17 Indictments Voted by Jury In Short Meet

Speaking of

and for

Floyd County

The grand jury returned here Monday for a special one-day session, mainly for the purpose of indicting Elisha Branham, Jr., on a murder charge in connection with the death of James Michael Cline, 18-year-old Emma youth.

It made that indictment and during its session of little more than half a day voted 17 other true bills and heard testimony on another slaying.

The capital offense alleged against Branham could, upon conviction, carry the death penalty. The body of young Cline was found in Perry county, more than a month after his disappearance from the Allen service station where he was employed. Although the slaying took place in Perry, according to Branham's own statement, the Floyd circuit court claimed jurisdiction on the grounds that the slaying was a part of a string of crimes starting with robbery and kidnapping of the victim.

The grand jury declined to indict Anna Slone, of Bypro, in the fatal shooting Sept. 14 at Wheelwright of Larry Slone, (See Story No. 1, Page 4)

County Teachers Hear Good News And Bad at In-Service Meet

We have the deficit problem behind us," Supt. of Schools Pete Grigsby, Jr. told Floyd county teachers at inservice day held at the elementary school here Friday, but the teachers heard less pleasant news from Asst. Supt. Ray Brackett when he spoke of cutbacks and expected losses to education from both state and federal governments.

This is our second year in the black, after several years in the red, with a surplus of $376,404.36 this year," Mr. Grigsby said "I would like to congratulate everyone on a job well done. Two important programs I would like to mention are Special Education and Public Relations with students, parents, and the community. The Special Education Program in the schools consist of secondary and elementary LBD (Learning Behavioral Disorders), EMH (Educable Mentally Handicapped), TMH (Trainable Mentally Handicapped) teachers, one multi-handicapped teacher, three speech therapists, one hearing impaired specialist and five Homebound teachers. The Special Education consultant-coordinator and school psychologist in charge of the Special Education Program are located in the central office here, Supt. Grigsby said that in the past five years the school board has improved its Special Education Program:

Another area touched upon by Superintendent Grigsby was the imement of communication. A mon thly school newsletter will be published, and a quarterly publication for the public is planned. The intent is to bind the school district closer together, he explained. In response to a survey, teachers listed areas of interest, priorities centered on special education and teachers' rights and responsibilities. The program included three guest speakers, Cynthia Champer, who works for EKEDC and is the coordinator of three diagnostic centers, discussed how educators can identify children who may need special services Dr. George Trout, a professor at Morehead State University in the Department of Special Education, discussed techniques and methods of successfully mainstreaming special education students into regular education classrooms. Deputy Assistant Attorney General Robert Chenoweth, specializing in educational law, was the speaker at the afternoon session. He addressed the problems of teacher rights and clarified questions teachers had concerning their legal responsibilities. The in-service program was under the direction of Ronald L. Hager, assistant superintendent of instruction.

This one we printed 40 years ago, so it may be new to a younger generation. It has to do with the Three Bears and their trek across desert-country.

Papa Bear tripped and fell, landing, seat down, squarely in a clump of case tus. "Ouch" he cried, adding various observations of a sulphurous nature. Mama Bear fell, landing in the same accursed spot and added her cries of pain to the general uproar. Then Baby Bear took his turn at the cactus, ignominiously seating himself on spines not his own. But not a

No reference was made in the denial letter to the allegations raised by Diane Cooksey, the fired community director, or to the management of the program by Larry Stanifer, its former director. J. C. Meredith, a project officer with the Public Health Service in Atlanta, said this week that a decision on whether to launch a formal investigation of Stanifer's management m is still un der investiga

High Court Overturns TV Control

Mandate of Court Could Deregulate Floyd TV Cables

Floyd county's pioneering effort to regulate cable television operators ran into a roadblock last week when the state Court of Appeals reversed a ruling by Circuit Judge Hollie Conley which had upheld the validity of the county's cable-TV ordinance.

Mike Little, owner of the Burton Antenna Company, and Paul Butcher, owner of Big Sandy TV Cable, had challenged the ordinance on grounds that it was improperly advertised. The appeals court upheld their argument, ruling that certain amendments to the ordinance adopted by the fiscal court after its first reading were not reflected in the published summary of the ordinance.

The court further ruled that the ordinance was not properly certified by the county court clerk.

County Attorney Arnold Turner, Jr., principal author of the ordinance, which established a franchise system for cable operators here and provided for a commission to hear consumer complaints and regulate rates, stressed this week that the ordinance had been overturned on a technicality only. The appeals court ruling does not challenge the concept underlying the ordinance, he said.

Turner said he hoped to meet with the fiscal court soon to discuss what action should be taken in view of the appeals court decision. Among the options open to the county, he said, were an appeal to the state Supreme Court, readvertisement and reenactment of the ordinance, or the drafting of a new ordinance.

In the meantime, cable television will be unregulated in this county, once the appeals court mandate is handed down-a situation which could leave both consumers and operators vulnerable, in Turner's opinion. Consumers may be subject to unregulated rate increases and operators, guaranteed exclusive franchise areas under the ordinance, may be challenged by competitors, he explained. Ironically, a potential competitor Highlands Assistant Administrator has already expressed an interest in Russell Dean, the breathing program's penetrating the Weeksbury area, for current director, noted this week that which Little's Burton Antenna Comthe application for a second year's funpany presently holds the franchise, Turner said.

Injured Youth's Award Reduced To $2.3 Million

The $7 million judgment awarded Stuart Wright, of Water Gap, now a sophomore student at the University of Kentucky, for injuries sustained while playing football as a member of the Prestonsburg High School team has been reduced to $2.3 million by a federal judge.

The order, handed down in U.S. district court at Covington, Sept. 14, by Judge William G. Bertelsman, held that the $7 million awarded in the case was excessive. But Bertelsman denied a motion of attorneys for the defendant, Riddell, Inc., Des Plaines, Ill. manufacturer of the helmet Wright was wearing at the time of his paralyzing injury, asking for a reversal of both the jury verdict and the award of damages

The plaintiff and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Wright, were given two options: to accept reduced damages or to ask within 30 days a new trial of the case of damages.

A decision had not been reached, it was said Monday. Even if the reduced judgment is accepted, it could later be subject to appeal.

Wright, who suffered a broken neck in a 1976 football game here against Morgan County High when he made a tackle, blamed the injury on his helmet. The trial jury held that the PAC-3 helmet designed by Riddell had inadequate padding on the back rim.

Judge Bertelman said the trial revealed, however, that not all the injury was attributable to the design of the helmet and that Riddell should not be held responsible for all disability damages claimed. He said that the maximum compensation a jury could allow is $2,347,339, arriving at this figure by saying the full $7 million verdict represents the full damage caused by Wright's injuries and that the helmet caused one-third of this total.

Brown To Bring Gov't-to-People In Floyd County

Governor John Young Brown's Government-to-the-People program will come to Eastern Kentucky next week, and he and other state officials will meet at the courthouse here at 5 p.m. Monday with citizens, civic leaders and city and county officials.

Governor Brown will be accompanied by Dr. Grady Stumbo, commissioner of the Department for Human Resources; William B. Sturgill, state Energy secretary, and Frank Metts, secretary of the Department of Transportation.

His courthouse appearance will be in the nature of a forum, and questions posed by citizens and leaders will be answered.

Following this meeting, he will be at May Lodge, Jenny Wiley State Park, at 7 p.m. for a dinner meeting with the Prestonsburg Area Chamber of Commerce, the Jaycees and business groups

Troublesome Curb Re-Fashioned

A state highways crew was at work this week setting back the curb at the junction of North Lake Drive and the Mountain Parkway. Prestonsburg City Council has pressed the highways department to widen the curb-long an obstacle to tractor-trailer drivers making the turn there-for more than a year.

Ironically, no sooner had the council secured from highways officials a commitment to have the project completed in time for Red. White and Blue Day festivities, than that event was transferred to Martin.

Pike Begins Road Work Reform: Plans of This County Not Clear

When it comes to management of county road funds, it remains to be seen whether Floyd will follow Pike county down the road to reform.

Floyd Judge-Executive Bill Wells, still recovering from a recent heart ailment, was unavailable for comment this week on reports, published earlier this month in the Appalachian News-Express, that Pike Judge-Executive Wayne T. Rutherford is about to tighten up management of road maintenance operations in that county.

And if Jerry Lafferty, Jr., unopposed Democratic nominee for Floyd judgeexecutive, has any intention of bringing the road operations here into line with state law, he is not revealing them yet. "Ask me that on January 1 next year," he responded to a reporter's query on the subject this week.

At issue is the procedure by which decisions are made as to which county roads are repaired and in what order the work is done. According to state law, such decisions are to be made by the fiscal court in open session. In fact, in many counties-and Floyd appears to be no exception-the decision falls to the judge-executive and individual magistrates, each operating as road

Little Murder Trial Continues In Pike County

Trial of a Knott county man charged in the shooting deaths of a father and son in a Hindman courtroom two years ago continued in Pike circuit court yesterday (Tuesday) as evidence from defense witnesses was heard.

Raymond Little, 47, of Dry Creek, is charged with the slayings of Estil Thornsberry, 53, and his son, Major, 31, both of Kite, on September 24, 1979. in the Knott district courtroom.

James L. Dickinson, special prosecutor in the case, charged in his opening statement that Little walked into the courtroom where the Thornsberrys were sitting and shot them in the back. However, in testimony yesterday, Little said that, shortly after he entered the courtroom, the two Thornsberry men "jumped up with guns in their hands," forcing him to shoot in his own defense.

According to trial testimony, the shootings followed a 20-year feud between the Littles and Thornsberrys that began when a man in the Little family "impregnated a Thornsberry girl." At the time of the shootings. Little and the Thornsberrys were in court to argue a $391 small claims suit filed by Little.

The small claims suit resulted from an incident, two months prior to the fatal shootings, in which the Thornsberrys were said to have threatened Little's two sons, Major Thornsberry to have shot into Little's new pickup, and Estil Thornsberry to have shot Little in the back with a pistol.

Countering the prosecution's portrayal of Little as brooding since that altercation and bent on revenge, defense attorney Gary Johnson argued in court that Little sought and followed the advice of public and lawenforcement officials who advised him to sue in small claims court for damages to the pickup.

Defense arguments also focused on discrepancies in accounts of the number of shots fired in the courtroom and the direction from which they were

I UNDERSTAND SOME PEOPLE PRE-PLAN THEIR OWN FUNERALS. WHY DO THEY?

Three important reasons come to mind at once. Pre-planning permits free choice, makes one's wishes known, and does away with any possible disagreement among the bereaved as to what to do and how much to spend.

In effect, one eases the burden placed on the immediate family-in terms of both the proper course of aciton to follow and the peace of mind in knowing that arrangements have been made in advance.

Because we feel that this question may be of value to many residents in the community we serve, we're glad you asked.

Apartment Living

Getting Designs On A Decorator

Would you like some professional help in decorating your apartment? Consider hiring an interior decorator. Determine how much you can afford to spend, and then interview several decorators. Be prepared both to ask and answer questions. The decorator will use the interview to assess your individual needs as you are assessing his designing experience.

You will receive a "letter of agreement" which will outline your mutual responsibilities once you have chosen the decorator. The contract will list the areas to be designed, and design fee, and the out-of-pocket expenses for which you will be responsible. It will also tell you your payment schedule.

Once the letter is signed and returned, the designer will measure the space in your apartment. Then it can take one to two months for the designer to present his final plan. At that time, the designer will show you floor plans, drawings and samples of fabric and floor or wall coverings, so that you will have a clear picture of the results. If his plans meet with your approval, you will be asked to pay a 50% deposit on the estimate.

All merchandise you receive will be invoiced. If you are dissatisfied with any of it, do not sign the invoice. Otherwise, the designer will install it, and you'll have to live with it.

Catching The Co-op Fever

What is a co-op? Besides being one of the fastest growing housing categories in this country, it's becoming the housing and investment choice of people of all ages and economic backgrounds, not just the rich.

First of all, the cost of owning a co-op is about 20% cheaper than renting an apartment. Why? One important reason is that when you buy a co-op, you become a shareholder in the building. As a member of a non-profit co-op, you are your own landlord, and whatever profits the building realizes are passed on to you in the form of lower monthly maintenance charges.

When you buy a co-op, you are buying stock in the corporation which owns and manages the building. In addition to purchasing your share in the building, you pay a monthly fee for maintenance of the building. Part of this maintenance fee also pays building mortgage and property tax expenses, and as such is deductible on your federal income tax.

Since you and your neighbors determine how the building is run and managed, you can make sure that the building is well maintained. In general, co-op residents take better care of their building than renting tenants.

Feeling Secure About Security

If you are a single woman choosing an apartment for the first time, you would be wise to consider the security of your new residence. Ask other tenants about the building to find out how safe it is.

