

Detective Says Work To Locate Youths, Failure

"It's a shame to sit and shake your head and say we know nothing, but that's the way it is."

That was State Detective Danny Stumbo's response Tuesday to an interviewer's question about the mystery surrounding the disappearance three weeks ago of two Floyd county youths, Dwayne Michael Cline, of Emma, and Elijah Branham, Jr., of Prater Creek. Data pertaining to the missing youths and to two vehicles missing at the same time the boys disappeared has been filed on the National Information Center's nationwide system. State Police say they have searched every hollow, checked every report of the youths' whereabouts—all of which have been false leads—questioned all probable sources of information. The Big Sandy River, the Dewey Lake area, other waterways have been searched by officers, rescue squads and volunteers. Several thousand flyers describing the missing boys have been distributed. The parents of young Cline, Mr. and Mrs. James C. Cline, have posted a $2000 reward for information leading to the whereabouts of their son.

But no more is known now than on the night of July 9 when the two disappeared.

City Signs Pact To Assume Work For Fire Safety

Prestonsburg has become the first Kentucky municipality to enter into an agreement with the state fire marshal providing that the city shall enforce state fire safety standards for all property within its limits except for institutional occupancies or buildings owned or leased by the state.

The cities of Louisville and Lexington have similar enforcement rights but not as fully as those enjoyed here as a result of the agreement signed July 14 by Mayor Harold Cooley for the city and State Fire Marshal Gayle F. Horn. Prestonsburg's authority includes school system units within its jurisdiction.

The agreement provides that the state fire marshal's office will no longer conduct its regular fire safety inspection but will leave this function, as well as enforcement, to the city.

Heretofore, with Prestonsburg having its own fulltime inspector, both the state and the city made inspections, although, as City Inspector Larry Adams explained, they worked together as much as possible to prevent the frequency of inspections and duplication of effort.

"The agreement with the state fire marshal is proof that we are competent and can handle the full program," (See Story No. 5, Page 4)

Weeksbury Man's Aqua Boat Regarded Sure-Fire Success

Ed Green, of Weeksbury, may be destined to become a familiar name to boating enthusiasts.

He has invented, patented and soon will place on the market the Aqua Mate, a combination pontoon boat for lazy hours on the water with a fishing boat for those who want more action.

The two boats can be joined or separated with the flick of a latch. Together, about two-thirds of the 16-foot fishing boat is concealed within the 24-foot pontoon, the motor (which propels both boats) and the steering mechanism being about all that protrudes behind the pontoon section.

That sounds simple, but it isn't. There were such matters as the "sea-worthiness" of both craft, the distribution of weight, the steering mechanism, and the like. Green spent many hours on design at his home, using matchsticks, cardboard boxes, masking tape and glue, and finally turned to getting a patent and making certain the Aqua Mate was original. It was and is.

Some say the Aqua Mate will revolutionize the recreation boating industry. "I don't think it will revolutionize the boating market but I think we will be able to sell all we can make, and preliminary plans call for 10 a day," said Jim Bryant, president of Jay Bee Boats, Inc., the Danville, Ky. manufacturer that will build the fishing boat part of Green's invention. "The only thing wrong with Ed's idea is that I didn't think of it," Bryant added.

Jack Wicker, a vice-president of The Bank Josephine here, hailed the idea. "The exciting part," he commented, "is that someone from Eastern Kentucky is the one who came up with the

The latest in weather reports is the one in which this fellow said the towhees at his house had changed their plaint to read, "Too hot, too hot."

Few of the office-bound have such an inviting view from their windows as I who look out and there, only a few feet away, is Mr. and Mrs. George Brown's garden. Corn on the stalk, tomatoes on the vine—very inviting, indeed.

FOUND—A BOOK

Beset by a shortage of something new to read, I turned in desperation recently to a book which has lain unopened (and I do not refer to the Bible) on our bookshelves 20 years or longer. One of the children had used the blank pages in front and back for some freehand drawing, but it had otherwise been undisturbed—why, I cannot explain.

It's A. J. Cronin's "Adventures in Two Worlds," and its belated reading reminds me that some of the finest treasures are at hand but go unnoticed. Each chapter is a separate story but they all belong as one. The author could, perhaps, have more accurately titled it, "Adventures in Three Worlds," instead of only two, for after the worlds of medicine and literature there are those chapters dealing with his world of the spirit.

Now, I think I know where Herriott got the idea for his great "All Things" series. It had to be from Cronin's fine work of 40 years ago.

Respiratory Program Probe By Health Service Expected

It was billed as a program that would teach people to breathe easier. A program as simple in its methods as it would be beneficial in its results. Victims of black lung and other respiratory diseases, too often abandoned to the endless desert of daytime television, would be freed—by elementary instruction in breathing techniques—to walk, to shop, to visit with friends, to enjoy something more like a "normal" life.

Federal money—some $420,699—was awarded to Highlands Regional Medical Center to conduct the program. The money would pay for outreach workers in five counties, for patient transportation, for clinic equipment, for instruction. Highlands would conduct part of the program itself; part would be contracted out to other area hospitals and clinics.

That was two years ago. Today the program is still barely off the ground. Critics say it has been poorly administered and funds misappropriated. The program director, a former Highlands assistant administrator, has resigned. Its community director, a nurse who later told Highlands Administrator Clarence Traum of the misspent money, was fired. A federal review of the program has been ordered. And Highlands is preparing its application for a second round of funding.

J. C. Meredith, a project officer with the Public Health Service in Atlanta, the federal agency which oversees the program, confirmed this week that a three-man team will be in Prestonsburg the first two days of next week "to see if an official investigation (of the breathing program) is warranted." The team, he said, "will be looking into allegations made by a person recently fired from the program."

That person, The Times has learned, is Diane Cooksey, of Paintsville, the program's community director until her dismissal around June 4.

Highlands Assistant Administrator Russell C. Dean, Jr. acknowledged this week that, shortly after her ouster, Cooksey brought charges that Larry Stanifer, another assistant administrator at the hospital and director of the breathing program, had drawn on program funds for his personal use.

The matter was reportedly turned over to Highlands Controller Max Burnell, who asked Stanifer to document questionable program expenditures. Stanifer instead resigned.

An audit of the program was then conducted by the accounting firm of Ernst and Whinney who reported earlier this month that 10 expenditures "lacked appropriate documentation."

Accident Traps Man Who Eluded Arrest 2 Years

Known to be hiding in this county after escaping jail in Indiana, Estill "Tink" Prater had eluded arrest for more than two years, despite efforts of the FBI and Kentucky State Police.

But last Saturday a minor auto accident led to his undoing. He wrecked his car on KY 7, approximately three miles west of Hueysville, and a report of the accident brought state troopers. Trooper Ernie Dudson found Prater hiding in a patch of weeds, near the scene of the accident. The fugitive was jailed here on a drunk charge.

Prater, convicted of rape and sexual deviate behavior, was held in Steuben county jail, Angola, Ind., when he escaped in March, 1979. Soon thereafter, the FBI charged him with interstate flight to avoid confinement. State Detective Don Weedman said State Police had also sought him since that time.

Officers seeking his arrest expressed the belief that the fugitive had spent most of the time since his escape in the Salt Lick area, near Hueysville.

He was uninjured in the auto wreck. His extradition to Indiana will be sought.

Officers said he faces Indiana prison sentences which total 60 years.

Council Votes Start of Work On New Zoning

Prestonsburg city council Monday night authorized City Manager David Evans to begin the process of adopting a revised comprehensive plan and zoning map for the city.

The new plan and map, if adopted, will provide for an expansion of Prestonsburg's downtown business district.

One arm of the proposed expansion, along Arnold Avenue, has already been challenged successfully in court here. Circuit Judge Hollie Conley overturning a council decision to change the zoning classification of three properties there from residential to commercial.

In his ruling, Conley ordered that the tracts appear on the city zoning map as residential properties and that no building permits be issued for them except for residential purposes.

In the new map proposed for adoption by the council, the contested section of Arnold Avenue appears as commercial, as far south as its intersection with Ford Street.

City Manager Evans said this week that revisions in the comprehensive plan await completion. When the revision is complete, a public hearing on the plan will be held and it will be submitted to the Floyd County Joint Planning Commission before coming to a vote in council, he said.

The council also voted to recommend to the Floyd fiscal court that it establish a county fire department to complement the county's volunteer fire departments. According to the proposal, the city would continue to maintain a fire truck for county use and would train county firefighters.

After meeting in executive session, the council voted to dismiss police patrolman Robert Ranier for failure to complete a required training course. Ranier resigned from the force last summer in a dispute over the training program but was rehired in March this year.

