

Mothers To Challenge Early Class Dismissal

The Floyd Board of Education will be asked today (Wednesday) to formulate a policy regarding early dismissal of students for sports events.

In a letter to The Times, three Floyd mothers claim county schoolchildren have been released as early as 12:30 p.m. for regional, district and even grade school basketball tournaments.

Joyce Everly, of Prestonsburg, Veta Jones, of Banner, and Kathy Hatfield, of Drift, say they will ask the board to stop the early dismissals except in emergency situations. Citing low scores of Floyd students on standardized achievement tests in recent years, they ask that "priorities be geared toward keeping all students in the classroom."

A committee of grade school principals recently recommended that the number of grade school basketball games be reduced in an effort to reduce the current emphasis on the sport. The panel was concerned at the length of the basketball season, the late hours at which youngsters must play, crowded gym schedules, and unruly behavior on the part of fans.

"We talk about sportsmanship in class. Hopefully, coaches talk about it too. But his is where they learn the lesson," said one principal, in reference to reports that grade school net play erupts with growing frequency in ugly confrontations between spectators and referees. "Mostly it's the mothers and dads" who are at fault, he commented.

Superintendent E.P. Grigsby, Jr. said he would soon make recommendations to the board designed to "put sports in proper perspective."

Meanwhile, two articles in the current issue of PTA Today, the magazine of the National Parent-Teacher Association, discuss the role of parents in determining the effects of sports on children. Athletic competition has emotional as well as physical impact on a child's development, the authors note.

George O. McCalep, an assistant professor at Georgia State University, in an article entitled "What is a Good Sports Program?" tells parents to do some thorough investigating before registering their child in an athletic program. The purpose and objectives of the program should be in writing, distributed widely to coaches, participants and parents, and reviewed annually at open meetings, he advises. The objectives should be geared toward equal fun for all participants and the right to take part in games regardless of ability level, he adds.

According to McCalep, if the win-at-all-costs syndrome exists in a sports program, the likelihood of psychological and physical harm to a child increases. McCalep suggests several ways to reduce the pressures of competition, including dropping most valuable player awards, eliminating publicity focusing on individuals, grouping children according to maturity and ability levels rather than age, emphasizing physical fitness, and placing children in leadership roles.

A key factor in the quality of a sports program is the coach, McCalep says, but good coaches are hard to find. Without training, volunteer coaches may resort to techniques they encountered as sports participants or to what they perceive to be the methods

Dr. Wright Quits Two UK Posts, Sues for Fees

Dr. Ballard Wright, former Prestonsburg physician, resigned last week as director of the University of Kentucky black-lung clinic and as chairman of UK's anesthesiology department. He has been under investigation for withholding more than $1000,000 in black-lung fees.

Following his resignation, Wright filed suit in Fayette Circuit Court, disputing the university's claim to the fees, which Wright received from private attorneys for his testimony on behalf of miners seeking black-lung benefits.

The issue of Wright's handling of deposition fees was first raised by the Lexington Herald in a February 26 story. The Herald last week quoted three sources as saying the amount involved may actually be between $200,000 and $300,000.

In his suit, Wright said he believed he was only required to turn over to the university the fees he earned from the state, not those from private attorneys. He would not have tried to earn private deposition fees if he had known the university would claim them, he said.

Other issues raised by the Herald story include a report that, on several occasions, Wright had testified under oath that he had personally examined miners who were actually examined by other doctors, and a further report that the black-lung clinic had contracted for computer services with a company owned by Wright and his family.

LENNA, UP A TREE

Last Friday was a day which lent itself to young men becoming fanciful and all that, and so Lenna Moore celebrated his 87th birthday by shinning up the two maples in his yard and pruning them to a fare-thee-well.

Later in the day, he stopped by to fill me in on the details. I had known earlier that he had designs on the trees and had hoped we would get a picture of him out on a limb, so to speak, but he's at that impetuous age which doesn't dilly-dally and so had finished the job before he thought of a picture. Lenna said that he not only cut away the unwanted branches but after his return to Earth cut these up to use later in "sticking up" his tomatoes and beans.

All that said, he paused and waited for my response. I said nothing, just

Stumbo Elated at Passage Of Truck Tax as Road Aid

Although the session had its disappointments for him, it's possible that no legislator left Frankfort last week more elated than Rep. Greg Stumbo.

His "coal truck tax" bill (HB 810), which he introduced in the beginning days of the session had run the gauntlet of committees, amendments, floor votes, companion legislation in the Senate, conference haggling—and last Wednesday it won final approval.

Stumbo's other coal-related bill, which would have affected the so-called broad-form deed, was not so successful.

The truck tax bill provides that the coal operators will pay for repairs to roads damaged by overweight trucks which haul their product to market. The bill requires the operator, not the trucker, to procure a trucking permit, which costs nothing, but after that he will pay four-tenths of 1% of the value of his coal if it is hauled more than 15 miles, or two-tenths of 1% if its hauled 15 miles or less.

The legislation is "landmark" in nature, since it is the first of its kind to be enacted by any state legislature.

The first $1.6 million collected by the new truck weight tax will go into the state road fund. Of the remainder, 25 percent will go directly to the road funds of the counties which produce the coal, while the state will receive 75 percent to repair state highways in those counties.

How much the coal counties' share will be depends on various factors—on the selling price of coal, how much is trucked, how far it is trucked, and so on—but Rep. Stumbo "guessed" the tax could generate between $10 and $15 million for the coal counties and possibly $1 million a year for this county.

Urging passage of the bill, Stumbo said Kentucky should no longer keep its "head in the sand" ignoring the overweight problem and the failure to enforce a law that was on the books. "Right now, people are hauling coal in excess of the weight limit. The law hasn't been addressed or adhered to," he pointed out.

An insignificant item tagged onto the bill escaped wide notice until it was passed. That was the amendment by Senator Benny Ray Bailey, providing that trucks carrying coal and other materials subject to spillage be covered. The law also applies to gravel and other materials.

Rep. Chris Perkins, of Knott county, commented, "It's an acceptable beginning solution," but added he's not yet certain it will generate enough money to repair the damaged roads.

Senator John Doug Hays, of Pikeville, voted against the bill but said he had only minor objections to it. "It was mostly fear of the unknown," he said, explaining that no other coal-

New means of miner transport is demonstrated by Ernest Graham Burchett, superintendent of Bush & Burchett Coal Co. at the company's mine near Ball Alley Curve here.

May Make Name for Itself . . .

New Machine Displayed Here Views Easy, Safe Mine Travel

It's so new it doesn't yet have a name, but, whatever the trademark, it is expected to become a by-word around coal mines.

Branchchild of Donald L. (Dootney) Horn, of Prestonsburg, the machine is designed as a means of travel inside the lowest of mine roofs to the face of the coal, without danger of an electrically-generated explosion, since it is operated by footpower with only one small, safety-approved battery powering its headlight.

The Coldwater Machine Co., Coldwater, O., has built the prototype of the machine pictured above and expects to have it in mass production soon. The prototype was brought here last week-end by Coldwater officials, Jerome F. Meyer and Ted Hiday, and was demonstrated at the Bush & Burchett Mine No. 1 at Ball Alley here where the inventor of the machine once operated the Old-Style Mining Company.

It will be demonstrated at coal shows over the country as a prelude to large-scale production.

Mining men who have seen the machine in operation are enthusiastic. Its producers claim for it that it is the answer to the problem of conveying workers, supervisors, technicians and inspection personnel to the face of the coal, even in the thinnest seams being worked. Without this means of conveyance, men going to the face of the coal may ride a battery-powered car only a part

Hays Wins Battle For Rest Area, Tho Bill Fails To Pass

The Mountain Parkway will again boast a public rest area with restroom facilities, Department of Transportation Secretary Frank Metts has assured a Pikeville legislator.

A bill filed by Sen. John Doug Hays, which would have required the state to maintain a rest area with facilities on all state toll roads, died in committee last week, but not before Hays received a written commitment from Metts to build rest areas on either side of the Mountain Parkway near Campton.

The Transportation Department last year closed the parkway's only rest area, which was at Campton, to prevent contamination of the city's water supply, the adjacent lake created when the Parkway was built. The new rest area will be built west of Campton and will serve motorists from KY 15 as well as parkway traffic.

Metts promised Hays that design will begin immediately and construction will begin within a few months.

Widow of Victim Asks $27 Million

Mrs. Ernestine McGaffee, of Branham Village, near here, has filed in Martin county a suit asking more than $27 million for the mine-associated death last June 24 of her husband.

Named defendants in the action were Martin Council Coal, Lee Construction, Triple B Corp. and its president, Gary Branham.

Her husband, George Elmer McGaffee, was struck on his head by a rock hurled by a dynamite blast a distance of some 1200 feet.

The suit, which alleges "wantonness, negligence and carelessness" on the part of the defendants, claims that the victim had been asked by a Martin County Coal mine foreman to place his truck across the entrance to the blasting site. After McGaffee had been hurt, it also is claimed, Martin County Coal failed to provide required emergency care, and 45 minutes elapsed between the time of the accident and

Elmer Music at 90, a Testimony to Hard Work

Spend a few minutes with Elmer Music and you realize that here's a fellow who can't sit still for a minute. Tools and farm implements lie scattered about and part of the two-and-a-half acres he works is visible from the back porch of his home on Spradlin Branch, near here.

He had just finished painting his john boat when he paused from his chores for an interview. Friday morning, and earlier he had climbed an apple tree and pruned it for his daughter who lives nearby.

Life for Elmer Music has been hard work. It had to be that way in the early days, he'll tell you, just to survive. Now, although times in general are a lot easier, Music continues to work hard—even at age 90.

Born, like so many of this area's older citizens, in a mud-chinked log cabin, Music recalls working, as a small child, around the big river boats that plied the Big Sandy. He would help unload powder kegs or "carry chicken coops up the bank for a piece of candy." He remembers the big steamboats that would run "mostly of a winter," including The Maxie Ghost, a sidewheeler. The Cando, largest of the boats he recalls, The Alka, and The Yellow Dog, which was painted bright yellow. Later, as a young man, he would "buy middlins off the steamboats to feed my stock."

Music also talked of the days when logs were joined in huge rafts and floated downriver to Catlettsburg and other Ohio River towns. "I've seen poplar logs run solid for three days and nights," he said. "They were so thick one time that my uncle walked across the river on the logs."

Those were also the days of the tragic smallpox and flu epidemics which claimed the lives of thousands of Eastern Kentuckians. "That's when I learned to make caskets," he said.

His life in the mountains was nearly interrupted when he was inducted into the Army in 1918. "Me and a bunch more boys were at the depot waiting to be shipped off and all the women were cryin' and carryin' on," he recalled. "But then word came down that they'd signed peace and all of a sudden everybody, including me, was tickled to death."

After that Music started the first of 37 years' work in the mines. Sixteen years he worked at Cliff Coal Company and later at Colonial, Bull Creek, and

Dinwood Group To Fight Ruling In Tipple Case

Dinwood residents will appeal a federal agency's ruling that a coal tippie in that community does not fall under federal stripmine law.

An appeals board of the U.S. Department of the Interior ruled recently that the Dinco Coal Sales, Inc. tippie does not come under the law because it is situated too far from the mine from which it draws coal. The tippie is about 25 miles distant from the company's nearest mine, which is in Knott county.

David Rubinstein, an attorney with the Appalachian Research and Defense Fund, said his two clients, Mary Jane and Ivan Debord, would file an appeal in U.S. District Court in Pikeville.

The appeal will mark one more round in the eight-month-old dispute between 16 Dinwood residents and tippie owner George Newsom, of Paintsville, which began when Office of Surface Mining Inspector Steve Cassel cited the tippie last July because it was being operated without the permission of nearby homeowners.

According to a 1977 federal law, written waivers are required for all surface coal-mining operations conducted within 300 feet of occupied dwellings. However, whether a tippie at a distance from the minesite is a surface coal mining operation has proved to be a matter of opinion.

An administrative law judge ruled in October that it is not. Dinwood residents appealed, arguing that the distance from the mine is irrelevant. In a 2-1 decision, however, the appeals board has upheld the judge.

3665 Reported Signers Request Liquor Decision

By a vote of 901 to 652, Paintsville voters chose yesterday (Tuesday) to remain dry, the relatively large margin surprising observers who had predicted a close finish. Dry forces won majorities in all six city precincts and among absentee voters as well. (In 1972, when Paintsville voters last faced the question of legal liquor sales, dry forces won by a margin of only 75 votes and two city precincts voted wet.)

Floyd voters will have a chance on June 29 to decide whether to legalize liquor sales in this county.

That is the date set Monday by Judge-Executive Jerry Lafferty, Jr. for a countywide local-option election here after members of a group called Citizens for Alcoholic Beverage Control had filed a petition with the county court clerk calling for the wet-dry vote.

Fred Bingham, treasurer of the group, said the petition bore 3665 signatures, 10 percent more than the number required by law.

The question on the ballot will be, "Are you in favor of the sale of alcoholic beverages in Floyd County, Kentucky?" Lafferty said. In 1969, the last time the question was asked, a substantial majority of voters answered it in the negative.

Woman's Suit Asks Accounting for Gas, Damages of $250,000

A dispute between owners of adjacent gas leases on Mare Creek wound up in Circuit Court here last week. Gypsy Williams Hughes, of Ashland, filing a damage suit against S.J. Bradley, of Betsy Layne, whom she accuses of taking gas from her wells.

In her suit, Mrs. Hughes says she owns a number of gas-producing wells and a gas distribution system in the Mare Creek area. Bradley also owns wells in the area, gas from which is transmitted, by agreement, through Mrs. Hughes' distribution system.

However, at least some of the gas for which she has paid Bradley came from her own wells, plaintiff claims. By removing a valve separating the two systems, Bradley caused gas to drain from her wells to his—gas which he then sold as his own—Mrs. Hughes says.

She is entitled to an accounting and damages for gas "wrongfully converted" and $250,000 in punitive damages, and seeks a jury trial, she says in her petition. Mrs. Hughes is represented by Lexington attorneys McBrayer, McGinnis and Leslie.

(A lawsuit presents only one side of the issue in dispute.)

Park Is Site for Easter Dawn Rite

For the second consecutive year, a community tradition of an outdoor Easter sunrise service will be revived—weather permitting. The Floyd County Ministerial Association has planned the Easter dawn service for 7 a.m. at the Jenny Wiley Amphitheatre. At about that time, the sun rises above the mountains in the beautiful park setting, commemorating for Christians the resurrection of Jesus Christ "early in the morning on the first day of the week."

Local ministers will participate in the service, as well as members of the Prestonsburg High School Honor Choir, who will provide special music under the direction of Elizabeth Frazier.

Guest speaker will be the Rev. Charles Wilcox, of Hazard, Chaplain Consultant for the Appalachian Regional Hospitals. Mr. Wilcox, an ordained Southern Baptist minister, organizes chaplaincy programs at the ARH hospitals, and recently did so for the McDowell hospital. Several members of the Ministerial Association participate in the program there.

