Martin, Prestonsburg Plan Fourth of July Celebration

If fireworks, carnival rides, cotton candy and contests are basic ingredients in most recipes for a successful Fourth of July, Saturday's celebration in Floyd county shouldn't be disappoin-

The Martin Woman's Club's fifth annual July Fourth celebration promises a pretty baby contest at 5 p.m. at the Martin school auditorium followed by a beauty pageant at 6. A fireworks display is set for Saturday night and street dancing will be held both Friday and Saturday nights. Plenty of refreshments will be available and various booths will be set up down-and will remain there through the Fourth. The annual softball tournament at the park is set to begin tomorrow (Thursday), with 16 teams competing in the double elimination

Saturday's activities will include the first annual Archer Park Fun Day which will provide a variety of contests and competition for children, 6-12. Prizes will be awarded in each event (including the bubble gum blow), and entrants must register by 2 p.m., Friday. The celebration in Prestonsburg will be climaxed Saturday night at around 10 with the annual fireworks display which can be viewed from along the right-of-way at the park.

Rescuers Work Two Hours To Free Woman from Auto

Emergency & Rescue Squad worked for more than an hour last Wednesday evening to free a critically injured Allen woman from the wreckage of her automobile following a head-on collision with a pickup truck on KY 80 near

Workmen employed the "jaws of life" rescue device to remove the entire roof section of the auto in which Pauline Burchett, 49, was trapped, before the victim could be safely

State police sources reported that the collision of the auto driven by Mrs. Burchett and a pickup truck driven by Gary Scarberry, 25, of Martin, occurred when Mrs. Burchett's car, which was headed east (toward Allen), apparently swerved into the path of the westbound Scarberry vehicle. The mishap occurred about 112 miles east of Martin, it was said.

Mrs. Burchett's arm was said to have been nearly severed in the crash and she was taken to Our Lady of the Way Hospital, Martin, also suffering numerous fractures and deep lacerations. She was later removed to the University of Kentucky Medical Center, Lexington, where she remained this week in serious condition.

Mrs. Scarberry and a passenger in the Burchett vehicle, Avonelle Tew, 44, of Pittsburgh, Pa., were not believed

Conley Opinion Frees Neeley

Circuit Judge Hollie Conley ordered Doug Neeley released from jail last Wednesday, reversing a district court ruling in the case.

Neeley was convicted in district court of drug sales in 1979, receiving a one-year jail sentence and a $500 fine for the misdemeanor. He was subsequently convicted in circuit court of a felony count arising from the same incident, receiving a two-year sentence and $5000 fine. After serving six-and-a-half months for the felony conviction, he was paroled last year, only to be arrested in May this year and ordered back to jail by (See Story No. 5, Page 4)

$30,000 Bond Asked for Release Of Couple in Abandonment Case

A Tram couple charged with abandoning their six-year-old daughter who was reportedly locked in a deserted house was being held in jail here Monday after relatives' efforts to execute the $30,000 bond asked for each had

Otto Honaker, 41, and his wife, Barbara, 34, were jailed Saturday by State Police Sgt. Tommy Loving and State Trooper H. J. West after the officers had received a telephone call reporting the child had been locked inside the house and left there alone.

The structure in which the child, Linda Honaker, allegedly was left is in sight of the Honaker home but at the time, according to Sgt. Loving, was "a good mile from any place where anyone was at home.

Separate warrants for the Honakers, charging them with abandonment of a minor, were issued on the affidavit of Trooper West stating that they 'committed abandonment of a minor, Linda Honaker...by leaving her and deserting her." The charge is a felony, punishable upon conviction by one to five years' imprisonment.

When the officers arrived at the scene, some 15 minutes after the telephoned report reached the state police post at Pikeville, the child had contrived to get out of the house, they said. Loving was quoted as saying she apparently had not been physically abused. Her confinement, he said, 'apparently was over toilet training."

When the Honakers learned that the child had been taken by police from the house, they went to post headquarters at Pikeville, leaving two other children, ages reported at 9 and 10, alone at home. All three children have been placed in foster homes by the Department for Human Resources.

No date had been set Monday for defendants' hearing.

Med Center Pact Talks Spur Hopes

Negotiators Resume Talks on 99th Day Of Highlands Strike

Highlands Hospital negotiators and representatives of the striking hospital workers' union resumed contract talks at a Paintsville motel yesterday (Tuesday), amid cautious expressions of hope on both sides, but no development had been reported at presstime.

The strike, which began when members of Local 1199, Health Care and Hospital Workers' Union, walked out March 25, is in its 99th day. There have been no negotiations in the dispute since talks broke down April

Meanwhile, the striking employees have scheduled a strike benefit rally for noon, July 11, at the Jenny Wiley State Park amphitheatre.

Speakers at the rally will include Tom Woodruff, president of the union's West Virginia-Kentucky district; Scottie Smith, secretary-treasurer of the state AFL-CIO; state Rep. Ron Cyrus, D-Flatwoods; Ernie Justice, president of the United Mine Workers District 30; and Carol Jones, representing the Bluegrass chapter of the Coalition of Labor Union Women, among others.

Musical entertainment will be provided by Ola Jean Crum songwritersinger from the striking union, the Lexington-based "Knights of Labor" and others.

Board Expected To Hire Sanford

When the Floyd County Board of Education has its regular meeting tonight (Wednesday) it is expected to employ Jack Sanford, former Breathitt County High School coach, to fill the vacancy created by the recent resignation of Howard Wallen from the dual posts of assistant principal and head basketball coach at Prestonsburg

"Certainly, Mr. Sanford is the leading candidate for the job, but nothing is official till the Board meets and takes action," Supt. of Schools Pete Grigsby, Jr. said.

Sanford, a former Floyd resident, is a graduate of Wayland High School and has had a successful coaching career at Breathitt County.

Another vacancy also claimed board attention when Joe Cooley resigned recently from the faculty of Betsy Layne High School to teach chemistry at Lawrenceburg High.

Grigsby described Cooley as "a fine teacher" and expressed regret that he is leaving the county. Cooley had taught four years at Betsy Layne.

FIRST BILLS were being readied for mailing to Floyd County Solid Waste customers this week by Teresa Fitzpatrick (pictured) and Janet Tackett, secretary to the county judgeexecutive. Garbage pick-up by the county's fleet of ten compactor trucks was begun five weeks ago.

Mine Supervisor Killed by Blast

Mine supervisor George Elmer McGaffee, of Branham Village, Prestonsburg, was killed Wednesday in a blasting explosion at a Martin county strip mine.

McGaffee, 40, according to Richard Watts, an investigator for the state Department of Mines and Minerals, was standing outside his truck at least 125 yards from the blasting site when he was fatally injured by falling rock from the blast. Other reports indicated that McGaffee was at least 1200 feet from the blasting site. He died en route to Highlands Regional Medical Center at 4 p.m., about 45 minutes after being Watts said the injuries may have resulted from a possible fault in the rock layer that was being blasted.

The victim was born August 16, 1940, in Bradshaw, W. Va., a son of Mrs. Florence England McGaffee Ingram, of Cedar Bluff, Va., and the late George McGaffee. A graduate of Richlands (Va.) High School, he attended Concord College in Athens, W. Va., and the University of Tennessee.

Assault Charge Awaits Decision; Gibson Trial Set

A "gag" order issued by Circuit Judge Hollie Conley last week in the case of Ben and Olive Meade, accused of assaulting their four-month-old daughter February last year, has fueled speculation that the case is being plea-bargained and may not go to trial.

The couple was arrested February 21, 1980, after Bobby Jean Meade, one of triplets, was admitted to a Louisville hospital. A physician there reported she had suffered fractures to the head, ribs and legs. The infant subsequently died of a congenital illness.

Another of the triplets, Billy Joe, died February 17, 1980; the third was stillborn

At least four murder cases still await disposition in circuit court here, and one widely-reported case is about to be tried in Pike county

Set for Monday is the trial here of Frankie Gibson, accused of shooting his brother, Grover Gibson, at Garrett, last Thanksgiving Day.

Also set for Monday, in Pike circuit court, is the murder trial of Raymond Little, of Dry Creek, in Knott county, accused of shooting Estill Thornsberry and his son, Major, in a Knott county courtroom in September, 1979.

The re-trial of John Henry Newsome, convicted in 1977 of slaying Prestonsburg shoe merchant Gerald McBrayer, is set for July 20. Newsome's conviction was overturned by the state Supreme Court last november.

Denver Patrick, charged in the alleged insurance-murder plot at Wayland in which James T. Neimi was a victim last October, faces trial August 3; James Noel, his alleged confederate, is scheduled for trial November 30.

Re-trial of Tony Baril has been docketed for December. Baril's January, 1980, conviction for the 1978 murder of Earl Chester Porter at a truck stop at Katy Friend, was overturned by the state Appeals Court in February this year.

Steve Stumbo, convicted of murder in the slaying of Larry Johnson in July, 1979, will begin serving his 20-year prison sentence this week, following the refusal of the U.S. Supreme Court to hear the case. The state Supreme Court upheld Stumbo's conviction in a decision handed down last December.

Senator Bailey Views $604,541 This Fiscal Year

The return of coal severance taxes will mean the Floyd fiscal court will have 54 percent more money available for local services this year than it did last year, Senator Benny Ray Bailey estimated this week.

Citing projections compiled by the Appalachian Center at Mørehead State University, Bailey noted that Floyd county's receipts from coal severance and other minerals taxes, expected to amount to $604,541 in fiscal year 1981-1982, represent 54 percent of the 1980-'81 county budget.

The 1980-'81 Floyd budget totalled $1.1 million, including a general fund of $651,382 and a road fund of $469,141, Minerals tax receipts anticipated in the new fiscal year include $461,610 in coal severance-of which $152,331 is designated for road maintenance and the remainder is for unspecified projects-and $142,931 in taxes on other minerals.

An additional $67,000 is expected to be returned to the county in grants to individual cities-Prestonsburg. $40,564; Wayland, $8,748; Martin. $8,364; Wheelwright, $6,078; and Allen, $3,418

Bailey hailed the Local Government Economic Assistance Fund, as the severance tax program is called, as the beginning of participation by major minerals companies in the development of this region.

"I think it is one of the single most important programs for our people that has ever been enacted," said Bailey, who was floor manager of the severance tax bill in the state senate. The state Finance Department has estimated that the state's coalproducing counties will receive more

Stumbo Issues Driver Warning

The arrival of the Fourth of July holiday may mean fireworks, flags and fun for many, but for police officers and others connected with law enforcement, the day stands as one of the worst of the year in terms of traffic offenses, particularly drunk driving.

Quoting a directive received recently from Frankfort, Floyd County District Judge Harold Stumbo issued a warning this week to would-be drunk drivers on Floyd county roads. 'From here on out," Stumbo stated,

"a district judge can send a first conviction drunk driver to four days of ADE (alcohol drug education) school-at that point it's up to the judge's discretion. "With the second drunk driving conviction, though, the driver automatically loses his operator's license," Stumbo emphasized. "The state directive mandates that second offense d.u.i. convictions will mean losing your driver's license," Stumbo stressed. "I just want to let the people know what to expect.

Woman Gains $25,000 in Suit Against Church

A 73-year-old Prestonsburg woman was awarded over $25,000 in a damage claim against the church of which she has been a member 14 years, in circuit court here yesterday (Tuesday).

Rebecca Rasnick sued the First Baptist Church here following a fall at the church nearly three years ago in which she fractured her hip and wrist.

The circuit court jury awarded her $12,500 in compensation for mental and physical pain, $8946.26 in medical expenses, and $3600 for lost earning power resulting from her injuries.

Mrs. Rasnick fell in a tiled vestibule of the church before Sunday services, July 2, 1978. A severe rainstorm had only recently abated and much of the testimony at the one-day trial centered on the questions of whether water had accumulated on the vestibule floor and, if so, whether the church was negligent in allowing it to do so.

Attorney Gary Johnson, representing Mrs. Rasnick, urged the jury not to accord the church any special deference in deciding the issue, citing the constitutional separation of church and state.

Fired Workers Ordered Rehired At Store Here

A Prestonsburg supermarket has been ordered by a National Labor Relations Board judge to recognize and bargain with an employees union and to reinstate with back pay three employees fired in late 1979 for prounion activites.

The decision, handed down by Administrative Law Judge Claude R. Wolfe against Price's Pic-pac Supermarkets January 5 this year, was recently affirmed by the NLRB following an appeal by the supermarket.

The NLRB found that Local 347, United Food and Commercial Workers' Union, had received requests for representation from 22 of Pic-Pac's 37 employees in November, 1979, and that the store management engaged in "a campaign of widespread intimidation and coercion of its employees" as soon as it learned of the union organizing efforts.

The management campaign included, according to the finding, the unlawful discharge of three employees, unlawful interrogation of workers, threats of store closure if the union won a representation election, surveillance of a union meeting, and threats of discharge for employees attending union meetings

Among the findings of Judge Wolfe, who heard the case here last July:

-Pic-Pac President Taylor Price "coercively interrogated" stock clerk Mark Hurd about his union activities, threatened to close the store rather than accept the union, and fired Hurd because of his union activities.

-Price engaged in unlawful surveillance of a union meeting at the home of cashier Jewel Cockerham, repeatedly circling the block in an automobile with lights flashing.

-Store Manager Phillip Whitten fired Cockerham as part of Pic-Pac's "whirlwind campaign to discourage union activity.' -Whitten threatened employee

Larry Prater if he continued to talk about the union, forcing Prater to quit.

Wolfe ordered Pic-Pac to offer unconditional reinstatement to Cockerham, Hurd, and Prater, with back wages; to refrain from discouraging membership in the union; and to recognize and bargain with the union.

The decision marked the second union-organizing case to be settled by the NLRB here in recent weeks. The Rebel Coal Company, at Auxier, was recently ordered to rehire with back pay seven employees laid off early last year, following a finding that the company had engaged in unfair labor prac-

Floyd Clerk Makes 19th Annual Refund

The recent refund to the county of excess fees by County Clerk C. "Ollie" Robinson is said to have been the 19th time in the history of the county for such payment to be made.

Robinson has just completed his 19th ear as clerk and during that time has returned to the county more than $300,000-a record no other county clerk has ever achieved.

Excess fees returned to County Treasurer David D. Allen this week by Robinson totalled $7,076.97. Also returned to the treasurer was $11,176, for taxes collected on recording deeds; $2,499.20, for delinquent taxes collected for the year 1980; $3,945,20, for occupational licenses, and $3,451 returned to the Floyd County Board of Education as its share of delinquent taxes collected.

Robinson said the money he has returned remains in the county, none of it going to the state.

THE QUIET PLACES

Dr. Roland Burns, associate professor of geography at Morehead State University, spoke recently of the fascination which the Tight Hollow section of the Red River Gorge has for him and others. That Gorge area is one of the three tracts of virgin (never cut) timber in Kentucky

Some of the hemlocks in Tight Hollow, he says, would take three men, arms outstretched, fingers touching, to reach around their trunks. And there are, he adds, "yellow poplars in there that would probably take four men to reach around."

He speaks of the awe felt by students whom he has guided into Tight Hollow. "Some of the trees," he says, "are 450 to 600 yards old. When I take freshman classes down there, the constant talking is suddenly lowered to a whisper."

We all will not find it convenient to go to Tight Hollow or Lilly's Woods to share their magic, but nearer home, in the head of deep-buried coves or on the most inacessible mountain tops may be found these spots where time seems to have stood still.

In a world of change there's little change there. Even the lichens and mosses grew there time beyond the ken of living man. The privacy of such spots may be violated by an infrequent visitor; careless hands may leave behind, in their trash, notes that they had been there; the drone of a plane overhead may invade the silence but fades and is not enough to disturb the chipmunk on the stump. All that does not belong passes, the scene remains-the same deep silences, the same reality of peace and aloneness.

These also are places for whispering.

money in the first two years of the present program than was received in nine years of the program it replaced, he said.

In the first year of the new program, $30 million is expected to be sent back to the counties; in the previous nine years, $60 million was returned. No severance taxes were received by the counties in the fiscal year just ending, the result of a deal worked out between the legislature and the Brown administration to help the state out of its fiscal difficulties.

District Judge Harold Stumbo to serve time remaining for the misdemeanor.

Gary Johnson, Neeley's attorney, filed a habeas corpus petition on grounds that the district court judge had acted in an "arbitrary and capricious" manner and had abused his discretion in jailing Neeley, and that the Commonwealth had "welshed" on a workrelease compact with his client.

In his decision, Conley did not address the allegations that Stumbo's order was an abuse of discretion or that the Commonwealth had reneged on the work-release agreement, but found that Neeley's re-incarceration violated his statutory rights.

According to state statute, he noted, time served on a felony count also satisfies time imposed on a misdemeanor charge.

