

PAWING EXCITEDLY, Lobo unerringly sniffs out marijuana hidden behind truck wheel in a demonstration of his skills at the courthouse last week. Newly-recruited by the Sheriff's Department, the nine-year-old veteran of U.S. Customs service will be used here to uncover dope, especially in the schools. His handler, Chief Deputy Paul Hunt Thompson, has been trained to work with the dog.

Speaker Scores County's Rating In Council Talk

Of Kentucky's 120 counties, Floyd ranks 33rd in tourist income, and John McCann, for one, is not happy with that record.

"There is no reason we can't be closer to the top of the list," McCann, general manager of the Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theater, told members of Prestonsburg city council Monday. The county's attractions—not least, Jenny Wiley State Park and the summer music theater itself—have not been sufficiently advertised in the past, he said, outlining a current campaign to sell the area more aggressively.

Compared to Bardstown, where the town boosts the theater and where "The Stephen Foster Story" plays to near-capacity audiences, town and theater here have remained relatively isolated from each other, with the result that the theater has customarily played to audiences of only 45-50 percent capacity, McCann said.

This season's productions will use more local talent; one production, "The Music Man," will feature different high school bands from the county; three modest scholarships in the performing arts will be offered to

Leslie Resigns, Per Agreement At Convention

On Monday at "high noon"—in the words of the motion that made it official—leadership of Floyd Democrats passed from Prestonsburg physician Larry Leslie to Martin coal operator Morris Isaac.

On its surface, the change in leadership was merely the realization of a pact concluded between the two men in 1980 when it became apparent to delegates to the county convention that neither could command a sufficiently large majority to claim the chairmanship without seriously risking party unity.

The deal—according to which Leslie would be chairman for the first two years of the four-year term and Isaac for the remaining two years—was urged as a means of keeping the party together.

Technically, Leslie resigned the position in the middle of his term and Isaac was named by the executive committee to fill the vacancy. Dividing up an elective position by agreement could hardly have survived a court challenge, a number of Floyd Democrats noted when the idea of a deal was first proposed.

In any event, it may have effected only a semblance of unity. For, according to

Local Phone Rates May Rise Two-Thirds

South Central Bell's rate hike request would mean nearly a 67 percent increase in phone rates here.

The phone company, which serves about 750,000 customers in 79 Kentucky counties, asked the state Public Service Commission (PSC) Friday to approve new rate schedules that would generate additional revenue of $66.1 million a year.

The commission is not expected to rule on the rate request until October. If it approves all the company is asking for, the basic monthly service charge for a home line in Prestonsburg will rise from $11.26 to $18.76. Cost of a business line, now $28.53, would go up to $46.90.

Rates are somewhat higher out in the county, depending on the subscriber's distance from the central exchange.

The phone company has asked for smaller interim increases of $1.25 for home lines and $2.50 for business lines to be put into effect on May 13, with the full increases to be adopted October 13.

To sweeten its rate increase proposal, the company proposed to increase the discount offered customers who use measured service, a system that offers lower rates for basic local service but charges them for local calls above a certain number. And it introduced a "low use" measured service that will benefit customers who make very few calls.

Company officials cite inflation and increased capital costs as reasons for the rate hike request. "People who invest their hard-earned savings in us reasonably expect a return that outpaces inflation," said Stanley S. Dickson, Bell vice-president, adding, "The rates of return authorized by PSC last August—11.34 percent on net average investment and 13.25 percent on equity—are not realistic in today's market."

The PSC is expected to hold hearings on the request.

Red, White, Blue Day Meeting Set May 4

A planning meeting for next fall's Red, White and Blue Day is scheduled for Tuesday, May 4 at 7 p.m. at the Martin Senior Citizens' Center. Marcella Bailey, founder, urges everyone concerned to attend this organizational meet.

Explosives Pose Threat as Two Caches Found

Discovery of two caches of explosives in the Prestonsburg area over the past week which, if detonated, could have caused serious injury and extensive damage to property, has spurred investigations by state and local law enforcement officials.

The largest stockpile, which has most baffled investigators, was accidentally discovered Saturday during the landscaping of the lawn of James Calhoun at the mouth of Mayo Branch, between Prestonsburg and Lancer. Because the dynamite had crystallized, officers of the sheriff's department decided against attempting to move it. Sunday, an explosives expert of the Kentucky State Police and Deputy Sheriffs Paul Hunt Thompson and Chuck Akers destroyed the following items:

Fifty-four sticks of dynamite, 124 sticks of primer booster (described as more volatile than dynamite), 1000 feet of primer cord, a stick of crystallized explosive gelatin and several dynamite caps

This Town...That World

Good yawning! Haven't had a good night's sleep since we began stirring an hour earlier than on plain Eastern Time.

WE PASS THE BUCK

As you may have been aware, we failed to warn the public last week of the time change just ahead. We blame that on Clifford Wright, who has been our official timekeeper since the hapless day, some years ago, when I got a week ahead, somehow, and had folks getting up and going places on "fast" time while it was yet "slow." The fact is, I am told, Father Time threw Mr. Wright a changeup and he himself struck out, so to speak, on the date when this latest thorn in the flesh was due to afflict us.

SPRINGTIME WITHOUT THE RED-BUD

Strikes me, now that I have taken a closer look, that I may have been a bit premature last week in mentioning the rebud as being among the hillside beauties of the season. The cruel fact of the matter is the rebuds are almost invisible this year. Their failure to bloom removes from Eastern Kentucky hills that purple delight to the eye that I never expected to fail us, any springtime. They contrasted so beautifully with the white of the dogwood which is at its most beautiful this very week.

It will be no comfort, but I still would like to know what happened to the rebuds?

THE DEFENDER

One of my favorite preachers told the story, the other day, of the stout defense this resident of the city of Miami, Florida offered when a visitor there spoke of the high crime rate in Miami.

"Just newspaper and TV propaganda," the man said.

"But what about those Haitians and the violence they brought?"

"Just displaced persons looking for

Sheriff's Dept. To Use Dog In Drive Against Narcotics

School students and others using illegal drugs in this county may be in for a surprise. The sheriff's department here last week introduced its newest recruit—a dog trained to sniff out marijuana, cocaine, hashish and heroin—and vowed the dog would soon be put to use in a countywide crackdown on illicit drug possession.

On the order of his handler, Chief Deputy Paul Hunt Thompson, the nine-year-old German Shepherd, named Lobo (that's Spanish for "wolf"), put on an impressive display of his skills before a courthouse audience last Friday, quickly locating marijuana hidden in the courthouse and in a vehicle parked nearby.

While Sheriff Henry Hale was loath to identify any particular area as the primary focus of the dog's activity, Magistrate Kenneth Roberts, who initiated the fiscal court decision to acquire the dog, indicated that the schools would be a special target of Lobo's investigations.

According to County Attorney Arnold Turner, Jr., the courts have ruled that trained dogs may be used to establish a "probable cause" needed for the issuance of search warrants on private property.

Searches of school lockers, not usually regarded as private property, would generally be held constitutional even without a search warrant, he said.

Turner acknowledged that some uses

County's Music Festival Moved To Late Monday

Queen contestants and bands from each of the county's high schools will be featured in the annual Floyd County Music Festival Parade scheduled to begin at 6:30 p.m., Monday, May 3.

The parade, which will be led by last year's Music Festival Queen Melody Lea Conn, will begin on Highland Ave. behind the Grade School, turn down West Friend and by the Dairy Queen onto North Lake Drive. It will then proceed along Lake Drive to Court Street, then onto Third St. by the postoffice, onto Graham St. and onto South Lake Drive, back onto Court Street to First Avenue and conclude at the Board of Education building.

The Music Festival Queen will be chosen at the All-County Concert at Prestonsburg Field House at 7 p.m., May 13. Queen contestants include the following:

Gwen Akers, 17-year-old Betsy Layne senior and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ervin Akers, of Dana; member of Betsy Layne band four years and a majorette her senior year. An honor student for four years, she plans to attend Prestonsburg Community College.

Shawn Renee Curry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Bailey, of Bypro and a junior at Wheelwright High School; band member for five years, majorette for three years and drum majorette for two years; honor student and member of the Beta Club.

May 19 Concert Here, Homecoming For Army Field Band Commander

Wednesday, May 19, will be homecoming for Lt. Col. William E. Clark.

And he is bringing with him on his return to his hometown the internationally famous United States Army Field Band, of which he is commander and conductor, with the Soldiers' Chorus, for a free concert.

It is homecoming for the commander-conductor of the band, because he was born here, a son of Emery E. Clark and the late Mae Hill Clark, who lived here until Mr. Clark's retirement.

Local sponsors of the Army Field Band and Soldiers' Chorus are The Floyd County Times and the Music Department of Prestonsburg Community College headed by Gus Kalos.

During the day the band and chorus will present two concerts, both without charge. The first will be for students at 1 p.m., May 19, and the second, which will be for the general public, will be at 8 p.m. Both concerts will be held at the Prestonsburg High School fieldhouse.

The 65-piece band with chorus of 25 voices is under the operational control of the Army's chief of public affairs at the Pentagon. Known as "the Musical Ambassadors of the Army," the Field Band travels thousands of miles a year, making at least two major concert tours annually. It is considered by music critics as one of the most distinctive musical organizations now appearing before the public.

One such accolade was paid by John Blunt, of the Yorkshire Evening Press, after the concert in York, England. He wrote: "...115 men in a park did more good for their country in 90 minutes than the pronouncements of their statesmen do, perhaps, in as many months."

Wrote Ivan H. Peterman, Philadelphia Inquirer critic: "A Paris audience came to sniff at Gershwin music but forgot their French nonchalance to cheer enthusiastically. Amsterdam's audience became a wild, cheering throng as Sousa's famed Stars and Stripes March ended the show."

The Field Band not only tours the United States, appearing in the country's largest cities as well as smaller towns but has in four overseas trips visited almost all European countries except Russia and, playing once in Belgrade, has penetrated the Iron Curtain.

Though seen and heard by millions around the world via television, radio and motion pictures, the largest crowd ever to witness a single performance by the band was in Milwaukee where one July evening more than 325,000 people jammed the shoreline of Lake Michigan to hear the band participate in the "Old Milwaukee Days" fete.

The Field Band is composed of the Army's finest soldier-musicians, many of whom have studied at the country's leading conservatories and schools of music. All its members were selected for assignment after personal audition.

The Soldiers' Chorus, which is an integral part of the band, is directed by Capt. Gary F. Lamb, of Alliance, Nebraska. It presents its own special arrangements of well-known compositions at each performance.

Heads U.S. Army Field Band

Lieut. Col. William E. Clark, commander and conductor of the United States Army Field Band of Washington, D.C. is the sixth director in the history of the band. Colonel Clark entered upon his duties with more than 27 years' experience in military music.

He earned the Bachelor of Arts and Master of Arts degrees from Marshall University, Huntington, W. Va., and prior to joining the Army taught instrumental music in Kentucky and Ohio and was the bandmaster of the Kentucky National Guard Band.

Lieut. Col. Clark was commissioned in 1966 and was assigned as staff bands officer at Headquarters, United States Army Europe, followed by an assignment to the Staff Bands Office, Headquarters, Department of the Army, Washington, D.C.

After a tour with the 199th Infantry Brigade in Vietnam, he served as executive officer of the United States Military Academy Band at West Point. Prior to his current assignment, he served as commandant of the United States Army Element, School of Music in Norfolk, Virginia.

His military decorations include the Bronze Star Medal, the Meritorious Service Medal with Oak Leaf Cluster and the Army Commendation Medal with two Oak Leaf Clusters. Lieutenant Colonel Clark is a graduate of the Armed Forces Staff College.

FLOWERS AT FUNERALS

In ancient days, fragrant flowers and strongly scented spices were ever-present at funerals. Wild flowers lent a natural beauty to the tribal funerals along with a "living" tribute to the departed tribesman. Flower and spice fragrances "perfumed" the area.

Today, flowers have retained an important place in funeral service. Today we can't always pick our own flowers so we have florists who design and produce breathtakingly beautiful floral pieces.

Flowers add a bright, colorful beauty to a setting which may seem somber to some, but flowers still add beauty to a casket and provide a hint of delicate fragrance. Floral pieces treat kindly our senses of sight and smell. Still a "living" tribute, they are an emotional contribution to the comfort of the surviving family, a testimonial that the funeral, indeed, is for the living!