Worshippers are reminded to bring cushions or something to sit on, as the amphitheatre seating is not in place yet. In the event of rain on Easter morning, the service will be moved indoors to May Lodge. The lodge has announced that there will be a special Easter breakfast buffet available after the sunrise service.

American Impressionists Art Exhibited In Paris

It is April in Paris, and after a long absence, the Americans have returned to the City of Light.

These Americans are not tourists, however. They are paintings, part of a priceless collection of sun-filled Impressionist landscapes and portraits on loan from American museums and private collections and exhibited together for the first time in France, their native land.

The oils and watercolors were painted in the late 19th and early 20th centuries by a dozen or so American artists who studied in France and then sailed home with ideas for adapting the innovative French Impressionist techniques to American subjects and artistic traditions. The characteristically happy, optimistic artworks they created in France are on exhibit at the Petit Palais in Paris along with a large selection of made-in-America Impressionist paintings—still among the most loved of the nation's art treasures.

Organized by the Smithsonian Institution Traveling Exhibition Service and sponsored by the U.S. International Communication Agency (USICA), the show joins a growing roster of art exhibits mounted overseas by both private and public organizations to give foreign audiences a look at American life and customs.

In recent months, 70 works of art spanning 250 years of U.S. history were exhibited in China, a first; another show, this of American porcelain, will soon be sent to the Far East; a collection of American-owned El Greco paintings is on the way to the Prado Museum in Madrid, and after Paris, the Impressionist paintings are scheduled to travel to East Berlin; Vienna; Bucharest, Romania, and Sofia, Bulgaria.

'Dream' Home Said Out of Reach Now

The ideal "dream home," the home which for decades has been the standard of success and prosperity in this country, may be out of reach for most Americans today, believes the president of the Institute of Real Management (IREM).

"To Americans, a detached, single-family home represents more than just a place to live. It is a complex cultural symbol of family unity, independence and achievement—achievement of the American dream," said Tan Tek Lum, CPM, IREM president.

"Today, high interest rates, continuing inflation and escalating land, construction and energy costs make owning such a 'dream' home unaffordable for most Americans."

For these reasons, Lum believes, Americans will have to reassess their perception of the "American dream" and revise their ideas of what they need and want in a home.

"As most Americans have had to adjust to smaller cars, they will have to adjust to smaller homes, whether in detached or multiplex buildings or in medium- or high-density apartment buildings," stated Lum.

The IREM president warned that young persons may have to rent or live with relatives for a longer period of time before being able to afford to purchase a home.

"Even then," he continued, "they may have to adjust to condominium or cooperative housing or a two-family home, as more of these are being built to make housing affordable for first-time buyers."

For all of these reasons, affordable housing has become, in Lum's opinion, a serious social issue.

"The kind of housing that the majority of Americans want can no longer be built at a price they can afford," he concluded. "The 'bigger is better' isolated housing of the past must give way to more efficient, higher density housing that makes the best use of valuable, limited resources."

Lum's remarks appear in the article, "Housing and the American Dream," in the January/February issue of the JOURNAL OF PROPERTY MANAGEMENT. For a free copy of the article, write to the JOURNAL at 430 N. Michigan Avenue, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

Energy Bills Are Hot Year-Round

Winter's record heating bills are now behind us but the battle against high energy costs continues. For as sure as spring is the season of house cleaning, summer will be the season of suffocating heat and high cooling bills.

State Public Protection and Regulation Secretary Tracy Farmer reminds Kentuckians that spiraling utility rates demand increasing energy awareness. "Energy is not going to get any cheaper, at least not in the foreseeable future," Farmer said. "So it just makes good sense for everyone to conserve."

The Public Service Commission, one of 13 agencies within the Public Protection and Regulation Cabinet, has a few tips to take some of the heat off your pocketbook:

—If you plan on buying air conditioning, evaluate your needs first. Small, appropriately-placed room units are often sufficient. They are cheaper than large units or central air and they use less energy.

—Clean your air conditioner filters once a month and replace them when needed.

—Close windows and draw drapes during the day to keep out the sun's heat. Open windows at night to ventilate your house.

—Dry clothes outside if possible. If a dryer must be used, use it late in the evening.

—Cooking should also be done in the cooler evening hours.

—Insulation, which is so valuable in the winter, also pays benefits during the summer. Hot air is kept out while cool air is kept in.

For more information on saving energy, contact your local University of Kentucky Extension office or your local utility.

Pre-Planning and Choosing Your Cemetery Lot

We plan our futures with such care. Yet our futures must include a final resting place—and that frequently receives little or no planning. Sparing the bereaved this emotional detail and the anxieties with which it is associated, this is a wise thing you can do ahead of time.

Presented here, then, are several questions often asked about the early selection of a cemetery lot. You might well ask them of yourself:

- A. Which cemetery and location of plot?
- B. How many spaces and what's the cost?
- C. If we move away from here, will the cemetery buy the lots back?
- D. Can I sell my lots to someone else?
- E. Is the cemetery properly funded for Perpetual Care?

Some of these questions can't be answered without some action on your part. You should investigate and discuss them with representatives of cemeteries under consideration.

If you have specific questions, feel free to call on us. We'll try to help you find the answers.

Van Lear until he retired in 1955 at Elkhorn Coal Company on Buck's Branch. In those early days of the industry in this section, he said, a miner would "shoot from the solid," furnishing his own powder and tools. "You'd wind up making $1.25 a day but only clear about 75 cents," he pointed out. But his work in the mines provided enough to support his wife and eight children.

Since his retirement from the mines he has farmed mostly, to this day tending the bottoms near his home as well as keeping a stand or two of bees. His productivity has remained at a high level over the years and just last summer, he proudly boasts, "I sold $300 worth of canteloupes."

Fishing remains his favorite pastime and he owns two boats—a flat-bottom, two-piece rig that he manhandles over creek and river banks, and a larger, aluminum boat for lake fishing. A skilled catfisherman, he takes pride in the fact that he and his wife, who, until her death last year at 89 was a regular fishing companion, caught the "biggest fish ever to come out of Dewey Lake." The fish was a 61-lb. 4-oz. mudcat caught about 10 years ago on a trotline. "It could have swallowed a hen," Music recalls of the fish.

As a fisherman, he has seen the quality of the area's water become degraded. Siltation, he says, has filled in heads of hollows at Dewey Lake and access by boat is much more restricted as a result than in days past, and he is saddened by the fact that in the Big Sandy "you don't see tadpoles and minnows like you once did."

In reviewing his life, Elmer Music is obviously proud of his continuing ability to work and be self-sufficient. The biggest change in people over the years, he thinks, is that "they don't know how to make it anymore."

"If you'd turn this world around to what it was like when I was a boy," he said, "half 'em would starve to death."

"All these hills used to be tilled," Music said, and he recalled with a smile that "Old Preacher Sam Spradlin would tend a patch on the hill and you'd always hear him up there singing 'Unclouded Day.'"

One suspects that Music would prefer to see the hills tilled again with every family raising most of its food as was the norm in years past. Beginning the tenth decade of his life, it is clear that he will continue to live in just such a manner—working hard and "tending" the hills.

producing state has attempted to solve its overweight problems in this way.

Eastern Kentucky legislators shared in top awards after media representatives were polled. Sen. Nelson Allen, D-Belfonte, native of Floyd county, shared "Most Colorful" honors with Rep. LOOKING FOR AN EVENT?

Want to stage a special Event and having trouble deciding what to do? Don't give up; there's something just waiting to be done.

The Sweetwater, Texas Jaycees, for example, staged their 24th annual Rattlesnake Roundup, a few weeks ago. Nobody thought there was much future in it when they started, years ago, but here of the highlights of this year's roundup:

—8000 pounds of snake meat weighed in the first day and paid for by the Jaycees at $4 a pound (and every ounce sold at a profit).

—Bus tours for non-hunters who wanted to see how it was done.

—Professional snakehandlers milking venom from captured rattlers for future pain-killing purposes.

—A dance at the Sweetwater Country Club (no snake dances permitted, we presume).

—A rattlesnake eating contest.

—Prizes for the smallest and the largest snake captured.

—Finally, a Miss Snake Charmer Pageant with about 20 girls competing for the honor of reigning over the activities—and, better, for a $1000 scholarship.

Think this is—er, a bit primitive? From the proceeds the Jaycees sponsor Sunshine Inn, a facility for the mentally and physically handicapped; contribute to muscular dystrophy research; help finance softball and Little League teams, and contribute substantially to assorted charities.

BE PATRIOTIC!

With a shortage of meat looming there, Russia urges its people to eat more potatoes. But never let it be said the Soviets have anything on us. For several years now, the United States has displayed placards reading, "Eat more possum."

RIGHT!—WHO, ME?

As of today (Tuesday, April 6), I stand 100% correct in my estimate of the Cincinnati Reds. Couldn't hit a barn door with the proverbial handful of birdshot at 10 paces. Still, I'm hoping coming games will prove me wrong, as usual. I'm one of these people who's so pessimistic in his predictions that he can't afford for them to be correct.

Further, I predict...

In that year, dry forces won by a margin of 2654 votes, giving them their biggest victory of the five local-option elections held in this county since the repeal of Prohibition.

A recent attempt to schedule a local-option vote in the third magisterial district came to nothing, following legal advice that where a county has previously voted dry, it is not lawful to hold a wet-dry election in an area smaller than the county. The failure of that attempt led to the current request for a countywide election.

Meanwhile, Paintsville voters went to the polls yesterday (Tuesday) to decide the wet-dry issue there. The city could receive as many as 10 liquor licenses if a majority of Paintsville's 2800 registered voters approve legal sales.

Yet another local-option election is set for April 24 in Morehead.

SHOWER HONORS MISS HYDEN

The home of Mrs. Tom O. McGuire was the scene of a miscellaneous shower, honoring Miss Judy Hyden, bride-elect of Mr. Wayne Combs, Thursday, March 25, at 7:30 in the evening. The dining room table was covered with an imported French lace cloth, and had for its centerpiece a floral arrangement of pink and white carnations, with silver candelabra holding tall pink candles. Presiding at the punch bowl was Mrs. Herschel Tackett. Mrs. Joe Buchanan served cake and other refreshments. Many relatives and friends called throughout the evening, bringing gifts of silver, china, linens, and miscellaneous items. Serving as hostesses with Mrs. McGuire were Mesdames Joe Buchanan, William O. Goebel, Sr., Chalmers H. Frazier, Jack F. Wells, Carl T. Watson, Joe W. Burchett, Herschel Tackett, Marshall Davidson, Betsy Lambert, Shag Branham, and Jody Fannin.

of the way but for the sake of safety may not go to the coal face. They must leave the car and crawl the remaining distance.

There is one approved vehicle which may be taken all the way, Horn said, but its cost is about $18,000.

His product will sell for less than $500.

The new machine weighs from 35 to 40 pounds and is propelled as one would ride a bicycle, pedalling while lying almost prone, and because of its gear ratio, with little effort.

It was this bicycle principle which brought the Coldwater Machine Co. into the production picture. When Mr. Horn first conceived the idea of such a machine about two months ago, he wrote the Huffly Company, manufacturer of a well-known bicycle, and Huffly in turn contacted Coldwater, which manufactures parts for Huffly bikes.

The prototype shown here is complete except for a headrest for the operator and a tool box yet to be added.

Protest Early Dismissal

(Ed. note: The following letter was addressed to E.P. Grigsby, Jr., superintendent of schools.)

In our phone conversation of March 15, I asked for an explanation regarding schools dismissing early (12:30) on March 12 and 15. You told me they were being dismissed at that time because Prestonsburg High School's principal made a formal request for early dismissal. His reason, you told me, was due to the heavy and early demand for tickets to the regional basketball tournament games.

I told you then that I thought all schools were being dismissed at that time. You said you thought it was just schools that have an interlocking bus schedule with Prestonsburg High School.

I then asked you that this practice be stopped in view of the fact that the state required 175 days a year a six hours a day classroom time that was not being adhered to. I believe you said it was only going to go on for one more day but you would hope that something could be done.

We then discussed the low test scores our students received in the past few years. I told you that our priorities should be geared toward keeping all students in the classroom. You gave me the impression that Prestonsburg High School's early dismissal was an isolated incident and was not the practice county wide.

However, we found this practice to be going on all over the county. Not only during regional tournament games but during district games and in grade school tournament play as well.

Because you and the Board of Education continue to allow practices such as these to go on throughout Floyd county, we can only conclude they you approve of the overemphasis on sports which is causing the educational welfare of our students to take a lower priority.

Students are being taken out of class not only for ballgames. They are also losing valuable classtime when schools such as Allen grade school are allowed to take students from class to the lunchroom to purchase pop or ice cream each afternoon.

We believe that early dismissal for any reason other than emergency situations should be stopped.

We are therefore requesting to appear before the Floyd County Board of Education to express our concerns and ask that an immediate policy dealing with this problem be adopted.

The decision reflects a change in OSM policy regarding the regulation of tipples and it also squares with a tittle law adopted by the state legislature last week with OSM's concurrence.

According to OSM regulations published in 1979 the only operations that must be "at or near a mine" to fall under the law are coal-loading operations. The implication was that distance from the mine is not a factor in the regulation of other facilities, such as those that process, prepare or crush coal.

The new OSM policy, and the new Kentucky law, reflect a change in that interpretation, a change that will affect not only the residents of Dinwood but those in many communities where tipples are located that are at a distance from the mines they serve.

What has changed is that the crushing of coal is now being thought of not as a type of processing or preparation but as part of the loading process. That means that tipples that only crush cannot be regulated by OSM unless they are at or near a minesite.

Lauds Community Effort

In all these 38 years I've lived at the mouth of Cow Creek, any time I looked out my windows or doors or perhaps walked in my yard or just up the highway to look around, or perhaps I was going to the little one-room school house where I taught my neighbors' children for 14 years—not once can I remember the ditches and roadsides NOT being covered with trash, cans, bottles or litter of every kind. You name it and it was there.

But not any more! I can walk up the road and look and it really is clean—thanks to the Cow Creek Area Development Club. Phillip Goble, president of our club, met with his neighbors at the Cow Creek Church Annex and together they worked out a date to get rid of the litter on our road.

(The first date was Saturday, March 27, with an alternate date of April 3. Of course, when we awoke March 27, Mother Nature had covered our trash with snow, so we couldn't see a bit of it; therefore, we used the alternate day.) I wish Paul Neil had been here with his camera for a before-and-after picture and also to have taken one of the group of enthusiastic workers. It was really something to see. It truly was a thrill to see and be part of this community activity. Those who didn't work the roadsides and fields stayed in the kitchen and helped there. Others cared for children, so those who were younger could work, and others donated food. We had so much fun and everyone had contributed so much food that we served both lunch and supper to those who wanted to join us. We had the use of our county dump truck and the use of several trucks here in our community.