• Does the doorman question all visitors before allowing them to enter? If there is no doorman, is there a strong, heavy-duty lock on the front door?

• Is there a buzzer and intercom system? Is it in good working condition?

• Do the doors have wide-angle peepholes so that you can clearly see who is outside your door?

• Are the entry doors in the apartment heavyweight and metal?

• Is there a deadlock on the door? Can you add additional

Fairchild, Auxt Vows Said In Maryland, August 29

Jacqueline Fairchild, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. John P. Fairchild, of Minnie, Ky., was wed to Mr. Jay Auxt, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Auxt, of Williamsport, Md., on August 29 at the Rockville (Md.) Assembly of God. Rev. Lowell E. Qualls performed the single-ring ceremony which was followed by a reception at Lakewood Country Club.

Mrs. Auxt kept with tradition by wearing something old, her grandmother's wedding band; something new, a beautiful hand-made veil of imported silk; something borrowed, the priscella dress, and something blue, a ribbon tied at the waist.

Among the bridal party were the Rev. Dave Casey, Mr. Auxt's best man, Jean Detarnowsky, matron of honor, and Jana Crowl, maid of honor. Nicole and Michelle Detarnowsky were the flowergirls.

Mr. Auxt, a graduate of Virginia Tech, is an engineer with Hogentogler Co., of Gaithersburg, Md. Mrs. Auxt, an University of Maryland graduate, works with Edward E. Ayre Jewelers, of Washington. After their Caribbean honeymoon cruise, the couple plans to reside in Silver Springs, Md.

Wanted: A Return to the Simple Life

By Henry Hornsby

(In The Lexington Herald-Leader)

What a relief and blessing it would be to parent and childen alike, if the past could be lifted from the present and the old-fashioned one-room schools brought back again to teach the lessons of morality for which they were noted

A flick of the mind, and the massive monuments to knowledge become silent. Their frightening corridors are emptied of turbulence and crime, and the arrogant wave of delinquency loses its sting.

The mob of youngsters has broken up to assemble in small neighborhood groups, each sharing in the common cause of learning. Bedlam has been transformed into a murmur. Discipline has ceased to be a problem; everybody knows everybody else, and this in itself is a policing force. The one-room schools are back in business, teaching basic truths and instilling respect for the virtues so essential to individual moral development.

The thought is but a wish, the vision but a dream, and reality gives a denial to both. Time and circumstance build new paths over the old, and there is no way of separating the one from the other to walk the road back to the halcyon days revered in memory. The past has been used to weave the present, just as the sum total of all our experiences makes us what we are.

Yet, there is strength to be drawn from the past. Memory is not a stand-in for reality: It is reality, and we live the fuller life today by making yesterday a part of it. If we are disenchanted by the tumult in modern education, we can insulate ourselves through reverie, finding in it a sanctuary of tranquili-

As long as there is remembering, there is hope for a return to the simple life with its firm emphasis on morality and spiritual and social values which give us strength and serenity.

We are not so naive as to expect a sudden miracle, though we are encouraged by signs of a reviving interest in fundamentals once considered so basic in teaching children. We refer to the McGuffey Readers which are back in business after being in limbo for a half-century or so.

McGuffey has been dead for more than a hundred years, but from 1836 until the early 1920's his books were used as the definitive texts in elementary schools throughout America.

Children fortunate enough to study the McGuffey books not only became well grounded in the three R's; they learned to practice the virtues of a moralistic society which demanded honesty and individual effort and consideration for others. As a result of this learning crime and delinquency and other disruptions so common today were unfamiliar in the nations public school systems.

McGuffey, born in 1800, was himself a college professor at Cincinnati College and later at Ohio University at Athens. He was a stern disciplinarian at the college level, practicing what he preached throughout the moral context of his books.

At Athens, he expelled so many students that in the class of 1841 only one senior remained to receive a diploma.

Today's revival of the McGuffey tradition is understandably limited in scope. However, the Readers are in use as textbooks in private and parochial schools in certain states, notably Ohio, Pennsylvania and California.

As in their earlier days, the books are a wonderful source for teaching reading and spelling, to say nothing of their value for establishing moral habits. The emphasis is on phonetics as opposed to the modern "word recognition," and teachers brag of how first-graders can spell words which surely would stump even many of the college graduates who are being assembly-line produced today.

All this business of rebirth is good. Our link to the past still holds, and should modern public school educators finally admit their failures, the old one-room school awaits and the McGuffey Readers are ready. From such a hope come our dreams, giving life to memory

(Continued from Page One) 31, of Topmost, Knott county, after hearing testimony. Slone was shot in his stomach by a bullet from a .30-.30-calibre rifle and died in a Lexington hospital.

The jury heard evidence to the effect that Larry Slone had had trouble with Mrs. Slone (no relation) since 1979, that he had made several telephone calls, not only threatening her but also threatening to shoot or rape her 16-year-old sister. The jury also was told that he had driven past the home of Mrs. Slone's father, Ronnie Hitchcock, where the woman was at the time of the shooting, had blown his car horn on passing but members of the family stayed inside the house. He was walking up the steps of the home when Mrs. Slone fired from inside the house, the jury was told.

The jury also heard Sheriff Henry C. Hale's request that it clamp down on 'pool halls," which, he said, are "causing more trouble than anything." Sheriff Hale later told The Times that such places, which amount to no more than a pool table and a juke box, are being operated in rural areas, not in more thickly populated places where they are normally expected to be.

Arson Investigator Barry McKenzie was unable to appear at the regular grand jury session, but made his appearance at Monday's special hearing period and six second degree arson indictments were the result. Those named: Phillip R. Spradlin, for setting fire to a dwelling; Edmond Collins, same charge; Terry Lynn Hurt, by throwing ignited gasoline in a bottle at the barn of Ali Collins; Carlos Crager, by setting fire to a mobile home owned by Mollie Shepherd Crager; Billy Claude Martin, by setting fire to a dwelling owned by Harold James Stumbo; Billie Joe Harington, by setting fire to a house owned by Silas Woodrow Elkins. Harrington was named in five other indictments: obscuring the identity of a machine by removing its serial number and obscuring identification numbers from a television set (separate counts), second degree burglary by entering a house owned by Silas Woodrow Elkins, knowingly receiving property stolen from the home of Silas Woodrow Elkins and escape by fleeing the custody of Arson Investigator McKenzie after having been arrested on felony charges. Carlos Hall, Jr. was named in three indictments: receiving stolen property, a motorcycle owned by Jimmy Adkins; obscuring the identification numbers of a motorcycle, and a Class A misdemeanor by refusing to stop a motorcycle which he was operating. The grand jury notes added that the pursuit of Hall endangered citizens and property a distance of "approximately 12 miles of roadway." Three indictments named Raymond Carroll. The charges: Class B felony for stabbing Billy R. Frasure "numerous times about the body;" second degree assault by striking Chris Yates "at least three times with a lug wrench;" second degree assault, by striking Carter Lee Yates on his head with a lug wrench.

While the fiscal court regularly votes on the inclusion of new roads in the county road maintenance program, decisions on specific road jobs are usually made in informal conferences between the judge-executive or individual magistrates and the county road foreman, County Road Foreman Sam Henry Fitzpatrick conceded this week

By law, a magistrate, as a county legislator, has authority only when the fiscal court is in session. Barring emergencies, road work projects and all road fund disbursements are to be approved by the fiscal court. But responsibility for executing the court orders falls to the judge-executive.

In an emergency, the judgeexecutive may himself authorize a road project but, even in that case, the work and any payments for it are to be approved subsequently by the fiscal court.

Technically, the county road foreman is immediate "boss" of the 25-man county road crew, with authority to issue work orders according to the directives of the fiscal court. In practice, it is generally recognized that the foreman answers to the magistrate in each district on road decisions.

One observer here opined that the present foreman could hardly have survived for 13 years in that post without acknowledging the magistrate's "authority" in each district. According to others, the magistrates' management of the road crews in their districts is the principal justification for their $19,139 annual salaries.

As the county's previous judgeexecutive, Yvonne S. Jones generally shunned day-to-day involvement in road maintenance. When Bill Wells succeeded to that position in November, 1979, one of his first tasks was to reclaim the judge-executive's share of the road-building pie. The gravel and blacktop which had been divided four ways since the death of Judge Henry Stumbo would again be from the program this year lacked supporting evidence, Dean conceded. Apparently no medical director has been named for the program, and its advisory committee has been inactive. By the end of July, the projected breathing clinics were still struggling to get off the ground and some have yet to materialize.

In his June 1 grant application, however, Stanifer claimed the program had been "fully implemented" in its first year of operation, adding that "the response by providers and patients has been excellent." Some 260 patients were projected for the program's first year, which ends October 31, and Stanifer proposed that 836 be treated in the second year.

Both Stanifer and Dean have argued that deficiencies in the program's first year have been at least partly the result of the 105-day strike by hospital workers earlier this year. Dean estimated, nevertheless, that nearly 200 black lung patients will have completed the four-day breathing instructions by the end of October.

REBEKAHS MEET

The regular meeting of Miriam Rebekah Lodge No. 31 was held Tuesday evening, September 15, in the 1.0.0.F. building, with the noble grand, Mrs. Maman Leslie, presiding. The noble grand reported on the rummage sale which was recently held, stating that a sizable amount was realized and had been added to the treasury. Members present were Mesdames Maman Leslie, Virginia Goble, Paulena Owens, Violetta Wright, Myrtle Allen, Opal Dingus, Theckley Short, Norma Stepp, Dorothy Osborne, Jean Hickman and Mabel Jean LeMaster. The next regular meeting will be held Tuesday evening, October 6, at 7:30.

RUNOFF PRIMARY

The so-called Succession Amendment, it would appear, isn't setting the woods afire in these parts. Accession upstages Succession with most people hereabouts, since it pertains more to how officeholders got there in the first place

There's the matter of merit to consider as a factor in the election of any individual, but that is never a disturbing factor. What agitates many-not enough, but several-are those exercises in skullduggery, vote-buying (and selling), manipulation of the absentee ballot law, etcetera.

One step along the road to accession to office is, of course, the primary election for the naming of party nominees, and that draws fire from those who say primaries do not serve the ideal of majority rule but leave the way open for selection of candidates for various office by a mere minority. For example: A candidate with some sound basic strength can, if threatened by a strong opponent, so weaken the opposition by getting others to seek nomination, thus spliting the opposition, that primary can be won with only a fraction of the total vote in his or her column. Thus, it is argued, the will of the majority is defeated.

That being true, the cure might be a runoff primary, pitting the winner and the runnerup and thus nominating by clear majority.

Sure, that would be costly. Most things worth having are.

SPARE THE CORN!

One or two optimistic souls have suggested they may compile selections from this column for a little book, one of these days. I haven't much to say about such a venture except to request that the critics, if such a thing should get into print, not pan it till all they've got is burnt corn.

Safety Day Held at Allen

The 42nd annual Safety Day was held Friday and Saturday at the Stumbo Memorial Park, Allen, with rescue teams representing coal companies from Eastern Kentucky and several other coal field states

In a number of events which simulated mine emergencies, leams competed during the two-day event with National Mines Corporation's Pocahontas Division's team taking best overall. Members of the West Virginia team (pictured above) include Patrick Graham (captain), Don Cook, Harold Trent, Doug Korczyk, Lou Mille, Larry Addair, David Altizer, Steve Acord, Joe Ross, and Bill Dalton (traner).

Second in overall points was Jewell Smokeless, of Vansanl, Va., Gary Prater, captain. A Kentucky team, that of Island Creek Coal Corporation, Paintsville, claimed third place in the competition.

Safety Day is held each year by the Big Sandy-Elkhorn Coal Mining Institute's mine safety division

Others listed in indictments and charges against each follow:

Palmer Hall, first degree assault by cutting James E. Hall; David Young, accused of having in his possession a television stolen from Johnny Conley.

Medical Records Workers Honored

By order of Governor John Y. Brown, the week of October 18-24 has been proclaimed Kentucky Medical Transcription Week. The Governor, in making his announcement, acknowledged that medical transcriptionists are highly skilled and knowledgeable professionals. They are indispensable assistants to physicians and surgeons in producing medical reports.

The nine women who make up the medical records department at Highlands Regional Medical Center do an outstanding job, in the opinion of Clarence Traum, administrator. "We appreciate the service provided by our medical transcriptionists and are pleased to join the entire state in honoring this profession," stated Traum.

With the withholding of severance tax receipts, last year was a lean year for road building in the counties. This year promises to be better. About $890,547-or 38 percent of the $2.3 million county budget- has been budgeted for road maintenance, including most of the severance taxes (totalling $606,510), all the gasoline tax receipts (estimated at $333,120), and revenue-sharing funds amounting to $111,350.

