Allen Pool, Convention Center, Officially Opened

Unveiling the plaque that commemorates "their efforts in securing this property for public use," George E. and Josephine Evans officially opened the swimming pool and convention center at the Stumbo Memorial Park at Allen, Saturday. Evans, who is President for Coal Development for the National Steel Corporation, was president of the National Mines Corporation (then a subsidiary of National Steel) in 1976, when that company donated to the county the land on which the park is built. Also pictured are, at left, Secretary of State George Atkins, Congressman Carl D. Perkins and, on extreme right, District 2 Magistrate Kenneth Roberts.

ABC Starts Review Of Rum Applications

When the state Alcoholic Beverage Control (ABC) Board sent Les Cole, field inspector, to this county Tuesday to begin reviewing applicants for license to sell spirituous drinks, it assigned him a big job.

For approximately 175 individuals and firms had, as of this week, advertised their intention to apply for licenses, and Phillip D. Damron, county alcoholic beverage administrator, said as many as 60 liquor and 80 beer applications may be ready for review. There are 21 liquor licenses to be issued but the number of beer outlets is unlimited.

Mr. Cole was interviewing applicants Tuesday at May Lodge, Jenny Wiley State Park. After that, he or another ABC representative will inspect the premises which applicants propose to use in beverage sales.

A few applicants—possibly a half-dozen—who are members of the Masonic order have run into a troubling situation. The Masonic constitution stands in their way. The Jurisprudence committee of the Grand Lodge of Kentucky has made the following determination of Section 107, Regulation 173 of the constitution: "Anyone engaged in the sale or manufacture of alcoholic beverages is not permitted to petition the Masonic Fraternity. If a member of the Fraternity should become engaged in the sale and manufacture, meaning having license in their name or jointly in their name or owning and operating a brewery or distillery, (he) is guilty of a Masonic offense and is subject to charges being preferred by his lodge and a trial held."

Mr. Damron said the first beer licenses may be in effect as early as Sept. 1, but that he does not expect any liquor license to be issued before Nov. 1.

In response to queries from persons who want to protest the issuance of a license, Damron said such protests must be filed with the ABC Board, 123 Walnut St., Frankfort, Ky., and that they should set forth in writing lawful grounds for the denial of a license. He also pointed out that license may be denied any retail outlet that is within 200 feet of a church or public building, but emphasized that such denial is made only if a protest is filed within 10 days after receipt of a written notice of the intended location.

Damron said only one application for an outlet within the 200-foot limitation has reached his desk, but said he knew of others who had advertised for locations within that distance.

Coal Tipple Dispute Revived in Two Suits

Some Dinwood residents' year-long dispute with a coal tipple is in federal court, the subject of two suits filed recently.

A hearing is scheduled this week on a suit in which seven Dinwood residents join a number of conservationist groups in seeking to overturn the conditional approval given by federal authorities to Kentucky's stripmine regulatory program.

Their objection to the state program is that the newly-approved rules do not cover facilities like the Dinco Coal Sales tipple located in the middle of their community, the residents say.

In another suit, the Dinwood homeowners, in appealing a recent decision by a federal surface-mining agency, press their argument that the Dinco tipple is subject to federal surface-mining law and, under the terms of the law, is operating illegally.

In the one action, Ivan and Mary Deborn, Georgia Keans, Danny Moore, Doug Moore, McIntire Risner, and Everett Hunter—who live at Dinwood, a former coalmining camp and now a residential neighborhood on the southern end of Martin—join the state chapter of the Sierra Club, an advocacy group known as Appalachia-Science in the Public Interest, and the Kentucky Conservation Committee in asking the court to invalidate the state regulatory program.

In order to assume "primacy"—that is, to take over from federal authorities primary responsibility for regulating surface coalmining—a state must submit a program which is in line with the 1977 Surface Mining Act. Kentucky's program is deficient in at least a dozen areas and so should not have been given even conditional approval, plaintiffs argue.