No, we don't have our job completed, but we have a very good beginning. When a group of neighbors came yesterday to put a Cow Creek Area Development Club sign on our old garage which many candidates have used for years, I saw a scrap of paper and made the remark—"Oh, look, we have left a piece!"

Cow Creek Area Development Club, I stand proud of you—I give you my pledge to be right back in that kitchen, helping with our next project. We have made a good start; now, let's move forward to make our community a better place to raise our children, to have our homes, to help our neighbors and to love and serve our God. This is a wonderful community effort. If anyone in the area is not a member of this organization, we extend to you an invitation to join us.

'Too Cowardly... Too Stupid?'

I am writing this letter because I can no longer keep silence on the substance of the broad-form deed.

The people of Eastern Kentucky do not own their land. Everything of value is owned by various oil and coal companies. The only right the so-called landowner has is to pay taxes on the land to a government in Frankfort which is clearly against him.

Why the people won't fight for ownership of their land, I don't know. I can only assume that they are too cowardly to do anything about it, too stupid or just don't care how much they are kicked around.

Luckily, my stay in Eastern Kentucky was short. You see, I couldn't find any land where the so-called owner could make me a valid deed.

Economy May Change Real Estate Market

Changes in the nation's economy over the past few years are leading to upheavals in the real estate investment market, according to a leading economist and real estate analyst.

"Since 1979, a virtual revolution has occurred in real estate finance that will immensely affect all aspects of real estate," said Anthony Downs, senior fellow at the Brookings Institution, a private research organization in Washington, D.C.

"The basic cause of the revolution is a change in the expectations of capital suppliers concerning future inflation rates," he asserted.

Downs explained that continuing high inflation in the late 1970s and early '80s led to a boom for those persons investing in real estate.

"It was highly profitable," he stated, "to borrow money, buy real estate, and let rapidly-rising prices build up equity gains that were enormous compared to the initial investment."

That changed in the '70s, however, when lenders began losing money on loans due to inflation. The results—higher interest rates and variable mortgages—shifted responsibilities of future inflation from the lender to the borrower.

This shift, Downs believes, is likely to have a major impact on real estate investment and the property management profession in the near future.

Specifically, Downs believes that mortgage rates are likely to remain high; equity investments in real estate will be less profitable in the 1980s; commercial and industrial rents will rise more slowly, due to a slowing of inflation, while residential rents will rise when the economic recovery begins this year; real estate will appreciate more slowly than it has in the past.

All of these events will have a strong impact on property management, said Downs. Property managers, he stated, will have to revise their practices to meet the new challenges that will confront them in the future.

Downs' remarks appear in an article, "The Economic Outlook for Property Management in 1982," in the January/February issue of the JOURNAL OF PROPERTY MANAGEMENT. For a free copy of the article, write to the JOURNAL at 430 N. Michigan Avenue, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

Anthony Downs will be a featured speaker at IREM's new seminar, "Pension Fund Real Estate Investment and Management Conference," to be held in five cities in 1982.

Carl Perkins Files For 7th Dist. Post

Representative Carl D. Perkins this week filed for renomination and reelection to the Seventh District Congressional seat he has held since 1949.

The veteran Kentucky legislator, a resident of Hindman, is chairman of the House Committee on Education and Labor, a post he has held for the past 15 years. Now in his 17th consecutive congressional term, he is known to colleagues as well as educators and students across the nation as "Mr. Education."

He was the sponsor of the landmark Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965 which placed the federal government in fiscal partnership with the states and local school districts in providing funds for the education of disadvantaged children.

As chairman of the Subcommittee on Elementary, Secondary, and Vocational Education, he sponsored and brought to a successful vote the Vocational Education Act of 1963, which expanded the old and inaugurated a new federal program in that field. He sponsored additional legislation in 1968 and 1976 which greatly enlarged federal support for vocational education.

Perkins continues to make Hindman his home. He and Mrs. Perkins, the former Verna Johnson of Knott county, have a son, Hindman attorney Carl Christopher (Chris) Perkins.

Martin Council Meeting Set

The regular meeting of the Martin City Council, postponed from last week, will be held Thursday, April 8.

HOLY WEEK SERVICES

Church people throughout this area are reminded that Holy Week services are being conducted from Monday through Friday this week, at 12:05 p.m. at the First United Methodist Church here. The remainder of the schedule follows: Wednesday—The Rev. Dean Paek, pastor of Irene Cole Memorial; Maundy Thursday—The Rev. Timothy Jessen, pastor of the First Presbyterian; Good Friday—The Rev. Taylor Biggs, pastor of the Community United Methodist Church. These services are being sponsored by the Floyd County Ministerial Association and the Local Churchwomen. The Easter sunrise service will be held at the amphitheatre, Jenny Wiley State Park, at 7 o'clock Easter morning. In case of rain, the service will be held at May Lodge.

A VICTIM of the strong winds buffeting this area Monday night was this 40-year-old apple tree, already bearing the new season's buds, which stood in the yard of the Henry L. Setser home at Lancer. "When I got up this morning and looked out the window, I cried," said Mrs. Setser. "That tree has a lot of memories. I'll sure miss it."

While other trees were uprooted here and there and some signs and awnings showed the effects of the blustery night, no major wind damage was reported here.

Cancer Society Drive Said To Be 'Best Yet'

The Floyd County Chapter of the American Cancer Society fund drive netted over $16,000 in what is said to be its best effort yet.

A spokesman for the drive said the group is especially indebted to Mr. and Mrs. Gorman Collins and Gorman Collins, Jr., of WDOC and WQHY, who donated time on their radio stations for the radiothon. Appreciation was also expressed to all who donated food, time, money and the volunteers who gave many hours of hard work and planning which combined to make the 1982 fund drive a success.

Dewey Lake Begins Rise Toward Summer Level

Dewey Lake began rising last Thursday toward its recreational summer pool, which will restore the five feet lost to the annual drawdown for the winter months.

The Corps of Engineers expects the lake to reach its summer seasonal level by May 1.

Activity at the lake is restricted mainly to fishing, with some bass being taken by the jigging method by harder anglers. The water temperature remains in the 50's.

Nat'l Ginseng Meet Set for Lexington

For the second time in four years a national conference on ginseng will be held in Kentucky. The Fourth National Ginseng Conference will be at Lexington's Continental Inn, May 25-26.

Joint sponsors of the event are the Kentucky Council on Agriculture, the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture, the Kentucky Ginseng Association and the Kentucky Ginseng Growers Association.

Ginseng is a $5 million a year crop for Kentucky. Plants are collected from natural populations, harvested from semi-cultivated plots in forests or harvested from cultivated beds. A pound of wild ginseng may bring as much as $160, but averages $120 per pound, according to Dr. C.R. Roberts, Extension horticulturist in the UK College of Agriculture.

Roberts has coordinated efforts to collect information on the state's ginseng population.

The Chinese are the world's largest users of ginseng, which they value for medical purposes and as an aphrodisiac. Some forms of the plant are sold in the United States, and the market is growing.

Representatives from as many as 20 states and several foreign countries have attended previous national ginseng conferences. Some two dozen people are scheduled as program participants during this year's conference.

Topics include basic ginseng growing techniques, procedures for digging, washing, handling and drying the crop, economics of production, security measures, legal resources for growers and domestic and foreign use.

Registration for the conference is being handled by the Kentucky Council on Agriculture, 36 Fountain Place, Frankfort, Ky. 40601. The registration deadline is May 10. A fee, payable to the Kentucky Ginseng Association, will cover two noon meals and a copy of conference proceedings. Additional meal tickets are available for family members.

Motel reservations also are due by May 10 and are to be made with the Continental Inn. Additional information is available from Joe Howard Rogers of the agriculture council at 502-564-6686.

Traced Phone Call May Spell The End For Bomb Threats

Pranksters considering calling in an anonymous bomb threat to a school, hospital or any other public place just for "kicks" should probably think twice from now on.

A juvenile petition has been issued for a McDowell area youth in connection with a bomb threat called in Saturday morning to the McDowell School, according to a spokesman for the Floyd Sheriff's Department.

The threat was phoned in at 9:10 Saturday morning, it was reported, and by 9:30 South Central Bell had contacted the office of Sheriff Henry Hale with the phone number of the caller as well as a voice recording of the call.

Sheriff's deputies and state police acted on the information a short time later, it was said.

Identification of the caller was made as a result of increased sophistication of the phone company's equipment and procedures in tracing such calls, it was said.

Mr. Bates, Miss Martin To Wed

Mrs. Georgia Lee Martin, of Wheelwright, and Mr. Charles Edward Martin, of Hueysville, announce the engagement and forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Pamela Jean Martin, to Mr. Harold Dean Bates, Jr., son of Mrs. Willene Hall, of Jacks Creek, and Mr. Harold Dean Bates, of Illinois.

Miss Martin is a junior at Wheelwright High School. Mr. Bates, a graduate of Wheelwright High School, is employed at the Pic-Pac at Martin.

The wedding will take place at Burton Church of God at 2 p.m., April 10, with a reception following at the church. All friends and relatives are invited to attend.

P.H.S. Tennis Team Avenges Phelps Loss

As predicted by Prestonsburg High School Tennis Coach Lois Crum, P.H.S. got its revenge against Coach Doug Compton's strong Phelps team last Thursday when they travelled to Pike county. The meet got off to a better start for Prestonsburg when top-seeded Doug Adams won his singles match against the Phelps top seed, Stevie Dotson, who had defeated Adams in the previous meet. Then Prestonsburg went on to win 5 out of 6 singles matches to cinch the meet.

Doubles matches were split with Prestonsburg 1 and Phelps 1 with the third and last match tied at 5 games all when darkness forced the Hamilton-Crum team to have to play a sudden death tie-breaker against Dotson-Blalock which ended with a score of 5-3 in favor of Phelps. However, the victory was still to go to Prestonsburg with the overall meet score being Prestonsburg 6 and Phelps 3.

Scores for the meet were: (Singles)—D. Adams/S. Dotson, 8-6; B. Hamilton/S. Dotson, 8-0; T. George/Blalock, 8-6; A. Crum/Byrd, 8-4; J. Cook/R. Dotson, 6-8; T. Johnson/H. Sanders, 8-3; (Doubles)—Adams-George/Dotson-Byrd, 8-4; Hamilton-Crum/Dotson-Blalock, 5-6; Ousley-Spradin/Honorsky-Dotson 4-8.

This week will be a busy one for the team. After a meet at Hazard, Tuesday, they will host the Bath county team in a meet at Archer Park, today (Wednesday) at 3:30.

May's Request for $1 Million Bond Aid To Buy Station Gains

The request filed by Walter E. May, of Pikeville, for $1 million in industrial bonds for the purchase of radio system WTKC, Lexington, was approved Friday by the Urban County government review committee.

The proposal now goes before the Urban County Council, which has yet to turn down a bond issue endorsed by the review committee.

May, a Pikeville radio executive, formerly of Prestonsburg, told committee members that he will put at least $100,000 of his own money into the proposed purchase but that he needs the tax-exempt revenue bonds to complete the deal. May said he would have to borrow money at 18 percent interest if the bonds are not approved and that he would have to almost triple the radio station's advertising revenues to pay off the debt.

The applicant said that even with the bonds he will have to boost advertising but not by as much.

WTKC, a country music station, is involved in a bankruptcy action in federal court, and May's attorney, Terry McBrayer, said the courts will take over the business unless May buys it.

May said that if the station goes bankrupt, Lexington would lose its only NBC Radio affiliate. WTKC is owned by Wendell and Donna Triplett of Bellefontaine, Ohio.

May owns radio stations in Pikeville and Jellico, Tenn., and is a director of the National Association of Broadcasters.

Homemakers Meet

The Prater Creek Homemakers held its regular monthly meeting, March 22, in the school lunchroom. The meeting was called to order by the vice-president, Willena Campbell, and roll call and treasurer's report were given by secretary-treasurer, Loretta Conn. The lesson on Spring Fashions, and Timely Sewing Tips was given by extension agent Frances Pitts.

Hostesses Agnes Kidd, Gail Taylor and Mona Boyd served refreshments to members Debbie Tackett, Jo Akers, Loretta Conn, Ellen Campbell, Sereda Brown, Pauline Akers, Sandra Roberts, Toda Tackett, Willena Campbell, Bell Jones, Wanda Hall, Marie Conn and Frances Pitts.

The club welcomed a new member, Darlene Walker. Guests were Kay Akers and Rebecca Kidd. The next meeting will be April 26, at 7 p.m. when hostesses will be Doris Akers and Kathryn Akers. The lesson will be on decorating windows.

Real gross average weekly earnings increased 1.9 percent from January to February, after seasonal adjustment, the U.S. Department of Labor's Bureau of Labor Statistics reported.

No, no, no,

has become

Yes, yes, yes!

For the past several months, we've had to say "No, no, no" when customers asked if we had many Hondas in stock. But the "No, no, no" days are over and the "Yes, yes, yes" days are here!

If you visit our lot during the next few days, you'll find an outstanding selection of Hondas, especially the popular Accords and LX models.

So, if you've been waiting to buy a Honda or simply wish to test-drive one, come on in. The Hondas are here, but probably not for long.

Comments On... Child Abuse

(Provided by Mountain Comprehensive Care Center)

It is known now that child abuse is a widespread problem affecting children, parents, and society. Last week's article outlined some common signs which signal the need for help. This week's subject is where troubled families can find help. Assistance is available in a variety of support services.

Medical help is available at hospitals and clinics to treat injuries or malnutrition, to test development or provide psychiatric therapy, and to help the parents with their own physical or mental problems, alcohol abuse, etc. Public services and private organizations offer protection, shelter, babysitting, help or "hot" lines, counseling, transportation, financial help, employment, parenting skills courses, and mental health services. Self-help groups such as Parents Anonymous provide troubled parents time together in a non-threatening, non-agency setting to talk about their feelings and offer support to each other.

Some parents—or even older children—seek help on their own. Most do not. They need an outsider to get the help process started. And too often child abuse continues because people who could help "don't want to get involved." A friend or relative can be a big help by listening and responding to the parent(s); by offering help with the housework and with caring for the children; and by telling them of the help available and helping them follow through with visits to these places.

If efforts of this kind are not successful, or if the child is hurt, then there is no choice but to report it to the proper authorities: either the Bureau of Social Services or the police. Temporary separation may be chosen until the parents can solve some of their problems and receive counseling. In extreme cases, permanent separation may be the only answer.

★ CANCER HOPELINE ★

Q. My young cousin has cancer. Aren't his parents being foolish to want him treated at some unknown "cancer clinic" instead of at a reputable hospital?

A. It is normal for many people faced with cancer to seek miracle cures. However, the patient may be harmed directly by the "cure" or indirectly by losing valuable time away from proven methods. You may present such information to your relatives, but they must decide for themselves.