It was the second time in a week that Conley had overturned a district court order. In the previous instance, the district court conviction of Peggy Martin Stumbo on a bootlegging charge was reversed and the case remanded for a new trial on grounds that, in appointing counsel who was "totally unfamiliar" with her case, Judge Stumbo had denied her right to effective

Employees of Am. Standard Vote To Strike Warco Facility Seen

Employees of the American Standard plant, near Paintsville, voted yesterday (Tuesday) to go out on strike at midnight.

The workers voted by a wide margin to reject a management offer of a $1.95 per hour increase in wages over a three-year period. A standing vote on the issue, taken during a stormy meeting, reportedly appeared so decisive no count was taken.

The striking employees are members of Local 7926, United Steel Workers. The last strike at the plant, in 1978, lasted over four months.

Certificate Honors Judge Stumbo

Mountain Comprehensive Care Center's Drug Program Coordinator Don Goble (standing) presents certificate of appreciation to District Judge Harold Stumbo.

District Judge Harold Stumbo was recently presented with a certificate of appreciation for contributions made in the field of alcohol and drug abuse. Don Goble, Mountain Comprehensive Care Center's Drug Program Coordinator, made the presentation and had this to say of the Floyd County District Judge: "Judge Stumbo has a good understanding of the disease concept of chemical dependency. Because many people with alcohol and other drug abuse problems eventually end up in the court system, the judge is in a key position to refer individuals with problems into treatment. Many people have gotten the help they so desperately need because of Judge Stumbo's comprehension of chemical dependency and his willingness to make appropriate referrrals to treatment facilities.'

This award is only presented to individuals who make significant contributions to the field of alcohol and drug abuse.

Says Effective Date Six Years Distant

It appears that you jumped the gun in your article," New Drunk Law Poses Problem." If you read Senate Bill 214 you will find that it goes into effect on July 1, 1982. It would be pleasing to believe that Floyd County was being innovative and starting the process one year ahead of time. That is not a bad idea to begin to experiment and begin to support the use of such worthwhile programs as the Layne House and the chemical dependency unit at McDowell Appalachian Regional Hospital.

If Mr. Turner wishes to impact on the law or make changes he should contact the Decriminalization Task force, in care of the substance Abuse Branch of the Department for Human Resources. They are using this time between now and implementation to work out the bugs. Mr. Turner might also consider organizing a group of concerned citizens to study the local problems decriminalization will present and tackle them to insure the citizens he represents quality services and a smooth transition. It will take some time to get used to the change and the loss of power the criminal justice system exerts over the public inebriate. Such changes worked in thirty other states-why not Kentucky?

I would also suggest that The Times present both sides of this issue by interviewing recovering alcoholics to see if incarceration or court-ordered treatment caused them to get sober. I think people who have been through the disease of alcoholism can steer you right. The growth of the self-help movement of AA and Alanon did not occur because individuals were arrested for being drunk, but because caring people reached out to help those suffering from alcoholism. Individuals took the time to care instead of criticise.

Memories of Harder Times

Good for Haig Gavheart-His letter printed in The Times (June 10) evoked memories that bless and burn.' Memories of things experienced, and experiences told to me.

Daddy on a years strike, as a charter member of his trade in the state of my birth-Montana. He and mother living for days at a time on pancakes made from flour, salt and water! Memories of going thru the Great Depression in one of our largest cities; no food stamps-no anything! Daddy walking the streets for a job, ANY job. Gas stations hiring college graduates for a pittance. Mother working eight hours a day for $2.50 a day. And FIVE of us lived thru it all. During school vacations, I worked 5 hours a day, six days a week, for $5.00 a week. Why must tax payers pay for help to men who refuse to work less they lose food stamps? In the Great Depression, churches took care of their own, and family members "took over" as they could. I begrudge no needy person a 'lift,' especially the sick and elderly and little children. But government has gone too far. After all, we, the taxpayers, pay the bill.

One last thought: In the City, our apartment faced on the sidewalk. The back door faced the paved alley. Even the poorest Kentuckian could raise a garden, have chickens, a pig, a cow. The poor old "city slicker" didn't have a blade of grass to chew on. Ah-sweet yesterday-hard and often sad, but it put some grit into a person, and left precious memories indeed.

Praise for Bible School

Last week, Bible school was held for five days at Benedict Baptist Church, on Slick Rock Fork of Cow Creek, a very lively little church up almost in the head of the creek. It was amazing to see such a turn-out of those young people, 68 of them from 2 to 17; it was a very interesting and colorful sight. And even more amazing was to hear those from 3 to 5 years old recite verses from the Bible, such as John 3-16, and how all of them could sing! I never was so surprised to see such a wonderful performance by so young a group.

It was really good of the mothers and fathers to take or send their children out to attend Bible school. They coul never, never do any thing better for their child than that. They may give them gold and silver on a platter, but it would never match what they were given in learning from the Holy Bible, and, further still, they are giving to our future leaders of our country, which will guide them on an indestructible course. The foundation of our country is based on the influence of the Bible. And as for me I am 101% for it.

We can do no greater deed for our fellowman and for our country in general than to teach our children the power and the good obtained from the Holy Bible. Hitler taught his youth the opposite way, which led to their destruction. And any man that goes the opposite way, destruction is his.

Members of the local Pikeville Chapter are students in the Mayo Vocational Nursing class. These students have worked diligently this year. In the recent Hillbilly Days celebration they held bake sales and manned a booth. They also built an outstanding float and were awarded second prize.

Earning money is particularly important to us, for we are aware of so many needy and deserving circumstances.

For instance, the students present a well-equipped layette to many needy mothers at the Pikeville Methodist Hospital on a year-round basis. We also visit Nursing Homes at Christmas and present the patients with little gifts and a lot of smiles and love.

Anyone who is interested in nursing or would like more information about H-O-S-A can contact the Mayo Vocational School in Paintsville.

6 Indicted for Mine Violations

A federal grand jury in the U.S. District Court for the eastern District of Kentucky has returned multi-count criminal indictments against six members of a coal mine-operating family in Whitley county.

The 44 counts in the two indictments charge Kenneth Crawford, Jeffery Lee Crawford, Kenneth Ray Crawford, Timothy Wayne Crawford, Lawrence Crawford and Dennis Ray Crawford with a multitude of willful violations of federal health and safety laws in the operation of six coal mines. None of the mines were registered with the Commonwealth of Kentucky or the federal government, as required by law.

The Crawfords received nationwide attention when, on October 27, 1980, three miners were killed at a mine operated by Frank Crawford, Jr. At the time of the accident, David Hood, a scoop operator, was apparently lighting fuses meant to detonate blastholes when a previously lit fuse detonated and injured him. Frank Crawford, Jr., and Clarence G. Ray, a driller, heard the explosion and attempted to rescue Hood, but because of a lack of adequate ventilation, all three were overcome by poisonous gases emitted by the detonated explosives. The mine was unregistered and the method of blasting was illegal. Two other fatalities had occurred in that same year in mines operated by the Crawfords

Following the multiple fatality accident in October, the Labor Department's Mine Safety and Health Administration (MSHA) assembled a task force to investigate the Crawford operations. The task force comprised members from MSHA, the department's solicitor's office and inspector general's office and asst. U. S. Attorney Robert E. Rawlins representing the Department of Justice. They were assisted in their work by state officials and members of the Kentucky State

The indictments charge the Crawfords with violation of federal laws governing proper roof support in mines, approved electrical systems, properly maintained equipment, certification of miners to conduct pre-shift examinations, adequate ventilation, approved training and retraining of miners and the submission of required plans prior to the opening or the reopening of a mine.

Each count of the indictments carries a possible fine of $25,000 or one year in prison, or both.

July 4 Smokers' Tip

"No smoking" should be added to the list of safe driving tips for the July 4th weekend, the American Lung Association of Kentucky advised today.

"Smoking in automobiles not only affects the well-being of the smoker and others in the car, it can cause accidents," Tom Saummers, Executive Director of the Christmas Seal organization, explained.

A nationwide survey by the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission indicates at least 60,000 motor vehicle fires a year are caused by smoking, said Summers. The Federal Emergency Management Agency's fire administration says smoking is the seventh leading cause of automobile

"Although no one knows how many of the smoking-ignited car fires result in death and injury, anyone who has experienced a small fire-or a cigarette burn-while riding in a car understands the fear and panic which result," Summers said.

Smoking also has caused accidents when the driver looks away from the road to light up, to retrieve a fallen cigarette or to brush ash off clothing. Many pulmonary surgeons say nonsmokers have a better chance of recovering from chest injuries suffered in automobile accidents.

Smoking ten cigarettes in an enclosed car produce carbon monoxide levels up to 90 p.p.m. in the shared air, and doubles the carbon monoxide levels in the blood of both smokers and nonsmokers, according to the American Lung Association, Carbon monoxide forces oxygen out of the red blood cells and deprives the body and brain of this life-sustaining substance.

With these levels of carbon monoxide, some people—including drivers—cannot distinguish between relative brightness, lose some ability to judge time intervals and take longer to respond to tailights. They also show impaired performance on some psychomotor tests.

For those with chronic heart and lung disease, the elevated carbon monoxide and resulting lack of oxygen may mean dangerous physical stress.

"Smokers who find it difficult to ride without smoking can resist the urge with simple deep breathing and other exercises," Summers suggested. The American Lung Association's "Freedom From Smoking" self-help booklet includes several such activities. For those who recently kicked the habit and fear they may backslide during the holiday celebration, Summers recommended the ALA's "A Lifetime of Freedom From Smoking," a similar, self-help booklet designed to help the exsmoker remain a nonsmoker for life.

Eliminating the least necessary cigarettes is the first step to freedom from smoking. Not smoking in the car increases the chances of a safe 4th of July and could be the beginning of independence from smoking.

State Moves To Free Troopers of Duties In License Exams

In a move aimed at freeing state troopers for law enforcement activities civilian employees are being trained to administer driver's license examinations in Kentucky.

The first civilian appointees-15 men and nine women-have completed a four-week training program at the Kentucky State Police Academy in Frankfort and recently received their orders. The examiners will work under direct supervision of an experienced trooper for a few weeks.

The 24 new examiners will work in a 63-county area.

It is estimated that the civilian examiner program should save more than $2 million a year.

PG Doesn't Mean "Pretty Good"

While the film classifications that Hollywood has used for the past thirteen years may look like alphabet soup to you, they are designed to give you some clue as to what's playing at your local theater and whether you want your kids to see it. G, PG, R and X are not perfect categories, most agree, but they do beat the prudish Production Code that preceded their use.

Now, however, the time is ripe to fine-tune these ratings to make them more useful. National columnists Carl Rowan and David Mazie write in the July Reader's Digest, "Parents should receive more information on why a film is considered questionable for young viewers. Is it too violent? Are sex scenes too explicit? Is the language too raunchy? An additional letter in the ratings (R-V, R-S, R-L) would help...Another useful change would be establishing 13-and-under and 17-andunder categories, at least within certain ratings.

Curiosly, what turns people off in one sector may not trouble people in another. Jack Valenti, president of the Motion Picture Association of America, has found that parents in the Middle West are most put off by onscreen sex, New Yorkers by violence, and those in parts of the South by

Floyd county conservation officer Dalton R. Conley said he last saw the animal, which he estimated at 2 to 300 pounds, in the Water Gap-Katy Friend section where he arrested on excited individual who sought to fill the bear's hide with buckshot. The charge was KRS 153.90-molesting a bear, Conley

The following day, Monday, the bear was spotted in the Brush Creek section, near Hippo, and the last reportedFloyd county sighting was on Salyers Branch, on Salt Lick Creek. From there, according to Conley, the animal

Cordell Gayheart, conservation officer for Knott county, said he received calls from numerous sections of the county, and later from adjacent parts of Perry county

"From what I can find out, the bear made it on through Clay and Bell county and it looks like it's going toward the Tennessee line," Gayheart said.

The conservation officers expressed relief that the animal had made the long trek without being wounded or

"There's been quite a few bear sightings in Letcher county,' Gayheart said, "and I've never heard of any of them causing any trouble. But it's pretty hard a lot of time to explain to people that there's no harm.'

Beshear Warns Legal Fund Not Connected with Scouts

Attorney General Steven L. Beshear is issuing a consumer alert to all Kentuckians who are contacted by the U.S. Justice Foundation Emergency Youth Legal Defense Fund.

The fund is not connected with the Boy Scouts of America, according to the Scouts' national office.

The Boy Scouts of America has charged that the group is conducting an unauthorized solicitation campaign. The national office has begun legal action to prevent the Youth Legal Defense Fund from further solicita-

The defense fund, located at 927 15th St., N. W., Washington, D. C., is conducting a mass mailing to citizens in a number of states, including Kentucky.

Prospective contributors are asked to donate to the legal defense of the Boy Scouts. A California lawsuit has been filed against the Boy Scouts of America by a homosexual. The American Civil Liberties Union has intervened.

While confirming that the litigation is actually taking place, the Boy Scouts' national office has informed Attorney General Beshear that it has absolutely no connection with the U.S. Justice Foundation Emergency Youth

Legal Defense Fund organization and has never authorized these solicitations on the Scouts' behalf. If you are contacted by the defense fund, call the Attorney General's consumer protection division, 209 St. Clair St., Franfkort, Ky. 40601. Call (502) 564-6607, or the consumer hotline, toll-

A Sunday Gathering On The Cemetery

In the early part of this century, cemeteries were favorite spots for Sunday outings and all manner of social gatherings. This group of well-dressed young adults and children photographed one Sunday many years ago on the Weddington cemetery which overlooks Prestonsburg. The 1981 program provides for disaster payments to help farmers whose crops are severely damaged by weather conditions. Mr. Hill noted that the recent flooding here in Floyd county could affect crop yields significant-

The best way to prevent this disease is to avoid tick infested areas whenever possible; search total body area every 3 to 4 hours if working or playing in an infested area; remove ticks from the person promptly and carefully without crushing to avoid leaving mouth parts in the skin; protect hands when removing ticks from man or animals. Every dog owner should check his dog daily for ticks

Canine Parvovirus Control Is Difficult

Canine parvovirus is transmitted through contact with the feces of an affected dog. The hardiness of the parvovirus explains why infection is so easily spread and so difficult to control. Virus can be carried on the dog's hair and feet, as well as on contaminated cages, shoes or other objects. Because of this, dog owners and breeders whould take care to clean kennels and exercise areas throroughly, disposing of all fecal waste. The most effective disinfectant for this purpose is one part sodium hypochlorite ('Clorox') diluted in 30 parts water. It is obviously important to isolate infected animals, but even an apparently healthy dog may be shedding virus due to mild parvoviral infection. Thus, in areas of high parvoviral

Acreage Report Due

でなるない。

Floyd county farmers who have not filed an acreage report with the Agricultural Stablization Service have until July 15 to do so, according to Polk Hill, chairman of the county ASC com-

"Since there are no set-aside requirements or normal crop acreage limitations, all farmers who report the sizes and intended uses of their corn will be eligible for program benefits," Mr. Hill said. They may also sign an application for payments when they report crop acres.

As of June 29, 45 farmers in the county had reported spring-seeded crops. These farmers will be eligible for disaster payments," Mr. Hill said.

To avoid eligibility problems, farmers should report as accurately as possible. ASCS will randomly check farms to verity that acreage reports are correct and also provide aerial photographs for farmers to identify their fields.

Farmers may request measurement service, to be sure that their crop acreages are accurate. There is a nominal charge for the service and the measurements are guaranteed. "Farmers who use this service will avoid unnecessary worrry about the loss of 1981 program benefits," Hill said. The county ASCS office is open from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday. Farmers who have not certified their program crops are urged to do so as soon as possible.

Nurses Learn Stress Management

"Relaxation is a skill just as nursing is, and it is developed with practice." explained Bob Wildman, M.S.S.W. to a group of 41 nurses attending a continuing education class at Prestonsburg Community College. The knowledge of stress management is essential in today's society where one out of five people suffer from hypertension, Wildman said.

The seminar, open to all area nurses and sponsored by Highlands Regional Medical Center, dealt with the identification of different types of stress that affect one's health and how the body systems react to it.

The registered nurses and licensed practical nurses practiced relaxation exercises and techniques for stress reduction. They discussed healthy ways of handling anger. While on this topic, Wildman quoted the first law of debate: "Never argue with a fool, people might not notice the difference."

The nurses in attendance received six contact hours of continuing education credit. A recently passed state law requires nurses to complete five contact hours this year for renewal of nursing licenses. Ten contact hours will be mandatory next year, and 15 yearly thereafter.

Antique Dealer of Sorts . . .

Former P'burg Man, Collector of Reels

By KENNETH L. PRESTON Outdoor Editor,

Flint (Mich.) Journal Edmund R. Burke is the kind of fisherman who can get "reel" excited about some of the things anglers

Burke, a guidance counselor at Grand Blanc High School, is the kind of fellow who would jump at the chance to rummage through an angler's tackle box in search of a fishing reel the fisherman no longer uses

(Mr. Burke is formerly of Prestonsburg and is a son of Mrs. E. R. Burke, of Prestonsburg, and the late Mr. Burke-Ed.)

