Thefts, Breaks Dominate List Of Indictments

Grand Jury Reports Only 16 True Bills, Files Brief Report

Thefts and burglaries dominated the relatively short list of indictments returned by a Floyd circuit court grand jury last Thursday, accounting for 11 of the 16 charges reported.

In its brief report to Circuit Court Judge Hollie Conley, the grand jury made no recommendations, noting simply that it found the courthouse and annex "in the same condition as they were at our previous inspection.'

In its September report, the grand jury recommended that the courthouse be cleaned more thoroughly and a leaky water pipe there be repaired.

Indictments reported, together with jury notes on the charges, include:

Mary and Ralph Caldwell, theft by deception, by obtaining a check from the Bank Josephine by submitting an application in the name of Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Caldwell: Paul David DeRossett, first degree wanton endangerment, by shooting a firearm into an automobile occupied by Tim Ousley; Elmer Dutton, Robert Hollon, and Terry L. Walters, theft by unlawful taking, by taking copper wire from the C. and O. Railroad; Sonny Hill and Terry Little, theft by unlawful taking, by taking wheels, tires, a battery, tape player, speakers and tapes owned by Johnny Parker; Luther Johnson, first degree assault upon Terry Little, by stabbing him with a knife

District Court Trial of Boyd To Be Delayed

Trial of a former Floyd county teacher on charges of selling marijuana to a high school student last spr ing has been scheduled in district court here November 23, but the prosecuting altorney in the case said this week there is no way he can be ready for trial on that date.

Sandy Boyd, 32, of Dana, was head teacher at Prater Creek grade school when he was named in warrants April 20 accusing him of selling marijuana to a 17-year-old Banner youth, then a Betsy Layne High School junior.

Arrested on a charge of selling marijuana, the boy allegedly told then-Deputy Sheriff Randall Lewis that Boyd had furnished him a large quantity of marijuana with instructions to sell the drug and return the proceeds to the teacher.

Prosecution of the case appeared to be in doubt in recent weeks following a motion filed by defense attorney Gary Johnson November 5 requiring the Commonwealth to produce any physical evidence it had in the case.

In response to the motion, District Judge Harold Stumbo gave the prosecutor 10 days to produce the evidence-understood to be a quantity of marijuana-for inspection by the defense and for laboratory analysis. In an order agreed to by attorneys for both sides, the judge ruled that the case would be dismissed if the evidence was not forthcoming.

Questions about whether the case would come to trial were fueled by reports that physical evidence in the sheriff's possession at the end of August were removed from the sheriff's office by Sheriff Doug Lewis when he vacated that office to go into church ministry.

As recently as Monday this week, Lewis told a reporter he had been unable to locate the marijuana allegedly seized as evidence in the Boyd case. Later that day, however, he turned in a quantity of marijuana to Assistant County Attorney Eric Hall, who is handling the prosecution.

City Challenges Facility Safety In Court Action

Circuit Judge Hollie Conley denied a request by the city of Prestonsburg Tuesday for a restraining order that would have prevented county authorities from reopening the juvenile detention center until fire code violations were corrected.

Prestonsburg Fire Inspector Larry Adams testified at a hearing on the request that he had inspected the facility three times in the past year, citing it on each occasion for many violations which the county has neglected to cor-

Judge Conley urged county authorities to "bring as many of the deficiencies as possible up to standard" before readmitting juveniles to the facility, which was closed in June as the result of state budget cuts. But he would not impose a restraining order, he said, as long as problems at the facility could be remedied by other means.

Fire Inspector Adams and Code Enforcement Officer Paul Chaffins argued that fire code violations-Adams listed 17 in the course of an October 23 inspection of the facility-could turn the upper story of the courthouse annex, where the detention center is located, into a deadly trap should fire break out in the Particularly hazardous, they testified, is the use of corridors and stairwells to return air to the building's air-conditioning and heating unit. The poor design could mean that exits would be filled with smoke in an emergency, they said.

Chaffins said the design problem had been pointed out during construction of the building in 1977 but was never corrected. Remedying the situation now would probably cost between $100,000

Floyd Men Plan Huge Gas Conversion Work

Two Floyd county men who are now residents of Lexington announced last week their plan to spend up to $15 million in development of a program to convert small pockets of natural gas that now are wasted into highly profitable production.

The partners in the venture are Sam Martin, III, formerly of Minnie, who is president of the Martin Oil Co. in Lexington and his grandfather, Fred Hall, formerly of Wayland where he was associated with the coal business.

They plan buying as many as 10 portable natural gas "stripping plants" that can remove propane and butane from the gas.

Martin and Hall have been successful in drilling for oil in the Clinton county area which has become a beehive of drilling activity within the last few months. The gas from most of Liquid would be added to the gases, which would be placed in metal containers or tanks and sold for 50 cents to 70 cents a gallon to wholesale distributors that serve the Louisville, Lexington, Knoxville or Nashville areas, Martin said. The gases would be used in industry or to heat homes.

The first plant should be in operation in Clinton county, near the Tennessee border, in about a month, he said, Other plants, costing about $1.5 million each, would be located in Clinton and adjacent counties.

Martin said the plants-each of which is expected to produce about 20,000 gallons of propane and butane a day-have been used in the West, but not in Kentucky

"It's new to Kentucky as far as I know," Price said. "If that will work it will be wonderful. In Clinton, where oil exploration has

Natural-gas companies need reserves of "several hundred thousand cubic feet" before they can afford to run pipelines into an area to remove the gas, he said. Some small gas pockets are used to heat individual houses or tobacco barns; however.

Martin said that each of his plants will need a supply of 10 million cubic feet of natural gas a day and that it (See Story No. 1, Page 4)

THE JUVENILE DETENTION CENTER may return to operation despite protests by local fire officials that the facility, which occupies the second floor of the courthouse annex here, is in violation of fire codes. THE UNTEACHABLE

At hand is a news release which says that University of Kentucky Donovan Scholar Headlee Lamprey, a retired chemistry professor, believes older persons can learn to play the piano through correspondence courses and is developing such a course to be offered by the Kentucky Council on Aging. This is a worthwhile project, and I do not want to discourage it, but I hereby challenge Prof. Lamprey (or any other teacher) to teach me the piano by correspondence or "in residence," or by any other means. Before this challenge is accepted, I owe it to any would-be teacher to warn him or her that I am so constituted that when I sit down at the piano, or the zither, or any other musical instrument, I just naturally adhere to the Biblical injunction not to let the one hand know what the other is Sterling Hamilton was convicted last week of obstructing justice and sentenced to 18 months in prison.

A U.S. District Court jury in Pikeville found the Teaberry merchant guilty of intimidating a witness who was to testify against him in a civil case that was pending at the time.

The verdict came Thursday afternoon after the jury had deliberated more than four hours, and sentence was pronounced immediately by Judge G. Wix Unthank. The previous Monday, Hamilton was sentenced to five years in prison and fined $10,000 for dealing in stolen explosives. The penterms are to be served consecutively

Orville Thompson, 34, of Tram, claimed in court last week that Hamilton came to his home April 7 this year, brandishing a revolver and threatening his life. Thompson was scheduled to appear as a witness against Hamilton in a pending insurance-claim suit.

Hamilton and his wife, Olga, brought suit against the American Employers Insurance Company in August last year, in an effort to force the company to pay an insurance claim after their house burned down.

Attorneys for the insurance company later asked the court to dismiss the suit, claiming that potential witnesses in the case were being intimidated by Hamilton. The judge refused to dismiss the case-it was later settled

Most of the fires were confined to 20-25 acres, Bill Phillips, of the Kentucky Division of Forestry, said.

The worst fire situation developed in Pike county where 26 blazes were recorded. All except two of these had been halted Monday. Martin, Magoffin and Johnson counties also suffered in losses but not to the degree experienced in Floyd and Pike.

Woodlands of all counties remain very dry, and foresters urged the greatest care by householders, hunters and others to prevent further losses.

HELP THE WIDOW THROUGH GRIEF STAGES

The newly widowed (or "widowered") progresses through several emotional stages during mourning. If you recognize these as "stages," it may enable you to help her work through her grieving more fully and effectively.

Sorrow is a basic emotional stage of mourning and very common, often accompanied by self-pity and/or feelings of guilt.

Anger is another stage, a resentment against a "cruel world" which has taken one's mate prematurely.

Fears for the future "without him" as companion and breadwinner are not unusual

Anxiety makes her wonder "who will provide for the family" and "how will I manage my finances alone?"

The widow's confidence in her own abilities needs to be strengthened so her reentry into the world of reality may be achieved more smoothly. As a widow, if she recognizes these stages as natural and common to all, the social adjusting she does will be easier, faster, more effective.

In Appreciation

We take this opportunity to express our deep gratitude to Dr. Roger Jurich for the excellent medical support provided throughout the football season. His attendance at both varsity and JV games added a profound measure of security for the coaching staff, players and parents. Not only has he provided medical attention for our players, but he has always been as attentive to injured players on the opposing teams. His service has been totally sacrificial, since he received no pay for his professional care or for his many hours of travel to and from the games.

And so we say, "Thank you, Dr. Jurich, for the care and inspiration you have provided.

"We have a potential right now of more than 40 million cubic feet," and additional supplies are being acquired, he said.

Natural gas in south-central Kentucky contains about 1,200 British Thermal Units (BTU) of energy per cubic foot, Martin said. After propane and butane are "stripped" from it, about 1,050 BTU's are left, and the gas can still be used to heat homes.

The "stripped" natural gas will be sold, if possible, or returned to the ground for future use, he said.

The exact type of stripping unit will be determined when bids from manufacturers are opened later this month, Martin said. Each unit is expected to cost $800,000 to $1.2 million, plus an additional $300,000 to $500,000 to set up at the well.

Each unit also will require two

The partners plan to invest $10 million over the next six months and possibly another $5 million later he said, adding that "our goal is to produce 200,000 gallons a day from 10 plants."

