

Girls Survive Crossing Crash

Two girls were fortunate to escape serious injury Friday night when their car was struck by a train at a crossing on the Lancer-Water Gap road, near its junction with old U.S. 23, pushed some 300 feet down the tracks, then dumped from a railway trestle into Bull Creek 50 feet below—and yet the two occupants escaped with minor hurts. A bystander was not quite so lucky.

Patty Adkins, 17, of Grethel, and Carolyn Hall, 12, of Galveston, were in the Ford Mustang when it was struck by the train, shortly before 7 p.m. The car had been pushed into the path of the train by another vehicle which struck it in the rear, according to Miss Adkins.

Before the locomotive could be halted, the car was carried north to a trestle, where it became dislodged, slammed into a concrete retaining wall, tumbled 30 feet, and landed upright in the shallow waters of Bull Creek.

The girls were freed from the vehicle by state troopers and were reportedly being carried up the steep, slippery creek bank by city fire and rescue workers when a cry broke out. "You've got another one over the bank!"

Fire Chief Tom Blackburn said he turned to see another figure, face down in the water, only a few feet from the wrecked auto. It was Tom Short, 49, of Van Lear, who had fallen from the trestle when spectators were asked to clear the area.

The girls were treated at Highlands Regional Medical Center, Adkins for multiple abrasions and Hall for loss of body heat, and released. Short was admitted with a fractured shoulder blade and discharged Monday.

WRECKAGE OF AUTO struck by train at Lancer last Friday night rests in shallow water beneath the railroad trestle from which it toppled. Patty Adkins, 17, of Grethel, and Carolyn Hall, 12, of Galveston, were freed from the wreckage, virtually unharmed.

Help of Schools Asked for Study Of Transit Need

The Floyd County Transit Authority will enlist the help of the county's schools in getting needed information preparatory to filing for federal funding of a countywide public transit system, Chalmer H. Frazier, chairman, announced last week.

Information to be sought will include not only the number of passengers that may be expected to use public transportation but also the areas where the heaviest usage may be expected. Data expected to be accumulated will be used in applying for financing.

Supt. of Schools E. P. Grigsby, Jr. has approved the cooperation of the county's schools in the effort to procure the use of buses at this time when transportation by private vehicles is high and still mounting.

With this assurance, the Transit Authority has had printed several thousand survey sheets which will be delivered to the schools between Feb. 2 and Feb. 4. Then each school principal will send by his pupils on Feb. 5-6, these sheets to the parents of the school pupils. The parents, in turn, are expected to supply on these forms the needed items of information and return them to the school principals. The completed forms are scheduled to be returned by the school leaders to the Transit Authority on Feb. 9 and 10.

Strong Local Effort May Help Get Funds

The willingness of local merchants to raise money on their own for downtown improvements will enhance the city's prospects of getting federal help, Anna Jean Tackett, director of the Floyd County Community Development and Urban Renewal Agency, said last week.

"The best part of this application," she said, in reference to Prestonsburg's bid for a $500,000 community development block grant, "is the local contribution."

Speaking at a public hearing on the grant application Friday night, Mrs. Tackett said the amount being sought in federal funds is relatively modest, considering that store owners here are prepared to raise some $2.9 million from private sources and to bear additional taxation in a major effort to revitalize the fading city center.

There should also be enough potential benefit to lower income people to commend the application to funding authorities, said Mrs. Tackett, who explained that over 70 percent of the jobs at stake are "low income" by applicable standards, that many elderly residents are dependent on a viable shopping area here, and that efforts would be made to assist poorer people and members of minority groups to get started in downtown businesses.

Floyd Countians Offer Thanks As Hostages Return to Freedom

Floyd countians joined in the nation's sense of relief and thanksgiving when the news was finally confirmed last week that American hostages, after 444 days of captivity in Iran, were coming home.

As they had all across the country, yellow ribbons became the symbol here of hope and, finally, of homecoming. An eight-foot "freedom bow" adorned the courthouse since October; ribbons appeared on porches and trees; hospital workers donned them in Martin; and churchgoers wore them this week during services of thanksgiving.

In an ecumenical service at the First Presbyterian Church here Friday, 250 worshippers gathered in a joyful celebration of their countrymen's release. Sponsored by the Floyd County Ministerial Association, the service included scripture readings and prayers and inspirational songs by the Prestonsburg High School Honor Choir and concluded with a rousing chorus of "America the Beautiful."

Workers at Our Lady of the Way Hospital in Martin greeted patients and visitors with yellow ribbons Friday—"to celebrate our happiness at the release of the fifty-two," explained Janice Little, the hospital's director of purchasing.

Wright Accused Of Slaying Wife At Printer Home

Torrence Wright, 40, accused of the slaying late last Wednesday afternoon of his 37-year-old wife, Barbara, at their home on Fisher Branch, near Printer, was released from jail Tuesday under a $25,000 bond. A preliminary hearing in the case has been set for Thursday.

Mrs. Wright died at the scene of the shooting, a .32-caliber revolver bullet in the region of her heart.

The shooting is believed, authorities said, to have been the consequence of domestic difficulties. A divorce suit was filed by the husband, a few months ago, and he was quoted as telling those investigating the shooting that he and his wife "had few words." He recalled taking the weapon from a nightstand but indicated he did not remember firing a shot.

Immediately after the shooting, he went to the nearby home of his father, reported that his wife had been shot and asked that officers and an ambulance be notified.

Two of the couple's three daughters were said to have been inside the home at the time of the shooting, but it was not immediately determined if they witnessed it.

The shooting was investigated by Asst. Commonwealth's Attorney Jerry Patton, Coroner James J. Carter, State Detectives Don Weedman and Danny Stumbo and State Troopers E. E. Dudleson and T. D. Hall.

A native of Drift, the victim was a daughter of the late Isaac and Opal Caudill. Surviving her are three daughters, Mrs. Sharon Greer, Karen and Elberta Jane Wright, all of Printer; four brothers and two sisters, Michael Paul and Ralph Dean Williams, both of Chicago, Isaac Edward and John Edward Williams, Jr., both of Avilla, Ind., Mrs. Patricia Ann Mills and Mrs. Pauline Nelson, both of Riverdale, Ill., and one grandchild.

Funeral rites were conducted at 1 p.m. Saturday from the chapel of the Hall Funeral Home, and burial was made in the Dinwood cemetery.

Court Rules Commandments Must Come Down

The Ten Commandments posted in Floyd county schools will soon come down, Supt. of Schools E. P. Grigsby, Jr. said Monday.

The action, which is strongly opposed in this and most other counties of the state, will be the result of an opinion by Attorney General Steven Beshear interpreting the U. S. Supreme Court decision which held the posting of the Decalogue in the schools of Kentucky to be unconstitutional.

Supt. Grigsby said he will recommend to the board of education at its Feb. 4 meeting that the privately financed plaques be removed.

"I don't like the Supreme Court decision, but there's nothing we can do but comply," Mr. Grigsby said.

The State Board of Education voted last Wednesday to recommend that school districts comply with the attorney general's opinion. Before issuing his opinion Beshear and other state officials asked the Supreme Court to clarify its opinion holding posting of the Ten Commandments in the schools to be unconstitutional. The Supreme Court refused to do so.

The Supreme Court split on the question of constitutionality, 5 to 4, after the Kentucky Supreme Court had held constitutional the state law enacted in 1978.

Engineers Tell Floodwall-Span Structural Gap

Following a state audit of its claim for federal disaster relief in the wake of the April, 1977 flood, Prestonsburg is said to owe the federal government $33,062 in disallowed expenses.

Of one $25,123 claim for road repairs, $15,115 was disallowed. It was the cost incurred in paving Mays Branch, a section undamaged by the flood.

Also disallowed was $6908 of a claim for $7456 for replacing a damaged water line, said by the auditors to have been not only replaced but also relocated.

Differences in rates claimed and rates permitted for the use of heavy equipment and failure to document some bills for the restoration of Archer Park also resulted in disallowed claims.

Mayor Harold Cooley told a meeting of the city council Monday that, when (See Story No. 4, Page 4)

Biologist Says Fish Population At Dewey Good... 'Considering'

"The overall fish population at Dewey Lake looks good considering its age and low fertility," Kerry Prather, fisheries biologist for the Kentucky's Eastern Fishery District since 1977 said last week.

Since 1977 when the state was divided into seven fisheries districts, Prather has directed research efforts on the waters of the 12 counties, including Floyd, which make up the Eastern District, smallest in the state but with the largest number of reservoirs and lakes currently being studied.

Working from an office at Prestonsburg Community College, Prather, along with project assistant Chris Shepherd and a summer-aide, has conducted fisheries research involving such techniques as netting, chemical and electrofishing studies, as well as creel surveys. It is from the results of such techniques that Prather is able to offer valid assessments of the quality of district fisheries.

Studies at Dewey Lake conducted over the past year showed a standing crop of 3,634 fish or 85.3 pounds per acre with game fish (all basses, tiger musky and crappie) making up 1,082 of that total with a per-acre-weight of seven pounds. Food fishes (catfish) numbered 13 per acre with a weight of about a pound per acre and panfishes, which include the bluegill and longear sunfish, numbered 562 and 20 pounds, respectively, per acre. Commercial fishes (primarily the redbreast sucker) were recorded at 10 per acre with a nine-pound per acre average, and forage fishes, including gizzard shad, chubs, minnows, darters and brook silversides, totaled 1,966 per acre with a weight of 49 pounds.

Prather, who also cited Dewey's continuing problem with siltation along with its age and relative infertility, which, he said, was typical of Eastern Kentucky impoundments, commented that he is pleased with the lake's fishery. But if he is pleased with the fish population generally, he is truly excited by the apparent success of tiger musky, a northern Pike-Ohio musky hybrid that was stocked in Dewey over the past five years.

"1981 should be a good year at Dewey for harvestable tiger musky," Prather speculated, citing fish studies last year which turned up "a number" of fish ranging from 12 to 27 inches. "Some larger musky were seen but not boated," he commented, although fish up to 36 inches were apparently landed by at least two local fishermen.

Freed Hostages Honored

A special service honoring the former hostages will be held at 1 p.m., Thursday, at the Floyd County Court-house. Circuit Court Judge Hollie Conley and County Attorney Arnold Turner, Jr. will speak at the event and music will be provided by the Prestonsburg High School band. The service is being sponsored by the Martin-area Jayceettes.

THE CALENDAR notwithstanding, unseasonably balmy days have lured many into the open here recently, including this young woman and child, pictured by Dewey Lake Saturday.

"By the way," Prather emphasized, "anybody who catches a tiger musky over 30 inches (harvestable size) should notify the nearest conservation officer and have him verify the length and weight on a creditable meat or grocery scale. They'd have themselves a state record."

Prather also said that both largemouth and spotted (Kentucky) bass populations look good with both having apparently good spawns last spring.

The biologist's report on other area impoundments:

Buckhorn Lake had a standing crop in 1980 of 6,173 fish per acre, weighing 32.5 pounds, as revealed through chemical studies. Game fish numbered 521 or 7.5 pounds per acre; food fish, 19 per acre at 3 pounds; panfish, 5,000 per acre at 10.5 pounds; commercial fishes, 28 per acre at 11 pounds; forage fishes, 602 per acre at 3 pounds. This lake has just started (1979-'80) receiving stockings of Ohio musky. Efforts are also being made to increase the forage fish base. Buckhorn has a good bass population, and is probably under-used. No netting or electro-fishing studies have been conducted on Buckhorn in the past few years.

Carr Fork Lake had a standing crop of 557 fish per acre for a total of 18.4 pounds. Though numbers and weights at the lake are low, it does, however, have an excellent smallmouth bass population. There are a few largemouth bass and walleye in the lake, but the smallmouth dominate, with several "lunkers" being taken by fishermen each year. Bass and walleye numbered 204 per acre at 6.5 pounds, over one-third of the fish population. Efforts are being made to increase greatly forage fish (food for the bass) in Carr Fork. No netting studies were conducted at the lake last year. Electro-fishing studies were done to check the status of the smallmouth bass.

Kiwanians To Help Blood Station Here

A member of the Prestonsburg Kiwanis Club may call on you this week to give a pint of blood as a part of the club's effort to bring in more blood donors for the Prestonsburg station of the Central Kentucky Blood Center.

The station, located on the second floor of the Municipal Bldg., has been taking donors since mid-July. Only the second such station being operated by CKBC, the Prestonsburg station was created to provide more adequately for the blood needs of residents of this area.

In order to make sure an adequate supply of blood is available for all Floyd countians, the station must collect at least 30 pints in it's three days of operation each week. Many weeks have fallen far short of this goal.

Recognizing the valuable lifesaving role the station plays in the lives of all Floyd countians, the Kiwanians ask all healthy Floyd countians to roll up their sleeves and donate blood on Tuesdays, 10-6; Thursdays, noon till 8 p.m.; Saturdays, 9-5.

New Season Premiere For 'All Creatures'

The warmth and good humor of James Herriot's experiences as a Yorkshire veterinarian return to KET when a new season of "All Creatures Great And Small" premieres on the network, Saturday, February 7 at 9 p.m.

The new series of 28 one-hour programs features Christopher Timothy returning in the role of veterinarian James Herriot. With him again are Robert Hardy as Siegfried Farnon and Peter Davidson as his brother Tristan. Carol Drinkwater plays Helen, who is now married to James, and Mary Hignett appears as Mrs. Hall, housekeeper of Skeldale House in which all the members of the practice—and the new Mrs. Herriott—live and work.