Feds Join In Dinwood War On Coal Tipple

Dinwood residents last week won a round in their two-year fight against a tippie in their neighborhood, when a federal mining inspector ordered the operation shut down.

However, the fact that federal officials may have achieved in one week what state mining officials have failed to accomplish in two years has left some residents concerned about how lasting their victory will prove.

The federal Office of Surface Mining is in the process of handing over to the state primary responsibility for enforcing stripmining laws, a responsibility that federal and state officials have shared since passage of the 1977 federal stripmining law.

What the change will mean for communities like Dinwood, near Martin, is not yet clear. But some residents fear enforcement of the law may be less vigorous at the hands of state officials—and no one is assuming the community's problems with the tippie are over.

Gulf Oil Products In New Ownership

The Gulf oil products distributorship operated here by Marvin Music and his son, Marvin E. Music, Jr., for the last 36 years has been sold to J. W. Clifton, of Prestonsburg, and B. W. McDonald, of Oaklawn Estates, near Hager Hill, it was confirmed this week.

Sale of the business was effective July 1. The distributorship will continue to operate as Marvin Music, Distributor, with no personnel changes contemplated, it was said.

The elder Mr. Music explained that the sale was made by his son, who was president of the firm, and to whom the business was transferred in 1977. The Musics, father and son, will assist the new owners for the next few months.

Marvin Music, Sr. purchased the oil products distributorship in January, 1946 from C. H. Smith. Its trade area includes all of Floyd, Johnson, Martin and Magoffin counties and parts of Morgan, Knott and Lawrence.

Hospital Named In Suits Here

Appalachian Regional Hospital, at McDowell, was named as defendant in two suits filed in circuit court here this week.

In one, Freddie Gibson sues the hospital for a total of $9 million, charging that failure to provide proper medical care May 7 caused him permanent injury, including brain damage.

Also named as defendants in the suit are a former nurse-anesthetist at the hospital, Chip Jackson, and surgeon Ruben P. Singayao.

In the other suit, filed by Linda Samons on behalf of her 6-year-old son, David Samons, Jr., Mrs. Samons claims that negligence on the part of Dr. Carmencita Gallosa, a family practitioner at the hospital, and Dr. James C. Webb, formerly a surgeon there, last August resulted in her son's suffering a ruptured appendix, peritonitis, and other complications.

She asks for a jury trial to assess damages in the case. Suits filed in court present only one side of the issues in dispute.

HOBERT MCGUIRE braved a hot sun to harvest pole beans on his Auxier Road farm last week. He has already picked more than four bushels of the healthy McCaslans, he said, and is saving four hills for seed.

At 69, McGuire has been raising "everything you grow in a garden" all his life. A lamp charger at the Princess Elkhorn mine at David for 27 years, he has devoted all his energies to his two-acre garden since a heart attack forced him to quit the mine 13 years ago.

Study Organic Food Certification Need

The Kentucky Department of Agriculture is conducting a study to determine the feasibility of certifying organically grown food, according to Agriculture Commissioner Alben W. Barkley, II.

"Nationwide we seem to be seeing more and more interest in organic foods and we'd like to see what interest there is in Kentucky," Barkley said.

Since a major purpose of the study is to determine the need or desire for a certification study, Barkley said he would like to encourage as many people as possible to write his department and express their opinions.

Interested people should write to John Edmiston, Kentucky Department of Agriculture, 7th floor, Capital Plaza Tower, Frankfort, Ky 40601.

Stripminers Face Summer Hazards, Agency Advises

As they do every year, the hot summer months bring with them additional hazards for surface miners who work outside in the blazing sun, the Labor Department's Mine Safety and Health Administration (MSHA) warns.

From the discomfort of sunburn to possible death from heat stroke, the effects of bright sunlight, earth-scorching temperatures and high humidity afflict many surface miners. But these seasonal hazards and their resulting heat-related disorders can be countered. Mine operators can alert their workers to these hazards and adjust work schedules to lighten work loads, and miners can protect themselves by recognizing and reporting the earliest symptoms of these disorders so they can get prompt treatment.

MSHA suggests several measures that operators can take to lessen the effects of hot weather, prevent heat-related ailments and increase morale and efficiency. Because miners with heart, circulatory, lung or skin disorders are particularly susceptible to heat disorders, MSHA first recommends that all miners who work in hot environments should be examined by physicians who are aware of the miners' probable exposure to heat stress.

To further protect miners from the hazards of hot weather, MSHA recommends that mine operators:

- allow workers newly assigned or exposed to hot workplaces several days of gradually increasing work load and exposure to acclimate themselves to the heat;
- provide ventilating fans, where applicable, and air-conditioned cabs for heavy-equipment operators;
- provide shaded rest areas for workers to use during rest periods scheduled as often as necessary for the particular work load and weather conditions;
- supply plenty of drinking water close to the miners' workplaces; and
- arrange that workers exposed to high heat and humidity do not work alone or without adequate supervision.

Mine operators should make sure that first-aid treatment for heat ailments is readily available to miners who show any symptoms of heat illnesses, such as dizziness, weakness, fainting, rising body temperature or nausea.

Last summer two deaths were attributed to heat stroke in the mining industry, one at a surface coal mine in the Midwest, the other at a Florida stone quarry. With the cooperation of mine managers and workers, the industry can prevent similar fatalities and heat-related illnesses when this summer's heat waves hit.

Miners and mine operators who would like more information about heat stress should call any MSHA field office or write to the Office of Information, Mine Safety and Health Administration, 4015 Blvd., Arlington, Va. 22203.

Huff-Flanery Wedding Solemnized

The Maytown First Baptist Church was the scene of the marriage of Miss Teresa Huff and Mr. Thomas Kenton Flanery on Saturday, June 6, at 2 p.m. The bride is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Huff, of Eastern; the groom, the elder son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Ray Flanery, of Maytown.

The double ring service was conducted by the Rev. Robert Varney, pastor of the church, in the presence of many friends and relatives. The rostrum, decorated by Mrs. Jimmy Lynn Allen, was a bower of greenery, fireside baskets of yellow gladioli, white and yellow daisy mums with leatherleaf foliage and in cupid vase statuettes, on tall white pedestals. The ceremony took place before an ivy-covered arch, with bronze candelabra on either side.

The bride, who was escorted by her father, wore a white chiffon Schiffli embroidered wedding gown, Chantilly lace adorning its flounced hem and chapel train attached to the waistline. Its Victorian bib was accented by an embroidered yoke and lace ruffle. The full sleeves were embellished with lace appliques, cuff and back closing with tiny covered buttons. She wore a bandeau type headdress with veil of illusion, carried a cascade bouquet of yellow rosebuds, white carnations, and baby's breath.

The matron of honor was Mrs. Lance Blackburn, of Stanville, sister of the groom. Bridesmaids were Misses Jackie Slone, of Lexington, and Kathy Slone, of Mousie. The three attendants wore long gowns of yellow dotted swiss with matching satin sashes, deep lace and ribbon-trimmed ruffles, silk flowers in their hair. Flower girl was little Miss Patty Baldrige, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Baldrige, of Eastern. The attendants carried miniature fireside baskets of carnations and daisies in the wedding colors. Master Jonathan Lynn Allen, younger son of Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Lynn Allen, of Maytown, served as ringbearer. Tony Halbert, of Martin, served as best man. Ushers included Wm. Petrey and Keith Harris, of Martin. Winston Gunnell, of Lancer, Lance Blackburn, of Stanville, brother-in-law of the groom, and John Flanery, brother of the groom.

Accompanied by Mrs. Caroline Owens, of Prestonsburg, Mrs. Jim Wallen, of Maytown, sang "Whither Thou Goest" and "The Wedding Song," preceding the ceremony. At its close Rev. Varney presented the young couple the Bible he had used for the service.

Yellow and white colors were prevalent in decor and flowers for the reception held in the dining-recreation area of the church. Table arrangements featured carnations, chrysanthemums and fernery, along with the use of English ivy overhead and on white iron posts, resembling an arbor. The four-layer fountain cake by Marie Stephens, of Maytown, was decorated with silk flowers and ivy leaves. Assisting with the reception were Mrs. Earritt Hayes, of Martin. Mrs. Hershell Hale, of Manton, Mrs. David Watson, of Martin, who also served as wedding director. Misses Tammy Francis and Jennie Cox, of Garrett, were in charge of the guest register.

The bride and groom left after the reception for Daytona Beach and Disneyworld, and are now residing in Maytown. Mrs. Flanery is a medical secretary graduate of Prestonsburg Community College. Mr. Flanery graduated from the University of Kentucky in 1978 with a major in electrical engineering.