Not Needed—Competition

The announcement in last week's Times of the moving of the Red, White and Blue parade from Prestonsburg to Martin struck me at first with some sadness. After all, the two communities are now for the first time linked by a modern superhighway and it ought to be a time for increased cooperation—not competition.

But, on the other hand, perhaps giving Martin its "day in the sun" can have a salutary effect on Prestonsburg as well. Could it not be the means for bringing together a coalition of concerned people who will promote an outstanding festival or event that is not centered around one person or idea but a rallying point for all segments of our community? Why shouldn't Prestonsburg have something as great, or greater, than our neighboring county seat towns? West Liberty has the Sorghum Festival, Johnson County its Apple Day, Hazard has just completed the Black Gold Festival with obvious success, and Jackson has developed in just three years its own Honey Festival.

What's the matter with Prestonsburg? It has several things these towns do not: the intersection of three major highway corridors, an unequalled State Resort Park with amphitheatre and lake and the resources of Archer Park, to name just a few. It has just as great a population base and concerned and involved citizen leaders. But it seems to me that our efforts in the past have been divided among disparate concerns, rather than united around a common theme.

This month has seen both the Floyd County Fair and the Eastern Kentucky Folk Festival in our town, both worthwhile endeavors in themselves. But neither, I am sorry to say, attracted wide community support nor was inclusive enough to generate the kind of broad interest needed to sustain a Festival of the kind I suggest.

What could it center around? The Jenny Wiley theme? Perhaps. Or, a variation related to the coal industry and its contribution. Or, an emphasis on mountain arts, crafts and agriculture, just as we have seen in the Fair and Festival we already have. The talent, inspiration and creative ability are here—we simply need to tap the source, and do so together, not separately.

Perhaps there could be a contest to suggest a new theme, a new idea or variation on an old one, that could put Prestonsburg back on the map, not just as a hub of three major highways, but as the home of a festival-celebration worthy of our town and area. Then, let us forget the past, and get on with the task of making it in fact the biggest and the best—because it belongs to all of us, and instills the kind of community pride that is legitimately ours. ### Rest In Peace

The Red, White and Blue Day celebration was formed 12 years ago by a group of patriotic citizens of this county headed by Marcella Bailey. Since that time a great idea has slowly died. I don't think it's from lack of support by Prestonsburg, but from the general apathy of the organizers and the whole county.

The spirit is still living, but the same old celebration, year after year, is dying. There is nothing wrong with the location of the festival; it's the festival itself that is lacking. Let's face facts and be honest: Nothing changes, and nobody is willing to change it. Year after year is still another mirrored image of the year before. Has anyone in Prestonsburg been asked to help? Has there been a plea for help in this newspaper? Maybe our officials have been unfeeling, but why blame an entire town? Our officials have been entrusted with a major task: that of keeping a small city prosperous and growing. It would be irresponsible for them to spend their precious time worrying with parades and hot dogs. There are women's and men's clubs, churches and other civic organizations better equipped to deal with such matters.

I have nothing against the town of Martin. Why can't all communities in this county organize and work together to have the best celebration we can have, in the best location we can find? Lets face facts! Moving the festival to Martin is like beating a sick horse; it makes it die sooner. Think about it. KAYE WILLIS

Urges Support

During this year of budget cuts, Floyd county schools need the support of both parents and the business community. Because of Reagan's and Brown's cut of ADA (average daily attendance) allotment for children last year, schools are operating on a shoestring budget.

Due to this financial decrease, Clark PTA contributed $2,000 to Clark Elementary to cover cost of textbooks, equipment repairs, and school supplies. More money is needed to maintain the quality of educational benefits enjoyed during the past years.

Various fundraising projects will be in progress in the county during the school year. Please support them.

The future begins with the education of our children.

A Reader Comments

Just wanted to comment on Story No. 4 in your Sept. 2 issues. Sure want to see that auto they're going to unveil Nov. 7. I'm glad a Floyd countian broke that barrier that's been keeping us out of perpetual motion. I know the world has been wanting something for nothing. Looks like Mr. Johnson is going to give it to us. He almost beats our president. I figure all Floyd county will turn out to see this, don't you?

Say! You have some interesting things in your paper. I've been hoping that perhaps you would start some sort of article or colummn on sex education for elderly people—I'm 67 and feel older people may be kept in the dark in some of the finer points of this so important field. I have (I feel) interesting views on this subject. Would you be interested? Perhaps a night class could be sponsored.

Thank you. You know I went to school to you here on Salyer's Branch of Salt Lick.

Protests Police Act

Some of the residents of this community have just witnessed what was, quite possibly, the most appalling, insensitive, cruel, inhumane, and careless display of the city of Prestonsburg's decision-making ability, to date. Today (Friday) in the Richmond Plaza Parking lot, in broad daylight, before dozens of unsuspecting and unprepared witnesses, a truck bearing three city policemen halted and an officer opened fire on a carefully singled out (and vigorously pursued) female dog described as being "in heat". Initially she was shot and left to die, bleeding and whining, at whatever pace nature dictated. After an interval of about ten minutes (during which time the City Chief of Police and a representative of the City Council were contacted) the officer returned to the scene and completed the assigned task. Aside from the obvious horrors described above, consider the following: 1) Several of these dogs obviously belonged to someone (ie., one was a handsome Doberman Pinscher with a collar), 2) when some witnesses voluntarily attempted to assist the dying animal they were instructed by the officer to "get away from that dog", 3) with an equal expenditure of effort and/or expense this animal could have been: a) transported to a veterinary clinic less than 3 blocks away for humane destruction, b) transported out of the city limits and set free, or c) enclosed in any fenced-in area and cared for until the end of this phase of her natural mating cycle.

Since it took me less than one minute to think of three alternatives to the solution the city reached to deal with this situation, it seems reasonable to assume that, simply stated, there has to be a better way. If county government cannot or will not accept this statutory responsibility, the rest of us can only be expected to do our best according to our own consciences and hearts. But, if tracking domesticated animals at gunpoint and shooting them down in cold blood on a crowded city street is the best we can do-God help us! BONNIE CRISP Prestonsburg

Corps Wins Donor Recognition

Carolyn Febish, of the Central Kentucky Blood Center's donor service department, displays award of appreciation to Prestonsburg Jobs Corpsmen who, collectively, donated 117 pints of blood at the station here since February. She told the group that the Prestonsburg donor station "owes its existence to your participation in the blood donor program."

The Prestonsburg Job Corps last Thursday received an award of appreciation from the Central Kentucky Blood Center for its "tremendous support to the Prestonsburg Donor Station." Carolyn Febish of the CKBC Donor Service Department, presented the award to Charles Alexander, director of the Job Corps Center, at a special ceremony

The students who have donated 117 units of blood since February attended the concert "Foreigner," at Rupp Arena last Saturday as a special treat. They will be attending future concerts of their choice after meeting a quota of 35 pints for each concert.

Those donating 3 units of blood each are: Willie Adkins, Danny E. Murphy, Philip Patton, Jeffrey L. Taylor, Gregory L. Viars. Two pints were donated by: Gary Ard, James D.

Bailey, Danny Bond, Michael C. Fryman, Randall D. Hart, Randy J Hicks, Lonnie Lawson, Alan L. Littrell, Calloway C. Montgomery, Mark D. Napier, Mike E. Stephens, Ulysses Taylor and Mike W. Thomas. ### Cats Win as Stout Defense Holds Favored Johnson Central

The Prestonsburg Blackcats shut out the favored Johnson Central Eagles, 14-0, here Friday night behind an agressive, hard-hitting defense.

Led by linebackers John Gillian and Ray Marcum and the inside play of John Burchett, Jim Webb, Joe Frazier, B. J. Sturgill, Jeff Wells, Robbie Tackett and Bill Slone, the Cats held the visitors to only 16 yards rushing for the night. The front line was wellsupported by the secondary play of John DeRossett, Steve Rice, John Anderson and Dennis Flanagan. Flanagan had two interceptions, Anderson had one, and Rice recovered a fumble. Overall, the Blackcats held Johnson Central to a scant 96 yards in posting the team's second straight shutout

Prestonsburg threatened early in the first half, but key mistakes and the Central defense kept the Cats at bay. The Cats kept knocking at the door, however, and after a crucial thirddown pass from quarterback Todd Nairn to Wells put the ball on the Eagles' 5, Rice took a pitchout and went in, untouched, for the first score with less than two minutes remaining in the half. Sturgill kicked the extra point to make it 7-0.

The Eagles made their only firstdown of the first half on the next series of plays but were forced to kick as time ran out. Johnson Central received the second half kickoff and after three plays was forced to punt. Kelly Flanagan broke through to block the punt and the Cats recovered on the 9. On the next play Robert Midgette took the option pitch from Nairn for the team's second touchdown. Sturgill's kick for extra point again was good.

The game upped the Blackcat season record to 2-2, while Johnson Central dropped to 2-3. The Cats will meet Betsy Layne Friday at the Mullins High School field.

Alice Lloyd College Offered KIAC Niche

Dr. Donald Staffo, Alice Lloyd College athletic director, has announced that the college has been offered admission to the Kentucky Intercollegiate Athletic Conference, beginning with the 1982-83 school year. The decision by the KIAC to accept Alice Lloyd as the ninth member of the conference was made at the KIAC fall meeting last Tuesday. Athletics.

"We are very pleased with the favorable consideration given us by the KIAC. This will definitely be a boost to our athletic program, especially since it will regionalize competition and aid in recruiting. The KIAC will certainly provide us with a challenge but we feel that we can be competitive," Staffo said

Schools in the KIAC are Pikeville, Berea, Cumberland, Campbellsville, Union, Georgetown, Thomas Moore. and Clinch Valley. ALC will play a predominately KIAC basketball and baseball schedule this year.

Alice Lloyd's games this year will count on their opponent's NAIA records but not on their KIAC records. Alice Lloyd will also continue to be eligible for National Little College Athletic Association post-season play.

Women athletes at Alice Lloyd will continue to participate in the Kentucky Women's Intercollegiate Conference within the guidelines established by the Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women. Six of the eight KIAC schools participate in the KWIC, along with outside opponents.

Two Floyd Players On Center Colonels

Two Floyd countians are members of the 1981 football squad at Centre College of Kentucky, Danville.

The players, both freshmen, are Jack Wells, son of Mrs. Dorothy Wells, of Prestonsburg, who is a quarterback with the Colonels, and Ralph Gilliam, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Gilliam, of Rt. 1, Banner, a tight end.

The Centre College Colonels, under the direction of second-year coach Joe McDaniel, began the 1981 season Saturday against Washington University in St. Louis. The team will make its first home appearance Oct. 3 against the University of the South-Sewanee.

The Colonels went 4-4-1 last year and took the College Athletic Conference title for the first time in eight years.

resources activities and personnel in the Ohio River basin will be reduced as a result of federal budget and manpower cutbacks.

Brigadier General R. S. Kem, Ohio River division engineer in Cincinnati, said the cuts are part of a plan announced in Washington for reorganizing Civil Works activities throughout the nation to meet budget reduction goals set by the Administration.

The Ohio River division office oversees the programs carried out by four districts headquartered in Pittsburgh, Huntington, Louisville and Nashville.

By the end of September 1982, Corps employment throughout the basin will be reduced by 305-from the September 1980 level of 3,568.

Colonel James H. Higman, Huntington district engineer, said Huntington's share of the reduction-36 spaces-has been one-third achieved, and that most of the remainder should be administered through attrition.

The Huntington district includes a 45,000-square-mile area in parts of West Virginia, Ohio, Kentucky, Nationwide, the Corps must reduce its Civil Works employment by 2,995. down to a total of 25,240, by September 30, 1982. This plan will allow the Corps to continue its mobilization mission by keeping most of its engineering, construction and other technical skills available and prepared.

The Corps will continue its traditional mission of water resources development and management, and performing design and construction services for other agencies.

Says Nurses Need To Project New Image'

A new assertiveness marks members of the nursing profession, says Dr. Marion McKenna, dean of the University of Kentucky College of Nursing.

Nurses see themselves as true "assistants to the patient," Dean McKenna says, yet "enormous numbers are leaving their profession" for lack of recognition, lack of autonomy, and lack of salary potential. McKenna says money is not the most important element of this list of needs.

The nurse, as a member of the health care team, has the day-to-day responsibility for patient care, "yet if the game is won (the patient gets well) one player-the doctor-more often than not gets all the credit," McKenna says.

Most patients, McKenna adds, "can't identify their nurse (among the white-uniformed aides and therapists) and do not understand what the nurses do for them.

'We need to change our image," says the dean, who retired as a U.S. Air Force reserve officer in September. "We have to overcome the 'Major Houlihan' image, or the image of coffee-maker for the doctor."