Set in England before World War II, "All Creatures Great And Small" is the story of Herriot, his household and their interaction with the small Yorkshire Dales community in which they live.

In the debut of the new season on February 7, the Herriots find that a Christmas at Skeldale House with carols, holly, mistletoe and sick foals and overfed dogs can be a terrifying experience.

"All Creatures Great And Small" is a BBC production presented on KET by EEN, the Eastern Educational Television Network.

Not Brown's Finest Hour

Gov. John Y. Brown's appearance before the Kentucky Press Association's winter meeting in Louisville last Friday wasn't his finest hour.

When Allen (Bud) Perry, editor of The Paintsville Herald, inquired about the progress in four-laning US 23, the governor said, "I'm going to tell you, I don't know the first thing about your road down there."

Then he proved the truth of that statement by flunking the course in Kentucky geography when he added: "That's the road that goes from Pikeville east, isn't it?"

(That tangent would have taken US 23 somewhere, via Williamson, West Virginia.)

David Hawpe, managing editor of The Courier-Journal, who formerly represented his newspaper in Eastern Kentucky, pointed out that the highway is not a political road, as Brown had said, and that it "goes from Pikeville to Ashland," which is a north-south direction.

Then Brown reversed his field under goading by Hawpe to say:

"I know about Route 23, and you've got about four hard problems there. You have a road that starts here and ends there, another starts here and ends there."

"Those are all political roads," he was quoted as concluding.

We have no quarrel with Governor Brown, but we suggest that he take time to acquaint himself with US 23, its history, purpose and needs. A federal highway, as its name indicates, it was conceived as the shortest route from Detroit, Michigan south to Miami, Florida. It has turned into one of the most important coal-haul roads in the nation. Now, its four-laning is in the works, all the way from South Point, Kentucky to Pikeville—except one lone, heavily travelled twelve-mile stretch between Prestonsburg and Paintsville.

Is this planned bottleneck the result of politics, poor planning or plain stupidity? Governor Brown likes to tackle problems, head-on, we gather, to move by straight line toward goals. Then we would very much like to see him make an honest effort to convince the U. S. Bureau of Roads, the Appalachian Regional Commission, et al of the need for uniformity in upgrading US 23.

A drive from Paintsville to Prestonsburg over the two-lane, twelve-mile gap, bordered by towering, crumbling cliffs, might be interesting for the governor.

($12,000), and for contingencies ($10,000).

In addition, the city council has authorized a bond issue of up to $2 million for structural improvements to downtown buildings; another $900,000 is to be set aside in loan money for new businesses or for expanding present businesses; and a special tax on city merchants is expected to raise $48,400 annually.

Councilman Tom Rose, a downtown druggist and a leader of the revitalization effort, termed the present grant application "a first step" in a far-reaching plan to embrace the whole Prestonsburg area. The present one-year, "single purpose" grant could be a nucleus for a "comprehensive" grant (usually for $3 million, over three years) to follow, he said. Such a grant could permit needed improvements in West Prestonsburg and other areas and a more concentrated focus on the needs of low-income families, he added.

Concern that the interest of poor people might be overlooked in the downtown restoration effort surfaced here recently, much of it voiced by attorneys with the Appalachian Research and Defense Fund (Appalred), a legal services agency serving low-income clients.

In a January 21 letter to Councilman Rose, Appalred attorney David Rubinstein questioned whether the physical improvements planned for the city would benefit many lower income people. "The issue is not whether improvements in the storm sewer and street systems are needed," he wrote, "but whether there are not more important uses to which these funds could be put, of greater benefit to low- and moderate-income citizens."

Rubinstein suggested creation of a community center in town, a fund to help poor and minority-group persons set up businesses, and job- and management-training for them. Under a comprehensive, three-year grant, the city might also consider housing construction and rehabilitation, a spouse abuse shelter, and other community facilities, he said.

Some of the attorneys' suggestions appear to have influenced the present grant application, which envisages consulting services and job training to help low income persons get started in business, as well as the $120,000 to be set aside to encourage loans for them. However, most of the projected benefits for the poor will apparently have to await the comprehensive grant for which, it is hoped, the present grant will prove a forerunner.

If the present pre-application is persuasive, the city could be invited as early as March to file a final application, at which time further public input would be solicited. If granted, funds could be available to the city in September.

Fishtrap Lake was the most productive lake in the district last year with 310 pounds per acre. The standing crop was 10,226 fish per acre. Game fish numbered 484 per acre at 27 pounds; food fish, 72 per acre at 9 pounds; pan-fish, 135 per acre at 3.6 pounds; commercial fish, 15 per acre at 26.6 pounds; forage fish, 9,519 per acre at 244 pounds. Tiger musky have been stocked in this lake since 1978. Electro-fishing studies at Fishtrap this year revealed "legal" musky coming on, and a very good bass population.

Federal funds are available to cover 90 per cent of the capital outlay a public transit system, which would include the purchase of buses, plus some of the operating expenses of the transport system—if the need for such a service is established and if it would be used enough to justify such an outlay of funds, it was said.

To give parents a preview of the information they will be asked to supply when the survey forms are brought to them by their children, the Transit Authority is publishing a sample form on Page 8, Section 3, of The Floyd County Times this week.

The attorney general's opinion stated, "...there also exists the possibility of legal action brought by private individuals against school personnel who continue a practice known or believed to be violative of federal constitutional rights. We believe that local school boards who may choose to ignore the decision of the United States Supreme Court run the risk of being sued individually by private individuals with possible requests for compensatory and even punitive damages."

The Ten Commandments law was challenged in a suit filed by four Louisville residents who were represented by a Kentucky Civil Liberties Union attorney.

The Rev. Tom Riner and his wife, Rep. Claudia Riner, of Louisville, said they believe some school officials feel so strongly about the issue that they may continue to post the Commandments.

the paving of Mays Branch was bid together with the flood damage repair, it was foreseen that funds for the paving would have to be repaid to the government. The city did "reasonably well" to have only $33,000 of its claim disallowed, since rejections of 10 percent or more of amounts claimed are common, he said.

Some council members appeared to make light of the government claim, since no effort is apparently being made to collect the debt. City Manager David Evans pointed out, however, that the sum could easily be subtracted from a future government grant to the city.

An inspection by the Army Corps of Engineers of the floodwall near the Bert Combs bridge has revealed a "three-foot void" between the top of the floodwall and the road surface, the council was told. Some subsidence of the highway has already occurred and more can be expected unless the problem is remedied, according to the engineers' report. Instead of compacted clay, "junk, rocks and trees" were reportedly used as a foundation for the road.

The council decided to seek a meeting to discuss the problem with state highway officials. The Department of Highways is said by the engineers to be responsible for the road failure.

In the course of a closed session called to discuss city workers' salaries, the rank of major was created in the city fire department and Lt. Paul Chaffins was promoted to it. At the same time, Fireman Larry Adams was promoted to lieutenant. The fire officer with responsibility for fire supervision, fire and electrical inspections, and code enforcement—duties presently performed by Chaffins—will ordinarily enjoy the rank of major, it was said.

The council authorized purchase of a mobile radio, two walkie-talkies and 10 monitors for the fire department at a cost of $6260. Upgrading the radio equipment is necessary if the city is to maintain its Class B insurance rating, argued Fire Chief Tom Blackburn.

One fundraising roadblock will be permitted in the city this year for the Floyd County Rescue Squad and one for the Shriners, according to a council decision. The Shriners will themselves have to decide whether it will benefit the organization's Ashland or Lexington temples, it was said. Formerly, each temple has had its own roadblock here.

Bids were awarded to Johnson Motor Sales, of Pikeville, for a 1981 Chevrolet Citation ($7216) for use by the city manager, and a half-ton Chevrolet pickup ($8067) for use by the fire chief; and to Newton Chevrolet, of Louisa, for a three-quarter-ton Chevrolet pickup ($8936), for use by the city streets supervisor.

Attack Reported On David School Head

Daniel Greene, director of The David School, was reportedly struck on the head by a man wielding a tire jack last Wednesday night, sustaining a five-inch gash on the forehead. Timothy Wireman, 19, of Fredsville, in Magoffin county, has been charged with second-degree assault.

According to Greene, Wireman was employed as manager of a gas station operated by the David school on KY 404 until his dismissal last September for allegedly using the premises to store and distribute liquor. Greene said that he has since been threatened by Wireman's friends and members of the man's family.

Wednesday's alleged assault is said to have occurred in the front yard of Greene's home in David. Wireman and his brother Frank, 25, were arrested by State Trooper Joe West on a charge of drunkenness later that evening. A warrant on the assault charge was issued on Thursday.

A listing of others booked at the county jail during the week, charges against them, and arresting officers follows:

Legal Battle Over Airport Safety Brews

The Kentucky Airport Zoning Commission last week decided to take the Kentucky Power Company to court for the company's failure to mark power lines at three Eastern Kentucky airports, including the Pikeville and Prestonsburg-Paintsville fields.

The power company, in turn, called on the Franklin circuit court to restrain the zoning commission from enforcing its order against the utility.

An order entered Dec. 2 gave the power company till Jan. 15 to mark or remove four lines near the three airports at its own expense. Although the Pikeville field, where a fatal crash had occurred, was the only airport originally involved, the Prestonsburg-Paintsville and Hazard fields were added later.

(Five have been killed in three crashes at or near the Pikeville field in the last three and a half years.)

Marshall O. Julien, public affairs director for Kentucky Power, said the zoning commission's order could cost the power company, and eventually its customers, "millions of dollars."

"We agreed last August," he said, "to mark the transmission static wire south of the Pikeville airport as soon as it was replaced. The static wire, which carries no electric current, has been replaced and the markers have been installed. In addition, we agreed to remove two spans of the small distribution line-in-question at the Prestonsburg Airport."

Julien pointed out that the larger transmission lines are vital to electric service and that total relocation costs could exceed $3 million. He added, "It's also on our rate payers' behalf that we have filed suit in circuit court. We do not think our customers, who ultimately would have to foot the bill, should be expected to pay these costs when our lines were in place prior to operation of the airports."

"If allowed to stand," Julien continued, "the zoning commission's order could set a precedent in which anyone who builds something near existing electric lines could appeal for their removal at the utility's expense. This could be costly to electric consumers and is the main reason we are seeking to block such action. We would be willing to relocate the lines if the costs were assumed by the responsible parties."

The suit also points out that in addition to the pre-airport existence of the Hazard lines that the Pikeville lines also were there first and one was eventually lowered but not subject to permitting under regulations in effect at that time.

In its appeal, the company maintains the lines are not a hazard to pilots who are following standard flight patterns and procedures considered safe by qualified pilots.

Says Martin Needs More Than Cooperation

In response to your January 21st editorial, I would like to state that "practised cooperation" is NOT the key to decent drinking water and an adequate sewer system in Martin. Local and state officials have seemingly cooperated long enough in their unspoken but understood game of Power Without Responsibility.

With due respect to Congressman Perkins, who seems always to get his part of the job done, no amount of money will accomplish anything here until someone with a sense of responsibility takes charge. We have a relatively new city administration, but despite its initial openness, it now seems to be following the pattern of the past—public meetings lack a quorum of Councilmen and "real" business is done in sessions without citizen input. We have a new Water Commission, but it seems the water is off just as frequently and now citizens are being threatened (see ad in the Jan. 21 edition of your paper) with cutoff for not paying for this discolored, undrinkable stuff into which our untreated sewage is piped. We have a new utilities commission ordinance, but no one seems to know yet where the fund and payment monies of the past five years have gone; and it seems also that those, who, by our vote, are charged with this responsibility don't want us to know. Meantime, we are hauling, buying or boiling our drinking water, and ruining our hair and laundry with the piped-in stuff. On the days the water is off, the grade school kids get one hour of attendance-taking and credit for, but not a day of, education.

I cannot agree that we should "let the blame lie". A community that fails to learn from its past cannot expect the future to be better. Past and present officials must be held accountable for the monies and duties entrusted to them. If not, they will continue to play poker with our water and our lives.

Contribution Made to HRMC

A substantial contribution to the Highlands Regional Medical Center Development Fund has been made by Raymond Bradbury, president of the Martin County Coal Corporation.

Bradbury announced the gift and presented the check at a recent meeting of the HRMC board of trustees' planning committee. The gift was designated for the hospital's expansion project.

"The employees of Martin County Coal and I are pleased to play a part in this important venture," commented Bradbury. "We realize how the expansion will benefit the residents of the Big Sandy area and that support is needed to make the plans a reality. This marks the beginning of our strong financial commitment to HRMC."

"On behalf of our staff and patients, I want to thank Mr. Bradbury for his generosity," said Clarence Traum, HRMC Administrator. "We appreciate the continued support of Martin County Coal Corporation in our development efforts."

State's Unemployed Highest in 10 Years

The state's unemployment rate jumped to 8.6 percent of the labor force in December, up 0.6 percentage points from the November rate.

In a report last week, the Department for Human Resources said the December unemployment rate was the highest in the last 10 years and 0.3 percentage points higher than the peak reached during the 1975 recession.

The national rate, stable at 7.1 percent since last September, dropped to 6.9 percent last month.

The department's chief labor market analyst, Robert MacDonald, estimates the number of Kentuckians out of work in December was 142,100, an increase of 8,700 since November, 51,300 higher than in December 1979.

