Speaking of

and for

Floyd County

This week the first "Fishing Report" of 1980 reaches us via the Division of Fish and Wildlife.

That may be what was needed to revive some fisherfolk who have pretty well gone into hibernation, but a few hardy, wildeyed souls required no such encouragement. Some have already ventured as far afield as Toledo Bend, in Texas

Me, I am at the stage of a long and less-than-illustrious fishing career when more than a mere report is required to stir me. The temperature (not necessarily that of the water) must be just right, the wind light and not out of the north or east, no cold fronts nearer than 500 miles and the signs of the zodiac auguring well.

When all say, "Go," let the bass have fair warning. And the word to the worm is: "Sleep late!"

WITH THE ARRIVAL of the county's new trash collection fleet, pictured above in the yard of East Kentucky Mack, and the redemption by the county of franchises formerly sold to private collectors, all that remains before the county begins operation of its new collection system, officials say, is a final permit by state environmental authorities for the proposed county landfill near Garth.

Explore for Gas In Cliff Vicinity

Hope of exploratory drilling for gas here which could result in a new and almost free source of natural gas for the city of Prestonsburg has risen with the announcement that the state Department of Energy may be ready to advertise for a drilling contractor next month.

A similar project was first introduced by the American Public Gas Association, and Bill H. Howard, superintendent of Prestonsburg utilities, has been negotiating with that group for months but with less than satisfactory results.

The state agency's proposal is much the same as that made by Americ Public Gas-to drill on a lease procured by the city or its utilities system, exploring deep coal beds and the Devonian shale, and if gas in paying quantities is found the city would be permitted to its use without charge.

State Dept. May Two Water Systems In Parley on Rates

Within the next 18 months, Prestonsburg should be piping water to Stanville, where it will be purchased by the Sandy Valley Water District. Sandy Valley commissioners had second thoughts last week, however, before receiving assurances from Prestonsburg that their customers would not be shortchanged by the deal.

At issue was the difference in rates charged customers within and without the Prestonsburg city limits. In a written statement, Jack Branham, of Betsy Layne, chairman of the Sandy Valley Water District, pointed out that the district would be paying Prestonsburg $4148 a month for the three million gallons it intends to buy. A Prestonsburg customer would pay $3351 for the same purchase

Old Style Wins

The price difference will be in fact even greater for the retail customer served by the Sandy Valley system, it is argued. While Prestonsburg customers deal directly with the city utilities commission, Sandy Valley customers will deal with their own district commission as "middle man," and can expect a mark-up on the wholesale price the district pays Prestonsburg for its water.

. An emergency session of the grand jury lasted for only an hour Monday morning but in that time named three men on murder charges, two of the three for arson, and three others on first-degree burglary counts.

James Noel and Denver Patrick were accused in separate bills of the capital offense of murder and of firstdegree arson.

(Conviction on a capital murder offense indictment could result in the death penalty.)

The third man accused of murder is Otis Lee Wallen, who was charged with the shotgun slaying near here Feb. 20 of Paul Mullins.

Each of the murder bills lodged against Noel and Patrick accuse them of the slaying on Shop Fork, near Wayland, last October of James Niemi, and each alleges that the murder was committed "during the course of and while committing first degree arson and for the purpose of receiving money or profit." The arson indictments accuse the two of burning a dwelling owned by Patrick, "while knowing that it was occupied by James Niemi.

(The body found in the ruins of the home was at first reported to be that of Noel but its identification later as that of Niemi was confirmed by both of the accused men after their arrests a few

Hospital Strike Set for Monday

Highlands hospital workers voted last week to strike at Sunday midnight According to a statement issued by the employees' union, District 1199, National Union of Hospital and Health Care Employees, the decision to strike was carried by 201-an unanimous Salary scales for the officials' next erm may also be considered in the Wreck Victim term may also be considered in the near future, it was indicated.

While the cost-of-living adjustment may take immediate effect, base salary raises are not permitted except with respect to the new term, on account of a law prohibiting the officials from raising their pay while in office. The allowance voted in last week will bring to $26,058 the annual salary of the judge-executive, sheriff and county clerk. Magistrates will earn $19,139, the county coroner $9,216, and the county attorney about $34,000, depending partly on his caseload.

Coroner James J. Carter told the fiscal court that he, for one, would be looking for a raise when next term's salaries are considered. Despite continuing refinement of his skills and the fact that the Floyd coroner was recently singled out for praise by a forensic pathologist generally critical of the state's coroners, he is still one of the lowest paid coroners in the state, Carter said.

Found Sunday

George Milburn Vanover, 35, Hueysville miner, was found dead in Right Beaver Creek, near Eastern, last Sunday afternoon, several yards from the scene of the wreck of the Jeep which he had been driving.

The wreck had been reported to Constable Bob Hackworth, but when Hackworth arrived at the scene he could find no victim. Thinking the driver had been taken to a hospital, he inquired at local hospitals, found that no wreck injury had been received. He had recognized the wrecked vehicle, however, and made inquiry at the Vanover home of the whereabouts of the driver. When no information was available there he and others returned to the scene and found Vanover, face down in the stream.

Although Constable Hackworth could (See Story No. 7, Page 4)

The city is responsible for the acreage on which the well would be drilled. Drilling will be done on acreage leased from the Prestonsburg Development Corp. in the Cliff vicinity. The city's main expense would be completion of the well if gas is hit-tubing, connections and the like.

Howard said the state agency already has funds appropriated for the work and is now completing program

Permit To Mine

The city of Prestonsburg apparently has lost its months-long struggle to prevent the Old Style Mining Company from mining coal at Ball Alley, within the city limits.

Donald L. "Dootney" Horn, one of the partners in the venture, said Tuesday that his firm received Monday from the Division of Permits, Frankfort, a permit to operate.

The company, which proposes to go back to old mining methods, hand-load coal into mine cars and use ponies to haul the coal outside, expects to be into production within two weeks, Horn said.

He said the mine is the only operation that he knows of in the United States that will be mining coal by methods in use prior to mechanization of the industry

Before actual mining is begun water that has accumulated during the lengthy litigation must be pumped from the mine.

In response to Sandy Valley's concern, Prestonsburg guaranteed last week that the burden borne by out-ofcity customers relative to city customers would never be increased. Any future rate increases will fall equally on all customers, it was agreed.

Bill H. Howard, superintendent of the city system, defended the difference in rates, pointing out that city customers pay taxes here. "The city built up this system in 1957, without federal help. We're still paying for it and we feel we have some equity in it." he said

Sandy Valley commissioners do not argue with that, but point out that Prestonsburg stands to make a tidy profit on its expanded system. Within five years, at least 250 customers will be hooked on to the line to be laid between Allen and Stanville, generating $65,000 annually, Branham estimates. (See Story No. 5, Page 4)

"Employees have deep concern for all our patients," the statement read, "but conditions at the medical center have become intolerable and the hospital administration has refused to make changes In another statement, Assistant Administrator Russell Dean acknowledged that the hospital administration had received notice of a strike. Dean rejected union claims that the hospital was stalling on its demands, however,

"We feel that progress has been made and we will continue to negotiate in good faith in the hope that further progress can be made," he said.

Among the grievances listed by the hospital workers are alleged refusals by the administration to authorize a patient care and staffing committee, to recognize seniority rights, to permit fair grievance procedures, or to post employee work schedules seven days in advance. The union is also complaining of inadequate pay, pensions, and benefits.

1980 Census Totals Show Floyd Population, 48,764

The 1980 Census figures are all in and declared official by the U.S. Census Bureau-whether you agree with them or not

Kentucky had a population increase of 33.7 per cent-up from 3,220,711 in 1970 to 3,661,433 at the time the census was taken last year, and the Big Sandy River section of the state, benefitting from an unprecedented coal boom, kept pace.

Floyd county's population, according to the Census, stands at 48,764, an increase of 35.9 per cent over the 35,889 tabulated in 1970.

Its five incorporated towns showed these totals:

Allen, 338 in 1980, a loss of 53.3 per cent from its 724 in 1970; Martin, 827. up from 786 in 1970 for a gain of 5.2 per cent; Prestonsburg, 4011 as compared with 3422 in 1970, a gain of 17.2 per cent; Wayland, 601, up from 384 10 years ago for an increase of 56.5 per cent; Wheelwright, 865, 9.1 per cent nore than the 793 total in 1970.

While Prestonsburg was showing a population gain of 589 over the 10-year period, two other county-seat towns of the area lost population. Paintsville lost 1.9 per cent, from 3868 to 3815, and Pikeville was down from 5205 to 4756 for a percentage loss of 5.6 per cent.

The new population figures for this county are also broken down into seven divisions. The 1980 totals for these are: Allen-Martin Division, 6909; McDowell Division, 4361; Mare Creek, 5418: Mud Creek, 6201; Prestonsburg, 14,160; Risner-Bull Creek, 2,116; Wayland, 4629.

The census includes housing unit totals for the county's incorporated towns

Allen, 126, a drop from 260 in 1970; Martin, 373, up from 262; Prestonsburg, 1691, up from 1256; Wayland, 206. a gain from 130; Wheelwright, a loss from 407 in 1970 to 380 when the 1980 census was taken.

Other area county population totals follow:

Johnson, 24,436, up 39.3 per cent from 17539 in 1970; Knott, 17,940, 22.1 per cent above its 14,698 at the last preceding census; Magoffin, 13,515. 29.4 per cent up from 10,433; Martin. 13,925, which was 48.5 per cent gain over the 10,443 recorded in 1970; Pike, 81,123, up from 61,059, or 32.9 per cent. On April 1, 1980, there were 55,513 people living in Boyd County, according to the final census figures. That represents an increase of 6 percent over the 52,376 people living in Boyd county on April 1, 1970

While the population of Boyd county increased by only 6 percent in the decade, the number of housing units jumped 20.6 percent from 17,779 in 1970 to 21,445 in 1980

In Ashland, the population declined while the number of housing units increased. Ashland had a population of 27,064 April 1 of last year, according to the final Census figures. That's a decline of 8 percent over the 29,245 city residents counted in 1970.

Catlettsburg also recorded a sharp decline in population during the 1970s while housing units increased.

There were 3,005 people living in the Boyd county seat on April 1, 1980, a drop of 12.1 percent from the 3,420 Gate City residents counted 10 years earlier Three blacks, four Indians and seven (See Story No. 3, Page 4)

His Work Shows the Mule Far From Obsolete

It gets harder all the time to imagine what it used to be like in Prestonsburg. Most remnants of the "older ways' which might have been visible otherwise, have become lost among the traffic islands and restaurant signs, it seems. Ed Scutchfield and his mule team and wagon are still around, the Water Gap section, where he still resides, mules and horses were a practical commodity. There was more dependence on the hillside farm in those days and his father "always kept mules around the place," Scutchfield said as he unloaded fertilizer at a freshly-plowed garden near The Times office a couple of weeks ago.

Although he has worked other jobs, Scutchfield has mainly raised and worked his mules. Hauling dirt, fertilizer, even doing some pipeline work in Pike county have been among the jobs which have occupied Scutchfield and his reliable work team. although in earlier days plowing in the spring was the primary task.

"Everybody in town here used to raise a pretty good sized garden," Scutchfield said, "and there was so much plowing going on you would have competition when you came to town with a mule team.

"Why, there's not hardly a lot in town I've not plowed," Scutchfield recalled.

There aren't too many gardens left now, but, at the same time, the competition has disappeared so Scutchfield and his mules, which he purchased several years ago "in the Kentucky River county," still do okay.

In his well-worn cowboy hat, the lanky Scutchfield can be seen these days, standing as he often does in front of the weathered wagon seat, skillfully guiding the long-eared mules through the streets of Prestonsburg and avoiding the Camaros and Yamahas which streak by.

The sight of Scutchfield and his mules seems incongruous among flashing chrome and honking horns, but it evokes more than a little nostalgia among those who remember the days when such scenes were common, and creates a bit of yearning in some younger folks who perhaps wish they had known those days. But Scutchfield knows little of nostalgia. All he's doing is shwoing that the "old ways" can still serve a practical purpose, after all.

Ed Scutchfield gives his mules a rest as he pauses to chat.

Free DAV Services To Benefit Local Veterans, Families

Free assistance for local veterans and their families will be available when a Field Service Unit of the Disabled American Veterans (DAV) visits Pikeville, on April 9. This is the eighth consecutive year that one of these office-equipped vans has traveled to communities throughout the state, bringing free benefits counseling and claim filing assistance to veterans and their families.

The DAV Field Service Unit will be located at Weddington Plaza. These units are generally open from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

A fully qualified and trained DAV veterans' benefits expert will staff the traveling service facility. He can assist veterans and their families in filing claims for such federal and state benefits as disability compensation, pension, employment and job training programs, education benefits, hospitalization and medical care, Social Security, death claims, and more.