McKenna, who received the Air Force Reserves' Legion of Merit Award when she retired, believes, 'Nurses do for you what you would do for yourself if you had the strength, the knowledge and the will." About 85 percent of what the nurse does for the patient is not directed by the doctor, but by the nurse, she adds.

Nurses and doctors, are "colleagues together," both directed toward the same goal-good care for the patient. And Dean McKenna, along with other nurse educators, wants nurses so recognized.

Nurses are, nationwide, distressed because they are seldom consulted on scheduling, on policymaking, and on other professional concerns in their hospital workplace, McKenna contends.

They also object to being required to do non-nursng clerical jobs at their work stations "just because they are there.'

They want more opportunities for inservice education, to continue updating their knowledge and skills.

And, they want recognition and personnel benefits comparable to those accorded other health care profesionals.

To help increase the pool of nurses in Kentucky, UK's college of nursing is gearing up to return to the four-year baccalaureate program it had for years and discontinued in 1978 in favor of a program that admitted registered nurses only.

Also, UK is extending its outreach nursing classes (graduate) to three other state schools-Morehead, Western and Northern. UK nursing instructors will travel to the three sites to teach nurses, requiring advanceddegree candidates to spend a minimum of one four-week summer school period at UK before getting the master's degree.

Some 11,000 women in America die of uterine cancer each year, yet this type is the most curable of all cancers. The main reason these women die is because their cancers are not detected early enough. If the cancer is found and properly treated early enough, most women with uterine cancer will live.

The Pap test can detect this cancer early when it is most curable; this is a simple test which doesn't hurt and doesn't take much time. Not only can it detect cancer, but it can also reveal changes which might mean cancer could develop, so it can warn of cancer before it even starts.

Women should have Pap tests regularly to protect themselves against cancer of the uterus. The Floyd County Health Department is having a Pap clinic, Monday, September 28, from 8 until 11:30 and from 1 until 2. This clinic is a free service of the health department and women who have not had a Pap test in the past year are welcome to take advantage of this service.

There will be no nursing services offered at the health department Thursday, September 24, due to a special clinic being held at the department. Regular services resume Friday, September 25.

Kentucky Crafts Debut In Chicago

Kentucky crafts, which already are being sold in New York department stores, made their Chicago debut Sept. 14 when Marshall Field's opened Kentucky Country Field Collections in seven stores

The Kentucky crafts promotion is part of the company's fall "Country. Fields" promotion.

"Kentucky is the only state which is being promoted for its own collection of crafts. We loved the crafts we found there and are extremely pleased to be able to present them to our customers," said Carole Andjulic, manager of "Country Fields" who visited Kentucky last month.

As part of the promotion of Kentucky crafts, First Lady Phyllis George Brown officiated at the opening of the two largest stores Sept. 14 (downtown and the new Water Tower Place). She was accompanied by Arts Commissioner Lois Mateus.

"Marshall Field's and Company is the nation's fourth largest retail chain, and we are delighted to have them feature our crafts. We're close to Chicago and we're hoping for a longterm Kentucky relationship with this quality firm," Mrs. Brown said.

Ms. Mateus said the Chicago promotion was unanticipated but a welcome new market for Kentucky craftsmen and women. The buy was an outgrowth of the Commerce Cabinet's economic development trip to Chicago earlier this summer and was quickly arranged to meet the fall opening.

During the Chicago trip this summer Gov. and Mrs. Brown discussed with Marshall Field's executives the successful sales Kentucky crafts were receiving at Bloomingdale's and an upcoming Oh! Kentucky opening at Neiman-Marcus in Beverly Hills.

"Marshall Field's buyers came to Kentucky the week following the Browns' Chicago visit and our craftsmen were able to quickly fill their orders," Ms. Mateus said.

The Chicago promotions feature a variety of Kentucky crafts, including wood carvings, rag rugs, baskets, pottery, quilts and willow furniture. Works by these Kentucky craftspeople are featured at Marshall Field's: Mr. and Mrs. Lestel Childress, Park City; Berea College Student Industries; Kentucky Hills Industries, Pine Knot; Minnie Yancey, Berea; Marti Kelly, Winchester; Campus Crafts, Annville; Mountain Friendship Crafts, Mulberry; and Appalachian Fireside Crafts, Berea.

Another in the series of Oh! Kentucky openings is scheduled for Oct. 22 in Nieman Marcus' prestigious Beverly Wilshire branch. On Oct. 31, Bloomingdale's will open four more Oh! Kentucky shops: two in the suburban Washington, D.C., area and two in Pennsylvania. Boutiques in Carmel, Calif.; Nantucket, Mass.; and East Hampton, N.Y., are also planning Kentucky promotions.

NEW FOOD STAMP RULES WILL START OCTOBER 1

Major changes in food stamp eligibility rules and benefits that the President recently signed into law will begin taking effect October 1, according to G. William Hoagland, Administrator of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Food and Nutrition Service. Changes required by the Omnibus Reconciliation Act of 1981 are aimed at saving $1.7 billion in federal costs for the food stamp program in fiscal year 1982 which begins October 1.

The new rules, based on provisions of the Omnibus Reconciliation Act of 1981; must be implemented swiftly, Hoagland said, to achieve the projected savings and operate the program within the amount Congress appropriates and to avoid benefit reduction

Hoagland said the package of rules to be published in September and take effect October 1 will include provisions

-remove higher income households from the program or reduce their benefits:

-drop strikers from the program; -prorate the initial month's benefits of new recipients from the date of application

-delay cost of living adjustments in the Thrifty Food Plan used for calculating food stamp benefits; and

-delay and reduce cost of living adjustments in the deductions allowed from gross income in determining benefits.

Three additional rulemaking packages will follow, Hoagland said. Those packages will cover new fraud and abuse penalties, provisions to provide Puerto Rico with a nutrition block grant and procedures for a monthly reporting and retrospective accounting system mandated for state welfare agencies responsible for administering the food stamp program.

Hoagland said proposed rules on fraud penalties and claims collection procedures will be published in October for public comment, with final rules expected early next year. He added that proposed rules for establishing retrospective accounting and monthly reporting systems will be published by the end of 1981. States are required to have those in place by October 1983.

Hoagland said that congressional action on the food stamp program is not complete with the passage of the Reconciliation Act. In September Congress must complete action on foodstamp reauthorization legislation in the House and on food stamp appropriations in the Senate. Both are required for the program to operate after September 30

The Floyd County Retired Teachers were hosts to the annual N.R.T.A.-K.R.T.A. Fall Workshop at May Lodge, September 15, with Russell Boyd, of Paintsville, president of the Eastern District, presiding. In charge of registration were Opal S. May and Gladys DeMarcus.

The invocation was given by Mrs. James B. Goble, Pre-retirement chairman of the Floyd Teachers' Association, who used as her topic, "Faith, Hope and Love.

Mrs. May K. Roberts, Membership chairman and past president, led the group in the Pledge of Allegiance to the American Flag.

The welcome address was given by Mrs. Norma S. Stepp, president of the F.C.R.T. Association

The N.R.T.A. director, Dolly Gillahan, spoke concerning the activities of the organization, and conducted the roll-call, showing that the following Eastern_Kentucky counties were represented: Magoffin, Pike, Martin, Johnson, Knott, Perry, Letcher and Floyd. She introduced a national board member, Marie Sanders, of Wilmington, N.C., who listed some of the privileges enjoyed by N.R.T.A. members, among which are reductions in motel room rates, car rental services, and pharmacy products, and discussed many other advantages of membership.

The K.R.T.A. president, Robert B Piper, stressed the importance of membership and gave some news highlights concerning the organization.

Amy Braden, who represented the Company, reviewed represented the K.R.T.A. office in Frankfort, spoke on the topic, "Our Retirement System," and held a question-and-answer period.

A Retired Teachers' legislative member, Verne Horn, of Paintsville, explained the forthcoming 1982 legislative program, as it affects retired and pre-retired teachers, and asked that state representatives and senators be contacted regarding these matters.

Dr. J. M. Dodson, executive director of the K.R.T.A., made several comments and gave a summary of the concerns previously discussed by Mr. Horn.

Attending the luncheon-meeting from Floyd county were Mrs. Norma S. Stepp, Mrs. May K. Roberts, Mrs. Opal S. May, Mrs. Minnie Grace Sutherland, Miss Alice Harris, Mrs. Anna May Mellon, Mrs. Grace Conley, Mrs. Ethel Ratliff, Miss Elsie Stephens, Chalmer Frazier, Mrs. Sarah Laven, Mrs. Virginia S. ### * Cancer Hopeline

Q. My physician has said I should have chemotherapy. I've heard that chemotherapy is only used for incurable cases and that its side effects are worse than cancer. What are the real facts?

A. Chemotherapy is frequently recommended prior to, instead of, or following surgery or radiotherapy. Often patients or their families panic because they mistakenly believe some of the common myths about chemotherapy. You have mentioned two of them.

Myth No. 1: Chemotherapy is the treatment of last resort.

For years Chemotherapy Foundation members and supporters have been aware that early chemotherapy can provide a complete cure for some cancers, but we must remember that the general public is not always aware of this. Some people still believe that chemotherapy is offered only when all else has failed, and the suggestion of chemotherapy treatment makes them think they are at "the end of the road." Health professionals and an informed public, aware that this myth is prevalent, need to be on guard when patients and families become mistakenly pessimistic about prognosis. (Example: Betty Ford and Edward Kennedy, Jr. have been chemotherapy beneficiaries for several years.)

Myth No. 2: The side effects are worse than the disease

The media often talk of the side effects of chemotherapy while omitting the explanation that some patients never experience any, and most people find the side effects tolerable and temporary. Side effects are certainly not worse than the disease. Unfortunately, this myth persists even among health professionals, but most patients and families will agree that side effects are a fair "trade-off" for increased disease-free survival and, certainly,

Miss Burchett, Mr. Johnson Wed

In a double-ring ceremony performed July 18, at 7 p.m., on the lawn of the bride's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Bert N. Porter, of Rt. 1, Prestonsburg, Miss Chrystal Lynne Burchett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley R. Burchett, also of Rt. 1, was united in marriage to Mr. Chester Dale Johnson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Burl Johnson, of Halo, Ky.

The Rev. John H. Woods performed the candlelight ceremony, and music was played and a song was sung by Anita Woods, daughter of the minister.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white gown of chiffon and lace. The bodice was adorned with pearls, sequins and lace, and layers of lace beginning at the waist, extended to the train. She wore a matching lace hat and veil with white roses, and carried a bouquet of white sweetheart roses and soft colored spring flowers.

Miss Kitty Shepherd, of David, the maid of honor, wore a blue gown and carried blue carnations and daisies. The bridesmaids, Miss Kimberly Burchett, sister of the bride, wore a peach gown and carried a peach carnation and daisies, and Miss Joetta Johnson, sister of the groom, wore a lavender gown and carried a lavender carnation and daisies.

Flower girls were Shawnda Burchett and Suzanne Lewis, nieces of the bride, who both carried baskets of rose petals.

Mr. Wayne Harris served as best man. The ushers were Mr. Burl Johnson, Jr., brother of the groom, and Mr. Robert R. Burchett, brother of the bride. The ringbearer was Arthur N. Lewis, nephew of the bride.

The mother of the bride wore a long gown of pink taffeta and sheer and a white orchid. The mother of the groom wore a long rose colored gown and a white orchid.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of Mr and Mrs. Porter. Following the reception, the couple left for a honeymoon at Virginia Beach and Nags Head, North Carolina. They are now residing at Halo, Ky.

Displaced Homemaker Orientation Held

The Displaced Homemaker Program at Prestonsburg Community College had 15 participants to complete a 90-hour orientation workshop which began August 31 and continued through September 16. Participants were from Floyd and Johnson counties.

The orientation consisted of interest, aptitude, and personality testing. Speakers were invited throughout the business area to discuss areas of specific interest. A major focus was emphasis of employability skills which included an actual interview session for each participant.

The Displaced Homemaker Orientation is a requirement for all program participants. The program is funded by EKCEP and a special governor's grant. Many of the participants will enter into classroom training programs where they will receive financial assistance to complete their education.

For further information contact the Displaced Homemaker Program at Prestonsburg Community College or call 886-3863, Ext. 255.

NOTICE OF INTENTION TO MINE

In accordance with the provisions of KRS 350.055, notice is hereby given that: Bailey Mining Co., Inc., P.O. Box 177, Paintsville, Kentucky 41240, intends to file an application for the surface disturbance mining of approximately 6.5 acres located southeast of Weeksbury in Floyd County. The proposed operation is approximately 1.25 miles southeast of State Route 466's junction with Caleb Creek Road, and located south of Pine Fork, latitude 376 19' 06", longitude 82° 40' 45". The surface of the area to be mined is owned by: Collins and Mayo Colliers. A brief description of the kind of mining activiy proposed is: surface disturbance for deep mine. The application will be filed at the Bureau of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement, Prestonsburg Area Office, South Lake Drive, Prestonsburg, Kentucky, 41653.