McDowell High Grad In Medical, Dental Student Program

A 1981 graduate of McDowell High School is one of 25 recent Kentucky high school graduates who are participating in a state program for assisting students from areas with too few dentists and physicians who seek a career in medicine or dentistry.

Michelle Egar Moore, of Drift, is now enrolled in the Professional Education Preparation (PEP) program's basic skills development workshop, which is being held this summer at the University of Kentucky.

In the four-week workshop she will receive instruction in reading, studying, and problem solving, along with career testing and exposure to medical and dental careers, faculty, and students to help insure that she is successful as a college undergraduate student.

The PEP program, which is now in its first year of operation, will provide continuing assistance to Miss Moore and other students as they progress through college, medical or dental school, and residency. The program is coordinated by the state Council on Higher Education and was established by the 1980 legislature.

Miss Moore plans to attend Pikeville College this fall.

Built two years ago by Dinco Coal Sales, a Paintsville company, the tippie has drawn continuing criticism from nearby residents and has twice been cited by state mining regulators for operating without a permit. However, both citations—one in August, 1979 and another last December—were subsequently dismissed.

Two weeks ago, residents filed a complaint with the federal surface mining office in Pikeville. The tippie fell under the jurisdiction of federal authorities, inspector Steve Cassell said, because most of the coal handled there came from a Mousie mine owned by George Newsome, who is also owner of the tippie.

Cassell cited Newsome last week for operating a tippie within 300 feet of occupied dwellings without written waivers from the occupants, a violation of stripmine law.

About 18 homes are said to lie within 300 feet of the tippie. Written waivers would need to be secured from all of the homeowners before the plant could be operated legally, Cassell said.

If the waivers are not given, the plant will have to be removed, he said. The tippie also lacks proper silt control but, since no effluent was being discharged at the time the plant was inspected, no citation was issued on that score, Cassell said.

Ivan and Mary Debord, who have spearheaded community opposition to the crushing and loading facility, expressed satisfaction with the prompt response of federal officials to their complaint. "You can usually tell if someone is trying to help you," Mrs. Debord remarked.

The pending transfer to the state of responsibility for enforcing the law has left some in the community uncertain about future prospects for staying operation of the tippie, an uncertainty compounded by anticipated cutbacks in the operations of a legal services agency here—the Appalachian Research and Defense Fund—which represents the Debords.

"I don't know where we will go for help" if assistance of federal mine inspectors and the legal services attorney is withdrawn, Mrs. Debord said. But she thinks the changes would be welcomed by the tippie owners.

WHY... When I had just completed one of my one-line panegyrics to the beauty of these hills, with an addendum to the effect that the only other place I had ever seen that might be grander is the great Smokies region, I was called upon to explain why I thought so. Well...

I like a mystery, and there is something behind the cloak of green on these hills that, impenetrable, appeals to the imagination.

The flatlands may have their well-ordered arrangement, tidy fences, carefully arranged plots. But that's neatness—not the beauty of things as they happened, or as they just naturally developed.

I like a hillside up which shadows on occasion race the clouds.

I like the distant horizon, but I prefer a skyline created by a mountain leaping up to meet the sky in a skyline which may not be a rifle-shot away.

I like the hills because I'm a hillbilly. And, if that won't do, I add, as the little boy did, I like 'em just 'cause.

Flood Victims Helped by Red Cross

Though rain has been sparse in this area during the summer, the dates of June 6 will be remembered by many. The rains that came those two days caused flood damage to many homes.

State and local Red Cross workers responded to the situation with more than $104,000 in aid to nine counties, now that the state workers have returned to their homes, local volunteers are providing additional followup and aid.

In Floyd County 48 families were provided with over $10,000 worth of assistance. In Magoffin, two families registered and were interviewed, their assistance totaled about $2,600. These figures are for the June 6 flood. Then in the flooding of July 6 more than 75 families were helped. There has been $32,000 given in assistance to date.

All financial help from the Red Cross comes from donations by the American public. Red Cross fund drives and other donations keep this help coming.

Single family disasters such as fires are handled by the local Red Cross Chapter at any time. Victims need only call the Red Cross office 886-2521 and Charlotte Adams, Red Cross executive director and volunteers will try to furnish immediate housing, clothing and food.

Another vital service that the Red Cross provides is the many classes taught each year. Classes in first aid water safety and CPR are offered regularly. All instructors are volunteers. The local chapter is composed entirely of volunteers. In the event of a disaster, volunteers answer calls for help, register victims at temporary shelters, help man shelters, and work with families in the following days after initial aid has been given.

The local Red Cross chapter is in need of more volunteers. It is a way for Floyd Countians to help each other. Today it may be someone else, tomorrow it may be you or your neighbor. Call the Floyd Co. Red Cross office (886-2521 or 886-8754 or 886-2578).

August 15 has been set as the date for a county-wide radio-thon and collection to raise funds. Listen to WDOC for further information about the Red Cross Fund Drive and check next week's paper for more information on how the Red Cross can help all of us who live in Floyd and surrounding counties.

Dear Editor: Will you please print my letter in your newspaper?

My name is John Wayne Lucas, and I am an inmate here at the Kentucky State Prison, Eddyville. I am 35 years old and in good health and my race is white.

I don't have any family out in the free world to write to so I never get any mail, and it sure gets lonely in here at times. It would make me very happy if I could make some friends through your newspaper.

If anyone wishes to write to me, I want them to please feel free to do so, and I will answer all letters.

Respectfully,

Bank Joins TM Network

The Bank Josephine has joined the Tellerific (TM) electronic services network which is operated by the First National Bank of Cincinnati, it was announced jointly last week by Oliver W. Waddell, president of First National of Cincinnati, and H. D. Fitzpatrick, Jr., president of The Bank Josephine.

According to Fitzpatrick, The Bank Josephine will install one Tellerific 24-hour automated teller machine (ATM) at its North Lake Drive office here. "We chose a central location convenient to many of our customers and close to a shopping area," said Fitzpatrick. "Tellerific will be the first ATM service in our area," he went on, "and we want as many people as possible to be able to take advantage of the convenience."

Discussing The Bank Josephine's decision to join the Tellerific network, Fitzpatrick listed the reputation of First National of Cincinnati, the potential for expanded future electronic services and the expected growth of the network in Kentucky as important factors. "Many of the people in and around Prestonsburg travel regularly to Cincinnati for baseball games, shopping and other activities. The Tellerific machines available in Cincinnati will be an added convenience for our Tellerific cardholders," Fitzpatrick said.

The Prestonsburg bank becomes the fourth financial organization to join the Tellerific network. Already in the system, besides the First National Bank of Cincinnati, are the Savings and Loan Data Corporation (SLDC), which offers Tellerific electronic services to its members savings associations in eleven states; The Florence Deposit Bank in Boone County, Kentucky; and The First National Bank and Trust Company, Troy, Ohio.

Tellerific is an electronic delivery system that is designed to process financial transactions through the use of automated teller machines and other electronic devices.

Wildlife Group Urges Protest

The National Wildlife Federation has asked its members in 12 states to write their representatives in Congress and ask they they vote against two "Sagebrush Rebellion" bills.

According to Dr. Jay D. Hair, executive vice president of the NWF, the Rare II Review Act of 1981 (S. 842), introduced by Senators S.I. Hayakawa (R-Calif.) and Jesse Helms (R-N.C.), and the Mining Supremacy Bill (H.R. 3364), introduced by Rep. James Santini (D-Nev.), "threaten the National Wilderness Preservation System and other protected public lands. These bills would open potential forest wilderness areas to logging, and all public lands, including established wilderness areas, national parks, and national wildlife refuges, to mining interests."

The Hayakawa-Helms legislation, which conservationists have dubbed the "Anti-Wilderness Bill," was "set in motion by the timber industry," Hair said. According to NWF, it would:

-Bar the Forest Service from managing roadless forest lands to protect their existing wilderness qualities. This would "tie the hands of the agency's professionals and preclude consideration of wilderness as a management option in the forest planning process," Hair explained.

-Set hasty administrative and Congressional deadlines for deciding which roadless areas of the National Forest System should be designated as wilderness.

-Block any legal challenges to an inadequate Forest Service study of roadless lands. Hearings on the bill have already been held by the Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee, Hair noted. A House companion, H.R. 3358, was recently introduced by Rep. Bill Hendon (R-N.C.), and is before the House Agriculture Committee.

The Santini Mining Supremacy Bill would allow the Secretary of the Interior to grant "virtually unlimited access for mining on any federal lands, including areas that have previously been given protection by past administrations or even by Congress," Hair said. In addition, the bill now before the House Interior and Insular Affairs would:

-Allow mining to be the "dominant use" of public lands administered by the Bureau of Land Management.