The treatment of choice depends on the kind, location, and extent of the disease; its pattern of growth and spread; and the patient's overall physical condition. Five are usually accepted:

- Surgery is selected if the cancer is confined and the entire tumor can be removed.
- Radiation may be used alone or in addition to another treatment to cure or to relieve symptoms.
- Chemotherapy also may be used alone or with another treatment for cure or relief of symptoms.
- Immunotherapy is the management of cancer by strengthening the body's own self-defense system. It is available only at major cancer centers.
- Experimental treatments (those so far not scientifically proved to cure cancer) are offered under very strict controls at major cancer centers only after physicians inform patients and their families of the advantages and disadvantages of a treatment and the alternatives.

Patients and families should ask questions about any cancer treatment, and the failure to get clear, complete answers should be a warning to go elsewhere:

- What treatments are available? Which do you recommend? Why?
- Is this treatment safe and necessary? What if I don't have it?
- What results do you expect in my case?
- What are the side effects, and how can they be relieved?
- Will the treatment disrupt my normal life activities?
- How will we know if it's working?
- If I have other questions, when can we discuss them?
- Should my cancer be treated at a specialized center?

For more help in considering cancer treatment, call the Cancer Helpline, toll free, at 1-800-432-9321. Counselors are there, Monday through Friday. You may also write Cancer Helpline at 915 South Limestone Street, Lexington 40536.

Is Wild Ginseng Doomed?

It is my prediction that wild ginseng will be gone from the forests of Appalachia within two years, unless the persistent digging of its roots for sale is stopped soon. This long-lasting recession is to blame. With the high unemployment rate, and men with families to feed, unemployed men are hitting for the woods in droves to dig ginseng. A handful of the dried roots is worth its weight in gold. A man can take one-half pound of the dried roots to the store and buy enough groceries to last his family for two weeks. The average price per pound is $100, and is higher in some sections. So if we do not declare a moratorium on digging ginseng, and if this recession lasts to the end of 1982, the ginseng will all be gone by then.

We who love to see beautiful plants gracing the forests of Appalachia deeply regret to see this happen. The old-time "sang-diggers" called ginseng "the purtiest plant that grows in the woods. Indeed, a lusty, knee-high four-leaf plant of ginseng is one of grace and beauty. A four-leaf plant which was called a "four-prong" by the old sang-diggers, has a long stem and four compound leaves, each with five leaflets (quinquefolius). The leaflets are obovate in form, with fine teeth on the margin and a sharp tip at the end.

A plant with three compound leaves was called a "three-prong" by the old sangers. The tiny first-year plant was called a "three-leaf," as it had only three leaves.

Ginseng stands at the head of its family, The Ginseng Family (Araliaceae); its botanical name Panax quinquefolia, is significant. Panax means a cure-all, and that's what ginseng has been to the Chinese for thousands of years.

The American ginseng is superior to the Chinese schinseng, and that's why they are always eager to buy ginseng offered on the American markets.

Most American doctors have frowned on ginseng as a healing herb. They claim it is mostly superstition of the Chinese, who put great store in the ancient doctrine of signatures—that is, if a plant is formed in the likeness of the human body, it is designed to cure the body ills.

At long last ginseng has been recognized in our country as a good medicine, especially for the elderly. Give an elderly person regular doses of ginseng tea and it has great power of rejuvenation. Ginseng has been found to contain many essential vitamins and minerals; also a new element recently found by researchers called pana, which is believed to hold the secret of ginseng's healing virtues and aphrodisiac powers.

When the root of a ginseng plant is washed clean, it is white like human flesh. Such a root, when shaped like the human body, is highly prized by the Chinese.

I have always regarded ginseng as "the friend of the poor." It has helped many a poor family through a lean period. It has been dug and sold by the natives of Appalachia ever since pioneer days. It has put food on the table; it has bought books and clothes for the school kids; it has bought calico and combs and coffee for many poor families. There should be a monument erected to ginseng in every county seat of Appalachia. It has been sacrificed on the altar of human need.

As I am now past 87 years of age, I can remember when ginseng was abundant in all the rich coves of Appalachia. Its choice habitat was cool, rich woods under the shade of the virgin oaks and yellow poplars. It was a plant that thrived in the shade; it could not endure hot sun.

When I was in my early teens, I was permitted by my father to go with him and his crew of "sangers," as we called them. I enjoyed watching those old sangers hunt for ginseng. They seemed to have a "nose" for ginseng and could sniff it out in the most unlikely places. Sometimes they'd find a large patch with over one hundred plants; ruling over this patch, there would be a knee-high four-prong with all its offspring spread roundabout.

In looking for ginseng in those days, we had to use extreme caution to keep from being bitten by vicious timber rattlers. Back then the snakes were about as abundant as the ginseng.

Today when I roam the forests of Appalachia and fail to see any ginseng, I am made sad by the loss of this plant, which is the most valuable ever to grace the forests of Appalachia. I fear the time is near at hand when the Chinese will cry for American ginseng, and their cries will be in vain.

OSM Oks $445,000 For Old Mine Work In Pike and Perry

The Interior Department's Office of Surface Mining (OSM) has approved spending $445,000 to relieve abandoned coal mine problems in Pike and Perry counties.

OSM Director James R. Harris announced the two projects are:

—A serious erosion problem on George's Branch in Perry county, about 10 miles southeast of Hazard, which at times has caused the blocking of George's Branch and an adjacent road. OSM has approved spending $250,000 on the project.

—A slide problem on Hurricane Branch in Pike county, about 5.5 miles northwest of Pikeville, which is threatening a home and other property. OSM has approved spending an additional $205,000, to go with $76,362 previously approved for the project.

This increase was necessary because preliminary work revealed unanticipated complex hydrologic conditions, Harris said; steps now must be taken to restrict ground water interference which is affecting the stability of the slide material. Two slides have occurred there over the last two years, one of which left debris next to the home, he noted.

Funds for both projects will come from the Federal share of reclamation fees levied under the 1977 Federal Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act to reclaim abandoned mine lands.

As many as 100 families may be impacted by the blockages of Georges branch and the adjacent road in Perry county, following moderate to heavy rainfalls, said W. Hord Tipton, OSM's acting regional director in Knoxville, Tenn. Some of the material eroding from the old surface mine area ultimately ends up in Carr Fork Reservoir, he added.

That project will involve grading and revegetating the hollow fill and insuring proper drainage, Tipton said. The area was mined during the 1950's, he said.

Blasts Hazardous Waste Bill

By CARL (CHRIS) PERKINS
Representative, 92nd District

Last week, in a move I still find hard to believe, the General Assembly painted a giant bulls-eye on the state of Kentucky and invited the entire nation to take a shot at the target.

I am speaking, of course, about the hazardous-waste disposal bill that the House passed last week over my very strenuous objections.

The bill (Senate Bill 279) would allow a state siting board to approve installation of a hazardous-waste incinerator-landfill complex at a location in Kentucky—even if local authorities object to the project.

In other words, the state may level a gun at the head of some selected county, and say in effect: "You'd better like this, because there's nothing in the world you can do about it."

Even worse, the hazardous waste to be disposed at the site will come from all across the country—there is no way to say that only waste generated in-state will be allowed.

There is absolutely no justification for this action. Although proponents say that technology is available to adequately treat and dispose of hazardous waste so that it will be harmless, I am far from convinced of that. We were told that the Maxey Flats nuclear waste site in Fleming county was safe, too, but now we know that radioactivity is, in fact, seeping off the site—and that the state will be spending millions and millions of dollars for generations to come just to keep the problem under control.

Can we be certain that, ten or fifteen or thirty years down the road, similar problems won't crop up at the hazardous waste site? Experience says, no—and I say generations yet to come will be paying the price for this shortsighted action by the General Assembly.

Even if the site itself turns out to be safe, what about all the hundreds and thousands of trucks carrying hazardous waste that will be converging on one location in Kentucky? Can we guarantee that they will never have an accident, never spill their poisonous load, or into a stream, or just into the soil where it will enter the food chain forever?

The answer is, no. And I deplore the action of the Legislature that allowed this terrible situation to become a very real prospect for those of us who live in and love this state.

One other item I'd like to mention is much more positive—we passed a bill that would allow coal trucks to run overweight if they pay an additional fee to help pay for road repairs. The fee would be four-tenths of one percent of the average selling price of the coal being hauled.

This is a good bill, because everyone benefits. The coal haulers will be able to operate more economically, thereby getting an economic boost at a time when they need it so badly. At the same time, money will be raised fairly painlessly to keep our roads in drivable condition.

Unlike the hazardous-waste bill, this is truly responsible legislation.

HRMC Supports Medic Alert Program

Over 1.2 million Americans are wearing the Medic Alert emblem which provides identification and information on your special medical problems according to Bonnie Grabowski, Highlands Hospital pharmacy director.

In an emergency your life could be saved by a Medic Alert emblem which provides identification and information on your special medical problems according to Bonnie Grabowski, Highlands Hospital pharmacy director.

The emblem, which is worn on the wrist or as a necklace, alerts physicians and others to a patient's medication allergies or other conditions such as diabetes and epilepsy. Also engraved on the emblem is an identification number plus a collect, twenty-four hour phone number to Medic Alert's emergency medical information center. The center provides detailed life-saving information, within seconds, from data stored in the member's file. Information contained in the file is duplicated in the form of a wallet card which is updated annually.

Currently, over 1.2 million Americans belong to Medic Alert, a nonprofit organization which has been operating for the past twenty-six years. The organization estimates that one out of every five Americans has a hidden medical condition that should be known in an emergency.

Grabowski reports that Highlands supports this emergency medical identification system. Additional information and Medic Alert membership forms can be obtained at the HRMC pharmacy.

Michael is the grandson of Gladys Morgan and the late Graydon Morgan, of Estill, and Ben and Susie Smith, of Garrett.

Kentucky Fishing Report

Frankfort, Ky., April 5—Windy, unsettled weekend weather has slowed fishing activity around Kentucky, but several lakes are still reporting fair to good crappie fishing. The lake-by-lake rundown, as compiled by the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources:

Kentucky: Crappie fair over drop offs (10-15 feet deep) and around shallow cover (4-6 feet); in tailwaters, catfish and crappie fair; murky to muddy, stable at two feet above winter pool and 57°.

Barkley: Crappie fair over channel drop offs (10-12 feet deep); in tailwaters, little activity; murky, stable at two feet above winter pool and 57°.

Barren: Crappie good over channel drop offs (6-12 feet deep); black bass good casting crank baits off rocky points and steep banks; murky, rising slowly, seven feet below summer pool and 58°.

Nolin: Crappie slow over submerged cover (around 10 feet deep); black bass slow casting spinner baits off points and in coves; clear to murky to muddy, rising, 14 feet above summer pool and 55°.

Rough River: Crappie slow over submerged cover (3-8 feet deep); in tailwaters, crappie slow; muddy, rising, seven feet above winter pool and 58°.

Green: Crappie slow to fair over submerged cover (around 10 feet deep); black bass slow casting crank baits and jigging dollies and night-crawlers off points and around shoreline cover; murky to muddy, stable at four feet above winter pool and 55°.

Herrington: Black bass good casting small crank baits in headwaters; crappie slow over submerged cover and around stick ups; Dix River muddy, little white bass activity; clear to murky to muddy, stable at summer pool and 52°.

Cumberland: Crappie fair still fishing over submerged cover (5-10 feet deep); black bass (with an occasional walleye) slow in upper lake casting deep runners or plastic worms over drop offs; white bass good in Big South Fork; murky to muddy, stable at three feet below timberline and 57°. (Lower lake and tailwaters report not available.)

Dale Hollow: Crappie fair around willow bushes (3-4 feet deep); clear to murky to muddy, rising, one foot below normal pool and 57°.

Laurel: Black bass good casting spinner baits and surface lures in timbered coves; trout good still fishing worms, cheese or corn off steep banks; clear, stable at one foot below power pool and 57°.

Cave Run: Crappie fair around stick ups; black bass slow casting spinner baits in coves and along shoreline cover; clear to murky to muddy, falling, seven feet above winter pool and 52°.

Buckhorn: Crappie fair over submerged cover and around stick ups (5-15 feet deep); white bass slow in headwaters; murky to muddy, rising, three feet above winter pool and 58°.

Grayson: Crappie fair around stick ups (6-8 feet deep); black bass fair on spinner baits and crank baits off rocky points; muddy, stable at summer pool and 54°.

Fishtrap: Crappie slow over submerged cover; clear to murky, stable at winter pool and 52°.

Dewey: No activity; muddy, rising, one foot below summer pool and 54°.

12 Years Old

Willard Osborne, Jr., son of Willard and Peggy Osborne, of Teaberry, celebrated his twelfth birthday at Long John Silvers, April 5. A basketball cake was served after he returned home. He is a sixth grade student at John M. Stumbo School and is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Estill Blankenship, of Teaberry, and Mr. and Mrs. Buster Osborne, of Beaver.

President Recognizes McCoy For Support

Charles M. McCoy, of Prestonsburg, has been recognized by President Reagan for his support of the Republican party and last week received from the President a silk American flag as a token of appreciation. The accompanying certificate, signed by the President and Senator Packwood, national Republican chairman, reads:

"This is to certify that at the behest of President Ronald Wilson Reagan an American flag was dedicated in the rotunda of the U.S. Capitol for Charles M. McCoy in recognition of a commitment to preserve and strengthen the Republican party and its majority status in the United States Senate."

Old Span Collapses At Hueysville; Repair Reported in Planning

The old county bridge spanning Right Beaver Creek at Hueysville collapsed last week under the weight of a truck loaded with concrete blocks, leaving the original road up Salt Lick and connecting with new KY 7 at dead-end at the creek.

But Sam Henry Fitzpatrick, county road foreman, said Monday that the county expects to repair the span. He indicated work may be temporarily delayed while the liability of the owner of the truck, or the insurer, is determined.

It was said that a truck loaded with 900 concrete blocks dropped a part of the way through the bridge when I-beams collapsed. The vehicle, Fitzpatrick said, was owned by the Colley Block Company.

Cost of repairing the bridge has been estimated at $11,000. Replacement of seven I-beams will be involved, Fitzpatrick said.

There was no posted load limit for the bridge. Driver of the truck was not injured.

Want To Save Some Tax Dollars?

The All Savers Certificate (ASC) is important to savers because, for the first time it gives them a substantial tax break.

Unlike other money market funds, the ASC has a fixed yield for a full year.

For the taxpayers in higher tax brackets, the ASC after-tax return will be higher than that available at money market Funds.

The one big advantage of ASC is that the saver can earn $1000 (single) or $2000 (joint return) in tax free interest.

For more information about ASC call or come by First Commonwealth Bank and one of our friendly savings specialist can assist you.

Alcoholism—The Growing Threat

By DEL DYAR

The bill for alcoholism and drug addiction to the American taxpayer is mind boggling. Each year it runs into the billions of dollars, not to count the loss of human life, child abuse, divorce and shattered, unended emotions.