Martin said he expected "no problems at all" in selling the propane and butane and in making a profit.

"The market is very good," he said.
"There's no problem in getting our money back at 50 cents a gallon in six to 12 months."

Dismissed were misdemeanor charges against Geneva Skeens, Judy Hall, Sandra Burchett, Marvin Holbrook, Marie Slone, Robert Davenport, Ellis Stephens, Nell Cartmell, Louise Lykins, Vickie Lawson, Robert Ford, Benny May, Cecil Hall, Charles Hall, Debbie Burns, Jerry Taylor, James Conners, Henry Calhoun, Gwen Calhoun, Betty Calhoun, Sherry Lewis, Reatha Likens, Marlene Lafferty, Chuck Meadows, and Doug Osborne.

Baril Trial Set In Knife Slaying For Third Time

The third trial of Tony Baril, charged with the knife-murder near here of Earl Chester Porter and the robbery of the truck stop where Porter was employed, is scheduled Dec. 7.

It is the first of three murder cases docketed for hearing next month. Torrence Wright, who is charged with murder in the slaying of his wife, is slated for trial Dec. 14, and the trial of Otis Lee Wallen, also for murder, on Dec. 21

In Baril's first trial the jury failed to agree. At the second, in January, 1980, he was convicted and sentenced to prison terms of 20 years for murder and 10 years for robbery.

But the Court of Appeals last February overturned the verdict on the grounds that during his questioning Baril asked for an attorney and that the interrogation continued while he did not have legal counsel. The Commonwealth in the coming trial will be without evidence contained in his statement, since the high court held that it is inadmissible.

These murder trials will be preceded by the Nov. 30 hearing of the assault charge lodged against Ben and Olive Meade following fractures sustained by one of their children.

Hall said that getting the evidence analysed and arranging for expert testimony in the case would delay it by several weeks at least.

Ex-Sheriff Lewis this week defended his removing physical evidence from the sheriff's office, "It was my responsibility," he said. "It was my evidence, to hold until the cases were settled."

Apart from some marijuana, he had evidence in some "10 to 15 liquor cases" which have never been brought to trial, he said.

its great football record this year. But a coach is blamed for his team's showing on the field, so it should follow that he should get some credit, especially when it's overdue.

The young Prestonsburg coach is no glad-hander and is not one to indulge in that sorry pasttime, self-praise, so I propose to do some pushing for him.

For his record this year, and equally as much for his influence on a fine group of youngsters, I nominate him for the region's Coach of the Year.

And point me to one who is more deserving, if you can.

AH, NOVEMBER!

At the risk of bringing down upon the populace a howling blizzard, I turn now to praise of the month of November.

One asset it has, whatever it may bring us, weatherwise: it has Thanksgiving. And, although it would be little short of sacrilege to rank it ahead of Christmas or Mother's Day, Thanksgiving has assets that are hard to beat.

First of all, you can depend on it. It will come on a Thursday. Its day of the week is as constant as Easter's.

It calls us to the giving of theoler not

It calls us to the giving of thanks, not to the giving of the things we have used to cheapen the real spirit of other holidays, including Christmas.

It brings churches and, of course, people together, but not close enough.

It brings families together, but not often enough.

There was something else I had in mind, but it escapes me. So I shall take the advice of Abe Smiley, which runs to this effect:

When you're trying to think of something and can't remember what it is, you might as well forget about it.

County Attorney Arnold Turner, Jr. argued that the building, including its mechanical systems, was approved by the state fire marshal's office, which issued it a certificate of operation in 1978. Most of the other deficiencies cited in the inspection reports could be remedied relatively easily and would be remedied, he said.

District Court Judge Harold Stumbo told the court he had no place to commit juvenile offenders or runaways, some of whom had to be turned loose on the streets in the dead of night.

Pressed by City Attorney Paul Burchett on the question of the safety of the detention center, Judge Stumbo opined that juveniles would be safer there than on the streets, an opinion later echoed by Judge-Executive Bill Wells.

Burchett insisted that Prestonsburg had no wish to block reopening of the detention facility but wanted to see the building made safe before juveniles were readmitted.

LETTERS To the Editor The views expressed here are those of the writers, and not necessarily those of this newspaper. No unsigned contributions will be published. Defense Chides Comm. Attorney Over Plea Deal

A defense attorney who earlier sought successfully to bar the press and public from pretrial proceedings in a case in which a Prestonsburg couple is charged with assaulting an infant charged this week that, under cover the gag order which has so far conceaned records in the case, the defendants' constitutional rights are being violated.

Ben Meade, 30, and Olive Ann Meade, 28, were charged with assault in February, 1980, after one of their 4-month-old triplets was taken to a Louisville hospital suffering from fractures to the skull, ribs, legs and arm.

Gary Johnson, an attorney representing Meade, filed a motion in circulcourt here Tuesday seeking dismissal of the charges against the couple, on grounds that Commonwealth's Attorney James Allen has reneged on a promise not to prosecute Meade and has used "unethical, possibly illegal" tactics in trying to get Mrs. Meade to enter a guilty plea in the case.

Early in the case, defense attorneys moved unsuccessfully in district court to bar the public and press from pretrial proceedings, arguing the publicity might jeopardize their clients' rights to a fair trial. Denied at that time, a gag order was subsequently imposed by Circuit Judge Hollie Conley, who forbade attorneys to comment publicly on the case and ordered that the pretrial records be kept from public scrutiny.

Trial of the couple has been scheduled for November 30, following the breakdown of extensive plea negotiations. It is the conduct of those negotiations by Commonwealth's Attorney Allen that this week drew a charge of "foul play" from Defense Attorney Johnson.

According to court records made available by Johnson, a bargain was struck in the case in June this year, according to which Olive Meade would plead no contest to a reduced assault charge while all charges against Ber Meade would be dropped.

The deal came unstuck, however, after Public Defender Nora K. McCormick, representing Mrs. Meade, charged that her client had been coerced into making the deal by the Commonwealth's threatening to prosecute her husband, even though the prosecutor had no evidence against him and admitted as much in the court record.

Mrs. Meade insisted on having the charges against her tried before a jury, and the Commonwealth responded by reinstating the charges against her husband.

Accusing the commonwealth's attorney of "prosecutorial misconduct," Johnson said this week that Allen was threatening with a pen term a man he has admitted is innocent, solely in order to bring pressure to bear on the man's wife to enter a guilty plea.

Johnson surmised that Allen would never have reinstated the charges against Meade if his earlier admission that the Commonwealth lacked evidence to convict him was a matter of open record.

The case illustrates how excluding the press can breed "corruption and deceit" in judicial proceedings, he said.

No Foul Play Found In Hamilton Death

Coroner James J. Carter said Monday it has been determined that there was no foul play connected with the death of Hershell Eugene Hamilton, 22, who was found dead last Thursday on the Neck's Branch road, near Galveston.

The body was sent to Pikeville for an autopsy by Dr. George Buckley, pathologist associated with the state medical examiner.

A carpenter, the victim was a son of the late Birt and Opal Hall Hamilton, he is survived by six brothers, Willard, Billy D., Wendell Lee, Darrell, Lee Roy and David Hamilton, all of Galveston.

Funeral rites were conducted at 10 a.m. Sunday from the Hall Funeral Home by ministers of the Regular Baptist Church, and burial was made in the Bruce Hall cemetery at Galveston.

Conservation Group Outlines Plan To Help Solve Acid Rain Problem

troduced by Sen. George Mitchell

(D-Maine), and for similar legislation to be introduced by Rep. Toby Moffett

(D-Conn.). In calling for effective acid rain control legislation, Hair said, the organization, is "in the company of the bipartisan National Commission on Air Quality, the prestigious National Academy of Sciences, and the 86 percent of the American people-whom we all represent-who have indicated their support for a strong Clean Air

NWF, the nation's largest conservation

The National Wildlife Federation, on behalf of the National Clean Air Coalition, today proposed a four-point plan to reduce sulfur dioxide emissions in 31 states in order to begin solving the nation's growing acid rain problem.

The plan was outlined by Dr. Jay D. Hair, executive vice president of the NWF, at a House Energy and Commerce Committee hearing on acid rain. The NWF is a member of the National Clean Air Coalition, whose members include conservation, health, labor and consumer groups interested in educating the public about the dangers of air pollution.

The Coalition plan recommends that Congress mandate a ten million ton per year reduction in sulfur dioxide emissions in 31 eastern states by 1990. Hair noted that sulfur dioxide emissions should be dealt with first because they are responsible for "up to 80 percent of the acid precipitation in the northeast."

When sulfur dioxide emissions, mainly generated by coal-burning power plants, combine with rain or snow they form an acid which is often blown hundreds of miles from its actual source before it falls to earth. Acid rain has killed the fish in more than 90 lakes in the Adirondack Mountains, and a recent NWF report revealed that 15 eastern states are "extremely vulnerable" to the harmful effects of acid rain.

Under the plan Hair outlined, Congress would set a formula which would allow utilities in the 31 eastern states to apportion fairly among themselves the burden of a ten million ton sulfur dioxide reduction. Each sulfur dioxide generator subject to the reduction requirements would be given up to two years to submit a reduction proposal to the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency.

Utilities, which amount for about three-quarters of all sulfur dioxide emissions in the eastern U.S., would be allowed to "trade" emission reduction obligation among themselves and non-utility plants. Although EPA would have final approval of the utilities' reduction plans, the states would have an active role in enforcing the plans.

Hair expressed strong support for an acid rain bill-S. 1706-recently in-

Church Observes 'Kinfolk Sunday'

It was kinfolk Sunday at the United Methodist Church at Martin last Sunday. The morning worship bulletin was headed, "Kinfolk Sunday," and the descendants of Beaver Creek ancestors worshipped in grateful appreciation of their heritage and with pride in their lineage. Several families and kin came. The Allen clan had the greatest number of relatives present and Stephen Allen, grandson of the late Gene Allen, of Allen, was presented a trophy

Helping to mark the occasion was the Christian Editions, a gospel singing team from Trimble Chapel United Methodist Church. Accompanied by strings and drums, the all-girl singing group sang several hymns. Tilden Ellis came with the singers and had part in the service.