Reels others have set aside over the years as new models came on the market are kinds of items that arouse Burke's interest. They cause him to take a keen interest in tackle boxes as he travels about the tournamentcasting circuit and lead him to many an antique show

Other fishermen may concentrate on accumulating the latest in fishing equipment and baits in their efforts to catch more fish, but Burke is hooked on the kind of stuff they throw away-reels, wooden plugs, fish decoys and other items related to fishing.

Reels are his real love. As a result, he can just about trace the history of bait-casting reels in his collection of 125 to 150 reels. Burke said he grew up in eastern Kentucky as a bass fisherman and cut his teeth on the kind of casting reel he has grown to appreciate.

His collection not only contains reels that most bait-casting fans have used or are familiar with, but he has reels made by pioneers who long have been forgotten

One of them was George Snyder, a Paris, Ky., watchmaker who built the first geared reel in 1810, Burke said. Watchmakers were in the forefront of reel makers, apparently because they had the skills to build the delicate gears that make a good real.

In 1835, Burke said, Johnathan F. Meek, of Frankfort, Ky., another jeweler, came out with an improved reel. The Meek family made reels into 285-9335 285-3122 the early 1900s. They eventually joined forces with B. C. Milam, also of Frankfort, and produced reels through that merger until 1927, Burke said.

Some of the other early names represented in Burke's collection are Langley, which became Zebco, Talbot William Shakespeare. Shakespeare, of Kalamazoo, patented the first level-wind casting reel, Burke said. That was around 1895, he said, and he has one of those level-winds made in 1897.

Burke pointed out that Michigan was in the forefront of the fishing tackle business, the most familiar names-in addition to Shakespeare-being Heddon and Bronson. Among his reels are those made by South Bend, Pfleuger, J. A. Coxe, A. F. Meisselbach and Julius Burke said he always knew that some makes were rare but it has been only in the last few years that he has had the time or money to build up a collection. Most people would be happy just to have one, he said. While he is apt to cast inquiring glances at the tackle boxes of other fishermen when at casting tournaments or while fishing, Burke said the boxes don't produce many antiques. He gets most of his reels from other collectors. But he also patronizes flea markets and antique shows in quest of old reels.

Burke also collects old-time casting baits which he uses for trading material. He has friends in California, for example, who collect baits and is able to swap baits for reels occasionally. The lure collectors have a national organization, but the reel collecters have no formal group to belong and to possibly further their hobby, Burke

Although raised in country famous for reservoirs that produce big bass and other fish, Burke said there is no better place to fish than Michigan. The streams here are second to none for fishing, he said. He likes to fish for bass, walleyes, pike and steelhead.

Burke also is impressed by conservation in Michigan, pointing to the Michigan United Conservation Clubs, which represents about 100,000 sportsmen, as an example of citizen effort.

While he likes Michigan, Burke likes to return to Kentucky in the summer to fish, revisiting boyhood haunts such as the Big Sandy River, where he fished for largemouth and smallmouth bass. He also fishes such impoundments as Lake Cumberland and Dale Hollow. Then, too, he likes to participate in tournament accuracy-casting events in Kentucky, Ohio and Illinois. Competition has taken him to Cincinnati, Columbus, Lexington, Ky., St. Louis and Chicago. Occasionally, he has gone to the West Coast

Burke considers himself a good fisherman, has won several individual awards and has been on winning casting teams at tournaments.

He has been in Grand Blanc for the last 17 years, coming to the school system shortly after graduation from Eastern Kentucky University, which is 25 miles south of Lexington. A bachelor, he said he can afford the time and money it requires to follow his collecting hobby. Aside from tournament competition and fishing, it is his major avocation.

And Burke is keen enough on collecting to put out business cards advertising his desire to collect old-time fishing tackle. He's always willing to talk reels, he said, and will pay for any old casting reel that expands his collec-

He has his favorites, he indicated, but he'll accept other makes of ancient reels. After all, he is not about to pass up any trading material.

(Mr. Burke will be in Prestonsburg on and off during the next month and can be reached at 886-6787.)

Evergreens Removed At Bridge Entrance

Some people try to improve the impression visitors may gain of us, and add to the everyday pleasure of local residents. Others seem to prefer a bit of old-fashioned vandalism, or to enhance their own surroundings.

For instance, the Kiwaniannes, a civic organization here, with the help of the Prestonsburg Woman's Club and others, have been engaged in a project of landscaping around the sign by the bridge entering town. Forsythia and evergreens had been planted, and the groups intended to add a dogwood tree and flowering bulbs.

During the past week, the two large evergreens have been removed by a person or persons unknown. Other groups have been planning to put up signs with attractive plantings around them at the other entrances to Prestonsburg. A member of the Kiwaniannes said,

"We would like to think that the evergreens were taken by mistake, and the people involved will return them or reimburse us for their cost." She added that it will be appreciated if anyone with information concerning this discouraging turn of events would call 886-2763.

Multi-Party Lines Almost Eliminated In County, Report

Four- and eight-party telephone service is now a thing of the past as far as this county is concerned, South Central Bell announced this week.

"The end of multi-party lines has been a top priority for several years, said Art Willett, Bell manager here. At the direction of the state Utility Regulatory Commission, the company began eliminating four- and eight party lines throughout the state in 1972.

Multi-party lines were phased out of the Allen exchange in 1976, the Prestonsburg exchange in 1979, Martin in 1980, and Wayland and McDowell this year. By the end of this year, all such lines are expected to have been replaced in the state.

All but about 560 of Floyd county's 8052 phone customers now have private lines; the others have chosen two-party service, according to a company news release.

Willett termed the replacement of the multi-party lines a "great achievement." The installation of new lines, poles and calling equipment has cost Bell about $40 million over the past nine years, he said.

Sturgill Says VA Should Use Coal

Energy and Agriculture Secretary William B. Sturgill has asked federal Budget Director David Stockman to stop the Veterans Administration from replacing boilers capable of burning coal with an oil-gas heating plant at its Lexington medical center.

Citing a report prepared by the Kentucky Department of Energy, Sturgill made his request in a letter sent last week to Stockman, director of the Office of Management and Budget.

The letter projected a base savings of $18.6 million over the life of the coalfueled system. It also said that, by using worst-case assumptions for coalprice increases, a coal system would still save about $14.6 million.

The VA, the U.S. Department of Energy and the Kentucky Department of Energy agreed on the basic cost assumptions and on information used for the analysis, Sturgill said.

"In addition to the significant waste of government funds which will result from the VA's determination to install gas-oil boilers at the Lexington medical center," Sturgill said, "this action flies in the face of our national policy of decreasing reliance on dwindling and expensive natural gas

"This action sets a poor example, especially noticeable as it is taking place in the nation's leading coalproducing state."

Sturgill also told Stockman that engineering studies commissioned by the VA in 1978 and 1979 recommended that coal-burning boilers be installed at the Lexington center.

The VA study further said that existing coal-handling equipment needed only minor repairs and modernization for operation, Sturgill said.

The center's heating and hot-water system was originally fired by coal, but it was converted to burn oil and gas in the 1960s. The VA began construction on the new oil-gas system earlier this year.

At that time Gov. John Y. Brown Jr., the state Energy Department and Kentucky's two senators, Wendell Ford and Walter "Dee" Huddleston, asked the acting VA administrator to halt construction and consider a coal-fired

Sturgill said the projected saving of more than $14 million includes the unrecoverable expenditures already made on the new oil-gas system.

"The VA is continuing with its plans," Sturgill said, "despite all the evidence that it would be both uneconomical and totally derogatory to our national interest.

Export Coal Needs Ports

Kentucky's two Senators, Walter (Dee) Huddleston and Wendell Ford, are sponsoring legislation to improve the capability of the nation's commercial ports to meet the projected increased export shipping needs and demand.

Ford and Huddleston joined with Senator John Warner (R-VA.) in introducing the legislation last Thursday.

"This legislation brings together the best of the many approaches which have been put forward to deal with a critical flaw in our nation's transportation system," Huddleston said in a statement on the Senate floor. "This flaw, the poor condition and lack of capacity in our nation's ports, must be addressed soon.

"If not, one of the potentially most significant export markets, our nation's domestic coal production, will be forced to radically reduce its expectations in a day when we are seeking in every way possible to promote the market for this valuable commodity."

Ford, in his floor remarks, said that inadequate port facilities threaten the United States' ability to take advantage of substantial new export opportunities

"There is no question that this country has the coal to sell, but the ability to ship the coal to other continents in a timely, economical manner is where many uncertainties exist," Ford said. "This obstacle, if left unaddressed, could result in this country losing much of the potential coal export market to nations such as Australia, Poland, South Africa and China."

Huddleston noted that a good example of the potential trade restraint is the current negotiation between Kentucky interests and the Italian government for substantial amounts of the state's coal.

"It is my understanding that the Italians have often stated that assured transportation is a vital factor in the successful conclusion of an agreement," Ford said. "Hopefully, our present transportation system is adequate to satisfy the needs of the Italians.

"I believe it is. However, in order for the projected coal export demands of future customers to be met, significant expansion of U. S. port capacity must take place."

Ford said that any of the nation's 170-plus dee-draft commercial ports would be eligible for the various types of assistance provided by the bill.

"This legislation is vitally important not just for coal, but agricultural, manufacturing and all industries that are integral parts of our international trade picture," Ford said.

Among key provisions of the bill are federal cost-sharing in funding for navigation improvement projects; expedited processing of improvement project applications; expedited environmental and Congressional review of these projects, and favorable tax treatment for monies spent by nonfederal sources for port improvement projects.

Ky. National Guard

Announces Two New Incentive Programs

The Kentucky Army National Guard has announced approval for immediate participation by Guard personnel in two additional incentive programs for enlistment or re-enlistment in the National Guard.

The Affiliation Bonus Program applies to personnel on active duty in any military service with 180 days or less remaining until their scheduled discharge date or to those who have been discharged under honorable conditions and have a remaining service obligation.

A person meeting the appropriate eligibility criteria may enlist in the Kentucky Army National Guard, and be paid a bonus calculated on the basis of $25 per month for each month of his or her remaining military service obligation.

The Student Loan Repayment Program is applicable for personnel who enlist or re-enlist in selected career fields before Oct. 1, 1981.

Only those loans made after Oct. 1, 1975 are eligible. Repayment by the National Guard will be made at the rate of 15 percent per year or $500, whichever is greater, for each year of Guard service.

Both programs are available in conjunction with other incentive programs such as the $4,000 Educational Assistance Program, $1,500 Enlistment Bonus Program and others, or may be applied for separately.

Sturgill pledged the full support of the Brown Administration to help Kentucky farmers with weather-related problems. Gov. John Y. Brown, Jr. is urging that federal emergency loans be granted as quickly as possible to the

"KNOW YOUR BIBLE"

IS THERE ANYTHING IN A NAME?

ROY L. TINCHER, Pastor

"And in none other is there salvation: for neither is there any other name under heaven, that is given among men, wherein we must be saved." (Acts 4:12).

CHRISTIANS ONLY

"The disciples were first called Christians at Antioch." (Acts 11:26). Since God has bestowed the name Christian on His people, the name we wear has been put beyond human choice. Some quote Shakespeare: "A rose by any other name would smell just as sweet," but the very fact they must quote him shows undeniably they cannot find the names they wear in the Word of God. Jesus spoke of those who accepted human names over them in these words:

"I am come in my Father's name, and ye receive me not: If another shall come in his own name, him ye will receive. How can ye believe, who receive glory one of another, and the glory that cometh from the only God ye seek not?" (John 5:43-44).

What a vivid description of our day! For now denominational names are given by men to each other, and the name of Christ is buried beneath the rubble!

So not only must we be Christians, we must be Christians only! No man can serve two masters (Matt. 6:24), and to wear human names is to reject the authority of Christ. The name Christian embraces all the good that can be found in any denominational name, and leaves out all the bad! For comments, write: Bennie Blankenship, Evang., Prestonsburg Church of Christ,

Masonic Lodges Offer Help

Dickie Allen, former head of the governor's regional office established here by Ex-Governor Carroll, and Wheelwright civic leader, has been a patient in Lexington and Louisville hospitals since Jan. 18 last when he was injured in a fall while removing Christmas decorations at the Wheelwright Fire Department.

His condition, critical from the outset, is little improved. That has been one concern of hundreds of Floyd county friends and relatives. Another has been the terrific drain on his and his family's financial resources. Insurance benefits have long since been exhausted.

A benefit dinner was held here May 30 by four Masonic lodges—Zebulon of Prestonsburg, John W. Hall at Martin, J. W. Alley at Wayland and Wheelwright—and as a result a generous check was recently presented to Allen's wife at Wheelwright.

The lodges acknowledged the help of various individuals and merchants, particularly Paul Hunt Thompson, of Thompson's IGA, for their contributions to the success of the dinner.

It is pointed out that the injured man's hospital expenses continue and that the need for financial help remains as great as ever. Contributions may be sent to the Dickie Allen Fund, c/o Kelly Moore, 75 N. Lake Drive, Prestonsburg.

'Wampum from Washington' Declared Insurance Hoax

"Wampum from Washington"—that's the latest version of the long running insurance hoax that has plagued the Veterans Administration and thousands of World War II veterans since 1948.

The "wampum" handbill, advising WW II vets they can collect a non-existent insurance dividend on their cancelled policies, has recently surfaced in Minnesota, Ohio, Indiana, Louisiana and Montana—this time with an illegal "confidence game" twist.

The fraudulent flyers promise to "cut red tape" by supplying an address for a quick dividend payment in return for $10 that is to be sent to a post office box. Postal authorities have taken a dim view of this scheme and have already interviewed one man who was distributing the handbills at a Wisconsin American Legion meeting.

sin American Legion meeting.

Postal inspectors report that the Wisconsin operator claimed he "bought" the address from a person in Minnesota, and went on to produce a check which he said he had received in response to his insurance dividend claim. The check was not issued by VA and the address he was selling is one that has been used for years in this personal heav perennial hoax.

The hoax, which has been cropping up in a variety of forms since 1948, claims too that dividends are available for the asking on cancelled insurance. Official looking forms—complete with the address of a VA insurance center—often show up mysteriously at meetings of unions, veterans organizations and even in public buildings. Many unsuspected newspapers have passed on what they considered the "good news."

The bogus forms have been sent to Va by the thousands each month for several years.

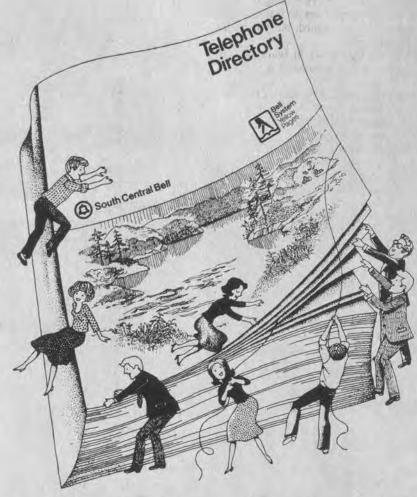

Acting Va Administrator Rufus Wilson speculated that "someone has obviously decided that if there are that many gullible people, there must be a way to make a quick buck out of it."

D.M.D.

"VA has investigated the hoax from every conceivable angle," according to Wilson, "without ever being able to establish any logical motive for spreading this false information. But with this new and illegal approach of selling the address, we advise that a report be made immediately to local police officials when anyone is observed producing or distributing the so-called application forms or the 'Wampum from Washington' hand-

Sleeping Sickness In Horses Called Ever-Present Threat

Sleeping Sickness-only one horse in four is protected against this everpresent threat.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture recommends that all horses be vaccinated annually against Equine Encephalomyelitis (Sleeping Sickness).

This recommendation is emphasized by Dr. Ralph Knowles at USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Services (APHIS). He points out that the recommendation includes vaccination against both Eastern and Western strains of the disease.

Although there is a trend toward routine annual vaccination, authorities say a reasonable estimate is that only 20 to 25 percent of the total U.S. horse population now receives this protec-

Dr. Knowles' advice to horse owners is wholeheartedly endorsed by Dr. Thomas E. Walton at USDA's Arthropod-Borne Animal Diseases Research Laboratory in Denver. Both call Equine Encephalomyelitis "an ever-present threat". The probability of incidence of this disease in horses increases significantly where a large proportion of an area's horse population is not vaccinated against it. And, biting insects can carry the disease to

Under the proper conditions, every horse, regardless of breed, age or sex, is susceptible. The ideal time for vaccinating is before the local mosquito season begins.