As an expression of sympathy and love, flowers serve admirably when the sender cannot be present to offer condolences. Most florists have developed special floral arrangements for funerals.

If you have questions about funeral flowers, ask us—better still, ask a florist!

Ready To Romp

Irresponsible people set out pups and kittens by roadsides all the time as an easy means of disposal. Other, more caring people often find these unfortunate animals and bring them to the Floyd county animal shelter. So, what you get at the shelter is a big variety of dogs and cats of all sizes and ages. Take these two, for example. They're fat and chunky and just about the right age to start playing and getting rowdy. Come and see 'em "in person" at the shelter. Phone 886-2863 to make sure the shelter manager is around.

(A Reminder: May 2-8 is Be Kind to Animals Week.)

Displaced Homemaker Center Open House Scheduled

The Displaced Homemaker Program at Prestonsburg Community College will have open house from 3-5 p.m. tomorrow (Thursday).

Dr. Henry A. Campbell, Jr., director of the college, had given permission to remodel one of the existing structures on campus for a center in which to provide training and counseling services to participants in the program. The Prestonsburg Job Corps assisted with the actual remodeling.

The Displaced Homemaker Program assists individuals who meet CETA income eligibility standards, are separated, divorced, deserted, or where there is the death or disability of a spouse. Homemakers may be men or women and must have been homemakers for a minimum of five years.

If eligible for services, they may obtain assistance with training or job placement. Any interested individual may call 886-3863, ext. 255 for further information.

Labor-Management Meet Set May 4-6

The Sixth Annual Kentucky Labor/Management Conference will be held May 4-6 at Kentucky Dam Village State Park at Gilbertsville.

Co-sponsored by the state Department of Labor and the Kentucky Commerce Cabinet, the conference brings together leaders from labor and management to discuss a problems in a relaxed setting.

Between 400 and 500 participants are expected to attend the conference which will feature seminars on such subjects as mock negotiations, the establishment of local labor/management committees, and the cooperation needed for economic development. Golf, tennis and fishing tournaments will also be held.

A banquet will be held Wednesday evening, May 5, with Gov. John Y. Brown, Jr., scheduled as guest speaker.

"This conference has proven to be a valuable tool in improving Kentucky's labor/management climate," said Labor Commissioner John C. Wells. "It has helped resolve problems in the past and we believe it can prevent misunderstandings from developing in the future."

Approximately 300 people attended the first conference in 1977. More than 550 participated in last year's event.

IRS Can Apply Refund to Child Support Pay

Some Kentucky taxpayers who have delinquent child or spousal support obligations may have their individual federal tax accounts frozen from refund action. Some part or all of an expected federal tax refund may be offset to the state, and not sent to the individual.

The Internal Revenue Code provides for the offset of income tax overpayments for delinquent child and spousal support. Names of individuals who are delinquent in child support payments are referred to the Internal Revenue Service from the federal Department of Health and Human Services (HHS). A letter called a "Notice of Offset" will be sent to each taxpayer when a refund is applied to a delinquent obligation. This letter will inform taxpayers that all or a part of their tax refund was kept to fully or partially satisfy a past due support obligation referred from HHS. The letter will also include the address and telephone number of the state agency to which the offset has been paid. This state agency may be from a state other than Kentucky.

The Internal Revenue Service is authorized to offset only the unpaid child-spousal obligations that are certified and referred by the Department of Health and Human Services.

If a taxpayer does not agree with the Notice of Offset, contact should be made with the state agency shown on the Notice of Offset, and not the IRS.

ding to a number of observers, the party here remains sorely split among factions.

According to the agreement, Leslie was permitted to choose half the members of the executive committee—now swollen to 15, the maximum permitted under party rules—and Isaac the other half. Yet another ingredient was added to the mix last year when Jerry Lafferty, Jr. bested Dick Leslie in the judge-executive's race.

For Dr. Leslie, taking first turn at the chairmanship apparently proved useful in securing his election to the state central executive committee—as one of five representatives of the Seventh Congressional District—a position he will hold for four years. He was also named alternate delegate to the national Democratic convention which sought unsuccessfully to return Jimmy Carter for a second term as president.

Isaac will have the advantage of party leadership here during next year's campaign for governor, when the candidates—so far Human Resources Secretary Dr. Grady Stumbo, Lt. Gov. Martha Layne Collins, and Louisville Mayor Harvey Sloane are said to be interested in the job—will presumably be wooing support in this Democratic stronghold.

Whether that advantage amounts to much is a matter of opinion. It didn't hurt Floyd to carry the banner for Bert Combs and Ned Breathitt in years past and, theoretically, support for a successful candidate next year could reap some benefits for the county or at least for Isaac's supporters—though few, if any, jobs at the county level now owe anything to the governor's favor, and the very concept of political patronage has recently suffered a public drubbing at the hands of Gov. John Y. Brown.

According to some, the split in Floyd Democratic politics itself reduces whatever leverage the party here might have on state officials. Having one figure here who can credibly claim wide voter support—or even having, as in the old days, a recognized patronage broker here—might count for something in Frankfort; a divided organization is in a distinctly weaker bargaining position, it is argued.

At the meeting last Tuesday of the Floyd executive committee which ratified his succession to the party leadership, Isaac's supporters were also able to turn aside a bid by Leslie to name a replacement for committeeman Fred Conn, of Dana, who was said to have tendered his resignation. Isaac will presumably now be in a position to name his own replacement for Conn.

To what extent the new chairman will be able to consolidate his position, however, may depend to some extent on Judge-Executive Lafferty, who is not universally included among Isaac's admirers, and on the inevitable role of the Board of Education, which appears closer to Lafferty than to Isaac.

For his part, Dr. Leslie says he now wants out of the fray. His sights are set on a different trophy—the state senatorial seat currently held by Lowell Hughes, of Ashland, whose 25th District—since the recent realignment of boundaries—now includes the major part of Prestonsburg. Hughes has reportedly indicated he will not seek re-election to the seat.

graduating seniors; a touring children's play and a two-week day camp for children are also being offered—and greater effort will be put into raising funds for the theater, he said.

With the aid of billboards, brochures, and the cooperation of local merchants, McCann said, this area will be promoted as the place to enjoy "a colorful good time in an esthetic mountain setting." Council members pledged their support for the promotion.

Theft of street signs is a growing problem here and could lead to a serious traffic accident, Councilman George C. Brown told the council. "As soon as we put them up, they are taken down," lamented City Manager David Evans. Police Chief Jim Curtis was alerted to the problem.

The council voted to accept an offer by Floyd Property Valuation Administrator Lovell Hall to make use of the county rolls in assessing city property taxes. For the service, Hall will charge the city $250 for the first $1 million in assessed value and $50 for every million thereafter—about $1250 for Prestonsburg's estimated $21 million property.

The council will study a number of "junk vehicle" ordinances with a view to adopting one for the city. Police Chief Curtis said he had received from city residents "numerous complaints" of abandoned vehicles.

Newcomers to May Branch will be asked to bear their share of the special tax levied to pay for sewer lines there. When the lines were laid in 1976, Councilman Estill Lee Carter explained, the city contributed $50,000 to the project, with the remaining $45,000 to be raised by residents over 10 years. According to an agreement at that time, new residents would assume a share of the debt as they settled there, he said.

Residents in the Earl Street area complained again of a serious drainage problem there. Standing water in that area breeds mosquitoes, poses a health hazard, and makes paving impossible, Dave Stephens and Gary Price told the council. No local monies are available to drain the area but a request has been made of the state highways department to do the job, they were told.

of the dog would raise constitutional questions—if the dog sniffed out drugs in a student's pocket, for example. While the courts have sometimes condoned "frisking" persons suspected of carrying a weapon, suspected drug carriers may be protected by law against summary searches, he said.

Nevertheless, "since the issue of drugs in the schools is so serious," his office would offer the sheriff's department maximum support in employing the dog's skills, Turner said.

While the state police are said to possess two dogs trained to find drugs, Floyd is thought to be the only Kentucky county outside Jefferson and Fayette counties to make use of a dog in drug investigations.

Questions To Answer

I am very tired of hearing and reading about the poor performance of the Floyd county schools and especially who is to blame for the problem. I have read everything from basketball games, early dismissals, poor teachers, and even Pete Grigsby were responsible for low performance in our school.

Stop and think and answer these questions. How much can children learn when there are 40 children in one room? How much can they learn when we have inadequate rooms to teach in? How much can they learn when they are allowed to spend most of their time playing video games and watching Home Box Office? How much can they learn when they come to school with only four to five hours sleep? How much can they learn when they habitually come to school late or leave school early? How much can they learn when families are fighting and splitting up? How much can they learn when they miss days a month simply because they don't want to come?

It is very clear to me that there are a lot of people to blame—parents, students, teachers, administrators, society, and our government. We all worked together to create the problem. Now, we need to work together to solve the problem. Instead of sitting around writing letters we need to be working. Join your school's PTA and then attend the meetings. Attend the Board of Education's meetings monthly. Talk positively about our teachers and school systems. Why should a child try to succeed in a system you have dubbed a failure? Take a working interest in your child. Contact their teachers, work with the teachers. Above all, don't write—ACT.

Blood Pressure Clinic

May has been proclaimed High Blood Pressure Month. To increase awareness of the seriousness of hypertension, a clinic is being conducted on Monday, May 3, at Heck's Department Store in Prestonsburg from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. The local Red Cross Chapter and the CKCB Prestonsburg Donor Station are sponsoring the clinic. Refreshments will be served and the public is invited to attend.

Don't take chances. Even blood pressure that is a "little" higher than it should be means you are taking a chance of someday having heart or kidney trouble. So if you have ever been told your blood pressure is just a "little" high, see your doctor.

The clinic is free and registered nurses will be on hand to take your blood pressure and answer questions.

homes and work. They're settling in to be good citizens."

"And those criminals Castro sent over to Miami—what about them?"

"They're all right—Castro called them criminals after they escaped from him."

By this time the visitor was pretty well tired by this man who declared Miami faultless. "By the way, what do you do in Miami?" he asked.

"Me? I'm tail-gunner on a bread truck."

NATURALLY...

But don't blame this one on any preacher. It has to do with the American, the German and the P— (representative of a much-maligned and sorely oppressed land) who were "saddling up" for a trip across the desert. The American had a jug of water; the German, some food, while the third carried an old car-door.

They checked their supplies. "I have water to drink," the American said. "And I've brought food when we get hungry," quoth the German.

"But what is the car-door for?" the third was asked.

"So that when it gets hot I can roll the window down," he blithely replied.

Defends Parents

I just want to say that I admire the concerned parents in our county who care enough and have the courage to question the quality of education our children are receiving.

The sad part is that some people label them as trouble-makers or "politically hungry." I don't see them this way. It's been my experience that if you stand up for something you believe in, this automatically makes you a trouble-maker. If you don't do anything, then you're accused of not caring enough to get involved. If these people care enough to stand up for our children, we should support them instead of calling them names. After all, don't we want the best possible education for our children? It's our tax dollars that is paying for this education. We, as parents and taxpayers have the right and duty to see that our children get the quality of education they're entitled to.

Why can't the Floyd county board members, administration, parents, and teachers all work together to achieve this goal? Just imagine what our schools could be like if we all worked together instead of having so much friction. If we're concerned about our children's education as we should be, we wouldn't be having this problem. We'd all be working together—for our children.

Blood Pressure Aid

Everyone of us probably knows someone who has high blood pressure because it's such a common condition. And when we help people who have high blood pressure to keep it under control, we are helping them to reduce their risk of early death or disability.

Recent studies conducted by the National Heart, Lung, and Blood Institute indicate that a great deal of progress has been made nationally through the combined efforts of local community high blood pressure programs across the country.

—Where 10 years ago, relatively few Americans knew much about high blood pressure, now almost 75 percent of the total population knows that high blood pressure is a serious condition.

—Millions now know that high blood pressure increases the risk of heart attack, stroke, and kidney failure.

—And more than 80 percent know that high blood pressure cannot be cured, but can be controlled with drugs.

A variety of health professionals and dozens of volunteers contribute to our local high blood pressure control efforts. And High Blood Pressure Month this May gives the community a chance to recognize and acknowledge the work these people are doing to bring this sometimes debilitating condition under control. We have made a lot of progress. And to continue our work, we need support from the community and our local legislators.

Coal Industry Influence On State Legislators Is Subject Of KET Program

KET's nightly news program, Kentucky Journal, which features in-depth looks at topics of interest in the state, will be exploring the influence of the coal industry on Kentucky's legislature. This program will air tomorrow (Thursday), at 7:30 p.m.