Among other things, they say, the Kentucky program does not provide for sufficient inspectors to enforce the law. The inspectors cannot immediately close a mine down even if they think the operation poses an imminent danger or is about to create significant environmental damage. And drainage requirements are weaker than federal rules require.

Contrary to federal regulations, they point out, there is nothing in the Kentucky rules requiring that substandard mining structures be brought up to standard within six months. Nor is the operator required to restore a hillside to its premining contour.

But, as far as the Dinwood plaintiffs are concerned, the gap in the state law that will affect them most immediately is its failure to regulate coal crushing and preparation facilities in the manner required by federal law.

Just what is required by federal law, however, has been the subject of a dispute between Dinwood residents, Dinco Coal Sales, Inc., and surface-mining authorities ever since a federal inspector cited the Dinwood tipple, on July 20 last year, for operating within 300 feet of occupied dwellings without having first obtained written waivers from the owners.

In December, an administrative law judge vacated the notice of violation (See Story No. 3, Page 4)

Slone on Trial In Slaying of 2 At Wheelwright

The evidence would show that Eddie Slone, Jr. shot and killed Paul Douglas Stanley and Terry D. Johnson with a .22-caliber revolver as they approached a house in Wheelwright on the night of January 30, the prosecuting attorney told a circuit court jury here at the opening of Slone's murder trial Tuesday.

For his part, the defense attorney did not dispute the facts but urged the jurors to consider what it would be like to be "in a house surrounded by people who are going to hurt you."

His client "fired in self defense," he said, adding, "This case is about a tragedy."

As various witnesses described the scene, Slone, Daniel Keene and James E. Turner were drinking beer together in a house occupied by Turner and his mother, Dolly Hall, around 11 p.m. January 30, when they were joined by Stanley and Johnson.

Stanley and Slone argued about an (See Story No. 6, Page 4)

This Town...That World

July melted away, somebody has remarked. That being so, you might say that August steamed in.

AH, AUGUST!

It's old news—around 2000 years old—but for space-filling purposes I remind one and all that this month was named for the Roman emperor, Augustus Caesar. A fact which led one unappreciative soul to remark that if we're to render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's, Augustus can have his month, and welcome to it.

We who are at the age when any month, or day, or any part thereof, is a bonus rise in defense of the month. The hot breath of summer lingers, true, but any brief stay on a back porch at dusk reminds one that another season nears. The predominant golds in flowering plants, the night sounds—all speak of autumn.

Finally, we recall that August is a month which has no holiday, national or otherwise. So, for want of anything better to do, everybody takes off on vacation.

Hamilton Denied Bail As 'Hit' Plan Alleged

Following his indictment Monday on two counts of transporting stolen property, Teaberry merchant Sterling Hamilton was again denied bail, a federal magistrate finding that he has "a propensity for violence" and, if allowed to go free, "would pose a danger to the community and to government witnesses."

The denial of bail followed testimony that Hamilton threatened to shoot the man who is expected to be the principal government witness in the upcoming trial, and that he offered the man money to kill two witnesses who testified against Hamilton in previous trials.

The ruling by U.S. Magistrate Joseph Hood means that Hamilton, 55, will remain in federal prison while awaiting trial on the two charges. A trial date is yet to be set.

In the indictments handed down by a U.S. District Court grand jury, Hamilton is charged with transporting a two-ton truck and a $25,000 roof-bolting machine from Teaberry to Big Stone Gap, Virginia, knowing the property was stolen. The alleged offenses are said to have occurred July 2-3.

Police reported earlier that the stolen equipment belonged to Sterling Tackett, owner of Tri-Way Coal Company, at Teaberry.

If convicted, Hamilton could face a five-year prison term and $500 fine on the one count, and 10 years and $10,000 on the other.

Hamilton was convicted last fall of dealing in stolen explosives, for which he was sentenced to five years in jail and fined $10,000. A week later, he was convicted of obstruction of justice, drawing an 18-month pen term.

