. Laura Conley, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Wicker and children, Jerry and Heather, Stevie Newsome, the parents, Mr. and Mrs. Terry Stallard, all of Prestonsburg.

Child Care Credit Includes Some Relatives

Taxpayers who pay someone to care for their children or disabled dependent while they work may qualify for a special tax credit, the Internal Revenue Service said. This Child and Disabled Dependent Care Credit may be taken not only for payments to babysitters and day-care centers but also to certain relatives paid for this service.

This credit is available to married couples who file jointly, where one spouse works full-time and the other works part-time, is a full-time student or is disabled, or where both work part or full time according to the IRS.

The credit may also apply to a divorced or separated parent who has custody of a child under 15 or physically or mentally incapable of self-care, even though the parent may not be entitled to a dependency exemption for the child, the IRS said. The parent claiming the credit must, however, have custody for a longer period during the year than the other parent. A married person living apart from his or her spouse is eligible for the credit when the spouse is absent for the last six months of the taxable year.

The credit is 20 percent of eligible expenses. The maximum credit that may be taken is limited to $400 for one dependent and $800 for two or more dependents.

To qualify for the child and Disabled Dependent Care Credit, the IRS said, a taxpayer 1) must have been gainfully employed or in active search of gainful employment when the expense for the child's or disabled dependent's care was incurred, and 2) must have paid over half the cost of his or her household, which included one or more qualifying individuals. A qualifying individual is a dependent child under 15 years of age or a spouse or dependent who is mentally or physically incapable of self-care.

To claim the credit, taxpayers must file Form 1040, even if they do not itemize deductions. The credit is computed on form 2441, "Credit for Child and Dependent Care Expenses," which must be attached to the Form 1040.

Additional information is available in IRS Publication 503, "Child and Disabled Dependent Care," which may be ordered by filling out the order blank in the tax package or by calling IRS at 584-1361 in Louisville, 255-2333 in Lexington, 628-0055 in Covington, or 1-800-428-9100 toll-free elsewhere in Kentucky.

Day Care Center Enters Third Year

Tomorrow (Thursday) marks the second anniversary of the opening of the St. Martin Day Care Center, operated by the Sisters of Divine Providence in Martin.

Originally intended to care for children of employees at Our Lady of the Way Hospital, the center now accepts children without restriction except for limitations of space. Licensed for 12 children, aged two to five, the facility is presently full and has a waiting list of those wishing to enroll.

PCC Group Observes Day Of Thanksgiving

The nursing faculty of Prestonsburg Community College held a reception last Thursday, from 1 to 3 p.m. in observance of the National Day of Thanksgiving for the release of the American hostages. The invitation to the reception was extended to all faculty, staff and administrators at PCC. The reception was complete with yellow ribbons for all participants, coffee, and a cake decorated with yellow ribbons and the words "Welcome Home, Americans." The reception was well attended by PCC employees. The nursing faculty members at PCC are Madonna C. Combs, coordinator, Clara Garrett, Glennis Little, Jenny Botoms, Sr. Joanne Klinnert and Sandra Travis.

VISITS IN OHIO

The grandchildren had two grandmothers, Mrs. Pete Mathews and Mrs. Herbert Gunnell, and two great-grandmothers, Mrs. Mary Williams and Mrs. Joda Gunnell, present.

According to the January Reader's Digest, one half of all fatal highway accidents involve alcohol. The report goes on to say that on any given weekend night, one out of every ten drivers on our highways is drunk.

Hazard-based Coal Co. Draws Record Penalty

A Hazard coal company, Leslie Coal and Energy Engineering Inc., has been fined more than $2.9 million, the largest civil penalty ever ordered by the state Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection.

The penalty involves eight alleged violations of the Kentucky reclamation laws during strip-mining in Perry county.

The allegations are that the coal company failed to cover toxic and waste materials, pushed spoil over downslopes, and built improper hollow fills.

Other violations allegedly found at the 76-acre mining site on Town Mountain, two miles from Hazard, were failure to properly remove and keep topsoil, failure to eliminate 6,000 feet of highway, failure to adequately vegetate the site, failure to leave a proper barrier around a coal seam outcrop, and failure to post proper permit and perimeter signs.

Natural Resources Secretary Jackie Swigart signed the order, which directed that the state revoke the company's permit and keep its $152,000 bond.

The order also said Leslie Coal shall not be eligible to receive permits or conduct future coal operations. That also goes for five men associated with the permit.

John M. Stumbo Girls Win Tourney

The Lady Mustangs of John M. Stumbo Elementary traveled to Martin county to take part in the Inez invitational tournament, which hosts the best teams in the four county area of Floyd, Martin, Johnson and Knott counties. The Mustangs, with a record of 14-2, fired up some impressive statistics by averaging 42 points per game and winning the tourney.

Stumbo starts four eighth-graders, Pauletta Hall, Lisa Mitchell, Deanna Rogers, and Debbie Hall. The other position is shared by Deonna Tackett and Melanie Hamilton. The Mustangs captured several trophies, including the championship, placed fourth on the All-tournament and the team free throw award.

This is not the only tournament win for the Mustangs this season. They also won the Martin invitational with the same aggressive defense and run-and-gun offense, scoring an average of 48 points per game. In the Martin tournament the Mustangs were led in scoring by Pauletta Hall who averages 14 points per game with a game high of 17; Lisa Mitchell, average 11 points with a high of 16; Deanna Rogers, average 8 points with a game high of 17, and Debra Hall average 8, game high of 10. The Mustangs won the team free throw and 16 other trophies.

Martin's Law of Averages

By KENNY RICE
It just happened sooner or later. It came sooner than Allen Central coach John Martin had anticipated, and it has been an omen to the Rebels' season. In five years of coaching through the ranks, from grade school to freshmen team to junior varsity seasons at Sheldon Clark, Martin had never lost a game in overtime. His teams had reputations for winning the close games.

But in Martin's debut as Central coach on November 1, Dorton beat Central in two overtimes. He thought then it might be that kind of season. He was right.

Central led at halftime in all but two of their games from November through January, yet the Rebels had a losing record. The second half has been the downfall of Central, all season long.

"We've lost every game where we've been tied in the last minutes," Martin says. Eight of our first 10 losses, were one- and two-point games in the final minutes."

He can't quite figure it out, unless the law of averages has caught up with him.

"We've handled the press well, so I don't think the pressure is getting to us in the second half. I don't think it's conditioning, we're in good shape. I don't think we make use of our condition enough. We don't run the fast break enough, we try to but we don't do a good job. We're a young team and that could be a reason, or maybe the law of averages has finally got me," he muses. His attitude remains positive as he looks to March.

He is counting on a reversal in trend over the last month of the season, hoping the law of Martin-coached teams playing their best ball in February and March will remain intact.

GRADE SCHOOL TOURNEY

The county grade school sectional tournaments begin February 16, with the championship games of boys and girls brackets set to be completed by the 21st.

Allen Central will be the site for Section 1, McDowell the Section 2 site, Betsy Layne for Section 3 Prestonsburg for Section 4.

The boys' and girls' sectional winners and runnersup advance to the final round at Betsy Layne. The starting date for that is February 23, with the championship game slated for the 28th.

County Athletic Director Denzil

"Hoss" Halbert has done a fine job with this tournament, and the grade school coaches and players should be proud of their achievements.

Floyd county's grade school tournament is as exciting and as well organized as any in the state and these youngsters deserve everyone's support.

A SALUTE

Paul Thompson had athletes from the five-county high schools work as carryouts at the Prestonsburg, Martin and Wheelwright IGA's in December, for a couple of days.

For their weekend of work, Thompson donated $2400 to the county athletic program to be divided among the five high schools.

SWEET 16 APPEARANCES

Pikeville leads the 15th Regional schools in number of State Tournament showings with 14. The Panthers went seven times in 11 seasons (1949-'59) under John Bill Trivette. Their best showings were two semi-final finishes.

Inez is second with nine visits to the Sweet 16, including state championships in 1941 (under Russ Williamson) and 1954 (under Claude Mills). The Indians went seven times in eight years between 1934-'41, missing out only in '38 when Frenchburg went.

Virgie is now third with five trips. Wayland had four visits, Meade Memorial, Elkhorn City and McDowell have three regional titles. Betsy Layne has two 15th Region titles and three 8th Region crowns. Johnson Central, Wheelwright, Garrett and Maytown have two state tourney appearances, each.

A MATTER OF TIME

Ron Robinson's young Prestonsburg Blackcats have made considerable progress since November, but with the most inexperienced team in the region they had just about nowhere to go but up.

Robinson's reputation for bringing his team into respectability before the tournament remains consistent. His Blackcats have put the scare into some good teams over the last month and with so many talented freshmen, it looks like it is a matter of time before the Blackcats enter the season with respect and not have to gain it.

That time might be next season, the following one for certain. Blackcat basketball is on the way back to the glory of the mid-70's.

Bobcats Finally Lick McDowell

By C. "OLLIE" ROBINSON and TOMMIE LYNN MAY

The Betsy Layne Bobcats finally won over the McDowell Daredevils after losing three games to them. They won last Friday night at the D. W. Howard Fieldhouse by a score of 58 to 54. It was a crucial game for both teams in the Floyd County Conference. The Bobcats now have a 6 and 1 record, while the Daredevils are 6 and 2. The game was a see-saw affair with the Daredevils leading at halftime, but the score was knotted at 44-all going into the fourth quarter. Dwight Newsome scored 18 points and handed off 9 assists in the game. He was tied for scoring honors with McDowell's Jimmy Turner with 18 points and 12 rebounds.

The Daredevils also won over the Cordia Lions last Tuesday night, 88 to 74. Big Jim Turner fired in 25 points in the game while teammate Chester Newsome cashed in with 20. Stewart Osborne had 16.

Tuesday night the Allen Central Rebels won over the Paintsville Tigers by a score of 70 to 49. Bruce Mullins led the Rebel attack with 29 points, and Randy Conley connected for 21. The Tigers were led by Darrell Pugh with 15 points.

The Prestonsburg Blackcats won their fourth game of the season by defeating Lawrence County, 60 to 53. The Blackcats were led by Joe Marson who scored 25 points, Jack Wells connected for 12 and sophomore Kenny Music had 8. Freshman Todd Nairn connected for 7. The Blackcats traveled to Allen Central, Friday night, and lost, 88 to 76. Randy Conley came up with a good night with 25 points while teammate Bruce Mullins connected for 21. Wally Ridener broke out of his scoring slumps and got 19 points. The Blackcats' Jack Wells tied for scoring honors for the night with 25 points. Todd Nairn and Joe Marson picked up 13 points each.

The Allen Central Rebelettes rolled to their 24th win without a loss by swamping the Prestonsburg Lady Blackcats, 114 to 22. They were led by Becky Hall with 28, Trena Hensley with 25 and Kim Shepherd with 21 points.

The McDowell Daredevilles surprised the Betsy Layne Lady Bobcats by defeating them, 40 to 37. High scorer for McDowell was Melinda Hopkins with 19 points. Leader for Betsy Layne was Cassandra Keathley with 11 points.

District Tourney Draw Slated Here Feb. 11th

Drawing for the 1981 58th district basketball tournament will be held Wednesday, February 11, in the Board Room of the Floyd County Board of Education building at 1 p.m. Supt. Pete Grigsby, Jr. announced this week.

On the following day at 1 p.m. a meeting of elementary principals and coaches will be held at the same place for the elementary tournament drawing.

All schools involved must be represented at the meetings, the superintendent said.

Allen Eagles Win at Clark

The Allen Eagles won first place in the Clark tournament last week by defeating Prestonsburg, then the Clark Indians.

The Eagles are coached by David Mosley and have a record of 10 and 2. The Eagles' team is composed of Robert Parker, Jimmy Parsons, Darby Ratliff, Jeff Campbell, David Frazier, Philip Lewis, Dan Hitchcock, Barry Campbell, Stacy Marshall, Darren Flannery, Herby Lemaster, John Hunt and Petey Sword. Mascots are Keven Spurlock, Steven "Cotton" Parsons and Tommy "Flipper" Lester.

Some experts estimate that the first dogs were tamed over 12,000 years ago.

Sports Afield

By JOHN WILSON

If you had a day set aside in your honor, would you sleep through it?

If you were a groundhog you probably would. Although he's supposed to oblige us by popping out of his burrow to look for his shadow on Feb. 2, most self-respecting groundhogs (in Kentucky, anyway) have been asleep since October and will continue to hibernate until warm weather.

But if Feb. 2 is warm and sunny, an occasional groundhog might just show himself above ground. But instead of looking for his shadow, he'll be searching for something green to munch on.

The groundhog, or woodchuck, is Kentucky's largest member of the rodent family. Although he's mainly a ground dweller, he can and will climb trees like his relative, the squirrel. It's more than somewhat surprising to encounter a full-grown woodchuck stretched out on a limb sunning itself, particularly when you mistake it for the world's largest squirrel.

Groundhogs can be found all across Kentucky except in the lowlands of the extreme western parts of the state, where annual flooding causes wet basements and discourages permanent groundhog residences.

As a vegetarian which sometimes develops a taste for garden crops, the groundhog isn't popular with gardeners. His habit of burrowing holes in pastures or under farm building foundations doesn't win him too many friends either.

But the groundhog is an important member of our wildlife community. His burrows provide homes (or temporary refuges) for a variety of other species. In fact, wildlife biologists believe that the rabbit population in an area is tied to the number of groundhogs—the more woodchucks, the more holes and the more holes, the more places for rabbits to escape predators.

The groundhog is also a game animal, the target of a group of sharp-shooting hunters who consider any shot less than 200 yards long unsporting. The standard groundhog gun is a flat-shooting, long-range rifle coupled with a 10- to 12-power scope.

Because most farmers would rather their property not be overrun with groundhogs, getting permission to 'chuck hunt usually isn't too difficult. Although there's no closed season on groundhog hunting in Kentucky (except for the "no guns" period from Nov. 1 until the opening of the small game season) the woodchuck manages to hold its own and even, as it often seems to beleaguered landowners, even increase their numbers.

Although he's not commonly thought of as table fare, the groundhog is edible—and if prepared properly, quite tasty, according to fanciers. Judging from the number of woodchuck bones found in garbage heaps of old Indian villages, the groundhog was probably the most important meat in the diet of many tribes.

So if you're an avid 'chuck hunter, you might want to investigate some of the groundhog recipes from a book of wild game cooking. Who knows, you might find "chuck" roast or "ground" round steak taking on new meanings in your family's menu.

The Department for Human Resources reports that average weekly earnings of Kentucky production workers in the manufacturing industries was $294 in September 1980, an increase of 7.5 percent over the weekly average pay earned in the same month last year.

New Law Affects Transfer Of Land Condemned, Surplus

Property acquired by the state Department of Transportation for highway projects which is later declared surplus can only be offered to the original property owner if the land was taken by condemnation, according to a law that went into effect July 1, 1980.