Featured guests will be State Rep. Joe Clarke, D-Danville, chairperson of the House Appropriations and Revenue Committee, former State Rep. Steve Cawood, D-Pineville, and Joey Childers, an attorney for Concerned Citizens of Martin County, which is affiliated with the Kentucky Fair Tax Coalition. Childers was an active advocate for an unmined minerals tax bill during the 1982 General Assembly.

The program will focus on revenue and taxation measures and how the coal industry fared this past session. The program will also examine the legislature's new independence and what it means.

Many Complain, But Few Testify In Liquor Cases

People who complain to police about illegal liquor sales should be prepared to back up their allegations in court. That was the complaint of Assistant County Attorney Eric Hall last week, after a man accused of bootlegging was acquitted by a district court jury here.

The acquittal last Thursday of James "Dukie" Poston, 41, of McDowell, who was arrested in February on a charge of illegal possession of alcoholic beverages, marked the second bootlegging charge in a week to be thrown out by a jury here. On April 15, Hubert C. Stephens, 55, of Manton, was found not guilty of an identical charge.

The jury decisions visibly angered Hall, who said he felt the prosecution made convincing cases in each instance. Both defendants had been the subject of neighbors' complaints and police officers recovered quantities of liquor in each case, but none of the complainants could be persuaded to testify in court, he said.

Following "numerous complaints," sheriff's officers raided an apartment building on Frasure's Branch, near McDowell High School, on February 8, recovering 21 cases of beer and six pints of liquor. They arrested Poston, who lives in the apartment building. Poston's wife, the only witness called by Public Defender Ned Pillersdorf in the case, testified that the beer—most of which was found in a hallway closet—belonged to other occupants in the apartment building. The whiskey, which sheriff's deputies said they found under the cushions of a couch in Poston's apartment, was intended for the family's personal use, Mrs. Poston testified.

About a dozen cases of beer and 12 pints of liquor were recovered by State Trooper James Rederick during a search of a house on Stephens Branch, near Martin, on January 30. Stephens, who said he was a caretaker of the unoccupied dwelling, had a liquor price list in his pocket at the time of his arrest, Rederick said. Called by Pillersdorf for the defense, Clarence Martin said the beer was being stored in the house for his son, who intended to use it for a party. As in the McDowell case, the Stephens Branch raid followed a number of citizens' complaints, it was said.

Prosecutor Hall said that, in his four years with the county attorney's office here, no citizen has been willing to take the stand against an alleged bootlegger. In his experience, district court juries are reluctant to take the uncorroborated word of police officers, he said.

Hall said he believes potential witnesses sometimes fear reprisals if they testify against accused bootleggers. The pending local-option election here also seems to be having an influence on juries, who appear unwilling to convict persons for liquor sales that could become legal here, he said.

The explosives were hidden beneath a concrete watering trough. It was surmised that the materials may have been stolen from nearby mining operations.

The week's second discovery of explosives came late Tuesday afternoon when the Prestonsburg Fire Department checked into a report that several sticks of dynamite were stashed in the bed of a pickup truck parked along North Lake Drive here near Lloyd's Hardware.

Prestonsburg Fire Chief Tom Blackburn removed eight sticks of dynamite and a cluster of approximately 50 highly explosive blasting caps from the bed of the truck, believed to be a vehicle repossessed by a local bank. Blackburn also found five more sticks of dynamite in the front floor of the truck's cab.

Although no details were confirmed as of Tuesday night, Blackburn said it appeared that the truck may have been used by a mine employee and the explosives, related to mine work, simply hauled away as the vehicle was repossessed. He said empty casings for transporting nitroglycerine-derived explosives such as are used in mining were also found in the truck.

The dynamite, which Blackburn pointed out was of a low-percentage variety, commonly used in deep mine blasting, as well as the blasting caps, were burned by the fire department.

IN MEMORIAM

In Memory of our Mom and Dad, Cora B. Newsome Fraley, who died April 30, 1967 and George W. Fraley, who died April 29, 1981.

We miss you both so very much, Mom, it's been 15 years now since you were called home; Dad, it's been one long and lonesome year since you joined her.

Mommy, your sweet, soft touch and beautiful smile could warm any heart, and your reassuring and loving arms would always comfort us. You were there when we needed you.

Daddy, your big strong shoulders, a will, just as strong, your joking ways, and your big, broad smile made you unforgettable to anyone who was ever lucky enough to have known you.

We miss you both so very much, but we know that it's in God's plan for you to leave your eight children here below.

Now you have 21 grandchildren and 4 great-grandchildren. How we wish you could see them, and we know that you'd be overjoyed just to meet them. We also hope that some day with the mercy of our great and loving God that we'll see you on his beautiful shore.

Sadly missed by your children and their families.

Hillary Leads Trip Up Ganges On KET

Sir Edmund Hillary leads an adventurous trip up the Ganges River in India on "Hillary's Challenge: Race To The Sky," airing Wednesday, May 12 at 9 p.m. (ET), on KET.

Hillary, the first man to stand on the summit of Mt. Everest, travels upstream on the Ganges River to locate its origins high in the frozen glaciers and snowfields of the Himalayan mountains.

The expeditionary crew, christened "Ocean To The Sky" team, encounter threatening white-water rapids on the river and village elders, yogis and Royal Bengal tigers on the land. Finally their arduous journey brings them to the foot of the 18,000-foot mountain, Nar Parbat, which they proceed to climb in a raging snowstorm. Only two members of the team complete the hazardous climb to achieve their quest: a view of the origins of the Ganges River.

"Hillary's Challenge: Race To The Sky" is produced by Hillary Films/Michael Dillon Film Enterprises.

Air Pollution Rules Hearing Set Tomorrow

A public hearing on proposed additions and amendments to Kentucky's air pollution control regulations will be held in the first floor auditorium of the State Office Building in Frankfort at 10 a.m. tomorrow (Thursday).

Regulations under consideration at the hearing will be from Title 401 of the Kentucky Administrative Regulations. The regulations are KAR 50: 015, 035, 055; KAR 51: 010, 017, 052, 055; KAR: 59: 018, 101, 175, 210, 212; KAR 61: 055, 056, 085, 120, 122; KAR 63: 031.

These regulations cover permits and compliance schedules, general compliance requirements, attainment status designations, prevention of significant deterioration of air quality, review of new sources in non-attainment areas and controlled trading. Also covered by the proposed regulation changes are new stationary gas turbines, new bulk gasoline plants, new services stations, new fabric, vinyl and paper-surface coating operations, and new graphic arts facilities which use rotogravure and flexography.

Existing loading facilities, bulk gasoline plants, service stations, coating operations and graphic arts facilities are also affected by the proposed changes along with gasoline task trucks.

The regulations to be considered can be found in the March and April issues of the Administrative Record of Kentucky.

Copies of the full text of these regulations can be seen at the Frankfort headquarters of the state division of air pollution control or at the regional offices in Owensboro, Paducah, Florence, Ashland, Lexington, Bowling Green, Henderson, Hazard, Elizabethtown and Louisville.

Division personnel are urging all interested persons unable to attend the meeting to submit written comments before the date of the hearing. If received by April 29, written statements will be included in the record of the hearing.

For additional information on the hearing or on the proposed additions and changes write the Division of Air Pollution Control, Kentucky Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection, Fort Boone Plaza, 18 Reilly Road, Frankfort, Ky. 40601 or telephone (502) 564-3382.

The government makes more money than the dealer does on the sale of an average gallon of gasoline.

Court Suit Ends In Primacy Case

The hearing set for last Saturday to lift the restraining order which was delaying the changeover of primacy in handling strip-mining from federal to state control was not held at Paintsville, as scheduled, because the suit calling for the injunction was dismissed three days earlier.

The suit to bar the state from assuming primacy was filed April 13 by B.M. Morris, of Paintsville, and Morris and Marshall, Inc., Pike county coal firm. It contended that the state's permanent regulations on strip-mining were illegal.

But last week both sides got down to the business of negotiating their differences. The result was that a "stipulation of dismissal" was signed last Wednesday by attorneys for Morris, officials of the Department for Natural Resources and Attorney General Beshear.

The federal government granted primacy to Kentucky on the condition that 12 changes, mostly technical, in the regulations be made by May, 1984. Jackie Swigart, secretary of the Department for Natural Resources, said most of the changes can be made through regulations, although some will require legislation during the 1984 Legislature.

"We are set to go," Mrs. Swigart said. "We need to move ahead with this program. We have been talking about it for four and a half years in this department. Now it is time to bite the bullet and move ahead."

The 1982 Legislature provided additional funds for the program that will allow the department to hire 21 additional inspectors after July 1 and add additional personnel in the permit division.

Strip-mine regulations in Kentucky have been enforced by the federal Office of Surface Mining since the federal surface-mining act was passed in 1977.

Federal inspectors, who have shared responsibility with their state counterparts, will take on mostly an oversight capacity after May 15, Mrs. Swigart said.

Should I Vote For The Sale Of Alcoholic Beverages?

READ THIS AND DECIDE

FACTS

Alcohol is involved in:

- Over 1/2 of the fatal auto accidents
- 1/2 of all drownings
- 1/2 of all murders
- 1/3 of the suicides
- The current report of the National Institute of Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism shows approximately 11 million alcoholics, 3.5 to 4 million problem drinkers between the ages of 14-17.
- According to the Associated Press report in March, 1982, alcoholic beverages causes more accidents on the highways than all disabilities combined.
- The more chances Johnny has to buy alcohol—with "legal" joints on every corner—the more dangerous Johnny becomes to himself and to you.

Mary is the victim of an epidemic . . .

The greatestcrippler and killer in the nation —

It's called "drinking."

Mary was crippled for life in an auto accident. The driver of the other car was driving after a couple of drinks. But they were enough to cause a mistake in judgment. And now Mary can't walk.

She's just one of over 500,000 people injured or killed each year in an auto accident involving drinking drivers.

FACTS

Alcohol is involved in:

- 36% of Rape
- 42% of all assaults
- Over 50% of child abuse
- Alcohol is possibly the third leading cause of birth defects, physically, and mentally.
- Alcoholism is one of the four leading health problems and third leading cause of death.
- "We can't stop bootlegging," they say, no, nor can we stop stealing—but we don't legalize a little stealing

WITH LOVE AND UTMOST RESPECT WE DEDICATE THIS ARTICLE TO MRS. PHYLLIS RANIER. THE LORD LAID ON THIS DEAR SAINT'S HEART THE DESIRE TO DONATE OUR COMMITTEE $2,500.00. WE SAY, THANK YOU, MRS. RANIER, THANK YOU, AND WE BELIEVE GOD WILL BLESS YOU IN A MIGHTY WAY FOR USING HIS MONEY SO WISELY.

FACTS

1. A special election will cost Floyd County Citizens THOUSANDS of dollars. Money that could be used for purchasing gravel for our roads.
2. Floyd County will not receive any TAXES on the sale of Alcoholic Beverages.
3. The tax on sale of Alcoholic Beverages will go to the state of Ky. and the Federal Government.
4. Floyd County will only receive the license fees as revenue. Maximum charge is $600.00 annually. The Ky. state law will not allow a county to impose a sales tax on Alcoholic Beverages.

FACTS

5. Floyd County could have 23 to 25 LIQUOR and WINE STORES, but the number of BEER JOINTS IS UNLIMITED. Beer licenses allows all you can drink on premises. There could be HUNDREDS of these joints, including honky-tonks and roadhouses.
6. There is no way a citizen can know who will receive a liquor or beer license or where the BEER JOINTS or TAVERNS will be located. They could end up beside your home or church.
7. Restaurants would be allowed to sell Alcoholic Beverages. Your young children would see others drinking alcoholic beverages while they were eating in restaurants.
8. There is BOOTLEGGING and the illegal sale of Alcoholic Beverage in EVERY COUNTY in KY, WET or DRY. THE LEGAL SALE of ALCOHOLIC BEVERAGES WILL NOT get rid of BOOTLEGGERS in Floyd County.

The Wildflower that Inspired the Pilgrims

The story of the Pilgrim Fathers is known to most students, but it is necessary for me to give some of the highlights of the story of these hardy and courageous people, who braved hardships and danger for the sake of religious freedom.