During the past seven years, more than 300,000 veterans and dependents took advantage of this free service when it came to their communities. As a result of these visits, DAV National Service Officers filed 107,000 claims for disability compensation and pension benefits alone. Thousands of claims for other government benefits were also filed.

Veterans need not be members of the DAV to take advantage of this free service.

The project is an extension of the 61-year-old, 690,000-member organization's National Service Program. The DAV employs 290 full-time National Service Officers—more than 90% of whom are disabled veterans of the Vietnam War period—at Veterans Administration (VA) facilities across the country.

During the most recent full year for which statistics are available, these veterans' benefits specialists handled 212,000 individual cases, winning federal benefits totaling some $700 million for veterans and their families.

"Special emphasis is placed on Vietnam era veterans because many of these men and women aren't using the benefits they've earned, some out of

"It's surprising how many people don't even know about benefits they're entitled to by law until they step into one of our mobile offices," said DAV Executive Director Denvel D. Adams. Explaining the need for the program. Adams added, "Many veterans, dependents and widows live some distance from VA facilities where DAV services are available. Our Field Service Unit program carries these services right to the doorsteps of these people."

DAV Officials urge veterans of all wars—particularly disabled veterans—to take advantage of this free service by visiting the DAV mobile office to discuss any problems or questions they may have concerning veterans' benefits.

Local DAV and DAV Auxiliary members are cooperating with the DAV's National Headquarters to bring this special service program to the area.

Also to be discussed is the success of last week's UMWA Black Lung Rally for Life in Washington, D. C., and the rally's place in our continuing fight against occupational disease.

Working and retired miners, their families and friends are urged to at-

ENERGY WEEK March 15-21, 1981

As an energy producer and supplier, we are proud to salute American Energy Week. The purpose of this week-long observance is to focus the country's attention on the need to develop more domestic energy sources and increase energy conservation. At Kentucky Power, we strive to meet those goals 52 weeks a year. Our source of energy to make your electricity is coal – Eastern Kentucky coal – nearly 3-million tons annually. And the American Electric Power System, of which we are a part, is the largest user of coal in the United States. We're a firm believer in home-based energy.

We are also a strong supporter of energy conservation. We work hard to see that your electricity is produced efficiently. At our Big Sandy plant, we squeeze as much energy as we can out of each pound of coal and this helps keep your electric rates among the lowest in the nation. And, you work too hard for your money to pay for wasted energy at home. We urge you to take the time during American Energy Week to look at your energy usage and pin-point ways to use our product as efficiently as you can. By eliminating waste at home, you can keep your monthly bill as low as possible. For help in doing this, contact your nearest Kentucky Power office and ask for our SAVE* booklets. You'll find a lot of good energy-saving ideas in them.

6,000 Demostrate In D.C. Black Lung Fund Cut Protest

ALNS-Coal miners protesting cuts in Black Lung benefits at the March 9 rally and march in Washington, D. C. were greeted at the White House by a row of police cars barring them from the sidewalk and a dozen mounted police posted on the sidewalk between the police cars and the White House gate.

As the miners marched past the White House from McPherson Square where the rally had taken place, many stopped to comment on this reaction to their concerns from the Reagan administration and a few taunted the police.

Most exchanges between police and miners were friendly, however, and a park service truck at the end of the line of police cars was decorated with placards from the demonstrations.

Close to 6,000 miners, wives and pensioners attended the UMWA sponsored demonstration, most of them boarding busses in the wee hours of the morning in order to attend the two and a half hour event. Hats and jackets marked with District 15 and District 22 indicated that miners from as far away as Colorado and Utah had made the trip. There were few complaints about either the chilly weather or the long ride. Members of the West virginia Black Lung Lung Association who had boarded the bus at 3:30 a.m. in Beckley, W. Va., had just finished the eight block march, and faced a eight to ten hour ride home cheerfully declared that they were glad they had come.

Despite the good spirits, many there were sceptical as to whether the demonstration would have any real effect on rolling back the proposed cuts. A retired miner from Pennsylvania shook his head when asked if he thought the demonstration would do any good. "I've got 34 years underground and can't get Black Lung benefits," he said. He added that he expected more demonstratoins and a lot of protest if "Reagan keeps trying to take food away from little children and old people.

Few of the demonstrators paid much attention to the speeches of politicians and union officials, chatting among themselves during the majority of the program and responding politely but without enthusiasm to declarations of support

At one point, however, there was a request from the speaker's platform on the balcony of UMWA headquarters for a few moments of silence for a former miner who had died of Black Lung that morning. A total silence fell over McPherson Square and the crowd listened respectfully as the miner's son urged them not to give up the battle. Speakers at the rally included W. Va. Senators Robert Byrd and Jennings Randolph, and Representatives Carl Perkins of Kentucky, Nick Joe Rahall of West Virginia, George Miller, of California, and Austin Murphey, of Pennsylvania.

As many can recall, we had a rather low rainfall last summer and fall resulting in increased dangers of forest fires: and we were blessed with them! They caused smoke-filled skies, a serious hazard to people with respiratory problems, not to mention the cost in helping to bring the fires under cotrol.

Many people say, "Well, that was last year!" Yes, very true, but let us consider some probable results which might have been overlooked.

First, we will see above-average erosion due to various sections of our forest being burned last November. Without the leaves, etc. on the forest floor to help absorb the intense rainfall, rapid run-off will likely occur, resulting in massive erosion of burned mountain lands

Second, there will be a high probability of flooding especially in lowlying areas near small streams and rivers.

Third, we need the rainfall to replenish our water supply for drinking water and other home uses, for our crops, recreation, etc.

showplace of the Big Sandy," and I agree. Yet it's more than any mere showplace. It has splendid appointments, true, but the surrounding scenery, the unhurried pace there and the general atmosphere add up to a beauty and restfulness that few other places can match in this restless, riproaring age.

I have been in love with the spot since the days when it was known only as Hemlock Point and its only improvement was a well with hand-pump to which we returned from the newly impounded lake nearby for a drink of water.

The place never palls on me, but a recent "improvement" is disappointing. You go into the lodge, these days, look for the little lounge area in the lobby where there were restful seats and a big fireplace that was nothing short of inviting-and it isn't there. There's no place to sit in the lobby. The lounge area has been converted into a gift shop.

True, there is seating inside the adjacent conference room, and a fireplace there, too, and TV. A nice place to relax-if it isn't filled with conferees. et al

This is a nice gift shop they have added over there. But the result falls several furlongs short of my idea of the "light-and-set-a-spell" brand of Kentucky hospitality that the lodge once had.

SOUR NOTES.

There's music in the English language, if you can get around the discords, the cliches, malapropisms, "hysterical" cases, dangling participles, assorted banalities, and so on, ad absurdum.

This is no attempt to deal out a batch of examples; rather, is a culling of a few recently assembled by a newspaper, apparently after Chicago Mayor Jane Byrne had expressed the fond hope that a certain investigation in her city would "prove fruitworthy." We may as well begin with the young man's warning to his father that "I've got a bean to pick with you." or the case of the boss who wasn't overenthused with the progress being made on a project and instructed his employee to "step on the exhilirator."

Detention Center's Closing Slated Here

The juvenile detention center here will close. Floyd schools may have half a million dollars less to spend next year. Medicaid recipients will have to pay for their own transportation to clinics.

These are among the effects of budget cuts announced last week by Gov. John Y. Brown, Jr., as part of his plan to cope with declining state revenues.

The juvenile detention center, which occupies the upper story of the courthouse annex building, will close by July 1, according to a decision announced by Human Resources Secretary Grady Stumbo. The closing will save the state $152,000 next year, he said.

In all, $43.3 million will be cut from the state's elementary and secondary education budget. A $19 million cut last year is said to have cost Floyd schools about $200,000 this year.

The closing of the detention center here comes as one of a series of Carter said he believed the coroner's salary should be the same as that for magistrates.

The county solid waste agency was taken to task for 'an agreement it negotiated recently with the county's franchised trash collectors. The agreement was to buy back the franchises in view of the county's assuming direct responsibility for garbage collection here soon.

At the request of Solid Waste Board Chairman Bob McAninch and Albert Burchett, the board's attorney, who said they knew nothing of the agreement until it was concluded, the fiscal court directed that a new agreement be drafted which would name as parties only the solid waste board and the two operators who have actually been awarded garbage collection franchises by the county.

The two men, Okie Lawson, owner of District Four Sanitation Co., and Adrian Lafferty, owner of Floyd County Sanitation Co., are the only parties to whom the county is directly obligated, they argued.

Lafferty, who sublet parts of his franchise some years ago to Eugene Akers, serving the Left Beaver area, and the Martin Sanitation Co., sought successfully to have the subcontractors included as parties to the original agreement with the solid waste board. According to the agreement, Lawson is to receive $15,000 for his franchise rights, Lafferty $42,750, Akers $6000, and Martin Sanitation $16,250.

In directing that a new agreement be drafted, members of the fiscal court indicated that they had no dispute with the purchase figures but insisted that retrenchments designed to trim $20.1 million from the state Department of Human Resources' budget. A unit for girls had been transferred from the center last summer to the Pike County Juvenile Center, which is also targeted for closing as a result of the present cuts It will be up to the county to decide where to house the juveniles, Secretary Stumbo said. Officials here claim, however, that the county is in no financial position to maintain the detention center.

Calling the facility's closing "a tragedy," County Attorney Arnold Turner, Jr. said this week it would mean the loss to the courts of an important tool in dealing with young offenders.

A brief term in the detention center represented a "third option"-between simply sending the youth home or committing him to state custody-which has proved valuable in the vast majority of cases to come before district court here, Turner said.

"Without this middle ground," he predicted, "a big percentage of juveniles (appearing before the court) will be summarily returned home."

"What are you going to do with a youngster caught stealing gas for the first time? You're not going to want him committed to a state institution for six months. There will be no alternative now but to send him home,' Turner said. (State law requires that juveniles, if imprisoned, be kept out of sight and sound of adult prisoners.)

Nine staff positions will be eliminated as a result of the center's closing. Two of the positions are currently vacant, however, and some of the other employees may be transferred to other programs, it was said. The state has paid the county no rent for the space occupied by the detention facility, as the result of an arrangement by which state funds largely financed construction of the courthouse annex building in 1978. Human Resources has been paying 70 percent of the utility bills, however, its share amounting to $1386 a month. Among other budget-cutting measures, some 200 positions in the Human Resources department will be eliminated through attrition or reassignment next year; people being cut from Medicaid or AFDC will no longer enjoy a 10-day grace period before being removed from the rolls; and cash payments to destitute people and disaster victims will be reduced.

Despite the elimination of a number of alcohol-treatment programs across the state, the Layne House here will not be immediately affected, since it is funded by federal dollars, said David Bell, director of the Mountain Comprehensive Care Center. The reprieve is likely to be only temporary,

We would hurry past the newspaperman's report on "the griefstricken woman in her widow's tweeds" to the sage reference to "past history" and the warning that "your're treading on thin water.

Two of the most respected sports figures in the land were the late Casey Stengel of baseball fame and Ed Diddle, famed coach of the Western Kentucky Hilltoppers. The former talked a language that became known as "Stengelese," and Diddle named a tree on the Western campus a "pussyfootwillow," but both made some of those specialists in the language look like pikers. Uncle Ed was credited with the classic description of his son who, he said, was "about as big as I was when I was his size,' but it was some other athletic director who so graphically described a successful friend as one who "came out smiling like a rose.

Ted Stumbo, of Harold, a Sandy Valley commissioner, urged Prestonsburg representatives at a meeting last Thursday to "forget about city lines and get the whole area working together.

C. J. McNally, chairman of the Prestonsburg utilities commission. replied that the sale of city water to Sandy Valley could be justified to Prestonsburg residents "only if it is a good deal for the city.

The Sandy Valley commissioners asked for and received a guarantee that they would be given 90 days' notice of any rate increase by Prestonsburg. The lengthy warning was necessary to allow them to apply to the Public Service Commission for permission to pass the increase on to their own customers, they explained. As a water district. Sandy Valley must apply to the PSC for approval of any rate increases; as a municipality. Prestonsburg may raise water rates on its own.

Meanwhile, the Prestonsburg system absorbed the Abbott-Little Paint and Bull Creek water districts. with the signing of purchase contracts Friday Prestonsburg assumes each system's bond indebtedness.

This Cut Isn't Reagan's . . . Public Defender On Way Out

Among all the budget cuts presently making news, at least one cannot be attributed to the Reagan administration. It is the elimination from the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration budget of funds supporting regional public defenders in a number of states. including Kentucky. And it is a holdover from the Carter administration.