In asking that he be allowed to post bond while awaiting trial on the present charges, Hamilton's attorney, Thomas W. Goodman, Jr., noted that his client had appealed the previous convictions. The appeals court has yet to rule on the dynamite conviction. It recently affirmed the obstruction-of-justice conviction, but Goodman said he intends to seek a review of that case by the U.S. Supreme Court.

Until his arrest in Prestonsburg on July 23, Hamilton had been free pending the outcome of his appeals, a fact cited by his attorney in arguing that he should again be allowed to post bond.

His client is "well known to the east Kentucky community," has been a "staunch member of the business community for 55 years," and was "vouched for" by a number of prominent persons, including Floyd Circuit Judge Hollie Conley, during a pre-sentence hearing last year, Goodman said.

In opposing bail, Assistant U.S. Attorney Thomas Self called to the witness stand a 22-year-old Beaver man, Jeffery Mullins, who testified Hamilton offered him $5000 to kill Birchell Reid, who was the key prosecutor. (See Story No. 4, Page 4)

Fiscal Court Votes Split Of Doubtful Tax on Liquor

The Floyd fiscal court is willing to share with the Floyd County Board of Education the taxes it may collect from the sale of alcoholic beverages, if there are any such taxes—and it's doubtful that there are.

Responding to a plea made last Friday at a special court meeting by Supt. of Schools Pete Grigsby, Jr. for a share in the "liquor tax," the court voted to set the tax at 10% and to divide the "take" equally between the county and the schools.

Only Magistrate Kenneth Roberts voted against the taxation arrangement.

The court action followed Supt. Grigsby's explanation of the school system's need for additional revenues. Because of state and federal cutbacks, he pointed out, teachers have been lost, some departments are "in the red," and the transportation department, with the highest cost of fuel, equipment and repairs, is particularly hard hit.

"Many people, we've been told," Grigsby said, "voted for liquor because they thought it would mean added revenues."

But, even as the court approved a 10% tax, County Judge-Executive Jerry Lafferty, Jr. pointed out such a tax would be challenged immediately and a restraining order issued to prevent its collection.

County Attorney Arnold Turner, who will at the court's direction prepare an ordinance providing for the levy, has expressed strong doubt that the tax can be collected outside Prestonsburg, since the law does not provide for such a levy outside a city of the third or fourth class.

"The tax could not be collected until the issue is settled in court," he told the court. He added there is a possibility that the law may be amended by the 1984 Legislature to permit collection.

A resolution pointing out that almost daily the County Judge-Executive is asked for a donation of some sort—"home burned, child sick, medical bills, Little League, charities, etc."—authorized Judge Lafferty to pay up to $50 to any deserving cause without prior court approval.

Hired, retroactive to July 1, was Bob by Gene Hughes as Allen pool supervisor at a salary of $500 a month, Missy Wicker was employed at the pool to fill a vacancy created by resignation, at the rate of $3.35 an hour, and Earlas Hall was added to the road crew at $5.49 an hour.

Because it was held an emergency would exist after the July 30 payroll at the Allen Park swimming pool was met, $25,000 was transferred from a road fund to cover the payroll for the summer.

Texas Youth Group at Work Here

What were a handful of Texans, most of them high school youths, doing scraping paint and drywalling at West Prestonsburg, a thousand miles from home? They were here just to help out where needed—actually, as part of the Appalachian Service Project.

Fifteen youngsters arrived here two weeks ago as part of the project from Sherman, Texas, joining about 60 other young people and adult directors from places like Kissimmee, Fla., Knoxville, Tenn. and Kansas. Using the Betsy Layne school for headquarters and sleeping accommodations, crews have worked at about 10 locations in this county over the past several weeks helping primarily to renovate homes which were barely liveable.