The present estimate of the number of alcoholics in the United States is about 10 to 12 million. We believe this number to be naively conservative.

We know that every alcoholic and drug addict negatively affects four to six other people directly and 15 to 27 people indirectly. If we assume that there are ten million alcoholics in the United States and multiply the numbers of people affected, we come up with a lot of people being hurt by their own or someone else's drinking or drug abuse.

Alcoholism knows no social or financial barriers; nationally, it is impartial. It holds no age restrictions nor does it predominate particular religious or ethnic groups. It strikes the unsuspecting. No one plans on becoming an alcoholic.

No two alcoholics may behave the same or display the same set of symptoms. There are as many different kinds of alcoholic behavior as there are alcoholics. No two people are the same, no two alcoholics will be the same.

However, the symptoms of alcoholism, though massive, are such that they clearly identify the presence of the illness along with its stage of progression. This holds true regardless of the type of alcoholic "acting out".

Some alcoholics are spree drinkers, some are binge drinkers, some become violent or abusive, others more affectionate or compliant. All undergo some form of personality change. We believe that the personality change contributes most to the painful and confusing family interaction.

Many people falsely believe that one is not alcoholic until one begins missing work, or drinks in the morning or every day. Others falsely believe that drinking only beer or wine will not cause alcoholism.

Alcoholism has long been viewed as a stigma. For this reason many people working in the health field still view the alcoholic as a bad person rather than a person with an illness which renders them powerless to alcohol and its effects.

Female alcoholics especially are affected by this stigma. Their drinking remains hidden longer and very often when it is discovered to be a problem instead of receiving help they are cast on the scrap heaps of society.

Following articles will deal in greater detail with the symptoms and diagnosis of alcoholism and other drug dependencies.

These articles are prepared topically and submitted in order of their importance. It may be that readers have questions they would like answered pertaining to alcohol-drug addiction.

We invite your questions at any time. You may address your questions to: Del Dyar, Post Office Box 208, McDowell, Ky. 41647. Where questions are of general interest they may be answered through these articles with fullest confidentiality being maintained.

21 Mares Put Under CEM Quarantine

Two mares have shown up positive on blood and culture tests for contagious equine metritis (CEM), according to livestock sanitation director J.D. Wolf, Kentucky Department of Agriculture.

Both mares were bred to J.O. Tobin, a thoroughbred stallion standing at Spendthrift Farm near Lexington.

Altogether, 21 mares bred to J.O. Tobin will be tested, although the testing is not yet complete, Wolf said. He said the mares will have two CF (blood) tests, taken two weeks apart, and three sets of cultures, seven days apart. The 21 mares, being boarded in the Paris and Lexington areas, are under quarantine.

In addition, Wolf said, post-breeding CF tests will be taken as a precautionary measure on all thoroughbred mares in Kentucky.

"We are taking this action to protect the horses of Kentucky and to show other states, as well as the federal government, that we are moving quickly to get this CEM outbreak under control," Wolf said.

He added that that testing is now underway.

Wolf said the CEM showed up in the routine testing and surveillance which has been underway for some time in response to earlier CEM outbreaks. He added that because of the rigorous testing standards established both by USDA and the state's Emergency Advisory Committee for CEM, officials do not expect any problems in bringing this outbreak under control.

"We have had experience in eradicating CEM and anticipate no real problems for the industry, Wofe said.

MASTER COMMISSIONER'S SALE

FLOYD CIRCUIT COURT The First National Bank of Prestonsburg, Ky. vs. NOTICE OF SALE

80-CI-658 Gene Hayden and Garnett Hayden, his wife vs. Defts.

By virtue of a judgment and order of sale of the Floyd Circuit Court rendered at the December 28th term, 1981 in the above-styled cause I shall proceed to offer for sale at the courthouse door in Prestonsburg, Kentucky, to the highest and best bidder, at public auction, on the 23rd day of April, 1982 at 10 o'clock a.m., same being a day of the regular term of the Floyd Circuit Court, for cash or upon a credit of six months, the following described property to-wit:

That certain tract of land that was conveyed defendants by deed of March 28, 1977 from Kelly G. and Eloise Combs, as recorded in Deed Book 229, page 75 and described more particularly as follows:

"All that part of said tract or tracts lying on the right (southeast) of said proposed public road. BEGINNING at a point 130 feet right (southeast) of center-line station 4927+00; thence running southerly along the center line of Middle Creek to a point 380 feet, more or less, right (southeast) of approximate center-line station 4925+45; thence running northwesterly along the existing right of way line to a point 150 feet, more or less, right (southeast) of center-line station approximate 4923+25; thence running northeasterly to the point of beginning and containing 1.02 acres."

There is included with this sale a 1977 Liberty Mobile home, No. 11196, located on the real estate herein.

The amount of money to be raised by this sale shall be in the principal sum of $6,967.63 with interest thereon @ 8 1/2% annually from September 30, 1980 to December 23, 1981 and 8% per annum thereafter until satisfied and the additional sum of $9,304.30 with 8% annual interest thereon from 12-23-81 until satisfied, and the costs of this action, including costs of advertising of this sale and the fees and commission for conducting this sale.

For the purchase price the purchaser must execute bond with approved surety or sureties, bearing legal interest from the day of sale until paid and having the force and effect of a judgment with a lien retained upon said property as a further security. Bidders will be prepared to comply with these terms.

Given under my hand, this 5th day of April, 1982.

MARSHALL DAVIDSON, Master Commissioner, Floyd Circuit Court

Commentary . . .

What a Wondrous Thing Is the Law

By RON MARSTIN

Amid the tangle of conflicting opinions as to whether and when coal tipples fall under federal surface-mining regulations, one fact at least is not in dispute—namely, that surface mining operations are hazardous to the health of people living nearby, at least if they live within 300 feet of the operation and especially if they already suffer from respiratory problems.

That, presumably, is why the federal Surface Mining Act of 1977 required written waivers for all surface coal-mining operations conducted within 300 feet of occupied dwellings. And that law once promised to protect communities like Dinwood, just south of Martin, where a coal operator decided to build a tipple but residents never signed the needed waivers.

But the promise of protection has proven empty. The law has been so worked over by judges and attorneys the very life has been beaten out of it. What once appeared to be plain language now scarcely means anything.

This is how it came about.

For some reason, the 1977 law exempted coal-loading facilities from regulation. Such facilities would fall under the regulations only if they were "at or near" the mine from which they drew coal.

What about tipples that crush coal as well as load it? Do they have to be at or near the minesite in order to be subject to federal regulation? The answer to that question, plainly stated in the preamble to the federal regulations, was no. Crushing and screening is part of the processing or preparation, not the loading, of coal. Tipples that crush coal are subject to the law, regardless of their distance from the minesite.

That was how Steve Cassel, an inspector with the Office of Surface Mining, understood the law when he cited the Dinco Coal Sales tipple at Dinwood last July for operating without permission of nearby residents. That was what Ivan and Mary Debor, Dinwood residents, understood when they joined issue with Dinco last September. And what Wanda Gregory, Everett and Sadie Hunter, Georgie Keans, Danny Moore, Doug and Wanda Moore, Mary Moore, Tim and Debbie Pack, McIntire and Loretta Risner, and James Ward, Jr. and Veronica Ward, also Dinwood residents, understood when they joined the suit in December.

But by then Ronald Reagan was President, with his professed intention of deregulating industry. And James Watt was Secretary of the Interior, a man whose notion of environmental protection quickly revealed his appointment to that post to be so inappropriate as to appear downright cynical.

Neither the election of Reagan nor the appointment of Watt has altered the Surface Mining Act. Nor has the permanent regulatory program been changed. But the outcome of the effort to enforce the law at Dinwood illustrates how easily the law and regulation can be subverted by officials with a mind to do so.

An appeals board of the Department of the Interior, bound to pay at least lip service to the law and regulations, recently ruled, nevertheless—for no reason persuasive to anyone with a feel for the law's intent—that they do not apply in states, like Kentucky, which are still under an interim regulatory program. In a 2-1 decision, the appeals board upheld the ruling of an administrative law judge setting aside the notice of violation issued against Dinco.

Their decision would presumably mean that the Dinwood tipple would again fall under federal law when Kentucky attains "primacy"—that is, primary responsibility for enforcing federal stripmine law in this state.

Apparently anticipating that eventually, the Office of Surface Mining and the Kentucky legislature recently opened the attack on the regulations from another front.

Only loading facilities have to be at or near the minesite to be subject to regulation, they concede, but the crushing of coal—until now defined as an element of preparation or processing—is now defined, in a recently-passed state law and in the latest OSM policy, as part of the loading process.

Under such novel interpretations, the Dinco tipple, which crushes and loads coal but which is about 25 miles from the company's nearest coal mine at Mousie, is declared exempt from surface-mining regulations.

According to the two appeals board judges who signed the recent opinion, it does not leave Dinwood residents without environmental protection. The residents could still seek relief from state and local regulatory agencies, they said.

Dinco residents have already tried that. It doesn't work. While the Clean Air Act does regulate dust generated by tipples, its standards are not designed to protect individual communities but only the air quality over a wide region. Dinwood residents learned that when they unsuccessfully challenged the issuance to Dinco of an air-quality permit.

The sad fact is that the Dinwood families, and others similarly situated, have been left out in the cold, not by any logic derived from the Surface Mining Act, but by a shrewd sleight-of-hand.

They are victims of a cynical trick of legal interpretation.

As the lone dissenting judge wrote of the appeals board ruling, "The people of Dinwood will marvel at what a wondrous thing the law is."

Mine Seminar Begins Tomorrow at Park

The Big Sandy-Elkhorn City Mining Institute will hold its fifth annual coal mining seminar April 8-9 at Jenny Wiley State Resort Park. Purpose of the seminar is to review current mining problems and regulations and their effect on the coal mining community.

The two-day affair is being sponsored by Big Sandy-Elkhorn Coal Mining Institute in cooperation with Pikeville College, CITAC, the University of Kentucky Institute for Mining and Minerals Research, and the Office for Informational Service and Technical Liaison. Paul Good, of Ashland Coal Company, is this year's president of the Mining Institute.

Featured speakers Thursday afternoon, April 8, will be Joseph P. Brennan, president of Bituminous Coal Operators Association, Washington, D.C.; Ralph Hatch, vice-president of the Safety Consolidation Coal Company, Pittsburg, Pa.; William B. Bales, vice-president of Coal and Ore Traffic, N. and W. Railway, Roanoke, Va.; and John L. Schroder, Jr., president of the United States Steel Mining Company, Inc., Pittsburg. The banquet speaker that evening will be Paul Churton, senior vice-president of Ashland Coal Company, Huntington, West Virginia.

Friday morning, April 9, the speakers will be Joseph A. Lamonica, administrator of Mine Safety and Health Administration in Arlington, Va.; Mike Vallez, vice-president of operations, Mapco, Inc., Lovely, Ky.; W.T. Robertson, Jr., president of Mill-Power Supply Company, Charlotte, N.C.; Richard Terry, vice-president of Envirotech Coal Sales, Beckley, W. Va., and Tom Duncan, president of the Kentucky Coal Association.

Registration for the two-day seminar will be on April 8 from 9 a.m. until 1 p.m. For additional information, contact Sophia Cahill at 285-9043.

Memorial Softball Tourney Set Here April 15 thru 18

Archer Park will be the site of the three-day second annual "Butch" Clifton Memorial Softball Tournament which will feature men's and women's teams from throughout the area.

Scheduled for Thursday through Saturday, April 15-18, the tourney is sponsored by Phi Beta Lambda and Kentucky State Police Post 9 and is held in memory of State Trooper Clifton, who was killed in the line of duty.

Entry fee for women will be $65 with a $75 fee for men's teams. Tourney drawing will be held April 13 at 7 p.m. at Archer Park.

For more information, contact Mazola Salmons at Prestonsburg Community College, 886-3863, ext. 244.

All proceeds from the tournament will be donated to Trooper Island in memory of "Butch" Clifton.

Two From McDowell On PC Golf Team

The Pikeville College golf team, coached by Freddie Hall, coordinator of Talent Search and Upward Bound at the college, traveled to Myrtle Beach, South Carolina March 22-27 for a week of spring training. According to Hall, who is beginning his first year as coach, "The week was very productive. Each player golfed 18 holes a day and practiced pitch and putt. We not only discovered who the strong golfers were, but found out who needed a little practice."

The golf team returns three members, Wesley Case, junior, of McDowell; Clay Campbell, senior, of Phelps; Steve Newsome, senior, of McDowell, and adds two players to the roster, Robert Newsome, senior, of Virgie, and Troy Rutherford, freshman, of Belfry.

"Wesley Case is hitting the ball the best that I have seen him. Last year he won the KIAC golf tournament, shooting a 74 and 76, the par for the course being 71. Clay hadn't played since last year until spring training and was a little rusty, but he will come through. Steve is hitting the ball and will do well. And I expect that Robert and Troy will do good to average. I am very optimistic with this team. We should win some tournaments and surprise a lot of people," Hall added.

The golf team's scheduled matches are against Cumberland, April 6, Clinch Valley, April 8, Transylvania, April 14, Georgetown, April 22. The state tournament will be held April 26-30 at Bardstow, Kentucky and the KIAC tournament will be May 3-7 at Georgetown College. Hall expects their toughest match to be against Transylvania College.

Announce Wedding Plans

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Collins, of Ashtabula, O. announce the engagement and forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Judy Kay, to William L. Stumbo, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Stumbo, of Minnie.

The custom of open church wedding will be observed, Saturday, April 10, at 3 p.m. at the Old Beaver Church at Minnie.

A reception will be held following the service.

Pharmacy Footnotes

By HAROLD COOLEY

It is wrong to think that just because a cut (or abrasion) bleeds, it is a clean wound. The dirt and bacteria that enter a wound are seldom removed by bleeding. While washing with soap and water will usually suffice, cleansing with an antiseptic is better as it will inhibit the growth of bacteria. Before applying a bandage to the affected area, an antibiotic ointment may be applied. This will serve to further protect the skin against bacterial contamination. Wounds that continue to bleed will often require sutures. Get your doctor's advice.

COOLEY APOTHECARY wants to remind you that whenever you cut yourself, the most important thing is to clean the wound to prevent infection. We don't play Doctor here, but we do render assistance, offer alternatives to a problem and advise when first aid is appropriate. We care about you and your health. Your best interest is Our best interest. And have a very happy Easter holiday. You'll find us at No. 2 Town Center Bldg. Open Mon.-Fri. from 9-5:30 and Sat. 9-5. 886-8106.

HANDY HINT:

If a wound seems to be infected, call your doctor.

VA To Contract Aid For Vietnam Vets

The Veterans Administration has begun a major effort to contract with private organizations to provide readjustment counseling services to Vietnam veterans in areas which cannot be adequately or conveniently served by existing outreach Vet Centers.