Persons wishing to file written objections and/or request a formal administrative hearing in regard to the above described surface mine should notify the Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection within 30 days of the date of this notice. A copy of the newspaper clipping must be attached to the written objection. The objection or request for a hearing will reference application number 036-5152. Such objection or request must be in accordance with KRS 224.081 (2), and must be forwarded to the Director of Permits, Bureau of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement, Capital Plaza Tower, Frankfort, Kentucky, 40601. 2. Notice is hereby provided pursuant to 30 CFR 715.13 (d) (10) and KRS: 350 that the proposed post mining land use does not constitute a change from the pre-mining land use. Public comment regarding a proposed change in land use may be submitted to the address listed above.

Regional Airport Funding Awaited, ADD Board Told

With the finalizing of construction plans earlier this month, the building of a proposed regional airport in Martin county is ready to go ahead when and if federal funds become available, Allan "Bud" Perry, of Paintsville, chairman of the regional airport board, told directors of the Big Sandy Area Development District at their regular meeting Monday.

Perry noted, however, that current budget cutbacks make the Federal Aviation Administration grant, on which the project is dependent for 80 percent of its funding, increasingly uncertain.

The federal budget squeeze also makes tighter management of local water districts imperative, Roger Recktenwald, director of the Water Resources Assistance Corporation, told the board. The water corporation, an ADD-sponsored agency, provides management and technical assistance to needy water districts in the fivecounty area development district.

The town of Martin, under an order of the Environmental Protection Agency to have its sewage properly treated by December, is nearing completion of sewer system repairs, Mayor Larry B. Hall told the board. Martin city councilman Ken Peters earlier reported that the town's sewage treatment plant has been operating successfully since it was reactivated last Thursday, following a four-year shutdown.

With generous praise for Congressman Carl D. Perkins' role in the project, Salyersville Mayor Tim Bostic announced that the recent freeing of $800,000 in Economic Development Administration funds, which had previously been frozen, has permitted work to proceed on a $2.4 million rehabilitation of Salyersville's water system.

Calls on area development funds toward construction of a water treatment plant at Pikeville ($145,00), site development for a public housing project at Thelma ($41,670), and relocation of sewer lines in Salyersville ($14,200) were approved by the board, should the necessary funds become available.

Conquering Cancer

"If you wait until you feel it, it has already spread beyond the breast in 50% of women," said Dr. Wende Logan about breast cancer at an American College of Radiology forum in Chicago. For every six breast cancers found by mammography, only one is detected by physical examination alone. In addition, the dose rate now used in x-rays is only one-fifth of what it was ten years ago.

The average breast cancer takes seven years to grow large enough to be felt; mammography can detect a growth two years earlier. Though many women have been wary of mammography in the past, recent findings conclude that the risk of developing breast cancer as a result of these x-rays is a small one, even for younger women. If detected early enough, breast cancer can be treated.

On The Rocks

Whiskey or gin may go down easily, but life with a spouse who has had one too many is far from smooth. According to a study conducted at the Long Beach Naval Hospital in California, alcoholism and alcohol abuse may be the major causes of domestic violence.

In a study of 134 cases referred to the hospital's outpatient clinic, in 72 per cent of the cases one or the other spouse was diagnosed as an alcoholic. Over 1/4 of the cases referred for domestic violence required treatment for alcohol abuse. Out of 51 cases of child abuse, medics found that 67 per cent had at least one parent who was an alcoholic.

Data in the field of alcoholism and domestic violence is scarce, but even these few statistics point out that the issue warrants a full scale investigation.

Hair Today, Curl Tomorrow

Nothing in life is permanent, but today's home permanents come pretty close. Here's how to give yourself permanent beauty parlor treatment in the comfort of your home.

· Make sure you get a good hair cut before perming to shape your hair and get rid of any split ends. Slightly layered hair or hair no longer than your shoulders are the best styles for perms. If your hair is dry or damaged, condition it for several weeks prior to perming to get it back into shape.

· Invest in a good home permanent kit. Before starting, however, exercise caution. Perm a test curl of your hair using a strand that seems to be in delicate condition. Testing is a must if you have bleached, streaked tinted or damaged hair. Follow the directions on your home perm package. After perming, feel the hair. If it feels gummy or sticky, if you aren't satisfied with the way it looks, or if your scalp feels irritated, don't continue.

· Shampoo your hair once all systems are go. The water and shampoo help soften your hair's molecular bonds and make it more pliable. Carefully following the directions on your kit, roll your hair. Use end papers to keep the tips of your hair together, and apply the waving lotion. Make sure you wear plastic gloves and protect your neck and shoulders by draping a towel around yourself. Keep in mind: Use larger rollers for longer or top hair where a looser curl is desired. For tighter curls, set hair on smaller rollers. When the processing time is up, rinse your rolled hair in warm water to stop further processing. Then, blot the hair dry and apply the neutralizer as directed. Once the neutralizer seeps in, remove curlers, rinse your hair, set and style,

. Let your perm "set": Don't fuss with it for several days. Depending upon how quickly your hair grows and how frequently you have it cut, your perm should last from three to six months. But don't despair: Even Shirley Temple grew up.

Viet Vets Use More Education Benefits

Vietnam Era veterans, who have made more use of their GI Bill education benefits than either their World War II or Korean conflict counterparts, also received higher per capita benefit payments than the other two groups.

Veterans Administration statistics show that the 7.7 million veterans who have received education training under the current GI Bill have been paid an average of $6,442.

Korean conflict veterans who took advantage of the GI Bill program received an average of $5,442 in benefits, and the 7.8 million World War II veterans who took education training with the government's help drew an average of $6,321.

All the dollar amounts are adjusted for inflation to fiscal year 1980 levels, VA said.

Nearly 18 million men and women have used the GI Bill since its inception in 1944.

Heaviest usage, by those eligible for the so-called Post-Korean GI Bill, stands at just over 60 percent of those eligible. World War II veterans used their VA education benefits at a 50.5 percent rate, while 43.4 percent of the eligible Korean conflict veterans utilized this training.

Total dollars spent amount to $49.6 billion under the so-called Post-Korean GI Bill, which included Vietnam Era veterans; $13.3 billion under the Korean conflict bill; and $43.9 billion under the World War II legislation.

major problems in the public schools, according to the latest Gallup Poll. Twenty-three percent of those polled cited lack of discipline as the biggest problem faced by the public schools of their community. The poll reveals, however, that parents share in responsibility for the problem. When asked to grade how well parents are doing in raising their children to be selfdisciplined and responsible young people, only 29% gave parents an "A" or "B" grade. When grading the performance of administrators and schools in general 36% gave them an "A" or "B." The public was generally equally divided regarding permitting teachers

The public was strongly in favor of students passing a minimum competency exam before getting a diploma (69%), with 26% opposed to such a test. Likewise, 84% said that teachers should pass a state certification exam

VA Programs in Cutback Plan

By ending or reducing four Veterans benefits for flight training. Elimination Administration programs that failed to achieve their original objectives, VA estimates that $110 million will be saved toward carrying out the pledge of Congress and the President that important veterans benefits will not be curtailed.

Congressional legislation signed by the President in August ended most subsidized flight training, reduced payments for correspondence training, put severe restrictions on education loans to veterans receiving education payments and changed dental and burial benefits for some veterans.

The programs and savings involved are -Flight Training. Effective Oct. 1, 1981, VA payments for flight training will end for all those not participating in the program on August 31. Those who enroll in flight training in September will be paid only for flight training performed before October 1. In July, 5,840 veterans were receiving

Our Appalachia Day Set At ALC

For the tenth consecutive year Alice Lloyd College will play host to pickers, singers, dancers, craftsmen and visitors from a wide area as part of Our Appalachia Day, set for this Saturday on the college campus.

Activities of the day are centered on the college meadow at ALC which, for those who may not know, is located at Pippa Passes (Knott county), on Route 899. Arts and crafts displays and demonstrations will begin at 10 a.m. and continue through 6:30 that afternoon. Old time mountain music (played with strictly non-electric instruments) will be featured during the same period with Bluegrass bands as well as individuals performing traditional music on stage. Visitors are advised to bring a picnic lunch although a soup bean supper, which has become one of the most popular parts of the day, is offered for $1.00 between 4:30 and 5:30. Folk dancing will be held from 6:50 until 8 p.m. to conclude the day

Doug Hutchens, coordinator of Our Appalachia Day, called the event "a community interaction day with people from all segments of society enjoying the activities."

Our Appalachia Day is free to the public of the program will save $14.1 million in fiscal year 1982, VA said.

Rationale for ending the program was based on General Accounting Office and VA studies which showed that most trainees in G1 Bill funded flight training programs used the skill only for avocational purposes. Only 16 percent of the graduates had full-time jobs related to the training, according to the GAO report.

-Correspondence Training. Based on a number of studies that show an extremely high dropout rate among trainees enrolled in correspondence training programs and a high incidence of fraud and abuse, the law now requires that veterans who train in correspondence programs share a larger part of the cost. The amount reimbursable by VA for such programs will be reduced on October 1 to 55 percent of the cost of training. VA now pays 70 percent of the cost. Estimated savings in FY 1982 will be $3.2 million. Enrollment at the end of July in such programs totaled 25,615.

-Education Loans. Ending for most veterans on October 1 is a special program through which GI Bill students could receive, in addition to their GI Bill payments, low-interest loans from VA. A savings of approximately $6 million is expected from sharply curtailing this program in FY 1982 and avoiding the losses from the high default rate in the loan program.

-Dental Care. The period of time under which former servicemen could get free VA dental care for up to a year after leaving military service has been reduced to 90 days. This reduction will save an estimated $17.7 million.

-Burial Benefits. A burial allowance of $300, previously available to all war veterans, will be limited to veterans eligible for VA pension or compensation and to those who die in VA medical facilities. The estimated savings is $75.2 million.

VA regulations governing the administration of these changes are now being written and will be forwarded to VA regional offices in each state as soon as possible.

Slate Crushes Skull Of West Prestonsburg Man

BURIAL TUESDAY

John Hale 25 years old, son of James Hale, well-known resident of West Prestonsburg, was instantly killed at 10 o'clock Sunday night by falling slate in the mine of the By-Products Coal Company at By-Pro, this county.

Mr. Hale was operating a coal cutting machine at the time of his death. As he was lowering a jack, a mass of slate dropped, crushing his skull and face

The victim was a man of high character, and was a member of the Pres-tonsburg lodge, Order of Odd Fellows. He had attended Saturday night's meeting of the lodge here to take another degree, and had returned to work on the day preceding his death.

The body was brought here Monday and burial was made Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock in the Middle Creek cemetary, Rev. Will Hall, of the United Baptist Church, Water Gap, officiating. An impressive burial service was conducted at the grave by the Prestonsburg lodge of Odd Fellows. E. P. Arnold acted as chaplain instead of the reg-ular chaplain, John Hale, father of the victim. The funeral was under the direction of E. P. Arnold. Surviving the victim are his widow and one child, three brothers, Robert and Oscar Hale, of West Prestonsburg, and Tan Hale, of Burton.

The 100 Year Old Vacuum

By Barry Yeoman

The vacuum cleaner is one of these nice things that we take for granted, never considering what life was like without it. In the 1980's we cannot picture ourselves brushing drapery and upholstery, beating carpets and shaking scatter rugs. But 100 years ago, this was what you had to do to clean the house.

There was an attempt to invent a vacuum cleaner as early as the mid-1800's. But inventors couldn't figure out how to get rid of dirt: blow it away? Pick it up?

The first attempt at suction was called the Whirlwind, patented in 1859. It failed, though, because it spit out as much dirt as it inhaled.

By the turn of the century, a more effective vacuum cleaner was invent- cleaner, look for easy handling, and ed in London by bridge-builder Hubert Booth. Somewhat larger than the contraption we are familiar with today (about the size of a removable dust bag, a long cord, two truck) it was horse drawn. It cleaned speeds (so that articles such as the house using an 800-foot hose. The device made so much noise that ment for different pile heights, a it frightened passing horses and conveniently placed foot-operated almost got Booth arrested for switch, and, in uprights, a headlight creating a public nuisance.

Smaller vacuums followed, of course, and to own one soon became furniture. The handle should be a mark of prestige. However, some of the early models were somewhat impractical, such as the type requiring two operators, one to pump a bellows with foot pedals and one to apply the nozzle to the floor. Later, more versatile vacuums evolved.

A 1913 model had five adaptations for the different household if its operator is careless. For this electrical currents then in use. It had reason, don't try to free something attachments to use on bare floors, caught in the roller until the walls, upholstered furniture and machine is turned off. Don't put an crevices; it could even blow-dry your accessory on an upright until the hair.