These youngsters, many representing church youth groups, are sent each summer to various sections of Appalachia where, it has been determined, need for their services exist. Each crew works for one week, to be relieved by another group, and the entire annual project lasts for about six weeks, it was explained. Other groups work in Tennessee, Virginia, West Virginia and the mountains of North Carolina as well as Eastern Kentucky.

The Appalachian Service Project, according to Mrs. Barbara Reynolds, a director of the work at West Prestonsburg, was begun in 1969 in Texas by Tex Evans, who became familiar with the Appalachian region through years of church-related work in the mountains. Funded entirely through private donations, the project has been closely associated with the Methodist Church, although it now encompasses several denominations and non-denominational groups.

To determine particular needs in an area, Mrs. Reynolds explained, a screening group investigates various sections of Appalachia each year before crews are dispatched. Local social service agencies, church groups and others are consulted in order to select worthwhile projects.

She said before volunteers are sent to an area they are thoroughly oriented to the area, its people and culture. "The whole thing is based on love and understanding of the Appalachian people and their culture," Mrs. Reynolds pointed out. "There's no attitude that we're any better than anybody else," she stressed. "We have our share of poverty and the underprivileged in Texas," she said, "and we've worked there in disaster relief work. But there's funds specifically for Appalachia through the project and we want to help out where we can."

The crew which worked last week at West Prestonsburg was sent there to carry out renovations on an old frame residence which was barely habitable and literally falling down. With no income and subsisting wholly on food stamps, the woman who lived there had neither the means nor the spirit to maintain the structure.

After first being introduced to the resident of the house by a representative of a local social service agency, the teenagers, along with Mrs. Reynolds and another supervisor, Jay Ables, addressed the considerable task at hand.

Rotted wood was replaced, layers of flood-damaged linoleum were pulled up, a fallen section of the structure was dismantled and paint was applied in liberal amounts. Sheet rock replaced sagging ceilings, cracks were caulked

A group of Texans working at West Prestonsburg last week showed what a bit of "elbow grease" and dedication can accomplish.

Tarpless Truck Owners Warned Of $500 Fines

On the whole, compliance with the new state "tarp" law requiring coal trucks to be covered has been good. Most of the trucks on the highways "button up" before they leave the loading point. But not all.

And those who violate the law are going to be sorry, said District Judge Harold Stumbo this week.

"The next no-tarp charge that comes before me, and all others after that, will cost the violator a $500 fine, plus costs," he said.

"This law became effective July 15, truckers have had over two weeks of grace, and now I intend to crack down," Stumbo said.

He pointed out that the only complaints yet filed with him were for violations that allegedly occurred on the first day, July 15. "I let those cited the first day off with paying only the court costs of $37.50, but no more."

Judge Stumbo said he had heard of uncovered trucks traveling into this county from Knott county Monday, but he did not know if any arrests had been made.

What Official Information About Me Might I Ever Need?

When accurate information is needed to fill out forms and announcements, it is often hard to locate or remember. You need all sorts of information when you marry, buy insurance, apply for credit or a job, and yes, even when death occurs.

It is wise to prepare such a total record now and keep it in a safe place... not in a safety deposit box because they are usually locked until after the funeral, but rather in a locked drawer of your desk. Do, however, inform your spouse of where this information may be found.

Information most often needed includes: 1) full name, address, Social Security number, armed forces serial number, 2) birthdate and place, 3) blood type, 4) employer records, 5) name of father's and mother's birthplace and date, 6) names of organizations and publications to be notified, 7) location of important documents, 8) any special funeral preferences or pre-arrangements, 9) pre-arranged donation of eyes or body organs, 10) names and addresses of all persons to be notified of your death.

Children Who Are Buckled Up Are Better Behaved, Is Claim

Some parents mistakenly believe placing their child in an auto safety seat will cause the youngster to misbehave and distract the driver.

But researchers at the University of Kansas Medical School discovered just the opposite is true: children who are "buckled up" are better behaved.