Aboard the Mayflower were 102 persons—41 men, the rest women and children. After a hazardous journey of 66 days across the stormy Atlantic, the Mayflower reached Cape Cod Bay on Nov. 12, 1620. But as the poets later wrote, it was a "stern and rockbound coast," and the bleak land looked harsh and uninviting. So the Pilgrims didn't go ashore there. They spent almost a month, sailing along the coast of Massachusetts, looking for a more suitable place to establish their colony.

At length, on Dec. 26, 1620, they landed at Plymouth harbor and went ashore to view the land. Here it seemed was a suitable place to establish their colony. There were signs of previous habitation. There was a clearing where it appeared that crops such as corn had once been grown. There was also a hill overlooking the site. This hill could be used for the location of a fort. This place had once been an Indian village, but the dread disease, smallpox, had wiped out the entire village.

Here the Pilgrims went to work and established their colony. They formed the Mayflower Compact for governing the colony, and chose John Carver as the first governor.

The winter of 1620-21 was a bitter one for the Pilgrims. Disease, hardships, inadequate food took a heavy toll of the colony. Almost half of the colony perished.

The Mayflower was scheduled to sail shortly back to England, and many of the remaining colonists, beaten and discouraged by hardships, declared their intention of going back to England when the Mayflower sailed.

About the middle of March, one of the Pilgrim fathers was exploring the hillside above the colony, looking for signs of spring. He began to detect subtle signs that spring was near at hand. The air had lost its bitter sting and the sun had a warmer glow; mother earth was getting her first touch of warm sunshine and would soon be waking up from her long winter sleep.

Suddenly the pilgrim spotted a cluster of knee-high flowers standing boldly in a sunny spot. He ran to the flowers and got down on his knees to look at them closely. To his delight, he found a number of pretty, rose-pink blossoms, each with five petals forming a tubular corolla. He scratched

Wildlife Group Offers Free Publication On Acid Rain

A "primer" on acid rain—its formation, its impact, and how citizens can help pass legislation controlling it—is available free of charge from the National Wildlife Federation. The publication discusses, in language that the non-scientist can understand, how acid precipitation has come to destroy the fish and aquatic life in hundreds of lakes across the country.

It also summarizes statistics on where acid rain (formed when sulfur dioxide emissions combine with moisture in the air) is doing the most damage. For example, 212 Adirondack lakes in upstate New York are already fishless because of acid rain and more than 10,000 lakes in Michigan are susceptible to acidification. The publication points out that acid precipitation isn't always in the form of rain; in Los Angeles, it's "acid fog," with an acidity like that of vinegar, that blankets the city.

Finally, for the citizens who want to support the Federation's efforts to enact legislation controlling acid rain, the booklet explains how he can help. To get the publication, write to the National Wildlife Federation, Department No. 40, 1412 Sixteenth Street, NW, Washington, D.C., 20036.

away the brown winter leaves and found more pretty blossoms hiding under the leaves. The flowers he found were those of Trailing Arbutus, which is now the state flower of Massachusetts. He pressed his nose to the flowers and caught a whiff of their sweet fragrance.

Those beautiful, little flowers, coming out in the wake of the melting snow, were bold harbingers of spring. They hadn't let the cold winter discourage them from coming alive to show their beauty to the world.

Those wild flowers spoke a message to the heart of the Pilgrim. They seemed to say: "We bring you glad tidings of another spring."

Indeed, these pretty wild flowers were not quitters because the winter had been harsh and cold.

The Pilgrim was overjoyed with the message the wild flowers had brought. He ran down to the colony to get the others to come with him to see the flowers. It was an excited group of people following him back up the hillside. They fell on their knees to look at the rose-pink flowers and smell their fragrance.

"These pretty flowers are given us as a message from heaven. Let us thank God for sending them," they said.

They poured out their thanks for the flowers, and then all agreed to stay and plant their crops in the spring.

When the Mayflower sailed back to England there wasn't a single member of the colony aboard.

The trailing arbutus is a member of the Heath Family. It often forms large patches on dry, sunny hillsides. It also blooms when patches of snow still linger in shady spots, and is considered one of the first harbingers of spring.

CARD OF THANKS

The family of Lillian Pauline Craft would express thanks to all who helped upon the passing of their loved one. Thanks to all who sent food, flowers, prayers, and words of comfort during this time of sorrow. A special thanks to the ministers for their comforting words, to all the churches which responded and helped, to the doctors, nurses and staff at Our Lady of the Way Hospital, to the staff of the Riverview Manor Nursing Home and to the Hall Funeral Home for its kind and efficient service.

Clark PTA Names Officers
 Officers elected at Clark PTA's April 20 meeting are: Joyce Everly, president; Helen Vicars, vice-president; Janice Fleming, secretary; and Meg Mitchell, treasurer. The group scheduled a horse show at 2 p.m., May 8, at Archer Park, and a Mother's Day flower sale, May 6 and 7, at the school.

Roberts, Carter In Three Events

Rick Roberts, of the Prestonsburg Job Corps Center, had a schedule that kept him running, literally, last week. First of all, he ran—and completed—the 26-mile Boston Marathon. He finished in the top 1000 among the 10,000 who entered.

Then, over the weekend, Roberts was among the 488 runners in the fifth annual Union Carbide Spring Fitness race of 10 kilometers (6.2 miles) at Charleston, W. Va.—a race, he said, which would be "a masochist's delight in that 85 percent of it is up steep terrain." He finished in 18th place in 37:27, and he and Ron Rousey, of Ashland, who was 19th at the finish in 37:27, were the only Kentuckians in the top 20.

Ron Carter, of Prestonsburg Community College, ran with about 5000 others in the Kentucky Derby Mini-Marathon, a 13.1-mile course, in 1 hour, 30 minutes, 15 seconds.

Roberts will be running in Huntington, W. Va., Saturday in the 10-mile Huntington Distance Classic and on the following day in Boyd county over a 10-kilometer course, while Carter will be competing in the Run Kentucky Run at Lexington.

Prisoner Returned Here

Kenneth Paul Shannon, 26, was returned here last week from Ohio by State Trooper Sizemore to face a first degree burglary charge. He is accused of a break into the residence of Bennie Moore.

His brother, Rudolph, was held in jail here earlier on the same charge but has been released.

The leading national source of immigrants to the United States from 1820 to 1975 was Germany.

WPRT Wins Radio Honors

WPRT FM-AM has added three first place awards to those of last year. The Associated Press has recognized the station for best coverage of a breaking story—the Topmost mine disaster; best commentary—victims in the news; and the best entry in Class III. These awards are to be presented at the Kentucky Broadcasters Convention in Louisville, May 7.

The U.S. Department of Labor reported that seven out of the 20 best paying occupations among men in 1981 were in the engineering field; median usual weekly earnings for men ranged from $507 for civil engineers to $619 for aerospace engineers.

Plans Studied For 13th Red, White and Blue Day

Plans for staging Floyd county's 13th annual Red, White and Blue Day next October 16 were discussed at a meeting held April 13 at the Martin Elementary School.

For the planning session Mrs. Marcella Bailey, of Eastern, founder of the annual patriotic observance, was joined by several supporters of the project.

In Memory of Dad

Dad, it's hard to believe you have been gone two years, April 21. Dad, you were tops with those you loved you so dearly. Sometimes it's still so hard to bear. You've had a hard life. Now it's time to rest, because you deserve the best. How often we wonder why we had to say good-bye. God needed you more. Dad, spring time has come at last; brings back memories of the past. When I get up in the morning, the sun is coming down the hill, the birds singing the same old songs, but when I look around me my loved one is gone. How we miss you no one will ever know. We loved you, Daddy. Written by your daughter. MRS. AILURTA HAMILTON

Number Jobless Shows Decrease

Kentucky's unemployment rate dropped from 11.5 percent in February to a preliminary March rate of 10.7 percent, according to Department for Human Resources statistics released last week. The state's unemployment rate for March last year was 8.9 percent. The comparable national unemployment rate for March this year was a nonseasonally adjusted 9.5 percent. Kentucky's civilian labor force during March was 1,590,400, down 5,300 from February. The civilian labor force includes persons currently employed and unemployed persons actively looking for jobs. According to the department's labor market analysis section, persons are continuing to drop out of the labor force due to the lack of available jobs and many are exhausting their unemployment insurance benefits. The number of unemployed Kentuckians during March numbered 169,600, which is 14,100 less than in February and 22,700 more than were unemployed during March 1981, according to department statistics. Total employment in Kentucky was estimated at 1,420,800 in March, 8,800 higher than the February estimate. The department's labor market analysis section attributes this increase to seasonal upturns in agricultural wage and salary employment, construction employment and in the nonagricultural self-employed and unpaid family workers' category. Even though there was a significant increase in total employment, the March 1982 figures are 78,000 below the March 1981 mark. The department's statistics also indicated that the state's highest monthly unemployment rate during the 1975 recession year was 8.3 percent for June of that year. During 1981, Kentucky's average unemployment rate was 8.4 percent.

Leaders and "Little People": Close Encounter in Frankfort

(An editorial in The Lexington Herald) Those many Kentuckians who have journeyed to the capital city to present the views of the "little people" to their state legislators can sympathize with Joyce Everly's eye-opening experience on Tuesday. The Prestonsburg resident had come to the Capitol building—along with other members of the Kentucky Fair Tax Coalition—to support legislation that would establish a meaningful tax on unmined minerals in the state. After meeting with legislative leaders, she assessed the General Assembly in this fashion: "This is the first time I've been in Frankfort," she said, "and, you know, it never dawned on me before I walked into that room that the little people who pay most of the taxes in Kentucky have little to say about what happens here."

Well, we've never denied that travel is broadening. And welcome to the world of General Assembly, Joyce Everly. It is a world where legislative leaders play parliamentary games to stymie the passage of legislation that is supported by a fair number of their colleagues.

In this instance, it is legislation that is sorely needed—legislation that would compel the mega-corporations that control much of Kentucky's coal reserves to contribute their fair share to the coffers of state and local government. It is legislation that would take some of the unfair tax burden off the shoulders of those "little people," whose voices are drowned out by the blandishments of special-interest lobbyists.

House Bill 549, which would let the state and local governments tax unmined minerals at the same rate as other property, was approved 11 to 1 by the House Appropriations and Revenue Committee.

Customarily, that would mean the bill would come before the full House for a vote. But the House Rules Committee, composed of the chamber's leadership, instead sent the bill to languish in the House Agriculture and Small Business Committee. Now, the legislation is expected to die in the waning days of this session.

Apparently, the House leaders were afraid the bill might pass if it came to a vote on the floor.

One of the chief opponents of HB 549 is House Speaker Bobby Richardson, D-Glasgow. He told the delegation from the Kentucky Fair Tax Coalition that the revenue problems of the coal counties that stand to benefit from the bill could all be solved if local property valuation administrators did their job, and assessed property at its fair value.

Now, there is little doubt that PVAs in Eastern Kentucky could do a better job in assessing the thousands of acres of land owned by absentee corporations. The fact that two years ago a subsidiary of Norfolk & Western Railroad paid $76 in property taxes on 81,333 acres of land valued at $7.6 million is sufficient proof that land is not assessed quite properly in the mountains.

But Speaker Richardson's further contention that coal is paying its fair share of the tax burden in Kentucky cannot be taken seriously. The state's 4.5 percent severance tax hardly pays for the damage done to state roads by overweight coal trucks—let alone covering the cost of repairing the environmental damage that results from coal mining.

Local governments are prohibited from levying a separate tax on unmined coal, and the state tax of 1/10 of one cent per $100 is so ludicrously low that the state doesn't even bother trying to collect it.

Nor can much credence be given to Mr. Richardson's argument that a 1976 attempt to impose a tax on unmined minerals "completely and utterly failed"—implying that any new attempt would fail as well. The 1976 law relied heavily on voluntary actions by the owners of coal reserves; the new proposal does not. Indeed, HB 549 has the teeth to make a tax on unmined minerals work, as it has worked in other states.

We think a tax on unmined minerals would help bring some necessary equity to taxation in mineral-producing areas of the state. As proposed in HB 549, it would produce $21 million annually for the state, and $43 million each year for local governments. That is $64 million that ought to be paid by the corporation that own the mineral reserves, but is now being paid by the "little people."