Transportation officials met Thursday with members of a legislative subcommittee on highway enforcement in an effort to help clarify the language in Senate Bill 17.

Mel Smithers, transportation's executive director for planning, said the way the department interpreted the law restricts it from offering surplus land back to land owners that had received compensation through negotiations rather than condemnation.

Smithers said the law requires the department to begin a highway project within eight years or declare it surplus and put it up for sale. Previously, all surplus property was turned over to the Department of Finance for public sale through bids, he said.

Sen. Bill "Fibber" McGee, D-Louisville, asked Smithers if the department knew how much surplus property the department owned.

Smithers said officials have identified about 95 percent of the surplus property in the state. He said he doesn't think there is "any big windfall (in surplus property) out there."

Transportation Secretary Frank Metts has ordered that no land be acquired unless the project can be completed within a short period of time, Smithers said.

Sen. Helen Garrett, D-Paducah, committee chairperson, said that was the legislators' intent when passing the bill. "It looked real good on paper but doesn't sound as good when you read it," she added.

Garrett referred to the bill's language which omits any reference to land owners who sold their property without condemnation.

Smithers asked the committee to go over the bill's language to help clarify the department's responsibilities in carrying out the law.

Says Courier, Martin Countian Are Wrongly Denied Access to Records

The Courier-Journal and Louisville Times Co. and The Martin Countian in Inez have improperly been denied access to public records under the Kentucky Open Records Law, according to two separate rulings by the attorney general's office.

Opinions from the attorney general's office concerning questions on Open Records Law carry the force of law. Opinions on other subjects interpret statutes but do not carry the force of law.

The Courier-Journal and Louisville Times Co. reporter Eleanor Flagler, was denied inspection of the University of Louisville Foundation's records. William J. Morrison, director of the University Archives and Records Center, denied access on the basis the foundation is not a public agency under the Kentucky Open Meetings Law.

Assistant Attorney General Carl Miller ruled in the opinion filed as OAG 81-2 that while the foundation is not a public agency under the Kentucky Open Meetings Law, "this would not necessarily mean that the University of Louisville Foundation Inc., is not a public agency under the Open Records Law, KRS 61.870-61.884, since there is a difference in the definition of a public agency in the two statutes." Miller said Morrison's reason for denying the inspection was erroneous.

Joseph A. Szakos of The Martin Countian asked to examine records of the Martin County Housing Agency, but was denied access to them. According to director of the agency, Pauline Smith, "all requests for information must be cleared with the U. S. Department of Housing and Urban Development Area Council."

Miller said the denial was "improperly denied or delayed," and that Ms. Smith had "cited no state or federal statute authorizing the denial or delaying."

Tax Filing Help By IRS Rep. Here

A field representative of the Department of Revenue will be at the Floyd County Courthouse on February 4, March 4, and April 1 from 8:30 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. to provide assistance to taxpayers in filing their 1980 Kentucky income tax returns.

The field representative's visit is part of a new statewide service initiated this year by Robert H. Allphin, Kentucky Revenue Commissioner.

The field representative will answer questions about Kentucky Income tax returns, assist taxpayers in filling out the forms and will distribute extra forms needed by taxpayers.

In addition to assisting taxpayers, Allphin said the program will help the department in its efforts to encourage early filing of tax returns. Early filing helps the state process returns more economically and speeds refunds to taxpayers.

Rutherford Queries Health Dept. Plan

The concept of district health departments may unnecessarily remove control from local governments and place an added burden on state government for involvement in Kentucky's health services, Pike County Judge-Executive Wayne Rutherford told a legislative subcommittee last week.

The Pike county judge was one of several persons who testified before the interim joint Committee on Appropriations and Revenue concerning the district concept in health care.

Dr. David Allen, commissioner of health services in the Department for Human Resources, gave a brief history of health departments in Kentucky. County health departments originated around the turn of the century to prevent infectious diseases, he said. In 1900 tuberculosis was the leading cause of death in this state.

"Because of the health department's effectiveness, infectious diseases are no longer the No. 1 killer," Allen said. "However, it is still necessary to monitor tuberculosis and control immunizations."

During the next decade health care delivery will be affected by the drain on dollar resources, he said. "We need to find ways to keep people healthy and happy in their own homes longer. Institutional care is no longer feasible," Allen said.

Allen stressed the concept of district health departments does not mean taking authority away from the local level, but rather decentralizing administrative functions now being conducted in Frankfort. He said county health department employees will keep their jobs and service delivery sites in each county will remain open under the district department plan.

Allen also said the new system will increase state and federal dollars, third party payment programs (like Medicaid) and attract higher level health care professionals.

To date the committee is thinking of a 15-member board or a 22-member board, Allen reported. "Local officials will be included on the district boards and counties will have equal representation," he said.

"We are trying to implement the new concept with the dollars we have. We have to deal with federal funding cuts regardless of what concept we use," Allen added.

Christopher Ousley, son of Dean and Brenda Ousley, of Drift, celebrated his seventh birthday Sunday, Jan. 11, at the Martin Burger Queen. Those attending were Julie Maggard, Richard Ousley and Brent Ousley. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Debbie Gibson, of Langley.

Flu Epidemic Crowds Paintsville Hospital

"The flu epidemic that our area has been experiencing the past 30 days has resulted in the Paintsville Hospital being filled to capacity and personnel working double shift, some without a day off," Lowell Benton, administrator, said last week.

"There have been no serious problems in handling the heavy patient load, primarily because of the dedicated employees we have at Paintsville Hospital, and it also points out the tremendous need for a new hospital in the city of Paintsville," Benton added.

United Federal Savings & Loan Association explains the NOW account.

What you should know about our NOW-checking account, available January 2, 1981

Recently, we have been informing you about how NOW-checking accounts will work. Now we will inform you how NOW-checking will work at United Federal Savings and Loan Association. This way you may compare it to where you're currently doing your checking. We are sure if you compare, you will be a regular United Federal customer just like many of your friends.

What is a NOW-checking account? A NOW-checking account is simply a checking account that earns interest.

When will NOW accounts be available? NOW-checking accounts are effective by law December 31, 1980. NOW-checking accounts will be available at United Federal as of January 2, 1981.

Who qualifies? Only individuals, sole proprietorships, or a non-profit corporation qualifies by law to earn interest on their checking accounts.

How to qualify for a NOW-checking account at United Federal? All you have to do is maintain a balance in your NOW-checking account at United Federal of at least $300.00 and we will pay you interest at the annual rate of 5.25% compounded daily. If your account drops below the minimum balance, you will be charged a $5 service charge for that month only and receive no interest.

Why you should have your Now-checking account at United Federal? There are many reasons why, but just to mention a few:

1. A low minimum balance.
2. An itemized monthly statement sent to you.
3. Write as many checks per month as you wish, with no additional charges.
4. We pay the maximum interest rate allowed by law.

For more information about NOW-checking accounts, savings accounts, or any other savings and loan service, stop by any of our offices and talk with our staff. We want you to know more about your financial opportunities. The more you know, the more likely you are to have your savings and NOW-checking accounts with us.

Former Floyd Man, A. B. Brooke, Dies

Albert Bushong "Bush" Brooke, Jr., 61, formerly of Wayland and a onetime member of the Federal Power Commission, died Jan. 23 at Alexandria, Virginia.

Although born at Paducah, he spent his boyhood at Wayland, where his father, A. B. Brook, Sr., was divisional manager for Elk Horn Coal Corporation. He was graduated from Wayland High School, then attended the University of Kentucky, majoring in journalism, before his education was interrupted by World War II. Entering the Army in 1942, he spent two years in European service and was discharged in 1946 with the rank of first lieutenant. He returned to the University of Kentucky and was a Phi Beta Kappa graduate in 1947.

Brooke joined the staff of the Lexington Herald as a police reporter in 1946 and was assistant to the city editor when he left that newspaper 11 years later to become a public relations account executive with a Baltimore advertising agency.

After having served 10 years as an aide to U.S. Senator Thurston Morton, he was nominated by President Johnson in 1968 to a seat on the Federal Power Commission. After filling the remaining 10 months of the term of Charles M. Ross, who resigned, he was reappointed in 1969 by President Nixon to a five-year term.

Brooke is survived by his widow, the former Virginia Joyce Rogers, and four children, Albert B., III, Susan Rogers, Roger and Virginia; his mother and a sister, Mrs. Edmund Castle, both of El Paso, Texas.

Funeral rites were conducted Jan. 26 from the chapel of the DeMains Funeral Home in Alexandria, and burial was made in Charlotte, North Carolina.

Mrs. Dixie T. Tuttle

Mrs. Dixie Tackett Tuttle, 66, of Weebury, died Saturday at the Huntington Memorial Hospital in Huntington, Ind., where she had been living for the past two months.

Born Nov. 25, 1914 at Ligon, she was a daughter of the late William and Rebecca Elswick Vance. Until her retirement, Mrs. Tuttle was employed as a practical nurse. She was twice married, first to George Tackett, who preceded her in death in 1973, and later to Andrew Tuttle, who survives her. She had been a member of the Joppa Regular Baptist Church at Melvin for 40 years.

In addition to her husband, she is survived by one son, Frank Vernon Tackett, of Huntington, Ind.; two daughters, Mrs. Norma Jean Tackett, also of Huntington, Ind., and Mrs. Andrea Little, of Wheelwright; two brothers, Arnold Vance, of Wayne, Mich., and Thurman Vance, of Huntington, Ind.; three sisters, Mrs. Mandy Newsome and Mrs. Geraldine Tackett, both of Huntington, Ind., and Mrs. Minda Vance, in California; one half-sister, Mrs. Nora Akers, of Martin; five grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren.

Funeral services will be conducted at 10 a.m. today (Wednesday) at the Joppa Regular Baptist Church by ministers of the church. Burial will be made in the Tackett cemetery at Melvin under direction of the Hall Funeral Home.

Obituaries

Lori Caudill

Lori Caudill, 10-year-old daughter of Wayne and Madonna Sue Tuttle Caudill, of Plymouth, O., died last Wednesday in a Plymouth hospital after collapsing during a physical education class at Plymouth Elementary School. The fourth grade student was first thought to have struck her head when she fell, but an autopsy established the cause of death as a cerebral aneurism.

In addition to the parents, survivors include one sister, Lenora Caudill, at home, and the maternal grandparents, Elder and Mrs. Mack Tuttle, of Kite.

Funeral services were conducted at the home of the grandparents at 10 a.m. Sunday by ministers of the True Baptist Church. Burial was made in the Dry Creek cemetery at Topmost under direction of the Hall Funeral Home.

Lukie Korowski

Lukie Korowski, 92, of Green Acres, Prestonsburg, died Monday at the Mountain Manor Nursing Home here following a long illness.

A native of Saliba, Russia, he was a son of Oshea and Harpoola Korowski. He was a retired miner, last employed by the Inland Steel Corporation and was a member of Local No. 5899, U.M.W.A.

His widow, Thelma Bragg Korowski, survives him.

Funeral services will be conducted at 2 p.m. tomorrow (Thursday) at the Highland Avenue Free Will Baptist Church of which he was a member by the Rev. Clifford Austin. Burial will be made in the Richmond Memorial cemetery here under direction of the Floyd Funeral Home.

Visitation may be made at the funeral home.

Mrs. Minnie Thornsby

Funeral services will be conducted at 10 a.m. tomorrow (Thursday) at the Caney Fork Regular Baptist Church at Raven for Mrs. Minnie Thornsby, 99, of LaGrange, O., formerly of Knott county, who died Monday in a Wellington, Ohio hospital.

Mrs. Thornsby was a member of the Caney Fork Regular Baptist Church and was the widow of N.V. Thornsby.

She is survived by two sons, John Thornsby, of LaGrange, O., and Herbert Thornsby, of Streetsboro, O.; one daughter, Mrs. Hazel Maynard, of LaGrange, O.; one brother, Earl Combs, and one sister, Mrs. Martha Thornsby, both of Raven. Also surviving are 22 grandchildren, 31 great-grandchildren and 22 great-great-grandchildren.

Ministers of the Regular Baptist Church will officiate at the funeral services, and burial will be made in the Collins cemetery at Wayland under direction of the Hall Funeral Home.

Visitation may be made at the church after 4:30 p.m. today (Wednesday).

OFFER THANKS

Mr. and Mrs. Willie Gearheart, of Sizemore Branch, Minnie wish to thank all the people who offered assistance when their home was destroyed by fire. A special thanks to the members of the Old Beaver Church for the use of their lunchroom and to all other churches that helped.

Thank God for people like these.
MR. AND MRS. WILLIE GEARHEART

He is survived by one son, James Franklin Powers, of Washington, Mich.; one daughter, Mrs. Vionetta Scott, of Bypro; 10 grandchildren and nine great-grandchildren.

Funeral services were conducted at 10 a.m. Tuesday at the Free Pentecostal Church of God at Bypro by ministers of the Regular Baptist church. Burial was made in the Osborne cemetery at Bypro under direction of the Merion Funeral Chapel.

IN APPRECIATION

Perhaps you sent a lovely card, Or sat quietly in a chair, Perhaps you sent a funeral spray, If so we saw it there, Perhaps you spoke the kindest words, As any friend could say, Perhaps you were not there at all, Just thought of us that day, Whatever you did to console our hearts, We thank you so much whatever the part,

By the family of FRANK ADAMS

CARD OF THANKS

The family of Earl Hinkle wishes to thank all who helped in any way upon the passing of their loved one. We deeply appreciate the flowers, food and words of kindness given by all. Thanks to the members of the Disabled American Veterans, Chapter No. 128 at Estill, and Chapter No. 18 at Auxier, to the minister, Louis Ferrari, for his kind and comforting words, and to the Hall Funeral Home for its efficient and courteous service.

Pallbearers were Woodrow Adams, Woodrow Hunter, Sammie George, Clayton Holland, Gene Holland, David Miller and Mark Miller. Burial was made in the Joe Blackburn cemetery under the direction of Jones-Preston Funeral Home.

Martin Hospital Approved For Continuing Education

Our Lady of the Way Hospital has been approved by the Kentucky Board of Nursing as a provider of mandatory continuing education for registered and licensed practical nurses in the area.

The approval was received after Our Lady of the Way submitted an 81-page application to convince the KBN that the hospital has the necessary facilities and qualified staff to provide the continuing education courses.

The Kentucky Board of Nursing passed a regulation that all licensed nursing personnel must have contact hours in order to be relicensed. This regulation begins with five contact hours in 1982, 10 hours in 1983, and 15 hours annually thereafter.

"As a result of this approval, Our Lady of the Way can design and present nursing education programs which will be of maximum interest and need to the nurses in our area," said Annette Cash, R.N., nurse administrator at the Martin hospital. The Continuing Education Committee planners will meet next week to begin planning eight-hour workshops. All area hospitals will be notified of these workshops in advance. Unemployed nurses will receive notification through local newspapers.