A key vector or carrier in the transmission cycle is the mosquito. Birds are the reservoir hosts. They introduce Equine Encephalomyelitis into an area via mosquitoes parasitic to birds. Then other mosquitoes transmit Sleeping Sickness from birds to horses or humans. The build up and concentration of infected birds, combined with large numbers of mosquitoes, intensifies into explosive Encephalomyelitis incidence. Horses and humans are dead-end hosts.

Mosquitoes can thrive even in a dry climate if they can find standing water to breed in. In the Estern U.S., for example, irrigation canals and reservoirs provide a perfect base for mosquito propagation.

Once infected with Equine Encephalomyelitis, the horse exhibits various symptoms including fever, extreme nervousness, loss of appetite, depression and paralysis. Of the three principal strains of Sleeping Sickness-Eastern, Western and Venuzuelan-the Eastern is the most severe because it usually results in death in 90% of the cases. The Western form may leave horses brain-damaged after a prolonged course of illness, treatment and apparent recovery, the Venezuelan strain causes explosive outbreaks with high equine mortality. It does not exist in the U.S. at present.

Sleeping Sickness is a disease that affects the horse's brain and spinal cord. No antiviral treatment is available, and permanent damage

Extension Service Notes

By JOHN E, SPARKS County Extension Agent for Agriculture

FRUIT TREES SUFFER DROP

Abundant flowering on fruit trees in some localities has resulted in both heavy fruit set as well as abundant immature fruit drop. This phenomena is sometimes called "June drop."

As we look at a fruit tree, such as an apple, in full bloom we realize that if every flower were to produce a fruit the trees would collapse under the weight. Actually, only about one bloom in 20 is needed to develop a good crop on a full-blooming apple tree. Many blossoms drop off soon after bloom, but natural fruit drops occur even as the young fruits begin to increase in size.

In many fruits there may be two general drop periods. The first of these begins soon after flowering, and primarily consists of small fruits that have not pollinated or been poorly pollinated. After this initial drop, there may be a slowdown in fruit dropping until the well known "June drop" begins. In mild climates, June drop actually may occur in May and continue for two to three weeks.

June drop is most often a result of competition for nutrients and water. June drop is more obvious than the earlier drop because the fruits are larger and more noticeable. Apples may be as much as an inch in diameter when this occurs. Fruits which contain weak or few seeds resulting from poor pollination are the first to drop.

Even though natural fruit drop occurs, fruit trees may still maintain a load of fruit that is too heavy. Such fruits as apples will not bear well the year after a very heavy load of fruit has been allowed to develop.

For good fruit size as well as avoiding biennial bearing, apples and pears should be thinned so that there is six to eight inches between fruits, with four to six inches between peaches, and two to three inches between plums. Apricots should be far enough apart so fruits are not touching.

Other factors can lead to poor pollination with resulting fruit drop that may greatly reduce a crop. Temperatures below 40 degrees during the flowering period can reduce bee activity and also reduce pollen germination. While some pollen germination occurs between 40 and 50 degrees, optimum temperatures for pollen development and pollination of flowers occurs close to 70 degrees.

Even rain and wind during pollination time can inhibit fruit set. Bee activity can be inhibited by cool temperatures. High winds can dry the stigmas of the flowers or simply whip off flowers. Cold temperatures and frost normally ruin flowers and small fruits, resulting in a more prompt drop.

be ideal for pollination, other problems can lead to fruit drop or lack of fruit set. Some fruits, such as many apples and pears, require more than one variety for cross pollination. Peaches are self fruited, while apricots are somewhat self fruitful, but generally produce better crops when cross pollination can occur.

Infection by insects and disease also leads to premature fruit drop. Many of these problems attack fruits in very early stages, so pest control methods must be begun early and maintaned throughout the fruiting season.

throughout the fruiting season.

Tree nutrition is also an important factor in fruit set. If trees were weakened during the previous season by either diseases, insects, low levels of soil nutrients, or excessively large crops June drop will be high and fruit set reduced

No-Fault Auto Insurance

Your automobile insurance policy is a contract providing protection against specified types of financial loss. A policy spells out your rights and responsibilities and those of your insurance company.

Attorney General Steve Beshear reminds consumers that, "All motor vehicles registered or operated in Kentucky must be protected by automobile liability insurance. Failure to do so can result in a fine from $50 to $500."

No-fault insurance is designed to guarantee fast and equitable distribution of benefits to all persons injured in auto accidents.

Under the previous system, you were required to prove the other driver was at fault, and you were free from fault, before you could recover your losses from the other driver's insurance company.

Under the Kentucky no-fault law, passed in 1975, you are required to carry a minimum amount of basic liability protection for injuries and property damage, plus a minimum of $10,000 basic no-fault benefits for each person.

Berea School Probe Ordered

The state Board of Education has voted to probe a little deeper into the Berea Independent school system's records to determine if someone tried to cover up evidence of a $190,000 deficit in the budget.

In a special meeting Tuesday in Frankfort, the state board heard from a Lexington accounting firm, Miller, Mayer, Sullivan and Frank, which had been ordered by the state to determine the correct amount of the deficit.

Donald Jaynes, a Richmond accountant, found the $190,000 deficit last year after the Berea board hired him to investigate the system's finances. He estimated that the $190,000 deficit accumulated over a three- to four-year period. Miller, Mayer, Sullivan and Frank's figures substantiated those of Jaynes.

An earlier audit by Lexington accountant Billy J. Smith did not reflect a deficit for those years.

State board member Robert Ruberg moved to have the Education Department look into the matter and see if there was any evidence of wrongdoing Education's attorney Gary Bale was asked to determine what kind of action could be taken if there was evidence of a cover-up.

In other matters, the board voted to take no action on a controversy centered around the Pulaski county school board. At the May meeting of the state board, a petition was turned over requesting that three members of the Pulaski board be removed.

The petitioners cited lack of unity between the local board members and also between board members and the superintendent in the document. There were also allegations made concerning political interference and lack of educational progress in the school district.

On June 8 a team from the Department of Education met with Dr. Murrell Stewart, superintendent of Pulaski county schools, as well as the petitioners.

According to Dr. William Sadler, part of the Education team visiting Pulaski county, the petitioners were given a list of reasons under Kentucky statutes for suspending a board member.

"After much discussion, the group knew they were not in a position to make specific written allegations," Sadler said. "Since the petitioners were unable to prove that the three board members had violated any statutes, we suggested the state board take no action at this time."

IN APPRECIATION

The family of Willie Jones, of Bypro, would like to thank all those who gave us such support in our time of sorrow. Thanks to all who sent flowers, food and cards, and to the Hall Brothers Funeral Home for its kind and efficient service. We also thank the ministers of the Old Regular Baptist Church as well as all who served as pallbearers. God bless all of you who were there during our time of need.

Insurers must also offer, at reduced premiums, no-fault coverage with deductibles of $250, $500, or $1,000. And of course, consumers can still purchase protection above these minimum requirements.

Persons injured in traffic accidents who are entitled to no-fault benefits receive immediate payment of their out-of-pocket losses up to $10,000. Benefits are paid by the company insuring the auto in which they were riding, regardless of who was to blame for the accident. It is no longer necessary to await the results of a lengthy investigation to determine liability before payment begins.

No-fault plans limit the situations in which you can sue the other party. According to Beshear, "No-fault insurance minimizes situations in which liability payments and court proceedings are required and sometimes lowers the overall cost of auto insurance."

But you may still sue the other party to recover damages for pain, suffering, and out-of-pocket expenses if your injury is serious.

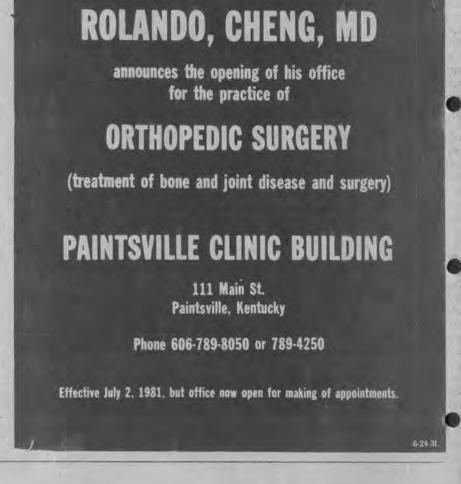

A "serious" injury is one in which medical and rehabilitation expenses exceed $1,000, or if there has been death, disfigurement, loss of a body member, or permanent loss of bodily function. In such a case, you could receive basic no-fault benefits, plus any additional damages from the negligent driver that the court awards.

Under Kentucky law, everyone has the option of rejecting this limitation, you must do so in writing, and you must file this rejection with the Kentucky Department of Insurance. Any person who rejects no-fault insurance must prove who was at fault in an accident before collecting for injuries.

Remember, automobile insurance can become a complicated business, so be sure to check with your insurance agent if you have any questions on nofault or any other type of auto injuries.

If you have a consumer problem, please write to the Office of the Attorney General, Division of Consumer Protection, Frankfort, Ky. 40601.

As the sun starts going down and leasure boaters, water skiers and aytime fishermen head for home, er group of anglers, the night shermen, are just starting their day.

Some anchor in a favorite spot, sually off a deep point or a steep, lmost vertical bank, light lanterns and fish for white bass and crappie. others glide quietly, with no lights howing, along the shoreline, casting ures into the darkness for largemouth

At dawn, as the rest of the world es to wake up, these nocturnal anglers are back at the dock, busy with heir filleting knives. Chances are hey've been more successful than heir daytime counterparts and know hat fishing at night is worth losing

White bass and crappie anglers who se lanterns are in effect, attracting n entire food chain around their anhored boat. The light from the nterns attracts plankton (in the attract, these small plants and animals ook something like swirling cornleal). The plankton attracts shad and ther bait fish, which in turn lures ungry sport fish to the scene.

The fisherman, with several baited ines over the side, waits for this atural process to work itself out. ometimes almost the entire night will ass with little activity, then the white pass will suddenly move in like a pack bungry aquatic wolves and the slog will suddenly get fast and urious.

Minnows are the favorite bait for this vpe of fishing and the anglers experinent with different depths to find out ow deep the fish are running. In addiion to rods, reels, hooks and bait, bout the only other equipment reuired is extra lantern fuel, warm ackets (its gets chilly on the lake, even summer) and plenty of coffee.

The quilting often doesn't live up to the piecing or applique. Sometimes the reverse is true. To win in competition, quilting and piecing or applique must be high quality

In contemporary quilts, quilting is sometimes not close enough to be effective-either visually or functionally. Even though it is not necessary to quilt polyester batting as closely as cotton batting to hold it together, close quilting still looks richer and makes the quilt more impressive.

The quilting should be planned to relate to, harmonize with, and enhance the design of the quilt's top-not just used to fill empty places in the design or to fasten the quilt together

Extra care should be taken with the binding because it gets the most wear and definitely affects the life of the quilt as well as its appearance. Keep these points in mind:

-Binding should be full of batting out to the edge. An empty binding feels flimsy, looks bad and will soon wear

-Binding should be sewn firmly, with stitches close together, to both front and back of the quilt. Loose bindings soon come unsewn.

-The color of the binding and the lining should be planned as part of the total quilt. Fabric should be selected at the beginning of the quilt-making project. The choice of fabric for binding should not be an afterthought.

Sign the quilt on the back rather than on the front. Unless the embroidered signature is worked into the design, it usually detracts from the quilt's overall appearance.

The Passion Of Thomas Jefferson

By MADELEINE JACOBS (Smithsonian News Service)

The year was 1801. One of the world's most dreaded plagues, smallpox, having crossed the Atlantic with the early colonists, was again taking its tragic toll in the new American nation. The disease struck ruthlessly, nearly killing off entire tribes of American Indians and erupting in devasting outbreaks in the cities and towns.

A Harvard college physician, Dr. Benjamin Waterhouse, had a plan to stop the scourge by using the vaccination techniques discovered in England only five years earlier. But everywhere he turned, even when he appealed to President John Adams, his proposal met with indifference.

Finally in December, Waterhouse turned to another political figure, a man renowned for his role in establishing the fledgling country.

Within 24 hours, the physician received an enthusiastic response. Waterhouse proposed a nationwide vaccination program, and the statesman personally distributed the vaccine to physicians in Philadelphia, Virginia, Washington and elsewhere. Later, the political leader provided Lewis and Clark with vaccine to distribute among the Indians they were bound to encounter on their overland

That man was none other than Thomas Jefferson, who had succeeded Adams as president in March. His long-forgotten role in helping to eradicate smallpox in the former Colonies was one of several surprises uncovered by Smithsonian historian Silvio Bedini while tracking down information on Jefferson's scientific pursuits for an exhibition at the National Museum of American History.

The little-known scientific side of Jefferson's distinguished career has been studied by Bedini for many years. In the course of his research, the historian examined virtually all of the statesman's 35,000 letters and papers and located many of Jefferson's scientific instruments and collections, all of which had been sold at auction and dispersed after his death on July 4,

The detective work turned up, among other things, a dusty "Report on the Methods for Obtaining Fresh Water From Salt," prepared by Jefferson at the request of the House of Representatives in 1791. It may well be the U.S. government's first scientific publication.

'Jefferson was never a scientist," Bedini acknowledges, "but he was surely one of the most accomplished men of science. Many people know that our third president was an architect and an inventor. But this man was into everything. He was an agronomist, archaeologist, astronomer, botanist, meteorologist, naturalist, paleontologist, surveyor-to name a few of his endeavors

"Above all, his greatest achievement was as a promoter of science in the United States. He used his public offices at every opportunity to urge the application of science as the most certain means of achieving 'the freedom and happiness of man.

This was a daring role for a statesman in an age in which there were no real American scientists by our modern definition and at a time when popular demand for science was lacking. "Science was an avocation for most of those who loved it," historian John C. Greene writes of the period, 'and even those who taught..in the colleges were hard pressed with other duties.

Jefferson's "other duties" occupied more than 50 years of his life-as author of the Declaration of Independence, governor of Virginia, minister to France, secretary of state, vice president and president for two terms. But he always found time for his not-so-secret love.

"Science is my passion, politics my duty," Jefferson wrote to a friend in 1791 while serving as secretary of

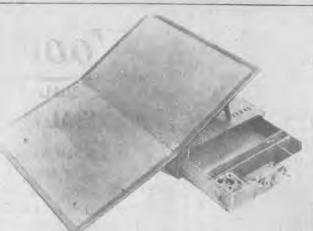

It was a passion instilled in Jefferson as a child. His father, Peter, a land developer and surveyor, encouraged Tom's consuming curiosity about the world around him. As a young man, he developed a peculiar penchant for recording in pocket memo books the smallest details of daily life and nature. Nothing was too trivial: Jefferson once recorded how many shovels of dirt were needed to fill a grave.

While growing up on the Virginia frontier, the young Jefferson also developed a lifelong affection for the Indians and their culture. His curiosity about their origins and customs led him around 1780 to excavate an ancient Indian burial mound near his home.

Like archaeologists today, the thengovernor of Virginia was not merely interested in collecting artifacts; he wanted to resolve speculations about the purpose and structure of Indian burial places.

Working slowly, he meticulously recorded his observations and examined every bit of evidence he unearthed. "With no precedent to guide him," Bedini says, "he anticipated the techniques of modern-day archaeology by almost a century.

Closely related to his interest in Indians were Jefferson's conjectures about the origins of the universe and

Many examples of Thomas Jefferson's scientific pursuits are on view for the first time since his death on July 4, 1826, in an exhibit cosponsored by the Smithsonian Institution and the National Endowment for the Humanities. Historian Silvio Bedini (left, center), exhibit curator, holds a theodolite used by Jefferson to survey Monticello. The 1801 engraving (above) captures Jefferson's interest in politics and science; Jefferson holds the Declaration of Independence in a room filled with scientific instruments. Among Jefferson's inventions in the exhibit are the portable lap desk (left, top) on which he wrote the Declaration of Independence, a model of his novel wooden plow (right, top) and a model of his wheel cipher (left).

gadgeteer, he freely adapted the the Earth and prehistoric forms of life. devices of others and developed In Jefferson's day, fossil bones were just beginning to be discovered in Kenseveral new inventions, including a forerunner of today's swivel chair, a tucky, New York, Virginia and elsewhere, and the lanky Virginian portable writing desk on which he drafted the Declaration of Inavidly collected whatever he could get hold of. Soon his home was crammed verted into a folding chair and a with an odd assortment of mastodon musical stand for a quintet. jawbones, sharks' teeth, musk ox His inventiveness even took him into bones and the remains of an extinct the realm of national security. As secretary of state, Jefferson designed a wheel cipher to protect the confidentiality of American diplomatic correspondence. His device was never adopted—he was advised that it was not secure-and was soon forgotten. But between 1917 and 1922, it was independently reinvented and used successfully by American military forces through World War II. Shortly after the "new" U.S. Army Cipher Device M-94 was issued in 1922, scholars discovered Jefferson's specifications for it among his papers. Incidentally, the so-called "secure" cipher used in place of Jefferson's in the late 1790s was quickly decoded by foreign governments.