Special guests were basketball players and cheerleaders from the schools of Martin. John L. Maddox welcomed and congratulated them and their schools and staffs upon good training and character building.

Preaching from the text, "For as he thinketh in his heart, so is he...," the pastor, Rev. Charles R. Elswick, himself a native of Eastern Kentucky and from a large kinfolk circle, stated that whatever is undesirable about us, the ugly prevalence of litter, crime and the like, is but the reflection of what is in our hearts. The great hearts of our ancestors are still reflected in the good we have inherited, but also our less desirable ways are a reflection of the less great in their hearts.

Two basketball players carried Libby Allen, who has been confined to her wheelchair since an automobile accident, from the church and then the congregation sang "God Be with You Till We Meet Again." As the boys were proceeding to take Libby from the church she remarked, "Don't 'dribble' me down the steps, boys."

Biblical Opera Premiers on KET

The Bible as opera comes to television when the San Francisco Opera's production "Samsom and Delilah" premiers Monday, November 23 at 9

The powerful retelling of the biblical tale, a presentation of the "Great Performances" series, stars Shirley Verrett and Placido Domingo in the title roles. The cast also features Wolfgang Brendel as the High Priest, Arnold Voketaitis as the Governor of Gaza and Kevin Langan as the Old Hebrew in the ancient story of strength, seduction, betrayal and redemption. The stage production is directed by Nicholas Joel and includes such special effects as a panic-inspiring solar eclipse, a series of storms and exploding fires and the climactic destruction of the Temple of Dagon, in which Placido Domingo, as Samson, literally brings down the house

In Act One of the opera, Samson is endowed with supernatural strength and called upon by God to lead the Hebrews against their persecutors, the Philistines. In Act Two, the seductive Delilah tempts Samson to learn the secrets of his strength and later entraps him. In the final act, Samson, now weak and helpless before his captors, prays successfully for the return of his strength and brings down the pagan temple of Dagon upon himself and his enemies.

A meeting was held by citizens of the upper Left Beaver Creek section, Oct. 16, for the purpose of raising Fork to connect with the Indian Creek road, and thus to obtain connection with the Mayo Trail into Pikeville. This route had already been started by the county, but funds were insufficient to complete it.

The Indian Creek road contract was awarded by the Pike fiscal court to the J. D. Hackney Construction Company on its bid of $39,850. Road contracts totaling $60,000 were awarded at the same time. The other routes are four-fifths mile up Johns Creek for $10,167 and a one and one-half mile stretch at Gulnare for $12,000. Contracts call for grade and drainage.

Stumbo, Allen and Fitzpatrick Elected, Results Show

One Democrat and two Republicans involved in local or district races were elected on the face of returns gathered from Tuesday's election, while the issue between two others hangs in

O. H. Stumbo, Democrat, defeated George T. Roberts, Republican, for circuit court clerk by a majority of 384 votes, unofficial returns show. H. D. Fitzpatrick, Republican, won over Alex L. Hill, Democrat, for State Senator. The winner holds his majority as reaching well above 2,000, while Mr. Hill made the statement Thursday morning that he believed the result would show a much smaller count for his opponent.

WHERE IS BUS COUNTY? O. K! THEN DEFINE 'BUS'

The story told recently by the Ashland Daily Independent of the young ladies' efforts to locate "Free county, Kentucky," reminds us of a young lady's attempts, upon arriving here recently, to locate "Bus county."

Here, she first saw the name ofthe county printed on the automobile license tags. Past went a car marked "Floyd." Then "Johnson," "Pike"-and, finally, "Bus."

"Where is Bus County?" she wanted to know.

Then the matter was cently explained to her. It was also explained that "bus" does not mean county, nor does it necesasrily mean a motor vehicle. Hands up. those who know the other-and far more romantic-meaning of "bus" or "buss" in mountain lingo!

The race which is, as yet, undecided lies between Judge W. W. Williams, Democratic candidate for re-election for circuit judge of the 31st judicial disitrict, and C. B. Wheeler. Both are claiming election. Judge Wheeler stated Thursday morning that his majority would run between 300 and 500 votes. With all precincts reported in, in Knott county, Judge Williams claims a lead over his opponent. The official count will be necessary to de-

Judge Sampson led all candidates, with a majority of more than 1,000 votes in this county. H. D. Fitzpatrick's majority with four precincts out. was placed at 299. Stumbo's majority was at that time 424, but it is held at 384 as we go to press, with all the precincts reported.

In Knott county the Democratic ticket is reported as leading. Beckham piled up a lead ranging from 800 to 1,200, and Judge Wililams also has a small margin there. Alex Hill's majority in Knott had not been learned when the Times went to press.

About House

Home Buyer Blues

You'll need over $1,000 to repair the defects in your new home, and that's just the average, according to a joint study by the Federal Trade Commission (FTC) and the Department of Housing and Urban Development

Over 1,000 owners of new homes were interviewed in the study; most of them had at least one construction problem that the builder had not repaired. Since the average cost of fixing these problems would cost each new home owner $1,411, it's no wonder that 20 percent of them said they had a "serious disagreement" with the builder. A small percentage of the dissatisfied owners went to court with their complaints.

What were the complaints? Most centered around walls, ceilings, and floors (61 percent). In order, the rest of the reported problems were: driveways, exterior concrete work, plumbing, roof, foundation/basement, heating, cooling, major appliances, interior electrical, and contracted work not done.

"Our impression," says Jeffrey Harris, assistant director of the FTC's Bureau of Consumer Protection, "is that there are some housing industry members who continue to do unsatisfactory work." The FTC, therefore, plans to continue its law-enforcement mandate against problem builders.

Inspectors hired to check the validity of owner-reported problems and their estimated repair costs found that homeowners did not exaggerate the problem of new home defects; in fact, the inspectors found many problems that were not reported by the homeowners.

What does this mean to you? First of all, it means that if you have just purchased a new home, or are intending to buy one, you will be extremely fortunate if you don't have any complaints. If you're an average new home owner, you'll find at least one thing wrong with your new home in the first year.

If you do have a problem, don't ignore it. One thing the study shows is fewer problems are resolved as time passes. Each year, according to the experience of homeowners in the survey, the number of problems the builder will fix goes down.

If you paid less than $30,000 or more than $80,000, you are more likely to have construction problems than if you bought a house for $30-80,000. Also, according to the study, you are less likely to have a problem with your new home if you live in the West.

Microwave Safe Materials

Many utensils you could never put into the conventional oven or use on the range top are suitable for microwave cookery.

"Glass, plastic, wood, wicker, even plastic wrap and paper toweling can go into a microwave oven safely," suggests Sue Herndon, an Oklahoma State University housing and equipment specialist.

When shopping for utensils, Herndon recommends a rounded casserole instead of one with corners. The rounded utensil cleans easier and heats food more evenly than a square or rectangular utensil, she says.

She explains that corners attract microwaves and overcook food in the corners areas of a dish. Also, deep dishes heat food more quickly than shallow ones.

If too large a container is used, the edges of the food will be overcooked and the center will be undercooked. If the food is cooked in too-small a container, the food may spill over.

When selecting utensils for microwave cookery, make sure the microwaves can go through the material and transfer heat without interference. Do not use metal utensils unless specified by the manufacturer of your oven.

Generally, a dishwasher safe plastic container is acceptable for reheating foods with low fat and sugar contents.

For short time cooking, such as heating rolls or bread, wood or straw may be used. But prolonged exposure to heat will dry out these materials and may cause smoke.

Use paper goods for short cooking times-less than three minutes. Paper absorbs moisture such as fat or liquid and then absorbs the microwave energy. When that happens, the paper goods may become

The Prestonsburg Day Homemakers held their regular monthly meeting at the First United Methodist Church, Tuesday afternoon, November 10, at 1 o'clock, with the president, Mrs. Mary Sue Moore, presiding. Mrs. Frances Pitts, home economist, announced that there will be a fresh green wreath workshop, Thursday, December 3, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Kentucky Power Company, and said that those interested in taking this workshop should contact her soon. Mrs. Ruth Moore and Mrs. Dorothy Stover were the leaders for the program on "Christmas Decorations," and with bread dough and a garlic presser, members made attractive decorations for their Christmas trees. Mrs. Becky Short discussed the covered-dish Christmas luncheon, to be held Tuesday afternoon, December 8, at 1 o'clock at the church. Turkey and the "trimmings" will be prepared by Mrs. Eva Collins and Mrs. Eleanor Horn, with other members bringing covered dishes. It was decided that wrapped, "white elephant" gifts would be exchanged by members and their guests during that time. The hostesses, Mrs. Mabel Donahoe, Mrs. Ruth Francis and Mrs. Ruth Moore, served refreshments to Miss Alice Harris, Mesdames Frances Pitts, Mary Sue Moore, Dorothy Stover, Phyllis Herrick, Docia Woods, Becky Short, Margaret Alley, Jane Wallace, Beatrice Collins, Dorothy Sturgill, Fannie Runnels, Lucy Regan, Pat Necessary, Stella Spurlock, Eleanor Horn, Peg Hewlett, Eva Collins, Dorothy Osborne, Gladys Blackburn, Dorothy Burke, and Gladys Howard.

Knott Schools' Deficit Probed By State Board

The state Board of Education has asked for an investigation into a deficit in the Knott county school system's

The investigation will focus on Melvin Wicker, who was Knott county superintendent until he was fired last spring, with the state Department of Education to "see if there are legal grounds to pursue this further," said L.W. True, secretary of the state

The board granted both Knott county and the Berea Independent school systems emergency status last week. allowing them to operate through this school year with a deficit accumulated the year before.