Factors in the high unemployment rate continue to be an increase in the number of people looking for work and a decrease in the number of jobs available, he said.

"Large numbers of people are entering the labor force for the first time or re-entering the labor force and being unable to find jobs," MacDonald said. "In Kentucky, almost 64,000 of the total number of jobless people are in this category."

He said the number of jobs in the state has dropped 53,000 during the past 12 months. Almost 88 percent of the decrease came in positions paying wages and salaries, "the jobs that support the backbone of the workforce," he said.

Job losses came primarily in the manufacturing industries (22,300 fewer jobs), trade (10,900 fewer jobs), construction (down 9,700 jobs), services (down 3,200 jobs) and coal mining (a loss of 3,200 jobs).

MacDonald attributes most of the job losses to the recession.

Permit Needed For Building On Highway

The Bureau of Highways, in order to protect the State Highway System and to assist the public in procuring permits to construct private entrances, will allow citizens to make applications at the highway maintenance garage nearest to their place of residence.

It is in violation of the law to perform any activity on the right of way of the state highway system without an approved permit signed by the appropriate highway official.

The Bureau of Highways is permitted by law to institute civil suits against individuals who inflict damages to the highway with the intent of securing reimbursement for such damages.

Also, any signs or advertising devices on Federal Aid Primary Roads (US 23, US 119, US 460, Ky. 80, Ky. 40, Ky. 114, and Ky. 115,) must have an approved permit.

If you need further assistance contact Earnie Moore, Permits Engineer, Pikeville District Offices, phone 606-437-9691.

ASCS Taking Applications For Seeding Practices

The Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) is taking applications for cost-sharing on spring seeding practices through the Agricultural Conservation Program (ACP).

Through ACP, ASCS will pay 75% of the cost (not to exceed an amount determined by the County Committee) of the cost for the establishment or improvement of permanent vegetative cover. Eligible practice components are seedbed preparation (this does not include land clearing), seeds, necessary fertilizer and lime.

A soil test will be required for seeding practices. Practices started before committee approval will be ineligible.

ASCS will also be cost-sharing on several other conservation practices, such as ponds, diversions, sod waterways, etc. Those interested should contact the Floyd County ASCS Office at 105 Court St., or by phoning 886-2802.

Paintsville Hospital Adds EEG Diagnosis

Electroencephalograms are now being done at Paintsville Hospital on an in-patient or out-patient basis. Heretofore, it has been necessary for doctors to refer patients needing this diagnostic service to Pikeville, Lexington, or Huntington, W. Va.

Electroencephalograms, or EEG's as they are more commonly known, are used to diagnose brain disorders and may be given to a patient of any age. Physicians may order an EEG on any week day from 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. and at night and on weekends for emergencies.

The testing procedure, which takes approximately 50 minutes, is completely painless, and results are known within 20 minutes after completion. Dr. Michael Passidomo, Pikeville neurologist and a member of the Paintsville Hospital staff, interprets the brain-wave activity which is transmitted to his office via telephone lines.

A spokesman for the hospital said the addition of the EEG diagnostic service is part of the ongoing program at Paintsville Hospital to better serve the community and surrounding area.

A 1917 strike led by the Industrial Workers of the World (IWW) in the copper mines of Bisbee, Ariz., was ended when the sheriff deported 1,200 strikers, according to "Important Events in American Labor History," a publication of the U.S. Department of Labor.

Democratic Candidate For SHERIFF

Floyd Countians:

As our state motto says, United We Stand, Divided We Fall, so does this pertain to us Floyd Countians.

Please support me so we can be united by having open meetings every four months, or sooner if needed, so we can keep in close contact and work together to solve the problems that confront us.

I will have fully qualified personnel working with me to combat all crimes committed against the citizens of Floyd County. I will give my full cooperation to our schools, assist them in drug and alcohol abuse programs, and help with any problems that may arise.

I will give full attention to our churches, to aid them in any way they may need me.

I will work side by side with all state and local law enforcement agencies within our county, so we can work, united, and give our full attention to crime prevention.

I will be available at any time I am needed to protect and serve the people.

(Pol. Adv. Paid by Candidate, 1-28, 2-11-pd.)

TO THE GOOD PEOPLE OF FLOYD COUNTY

Vote for me, Holland B. Hurley, Democratic Candidate for Sheriff of Floyd County. I am 35 years old, and married to Judy Adkins Hurley. We have one child. I am a Vietnam veteran and work for the Chessi System at Martin. I am a member of the B.M.W.E. Union, and a former member of the United Mine Workers Union. I belong to the F&AM Masonic Lodge, Number 869, Wayland.

I feel I am qualified and could make a good County Sheriff. I don't have a lot of money backing me, or bootleggers, or dope pushers behind me. I am running on my good name and reputation. If given the chance, I promise you will see a change. The law will be strictly enforced at all times. Also, there will be deputies at all ball-games, and at funerals, on request.

If we don't do something about people dumping garbage on our highways, soon you won't be able to drive on them. If you want a lot of things changed, vote and support me. Together we will try to improve our county.

I will have meetings in each district and will let the people help select the deputies. I think the voters pay enough tax . . . they should get more out of their tax money.

I am a working man. I don't have any promises to make that I can't keep.

I think we should do something about organized crime and make our county a better place for our children to grown up in.

Please look the candidates over—then you will see that I am the working man's candidate. If elected Sheriff, this will be all I'll do for four years—be your public servant.

Please Support and Vote For

Wait Pays Off for McDowell

By KENNY RICE

Between 1976 and 1978, David Turner guided three McDowell teams to the 15th Regional Tournament. Graduation took its toll on those fine Daredevil clubs and Turner was faced with the task of rebuilding McDowell's program.

During the 1978-79 season, two sophomores, Stewart Osborne and Chester Newsome, and a freshman, Pete Grigsby, started for Turner. Last season, this trio was joined by freshman Jimmy Dale Turner.

For back-to-back seasons, McDowell went 11-18 and did not reach the finals of the 58th District Tournament. Turner and Daredevil fans suffered through the growing pains of the youthful team.

Ah, now, times are changing. The rebuilding has ended, McDowell is back in contention for the regional crown. The Daredevils are, and have been since November, one of the hottest teams in the mountains. They won 14 games before the Christmas break. They are on their way to winning more games this season than they won in the past two seasons combined. McDowell is solidly rebuilt.

"The four boys that have started for use over the last couple of years have come along real well," Turner said. "Their progress has made the difference in our team. You never know which one of them will be leading scorer from night to night. They have played together very well, and our balance has been good."

That balance has been the key to McDowell's season. Osborne is averaging 16 points an outing, Grigsby and Newsome are contributing 15 each per game and Turner is adding 14 a contest.

Turner has never had such consistency from so many since becoming McDowell's coach seven years ago. He is thrilled about having a team where anyone can carry the team on a given night.

Frank Johnson moved into the starting lineup at forward opposite Newsome, a month into the season. The Daredevils have their deepest bench in more than three years with Roger Moore, Tony Stumbo, Steve Halbert and Greg Short all seeing considerable varsity time.

Having 6-8 Turner in the middle has been a plus to the rebuilding game. The sophomore grew two inches over the summer and has added strength and inside moves since last season. He leads the club with 11 rebounds a game. McDowell has been outrebounding their opponents by an average of 12 rebounds per game, including four games where they grabbed off 20 or more rebounds than the opponent.

"With Jimmy Dale in the pivot and with the balanced size of the other starters (they average 6-1 1/2), we have gone to the boards a lot better this season, we are more aggressive underneath than in the past two years."

McDowell has two important home encounters coming up in the next two weeks. This Friday, they meet Betsy Layne and on February 10, Virgie.

After a two-year wait, it's just like old times for David Turner and McDowell.

DID YOU KNOW?

Prior to 1932, the 15th Region was part of the 8th Region. The KHSAA expanded to 16 regions in 1933 with a representative from each region advancing to the State Tournament.

One Floyd county school won three consecutive 8th Region titles. In 1929, 1930 and 1931, the Betsy Layne Bobcats were champs of the 8th Region.

MUSTANGS FAVORED

Hayes Hamilton is doing it again at Stumbo Elementary. Hamilton is developing another outstanding boys basketball team, one that is favored to win the county championship this season.

The Mustangs of this season have the qualities possessed by Hamilton coached Stumbo teams of the past, they are fine ballhandlers and passers and they can shoot from anywhere on the floor.

Stumbo fans have come to expect this from Hamilton and he has never let them down. The Mustangs last won the county championship in 1979 and many of the stars on that team are starring for Junior Newsome on the Betsy Layne varsity this season.

Allen Central Plays Giant-Killer In 51-49 Victory over Lafayette

By C. "OLLIE" ROBINSON and TOMMIE LYNN MAY

McDowell, Allen Central and Betsy Layne, all three, won last Tuesday night in boys' basketball play in the 58th district while Prestonsburg and Wheelwright lost. And in other districts of the 15th Region, Feds Creek upset Belfry, 85 to 77, and Williamson, W. Va. thumped Sheldon Clark, 90 to 58.

The Allen Central Rebels upset the Lafayette Generals Tuesday at Lexington, defeating the Generals 51 to 49. The Rebels led at halftime, 32 to 30. It was a seesaw affair through the third quarter and the Generals led going into the fourth, 42 to 41. In the fourth quarter the Rebels led by as many as 5 but the Generals fought back and with the score tied 49-all the Generals missed a free throw and the Rebels got the ball. With time running out, Randy Conley passed to the freshman sensation, Tim Lawson, and he hit a five-footer to win the game, 51 to 49. Randy Conley and Bruce Mullins each had 14 points while Tim Lawson had 13. Tim Collins led the Generals with 15 points.

The McDowell Daredevils are the winningest ball club in the region. They traveled to Johns Creek Tuesday night and defeated the Bearcats, 67 to 61. The score was tied, going into the fourth quarter, 49-all, but the Daredevils outscored the Bearcats, 18 to 12, to win their 18th of the season. Pete Grigsby led the attack with 18. Jimmy Turner had 16 and Chester Newsome gathered in 15. Charles led the Bearcat attack with 22 points.

Betsy Layne traveled to Wheelwright Tuesday night and defeated the Trojans, 78 to 62. Wheelwright lost the game in the first quarter when Betsy Layne led 25 to 10, and the Trojans were never able to overcome the lead. Dwight Newsome led the scoring with 18, followed by Johnny Little with 17. The Trojans were led in scoring by David Slone with 19 and Gilford Hall connected for 13.

The Prestonsburg Blackcats entertained the Johnson Central Golden Eagles Tuesday night and lost by a score of 62 to 54. The young Blackcats fought the Eagles on even terms much of the game but lost in the final minutes. Joe Marson's long-range shooting kept the Cats in distance and finished up with scoring honors with 24. Tim Branham led the Eagle attack with 10 points.

Friday night, the Betsy Layne Bobcats traveled to Allen Central and won their 12th game by defeating the Rebels, 65 to 54. The win for the Bobcats also gave them a Conference record of 5 and 1. This was the third win of the season for the Bobcats over the Rebels. Dwight Newsome led the attack with 19 points. Bruce Mullins tied Newsome for scoring honors with 19.

McDowell Daredevils rolled to their 19th win against three losses, traveling to Millard and winning, 71 to 59. The Devils led at halftime by 13 points, Pete Grigsby fired in 25 shots, and Chester Newsome connected for 17. McDowell leads in the Floyd County Conference with a record of 6 and 1.

The Wheelwright Trojans won over visiting Elkhorn City Friday night, 52 to 49. The Trojans were led in scoring by Gilford Hall with 24 points and dominated both boards with 17 rebounds.

The Allen Central Rebels traveled to Virgie Saturday night and lost to the fifth-rated Eagles, 77 to 67. The Rebels had a bad first quarter and trailed by 12 points but outplayed the home-standing Eagles the final three quarters, yet lost.

Celebration Speaker

Sturgill Named Head Of New State Cabinet

Gov. John Y. Brown, Jr. last week announced a cabinet level reorganization to improve the promotion and marketing of Kentucky's multi-billion dollar agriculture industry.

The executive order signed by Brown places the Dept. of Agriculture and the Dept. of Energy under a new Energy and Agriculture Cabinet headed by Energy Secretary William B. Sturgill, of Lexington, formerly of Prestonsburg.

The order also gives the new cabinet responsibility for the State Fair Board and the governor's Council on Agriculture, now renamed the Ky. Council on Agriculture.

The order also transfers five promotional and marketing programs from the Department of Agriculture to the Council and creates a division for each of them. It also establishes Council positions for an executive director and a deputy director.

In announcing the reorganization, Brown said Sturgill has an extensive background in agriculture. He cited Sturgill's 1,000-acre farming operation in central Kentucky and his position as a tobacco grower and warehouseman.

Sturgill, as chairman of the University of Kentucky Board of Trustees, has a close working relationship with the various agricultural experiment and development programs at the University.

He also has an extensive background in Kentucky rail transportation and the transportation problems facing farmers across Kentucky.

Brown said that Sturgill's long experience as a successful businessman in eastern and central Kentucky gives him exceptional qualifications to bring the business direction and expertise that is necessary to upgrade agricultural promotion and marketing programs.

"Bill Sturgill had done an outstanding job in our administration, bringing billions of dollars of federal funds to Kentucky in new energy-related programs," Brown said.

"More than anyone else in the administration, Secretary Sturgill has the expertise to help give our full support to the development of Kentucky's great potential in agriculture."