Signup Now Under Way For ACP Cost-Sharing

The Floyd County ASCS Office is taking applications for cost-sharing on tree planting or improving stands of forest trees.

In a cost-sharing situation, ASCS simply shares with the landowner the expenses incurred in carrying out the practice. On forestry practices, ASCS pays 75% of the cost.

Another of the practices offered for cost-sharing through the ASCS Agricultural Conservation Program is permanent wildlife habitat. As with tree planting practices, ASCS pays 75% of the cost. Eligible components are establishing or improving a stand of trees, shrubs, grasses, legumes or other vegetative cover for wildlife which will also result in erosion control.

For information on these or any of the other practices available for federal cost-sharing, contact the local ASCS Office at 886-2802.

TO THE VOTERS IN DISTRICT 1

A few months before the election we get some of the things that we have been trying to get done for the past 4 years: such as road repairs, gravel, or drain tiles put in. Don't be fooled by these kinds of schemes. It's only to get your votes and get re-elected. How many times have you tried to get something done? And were promised time and time again and then forgotten? So look around at our county roads and hollows in District 1 and judge for yourselves. Don't settle for getting things done just before election. Elect a man who will get the job done year-round, a man to serve all the people-rich or poor.

I'm asking all concerned voting people, my friends and neighbors of District 1 to get behind me and support me in this campaign.

Knott Co. Schools Beset by Politics

Knott county has political turmoil in its school system, even though there are those who argue that county school administrations are nonpolitical.

The chronology of upsetting events, one of which involves a former Floyd county teacher and principal, runs to this effect:

1. On Jan. 2 last year a new majority on the school board voted, 3-2, to replace Simeon Fields as county superintendent of schools, naming Melvin Wicker to the position for four years.

2. Wicker took office last July 1, and that same day he and five staff members went to the office of R. B. Singleton, principal of Knott County Central High School, and a known opponent of Wicker, for an unscheduled meeting. When Singleton refused to participate in the meeting after he had been denied permission to have another person of his choosing present, Singleton was suspended for insubordination.

3. With a new school year approaching, Wicker and the board called out of retirement James V. Bolen, former Wayland and Prestonsburg school principal, to take the Knott Central principalship. Singleton filed suit in U. S. district court, contesting his removal without a hearing.

4. At last November's election Wicker was stripped of his slim majority on the board when all three anti-administration candidates were elected.

5. On Dec. 20 the U. S. district court ruled that Singleton had been fired unjustly and that his contract could not be legally terminated until he had received a fair hearing. He got that hearing, Tuesday night, last week. With five anti-Wicker board members, the issue was never in doubt.

6. The school board by unanimous vote reinstated Singleton as Knott Central principal, asked Bolen to "gracefully resign, and directed Supt. Wicker to reassign him to a post outside the high school if he refused to quit. Singleton returned to the high school principalship last Wednesday morning.

Dr. Bolen says he has no intention of resigning, but will do whatever Wicker directs.

Wicker said he would comply with a lawful board order, but he expressed doubt about the legality of the board's unilateral transfer of Bolen.

One possibility would be to make Bolen the school system's supervisor of instruction. But Wicker said he is seeking legal advice before taking any action.

Bolen and Singleton claim to harbor no hard feelings for one another; they acknowledge each other's competence. But each man also feels he is entitled to be principal.

"There was a position open, it had to be filled and they talked me into taking it," Bolen said. "Now I'm seen at the cause of his (Singleton's) problems.

"But I had nothing to do with that. He was relieved of his duties before they talked to me about the job, and they game me a contract."

In light of the federal court, however, Singleton asserts that he was never fired in the first place, but merely suspended pending the fair hearing that the court said he did not receive.

"For that reason, if I'm rehired, I think I'd be entitled to the principalship," Singleton said as he awaited the board's decision.

"There can only be one principal, and it must be R. B. Singleton."

Arthur Brooks, Singleton's attorney, concurred and said the weight of federal law is on his client's side.

"If someone is illegally taken out of a job, he should have a superior right to that job over the one who replaced him," Brooks said.

"It's true that the board can't legally transfer Bolen without Wicker's recommendation," he said. "But the answer is for the superintendent to do his part to straighten this out, instead of trying to make it worse."

Another question also remains unanswered:

When will Wicker himself get the axe? He says an effort to oust him will not surprise him but that he'll "take issue with them if they try it."

Store Ending 45-Year Stay

When the store opened 45 years ago, Prestonsburg and Floyd county were vastly different than today. Large discount establishments were unheard of and the modern phenomenon of long check-out lines would have been regarded as wholly unacceptable to rural shoppers to whom "personal" service included long-winded discussions with store personnel about matters like the weather, gardening, who was going to win the next election, or comparing aches and pains.

For years, Scott's Department Store on Front Street here supplied their customers with such service along with a reliable stock of "staple" dry goods—everything from galluses to union suits. But times changed, and tastes changed, and perhaps it was the quickened pace of life that began to affect this area making the "run-in-get-it-and-leave" type of business more practical to the increasing number of people who no longer had the time to talk about "puttin' up" half-runners and the like. As a result, Scott's will close its doors for good in coming weeks.

"As time changes, so does retailing," said Louis Rothchild, of Cincinnati, owner of the business and nephew of A. C. Scott, who came here from Greenville, Tenn. to establish the business. "I guess as one gets older you become more set in your ways and it becomes hard to change with the times. It seems that's what's happened to us."

The store occupies the street-level section of the Odd Fellows' building which Scott leased in 1936. The 20-foot-high ceilings of ornate stamped tin and the sweet smell of oiled floors add to the nostalgia of the place.

If any one person is identified with the store by its customers over the years, that person would be Susan Weems (formerly Susan Crum), the Prestonsburg girl who started as a store clerk at Scott's, married Roy Weems who came here from Greenville to manage the store, and later, upon her husband's death in 1964, assumed the management herself.

The friendly redhead has always been there to help customers, and her gift of conversation and sense of humor have surely figured in the longevity of the business.

Mrs. Weems said the store here had always served the same people, "miners and farmers—good country people, and we've always had to have what they needed and expected." In earlier years "what they expected" were items like brogans, factory (muslin), nightshirts, gum boots along with the usual variety of suits, dresses, underwear and work clothes. Even now, in the store's closing days, there are such items displayed for close-out. On one table, several pairs of short-legged, short-sleeved "long johns" are piled. These, Mrs. Weems explained, "were for the city boys who would be ashamed if their underwear showed below their britches legs." A pair of seamed nylons was displayed and somewhere, Mrs. Weems thought, "there might be some brassieres, without elastic, in tea-rose pink."

In recent years, patrons were familiar and became equally comfortable with long-time store clerks, Vida Fraley, Audrey Pigman, and, earlier, Evelene Booth, all of whom have added to the atmosphere of the place.

Three other Scotts, in Paintsville, West Liberty and Carrollton, will stay open for business, Rothchild pointed out. "We've made many friends through the years," he said, "and we've enjoyed the one-on-one relationship we've had with so many faithful customers, but time seemed to dictate another direction."

"The good experiences started out with what I call the good old days and have continued right on up to about now," Mrs. Weems reflected, "but things have changed. It's going to be hard."

WAYLAND WOMAN'S CLUB MEETS

The GFWC Lackey-Garrett-Wayland Woman's Club met January 19 at the home of Mrs. Bobby Joe Castle, Wayland. Mrs. Don Hughes was program leader on the twin subject, "Public Affairs" and "Vial of Life".

Mrs. Hughes explained that "all people would be aware of the opportunity for action in our community, our state and nation." She emphasized that young people should be taught that freedom means responsibility, that they should be urged to vote and to know the issues and strive for better legislation; should be taught to respect freedom and educated to love and respect their nation and its flag. "They should be educated to the fact that without these things there is no democracy," she concluded.

On the second portion of her subject, Mrs. Hughes explained that she had experienced some difficulty in communicating with the Vial of Life chairman at the state level and, therefore, was not able to report too much on the Vial of Life Program at this time but hoped to be able to tell the club more at the next meeting.

During the business session the president reported that the treasurer was sending a check for $200 to the Area Volunteer Fire Department, which is the club's continuing CIP Project. She also reported that $100 scholarship checks were being mailed to both Prestonsburg Community College and Alice Lloyd College. After a discussion, it was an unanimously voted to contribute $100 to the new Learning Disabilities Program started this year at Allen Central High School, with a suggestion that other clubs on Right Beaver be contacted with a challenge to contribute. It was reported by the treasurer that $20 had been collected for the Heart Fund, $20 for Arthritis, and $20 for the March of Dimes. The president then reminded the members of the club's annual gift of cup cakes to the Golden Years Rest Home for Valentine's Day, and volunteers were called for to deliver them to the rest home. The volunteers were Mrs. Marcella Bradley at Garrett and Mrs. Maxine Martin at Wayland. Each member was requested to bake two dozen and deliver to points for pickup.

Refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. Castle and Mrs. Novella Froman, to Joyce Stevens, Marie Mullins, Maxine P. Martin, Loretta Martin, Marcella Bradley, Mrs. Felix Coburn, LaFaye Hughes, and Libby Martin.

The next meeting will be Friday, February 13, at the home of Mrs. James E. Martin, Wayland, Mack W. Martin, teacher of learning disabled students at Allen Central, will be guest-speaker.

 Let me ask you a question. Are you a Christian, are you saved? If you should die or if Jesus Christ should come today would you go to Heaven or would you go to a Burning Hell, where all go if they have never been born again by faith in Jesus Christ and washed in his precious blood He shed on Calvary Cross almost 2,000 years ago?
 If you don't know for sure you are saved, then why don't you right now ask God to forgive you of your sins and simply trust him as your Lord and Saviour.
 Please read in your Bible these following verses: Rom. 3:10, Rom. 3:23, Rom. 5:12; also, Rom. 6:23 and Rev. 20:14-15. And then read Rom. 5, Verse 6 and Verse 8, and then Rom. 10:9-13. Now, after you have read these verses which is God's word, and if in your heart and mind you want to be saved, and receive Jesus Christ as your Lord and Saviour and have eternal life, now and forever, so you won't have to go to a devil Hell, just simply call upon the Lord Jesus Christ and ask Him to save you now and to forgive you of all your sins, the best way you know how.

Kiser-Hitchcock

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Kiser, of Hi Hat, announce the forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Nina Jewel, to Ricky Hitchcock, of Wheelwright. The wedding will take place at the Samaria Church house at Teaberry, February 21, with Elder Hershell Hamilton officiating.

County Republicans Stage Victory Rally

A large crowd attended the Republican Victory Rally held at Radio Station WDOC last Friday evening. The speaker was Robert Michael (Mike) Duncan, Inez attorney, who served as Seventh district campaign chairman for President Reagan and was an alternate delegate to the 1980 Republican Convention.

Mr. Duncan told of the functions he attended during the Presidential Inauguration, including the Gala held on the eve of the Inaugural and hosted by Johnie Carson, of the "Tonight" show, and attended by nationally known Republicans.

The speaker proposed plans for the party in this area, and spoke of the hope of future progress of the party on the national level.

Mrs. Duna Combs, President of the Floyd County Republican Woman's Club, discussed the organization of youth of the party, and Charles McCoy, Floyd county Republican leader, suggested that Republicans hold meetings at various times at the Floyd county courthouse.

Gorman Collins, owner of Radio Station WDOC auctioned a program of the Presidential Inauguration. The highest bidder was Charles McCoy, and the money received for this was donated to the local Republican Woman's Club.

Women of the organization served refreshments from a table covered with a white line cloth and decorated in Valentine colors.

Due to the absence of the Rev. Dr. Ted Nicholas, pastor of the First United Methodist Church here, who had been in charge of the musical program during revival services in Tampa, Florida, the guest pastor at the local church on Sunday was the Rev. James LeMaster, chaplain of the Methodist Hospital, Pikeville. Rev. LeMaster was accompanied here by Mrs. LeMaster. Sunday's church program was under the direction of Mrs. Roberta Davidson, charge lay leader.

Mrs. May K. Roberts, of Prestonsburg, her daughter, Mrs. Kay Baird and three small daughters, Virginia Kirk, Elizabeth Anne, and Sarah Roberts, and Mrs. Florine Baird, all of Pikeville, attended the Vienna Boys' Choir program at the Capital Plaza Convention Center in Frankfort, last Thursday. Sarah Roberts Baird was the guest of her grandmother, Mrs. Roberts, here, the week prior to their trip there.

Gwen Alexander and Sue Moore, of Prestonsburg, beauty consultants with the Dallas-based Mary Kay Cosmetics, Inc., have returned from the company's 18th annual seminar held at the Dallas Convention Center, Jan. 26-28. Some 8,000 of the 100,000 Mary Kay consultants attended the three-day seminar. Mrs. Alexander and Mrs. Moore joined Mary Kay Cosmetics as independent beauty consultants in 1980.

Announce Engagement

Miss Marlene Jarvis, of Ypsilanti, Mich., and Mr. Bill Cornelison, of Louisville, Ky., announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Drema Kaye Cornelison, to Onda Lowe Hunt, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Onda Lowe Hunt, of Prestonsburg.

Miss Cornelison was graduated from Prestonsburg Community College, attended Oklahoma Baptist University and is employed at Highlands Regional Medical Center. She is the granddaughter of Mildred Sturgill and the late Rev. James H. Sturgill, of Auxier.

Mr. Hunt is a graduate of Prestonsburg Community College and Morehead State University and is employed by the Floyd County Board of Education.

The gracious custom of open church wedding will be observed at 1 o'clock Saturday afternoon, March 7, at the Auxier Free Will Baptist Church. The reception will follow at the church annex.

82 ATTEND LUNCHEON

Eighty-two persons attended the luncheon given by Mrs. Patsy Evans, director, and members of the Senior citizens' group at Archer park, Wednesday of last week. Following the luncheon, a decorated cake honoring members who had observed birthdays during January, and those whose birthdays are in the month of February, was served.

Ky. Power Company Employees End Year With Safety Record

Employees of Kentucky Power Company ended 1980 with one of the safest years in the company's history. For the first time since 1958, all the men and women at Kentucky Power worked a full calendar year without a disabling injury.

The company's pacesetter in the area of safety is the Pikeville division. In late November, employees of that division completed six consecutive years without a disabling injury. At year's end, they had compiled 1,752,182 safely worked hours since the last disabling accident in the division which occurred in November 1974. The Pikeville division leads its class in safety for the seven-state American Electric Power System.

In other operating areas, the Ashland division completed three full years with no disabling injuries in September 1980 and in mid-January of 1981 passed the million-hour mark.

The Hazard division employees completed 500,000 safe working hours in mid-January. That division's last disabling injury was in May 1979.

At the Big Sandy plant near Louisa, employees have compiled 22 months—which is nearly 900,000 work hours—without a disabling injury.