It will be the second year of emergency status for both systems.

Berea officials listed their deficit at the beginning of this fiscal year as $188,784.25, up almost $3,000 from the deficit reported last year.

Knott county reported a deficit of $576,196.88. That is more than a $400,000 increase over the $137,149 deficit reported last year.

Officials of both school systems said they plan to reduce their deficits this school year and abolish them by the end of the next school year.

Wicker was fired by his board last spring, and Bill Bennett, former superintendent at Berea, resigned amid reports of some board members' intentions to fire him. The Department of Education has already done an investigation of the Berea situation and released a report in September saying it found "no prosecutable evidence" against Bennett.

First Hunt, A Successful One

For 13-year-old Johnny Kaylor his first deer hunt was a whopping success. The John M. Stumbo eighth grader bagged a "spike" which dressed out at 95 pounds while hunting November 7 in the Daniel Boone National Forest in Bath county. Kaylor, the youngest of a hunting party of eight, was the only hunter to claim a deer on the trip.

Johnny is the son of Sandy Rogers and step-son of Earl Rogers, of Harold.

Black Cats Win Grid Regional, Face Somerset Friday in Semis

Prestonsburg High School in its long football history of more than half a century has had its "downs," which will not be mentioned here, and its "ups" which took it to two Bowl games, a Big Sandy Conference championship, and opposition which included the likes of Paul Hornung.

But last week it reached a point the Cats had never before attained. It won the semi-final round of the state grid playoffs in Class AA by winning the regional championship, and now is preparing for Friday night's game at Somerset with the Briar Jumpers of Somerset High School. The winner of that one will move into the state championship game, Nov. 27, in Louisville.

After losing their first two games of the season, the Blackcats have won their last 10. And the tenth victory, scored last Friday night over Johns Creek, landed them in their loftiest position, come what may in the future.

Winning the regional title and a place in the state semi-finals had fans here in a dither of excitement this week, but the team and its coach, Phillip Haywood, were too busy getting ready for the Somerset embroglio to take time out for celebration.

The Blackcats won handily over Johns Creek, 27 to 8. Leading 27 to 0 in the fourth quarter. Coach Haywood went to his bench to substitute freshmen and sophomores, and it was only then that the Pike countians scored their lone touchdown and ran for their two extra points.

Prestonsburg kicked off to open the game and the Bearcats started their first series at the 20. The Blackcat defense held and Steve Rice returned the punt to midfield. But the Cats could get nothing on their opening series and had to punt. Johns Creek picked up one first down, but also was forced to punt again with Prestonsburg taking over on its own 45. The Cats quickly began to move as Robert Midgette scooted 18 yards for a first down. Faced with a fourth and 4 at the Johns Creek 30, Steve Rice took the option pitch from quarterback Todd Nairn and behind a good block by John Gilliam picked up 10 yards for a first down at the 20. Midgette then rambled for 15 more to the Johns Creek 5.

Gilliam bulled in from the 1 behind the offensive line of B.J. Sturgill, John Burchett, Ritchie Schoolcraft, Joe Frazier and Robin Tackett, Sturgill tacked on the extra point and Prestonsburg led. 7-0. After returning the kick-off to the 35,

Johns Creek began its best drive of the night, moving to the Cats' 15 yard line. but a fourth pass fell incomplete and the Blackcats held. Prestonsburg then mounted a drive to the Johns Creek 20. but Sturgill's fourth down field goal attempt was short. The Cats' defense of Jeff Wells, Frazier, Burchett, Bill Slone, Jim Webb, Sturgill, Gillian, Bryan Pace, John Anderson, John DeRossett, Dennis Flanagan and Rice then stopped the Bearcats cold and Rice fielded the punt at his own 35 and the Cats went to work with just under three minutes left in the half. Midgette picked up 10 on a pitch and then on a reverse, raced to the Bearcats' 15, after which Nairn dropped back and found Jeff Wells in the corner of the end zone for the Cats second touchdown. Sturgill added the extra point and Prestonsburg led 14-0 at the Prestonsburg returned the second half kickoff to the 35. Faced with a third and 6, Nairn again found Wells and the big fight end raced 61 yards for the score. Sturgill's kick was good and the Blackcats led 21-0. After an exchange of punts the Blackcats got the ball back as Bill Slone hit the Johns Creek quarterback as he attempted to pass, kicking the ball loose, and Wells pounced on it for the Cats on their own 45. Prestonsburg then began its final scoring drive of the night when Rice broke loose up the middle before being hauled down at the Johns Creek 20. Gilliam then popped through to the 4 and Midgette went the final four yards for the TD. The extra point failed and the Cats led 27-0 at the end of the third quarter.

Prestonsburg's younger players finished out the game and the Beareats scored their lone marker in the closing minutes, making the final score 27-8. Haywood said, "It was a big win for us Our kids got after them pretty good: We hit real well and played hard. We came up with some big plays offensively, but we made an awful lot of mistakes. Our offensive line didn't block as well as they're capable of doing and we had an awful lot of fumbles: We'll have to improve on quite a few things by next week.

The Cats had five fumbles, but fortunately didn't lose any while the game was in doubt_

Prestonsburg had 356 yards in total offense, 239 rushing. Midgette led the Blackcat runs with 122 yards in 14 carries with one touchdown, while Rice had 47 yards in five tries, and Gilliam had 43 in 11 attempts with one touchdown. Program Looks At Karate As Art

Karate as an art form, combining the uniqueness of sport with self-defense, will be the subject of a KET series to air next year. Produced by KET and directed by Washington, D.C., producer Darrell Landrum, the karate series features the martial art skills of hosts Sin The and Hiang The of Sin The Sports Center in Lexington, Ky. Hiang The and his brother Sin, a 10th degree black belt, present karate as an art form, which can be perfected with time and dedication. By watching this series on a regular basis, an individual can gain instruction on a "yellow belt" (the second belt in a six-belt training process of which the black belt is the highest) level of skill. Karate demonstrations on the program are adapted from classes at the Sport Center and from the annual tournaments and tours featuring karate practitioners in action. Since Sin The's arrival in Lexington, 400 of his students have met requirements for the black belt. But their mentor emphasizes one does not graduate from karate with acquisition of a black belt. According to Sin The, "It merely signifies the beginning of a journey into the art with discipline and control as one's guide."

FEATURING THE REDEMPTIONS

Scores Political Upset

Floyd county native, Floyd (Shotgun) Frasure, Democrat, scored a political upset November 3 when he won a landslide victory to become county judge-executive of McCreary county, a republican stronghold. His nearest opponent trailed by 1,744 votes, and the independent candidate garnered only 425 votes. Of the 25 precincts in McCreary, Frasure carried all but four, and these were lost by small margins.

Frasure, who came to McCreary county in 1957 as a state trooper, concluded his career with the Kentucky State Police early this year and continues to reside at East Pine Knot.

He is the son of the late James and Susan Mosely Frasure, of McDowell, and brother of Walter Frasure, of Allen, professor and counselor at Prestonsburg Community College. He is a graduate of McDowell High School, where he excelled in sports.

Feeling Guilty? Many people do. Reasons range from broken homes to unbroken habits. Whatever the cause, it's an ugly feeling. Guilt is both the fact of having done wrong and the feeling of blame for doing it. It's worst when the way you live leaves you empty, frustrated, and filled with regret. But there is a solution. Hot-Mix Asphalt Rail Roadbed May Save Billions in Repairs

A University of Kentucky civil engineering team is looking into ways that the nation's railroads can reduce the $5 billion dollar annual cost to maintain tracks.

Dr. Jerry Rose heads a team of students and graduate research assistants who are experimenting with hot-mix asphalt as a railway roadbed The project involves the cooperation of the Louisville & Nashville Railroad Co., National Asphalt Pavement Association and the Asphalt Institute.

Two 500-foot test sections of track. using asphalt as a base, have been put down on the L&N line near Ravenna. The first test section consisted of eight inches of full-depth asphalt, also on top of a compacted subgrade. Following the laying of the asphalt, the L&N crews set ties and quarter-mile sections of welded rail and spread crushed limestone cribbing. The contractor's crew then covered the cribbing with an asphalt emulsion.

The test site is adjacent to the L&N's Ravenna railroad yard and normally carries five to 10 trains per day, each train averaging 100 cars. Many of the railroad ears earry up to 100 tons of "The site will be monitored for several years by both UK and by the L&N," Rose said. "The research is particularly concerned with track bed depths, and we're hoping to find an adequate design which will be cost effective in the long run."

The asphalt road costs more than the conventional roadbed, but the research team is trying to determine if savings on upkeep over the years will offset the initial cost of the asphalt

NAPA says that if the process proves out, it will revolutionize the construction of railroad beds and lead to a reduction in the $5 billion maintenance

Rose says that other possible uses for the asphalt beds could include highspeed, mass transit tracks.

"Although the loads aren't as heavy. they do require a good quality, smooth track," he said.

The test project at Ravenna evolved from a student competition sponsored by NAPA, which requested papers on the applicability of asphalt-bound materials in railway roadbed construction. UK students, under the direction of Rose, won first place in the national competition, resulting in the Estill county project.

Women can protect themselves from uterine cancer by having Pap tests regularly. This test is a simple procedure; it doesn't take much time, and it is painless. The Pap test can detect uterine or cervical cancer when it is the most curable.

The Floyd County Health Department is having a Pap clinic on Friday. November 20, from 8 until 11:30 and from 1 until 2. This clinic is a free service of the health department and any woman who has not had a Pap test in the past year is urged to take advantage of this service.

Elmer Morrison Retires as Fire Chief of Wayland

Elmer H. Morrison, for 32 years a fireman and chief of the Wayland area fire department, announced his retirement this week. Ill health was given as

Mr. Morrison began his long career in the fire-fighting field in 1949 when he came to Wayland. At that time the department's equipment consisted of a 1946 Ford truck purchased by the Lions Club. Lacking a firehouse, the truck was kept in the boat house by the post office at Wayland.