All in all, it's a sorry spectacle in Frankfort: The "little people" are asking for relief, but their voices aren't being heard by the House leaders.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of Mom, Mrs. Floyd (Pearlie Crager) Compton whom Jesus called to Heaven on May 2, 1981:

Mom
Spring has arrived Mom
Even though you are not here,
We know it was your
Most favorite time of the year.
We miss you so much Mom
And it makes us so sad,
To see your favorite flower
The beautiful tulips of red.
You suffered so much
Yet, you were so brave,
And worried about your family
Because, by your side we stayed.
We know you are with Jesus
In heaven above,
Waiting for your family
With open arms of love.
Mom, as we go through
This life of trouble and woe,
With Jesus by the hand
We will see you on heaven's bright shore.
Mom, we love and miss you so much.
Sadly missed by her husband,
children, grandchildren and friends.
(Verse by Linda)

Mrs. Warrix Cited For Quilt Entry

Mrs. Maudie Warrix, of Rt. 2, Prestonsburg, has won a ribbon at the Kentucky Quilts '82 Contest at the Kentucky Horse Park in Lexington, it was announced this week. Her Double Wedding Ring quilt was judged third in the traditional category in the contest which is sponsored by The Kentucky Heritage Quilt Society. Thirty-four quilts are currently on display at the Kentucky Horse Park in the John Gaines Room and will remain there through May 10. The quilts were all blue ribbon winning entries in the regional quilt contests that were held over the state in March and these quilts then competed at the state level contest in three categories—traditional, contemporary and group.

UK Woman's Club Seeks Scholarship Applicants

As more women continue to return to college and as the federal government continues to cut back on financial aid to students, the University of Kentucky's Woman's Club is re-doubling its efforts to find women in need of scholarships. The UK Woman's Club has offered full- and part-time scholarships to women students for many years. Recipients can be either undergraduates or graduates; preference is given to women age 25 or over, and applicants must demonstrate financial need. For further information contact Dee Ellen Davis, (606) 258-8707.

The longest running variety show on television was Ed Sullivan's, from 1948-1971.

McDowell Woman Hurt in Mishap

While Sunday's rain was welcomed by most the slippery roads it produced help send a Left Beaver Creek woman to the hospital.

A car driven by Irene Johnson, about 35, of McDowell, overturned in a ditch around 10 p.m. on Ky. 122, in front of the Hall Funeral Home, sending her to Our Lady of the Way Hospital in nearby Martin. But not until she had been trapped inside the car for 40 minutes.

Because no one saw her Chevette skid from the road, some time passed before a car stopped to check out the still-burning lights. Doug Mullins, Pam Sword, Bobby Howard, Jeff Howard and Mimma Howard, all of the Hunter-Printer area, stopped to help and called State Police.

Responding to the emergency, in addition to State Police, were Floyd County Emergency & Rescue Squad and members of the Martin Fire Department.

Retired Can Avoid Estimated Tax Payments

A retired taxpayer who does not wish to make estimated tax payments can file a special withholding statement to have tax withheld from annuity checks, the Internal Revenue Service says.

Just as they had tax withheld from salary while actively employed, retirees can have federal income tax withheld from their pensions. All that's necessary is to file a Form W-4P, "Annuitant's Request for Federal Income Tax Withholding," with the payer of the annuity.

McDowell High Students See Nat'l Government CLOSE UP

These McDowell High School students who took part in the CLOSE UP government studies program went to Washington, D.C. where, from March 28 through April 3, they and 200 other students and teachers from the tri-state area did just what the name implies. Through interviews and talks with some of the top names and behind-the-scenes people in our government, they saw the way it works close up. At the end of the day, students continued their study of national government in small discussion groups held by members of the CLOSE UP staff.

They were accompanied by Gary Frazier, teacher at the McDowell school, who organized the program and who took part in a parallel program designed to assist teachers in their classroom instruction. Commenting on the program, Frazier said, "CLOSE UP creates a vast open classroom in Washington and promotes interest in government among students from a variety of backgrounds."

This is the first year that McDowell High School has been invited to take part in the program which is open to students in grades 10, 11, and 12 regardless of grade point average. In addition to fellowship funds made available for teachers and low-to-moderate income students, McDowell High also held fund-raising drives to help offset tuition costs of the program.

Synthetic Fuel Plant In Pike a Lost Cause

Pike county's multi-million-dollar plant designed to convert coal into gas is as dead as the proverbial dodo.

It died, as did other synthetic fuel plants across the country, in the wake of a decision by the Reagan administration that synthetic fuel production is not commercially feasible. Worse, its demise portends ill for other development at Douglas Park, the Robinson Creek site, eight miles south of Pikeville.

More than $18 million of state, federal and county money has been invested in the 60-acre Douglas site, and the county may have its troubles with the state holding onto the location. The property, a former waste area for road construction, was conveyed by deed by the state for seven years, and the seven years will be up in September. The deed provided that all of the property not used for industrial development would revert to the state. But the state may relent if the site is used for public housing, it was said.

A nursing home begun there with $5.2 million in Pike County Building Commission bond money needs completion, but the fiscal court has had trouble leasing it. The matter of meeting $470,000-a-year payments is vexing, too. Would-be lessors want a year's free rent while they test the potential of the business.

On the plus side, there is a 14-story apartment building ready for opening next month, and a fire station and sewage are ready for use.

Moreover, the Department of Transportation has the site in its five-year plan which envisions construction of a road to close the five-mile gap between Robinson Creek and Pikeville.

The grand plan for using Pike county coal and converting it into gas was conceived during the administration of Judge-Executive Wayne B. Rutherford, who was defeated last year by Judge Paul Patton. Now, much of that plan is Patton's headache.

State To Resurface Road On Toler Creek

The state Department of Transportation announced last week that it will resurface 2.2 miles of KY 1426, the Toler's Creek road, this summer. The road will be resurfaced from the Left Fork of Toler Creek to KY 979. Bids will be accepted for the project April 30.

The project is part of the state's $23.5 million resurfacing program for this year. The program includes 666 miles of roads throughout the state.

Within the past two years the department has cut the paving cycle by more than half, according to Transportation Secretary Frank Metts. Each state-maintained road will be resurfaced an average of once every 15 years instead of once every 35 years. More frequent resurfacing reduces the need for costly repairs and saves the taxpayers' money, Metts said.

Our Fragile Earth

By DR. JERRY HOWELL
Department of Biological and Environmental Sciences

The last article discussed some widespread insect attacks that plagued the U.S. during 1978. The spruce budworm, eastern tent caterpillar, range caterpillar, screwworm, mountain pine beetle, birch leaf roller, fall army worm, gypsy moth, Japanese beetle, and potato beetle were mentioned. This article, originally released in January, 1979, explains that these insects were not the only ones to proliferate during 1978. Other insects experiencing record population explosions were grasshoppers, stink bugs, mosquitoes, crickets, and mayflies.

A grasshopper plague, described by some entomologists as the worst in two decades, was prevalent in several states. The Colorado legislature voted two million dollars for the state's share of a federal spraying program for grasshoppers. The number of grasshoppers in Colorado was estimated to be six times more numerous than during a "serious infestation." In north central Texas, grasshoppers attacked peach trees so that only the exposed pits were left clinging on the branches. Green grass is also a favorite food and grasshoppers eat about two and one-half times their body weight each day. In record numbers, they munched on grass, tobacco, corn, soybeans, alfalfa, and tomatoes in central and western Kentucky last year. An effective natural predator or biological control is yet to be found for the grasshopper, so farmers generally spray with sevin or malathion.

Stink bugs were so numerous in parts of Colorado last summer, they formed a living carpet on roadways and in fields. The black adults give off a musty, unpleasant odor, as does a green species in western Kentucky, where their numbers reached epidemic proportions in soybean fields last summer. Not as damaging as grasshoppers, stink bugs do cause soybean pods and seeds to shrivel.

Mosquitoes were present in record numbers in Maryland and Minnesota, where residents jokingly called them the state bird because of their size. It seems that some mosquito species have developed a resistance to formerly effective pesticides; spraying leaves only the stronger or more resistant mosquitoes to breed with each other, producing a "superstrain."

Kentucky and California cricket populations were the largest in several years. The insects forced businesses to close in some California towns because they covered floors, tables, and cooking utensils. In Kentucky they invaded houses and businesses and did some crop damage, although they were usually only considered nuisances.

In parts of Wisconsin, mayflies swarmed in such numbers they were kneedeep, especially near water from which they emerge as adults. They were actually a highway hazard; several accidents were reported and some cars could not get traction and had to be towed away.

Explanations for the large numbers of certain species of insects vary from the excessive use of pesticides to favorable weather and plentiful food. In some cases, pesticides can kill predaceous insects or beneficial ones, permitting the pest insect to thrive. Crop-growing weather in the U.S. was near-perfect last year and there was plenty of food for the pests. But the weather, in most cases, was also ideal for insects. Last spring, in most areas of the country, was not too wet, dry, cool, long, or short. In the case of crickets, a dry spring the previous year caused tiny cracks in the earth, providing refuge for the eggs. The mosquito outbreaks generally occurred after a wet spring. Hopefully, next year the natural predators of these pests will be able to control most of them. Next: agricultural contaminants.

Burchett Named To Head Scouts Here

Randy Burchett, of Prestonsburg, has accepted to serve as Floyd County Boy Scouting chairman for the Lonesome Pine District, according to Paul Patton, district chairman.

As county chairman for the Boy Scouts of America, Burchett will be responsible to recruit county committee members to assist cub scout packs and boy scout troops in various functions. The county scouting committee is one part of the Lonesome Pine District committee that serves Johnson, Pike, Magoffin and Martin, counties as well as Floyd county. There are nine cub scout packs or boy scout troops, with over 280 boys involved, in Floyd county.

Burchett, an architect, is married to the former Sandra Roberts and they have two sons, John and Mark. After graduating from Prestonsburg High School and Prestonsburg Community College, he received his bachelor's degree in architecture from the University of Kentucky. A member of Saint Theodore Catholic Church, he also teaches parttime at P.C.C.

As a boy, Burchett earned the Eagle Scout Award as a member of Boy Scout Troop 27, Prestonsburg, and attended the 1965 Valley Forge National Jamboree. "With his strong scouting background, we are looking forward to Randy helping us really strengthen Floyd county's Boy Scout program," stated Patton.

Slone Is A Starter On Berea Track Team

Gregory Slone, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Slone, of Prestonsburg, is a member of the 1982 Berea College track team. A Prestonsburg High School graduate and now a Berea freshman, Slone is experienced in the 800-meter relay and 200-meter events.

The Berea team competes in the KIAC (Kentucky Intercollegiate Athletic Conference) and is coached this year by Mike Johnson, a 1973 graduate of the college. The current season of 10 meets got underway March 20 against Union College. Berea is unable to host any meets this season because the college is building a new track.

Out Of High School? Apprentice Program May Be Worth A Look

What do you do if you're just out of high school, don't plan to go to college and military service isn't too appealing?

Well, you could try your luck in the job market or you could apply for an apprenticeship.

According to Tracy Farmer, secretary of the state Public Protection and Regulation Cabinet, about 3,201 Kentuckians have already opted for apprenticeships. Young men and women serve as apprentices in many of the state's 693 programs registered with the Kentucky Department of Labor, one of 13 agencies in the Public Protection Cabinet.

As an apprentice in a registered program, a person:

- is paid while in training;
- receives regular pay increases as skills progress; and
- learns a skill that increases his or her job marketability.

"Apprentices realize other benefits, too," Farmer said. "However, they are not the only ones who gain from these programs. Employers get dedicated, serious workers for wages that start at approximately half the pay of experienced, skilled employees."

Communities and the state also benefit from apprenticeship programs. Skilled workers become property owners and taxpayers. Consumers are assured of better goods and services when workers are carefully trained.

"We believe that our apprenticeship system is one answer to the very difficult economic times we are now experiencing," said state Labor Commissioner John C. Wells. "This department, along with Kentucky State Apprenticeship and Training Council, the state Education Department and representatives of the labor and management communities, are working together to meet Kentucky's needs now and in the future."

Wells and an official of the Education Department serve as ex-officio members of the Apprenticeship and Training Council, a body comprised of three representatives from labor and three from management. The council and the Labor Department are responsible for registering apprenticeship programs.

The council sees that proposed programs meet standards recognized by industry and public agencies that insure the development of skilled operators.

And those operators, once trained, can enter such diverse fields as computer technology, bricklaying, and air conditioning installation and repair.

Apprenticeship applications may be made to an employer, a labor union, a local Joint Apprenticeship Committee, or a local State Employment Service Office.