-Allow industry to name areas to which it wants mining and leasing access anywhere on the public lands and force decisions to be made about opening these nominated lands within one year.

-Leave open all existing forest wilderness areas to the staking of new mining claims for a decade beyond the 1984 deadline established by Congress in the original 1964 Wilderness Act.

Hair pointed out that the U.S. is moving quickly under provisions of the Minerals Policy Research and Development Act passed last year to assess alternatives for dealing with strategic minerals supply problems. "The Santini Bill should not be allowed to disrupt these careful steps through a crash program of public lands exploitation," he emphasized. He added that while there was no companion Senate legislation as of yet, the bill had 39 co-sponsors in the House.

The NWF, the nation's largest citizens conservation organization, urged its members in those states which have representatives on the House or Senate Committees considering the two bills to send a "loud message to Washington" that the bills are "unacceptable."

ASKS ASSISTANCE

Shawna Owens, of South Lake Drive, Prestonsburg, appealed this week for help in defraying the cost of renting a monitor for her baby, diagnosed earlier this year as vulnerable to Sudden Infant Death Syndrome. She and her husband cannot afford rental of the unit, which costs $200 per month, and the service is no longer covered by public benefits, she said.

Weeksbury Clubs Join In Move for Building

members of the Weeksbury Sewing Club, in conjunction with the Weeksbury Community Club, are planning construction of a multi-purpose building on the site of the former Weeksbury Community Church.

One of the greatest needs of the area residents is a suitable building to use for conducting funerals, weddings, and public meetings and the structure is proposed to meet such requirements. The plans for the building include a kitchen and dining area.

Fund-raising activities will begin soon, with the proceeds going to the building fund. There will be a carnival, the Saturday before Labor Day, September 5 at the community park. There will be dinners, bake sales, bazaars through the coming year.

Any area resident interested in helping in the construction of the building or in any way is asked to contact Mary Sue Campbell or Delores Woody.

2nd Newsome Trial For Local Slaying Set Next January

The second trial of John Henry Newsom, charged with the slaying here of Gerald McBrayer, was set last week for Jan. 13, with the continuance of the case ascribed to Newsome's need to employ new legal counsel.

He is no longer represented by Richard Burmeister, of the Public Defender's office which has been moved from here to Pikeville.

Newsom is at liberty under bond which was executed after the 15-year pen term imposed on him at the conclusion of his first trial was overturned by state Supreme Court decision which held that trial judge erred in not instructing the jury on the possibility of returning a manslaughter or a reckless homicide verdict.

The defendant had served enough time on his sentence when the reversal came to be eligible for parole and could have won freedom from further prosecution by entering a plea of guilty but he refused to make that plea, insisting he did not kill McBrayer.

★ CONSUMER ALERT ★

Consumers throughout Kentucky purchase used automobiles everyday. Each consumer hopes to purchase a vehicle in sound operating order.

Recently, however, some Kentucky consumers have been the victims of used-car odometer tampering.

"As a consumer, you should exercise your right to identify and contact a used car's previous owner before you purchase it in order to avoid odometer fraud," says Attorney General Steven Beshear.

Dealers or previous owners sometimes tamper with vehicle odometers (mileage gauges), rolling them back so the car appears to have been driven less. Consumers should know it is unlawful in Kentucky to roll back the mileage of a motor vehicle, the attorney general says.

If, in being repaired or replaced, it cannot be set at actual mileage, the law provides it must be set at zero and a written notice be placed on the driver's door stating the actual mileage or that the actual mileage is unknown.

If you suspect your automobile odometer has been altered or reset, you can contact past owners and ask what the vehicle mileage was at the time they purchased or sold the car. If they respond with a mileage higher than when you bought the vehicle, you may be a victim of odometer fraud. To identify past owners:

-Contact the dealer who sold you the car. Kentucky law requires dealers to provide a prospective purchaser with the name, address and phone number, if available, of the previous owner. If you did not exercise this right at the time of purchase, you may still contact the dealer and see if he will voluntarily furnish this information.

-Check with the county clerk's office where the vehicle is licensed. Ask the clerk to check the registration chain for you. This will allow you to contact the previous owner. If the vehicle was transferred from another county, you may find it necessary to contact that particular clerk.

-If the vehicle was brought into Kentucky from another state, ask the clerk to check the out-of-state title surrendered when the vehicle was transferred to see if the odometer reading appears on the title. Although Kentucky does not require odometer readings on registrations, other states do.

-If the clerk tells you the out-of-state title has been sent to the Department of Transportation in Frankfort, you may wish to request a copy of the title be sent to you.

-Once you have determined the identity of a previous owner, contact him and compare the mileage on the car when he owned it with the mileage when you purchased it.

"If, after contacting the past owner(s) and comparing mileage, you feel your car's odometer has been altered, contact the consumer protection division of my office," says Beshear.

"The division can review your case for possible law enforcement action. Since odometer tampering is a violation of Kentucky law, consumers are entitled to bring suit and to recover three times actual damages, or $1,500, whichever is greater, plus costs of the legal action and attorney's fees. This is done in circuit court of the county where the purchaser resides."

If you need further information concerning odometer rollbacks, write the Office of the Attorney General, Division of Consumer Protection, Frankfort, Ky. 40601.

★ EXTENSION SERVICE NOTES ★

By JOHN E. SPARKS
County Extension Agent
for Agriculture

If the upper leaf surfaces of your garden beans have dried and shrunk away from the veins, this may be a sign that Mexican bean beetles are feeding underneath. Both the adult, a dome-shaped coppery beetle with eight black spots on each wing cover, and the yellow spiny larvae chew on the under surface of leaves and can completely defoliate plants.

Overwintering adults lay clusters of yellow-orange oblong eggs on the underside of plant leaves. The eggs hatch in 5 to 14 days, and the small destructive larvae then will feed for three to four weeks.

Pest control becomes very important as the crop blooms and pods begin to fill. Diazinon, methoxychlor or Sevin may be used to control the insect.

Pyrethrins would be a good choice for organic gardeners.

These insecticides will not be effective when beetles are in the egg stage, so it is a good idea to allow most of the eggs to hatch before applying a control measure.

Ky. Labor Department To Close Some Offices

Eugene F. Land, commissioner of the Department of Labor, has announced the department will close a number of district offices effective, Oct. 1, Oct. 1.

The closings affect three district enforcement offices operated by the Kentucky Occupational Safety and Health Program and two offices which serve the division of employment standards and mediation.

The Occupational Safety and Health Program, which has responsibility for conducting safety and health inspections in the state's workplaces, will close its district offices in Louisville, Lexington and Paducah. A sub-location in Bowling Green will also be closed. Compliance inspection operations will be coordinated from the central office in Frankfort.

The division of employment standards and mediation will maintain a field office in Louisville. Otherwise, its statewide operations, which include wage and hour, prevailing wage and child labor investigations, will be coordinated from the Frankfort office.

Commissioner Land explained these measures are being made to enable the Department of Labor to reduce its budget. He also emphasized these changes will not affect serve levels of either program.

Laferty, Wiederman Vows Said

McKendree United Methodist Church was the setting on May 16 for the 6:30 p.m. wedding of Lysa Annette Laferty and Kenneth David Wiederman.

Miss Laferty is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bascom Laferty, of Columbus Ohio, and the granddaughter of Mrs. John E. Laferty, of Martin. Mr. Wiederman is the son of Mr. Kenneth D. Wiederman and the late Mrs. Wiederman, of Columbus, Ohio.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a white gown of organza over bridal taffeta. The accoridian pleated skirt fell from an empire waistline. The Queen Anne neckline and Bishop sleeves featured alencon lace with scattered seed pearls. Crystal pleating highlighted the hemline of the gown which swept to a chapel train. Completing the bride's ensemble was a camelot cap of silk venise lace and seed pearls. The cathedral-length silk illusion veil was complimented with matching appliques throughout the veil.

Mrs. Lynn Scull served as her sister's matron of honor. The bridesmaids were Miss Nancy Gorga, Miss Jackie Flynn, Miss Judy Saltman, and Miss Teresa Wiederman, the groom's sister. Miss Amy Salisbury was her cousin's flower girl. She is the great-granddaughter of Mrs. John E. Laferty.

A reception followed the ceremony at the Monte Carlo Ristorante in Columbus.

The bride graduated in May from Capital University in Columbus, where she studied history education. The groom graduated in April from Franklin University in Columbus, with a degree in business administration.

Vietnam Vets Continue Education on GI Bill

Vietnam era veterans continue to use their GI Bill for educational purposes in Kentucky, even though the average age of these veterans is now nearing 35 years old.

Lee Caudill, director of the Veterans Administration regional office in Louisville, said that during fiscal year 1980, 14,489 Kentucky veterans were using their benefits.