Children not in safety seats or seat belts fought, squirmed, tugged at the steering wheel and otherwise misbehaved.

The restrained children were more likely to fall asleep during a car trip and less likely to become car sick. Many safety seats have an added attraction since they give a child a "boost" and let him see out the window.

The National Safety Council has suggestions for helping children of all ages adjust to being secured in a child restraint device or seat belt while on a trip and some tips for specific age groups:

- * If the restraint is new to a toddler, make it a special gift. Allow the child to play with it around the house before going on a short training trip.
- * Praise the children for good behavior while on a family trip. Stop the car and let them "stretch their legs" as a reward on long trips.
- * Be firm. Don't let a fussy child out of the restraint. That encourages misbehavior.
- * Stop the car if a child gets out of the restraint. Explain in simple terms why the restraint is necessary. Wait until the child is calm and will allow you to place him back in the seat or shield.
- * If a child doesn't settle down, ask him what's wrong. It could be something totally unrelated to the restraint. He could be hungry or tired. If the problem is the safety seat, you might be able to make changes. For instance, on a hot day you might drape a towel over hot vinyl or metal parts of the seat or you may be able to loosen he straps just a little.
- * Make sure older children and adults are buckled up also.
- * Surviving the First Stormy Year (9-21-months-old)
- * Tie soft toys to the restraint.
- * Talk to the child, pointing out things to see outside the car.
- * Avoid long trips if at all possible.

Good News for Squirrel Hunters

Squirrel numbers are expected to be close to peak levels in Eastern Kentucky, significantly above last year's levels in Central Kentucky and equal to or slightly above 1981 levels in the western part of the state, according to a Department of Fish and Wildlife survey.

The survey doesn't actually count squirrels—it counts nuts. There's a direct correlation between production of hickory nuts, acorns, beechnuts and other important wildlife foods (collectively called "mast") and squirrel populations the following year.

According to Harold Barber, the wildlife biologist who conducts the annual survey, the 1981 mast crop was exceptionally good. "Total mast production was evidently higher than that of the previous year in all parts of the state, and especially so in the Appalachian Plateau region," Barber stated in his report.

A plentiful food supply allows more squirrels to survive the winter and produce more young during the January-February nesting season. Harvest surveys and other data indicate that squirrel populations may be three or four times higher during peak mast producing years than they are during low years, Barber says.

Good mast years benefit a variety of other species in addition to squirrels. Deer develop better antlers and have higher reproduction when mast crops are good, Barber says, and all species that depend upon mast crops to get them through the winter do better when these foods are plentiful.

Kentucky's squirrel season opens on the traditional third Saturday of August (Aug. 21 this year) and continues through Oct. 31. The second part of the season will run from Nov. 18 (the opening of small game season) through Dec. 31.

The daily limit is six squirrels and no more than 12 may be held in possession after two or more days of hunting. Squirrel hunters may use handguns, shotguns or muzzle-loading rifles of any size but are limited to breech-loading rifles smaller than .240 caliber. It is illegal for squirrel hunters (or other small game hunters) to have slugs or buckshot in their possession while hunting.

Squirrels may also be taken with bow and arrow. Although there aren't many squirrel bow hunters around, the few who do practice this sport find it both challenging and productive. It's also a good way to get "turned up" for the Oct. 1 opening of the deer bow season.

Small game bow hunters use arrows with "flu-flu" fletching to limit the distance the arrows will travel. They also use special blunt points instead of the broadheads used for deer hunting. The usual technique is to climb a tree in an area where squirrels are working. Get there well before daylight and keep still.

Squirrels pay little attention to a man up in the tree with them, and the sound of the bow doesn't seem to bother them either. So it's possible to take a limit (or shoot up all your arrows) from the same location.

So however you prefer to hunt squirrels, it looks like this is going to be a good year. But don't get so excited that you forget to buy your 1982 hunting license, an item you'll definitely need before heading out to your favorite squirrel woods.

and weeds at eye level which surrounded the ramshackle structure were cleared.