Today, you'll have to buy your hair-dryer separately, but at least there's a greater choice of sophisticated vacuum cleaners on the market. The simplest of these is the carpet sweeper, which can be used for quick daily pickups. But for thorough cleaning, you'll need an upright cleaner, canister or tank vacuum, or a combination cleaner.

The upright was the first modern vacuum to gain popularity, and it's still the most frequently purchased. It is the best for cleaning carpets and rugs because it vibrates the carpets, dislodging the dirt trapped within.

Furthermore, it's simple to use. Just roll your upright out of the closet and it's ready to go.

The ability of the upright is limited to rugs and carpets, though. To get at other surfaces, the canister vacuum is needed. Easier to carry than an upright, its body follows you like a semi-obedient puppy as you pull the nozzle. Also, the canister vacuum normally has more suction. But it does not have the beating brushes of the upright, so it doesn't measure up on dirty rugs and carpets.

Combination vacuums look like tank machines, but contain a rug-cleaning attachment similar to that of an upright. However, this type of cleaner tends to be very expensive.

When you purchase a vacuum ask for a demonstration in your home or on rugs similar to yours. The vacuum should have an easily drapes can be cleaned), an adjustfor vacuuming in poor lighting. The attachments should be easy to insert and should move easily under stable in any position.

Once you choose a vacuum cleaner, keep it in good condition by replacing bags and filters according to the manufacturer's instructions. When necessary, replace the brush and belt that drive the beater bar.

The vacuum is not perfectly safe machine is unplugged.

Don't leave children alone with the appliance. To a child, the vacuum is a toy. Unfortunately, the use of such toys has resulted in many accidents which could be prevented with a bit of care.

Arts Council Will Receive Applications

The Kentucky Arts Council has announced Nov. 1 as the deadline for receiving applications for the Governor's Challenge Grant program. The purpose of this program is to stimulate funding for the arts from private and non-federal government sources.

Fifty-eight arts groups qualified to receive funds last year. Eligiblility is limited to independently incorporated or associated non-profit organizations in Kentucky which have been federally tax-exempt for two years and whose primary purpose is to provide arts services directly for the benefit of the public on a continuing basis. Units of academic institutions are not eligible.

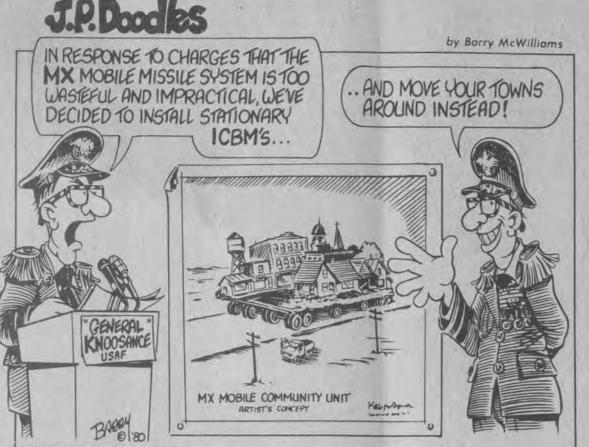

Organizations must equal or exceed each year the fund-raising results of the preceding year to qualify for the Governor's Challenge Grant. The total eligible income for each organization is matched by a state grant of approximately 25 percent.

For further information and application forms, write the Kentucky Arts Council, 302 Wilkinson St., Frankfort, Ky. 40601, or call (502) 564-3757.

CONSUMER ALERT *

"Free" Merchandise

Consumers are continually searching for the best buy, and they regard offers of free merchandise or services to be special bargains. However, Attorney General Steve Beshear warns consumers offers for merchandise advertised as free can end up costing money.

Phrases frequently used in such pro-motions are "free," "Buy One," "Get One Free," "Two For Sale," "One-Cent Sale," and "Half-Price Sale," Beshear said.

When the purchaser is told an article is free if another item is purchase at the regular price, the word "free" indicates the buyer is paying nothing for the other item. In this case, the 'regular price'' means the amount charged for that item during the 30-day period preceding the sale.

Frequently, free offers are dependent upon some other condition which must be met by the consumer. If such conditions do exist, they must be clearly and conspicuously disclosed at the outset of the advertisement, so the consumer will not be misled or deceived about the actual terms of the offer, Beshear said.

Advertisements with asterisks referring to small print at the botton of the page, containing conditions of the offer, are not allowed, the attorney general pointed out.

You may have to buy an expensive service contract to get the so-called free item. For example, a consumer winning a free sewing machine may discover he or she must pay $10 a month for three years on a service contract, Beshear said. "This means the presumably free sewing machine will cost the consumer $360. This amount may be higher than the retail cost of the machine.

Beshear also cautions consumers about accepting free merchandise through the mail. "If the item is sent by mail, you will probably have to pay a postage fee," noted Beshear.

The Attorney General's Division of Consumer Protection became aware of this type of offer recently when a consumer wrote a letter requesting information about such an offer.

The consumer had received a brochure in the mail informing him he had won 600 "free" items. In small print at the bottom of one page, the brochure said the consumer would be responsible for postage fees averaging 50 cents per item. At that rate, the 600 "free" items would cost the consumer $300.

When you see the word "free" remember: if it looks too good to be true - it is probably neither good nor true, said Beshear.

If you have a consumer question or complaint, write the Attorney General's Division of Consumer Pro-

10-11. Historians say that the bloody battle, in which there were more than 6,000 casualties, marked the beginning of the decline of Southern fortunes in the West, and thwarted Lt. Gen. Braxton Bragg's campaign to "free" Kentucky from Union control. While neither side could claim victory in Kentucky's most important Civil War battle, Confederate forces suffered fewer killed and wounded, but chose to retreat rather than face fresh troops that weren't committed to the initial skirmishes.

Activities that will begin Saturday, Oct. 10 at 9:00 a.m., at Peryville Battlefield State Shrine, include drill and demonstrations of authentic weaponry by participants in the reenactment, uniform and ladies' dress competition, a laying of wreaths to honor the Civil War dead and an address by Col. Frank Rankin, Commander of the Military Order of Stars and Bars, a historical study group.

Un Sunday, the day of celebrations will begin after the 9:00 a.m. open-air church service on the battlefield. The reenactment of the battle, scheduled for 1:00 p.m., will be preceded by the commander's call, powder issue to troops, drill, and inspection of the troops. The battle will feature members of the First Kentucky (Orphan) Brigade, led by Col. Louis C. Grivetti.

A parade, horseshoe pitching tournament and dance will be featured in downtown Perryville, beginning at 10:00 a.m. Saturday, followed by an allday flea market Sunday. Under the terms of a retail installment contract dated June 25, 1979, signed by James Kunath and Donna Kunath, the undersigned will on the 8th day of October, 1981 at 10:00 o'clock A.M. sell at public auction to the highest bidder for cash a 1979 Ford Bronco 4x4 Wagon, serial No. U15SLEJ2534, at Ol' Don Jacobs Ford Lincoln-Mercury, Inc. Lancer-Water Gap Road, Prestonsburg, Kentucky to satisfy the unpaid balance on the said vehicle. The vehicle may be inspected prior to sale at the above mentioned premises. The undersigned reserves the right to bid.

OL' DON JACOBS FORD-LINCOLN-MERCURY, INC. Collection Department 9-23-31

INVITATION TO BID

Sealed bids will be accepted on the following by the Floyd County Fiscal Court on or before September 25, 1981 at the hour of 3:00 p.m.

Crushed stone, either sandstone or limestone to be used on various roads in Floyd County, shall be size No. 57's and No. 2's. The total quantity shall be approximately 10,000 tons. The crushed stone shall meet the requirements of the Kentucky Department of Transportation's Standard Specifications and/or Special provisions for limestone or sandstone.

The crushed stone shall be paid for at the contract unit price per ton f.o.b. quarry site.

To determine the most economical source of crushed stone for a given road, the total cost per ton shall be calculated as the bid price per ton f.o.b. quarry site plus the transportation cost from the quarry calculated at 18 cents per ton per mile.

Sealed bids are to be filed in the County Judge/Executive's office in the Courthouse Annex on or before September 25, 1981 at the hour of 3:00 p.m. and bids will be opened September 25, 1981 at the hour of 3:00 p.m.

The Floyd County Fiscal Court reserves the right to reject any and all bids filed.

UK Career Counselor Believes Everyone Has Marketable Skills

Drema Howard, left, a career counseling specialist with the University of Kentucky Placement and Career Resource Center, talks about career planning with Elizabeth A. Wyse. Howard, a native of Floyd county, is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Howard, of Hippo. Wyse, a UK sohopmore majoring in physical therapy, is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Wyse, of Ashland.

"You're more talented than you think you are and have skills that you probably haven't thought about."

That's the message a University of Kentucky counselor is trying to convey, particularly to UK students seeking jobs, and to others who are thinking about a change in careers.

Drema Howard, a career specialist and counselor for the UK Placement and Career Resource Center, says that everybody has marketable skills. She specializes in helping students and alumni decide on the careers for which they are best suited and also for other careers for which they qualify but hadn't considered.

"We know from experience that some college graduates have second thoughts about their careers around the time of graduation or shortly thereafter. They come to us and say "This has not worked out the way I thought it would; I'm not suited for this kind of work, so what am I going to do now"?"

Howard helps people discover the skills they possess and the types of jobs where those skills can be used.

"Using your skills is an important part of your profession. If you are using skills you aren't enjoying, it may lead to dissatisfaction with your job. That may be the time for a look at alternatives," she said.

"For example, a young school teacher came to us and explained that she had to get out of primary school teaching because the noise and commotion by young children gave her a headache," Howard recalls.

Career planning interviews are recorded on video tape and played back on a television set giving the person a view of how they look to other people. Thus, they can spot any distracting mannerisms that may be annoying to a prospective employer.

Career planning includes giving guidance to help people decide what their strongest likes and dislikes are. These include such things as whether a person is willing to take a job that requires considerable travel, whether the person will accept a job that calls for more than average walking or standing during the day, and whether the work is indoors or outdoors.

Functional skills that many graduates possess are transferable across career lines, Howard said. They apply to a wide variety of jobs and work situations. Those skills seldom become obsolete and can be applied in many ways other than the obvious ones.

The educated person possesses more than 100 skills used in the business world. A random sampling includes such things as administering, researching, appraising, corresponding, exhibiting, repairing, reviewing, speaking, estimating, supervising and organizing.

"Career planning and development for people comes much easier when we can convince them that they have skills that are marketable and can be put to profitable use in the business world to the advantage of the employer as well as the employee," Howard said.

Army Helicopter Moves Sick Infants

The 431st Medical Detachment, "Helicopter Ambulance," stationed at Fort Knox has begun moving infants from local to regional hospitals when highly specialized treatment is required.

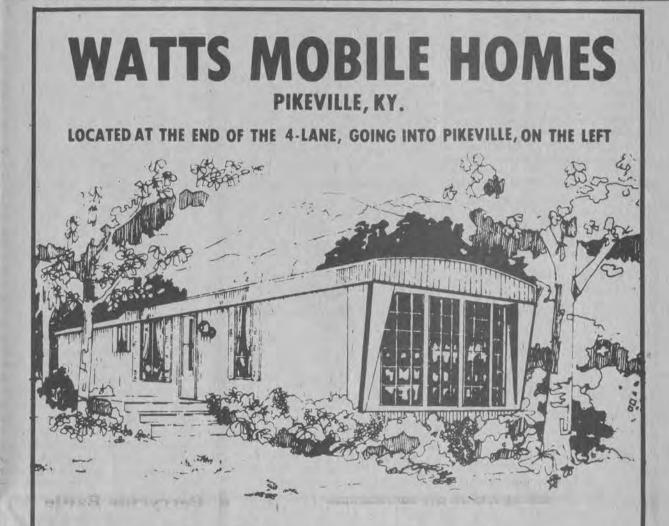

This helicopter evacuation service is made available to the Human Resources Department's neonatal program through Military Assistance to Safety and Traffic (MAST), a joint military-civilian program using U.S. Army helicopters, crews and fuel to move emergency patients, blood or organs to hospitals or special health care facilities.

In the past, the Kentucky Army National Guard provided this service for the department, said Dr. Grady Stumbo, secretary of the Human Resources Department. "Although the Guard has been performing an outstanding job, the department has to pay for the crews and fuel, which cost about $80,000 each year," he said.

The Army's participation in the program is paid with military training funds, since MAST missions are considered training of unit personnel. Currently, the neonatal program serves about 6,500 newborn Kentuckians each year, Stumbo noted.

Soc. Security Decision Is Subject to Appeal

By JIM KELLY

Were you turned down for social security benefits? Or were you notified that your benefit checks would stop or there would be a change in the amount? If so, you should be aware of your right to question decisions made on your claim.