Of this number, 10,033 were in college. There were 3,211 taking other types of school training; 900 were taking on-the-job training and 345 were taking correspondence courses.

Of Kentucky's 124,000 Vietnam era veterans, of whom about 36,000 saw duty in Vietnam, 90,690 have used their GI Bill benefits. In addition to those in training last year, there were 641 Kentucky service personnel taking training while on active duty.

Veterans have 10 years from date of discharge to complete training and receive benefits from the government.

The American sideshow was not born in a tent, as most people believe. Instead, the August Reader's Digest reveals, the original sideshow took place in 1841 on lower Broadway in New York City. Barnum's American Museum was replete with educated dogs, a flea circus, giants, dwarfs, gypsies and the first Punch-and-Judy show in America.

Summertime Health Hazards

Summertime! Immediately you picture baseball games, picnics, swimming and vacations. But, most people don't give much thought to the ailments and injuries that often accompany the season's pleasures.

The result is a painful infection. According to Dr. Arnett, the over-the-counter drugs for this infection are not very effective, and prescription ear drops are the best treatment.

Sports-related injuries are abundant during the active summer months. Almost twice as many patients of this type are treated during this period at the Highlands Regional Medical Center emergency room, according to Margaret Hamilton, R.N., emergency room supervisor.

For sprains, it is best to seek medical advice confirming the diagnosis of the injury. Then keep all weight off the limb and apply ice to prevent swelling.

Lawnmowers cause a number of summertime accidents. "We saw four cases of traumatic amputation from lawnmowers this last week," Hamilton pointed out.

Heat exhaustion is another hazard for some summer sports enthusiasts. The symptoms are dizziness, nausea, faintness, weakness and in severe cases, unconsciousness.

Persons suffering from heat exhaustion should cool their bodies slowly and replace fluids and salts that were lost due to sweating.

Poison ivy, oak and sumac are often unpleasant additions to the activities of picnickers, hikers and joggers. "Keep the fingernails and skin clean and try to resist clawing," recommends Dr. Jerry Fraim.

Sunburn is an ailment that can be prevented with the numbered sunscreen products available. The PABA (para amino benzoic acid) numbers indicate the amount of sunscreen in the lotion.

Overall, in the opinion of the staff at Highlands Regional Medical Center, the prescription for a healthy summer is moderation and common sense in all activities.

Take the heat off next winter's budget.

These are average monthly payments. Many are higher or lower.

With a warm, summer sun outside, last winter's heating bills are probably the last thing on your mind. But August is the time to put a lid on next winter's bills by getting on Columbia's Budget Payment Plan.

With the Plan, your natural gas bills will be averaged out over 12 months. So you'll pay a manageable amount each month. That can simplify your family budget planning, and eliminate heating bill surprises when the temperature drops.

To get on the Budget Payment Plan, simply pay the amount indicated as "MONTHLY BUDGET" on your August bill. Nothing further is needed.

There's no service charge for this convenience, and your meter will still be read regularly. And next July, you will be billed your budget amount plus or minus any difference between your total annual budget and the actual amount used during the year.

So, take the heat off next winter's budget by getting on Columbia's Budget Payment Plan now. And while you're thinking about lower heating bills, ask for a copy of our free "Everyday Energy Saver's Guide" at any Columbia Gas office. It has hundreds of tips to help you conserve energy... and save money.

A Little of the Farm on Your Table

“KNOW YOUR BIBLE”
THE TRUTH ABOUT HELL

God sends no man to hell. Man by his own rebellion and sin sends himself to eternal ruin. The Bible teaches that hell will be a place of eternal punishment . . . A prepared place. (Matt. 25:41.) A lake of fire and brimstone. (Rev. 20:15.) Undying worms and fire unending. (Mark 9:48.) Darkness and blackness. (Judge 13.) Bottomless pit. (Rev. 20:1.) Outcast from presence of God. (2 Thes. 1:7-9.) Prison. (2 Peter 2:4.)

Satan seeks to make man think hell is a joke or little more than a curse word. But God's inspired apostle Paul states a clear and frightening warning to those who obey not the truth, "...shall wrath and indignation, tribulation and anguish, upon every soul of man that worketh evil." (Rom. 2:8-9.) And the Lord will declare to those on his left in the day of Judgment, "Depart from me, ye cursed into the eternal fire which is prepared for the devil and his angels." (Matt. 25:41.) Then there will be no sedatives to relieve the anguish, or drugs to relieve the pain, or rest cures. Then there is no second chance, or promise of a better day.

And should you be lost, Oh what you will miss! You will miss the majesty of Paradise, the beauties of Heaven, the warmth of God's eternal love, the fellowship of the redeemed of the ages, and the joys God will have for His own!

Are you prepared to make Heaven your home? Have you become a Christian? (Mark 16:15-16)

College Offers Miners Work Experience Credit

The Mining Technology Department at Pikeville College has developed a program that will enable the experienced miner to receive college credit for work experience. For every three years a person has worked in a mine-related position, three hours credit will be awarded up to 15 hours. A student may also be credited with 12 hours for internship.

Pikeville College's Mining Technology program was the first of its kind in the nation. It recognized the great future of the coal industry and the need for the college-educated miner.

Starting September 1, the Mining Technology Department will implement this innovative program designed especially for the person experienced in coal mining or coal related occupations.

The new program will emphasize credit for work experience, credit by examination, internship and transfer credit. Classes will be scheduled during the day and evening, enabling students who work full time to earn a degree.

To Appear On Rich Little TV Program

Randy Meade, 17-year-old Prestonsburg High School senior, will leave tomorrow (Thursday) for Hollywood, California, and WSAZ-TV cameras will be at Tri-State Airport, Huntington, W.Va., to see him off.

Young Meade, who lives on the Meade Branch of Abbott Creek, is making the long trip to appear on NBC's "You Asked For It" show which will be among the network's new fall programming.

An accomplished impressionist, Meade will display some of his talents, particularly his impersonation of former President Jimmy Carter, on the show which is hosted by famed impressionist-comedian Rich Little.

Meade says he has worked on impersonations over the past eight or nine years and also "does" a variety of other well-known personalities.

He will be accompanied to California by his father, Guyland Meade.

Remote Monitor Set For KET Transmitter

KET is planning to conserve operation costs by monitoring some of its transmitters through remote control, KET's Director of Engineering, Bob Klein, announced this week.

Beginning next month, the network plans to install computerized equipment which will monitor the signals of three transmitters from WKMR, Channel 38, Morehead. The stations to be remoted are WKAS, Channel 25, Ashland; WKHA, Channel 35, Hazard; and WKIP, Channel 22, Pikeville.

"The remoting plan, which was approved by the Federal Communications Commission last fall, will eventually be applied to other stations in the KET system," says Klein. The engineering director states that the move was prompted by a shortage of qualified engineering technicians to do all the technical checks that the network's transmitters demand and by the cost effectiveness of the new technology.

"In view of the recent expensive repair operations required to keep the Ashland and Madisonville transmitters operational, this cost effective remoting procedure becomes more important in that it will ease the pressures on our already restricted engineering maintenance budget," adds Klein.

The remoting system works this way: A device at the remoted transmitter observes and measures the station's broadcast signal. If a discrepancy in the signal occurs, the device will attempt to correct it while notifying the control point (in this case, Morehead) of the discrepancy.

CARD OF THANKS

The family of Mrs. Eliza Patrick Hale would like to thank all those who were so kind during her illness and for their expressions of sympathy upon our recent bereavement. We deeply appreciate the thoughtfulness of those who sent food, or floral tributes, or who sought to comfort us in any way. We would especially thank Dr. James D. Adams for his kindness and care during her illness, Dr. Gallosa, the nurses and staff of the McDowell Appalachian Regional Hospital, and the Rev. Clifford Austin, who helped in so many ways.

Again, thank you all. Your Kindness will not be forgotten.

Her daughter,
 Betty Hale

1,500 Tiger Musky Stocked at Dewey

The tiger musky population at Dewey Lake was given another boost this week when 1,500 of the toothy fish were released by state Division of Fisheries personnel.

Kerry Prather, district fisheries biologist, said the stocking, which was carried out in the German Bridge area, Monday, involved six-inch fish which were brought from the state hatchery at Morehead.

Prather said that although surface temperatures at Dewey are as high as 87 degrees, "there appeared to be 100 percent survival" as the musky were transferred from the tank truck to the lake.

Approximately the same number of the northern pike-muskellunge hybrids were stocked at Fishtrap lake in Pike county, the same day.

Prather said there will be additional stockings later this summer.