And the company's General Office employees, most of whom work out of the Ashland office, have not had a disabling injury since the company began keeping records for this group, more than 25 years ago. That period represents more than 3.75 million work hours without a lost time injury.

Tax Returns To Be Signed

Taxpayers must sign their federal income tax returns before mailing them, the Internal Revenue Service says.

If a married couple files a joint return, both must sign, even if only one had income.

When signing the return, taxpayers should also list the date it was signed, the IRS adds.

Taxpayers expecting refunds will experience delays if the return is not properly signed.

New Program Would Stem VD Spread

Gonorrhea is second only to influenza-like illnesses as the most commonly reported communicable disease in Kentucky, Human Resources Department statistics show.

The department's venereal control disease unit hopes to stem the spread of gonorrhea through a new identification and treatment program in several Kentucky hospitals.

The program focuses on pelvic inflammatory disease or PID, a severe complication of gonorrhea in women. Untreated, PID can lead to sterility, surgery and even death, according to unit director Pete Campassi Jr.

"About 17 percent of women with gonorrhea develop PID. These women usually end up in hospital emergency rooms because of severe abdominal pain and are unaware they have gonorrhea," Campassi said.

In the past, hospital emergency rooms have not routinely screened for gonorrhea in cases involving women with lower abdominal pain, he said.

The PID program will alert emergency room workers to the symptoms of PID. The major efforts right now are in Lexington and Louisville hospitals that have treated the most cases of venereal disease in the past.

When a PID patient is identified, the unit conducts follow-up interviews and contact investigations and refers the patient and her sexual contacts to medical attention.

"We are finding out that most (sexual) contacts of these patients are males who have experienced no symptoms of gonorrhea themselves," Campassi said. "Because they are not aware they have gonorrhea, they are the most effective spreaders of the disease."

Patients and their sexual contacts are encouraged to have at least two follow-up examinations. First to be sure the medication is working and then to assure the patient has not become reinfected.

About 20 percent of gonorrhea cases become reinfected within four to six weeks, because they return to an infected sexual partner, he said.

Encouraging private physicians and family planning clinic workers to include a gonorrhea test as a routine part of all pelvic examinations and tracing the sexual contacts of gonorrhea patients are other methods the unit uses to help control gonorrhea.

"With this program, we can do two things at once," Campassi said. "By identifying and treating the woman with PID, we can save her from its severe consequences. By finding her contacts, who are usually males with no symptoms, we can remove them from the pool of infection and stem the growth of gonorrhea in general."

Former Governors In TV Interviews Series

Five former governors of Kentucky—Chandler, Wetherby, Combs, Nunn and Carroll—are spotlighted in a special week of KET's "Bywords," the week of Sunday, February 8.

Al Smith, Federal Co-Chairman of the Appalachian Regional Commission in Washington, D.C., newspaper publisher from Russellville and former host of KET's "Comment On Kentucky," is guest host for this series of gubernatorial interviews.

"Bywords," half-hour conversations with Kentucky newsmakers, airs Sundays at 10:30 p.m. and Monday through Thursday at 8:30 p.m. on KET.

In the five "Bywords" programs, Smith opens with an overview of each governor's administration—its major accomplishments and problems—and conducts candid interviews with his guests.

Financing in the Commonwealth, taxes, education, highways, state parks, the merit system, racial issues, the media and politics and an evaluation of the present administration are issues touched on as the governors discuss their terms of office.

On Sunday, February 8, Smith interviews Gov. A. B. "Happy" Chandler of Versailles. He was twice governor of the state, first in 1935, then again in 1955.

On Monday, February 9, Smith talks to Gov. Lawrence W. Wetherby, of Frankfort, who served from 1951 to 1955.

Tuesday's "Bywords," finds Smith conversing with Gov. Bert T. Combs, formerly of Prestonsburg, now living in Louisville. Combs was elected in 1959.

Wednesday, February 10, Smith's guest is Gov. Louie B. Nunn, the only Republican governor Kentucky has had in 35 years. The Barren county native now resides in Lexington. Nunn served from 1967 to 1971.

Smith closes out the week on "Bywords," by interviewing Gov. Julian Carroll, of Paducah. Carroll was elected in 1973 and served through 1979.

"Bywords" will feature interviews with Smith and the three remaining former Kentucky governors in the future.

Continuing Education Classes Slated At PCC

Prestonsburg Community College will offer a continuing education course in Aviation Ground School for those who wish to prepare for the FAA written exam for the private pilot license and for those who wish to learn more about basic forms and characteristics and to further their knowledge of aviation. The ground school will be taught by Larry Short on Mondays from 7 to 9:30 p.m., beginning February 16 and continuing through April 20 in room 103 of the Martin Student Center at the college.

An Advanced First Aid Course for coal miners will be taught on Tuesdays beginning February 17 and ending February 24. The class will meet from 6:30 to 9:30 on each of the two evenings. The college will grant 0.5 CEU's.

A Prepared Childbirth Class is scheduled to meet on Wednesday evenings from February 11 to March 18 at 7 p.m., for prospective parents with March-April due dates.

A Prenatal Class is scheduled for Monday, February 16, at 7 p.m. The class will discuss pregnancy and focus on nutrition, medication, exercise and general body conditioning, and an overall view of pregnancy. The class is free.

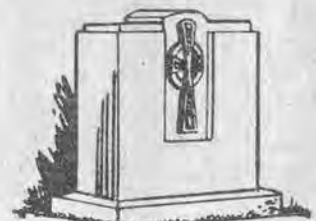

For information in registering, contact the office of Community Service Continuing Education at 886-3863, extension 215.

Get instant relief for your pocketbook with our Equal Payment Plan.

Winter is here. And with its chilling winds comes the most expensive time of the year. Bills from the holidays, snow tires, cold and flu expenses, taxes—the list is long.

And winter is also the highest electric usage period for most of our customers. That means higher energy bills come right along with everything else.

To help ease the overall winter drain on the pocketbook, Kentucky Power is offering "instant relief" for customers with good bill-paying records. It's called the Equal Payment Plan (EPP). By going on EPP now, qualified customers can defer part of each winter electric bill to spring and fall when usage is less.

Here is how it works — If for example, your current bill is $150 but your average bill (based on last year's usage) is $75 per month for a year, you would have to pay only the $75 when you go on EPP. Over the first 11 months you would pay $75 per month. (If there is any difference between your estimated and actual usage, we'll make an adjustment in your monthly EPP amount after six months.) On the 12th month, we'll settle up any differences.

EPP is that simple. You pay less than what you actually use during these heavy-use periods, then pay the company back (with no interest) during the low usage months.

EPP is of most benefit to heating and air conditioning customers whose bills fluctuate seasonally, but the program is available to all residential customers.

If the idea of leveling off your electric bills sounds good to you, come in or call your nearest Kentucky Power office. We have an EPP specialist waiting to talk to you.

We give it our best.

Schools in Squeeze, State Legislators Told

Local school officials are caught in a financial pinch in meeting minimum state requirements for certain school personnel, state legislators were told last Wednesday.

A study by the Legislative Research Commission staff concludes that the Minimum Foundation Program, which funnels state money to local school districts, is providing only 75 percent of the needed Administrative and Special Instructional Services units.

Those units are used to pay for principals, physical education, music and art teachers, librarians and counselors. The state's accreditation standards require a minimum number of such employees.

But Paul Champion, superintendent of the Beechwood Independent School System in Fort Mitchell, told a legislative subcommittee that the Department of Education has ignored the money problems involved in providing the units required to establish those accreditation standards.

Champion said that six Administrative and Special Instructional unit employees would be a bare-minimum program.

"With this minimum determined figure, the state Department of Finance would still tell me we were overstaffed by 2.5 people, and the accreditation people would tell me we were not meeting standards," Champion told the Subcommittee on Education and the Arts of the Joint Interim Committee on Education.

There is one special instructional unit for each eight basic, vocational and special-education units in the district. Those units are based on the district's average daily attendance, with a unit awarded for each 27 students.

The staff report, prepared by Sam Sears and Sandra Deaton, said this disparity is harder on smaller districts than larger ones. Sears said 11 districts were receiving less than half of the special instructional units they must have to meet accreditation standards.

The extra units, which cost $17,000 each, must be paid for with local money.

The subcommittee adopted the report but decided to await further action until it can review a change in the accreditation system being undertaken by the Department of Education.

Donald Hunter, deputy superintendent for instruction, said the new standards should be ready for review by the state Board of Education in May.

Jim Peyton, of the Legislative Research Commission staff, said the new system would evaluate schools on a districtwide basis instead of individually and may offer the districts alternatives to the current requirements.

Honored 86th Birthday

On Sunday, January 25, the Water Gap Free Will Baptist Church honored Marvin "Red" Sturgill, of Prestonsburg, on his 86th birthday. Mr. Sturgill has as his guests at the Sunday morning service his daughter and daughter-in-law, who were also celebrating their birthdays. After the morning service, he was the guest of honor at a dinner in the Fellowship hall of the church. After singing happy birthday to the honoree, approximately 200 guests were served buffet style. The honoree was presented a special "Happy Birthday" cake and a gift from the congregation.

SNOWFALL during the early part of the week wasn't heavy, but it was enough to make for pretty scenes like this one of a secluded barn.

Census Breakdown To Delay Congressional Redistricting

Redistricting of Kentucky's seven congressional districts will have to wait until after April 1 because of delays in certifying the 1980 census figures on the local level by federal officials.

Members of the state subcommittee on redistricting met last week with the intention of looking at preliminary census figures and discussing shifts in congressional boundaries and the impact it might have on representation.

Instead, Legislative Research Commission researcher Joyce Honaker reported the Census Bureau had increased the state's original population figures by 19,000. The official total for Kentucky now stands at 3,661,433.

Honaker said a breakdown on figures for counties and cities is not due until later this month or next month. "They've promised figures on the urban block by April 1 but feel they would be hard pressed to meet that date," she said.

Without the breakdown, congressional districts cannot be established. Federal regulations require that each district have the same population so representation will be equal. With the new figures each district would have 523,062 people.

It isn't known, though, without the county breakdown, where the additional 19,000 people added to the state total are located. "They could all be in District 1," Honaker said.

Federal regulations also state each district must be ideal and have zero deviation. In 1972, the year of the last redistricting, the state submitted plans that included a 1.5 percent deviation. Those plans were rejected. Final redistricting plans were less than two-tenths of a percent off the ideal, she said.

Committee Chairman, Rep. Lloyd Clapp, D-Wingo, recommended that the committee invite the congressional representatives to provide input into the redistricting, once the figures are in.

"It's important that we be fair in the redistricting or we'll have to do it over again," he said.

Clapp said hardly a day goes by that someone from the press doesn't ask about a special session (of the Legislature) and if he thinks one will take place.

A legal solution to the problem, but not necessarily the best solution, would be to have two special sessions, Clapp said, one to reset the primary date and the other to redistrict.

Edward O'Daniel Jr., D-Springfield, said the public wants a "sensible approach, in a timely fashion during the regular session (of the Legislature)."

Pharmacy Footnotes

by HAROLD COOLEY

Deaths due to diseases of the cardiovascular system, the heart and blood vessels, have been increasing in proportion to the effectiveness with which medical science is able to prevent deaths due to other causes. A leading authority has said that "There has been a great increase in disease in young adults and those of middle age within the last half generation. There is actually a greater increase in the middle years between thirty and sixty than in later years. Here lies the challenge, presented mostly by such conditions as hypertension and coronary arteriosclerosis".

3309 Acres Burn Since January 1

Forestry officials of the state Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection reported last week there have been 113 forest fires in Kentucky since Jan. 1.

"Most of these fires have occurred in eastern Kentucky. In all they have covered approximately 3,309 acres," said forestry director Ray Swatzyna.

Swatzyna said the division is receiving daily fire-weather forecasts from the U. S. Weather Bureau. "These forecasts are of great help to us in determining the personnel levels needed in each district as the season progresses," he explained.

"We are also beginning to man our fire detection system full time, using lookouts and spotter planes to keep track of any fire activity," Swatzyna said.

"If we don't get sufficient rain to make up our moisture deficit for the winter, the possibility exists that we may have a much longer, more serious fire season than we had this fall," Swatzyna added.

Kentucky's fall fire season, believed by officials to be the worst since 1952, saw the outbreak of 1,196 fires and the burning of 352,000 acres.

To Exhibit Film

The Big Sandy Family and Child-birth Education Association will present the film, "Children at Birth," at 7 p.m., Feb. 10, at Prestonsburg Community College, Room 217 of the Pike Building. The film shows older children at the birth of their baby sisters and brothers. All are welcome.

CONCERNING THE CONSTRUCTION OF A COAL TIPPLE TO BE LOCATED ON ROUTE 80 AT HUEYSVILLE, KENTUCKY

Sierra Coal Company has applied to the Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection for a permit to construct a coal tipple to be located on Route 80 at Hueysville, Kentucky.

The application proposes the construction of facilities for receiving, crushing, screening, conveying, and stockpiling coal, and facilities for loading coal railcars. Air pollution control measures proposed by the application include the use of enclosures and wet suppression using high pressure fogging nozzles.

The proposed construction is subject to Standards of Performance for New Stationary Sources and Kentucky Air Pollution Control Regulations for New Source Review of Fugitive Dust Operations. The use of the control technology proposed is considered sufficient to assure that the construction will not result in a violation of the applicable emission or air quality standards. Therefore, a preliminary determination has been made to grant the permit to construct.

Copies of the report of this determination are available for public inspection during normal business hours at the following locations:

Division of Air Pollution Control
Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection
West Frankfort Office Complex
1050 U.S. 127 By-Pass South
Frankfort, Kentucky 40601

and
Division of Air Pollution Control
Hazard Regional Office
825 High Street, 3rd Floor
Hazard, Kentucky 41701
and
County Clerk's Office
Floyd County Courthouse
Prestonsburg, Kentucky 41653

Any member of the general public who considers himself affected by this facility, on the basis of air quality, is invited to make written comments. To be considered, any comments must be postmarked within thirty (30) days of date of this notice, and should be addressed to Mr. Hsiao-Wei D. Chiang, Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection, Division of Air Pollution Control, West Frankfort Office Complex, 1050 U.S. 127 By-Pass South, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601. Any comments received will be considered in the Department's Final Determination to grant or deny the permit.

Current Flu Said Bangkok Variety

The sniffles, sneezes and fevers experienced by thousands of Kentuckians this month may be the A Bangkok strain of influenza, according to health officials in the state Department of Human Resources.

Tests conducted by Human Resources laboratories in Frankfort have identified the A Bangkok strain as the virus affecting many Kentuckians, said Dr. Theron Blickenstaff of the department's Bureau of Health Services. "This is the same strain that is sweeping other areas of the United States," he said.

Symptoms of influenza include sore throat, aches, fever, stuffy nose and a dry cough. Older people or those with chronic illnesses may be susceptible to pneumonia or other complications if they contract influenza, Blickenstaff said.