The truck was used until 1951 when a wreck en route to a fire damaged the vehicle beyond repair and the department was left with only two creek pumps and a few volunteers to perform firefighting duties.

In the early 1960's Mr. Morrison began reorganizing the department with the assistance of the Town Board, Elkhorn Coal Corporation and various civic-minded individuals. Well-known in the area, Mr. Morrison was able to solicit funding from state and local government agencies as well as businesses and individuals with the result that the department attained the largest operating fund in its history.

All the while, Mr. Morrison attended numerous firefighting training seminars in order to obtain professional level skills that could be passed on to other Wayland firemen.

Coal official George Evans donated a 1957 Ford pick-up to the department, and later a firehouse was constructed to house a modern firetruck so that now, the Wayland area can claim truly up-to-date and effective fire protection.

Mr. Morrison's long years of work in firefighting in this area and the early establishment of a fire department in Wayland served as an example to other communities in the area which have followed suit in developing firefighting

(Information for this article was submitted by members of the Wayland Volunteer Fire Department who expressed their appreciation to Mr. and Mrs. Morrison for their work in connection with the fire department over the past years.)

Health Program Cuts Eyed by Hospitals

clinics across the state are keeping an eye on state and federal budget cuts as they try to maintain a high degree of care while having their operations remain fiscally solvent.

With several medical benefit programs already cut and other reductions on the drawing boards, some health administrators are looking around, unsure of what will actually happen with an increased number of individuals who may come to their facility without any type of medical in-

"Anytime you cut a third party payer, like Medicaid or Medicare, it will definitely affect us," said Larry Williams, program administrator for Mountain Comprehensive Health. This means that we will have to generate more money elsewhere but I'm not sure where.

Williams said health clinics which are operated by Mountain Comprehensive Health work on a sliding scale; fees are based on an individual's income and resources. While reductions are made at the state and federal level, MCH's clinics will still provide care for individuals previously covered by the medical assistance programs, "as long as we can afford it." Williams said, pointing out that grants from the Public Health Service help underwrite such costs.

At the University of Kentucky Medical Center, those who are unable to pay or those who did not pay their bill totaled costs of over $13.8 million during the last fiscal year, or about 28 percent of the total operating budget. according to hospital director Frank Butler. When the state and federal governments decided to trim the medical assistance rolls, the UK Medical Center adopted a new policy to keep down the revenue losses.

If a patient can be treated at another hospital, UK will not accept a transfer. Butler noted. They will take emergency cases or will accept patients who can only be treated at UK (such as when there is no specialist in their home area). These services are based on "medical necessity" and not on ability to pay. Butler said.

'We got to a point where we could provide health care for almost everyone," the administrator commented. "But now they won't fund that.

Butler feels that the cuts will make a 'major difference" and could eventually result in higher costs, which will probably be passed on to the consumer by way of increased health insurance premiums.

In line with Butler's thoughts, John Bush, chairperson of Kentucky Action for Human Needs, a statewide coalition fighting for more human services in the cutback struggle, emphasized, 'Unfortunately, our governments are seeking ways to cut the budget and save money instead of looking for a means of effectively dealing with social services, such as health and "I just hope nothing serious happens to any of the kids," she added. "Just regular check-ups are more than we can afford.

If more individuals are unable to pay, medical clinics will have to accept the extra burden, said Bruce Middleton, assistant administrator of the Daniel Boone Clinics in Harlan, Bell and Letcher counties

'The magnitude of the impact of the cuts is yet to be seen," Middleton remarked, although he admitted that the clinics are anticipating more bad debts and a greater number of requests to serve those without any medical insurance and no resources to pay.

Drug Spheres Kill Cancer

By William Erwin

A new drug delivery system using magnets to draw tiny metalcontaining spheres to tumors can destroy cancer in animals while sparing most normal tissue, medical researchers have found.

Called protein microspheres, they carry an anti-cancer drug and iron exide particles and are injected into the bloodstream. A magnet held over a tumor attracts the iron oxide, and thus the spheres, to the tumor site where they release their drug load.

Seventy-five percent of the test animals in one study showed no signs of cancer after treatment with the

"We only hope it works someday with patients; that's the bottom line," says Dr. Kenneth J. Widder, one of the researchers at Duke University Medical Center.

Widder, a resident in pathology, described the techniques at the annual meeting of the Federation of American Societies for Experimen-Biology in Anaheim, California.

He and Dr. Andrew E. Senvei of the University of California, Irvine, served as consultants for the animal test, conducted by Dr. Robert M. Morris, Donald P. Howard, Jr. and Gerald A. Poore of Eli Lilly and Co., a maker of health care, agricultural and cosmetic products.

The researchers cautioned that their work is still experimental. More tests must be done before the otential use of the process in humans can be fully appraised, they

If successful, the process could improve the effectiveness of chemotherapy in the treatment of certain types of cancer and at the same time reduce the toxicity of drugs given in this way.

Interviewed before the California heeting, Widder said the microspheres are made of a natural body protein called albumin. Researchers load the tiny balls with the anticancer drug and with the iron

A magnet of the appropriate strength placed over a tumor holds the microspheres at the tumor site when circulating blood carries them where. They leave the bloodstream. Then, over several days, the microspheres release their drug load and disappear.

"They break down naturally," Widder "They're says. biodegradable."

The resulting concentration of drug can kill a tumor while leaving ormal cells in the rest of the body elatively unharmed, the physician

He said that 75 percent of the rats treated with the microspheres showed complete disappearance of cancerous tumors implanted in the animals' tails. Tumors in the remaining animals shrank noticeably, he said.

Tampon Users Risk Shock

Toxic shock syndrome, a rare and sometimes fatal disease, has been associated not only with Rely tampons, but with all other brands as well. A label or detailed package insert is being considered to warn users of the possible risks from using these products.

First reports of toxic shock yndrome came in 1978, but according to the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) it took the next two years to discover that the disease was rapidly becoming a nationwide phenomenon.

Caused by a bacterium from the Staphyloccocus aureus family, the disease primarily affects women during their menstrual periods, Ithough it has also occurred in men and non-menstruating women. An early study by the Center for Disease Control found that all of the women who had toxic shock syndrome had used tampons. A second study of women with toxic shock syndrome found that three out of four of the victims used Rely.

Procter and Gamble, manufacurers of Rely, voluntarily withdrew neir product from the market. However, all brands of tampons have been associated with the disease, and the warning labels proposed by the FDA are one of several steps to educate the consumer about this new Symptoms of the disease are initially like those of the flu: high fever (sudden onset); vomiting, and siarrhea; later appearance of a rash within half a day of the start of the disease) and a dramatic drop in blood pressure.

Spunky, Salt-Loving Plants May Hold Key to Global Food Needs

By MADELEINE JACOBS Smithsonian News Service

Just across the California border in the Mexicali Valley, the farmers are still bitter. For decades, their valley has been one of Mexico's most fertile and productive agricultural oases, relying on the life-giving irrigation waters of the nearby Colorado River.

But a not-so-funny thing happened to the mighty Colorado on its way to Mexico. Over the years, as it was increasingly manipulated to supply water for a thirsty U.S. population in the West and Southwest, the river picked up salt-lots of it. After a 1,400-mile-trip southward, the brackish waters were simply too salty for some crops.

By the late 1960s, some lush areas had been transformed into barren stretches, virtual seas of salt where nothing would grow. Although Mexico and the United States signed an agreement on salinity control in 1973, only now has that land begun to recover its former productivity.

It is an ancient problem-its solution, an ancient dream. As early as 2400 B.C., increasing soil salinity hurried the decline of the thriving, agriculture-oriented Sumerian civilization. Today, some 130 million acres of the world's irrigated lands are plagued with salinity problems.

And yet, scientists have long dreamed of agricultural uses for seawater. which covers four-fifths of the globe but is now worthless for irrigation purposes: Only a fraction of the Earth's thousands of plant species can tolerate even one-tenth the salt concentration of ocean water.

But there are some plants that not only tolerate salt-they thrive on it. And, as a number of scientists now believe, this relative handful may be a botanical blessing, holding the key to feeding the world's growing popula-

"For thousands of years, we've been able to move away from salt-affected lands," explains Dr. Jack Gallagher, an ecologist at the University of Delaware College of Marine Studies in Lewes. "Now we've run out of new land to replace the salinized acres. So while we used to adapt the land to the plants we had, now we have to adapt plants to the land we have.

For Gallagher, this means looking at plants in his own backyard-the Delaware marshes, part of the long green ribbon of soft, salty, wet, lowlying land lining virtually the entire Atlantic coast. Dominating these marshes are two grasses-Spartina alterniflora and Spartina patens, commonly known as cord grass and sall hay grass, respectively

From Colonial time until early in this century, these marsh plants were prized by farmers for their high yields of hay. So valued were the marshes for livestock fodder that, one story goes, in the 17th century armed men from Massachusetts routinely raided hay from the New Hampshire marshes.

Gallagher and others believe that marsh plants and other salt-loving plants that normally grow well in saline, arid soils could once again assume economic importance, especially in countries where irrigation has created salinity problems. In some irrigated lands in Egypt, for instance, soil salinity has reached critical levels for many traditional crops. There, Gallagher has been looking at a variety of marsh plants, including cord grass and salt grass (Distichlis spicata), as well as an inland desert plant of the genus Atriplex, as potential forage for water buffalo and goats. So far, the results look pro-

Despite their appeal, salt-tolerant plants-or halophytes, from the Greek words for salt, halos, and plant, phyte-remain something of a mystery. Unlike other plants, which try to keep salt from their systems completely, halophytes are able to absorb and deal with salt in a number of ways so that it will not be toxic to their systems.