After a week of such work in stifling heat and humidity, the house had indeed taken on a new look. The structure, which looked hopelessly deteriorated was no longer quite so depressing, and the woman who, at the beginning of the week, had seemed withdrawn and reclusive now was helping out with household cleaning, a task which before had seemed futile.

"You never know how long-lasting help like this may be," Mrs. Reynolds commented, "but you can hope that providing a needy person with this kind of help might provide them with a bit of hope—a sense that maybe there is a reason to try."

Friendship and a genuine affection for those they help are also important gifts—perhaps more so than the paint and insulation—and the young Texans feel that they have received their share in return. "Local people have taken us in and fed us, and folks are all the time bringing us water and snacks," said Mrs. Reynolds. A number of local firms have also donated paint and other materials to help with the work.

"We feel that we have become so close to the people," said the Texas woman. "We will carry away much more from our experience here than we could have ever given," she said.

tion witness in the trial last November in which Hamilton was convicted of the stolen dynamite charges, and another $5000 to kill a man later identified as Orville Thompson, Jr., who testified against Hamilton in the obstruction-of-justice trial.

Mullins, who said he helped Hamilton steal the truck and roof-bolt machine from Tri-Way Coal last month, said Hamilton threatened to shoot him if he "told anything about it." In fact, he had already made statements to the FBI and state police concerning the thefts, Mullins acknowledged.

Unlike Hamilton, Mullins was not indicted yesterday on the theft charges, leading to speculation that he has been offered immunity in exchange for his testimony against his alleged confederate.

Mullins, who worked briefly for Hamilton as a bulldozer repairman and had previously worked for Tri-Way Coal Co., said he was afraid Hamilton would kill him if he were released on bond.

Hamilton's attorney attacked the government case as "allegations and innuendo," based on the testimony of a convicted felon who "advertises that he will 'do things to people' for money" and who admits he participated in the crime for which Hamilton is charged.

Cross-examined by Goodman, Mullins did not deny he had told Hamilton he was available for hire to "do bodily injury" to people. Asked why he had not accepted Hamilton's alleged offers to hire him to kill Reid and Thompson, Mullins replied, "There was no money in it," explaining under questioning that $5000 was not sufficient payment for the job.

In denying him bail, Magistrate Hood said the evidence that Hamilton "offered Mullins an opportunity to dispose of two government witnesses" and then threatened to shoot Mullins himself was "basically uncontroverted."

issued against Dinco, on grounds that the tippie was not near or operated in connection with a mine and so was not a surface coalmining operation under the law. And, in March this year, a Department of the Interior appeals board affirmed the judge's decision.

Last week Mary and Ivan Debord, Wanda Gregory, Everett and Sadie Hunter, Georgia Keans, Danny Moore, Doug and Wanda Moore, Mary Moore, Tim and Debbie Pack, McIntire and Loretta Risner, and James Jr. and Veronica Ward took their appeal to U.S. District Court in Pikeville.

In a closely argued brief, their attorneys claim that the Dinco tippie is indeed operated in connection with a mine and is consequently a surface-mining operation under the law.

George Newsome, of Paintsville, owns both Dinco Coal Sales and the Bruce Branch Coal Co., from which all the coal processed at the tippie originated at the time the tippie was cited, they point out.

Petitioners ask that the court reverse the decision of the Interior Department appeals board and reinstate the notice of violation issued against Dinco.

They are represented by David Rubinstein and Thomas J. Fitzgerald, attorneys with the Appalachian Research and Defense Fund, and Inez attorney Robert Jordan.

greet my remarks about "E.T." with loud huzzas or cries of "Hear! Hear!" but wasn't fully prepared for the almost unanimous opinion that this old fuddy-duddy had indeed lost his marbles. Incidentally, I have at hand a letter on the subject that I would be glad to print if I could get the signature straightened out.