Sturgill, who joined Brown in announcing the changes, said he is appointing Former Agriculture Commissioner Thomas O. Harris to serve as the Council's executive director.

The five programs Brown transferred from Agriculture to the Council are Shows and Fairs, Research and Statistics, Domestic Markets, Export Markets and the North American International Livestock Exposition.

In addition, the Council will assume all responsibilities for the Markets Development Program and for the Kentucky Agricultural Marketing Seal Program.

Brown said the Department of Agriculture will continue to have full control over weights and measures, livestock sanitation, commodity food distribution, pest and noxious weed control, pesticides, egg and milk marketing regulations, the dog law and the state-federal meat laboratory.

Mrs. T. A. Combs, president of the Floyd County Republican Woman's Club, has announced that the club's main address during the Victory Celebration, to be held at Radio Station WDOC here, Friday evening, January 30, will be Robert Michael (Mike) Duncan, of Inez.

Mr. Duncan, a banker and attorney at Inez, was the youngest Kentucky delegate to attend the 1972 and 1976 Republican national conventions, and served as an alternate delegate to the 1980 convention. He was the Seventh Congressional District campaign chairman for President Ronald Reagan.

All interested persons are invited to attend the celebration.

Hearing On Insurance Scheduled Tomorrow

The state Insurance Department has set a public hearing tomorrow (Jan. 29) at 10 a.m. on a filing which could affect every property owner in Kentucky.

The hearing on the proposed fire suppression rating schedule filed by the Insurance Service Office of Kentucky will be at the department, 151 Elkhorn Court, Frankfort.

The Insurance Service Office, formed in the early 1970s, is a rating organization which makes filings on behalf of a number of insurers.

The organization examines fire protection facilities in each Kentucky town or other governmental unit and grades them one, the lowest, to 10, the highest risk.

This proposed schedule would establish a new set of criteria for classifying towns as high or low-fire risk. During the public hearing, the organization must explain and justify the new method.

Prior to the Jan. 29 hearing, an informal meeting for all prospective participants was held Jan. 26.

Those wishing to officially intervene in the case must file an application at least 48 hours prior to the hearing. The public can participate at the hearing by making statements for the record and filing communications without applying as an intervenor. Individuals will not otherwise be allowed to participate.

The filing and supporting information will be open for public inspection at the Insurance Department Monday through Friday during regular office hours prior to the hearing.

New Phone System Is Designed For Mines

The deepest, darkest coal mine in Kentucky seems a little brighter when the outside world is just an easy phone call away.

South Central Bell is now offering a new coal mine communications system in Kentucky that—for the first time—can provide miners with the same complete telephone service found in a modern office building.

The Industrial Communication System (ICS)—developed jointly by Western Electric and Bell laboratories—can provide a mine with up to 45 telephones and 15 lines, according to Mac Starnes, South Central Bell's district manager.

"Each of these lines can be directly connected to the national telephone network through either a PBX (private branch exchange) system in the mine office or switching equipment in our local central office building," he said.

This means an engineer checking out equipment in a mine shaft in Floyd county can pick up an ICS phone and dial across the country to the machinery manufacturer's home office. Messages no longer have to be relayed from underground to the main office and then to phones in other locations.

Conference calls linking a group of phones in different parts of the mine with an outside caller can be approved, and direct access to the nationwide telephone network means technicians in a mine can use their phones to access computers hundreds or even thousands of miles away.

ATTEND FUNERAL

A Change In Home Heating

Each winter millions of homeowners wince at the sight of their home heating bill. Instead of getting all heated up about it, they should consider the source of the problem.

There are numerous ways to save money and energy on home heating; one is to replace the existing heating system. If the maximum efficiency of your unit (the ratio of heat output to heat in the fuel fire) is less than 70 percent, you should consider replacing it. Carefully examine the assortment of heating systems available.

Most heating systems are rated in British Thermal Units (Btu), which represent how much heat a unit is capable of producing. The Btu capacity of a unit should match the heat loss of the home. Most systems range from 75,000 Btu for a small home to 200,000 Btu for a large one.

Nearly all homes are centrally heated, which means a central unit supplies heat to the entire house instead of having individual heaters in each room. The heat in a system, with the exception of electric, is generated inside the furnace by fuels such as oil, gas, wood and coal. There are two major heating methods—indirect warm-air heating and direct hot-water heating.

When using indirect heating, the heat produced by the central unit is forced to rooms through a duct system which, at the same time, draws cool air back to the heater to be reheated. The three basic types of indirect heating systems are oil-fired, gas-fired, and electric.

Furnaces

There are two types of oil-fired furnaces—the gun type, in which oil is sprayed from nozzles and ignited, and the pot type, where a reservoir of oil is transformed into vapor and then ignited. Of the two, the gun type is more efficient and economical because of the oil/air mixing system.

The popularity of oil-fired furnaces reached its peak in the late 1960s. There was a shortage of natural gas and heating oil was inexpensive. That situation ended with the Arab oil embargo in 1973.

Since 1973, the average price of a barrel of imported oil has increased from $2.15 to $37, over 1600 percent. For this reason, some 200,000 homeowners are expected to switch from oil to gas furnaces this year.

The process of converting an oil furnace to burn gas is fairly easy. In most cases a heating contractor can remove the gun type oil burner and install a new conversion gas burner for $300 to $700.

Gas furnaces are the most popular type of heating used today. Most gas furnaces burn natural gas, but in areas where it is not available, liquid petroleum (LP) gas is used. The only difference between the two is that the LP must be stored in a pressure tank near your home, while the natural gas is delivered through a pipeline by a local gas company.

In most parts of the country, the cost of heating a home with gas is 30 percent less than oil. While this may sound attractive, there are several important factors to consider before switching to gas.

The cost difference between oil and gas may disappear in 1985 when domestic gas prices are slated for decontrol. Also keep in mind that on top of the $1500 to $2500 price of a new gas furnace, it costs $1000 or more to connect a home to a gas line. Unless a house needs a new heating system or is already hooked up to a gas line, it may not be practical or economical to switch to gas heating.

Electric furnaces tend to be easier to maintain than oil or gas furnaces because they do not rely on fuel combustion for heat. Electric heat, often called resistance heat, relies on an electric current to heat the inside of the furnace. The warm air produced is then fan-blown through ducts to heat the home.

With an 85 to 90 percent efficiency, electric furnaces are more efficient than most oil or gas furnaces. But even with the higher efficiency, electric furnaces cost more to operate because of the high cost of electricity.

Direct Hot Water Heating

Many older homes today are heated by hot water or steam heating systems. These systems consist of a boiler, pipes, and room heating units such as convectors and radiators. The water or steam heated in the boiler is pumped through pipes to the radiators where the heat is transferred to room air. Gas, oil and electricity are the most common fuels used in boilers, but as fossil fuel costs continue to rise, multi-fuel boilers are becoming popular.

Hot water and steam boilers are the most common hydronic heating systems. Hot water boilers are the most popular because they are less expensive. The main difference between the two is that the hot water system forces hot water through pipes, while the steam system pushes steam through pipes.

The biggest advantage of hydronic heating is its ability to heat different rooms at varying temperatures. Thermostats can be attached to radiators to control the temperatures of each room individually.

Most older boilers, gas or oil fired, tend to be 60 to 70 percent efficient. Newer models have a much higher efficiency.

One of the newest and most efficient types of heating systems on the market today is the multi-fuel hydronic heating system. Although they have been popular in Europe for decades, they were introduced here only recently.

With a multi-fuel boiler, a combination of fossil and solid fuels—including wood, coal, gas, oil and coke—can be burned. Most systems are designed to burn oil or gas as the primary fuel, with wood or coal as a backup fuel. When the solid fuel burns down or can't satisfy the thermostat, the oil or gas burner automatically switches on until the solid fuel can be rekindled.

Multi-fuel boilers have a higher efficiency than conventional heaters (88 percent efficient, compared to standard oil or gas-fired heaters which are only 70 to 75 percent efficient).

When purchasing a new home heating system, low operating costs should not be the only consideration. For instance, gas-fired furnaces are relatively inexpensive to operate today but five years from now, gas could be as expensive as oil. To make the best choice, consider future availability of fuel, installation costs, the efficiency of the unit and the heat loss of the home.

Fuel Forecasts

Oil is expected to remain our country's major source of energy. By 1990, imports are expected to account for over 50 percent of the nation's total oil supply. The price per barrel is expected to exceed $50.

Gas supplies are expected to decline in the next ten years. Approximately 60 percent of the total gas production projected for 1990 must come from reserves yet to be discovered.

Renewable fuels are the most reliable energy source for the future. Coal represents this country's largest fuel resource and the energy from it is virtually unlimited. Wood is another renewable fuel source, but the availability of it depends on location. In some areas, it costs only sweat, but keep in mind it requires more labor and storage space to use than other fuels.

Installation and Cost

The cost of a unit and installation varies depending on where you live, the heating contractor hired and how well your home is suited for the heating system. Sometimes you can save over $1000 by getting as many estimates as possible before purchasing a unit.

It is important not to ignore the duct system when installing a new heating unit. It does not always have to be replaced, but it should be checked because in some cases it can account for 15 percent or more of the heat loss.

Also make sure your chimney is in good working condition. Sometimes a chimney can be the wrong size for the heating unit or in need of repair.

If you are considering installing a multi-fuel boiler, you should check with your local building inspector to make sure the unit is approved by your city code and that your chimney meets the proper specifications to burn solid fuel.

Hydronic heating systems are generally the most expensive to install. A steam or hot water boiler and installation ranges from $2000 to $3000, and a multi-fuel boiler costs about $3000. Oil and electric furnaces range from $1000 to $2000, while gas furnaces cost about $1500. Costs are usually higher if you are switching to a new system, rather than just replacing an old one.

One of the most important steps toward efficient heating is selecting a heating system size which accurately offsets the heat loss of your home. The ideal system is one which runs continuously on the coldest days of the year. An oversized unit fails to reach its heating capacity and wastes heat by operating at partial loads. To determine the proper heating capacity, in terms of Btu output, it is necessary to know the heat loss of your home.

When determining the heat loss of a home, you must first know the design temperature difference of your home. This is the difference between the outside design temperature (the coldest temperature expected during a normal heating season) and the temperature desired inside the home. If you want the rooms heated to 70° F and the outside design temperature is 0° F, the design temperature difference is 70° F.

The next step is to determine the "U" factor of different parts of the home's construction, such as walls, doors, windows, ceilings and floors. The "U" factor is the time it takes heat to flow through one square foot of surface and it is measured in Btu per hour. "U" factor charts are available from the Society of Heating and Ventilating Engineers, as well as from many heating manufacturers. The charts list "U" factors for all types of construction.

The next step is to determine the heat loss per square foot. To do this, multiply the design temperature difference by the "U" factor of the area. Then multiply that number by the total area in square feet of each surface to determine its heat loss. Add the heat loss of all areas of the house together to determine the total heat loss calculation.

If your ceilings are over 12 feet, add 20 percent to the total heat loss calculation for each foot in ceiling height over 12 feet. The reason for this is that warm air will rise and accumulate at the ceiling, so more heat is needed to compensate for the temperature difference from ceiling to floor.

The final heat loss calculation is what you should try to match when purchasing a heating unit. If your total heat loss is 120,000 Btu/hr., your heating unit should have a 120,000 Btu heating capacity.

If your heater is due for replacement, examine all the possibilities and if you need more advice, consult with a heating contractor before making a final decision.

College Receives Estate Gift

Sam Hatcher, assistant trust officer of Citizens Bank of Pikeville (shown in photo at left) congratulates Dr. Jackson O. Hall, president of Pikeville College, on receipt of a gift from the Edward Holley estate. Noting the value of this kind of giving to small private colleges Dr. Hall remarked: "We are particularly grateful for requests of this nature. It is important to remember that liberal arts colleges in the private sector confront enormous problems in the struggle against inflation and high interest rates that everyone faces in these troubled times. Estate giving, gifts of property, stock certificates, or donations with accrual value or appreciation have a special significance."

Industrial Revenue Bonds Halted for Possible Changes

The state Industrial Revenue Bond Oversight Committee has begun looking at possible changes in local review of revenue-bond requests.

In a meeting last week, the panel received staff suggestions on new review standards. The eight-member committee is deferring action on revenue-bond requests in January and February at the request of Gov. John Y. Brown, Jr., who asked for the pause, saying tighter local controls are needed on the types of projects approved for revenue-bond funding.

Through the program, qualified developers sell bonds to borrow money for projects. Such bonds are tax-free, so borrowing is cheaper than through conventional, long-term financing.

Local governments serve as middlemen in bond sales, but are not responsible for repaying bond debts and are not liable if defaults occur.

(This method of financing has already been approved for two projects in Floyd county.)

Until last year, only industries and certain public-sector projects qualified for revenue bonds. The 1980 General Assembly passed legislation expanding the program to include commercial ventures. The bond oversight committee was created to review the commercial projects to see if they meet the law's guidelines for approval.

The committee and its staff, composed of state development officials, apparently will have a lot of homework to do before bond applications are again considered in late March.

A chief task is developing guidelines for cities and counties to follow in reviewing bond applications. According to staff members, local governments could adopt a model set of guidelines to be drafted by the committee, or could draft their own standards, which would be reviewed by the bond oversight panel.

The guidelines cover topics such as public notice and public comment on bond requests, and application and issuing fees to be charged by local governments.

A preliminary draft of the guidelines suggests the establishment of bond-review commissions for all cities and counties. The commission would review bond requests and make recommendations to local governments.