Four attorneys work out of the Office of Public Advocacy here. They are responsible for defending indigent clients charged with criminal offenses in a six-county area and currently have 200 cases pending. The funds that support them run out at the end of September.

What will happen then? "I suppose we will return to the practice of rotating these cases among private attorneys." said Richard Burmister, supervising attorney in the public defender's office here.

If that does happen, it will be a turn for the worse, in Burmeister's view The public defender system has proven cost effective, and provides speedier and better defense for the poor, he claims. What is more, it takes a burden away from private attorneys that they are generally happy to be rid of, he said.

On the last point at least, many private attorneys agree. At its last meeting, the Pike County Bar Association voted its support for the existing public defender program, according to Bob Bishop, a public defender who addressed the association on the subject of the program's threatened demise. And for some the issue has philosophical implications as well.

"It worries me," said Dan Rowland, an attorney in private practice here, in reference to cuts in both the public defender program and the legal aid programs which assist poor clients in civil suits.

"I think we're seeing a real regression in our legal system. We had progressed to a point where we could count on poor people getting legal representation without consideration of cost." he said. "We're slipping back settling with the subcontractors is Lafferty's responsibility.

The long-disputed question of whether "Little Floyd"-a section of Mare Creek-belongs to Pike or Floyd county once again exercised the court. The matter was raised by Jeffery Darrell Clark, of Harold, who said a bank was insisting on a resolution of the issue before lending him mortgage money to build a house on property he owns in the disputed section.

The state Attorney General had declined to give an opinion on the matter, Clark said.

Despite assertions by Mare Creek resident Julian Scalf that the state legislature long ago held the area to be part of Floyd county-advanced by Scalf and other residents in support of their contention that the Floyd fiscal court is responsible for road construction and maintenance there-the court heeded the advice of Assistant County Attorney Eric Hall that the matter still needs to be adjudicated in circuit court.

The court did resolve, however, that the location of the planned residence is in Floyd county "to the best of its knowledge" and therefore qualifies for residential mortgage money.

Following complaints about the condition of the Mare Creek road, and a claim that its unevenness contributed to the injury of a child riding a school bus there recently, Judge Executive Bill Wells and District Four Magistrate Hershel Hamilton agreed to meet with residents on the site.

Again before the court was the issuance of $1.6 million in industrial revenue bonds to finance the construction of a service and operations center for South Central Bell on Wills Branch of Bull Creek. The proposal was approved by the fiscal court last October and more recently by a state bond oversight committee. An ordinance providing for the issue of the bonds must now have two readings before the court

South Central Bell will have to post a $10,000 performance bond before the company is permitted to lay cables on any county right-of-way in the future. according to another fiscal court decision. In response to a company request to lay a cable on Dodson Branch of Bull Creek, Judge Wells noted that complaints had been received in the past about the condition in which the company allegedly left the roads when their work was done

Over the objection of Magistrate Ray Wilcox, who has been highly critical of the phone company's performance in this regard, the court decided to authorize the project on condition that a bond was posted.

however, since federal money for the state's comprehensive care centers is also targeted for a 25 percent reduction, he noted

As a result of cuts in the schools' budget, the size of kindergarten classes will rise by about 25 percent; purchase of new language-art textbooks will be delayed a year; there will be no additional money for vocational and special-education classes; educational fees will rise by only $5 per student instead of the $15 originally budgeted for next year; and there will be no additional power equalization money-money budgeted for poor school systems in an effort to equalize tax support for schools across the state.

Presbyterian Church Lists Lenten Events

The widely acclaimed film, "The Parable," will be shown at the First Presbyterian Church Thursday, March 19, at 7 p.m. First shown at the New York World's Fair in 1964, the film is a powerful expression of the Gospel story in a circus setting. A clown helps various people by taking their place, illustrating one theory of the atonement. Eventually his efforts arouse the opposition of those exploiting the captives, leading to a haunting crucifixion scene. The entire parable is enacted without words, but with memorable and provocative scenes reminiscene of the suffering of Christ. The film is open to the public free of charge.

Preceding this second Lenten event in a special series, there will be a simple soup-bean supper available at the church. Reservations should be made in advance by contacting Mrs. Mary Lou Layne. Following the movie the combined ecumenical choir will rehearse in preparation for its Palm Sunday performance.

The third Lenten event will be a concert of sacred music by the pastor of the church and his wife. The Rev. and Mrs. Tim Jessen. The Lenten and Easter selections will be performed on Thursday, April 2, at 7 p.m.

BEWARE OF CATTLE LICE

Even though the recent warm weather has reminded us of spring, officially, it's still winter, and it's the time to watch out for cattle lice.

Cattle lice populations should be peaking about now, and this is the time to observe animals for signs of stress. There are two types of lice that affect cattle in Kentucky: chewing and bloodsucking lice.

Chewing lice attack skin, hair and raw flesh of animals, although they don't reduce performance in cattle as much as blood-sucking lice.

Blood-sucking lice feed on blood. They're usually found in colonies on the hair and heavy populations can cause an animal to become anemic.

Lice can easily be identified on cattle, especially if they're present in large numbers. An obvious sympton of cattle lice is when cattle experience an abnormal amount of itching.

Depending on the severity of the problem, producers can slow down or completely eliminate cattle lice in their herds. Dust bags or back rubbers provide excellent control for the back and rear areas. However, insecticide sprays applied according to animal weights will rid your cattle of lice.

In addition to sprays, there are spotons and pour-ons formulations which are applied only to a certain area of the body

Spot-on products are measured in cubic centimeters and are applied on the animal only in one spot according to the animal's weight.

Pour-on's are applied up and down the back line of the back and are measured in ounces according to animal weights.

There are a wide variety of pour-on products available. However, there are two mixtures that are specified for control of cattle lice only. Also, if a producer has several head of cattle to treat, the cattle lice pour-ons are cheaper to use.

Spring Fire Season Approaches: Forest Said To Be Vulnerable remembered by Kentuckians because of the severe fire damage in the forests of the state's eastern counties.

Figures released by the Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection's division of forestry show 358,653 acres were burned in 1,883 fires this past fall.

Most of the fires occurred in the eastern third of the state-in the 40 counties east of Winchester, Richmond and Somerset. Counties hardest hit by the fires were Floyd, Pike, Perry, Martin, Harlan and Letcher, forestry officials said.

Forest damage figures compiled by C. J. Lohr, chief of the division's forest products utilitzation section, show a $714,718,000 reduction in the value of the timber affected by the fires.

"This value loss can be explained as the 1980 value loss in the timber's growth rotation of 70 years," said Lohr.

"As the timber matures to the 70-year age level and is cut for sale and use, its value will be approximately $714,718,000 less than if the fires had not burned in the fall of 1980. And these dollar values are all based on 1980 dollars," Lohr added.

"Any burning in hardwood timber areas affects all of the trees, from the seedling-sapling sized ones to the mature trees. The effect on all is a reduction of quality and value at the time they are finally harvested and sold," he explained.

"Fires burning under the conditions we saw in the fall fires were capable of wiping out 20-year-old tree stands, which will require an additional 20 years to return to its original condition. That's a 40-year setback in a 70-year rotation cycle," Lohr said.

'As a result of these fires, much of the timber will be permanently scarred," Lohr said. "Insects and disease will also cause deterioration of the trees throughout the remainder of their lifetime," he added.

Lohr said any forest products harvested from a burned-over woodland will be of substantially lower quality and value.

"The loss affects not only the landowners and local forest industry, it affects the entire community," Lohr commented.

In addition to production losses, he estimated job loss to the state's forestproducts industry at approximately 16,724 man-years of work which would have been available over a 70 year period had the fires not occurred.

"The loss goes even further," Lohr said. "The development of Kentucky's forest industry will be proportionately slower. Tax revenue will also be lost because of the fires.

Estimates of tax revenue loss to the state and federal governments has been set by forestry officials at more than $71 million, or 10 percent of pro-

The fall of 1980 will long be further forest losses said Forestry Director Ray Swatzyna. "Over the past 30 years Kentucky statistics show an average of 1,936 fires a year which burned on the average 79,634 acres of woodland. Last fall's fires were far more destructive, burning approximately 382,00 acres.

"This is an unnecessary economic loss to the state that we must strive to prevent," Swatzyna said.

The forestry director said approximately 30 percent of all forest fires reported in 1980 were incendiary, "In many cases these fires were not maliciously set fires, but ones started by people who mistakenly believed burning helps the woods," he said.

"Some people think burning rids forest of snakes, ticks and thickets," he explained. "In fact, generally the opposite results from these fires. People need to realize that there is no good to come from these fires-only tremendous harm.

"We hope people will keep this in mind as the spring fire season approaches. March, April, and May are a time of high fire occurrence in Kentucky," Swatzyna noted. "This year the average rainfall is still way down and we are afraid the woods will be very susceptible to fire. We can't urge caution too strongly."

Test Finds Most Soaps Irritating

You use an average of 28 pounds of soap a year, and you pay anywhere from four to 125 cents an ounce for it. Now a dermatologist has found that depending on which brand you use, this can all be very irritating to your skin.

"At least one out of every five Americans has some sort of skin problem that can be aggravated by a soap that is not mild," says Dr. Albert M. Kligman, Professor of Dermatology at the University of Pennsylvania.

Dr. Kligman headed a team of dermatologists who set out to determine the irritancy to the skin of 18 commonly available soaps. The bars of soap were tested on individuals who were carefully monitored for skin irritation reactions.

"Little is known about the safety of soaps," Dr. Kligman reports. "What are the signs of soap damage? Do soaps differ in their capacity to injure skin? Do soaps cause distinctive skin diseases? Are soaps bad for dermatitic skin? How should soaps be tested for safety?"

What became clear from Dr. Kligman's study is that there is a great difference among soaps, spanning the range from marginal to severe irritancy.

Dr. Kligman's research ranked the chapping, redness and scaling of the tested soaps. From the mildest to the most irritating, the order is: Dove, Aveenobar, Purpose, Dial, Alpha Keri, Fels Naptha, Neutrogena, Ivory, Oilatum, Lowila, Jergens, Lubriderm, Cuticura, Basis, Irish Spring, Zest, Camay and Lava.

Dove, a synthetic detergent bar, was ranked mildest. Neutrogena, considered to be a neutral soap, was no different than Ivory, the most widely used brand. (An earlier clinical study by different researchers found Neutrogena to be mild enough to be used by persons who were irritated by ordinary soap.)

"It is widely believed," Dr. Kligman says "that superfatted soaps are milder on the assumption that they leave a film of 'protective' oil on the skin. Oilatum, an example of this species, was not able to live up to its reputation. Since soaps emulsify and remove oils, superfatting is superselling."

Dr. Kligman says he studied soap because of the problem of identifying and recommending a mild soap for sensitive skins.

Just what is the problem with soap? Pure soaps are composed of alkali combined with tallow or vegetable oil. The natural moisture barrier which protects the skin from damaging factors is reduced when routinely washed with soap, resulting in dry, rough, tight skin.

The irritation can be worsened by the habits of the individual user. For example, acne sufferers who wash five to seven times a day actually aggravate the disease. Mothers also have a tendency to overuse soap on infants with diaper rash.

The new study by Dr. Kligman contrasted with earlier tests which failed to show differences among soaps or which concluded that soaps were harmless.

OIL IN ELECTRIC PLANTS

After three years of research, a Department of Energy funded study indicates they have found a method of converting an oil-burning generating plant to coal with a relatively small investment in retrofitting. The method is to mix pulverized coal with water and an unspecified stabilizer to obtain a liquid fuel that would be stored and burned just like oil. This new fuel would be called "arc-coal." The fuel would have an effective BTU value considerably less than oil but would offer the possibility of shifting a gas- or oil-burning plant to coal with a relatively small investment and, in addition, could conceivably operate from fuel delivered directly from a slurry pipeline. About the only change that would be required for a normal oilburning plant would be a different kind of burner.

supplies mean there's more gas available... for more people who want it."

Columbia Gas is now adding new customers where we couldn't before. We can now do this because of conservation and the savings that have come from more efficient use of natural gas. And because of our efforts to increase supplies.

On the conservation side, all of the steps our customers are taking to use natural gas more efficiently have resulted in a 15% decrease in usage since the peak years in the early seventies.

As usage has been going down, growing supplies have been adding to the natural gas available to Columbia, and Columbia customers. New wells, expanding pipelines and increased storage are all adding to our supply capabilities.