That newspaper article this week which says that a good salesman mesmerizes or hypnotizes his or her customer, whether consciously or unconsciously, is rather consoling to me. FATAL BLOW THREATENS

Nobody seems to be very excited about plans to pull down Dewey Lake in the process of generating electricity, although it's certain that if the dam is so used the drawdown will leave the lake mainly an expense of mudflats.

This, one of the most beautiful of Kentucky's many lakes, has been abused and sinned against enough already. This latest design upon it could be the coup d' grace.

Comprehensive Health Care, Inc. has $104,800 to finance planning of a new comprehensive health program for this county if acceptable to the Office of Economic Opportunity and its Office of Health Affairs, but it has no planner and may not have one for months to come. While the state of Kentucky continues with planning for a major camping facility in the Goble Branch area of Dewey Lake, with no work done after two years, the U. S. Corps of Engineers has developed a similar area at German, 15 miles upstream, which is attracting an estimated 180 persons a day during the week and 300 or more daily on Saturdays and Sundays. Miss Sharon O'Quinn, 17, of Garrett, was named "Miss Big Sandy RECC, 1972" at the recent annual membership meeting at Paintsville. "Big" movies showing locally included "Catch 22" and "The Godfather." Also, lest we forget, the blockbuster, "Ben," sequel to "Willard," a movie about intelligent and murderous culvert rats, was playing at a theatre here. The University of Kentucky has completed its study for architectural design of the Prestonsburg Community College, and from that study it envisions a potential of 350 fulltime students the first year of college operation, plus 150 adult part-time students. Construction of a brand new, modern village as an addition to Prestonsburg was ready to begin this week as the Prestonsburg Municipal Housing Commission received from the Housing & Home Finance Agency of the Public Housing Administration authority to award a contract on the construction of 40 low-rent public housing units here. Dr. James D. Adams, of Prestonsburg, has been appointed by President Kennedy to serve as medical advisor of Selective Service Local Board No. 166 here, it was announced this week. Mack Daniel has resigned as manager of Crown Bowling Lanes. Hansel Cooley has been employed to succeed him. W. & W.'s "On the Village Green" program last Sunday saluted the town of Martin. Thirteen Masonic lodges of this district sent approximately 100 representatives to the Saturday night meeting at Wayland. The State Highway Department is studying original plans of the weakened West Prestonsburg bridge with a view to repairing it. Although Floyd county has had seven polio cases this summer and is fourth in the state in the severity of its epidemic, health officials this week expressed the chief incidence of the disease is waning. Mr. and Mrs. James Stephens, of Cliff, will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary, August 17. Mr. and Mrs. N. D. Howard, of Wayland, observed their silver wedding anniversary, last Wednesday. There died: Tilden Martin, 74, of Dema, Sunday, at a Paintsville hospital; Samuel T. The 235-man draft quota for August is the heaviest demand yet made on Floyd manpower by Selective Service during the present war. Eight-year-old Sylvia Wilton, who, with her mother, has left bomb-torn London for sanctuary in America, is a guest at the home on the Auxier road, near here, of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley A. Combs. B. F. earlier incident in which Slone "tailgated" Stanley but appeared to have resolved their differences, it was said, when Stanley and Johnson left the house.

About an hour later, the two youths returned to the house with two others—Collie Tackett and Michael Stanley, Paul Stanley's brother—who were traveling in a separate car.

According to witnesses, Johnson and Paul Stanley approached the house, asking for Slone; Turner, now carrying a revolver in his back pocket, opened the door to them; and Slone, taking the pistol from Turner's pocket, came to the door and fired six shots.

Johnson, who was hit in the chest and leg, died soon after. Stanley, who was struck in the head, died at the U.K. Medical Center on February 9.

Defense attorney Gary Johnson said the evidence shows that Stanley and Johnson returned to the house, armed and with companions, "to hurt Eddie and to kill him if they had to." He conceded, however, that the defense could not produce the pistol which Stanley was supposed to be carrying.