More information about apprenticeships is available from the Kentucky Department of Labor, 127 Building, U.S. Highway 127 South, Frankfort, Kentucky, 40601.

★ Consumer Alert

NATIONAL CONSUMERS' WEEK
According to Attorney General Steven L. Beshear, the week of April 25 to May 1 has been proclaimed National Consumers' Week by President Reagan and Consumers' Week in Kentucky by Gov. John Y. Brown Jr. The overall goal of Consumers' Week is to focus attention on the central role of consumers in our economy.

"More than ever before, consumers need to be informed of their rights and responsibilities in the marketplace," said Attorney General Beshear. "Furthermore, consumers must be made aware of the potential pitfalls they may encounter in order that they might invest their money wisely. I believe that Consumers' Week is an excellent opportunity to strive to meet these goals."

Enhancing consumer awareness is the primary goal of Consumers' Week. This includes not only information on goods and services, but also awareness of existing government agencies, community organizations and business groups that assist consumers.

One such agency is the Attorney General's division of consumer protection. According to Attorney General Beshear, "My consumer protection division provides many important services for Kentucky citizens. It enforces Kentucky consumer protection laws on behalf of the Commonwealth; it serves as a mediator between businesses and consumers when disputes arise; it provides a variety of educational services; and it intervenes on behalf of consumers in utility rate cases."

"Consumers fared remarkably well in the 1982 General Assembly. Five consumer bills drafted and endorsed by my office were passed into law," said Beshear. These included bills which victimized consumers can make claims. Consumers are also given cooling-off periods in which to cancel their health spa or buying club contracts.

A third bill was passed that requires professional fund raisers who are engaged in charitable solicitations to file with the Office of the Attorney General detailed disclosures to assist consumers in making informed decisions about their charitable donations.

The fourth bill makes technical changes in the Small Claims Act so that the Small Claims Court is more accessible to everyone.

Finally, the Office of the Attorney General was successful in getting a new motor vehicle arbitration bill passed. This bill will make an informal dispute resolution system available to consumers with complaints concerning their automobiles. Each manufacturer will be required to set up such a procedure at no cost to the buyer by January 1, 1983.

For further information concerning Consumers' Week or any other consumer-related information, contact the Attorney General's Consumer Protection Division at 209 St. Clair Street, Frankfort, Ky. 40601, or call the toll-free Consumer Hotline: 1-800-432-9257.

Endangered Species Law Good For People, too, Claims Group

With some experts claiming that a million species—or about a quarter of those on earth—will become extinct during the next 30 years, the U.S. Endangered Species Act, up for Congressional renewal this year, has taken on a new significance for many Americans. Conservationists contend that we're losing too many species too fast, and most agree that much more is at stake than the fate of the Tecopa pupfish—the first species officially stricken from the Endangered Species List by a finding that it is extinct.

Nevertheless, the upcoming debate over the ESA will be a "very tough battle" for the act's proponents, says the current issue of National Wildlife magazine, the bi-monthly publication of the National Wildlife Federation. To win, conservationists will have to dispel some popular misconceptions about the law itself and buck the momentum behind the Reagan administration, which tried to cut the Endangered Species Program budget by some 43 percent last year.

For one thing, says the magazine, the public needs to understand that the Act never sought to bring a halt to development. It instead established a consultation process to come up with alternatives that wouldn't affect threatened species.

Statistics bear out the contention that the law doesn't stymie development, says National Wildlife. In case to 1,000 consultations between the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service and federal agencies implementing the ESA since 1979, only 150 proposed projects posed a danger to an endangered species or its habitat. In the "great majority" of cases, says the magazine, "reasonable alternatives" were developed. For example, the magazine points out, mineral exploration in Montana's Cabinet Mountains was allowed to proceed with only slight modifications to protect grizzly bears.

Other parts of the law haven't worked so well, according to National Wildlife, and that's where the legislation need strengthening. One of the most criticized aspects of the law is the procedure for adding endangered or threatened species to the official list. When this part of the act was amended in 1978, the entire process was simply made more cumbersome and inefficient, conservationists say. The result—a mere 15 species were added to the list the year after the amendment took effect, compared to the 65 species listed the year before.

Now, under the Reagan Administration, says National Wildlife, the listing process has "ground to a complete halt." Not a single species has been proposed for the threatened or endangered list since Reagan took office, though some species that were proposed under President Carter have been added to the list.

Working against a more efficient listing procedure, says the magazine, is a slashed budget. A cut of nearly half in the current federal budget for listing activities reflects "not only the Administration's cost-trimming campaign, but also a downgraded emphasis on listing," says the magazine report. In addition, the Administration proposed a 20 percent reduction in funding for programs that help restore a species' numbers, the recovery programs that have helped save the whooping crane and the California condor, among others.

The Endangered Species Act is being attacked on several fronts, many of which involve critical provisions of the law. Conservationists will have to remind the American people, says National Wildlife, that without the security blanket of the Endangered Species Act, many more species would have preceded the tiny Tecopa pupfish down the road to extinction.

The more that road is travelled—the more the "web of life" is broken by dropouts—the closer man himself comes to being endangered.

Area Electric Power Growth May Slow Over 10-Year Period

Kentucky Power Company last week released its new 10-year forecast of load growth, and although down slightly from last year's forecast it remains considerably higher than both the national and American Electric Power System forecasts.

Robert E. Matthews, president of Kentucky Power, said that the company's revised forecast projects a 5.8% annual growth over the next 10 years in peak internal demand, compared to a 6.0% forecast last year.

"This forecast remains higher than the national prediction of less than 1% for 1982, as well as the 3.5% being forecast over the next 10 years by AEP (Kentucky Power is one of eight operating companies which make up the AEP System)", Matthews said.

He also said that Kentucky Power has lowered its forecast of internal energy requirements from 5.8% to 4.9%, but compared this to the AEP System projection of 3.1%.

Matthews added: "While Kentucky Power's higher-than-average projected load growth in the face of the nation's general economic downturn is a real tribute to the relative stability of business in our 20-county service area, it also points up another fact.

"By the winter of 1992-93, the end of the 10-year period, we project demand of 1,785 megawatts. Our present generating capability at Big Sandy Plant is 1,060 megawatts. This is why the company is acquiring a portion of the Rockport Plant, and we will be sharing in the generation of that plant by late 1984."

Meantime, the American Electric Power System announced a new way of expressing its forecasts for the entire System as a single entity.

Citing continuing economic uncertainties, AEP announced a 10-year forecast of electric power and energy requirements that involves a three-level range of economic growth patterns.

W.S. White, Jr., chairman of the board and chief executive officer of American Electric Power Company, Inc., said a range of forecasts was developed because of the persistent economic uncertainty and the wide divergence in the results of prominent econometric studies about future development of the economy.

"While it is important to stress that there will be economic growth in the years ahead," White said, "we must also bear in mind that there is no solid consensus on the amount of growth, the form it will take, or when it will occur."

As a result, he continued, "prudent planning requires that we try as best we can to anticipate the various levels at which development may take place and plan our activities within that framework."

The AEP base, or reference, forecast is predicated on the assumption of moderate economic growth during the next 10 years. It calls for an annual growth rate of 3.5% in winter peak internal demand and of 3.1% in internal energy requirements across the AEP System. That projection compares with last year's forecast of an annual growth rate of 3.8%, both in winter peak internal demand and in internal energy requirements.

By comparison, a "pessimistic" economic projection anticipates an average annual growth rate in winter peak internal demand of 2.8% and in internal energy requirements of 2.2%. An "optimistic" economic projection visualizes a 4.4% annual growth rate in the winter peak internal demand and a 4.3% annual growth rate in internal energy requirements.

By HAROLD COOLEY

A cold is an upper respiratory infection caused by a virus. Its most common symptom is a "runny nose". Other symptoms typically associated with colds include fever, chills, muscle aches and congestion. Coughing can also appear as a result of postnasal drip. A dry, hacking cough will further irritate a scratchy throat caused by many cold viruses. These symptoms can often be treated with medications known as decongestants. Ingested orally or applied topically (nose sprays and drops), they can treat the blocked nasal passages and secretions of a cold.

If you have come down with a cold, remember there are many over the counter medications that can help you get over the symptoms. At COOLEY APOTHECARY you'll find everything to treat that cold, plus a full service prescription center. We're small enough to know you and large enough to serve you. You'll find us at No. 2 Town Center Bldg. Open Mon.-Fri. from 9-5:30 and Sat. 9-5. 886-8106.

HELPFUL HINT:
Because colds are caused by viruses, antibiotics have little to no effect.

Visiting Artists Share Skills

Two Maytown Elementary students work to create a vessel from potter's clay.

Over the past two weeks, the Artists in the Schools Program in this county has hosted two visiting artists, and more are scheduled in coming weeks.

Potter Mike Imes, of New Haven, Ky. shared his skills with Maytown Elementary students during his stay in this county, April 6 and 7. In addition, Imes conducted a workshop for beginning and advanced students as well as pottery guild members.

Last Tuesday and Wednesday, sculptor Joanne Hofelich travelled to the Auxier Elementary School where she demonstrated the inflation and launching of small hot air balloons before a fascinated group of seventh and eighth graders. She also sent up two of the balloons, which are shaped into varied forms and designs, at Maytown Elementary.

Gwen Hefner, who heads the program here, said The Reel World String Band, a nationally-known female group which performs traditional mountain music, will present a concert at Osborne Elementary at 9 a.m., April 26. She stressed that the public is welcome to attend this performance.

The Artists in the Schools Program is funded through the Kentucky Arts Council and the Floyd County Board of Education with some funding and workshop space provided by Prestonsburg Community College. Through the program, Ms. Hefner and visiting artists are able to share their particular talent with elementary students in all parts of the county.

IS YOUR INSURANCE AGENT LOCKED INTO ONE COMPANY?

There are 2 ways to buy insurance. You can buy your insurance from a one-company agent. But he's locked into only those policies that his company sells. So his hands are tied.

Or you can buy your insurance from an Independent Insurance Agent... the more-than-one-company agent. You see, your Big "I" Independent Agent doesn't work for one company. He represents several. So he's free to give you an independent opinion and advise you on the best coverage at the best price. And that goes for homeowners, automobile, business, life and health insurance.

Before you reach a verdict about insurance, see your Big "I" Independent Insurance Agent... the more-than-one-company agent. Do it today.

KENTUCKY'S NATIONAL CHAMPION TREES

What does a Bourbon County bur oak have in common with a Boyle County blue ash tree? They are two of a group of nine Kentucky trees unique in their status as national champions, according to the American Forestry Association's 1982 Register of Big Trees.

Each year the AFA compiles an updated Register of Big Trees and this year's list includes the following Kentucky national champions, whose status is determined by a point total based on circumference, height, and spread of the crown. The trees are listed according to species, county where found, circumference at 4 1/2 feet, and height: blue ash, Boyle Co., 14'4", 86'; Ohio Buckeye, Casey Co., 11'11", 146'; bur oak, Bourbon Co., 26'6", 95'; pin oak, Livingston Co., 17'4", 134'; swamp white oak, Monroe Co., 20'7", 104'; sassafras, Davies Co., 17'3", 100'; sycamore, Estill Co., 39', 96'.

To give you an idea of the size of these trees consider the Casey County Ohio buckeye which is taller than a twelve story building. Or consider the fact that it would take seven men, each six feet tall, to reach around the Estill County sycamore. Early settlers told of sycamore trees which could shelter more than 30 men and it is apparent that Kentucky can still grow them big.

A yellow buckeye which was 12'10" around and 140' high and a pawpaw with a circumference of three and a half feet have reportedly been felled, even though they remain on the official list. Four trees currently being considered for nomination include a bigtooth aspen, slippery elm, striped maple and a pear tree. Allowing for the two champions lost this would bring Kentucky's total to 11 champions.

The blue ash, pin oak, and swamp white oak all share their championships with trees in Indiana, Illinois, and Michigan. It is also interesting to note that Kentucky has a champion buckeye, usually associated with Ohio, while one of the co-champion Kentucky coffeetrees is located in Ohio. The other two are found in Michigan and Pennsylvania.

While one might suppose these champion trees would flourish only in places inaccessible to man, the fact is that many of them are right under our noses. The same goes for champions yet undiscovered, simply because we take them for granted. The champion sassafras is right on one of the main thoroughfares in Owensboro, Kentucky's third largest city, and is a local tourist attraction.

If you would like more information about the big trees or would like to place a tree in nomination, send a letter to: National Register of Big Trees, American Forestry Association, 1319 18th Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036.