"It is well known that salinity affects many aspects of plant metabolism. anatomy and structure," Gallagher says, "but the precise details of how halophytes do what they do are not well understood.'

There are particularly large gaps in understanding how halophytes have adapted photosynthesis-the process by which plants use sunlight to convert carbon dioxide and water into chemical energy and oxygen.

Dr. Bert Drake has been trying to narrow this gap at the Smithsonian's Radiation Biology Laboratory in Rockville, Md. For nearly a decade, the plant physiologist used a marsh on the Chesapeake Bay in Maryland as a living laboratory where he studied photosynthesis and plant adaptation. Throughout the course of the growing season, he found, the salinity of the marsh increased and the overall efficiency of photosynthesis decreased.

"What we see is a paradox," Drake says. "Halophytes have the ability to compartmentalize salt to keep it from affecting key biochemical reactions. How, then, can photosynthesis be affected by a substance that isn't even in contact with the chloroplasts, the green bodies in plant cells which carry out photosynthesis?

"The answer may be that salt produces a stress reaction in plants, a kind of physiological drought, much like the dessication experienced by desert plants. Thus, in the marsh, there is water everywhere, but it's difficult for the plants to get at it.'

Now Drake has brought the marsh inside. In his laboratory, he's growing plants carried back from the Chesapeake Bay marshes. Current experiments are aimed at delineating the relationship between water stress and photosynthesis.

"One way to expand food production," Drake says, "is to increase the capacity of species we now use to produce more on saline lands. This means we need a better understanding of photosynthesis in those plants that have already adapted to salinity to find out how they've managed this incredible trick.'

Some scientists have suggested that this non-conventional ability could be exploited through genetic engineering,

NOTICE OF INTENTION TO MINE

Pursuant to Application Number 036-5161

In accordance with the provisions of KRS, 350.055, notice is hereby given that: J.R.M. Coal Company, Inc., P.O. Box 320, McDowell, KY, intends to file an application for the surface disturbance mining of approximately 1.97 acres located south of McDowell in Floyd county. The proposed operation is approximately 2.5 miles south of State Route 122's junction with Spewing Camp Branch Road and located south of Left Fork of Beaver Creek. latitude 37º 24' 26", longitude 82º 43' 08". The surface of the area to be mined is owned by: Island Creek Coal Company, Inc. A brief description of the kind of mining activity proposed is: surface disturbance of underground mining. The application will be filed at the Bureau of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement, Prestonsburg Area Office, South Lake Drive, Prestonsburg, Kentucky, 41653.

Persons wishing to file written objections and/or request a formal administrative hearing in regard to the above described underground mine should notify the Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection within 30 days of the date of this notice. The written objection must have attached a copy of the newspaper clipping, and reference the above application number. Such objection or request must be in accordance with KRS 224.081 (2) and must be forw. ded to the Director of Permits, Bureau of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement, Capital Plaza Tower, Frankfort, Kentucky, 40601.

or as Drake puts it, "If we could only teach corn what Spartina alterniflora already knows, we could increase food

"Unfortunately, we really know very little about the genetic basis of salt tolerance," says Dr. Edward P. Glenn, a marine agronomist who studies halophytes at the University of Arizona Environmental Research Laboratory in Tucson. "And I seriously doubt whether there will be a single, magic gene for salt tolerance that could be engineered into conventional crops.

'In our work, we've found that salt tolerance is affected by a variety of factors-the photosynthetic strategy of the plant, its life cycle (perennials do better than annuals) and morphological characteristics such as special salt glands that concentrate and eliminate salt."

Whichever approach is eventually successful-direct adaptation of halophytes to arid lands or genetic engineering with conventional crops-most scientists agree that the greatest potential for halophytic plants will be in those regions of the world where seawater could be used to irrigate arid and semi-arid lands, comprising one-third of the Earth's land area.

Already in Pakistan, Gallagher relates, seawater has been used experimentally to grow some potential crops. He is also sanguine about the future use there of such marsh plants as seashore mallow (a relative of cotton and okra), salt grass and Salicornia, also known as glasswort, as well as the desert plant Atriplex.

Atriplex, an exceptionally highprotein plant, also may be a likely candidate to replace some forage crops, particularly energy-intensive alfalfa, in arid regions of the world and the United States, Glenn adds.

For human consumption, Glenn's favorite is Palmer's grass, found only in marshy areas of the northern Gulf of California, "The seeds of Palmer's grass," he notes, "don't accumulate salt, making them an excellent substitute as a grain crop. The seed contains 80 percent soluble carbohydrate, which can be used to make bread or other grain products."

Not all scientists would ascribe to the sentiments of one researcher who wrote, "The future of plants lies with some group of halophytes." But Jack Gallagher holds out high hopes for the future of a hungry world.

"After all," says, "Scalicornia tastes delicious deep-fried and in casseroles. And Atriplex is a pretty good substitute for spinach.'

FIRE ON THE MOUNTAIN

Ron Howard and Buddy Ebsen star in "Fire on the Mountain," a dramatic two-hour World Premiere motion picture about an aging rancher's struggle to keep control of his property on "NBC Monday Night at the Movies," MONDAY, NOVEMBER 23.

Ebsen portrays John Vogelin, a crus-ty, independent old-timer who refuses Army requests—and court orders— that he vacate his ranch to make room for a missile base. Howard stars as young Lee Mackle, who returns to his hometown hoping to make money on real estate development, but sees his values change as he slowly takes the side of old Vogelin, his explosive housekeeper, Cruza Peralta, and his adoring grandson, Billy.

Michael Conrad appears as Col. Desallus, the man charged with getting the old man off his property.

WALTERS AND REAGAN

His public persona is well-defined and familiar, standard fare for the scores of journalists and armchair analysts who routinely probe his professional words and actions. But what do the American people really know of the private Ronald Reagan, of what lies within the actor-turned politician and world leader who now inhabits the White House?

In a one-hour ABC News Special Report, "Ronald Reagan: At Home on the Ranch," to air Thanksgiving night, THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 26 on ABC-TV, Correspondent Barbara Walters presents a personal portrait of the President, as well as a first-ever television tour of his beloved 688-acre Rancho del Cielo, nestled in the Santa Ynez Mountains of California

Mrs. Reagan will join the President for some Thanksgiving thoughts.

For A Zesty Stuffing: Brighten up your favorite stuffing recipe by adding 1/2 cup crushed potato chips. Try flavored chips for a special

A Handy Kitchen Technique: To crush potato chips simply and neatly, put them in a plastic bag, squeeze out the air, and twist to close. Then crush with a rolling pin until the crumbs are as fine as desired. A little gentle pressure is better than a heavy hand. Use the crushed chips to top casseroles and vegetable dishes.

How Much To Crush: Plan on five cups of potato chips to make 1-1/4 cups crumbs or 2-1/2 cups coarsely crushed chips.

Looking for nutrient-rich, lowcalorie foods to help keep trim and fit? Some cold cuts are "protein dense," furnishing generous amounts of high quality protein with a minimum of calories. In fact, 90 percent fat-free cold cuts provide more protein for the calories than nuts, cereals, beans, flavored yogurt and many cheeses.

Fat in the diet leads to excess calorie intake at a rate more than twice that of protein or carbohydrate. One need not reduce meat consumption to reduce fat intake. An ounce of fat (2 tablespoons) contains 250 calories; an ounce of lean meat contains only 50.

If you eat yogurt every day because it is a low-calorie source of protein, consider the fact that a wiener with all the trimmings contains as much protein, but no more calories or cholesterol than an 8-ounce container of low-fat flavored yogurt. Bacon contains the same amount of protein, fat and calories as peanut butter. For more surprising facts about meat, health and diet, write "Dietary Fitness-A Meat Lover's Guide," PO Box 7188-HF, Madison WI 53707.

Gas producers and the cost of natural gas.

The cost of natural gas, like all energy costs, has risen sharply ... not only for you, but for Columbia, too. And to find the reasons, you have to start with those who produce the gas we buy. Because the increases you've seen in your gas bill come in large part from the increased cost of producing the natural gas you need. For example, in just the past four years, the cost of drilling a typical natural gas well has nearly doubled to close to half a million dollars. And there's no guarantee that the well will produce. The risk is enormous—but necessary in order to replace the huge amounts of gas we're using daily and to keep the pipeline full. ☐ Increased producer costs mean higher gas bills, because Columbia has to pay more for its gas, whether it comes from Appalachian wells or from the Southwest. But when you consider it means more gas available and more sources being developed for future needs, it's worth it.

County May Face Suits Over Conditions in Jails

Kentucky's newly elected county officials heard some bleak news as they opened their seventh annual meeting at Kentucky Dam Village State Park last Thursday

Money is short, help won't be coming from Frankfort or Washington and massive lawsuits over jail conditions pose a major threat, delegates to the Kentucky Association of Counties meeting were told.

While many speakers warned of a dire economic future for the state's 120 counties, the worst message came from David Bland, executive director of the Kentucky Jailers Association.

'When you won that election a week ago," Bland said, "here's what you won: When you walk into that office in January, you will walk into one of the liablest offices because of your

Bland warned that lawsuits by inmates over civil rights and poor jail conditions are becoming common and can be costly

"They'll sue you for medical reasons and food," Bland said.

'When a prisoner comes in and you know he'll be there at least three days, at least do an eyeball examination to be sure he has both hands and feet," he

Most counties, Bland said, will soon be faced with expensive remodeling of their jail facilities unless the state acts to solve the problem.

He noted that a lawsuit is pending before the Kentucky Court of Appeals which seeks to determine if counties are legally required to have jails.

"Don't count on the counties winning that case," he warned.

Bland said county judge-executives, magistrates and jailers have been sued over jail conditions. He said county officials must protect themselves by taking out liability insurance and working in the Legislature to have the jail

"I've been around prisoners longer than I care to admit and I've seen some of the things these prisoners do," Bland said. "I feel that's all these (people) deserve and if you are honest, you will say the same thing. But the blasted federal judges don't agree.