Jefferson's passion for science often aroused the ire of his political opponents. His revolving chair, invented in 1776, was satirically described by the Federalist press as "Mr. Jefferson's whirl-i-gigs.'

But this was tame compared to the scathing epistle President Jefferson received from a youthful William Cullen Bryant, who later became a well-known poet and editor of the New York Evening Post: "Go, wretch, resign thy presidential chair,/Disclose thy secret measures, foul or fair,/Go search with curious eyes for horned frogs,/'mid the wild wastes of Louisiana bogs;/Or where the Ohio rolls his turbid stream/Dig for huge bones, thy glory and thy theme.'

By all accounts, Jefferson was unfazed by his critics. "I was bold in the purdependence, a walking stick which con-suit of knowledge," Jefferson wrote in 1814, "never fearing to follow truth and reason to whatever results they led, and bearding every authority which stood in their way.

"Whatever his contemporaries may have thought, the fact remains that few individuals and no other chief executive have matched the accomplishments of our third persident, Bedini says. "He was an American Leonardo.

Pike Countian Offers State Help on Repair of Potholes

Pike county businessman T. T. Colley has offered to help the state repair potholes on U.S. 23 that have damaged tires on his truck fleet and have been blamed for at least one fatal accident. Colley offered to provide the state with 100 tons of hot-mix asphalt-about

$3,000 worth-to fix the holes. This offer was made in the form of a letter to Transportation Secretary Framk Metts that was published as a

The driver regained the pavement but crossed into the path of an oncoming pickup truck, police said. Four persons were killed in the accident, which occurred about one-eighth mile north of the junction of U.S. 23 and U.S. 460 at Shelbiana

'This stretch of highway from Pikeville to the Pike-Letcher County line is so full of potholes that it is a disgrace, since this is the most traveled highway in Pike County used by out-of-state tourists," Colley's letter said. "This is also used extensively by the local traffic.

"Your department seems to have the attitude that the roads in Pike County need no attention," Colley's letter said. "I have received information that your department receives federal funds for maintenance and upgrading of the roads. It is evidenced by the condition of the roads that the funds are not being used efficiently.

"I have personally contacted an asphalt plant at Shelbiana, Ky., operated by State Stone Co., and have arranged for them to load the Department of Highways' trucks with one hundred tons of hot mix to be used for

"I am personally paying for this material before there is another fatal accident as the one on June 18. This will also help to prevent the damage done to cars and trucks using this highway," letter concluded.

School Board Action Is Sought Against Employees Using Drugs

A petition calling for firm school board action against any teachers or other school employees involved in illegal drug use was presented to the Floyd County Board of Education at its regular monthly meeting last Wednes-

The petition, bearing 1258 signatures, asked of the board 'immediate action to set up a definite policy against any teacher or employee in our school system who publicly advocates the use of any illegal substance, such as marijuana.

"We want to be assured that these persons not be allowed to continue teaching or influencing our children," said the petitioners, identified as "concerned parents of Floyd county."

Vietta Jones, of Banner, who presented the request to the board, emphasized that the signers were concerned about the public advocacy rather than the private use of illegal drugs by school employees. The petition urged, however, that even the use of drugs, marijuana specifically, be considered grounds for dismissal under a state law permitting dismissal of teachers for "immoral conduct unbecoming a teacher.'

Board members responded warily to the petition, Superintendent E. P. Grigsby, Jr. noting that the board could not adopt a policy that would "supersede" state law.

Pressed as to whether the advocacy or use of marijuana by teachers might be actionable under the law, Grigsby said he would refer the question to the board's attorney, Woodrow Burchett.

(In April, Sandy Boyd, then head teacher at Prater Creek grade school, publicly defended his use of marijuana. The teacher was earlier charged in district court here with supplying a Betsy Layne high school junior with marijuana, with instructions to sell it. A pre-trial hearing in the case has been set for August 6. Boyd resigned from the school system.)

The board also heard questions at Wednesday's meeting concerning a drug education program proposed for the coming school year. While Supt. Grigsby indicated that a program would be adopted at the next board meeting for implementation during the school year, Asst. Supt. Ron Hager advised the board that training teachers for the program could cost more than

Grigsby told the board that, since federal cuts in the school system's Title I (remedial reading) program had been less than anticipated, some school board personnel would be restored to the program. Title I funds, which were expected to be cut by 25 percent, were in fact cut by 10 percent. Meeting in executive session, the board decided that five of the eight teachers and three of seven social workers transferred from the program would be restored to it.

The board hired Josten's, a Clarksville, Tenn. firm, to prepare the school annual for a second year, without increase in cost. In response to a question from the audience, Grigsby said the firm had agreed to provide stronger binding for the annual this

TROUBLE

If this newspaper puts in a belated appearance this week, you are hereby invited to join us in blaming, in varying styles of expression and degrees of intensity ranging from hot to hotter, that computer of ours that went on the blink, refused to compute and insisted on turning plain words into xx!! or something to that effect.

In a word, we've had our headaches, with not a pain-killer in sight.

The first week of July is well along, as they say, and I am yet to set foot in a boat on Dewey Lake this year.

I miss the lake, just as I do baseball, but I find that neither is an absolute necessity. It would appear that we all are creatures of habit. Time was when, if I missed fishing at least one time a week, that week was a dead loss, might as well never have been, and I wandered around in sort of daze.

Now, the weeks slide by, I don't go fishing, and still I manage to survive. The truth is-and I am almost ashamed to tell it-I'm out of the habit.

That is not to say that I couldn't become addicted again. You might say I'm a lake-aholic. One visit back to well-remembered shore lines, to the sense of isolation you get there at times, and the magic of day's end on the water-one sip of that, and I'm hooked more solidly than any of the

Rehiring of Two At Med Center Was at Issue

Highlands Hospital workers voted at a courthouse meeting last (Tuesday) night to accept a contract worked out in a bargaining session last week, ending their 105-day strike against the hospital.

The contract, which was approved by 140 votes to 43, provides wage-andbenefit increases of 50 percent over three years, more liberal vacation leave, and time-and-a-half for holidays, among other benefits.

Only five days ago, the hospital workers' union voted by a similar margin to reject the contract. A major sticking point at that time was the hospital's refusal to rehire two workers-Geneva Skeans and her sister, Gwen Calhoun-who were fired May 7. Skeans, a nurse's aide, and Calhoun, a ward clerk, were indicted by a grand jury for allegedly beating Helen Smith, a personnel assistant at the hospital, May 1.

Skeans had earlier been convicted of violating a circuit court injunction limiting the activities of pickets. Calhoun was also accused of striking a hospital security guard with a baseball

Asked to rehire the women, the hospital agreed to submit their cases to arbitration, a compromise rejected last week by the union membership, which insisted that the two be rehired

Last night's meeting voted to accept that arrangement, however, it was a decision that provoked angry outbursts from the two women and some of their

The union has throwed us to the dogs. The union is busted," Calhoun said after the meeting.

U.S. Indictment

Names Knott Co. Deputy Sheriff Corruption within the Knott

County Sheriff's Department was alleged Monday as a four-count indictment was filed in U.S. District Court at Pikeville charging Henry D. Hall, Knott county chief deputy, with violations of the Hobbes Act and accepting bootlegging payoffs

A series of alleged violations were outlined in the indictment, dating from January, 1978, through April 30 of this year. During that period, according to the indictment, Hall conspired with Cleo Anderson and others, "known and unknown to the grand jury," to receive various sums of money from illegal sales of alcoholic beverages to conduct bootlegging operations in Knott coun-

The indictment charged that Hall and other members of the Knott County Sheriff's Department selectively enforced bootlegging laws beginning in 1979. As an example, the indictment read that Hall allegedly directed a worker in the sheriff's department, on an unknown date, to warn Odis Clemons of an impending bootlegging raid on Buckingham Mountain.

Bonds of Honakers Reduced; Regain Custody of Children

The pressures of early last week on Otto Honaker, of Tram, and his wife, Barbara, have eased

At first held in jail here in default of $30,000 bond each, their bonds were reduced later in the week after a district court hearing to $5,000 each, and they were soon at liberty.

And, following a juvenile hearing Tuesday morning, the Honakers' three children were returned to their custody, subject to Child Welfare Department supervision.

Mr. and Mrs. Honaker were arrested on warrants alleging abandonment of their six-year-old daughter who had been reported locked in a deserted house near their home. The child and two other children of the family had been placed in foster homes by the Department for Human Resources after their parents' arrest.

Holiday Marred As Two Wounded In Martin Fray

A July Fourth gunfight at close range marred the holiday celebration at Martin late Saturday night and sent two men to hospitals, both reported seriusly wounded.

Joe David Stumbo, 29, of McDowell, was shot in the back and right side and is in a Huntington hospital. The shots which struck him are believed to have been fired from a .38-calibre revolver.

His adversary, Joe Howard, 32, a C. & O. locomotive engineer, is in Good Samaritan Hospital, Lexington, with two bullets in his face and a third in his side. The weapon from which these shots were fired was said to be of .22-calibre. The two bullets to Howard's face struck him near either eye, according to State Police Detective Keith Scott, who is investigating the shoot-out

The shooting took place around 11 p.m., in an area occupied by July 4 booths, and apparently in the presence of several persons. Detective Scott told Commonwealth's Attorney James R. Allen that he has not had an opportunity to talk to either of the wounded men.

There was a lot full of people, and nobody saw anything," he commented. 'There was some sort of argument between Stumbo and Howard, and both apparently had been drinking," he

16 of 91 Candidates File Primary Reports

If anything is to be learned from the financial reports which are supposed to be filed with the county clerk by candidates in the May primary, it is that, comparatively few appear to take the reporting law seriously.

Of the 91 candidates who vied for office in this county, only 16-generally candidates for countywide office-filed the required three reports with the county clerk. The reporting deadline was June 25.

Magoffin Flood Damage Heavy

Floyd county escaped a second flood in a period of weeks during the weekend, but its Emergency & Rescue Squad did not escape flood duty as neighboring Salyersville and Magoffin areas along the Licking River and tributaries suffered heavy damage. Squad members were called to Salyersville Monday morning to assist with the evacuation of families from homes that had been flooded or were threatened by fast-rising water.

Between three and four inches of rain fell during Sunday night in that area, extending on into Morgan and Menifee counties

Although Salyersville was the center of rescue activities, farmlands, roads, bridges and crops along smaller streams which empty into the Licking suffered heavier damage.

In Salyersville water rose about three feet in the business district, and perhaps 75 homes were flooded. Many others were evacuated as the water rose till Monday afternoon. Salversville Mayor Tim Bostic declared a state of emergency, early Monday, and state troopers joined National Guardsmen in maintaining a destroyed. State Adj. Gen. Billy S. Wellman, who was in Salversville an hour after Bostic had called on Governor Brown for help, was quoted as saying at least 30 homes in Magoffin county were swept from their foundations. He had made no estimate of the overall damage, Monday afternoon.

Congressman Carl D. Perkins early Monday called on President Reagan and Governor Brown to declare the flooded counties a disaster area. A similar plea after the flooding of parts of this county last month was fruitless, except for the offer of loans by the Small Business Administration.

David Group Joins Mineral Rights Suit

The David Community Development Corporation has recently joined two other citizen groups in seeking to file a "friend of the court" brief in an Indiana land case to be decided by the U.S. Supreme Court.

At issue in the case is the constitutionality of an Indiana statute which provides that, where mineral rights have been severed from surface rights by the so-called "broad-form" deed, the mineral rights pass to the surface owner if the mineral owner fails to use the property over a period of 20 years. Under the law, the mineral owner is considered to be "using" the property as long as he is paying taxes on it.

By conservative estimate, according to the brief, title to the minerals underlying 90 percent of the land in this county is severed from the surface title by broad-form deeds.

Under existing Kentucky law, it is argued, it is impracticable and sometimes impossible for surface owners to secure title to abandoned mineral interests underlying their property. The effect is that "once (the mineral estate) is severed, that severance is perpetual whether or not mining activity takes place on the property or taxes are paid.

'This creates a perpetual cloud on the title of the surface owner even when the minerals have already been mined out," the brief contends.

Noting that only mineral owners who do not pay taxes are affected by the Indiana statute, the citizen groups argue that non-payment of taxes and a restricted tax base in eastern Kentucky "(have) meant that essential public services are below average.'

Moreover, the existence of abandoned mineral estates hinders development of the surface, since lenders are reluctant to invest-in housing projects, for example-on property from which the mineral rights have been

The David citizens' group purchased 800 surface acres in David in 1975, in an area that has previously been mined. An attempt by the group last year to construct a 48-unit apartment complex there was thwarted, it is claimed, because of the group's inability to secure waivers from the 27 unknown owners of the mineral rights.

The Concerned Citizens of Martin County and Save Our Cumberland Mountains, a Tennessee-based citizens' group, are also seeking to join the suit. Motion to file the brief was prepared by John Rosenberg and David Rubinstein, of the Appalachian Research and Defense Fund, a Prestonsburg-based legal services agency, and Candy A. Culin, representing Save Our Cumberland Mountains.

Tackett-McKinney Vows Said

The marriage of Miss Denise Maureen Tackett to Mr. Shannon Ray McKinney was solemnized in a doublering ceremony at 1 p.m. Saturday, May 23, at the Vogel-Day Methodist Church at Harold. The officiating minister was Bill Tackett, of East McDowell.

Roses were placed on either side of the altar and the arch was entwined with greenery secured by white satin bows. Flowers were also placed on the organ at which Miss Lora Hardwick, of Betsy Layne, played nuptial music, including the selections, "We've Only Just Begun," "Three Times A Lady," and "You Decorated My Life.

The bride, escorted to the altar by her father and given in marriage by her parents, wore a gown of Chantilly lace and sheer chiffon, fashioned with a low V neckline with layers of ruffled chiffon and sheer puffed sleeves, gathered at the wrists and draping the hands with a layer of Chantilly lace. A layered bouffant skirt extended into a chapel-length train in back. Her headpiece was a Chantilly lace band to which was attached a chapel-length veil of two tiers edged in matching lace. She carried a colonial bouquet of white roses, daisies, and baby's breath accented by long white satin ribbons.

Election Battle Moves To Court (From The Salversville Independent)

The heated battle between Kay Martin Doyle and Marcus Mann for the democratic nomination for county attorney will move into the courtroom later this month as both sides try to prove the other guilty of illegal campaign tactics.

A full jury trial is set for Monday, July 13, in Magoffin County Ciurcuit Court. Judge John Chris Cornett has disqualified himself from the case since Doyle is his niece. The case will be heard by special judge Calvin Manis of the Perry County Circuit Court.

Mann, who lost his bid for another term as county attorney to Doyle in the May primary, initiated the legal action in attempt to overturn the election results and have himself declared the winner. He charges Doyle with illegally securing votes through fraud and misrepresentation, particularly in the Bloomington, Ward II, and Lakeville precincts.

Mann requests that the court rule that the vote in Ward II and Lakeville, which Doyle won by a total of 95 votes, be thrown out. However, he asks that a new vote be held in the Bloomington precinct, which Mann won by 98 votes, since 40-75 persons were standing in line and not allowed to vote when the polls closed.

Mann claims that most of those unable to vote were his supporters. However, it is doubtful that had all these persons voted that Mann could have picked up enough votes to change the outcome. A partial survey by the Independent indicated that at least 25 percent of the persons known to have not voted are Republicans and could not have voted in the Doyle-Mann race. Doyle won the contest by 61 votes.

favor, he must not only prove that Doyle is guilty of the alleged acts but also that he is innocent of any wrongdoing in attempt to secure votes.

Doyle has filed a courtersuit to Mann's claims alleging that Mann did in fact violate the law in obtaining votes. Her suit charges that Mann 'flagrantly violated all the provisions of the Corrupt Practice Act by actually giving his money to people for their support in the campaign namely in each and every precinct in Magoffin County, and that on numerous occasions he displayed $20 bills stating "that was the way to get votes."

No Conflict of Interest?

How can it be argued that there is no conflict of interest when W. T. Young serves the state of Kentucky as vicechairman of the governor's cabinet and as deputy secretary of commerce, and yet retains his position as the largest stockholder in Humana, Inc., which recently won a tug-ofwar with other hospital interests?

Humana, admittedly, is a leader in the field of hospital services. It may be needed in parts of Kentucky where it has not yet shown an interest (in Floyd county, for instance). But this does not justify the string of events (or coincidences, as some describe what has happened) that has resulted, at least in part, from the support thrown to Humana by this highranking member of Governor Brown's cabinet.

Humana sought state approval of its proposal to build a 170-bed hospital in Lexington. Despite the opposition of other hospitals there, which argue that the enlargement of their facilities would meet the needs of the public, and despite the opposition of the Department for Human Resources,

Mr. Young was one of those who lobbied for Humana. The State Certificate of Need and Licensure Board barely approved the new hospital, by a 7-6 vote.