So now Columbia is in a supply situation which allows us to add new customers while meeting the needs of current customers-this winter and in the future

If you'd like information on areas where new hookups are available, call your Columbia Gas office. For ideas on ways to make the most of your energy dollars, also ask for a copy of our free "Everyday Energy Saver's Guide

Visit With a Master Craftsman

Snow lingered on north sides of hills, ice hung from cliffs like a white beard and thin sheets of ice cracked along the edges of the stream. February sun cast a sheen on rhododendron and mountain ladrel and emphasized the stark whiteness of snow, dark water, the green of tall pines and the blackness of cattle grazing against a Wolfe county hill

We were traveling to Campton to join Ohio friends Robert and Judy Stix and Jack and Tudy Henry. Together we were going to visit famed folk artist and friend EdgarTolson and his family.

It was Judy Stix who actually was responsible for the visit to Eastern Kentucky. Over coffee and sandwiches in a Campton restaurant, she opened a book to point out photographs and a write-up of Tolson and his work. She said then she was determined to meet the artist and see his wood carvings.

The Tolsons' mobile home was warm, comfortable and further brightened by the appearance of blueeyed Crystal, their two-year-old grandchild.

Census Survey Here Seeks Employment Data

The U. S. Bureau of Census is conducting a regular survey on employment and unemployment in this area, now through March 20, according to Joseph Harris, acting director of the Bureau's Regional Office in Charlotte. In addition to the ususal questions on current employment, the March survey will include others concerning the work experience and income of household members last year and whether they have moved since March 1980

Households in this area are part of the sample of 78,000 across the country scientifically selected to represent a cross section of all U.S. households.

The monthly survey is conducted for the U.S. Department of labor and provides a continuous record of activity in the labor force. The January survey indicated that of the 105.5 million men and women in the civilian labor force, 97.7 million were employed. The Nation's unemployment rate was 7.4 percent, the same as in December and little different from the rates which have prevailed since May of last year.

Information supplied by individuals participating in the survey is kept strictly confidential by law and the results are used only to compile statistical totals.

Interviewers who will visit households in this area include Patricia A. Walters, East Point

At 77, Tolson retains his skill and an innate understanding and sensitivity in his artistic expression. Tolson sees in his uncut sycamore, water birch and cedar the finished work he dreams of producing

Tolson brought from a box a wooden snake he had just finished and a partially completed apple tree. These components eventually completed an Adam and Eve Scene for Bob and Judy

'I don't recall seeing anyone do this type of work till I took it up 15 years ago,"Tolson said. "Oh, I'd known about old people carving wood dolls for their kids, but nobody looked on it as an art form.

An art form it is. Soon after Tolson began creating objects of strength and beauty from wood, he found other people admired his skill.

The wood carvings of the Eastern Kentucky artist, father of 20 children, have been in traveling exhibits in Europe, Japan and other countries as well as the United States. His work is part of permanent exhibits at the Smithsonian in Washington, Ford Museum in Michigan and a handsome exhibit of his work is in the lobby at Maddox (Dr. Paul) Clinic, Campton, a short distance from Tolson's home.

"I guess I've whittled 5,000 of the Adam and Eve Scenes - 1 call it 'Temptation,"' Tolson said. "There are only two of Noah's Ark I know of, one in Dearborn and the other in New York. My favorite pieces are the beheading of John the Baptist and the one about the Romans when they threw the people and children to the lions. Why, I've had people come here and gather up the shavings out of the box and carry them off."

Two of Tolson's sons, Donnie and Charles, exhibit a beginning of their father's skill in their hand carvings of walking sticks, people and animals.

Tolson was a coal miner in years past. During World War II he worked in Dayton, Ohio, painting machinery "for an electric company

He spoke of a heart condition and looked out a back window to a tworoom unpainted building. "As soon as I can, I'm going to start work out there. I've not done much for about two months," he said.

The Tolson hands seemed twitchy, almost itchy to get busy with his pocket knife turning out more carvings of Uncle Sam, Adam and Eve, owls and animals. Tolson is a master craftsman, his wood sculptures capturing a timeless beauty.

Supplemental Insurance

At the present time, persons over 65 are entitled to insurance benefits under the Medicare program, Attorney General Steven L. Beshear said.

The enactment of Medicare left some gaps for private health insurance to fill. However, many elderly persons have been sold far more supplementary coverage than needed. Many of the policies are poor values for their cost, Beshear said.

Many Medicare supplemental policies mainly cover only services also covered by Medicare. They do pay some or all deductibles and copayments Medicare does not pay. Beshear noted.

The best Medicare supplement policies cover deductibles and copayments under both hospital and medical insurance. Also covered may be additional days in inpatient hospitalization and skilled nursing facility care or additional home health visits.

Since the elderly have increasing medical needs and more frequent hospitalization, they need to be aware of the difference between policies concerning supplemental insurance. Beshear said.

Discrepancies appear in many of the supplemental insurance policies. A policy may define hospital in a way that many hospitals and patients care facilities do not qualify. Some policies may stipulate benefits are not paid for the first 21 or 30 days of hospitalization. This is twice as long as the average stay in the hospital. Also, it is important to check to see if convalescent or nursing home facilities are covered in the policy, Beshear added. When purchasing supplemental insurance it is wise to investigate before investing.

Two important facts surface when purchasing supplemental insurance. Private health insurance can help you fill some but not all the Medicare gaps. And, if you are eligible for Medicaid, you will need even less supplemental coverage, because the combination of Medicare and Medicaid pays almost all essential medical costs," Beshear added

As with the purchase of any insurance, do not buy more policies than needed, Beshear advised. Duplicate coverage means multiple premiums with no greater protection than a single, good policy. Check for preexisting conditions, exclusions and waiting periods. It is important to know when a new policy begins paying and what medical conditions are permanently excluded.

Be aware of supplemental policies that have a governmental look because no private insurance company selling insurance to add to Medicare is affiliated with or endorsed by the federal government, Beshear said Also, when purchasing additional insurance beware of scare tactics. Less than 1 percent of the elderly exhaust Medicare hospital benefits. Only about 4 percent of the elderly are in nursing homes. Most importantly, few private health insruance policies cover services that Medicare does not, the aty general added. If you need additional information on Medicare supplemental policies or health insurance, please write to the Office of the Attorney General, Division of Consumer Protection, Frankfort, Ky. 40601.

A Special Birthday Observance

Elmer Castle resides at Mountain Manor Nursing Home here, and Friday, friends, relatives, and staff members at Mountain Manor joined to help him celebrated his 90th birthday.

For Mr. Castle, who is bright and full of vitality, the occasion was more than an observance-it was truly a celebration, particularly special since he was joined by his twin brother, Edgar, of Inez.

The brothers were born March 14, 1891 at Inez, "right in town" as Elmer said, and although their life experiences have varied, they seem to share the same enthusiasm for people and living in general.

Elmer has been a school teacher at Inez, former postmaster of the old Martin county mining town, Himlerville, and an employee of a Paintsville hardware for 25 years. He is quick to point out that he has been all over the U. S., "every state, and Canada and Mexico, too.

Edgar, on the other hand, has stuck closer to home. He describes himself as a farmer, foxhunter and fisherman, and, being a widower since 1958, he still does his own cooking. Edgar was also justice of the peace for 12 years and member of the Martin county board of education for 26 years.

They've seen a lot of life and changes since 1891-some good and some bad. Elmer talks of the "awfullest change in people's attitude." According to him, "Everybody's in for themselves. They don't care about each other like they used to.

They both agree on the improvements which have come, especially to their home county, in recent years. "The way it used to be you raised all you ate and ate all you raised," Edgar recalled. "I'd hate to see Martin county go back like it was.

Visiting with the brothers on the occasion were Garland and Aileen Castle, of Dandridge, Tenn.; Ruth Kanauz, of Beauty; Pearl Robertson, of Prestonsburg; Estelle Harris, of Beauty, and Romaine Conley, of Williamson, West Virginia.

Miners with black lung should be spared cuts, except rare cases of proved deceit, if such exist. Of all workers due benefits disabled miners and hospitalized veterans should share priority because the debt owed them can never be repaid. In bygone days this column offered a suggestion for a national monument honoring miners who daily risk their lives for us.

May our government never neglect the sick, needy, and helpless. But "chiselers" in any category should be removed. Some suffer poverty from choice and shiftlessness. When a third generation of one family stays on relief, reevaluation is paramount. When aid was first provided low income families the government said poverty would soon disappear. Instead, the number continually increased. Requests for specific projects or bureaus were sometimes granted with the assurance that those eligible would decrease. The opposite occurred more than once, according to the press, regardless of which party was in power. Welfare has become a way of life in our great land where once even many of the poorest were too proud to accept "charity," as some called it. The picture is vastly different today.

Lunch and Food Stamp programs have soared, not just for low income families. Who in America starves? Thomas Edison existed largely on tea and toast for years, it is claimed. Yet, he lived to be about 84, and left 1,300 patents. No one recommends a diet of tea and toast, but a percentage of low socio-economic families have a more nutritious diet than some among the wealthy, who know and care little about nutrition and whose children sometimes consume "junk" food in quantity. Social Security provision toward caskets for members should have had a ceiling in the beginning. After providing for the sick, the needy, and the disabled, also for national defense adequately, the government may be wise to make reductions across board.

Yes, it is bad to forego community parks, centers, other desirable and needed buildings, et cetera. But isn't that preferable to economic collaspe than can wipe out more jobs, annuities, pensions, and savings? It can happen and not because the GOP took charge in November, for both parties contain liberals who are consistent spenders, with no thought of pay-day or of tomorrow. It is also because we average citizens are inclined to forget what President Kennedy said when inaugurated: "Ask not what your country can do for you but ask what you can do for your country."

Some groups can fare without assistance, or with less, but still want more from Uncle Sam, even if obtaining it means ultimate disaster. With more leftist governments closer home. anything saved and transferred to the defense budget may prove to be a sensible course. that we lack superiority in defense. Too many leaders trusted Russia, half believing she no longer sought world conquest, until her forces entered Afghanistan, a region vital to us. Junior high school pupils knew better, for the U.S.S.R. had broken treaties galore, falsified incidents, claimed to want peace, while gaining subtle control of one small country after another. Centuries ago, Peter the Great declared Russia would some day rule the world. That concept has been instilled into successive generations. Very successfully, too, if one notes the amount of land and number of people under communist domination today, the pro-Marxist regimes appearing in the Western Hemisphere. Nothing short of military strength and God will stop the Russian Bear. Equality of arms is insufficient, since we pledged never to make the first strike in nuclear war. We seek no world conquest, gave the Phillippines independence. Alaska and Hawaii asked for statehood. Instead of a mass exodus from our shores to communist lands, the opposite is true. Still, they accuse us of instigating strife almost everywhere.

We have disarmed unilaterally for years, provided Russia with technology, sold her food, some supplies converted to military use etc, neglected our own safety and national survival, blithely trusting those who vowed to bury us, who claimed we would provide the rope to hang ourselves! The late Eleanor Roosevelt returned from a visit to Russia and said she wanted to take America but not in ruins, not so long as we could retaliate. The chief Russian strategy is to get control of the minds, to sell her dangerous ideologies to youth in school, to infiltrate the pulpit and classroom, the news media. She works not from the outside in but from the inside, and she now spends forty percent more of her budget on defense than we do on ours.

The final analysis can easily be, which do we value more-numerous social programs or national survival? Will Congress, lobbyists and citizens. argue, squabble, delay until it is too late?

Fly A Kite— Carefully

"Go fly a kite" is a familiar phrase that takes on special significance this time of year because many people, children in particular, do exactly that when the winds of March begin to rise. It's a fun-type outing, but like most other outside ventures there are some rules to observe to remove an element of danger if it's to remain an enjoyable experience.

"We want kites to remain fun and kite-flying to be safe, so we hope everyone, especially children, will keep a few simple safety rules in mind," says W. W. Zoellers, manager of Kentucky Power Company's Pikeville division.

According to Zoellers, kites should only be flown in areas away from busy streets, highways and shopping areas to avoid accidents. Any area that does not offer good visibility for both the kite flyer and any motorists who also might be there is not the place to fly a kite. Some good common-sense rules to avoid electrical shock while flying kites are:

-Do not fly kites near utility wires. In the event the kite should become entangled in such wires, do not pull on it or attempt to remove it. Zoellers says to call the local Kentucky Power Company office for assistance.

-The string must be dry. Do not fly

Magic Holiday Fantasy Slated

"In our efforts to bring clean, wholesome, family entertainment to our area, the Fire Department is sponsoring Magic Holiday Fantsy a 90-minute indoor presentation from 6 to 8 p.m. in the Grade School auditorium," Blackburn noted.

West Bank Examined

In the village of Ramalah, on the West Bank of the Jordon River, Israeli military patrols and Arab neighbors struggle to maintain a foothold in a land both claim as their birthright in "A World Special: West Bank Story" airing Wednesday, March 25 at 9 p.m. (ET), 8 p.m. (CT), on KET.

David and Surah Landau carry submachine guns when they shop for groceries. The American born couple live in the Israeli settlement of Kiryat Arba on the West Bank of the Jordon River, land religious Jews regard as their birthright.