The Human Resources Department distributed approximately 45,000 influenza vaccine doses to county health departments statewide late last September. Even with an additional 6,000 doses made available by Human Resources, most local health departments exhausted their supplies by early November. Presently, there are few if any vaccine doses in the state.

Human Resources requests the number of vaccine doses from the manufacturer each year to meet Kentucky's anticipated needs, Blickenstaff said. When vaccine supplies in Kentucky were running low, the department learned there was no more vaccine available from the maker. "The manufacturer didn't anticipate the increased demand for the vaccine this year so there is a short supply," he said.

The vaccine loses its immunizing powers from year to year, Blickenstaff said. "There really isn't any point in trying to conserve it, since it's no good from year to year."

Most of those receiving the vaccine were Kentuckians over age 63 and persons with chronic diseases. They receive the vaccine at least one month before influenza season began, generally around December.

"We are far along in the flu season," Blickenstaff said. "It takes several weeks for the vaccine to induce enough immunization to be effective," he added. Depending on when a person is exposed to influenza virus, being vaccinated against influenza may not have an effect. "Someone could be vaccinated today and exposed to influenza tomorrow and the vaccine would be ineffective," he said.

NOTICE OF PROPOSED FLOODPLAIN CONSTRUCTION

Notice is hereby given that the city of Martin, Floyd county, Ky., intends to construct various improvements to the city's water supply system within the floodplain of Beaver Creek, a tributary of the Levisa Fork of the Big Sandy River. Construction will consist of buried water lines, a ground storage tank, and improvements to the existing water filtration plant. All construction will take place within or adjacent to the corporate limits of the city of Martin. Details of the project are contained in a preliminary engineering report available for public inspection at the City Hall, Martin, Ky., and offices of the Big Sandy Area Development District, Prestonsburg, Ky. It is anticipated that the project will be partially funded by a grant from the Economic Development Administration, U.S. Department of Commerce. All interested parties should submit comments on this proposed construction to John C. Cole, Regional Environmentalist, Economic Development Administration, Southeast Regional Office, 1365 Peachtree St., N.E., Atlanta, Ga., 30309. Phone (404) 881-7667.

LARRY B. HALL
Mayor, City of Martin

Heart attack or stroke could knock you down on your way up.

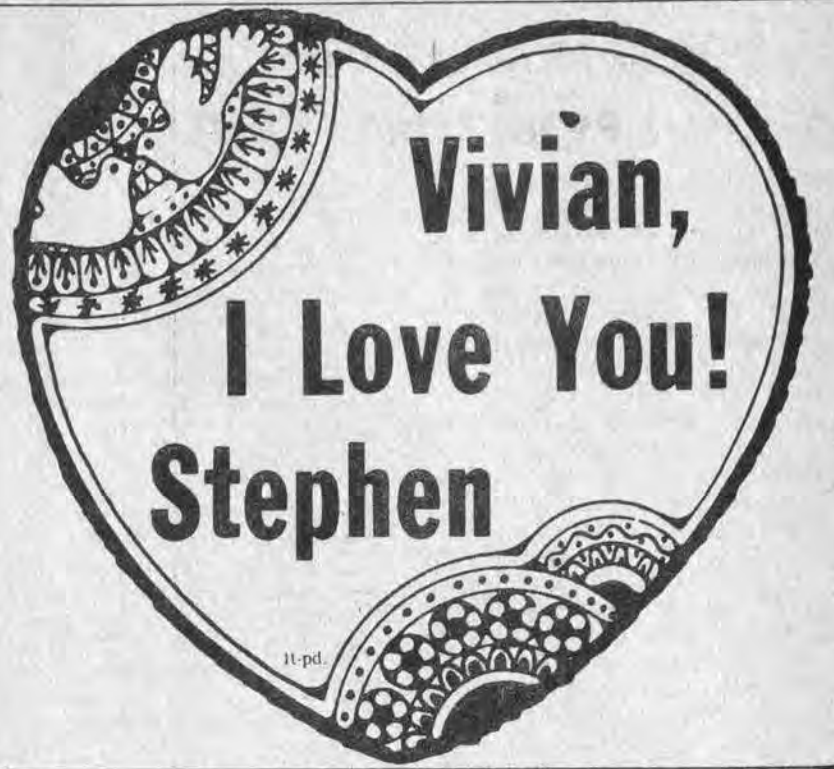

You're working for the challenge, the satisfaction, the success. The last thing you want is a heart attack or stroke. Yet nearly one million Americans die of heart disease and stroke every year. And 200,000 of them die before retirement age.

The American Heart Association is fighting to reduce early death and disability from heart disease and stroke with research, professional and public education, and community service programs.

But more needs to be done. You can help us find the answers by sending your dollars today to your local Heart Association, listed in your telephone directory.

Put your money where your Heart is.

WHAT IS A CONSTABLE?
 Some people may not know or have forgotten the responsibilities of a Constable. A Constable has the same power as the County Sheriff in District 1. This power has not been exercised in the past several years. A Constable should escort funerals and support the local sheriff to the best of his ability. A man needs experience to do this. I have been Deputy Sheriff for 4½ years. I have answered calls all hours of the night. I've escorted nearly every funeral I knew about. I've served the people of Floyd county the best I could and given the opportunity I can do an even better job for the people of District 1.
 So restore the office of Constable for better law enforcement.

TO THE GOOD PEOPLE OF FLOYD COUNTY

Vote for me, Holland B. Hurley, Democratic Candidate for Sheriff of Floyd County. I am 35 years old, and married to Judy Adkins Hurley. We have one child. I am a Vietnam veteran and work for the Chess System at Martin. I am a member of the B.M.W.E.
 Union, and a former member of the United Mine Workers Union. I belong to the F&AM Masonic Lodge, Number 869, Wayland.
 I feel I am qualified and could make a good County Sheriff. I don't have a lot of money backing me, or bootleggers, or dope pushers behind me. I am running on my good name and reputation.
 If given the chance, I promise you will see a change. The law will be strictly enforced at all times. Also, there will be deputies at all ballgames, and at funerals, on request.
 If we don't do something about people dumping garbage on our highways, soon you won't be able to drive on them. If you want a lot of things changed, vote and support me. Together we will try to improve our county.
 I will have meetings in each district and will let the people help select the deputies. I think the voters pay enough tax . . . they should get more out of their tax money.
 I am a working man. I don't have any promises to make that I can't keep.
 I think we should do something about organized crime and make our county a better place for our children to grow up in.
 Please look the candidates over—then you will see that I am the working man's candidate. If elected Sheriff, this will be all I'll do for four years—be your public servant.

March 1 Deadline Set For Listing of Property

Kentucky Department of Revenue Commissioner Robert H. Allphin last week reminded Kentucky property owners they are required by law to list their property with county property valuation administrators (PVAs) before March 1.

The requirement applies to owners of real estate, automobiles, trucks, boats, mobile homes, campers and other taxable property owned by individuals and businesses on Jan. 1.

If taxpayers fail to list their property and its value with the PVA, PVAs have the authority to assess it, using information from public records and other sources.

Allphin reminded businesses that the department is assisting PVAs this year in assessing business inventories. In a spot check comparison of business inventories listed on state tax returns and those listed with PVAs, the department found substantial evidence of underreporting of business inventories and equipment to the PVAs.

As a result the department has been providing PVAs with results of its audits of business inventories. This procedure has substantially increased assessments in some cases.

March 1 is also the deadline for property owners to apply to PVAs for the homestead exemption for Kentuckians 65 years or older and for a farmland use assessment.

Persons who are 65 or older or who will become 65 during 1981 are eligible to apply for the homestead exemption of $12,900 on their principal residence. If the exemption is approved, owners will not be required to pay property taxes on the exempt amount.

Persons who have been declared eligible in previous years by the PVAs do not have to file again this year.

The farmland and horticultural use assessment law allows farmland to be assessed at its agricultural or horticultural use value instead of at its higher fair market value as potential development property.

To be eligible the land must have been used continuously for farming or horticultural purposes for the past five years and meet other legal requirements.

Farm owners are also encouraged to list and value the residential portion of their agriculture value separately.

1965 amendments to the Social Security Act included the "medicare" plan, which provided partial coverage for those over 65 for hospitalization, nursing home care and diagnostic expenses, according to "Important Events In American Labor History," a publication of the U.S. Department of Labor.

Employment Agencies

Job hunting? Attorney General Steve Beshear is concerned some Kentuckians may be utilizing an employment agency without understanding their rights or the rights and responsibilities of the agency.

"We have many fine employment agencies across Kentucky who provide a valuable service to our citizens," Beshear said. "Most problems are the result of misunderstandings which occur. People should shop for an agency which meets their needs just as one shops for a car or home."

Employment agencies are there to provide certain services and are paid when those services are completed, just as you would pay a painter or electrician. Most agencies interview applicants to determine the types of jobs for which the applicant qualifies. They determine if there are specific strengths or weaknesses the applicant may have and how these correspond to the job listings. They usually offer free job or career counseling and will help the applicant overcome any weaknesses which may restrict their employment.

Employment agencies keep updated files which are usually cross-referenced with job openings on a continuous basis. The agency can then provide applicants with details of the jobs available or can furnish an employer with information about the client. If the employer and client seem interested, the agency will set up an interview for them and may also send a copy of the applicant's resume for review. The agency may advertise a job that the employer cannot fill and attract qualified applicants in this way.

All of this is not free, however. The agency may be paid in any of the following ways:

1. The applicant, if hired, may pay the total bill for the agency's services.
2. The employer may pay all the fees if an applicant is hired.
3. The employer may assume part of the fee, usually as part of an agreement between the two parties prior to the job being accepted.
4. In some cases the employer agrees to pay the fee after the employee has been on the job for a certain amount of time, such as a year. The applicant would then be responsible for paying the fees at first and then be reimbursed for them after the designated time has passed.
5. The employer may want to reimburse the applicant only part of the fees and, again, only after a certain amount of time has transpired.
6. The employer may pay the fee initially but agree to take the whole amount out of the applicant's pay over a period of time. The applicant would still pay the whole amount.

"These fees and the arrangement for payment can be negotiated, not with the agency, but between the employer and the applicant. Such negotiations should be conducted before a job is accepted to reduce the possibility of misunderstandings," said Beshear.

Since the fees for such services can be high if many benefits are offered, shop for the best bargain. The applicant is liable for payment of fees only if the applicant accepts a position in a firm that was recommended to him or her by the agency. In some cases if the applicant is laid off or fired for reasons beyond his or her control within 30 days, only a percentage of the fee will be due. The gross fee charged to such employees shall not exceed 20 percent of the gross earnings of the employee for the period he or she was employed. If the applicant quits or is fired, the applicant may have to pay the whole

NOTICE OF INTENTION TO MINE

1. In accordance with the provisions of KRS 350.055, notice is hereby given that: Four Rivers Mining Co., P. O. Box 122, Prestonsburg, Kentucky 41653 intends to file an application for the surface disturbance mining of approximately 3.5 acres located southwest of Blue River in Floyd county. The proposed operation is approximately 0.5 miles west of State Route 404's junction with Buckeye Br. Road, and located south of Buckeye Branch, latitude 37d. 36' 52", longitude 82d. 51' 21". The surface of the area to be mined is owned by: Osie Slone (Heirs) A brief description of the kind of mining activity proposed is: Surface disturbance for deep mine. The application will be filed at the Bureau of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement Prestonsburg Area Office, 431 South Lake Drive, Prestonsburg, Kentucky 41653.

Persons wishing to file written objections and/or request a formal administrative hearing in regard to the above described surface mine should notify the Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection within 30 days of the date of this notice. A copy of the newspaper clipping must be attached to the written objection. The objection or request for a hearing will reference application number 036-5127. Such objection or request must be in accordance with with KRS 224.081 (2), and must be forwarded to the Director of Permits, Bureau of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement, Capital Plaza Tower, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601.

2. Notice is hereby provided pursuant to 30 CFR 715.13 (d) (10) and KRS 350 that the proposed post mining land use does not constitute a change from the pre-mining land use. Public comment regarding a proposed change in land use may be submitted to the address listed above.

amount. Before resigning it is a good idea to check with the agency to see what the policy is concerning fees in this case.

Every employment agency must be licensed and bonded, and they must post their fees in a conspicuous place in the reception area. If you have questions concerning an agency you should contact: Department for Human Resources, Bureau for Administration and Operations, Division for Licensing and Regulations, 107 Bridge Street, Frankfort, Ky. 40601.

If you have a consumer complaint contact the division of consumer protection by calling the toll-free hotline: 1-800-432-9257 to request a complaint form.

TO ALL VOTERS OF DISTRICT #3: Support and Vote For Jimmy D. Hall
In May 1977, I was a candidate for Constable in District 3. I have decided not to be a candidate this time, so I hope everyone who supported me in this election will support and vote for Jimmy D. Hall, of McDowell, because I think he would be a great help to the people of this District. If you, the voters of District 3, would like to have a man who is qualified for the job, go out and support Jimmy D. Hall for Constable in the May primary.

Jonathar David Baca, son of Kay Shepherd, celebrated his sixth birthday Sunday, Jan. 25, with a party at the Martin Burger Queen. Those attending were, Stephanie Shepherd, Kenneth Scarberry, Lisa Robinson, Sammy Baca, Dewey Ousley, Jr., John Wayne Shepherd, Pam Shepherd, Darrin Shepherd, Tammy Shepherd, Jeffery Scarberry, Chris Campbell and Joseph Campbell. Cake and ice cream were served by Miss Marsha Scarberry, of Martin.

Pioneering Paducah physician Dr. Reuben Sanders (1808-1891) is credited with discovering that injections of morphine-atropine halted cholera.

$1.1 Million Grant Made For East Ky. Water Study

The Kentucky Geological Survey has received a $1.1 million grant to collect information on ground water quality and quantity in the Eastern Kentucky coalfields.

Drillers and hydrogeologists from the KGS, which is headquartered at the University of Kentucky, are already at work near Jackson, and will soon start drilling near Hazard.

The new million dollar grant is an extension of a one-year $211,000 grant from the U.S. Geological Survey, according to Dr. Donald Haney, state geologist.

The impetus for the project, according to coordinator John Kiefer, is the Surface Mine and Reclamation Act of 1977 which requires an assessment of surface and ground water resources before a mining permit is issued.

"Mining companies and regulatory agencies in Kentucky," Kiefer said, "have been severely hampered in drawing up pre-mining plans by a lack of baseline information on ground water quantity and quality."

The federal act also requires miners to outline water conditions that may change during mining and after mining, and to monitor water conditions.

The KGS hydrogeologists will drill a total of 40 to 50 core holes or wells three inches in diameter to an average depth of 400 feet.

From these wells, project researchers will be able to sample water quality and water levels continuously. By using standard submersible pumps, Kiefer said, researchers also can test the potential at each well for supplying various water needs to industries and municipalities.