PUBLIC NOTICE TO OWNERS OF RENTAL HOUSING

The Floyd County Housing Authority is administering a Section 8 Moderate Rehabilitation Program in Floyd County using funds provided by the Department of Housing and Urban Development. Under this program, owners will rehabilitate rental units which are now substandard or have major building systems or components requiring repair or replacement. The cost of this work, which must total at least $1000 per unit, may be financed by a local lending institution, by the owner, or by any other source available to the owner. The agency does not make rehabilitation loans or grants, but will assist owners to obtain financing.

After required rehabilitation work has been completed, the agency and the owner will execute a contract which establishes a rent for the unit(s) that will cover rehabilitation costs, meet monthly operating expenses, and allow a reasonable profit on the owner's investment. For a fifteen year period, the owner will rent the rehabilitated unit(s) to eligible lower income tenants, who will pay approximately 25 percent of their income toward the rent. The agency will pay the remainder of the rent directly to the owner. The initial occupant of a rehabilitated unit may be the owner's present eligible tenant.

After rehabilitation the rent (including utilities) cannot exceed the following Maximum Rents:

BEDROOM SIZE
1	2	3	4
206	244	282	319

The agency's current funds will allow rehabilitation of 35 units of rental housing as follows:

1 BR	2 BR	3 BR	4 BR
8	18	7	2

No unit will be assisted which results in the permanent displacement of current tenant.

Proposals from owners will be received by the Housing Authority until further notice.

Owners who wish to submit a proposal must obtain an application form from:

Floyd County Housing Authority
 Housing Office
 Green Acres
 Prestonsburg, Ky. 41653
 Telephone No. 2717

Office Hours: 8:30-12:00 and 1:00-4:30

Application forms and proposal packets may be requested by phone, mail, or in person. Information and assistance is also available at the above office.

'Olympics Of The Mind' To Test Schoolchildren

"Challenging children to come up with unusual solutions to a variety of problems" is the way Correspondent Bill Moyers described the "Olympics of the Mind" featured on his "Creatively" program on PBS recently.

Students form teams and compete in much the same way as athletic competition, explains Susan Leib, program manager for gifted education in the Kentucky Department of Education.

For the first time, Kentucky students are taking part in this event along with 25,000 students worldwide.

Several local school districts are selecting local teams to send to statewide competition to be held Saturday, May 8, at 1 p.m. at Thomas Jefferson Middle School, 4401 Rangeland Road, Louisville. Some 200 Kentucky students are expected to participate. State winners will be eligible to compete in the "Olympics of the Mind" world finals in Glassboro, N.J., May 27-28.

Students will be solving problems developed by the "Olympics of the Mind" organization in Glassboro. An example might be to get across a body of water 10 feet wide without a boat, without swimming, and without using anything propelled by electricity or gasoline.

Another problem might be to build a structure out of balsa wood to hold in excess of 600 pounds. Primary students might be asked to get artificial fish out of a huge bowl without using a fishing rod. Other students might be asked to talk to a dollar bill for two minutes.

"The problems are exercises to challenge any student's creativity," said Leib.

Local school districts tentatively scheduled to compete in the state finals include Bellevue, Campbellsville, Covington and Dayton independent districts; and Daviess, Grant, Jefferson, Laurel, Lincoln and Lyon counties. Only a elementary and junior high students will be competing in Kentucky this year.

Mt. St. Helens Tragedy Is Investigated On KET

"Mt. St. Helens: Why They Died" probes one of the most tragic natural disasters in recent history. KET airs this 30-minute report on the deaths caused by Mt. St. Helens' volcanic eruption Wednesday, May 12 at 8:30 p.m.

Former Washington Governor Dixie Lee Ray talks candidly about the inadequate danger zones established by her staff. Of the 60 people killed in the smoke and ash of the eruption, 57 died in open, unzoned lands on the north and west sides of the mountain.

Ray is joined by two chief scientists, a victim's family and Seattle filmmaker Otto Sieber, to determine whether the state chose economic interest over public safety. Sieber, one of the first to discover the faulty zoning, joined with the families of victims to demand an investigation of this tragic error.

"Mt. St. Helens: Why They Died" examines the roles of scientists and government in planning that could affect many lives during similar occurrences in the future.

The program was produced by KPBS/San Diego.

Miss Johnson, Mr. Wagner Wed

Miss Kathy Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David C. Johnson, was united in marriage to Mr. Gordon Michael Wagner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Mickey Wagner, on March 6 at 2 p.m. at the Betsy Layne Freewill Baptist Church. The Rev. Dewey Conley performed the double-ring candlelight ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a traditional chapel-length gown of white chantilly lace in an A-line silhouette. The lace formed the front of the high-rise bodice, Queen Anne neckline and points of the long, tapered sleeves. The flounce at the hem of the gown formed the chapel train. Miss Johnson wore a matching fingertip veil of chantilly lace, beads, sequins, and satin bows, and carried a nosegay of white silk roses, baby's breath and greenery.

The matron of honor, Mrs. Kay Newsome, sister of the bride, wore an organza gown of white and blue flowers. Miss Missy Johnson, sister of the bride, Miss Debbie Vincent and Miss Michele Wagner, sister of the groom, were bridesmaids, with Miss Tammy Johnson, sister of the bride, being a junior bridesmaid.

Mr. Chris Prater was best man. Mr. Tom Ford, Mr. Doug Trusty, and Mr. Bobby Ratliff were ushers. Mr. Kevin Wagner, cousin of the groom, was a junior usher. Miss Renee Johnson, sister of the bride, was the flower girl and Miss Meredith Daniels, cousin of the bride, was the train carrier. Mr. Ben Wagner, cousin of the groom, was ringbearer, and Mr. Brent Newsome, nephew of the bride, was the Bible carrier.

A reception was held in the church annex immediately following the ceremony.

After a week in Gatlinburg, Tenn., on their honeymoon, the couple will reside at Mossy Bottom Addition of Pikeville.

Wedding arrangements were by Formal Affairs, Ltd. and Justice Floral.

Dr. Stumbo Delays Decision To Enter Race for Governor

Floyd county's Dr. Grady Stumbo, secretary of the state Department for Human Resources, is mentioned as a possible candidate for governor but he said last Friday that he has not made a final decision about the race, and, instead, is concentrating just now on running his department.

Stumbo said he did not tell Democratic members of Kentucky's congressional delegation that he would announce his candidacy soon when he met with them in Washington earlier last week.

"I never said I was going to make a decision in two weeks. I never said when I was going to make a decision," Stumbo said.

He conceded he is giving serious consideration to a run for governor and is getting encouragement from others, but, "it is far, far too early for me to spend any amount of time except to work as a public servant."

"Ninety-nine percent of my time is spent on departmental issues," he said. "That is all I want to concern myself with until way up in the fall."

Stumbo said he has not set a timetable for making a decision. "That is a question I have not answered," he said. "I am just going to see how much the support and interest continues."

Dr. Stumbo said he did not think that either of the candidates mentioned most prominently for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination—Lt. Gov. Martha Layne Collins and Louisville Mayor Harvey Sloane—have established definite leads or demonstrated the ability to raise large amounts of money.

"I think it is open, not just to me but to other people to look at," he said. "I know other people are looking at it and I see that kind of environment for the next few months."

"Since the rumor spread out statewide that I may be considering (a race for governor) I have received no discouragement," Stumbo said. "I have received letters of support, especially from large concentrations of areas of eastern Kentucky. They see it as an opportunity for someone from eastern Kentucky to make it."

"But it is not going to be easy," Stumbo said. "It is not something one walks into lightly. There are a lot of factors."

The only things that offer year round comfort for less than we can.

A glass of ice tea in summer and a warm stocking cap in winter are economical ways to add comfort. But there is a better way. And it starts with natural gas heating and central air conditioning. When you consider equipment life, year round efficiency and comfort, you'll find gas heat with central air will cost you less than any other system. With a highly efficient natural gas furnace, little heat is lost or wasted, so you get more heating value for your energy dollar. And during the cooling season a typical central air conditioner costs less to operate than compromise units which are used for both heating and cooling. So for comfort and efficiency, you'll find natural gas heat with central air a lot easier to live with, all year round.

Win for 4th Consecutive Year

The Wayland varsity cheerleaders won first place in the county competition held recently at the Garrett Elementary School. This group of girls has not lost a county trophy since being elected to the squad. Wayland's cheerleaders have won this trophy eight out ten years. The 1981-82 squad also won first place trophies at the Garrett, Wayland, and Martin invitational basketball tournaments.

Tennis Team Wins 1, Loses 1

Last week's trip to Bath county was not a successful one for the Prestonsburg tennis squad. Bath county's Coach Teresa Taylor and her team were ready and anxious to avenge their loss to PHS in a previous meet and the singles matches did not get off to a good start for Prestonsburg when their two top seeded players were defeated soundly.

Prestonsburg's No. 3 player, Ted George, whom Coach Lois Crum is calling her most consistent player on the team right now, won his singles match with no trouble. His win was followed with wins by Todd Johnson and David Spradlin. Spradlin moved into the No. 6 position this week due to a vacancy created by the absence of Aaron Crum. The three of six singles wins meant pressure was on the doubles teams once again. Three straight losses for the doubles teams gave Bath county a solid victory with the final score being Bath county 6, and Prestonsburg 3.

Scores for the meet were:
Singles—D. Adams/S. Rawlings 2-6, B. Hamilton/G. Conyers 1-6, T. George/D. Grimes 6-0, J. Cook/D. Thompson 4-6, T. Johnson/S. Clarke 8-6, D. Spradlin/J. Ray 6-4.

Doubles—Adams-George/Conyers-Clarke 4-6, Hamilton-Cook/Rawlings-Grimes 5-7, Johnson-Spradlin/Clarke-Thompson 4-6.

Last week's loss to Bath county was softened considerably, Monday, as Prestonsburg scored an overwhelming victory over Pikeville.

Winning all six singles matches against the Pike squad (three of whom are women), Prestonsburg was able to relax in doubles competition and won two of the three doubles matches. Final score in the meet saw the PHS players on top, 8-1.

Scores for the match follow:
Singles—D. Adams/S. Malenpati 8-2, B. Hamilton/M. Goss 8-3, T. George/S. Malenpati 8-0, T. Johnson/N. Scott 8-4, J. Cook/R. Neeley 8-2, D. Spradlin/M. Hall 8-1.

Doubles—Adams-George/Malenpati-Goss 6-8, Johnson-Hamilton/Malenpati-Scott 8-0, Ousley-Cook/Neeley-Hall 9-7.

The median weekly earnings for women employed full time in 1981 ranged from a high of $442 for operations and systems researchers and analysts to $318 for librarians, the U.S. Department of Labor reported.

He was also voted Most Valuable Player during the past year's Paintsville Invitational Tournament, free throw winner in the 58th District Tournament, and MVP at Betsy Layne for the 1981-82 season.

Hall, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl C. Hall, of Betsy Layne, was first recruited by Cinch Valley College, Va., but decided to stay closer to home with the ALC team.

Surface Mine Effect On Streams Accented In Hydrology Report

A report, one of a series describing the general hydrology of coal in the Eastern Coal Province, the basins of the Kentucky, Upper Licking and Red Rivers has been prepared and released by the U.S. Geological Survey in response to the Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act of 1977. It is designed to assist mine owners, operators and consultants in implementing the requirements of the Act for defining the impact of surface mining on the general hydrology of the area.

According to the 82-page report, coal mining in an area of 4,432 square miles in Kentucky's eastern coal field has shifted from underground to surface operations. About 65 percent of the 38 million tons mined in 1978 came from surface mines. Mining activities directly affect the chemical and physical characteristics of streams draining the area. These effects are especially important in the area because nearly all public water supplies are developed from lakes and streams.

In streams draining mined areas, dissolved solids such as sulfate, iron, manganese, and some trace metals are much higher than in streams draining undisturbed areas. According to Ferdinand Quinones, senior author of the report, "Lowering of pH in streams receiving mine drainage is not readily evident. Acid waters have pH values varying from 6.2 to 8.3 units. Limited suspended-sediment data from mined areas show tenfold increases in the sediment load as compared to non-mined areas."

The report, "Hydrology of Area 14, Eastern Coal Province, Kentucky", U.S. Geological Survey Water Resources Investigation 81-137, by Ferdinand Quinones, Donald S. Mull, Karen L. York and Victoria Kendall, is available from the District Chief, U.S. Geological Survey, Room 572, 600 Federal Place, Louisville, Kentucky 40202.