Not far away, Arab farmer Mohammed Idris and his brother. Ahmed, walk their ancestral farmland, complaining bitterly that much of it has been appropriated for a new Israeli settlement.

The hour-long documentary examines how differing religious, political, and cultural values affect the 17,000 Jews and 700,000 Arabs who live on the West Bank—an area considered sacred by both since ancient times, but which Israel seized from Jordon in the 1967 Arab-Israeli War.

"What we've tried to do is describe the day-to-day reality of the West Bank, the human story behind the Camp David talks, the Mideast shuttles and the United Nations resolutions," says producer/director William Cran.

"World Special: West Bank Story" is a production of WGBH/Boston.

II. SUMMARY

Pursuant to KRS 67.077 and KRS 103.210, Notice is hereby given that an Ordinance, the title of which is the foregoing, was introduced and given first reading by the Fiscal Court of Floyd County, Kentucky, at a Regularly Scheduled Meeting in the Courthouse Annex in Prestonsburg, Kentucky, on March 11, 1981, at 9:00 a.m., and will be given second reading and considered for passage at a Special Called Meeting to be held on March 25, 1981, at 11:00 a.m., E.S.T., in the Courthouse Annex in Prestonsburg, Kentucky.

The Ordinance provides the following:

A. Authorizes and approves the County of Floyd Economic Development Revenue Bonds (South Central Bell Telephone Company Lease Arrangement Project), in the aggregate principal amount of One Million Six UNITES STATES OF AMERICA FEDERAL ENERGY REGULATORY COMMISSION Continental Hydro Corporation Project No. 3938-000

NOTICE OF APPLICATION FOR PRELIMINARY PERMIT

(February 24, 1981) Take notice that Continental Hydro Corporation (Applicant) filed on January 7, 1981, an application for preliminary permit (pursuant to the Federal Power Act. 16 U.S.C. para. 791(a) - 825 (r)) for proposed Project No. 3938 to be known as Dewey Lake Dam located on Johns Creek in Floyd County, Kentucky. The application is on file with the Commission and is available for public inspection. Correspondence with the Applicant should be directed to: Mr. A. Gail Staker, Continental Hydro Corporation, 141 Milk Street, Suite 1143, Boston. Massachusetts 02109. Any person who wishes to file a response to this notice should read the entire notice and must comply with the requirements specified for the particular kind of response that person wishes to file.

Project Description—The proposed project would utilize the existing U. S. Army Corps of Engineers' Dewey Lake Dam and Reservoir and would consist of: (1) a powerhouse having an installed generating capacity between 2,000 KW and 2,500 KW; (2) a new penstock approximately 650-feet long; (3) new transmission lines; and (4) appurtenant works. The Applicant estimates that the average annual energy output would be between 4,500,000 kWh and 5,500,000 kWh.

Purpose of Project—Project energy would be sold to local public utilities and/or industries.

Proposed Scope and Cost of Studies under Permit—Applicant seeks issuance of a preliminary permit for a period of three years, during which time Applicant would investigate project design alternatives, financial feasibility, environmental effects of project construction and operation, and project power potential. Depending upon the outcome of the studies, the Applicant would decide whether to proceed with an application for FERC license. Applicant estimates the cost of studies under the permit to be $45,000.

Purpose of Preliminary Permit—A preliminary permit does not authorize construction. A permit, is issued, gives the permittee, during the term of the permit, the right of priority of application for license while the Permittee undertakes the necessary studies and examinations to determine the engineering, economic, and environmental feasibility of the proposed project, the market for power, and all other information necessary for inclusion in an application for a license.

Agency Comments-Federal, State, and local agencies that receive this notice through direct mailing from the Commission are invited to submit comments on the described application for preliminary permit. (A copy of the application may be obtained directly from the Applicant.) School Growth Problem

The Clark P.T.A. met February 17, at the Clark Elementary School Library. After the minutes and treasurers report were read and approved, Glenda Lawson and Ellen Hillinder from the Mountain Comprehensive Care Center presented a program on Drug Awareness and Abuse.

Items of new business discussed were the development of a greenhouse, a horse show to be held in early spring, the garbage problem at the school and the election of a nominating committee.

The important issue of future growth at the school was discussed. It was suggested that Superintendent Grigsby and board members, Orville Duff and Dr. James D. Adams, be invited to the next P.T.A. meeting or a meeting at their convenience, to inform the P.T.A. of their plans to solve the growth problems at Clark School. This has been done, and the group has received a reply from Supt. Grigsby that he could not attend.

Most jobs are closely related to homemaking and nuturing roles or to being supportive of the efforts of others, the publication says.

FLOYD COUNTY HEALTH NOTES By JANE BOND

Health Educator The Floyd County Health Department believes that the real purpose of family planning is just that, to allow people to plan the size of their family. Every child has the right to be wanted, and a woman has the right to enjoy her baby, and to be able to give him the love and attention he needs. Both mother and child are entitled to the best possible health. There are good medical reasons for spacing children at least two years apart, thus giving the mother a chance to regain her own strength before she becomes pregnant again. The possibility of a premature or a mentally retarded baby is decreased at least two-and-onehalf times, when the mother has had two years between pregnancies. Persons coming to the Family Planning Program are counseled about things such as this.

The Floyd County Health Department has a Family Planning Program in Prestonsburg, phone number 606-886-8702. The first time a woman comes to the clinic, she is given a physical examination which includes breast and pelvic examinations, pap smear for cancer, blood tests and urinalysis. Doctors from the area serve the clinic on a rotating basis, and they help the persons coming to the clinic to make decisions regarding which form of birth control is best for them.

Federal regulations require that all Family Planning Clinics in the United States charge a fee for services given in their clinics. In July 1978, the Floyd County Health Department's Family Planning Program started charging a small fee in accordance with the family income and size. For example, a family of three with an income between $8,000 and $9,000 per year will pay 20% of the total cost of delivering this service)or $10 for an annual exam and $1 for a supply visit). A sliding fee scale is used to calculate the amount paid by each individual. Non-payment of this fee will not keep a person from receiving Family Planning Services or supplies. The Family Planning Program is

The Family Planning Program is open to all people regardless of sex, race, color, or national origin.

The Floyd County Health Department will offer a Pap clinic Friday, March 10, from 8:30 to 11:30 a.m. and from 1 to 2 p.m. at the health department in Prestonsburg. Any woman who has not had a Pap test in the past year is urged to take advantage of this free clinic.

On Monday, March 23, there will be a glaucoma clinic at the health department. Although the clinic is open to all ages, persons aged 35 and over are especially urged to attend. This is another free service offered by the health department.

Tel-Com Faces Possible Loss Of $5000 Bond

Following continued complaints about the quality of its television service in the Wheelwright area, Tel-Com may forfeit its $5000 performance bond, according to a decision last week of the Floyd cable TV franchise agency

The agency postponed until next week decisions on whether to permit Tel-Com and Burton Antenna Co. to raise their rates.

In response to complaints that service in the Wheelwright area showed no lasting improvement since an ultimatum given Tel-Com by the franchise agency last month, Paul Gearheart, president of the company, said he was doing all he could to improve service there, that a new line would be provided in time, and that his own inspection showed that a "watchable" picture was being received on TV screens in the area.

In a statement released this week, a Tel-Com spokesman claimed that the "real basis" for complaints from its Wheelwright customers is their demand for new services not required of TV operators by the county cable TV ordinance. While the ordinance requires operators to provide major network programming and an educational channel, it does not oblige them to furnish additional services such as Home Box Office or Atlanta's Channel 17.

The company spokesman also claimed that the incidence of vandalism is on average "at least 200 to 300 percent higher in Wheelwright than in other areas of the county."

In order to forfeit Tel-Com's bond, the franchise agency will need to prove in circuit court that the operator has not lived up to the terms of his contract, County Attorney Arnold Turner, Jr. said this week. A public hearing with sworn testimony may be the most appropriate forum for gathering the facts of the matter, Turner suggested.

At its meeting Friday, the franchise agency also heard complaints from Tel-Com subscribers at Eastern, David, and Johnson Fork of Caney Creek.

Attorneys and accountants for Tel-Com and Burton Antenna presented arguments in favor of rate increases for their clients. Mike Little, president of Burton Antenna, seeks an increase from $7.50 to $9 monthly for his subscribers in the upper Left Beaver area. Tel-Com seeks increases varying according to the type of service to be provided.

Decisions on the rate hike requests may be forthcoming next week, when the county attorney and an accountant will have studied financial documents presented by the TV operators in support of their claims.

A Sweet Week in Lexington

By KENNY RICE

Forget there is only one hotel near the basketball arena where you can walk to the games.

Forget that if you can't afford the jacked up prices at that hotel and have to stay elsewhere, you will be fighting congested streets an hour after and an hour before each session.

Forget that these motels away from the arena have also jacked up their prices for this event.

Forget about all your worries for the next four days. Forget about all the money you are going to spend and relax and enjoy that gathering of high school athletes on the hardwood to entertain roundball fans from Covington to Corbin, from Pikeville to Paducah.

The Sweet 16 is back for another welcome visit and come Saturday night at Rupp Arena, the 1981 State High School Basketball Champion will be crowned.

This has surpassed being a mere sporting event. It is a happening. A gettogether for basketball lovers who could think of no better place to be in mid-March than the Sweet 16.

The Sweet 16 is special to Kentuckians. While most of the states in the nation have gone to a classification system with three or four, sometimes five, state champs, the Bluegrass State has always had a single champion.

Kentucky probably will always decide on only one winner in their state tournament. It is doubtful the 15th Region will ever produce another state tournament champ, but that does not seem to matter.

A coach in the region recently told me he would rather have a regional championship team that lost out in the first round of the Sweet 16, than a team that won the Class A or Class AA crown.

That feeling is shared by coaches throughout the Commonwealth. The class system continues to be opposed by the majority of coaches. There is something exciting about the chances of a small school going to the city and bringing back the championship.

Granted, these chances are few and far between, but ask the coach of a small school about that and most of the time they will point to Edmonson County's triumph in 1976. Making the quarterfinals or the semifinals for these teams is a victory within itself. They have proven they can play with certain teams in the state by surviving the first round.

A tournament that is regarded by so many as being so speical may never change its format. And it should not. The Sweet Week in Lexington begins today.

ON THE RADIO If you can't make it to the Sweet 16, you can keep up with what is happening on the radio. Turn your radio on and chances are you are already on a NEXT ATTRACTION

Starting March 25 and running until March 28 is the girls' Sweet 16 which will be held at alumni Coliseum on the Eastern Kentucky University campus. This is the seventh consecutive year the tourney has been in Richmond.

Several coaches have been pushing hard for the girls' state tourney to be moved to Lexington and Memorial Coliseum. The assistance provided by EKU, such as dorms for the teams to stay in, is such a financial help to the KHSAA that Richmond is still the best location for the tourney which does not generate the kind of revenue necessary to move it to Lexington.

STILL SHOOTING

One of the truly pure shooters to come out of this area is John Conley who was an all region performer at Garrett High and Allen Central High. John could hit from anywhere on the court, and I mean that literally. In practice, he was famous for his set shots from one end of the court to the other.

John underwent back surgery last November. Naturally, this slowed his three on three and horse games, but it did not stop them. Just over a month after the surgery, he was shooting from the free throw line. He was hitting about ninety percent of his shots from there so he gradually began to move back to his normal range, past twenty feet.

Now, John is almost back to his shooting form. He is still having a little trouble on the jumper because of some back pain which limits his independent league playing time. But he is back to the point where no one is asking him to shoot a game of horse.

TRANSFERS

Floyd County's two All State picks last season, Phil Slone, of Allen Central, and Ronnie Akers, of Betsy Layne, will be teammates next season at Pikeville College.

After a semester at Berea College, Slone transferred to Pikeville, where he will become eligible next January. Akers left Alice Lloyd College after a semester to attend Pikeville. He also will have to sit out a calendar year before becoming eligible for the Bears of coach Eugene Lyons.

The Work Incentive (WIN) program, administered jointly by the Departments of Labor and Health and Human Services, provides job search assistance, job training and supportive services to welfare applicants and recipients. Last year, it helped 284,000 persons get jobs.

That same night in the semi-finals, the Virgie Eagles romped to an easy 100 to 62 win over Belfry.

In the championship game on Saturday night. Allen Central got behind 10 to 1 in the first three minutes of the game and had to play catchup ball the rest of the game and lost by the score of 69 to 58. Todd May led the Eagles with 22 points, 16 rebounds and 5 block shots. Rodney Rowe scored 15 points and dished out 9 assists. The Rebels were led in scoring by senior Randy 4, David Hefner 4.