Some of these wells will be incorporated within an existing statewide water monitoring network operated by the U.S. Geological Survey. Data from that network, stored in a data base at Reston, Va., will be available to the current researchers and useful in observing changes and trends, Kiefer said.

Among the 40-50 new wells, Kiefer said, KGS will drill 10 "regional" wells within the large drainage basin and from six to 10 wells in each of four smaller types of watersheds found in the region: the pristine, or undisturbed watershed; the orphan mine area, mined and never reclaimed; a watershed which has been mined and reclaimed; and, finally, a watershed before mining, during mining and after reclamation.

Continuous cores from each boring will be filed in the KGS core library for study by the coal section of KGS.

In this research project KGS has the cooperation of the U.S. Forest Service and the University of Kentucky Forestry Department. Field researchers will use the UK Forestry Department's Robinson Forest camp as a station.

Data from the project will be computerized in the KGS and the USGS data banks. Preliminary written reports will be issued from time to time. A final report will be made in January, 1985.

QUESTION: ANSWER:

"A few years ago, new natural gas hookups weren't available. Has that changed?"

"Yes. Our growing supplies mean there's more gas available... for more people who want it."

Columbia Gas is now adding new customers where we couldn't before. We can now do this because of conservation and the savings that have come from more efficient use of natural gas. And because of our efforts to increase supplies.

On the conservation side, all of the steps our customers are taking to use natural gas more efficiently have resulted in a 15% decrease in usage since the peak years in the early seventies.

As usage has been going down, growing supplies have been adding to the natural gas available to Columbia, and Columbia customers. New wells, expanding pipelines and increased storage are all adding to our supply capabilities.

So now Columbia is in a supply situation which allows us to add new customers while meeting the needs of current customers—this winter and in the future.

If you'd like information on areas where new hookups are available, call your Columbia Gas office. For ideas on ways to make the most of your energy dollars, also ask for a copy of our free "Everyday Energy Saver's Guide."

COLUMBIA GAS
Still your best energy value.
And we want to keep it that way.

New Piggly Wiggly Feature

Miracle Worker Shoppers' Convenience Center includes shopping baskets for customers, plus a selection of retail items offered for sale to Wheelchair-bound customers or their relatives.

Manager Jim Trout announces the addition of the "Miracle Worker" to other customer services already offered at Piggly Wiggly.

The "Miracle Worker" is a wire shopping basket that fits onto a customer's wheelchair in a matter of seconds. "It is located in the front of all our stores near the other shopping carts," Trout added.

Piggly Wiggly is also equipped with ramps to give complete access to the store for the handicapped shopper.

One reason the basket is so functional is the fact that a paraplegic who was "fed up" with being dependent on others for shopping, helped in the design, Trout said.

Mineral Shortage Worse Than Oil?

Generally overlooked in the concern over the energy crisis is an even more alarming shortage of strategic minerals critical to industrial and defense production.

"Of the 36 non-fuel minerals essential to the United States as an industrial society, we are crucially dependent upon foreign sources for 22 of them," Fred Warshofsky writes in the February Reader's Digest. "In 1980, we were obliged to import 91 percent of our chromium, 88 percent of our platinum-group metals, 93 percent of our cobalt and 97 percent of our tantalum and manganese. By contrast, we were only 42 percent dependent on imported oil."

These supplies, moreover, come from politically sensitive areas such as Africa, South America and the U.S.S.R. For example, half of the U.S. supply of cobalt comes from Shaba Province in Zaire. When this area was invaded by Cuban-trained troops from neighboring Angola in 1978, the price of available cobalt shot from $6.85 a pound to $50.

This country faces two major challenges: one, stockpiling a sufficient reserve of minerals to tide us over in an emergency; and two, developing our own resources so as to lessen our dependence on other nations.

"Stockpiling," Warshofsky writes, "has been subject to so much political and economic pressure that stockpiles of many critical materials are far below our goals." In addition, various Administrations have sold existing stockpiles on the ground that they were no longer needed.

In developing our own resources, strategists run into a head-to-head confrontation with environmentalists. "In 1964, when the Wilderness Act was passed," says Rep. James Santini, (D., Nev.) chairman of the House Subcommittee on Mines and Mining, "14 percent of the public lands had been withdrawn from mineral exploration and recovery. According to the Department of the Interior, the percentage of public lands withdrawn from mineral entry today is approximately 65 percent."

The effect of this withdrawal could be staggering," Warshofsky comments. "A study by the Stanford Research Institute of the potential value of the Alaska federal lands concluded that, in the absence of extensive regulatory impediments, a mining industry could develop by the 1990s that would provide substantial quantities of non-fuel minerals, including gold,

NOTICE OF INTENTION TO MINE

1. In accordance with the provisions of KRS 350.055, notice is hereby given that Shirrell Morris d/b/a J & M Fuels, West Van Lear, Kentucky intends to file an application for the surface disturbance mining of approximately 2.0 acres located south of Langley in Floyd county. The proposed operation is approximately 2.5 miles south of State Route 777's junction with KY 80, and located west of Turkey Creek, latitude 37d. 30' 28", longitude 82d. 47' 15". The surface of the area to be mined is owned by: Tobb Day and Earmest Hayes. A brief description of the kind of mining activity proposed is: Contour stripping for On Site Construction. The application will be filed at the Bureau of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement Prestonsburg Area Office, 431 South Lake Drive, Prestonsburg, Kentucky 41653.

Persons wishing to file written objections and/or request a formal administrative hearing in regard to the above described surface mine should notify the Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection within 30 days of the date of this notice. A copy of the newspaper clipping must be attached to the written objection. The objection or request for a hearing will reference application number 036-0049. Such objection or request must be in accordance with with KRS 224.081 (2), and must be forwarded to the Director of Permits, Bureau of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement, Capital Plaza Tower, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601.

2. Notice is hereby provided pursuant to 30 CFR 715.13 (d) (10) and KRS 350 that the proposed post mining land use does constitute a change from the pre-mining land use. Public comment regarding a proposed change in land use may be submitted to the address listed above.

silver, copper, nickel, lead, zinc, molybdenum and asbestos, while ultimately disturbing a land area of only about 25 square miles."

The author concludes that trade-offs are necessary between critical minerals and pure air and water. The Mining and Minerals Policy Act of 1970 calls for the government "to foster and encourage private enterprise in the development of economically sound and stable domestic mining, minerals, metal and mineral-reclamation industries."

In addition to implementing this policy, the government, in its foreign policy, must take the sources of critical material into consideration, and conservation and recycling must become more established as a way of life, Warshofsky declares.

Economist Friedman Boosts Open Market In "Free To Choose"

Personal freedom is nurtured and protected only by a good measure of economic freedom. That's the message that Milton Friedman, the 1976 winner of the Nobel Prize for economics and best-selling author, delivers in his 10-part series, "Free To Choose."

The series, which encores on KET beginning Friday, February 13 at 9 p.m., sheds some conservative light on a soon-to-be-changing national policy under Republican President Ronald Reagan.

Each program in "Free To Choose" consists of a half-hour documentary film in which Dr. Friedman addresses serious issues facing the United States today, followed by a discussion between Friedman and an articulate exponent of different and usually opposing points of view.

In episode one, Friedman visits Hong Kong to demonstrate how free markets work. According to Friedman, Hong Kong, possessing no natural resources other than a fine harbor, enjoys a thriving and prosperous society. The absence of economic controls and government central planning allows the economy to generate a standard of living that is among the highest in Asia. And Hong Kong's people are free, a condition also rare in Asia.

In future programs, Friedman tackles such issues as an alternative system of public education, reform of the welfare system, consumer and worker protection and control of inflation. Inflation amounts to a hidden tax, contends the economist, by shoving individuals into higher income tax brackets.

East Point Mishap Injures George

Arnold George, of George's Branch, East Point, was injured in a single-car accident Thursday on Rt. 1428 on Little Point when he apparently lost control of the vehicle following a blow-out of a front tire.

The vehicle was reportedly "totaled" as a result of the mishap although George, who was treated and released from Highlands Regional Medical Center, was not believed seriously injured.

Fourth Birthday

Shawndena Ream celebrated her fourth birthday, December 27, at the Prestonsburg Burger Queen. She is the daughter of Edith H. Ream, of Auxier, and granddaughter of Geraldine and Harry E. Hager, also of Auxier.

Also celebrating her birthday were Missy Hunter, William Hunter, Sam Hager, Sandy Hager, Beverly DeRossett, Todd Caudill, Regina Morrison, Crystal Blackburn, Jennifer Blackburn, Sam and Meredith Hager, Carole Morrison, Myra Blackburn, Jennifer Caudill, Brenda Hunter and Tom Harris.

Revenue Department To Help Taxpayers With Tax Returns

The Kentucky Department of Revenue has announced a new statewide program to help taxpayers in all counties in filling out their 1980 state income tax forms.

Beginning in early February, more than 50 field representatives of the department will offer the free service on a full- or part-time basis in each county in the state.

In previous years, this service was available only in those counties with district or subdistrict offices of the department.

Kentucky Revenue Commissioner Robert H. Allphin said this "circuit rider" concept was instituted partially to compensate for the closing of two district and three subdistrict offices by the department last year in an economy move.

The taxpayer assistance service will also be available during regular office hours in the department's regional offices in Hopkinsville, Owensboro, Louisville, Covington, Lexington, Hazard, Pikeville and Ashland.

In most counties the field representatives will be working in offices in county courthouses, but in some instances will be working in city halls or other public buildings.

In most counties the service will be offered one to two days during February. Schedules may be adjusted to meet local demands in March and early April.

CARD OF THANKS

Hansford Spears and family, of Cow Creek, would like to take this opportunity to thank everyone for their consideration and prayers upon Mr. Spears' recent tractor accident. We especially thank all the friends and neighbors of Cow Creek, Buffalo and other Floyd countians as well as those from out-of-state who have sent food, cards or flowers or expressed their concern in any way. Also, thanks to the preachers and the staff of Highlands Regional Medical Center.

Mrs. Mary Ingles, 1756, was the first white woman in the state. Daniel Boone's wife and daughter were the first in Central Kentucky.

Take a Vacation in Your Condominium

Buying a condominium for your vacation home may not be as extravagant as you think—especially if you examine the economic as well as the therapeutic benefits it offers.

The main attraction for a condominium vacation home, of course, is that you and your family own a fairly inexpensive, dependable place to spend your free time. You save money every time you take a vacation or a weekend holiday.

With a condominium you own your own apartment or house outright. You pay the usual down payment and have a mortgage. You hold a deed and you're responsible for paying property taxes and insurance, just as you are with your primary home.

Building Equity

But each month when you make your mortgage payment you're building equity in real property. You're free to sell your condominium—usually at a profit judging from today's soaring real estate market—or keep it for retirement and leave it to your heirs.

Also, when you own a condominium, the money you pay in interest on your mortgage and your property taxes is all deductible from your federal tax return.

The price tag on your condominium includes not only the property where you'll live, but also all the community property belonging to the condominium developer.

Depending on the location and the type of condominium, this community property might include swimming pools, tennis courts, ski or golf privileges, lawns, woods, beaches, etc.

Condominiums, then, combine the advantages of individual ownership with a practical way to obtain essential or desirable facilities that you probably couldn't afford on your own.

According to the National Association of Realtors, you can generally buy a condominium in a desirable vacation spot much cheaper than you could buy a single family home in the same area with the same amenities.

In addition, when you're not using your condominium you can rent it to someone else to help defray the cost of your mortgage.

Maintenance Free

One of the most popular features of the condominium is so-called "carefree-living." The condominium management association takes care of all maintenance of your common facilities—the lawns, pools, snow removal, etc.—leaving you free to enjoy your property without the responsibility of maintaining it.

You must realize, however, that you still pay for this carefree mode of life. Because in addition to the mortgage, you'll also pay a condominium fee, usually a monthly maintenance charge that's over and above what you pay on your mortgage, taxes and insurance.

As a co-owner of a condominium you also share the responsibility for managing the business. When you buy, you'll have to join a condominium association that hires people to manage the enterprise and votes on all major decisions affecting how the condominium is run.

Time-Share Condominiums

A variation of the condominium concept that's sweeping the vacation-home business today is the "time-share" condominium. This idea—originating in Europe about 10 years ago—could provide many middle-income Americans with luxury vacations they otherwise could not afford.

The National Association of Home Builders describes it this way: You buy a share in a fully-furnished condominium to use for a specific period each year, usually from one to three weeks. You may contract to use that condominium for 10, 20 or even 40 years, the expected life of the building.

Most time-share condominiums are now located at the more exotic vacation spots—Hawaii, Mexico, the Caribbean and popular resorts on the U.S. mainland.

Some of these resorts have reciprocal exchange programs with other resorts to give restless vacationers some flexibility. You may arrange, for example, to ski for several weeks in Colorado one year and bask in the Caribbean sun the next.

Travel experts claim you can shave your vacation costs by as much as 60 percent with a time-share condominium. Also, they point out, it makes good economic sense to pay for tomorrow's vacations with today's dollars.

Some years back when the condominium idea was new, there were some well-publicized cases of exploitation of buyers, especially in resort and retirement communities. This left the public a little gun shy of condominiums.

But now, developers are generally more reputable. They know more about organizing condominiums efficiently and buyers are far more sophisticated about examining all aspects of a project before they invest.

A Department of Housing and Urban Development investigation has concluded there are no widespread abuses of condominium sales that would call for any further federal regulations.

Home Improvement Loans For Low-Income Families

Home improvement loans through FmHA can be made to low income families who may not need or cannot afford a new home but need some work done on their present house. Loans may be made for $5,000 or less at a 1% interest rate. The maximum repayment period is 10 years.

Home improvement loans are offered to help families with low income. These families must:

(1) Be without sufficient income to qualify for a 502 loan but have repayment ability for a 1% 504 loan.

(2) Be owner-occupant of dwelling in need of repairs to make it safe and sanitary or to remove health hazards.

Applications for a home improvement loan may be made at the Farmers Home Administration office in Prestonsburg, or may be placed at the ASCS Office at the Post Office in Pikeville on the second and fourth Fridays of each month from 10 a.m. to 12 noon. Answers to questions may be had by calling 886-9545, Prestonsburg.

Most people think heart disease happens only in the elderly.

It happens in children as well. Things like rheumatic heart disease and congenital heart defects. Each year, nearly one million Americans of all ages die of heart disease and stroke. And 20,000 of them die from childhood heart diseases.

The American Heart Association is fighting to reduce early death and disability from heart disease and stroke with research, professional and public education, and community service programs.

But more needs to be done. You can help us save young lives by sending your dollars today to your local Heart Association, listed in your telephone directory.

Put your money where your Heart is.

Eastern Ky. Loss of Timber To Fire in 1980, $700 Million

Last fall's forest fires burned more than 352,000 acres in Eastern Kentucky and resulted in a timber loss of $700 million according to Natural Resources Commissioner Ken Imes. Imes gave this report to the subcommittee on Development, Energy and Natural Resources of the Appropriations and Revenue Committee during its Jan. 21 meeting.