If you disagree with a decision, you generally must file an appeal within 60 days. The people at any social security office will be glad to help you complete the appeal form without charge. You also have a right to be represented by a lawyer or other qualified person of your choice if you wish.

There are four appeal steps. The first step is a reconsideration. This is a completely independent review of your claim by persons not involved in the original decision. They examine all evidence initially submitted plus any additional evidence which can be obtained.

If you disagree with the reconsideration decision, you may request a hearing before an administrative law judge from the Office of Hearings and Appeals of the Social Security Administration. He or she had no part in the initial decision or reconsideration. At the hearing, the judge reviews what has gone on before, states what issues must be decided, and asks you and your witnesses questions. If you prefer, you may request that the administrative law judge review the case without your personal appearance. In that event, a decision will be based on the evidence in your file. If you disagree with the administrative law judge's decision, you may ask for a review by the Appeals Council which meets in Washington, D.C. If it decides to review your case, you have a right to file a written statement and to request an appearance to present oral arguments, if you so desire. If you believe the Appeals Council's decision is not correct or if it declined to review the administrative law judge's decision, you may bring a suit in a federal district court. You have 60 days from the date of the Appeals Council's notice to do this.

you received your reconsideration notice. At the hearing, any new information or evidence will be considered along with that already in your file.

(For assistance in filing an appeal or for more information, contact your Big Sandy Area Social Security Office, located on U.S. 23 between Prestonsburg and Paintsville.)

$\star$ CONSUMER ALERT $\star$

Computerized Checkouts and Item Pricing

Many Kentucky supermarkets now have computerized checkout counters which read a series of lines, bars and numbers called the Universal Pricing Code. The computer then "rings up" the correct price for each item, making the checkout process much faster and more efficient, according to those advocating the new computer system.

While acknowledging the benefits, Attorney General Steve Beshear is concerned about possible disadvantages the new system may bring to consumers.

"With computers reading the UPC symbols, many stores are no longer pricing individual items," said Beshear. "This makes it more difficult to compare the prices of various products, and consumers should take extra care to ensure they are getting the best buy."

The Consumer Federation of America is against the elimination of item pricing. The federation claims package price information is second only to supermarket cleanliness as a consumer desire.

Most members of the supermarket industry who are adopting the UPC system want to continue the practice of placing the price on the shelf under the product to which it applies, while eliminating the pricing of individual items.

If prices are not placed on individual items, shoppers could have difficulty comparing the price of various products—such as canned versus frozen versus fresh—since these are in separate parts of the store, Beshear pointed out.

Another potential problem is that prices placed on very high or very low shelves could be hard to read. Unless the shelves are kept neat, customers may not know which posted price refers to which product. Beshear added.

Some consumers also complain that if the price is not stamped on each item, they will not be able to compare the current price with what it cost the last time they purchased it.

Pine Mountain Hosts Dulcimer Convention

For the fifth straight year, admirers of dulcimer music will gather at Pine Mountain State Resort Park to hear some of the country's best players and to even pick up some lessons.

The Great American Dulcimer Convention is scheduled for Sept. 25-27. Popular folk performers Dick and Anne Albin host the weekend, which kicks off at 8 p.m. Friday with a concert featuring the Albins, Nancy and Blake Barker-Johnson, Roger Nicholson and other noted folk musicians.

Lessons in lap and hammer dulcimer playing are scheduled for Saturday morning.

Internationally famous folk musician Jean Ritchie is scheduled to perform in concert at 2:30 p.m. in the amFour states, California, Connecticut, Massachusetts and Rhode Island, and the city of Chicago have adopted laws requiring the posting of prices on each item. Several other states and cities are considering such laws.

The supermarket industry says it should be given a chance to try out a system without prices on packages. However, many fear if item pricing is once eliminated, it will never be brought back.

The attorney general's division of consumer protection would like to know your opinion of the Universal Pricing Code System and the pricing of individual items. If you would like to express your feelings on these or other consumer matters, write to the Attorney General's Office, Division of Consumer Protection, 209 St. Clair St., Frankfort, Ky. 40601.

Island Creek Coal Sales Opens Office In Pikeville W.W. Mason, president of Island Creek Coal Sales Company, Lexington, member of

Creek Coal Sales Company, Lexington, has announced the opening of a new sales company office in Pikeville. The office will be staffed by members of the agency group, which is responsible for the purchase of coals from independent producers. The coal is then integrated into the sales company's marketing system and sold by the company's sales representatives.

According to Don Pruett, senior vice president in charge of the agency group, the new office will be staffed by Dan Edwards, manager, and Paul Blackburn, field representative. The Pikeville office's territory will include those areas served by the C & O and N & W Railroads in most of Kentucky and parts of Virginia and West Virginia.

Ouestions Showroom Discounts BBB

Consumers who shop at catalog showrooms think they are saving a lot of money over prices they would have to pay elsewhere. The reference prices compared in the catalogs with the showroom's selling price for each item are so much higher-but are they really? Shoppers may not be getting as good a deal as they think.

The Council of Better Business Bureaus studied the validity of reference pricing, a selling technique used by many catalog showroom merchandisers of small appliances, jewelry, cameras and a wide range of consumer products across the country.

The study showed that catalog reference prices for 74 products shopped by BBBs in 15 cities were shoppings, reference prices were significantly higher than competitors' actual prices in almost three out of four cases.

CBBB undertook the study to find out if the reference prices shown in the catalogs accurately represent in market areas where catalogs are reference prices are not necessarily distributed. The products chosen for comparison from the catalogs were name-brand small appliances, calculators, cameras and other houchold products.

"Reference prices are not necessarily prices at which items are being sold."

BBB shoppers made comparisons between the lowest catalog reference prices and prices charged for the same products by major retail competitors. In 74% of the 1.775 comparison shoppings, the catalog reference prices were at least 5 percent higher than prices charged by competitors, with a significant number of discrepancies ranging from 21-47 percent higher.

In about 15 percent of the close to other retailers' prices. Competitors' prices were actually higher than catalog reference prices about a tenth of the time.

The catalog companies themselves print disclaimers in the front of their prices charged by retail competitors catalogs to the effect that their prices at which items are being sold in the market area and that they may be manufacturers' suggested prices, prices principal retailers sell at, or "customary retailer markups for similar merchandise." These disclaimers and the CBBB study findings call into serious question the usefulness of consumer reliance on these reference prices in making informed buying decisions.

When presented with comparative price claims, consumers have a right to know just what the basis of comparison is. But the CBBB study found that reference prices often did not disclose the basis of comparison, that is, whether the reference price was the current price of identical goods, the price of comparable goods, or the manufacturer's list price. The BBB Code of Advertising states: "In all cases, the advertising must make clear [to which price] the comparative price or saving claim relates."

Different Prices, Same Item

Not only were there significant differences between reference prices and actual prices being charged by the catalog showrooms' competitors, the study showed that, where different catalog firms offered identical items, the reference prices themselves varied widely. In almost half the cases, reference prices for identical items offered in catalogs varied from 11.7-50.7 percent.

Where identical items were offered by different catalog showrooms in the same city, the same products having different reference prices varied for up to 92 percent of the items. The differences among the reference prices themselves were from 5.3 percent to just over 42 percent.

These discrepancies in reference prices create situations where the implied savings vary. For example, the actual catalog selling prices for a food processor listed in two catalogs were virtually the same but the savings implied by the catalogs' reference prices differed by almost $20.00.

In announcing the results of its investigation, CBBB emphasized that Better Business Bureaus have long recognized the value of competition and the right of any company to establish its own prices for the products it sells. Honest and legitimate innovative merchandising methods produce the lowest possible competitive prices and the greatest savings for consumers.

The BBB warned against comparative pricing using reference prices which, despite disclaimers to the contrary, creates the impression of savings larger than can be realized in a majority of cases. If an advertiser compares its selling prices to other prices, the comparative prices should be valid to ensure that savings, promised or implied, are not illusory.

The best way to shop for savings is to make your own price comparisons. Select the product you want to buy, then use the newspaper or telephone to find out what it's selling for in your area before you make a decision to buy.

NEW FOOD STAMP RULES WILL START OCTOBER 1

Major changes in food stamp eligibility rules and benefits that the President recently signed into law will begin taking effect October 1, according to G. William Hoagland, Administrator of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Food and Nutrition Service. Changes required by the Omnibus Reconciliation Act of 1981 are aimed at saving $1.7 billion in federal costs for the food stamp program in fiscal year 1982 which begins October 1,

PUBLIC NOTICE TO OWNERS OF RENTAL HOUSING

The Floyd County Housing Authority is administering a Section 8 Moderate Rehabilitation Program in Floyd County using funds provided by the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Under this program, owners will rehabilitate rental units which are now substandard or have major building systems or components requiring repair or replacement. The cost of this work, which must total at least $1000 per unit, may be financed by a local lending institution, by the owner, or by any other source available to the owner. The agency does not make rehabilitation loans or grants, but will assist owners to obtain financing.

After required rehabilitation work has been completed, the agency and the owner will execute a contract which establishes a rent for the unit(s) that will cover rehabilitation costs, meet monthly operating expenses, and allow a reasonable profit on the owner's investment. For a fifteen year period, the owner will rent the rehabilitated unit(s) to eligible lower income tenants, who will pay approximately 25 percent of their income toward the rent. the agency will pay the remainder of the rent directly to the owner. The initial occupant of a rehabilitated unit may be the owner's present eligible tenant. After rehabilitation the rent(including utilities) cannot exceed the following Maximum Rents:

	BEDROG	M SIZE
1	2	3	4
206	244	282	319

The agency's current funds will allow rehabilitation of 35 units of rental housing as follows:

1 BR	2 BR	3 BR	4 BR
8	18	7	2

No unit will be assisted which results in the permanent displacement of a current tenant.

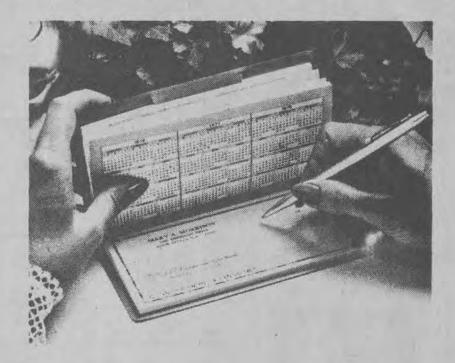

Proposals from owners will be received by the Housing Authority until further notice.

Owners who wish to submit a proposal must obtain an application form from:

> Floyd County Housing Authority Housing Office Green Acres Prestonsburg, Ky. 41653 Telephone No. 886-2717

Office Hours: 8:30-12:00 and 1:00-4:30 Application forms and proposal packets may be requested by phone, mail, or in person. Information and assistance is also available at the above office. 7-22-11

Finding a Good Job Can Be Easy

If you are job hunting, or just thinking about it, you may be wondering if anybody out there is going to hire you. All this talk of recession may have convinced you that a good job is hard to find, and you might as well stay where you are.

If you love your job, stay put. However, if you are thinking of making a change, take heart. There is good news for the job seeker.

Companies in many industries are having a very tough time finding qualified people. We are actually in a period of labor shortages for both skilled and semi-skilled workers.

What are the hottest fields today?

Anybody with technical experience, especially in computers or computer related fields (or anybody willing to undergo a technical training program to gain such experience) will have relatively little trouble landing a good job.

The computer affects virtually every aspect of our daily life, and the industry is constantly evolving. As a result, computer programmers, programmer and systems analysts, office workers trained on a word processor, and people with a background in electronics engineering and software design are in very high demand.

What if the thought of a computer terrifies you? No problem. There is also a strong demand for people with sales and marketing experience (or for those willing to train in that area). The high technology industries, such as electronics, energy, plastics and metals, offer the best opportunities in sales, but almost every industry reports the need for energetic, aggressive people with experience or interest in selling a product or service.

For people with accounting or financial experience, the recent economic slowdown is actually creating jobs. More and more companies are expanding their financial reporting departments in an effort to keep a line on costs. As a result, there is a call for people who can work with figures, either for those who have a degree in accounting or business, or those who are willing to undergo a training program (banks offer excellent opportunities of this type).

The current economy is also contributing to the considerable growth of another profession—that of human resources. As a result, people with experience in personnel, employee relations and training are being sought by companies in virtually every industry.

How Much Is Your Job Worth On The Open Market?

Have you ever wondered what somebody else is being paid to do your job?

Excellent opportunities also currently exist for people with either professional or para-professional experience in the health care industry.

There is currently a high demand country-wide for R.N.s, L.P.N.'s, nurses' aides, occupational and physical therapists, social workers, and health care technicians and administrators.

Overall, people with either technical, middle management or administrative skills are in the highest demand. However, there is also a very severe shortage of qualified secretaries.