Charles T. Hagel, deputy administrator of Veterans Affairs, who heads the Vietnam Readjustment Counseling Steering Committee, has directed VA field facilities to identify geographic areas containing a significant Vietnam Era veteran population and which have unmet needs for readjustment counseling.

As implementation proceeds in this effort Vietnam Era veterans and their families throughout the U.S. Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands will be assisted with these additional services. A total budget of $11.2 million has been earmarked for this contracting service.

VA's "Operation Outreach" now has 107 Vet Centers operating nationwide with another 29 scheduled to open this year. Vet Center staff members have counseled almost 95,000 Vietnam Era veterans in over 300,000 visits, and another 60,000 family members have also been helped in this unprecedented effort.

The program was established under Public Law 96-22 in 1979. The centers are designed to offer a low-key personalized approach to Vietnam Era veterans who have experienced prolonged difficulty in adjusting to civilian life after military service.

Kentucky counties in the Huntington VA Medical Center service area determined to have significant need for extended readjustment counseling services are Boyd, Elliott, Floyd, Greenup, Johnson, Lawrence, Lewis, Magoffin, Martin, and Pike.

Requests for bidding documents should be requested in writing from the Contracting Officer (134C), VA Medical Center, 1540 Spring Valley Drive, Huntington, WV 25704. Bidders will be expected to have the capability directly or through arrangements to provide physical assessments, medical treatment and therapy. Bids for contracts will close April 16.

Miss Manning is a graduate of Montgomery County High School and is attending Morehead State University.

Mr. May is a graduate of Allen Central High School and is attending Morehead State University.

The wedding will take place at 2:30 p.m., May 22 at Pentecostal Grace Tabernacle in Mt. Sterling. All friends and relatives are invited.

Inspect Sprayers Before Spring Use

Before the peak season for applying herbicide, farmers should take a few minutes to check their spraying equipment to avoid frustrating delays and uneven application.

Many problems can be prevented simply by replacing worn parts and calibrating sprayers, according to James Martin, Extension weed control specialist at the University of Kentucky Research and Education Center in Princeton.

He offers several tips for maintaining and calibrating equipment.

1. Check the condition of the pump, since a worn pump may lead to inadequate pressure and spray volume. Roller pumps are subject to more wear than are other pumps, but they usually can be rebuilt by replacing the rollers.

2. It's a good practice to replace nozzle tips each year before using the sprayer. Nozzle tips may become worn with excessive use. The opening of the tip usually becomes larger and so will deliver more liquid than is needed. Nozzle tips made of stainless steel are more expensive, but will provide longer service than aluminum, brass or plastic tips. When cleaning the opening of a clogged tip, do not use a nail or wire which may disturb the shape or increase the size.

3. Also replace hoses that leak or show signs of surface deterioration. Use synthetic rubber or plastic hoses which are resistant to weather as well as to oils and solvents contained in certain pesticides. Rinsing hoses inside and out and keeping them from being rubbed or kinked will help prolong their life.

4. Clean strainers frequently to filter particles that may damage the pump or nozzle tips. When replacing screens, make sure to use the correct size. Screens located near the nozzle tips are usually finer than those near the pump.

5. Make sure the pressure gauge and regulator are in good condition, since they monitor and control the spraying job. Pressure gauges may be damaged by corrosive pesticides or surges of pressure exceeding the range they are calibrated for. When replacing the pressure gauge, use one calibrated for the range of its intended use. Also, be sure the pressure regulator is capable of maintaining a constant pressure and that it has a working range about the same as the range of pressure that will be used.

6. To be sure of applying the correct rate of pesticide, you must know the volume of spray solution (gallons per acre) the sprayer is delivering. Pressure, ground speed, and nozzle tip size are factors that can be manipulated to obtain the desired volume.

MINE CLASS TO BEGIN

A surface retraining class will be held April 16, beginning at 8 a.m., at the Coal building at Martin.

MARK 25th ANNIVERSARY

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Winston Ford, Jr., on Arnold Avenue, was the scene of the celebration of the Ford's 25th wedding anniversary Saturday evening, March 27, when they held open house for a large number of relatives and friends. Points of interest throughout the house were: a bulletin board, holding memoirs from their wedding and reception, including pictures, the announcement of their engagement and wedding, their marriage license, flowers from Mrs. Ford's bridal bouquet, and a napkin from their wedding reception, and also a handkerchief, made and carried by her grandmother, Mrs. Octavia Leslie Hereford, in 1903 and handed down to Mrs. Ford. Other items of interest were an album of pictures of the wedding and reception, and slides shown during the evening, depicting these events. The guest-register used at Saturday's event was the same that was used 25 years ago at their wedding and reception.

The house was decorated throughout. The serving table was covered with an imported cloth, and had for its centerpiece, an arrangement of yellow rosebuds and greenery. On either side of this arrangement were candelabra, used by the couple at their wedding reception, and belonging to Mrs. Ford's aunt, Mrs. F. P. Keesee, and holding tall silver candles. The cake, which served as a part of the table decorations, was white, trimmed with silver, and flanked with ivy.

Refreshments were served to more than 100 who called during the evening, bringing best wishes and gifts of silver. Assisting Mr. and Mrs. Ford were Mrs. Vera Ford, Mrs. Edna Carol Greenwade, Mrs. Dorothy Wells, Mrs. Clara Bradbury and Mrs. Ditty Tackett. Relatives and friends from a distance who attended were Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Fannin and daughter, Jenna, of Lexington; Mrs. Tipton Baker and children, Ronnie and Tara, of Harlan; Mrs. F. P. Keesee, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Schockey, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Coleman, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Fletcher, Mrs. Arlie Wright, Mrs. Joe Trimble, Mrs. Earl Scott and Mrs. Frank Ramsey, all of Pikeville; Mr. and Mrs. Ray Boley and children, Tammy, Michael and Keith, of Paintsville, and Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Vinson, of Danville.

HONOREE AT SHOWER

Mrs. Richard Blanton, nee Bonnie Stephens, was honored Sunday afternoon with a miscellaneous shower at the home of Mrs. Helen Clark. The house was decorated with a color scheme of pink, green and white. The serving table was covered with a green cloth, with a white overlay, and held a bouquet of pink flowers, intertwined with greenery. Tall pink candles were on either side of this centerpiece. Mrs. Gus Kalos presided at the punch bowl, and Mrs. Clifford Wright served cake and other refreshments. Many persons called during the afternoon, and others who could not attend sent gifts. Hostesses with Mrs. Clark were Mesdames Clifford Wright, Henry Curtis, Cloyd Johnson, Eric Herrin, Gus Kalos, Huck Francis, Seldon Horne, Edith Johnson and Lucy Ransdell. Present for the occasion were Burette Moore, Renee Rigdon, Beatrice Collins, Norcie Burchett, Julia Stephens, Janice Pack, Nawonie Conley, Goldia Williams, Lucy Regan, Willia Mae Branham, Julia Harrington, Alice Grey Buchanan, Docia Woods, Dallie Waddles, Sarah Laven, Susan Akers, Isabelle Stephens, Andrea Stephens, Kara Pack, Kristina Herrin, Cathy Stephens, Penny Hale, Carol Hicks and Master Christopher Stephens. IBM invites you to our Open House on small business computers.

To all business people who won their independence and then lost it to the shackles of inventory, payroll, accounts receivable and other business details, IBM extends this invitation:

Come to our open house and learn how small, low-cost business computers can help free you from the tyranny of business detail.

There will be continuous demonstrations, exhibits and presentations. You can spend an hour, a morning or an afternoon and learn about data processing and word processing in the small business environment.

You'll even get to see and operate IBM's Datamaster, the most advanced desktop business system IBM has ever made. An all-business small business computer that starts at under $10,000.

So come to the IBM Business Systems Show. It's an open house that's on the house.

★ KENTUCKY AFIELD ★

Kentucky's trout trucks will begin rolling April 12 as the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources' annual stocking of trout waters gets underway.

By April 22 trout will have been stocked in 31 streams, nine lakes and 10 tailwaters in all sections of Kentucky. Although most trout streams are in the eastern part of the state, there are spring-fed streams in west-central and Western Kentucky that are suitable for trout.

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service stocks an additional 18 streams in the Daniel Boone National Forest. Seven of these streams are in remote sections of the forest and are stocked with "sub-adult" trout, which grow up wild and wily. These hike-in streams are ideal for the trout fishing purist, since they are the nearest thing Kentucky has to native trout.

Trout anglers must have a trout stamp in addition to a valid license. This stamp, which costs $3.50 for both residents and non-residents, covers the cost of transporting and stocking the trout, which are obtained free from the federal hatchery system.

Trout are stocked in waters that are often too cold or too infertile to support catchable populations of warm-water fish such as bass, bluegill or crappie. These waters include both mountain and spring-fed streams and the tailwaters of most of our major lakes, where cool water discharges below the dams create good trout habitat.

Although trout are stocked on a put-and-take basis (that is, they are big enough to be caught and kept when stocked) many fish will "hold over," or survive, until the following year. Ken-

Seek Japanese Investment Here

Two Commerce Cabinet international trade officials are scheduled to spend nearly two weeks in Japan to help attract Japanese investment to Kentucky.

Ted Sauer, executive director of the International Trade Office, and Darrell Mahone, assistant director, will leave the U.S. on April 1. In Japan, they will meet both with promising industrial prospects and influential intermediaries, such as banks, consulting companies and U.S. consular offices, said Deputy Commerce Secretary Gene Smith. The two will visit Tokyo and Nagoya.

Sauer and Mahone will return to the U.S. April 14.

ADVERTISEMENT FOR BIDS

Separate sealed BIDS for the construction of CONTRACT I-Floyd County Landfill consisting of clearing and grubbing approximately 45 acres, construction of a silt basin, approximately 2400 feet of gravel road, 2100 feet of paved road, and about 2000' of 6" water line with appurtenance will be received by Floyd County Fiscal Court at the office of County/Judge/Executive until 10:00 a.m. Local Time-April 15, 1982, and then at said office publicly opened and read aloud.

The CONTRACT DOCUMENTS may be examined at the following locations: Floyd County Fiscal Court, Floyd County Courthouse Annex, Prestonsburg, Ky. Kenvirons, Inc., 452 Versailles Road, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601. F.W. Dodge Corporation, 160 Moore Drive, Lexington, Kentucky 40503. Associated General Contractors, 1019 Georgetown Road, Lexington, Ky. 40511.

Copies of the CONTRACT DOCUMENTS may be obtained at the office of Kenvirons, Inc. located at 452 Versailles Road, Frankfort, Ky. mailing address: P.O. Drawer V, Frankfort, Kentucky 40602 upon payment of $35.00 for each set.

Any BIDDER, upon returning the CONTRACT DOCUMENTS promptly and in good condition, will be refunded the payment, and any non-bidder upon so returning the CONTRACT DOCUMENTS will be refunded $20.00.

Each BIDDER must accompany his bid with a Bid Bond in amount of not less than five (5) percent of the base bid. No BIDDER may withdraw his bid for a period of 90 days. The BIDDER awarded the contract shall execute a 100% Performance bond and a 100% Payment Bond and shall furnish insurance as required, in the General Conditions. Contracts shall be completed within 180 calendar days after date of authorization to start work. Liquidated damages will be $100 per calendar day.

The work to be performed under this contract is on a project assisted in part under a program providing direct Federal Financial Assistance from the Farmers Home Administration.

BIDDERS must comply with the President's Executive Order Nos. 11246 and 11375, which prohibit discrimination in employment regarding race, creed, color, sex, or national origin. BIDDERS must comply with Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, the Anti-Kickback Act, and the Contract Work Hours Standard Act. BIDDERS Must certify that they do not, and will not, maintain or provide for their employees any facilities that are segregated on a basis of race, color, creed, or national origin. Any bid that is obviously unbalanced may be rejected. The Floyd County Fiscal Court reserves the right to reject any and all bids and waive informalities.

FLOYD COUNTY FISCAL COURT

tucky's state record rainbow trout, a 14-pound, six-ounce specimen, was a holdover fish below the dam at Lake Cumberland, where four- and five-pound trout are not uncommon.

Most trout fishermen in Kentucky prefer "organic" baits such as worms, cheese, whole-kernel corn or even miniature marshmallows fished on the bottom. Trout will also readily hit small spinners or crankbaits and while fly fishing isn't that popular here, it can be effective.

The daily limit is eight trout and the possession limit is also eight after two or more days of fishing. There is no size limit on trout in Kentucky.

For a copy of a brochure describing trout waters in Kentucky and the months these waters are stocked, write the Division of Public Relations, Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, Frankfort, Ky. 40601.

College Department Announces Grants

The Department of Science and Mathematics at Pikeville College announces scholarships in the areas of biology, chemistry, and mathematics. Recipients of the scholarship must have scored 20 or above on the ACT to compete for a biology or chemistry scholarship and 25 or above on the ACT to compete for the math scholarships. The scholarships are renewable each year, if the students maintain a 3.5 average.

Amount of the scholarships available will be: Three for $2,000, one of $1,000 and one for $500. A student who wishes to apply for a scholarship should write a letter describing his or her background in science and math, composite score on the ACT, and career goals in the scientific area. Mail applications to Dr. Lois Esham, Chairman, Department of Science and Math, Pikeville College, Pikeville, Ky. 41501, by April 21.

Modern Movement At Center

Modern Dance-Kentucky brought talent and skill to the Mountain Comprehensive Care Center here, March 31, when trainees from the Auxier Greenhouse Program and clients of the Partial Hospitalization Program gathered for an hour of performance led by the dance troupe. The group performed two modern dances and one jazz dance. The dancers asked the audience to join them in some innovative movement which could be used for relief of depression and communication of feelings.

Later in the day, a team of dancers led the agency staff in a workshop on movement for stress reduction. A variety of stretching exercises and tips on care of the muscles were presented.

The workshops were presented on a grant from the Kentucky Humanity Council and was co-sponsored by Prestonsburg Community College.

PUBLIC NOTICE TO OWNERS OF RENTAL HOUSING

The Floyd County Housing Authority is administering a Section 8 Moderate Rehabilitation Program in Floyd County using funds provided by the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Under this program, owners will rehabilitate rental units which are now substandard or have major building systems or components requiring repair or replacement. The cost of this work, which must total at least $1000 per unit, may be financed by a local lending institution, by the owner, or by any other source available to the owner. The agency does not make rehabilitation loans or grants, but will assist owners to obtain financing.

After required rehabilitation work has been completed, the agency and the owner will execute a contract which establishes a rent for the unit(s) that will cover rehabilitation costs, meet monthly operating expenses, and allow a reasonable profit on the owner's investment. For a fifteen year period, the owner will rent the rehabilitated unit(s) to eligible lower income tenants, who will pay approximately 25 percent of their income toward the rent. The agency will pay the remainder of the rent directly to the owner. The initial occupant of a rehabilitated unit may be the owner's present eligible tenant.