Army Reservists Complete Exercise

Pikeville area army reservists, members of Company D, 478th Engineer Battalion, have completed their two-weeks of annual training at Fort Campbell. The unit, commanded by 1st Lt. Roy Sturgill, Frankfort, returned home Saturday.

Company D, along with the rest of the battalion, has been participating in a combat support training exercise involving 2,200 reservists from Ohio and Kentucky.

The work project for Company D and the battalion has been to build obstacles for physical training activities of the 101st Airborne Division (Air Assault) and Fort Campbell Non-Commissioned Officer Academy. The building of these wooden obstacles by this reserve unit is at a cost savings to the Army, and is a realistic training activity for the engineers.

A sister battalion from Toledo, Ohio, is building a 4,500 foot tactical runway for use by the 101st Airborne Division, and by the U. S. Air Force. Additional transportation, quartermaster, personnel and medical units from Ohio and Kentucky are supporting this reserve training.

Company D is part of the 83rd Army Reserve Command headquartered in Columbus, Ohio. The 83rd, comprised of 9,000 reservists throughout Ohio and Kentucky, is the largest army reserve command in the 17-state midwest Fifth Army area. It is the third largest army reserve command in the country. Its 123 units are positioned in 37 different cities from Youngstown, Ohio to Paducah.

In 1907, the first federal employment service was established under the Bureau of Immigration, according to "Labor Firsts in America," a U.S. Department of Labor publication.

Locks Called Key To Effective Security

A proven expert on home security, Ira A. Lipman, claims we are making crime too easy for the criminal. Most of the responsibility for our own protection is ours.

The key to making your home more secure is good locks and the diligent use of them. Writing in the August issue of Readers Digest, Lipman outlines simple, inexpensive, common-sense security moves designed to help you burglar-proof your home.

"Protect yourself first," he advises. You do this by installing a lock on your bedroom door and a telephone beside your bed. Then if you hear an intruder, you can call the police from behind your locked door. "Never try to apprehend a burglar yourself," he cautions. "If you happen to surprise an intruder in your home, make every effort to cooperate. Your life is worth more than your property."

Some locks are more jimmy-proof than others. "Dollar for dollar, the dead-bolt lock is the most important purchase you can make to protect your home. Every outside door, without exception, should be equipped with one," he declares.

For those tempting sliding-glass patio doors, Lipman suggests three possible precautions: 1) Cut a broom handle to fit in the track to prevent the door from sliding; 2) fit the doors with vertical-bolt locks that engage in holes in the floor and ceiling; 3) if you can afford it, put in shatterproof glass or other impact-resistant material.

A simple way to secure windows, the Digest article continues, is to drill a five-sixteenth-inch hole through the top of the lower sash and the bottom of the top sash where they come together when the window is closed. Then insert a casehardened pin to freeze the window in place.

Lighting is important. The security expert points out that by lighting your home and grounds adequately, you deprive a would-be burglar of one of his basic requirements: time.

Finally, when you cancel deliveries of mail and newspapers prior to going away, you could be tipping a thief off to your planned absence. It is better, Lipman suggests, to ask a trusted friend or neighbor to pick up your newspaper, mail or other normally delivered items.

During 1980 Japanese workers saved an estimated 20 percent of their individual and family disposable incomes, the August Reader's Digest reports. This was more than three times as much as Americans.

The Veterans Administration provides hospital care covering the full range of medical services for service connected disabled veterans. Outpatient services are also available. Details about eligibility requirements are available at all VA medical centers and regional offices.

Veteran's Administration Questions and Answers

Q-I am a World War I veteran and am having problems hearing. Will the Veterans Administration examine me and provide a hearing aid if I need one, since I cannot afford one? A-Yes. Under a law that went into effect in December 1979, the VA can provide any medical need for a World War I veteran in a VA facility. Q-My husband's death was service connected. Am I eligible for a Veterans Administration burial allowance? A-Yes. Payment up to $1,100 is allowed if the veteran's death was service connected. This payment is in lieu of the $300 basic burial allowance and the $150 plot allowance. Q-I received an automobile grant from the Veterans Administration several years ago because of my service connected disability. Can I get another one now that the car is getting old? A-No. The automobile grant is a one-time benefit. However, the VA will pay to reinstall the adaptive equipment in a new car. Q-Before I convert my Veterans' Group Life Insurance to a private policy, do I have to take a physical exam? A-No. The Office of Servicemen's Group Life Insurance will notify you before your insurance expires and will provide you with a list of companies participating in the conversion plan. You will then have sufficient time to convert and the policy will be issued to you without physical exam at standard rates. Q-What is the maximum amount I can borrow on a Veterans Administration guaranteed home loan? A-There is no legal maximum. The VA will guarantee 60 percent of the loan or $27,500, whichever is less. The total amount of the loan is determined by the policy of your lending institution and by your ability to repay the loan. Q-My husband died in 1975. At the time of his death I did not want the headstone or marker provided by the Veterans Administration, but I heard recently that the VA pays an amount toward the purchase of a headstone. Am I entitled to this benefit? A-No. The law providing for this benefit was not passed until late 1978. The deceased must have been buried after the law took effect in order for the survivor to be eligible for reimbursement. Q-Can a veteran get an extension of his 10-year delimiting date for education benefits from the Veterans Administration? A-If a veteran is physically or mentally disabled during the period of his eligibility, he may apply for an extension by submitting medical evidence for consideration.

"Darwin" Series Will Air on KET

The life and work of Charles Darwin, one of the world's best known naturalists, are chronicled in a seven-part dramatic series, "The Voyage of Charles Darwin," encoring on KET Thursday, August 6 at 8 p.m.

Based on the scientist's own journals, the series follows Darwin's career from his early university days through his famous five-year scientific journey as expedition naturalist aboard the H.M.S. Beagle. During the voyage, his observations of ancient fossils and strange wildlife formed the basis for his landmark theory of evolution and the subsequent publication of "The Origin of Species," a work which rocked the scientific community of his time and generated debates which continue today.

Former astronaut Neil A. Armstrong is host of the series, which is a co-production of BBC-TV and Time-Life Films and is presented on KET by WCET, Cincinnati.

Heads Wayland Drive

Mrs. Lois Collins has been appointed chairwoman of the Cystic Fibrosis "Makin' Tracks" event in Wayland. "Mrs. Collins has agreed to direct this community campaign, and we are truly grateful for this commitment," said Charles Thayer, president of the Kentucky-West Virginia Chapter of the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation.

The campaign is an annual function which generates revenue in support of research, improved patient care, and disease detection for Cystic Fibrosis patients. Not only is the campaign designed to raise funds for the CF Foundation, but it also serves to increase public awareness.

Observe Golden Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Chester Allen, of Hueysville, recently observed their 50th Golden Wedding anniversary at the home of a daughter, Mrs. Donald Daniels, and Mr. Daniels, of Wheelwright. The couple was married June 1, 1931 at Garrett, Ky. by the late Rev. Edward Howard.

Mrs. Allen is the former Maxie Cooley, of Northern, and a former teacher in the Floyd county school system. Mr. Allen, a World War I veteran, is a retired employee of Kentucky West Virginia Gas Company. They have one other daughter, Mrs. Homer L. Hall, of Hueysville, and one grandchild, Donald Ray Daniels, II.

A four-tier anniversary cake and candelabra provided the focal point on the reception table as Miss Sandy Tinder assisted the hostesses in serving guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Allen acknowledged gifts received, including an engraved gold tray from their daughters, containing an engraved personal reminiscence.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniels and Mr. and Mrs. Hall received relatives and friends who called during the afternoon to extend congratulations.

Trial Duck Season Scheduled for Sept.

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service has approved an experimental five-day September duck season for Kentucky, Fish and Wildlife Department Commissioner Carl E. Kays announced last week.

During the Sept. 9-13 season, hunters will be allowed a daily bag of four ducks, but only one of the four can be a species other than teal or wood ducks.

Hunters participating in this early season hunt must have a special permit, which is for survey purposes and includes a post-paid card for the hunter to report harvest and hunting information.

These permit cards will be available at no cost from fish and wildlife conservation officers, cooperating sporting goods stores and from the Frankfort offices of the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources beginning around the middle of August.

Kentucky has had a September teal season in the past. Teal migrate early in the year and are passing through the state at this time. Wood ducks nest in Kentucky, but most migrate out of the state before the opening of the regular waterfowl season in November.

This September season will give Kentucky hunters an opportunity to harvest Kentucky-produced wood ducks, Kays said. Permitting one duck other than teal or wood ducks will allow hunters to make a mistake in on-the-wing identification and not be in violation of the law, according to Kays.

Full regulations on this early season and details on how to get the required permits will be announced in the near future.