The secretarial shortage is hurting many businesses. Nationwide, a shortage of about one-quarter million is predicted by 1985.

By virtue of execution No. 78-CI-231, dated 8/27/79, directed to Sheriff of Floyd County, Kentucky, which was issued from the office of the Clerk of the Floyd Circuit Court, in favor of Chester Porter and against Capitol Coal Sales, Inc., I will, on the 2nd day of October 1981, at the hour of 10:00 A.M. at the front door of the courthouse, in Prestonsburg, Kentucky, expose to public sale, to the highest and best bidder one set of coal tipple scales located in the coal tipple at Allen, Kentucky, on the old Dwale Road, and more particularly described as follows:

Name: Winslow Coal Scale Number: 1086

These scales were levied upon as the property of Capitol Coal Sales, Inc. This sale will be made to satisfy said execution and the costs of this action and shall be for cash, or upon a credit of three (3) months from the date of the sale, the purchaser to give bond with approved surety, to have the force and effect of a judgment, which execution may issue if not paid at maturity and shall bear interest at the rate of eight (8%) percent. At the time and place due, attendance will be given by me. This 14th day of Sept., 1981.

SECRET LOVE OF MARILYN MONROE

Constance Forslund stars as Marilyn Monroe and Lloyd Bridges portrays talent agent Johnny Hyde, who assists the aspiring actress during her early years in Hollywood in "The Secret Love Marilyn Monroe," a drama based on Garson Kanin's best-seller "Moviola," to be rebroadcast on "NBC Monday Night at the Movies," MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 28.

From the moment he "steals" Marilyn from the powerful but aging movie mogul Joe Schenck (John Marley) at a Palm Springs spa, Hyde faces rejection of his protege, or at best, little interest in her from such studio heads as Jack Warner (Michael Lerner), Samuel Goldwyn (Lee Wal-lace) and the vitriolic Harry Cohn (Vic

HIGH NOON, PART TWO

Lee Majors and Katherine Cannon star in "High Noon, Part Two: The Return of Will Kane." The motion picture-for-television, which picks up where the classic 1951 film "High Noon" left off, will be broadcast as presentation, TUES-DAY, SEPTEMBER 29

Majors stars as Will Kane, the role originated by Gary Cooper in the original "High Noon," and Cannon portrays his wife, Amy, the role played by Grace Kelly in the earlier film.

The story begins approximately one year after the climactic gunfight in the town of Hadleyville between Marshal Will Kane and the Frank Miller gang that concluded "High Noon." Will and Amy Kane make their first visit to Hadleyville since the gunfight and find it in the grip of the bounty hunting Marshal J.D. Ward.

The mini-TVs are coming

Measuring just 6 x 4 x 1 inches, this prototype represents the pocket television invented by Sinclair Research Ltd. of Cambridge, England. The prototype leatures a 3-inch diagonal black-and-white flat screen and incorporates an FM radio.

VIDEOSCOPE is a new column that will be appearing periodically to give consumers information about the current revolution in video products-everything from home computers to video games. It will examine some of the exciting technical innovations in the field and take a look at the many new ways video products are be ing used, both at home and in commercial settings.

by Chuck Bins

Add the television set to the long list of products that have been, or are in the process of being, miniaturized. Sinclair Research Ltd. has announced plans to mass produce a revolutionary pocket television, and the minisets should be available in the United States by the end of next year at a retail cost of about $125

Most striking about this new innovation is the picture tube which measures a mere 4 x 2 x 3/4 in ches. It's three times brighter, reguires one fifth the power and is 40 percent smaller (by volume) than a conventional CRT (cathode ray-tube) needed to produce a picture of the same size.

The screen is assembled from just two sheets of glass, a flat front plate and a vacuum formed backing plate. The phosphor screen is viewed through the front plate on the same side that the electrons strike. As a result, the picture is three times as bright as a conventional CRT (which normally projects from behind) with the same beam

The new, battery-operated black-and-white set eliminates the problem of a bulky picture tube by projecting the picture from an electron gun mounted on the side of the screen.

Design problem

While side projection was the obvious key to miniaturization, it created equally formidable design problems, perhaps the thorniest of which was picture distortion: without correction the picture would be shaped like a keystone-trapezoidal with curved vertical lines.

The Sinclair model solves this distortion with three sets of deflection plates, two in the gun assembly and one behind the phosphor screen, which bend the electron beam through a Fresnel lens to the correct shape.

This basic tube can be easily modified for projection TV systems where picture brightness and projector-to-screen space has been a problem. The optics and electronics could fit into a shoe-box-sized unit and project, from the side, onto a wall-mounted screen. The company forsees a three-tube projection TV with a 50-inch diagonal fullcolor display.

Sinclair Research Ltd. has contracted the Timex Corporation to manufacture the mini-sets in Dundee, Scotland. A prototype of the set has been available in the United Kingdom since 1977 Sinclair Research is based in Cambridge, England, with its U.S. headquarters in Boston.

Clive Sinclair, 40, president and founder of Sinclair Research. Ltd., made headlines in 1972 with the world's first pocket calculator. Currently Sinclair Research manufactures the world's lowest priced personal computer, the ZX80, and is a major competitor in the field.

Baby Small Talk First Verbal Signs A baby's first sound-making is

related to how his body feels-his comfort or discomfort. Growing Child, the monthly child development newsletter, reports that this is true the world over regardless of culture, color, or nationality. Most mothers soon recognize their child's sounds of contentment or calls of distress and can distinguish between them because of differences in pitch and tone.

Later, at about six weeks old, a baby will start to babble. What's he saying? Actually, he's just making sounds because they please him. When he babbles, he is exercising his speech organs just like he exercises his fingers and

You will hear a baby babble when he is content and it will sound like he is repeating a string of the same sounds. As a result of the babbling exercises, the baby learns to repeat the noises that please him, and finds pleasure in the rhythms created by regularly repeating a pattern.

With this babbling experience, the baby is making the first step in early speech-hearing matching

From the beginning adults play an important role in helping the child master language and speech by playing dialogue games and babbling back.

When baby babbles, two things happen at the same time. He "feels" something and he "hears" something. What he feels is his own activity produced. Different sounds "feel" different; the same sound (in time) comes to have the same kind of "feel."

In babbling, the baby is beginning to develop an automatic memory for what kind of "feel" makes a particular kind of sound. When he begins to make words, the memories are all there, wired in so that when he wants to make a word he knows automatically how to make the sounds. Babbling helps get this complicated process going.

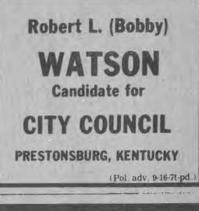

Encourage a baby's verbal skills. Imitate what he says. It doesn't matter if what he says back doesn't sound like what you said. He's still listening and learning.

For more information about the physical and social development of children up to the age of six years, write to Growing Child, PO Box 620N. Lafayette, IN 47902. Include child's birthdate when writing.

The Norris-LaGuardia Act of 1932 prohibited federal court injunctions in labor disputes, except as specified, and outlawed so-called "yellow dog" contracts, according to the U.S. Department of Labor's "Important Events in American Labor History.

THE ANXIETIES associated with the doctor's office may well be softened for young patients at McDowell Appalachian Regional Hospital, thanks to the Labor Day weekend activity of a group of McDowell High School students.

The six students, members of Teens Who Care, spent the weekend redecorating the hospital's pediatric examining rooms, choosing bright colors and Raggedy Ann and Andy wallpaper.

The student service organization is coordinated at McDowell by Lucy Reynolds, a teacher at the high school there. Pictured above are members of the group. ### Group Celebrates Land Challenge

More than fifty members and supporters of the Knott County Citizens for Social and Economic Justice (CSEJ) attended a picnic September 13, celebrating local families' challenge to land ownership in Knott county.

The picnic was held near Buckhorn on a tract of over 700 acres of land that local families staked claim to over a year ago. In April 1980, heirs of D.K. Shepherd moved onto the land, after more than two years of research convinced them that the land still belongs to their family. The Shepherd family is challenging gas, coal and timber companies who have for years claimed the mineral rights on the land. Many Appalachian families like the Shepherds have lost the old family land when they moved away or new deeds were written by outside land speculators.

During the celebration, guests toured the land and saw the cabin the family has built. Several speakers closely involved with the battle described the land challenge.

"At least 300 heirs actually own property on this creek," said Mart Shepherd, one of the heirs. "I'm not afraid to challenge the coal companies. Nobody's so big you can't fight them.'

Since the Shepherd case gained widespread attention last spring, the Knott CSEJ has helped several other families research their land. At present about five families involving over 2000 heirs are looking into possible heirship claims in Knott county.

The Knott CSEJ was founded in 1973 to organize its low-income member families on a variety of economic and

Women and Money

By VICKI DENNIS

Kentucky Commission on Women "We are suddenly seeing that equal rights is not a reason for upper middleclass women to gather together in consciousness-raising sessions. It is economics. It is survival. The message is clear. We need to translate rights into economics."

Congresswoman Patricia Schroeder

Economics seems to be the chief topic of conversation in Kentucky these days. Talk is not, however, of Wall Street, tax shelters and stock options as much as of inflation, high interest rates and the rising cost of food, utilities and housing.

Economics, that mystic subject which until recently was limited to stockbrokers, bankers and students with thick glasses, has invaded the minds and homes of middle America. And middle American women are talking economics as much as men.

Whatever their economic level (poor, working poor or middle-class), women have always been on the lower end of the economic scale, left at the back end of the economic bus, without money and the clout it brings. Consider these facts:

-Women earn 59 cents to every dollar earned by men.

-The median income for collegegraduate women is $12,300; for collegegraduate men, $20,324.

-Women constitute the fastestgrowing poverty group in America.

-Unemployment rates are higher women than for men and higher working inside the home or competing in the labor force. The Attorney General's Office and the Kentucky Commission on women are planning a series of programs throughout the state to answer questions on women and the law in Kentucky. Check your newspaper or call the Attorney General's Office at (502) 564-4047 for more information.

-You may not be protected under the current Kentucky inheritance tax laws. Talk to a tax attorney or an estate planner. The Kentucky Bar Association has a referral service to put you in touch with a tax attorney. Call 800-372-2999. If you live in Jefferson County, call the Lawyers References Service, 583-1801. Legal service programs are available for those on reduced incomes. Call the clerk at your district or circuit court and ask for the closest legal aid office.

-If you find yourself in serious financial trouble, counseling can often be found at local banks or credit unions. Or, if you can get to Louisville, take advantage of ACCEPT (Agency for Credit Counseling, Education and Preparational Training), a free service to help you with financial planning and advice in debt liquidation. Call (502) 583-3626.

For more information, write the Kentucky Commission on Women, 614A Shelby Street, Frankfort, Ky. 40601 or call (502) 564-6643.

And help someone you love feel a little closer to home. That inexpensive visit to Miami is based on the 60% discount off the weekday rate. You can save with the 60% discount rate anytime Saturday, Sunday until 5 p.m., and from 11 p.m. to 8 a.m. Sunday through Friday when you dial the 1+ way.* In fact, during those times, you can call out-of-state anywhere in the continental U.S. and talk for 20 minutes for $3.84 or less. still for minority women.

-As these figures show, economics is absolutely a woman's issue. More women are joining the work force each year in an effort to survive today's hard times. Although women are traditionally clustered in low-paying jobs, they are making major contributions to, or in many cases, are totally responsible for, the family income. Yet many of these same women have not been able to develop the money management skills needed to successfully stretch their funds and to plan and cushion themselves for a future that may even be harder.

As Pat Schroeder pointed out, the message is clear. Women of all ages and economic levels must get a solid understanding of their own financial situation. All women, whether single, married, raising children by themselves or suddenly alone because of death of a spouse or divorce, face the same economic issues-living on retirement income, developing a credit base, understanding insurance needs, adapting to a rising inflation rate or planning estate distribution.

Here are a few ways to help you get started:

-Watch newspapers in your area for classes or seminars on money management offered by local colleges or banks. This is often an inexpensive way to gain an overview of financial planning.

-Ask if your bank has counselors who can advise you on investments and savings plans which will provide the highest return on your money.

-Know your legal rights as a woman

Mini-Convention Today

The Prestonsburg Community College Science Fiction Guild is sponsoring a science fiction mini-convention on the second floor of the Pike Building on the college campus today (Wednesday) at 6 p.m.

The activities will include an electonic games competition, using home version Atari game units. Prizes will be awarded to the top scoring Asteriods and Missile Command players. A grand prize will be awarded to the player with the highest total score for both games. In addition to the electronic games contests, two science fiction films will be shown. Also, a wide variety of used science fiction books and magazines will be available for sale. Trades can also be arranged.

Admission will be charged to the mini-convention, the charge to be applied to the annual membership fee of $10. All proceeds will go to club activities.