That was followed last week by Governor Brown's moratorium on hospital expansion in Lexington and Louisville. His expressed interest in hospital facilities for smaller cities and parts of Kentucky that have been neglected is encouraging, but his expansion "freeze" till December, 1983 incidentally killed off the plans of hospitals such as St. Joseph and Good Samaritan in Lexington to build on more space for needed acute care beds.

Perhaps the Humana victory and the freeze on competing hospitals were coincidental, as Dr. Grady Stumbo has said, but it would have been more so to the ordinary citizen, had not Humana's heaviest stockholder been so prominent in state government and so active in the effort behind the big winners in the struggle.

No reason was given for Judge Conley's disqualification.

Before disqualifying, Judge Conley granted a defense request that Patrick be taken to the forensic section of Central State Hospital, Louisville, for psychological examination. The order was entered June 26, and this examination provided the basis for the motion for a continuance of the trial.

It was pointed out by the defense that Central State has a waiting list of 48 and that the average stay there for an examination such as Patrick will undergo is 28 days and, consequently, cannot be completed in time for the August 3 trial.

Deputy Hall allegedly refused to enforce or failed to enforce alcoholic beverage laws as they pertain to dry and local option territories in 1979-1981, according to the indictment which also charged that Hall and Anderson visited the home of Douglas McArthur Conley on Rockfork to discuss the matter. The indictment read that on six to eight dates Hall received from $125 to $200 from bootleggers in return for protection and the privilege to continue to sell illegal beverages in the county, and charged that on 20 different dates between January 1979 and December 1980, he received sums of money from Haskell "Gib" Hall, of Mousie.

The indictment further alleged that on January 12, 1980, Hall had a conversation with Nero Patton and Harry Wicker, a former sheriff's deputy, discussing the possibility of establishing a bootlegging operation. Wicker was acting at the request of federal agents, it was said.

A Warning To Others

I am writing this hoping it will help someone else not to be fooled and cheated.

Recently a man came to my trailer just as I arrived home from a morning of vacation Bible School. He said he would like to paint my trailer roof. He said he had paint left over from another job and it needed to be used. The labor would be free. I would only need to pay for the paint. When he was up on the roof he said it would take two coats. I asked him not to put two coats on it as I couldn't afford it. He was finished in 25 minutes. Then he told me it took 12 gallons of paint. My roof is only 12 X 53. I knew it didn't take 12 gallons, as I had it painted before. I told him so. Then he said I had to put two coats on it. I reminded him I told him not to put two coats on it. He said, I made a mistake. The end result was, I paid him $105. He wanted $175. I still paid him too much. Three gallons of paint covers my roof. He charged me for seven. A neighbor let him paint his roof. His roof is smaller than mine. He charged him $180. The name he gave me is Jim Sherlock. He drives a tan pickup truck. He uses a sprayer. So the Middle Ages," he said. "Hopefully, next time we'll move into the modern Hospital workers will now earn a minimum of $3.80 an hour and all present employees will be earning at least $4.18 by next July, Woodruff said. Workers will receive two percent longevity increases after two, five and eight years' service and three percent increases after 11 and 14 years. The 50 percent wage-and-benefit increase won in Tuesday's contract represents a compromise between the 0 percent originally offered by the hospital and the 70 percent sought by the union.

About 280 members of Local 1199 of the National Union of Hospital and Health Care Employees went on strike March 25. The workers, about 80 percent of whom are women, cited a lack of retirement benefits and a seniority system and also claimed that 75 percent of them earned only the national minimum wage of $3.35 an hour

The 137-bed hospital has remained open, operated by about a third of its normal staff, but daily occupancy has been down to about 20 to 30 patients throughout the strike.

Assails Buckley Petition

Recently I received a petition from John S. Buckley, Public Advocate, Washington, D. C., asking me to sign and return it along with a contribution to help abolish the Department of Education. I was aghast at the untruths concerning our public schools that this man is sending across the nation to unsuspecting citizens. I was also angered, knowing that I have a son and daughter-in-law who are both dedicated teachers in the public school system as well as faithful workers in the church. I was also angered because I had spent all the years my children were growing up being in the P. T. A. and helping in whatever way I could to improve the public school system, not abolish it. In fact, to put it mildly, when I received the above-mentioned Petition I was "steaming". So, in order to keep from "blowing a gasket," so to speak, I thought it better to write a few letters and send them where hopefully they might do some good and thus let a little steam off gradually

I, for one, do not believe that our schools are teaching that homosexuality is normal and "free love" permissible, nor that our schools are planning to have Lesbian Clubs, as this supposedly "public advocate" is suggesting they are doing. It is possible that in some large school districts there may have crept in "ultra liberals" who would try to institute such teachings, but I certainly have heard nothing of this nature in our own area or in the State of Kentucky for that matter.

Instead of blaming the public school system, we should become acquainted with the problems confronting the school officials and let our school board members and our superintendent know how we feel on the various issues and try to work with them, not against them, for the betterment of the schools. We as parents and interested citizens are welcome to visit the schools and observe what is being taught and how it is being presented. I did so many times when my children were growing up and so noted the needs of the schools and the problems with which the teachers were confronted, and in so doing I not only answered my own questions about my child's education but it proved to the teacher and to my child that I cared. Then I went to work through the P.T.A. to help in whatever way I could.

We all realize that our schools have problems, oftentimes financial and many times disciplinary, the latter usually caused by lack of parental guidance in the home. When children are brought up to respect their parents and the rights of others and taught that school is the place to learn and not a place to "goof off," then teachers and school officials will have fewer problems and our young people will grow into mature, responsible adults. Remember that even before our public school teachers become acquainted with our children, we have already had the little ones approximately six years in the home, which, according to psychology, is the most important training period in a child's life. So, please don't blame our schools for what we as parents have failed to do. We can't expect miracles from a teacher with a room full of our mistakes.

If our public school system is abolished, what do we have as an alternative? I can think of absolutely no advantage a private school might have over public education except possibly smaller classes and more individual attention. Our public schools might also have that advantage, in fact it was asked for by our State Superintendent during the last Legislature, if we would be willing to set aside more of our tax money for education, knowing that our children are our hope for tomorrow.

Now you can readily see how Mr Buckley's Petition "set me off". I would hope that if anyone reading this letter has received such a Petition, he or she would please toss it into the garbage can where it rightfully belongs.

Floyd Humane Soc. Advises Added Pet Care During Summer

With summer being the traditional time for vacations and a variety of other outdoor activities, pet owners should take extra care that their animals are being properly watched and cared for during this time, advises the Floyd County Humane Society.

"This is the time many of us go places-boating, swimming, the annual vacation-and pets are often left in basements or similar places," a spokesman for the Society pointed out. "We want to urge everyone to be sure that someone looks out for the pet while the owner or family is away

The Society also stressed the dangers of leaving pets in cars for extended periods of time during hot weather and urged owners to provide for some ventilation when leaving the

Our Fragile Earth

By DR. JERRY HOWELL Department of Biological and Environmental Sciences Morehead State University

(This installment is a reprint of an article that originally appeared during the week of January 30, 1978. It is being reprinted because of its timeliness.)

The last article discussed some comments made by William K. Reilly, President of the Conservation Foundation, in an October, 1977 presentation to the Appalachian Regional Commission's Conference on Balanced Growth and Economic Development. Although generally optimistic, Mr. Reilly cautioned the audience to be wary and learn from past mistakes. He advised against absentee landowners and investment companies, presently an Appalachian reality.

Environmentally, Mr. Reilly said that the predicted increase in coal production will cause a substantial increase in Appalachian air pollution. He advised against lowering regional air quality standards because this would tend to make the impact greater. He said emphasis should be placed on desulfurizing coal before and during the burning process.

He observed that Appalachian timber resources could eventually be as important as coal and that because 60 percent of Appalachian land is forested, proper timber management practices must be put into effect now to meet the increased demand for wood products in the future. Timber, pulpwood and veneer stock trees are now lagging behind their potential simply because of the land ownership pattern. Two thirds of Appalachian forested land is in privately owned parcels of less than 50 acres. Because of this checkerboard pattern and the existing marginal economic potential for wood products, little interest in forest improvement practices can be generated among small landowners, especially when the final crop may not be harvested for thirty or forty years.

Reilly's thesis is that small woodlots should take over most of the region's timber production, leaving national forests the freedom to provide other services, such as recreation and wildlife conservation. One way to accomplish this objective is to increase the number and quality of forestry programs geared to the private landowner. He advocates an increase in cost sharing programs, tax breaks for forest improvements, and allowing the price of timber to rise to its real market value. The latter recommendation hinges on the willingness of public forest managers, primarily the U.S. Forest Service, to stop harvesting high percentages of mature sound trees, thus saving some for future years. This would increase the cost of quality lumber, but the resultant increase in economic potential would provide an incentive for small landowners to properly practice forest management. Of course, the issue is more complicated than Mr. Reilly discloses, primarily because of the method's inefficiency and the possible loss from timber decaying on the stump, but his suggestion does deserve discussion.

Conservation Essay Poster Contests Set

"Fish and Wildlife Management in my Community" will be the subject of the 1981 Conservation Essay Contest and the 1981 Jim Claypool Conservation Poster Contest sponsored by The Courier-Journal and The Louisville

The annual competitions, open to all Kentucky elementary and high school students, may be the largest conservation-oriented contests for school children in the United States. In 1980 over 45,000 essays were written on "Trees and My Community." More than 52,000 posters were made on the

The essay contest is in its 38th year, and over 1.5 million essays have been written by students on various conservation subjects since its inception. This will be the ninth year for the poster contest which is open to students in grades one through six. In it, students are asked to make original posters with the subject of the competition as the theme of the posters. Awards of $175 in U.S. Savings Bonds will be awarded to three state winners by the two Louisville daily newspapers. Winners in 121 Conservation Districts will receive plaques.

In the essay contest, students in grades seven through twelve are asked to write essays of no more than 1,000 words. The top award winners-121 district winners and three state winners-will receive $6,850 in savings bonds from the Louisville newspapers.

Co-sponsors of the contests, along with The Courier-Journal and The Louisville Times, are the Kentucky Association of Conservation Districts and the Kentucky Department of Education. The 1981 competition will begin in September. Detailed information and reference material for the two contests will be sent to principals of all schools in Kentucky at that time.

Three Keys To Successful Aging

Three factors-perceived good health, economic security, and a spouse of perceived equal physical capability-predict more than anything else feelings of well-being and optimism after age 60.

The well-being of the over-60 population depends more on perceived physical and financial health and a spouse of perceived equal physical capability than on age, contact with other family and friends, organized recreation or government handouts.

The findings, from a study sponsored by the Americana Healthcare Corporation, show that a majority of those 60 years of age and older have annual household incomes of $8,000 or more. Almost three-quarters of them, however, say that spiraling inflation is making their money worthless and life difficult.

Money Squeeze

Nearly all of the people in the study say they are suffering from increasing financial pressures due to today's inflationary economy; only eight percent claim to be completely inflationary unaffected by pressures.

Such pressures (along with lack of a spouse of perceived equal physical capability), are second only to health as a determinant of overall feelings of well-being among the aged.

Almost all senior citizens are feeling an economic crunch; more than two-thirds tend to see a bleak financial future. For every person reporting an improved financial status last year, more than four say that their personal financial situation worsened.

Although economic pressures are putting the squeeze on the vast majority of senior citizens, they are not cutting back on medical or dental care or good nutrition. But they are looking for lower prices and lesser quality in the supermarkets.

Strong Self-reliance

Regardless of their personal financial condition, most of those 60 years of age and older ignore many available ways to stretch their incomes through federal and local government assistance, professional counseling and reinvestment of

Only one of every 10 older persons questioned says he or she applied for food stamps, disability or other government funds last year. The reason, the study suggests, may be the strong sense of self-reliance expressed by most of the elderly surveyed.

Most senior citizens imply that they feel self-sufficient, independent and reluctant to turn to government or community programs not only for financial aid, but even for companionship and recreation.

These feelings, the study says, appear to reflect a broad lack of confidence in government. Threequarters of the senior citizens participating in the study say that the federal government wastes a lot of tax dollars and is run by a few big interests who look out only for themselves.

Of those worried about their finances, two-thirds say that the government is doing a poor job in attending to the needs of the elderly.

Sixty-two percent of those contacted doubt that the people running the government know what they are doing. And more than half do not think that government can even be trusted to do what is right.

Other Key Findings

· Chronological age is not a factor in determining a sense of well-being and optimism.

· Widows as a group have the most difficulty coping.

· Senior citizens watch no more television than people in general; the majority watches three hours a day or less.

· Nearly three-quarters report not participating in any organized groups or social organizations.

· Senior citizen enthusiasm is high, however, for individual special interests and hobbies. More than four-fifths direct their creative energies to such pastimes.

· Those with more education tend to report much better health and economic security.

Overall, the study finds that one out of every five noninstitutionalized senior citizens are "casualties" of the complexities of daily living and the particular difficulties that accompany aging. More than half are 'survivors." And nearly three out of 10 are "enjoyers" of their old

But senior citizen women, the study reveals, are doing far less well than the men. Although they outnumber men in their age group nearly three to two, they make up three out of four of the "casualties," 61 percent of the "survivors;" and only 46 percent of the "enjoyers."

Women, according to the study, are more likely to be widowed and generally report lower financial assets and much lower income than men in their age group; both these factors work severely against feelings of well-being.

The "casualties" of aging, 20 percent of all senior citizens, are those hardest hit by the difficulties of old age, according to the study. They are undergoing the aging process without any of the positive supports required for high morale.

"Mountain Tales"

Roadside Theater and June Appal Recordings have produced a record of Appalachian stories and music called 'Mountain Tales.' The stories are especially for children-and anyone else who enjoys hearing tales of giants, narrow escapes, fantastic journeys, and rousing adventures. The tales on the record were collected in eastern Kentucky and southwest Virginia and some of them came directly from the families of Roadside Theater members. Roadside Theater tells the tales in its unique storytelling style. Some of the tales on the album are: "Fat or Lean," "Jim Wolfe," "Fat Man," and "Cat and Rat." There is also fiddle and banjo music between the stories, and featured on jaw harp is Jack Wright with a rendition of "Thousand Legged Worm."

"Mountain Tales" has received air play on the radio everywhere from Knoxville to Detroit, to Santa Cruz. The record and an interview with Angelyn DeBord, a Roadside Theater storyteller, was recently featured on National Public Radio's "All Things Considered." The record with an interview will soon be featured on N.P.R.'s other popular show, "Morning Ediperformance in Prestonsburg, July 9.) Roadside Theater and June Appal Recordings are both a part of the arts and educational organization, Appalshop, Inc. in Whitesburg, Kentucky and Norton, Virginia. Roadside Theater is partially funded by the National Endowment for the Arts, the Virginia Commission for the Arts, the Kentucky Arts Commission, and the

THE CARNIVAL WAS IN TOWN through the July Fourth holiday, complete with spinning rides, games you knew you couldn't win but played anyway, "spook" houses you knew wouldn't be at all scary but blew half a dollar on, and a staggering variety of junk food you knew you shouldn't eat but just couldn't pass up. All of it, combined with the mingled smells of sawdust and cotton candy, was enough to evoke childhood memories in the most "grown up" of adults.

"KNOW YOUR BIBLE"

IS THERE ANYTHING IN A NAME?

Last week we learned, when one studies the Bible and obeys the Gospel, he becomes a christian.

There is a three-fold purpose in the names God has given us to wear: (1) In them Christ and God are honored. "But if a man suffer as a Christian, let him not be ashamed; but let him glorify God in this name." (I Peter 4:15) Human names honor men and organizations, while the name Christian honors the Lord. (2) In Bible names there is unity. A trail of division and discord has come with the use of denominational names. But no follower of Christ objects to the name Christian, so why not wear it alone? It would not be possible to unite all men under the name of any man, whether it is found in or out of the Bible, but under the name of Christ we can all be one! (3) The name Christian is an honorable name. (James 2:7). this is why Paul pursuaded men to be Christians. (Acts 26:28). The church is the bride of Christ. (Eph. 5:26-27). The bride rejoices to honor the name of her husband by wearing his name alone!

JW Theatre Director Shea Finds Work Hectic, But a Challenge

As the curtain went up for the 1981 Summer Season at the Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre Wednesday evening, Artistic Director Maureen Shea finally got time to breathe.

She no longer has to contend with the problems of casting the theatre's 22 actors in the show's 60 roles, or with the difficulties of trying to deal with the show's complicated staging. She is free from the problems of trying to work out the strict rehearsal schedules that are necessary to do such a show.

But, Maureen has begun it all over again with rehearsals for the Jenny Wiley production of OKLAHOMA!