SECOND CHILD BORN

Mr. and Mrs. Jimmie D. Hopkins, of Wayland, announce the birth of their second child, a daughter, Jennifer Lynn, July 12 at Pikeville Methodist Hospital. The maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Gliden Bradley, of Wayland. The paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Blaine Hopkins, of Price.

Try Pickling To Preserve Produce

Gardens are springing up all over Kentucky. Families that have never had the experience of gardening are trying this year to cut down on their food budget with a home-grown abundance of fresh fruits and vegetables. Soon these home gardeners will have a harvest of produce to preserve for the coming year. Besides the usual canning and freezing, pickling is a good alternative for food preservation.

Pickles are enjoyable foods that add zip and zest to any meal. "Pickles are a good source of color, flavor and texture to a meal," said Sue Burrier, Extension specialist in nutrition and food science in the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

Pickles can be made from vegetables such as cucumbers, cauliflower, brussel sprouts and green beans and fruits such as watermelon, peaches, pears or other firm fruits.

Pickles come in several types and are defined by how they are prepared or seasoned, said Burrier. Brined or fermented pickles go through a curing process in brine solution (salt and water) for three weeks or longer. Quick-process pickles are soaked for a few hours or overnight and combined with hot vinegar, spices and other seasonings and processed. Fruit pickles are processed in a sweet, spicy vinegar sauce. Relishes are chopped seasoned fruits or vegetables cooked to a desirable thickness and processed.

Pickling is an economical way to preserve garden foods, but there are some important points to remember when starting your pickling process.

Vinegar used in pickling should be 5 or 6 percent acidity. Using cider vinegar with a mellow acid taste will give pickles a better flavor and a darker color. "It's better to use white distilled vinegar with light color pears, onions and cauliflower," said Burrier. She warns against the use of homemade vinegar because the percent of acidity is not known.

Spices are also important ingredients in pickle-making. Fresh whole spices are best, said Burrier, because storing spices over the hot summer months will cause them to lose their flavor. Be sure to remove spices before sealing jars.

Using table salt is not recommended because it darkens pickles. "A salt should be one for use in canning and should have no additives or iodine," said Burrier.

The correct equipment is important to good pickling. "Stone jars and crocks are recommended for fermenting or brining pickles, but glass, unchipped enamel-lined pans or stainless steel are also fine," said Burrier. Plastic is not recommended. When pickles are processed in a water-bath canner, the canner should be deep enough to cover the jars by two inches or more. Home canners are also to be warned about the use of jars other than the standard canning jar, and they also should buy new lids each year.

Use only the best quality vegetables and fruits in the pickling process. Be sure the produce is clean, and remove all blossoms and stems because of possible contamination. Vegetable and fruits should be picked fresh and processed within 24 hours after picking to assure a good quality product, said Burrier.

Pickles are not high in nutrient value, but they do have some nutrients, said Burrier. "Vitamin A is a major nutrient and it is good for healthy skin, digestion and strong bones and teeth," said Burrier. Another good point for pickles is that they are relatively low in calories. According to Burrier, one dill pickle about 3 inches long and 1 1/2 inches in diameter has only five calories, about the same as a fresh cucumber. The pickles to stay away from if you are calorie-watching are sweet gherkins, fruits and pickles that have a lot of added sugar. One small sweet gherkin, 2 1/2 inches long and three-fourths inch diameter, has around 20 calories.

Pickled fruits are plump, firm, but tender, according to Burrier. Cucumber pickles are firm, solid, dark olive green and have a uniform color throughout. The most important thing is for all products to be of good color, firm and crisp.

Pickles are a good way to lighten up any meal or especially those late summer picnics. For further information on pickling, see your county Extension agent for home economics.

Commission on Women Vacancies Are Filled

Gov. John Y. Brown, Jr. has appointed eight Kentucky women to fill recent vacancies on the 25-member Kentucky Commission on Women.

The commission was established in 1964 by executive order and became a state agency in 1970 through legislative action.

The governor reappointed three women to four-year terms: Phyllis Wood, Williamsburg; Wanda Bradberry, Owensboro, and Betty McCann, Winchester.

Five women will be serving on the commission for the first time. They are:

Lela Williams, Radcliff; Elizabeth Moeller, of Graham, Muhlenburg county; Judy Hanekamp, Louisville; Josephine Richardson, Whitesburg, and Sandy Metts, Louisville, who is currently a national Democratic committeewoman.

Gov. Brown also appointed Carole Morse, Louisville, as chairperson for the commission. Morse, until recently director of the Louisville Spouse Abuse Center, started Kentucky's first shelter program for abused women and their children in 1977. Prior to moving to Kentucky, she was the manager for press information of WCAU-TV, Philadelphia, and a staff writer for Fortune magazine in New York City.

Jessica Loving Schikler, executive director of the Kentucky Commission on Women, also announced recent appointments to fill vacancies on the staff of the commission. Barbara R. Smith, Frankfort, who will serve as an executive officer, is presently the Equal Opportunity Employment coordinator for the Kentucky Department of Personnel. Smith is involved in a number of civic activities including the NAACP and the Louisville Urban League.

Vicki Dennis, Lexington, who is a staff writer for the Kentucky Department of Tourism, will also join the staff as an executive officer.

Doris Meador, Frankfort, also from the Department of Tourism, will serve as executive secretary.

Teacher Surplus May Be Dwindling

The Department of Education is predicting a teacher shortage—at least in the areas of math and science—within the next year.

A department representative told members of the subcommittee on education and the arts that teachers of all subjects may be in short supply in geographical areas also. The drop probably is due to publicity about a recent surplus of teachers and a tendency to discourage college students from entering the "over-crowded" field. An even greater pinch may be felt in the next few years if a number of teachers elect to take early retirement at the same time.

PUBLIC NOTICE TO OWNERS OF RENTAL HOUSING

The Floyd County Housing Authority is administering a Section 8 Moderate Rehabilitation Program in Floyd County using funds provided by the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Under this program, owners will rehabilitate rental units which are now substandard or have major building systems or components requiring repair or replacement. The cost of this work, which must total at least $1000 per unit, may be financed by a local lending institution, by the owner, or by any other source available to the owner. The agency does not make rehabilitation loans or grants, but will assist owners to obtain financing.

After required rehabilitation work has been completed, the agency and the owner will execute a contract which establishes a rent for the unit(s) that will cover rehabilitation costs, meet monthly operating expenses, and allow a reasonable profit on the owner's investment. For a fifteen year period, the owner will rent the rehabilitated unit(s) to eligible lower income tenants, who will pay approximately 25 percent of their income toward the rent. The agency will pay the remainder of the rent directly to the owner. The initial occupant of a rehabilitated unit may be the owner's present eligible tenant. After rehabilitation, the rent (including utilities) cannot exceed the following Maximum Rents:

Table with 4 columns: BEDROOM SIZE, 1, 2, 3, 4. Row 1: 206, 244, 282, 319.

The agency's current funds will allow rehabilitation of 35 units of rental housing as follows:

Table with 4 columns: 1 BR, 2 BR, 3 BR, 4 BR. Row 1: 8, 18, 7, 2.

No unit will be assisted which results in the permanent displacement of a current tenant.

Proposals from owners will be received by the Housing Authority until further notice.

Owners who wish to submit a proposal must obtain an application form from:

This installment looks at several important needs in Appalachian timber management.

One need is the development of intensive private forest management plans for small farm and woodlot owners. The U.S. Forest Service has accomplished this goal on publicly-held lands in Appalachia, and the state Division of Forestry is making inroads on private land. Often misinterpreted as implying the extensive planting of pines, this need should stress growing hardwood species and future management of the trees, including timber stand improvement practices and providing for wildlife habitat. Pine plantings are a part of this need, but despite their profitability in the short run, pines planted extensively could drastically change the Appalachian environment. Besides, hardwoods, especially poplar, walnut, and others, may actually be more profitable in the long run.

Specialized wood product facilities are needed in Appalachia. Wood preservation plants, pulpwood yards near railroads, processing mills which

KENTUCKY AFIELD

By John Wilson

Kentuckians like to fish more than just about anybody else in the Southeast, according to a set of vital statistics compiled by the Southeastern Association of Fish and Wildlife Agencies.

According to these statistics, there are 23.48 fishermen per square mile in Kentucky, second only to Missouri (with 23.50) in density of anglers.

In Kentucky, 27.30 percent of the population goes fishing. This again is second only to Missouri, where over 35 percent of the total population can be expected to pick up a rod and reel.

The average number of fishermen per square mile for all 16 Southeastern states is 12.42, and in the Southeast as a whole 15.0 percent of the people are fishermen.

But while Kentuckians seem to be more avid than average fishermen, they're just about average hunters, at least as far as numbers are concerned. You can expect nine hunters per square mile in Kentucky, which is close to the average for the Southeast, 9.31 hunters per square mile.