The bond oversight committee also expects to draft policy statements before it resumes reviewing applications. The statements will set forth the committee's interpretation of the projects. The developer of a small restaurant, for example, would then know if the committee generally believes small restaurants meet the criteria.

The panel also will develop standards for studies of retail market areas. Developers and opponents of proposed retail stores would have to follow the standards in justifying or refuting a community's need for a retail outlet.

Hospital Wins Board O.K.

"It says, 'Congratulations,'" beamed Pat Willis, R.N. on opening the letter from the Kentucky board of Nursing stating that Highlands Regional Medical Center approved to provide Continuing Education Units for the nurses.

Highlands Regional Medical Center has been approved by the Kentucky Board of Nursing as a provider of mandatory continuing education for nurses in this area.

The approval came after HRMC submitted a 60-page application that convinced the board the hospital had the necessary facilities and qualified staff to administer the continuing education courses.

In response to a growing trend toward continuing education, a regulation was passed by the Kentucky Board of Nursing which required that, beginning in 1981 all licensed nurses must earn a number of credit hours in continuing education in order to be re-licensed.

"Because of this approval, we can design nursing education programs which will be of maximum interest and need to nurses in this area," said Pat Willis, R.N. She and Lisa Parlier, R.N., nursing education coordinators at HRMC, are preparing units on Stress Management, Chemotherapy, I.V. Therapy, and Assertiveness training. The courses are slated to begin in May.

Fire Danger High, Forester Advises

Grass fires were again burning here this week, an extraordinary testimony to the continuing dry spell, and Carter Conley, of the Division of Forestry, urged property owners this week to exercise caution in burning debris.

"Some people are burning debris now to get ahead of the fire season, but it's as dry here now as it has ever been," Conley said, noting that the area has had less than an inch of rain this month. No outdoor burning should be done during the day, he said.

Forestry officials attended to fires in the Harold, Little Mud and Branham's Creek areas during the week, and another was reported burning on the ridge between Rice Branch of Prater Creek and Finance Hollow, near Martin Monday night.

"It's as dangerous now as it would normally be in the spring or fall. We could easily have another blow up if the dry weather continues," Carter warned.

Earned Income Credit

Aids Low Income Workers

The Earned Income Credit is a refundable tax credit available to certain working parents who earned less than $10,000 in 1980, the Internal Revenue Service said.

The credit will be paid to taxpayers who qualify even if it exceeds tax liability or the taxpayer owes no taxes. Some taxpayers could receive a credit of as much as $5,000, according to the IRS.

To be eligible for the Earned Income Credit, taxpayers must:

1. have an "Adjusted Gross Income" and "Earned Income" (including that of spouse) of less than $10,000; and
2. file as married filing jointly, head of household, or qualifying widow or widower; and
3. not have any income earned in a foreign country or a U. S. possession, if the income is eligible for exclusion from gross income;
4. live in a home with a dependent child for the whole year or qualify as a head of household because a married child can be claimed as a dependent. If the taxpayer qualifies as a head of household because of an unmarried child, that child does not have to be claimed as a dependent.

Taxpayers may elect to receive their credit in one of two ways. If they are eligible, they can receive it when they file their return, or they may choose to have their employer include advance payments in their paychecks throughout the year, the IRS noted.

In order to receive advance payments during 1981, the taxpayer should expect to meet the above conditions for all of 1981. To apply for the credit, the taxpayer must file Form W-5, "Earned Income Credit Advance Payment Certificate," with his or her employer.

Additional information on the Earned Income Credit and advance payment is available by calling the IRS at 582-1361 in Louisville, 255-2333 in Lexington, 628-0055 in Covington, or 1-800-428-9100 toll-free elsewhere in Kentucky.

Delay Expected On Redistricting

Unless there is a special legislative session this year to redraw congressional and state legislative districts in light of the 1980 census, it appears that it will not be done until perhaps as late as 1984.

That would mean many legislators serving them would have been elected from districts formed 12 years previously, when the General Assembly last reshuffled the boundaries.

Such a situation would hurt two areas in Kentucky—counties around Louisville that have gained population while Louisville has lost residents, and some Eastern Kentucky counties that have shown population increases in the past decade.

The situation will be discussed either this month or next, when a redistricting subcommittee holds a session to analyze preliminary census data.

Reappointment is required every 10 years in Kentucky, and by federal edict it must be as nearly as possible on a one-person, one-vote basis.

One difficulty for the state is that final census figures will not be available until April—shortly before the May filing deadline for congressional and legislative primary candidates.

In 1984, to implement a 1979 constitutional amendment, all legislators will be elected in even-numbered years.

To bring that about, state senators elected this year and in 1983 will serve five years instead of four, and representatives chosen this year will serve three years instead of two.

As a result, there has been mild pressure on Gov. John Y. Brown Jr. to call a special session this year for reapportionment of congressional districts.

But Brown's stance remains the same: No special-redistricting session unless it is absolutely necessary.

No session can be held in the state Senate and House chambers, anyway, until midsummer, because both are undergoing renovation.

The Legislative Research Commission, which would draft redistricting plans, simply does not have enough information at the moment to start the tedious operation.

However, the latest data indicate that the ideal U.S. congressional district in Kentucky would have about 520,000 residents.

This means the 3rd District of Louisville is 128,000 below the norm, and stands to have its boundaries sharply modified.

The biggest population gain is in the 7th District that is now 44,000 above the ideal district population.

The LRC said that the ideal House district would contain 36,421 people and the ideal Senate district 95,846 people.

The current General Assembly seems divided on the idea of a special session, with the leadership generally reluctant to come to Frankfort for one.

Issues Alert On Offer Made By Retail Oil

Attorney General Steve Beshear has issued a consumer alert to all consumers who may be contemplating responding to an ad which has been placed by The Retail Oil Association in many rural newspapers across the state. The Alabama Attorney General's Office is currently investigating this Alabama-based company for possible violations of the Alabama consumer laws and criminal statutes.

According to ads in The Manchester Enterprise at Manchester in Clay county and The Boone County Recorder in Boone county, The Retail Oil Association is offering a rebate of 50 cents per gallon on premium, unleaded and regular gasoline, gasohol, diesel oil, propane and homeheating oil. The company invites the public to fill out a form requesting additional information and send it with $5 to Drawer 427, Heflin, Ala. 36264.

According to the Alabama Attorney General's Office, the Heflin, Alabama Police Department has attempted to obtain information from the local offices of The Retail Oil Association and the local manager has refused to provide names of other principals involved in this enterprise and could not provide specific details as to the rebate program.

The Heflin Police Department has obtained two unlisted telephone numbers for The Retail Oil Association in Heflin, Ala., which were provided by the Alabama Attorney General's Office. These are: (205)-463-5386 and (205)-463-5387.

Beshear said his office has received several inquiries concerning this company's activities but has not determined whether any Kentuckians have lost money as a result of this rebate program.

Other state attorneys general are making inquiries into this solicitation, including officials in North Carolina, Texas, South Carolina and South Dakota.

Inquiries and complaints concerning this company should be made by writing Attorney General Beshear's Consumer Protection Division, 209 St. Clair Street, Frankfort, Ky. 40601, or by calling the toll-free Consumer Hotline—(800)-432-9257.

School Bus Drivers' Age Limit Set At 70

The state Board of Education last Tuesday passed a motion to raise the maximum retirement age of school bus drivers from 65 to 70 and reversed a Kentucky High School Athletic Association decision concerning a student's sports eligibility.

At the December board meeting, Deputy Attorney General Robert Chenoweth suggested the board direct Department of Education personnel to secure additional information justifying age 65 as the maximum retirement age for school bus drivers.

Tuesday, Chenoweth reacted to the information gathered by department personnel and said, "Based on the information I have seen, I suggest the board modify the recommendation and take it up to 70." The board then voted to raise the limit from 65 to 70.

Board members voiced their concerns over allowing school bus drivers between the ages of 65 and 70 to operate buses, but, based on the recommendation made by Chenoweth, the motion passed and the regulation will now be in complete compliance with the federal regulations concerning age discrimination.

Court To Meet Twice a Year

(From The Big Sandy News, Louisa) County Judge-Executive J. J. (Jake) Jordan tossed an administrative bomb into the laps of the fiscal court last Saturday with the announcement, there would be only two more scheduled meetings this year.

He cited the Kentucky Revised Statute that calls for only two yearly scheduled meetings in May and October.

Any other sessions would have to be called by the Judge-Executive, based on need. This will include monthly payment of bills.

However, County Attorney Dan Ball said that a majority of the magistrates, if they feel there is enough need, can call a meeting, if the county judge-executive is unavailable or does not recognize that need.

If the judge refuses to recognize this need, then its necessity must be decided in circuit court or a higher judicial body, Ball continued.

Ball added that the law is not new, but has been on the books many years.

In making the decision, the angry Judge Jordan cited the lack of cooperation by the court; failure to go along with courthouse addition; failure to approve bond issue for county road maintenance; extravagantly spending of $250,000 on gravel, depleting general fund supplies to $200, which must last until July 1.

The action resulted in a flurry of heated charges by the magistrates that the judge is denying them their authority and privilege of office.

An outraged Magistrate Ray Williams accused Judge Jordan of illegal hiring practices without authorization by the court, which the judge-executive vehemently denied.

Magistrate Stanley Ferguson questioned the decision, noting that all of the day's court orders, were approved unanimously by the court.

Magistrate Roy Holbrook, assuming the role as mediator, cautioned that the problem be reconsidered, and discussed at a later date.

However, Judge Jordan over the protests of Williams, adjourned the meeting himself, declaring "That's the way it is boys!"

Ball told The Big Sandy News the law does not provide for public or media notification as to special meetings, only that the magistrates be contacted.

Ky. Black Church To Be Documented

KET has received authorization to be the sponsoring organization for a Kentucky Humanities Council grant to produce a documentary on the black church in Kentucky. The documentary, targeted for a broad adult audience, will deal with the origins of the church during the slavery period, its expressive form of worship, the unique roles it has played in the development of the black community, the activities of the church in the continuing struggle for equality and the ongoing debate over the place of church pastors as spokesmen for political and social protest.

Dr. George Wright, University of Texas at Austin history professor (formerly a University of Kentucky history professor), and others spent several years recording and interpreting the history of the black religious experience in Kentucky which, for the most part, is unwritten history. One avenue utilized was a series of organized "oral history" interviews through a grant funded by the Kentucky Oral History Commission. Wright and Rev. Benjamin S. Baker, pastor of the Main Street Baptist Church in Lexington, also conducted a program of 55 presentations around the state devoted to the black experience in Kentucky. This effort was funded by the Kentucky Humanities Council.

The documentary, to be produced by Dr. Steven Channing, University of Kentucky history professor, will utilize the information documented from the "oral history" interviews and the responses from the presentations conducted by Wright and Baker.

Channing says, "This documentary should provide a prism of understanding of the black experiences in the state from the late 1700's and will show how black and white people interacted over the last 200 years through the church."

"The church has been the most significant force in the black community and is more than just a religious experience," explains Wright. "This documentary will take a look at the involvement of the church in the Civil Rights Movement, deal with the diverse elements that went into the making of Afro-American Christianity and the question of the political function of the church."

Wright will be the principal Humanities Advisor for the Project. Project committee members are: Prof. Henry Chaney, Kentucky State University History Department; Prof. Marion Lucas, Western Kentucky University History Department; Prof. William Turner, University of Kentucky Sociology Department; Prof. Evonne Jones, University of Louisville Anthropology Department; Nathaniel Green, Louisville, Ky.; and Rev. Benjamin S. Baker. Wright and Channing are requesting that anyone who may have knowledge of the black experience in Kentucky or who may know someone who has had this experience to contact Channing at (606) 258-4349.

Let me ask you a question. Are you a Christian, are you saved? If you should die or if Jesus Christ should come today would you go to Heaven or would you go to a Burning Hell, where all go if they have never been born again by faith in Jesus Christ and washed in his precious blood He shed on Calvary Cross almost 2,000 years ago?
If you don't know for sure you are saved, then why don't you right now ask God to forgive you of your sins and simply trust him as your Lord and Saviour.
Please read in your Bible these following verses: Rom. 3:10, Rom.
3:23, Rom. 5:12; also, Rom. 6:23 and
Rev. 20:14-15. And then read Rom. 5,
Verse 6 and Verse 8, and then Rom.
10:9-13. Now, after you have read these verses which is God's word, and if in your heart and mind you want to be saved, and receive Jesus Christ as your Lord and Saviour and have eternal life, now and forever, so you won't have to go to a devil Hell, just simply call upon the Lord Jesus Christ and ask Him to save you now and to forgive you of all your sins, the best way you know how.

Pharmacy Footnotes

by HAROLD COOLEY

Influenza is generally spread by direct contact, by droplet infection traveling through the air and possibly by inanimate objects contaminated with freshly soiled virus material. Sneezing, coughing and talking are common ways of transmitting a virus from one person to another. It quickly spreads from one part of the country to another and to other countries as well by means of modern transportation. The early stages of influenza sometimes, unfortunately, before the patient realizes that he has it, are the most infectious. Older people, and those susceptible to virus infections should consult their physician about their need for flu shots.

When influenza strikes, there is often little that you can do aside from stay in bed. If your physician decides that prescription medication is called for, then come to COOLEY APOTHECARY, INC., for professional prescription service. We also have a complete inventory of cold relief items such as cough medicines and aspirin. We're at 2 Town Center Bldg., 886-8106. Mon.-Fri., 9-5:30; Sat., 9-5.