Although some might think that this type of work schedule is a gruesome form of punishment, Maureen does not see it that way at all. Instead, it represents a challenge for her to over-

For example, when she was asked how she was able to handle the problem of having one-third of the number of actors needed to fill all the roles in GEORGE M!, she said that the solution was simple: "quadruple casting." That is, she assigns some lucky actor with the rather tough assignment of playing up to four roles throughout one performance.

"That's a little crazy," Maureen said. "It's a matter of trying to remember who has a costume change, when they have the change, and when they appear as a major character so that they can come on later and not be recognized as the previous character.'

Thus far, she said, her staging of the show using this "quadruple role" system has gone fairly well, with only "one or two actors" finding that they have been staged into two places at one

The other major challenge she has faced with GEORGE M! is that it was really written to be perfored on a regular indoor stage, with conventional backdrops, movable scenery and a curtain. Because the Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre is an outdoor theatre, those conveniences are not

"What we have had to do is actually rewrite some of the scenes so that we don't need the drops and curtain," she said. "We have had to try to move some things around to make the show work better outdoors.

Maureen's background makes her well suited to take on the challenges that are offered by this summer's productions. A native of Boston, she is currently a professor in the Theatre department at the Virginia Polytechnic Institute at Blacksburg, Virginia. She obtained her doctorate in Theatre from Ohio State University.

Throughout her career, whe has directed production of DRACULA, PICNIC, A VIEW FROM THE BRIDGE, and many more.

Her most impressive credits, however, come from the Eugene O'Neill Theatre Center in Waterford, Conn., where, each year, the National Playwright's Conference is held. Maureen's work in directing there has received glowing comments from critics from The Detroit Free Press. The Philadelphia Bulletin and The New York Post.

An example of Maureen's work at its best came at last year's conference with her staging of Sybille Pearson's new play A LITTLE GOING AWAY PARTY, Pearson, the author of SAL-LY AND MARSHA, a new show scheduled to open on Broadway sometime this fall, was quite impressed with Shea's work.

She was so impressed that when the chance came to negotiate for the production of A LITTLE GOING AWAY PARTY in New York, either on Broadway or Off Broadway, Pearson would only enter into negotiations on the condition that Maureen Shea be permitted to direct the production.

Maureen's co-workers are equally lavish with their praise for her work. Tony Distler, who is directing the Jenny Wiley production of GODSPELL and THE ROAR OF THE GREASE-PAINT-THE SMELL OF THE CROWD, calls her "extremely

BUILDING HOMES FOR PEOPLE

"She is really getting to be well known as a director", he said. "Playwrights have now begun to seek her out for their show.

Maureen is equally complimentary. She has nothing but the highest praise for this season's cast at Jenny Wiley. She said she is amazed at their ability to hold up under the sometimes awesome rehearsal schedule that is required this summer.

Schedules in summer theatre are no bed of roses. After staging GEORGE M! and OKLAHOMA! for Jenny Wiley, she will travel to Waterford for this year's National Playwright's Conference. After the conference, she will return to Prestonsburg for the remainder of the season with the Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre.

Despite the long hours and tight rehearsal schedules, she enjoys the shows as much as the audiences who come to see them. For example, she described GEORGE M! as "big music, fun music and fun choreography." The end result, according to Maureen should be quite simply, "a great show

Music Theatre Group To Give Blood, July 14: Bank Week Is Scheduled

The Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre production crew will be donating blood at the Municipal building here, Tuesday, July 14. The public is invited to come and watch them entertain. They are performing July 13 through July 18 will be First Commonwealth Bank Week. This group has been a regular and faithful supporter of the local donor station.

You can give a pint of blood on Thursdays and Saturdays at the Municipal building.

The Blood Center points out:

Summer often finds blood in short supply due to fewer donations and more accidents requiring blood. With vacations, picnics and camping trips, many regular donors get caught up in these activities and forget to donate.

The need for blood is ever-present. Warm weather holidays are especially rough. The blood supply reaches critically low levels, with industries and schools closed and vacations keeping regular donors from giving.

The persistent rains of the last couple of months disrupted spring fishing all over the state, but those storm clouds do have a silver lining, according to Pete Pfeiffer, acting director of fisheries for the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources

'Generally, a wet spring means better than average spawning success and survival," Pfeiffer says. "So while anglers may be experiencing poor fishing conditions right now because of high and muddy waters, we can very likely look forward to some good fishing a couple of years down the road, when this year's crop of fish reaches harvestable size.

During wet years, Pfeiffer explains, more nutrients are washed into our watersheds than during dry periods. These nutrients help increase the fertility of lakes and streams, which benefits all creatures up the food chain.

A lot of rain also means higher lake levels and more shoreline cover available for fry to hide in. This decreases predation on the justhatched fish, meaning that more can survive to grow to catching size.

So while these rains may be playing havoc with your current angling plans, they are also very likely bringing better fishing in the future

And hunters who peek behind the rain clouds can see a silver lining of their own, too. The more days of rain we have, the more quail are produced, according to Jim Durell, an assistant director in the fish and wildlife department's wildlife division.

"High humidity seems to stimulate quail egg production and helps the eggs hatch," Durell says.

Another feature of a wet year that helps both quail and rabbit production is that weather forces delays in hay cutting. "Every day farmers are forced to put off haying means more and more young quail and rabbits are able to leave the nest and get out of harm's way when mowing does start.'

'Generally speaking," Durell says, 'what farmers call an excess of rain is about the right amount for just about all wildlife.

There is such a thing, however, as too much rain for wildlife. Heavy downpours or flooding will drown both young rabbits and quail chicks, so we might have lost production in some parts of the state from too much rain. Quail will nest again if their first brood is destroyed and rabbits keep reproducing all summer (rain or shine), so there's still a lot of potential breeding season left for both species.

Write Deer Hunt, Building S-14, Lexington Blue Grass Army Depot Activity, Lexington, Ky. 40511 for full details on application procedures.

Growth in their child's height and weight are high on the priority list of parental interests. Mothers and fathers write and speak with great pride about the birth length and weight of their babies. The average newborn baby measures about 21 inches and weighs about 7 pounds. Throughout the period of infancy, growth is very rapid. During the first year, the average male child tends to grow nearly ten inches in height and triples his birth weight. Bear in mind, however, that departures from the average are not in any way abnormal.

Here at COOLEY APOTHECARY, INC., we don't play doctor but we do render assistance, offer alternatives to a problem, and advise when first aid is appropriate. Ky. Has 30 Earthquakes a Year!

Did you know Kentucky has approximately 30 earthquakes per year? Did you know this state had one of the most violent earthquakes in recorded history? Do you know what to do in the event of an earthquake?

These questions will be answered at a seminar on earthquakes at Kentucky Dam Village Park Civic Center, Friday, July 10, beginning at 9 a.m. The seminar is sponsored by the Kentucky League of Women Voters in cooperation with the state division of disaster and emergency services.

Kentuckians have been very aware of floods and tornadoes because of their frequency in the past years, but last July's earthquake centered near Maysville caused $.5 million damage and was only moderate in intensity.

The most seismically active region in North America is the New Madrid zone, of which Western Kentucky is a

Several earthquake experts are scheduled to participate in the seminar. State officials from the disaster and emergency services division will talk about preparedness for tremors, recovery and the problems an earthquake presents to local communities and counties.

Kentucky does have a number of tremors each year. The major series of

NOTICE OF INTENTION TO MINE

1. In accordance with the provisions of KRS 350.055, notice is hereby given that: Triple Elkhorn Mining Co., Inc. P. O. Box 140, Ivel, Kentucky 41642 intends to file an application for the surface disturbance mining of approximately 137.0 acres located south of Banner in Floyd County. The proposed operation is approximately one mile south of State Route 1426's junction with U. S. 23, and located west of Prater Creek, latitude 37º 34' 11", longitude 82° 42' 49". The surface of the area to be mined is owned by: Tom Hamilton, B. F. Reed, H. L. Bryant, Burton Conn, Vernan Elliott, Gertrude Sammons, Mexico Spears, Minnie Prater, Scottie Crumb, Evert Crisp, Tandy Sammons, Tom Conn, Norman Martin, Mousie Dingus. A brief description of the kind of mining activity proposed is: Mountain top removal, area stripping, contour stripping with hollow fills. The application will be filed at the Bureau of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement, Prestonsburg Area Office, Prestonsburg, Kentucky 41653.

Persons wishing to file written objections and/or request a formal administrative hearing in regard to the above described surface mine should notify the Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection within 30 days of the date of this notice. A copy of the newspaper clipping must be attached to the written objection. The objection or request for a hearing will reference application number 036-0068. Such objection or request must be in accordance with KRS 224.081 (2), and must be forwarded to the Director of Permits, Bureau of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement, Capital Plaza Tower, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601.

2. Notice is hereby provided pursuant to 30 CFR 715.13 (d) (10) and KRS: 350 that the proposed post mining land use does not constitute a change in land use. Public comment regarding a proposed change in land use may be submitted to the address listed above.

earthquakes that struck the Mississippi Valley in the winter of 1811 and 1812 sent 1,874 separate tremors strong enough to be felt in the Louisville area and created the 23,000-acre Reelfoot Lake in Northwestern Tennessee.

Knowing what to do in the event of an earthquake should be handled in two phases, the shaking and after the shaking. During the shaking: don't panic. The motion is frightening, but unless it shakes something down on top of you, it is harmless. If it catches you indoors, stay indoors and take cover under a desk, table or in doorways and against inside walls. Stay away from glass.

If a quake catches you outside, move away from buildings and utility wires. If you are in a car, stop and stay in the vehicle until the shaking stops.

After the shaking: check your utilities, but do not turn them on because the water, gas or electrical conduits may be cracked. If you smell gas, open windows and shut off the main valve, then leave the building and do not re-enter it until a utility official says it is safe.

Turn on your radio to get the latest emergency bulletins. Don't go sightseeing, and stay off the telephone except for emergency messages. Stay out of damaged buildings because aftershocks can shake them down.

Aside from structural damage and collapse, earthquakes are known to cause compound disasters such as fires from broken gas lines or floods due to broken dams. These problems will be addressed in the seminar.

Any interested citizen is invited to attend the seminar and to participate in the open forum in the afternoon.

He Deals in 'Top Secret' Matters

In a world dependent on telephones t.v.'s, instant replays and satellite broadcasts, the role of sophisticated communications technology is perhaps nowhere as vital as in matters of the military and national security. Terrance Turner is one Floyd county native who knows of the complexities of the field, firsthand.

With 19 years in the communications field with both the Air Force and Army, the 40-year-old Turner, son of Norma Turner, of Drift, and the late Linville (Bub) Turner, is now officer-incharge of the USACC-Ft. Gordon Telecommunications Center (TCC) at Martinez, Georgia.

As Turner explains, he and his staff are charged with relaying messages that could be termed "top secret." "We deal with highly classified information," he said, "therefore we must be secure."

"All messages that leave this communication center are encrypted. So, if our lines are tapped, the only thing that can be picked up is garbage," he explained.

Turner is on call 24 hours a day in case a message arises that is particularly important, and he said "we can have a one-page message out of the station in five minutes and received within minutes.'

His present position carries a great deal of responsibility but Turner is used to pressure. "As an Airman, I was assigned to the Communication Center in Washington, D. C. at the White House Communications Agency," he explained. "I was there under the Nixon Administration, and we were constantly dealing with the White House staff and other dignitaries, providing them with record communications. We had to be ready to travel at any time, and we did."

As part of his duties during those years, Turner travelled to the Soviet Union with Nixon, and through the Vietnam War served as a diplomatic courier, flying regularly to Texas to relay messages from Nixon to former President Lyndon B. Johnson concerning the progress of the military operations in Southeast Asia.

In addition to his already busy and oftentimes exciting role as communications officer at the Georgia installation, Turner plays an active role

PSC Seeks Changes In Gas Regulations

The chairman of the state Public Service Commission said the commission plans to meet with representatives from natural gas companies and consumer groups later this summer as the first step in changing some ways the commission regulates gas utilities.

In remarks prepared for delivery to the Kentucky Gas Association's annual convention at Lake Barkley Resort Lodge, PSC Chairman Marlin M. Volz said the procedural changes are necessary to reduce costs to the utilities and consumers.

Volz quoted a General Accounting Office study on electric utilities that stated, "Electric power projects and operations have been more costly as a result of changing regulatory requirement and delays and uncertainties associated with the regulatory pro-

"It is the goal of the Kentucky Public Service Commission," Volz said, "that such a finding not be applicable to it.' He invited the association members to select a committee to meet with the commission and representatives of appropriate consumer groups to recommend changes in procedures in at least seven areas. Those areas are:

-Reducing to as short a time as feasible the length of time required to process the various applications.

-Reducing the cost of notices to customers of proposed rate changes.

-Exploring the situations where informal hearings may be substituted for formal hearings without offending due

Determining whether additional matters can be decided on the basis of written submissions without a hearing. -Reducing duplicative requests for information by intervenors.

-Reducing the burden of submitting reports and other information to the commission.

-Reviewing the regulations of the commission and the state statutes.

While the changes could make some difference in costs, Bolz reminded the association that state commissions have limited authority over gas utilities and that most natural gas prices are under federal jurisdiction. State commissions, he said, are largely limited "to an examination of distribution costs and what level of service is considered to be adequate."

Agriculture Research Grants Awarded To Five Universities

The state Agriculture Department has awarded research grants totaling $50,000 to five state universities.

Receiving $10,000 each will be Eastern Kentucky University, Western Kentucky University, Murray State University, Kentucky State University and the University of Louisville, Commissioner Alben Barkley II said yesterday.

Barkley said Murray will study soil erosion, Western will conduct experiments with nursery facilities, Kentucky State will experiment with apple production, Louisville will experiment with urban gardening, and composition of wheat, soybeans and other crops.

During the Ice Age, the Sahara Desert was a rich grassland and hunting ground for prehistoric men.

Oil-Shale Mining Regulations Filed

The state Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection has filed draft regulations with the Legislative Research Commission for oil-shale mining in Kentucky

The regulations are designed to establish guidelines for protection of the environment from any harmful effects of oil-shale mining and processing, said special projects director Rich Shogren.

"These draft regulations are patterned on regulations which were developed for the mining of coal," Shogren said. "The regulatory procedures for oil-shale mining will be similar to those for coal mining.'

Shogren said the proposed regulations will require the submission of extensive data on current site conditions by mining permit applicants. Operators will also be required to provide periodic reports of environmental effects.

"We feel this monitoring is necessary because of the relatively unknown effects of oil-shale mining and the variety of mining and processing techniques which may be employed," he added.

Under the draft regulations, any oilshale mining operations which will produce more than 1,000 barrels of oil a day or disturb more than 25 acres of land per year will be required to demonstrate the probable environmental impact of their operation before an operating permit will be issued.

Operations which involve less than 1,000 barrels or 25 acres will be required to meet performance standards and procedural requirements set by the draft regulation.

The regulations propose that all permits be valid for two years or five years from the date of issuance, depending on the size of the operation.

Department officials said the draft regulations are expected to be published in the August issue of the Kentucky Administrative Register. After publication of the draft regulations, the Natural Resources Department will hold public hearings to receive comments on the regulations. The hearings are expected to be held in early fall. Dates, locations and times for the hearings will be printed in the Administrative Register.

While oil-shale outcroppings underlie most of Kentucky, the area gnerally thought to be of the greatest interest for commercial mining is that which surrounds the Bluegrass region. The area extends in a semicircle from Mason and Lewis counties in Northeastern Kentucky southwest to Madison and Lincoln counties and northwest to Nelson and Bullitt counties.

* Cancer Hopeline

Q-1 have lots of moles on my body Should I have them removed to prevent

A-Only about one mole in a million will ever turn cancerous. Most people have an average of 20-40 moles during their lifetime, so removing them all could be nearly impossible, certainly impractical. In addition, the removal of all moles is no guarantee against melanoma, the skin cancer which most often appears at the sight of a mole. The reason is that melanoma is just as likely to develop from clear skin as from moles.

Q-I have several fairly light-colored moles and two which are very dark. Will the dark ones become cancerous.

A-Many people believe that lightcolored moles are harmless and that dark ones are or can become cancerous. This is not true.

Harmless moles can vary in color from skin color through tan and brown to nearly black. The mole that may be malignant (cancerous) is one which changes color from what it has always

The best way to guard yourself against skin cancers is to be aware of how your skin normally looks, where the moles are located, and what size and color they are. Any change from what is usual should be reported to a physician immediately

To learn more about skin cancers, call the Cancer Hopeline at 1-800-432-9321 from 9-9 Monday-Thursday and 9-5 Friday. You may also write the Hopeline at 915 South Limestone Street, Lexington, KY 40563.

Q-I saw your recent column about the possible danger from using a sun lamp. My skin is fair, but I would like to get a tan in natural sunlight. What do you recommend.

A-The sun's rays provide us with light, warmth, and vitamin D, but they also can cause skin damage and skin cancer. Therefore, skin exposed to the sun needs extra care.