TRIM UP YOUR SPRING FASHIONS

Trims are everywhere this spring—on blouses, pants, skirts and jackets.

Since many of today's new metallic trims are bulkier than most lace trims and cannot be applied easily by machine, overcast them in place with matching metallic thread or invisible thread.

Apply cement glue to the ends of metallic trims to avoid raveling. Then work the ends into appropriate seams by hand stitching for a professional finish.

Here are some ideas for using today's trims:

Necklines and cuffs come alive with the application of wide pregathered lace, metallic braids, cording, piping or soutache (a type of braid).

Flat metallic trim can be woven through lace trims that have eyelet centers.

Hemlines accented by several rows of metallic braid, cording, soutache or flat trim gain new attention with a border effect. Try creating a pattern by varying the spacing of the trims and mixing a few different styles.

You can transform a plain bodice front into a work of art with vertical rows of pre-gathered lace, metallic braids, rick-rack or soutache.

A bodice with a button placket can have lace on either side or rows of trim on both sides of the placket.

To outline yokes, stitch thinner cording, rick-rack or metallic piping in the seam.

To outline the entire edge of a jacket, sweater or wrap you can use metallic piping, braid or cording. These are also great for outlining the edge of patch pockets and slant pockets or western pockets.

Sewing metallic trims by hand gives you cleaning and fashion advantages. They can be easily removed before dry cleaning or laundering since some metallic trims tend to tarnish and/or stain the garment. They also give your fashion versatility—as they'll come off as easily as you put them on.

CATERPILLARS BEGINNING TO APPEAR

Two insects that are yearly indicators of spring weather have begun to appear across west Kentucky. Specimens of the canker worm and the Eastern tent caterpillar have been collected from Caldwell and Marshall counties. So far, all collections have been of very small worms, less than 3/4 inch long.

These insects are very easy to identify. The Eastern tent caterpillar is a dark, hairy worm with light blue "keyhole" shaped marks in a line down its back. Also, the white silken tent on the trees is a indicator of the presence of this worm.

The canker worms move in a looping or inch-worm fashion. They will also move through the tree by "spinning down" on silk strands. These insects often become so numerous that you can hear them in the trees.

The cold weather in early April may have killed many of the worms this year. But if you see many of the insects feeding on your trees, you may have to take some control measures.

Both the Canker worm and the Eastern tent caterpillar are controlled easily, especially if sprays are applied before the worms reach 1/2-inch in length. Control usually is not necessary in large, well-established shade trees and ornamentals. As a rule of thumb, if the tree is too large for you to spray, don't try.

If you have an infestation of either insect in fruit or nut trees, you should apply some type of control. Any of the typical insecticides available to homeowners will do the job. Formulations of Bacillus thuringiensis, commonly called B.t., is especially good for use around the home, because its active ingredient is a bacteria harmful only to larvae such as the Canker worm and Eastern tent caterpillar. B.t. is completely non-toxic to humans, animals and those important pollinators, honeybees.

If you use an insecticide other than B.t., do not spray trees in bloom, since this may kill honeybees. And if you are using Sevin, do not use it on apple trees until at least 12 days post bloom or the insecticide will cause thinning of blooms and young apples.

For further information on controlling Canker worm and Eastern tent caterpillar, consult your county Extension agent for agriculture.

Attend Beckley Meet Of Jehovah Witnesses

A delegation from the Allen congregation were among the 1583 that attended the circuit assembly of Jehovah's Witnesses at Beckley, West Virginia. The program used the theme, "Blameless as Lightbearers Amid a Twisted Generation." The two-day session included a variety of talks on Bible subjects, demonstrations and experiences to show how persons may face up to the problems confronting this generation. A baptism of 18 new ministers took place Saturday morning, according to William Wells spokesman for the congregation.

Good News Report

By THOMAS W. PAUKEN
Director of ACTION

This is a good news story from Bryan, Texas, in Brazos County; the kind of story worth telling everywhere. Back in 1976, the Brazos County Senior Citizens Association was organized as a non-profit corporation whose purpose was fellowship, recreation, education and a place to outlaw loneliness.

The problem was the association didn't really have a place it could call its own to do those things. More than that, it didn't have any money to buy or build one. That is until Mr. and Mrs. Jack Lester, well-known citizens in Bryan, stepped up and said, "I'll tell you what we're gonna do..."
What they did was deed over an acre of land to the seniors, and everybody rightly thought that was a special kind of neighborliness. But that still didn't answer the problem of a gathering place. Well, the Lesters had an idea for that, too. They'd be willing to put up $50,000 for a building fund if the senior citizens would form a posse of sorts and ride out and lasso an equal amount of money on their own. And that's just what the elders of Bryan did. By letter, by telephone, on foot and maybe on horseback, and they had the money raised in less than two months.

Well, they figured they had it made until they hired an architect to draw up plans for an activity center that would serve all the senior citizens in the county. Then they learned it would cost more than double of what they estimated. That riled them up but it didn't scare them off. They just went back to selling the idea everywhere they could until they had what they needed to start construction. Of course, they hadn't calculated that it would be necessary for them to build a street or pave a large parking area, but it was, and as Willie Bell Bogard, president of the association, says, "We had faith we could do it and we did it without any government money, but through the help of our local people." When it came to the cost of landscaping, which was estimated between $10,000 and $14,000, the seniors said that's far enough. We'll do that job ourselves. And, of course, they did.

Today, Bogard declares, with justifiable pride, the association has the most modern and convenient facility of its kind in the State of Texas. It's commodious, it's heated, it's built of steel and brick. There's a meeting room that will seat 250, a large kitchen, two offices, four craft rooms, and a spacious lounge. Provisions have been made for handicapped seniors, and there's a gift shop where the members sell their craft items made at the center. Those sales along with bake sales and other social affairs, keep the association in good financial health. During an average month, approximately one-thousand senior citizens of the county come to the center.

As Bogard sums up the cooperative venture, "We saw a great need and did something about it through our own efforts and determination and without federal assistance. We believe that what we did can be done throughout our country if we are only willing to shoulder the responsibility and work together."

Martin Hospital To Change Hands

Sponsorship of Our Lady of the Way Hospital at Martin may soon pass from the order of Catholic nuns which founded the hospital to another religious order, a hospital spokesman said last week.

The Sisters of Divine Providence, the community of religious sisters which built the hospital in 1947, is said to be negotiating the transfer with the Cincinnati-based Sisters of Charity, Sisters of the Divine Providence community, which has its headquarters in Melbourne, Ky., managed the hospital themselves until two years ago, when they contracted with yet another religious group, the Alexian Brothers, to run the 39-bed facility.

Robert Rigel, appointed by the Alexian Brothers as administrator of the Martin hospital in December, 1979, was transferred this week to Signal Mountain, Tenn., where he will manage the Alexian Village of Tennessee, a life-care community.

He has been replaced here by Tom O'Halloran, from North Dakota, who will manage the hospital while the transfer is being finalized. The changeover is expected to take several months.

To Go Or Not To Go...

The National Weather Service has inaugurated a national call-in weather report for travelers. The 24-hour service began November 23, and offers two easy-to-remember numbers: 1-900-976-EAST for conditions east of the Mississippi; 1-900-976-WEST for weather west of the river.

The 55-second recording describes dominant weather—basic conditions such as rainy or fair—and temperatures for major cities. The east call-in line includes weather details for Atlanta, Boston, Cincinnati, Miami Beach, New York and Washington, D.C. Dallas, Kansas City, Los Angeles and Las Vegas are among the cities in the western report.

Weather condition reports are updated at least daily, with additional updates made as major storms and important conditions develop.

A call to the National Weather Service weather update costs 50 cents, plus tax, and is billed by the telephone company.

HAS LUNCHEON GUESTS

Mrs. Arthur Haywood had as her luncheon guests last Tuesday Mrs. Frank Stewart, of Maytown, and Mrs. Harry Ranier, of Prestonsburg.

LAWRENCE THORNSBURY can often be seen around the Left Beaver section "sweeping" for coins and other buried, metal objects with his electronic metal detector. He was photographed over the weekend in the parking lot of a Wheelwright grocery store and although his day's effort had brought only 26 cents, other days are more profitable. And, many times, the Bevinville resident will tell you, it's not so much the value of the things you find, but the oddity of things dropped and long ago forgotten that makes the effort worth it.

Auxier Cub Scouts Win Parade Honors

Auxier Cub Scouts display the banner they carried in the parade (left), while other members, in "hillbilly" attire, walk along the parade route through Pikeville.

At the invitation of the Pikeville Chamber of Commerce, Cub Scout Pack 876, of Auxier participated in Pikeville's Hillbilly Days parade, April 17.

With the pack's more than 30 members dressed mostly in stereotypical "hillbilly" garb and leading the annual parade, they were instant favorites with the crowd. Two goats which walked the route with the pack doubtless added to the "down home" appearance of the scouts.

The presentation of four trophies to the pack, including honors for first place in marching and flags as well as outstanding pack, came as a pleasant surprise, especially in view of the fact that the pack, which is made up of members from both Auxier and Prestonsburg, was organized only a couple of months ago.

Robert Castle is cub master and Marvin Tuttle is assistant cub master.

No, no, no,

has become

Yes, yes, yes!

For the past several months, we've had to say "No, no, no" when customers asked if we had many Hondas in stock. But the "No, no, no" days are over and the "Yes, yes, yes" days are here!

If you visit our lot during the next few days, you'll find an outstanding selection of Hondas, especially the popular Accords and LX models.

So, if you've been waiting to buy a Honda or simply wish to test-drive one, come on in. The Hondas are here, but probably not for long.

THE OLEIKA TRAIL 70'S AND SONS OF THE DESERT WILL RETURN IN THE SPRING OF 1983!

Bird Houses Made of Coffee Cans Can Attract Birds to Backyards

Want to attract some small birds—even bluebirds—to your backyard?

All it takes, says the current issue of Ranger Rick's nature magazine, is a little creativity and almost no expense. You can transform trash—milk cartons and other throw-away containers—into Detergent Dream Houses, Milk Carton Cabins, Coffee Can Cottages and Margarine Tub Mansions.

Houses made from trash are perfect alternatives for birds who nest in tree cavities, says the monthly children's publication of the National Wildlife Federation. If you decide to build, keep the following tips in mind:

Spray the interior of any container with black enamel paint, which will make the house seem more like the inside of a tree.

Most small birds need an opening about 1½ inches across. Keep the opening small or you'll attract starlings and other large birds.

Make 6 to 8 drains holes in the bottom of the house.

The house will probably be better off without perches, which can attract sparrows and starlings—the "pests" of the bird world.

Paint the outside of the house if you want it to last longer. Exterior latex paint is best, says Ranger Rick, and white paint is preferable if the house will be hung in a sunny spot. (White will reflect the sunlight and keep the house cool.)

To keep rain out of the entrance hole, hang each house so it tilts slightly toward the ground.

As soon as the young birds have "fledged," or flown from the house, clean it out to get rid of lice, mites or other animals that set up shop in bird-houses. All of these "homes from trash" should be cleaned or thrown out before winter comes, Ranger Rick reminds his readers.

Now that you've got the basics, here are instructions for building three of the homes described in the magazine:

The "Coffee Can Cottage" will provide birds with a home for many years, says Ranger Rick. Drill two holes three inches apart in the bottom of a one or two-pound coffee can. (Use a one-pound can for wrens and a two-pound can for larger birds.) Then drill holes in a mounting board, drill drain holes on the bottom side of the can. Cut an entrance hole in the can's plastic lid, snap the lid onto the can, and nail the completed house to a post or tree.

One of the easiest houses in the magazine is the "Detergent Dream House," built from an empty detergent bottle. This one doesn't even need drain holes; if it's hung upside down with its cap loosened, water will drain through the cap. Cut an entrance hole six inches from the cap. To hang the house, string a wire through the handles on the bottle. Then wrap the wire around a tree or post.

Another simple house comes in lots of bright colors; it's made from margarine tubs. The entrance hole should be cut in the bottom of the tub, and drain holes should be drilled in the side of the container that will become the bottom. With tacks or small nails, attach the lid to a mounting board, snap the tub onto its lid, and mount the board on a tree.

With a few such houses, says Ranger Rick, you'll not only be recycling trash, you'll be helping out some of man's feathered friends.