HELPFUL HINT:
The incubation period of influenza is short, ranging from twenty-four to seventy-two hours.

What you should know about our NOW-checking account, available January 2, 1981

Recently, we have been informing you about how NOW-checking accounts will work. Now we will inform you how NOW-checking will work at United Federal Savings and Loan Association. This way you may compare it to where you're currently doing your checking. We are sure if you compare, you will be a regular United Federal customer just like many of your friends.

What is a NOW-checking account? A NOW-checking account is simply a checking account that earns interest.

When will NOW accounts be available? NOW-checking accounts are effective by law December 31, 1980. NOW-checking accounts will be available at United Federal as of January 2, 1981.

Who qualifies? Only individuals, sole proprietorships, or a non-profit corporation qualifies by law to earn interest on their checking accounts.

How to qualify for a NOW-checking account at United Federal? All you have to do is maintain a balance in your NOW-checking account at United Federal of at least $300.00 and we will pay you interest at the annual rate of 5.25% compounded daily. If your account drops below the minimum balance, you will be charged a $5 service charge for that month only and receive no interest.

Why you should have your Now-checking account at United Federal? There are many reasons why, but just to mention a few:

1. A low minimum balance.
2. An itemized monthly statement sent to you.
3. Write as many checks per month as you wish, with no additional charges.
4. We pay the maximum interest rate allowed by law.

For more information about NOW-checking accounts, savings accounts, or any other savings and loan service, stop by any of our offices and talk with our staff. We want you to know more about your financial opportunities. The more you know, the more likely you are to have your savings and NOW-checking accounts with us.

Classroom TV Series Wins Media Awards

"Thinkabout," a classroom video series designed to develop the thinking skills of fifth and sixth graders and reinforce mathematics, language arts and study skills, has received several prestigious media awards.

In December of 1980, two Golden Eagle Awards for "Communication Patterns" and "Cultural Patterns" programs in the "Thinkabout" series, were awarded to the Agency for Instructional Television (A.I.T.), of which KET is a member) by the Council on International Nontheatrical Events (C.I.N.E.). A.I.T. represents the consortium that created and financed the series.

Earlier, in June of 1979, the "Thinkabout" consortium was honored with a special 1979 Achievement Award in Children's Television by the Action For Children's Television organization.

The series, consisting of sixty, 15-minute programs was praised by the awarding agencies as a "series of astonishing excellence that portrays with compassion the skills essential to learning," as well for its "high technical quality, easy understandability and appeal to children"

KET, with support from the Kentucky Department of Education, is one of the 41 U. S. and Canadian states and agencies which participated in the "Thinkabout" consortium.

Kentucky teachers were involved in early stages of the "Thinkabout" series. In 1977, 56 fifth- and sixth-grade teachers from 36 Kentucky school districts helped the consortium define the series content, design the teachers' classroom handbook and test the programs.

KET began airing the series in the fall of 1979-80. 1981 marks "Thinkabout's" second year of broadcast, with Richard Smith, head writer for KET, serving as one of the script writers for the series.

KET's current broadcast schedule for "Thinkabout" includes two different programs each week: Mondays 10:00 a.m., repeated Tuesdays 11:30 a.m., and Wednesdays 10:00 a.m., repeated Thursdays 11:30 a.m.

On Transy Dean's List

Stephens, a 1980 graduate of Prestonsburg and valedictorian of his graduating class, has a triple major in the fields of chemistry, biology and mathematics at Transylvania. He is a member of the Kappa Alpha Fraternity. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Danny Stephens, of Langley.

Proposed Bill Would Affect Officials' Handling of Funds

County governments could increase their revenue substantially if a bill approved by a legislative subcommittee becomes law.

The bill would allow sheriffs, county clerks and jailers to invest idle funds in "safe" investments such as government bonds or certificates and insured accounts in banks or shares of savings and loan associations. The interest earned from these investments could then be turned over to the county as excess fees.

Local governmental bodies can already invest their idle funds but sheriffs, clerks and jailers cannot.

The subcommittee on county finance of the Interim Joint Committee on Counties and Special Districts approved the proposed legislation at a meeting here today. The bill will be recommended to the full committee in February.

Another bill approved by the subcommittee would require sheriffs to turn their excess fees over to fiscal courts when they make their annual statement.

It also sets March 15 as the final date that county clerks and jailers would have to file their fiscal statements and pay their excess fees to their fiscal courts.

The subcommittee also approved a bill that would have personal property, such as automobiles, placed on a real estate tax bill when it is sent to the taxpayer. Personal property tax bills are now separate from tax bills for real estate.

Subcommittee Chairman Rep. Marshall Davenport, R-Somerset, said the reason for the bill is, "A lot of people are getting out of paying taxes on automobiles."

The bill would not combine all tax bills in one, a maneuver objected to by the real estate industry. Rather, it would place the tangible and intangible personal property on only one real estate tax bill.

Also included in the bill is a section that would provide up to $6,000 to sheriffs as an incentive to collect more taxes.

Sheriffs who collect 99 percent or more of the real property taxes due would receive $6,000 as an operating expense. The amount drops in $1,200 increments to zero for those who collect 94 percent or less of the taxes.

Will Gather Soil Water Information

District Conservationist, Pat Beyler, announces that the U. S. Soil Conservation Service (SCS) is beginning the 1982 National Resources Inventory (NRI) in Floyd county.

Field observation data will be collected at 41 sampling sites throughout the county. Among the new data to be collected are critically eroding areas, wet lands, cropping history, land cover, wildlife habitat, soils, land treatment needs, and supplemental vegetation data on pastureland, rangeland, and forestland.

Information obtained will be computerized nationally to monitor the status, condition, and trend of land and water resources.

According to Mr. Beyler, with this resource information the U. S. Department of Agricultural can redirect present conservation programs to best fit the needs of our soil and water resources.

Get instant relief for your pocketbook with our Equal Payment Plan.

Winter is here. And with its chilling winds comes the most expensive time of the year. Bills from the holidays, snow tires, cold and flu expenses, taxes — the list is long.

And winter is also the highest electric usage period for most of our customers. That means higher energy bills come right along with everything else.

To help ease the overall winter drain on the pocketbook, Kentucky Power is offering "instant relief" for customers with good bill-paying records. It's called the Equal Payment Plan (EPP). By going on EPP now, qualified customers can defer part of each winter electric bill to spring and fall when usage is less.

Here is how it works — If for example, your current bill is $150 but your average bill (based on last year's usage) is $75 per month for a year, you would have to pay only the $75 when you go on EPP. Over the first 11 months you would pay $75 per month. (If there is any difference between your estimated and actual usage, we'll make an adjustment in your monthly EPP amount after six months.) On the 12th month, we'll settle up any differences.

EPP is that simple. You pay less than what you actually use during these heavy-use periods, then pay the company back (with no interest) during the low usage months.

EPP is of most benefit to heating and air conditioning customers whose bills fluctuate seasonally, but the program is available to all residential customers.

If the idea of leveling off your electric bills sounds good to you, come in or call your nearest Kentucky Power office. We have an EPP specialist waiting to talk to you.

We give it our best.

The Frozen-Costs-More Myth

Match up the following with their correct average price:

- piece of homemade chicken 68¢
- slice of homemade pizza 74¢
- piece of frozen chicken 31¢
- slice of frozen pizza 25¢

Don't spend too much time moving the figures around; they're in the right order. Surprised? Most people are.

Although the traditional advice to economy-conscious food shoppers has been "avoid the frozen food section," new studies by several universities and by the Department of Agriculture are making consumers take a second look at that freezer case.

Of the over 1,500 frozen foods that are now available year-round, many are specialty items that save you time but no money. Others, however, save you time and money; and that's particularly true of the plain (no sauces or extra butter) packages of frozen vegetables.

According to a 1975 USDA report comparing 13 vegetables found in fresh and frozen form, consumers throw out an average of 40% of the fresh produce they buy before cooking. Before you shell, peel and trim fresh green beans, cut corn, green peas, lima beans, spinach or brussel sprouts, compare their prices with the frozen variety: the USDA says they're usually cheapest when purchased frozen.

You can also get frozen prepared foods that are a bargain. Frozen french fried potatoes almost always cost less to serve than those made from fresh potatoes: they generally cost 2/3 to 3/4 as much per serving, and they use 1/3 the fat and 1/3 the time to cook.

Frozen orange juice costs less than canned, bottled or fresh-squeezed no matter what time of year it is. Frozen shrimp is about 29 percent cheaper per serving than cooked raw shrimp in the shell. The cheapest fried shrimp you can buy is peeled, deveined, minced, extruded, breaded, prefried and frozen.

Besides paying only for edible weight, the shopper who buys frozen food has increased portion control, which means that no money is wasted on unused or spoiled leftovers. Again, your best buy for vegetables would be the large poly bag of individually quick-frozen vegetables. You simply cook the number of servings you need, and put the rest back in the freezer.

What about nutritional value? Aren't fresh foods more nutritious than frozen? If you are eating vegetables and fruit that you just picked from your own garden, frozen foods can't compete—either in terms of price or nutrition. But if you're shopping at the local supermarket, you're generally buying produce that has been picked before maturity, allowed to ripen off the vine, shipped and displayed in the supermarket—during which time nutrients are depleted. Frozen fruits and vegetables are picked at the height of ripeness and nutritional value, and processed in plants close to where the produce is grown.

According to a Stanford University study, frozen spinach, for example contains 212 percent more vitamin C than its supermarket fresh counterpart. Frozen Brussels sprouts have 27 percent more vitamin C than those sold fresh.

To keep frozen foods at their nutritional peak, you must store them at 0° F or lower. Proper cooking is essential to preserving their nutritional value (as well as their color and texture). Steamed, stir-fried or boiled, frozen vegetables should be cooked until just tender-crisp: usually 1/2 to 2/3 the cooking time for fresh produce. Nutrients are water-soluble; careless cooking in too much water, or cooking longer than necessary, will reduce the food's nutritional value.

Of course, be sure the frozen food you buy is in top condition. Select packages that are clean and firm. If the food has warmed enough to soften, it has already lost quality. Frozen food that is exposed (rips or tears in the package) or poorly packaged will dry out quickly.

Large amounts of frost on the outside of the package may be a sign of impaired quality. Note the color of the food. Is it the natural, bright color, or are there definite color changes? Peaches and red cherries held at too high a temperature first darken and then turn brown. Berries lose some of their bright color to the syrup. Green snap beans darken to an olive green. Peas become grayish and then get a yellow cast. Poultry skin darkens.

Look for any change in texture, too. When you taste the food, note the flavor. Flavor changes usually develop more slowly than color or texture.

On the average, you throw away 40% of the fresh produce you buy.

Adrian Swain, the Potter

(Photo by Rebeca Carr)

By Judith Carr

Have you ever met a gargoyle? I never had, until I met Adrian Swain, potter-in-residence at the Prestonsburg Community College.

No, Adrian is not a gargoyle, but he introduced me to his concept of what gargoyles look like. His exhibit of gargoyles in the PCC library consisted of round, plate-like faces with grotesque, ugly features. One was grossly swallowing a man, his desperately kicking legs all that remained on the outside. I could vividly imagine "clawin' and a-scratchin'" down inside.

Swain shrugged at my apparent negative response to his gargoyles. "Well, at least they provoke a response," he said.

Visiting the dictionary, I learned that gargoyles hark back to medieval times. Back then, potters fashioned them like grotesque human or animal forms and fastened them on the rain gutters at the corners of their buildings. When the rain came, the roof-runoff spouted out the gargoyles' mouth. I have yet to decide if that was useful or not, but at least they did not swallow people!

Mr. Swain said he made his gargoyles for the fun of it—"a nice little departure." Perhaps pots and bowls do become monotonous, although he is a pottery lover. He first became interested in ceramics at University of Kentucky in 1971. He came to University of Kentucky from Burhan, England (a suburb of London) with a tuition scholarship from the English Speaking Union, a cultural exchange organization. His purpose was to study psychology, but ceramics waylaid him somewhere between his first and second years. Psychology disappeared from the agenda and Swain was to be found more often than not down at the pot shop.

After leaving the university, Adrian taught for two years in Rowan county as artist-in-the-schools. He holds that position now in Floyd county, with his base at PCC.

Teaching ceramics in county schools has its good and bad moments for Adrian. He dreams of convincing the proper authorities that instruction in the arts is important in Kentucky's school system. He bemoans the tepid and sporadic interest shown for developing the natural artistic potentials of Kentucky's children.

Opening up the world of basic design and clay sculpting to school children on a creek bank brings a sense of fulfillment to Swain that partially compensates for other frustrations. The potter waxes eloquent quite often, but much more so when discoursing on his beloved clay. He says that clay has a plastic quality, full of vitality, that no other sculpting medium possesses. Decomposed quartz, potters' clay is composed of flat, plate-like particles that slide easily over each other and adhere to each other. This quality gives clay its elasticity and molding power. Yet it can be fired in intense heat and turned to stone—rigid and durable. Stoneware, as this type of ceramics is termed, is impervious to water.

Besides his gargoyles, Swain makes and sells teapots, candleholders, colanders, mugs, bottles, bowls and jugs. He has one enormous jug that he especially likes, and does not particularly want to sell. When pressed for a price he finally said he would part with it for $150.