Kentucky Building Code requires electrical inspections

The Kentucky Building Code requires electrical inspections of new buildings and of changes in electrical service in existing buildings.

Electric utilities are prohibited from providing service to buildings that have not been approved by state certified inspectors. This means that Kentucky Power Company will be unable to connect electrical service until a certificate of compliance is issued to the company by an inspector. Two inspections will normally be required - a rough-in and a final. However, if a temporary service is needed, it must also be inspected.

A fee is charged for the inspections. A list of state certified inspectors is available at all Kentucky Power offices and from any of the company's customer service representatives. The Kentucky Department of Buildings and Construction in Frankfort can also arrange inspections. The telephone number is 502 -564-3626.

From Coal Miner's Daughter To Coal Mining Daughter

Kentucky Commission on Women She's young, petite, probably weighs 110 pounds soaking wet. She has the squeaky clean good looks of a college cheerleader and the soft, twangy tones of a young mountain woman. Venetia Clark doesn't look 27 years old. She doesn't look like the mother of two children. And she doesn't look like a typical eastern Kentucky coal miner.

Mrs. Clark has worked for almost a year for the South-East Coal Co. mine in Letcher county. She was the first woman hired at the mine, but quickly gained a reputation as a quick learner, as a miner who could be counted on.

South-East has found itself a good worker and, after years of working in low-paying "pink collar" jobs, Mrs. Clark has found herself a career by joining the growing ranks of women who choose to work in non-traditional jobs because of bigger paychecks and better benefits.

She admits that it was the money that first appealed to her about mining. 'As a secretary, I started out making $436 a month, Three years later, I was finally making $500 a month," she said. 'As a miner, I started out making $450 a week. Mining is the best paying job in the mountains for women-and for

Mrs. Clark quickly became a convert a mining career and now, although the money still is important, she says she loves mining for its own sake. "I'm in mining to stay," she said. "I've always been fascinated by it. Daddy would come home and tell us about what was going on there. But I never really could picture what it was like. Now I can see it first hand, and it really is a whole different world.'

Although she started out at South-East "shoveling coal until everything in my body ached," she now operates a bridge carrier, working about a mile deep and in low coal in a space about 33 inches high.

She's busy planning for the future too. She's working on a two-year mining technology degree at Southeast Community College in Cumberland, and she hopes eventually to move into a better position at the mine, perhaps in safety or as a foreman.

'I don't know of any women foremen yet," she said, adding that to qualify for that position a miner needs at least five years at the face or deepest point of the mine. "But when I have all my time in, I'll get those foreman papers first thing." Her college credits count toward a portion of those five years.

She is one of about 40 women working in mines in the Hazard State Vocational School area of Letcher, Knott, Perry and Leslie counties. According to Jerri White, director of the Appalachian Woman's Employment Information Center in Hazard, these women broke into mining as a result of the work of the Coal Employment Project, a non-profit public interest group based in east Tennessee which helps vomen get and keep coal mining jobs by offering them the 48-hour training course in safety required of all potential miners before they can apply for

Mrs. Clark took the class in the spring of 1980 and found it far more comprehensive than the regular safety course, "Ours was about 76 hours and was a whole orientation program for women. We talked with other women miners, learned about tools, did exercises to build up strength," she said.

Unlike many woman miners, she has encountered no sexual harassment on the job. In fact, the men on her shift are sometimes overly protective. "They do worry about me getting hurt," she said. "But it got to the point that, because they were afraid for me to take risks, I wasn't going to learn anything. I finally just had to show them that I could work the equipment and I could take risks.

She hasn't encountered too much resistance from her neighbors either. 'They must not think it's too bad. Three more women have been hired at South-East since I started and two women here in the holler have gotten jobs," she said.

Besides, she added, mining still isn't as hard as being a waitress. "I've learned a lot about myself in the mines," Venetia said. "I feel better than I have my whole life. I have a better appetite, sleep better and I'm mentally stronger. I used to stop myself from doing things, put limitations on myself by saying, 'I can't do that, I'm a woman.' But now I think I can do

Venetia also sees mining as a career possiblility for future generations of mountain women, and says she will encourage her 9-year-old daughter to someday be a miner "if she stays here. Anyone who lives and works in eastern Kentucky has to work with coal in some form. We're like everywhere else. We adapt to the local industry. In these mountains, that's coal."

For a fifteen year period, the owner will rent the rehabilitated unit(s) to eligible lower income tenants, who will pay approximately 25 percent of their income toward the rent. the agency will pay the remainder of the rent directly to the owner. Auxier Development Club Names New Board Members

The first annual meeting of the members of the Auxier Area Development Program was held Friday, November 6, under the direction of president, James "Dee" Caudill. The first order on the agenda was the election of two board members.

Doug Wells and Ronnie Music, both of Auxier, were the two members named to the board of directors. Also discussed at this meeting was a fundraising dinner planned for November 21 for the Wireman family to help with some of the expenses incurred during their recent illnesses.

The meeting adjourned on a note of contention as to the legality of the election. The board of directors held their annual meeting directly after the membership meeting. This was also election night for them. James "Dee" Caudill was re-elected as president, and Ellis Castle, Jr., was elected as vice-president. Nancy Goble was again elected as secretary-treasurer, and Bertha Daniels as publicity chairman.

There was no regular meeting this Monday due to a meeting at the courthouse concerning grants which the club could apply for in the coming year. Many of the officers and members of the club attended that meeting in order to continue the growth of this young, still developing club.

HANDLE AND STORE HOLIDAY FOODS CAREFULLY

Careful food handling is important year-round, but especially during the holiday season when food is served in large quantities from busy kitchens.

Food borne illnesses can cause diarrhea, vomiting, stomach cramps and other unpleasant symptoms that can last for several hours or even days. Avoid conditions that could lead to food poisoning by paying special attention to safe food handling and storage prac-

Make sure the foods you serve this holiday season are safe to eat.

When planning buffets and other meals, decide how many people you can serve safely. Table space and serving areas are important considerations. So is the amount of refrigeration space available to store food.

Letting food sit out at room temperature increases the chance of food poisoning. Keep buffet servings small and replenish them as needed directly from the refrigerator or range. Never keep perishable food at room temperature for more than two

Make sure to keep food either hot or cold and clean. Cooking food thoroughly destroys some germs, but they can spread to food again once it has cooled. The danger zone for bacterial growth on food is between 40 and 140 degrees F, thus room temperature is perfect for germ growth. Be especially careful with meat, poultry and dairy products, which if left at room temperature too long allow germs to grow to dangerous

It is not always possible to tell by taste, looks or odor if a food is safe to eat. To be safe, keep a thermometer in the refrigerator to make sure foods stay below 40 degrees F.

Wash your hands and kitchen utensils with soap and water after handling one food and before working with another. Always wash your cutting board thoroughly after using it for either raw or cooked meat and poultry.

Certain holiday foods deserve extra attention, such as cold meat cuts, turkey, stuffing, potato salad, chicken and ham salad, cream pies and egg nog. Keep your hands and utensils clean when preparing these foods and refrigerate the foods as soon as you prepare them.

The safest way to cook turkey stuffing is separately from the bird and stuff the bird just before cooking it. Even if you don't stuff the bird, refrigerate the dressing as soon as it is prepared.

Cook the stuffing to an internal temperature of 165 degrees F or higher. Use a meat thermometer to make sure the heat has penetrated the

The safest way to prevent bacterial growth is by thawing foods in the refrigerator. When frozenmeats and poultry are thawed outside the refrigerator, the meat's outer surfaces are exposed too long at temperatures that allow germs to grow.

You can thaw a large turkey outside the refrigerator, if you put the bird in a watertight package under cold running water. Or, place the bird in a closed double paper bag overnight at room temperature. This method insulates the bird against temperatures that are too warm and prevents uneven thawing Cook the turkey promptly after

Lodge Open Thru December

Most of Kentucky's state parks offering overnight lodging will be open through much of the Christmas season. Parks Commissioner Lou Karibo announced today.

The parks are remaining open to allow communities to take advantage of park facilities during the season, Karibo said. Local businesses and organizations may particularly be interested in using lodge meeting rooms for Christmas parties, he noted.

For the most part the state resort parks will be open throughout December except for Christmas Eve and Christmas Day. Last year state resort parks were closed during the second half of December, Karibo said.

Akers Descendants Gather for Reunion

Milt and Rebecca Newsome Bentley.

The Akers Family Reunion was held September 5 at the home of Carmel Akers on Branham's Creek. It was the fifth such reunion to be held commemorating the Akers heritage and many present agreed "it was the best yet."

Descendants represented the following four patriarchs who played an important role in the settlement of Big Mud, Branham's Creek and Toler Creek in Floyd county.

Tolbert Akers married Mary "Polly" Hall in Pike county in 1831 and they settled at what became known as the Tolbert Akers Branch on Branham's Creek. They raised nine children including Hiram who was begotten, allegedly by a Berry. Tolbert and Mary lived on their patented land of 437 acres granted to them by the governor of Kentucky in 1861. Tolbert and Mary were buried on the hill near the site of their home.

Hiram Akers married Nancy Frasure in 1856 and lived at the site of the present home of Orville Frasure and Josephine, granddaughter of Hiram and Nancy, above the Miles Hall Branch on Branham's Creek. Having escaped the ravages of the Civil War, Hiram and Nancy raised their eight children to adulthood. In addition to their holdings on Branham's Creek, they owned a large acreage on Big Mud in the area of the present Grethel. Hiram, who was one of a few affluent citizens of his day, died at age 80. He and his wife were buried near their home on Branham's Creek.