Virgie (69)—Todd May 22, Rodney Rowe 15, Byron Johnson 17, Gerald Osborne 10, Breg Napier 2, Dale Jarrell 2.

Allen Central (58)-Randy Conley 23.

Bruce Mullins 19, Tim Lawson 9, Wally Ridener 7, Tony Jones 2.

Lady Trojans Spoil MHS Playoff Hopes

Alan Tackett and Anna Thronsberry, WHS Journalism.

The Wheelwright Lady Trojans went to Allen Central in the District Tournament, March-4 with revenge in their eyes to take on the McDowell Lady Daredevils. And they found it as they defeated the Devils 62-59.

The battle seesawed back and forth until the Lady Trojans took the lead in the 4th quarter. The Lady Daredevils tried desperately in the closing minutes to recapture the lead but the Lady Trojans held fast.

The Lady Trojans were led by Mia Jones who pumped in 21 points. Anna Thornsberry and Pabby Holbrook both connected for 13 points, Evelyn Boyd dropped in six points and following close behind was Kami Ferrari who put in five points. Connie Tackett came off the bench and in the final minute put Wheelwright ahead with her four points.

Lady Daredevil Melinda Hopkins wracked up an astonishing 40 points and was leading scorer of the night. Sherry Tackett and Shelia Slone each had five points, Michele Moore connected for three points, and Liz Hamilton, Madonna Tackett and Amy Turner each contributed two points.

In the opening period of play, both teams scored continously after each other. Then with 2:14 left Wheelwright pulled away by three. After that the Trojans began stealing the ball and scoring to make first quarter score 18-12 Trojans.

The fourth quarter saw Lady Trojans Pabby Holbrook and Mia Jones fouling out early along with Sherry Tackett, Liz Hamilton and Michele Moore, of McDowell. The Daredevils were ahead in the closing minute but with 14 seconds left, Connie Tackett for the Trojans scored to put them up by one. McDowell dribbled up court, passed, and, Kamie Ferrari for Wheelwright picked off the pass brought it up court relaying it to teammate Anna Thornsberry who went up for the shot but was fouled with four seconds remaining. Thornsberry secured the game with both foul shots with the final score. 62-59.

Mr. Lynn is the father-in-law of Loretta Lynn, and he says the nursing students are "angels from heaven" and he would like to take them home with him. Mr. Lynn said he knew it wasn't anyone's birthday but he was in a "partying" mood.

Attending the party were Mrs. Oliver Lynn, Lois Blair, Martha Fisher, Betty Bland, Betty Markworth and Angie Lynn, all relatives of Mr. Lynn, Dr. J. W. Turner, Virginia Kelly, RN, Director of Nurses, the first floor nursing staff and the student nurses.

Such parties are just one of the things the Health Occupation students do to entertain and contribute to the elderly people who come to Paintsville Hospital

Kick Salt Habit Is Advice

Along with a sweet tooth, Americans have developed taste buds turned to salt. We sprinkle salt over dinner plates, dump it into almost everything we cook, and eat large amounts in commercially processed foods.

But just as Americans learned to love salt, they should learn, for health's sake, to eat much less of it, according to Dr. Fudeko Maruyama, Extension specialist in foods and nutrition in the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

It is the sodium in table salt—sodium chloride—that can be a health hazard Excess sodium intake contributes to high blood pressure. In the United States, where sodium intake is high, 17 percent of adults have high blood pressure, according to USDA estimates.

Kentucky has an even higher incidence of high blood pressure among adults. The state leads the nation in the number of deaths from cardiovascular disease, linked to hypertension or high blood pressure, said Maruyama. A "surprisingly high" number of Kentucky adolescents also have high blood pressure, she said.

The high incidence of hypertension in this state may be partly attributed to the regional diet. "People in Kentucky, and in the South generally, eat more salt, in foods like country ham, beans, and sauerkraut," said Maruyama.

Excess sodium in the diet is but one factor related to high blood pressure. Obesity seems to play a major role. Gender, race or lifestyle may also contribute. Males and blacks are affected more often by high blood pressure than is the rest of the population, Maruyama said.

But there is no good way at present to predict who will develop high blood pressure. Since diet is a factor individuals can control, nutritionists stress limiting sodium intake to prevent or control hypertension.

Some salt is needed by the body, but most Americans take in more sodium than they need, Maruyama said. An adequate and safe daily intake would be 1,100-3,000 milligrams of sodium, according to the National Research Council of the National Academy of Science.

But the average American intake of salt is 10-15 grams per day, or the equivalent of 4,000-6,000 milligrams of sodium. That intake far exceeds physiologic requirements, said Maruyama.

How do Americans take in so much sodium? Although they often use a heavy hand with the salt shaker, they consume most of the sodium in commercially prepared foods, such as salted snacks, soups, seasonings and condiments, as well as meats and chese.

Ten to 30 percent of the sodium in the average American diet comes from the salt shaker, said Maruyama, while at least 70 percent is sodium occurring naturally in foods or added to commercially processed foods-which account for most of the 70 percent.

To keep sodium intake within recommended levels, most Americans should use the salt shaker sparingly and limit prepared foods with high amounts of salt added.

"A person can get as much salt as the body needs from the natural salt in foods," Maruyama said. "Many prepared foods we eat also have salt added by the manufacturer. With these two sources, a person doesn't need to add salt in cooking or at the table to get the recommended amounts."

A teaspoon of salt, about five grams, contains 2,000 milligrams of sodium. A single teaspoon of salt added to food each day could exceed safe sodium levels for a person, Maruyama said. So could a large serving of a processed food high in salt.

Although kicking the salt habit would sound drastic and difficult to many Americans, it can be done.

"The taste for salt is acquired," said Maruyama. "Mothers sometimes salt baby food because it tastes better to them that way. Manufacturers used to add salt to baby food for the same reason."

Just as people gradually learned to like salt, they can gradually learn to like the flavor of unsalted food, she said.

Maruyama suggests the following ways to trim the diet of excess sodium:

1. Instead of salt, learn to use lemon juice, herbs and spices to flavor meats, vegetables, soups, stews, casseroles, sauces or salads.

 Choose foods carefully when eating out. Many fast-foods, such as salted fries and burgers loaded with mustard, ketchup and pickles, are high in salt.

3. Read labels carefully to determine the amounts of sodium in processed foods and snack items. Check labels for the words: salt, brine, sodium, sodium bicarbonate, and Na, the chemical symbol for sodium.

Annual Report Due April 15

Annual reports of 1980 earnings must be filed by April 15 by social security beneficiaries who earned more than the annual exempt amount in 1980, Jim Kelly, Social Security district director for the Big Sandy area, said recently. The 1980 annual exempt amounts were $5,000 for persons 65 and over and $3,720 for those under 65 of last year.

People who received some benefits in 1980 who earned more than the exempt amount are required to file a report of those earnings by Arpil 15. This rule does not apply to persons receiving disability, KELLY said. Those drawing disability must report any amount earned immediately.

The general rule is that $1 in benefits is withheld for each $2 of earnings above the exact amount. A person can have substantial yearly earnings before all benefits are withheld. For example, a 65-year-old person whose monthly benefit rate is $350 could earn $13,400 before all benefits for 1980 were withheld, Kelly said.

People who are required to file an annual report should have received a copy in the mail. If they have not, they should contact the social Security office to obtain a copy.

The 1981 annual exempt amounts are $5,500 for people 65 or older any part of 1981 and $4,080 for people under 65 all of 1981

More information about annual reports and the annual earnings test can be obtained at the Big Sandy Area Social Security Office, located on U.S. 23 between Prestonsburg and Paintsville. The toll-free number is listed in the local telephone directory

Special Cancer Program Slated Here March 25

One in every four Americans living today will have cancer at some time. That figure translated into 13,000 new cases of cancer in Kentucky alone in 1980; a like number of cases are projected for 1981.

In order to meet the public's need to know more about this disease, the Prestonsburg Community Methodist Church is sponsoring a special program on cancer prevention and cancer and the elderly at 7 p.m. Wednesday evening, March 25, at the church on Burke Avenue. The public is invited. The speaker will be Judith Kalom, of the Cancer Hopeline in Lexington. The Hopeline is a program of the McDowell Cancer Network, an affiliate of the University of Kentucky College of Medicine.

The Cancer Hopeline provides free cancer information, referral services, and counseling for cancer patients, their families, and the general public anywhere in Kentucky via toll free telephone

Upward Trend Of State Crime

Crime in Kentucky took another jump again last year, and Floyd county followed that trend, according to interim figures released here last week by State Police Commissioner Marion D. Campbell.

Although the final tabulation of Kentucky's 1980 crime and arrest figures will not be ready for release until about July 1, the preliminary data given out by Campbell show the number of major crimes reported statewide during the past year rose approximately 11.3 percent as compared with a 6.2 percent increase in 1979.

Burglaries were up 18.1 percent, aggravated assaults up 17.5 percent, larcenies up 9.4 percent, robberies up 6.8 percent and auto thefts up 1.1 percent. Of the seven major offenses followed by state police in computing the annual crime rate, only murder, down 4.2 percent, and forcible rape, down 2.9 percent, went against the otherwise upward trend.