The potter attends art shows around the country, exhibiting his work, and so subsidizes his income from teaching...or does his teaching income subsidize his ceramics?

However it is, Swain is a potter for keeps and enjoys it.

Parents' Advisory Group Holds Mid-Year Meeting

The Martin Elementary Title I Parents' Advisory Council recently held its mid-year meeting in Mrs. Audrey Gunnell's reading room.

A slide presentation, "Reading Begins at Home," stressed the importance of parental involvement in the reading process throughout the child's growing years. Numerous ways were given in which parents can help promote reading readiness in the pre-school years, and also help foster the older child's good reading habits. Of paramount importance, according to the IRA, is the reading of simple stories and nursery rhymes to infants.

Reading Supervisor Anna Lee Rice explained to parents the method and instrument used to measure reading progress in the county's Title I program. Using duplicated materials and overhead transparencies, she showed a comparison of Martin Elementary students' progress to the average Floyd county gain.

Following the business session, a brief parent-teacher consultation period was held.

Present at the meeting were PAC Chairman Ilene Thompson, Faye Pitts, Vonetta Hancock, Cheryl Stowers, Kathy Samons, Judy Floyd, Supervisor Anna Lee Rice, and reading teachers Audrey Gunnell, Virginia Martin, and Pam Wohlford.

Board Watches Auto Dealers

Whenever someone in Kentucky buys a new or used car from a licensed dealer, they can be sure the Motor Vehicle Dealer Board is working for them as a consumer watchdog.

Protecting the consumer from car dealerships that do not operate legitimately is the main function of the Motor Vehicle Dealer Board.

The 12-member board consists of the commissioner of vehicle regulation and 11 members. They have the authority to approve all permanent applications for licenses for any kind of vehicle dealership in the state.

The board will deny a license if anything looks suspicious about the business, said John Tinsley, supervisor of the board. "We run a felony check on each applicant to make sure they were never involved in anything like car theft or odometer rollbacks," Tinsley said.

A license applicant must meet certain requirements to receive approval by the board. These include a lot for the dealership, an office that does not double as living quarters and a sign of a certain size, Tinsley said.

Tinsley interviews each applicant before his or her case goes before the board. If he sees no problems, Tinsley issues a temporary license until the board meets. A $100 fee is charged for the license, which must be renewed each year, and a $5 fee is charged for each salesman, Tinsley said.

Despite economic conditions, car dealerships in Kentucky are not dwindling. "We have more coming in now than going out of business," Tinsley said. "We average two dealerships coming in a day."

Presently, there are more than 4,000 licensed vehicle dealerships of all kinds in Kentucky.

At one time field representatives periodically inspected dealerships across the state. However, those jobs were abolished last April.

"Inspectors were abolished because they found no complaints," according to James Runke, commissioner of vehicle regulation.

But Jeannie Green, secretary for the board, said they get help and support from the state police since the field people were abolished. Board members also offer outside support. "Sometimes a board member will go out and check on a dealership in their area if there is a question about it," she said.

When a complaint is filed against a dealership, the board will ask the attorney general's office for an opinion on it, Runke said. "The Secretary's (Transportation Secretary Frank Melts) philosophy is that we are not an enforcing agency," he said. "We work cooperatively with the attorney general's office."

A hearing is then held and the results go to the Bureau of Vehicle Regulation with a recommendation. The board then votes on the decision reached by the bureau, Runke said.

Membership of the Motor Vehicle Dealer board consists of eight car dealers, four new and four used, one consumer, one wholesaler, one manufacturer and the commissioner of vehicle regulation. One board member is selected from each of the seven congressional districts and one represents the entire state.

Board members serve three-year terms and most stay for more than one term, Green said. "Most of the members seem to really enjoy being on the board," she said. "They must or they would not take a day away from their business each month."

According to "Important Events In American Labor History", a publication of the U.S. Department of Labor, the Government Act of 1946 committed the government to take all practicable measures to promote maximum employment, production and purchasing power.

Mrs. Otelia Smiley, and her husband, the late V. A. Smiley, were the parents of 17 children, 16 of whom are now living, and most of whom hold college degrees—some of them doctorates.

Recently Mrs. Smiley, an active church member and civic leader here, decided to join her family in procuring a college degree, and at the beginning of this semester she enrolled as a student at Prestonsburg Community College.

Brief statements by the now studious Mrs. Smiley explain some of her recent progress: "I spent nine hours on that big test we all had to take—and I passed it," she says, and adds, "In my speech class, we had to tell about ourselves, and I made a grade of B."

Worried about "math," because, she says, she made lower grades on that than most subjects in "that big test," Mrs. Smiley refuses to accept the theory that all students make lower in some subjects on the test than others. She has the "remedy" for raising her math standing well worked out: she plans to "get a good, old-fashioned book, and bring that math score up with the others."

Note of Appreciation To Geo. P. Archer Senior Citizens

The Geo. P. Archer Senior Citizens Center is a true asset to our community. On Nov. 12, 1980, Sola Blackburn fractured her hip. Her recovery was so rapid that she was able to return to the center for Thanksgiving dinner. The recovery was, no doubt, hastened by the loving encouragement and prayers of her friends at the Senior Citizens Center.

In recent years the center has added a new dimension to her life, meeting needs that even we could not meet.

Sola Blackburn died on January 14, 1981 at the age of 73 years. Those at the center provided their support and assistance. It was apparent that they too had suffered a loss. We truly appreciate the center and its members for all they have done for us during this time.

We also want to thank them for helping to teach us and our community that "yesterday's gone and tomorrow may not be ours." They are teaching all of us that every day is of equal importance.

And we would especially like to express our gratitude for their having made our mother and grandmother's life more complete with their friendship and kindness. We shall never forget them.

Sincerely, The Family of Sola Blackburn

Mulch Thought On Organic Gardens

By Barry Yeoman

Organic gardening is the fertilization of crops with natural fertilizers. Manure, sewage sludge, cottonseed meal, bone meal and dried blood are all organic. Vegetable matter, too, will decay if left alone. This type of fertilizer naturally controls soil structure, offers plant nutrients, and conserves soil moisture. It is less caustic than inorganic matter and (except for poultry manure) will not harm plants. Also, natural fertilizers make nutrients gradually available to your garden, aiding growth over an extended period of time.

Compost fertilizer can be made in your backyard fairly easily. Select a spot far from the garden for a bin—or better yet, two bins if you have the space. Two bins will allow you to "turn" the compost by shifting it from one bin to another.

Make the bins by attaching wire fencing or boards to posts or an adjoining fence or wall. Build it four to six feet high, three to five feet wide and as long as you feel you will need. One side should be removable in order to help you add and remove compost immediately. In the fall, extend the sides temporarily to boost the bin capacity. By early spring it will settle, perhaps as much as two feet.

In order to aid in the decay, do not make the sides airtight or watertight.

To start the compost pile, spread a six-inch layer of plant matter on the floor of heap. Coarse plants such as corn stalks should be cut into eight-inch strips. Add one-half to one pound of lawn fertilizer for every ten square feet of surface. A ratio of 1-1-1 (nitrogen-phosphate-potash) or 1-2-1 is recommended.

To this, add one inch to soil and sprinkle the works with water, enough to moisten the soil by working it with a spade or shovel. As you fill the bin, repeat the process.

Some of the things to put in your compost heap are lawn clippings, leaves and shrub clippings, garden refuse (if it's not diseased), kitchen waste, table scraps, and weeds. These, with the fertilizer and soil, will invite bacteria and fungus organisms that help disintegration. There is no objectionable odor during the process when layers of soil are added to the pile, and if the compost is thoroughly decayed there is little chance of disease or harmful insects from using this natural fertilizer.

Make the top of the compost heap concave to catch rainfall, and water the pile as often as necessary to maintain a high moisture content. Fork the pile over after about three months. (This is where the second bin comes in.) The composting process should take about four to five months in warm weather, longer if it's cool.

Besides compost, other organic materials make fine fertilizers. Manure, cottonseed meal, bone meal and dried blood are available commercially, though they are more expensive than inorganic fertilizers. And anyway, the last three shouldn't be used as fertilizer, from an ecological point of view. They serve a more important purpose as livestock or poultry food.

Digested (anaerobically decomposed) sewage sludge may serve as a good source of nutrition for your garden. During the digestion process, much of the organic matter is converted to gases and soluble matter and most of the harmful microorganisms are destroyed. This type of sludge should be used in the fall, before the soil is prepared for planting the following spring. If you want sludge to use as a fertilizer, try dried activated sludge, which has been treated with air in order to promote aerobic decomposition.

Organic matter can also be used as mulch in order to prevent erosion and increase the infiltration of water. Organic mulch also reduces evaporation, increasing soil moisture; it helps suppress weed growth, too. Some materials to use for mulch are leaves, lawn clippings, sawdust, fine wood shavings, pine needles, chopped straw, ground corn cobs, tobacco or cane stems, peanut hulls, and cottonseed hulls. These will not have a significant effect on the pH of the soil; nor will they add significant nutrition, but they will protect the soil against damaging effects of rain or irrigation on the soil.

ALLEN WOMAN'S CLUB HOLDS JANUARY MEET

The Allen Woman's Club held its January meeting at the home of club president, Mary Hinchman. Special guests for the evening was Mr. Dan Grise from the U. S. Soil Conservation Office in Prestonsburg. He presented a very informative program on the services the Soil Conservation Dept. offers to Floyd county and other surrounding communities. Slides were shown on soil erosion problems and ways to correct and prevent them.

A short business meeting followed. The club began their meeting with the Pledge of Allegiance to the flag. A devotion entitled "What Will We Do With This Year That's So New" was then read by Carolyn Branham. The minutes from the previous meeting was then read by secretary, Diana Reed.

A motion was made and passed to purchase a season ticket from the Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre. Mary Hinchman noted that the KFWC Ky. Hospitality Cookbooks are on sale. Literature was then distributed on conservation of gasoline. Information from the Teens Who Care concerning the KY. special Olympics was also distributed.

Proctor and Gamble will donate 3 c for every label collected to the Ky. Special Olympic.

The club welcomes as a new member Denise Queen from Allen. Other members present were, Mary Hinchman, Bonita Porter, Diana Reed, Carolyn Branham, Pat Derossett, Ferne Ankrom and Pauline Webb.

Cities Liability Studied

Under state law, if a person is hit and injured by a city garbage truck he or she can sue the driver of the truck and the city. If the injuries are severe enough to require expensive treatment and loss of work and if the city is small and uninsured, a successful suit could bankrupt the city.

Hypothetical situations like this were discussed last Thursday at a meeting of a legislative subcommittee that is considering whether or not cities need legislative help to limit liabilities.

Charles Wible, representing the Kentucky Academy of Trial Attorneys, told members of the subcommittee on municipal liability of the Interim Joint Committee on Cities that "the old idea that the king can do no wrong" is no longer applicable. He said the trend across the country in the past few years has been to do away with sovereign immunity and he does not think the framers of Kentucky's constitution intended to exclude cities from liability.

Section 54 of the constitution states, "The General Assembly shall have no power to limit the amount to be recovered for injuries resulting in death, or for injuries to person or property."

Wible said if liability is limited for cities then corporations, lawyers, doctors and other groups would seek similar protection.

Section 54 of the constitution states, "The General Assembly shall have no power to limit the amount to be recovered for injuries resulting in death, or for injuries to person or property."

Wible said if liability is limited for cities then corporations, lawyers, doctors and other groups would seek similar protection.

Subcommittee Chairman Sen. David Karem, D-Louisville, said cities are not like those other groups because they are a compilation of taxpayers.

He said the subcommittee has learned that cities are concerned about possible judgments against them that would be beyond their ability to pay.

Rep. Louis DeFalaize, R-Fl. Mitchell, said one city, Eddyville, has had a judgment against it that totals one-half of its budget.

Hugh Moore, a former city attorney for Owensboro, said it is the only case like that he has heard about and suggested insurance, not legislation, as a way to solve the problem.

Wible said if any legislation is passed it should require cities to have liability insurance.

Sen. Eugene Stuart, R-Louisville, disagreed saying he did not think insurance is the answer because of its difficulty to obtain and the expense.

DeFalaize said a possible way around the prohibitive cost of insurance would be for cities to join an insurance pool.

David Lanphear, Bowling Green city attorney, said the main reason for the discussion is money and if insurance is available at a cheaper rate it would help.

Larry Hartman, of Corroon and Black Benefits of Louisville, said he administers an insurance plan, the Kentucky Local Government Insurance Plan, that could help the cities.

The subcommittee agreed Hartman's plan should be examined and a definition of what constitutes liability for cities should be sought.

No date was set for the subcommittee's next meeting.

The 'Old Dividend Hoax'
Regardless of where you get the information, the Veterans Administration does not pay dividends on lapsed insurance policies. Manufacturing companies, banks, veterans organizations and even veterans groups are now circulating what the VA calls the "old dividend hoax." It promises that veterans of World War II can collect a dividend based on their service "even if they haven't kept their policies in force." The VA has been plagued for years by an annual influx of queries and applications for non-existent dividend. This has occurred annually since 1948. The hoax is fueled anew every few years by the mysterious distribution of official-looking "applications" and are signed by "Capt. Prosser" who is supposed to be with the VA Insurance Center in Philadelphia. The form says the dividends are available for the asking even if the veteran never paid on his policy since his days in service during World War II. The hoax also states that Congress has passed a law giving the dividends. No such action has ever taken place.