Jonathan Wesley Akers settled on Toler Creek where he lived in the area of the Taylor Branch. He married Sally Howell, who bore him eight children. They owned hundreds of acres of land on Toler Creek. Jonathan Wesley died in 1874 at age 60 and, it is said he willed each of his children 240 acres of land. He was buried near the Rhoten Branch of Toler Creek. Later, Sarah moved to Freeman. Missouri where some of her children lived and there she died and was buried in 1889. James Akers was from Christiansburg, Va. and married Peggy Altizer in 1819 in Montgomery county, Va. They made their way to Kentucky where they settled in the head of Little Mud Creek in this county and owned perhaps one-third of Little Mud, it is believed. They had one son, Daniel, who later inherited by will the land on Little Mud. Daniel became the progeniter of a family of 15 children. Havng moved to Greenup county, Ky., James deeded his Little Mud property, which included his hogs, sheep and cattle on condition that Daniel give him his support if he called for it, to Daniel in 1845. James died, presumably, in Greenup county.

Of those celebrating the occasion with a pot-luck dinner made possible by the ladies were Stella Catharine Akers, Virginia Mae Case, Nickie Carol Hall, Roxanne Rene Hall, Minnie Spears, Cathy Akers, Denise Akers, Randolph and Nora Akers, all of Galveston, and Carmel L. Akers, Oliver and Mildred Newman, Jody Roberts, Michael Roberts, Dora Loua and J. D. Roberts, Arietta Hall, Rutha and Freel Tackett, Donald Ray and Sharon Tackett, Donna Tackett and Gary Blankenship and Chris Tackett, of Grethel, Malissa Akers and Ruby Akers of Drift, Jake and Maxie Bates.

Akers, of Drift, Jake and Maxie Bates, of Printer, Nancy Leedy and Nancy Blackburn, of Stanville, Ballard and Verna Jane Hall, Julia Hall, Gary Hall and Mary Hall, of Banner, Billy Ray Hall, of Lorain, O., Johnny Hatfield, of Lancer, Eliza Jane Kidd, of Pikeville, and Kathy and Leticia Bentley, of

Also attending were Mill and Rebecca Bentley and Rebecca Johnson, of Pound. Va., Kevin Dean Akers, Theodore Akers, Ijellan Akers and Noah Frasure, of Catlettsburg, Ky., Laura Akers, Anna Keathley, DeVon Akers, Jennifer Akers and Carlos Akers, of Harold as well as Ruth Whitley, Trevia Turner, Mary Vance and Goldie Hager, of Ceredo, West Virginia.

Milt and Rebecca won the prize given to the oldest married couple and Milt also won the prize for the oldest man present. The prize for the youngest married couple went to Randolph and Nora Akers. Minnie Spears took the prize for the oldest woman present and the oldest person. The door prize went to Verna Jane Hall.

Displaced Homemakers Learn Skills That Will Give Them Independence

"Financial security for my family is what I'm after. I never want to be dependent on government subsidies," stated Regina Sandefur, a participant of the Owensboro Displaced Homemaker Program.

Her view is shared by all the participants in the program for former homemakers who are being trained to enter the job market.

The Department for Human Resources sponsors the locally administered program which offers personal and career counseling and special training for women who are economically disadvantaged because of divorce. The Owensboro Displaced Homemaker Program is administered by the Owensboro Board of Education and is the oldest of its kind in the state. The program is funded through CETA and vocational education.

Through the Displaced Homemaker Program, Sandefur, the mother of three, is studying to become a diesel mechanic. In the past she worked in restaurants and fast food places and decided those types of jobs were not for her.

"When I entered the Displaced Homemaker Program, I took a series of tests. The tests confirmed what I had always believed. I have pretty good mechanical abilities," Sanders said. "Now I'm enrolled in the diesel mechanic course at the vocational school, and I know that someday in the near future I will become a very good mechanic. Then I'll pay back more than enough in taxes to pay for my education."

Randalyn Johnson would have had to apply for government aid without the Displaced Homemaker Program. Johnson, the mother of two young children, now is studying to become a commercial artist.

According to Johnson, the program is the best thing that has ever happened to her. "I was lonely and confused, I felt I had nowhere to go in my life," Johnson said. "The people in the program helped me gain a lot of confidence in myself."

Donna Cobb's feelings about the program are shared by the other participants. "The program came at the time in my life when I needed it the most. When I came to the program, I was withdrawn and afraid to get out and meet people," she said. "The folks at the Displaced Homemaker Program make you feel you are worth something, they really help you smooth out the rough parts in your life. Because of the program, I'll soon be applying for a job rather than for welfare."

For Joyce Williamson, searching unsuccessfully for a job through the local employment office and the classified ads after her divorce was pretty frightening. By the time she found out about the Displaced Homemaker Program she says she was emotionally exhausted.

"I took a series of tests to help identify my strengths and preferences. I was really surprised to find out I had an aptitude for electronics. The only thing I knew about electronics is that it existed and you had to plug things into the current to make them work" she said. Williamson now is enrolled in the two-year electronics course at the local vocational school.

The Owensboro Displaced Homemaker Program has an impressive job-placement rate for its participants, more than 85 percent. "The present day job market is very competitive," said Dr. Grady Stumbo, secretary of the Department for Human Resources. "The Displaced Homemaker Program helps its participants develop the necessary skills and confidence to successfully compete for meaningful, long-term employment."

Named To ARC Post

The Appalachian Regional Commission voted last week to appoint Francis Moravitz, its deputy director, as acting executive director of the Commission, Moravitz, a 16-year veteran of the ARC, replaced Henry Krevor, whose contract as executive director was terminated.

The Commission said the management change was sought to strengthen communication among the federal cochairman, the member states, and the executive director, who supervises the ARC staff.

The Commission recognized "Krevor's considerable personal abilities and his contributions to ARC for which we all are deeply grateful."

In other action the states noted that the federal cochairman, Al Smith, of London, has submitted his resignation to President Reagan. With Cochairman Smith's concurrence, they voted to ask the President to defer action on the resignation pending nomination and Senate confirmation of his successor.

The Appalachian states approved today basic policies for a finish-up program requested by Congress. The House Appropriations Committee asked ARC last summer for recommendations assessing the 16-year ARC experience, making recommendations for an ARC finish-up program and analyzing the potential substitution of other resources for federal funds in the economic development of Appalachia. The report will be prepared during the next six weeks. Often, women come to the Displaced Homemaker Program have just experienced a death of a spouse, divorce or desertion, said Stumbo. "They suddenly are on their own after many years of depending on a husband for an income while they stayed home and cared for a family." In addition to the pressures of raising a family on their own, they often have fears about their ability to obtain a job, he added.

Many women who come to the Displaced Homemaker Program are job-ready, said Stumbo, but have been marketable skills." stressed Stumbo.

"These women are tested to determine their interests and aptitudes and receive a 60-hour orientation course and, if necessary, vocational training

"Women who are not job-ready need

"Participants are usually pleasantly surprised by the aptitude and interest test results." said Stumbo. "Often participants find they would enjoy nontraditional professions, such as welding, mechanics or electronics. Even more important is that they find out they have real ability in those areas."

Program participants who wish to learn business skills receive training from the Owensboro program's employees. Reading and math skills are stressed.

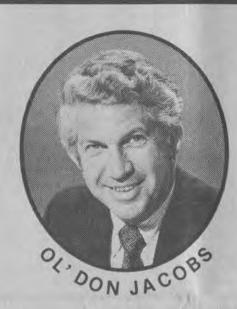

Participants wishing to receive other types of training may be placed in courses at the area vocational school which may develop many nontraditional skills. "Employers are looking for highly skilled workers these days," Stumbo said. "The program's participants are not afraid of hard work, and they are learning valuable skills. That is the reason the Displaced Homemaker Program is so successful."

ASK BEFORE HUNTING

Let's suppose you came home from a shopping trip one Saturday afternoon and found a group of strangers having a pienic in your back yard. How would you react? Wouldn't your first impluse be either to kick them out or to call the police and have them arrested for trespassing?

Why, then, should we expect a farmer to react any differently when he sees a group of strangers with guns tramping through his felds? His farm is as much his as your yard is yours, and chances are he has put much more time, money and effort into his land than you will ever put in yours, for his farm is his living, often his sole source of income.

We should all be thankful for the generosity of the farmers who let others hunt on their lands. If some stranger drove up to your house and asked if he could swim in your pool, would you be as generous? The good will of landowners is something that all hunters need to cultivate, because it is a rare and precious thing.

Yet there are still those who refuse to extend to the landowner the most basic and common courtesy-asking permission to hunt on his land. Asking to hunt (or fish, or camp, or hike) is the single most important step in building good relations with landowners, one which should not be neglected by anyone under any circumstances.

Why is asking permission so important? First, it shows that you acknowledge the farmer's rights as a property owner. Down on a basic, psychological level we all have a sense of territory, of what is ours and of what we control, whether it's a back yard or a back 40 acres. Let someone else infringe upon this territory, and all kinds of impulsive aggressions start to surface-again, think of the example of strangers pienicking in your yard. Asking permission confirms these territorial rights, failure to do so violates

Second, there has been an increasing amount of rural crime in the past several years. Tractor batteries have been stolen or gas tanks drained, barns broken into or vandalized. This is not the fault of the hunter, but it does make the landowner keep a closer watch on his land. Approach a farmer openly, introduce yourself, even show some identification and he will know that you mean him no harm. But enter without you're up to. Third, asking permission gives you a chance to inquire about the location of outbuildings, livestock planted fields Monday-Thursday beginning January or other areas where the farmer may 5 from 6:00-9:00 p.m. in room 220 of the not want you to hunt. And inquiring about such things also shows the landowner that you respect his property and his rights. Finally, asking permission makes you less of a stranger and more of a friend and neighbor. Offering to share some of your bag with the landowner will still further cement this friendship. I once asked permission to hike on land that was heavily posted with 'no trespassing" signs "Sure." the owner replied. "Those signs aren't for neighbors, they're for rascals.

That says it all. Ask, and be a neighbor. Don't ask-you're a rascal.