Imes also told the subcommittee that the administrative costs for the emergency were more than $500,000, but some bills were still not in and he could not give an exact figure.

From 85 to 95 percent of the fires were "incendiary in nature," Imes said. Field staff members identified the fires that had been set. There were no thunderstorms in the area, and the fires had not originated at trash dumps, he added.

Imes said Kentucky had a good stand of white oak and some Europeans were interested in it, but "that's gone now." The $700 million loss was solely for timber, and does not include such damage as sedimentation in streams. "This was the worst one we've ever had" in terms of loss and acreage affected, he said.

He also told the subcommittee that the division of forestry intends to train most of its staff to enable them to direct teams of 10 to 15 workers to deal with future emergencies. He said forest fires are difficult to handle because "you don't always know what they're going to do." He also praised the work of volunteer fire departments but said eastern Kentucky has a critical need for more departments—some counties in that area have none.

Secretary of the Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection Jackie Swigart told the legislators she is pleased with how the bureau responded to the emergency. She also said the bureau had critiqued its performance to see what worked well and what went wrong. "The key item is coordination. We need to have a system in place ahead of an emergency," she said.

Imes also gave a brief report on activities of the division of forestry. During the 12-month period of July 1979-June 1980, the division assisted 3,149 owners of woodland. In the first six months of the current fiscal year members afforded aid to 979 owners, whose land totaled 37,000 acres.

The division also made six state-wide insect and disease surveys during the 1979-80 period, aided 161 urban landowners in the same period and sold 9.5 million tree seedlings. For the July-December 1980 period, the division aided 197 urban landowners and sold 3.5 million seedlings, Imes said.

Homemakers Meet

The regular monthly meeting of the Prater Creek Homemakers was held January 26, at 7 p.m. in the school lunchroom. The meeting was called to order by the president, Susan Akers. Secretary-Treasurer Loretta Conn called the roll, and gave the treasurer's report. Gail Taylor gave the devotion. The lesson, on Kentucky crafts, was given by Frances Pitts.

Refreshments were served by hostesses, Maggie Conn, Gail Taylor and Ellen Campbell to members Susan Akers, Doris Akers, Willena Campbell, Sereda Brown, Pauline Akers, Sandra Roberts, Agnes Kidd, Loretta Conn, Mona Boyd, Debbie Tackett, Coney Conn, Jo Akers and agent Frances Pitts.

The next meeting will be February 23, at 7 p.m. The lesson will be, "Cleaning Walls, Paper, Paneling, Carpet and Upholstery." Hostesses will be Kathryn Akers, Jo Akers, Lazelle Williams and Doris Akers.

Income averaging can save you money. But only if you make more than $30,000 a year.

True False

What you don't know about income averaging could cost you money. H&R Block knows that no matter how much you make, if your income went up substantially last year you may be able to income average. We'll take advantage of this if it's to your benefit. The answer is FALSE, since there is no minimum amount of income required to qualify.

Three Programs Seen In Committee Planning

The Continuing Education Committee, Prestonsburg Community College Nursing Department, is preparing three programs for the 1981 Continuing Education Year.

It expects to offer "Assertiveness Training" for RN's and LPN's on April 30, and is working on providing an "Ostomy" workshop in the early part of September and a third workshop on "Hospice," the date of which has not yet been established. The committee will also work during the summer to plan all the programs for the 1982 Continuing Education Year. Any area nurses having suggestions for workshop topics should notify the Prestonsburg Community College Nursing Department.

For further information regarding continuing education for nurses for relicensure, please contact Madonna C. Combs, coordinator, Nursing Program, Prestonsburg Community College, phone 606-886-3863.

Taxpayers Should Make Sure To Attach All Documents

Taxpayers filing their 1980 federal income tax returns should be sure to attach all supporting documents and schedules to the return before sending it in for processing, the Internal Revenue Service says.

Documents such as W-2 earnings statements, schedules, statements verifying a certain deduction or other pertinent information should be securely attached to the 1040 or 1040A. Taxpayers must include W-2 forms from all employers if they worked at more than one job, the IRS points out, regardless of the amount of earnings.

Life Insurance—Keeping Benefits in the Right Hands

Long known for their affinity to the gaming life, the English in the 18th century carried their penchant a step beyond today's ponies, soccer and politics to daily wagers on the duration of men's lives in the form of life insurance. The insured, or person whose life was the subject of the contract, served mainly as the vehicle which provided a third party with a "payoff." In 1774, the passage of an act regulating insurance on lives put the damper on "this mischievous kind of gaming."

Life insurance has come a way since those days.

"Today, a life insurance applicant in most states must have an 'insurable interest' in the person on whose life the policy is written; that is, a reasonable expectation of loss arising from the insured's death," according to Thomas F. Egan, a director in the Aetna Company's life insurance claim department.

And while the insured has the legal right to name anyone as beneficiary without regard to insurable interest, an insurance company has the right to refuse an applicant when it believes the designated beneficiary doesn't show such an interest, he said.

In short, an insurance company goes to some lengths to ensure that a life insurance contract is legal and binding so that both the insured's interest and the company's interest are protected.

But sometimes things happen that could cause an insured person's money to fall into the wrong hands.

"While insurance companies usually require an insured to name a beneficiary at the time he or she takes out a policy, there may very well be changes in that person's residence or relationship to the insured," Egan said.

Because changing the beneficiary of a policy is such a simple procedure, it's hard to believe that failure to do so could result in the wrong person getting an insured's money.

Egan cites a case where a man, whose wife is the beneficiary of a life insurance policy, divorces her after 25 years of marriage and remarries. Then a few years later, he dies.

"But because he failed, either out of procrastination or forgetfulness, to change his first wife as the beneficiary, she remains the beneficiary and receives the proceeds from the policy," Egan explains.

So although the man had intended his second wife to be the beneficiary, she is the recipient of only good intentions.

Granted, such a case is not common occurrence, due to various stipulations in divorce decrees, but other, more frequent examples of failure to update beneficiary agreements could cause unnecessary confusion or delays.

"To prevent this, we recommend clearly designating the person, rather than just saying, for example, 'wife.' The preferred practice is to designate a spouse by her given and maiden name, followed by her relationship with the insured, such as 'Wanda Brown Jackson' wife of the insured," he notes.

"Wife of the insured" is merely descriptive of the wife's status at the time of designation and has no effect on her right to the proceeds if she is not the insured's wife at the time of his death.

Another case which could involve unnecessary expense is one where a husband buys a life insurance policy and names his wife or her estate as beneficiary. His wife then dies, but he forgets to change the beneficiary after her death to someone else, perhaps his children. Subsequently he dies.

"Since his wife is already dead, the proceeds must be paid to her estate, which, of course, had been closed since her death. Her estate must then be reopened, which means additional legal and probate fees," Egan notes.

The proceeds will then be paid following directions in her will, or if no will existed, in accordance with state statutes, he said.

The changes that are bound to occur in an insured's status, whether it is death or divorce of a spouse or other persons named in the agreement, a beneficiary's name change following a marriage or divorce, should all be recorded with the insurance company, along with his or her address to prevent any confusion when a claim is paid.

"Unless we know who a person's beneficiaries are and where they can be located, and of any changes in that beneficiary decision, we have to begin the 'escheat' process—turning the dollars of people we can't locate over to the state as unclaimed personal property," Egan said.

And although state escheat laws delay starting that process from between seven and 15 years, following a few simple tips can prevent it from ever getting that far.

Despite insurance company efforts to locate beneficiaries, some may be impossible to find.

To prevent that from happening, Egan suggest following these simple tips:

—Keep your insurance company and agent informed of address and beneficiary changes.

—Keep life insurance policies locked up in a fireproof box at home.

—Make copies of a list of companies you're insured with for your box, a family member and your lawyer. Include policy numbers and amounts.

—Don't keep insurance policies in a safe-deposit box unless you have a list of their numbers and the insurance companies at home. Some states seal the boxes after death and delay opening until a tax representative is present, holding up the process of filing a claim.

—Update records periodically, noting all changes. Wait to check with an insurance company before throwing out a suspected lapsed policy.

Finally, if a person thinks he, she or someone else may be a beneficiary of a policy that can't be located, try checking with insurance agencies in areas where the suspected policyholder lived and where he or she took out policies for other types of insurance.

If that method fails, a person can write to the American Council of Life Insurance, Information and Reference Services, 1850 K Street NW, Washington, D. C. 20006.

Submit the policyholder's name, date and place of birth, residence, occupation, place and date of death and any insurance companies he or she may have had policies with. The person should include his or her name and address, as well as their relationship to the policyholder and reason for requesting the insurance company's name. The council will notify the 150 largest companies across the country to help you try to locate the policy.

All four of former President Harry S. Truman's grandparents were born in Kentucky. They moved to Missouri in the 1840's.

GARTH AREA VOCATIONAL EDUCATION CENTER IS PROUD TO ANNOUNCE NATIONAL VOCATIONAL EDUCATION WEEK
FEBRUARY 8-14, 1981

WHAT IS NATIONAL VOCATIONAL EDUCATION WEEK?

Each year one week is designated to focus national attention toward the importance of Vocational Education. During the week of February 9-13, National Vocational Education Week, parents, students and businessmen are encouraged to visit their local vocational school and to give vocational education the support it needs to carry out its valuable contributions to today's society.

WHAT IS THE THEME FOR NATIONAL VOCATIONAL EDUCATION WEEK FOR THIS YEAR?

The theme this year is "KNOW HOW FOR THE JOBS OF THE '80's". By 1985 there are expected to be more than two million new jobs available in the following occupations: printer, secretary, nurse, computer operator, horticulturist, industrial machinery mechanic, dental technician, welder, chef, construction worker, science technician, retail sales worker. The U.S. Department of Labor has cited the previous listed occupations as among the fastest growing nationally. Vocational education can prepare you for a career in any of these or more than 300 other fields of work. Contact the vocational education institution in your area for information on training for a job that could change your life.

DO YOU REALIZE THERE IS A VOCATIONAL SCHOOL IN YOUR AREA?

Yes, Garth Area Vocational Education Center located on Route 122, Martin, Kentucky.

WHO DOES IT SERVE?

Garth Area Vocational Education Center serves the students of the five Floyd County High Schools: Allen Central, Betsy Layne, McDowell, Prestonsburg, and Wheelwright.

WHAT PROGRAMS ARE OFFERED?

The programs offered are Auto Mechanics, Business and Office, Carpentry, Electricity, Health Careers, Machine Shop, Mining Mechanics, and Welding.

ARE ALL PROGRAMS OPEN TO BOTH MALE AND FEMALE?

Yes, we encourage our students to enroll in non-traditional programs.

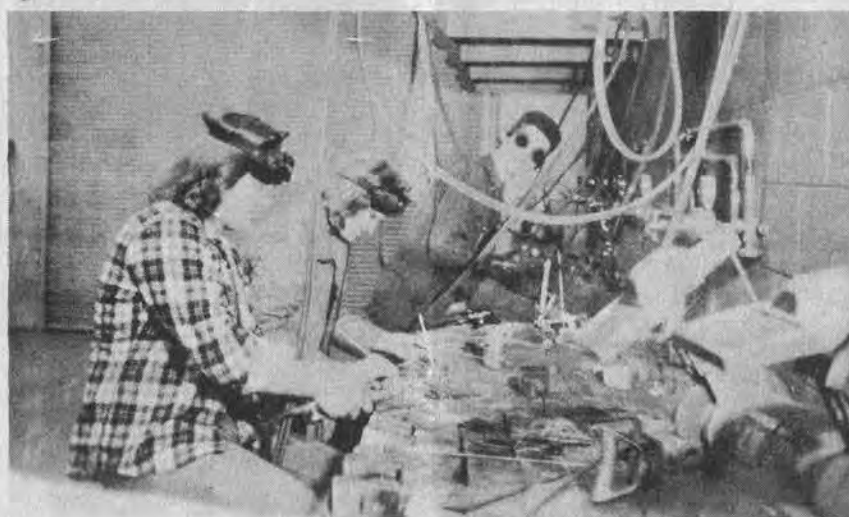

INDUSTRIAL ELECTRICITY

The industrial electricity course is designed to provide educational experience which will enable the students to acquire an understanding of electrical theory, bell and signal circuits, small construction wiring, A.C. and D.C. motors, transformers, motor controls and electronic controls. Basic knowledge in mathematics, algebra and science would be helpful to anyone seeking a career in electricity.

AUTO MECHANICS

The automotive mechanics course is purposely designed to develop the needed skills and attitudes, and to familiarize the student with the basic fundamental principles and operational procedures necessary for the maintenance and repair of cars, trucks, and buses. Students are taught the proper use and care of tools, tool room procedures, shop safety, and shop maintenance. High school classes in mathematics, science and physics would be helpful to the student training in this program.

WELDING

Welding is a very popular skill in Floyd County and the surrounding area. Starting with the basic fundamentals the student learns to identify and use the various types of welding equipment, the characteristics of the welding flame, the different welding techniques, safety on the job and other related subjects.

MACHINE SHOP

The Machine Shop program is designed to provide a course of instruction which will enable the student to acquire a fundamental knowledge of machines and their functions as applied to industry. The student receives basic training on the use of precision measuring instruments, shaping, grinding and other machine tools. Also, that student receives instruction in blueprint reading, machine trades, safety, and shop math.

CARPENTRY

The course offered in Carpentry is designed to provide training in use of tool and machine skills. The beginning student makes some small projects to learn about the basic fundamentals of hand tools and power tools. Instruction is given on a site layout and framing techniques that pertain to building a house. Scale models and some full size framing members are used in the fabrication procedures. Competency Based Vocational Education Modules are used to aid students in individual instruction on different phases of the carpentry program.

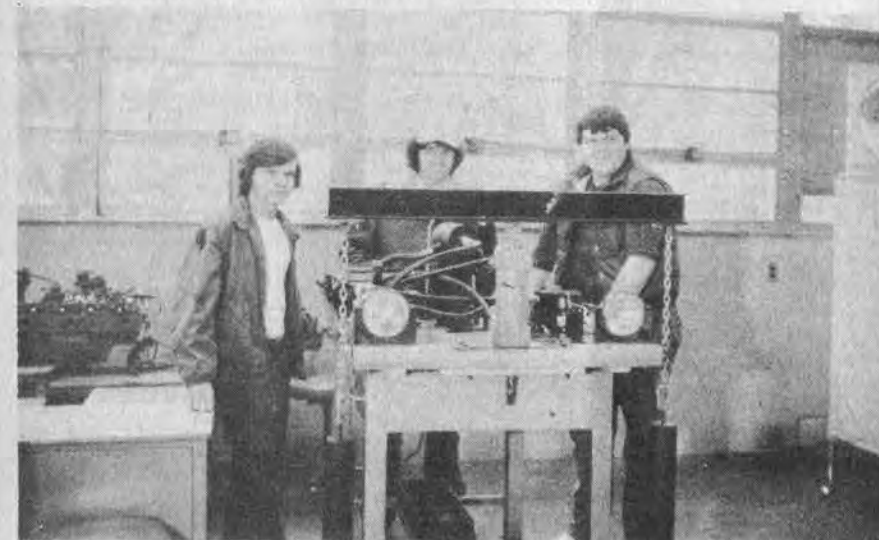

HEALTH CAREERS

The secondary vocational education health occupations program is an attempt to meet present and predicted needs for health workers within the diverse occupations in the health field. Students that take this course can get a start on professional training. For those who want to do something to help people, this course can provide guidance and direction by "hands-on" experiences. In the classroom situation students study basic health subjects and after an acceptable level of performance they may participate in selected activities in clinical facilities under the close supervision of the vocational instructor.