After rehabilitation the rent(including utilities) cannot exceed the following Maximum Rents:

| BEDROOM SIZE |     |     |     |
|--------------|-----|-----|-----|
|              | 2   | 3   | 4   |
| 206          | 244 | 282 | 319 |

The agency's current funds will allow rehabilitation of 35 units of rental housing as follows:

|      |      |      |      |
|------|------|------|------|
| 1 BR | 2 BR | 3 BR | 4 BR |
| 8    | 18   | 7    | 2    |

No unit will be assisted which results in the permanent displacement of current tenant. Proposals from owners will be received by the Housing Authority until further notice.

Owners who wish to submit a proposal must obtain an application form from:

Floyd County Housing Authority
Housing Office
Green Acres
Prestonsburg, Ky. 41653
Telephone No. 2717

Office Hours: 8:30-12:00 and 1:00-4:30

Application forms and proposal packets may be requested by phone, mail, or in person. Information and assistance is also available at the above office.

Abbott Creek Devel. Club Organizes Scout Troop

The Abbott Creek Development Club recently met and voted to sponsor a scout troop. Parker Locke, a professional scout with the Lonesome Pine Council, talked to the members and explained the scouting program. John Sparr was nominated scouting coordinator and John Ross was elected scoutmaster. The scout troop will involve boys ages 11 thru 18. Any boys interested in scouting should contact John Sparr, 886-8226; John Ross, 886-1433, or Bill Campbell, 886-8667.

Is Four Years Old

Bradley Evans, son of Delmar and Lois Evans, of Grethel, celebrated his fourth birthday, Friday, March 19. He is the grandson of William and Polly Hall, of Prestonsburg, and Martha Evans, of Grethel.

Guests were his grandfather, William Hall, aunts, Connie Adams and Gail Hall, cousins, Teresa Evans and Betty Hall, and friends, Melinda Hall, James, Susie, Karletta Howell, Shonora and Bonnie Hall, Timmy and Shelia Yates, Jo Ann and Jackie Hall. Everyone enjoyed a General Lee cake and other refreshments.

Says Old Veterans Deprived By Cuts

I noted recently that the Viet Nam Veterans were getting some recognition for the sacrifices they made in the useless Vietnam War. These veterans richly deserve all the honor reserved for heroes.

I wish, however, to write about a group of forgotten veterans—the World War I veterans who went to France and gave the best part of their lives to make the world "safe for democracy." These old veterans are now in their eighties, and ten more years will take most all of them into a new world where there'll be no more wars.

At present these old veterans are feeling the axe of Reagan's budget cuts. With much enthusiasm the veterans administration of Louisville is slashing the pensions of these old veterans, in most cases by more than half. In some cases, they are suspending the payment of the pension for a period of about two years.

So Reagan's budget cuts is a two-edged sword that slashes through the hearts and lives of the elderly, the sick and those in desperate need. Reagan is sending millions to help a heathen country like El Salvador but fails to take care of the needy at home. He gives a big sum to El Salvador, and its people would knife Uncle Sam in the back if given a chance.

In order to make a big showing on Reagan's budget cuts, the veterans administration at Louisville has used a shrewd way to suspend the pension of any feeble veteran of World War I. It seems they want to get these old veterans off the pension rolls as soon as possible.

Here's how they take away an old veterans pension for a period of about ten years: Let's say some feeble veteran up in his eighties is drawing a pension of $250 monthly. This pension was granted him on the statement of his doctor that he was feeble and needed help about getting around. The veterans' administration, Louisville, goes back about a year and does some figuring. Then they write the old veteran somewhat as follows: "In checking your record over the past year, we find you have been overpaid in the sum of $2,000.00. In order for us to recoup this sum, we are suspending your pension until this amount is paid in full."

As a result of this edict the old veteran will have no income except a small social security check—not enough to pay his living expenses and hire a nurse when he needs one.

So what can the feeble veteran do in a case like this? Nothing, but sit around and worry himself into an early grave.

Pensioners May Owe Taxes, Internal Revenue Cautions

If you receive a pension, you may suddenly discover you owe taxes on this income, since most pensions are either partially taxable, or will at some time become taxable, the Internal Revenue Service says.

If you have a tax liability of $200 or more for 1982, you may have to pay a penalty at tax time. To avoid this, there are two options, according to the IRS.

One option is to estimate your annual tax, and pay it all at once in advance, or in installments, whichever is most convenient. To do this, you should fill out IRS Form 1040-ES, "Declaration of Estimated Tax for Individuals," and submit it to the IRS. Included with Form 1040-ES is a worksheet to help you determine estimated tax, and a voucher to send in with your estimated tax payments.

The other option is to file a Form W-4P, "Pension Annuity, or Sick Pay Recipient's Request for Federal Tax Withholding," with the issuer of the pension. This form should be available through the company issuing the pension or can be obtained from the IRS.

In addition, if you're 60 years of age and over, free tax counseling is available through local IRS-coordinated Tax Counseling for the Elderly (TCE) programs. Through these programs, specially trained volunteers provide assistance on such matters as tax credit for the elderly, the special treatment of gain on the sale of a home by an elderly person, the proper method of reporting certain pension income and paying tax on it when necessary, and other subjects of special interest and concern to older persons. These volunteers can also help you fill out your tax returns, the IRS says.

Those who are eligible, and need the assistance of this program, should call the IRS Tax Information Number listed in the local telephone directory to find the center nearest you.

Forms W-4P and 1040-ES are available from the IRS, as are Publications 505, "Tax Withholding and Estimated Tax," and 575, "Pension and Annuity Income." These free publications will answer most of your questions regarding taxes and pensions. They can be obtained by using the handy order form found in each tax package, or by writing the IRS at P.O. Box 636, Florence, Kentucky 41042.

MASTERS COMMISSIONER'S SALE FLOYD CIRCUIT COURT

Adrian J. Roberts, guardian for Laura Lee Holland . . . . . PIF.

VS. NOTICE OF SALE 81-CI-909 Laura Lee Holland, infant, and Jonah Smith . . . . . depts. By virtue of a judgment and order of sale of the Floyd Circuit Court rendered at the February 12 term, 1982 in the above-styled cause I shall proceed to offer for sale at the Courthouse door in Prestonsburg, Kentucky, to the highest and best bidder, at public auction, on the 9th day of April, 1982 at 10 o'clock a.m., same being a day of the regular term of the Floyd Circuit Court, for cash or upon a credit of six months, the following described property to-wit:

Those two certain tracts of land lying and being on the waters of the Levisa Fork of the Big Sandy River in Prestonsburg, Floyd County, Kentucky, as follows:

That certain tract that was conveyed Maxie Allen Hutsinpillar by deed of August 5, 1946 from Mary D. Allen, as recorded August 7, 1946 in Deed Book 132, Page 38, in the records of the Floyd County Clerk's Office and described more particularly as follows:

Two and one-half town lots and being the southern half or twelve and one-half feet of Lot No. 9, and the whole of lots Nos. 10 and 11 in Block No. 21 of the Garfield Addition to the City of Prestonsburg, Kentucky, as shown by plat of said addition now on file and of record in the office of the Floyd County Clerk. The combined lots herein conveyed from 62½ feet on Garfield Avenue and run back with parallel lines a distance of 120 feet to an alley. The half of lot No. 9 herein conveyed adjoins Lot No. 10 aforesaid, as shown on Map 91 filed August 30, 1947, based on survey of June 14, 1929 by W.C. Rimmer, Engineer, for Prestonsburg Engineering Company, Prestonsburg, Kentucky.

That certain tract of land lying and being on North Arnold Avenue and being the same land conveyed the late Maxie Allen Hutsinpillar by deed of June 10, 1952 from Tot Allen Cope, as recorded in Deed Book 151, Page 117 and by deed of August 2, 1962 from Nell Allan Ribble, et ux, J.F. Ribble, as recorded in Deed Book 181, page 171 in the said office, and described more particularly as follow, viz:

Beginning at a stake on the dividing line between the lands formerly owned by T.O. Burchett and Alice Morell, thence with said line W 129 feet to a cross-fence, formerly located on said lot; thence with said cross-fence S 75 feet to the line of the property formerly owned by H. H. Marrs; thence with said line to H.H. Marrs E 129 feet to Second Street; thence N 75 feet to the stake, the place of beginning.

This property is being sold to settle the estate of the late Mary Katherine Hutsinpillar.

The amount of money to be raised by this sale shall include the costs of this action, including costs of advertising of this sale and the fees and commissions for conducting this sale.

For the purchase price the purchaser must execute bond with approved surety or sureties, bearing legal interest from the day of sale until paid and having the force and effect of a judgment with a lien retained upon said property as a further security. Bidders will be prepared to comply with these terms.

Given under my hand, this 22nd day of March, 1982.

Comment Sought On State Health Plan

Kentucky citizens can comment on a comprehensive health plan for the state prepared by the Department for Human Resources and the Statewide Health Coordinating Council.

The plan is a revision of the existing five-year state health plan approved by Gov. John Y. Brown Jr. June 22, 1981.

Following a 30-day public review period, the revised plan will be used as Kentucky's major health policy document for recommending uses of federal funds and for reviewing applications submitted under the state's certificate of need process.

The public review period is March 29 through April 27. During this time, interested citizens may address written comments to the Division for State Health Planning, Bureau for Health Services, 275 E. Main St., Frankfort, Ky. 40621. Copies of the proposed plan are available for review at various locations throughout the state.

Also, a public hearing will be held April 28 in Human Resources' Health Services Auditorium, Frankfort, to solicit comments on the plan from health professionals and private citizens. The hearing begins at 9 a.m. and will continue through 10 a.m., or until all persons have had an opportunity to speak.

Following the public review period and the hearing, members of the Statewide Health Coordinating Council will consider all comments and may incorporate suggestions into the plan. The plan will then be transmitted to the governor for approval.

"Panda-Monium" at the National Zoo

By ANDI STEIN

Smithsonian News Service
It seems like only yesterday. Two green crates marked "Giant Panda" stood in the middle of the animal enclosures at the Smithsonian's National Zoological Park in Washington, D.C., as anxious Zoo officials waited expectantly.

Nearly nuzzling noses are the National Zoo's stars, Hsing-Hsing and Ling-Ling.

Suddenly, a fluffy ball of black and white lumbered out of one crate. Waddling around her pen, she excitedly sniffed the new surroundings, picked up her water dish, promptly turned it upside-down and plopped it on her head. Ling-Ling, a 136-pound, 2-year-old female giant panda who had just arrived from China, was making herself at home.

Meanwhile, in the adjacent enclosure, there was silence from another large wooden box. After some time, a 1-1/2-year-old male, Hsing-Hsing, cautiously emerged. He peered around his new home carefully, then beat a rapid retreat to his den.

So it was that almost immediately after their arrival, outgoing Ling-Ling and shy Hsing-Hsing (pronounced Shing-Shing) had already demonstrated their distinctive personalities.

That was 10 years ago, on April 16, 1972, when the two giant pandas took up residence in the National Zoo. Though they've changed through the decade, the personable Ling-Ling and Hsing-Hsing continue to attract and entertain millions of visitors.

The pandas were a gift to the American people from the People's Republic of China on the occasion of President Nixon's trip there in 1972. As the first giant pandas to live in the United States since Mei-Lan, a male, died at the Brookfield Zoo in Chicago in 1953, Ling-Ling and Hsing-Hsing offered a rare opportunity to learn about the care, behavior and breeding of these exotic creatures.

Natives of China, giant pandas are not found in the wild outside of that country, and only a few zoos around the world currently exhibit them. Even within China, the panda's habitat is limited to what conservationist Vinzenz Ziswiler calls a "vegetational island" of bamboo—the panda's principal food—in the mountains of southwestern China. It is thought that only about 1,000 animals remain in the wild.

From the sparse amount of panda literature available in 1972, Larry Collins, the first National Zoo curator responsible for the pandas, thought the animals would be dullwitted and uninterested in their surroundings. He was soon surprised.

"It was constantly a challenge to stay one step ahead of them," Collins recalls. Soon after his arrival, shy, retiring Hsing-Hsing became as rambunctious as his female counterpart. Both pandas reveled in ripping apart the bamboo planters in their enclosures, knocking over their water tubs and doing handstands in their dens. "There were few dull moments around the panda house," Collins says.

Even as youngsters, both animals were tremendously strong. One of the earliest problems was finding indestructible "toys" to amuse them. Collins thought the solution might be a basketball, specially designed, it was said, to withstand even a determined panda. But Ling-Ling quickly figured out how to sink her teeth into hers, turning the expensive plaything into a heap of deflated orange rubber.

In the summer, blocks of ice and tubs of water entertained the pandas. In the winter, Zoo staffers sometimes built snowmen for the animals. With one swift push of the paw, the figure toppled, rewarding the panda with the snowman's "nose"—a carrot.

Learning the needs of the two lovable creatures was often a matter of trial and error. Ling-Ling and Hsing-Hsing liked to sleep most of the day, to the dismay of visitors who often came long distances only to find them curled up and snoozing. At first, Collins says, the staff thought they were nocturnal animals, but a round-the-clock "panda watch" revealed that the animals are active both in the early morning and early evening.

Then there was their diet. The Chinese had recommended a basic meal of bamboo stalks, carrots, apples and rice gruel. To this the Zoo added powdered cottage cheese, vitamin and mineral supplements and even a dog biscuit, which Collins thought would be good for their teeth.

But as the pandas flourished on this hearty fare, they also gained weight rapidly, soon reaching nearly 300 pounds. By this time, they appeared sluggish and moved clumsily around their enclosures. The overweight animals were put on a diet; by eating less, they eventually slimmed down to a trim 250 pounds, which seems to suit them well.

Over the years, the keepers have seen definite personality changes, although they don't know why. In the (Continued on Following Page) beginning, Ling-Ling was more lively and aggressive, the male rather meek and subdued. Today, the roles have almost reversed. Ling-Ling is often moody and aloof, while Hsing-Hsing has become an attention-loving ham.

"Panda-Monium"

Their behavior patterns have been studied by Dr. Devra Kleiman, head of the Zoo's department of zoological research. Kleiman immediately initiated a "panda log," with a team of volunteers and keepers to monitor the daily and nocturnal activities of the creatures and record their behavior. From these observations, Kleiman learned about the panda's process of communicating to each other by scent-marking, a way of staking out their territories, and by "bleating" sheep-like vocalizations.

The pandas are no longer watched around the clock, but Kleiman and her volunteers continue their nighttime and early morning before and during the panda's spring breeding season, which can begin as early as the last week in March or as late as mid-May.

Partly because of this short, uncertain span for breeding, captive pandas have had a very low rate of reproduction. To date, fewer than 30 pandas have been born in captivity, with nearly all births occurring in China.