The Floyd county crime figure reported for 1979 and 1980 are

TO THE VOTERS IN DISTRICT 1

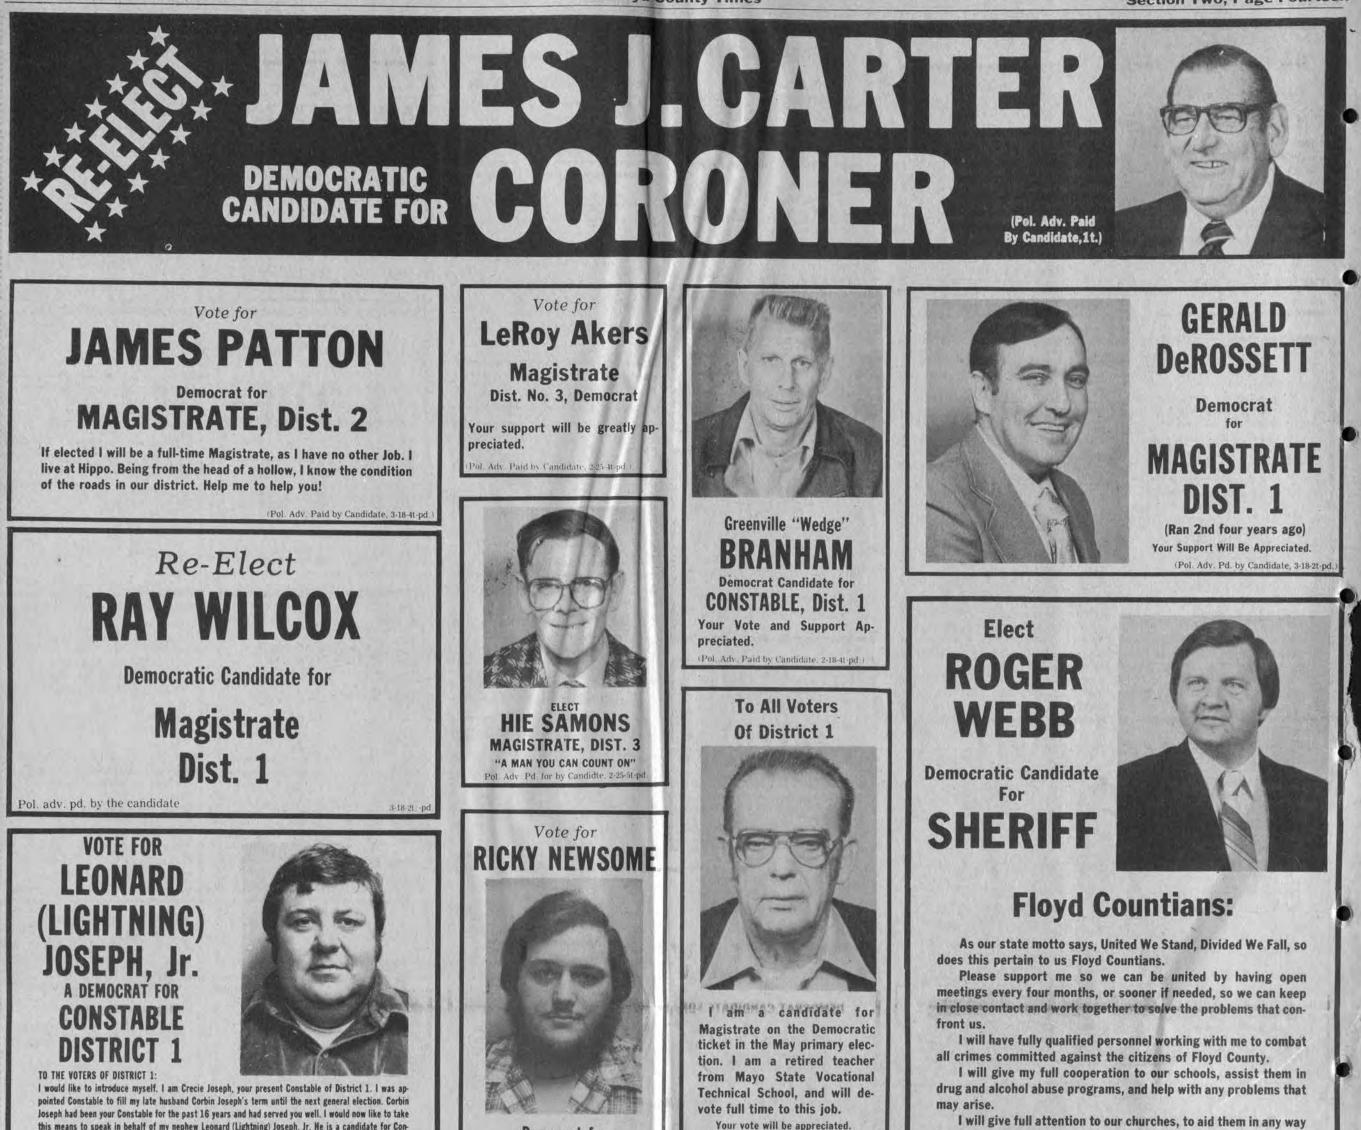

For the past few weeks I have been over the roads and up the hollows, talking to the people of District 1 about the sorry conditions of the roads. I hear the cry of our people for help. They tell me of the promises that were never kept from the past elections. Some of our roads are still in 18th century. This is the 20th century. I do not think there is any excuse for the condition of some of our county roads today. It's time for the roads to be improved, for the safety of the school children who have to ride over them to get to school. I hope you had the opportunity to see the conditions of our roads on Channel 57, Hazard, this past Saturday, March 7. I hope to show you more of our road conditions on Channel 13 in the next few weeks, and interview some of our citizens so you can hear their views. So watch for time and Channel in the Floyd County Times.

If you would like to talk with me and explain your needs, you can call me any time-phone 874-9192. I will be glad to talk with you on the phone or visit with you at your home.

DEMOCRAT CANDIDATE FOR SHERIFF FLOYD COUNTY

I. Holland Hurley, am a candidate on the Democratic ticket for Sheriff of Floyd County. I am a member of the Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way Employees Union. I am Assistant General Chairman, and represent all the men on the Big Sandy District. I am also a former member of the United Mine Workers Union, a Vietnam veteran.

If you, the people of Floyd County, desire a safe and respectable community for yourself and your children to live, work and play in, I ask for your vote and support. It's up to you. Don't put your future and the county's future in the hands of a few people.

I don't have organized crime behind me. I won't be spending 40 or 50 thousand dollars. Then, if I am elected I won't be a puppet on a string. I will just be working for the citizens of Floyd County. I was asked to run for Sheriff by people who were tired of the way things are-they want a change! So join them. Let's show all these candidates that you the citizens are the ones that select your county Sheriff.

It's time now to do something. All these promises that I make will be kept. I also will publish my expenses after the election. So, if you want things to move ahead, vote for me. If you like the way your county has been for the last several years, vote for someone else.

$500,000 Claim Filed in Death At VA Hospital

A Pikeville lawyer has filed a $500,000 claim against the Veterans Administration Hospital in Lexington in connection with the death of a Wheelwright man last November after receiving the wrong blood at the hospital.

Gary Johnson, representing the estate of Delmer Banks, said the claim "was an administrative claim and was filed with the VA administration office in Louisville.

"It was not a court action and will be settled by their office," Johnson said. According to Johnson, VA officials in Louisville have six months to accept or reject the claim or negotiate a settlement.

"If a satisfactory settlement is not made within that period, a suit can then be filed in federal court," Johnson said

John Rowan, director of the Lexington hospital, said that all such claims are handled by the district council in Louisville.

According to Linda Cranfill of the VA hospital, the two nurses responsible for the blood transfusion mix-up have been reprimanded in a letter that will be placed in their personnel files. The two nurses were not fined or suspended from duty, she said.

"We do have some re-education programs in process for nursing personnel that deal with transfusions," she said. Rowan said that "everyone dealing with blood processing are being given a thorough re-education training to prevent such a thing occurring again. Luther Burrus, an attorney for state

VA headquarters in Louisville, said that he has the authority to approve settlements of up to $25,000. "Anything in excess of that figure would have to go to the general administration in Washington. It would be out of our hands then," he said.

Burrus said it would be improper to comment further on the claim since it was still being studied by the VA's lawyers.

Banks was a retired 49-year-old chemical worker who moved to Kentucky from Detroit. He died Nov. 25 while being treated in the intensive care unit of the hospital.

Banks had undergone surgery four days before to relieve blockage in a duct connecting his liver and intestine. After surgery Banks received an improper transfusion, according to hospital officials.

State Medical Examiner Dr. William Hamilton performed an autopsy and said in his report that "Banks died as a result of an incompatible blood transfusion.

"The mismatched blood triggered severe shock, widespread hemorrhage and acute kidney failure. The combination of these side effects was sufficient to cause death." Type O blood was required by the patient, but he was given

Everyone accepts the fact that sleep is necessary for life. It is also the main factor in recovery from fatigue. If left to his own choosing, the average healthy human adult, with some exceptions, under normal conditions, will sleep between seven and eight hours each night. When he has had all the sleep necessary for a refreshed body, he will awaken slowly and naturally without mechanical aids. An occasional loss of sleep happens to most of us and is nothing to fear. In fact, some reports say that one is less likely to sleep well in spring than in autumn.

Our greatest desire is that sleep and a good diet will keep you healthy. But, when that is not the case and you need the assistance of prescription or non-prescription medication, we hope you will think of us. We always have a registered pharmacist on duty. Paintsville Meeting To Consider Effects Of Cuts In Budget

Through a series of informal public meetings, one of which will be held at Paintsville, the Department for Human Resources hopes to learn how Kentuckians view the current government budget crisis and its effects on various social, health and public assistance programs.

The department has scheduled 10 meetings during March and April at sites throughout the state Dr. Grady Stumbo, secretary of the department, said he hopes people will come and voice their concerns.

"Reductions in our programs and services are inevitable," said Stumbo. 'We know a lot of these reductions are going to be unpopular and in some cases difficult to cope with. We are genuinely concerned about the impact these cutbacks are having at the local level."

Through the meetings, he said, department representatives hope to help communities define what the budget cuts will mean locally and start looking for other ways to fill the gap in services.

"I have said all along that we can't depend on government to satisfy all our needs," said Stumbo. "Now we all are beginning to see how necessary it will be for each of us to take on more responsibility for ourselves and for each other.

Each meeting will open with a 30-minute presentation on the Human Resources Department's services and the potential impact of federal and state budget cuts. The remainder of the two-hour sessions will be open for public comment and discussion. The Paintsville meeting will be held at 2 p.m. April 21 in the RECC building.

Buck White and the Down Home Folk display the musical talents that have made them one of the most popular Bluegrass and country-western performing groups in the country on the next edition of KET's new series, "Kentucky Bluegrass: The McLain Family Festival.'

The half-hour program, taped in front of a live audience at last summer's McLain Family Festival held near Berea, airs Thursday, March 26 at 9:30 p.m. on KET.

Hosted by the McLain Family, the show is the third in a series of 13 programs that explores popular musical forms indigenous to this area, including Bluegrass, country and western, western swing and gospel.

The group, fresh from a tour with vocal artist Emmy Lou Harris, opens the program with "Abilene Gal," a song written by White and inspired by his wife Pat, a native of that town. White's multi-talented daughters, Cheryl on bass and Sharon on rhythm guitar, join in the harmony. Rounding out the group are Jerry Douglas on dobro and Ricky Skaggs on fiddle, widely known and respected musicians in their own right. The two men are former members of J. D. Crowe and the New South band and Boone Creek, Kentucky based groups that have achieved national popularity and suc-

In their next number, White and the Down Home Folk-always a crowd favorite at the festival-enlist the help of the audience as they sing "I Believe In Music." "Catfish John," a haunting ballad about a former slave who spends his remaining years on the river, follows. Mandolin player White moves to the keyboard to introduce the title song from the group's new album "More Pretty Girls Than One," followed by the western swing standard "San Antonio Rose.'

In one of the more memorable portions of the program, Skaggs sings the lead in the presentation of the old-time, Bluegrass favorite "Could You Love Me One More Time" written by the Stanley Brothers. Skaggs and the group end the show with a stirring a capella version of "Sinner's Hymn." The gospel-bluegrass number was written by Lexingtonian Henry Hipkens of The Black Walnut Boys.

On Thursday, April 2, at 9:30 p.m. Rosemary McLain and the Country Gazette are the special guests on "Kentucky Bluegrass: The McLain Family Festival." McLain soothes her audience with her own lyrical compositions-"Sail Away," "Brown Eyed Baby," "I Guess I Shouldn't Love You But I Do" and others.

In the second half of the program, the Nashville-based group, the Country Gazette, inject new life into some old bluegrass and country favorites with their improvisational techniques. Roland White directs the group in a medley of songs, including "On The Sunny Side Of The Mountain Where The Waters Flow.'

"Kentucky Bluegrass: The McLain Family Festival," a production on KET, is repeated Saturday at 6:30 p.m.

Grassland Meet To Focus On World's Food Needs

To most Kentuckians driving through the state's rolling countryside, the sight of cows grazing on acres of green pastures is a pretty picture. While admiring the view, they may not think however, of how important those grasslands are as a link in the food chain.

Just as people all over the world are dependent on grazing animals for milk and meat, the animals are dependent on forages for their nourishment.

Improving forage production to strengthen forage-livestock systems throughout the world will be the concern of a prestigious international conference to be held in Lexington in June. The International Grassland Congress, to be hosted by the American Forage and Grassland Council and the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture, will draw an estimated 2,000 scientists, researchers and technicians to share their work in forages production and utilization.

The congress which convenes once every four years has been held in the United States only once before, in Pennsylvania in 1952.

Kentucky was chosen as the site for the 1981 conference because of the state's important agriculture and livestock industries. Kentucky has 7,000,000 acres of grasslands, and a larger percentage of agricultural lands devoted to forages than any other state, said Garland Bastin, executive director of the congress.

Through the exchange of information, the congress hopes to spur increased production and improved quality of forages needed to feed the world's ruminant animals and indirectly, its people. Forages account for 25 percent of the human diet in milk and meat, Bastin said. More than 2.8 billion ruminants, including cattle, sheep and goats, supply nearly all the milk and half the meat consumed by the people all over the world. These animals also supply a wide range of byproducts and services.

As the world's population increases, so do demands for meat and milk. In the next 20 years, said Bastin, increases in population and buying power will create a demand for 74 percent more milk, 82 percent more beef, and 90 percent more sheep and goat meat.

The productivity of the world's ruminant livestock depends on the quantity and quality of the feed they receive. Most of the nutrients fed to animals throughout the world comes from forages. In some countries, forages provide 95 percent of the feed for animals, said Bastin. The United States relies heavily on forages for animal nutrition. In Kentucky, for example, forages contribute 85 percent of the total feed used by beef cattle, and 66 percent of feed used for dairy cattle. As demand for animal products increases, forage production must also increase to meet the demand, Bastin said. Only 25-30 percent of the world's potential for forage production is now being tapped, he said. In Kentucky, a forage leader, production is less than 30 percent of the potential.

There will be continued need and pressure for more and better forages, Batin said. Efficient forage production and utilization can help meet increasing demands for animal products and contribute to solving problems of world hunger.

"The more forages that can be produced efficiently by the application of research findings, the better producers will be able to provide meat and milk at affordable economic levels.'

The 1981 International Grassland Congress hopes to publicize the importance of forages in world food production, since forages, according to Bastin, mean "food in your mouth and a higher standard of living.

It's Time To Prune Fruit Trees

By JOHN E. SPARKS County Extension Agent for Agriculture PRUNING OF YOUNG

APPLE TREES Pruning is a necessary practice for successful home fruit production. Regular pruning of a fruit tree in its early years will set the stage for continued productivity and for improved fruit quality. Basically, pruning is a dwarfing process, even though new growth arising near a pruning cut is invigorated. A properly pruned tree will produce more marketable fruit than an unpruned one. Pruning cuts are classified as "heading back" and "thinning out" cuts. Heading back removes a portion of a limb and causes new shoots to arise near the cut. Heading back cuts also reduces the size of the tree. Thinnning out is the removal of an entire limb. It opens the tree up and is less invigorating than a heading back cut. Pruning cuts are most easily made with good quality, sharp pruning shears. The cut made with a sharp instrument heals quicker than eneven cuts made with dull shears.