Burning ultra-violet rays of the sun travel through the outer layer of skin and damage delicate tissue. The resulting redness is sunburn. When the damage causes brownness, we call it suntan. Tanning occurs because the body sends colored pigment into the skin to help block the sun's rays and protect the inner tissues.

Most skin cancers occur on parts of the body exposed to the sun. Because of the natural dark pigment in their skins, people who have dark complexions are better protected against the burning rays of the sun than you are with fair

However, anyone, even a person with a dark complexion, can suffer skin damage from the sun. Unfortunately, the harm caused by the sun builds up throughout a person's lifetime. Thus, the skin "remembers" the damage, and suntans or sunburns as a teenager can result in rough, wrinkled skin+or even skin cancer at middle age.

Everyone can prevent skin damage and still enjoy the sun. Here's how:

-Go out into the sun, but dress for it. Clothes are protection against the burning rays. And don't forget a broadbrimmed hat to protect the tender tops of your ears, your nose, and your neck.

-If you want a tan, sun screen and sun block lotions, creams, and gels are available without a prescription. Use the sun screen products which contain PABA or bensophenone. They stop most of the burning rays. Sun blocks stop them all. Before using any skin care lotion, be sure to read and follow the directions. Some sun screen must be put on an hour before going outside, and some must be reapplied after swimming. Wear sun screens on cloudy days, too; clouds don't stop burning rays.

For more information about sun tanning and adult skin cancers, call the Cancer Hopeline at 1-800-432-9321 from 9-9 Monday-Thursday and 9-5 Friday. You also may write the Hopeline at 915 South Limestone Street, Lexington, KY

FLOYD COUNTY HEALTH NOTES

By JANE BOND

Cancer of the uterus can be one of the most curable of all cancers, yet approximately 11,000 women in this country die each year from this type cancer. The terrible tragedy of these 11,000 deaths is that most of them are needless. If the cancers had been detected early enough, and treatment begun, most of these 11,000 would have lived.

The test for cancer of the uterus is a simple procedure called the Pap test. It doesn't hurt, and it doesn't take much time. The Pap test can detect cancer and it can also reveal changes that could mean cancer will develop. Thus, the Pap test can warn of cancer before it even starts. The Pap test is not something a woman can have once and forget about +a Pap test once each year is the way to help protect women from cancer of the uterus

The Floyd County Health Department is offering a Pap clinic on July 10 and July 24 from 9 a.m. till 2 p.m. These clinics are a free service of the Floyd County Health Department, and any woman who has not had a Pap test in the past year is urged to take advantage of this service. A nurse from the Health Department will be in Wayland at the Methodist Church, Monday July 13, from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m., offering T. B. skin tests, immunizations, blood pressures, and urinalyses. The public is welcome to take advantage of this free service.

Junkyard Provides Setting For Summer Theatre Musical

Streetkids sing and dance on wrecked sportscars in a British junkyard, while two roving tramps play a "game" that is amusingly weighted in favor of one and against the other. This is THE ROAR OF THE GREASE-PAINT...THE SMELL OF THE CROWD, the third offering of Summer Season '81 at the Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre. The show opened July 1 at the Jenny Wiley State Park Amphitheatre.

This charming musical, written by Leslie Bricusse and Anthony Newley, joins GEORGE M!, the musical biography of George M. Cohan, and GODSPELL, the joyous, coloful adaptation of the Book of Matthew, both of which opened last week to enthusiastic audiences. Rodgers and Hammerstein's OKLAHOMA! opens Wednesday July 8.

THE ROAR OF THE GREASE-PAINT...THE SMELL OF THE CROWD is new to Jenny Wiley audiences, and is not produced very often, so this is an opportunity to see a fresh, new approach to a show whose hit songs include "On A Wonderful Day Like Today," "Feelin" Good," and Newley's very successful "Who Can I Turn To?"

The unique staging for GREASE-PAINT involves old cars and parts avenged from real junkyards, old caffolding, and a 30-foot crane. The cast sings and dances across this conglomeration as if it were a polished dance floor. Director Tony Distler and choreographer Steve Johnson have staged some truly memorable musical numbers. Johnson also appears as the forlorn but hopeful Cocky, recreating

the role which won him a nomination

for the Irene Ryan Acting Award

earlier this year.

The 1981 season runs through August 23 with shows nightly Wednesday through Sunday, at 8:30 p.m. In the event of rain, GODSPELL will be performed at the Prestonsburg Elementary School auditorium. Those holding tickets will have the option of attending GODSPELL or using their ticket as a raincheck good for any performance

Tickets may be reserved by calling 606-886-9274 or by writing: Box Office, Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre, P.O. Box 22, Prestonsburg, KY 41653, 10 a.m.-8:30 p.m. Wed.-Sun., and 10 a.m.-5 p.m., Mon.-Tuesday.

Scout Recruiting Drive Set Here

School Night For Scouting, a special program to enroll new cubs, scouts, and their parents, will be conducted throughout the central and eastern Kentucky area in late August and September. The School Nights are sponsored by the Blue Grass Council. Boy Scouts of America and will occur in every elementary school on designated evenings during this time period. Almost 400 schools in 50 counties will open their doors to allow new cubs and scouts to join. This is the fourth year for this coordinated effort and 3,500 youth joined last year. 3,800 new members are expected to join scouting this year during school night programs according to scout officials.

During each School Night program volunteer leaders will explain the cub and scout programs and enroll new members. Parents are asked to attend with their son in order to be informed concerning their son's scouting activities. Boys 8, 9, or 10 years old or in the third, fourth, or fifth grades may join cub scouting and those 11 years old or older or in the sixth grade may join scouting.

Kentucky Power In New Expansion Bid

Kentucky Power Company recently asked the Public Service Commission for approval to acquire additional generating capacity to serve the future needs of its 140,000 customers in eastern Kentucky.

The Ashland-based utility filed an application with the PSC for a certificate of public convenience and necessity which would allow the company to acquire a 15 percent interest in a 2.6-million kilowatt coal-fired generating plant being constructed by an affiliate utility at Rockport, Indiana at an estimated total cost of more than $2 billion. Kentucky Power's corresponding share of the plant's generation would be 390,000 kilowatts and would cost an estimated $311 million.

The Rockport plant is being built by Indiana & Michigan Electric Company, another subsidiary of the American Electric Power System. The first of the two 1.3-million kw units is scheduled to be operational in 1984 and the second unit in 1986. The plant is expected to burn a substantial amount of Kentucky coal.

Robert E. Matthews, president of Kentucky Power, said, "Today's high power plant construction costs make joint ownership especially desirable for a small company like ours because that's the way we can share in the economics of scale. It's one of the advantages of being part of a system like AEP in that costs can be shared with an affiliated company." He added that multiple ownership of a power plant is not a new concept among AEP companies. Matthews pointed out that multiple ownership will be an increasingly accepted way for electric utilities in the future.

In explaining the need for additional generation, the company's filing points out that the demand for electricity by its customers had increased by more than 10 percent per year over the past five years. The company forecasts the growth in demand for electricity will continue, although perhaps at a slower pace.

Kentucky Power Company can presently generate a total of 1,060,000 kilowatts at its Big Sandy plant near Louisa. The company predicts its load will exceed that amount, possibly as early as next winter. Last February the company's peak demand reached 984,000-kw.

Although the company previously sought and was denied ownership participation in the Rockport plant by the former Energy Regulatory Commission, today's filing states that circumstances have changed materially and warrant Kentucky Power Company's participation in the project.

Ky. Receives Grant For Mine Program

Kentucky last week received final approval for a $4.2 million operational grant from the U.S. Department of the Interior to continue enforcement of the state's present surface-mining reclamation program through December 1981

The grant, which became effective with the signing of an agreement between Office of Surface Mining officials and Natural Resources Secretary Jackie Swigart, will help Kentucky meet the additional cost of enforcing the 1977 Federal Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act.

Kentucky is currently operating under an interim program while developing a state plan to attain primacy-the authority to operate its own surface-mining enforcement pro-

State officials plan to submit a final draft primacy package for federal approval this fall.

The grant to be received by Kentucky will cover operational expenses from April 16, 1981, to Dec. 31, 1981. It is the fourth interim grant to be awarded Kentucky since passage of the federal act in 1977.

Federal grants to states for interim period expenses include funds for salary reimbursement, equipment, supplies and contractural services. When Kentucky is granted primary responsibility for surface-mining enforcement, it will be eligible to receive

A quick remedy for croup then was to roast a large-size onion and squeeze out the juice. The croupy child was required to drink this, and it often gave relief. Another oldtime remedy that got good results was the use of a poultice on the chest, both front and back. The poultice was made of mutton tallow and beeswax and one was plac-

* NATURE TRAILS

Nature's Remedies

By RUFUS M. REED PENNYROYAL.-I'd like for my readers to get better acquainted with that dainty little mint, pennyroyal, or, as the oldtimers called it, "pennyrile." It is one of the most useful plants found in nature and is one of the best insect repellants known. Fleas will hop ten feet high to escape the hot scent of pennyroyal. You can put oil of pennyroyal on your dogs and cats and the fleas will flee from them! You can wet a string with it, tie it around the neck of your pets and the fleas won't get on

A fresh-cut pennyroyal plant tied around the bedpost will repel bedbugs and mosquitoes. Oldtimers used to gather pennyroyal in the fall, tie it up in bunches and hang it up to keep for winter use. The tea made from it is a warm stimulant and a big help in sweating out a bad cold. In "Flora of W. Va.," Dr. Core says: "Pennyroyal is used as a stimulant and as an aid to digestion." You'll find patches of this plant growing in dry soils of old clearings and abandoned fields. It prefers thin acid soils and is a small, muchbranching plant with small, ovate leaves borne in pairs. The blooms are bluish-purple and appear in midsummer.

Pennyroyal was a highly favored plant of the Indians. They used the tea for colic and indigestion. It was regarded as a reliable remedy for colic in babies.. Pennyroyal and wild honey were mixed to make a tea for head colds. Indians also snuffed the strong scent to clear the nasal passages. Indian women used pennyroyal tea to relieve cases of painful menstruation.

Pennyroyal rubbed on the hands and face will repel chiggers and mosquitoes. The English of Queen Elizabeth's day used penyroyal tea to cure the gout.

"life everlasting." This is a fine medicinal plant with aromatic odor. It is a good remedy for colds. A tea for colds is made of pine twigs mixed with the dried leaves of rabbit tobacco.. This small plant is dainty and handsome, with white-felted leaves that are cottony underneath. After the first frost, the leaves dry up on the stalk and may be gathered then to keep for winter use. One of my most delightful larks as a boy was to smoke the cured leaves of rabbit tobacco with my buddies. We had many a smoke-fest out behind the old, gray barn. We also chewed the fragrant leaves and squirted mouthfuls of the rich, dark brown "ambeer." Back then I didn't know of the medical value of this plant, how it was useful in treating sore throat or irritation of the mucous membranes. "A Touch Of Churchill, A Touch Of Hitler: The Life of Cecil Rhodes" is the story of a complex leader and the empire he built during the last quarter of the 19th century. New York Times columnist Anthony Lewis, an expert in African politics, brings history up to date with the recent metamorphosis of Rhodesia into Zimbabwe in his introduction and final commentary.

Narrating the documentary is Kenneth Griffith, who wrote the story which begins with Rhodes' birth in England in 1853 and concludes with his death in South Africa in 1902. Griffith becomes an active participant in the story as he strides through Oxford University or the dry brush of what was once Matabeliland and Mashonaland.

At Oxford, Griffith recalls the lecture Rhodes heard by John Ruskin on the need to advance the power of England, the speech which inspired Rhodes to build an empire on the glory of his mother country and, in the process, his own power and wealth. He accomplished his mission in a style that few leaders have dared.

"A Touch Of Churchill, A Touch Of Hitler: The Life Of Cecil Rhodes" is a BBC production presented on KET by WGBH, Boston.

A happy day for Ron Howard when star is unveiled

Ron Howard will be honored by the Hollywood Chamber of Commerce August 19, when his star is added to the city's famous "Walk of Fame." Howard, under contract to NBC as an actor, writer, producer and director, will accept the honor on the 25th anniversary of his entrance into show business -at the

The Hollywood Historic Council, a division of the chamber of commerce, occasionally selects a member of the show business community to join the ranks of those who have a gold star imbedded in the sidewalks of the Hollywood business district—the area's version of the "Hall of Fame." Howard's star, which will be unveiled at ceremonies at noon on the 19th, will be in front of the Paramount Theatre, where his first motion picture, 'Music Man," premiered when he was 6.

Attending the ceremonies will be a representative of the mayor's office, who will present the talented young star with a City Council proclamation declaring "Ron Howard Day" in Los Angeles

Howard, who rose to national fame during his long television run on "The Andy Griffith Show," joined NBC fresh from his equally long run in ABC's "Happy Days" series. He has since been active in several NBC World Premiere movies, including "Skyward," which he directed, and "Bitter Harvest," in which he starred.

THE OTHER SIDE OF THE MOUNTAIN

Marilyn Hassett stars in "The Other Side of the Mountain," a fact-based drama about Jill Kinmont, the Olympic skiing hopeful who became paralyzed following an accident. The 1975 Universal Pictures release, also starring Beau Bridges, will be presented on "NBC Thursday Night at the Movies," THURSDAY, JULY 16. The story continues in "The Other Side of the Mountain-Part 2," to be telecast July 17.

As a member of the Bishop High School Ski Team, Kinmont competes against a two-time gold medal winner in the Snow Cup Race in Utah, but falls victim in a catastrophic accident. Suffering from a broken neck and severed spinal cord, she undergoes a series of operations, but is paralyzed from the neck down.

Inexpensive Cover-Up For Design Problems

Take a good look at today's wallcoverings before you embark on a hefty bank loan to raise the roof, knock down walls, add or subtract windows, or whatever else you feel is needed to achieve ideal room proportions and shapes.

The right wallcovering design and color, used properly, can alter the shape and size of a room, camouflage architectural flaws, and add interest to bland, look-alike rooms.

Of course, it's all a matter of optical illusion, but what's wrong with that? Making things look as attractive as possible—which often means making the eye see things as they really aren't-is, after all, completely acceptable in other areas. We do it when we were slimming clothes, use make-up to create fashionable faces, or serve hamburger disguised as Beef Stroganoff or Beef Wellington.

Here, four decorating experts offer four suggestions for solving common design problems with wallcoverings.

More Room, Please

"Move a wall or two to change the shape of a room," advises Mary Taxiarchis, chief designer for Style-Tex. "You can advance it with a strong-colored wallcovering in a splashy design. To 'push' it back, use subdued patterns and pale colors. Bold design and color on the short walls of a long, narrow room will have a widening effect."

"A calico design in pastels or a mini floral on white background would be perfect for small rooms of the American persuasion," says Jerry Pappia of the Thomas Strahan Company. Any small-scaled pattern in light colors will give a larger feel to a tiny room. Robert Spaeth of Christopher

Prints, on the other hand, suggests a metallic wallcovering that will act almost as a mirror, or certain large-scaled motifs, such as trellis designs that will lead the eye beyond the walls, creating an illusion of

Ed Edwards of Environmental Graphics also advocates illusion. r'Certain scenics, such as an alley of trees depicted in perspective, will lead the eye way beyond the wall," he says. Edwards also comments that clear blue, because of its association with the sky and open space, is one of the very best room enlargers.

Grand Canyon

If, on the other hand, you've got the rare problem of a room of ball park proportions, choose dominant colors and design to make the walls "close in." Suggestions by the four experts include the use of a dark brown art nouveau design for an eclectic room; a floral on a dark blue, burgundy or deep green background for a traditional setting; and a rousing plaid in the warmest of colors if your lifestyle is informal.

Choose a wallcovering pattern which leads the eye upward if your problem is low ceilings. This could be a vertical stripe, or a foilage pattern, where the leaves seem to be stretching upwards towards the

Lowering the Ceiling

Too high ceilings are a problem in many older homes that can be solved in several ways. Choose a dark color for the ceiling, for example. Don't make it too dark, however, or the room will become not only low but downright gloomy. Stopping the wallcovering short at the top and extending the ceiling down to the pattern is Taxiarchis' suggestion.

Breaking height by adding a dado about halfway up the wall is Pappia's suggestion. Start the wallcovering above the dado.

Spaeth advocates a wall design which leads the eye along a horizontal plane-rectangular blocks and horizontal stripes, for example, to draw the attention from the ceiling line.

Hiding Eyesores

Almost everyone has at least one room with some architectural oddity. It might be too deeply set windows or an awkwardly jutting wall. Here, wallcoverings are at their glory. Any over-all design, from colorful checks to fanciful florals, will do a lot to cover up the broken-up appearance of the room.

Another trick is to use a boldas-brass wallcovering design that will steal the limelight so completely that no one notices the irregularities.