Last year, the London Zoo lent its male panda, Chia-Chia, to the National Zoo. Amidst much fanfare and hoopla, Chia-Chia arrived, but before the pair could become acquainted, Ling-Ling came into estrus. When they were put together, Chia-Chia growled at Ling-Ling and bit her legs and rump until the keepers were able to separate the pair.

"It's really hard to find compatible pairs of pandas," Kleiman says, and even if there had been more time for Ling-Ling and Chia-Chia to get to know each other, "they may never have been compatible anyway. Even some of the zoos in China move their pandas around to find pairs who are willing to mate with each other."

The zoo plans to continue its breeding efforts so that perhaps one day there will be a baby panda to perpetuate the species in Washington.

But baby or no, "the last decade has been enriching experience for researchers and visitors alike at the National Zoo. Ling-Ling and Hsing-Hsing have provided hours of pleasure with their antics and acrobatics and, Larry Collins says, "We now have a much better appreciation of panda abilities and capabilities."

From their first days in residence, says National Zoo director Dr. Theodore H. Reed, who accompanied the pandas on their trip to the United States a decade ago, the pandas created a standing love affair with droves of fascinated visitors. "That was 10 years ago," he smiles, "and things haven't settled down yet."

★ Our Fragile Earth

By DR. JERRY HOWELL
Department of Biological and Environmental Sciences
Morehead State University

The last article examined pest control through use of natural predators. This article, originally released in January, 1979, examines the use of hormonal chemicals. Biological pest control, generally the pitting of predators against pests, has met some success in man's seemingly endless war against insects. Another method recently approved by the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) is the use of a chemical, technically a pesticide, called gossypure.

Actually, gossypure does not kill the target insect, the pink bollworm moth; it simply interferes with its reproduction. Gossypure is a pheromone, a very specific chemical closely related to a natural chemical released by most insects to elicit certain reproductive or food finding responses in other individuals of their kind. There are thousands of different natural pheromones in insects; the secret is to find which one induces what response and then to synthesize it in the laboratory.

The pink bollworm moth is a very damaging cotton pest in Arizona and southern California, especially in the Imperial Valley. The adult, or reproductive stage, is not damaging to cotton, but the wormlike intermediate stage, the larva, has been responsible for about 40 million dollars in direct damage and control expenditures annually.

When gossypure is applied to cotton field, it so saturates the air with an artificial sex scent that male moths become confused and rarely find females with which to mate. The result is a dramatic drop in caterpillar (larval) young and a simultaneous decrease in crop damage. The chemical is very specific for the pink bollworm and has no effect on other insects, wildlife, or humans. Neither does it affect the cotton bollworm, a different destructive pest in the southeastern U.S., which responds to an unknown sex pheromone.

In field tests near Blythe, California last year, cotton treated with gossypure suffered only 10 percent damage from the pink bollworm, while the cotton in untreated plots suffered damage to 80 percent. Research is now being performed to find other bollworm pheromones.

Gossypure is the first pheromone approved by EPA. Another man-made scent for killing house flies is registered by the agency, but only for use in combination with a chemical poison. A food attractant, not a true pheromone, has been developed for the Japanese beetle and was in general use in Kentucky and other states during the last two growing seasons. Placed in a funnel-like green and yellow trap, the attractant was very successful in lowering beetle populations, and the traps have become high volume items in local farm supply stores.

Some pheromones are known to keep certain insects in the juvenile or larva stage. These could be very beneficial in controlling insects doing damage in the adult stage. The use of pheromones appears to be the "wave of the future" in insect pest control. Next: cockroaches.

New Pikeville Nat'l Bank Opens

The doors of the new Pikeville National Bank building opened for business, Monday, April 5, according to bank president Burlin Coleman. Banking services at the new location began at 9 a.m. Monday. The new Pikeville National Bank building is located on North Mayo Trail, Pikeville, across the street from the Pikeville High School Athletic Field and easily accessible from both the old U.S. 23 and the new four-lane U.S. 23. The new facility is constructed of precast concrete, steel and glass and contains the most modern facilities available to the banking industry. The building consists of seven floors of usable space and will house the bank's corporate headquarters.

FmHA Rural Housing Loans To Continue

State Director Kendall L. Seaton today announced that the Department's housing assistance programs will continue to be available in rural areas of 10,000 to 20,000 population. This authority was due to expire on March 31, 1982.

Normally, the Farmers Home Administration (FmHA), which administers USDA housing assistance programs, is limited to serving areas of up to 10,000 people. An exception is made when the Secretaries of Agriculture and Housing and Urban Development agree that there is a serious shortage of mortgage credit in the higher populated areas. The assistance is then available in those designated rural areas as long as they are not located in a Standard Metropolitan Statistical Area (SMSA).

The Farmers Home Administration provides housing loan assistance to people in rural areas who are in need of decent, safe and sanitary housing but do not qualify for private credit. Single-family housing loans are available to people low or moderate income at a reduced interest rate. The current interest rate for moderate-income borrowers is 13.25 percent.

FmHA loans are also available to multi-family housing developments to help hold down rental costs for low-income people, the handicapped and senior citizens.

IS YOUR INSURANCE AGENT LOCKED INTO ONE COMPANY?

There are 2 ways to buy insurance. You can buy your insurance from a one-company agent. But he's locked into only those policies that his company sells. So his hands are tied.

Or you can buy your insurance from an Independent Insurance Agent... the more-than-one-company agent. You see, your Big "I" Independent Agent doesn't work for one company. He represents several. So he's free to give you an independent opinion and advise you on the best coverage at the best price. And that goes for homeowners, automobile, business, life and health insurance.

Before you reach a verdict about insurance, see your Big "I" Independent Insurance Agent... the more-than-one-company agent. Do it today.

A commitment for progress in Eastern Kentucky.

When Pikeville National Bank was founded in 1903, we began operations in the small rented building shown above. Our assets back then totaled $25,000.

In 1904, we moved to our own building — a place that would be our main office for more than 77 years. During that time, we expanded three times.

Now, our new building is our latest sign of growth and progress.

As we move into our new $8.5 million main office, we have assets of more than $265 million.

We're the 7th largest bank in Kentucky, and the largest outside of Lexington and Louisville.

For 79 years, Eastern Kentuckians have looked to Pikeville National for leadership in progress. Our new building is a symbol of our commitment to the people and the area we serve.

Member FDIC

The Veterans Administration is contracting with private organizations to provide readjustment counseling services to Vietnam veterans in areas which cannot be adequately or conveniently served by existing outreach Vet Centers. VA's "Operation Outreach" is designed to offer a low-key personalized approach to Vietnam Era veterans who have experienced prolonged difficulty in adjusting to civilian life.

Robbers Take Fright When Woman Appears Armed With A Pistol

The attempted robbery of a business place here last Wednesday failed when the alleged robbers took fright at the appearance of a woman store clerk armed with a pistol and fled, dropping in flight the money bag taken from the store.

Sandy Boyd, owner of the store, Nature's Way, located near the First Commonwealth branch bank here, had left the clerk, Mary Jane Bailey, alone in the store when two men entered by the rear door, produced a handgun and demanded money. She gave them the bag containing store funds, and they left by the same route they had followed in entering. The clerk armed herself with a pistol kept in the store and followed the two, police were told, and when she discovered them behind the building they fled across the lot, leaving the bag and its contents intact.

The robbery attempt is still under investigation, Police Chief Curtis said. The search for the two men continues.

Both men were described as being in their 20s, one as blonde with Afro haircut and wearing a red T-shirt; the other, as having short, black hair and a mustache.

The March Reader's Digest reports that today fewer than five people in one hundred earn enough to qualify for a conventional home mortgage. The effect of this statistic can be seen in another one: this year nearly 200,000 Americans will construct their own homes, circumventing traditional bank financing.

In "Stir Crazy," the 1981 film airing April 17 on the Movie Channel, Richard Pryor and Gene Wilder play two aspiring actors who take seriously President Reagan's advice about "voting with their feet" and head west from New York. However, they get stranded in a small town on the way, where they are framed for robbing a bank. The next stop is the state penitentiary. By using their wits, the pair survive life among the hardened cons. "Stir Crazy" was directed by Academy Award-winning actor Sidney Poitier.

★ CONSUMER ALERT ★

"Since your time, money, and perhaps your peace of mind are involved, you should take every precaution to assure you are getting quality repair work for your automobile," advises Steven L. Beshear, the state attorney general.

When you seek repairs on your automobile, ask the repair shop for a written estimate of the cost of the work. Also, find out how much this estimate can vary. Make sure the estimate includes all parts, labor, and the length of time needed to complete the work. It is sometimes advantageous to obtain several estimates, especially if the estimates are free or if the first shop's estimate is too high. Consumers should remember that the lowest estimate is not necessarily the best; the reputation and reliability of the company are also very important.

Should a company refuse to provide a written estimate, you should consult other companies about the repairs. Be skeptical of estimates that are much lower than others; estimates should not vary drastically from one business to another. A cheap estimate is worthless unless the actual costs remain close to the original estimate.

"Once you have selected a repair shop, it is very important that you remove all valuables from the car, particularly if the repairs will take overnight or if the vehicle will be left unattended for several hours," said Beshear. "Most businesses do not take responsibility for any damages or theft of property left in the customer's vehicle."

Before signing a repair order, see that each item needing repair is listed and each repair detailed. Do not accept vague descriptions which may entail more repairs than indicated. If the repair shop offers a warranty on labor or parts, make sure this assurance is placed in writing too. Furthermore, before signing a work order, specify in writing that no additional repairs are to be performed without your personal authorization. Should you desire that the old parts be returned to you, be sure to indicate this on the work order prior to the repairs.

Upon returning to the shop, ask to test-drive your car. Before you pay the bill, make sure all of the repairs have been performed to your satisfaction. Once your transaction has been completed, request a copy of the work order. Then, if a problem should occur due to the shop's faulty repairs, you will have a copy of their work order in addition to any warranties covering the work.

If you should have difficulties when having repair work done on your automobile, contact the Attorney General's Consumer Protection Division at 209 St. Clair St., Frankfort, Ky. 40601, or call the toll-free consumer hotline: 1-800-432-9257.

Electricity is one of the most convenient and dependable forms of energy we have. But care must be taken when you're around it, because contact with it can injure or kill. So treat electricity with respect and make sure you follow these safety rules:

1. If you're trimming trees, painting a house, repairing a roof or putting up aluminum siding, make sure you're well clear of overhead power lines.
2. When using a ladder, make sure it will not come in contact with any power lines.
3. Before installing a CB, TV or ham radio antenna, make sure it's at least one and one-half times its total height away from all power lines.
4. Don't use electrical yard tools when the ground is wet. And make sure they're double-insulated or properly grounded with a 3-wire plug.
5. Before you do any type of digging, contact your power company to make sure there are no buried electric cables.
6. Never go near any fallen lines. If you see a victim of electrical shock, don't touch him if he's still in contact with the wire.

Herpes attacks more than 75 million Americans each year. Scientists searching for a cure fear that many non-viral diseases could be herpes-related.

Joe Wheeler Meadows

One of the largest assemblies of its kind seen in this area for some time gathered at the Water Gap Free Will Baptist Church last Sunday afternoon to attend funeral services for Joe Wheeler (Smokey Joe) Meadows, 86, who died last Thursday at the Methodist Hospital in Pikeville.

A resident of Prestonsburg, he was born May 6, 1895 at Brandy Keg, a son of the late George and Sally Campbell Meadows. He was a retired employee of the Kentucky West Virginia Gas Company and had taught in the Floyd county school system. A veteran of World War I, he was a member of the Walter K. Bowling Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, of the Floyd Post, American Legion, and was the oldest member and last World War I veteran of the Andy J. Blanton Chapter No. 18, Disabled American Veterans. He was a member of the Water Gap Free Will Baptist Church.

He was first married to Ruth Garrett Meadows, and after her death was married to Mary Grey Meadows, who also preceded him in death. He later was married to Avenell Blanton Meadows, who is also deceased.

He is survived by 10 sons, Dennis Meadows, of Lee City, George, Cottrell, Arthur Lee, Silas, and Berkin Meadows, all of Ypsilanti, Mich., Frank and Wade Meadows, of Water Gap, Curtis Meadows, of Bellville, Mich., and Joe W. Meadows, Jr., of Atlanta, Ga.; two daughters, Mrs. Sally Adkins, of Grethel, and Mrs. Goldie Scutchfield, of Ypsilanti, Mich.; four stepsons, William and Kenneth Combs, of East Point, Tom Combs, of Prestonsburg, and John Combs, of Water Gap; one stepdaughter, Mrs. Linda Sherer, of Hazard; 41 grandchildren, 45 great-grandchildren, and 10 step-grandchildren.

The officiating minister was the Rev. Danny Curry.

Burial was made in the Stephens cemetery at Water Gap where military rites were conducted by the members of Chapters 18, 15, 136 and 128, D.A.V., VFW Post 5839, and three American Legion posts. Burial was made under direction of the Floyd Funeral Home.

Mrs. Gertrude Bates

Funeral services for Mrs. Gertrude Bates, 71, of Bevinville, who died Monday at Our Lady of the Way Hospital, Martin, after an extended illness, will be conducted at 10 a.m. tomorrow (Thursday) at the Little Rock Regular Baptist Church at Bevinville with Regular Baptist ministers officiating.

Born February 22, 1911 at Galveston, she was a daughter of the late Nelson and Kate Newman Akers.

She is survived by three sons, Arlis Bates, of Bevinville, Carnis Bates, of Lexington, and Edward Bates, of Detroit, Mich.; one brother, Willie Akers, in Florida; three half-brothers, Kenneth Akers, of Galveston, Si and Richard Akers, both of Rochester, N.Y.; four sisters, Mrs. Virgie Osborne, of Pikeville, Mrs. Runa Allen and Mrs. Bama Taylor, both of Rochester, N.Y., and Mrs. Verda Hall, of Teaberry.

Burial will be made in the Buckingham cemetery under direction of the Merion Funeral Chapel.

Bennie Sellards

Bennie Sellards, 93, of Endicott, died at his home there last Friday after an extended illness.

Born June 14, 1888, he was a son of the late Benjamin and Polly Clay Sellards and was married to Janie Music Sellards, who also preceded him in death. He was a retired employee of the Kentucky West Virginia Gas Company and was a veteran of World War I.

He is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Patricia Childers, of Garrett.

Funeral services were conducted at 2 p.m. yesterday (Tuesday) in the chapel of the Floyd Funeral Home by the Revs. Bill Campbell, Richard Crisp, and Henry Crider. Military rites were performed by the Disabled American Veterans, No. 128, of Garrett, at the graveside in the Sellards cemetery at Endicott.

Easter Seal services for the handicapped are adapted to specific community needs and are given through rehabilitation and treatment centers in many ways. If you need help, call your Easter Seal Society.

Among many other rehabilitation services, Easter Seal societies nationwide provided diagnostic treatment and services for speech, hearing, and related disorders for more than 150,000 people last year.