The best time of the year to prune is February or March, after the worst of the winter is over

- TRAINING YOUNG
- APPLE TREES

To train a apple tree to the modified central leader system, first cut the one year old unbranched whip, (for those who are wanting to plant apple trees, one year old whips are the cheapest and easiest to train) back to about 36" in the spring or fall when the tree is set. This will induce side branches. During the summer, the scaffold branches should be selected from the induce side branches. The first branch should be selected about 18 inches from the ground, the next branch should be about 6 to 8 inches above the first limb but as close to the opposite side of the tree as possible. This is probably the most scaffold branches one can expect from the first year growth.

When the whip is cut back, the top two shorts nearest the cut will grow at a very sharp angle, which will develop into very undesirable crouch angles. Remove one of these shoots in late spring or early summer. They can be rubbed off at this time by hand. This will cause less stress on the plant and as a result those selected branches will develop much faster for the first year.

The second year, the central leader should be cut back 30 inches higher than the last scaffold branch. All side branches should be cut back to about 10 to 18 inches with the bud nearest the cut facing away from the center of the tree. The third scaffold branch should be as near to a right angle to the first two limbs but 6 to 8 inches higher and the fourth should be on the opposite side of the third but 6 to 8 inches higher.

This same pattern of scaffold branch selection is followed until the desired height is attained. The selection of scaffold branches will probably take from three to six years. After all the scaffold branches are selected, most of the pruning that is done is for maintaining the tree. The pruning is done in the spring while the tree is still dormant. Maintenance pruning includes such pruning as removing water sprouts, cross branches, dead and disease wood, unproductive wood and to thin branches, to allow light to the center of the tree, and also to reduce the number of fruit buds.

Remember to make all cuts flush with the limb or trunk.

Those who attended the pruning demonstration held recently at the farm of Richmond Slone were J. R. Music, Delmas Saunders, Ed Ferrell,

There's a big, big difference in our Interest on Checking.

It's called experience.

BANKS HAVE MORE CHECKING EXPERIENCE.

It seems that everybody is offering Interest on Checking—what's commonly referred to as a NOW account. Even places that were previously never permitted to offer checking accounts. Banks, however, have had checking accounts for years, so the switch to Interest on Checking becomes an easy one. Experience makes the transition simple. Banks are usually more convenient, too. More locations. More drive-in facilities. More expertise in all the services that make it easier to handle all your financial affairs.

NOT EVERY BANK PAYS YOU INTEREST ON ALL THE MONEY IN YOUR CHECKING BALANCE.

The biggest benefit of an Interest on Checking Plan, or a NOW Account, is, of course, the interest you earn on the money that's in your checking account currently 5¼%. But here again The Bank Josephine offers you the advantage. Unlike some banks, we pay interest on all your money—no matter what the balance. And our charges are based on a monthly average balance, instead of the costly minimum balances required by most financial institutions.

WE HAVE MORE INTEREST ON CHECKING EXPERIENCE THAN MOST BANKS.

Even before NOW accounts were officially permitted the first of this year, The Bank Josephine offered an account that was identical when it came to end benefits. Because we've been doing basically the same thing, we have more experience than most other banks. The mechanics aren't new to us. And that translates into less chance for error. A little thing? Not to us. Not when its your money....and your interest.

WE WANT TO MAKE A CHECKING ACCOUNT MORE THAN JUST A PLACE TO KEEP YOUR MONEY.

Besides our Interest on Checking Plan, we also have our Regular Checking Plan, which gives you checking free of a monthly service charge no matter how many checks you write—and just requires a $300 average balance.

Pick the plan that suits you best. Then drop by any of our convenient locations, and we'll fill in all the details. After all, we have your "best interests" at heart!

Highlands Regional Medical Center has taken another step forward in its continuing effort to provide the best in patient health care. A new diagnostic tool for the hospital called ultrasound has been installed, according to Clarence Traum, administrator.

Ultrasound does not use radiation, but rather high frequency sound waves to create an image. The principal is based on sonar which was developed during World War II.

The "transducer", a small crystal which vibrates, creating the inaudible sound waves, is placed on the patient's skin. The sound waves bounce through the organs and tissue and the echoes are recorded, the echoes differ depending on the density of the tissue, and produce a screen image of the internal organ and tissue plus tumors or other abnormalities. A permanent record is then made by photographing the screen picture.

Ultrasound is extremely useful in obstetrics and gynecology. It can aid in determining the fetal age and position, placenta location and multiple births. It also will be valuable in heart, upper abdomen, pelvis and kidney diagnosis.

"Having the ultrasound service at Highlands will be much more convenient for our patients and medical staff," stated Dr. David White, radiologist. "It will enable us to perform a number of diagnostic services that we have never previously been able to offer at this hospital.'

Twain's Civil War Stint Is Dramatized On KET

The 90-minute special "The Private History of a Campaign That Failed' airing Monday, April 6, at 9 p.m. on KET is based on Mark Twain's own brief stint in the Confederate militia at the beginning of the Civil War.

Missouri was invaded by the Union forces in the summer of 1861 and its Governor issued a proclamation calling out 50 thousand militia to repel the invader. Twain, home in Hannibal because his work as a steamboat pilot ended when the war put a stop to Missouri River traffic, was among those who formed the military company of the Marion County Rangers.

All 15 of the men were now off to join the Civil War in a quest for heroism and adventure. But within a few weeks they would be confronted by tragedy and the shocking realization of what war is about.

In this story, first published in 1855, Twain recalls himself as the Rangers' second lieutenant. This was a time "when the green recruiters were without discipline, without the steadying and heartening influence of trained leaders; when all their circumstances were new and strange," Twain says.

Eventually Twain heads west where he lived out the duration of the Civil War and established his reputation as a writer. Later, Twain wrote his celebrated essay, "The War Prayer," a piece which he felt too powerful for publication in his lifetime. This poignant statement is dramatized as the epilogue for the public television special-a reminder of the futility of all wars.

The "Great Performances" special is a co-production of Nebraska ETV Network and The Great Amwell Company in association with WNET/Thirteen, New York.

3,000 in Ky. Reported Poisoned Last Year were reported last year in Kentucky, Department for Human Resources statistics show. While that number is nearly 1,000 fewer cases than were reported in 1979, consumer health officials estimate that many cases go unreported.

Accidental poisonings can result from the misuse of and exposure to many products, said Edsel Moore, consumer product safety branch manager for Human Resources.

"Overdoses of drugs and medications, exposure to poisonous gases and fumes, chemical drain cleaners, furniture polishes, cosmetics and spesticides or lead poisoning from old paint can cause injury due to poisoning," Moore said.

The number of poisonings involving products packaged in child-resistant containers exceeded the number of poisonings related to products not yet required to be packaged in childrestraining containers, Moore said.

We feel this can be directly attributed to consumers not using safety closures properly," he said. Adult carelessness and negligence causes most accidental poisonings, said Moore,

"Almost all poisonings can be prevented if adults use child-resistant containers properly and take proper precautions with hazardous household products and medications," he said.

By law, most medicines and certain toxic household products now are packaged in childresistant containers and the maximum allowable level of lead content of household paints and household products with painted surfaces has been reduced to 0.6 percent, Moore said.

This action and the ban on certain adhesives and adhesive products has been effective in preventing poisonings, he noted.

Department statistics indicate that even though poison-related injuries involve mostly children, more adults than children are involved in fatal poisonings

Moore attributes this to parents seeking prompt medical attention for their children at the slightest hint of poisoning, "Parents do not take chances when they suspect their children have been poisoned. But an adult who suspects that he or she has been poisoned will often wait until symptoms have begun or try selftreatment

By the time symptoms appear, it is often too late for effective treatment. he said. "If there is the slightest chance that you or someone in your family has been poisoned, seek medical attention immediately," he advised

Even with all the laws governing poison prevention devices, such as

About 3,000 accidental poisonings lists these suggestions to help prevent accidental poisonings:

-Use safety caps when available. -Do not transfer products from safety containers to other containers.

-Re-secure safety caps on potentially dangerous products after each use.

-Keep household products and medicines out of reach and out of sight of children.

-Always turn on a light when giving or taking medicines.

-Read the labels on all products and heed the warnings and cautions. -Avoid taking medicines in a child's presence. The child may try to imitate your action. -Never leave potential poisons unattended. If you are using a poisonous substance when called to the door or telephone, take it with you; don't leave it where a child could get to it.

-In the event of an accidental poisoning, be prepared to tell emergency personnel what the product is and if the victim consumed the product.

Additional information about poison prevention is available from the Department for Human Resources, Consumer Product Safety Branch, 275, E. Main St., Frankfort, Ky., 40601. The telephone number is (502) 564-4537.

Pike Co. Gob Pile To Be Extinguished

Federal reclamation funds will be used to extinguish burning waste material from an abandoned coal mine that is threatening KY 292 near Aflex in Pike County, Andrew V. Bailey, acting director of the Interior Department's Office of Surface Mining (OSM), announced today

Bailey approved spending an additional $80,000 for the project, which will include design, construction and monitoring. Aflex is across the Tug Fork from Williamson, W. Va. Last month, an initial $90,000 for the project was approved by David C. Short, OSM's Region II director of Knoxville, Tenn.

Depressions have developed in the highway because of the material burning beneath it.

Short said the project will involve removal of the burning material, extinguishing the fire, backfiling and rebuilding the highway. The Kentucky Department of Transportation will build a detour while the work is being done and then will resurface the highway.

short said the waste material, which was left from underground mining in the 1920's and 1950's, has been burning for approximately 12 years.

Funds for the work will come from the Federal share of reclamation fees levied on current coal production under the 1977 Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act to reclaim abandoned mine lands.

OSM Contract Will Remove Faulty Dam

Work began this week on a project to remove an eroding sediment dam that was threatening to break and flood two homes in Martin County, David C. Short, Region II Director of Interior's Office of Surface Mining (OSM), announced today

Coalfields Reclamation, Betsy Layne, is doing the work under a $119,461 contract awarded by Short's Knoxville, Tenn., office. The work, which is expected to take about 212 months, will include removing the earthen dam and accumulated silt and then regrading and revegetating the area

Water was within six inches of overflowing the top of the eroding dam, which had been left by an abandoned surface mine, when it was reported to OSM last month, Short said. The dam is near the community of Davella, which is about eight miles southeast of Inez. The basin holds approximately 6,000 cubic yards of sediment.

Funds for the work will come from the federal share of reclamation fees levied on current coal production under the 1977 Federal Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act to reclaim abandoned mine lands. The area was mined in May, 1977, by Lee Mining Co.

Changing Our Eating Patterns

By Anita Dichter

"You are what you eat"-the saying may not be completely true, but people are becoming increasingly concerned about nutrition and its effect on their health. Yet, as public awareness of nutrition increases, so does the confusion about what kinds of food we should or should not be eating. Some families are even experiencing a decline in nutritional habits.

Part of the problem is the confusing and often contradictory information available to the consumer. Consumers are alarmed about the publicized harmful effects of various additives and preservatives prevalent in food products, but there are conflicting reports about the relative danger in these foods and additives. Additionally, dependence upon certain products often overrides health concerns; for example, saccharin is generally not regarded as a serious health hazard by the public, despite continuing debate about it in the scientific community.

Then, too, product labels often contain confusing chemical terminology, which complicates food selection. The absence of percentage-ingredients labeling contributes to a sense of uncertainty about what the food product actually contains and in what proportions. are employed at or near home:

example, of the percentage of sugar distance between home and work. In provide balanced nutrition. Other contained in various food products on the market.

Finally, the concern about ingredients in food products is often subject to equally compelling concerns about calories-or the pressures of inflation. Reports indicate that almost one out of every five families has to cut back on food quality because of inflation. It simply costs too much, for many families, to buy good, nutritional food.

Confusion about various aspects of food consumption leads to a gap between beliefs and practices about nutrition. For example, a 1978-79 General Mills survey shows more than 1/3 of all families have at least one member who is overweight, although obesity is recognized as a health hazard. Despite the publicity about cholesterol, the General Mills study shows that 41% of all family members are unconcerned about cholesterol in their diets. At the same time, nearly half of the adults questioned felt that there was not enough emphasis on nutrition labeling.

Changing lifestyles also contribute to the gap between nutritional beliefs and practices. Fewer people addition, nearly half of all adult women now work outside the home. Therefore, the reliance on conven- structured family meal be shared jence foods continues to be popular, together every day. although convenience foods tend to be expensive and many have little Some Advances taste or nutritional value. Meals that With all of these signals for concern are prepared from scratch tend to be skimpier and have fewer courses.

Eating Away From Home

By far the most dramatic change in food consumption is the decline in in nutrition. Meat consumption has at-home meals over the last 15 years.