Notice To Veterans
All veterans should have their discharges recorded in the County Court Clerk's office. Sometimes at the death of a veteran we have difficulty in filing claims for benefits for the veteran's widow and dependents because a discharge record cannot be found. Please—this is of importance that you do this.

IT'S THAT TIME AGAIN...
Time to have people come up to you, pat you on the back, call you cousin and shake your hand. Do you want the job done, or do you want a lot of promises never meant to be kept, only made to get votes for people who don't know you after the election? Vote for a man who knows you before and after the election. Our small communities are only recognized during a campaign. Promises are made only to get officials elected to offices, then forgotten. Our communities are in desperate need of help: road repair and drainage, also sewage treatment systems such as Dwale, Allen, David, Auxier and many others in our district. One man can not do this job alone. It will take the help of all concerned voting people in our District 1 to get the ball rolling. I have worked on my own without help or funds from the county to keep your garbage picked up. I am not always on time. But I get the job done. I travel the county roads every day and know where they need repairs worst. So you see I know you now and will know you when you elect me.

I am the son of Tommie and Alice Prater Slone, of Prestonsburg. I am married to Launa Carol Lafferty, daughter of Dennis and Angie Fannin Lafferty of Endicott, Ky., and granddaughter of John Fannin and Virgie Burchett Fannin, of Endicott, and Homer Lafferty and Lida Goble Collins. There's a big, big difference in our Interest on Checking.

It's called experience.

BANKS HAVE MORE CHECKING EXPERIENCE.

It seems that everybody is offering Interest on Checking—what's commonly referred to as a NOW account. Even places that were previously never permitted to offer checking accounts. Banks, however, have had checking accounts for years, so the switch to Interest on Checking becomes an easy one. Experience makes the transition simple.

Banks are usually more convenient, too. More locations. More drive-in facilities. More expertise in all the services that make it easier to handle all your financial affairs.

WE HAVE MORE INTEREST ON CHECKING EXPERIENCE THAN MOST BANKS.

Even before NOW accounts were officially permitted the first of this year, The Bank Josephine offered an account that was identical when it came to end benefits. Because we've been doing basically the same thing, we have more experience than most other banks. The mechanics aren't new to us. And that translates into less chance for error. A little thing? Not to us. Not when its your money....and your interest.

NOT EVERY BANK PAYS YOU INTEREST ON ALL THE MONEY IN YOUR CHECKING BALANCE.

The biggest benefit of an Interest on Checking Plan, or a NOW Account, is, of course, the interest you earn on the money that's in your checking account—currently 5¼%. But here again The Bank Josephine offers you the advantage. Unlike some banks, we pay interest on all your money—no matter what the balance. And our charges are based on a monthly average balance, instead of the costly minimum balances required by most financial institutions.

WE WANT TO MAKE A CHECKING ACCOUNT MORE THAN JUST A PLACE TO KEEP YOUR MONEY.

Besides our Interest on Checking Plan, we also have our Regular Checking Plan, which gives you checking free of a monthly service charge no matter how many checks you write—and just requires a $300 average balance.

Pick the plan that suits you best. Then drop by any of our convenient locations, and we'll fill in all the details. After all, we have your "best interests" at heart!

The children played games and enjoyed hamburgers, fries and cokes and many nice gifts were presented. Cake and ice cream were served compliments of the Prestonsburg Burger Queen.

Phone Co. Pays Floyd $59,000 in 1980 Taxes

One of Floyd county's largest taxpayers, South Central Bell paid the county $58,995 in taxes for last year, according to Mac Starnes, district manager. The company will pay $23.2 million in taxes to municipalities, counties and the state of Kentucky this year.

Starnes said that 1980 tax bills from the cities of Prestonsburg, Allen, Martin, and Wayland have not been received. He estimated these taxes, based on 1979 tax rates, to be: Prestonsburg, $12,660; Allen, $120; Martin, $298; and Wayland, $1166.

New Accreditation System Seen

The state Department of Education plans to initiate a new accreditation system in Kentucky schools during the 1981-'82 school year, according to Superintendent of Public Instruction Raymond Barber.

Barber spoke Monday to some 92 professional educators meeting in Frankfort to help develop the new accreditation system. He said it may be necessary to implement the program on a pilot basis to establish a baseline of experience prior to the 1982 legislative session.

The first phase of the new accreditation system began in October when a 15-member citizens' committee was formed to set broad standards of quality in education. The professional educators will take those standards, which were submitted to Barber last week, and develop programmatic indicators to show evidence of compliance by local school districts.

Low-Income Workers Must File for Tax Refunds

Filing a tax return may be a good idea even if the taxpayer is not required to do so, the Internal Revenue Service said. Many low-income workers, like students, retirees, and part-time employees, are entitled to receive a full refund on the Federal income taxes withheld during the year, but they must file a return to get it.

Taxpayers should check their W-2, "Wage and Tax Statement," to see if any income taxes were withheld. If they were and the taxpayer has no tax liability, filing is the only way to recover the money.

The taxpayer may not have to file a tax return next year if he or she files a copy of Form W-4, "Employee's Withholding Allowance Certificate," with his or her employer. If the taxpayer owed no taxes in 1980 and expects to owe none in 1981, this form entitles him or her to exemption from having taxes withheld from his or her pay for the year. Since Federal income tax will not be withheld, the taxpayer will not have to file a 1981 return, provided he or she remains below the income requirements. However, the exemption certificate expires on April 30 of each year, and a new Form W-4 must be filed before that date if the employee is still qualified and wishes to remain exempt.

A taxpayer is not required to file a return if:

1. single, under age 65, and with an income less than $3300 OR
2. single, age 65 or over, and with an income less than $4300 OR
3. married, both under 65, filing jointly, with an income less than $5400 OR
4. married, one spouse 65 or over, filing jointly, with an income less than $6400 OR
5. married, both 65 or over, filing jointly, with an income less than $7400 OR
6. married, filing a separate return, with an income less than $1000 OR
7. qualifying widow or widower, under age 65, with dependent child, with an income less than $4400 OR
8. qualifying widow or widower, 65 or older, with dependent child, with an income less than $5400 OR
9. self-employed with an income less than $400.

NOTICE OF INTENTION TO MINE

Pursuant to Application Number 036-0015

1. In accordance with the provisions of KRS 350.055, notice is hereby given that: Cager Branch Coal Company, Route 1, Harold, Kentucky 41635 intends to file an application for the surface disturbance mining of approximately 3.7 acres located at Osborn in Floyd County. The proposed operation is approximately 5 miles south of State Route 979's junction with State Route 1426, at Amba, latitude 37d. 28' 07", longitude 82d., 37', 13". The surface of the area to be mined is owned by: Stevens Heirs. A brief description of the kind of mining activity proposed is: an additional acreage for reclamation purposes. The application will be filed at the Bureau of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement, Prestonsburg Area Office, Prestonsburg, Kentucky 41653.

Persons wishing to file written objections and/or request a formal administrative hearing in regard to the above described mine should notify the Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection within 30 days of the date of this notice. The written objection must have attached a copy of the newspaper clipping, and reference the above application number. Such objection or request must be in accordance with KRS 224.081 (2), and must be forwarded to the Director of Permits, Bureau of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement, Capital Plaza Tower, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601.

Schools across the state are currently accredited individually with a large emphasis placed on the number of courses and facilities offered. According to Barber, this will change as the standards shift toward programs rather than quantity.

Barber told committee members that while he served as deputy superintendent of public instruction, he was terribly concerned about the way schools were accredited and saw a real need for change. "I saw real trouble for the small districts if accreditation continued the way it was going," he said.

Barber also believes the state should pay for those areas that are required under an accreditation system and leave the "extras" to the discretion of the individual districts.

"If, for example, we're going to say you have to have a guidance counselor for every so many students, then we should pay for them," Barber explained.

Dr. Donald Hunter, head of the bureau of instruction, said two kinds of accrediting indicators would have to be implemented for the new program. He cited absolute requirements, as one type of indicator and alternative indicators as the second. Alternative indicators would allow school districts to take different steps to achieve the same purpose.

"The citizens' committee was very concerned about school-community relations and felt that each district should have a program in this area. However, there are many different ways that you can achieve an effective school-community relations program," Hunter noted. "The alternative indicators would allow the school districts to take different steps to achieve the same purpose provided the alternative indicator is of equal validity."

The 92 educators are expected to complete their work on the new accreditation system by March.

Finance Authority To Ask Rule On Low-Interest Farmers' Loans

The Kentucky Development Finance Authority plans to seek a court ruling to see if it can legally set up a proposed low-interest loan program for farmers.

In a meeting last week the authority's board of directors took first steps toward a test case to decide the issue.

In November the board hired two brokerage firms to look into an agricultural revenue-bond program. Under the plan the finance authority would sell revenue bonds and use the borrowed money to buy Farmer's Home Administration loans from banks.

The program would result in Farmer's Home loans 2-3 percentage points cheaper than usual federal farm loans. That is because the finance authority would be borrowing at favorable interest rates and the savings would be passed on to the farmer. All but 10 percent of each loan would be FHA guaranteed, another factor in lowering the interest rates, state development officials say.

The loans would be offered through participating local banks. The usual FHA guidelines would apply, said Roger Peterman, finance authority executive director.

But the authority's bond counsel told board members Wednesday there is some question whether the authority has the legal power to run such a program.

To clear the way for a court declaration, the board passed a resolution noting the legal question. The board hopes for a ruling within six months, Peterman said. If the board does not have the legal power, a change would be needed in state law governing the finance authority, he said.

In other business, the board hired a Michigan firm to work with the state Industrial Revenue Bond Oversight Committee. Edward L. Green & Associates will help the committee develop standards for the analysis of retail market areas.

The panel will require certain developers coming before the committee to use the standards in preparing market studies. The rule would apply only to developers of retail outlets, such as shopping centers. Opponents of retail projects would also have to follow the guidelines.

The oversight committee reviews commercial projects seeking financing through industrial revenue bonds. Market studies are used by applicants and opponents of a shopping center to show the community's need for the center. Economic need is a standard used for approving or disapproving an application.

The finance authority's approval of the personal service contract was needed because the authority administers the oversight committee's budget. The firm will receive up to $15,000, depending on the scope of its work.

Board members also voted to lend money to two expanding businesses. A Louisville firm, DCE Vokes Inc., will receive $450,000 toward a $1.8 million expansion project. The company assembles industrial dust-control equipment and plans to enlarge its plant so it can also manufacture the equipment. An estimated 60 jobs will be created over the next several years, the company reported.

The board also agreed to lend up to $120,000 to Pioneer Manufacturing Co., of Georgetown. The company intends to buy machines to make screws and fittings. The loans will be made on a machine-by-machine basis so that the authority will look at revenue generated by each additional machine before lending money for another machine purchase.

Board members also voted to sell the Standard Printing Building in Louisville, along with co-owner Business Development Corp., also of Louisville. The two agencies bought the building through foreclosure on a loan they made. The authority will get $275,000, which will cover the outstanding debt on the loan.

The authority will receive its payment over several years to help the developers finance a $1.7 million conversion of the structure into an office building.

The buyers are Louisville developers Walter C. Wagner Jr., Arthur G. Tafel Jr., E. J. Schickel and G. John Teichgraber.

Barber Outlines New Plan For Evaluation of Schools

Superintendent of Public Instruction Raymond Barber, along with key education officials, met last Thursday in Frankfort with editorial boards and reporters from Kentucky newspapers to explain how the state plans to change the way schools are evaluated.

"Schools across the state are currently accredited individually with a large emphasis placed on the number of courses offered and the quality of the physical facilities," Barber said. "With this new system, we will shift the emphasis to quality rather than quantity."

Plans call for the new accreditation system to be initiated with the next school year, Barber did say, however, that it may be necessary to implement the program on a pilot basis, possibly 10 to 15 schools, to establish a baseline of experience prior to the legislative session.

Schools are currently accredited, or rated, individually and it is not uncommon for a county high school to have the highest accreditation level while several elementary schools in the same county have the lowest.

Under the new system, an entire school district will be evaluated which should eliminate the tendency to pour more money into one school, according to Barber.

Another procedure planned for the new system is a multi-faceted survey of school districts every three years.

Currently separate reviews of curriculum, facilities, transportation and vocational education are done at different times. The new system will allow all surveys to be coordinated.

The first phase of the new accreditation system began in October when a 15-member citizens' committee, chaired by Lt. Gov. Martha Layne Collins, met to compile broad guidelines for meeting the new quality standards.

Barber has given the standards drafted by the citizens' committee to a group of 92 educators. They will break down these broad standards into more specific guidelines which could be used in measuring the quality of a school district.

The guidelines are expected to be ready by March and to be presented to the State Board of Education in May, Barber said.

It costs an average of 70 cents for children in Kentucky schools to purchase their lunch.

A WHALE FOR THE KILLING

Peter Strauss (right) is willing to fight an entire village alone if necessary when he makes a commitment to save the life of a marooned whale, but his honest determination brings him the aid and support of Kathryn Walker (left), a village doctor, in 'A Whale for the Killing,' a three-hour drama making its world premiere on 'The ABC Sunday Night Movie,' SUNDAY, FEBRUARY 1.

Strauss stars as a sophisticated New Yorker, stranded with his family while on vacation on the barren coast of Newfoundland, who takes a stand to prevent the slaughter of a whale doomed to die in shallow waters. Also stars Richard Widmark, Dee Wallace and Bruce McGill.