Hunters make up 10.50 percent of Kentucky's population, again close to the average of 10.10. Oklahoma wins the prize for the most hunters in the population (17.17 percent) and Maryland is the most crowded, with almost 36 hunters per square mile.

If you're looking for elbow room, head for Texas, where there's only 4.24 hunters per square mile, or to Oklahoma, where only 7.14 anglers are casting over the same square mile of territory.

Kentuckians pay close to average prices for their hunting and fishing licenses. At $6.50, a resident fishing license is a little more expensive than the average fee of $5.64, but that $6.50 hunting license is a bargain, since the average hunting license in the Southeast costs $7.14.

Florida has the most expensive resident hunting license ($11) and fishing costs the most in Maryland, where a resident license costs $8. Bargain hunters should move to Georgia for that state's $4.25 resident hunting license or to Louisiana, where a year's worth of fishing can be had for only $2.

At $10.50, Kentucky's deer permit is the highest in the Southeast for residents (the average is $6.33) but a bargain for non-residents, who fork out an average of just over $26 to deer hunt in another state.

But Kentucky's $35 non-resident annual license is right at the average fee of $35.50 for the Southeast. South Carolina is highest, charging non-residents $42.50 for a hunting license. Louisiana is kind to its tourists, charging $25 for an annual license, the lowest in the Southeast.

Fishermen visiting another state can expect to pay from $6 (Louisiana) to $20 (West Virginia) for an annual non-resident fishing license. Kentucky's $14 license is slightly higher than the average cost of $12.25. Five Southeastern states offer a three-day non-resident fishing license, and at $4, Kentucky's is just below the average of $14.74.

Central U.S. Quake in July, 1980 Strongest Ever Recorded in State

Followup studies show that the earthquake that shook all or parts of 16 states and southern Ontario, Canada, one year ago Monday (July 27, 1980) was the strongest tremor ever recorded that was centered in Kentucky, according to the U.S. Geological Survey.

The quake was felt over an area of 230,000 square miles, from Wisconsin, Michigan, New York and Ontario to the north to Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia and South Carolina on the south.

A new report by the USGS says the epicenter of the quake was near Sharpsburg, Ky., but the area of severest damage was more than 30 miles north at Maysville, Ky., on the Ohio River.

Major damage occurred to some homes and commercial buildings in Maysville. The severest damage in other affected areas involved chimneys, cracks in walls of basements and cisterns, cracks in concrete-block walls and concrete foundations, broken windows and cracked plaster. At least two people were injured during the earthquake.

The quake had a magnitude of 5.2 on the Richter Scale, and the authors of the USGS report estimated that the tremor had a maximum of VII on the Modified Mercalli Scale.

The Richter Scale magnitude is an instrumental measure of the amount of ground motion and is related to the energy released by earthquakes, with each full number increase on the scale representing the release of about 33 times more energy. The Kentucky earthquake was small compared, for example, with the 8.3-magnitude San Francisco earthquake of 1906, which released about 36,000 times more energy.

The Modified Mercalli Intensity Scale ranges from I to XII and is a rating, based on human judgement, of the degree of damage and other physical effects from earthquakes. The value I represents "not felt" and XII represents virtual total destruction of people-made structures. Whereas there is a single Richter Scale magnitude for each quake, the Mercalli intensity rating for any one earthquake varies from place to place.

The maximum Mercalli intensity rating for the 1980 Kentucky earthquake was VII at Maysville. An intensity of VII means "damage negligible in buildings of good design and construction; slight to moderate damage in well-built ordinary structures; considerable damage in poorly built or badly designed structures; some chimneys broken."

Even though the tremor was centered near Sharpsburg, the report says, the Mercalli intensity there was only VI. This rating is characterized by: some windows broken; bricks loosened; bricks fallen; plaster and masonry cracks.

USGS and other scientists made field investigations of damage shortly after the earthquake and mailed "intensity questionnaires" to postmasters and selected government agencies within a radius of about 450 miles of the epicenter of the quake.

Their report includes a map showing the Mercalli intensities in affected areas, plus a list of the intensities for each of almost 1,600 communities. In Prestonsburg and Pikeville, the quake was rated as level V. Characteristics of that level: felt by nearly everyone; many awakened; some dishes, windows broken; unstable objects overturned; pendulum clocks may stop.

Bobby G. Reagor, a USGS geophysicist in Golden, Colo., and principal author of the report, said the known maximum intensity associated with previous earthquakes in this region of northern Kentucky has been estimated at IV or less. Quakes with intensities of VII, and as much as XI, have occurred in other states in the general area, including Missouri, Illinois, Tennessee, Indiana and Ohio.

The effects of local geologic settings and types of construction on the degree of damage caused by earthquakes were well illustrated in Maysville, Reagor said.

Most damage in Maysville occurred in the older, downtown section of the city. This area is underlain by the Ohio River floodplain that consists mostly of unconsolidated sediments subject to more severe shaking in earthquakes. Most of the damage in this area occurred in older brick structures, probably built during the mid-1800's, which were too rigid to withstand groundshaking without damage.

A few blocks from the river, the land surface in Maysville begins an abrupt rise to bluffs overlooking the river. Damage was less severe on this slope and on top of the bluffs, the report says, because the underlying material is more solid and because most homes in these areas are wood-frame construction that can flex without damage in earthquakes.

There also was less damage in Aberdeen, Ohio, immediately across the river from Maysville, apparently due in part to differences in the design and age of most commercial buildings and homes, the USGS report says.

Drug, Alcohol Unit Gets New Director

The McDowell Appalachian Regional Hospital announces that, as of July 1, the McDowell Hospital C.P.I. unit, a program for the treatment of individuals with chemical dependency problems, will be under the direction of Terry Krueger.

Krueger, who will be replacing Bob Good, has been employed in Minnesota as a chemical dependency counselor and most recently has been the C.P.I. unit's senior counselor. He has a background in industrial counseling and is certified by the state of Minnesota as a chemical dependency practitioner. Mr. Krueger is also a member of the Kentucky Association of Alcoholism and Drug Abuse Professionals.

Krueger says his goals for the unit are to build more public awareness and to provide quality services. The unit will offer assessment and evaluation; detoxification upon entering treatment; individual, group and family counseling; A.A. and Alanon involvement; and after care.

All referrals must be checked through the C.P.I. counseling staff, available 24 hours a day by calling 377-2411, Extension 136, or just by asking for the C.P.I. unit. All phone calls will be treated as strictly confidential.

ST. IVES

John Houseman (left) stars as a wealthy criminal who hires a crime reporter on leave (Charles Bronson) to aid him in attempting to intercept a bribe in "St. Ives," an action drama on "The Sunday Big Event," SUNDAY, AUGUST 2 on NBC-TV.

St. Ives (Bronson) is called upon to work for Procane (Houseman), who is attempting to intercept a bribe passing from American underworld elements to an Arab gang.

Plunging into the assignment, St. Ives follows a trail that leads from the wealthiest suburbs to rundown neighborhoods of Los Angeles. As time passes, he realizes that a pattern of doublecrosses and unexpected information is leading him closer to criminal involvement and danger.

Maximilian Schell, Jacqueline Bisset and Harry Guardino also star.

FLAMINGO ROAD

Field Carlyle (Mark Harmon) risks his political future by publicly flaunting his affection for Lane Ballou (Cristina Raines) and infuriates his backers and in-laws when he uses his power to force a quick and quiet divorce from his wife, in a special two-hour presentation on NBC-TV's "Flamingo Road," MONDAY, AUGUST 3.

When dangerous chemicals from the Weldon mill contaminate Sam Curtis's construction site and both companies are shut down, Claude Weldon seeks Field's political favor by offering him a divorce from Constance. Lane's past finally catches up with her, though, when she is captured by ruthless Harrison Brand.

With Titus's help, Slade zeroes in on Lane, who begins to view Field as a man who will stop at nothing to get what he wants.

Regular Baptist Group Helps Needy Students

Pikeville College has received a check in the amount of $2,000 from the Regular Baptist Foundation of Whitesburg. The donation was given to provide scholarship assistance to needy students in Pike county for the 1981-'82 academic year.

The check was presented to President Jackson O. Hall by W. Raymond Collins, chairman of the Regular Baptist Foundation. The money will be used to establish the Frank Hopkins Memorial Scholarship Fund, and with continuation of support, scholarships will continue each year.

Hopkins, a native of Pike county, was a Regular Baptist minister, business man and friend of young people in eastern Kentucky. He was instrumental in establishing the Regular Baptist Orphanage in Letcher county, the sale of which provided some of the assists for this foundation.