BUSINESS AND OFFICE EDUCATION

The future of American business is the future of America. The vocational business and office programs are designed to give the student theory and practice in addition to selected learning experiences. In the first year of training specific courses are selected to develop skills for secretarial or clerical careers. The last year of training involves the application of these skills to that of a simulated office with equipment and facilities similar to those in a modern office.

MINING MECHANICS

The purpose of this program is to help the student acquire a basic knowledge of mine mechanics and related industries. The development of skills in hydraulics, electricity, welding and the related subjects of math and science theory are emphasized. Students are assigned practical hands-on projects to complement the theory and technical information of their training.

WHEN CAN YOU VISIT THE GARTH CENTER?

We encourage everyone to visit anytime but we especially invite everyone to visit, during National Vocational Education Week, February 9-13, between 8:30-3:40 p.m.

HOW DO YOU ENROLL IN THE GARTH CENTER?

Students who are interested should contact their high school counselor, principal, or Mrs. Ruth Blanton, Regional Counselor, Region Eleven, Big Sandy Vocational Education Program, Paintsville, Kentucky, 789-5321.

Marine Lance Cpl. Brian K. Click, son of Jobie Click, Jr., of Ashland, Ky., and Delores Dings, of Martin, has been promoted to his present rank while serving with Headquarters and Service Battalion, Marine Corps Base, Camp Butler on Okinawa. He joined the Marine Corps in February 1979.

Kentucky-Born Abe Lincoln Was Interested in Genealogy

By HELEN PRICE STACY
Rockingham County, Va., records show President Abraham Lincoln once stopped at a tavern "on the way to Congress" and found out he was related to the tavern owner, David Lincoln. He also may not have known the location of the tavern, Lacey Spring, was supposed to be called Lincoln Spring but due to the way the words were once written or mistakenly read, it came out Lacey Spring.

On any stops Lincoln made while traveling to and from Washington, D.C., to visit his wife Mary Todd Lincoln's relatives in Lexington or to his adopted state of Illinois, the president let it be known he was interested in his family background.

Willard Heiss, writing in the Tri-State Trader of Knightstown, Ind. Feb. 12, 1972, further explored Abe Lincoln's determination to find out about his ancestors.

Heiss wrote that Lincoln sent a letter in 1848 to Solomon Lincoln in Hingham, Mass. In the letter Lincoln told that his father was Thomas Lincoln and his grandfather had the same name as his own—Abraham. "My grandfather went from Rockingham County in Virginia to Kentucky, about the year 1782, and two years afterwards was killed by the Indians."

Lincoln said there was a family story that his great grandfather had gone from Pennsylvania to Virginia. "It may do no harm to say that Abraham and Mordecai are common names in our family," he added.

Solomon Lincoln answered the letter, and the future president wrote him again in March 1848. In this letter he said his grandfather Abraham Lincoln had at least four brothers, Isaac, Jacob, Thomas and John, and had three sons, Mordecai, Josiah and Thomas, "the last my father. Uncle Josiah had several daughters and an only son, Thomas. My father has an only son, myself, of course. (Lincoln's brother Thomas died in infancy.)"

Lincoln shortly afterward inquired of Gov. McDowell, who represented the Rockingham County district, if he knew any families named Lincoln. As a result, Lincoln wrote to an aged resident, David Lincoln, and found out that David's Uncle Abraham Lincoln was Abe's grandfather.

"His (Abraham) family did reside in Washington County, Ky., just as you say you found them in 1801 or 2. The eldest son, Uncle Mordecai, near 20 years ago, removed from Kentucky to Hancock County, Ill. His two sons there now are Abraham and Mordecai; and their postoffice is LaHarp. Uncle Josiah, farther back than my recollection, went from Kentucky to Blue River in Indiana," wrote Lincoln.

In 1854 Jessie Lincoln, of Tennessee, wrote Abe, answering another inquiry about family history and Lincoln replied. "As you have supposed I am the grandson of your Uncle Abraham; and the story of his death by the Indians and of Uncle Mordecai, then 14 years old, killing one of the Indians, is the legend more strong than all others imprinted upon my mind and memory. My wife was born and raised at Lexington, Ky., and my connection with her has sometimes taken me there where I have heard the older people of her relations speak of your Uncle Thomas and his family."

Lincoln's paternal great-grandfather married into a Quaker family. A Lincoln biography states that Abraham Lincoln, 16th president, was born in a log cabin in Hardin County (now Larue) Feb. 12, 1809, the son of Thomas and Nancy Hanks Lincoln.

Thomas, Abe's father, was born 1778 and died 1851. Thomas' father Abraham Lincoln was born 1744 and died 1786. This grandfather Abraham was married in 1743 to a widow, Mrs. Rebecca Flower Morris, daughter of Enoch and Rebecca Barnard. Enoch and Rebecca Barnard were married in 1713 in Chester (now Delaware) County, Pa. Abe's ancestors Samuel and Martha Lincoln came from Hingham, England, in 1635 and settled at Salem and Hingham, Mass. Abe's mother Nancy Hanks was the daughter of Lucy Hanks whose ancestor Thomas Hanks came from England to Virginia in 1644. There are Lincoln and Hanks relatives throughout Kentucky, Virginia, Indiana, Illinois, Pennsylvania and Massachusetts as well as other states. Many relatives of President Lincoln's mother are buried in Wolfe County.

Mrs. Bailey Named To Advisory Council

Gov. John Y. Brown Jr. has appointed two new members to the Governor's Volunteer Advisory Council and reappointed two others. Marcella Bailey, of Langley, replaces Alberta Johnson, of Catlettsburg, who has resigned. Barbara Cambron, of Louisville, was named to replace Pat Stewart, also of Louisville, whose term has expired. Reappointed were Mrs. Charles Hembree, of Lexington, and Jo Elta McCloud, of Harrodsburg, who will also serve as chairperson. Their terms expire September 1983.

The United States joined the International Labor Organization in 1934, according to the U. S. Department of Labor publication, "Important Events in American Labor History".

Extension Service Notes

By FRANCES H. PITTS
County Extension Agent for Home Economics

Beef prices vary according to different grades. This is also true of ground beef—extra-lean ground beef costs more than regular ground beef. But according to USDA studies, the prices of beef and ground beef don't reflect the nutritional value.

According to USDA studies nutrient values of different grades of beef vary only a little. The nutrients in beef, including protein, B vitamins and minerals, such as iron and phosphorus, are about the same in the top three grades—prime, choice and good.

This means the consumer can obtain the same nutritional value with less money by purchasing lower grades which are less expensive.

Another difference is the lower content of marbling or fat distribution within the muscle or lean portion of lower grades. Prime grade has about 12 percent, followed by choice with 8 percent, and good with 6 percent. For individuals attempting to reduce the fat in their diets, this lower fat content may be considered a benefit.

Consumers interested in reducing the fat intake in their diets are buying extra-lean ground beef. Since it costs more than regular, they often question whether it is worth it.

To answer this question, USDA compared the weight losses in cooking and also the protein, fat and water content of over 200 beef patties. Each patty weighed 3.5 ounces before cooking.

After cooking, all patties weighed the same even though the extra-lean ground beef had 15 to 18 percent fat and those made of regular ground beef contained 23 to 26 percent.

The reason for this similarity in weight loss was due to the fact that regular ground beef patties lost more fat, but extra-lean ground beef patties lost more water. The consumer does not notice the water loss as much because much of it is lost as vapor.

The extra-lean patties ended up with nine fewer calories than the regular patties and the same amount of protein—so the nutrient content was about the same. However, the lean patty was drier and tougher. Therefore, you save money by buying regular ground beef, at least when planning to use the meat for patties.

Mrs. Ray Is Named To College Honors List

Pat Cowherd, registrar at Campbellsville College, has announced that 100 students have been named to the Academic Honors List for the 1980 fall semester. In order to receive this honor, a student must carry a fulltime class load of at least 12 hours and maintain a 3.5 grade point average.

Linda Wells Ray, daughter of Ola Wells, of Auxier, has been named to the list. She is a sophomore and wife of J. Reese Ray. A sophomore, Mrs. Ray is majoring in psychology with a minor in Christian studies. She is a graduate of Prestonsburg High School and formerly attended Bonanza Free Will Baptist Church and is now attending Baptist Tabernacle in Louisville.

PEUGEOT

505 TURBODIESEL

Show it an entrance to an expressway. A mountain that has to be climbed. A truck that has to be passed.

The new Peugeot 505 Turbodiesel can use a word seldom heard in the diesel language.

Performance.

Not just speed, but fast response. When it counts.

Not just 0-to-50 in a matter of seconds, but the kind of power that makes driving a diesel infinitely more enjoyable.

Couple that with the fuel economy you get from the 505 Turbodiesel (EPA estimated 36 mpg highway, and an estimated 28 mpg), and you've got a car that's not only superior in its ride and handling, but in its fuel economy as well.

Add to that the matchless comfort of a Peugeot, and you have an automobile that's in a class by itself.

Naturally, since Peugeot builds cars to last, you also have a car that can go the distance. Every Peugeot is available with automatic transmission and accompanied by a 36-month perforation from corrosion limited warranty. As well as the standard 12-month unlimited mileage warranty.

(Peugeot is also covered by a national network of more than 300 dealers, with a 93% parts availability.)

The Peugeot 505 Turbodiesel.

The performance of a turbo, the economy of a diesel, and all the comforts of a Peugeot.

Tomorrow's car is at your Peugeot dealer today.

*Manual 5-speed transmission. Remember. Compare the boxed estimate to the estimated mpg of other cars. You may get different mileage depending on how fast you drive, weather conditions, trip length and condition of your car. Actual highway mileage will probably be less than the highway estimate. Full terms of these Peugeot limited warranties are available at your dealer.

PEUGEOT

INMATES

Perry King and Kate Jackson are from very different worlds—he an executive, she a street-thief—but bars are the great leveller when they serve time in a prison that houses both men and women in 'Inmates,' a contemporary drama on 'The ABC Friday Night Movie,' FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 13.

While in the minimum-security prison, the rising young executive convicted of a white collar crime and the convicted burglar hardened by the street fall in love. Tony Curtis guest stars.

Winter Fuel Help Is Still Available To Many Families

As many as 10,000 low-income households in Kentucky still may be able to get help with their winter fuel bills.

A Department for Human Resources spokesperson announced last week approximately $2.3 million in Home Energy Assistance Program money remains undistributed. On Friday, Jan. 30, the department's Bureau for Social Insurance will begin accepting names, addresses and phone numbers of persons who want to apply for program benefits.

Bureau Commissioner William Huffman said about 75,000 applications for winter heating assistance were accepted during the three full days of program operation, Jan. 5, 6 and 14. Applications were coming into local offices across the state at a rate of 4,000 per hour, he said. Making calculations based on that rate, the bureau stopped taking applications after two hours of business on Jan. 15.

"We had every reason to believe that enough people would apply in these two hours to exhaust funds for this phase of the program," Huffman said. "For some reason the number dropped off dramatically, leaving more than $2 million available to those who need it."

Another factor resulting in the undistributed balance was a higher than anticipated denial rate, Huffman said. About 6.9 percent of the applicants were denied benefits because they did not meet eligibility requirements, he said. The bureau had predicted a 5 percent denial rate.

Huffman estimates there is enough money left to serve as many as 10,000 households. Starting Friday workers will take names of persons interested in receiving program benefits and will contact them about making application. Requests will be processed in the order in which they are received, Huffman said.

Persons whose names were taken on Jan. 15 after the 10 a.m. program shutdown already have been contacted, he said.

"We will add names to the list and will keep contacting people to make application until this money is distributed to as many low-income households as it can serve," he said.

He said the process will be carefully monitored to make sure the bureau does not accept more applications than it has money to honor.

Huffman announced that on the fifth working day after the department stops accepting names for the regular program, local office workers will begin taking requests for the $720,000 available to households facing heating emergencies.

To be eligible for emergency benefits, a household must be without heat or facing a fuel cutoff, have an income of less than $395 per month and have liquid resources of less than $5,000. Emergency benefits up to a maximum of $200 are available only to households that have not received help through the regular Home Energy Assistance Program.

Small School Districts Lack Services: Report

Small school districts receive fewer special instructional services units than needed to meet accreditation requirements, according to a legislative research staff report.

Eight school districts which have average school enrollments of 100 to 199 students receive more than half the necessary special services units, while 40 districts with average enrollments of more than 500 students receive from 84.4 percent to 88.9 percent of the required units.

The special services units support services of principals, counselors, librarians and art, music and physical education teachers.

The study was presented to the subcommittee on Education and the Arts and will now go to the full Education committee for consideration. It did not take into consideration the new accreditation system now being developed.

Is Program Administrator

Bobby Gates, a native of Langley, is working as the Campership Program administrator at United Community Services of Metropolitan Detroit.

Mr. Gates, a graduate of Antioch College, Yellow Springs, Ohio, plans to enter law school. He is the son of Mrs. Irene Hamilton, of Langley.

Keep Copy Of Tax Return

Taxpayers filing a 1980 federal income tax should keep a copy of the completed return, the Internal Revenue Service says.

This copy serves as a useful reference when next year's return is filed, according to the IRS. It can also come in handy when preparing a state or local tax return. If the IRS corrects an error on the return, the copy should also be corrected by the taxpayer.

On Honor Roll

Marcia Kay Jefferson should have been listed among the 8th graders on the Auxier Elementary School honor roll, published last week. A misspelling obscured her identity.

Coded Envelope Useful When Mailing Return

Taxpayers receiving the federal income tax forms package in the mail should use the special coded envelope included in the package, The Internal Revenue Service says.

The envelope is pre-addressed to the IRS center where the return will be processed. It also is imprinted with information which speeds up the sorting procedure when the IRS receives the envelope. The envelope is big and roomy and will hold numerous tax documents.

Normally, only one first class stamp is required to mail the envelope. However, if several documents are included, more than one stamp may be required.

Taxpayers who mail their returns without proper postage will have them returned by the Postal Service unprocessed, according to the IRS.