When the two cars approached the house, one was driven to the front and one to the back, "surrounding" the house, and some shots were fired at the back of the house, Johnson said. Stanley and Johnson approached "aggressively," one of them threatening Slone in a loud voice, he added.

Immediately prior to the shootings, his client was shaking with fear and had begged Turner not to open the door of the house, the attorney said.

Called as a prosecution witness by Commonwealth's Attorney James Allen, Turner, 23, testified that when Stanley and Johnson returned to the house, Slone said, "I'll handle it," took Turner's revolver, went to the door and "began shooting like a wild man."

Turner denied that Slone had asked him not to open the door. Nor did he hear Stanley or Johnson make any threats or see them carrying any weapons, he said.

Defense attorney Johnson, noting that Turner is awaiting trial on a charge of receiving stolen property, suggested that his testimony was designed to curry favor with the prosecutor, a suggestion that both Turner and the prosecutor discounted.

During testimony by Daniel Keene, 24, a young woman in the courtroom audience began sobbing audibly, prompting Circuit Judge Hollie Conley to sequester the jury and caution that further outbursts might jeopardize the trial.

Keene had testified that Slone first struck Johnson and then Stanley, before again training his weapon on Johnson.

Jennifer Hall, who lives two houses below where the shootings occurred, said she heard Stanley or Johnson make a threatening remark as they approached the scene but said she had seen no weapon on them.

The defense is expected to call its witnesses today (Wednesday).

Comments Sheriff

The Kentucky Sheriffs' Boys and Girls Ranch staff would like to thank Sheriff Henry Hale and his deputies for helping make the summer camp season at the Sheriffs Ranch the most successful in our brief history.

Floyd county helped make the summer of 1982 a pleasant time for many youngsters in our great Commonwealth of Kentucky that possibly would never have had the chance to go to camp.

Sheriff Hale is the first sheriff from Floyd county that has sent us youngsters. He is to be commended.

We work hard to teach all our Ranchers to respect law enforcement officials, plus how to get along with other people, and we have done just that for almost 600 boys and girls from approximately 100 counties in Kentucky this summer.

As the director, I want to thank each county sheriff, my great staff, all the counselors, parents and agencies from each county that sent us kids. Our motto, "we will never turn a youngster away," certainly holds true this year.

If Seat Belts, Infant Seats, Were Used...

—Most traffic accident deaths could be prevented if adults used their seat belts and children were placed in child restraint devices, but, tragically, motor vehicle accidents are the No. 1 cause of death for most age groups.

Vehicle accidents are edged out by other causes of death only before 1-year-old, when anoxia (lack of oxygen) is the No. 1 cause of death and after age 45, when heart disease is the No. 1 killer, according to National Safety Council statistics.

In Kentucky, an effort is being made to protect babies and young children from death or injury in a car crash. There is now a law, effective July 15, which requires children under 40 inches tall to be placed in a child restraint device while traveling. It is hoped this will start a life-long, life-saving habit.

According to State Police Commissioner Marion D. Campbell, 26 children under age 4 died in 1981 in motor vehicle wrecks. Only one was in a restraint, said Campbell.

The effect of motor vehicle accidents on the death rate of children nationwide can be seen in these statistics for 1978, the latest available from the National Center for Health Statistics:

Community Leaders To Hear About New Development Plan

Hundreds of public and private community leaders from throughout the state are expected to attend an Aug. 5 conference to hear about a new state economic development program. Registration will continue up to the time of the conference, to be held at the Lexington Hyatt Regency.

The Governor's Economic Achievement Recognition Program, called GEAR, will bring together state and private expertise to help a community identify and solve major problems acting as barriers to industrial development. Serving with community leaders in GEAR will be Commerce Cabinet officials, private industry representatives and members of the Kentucky Industrial Development Council, a public-private coalition.

The technical assistance to a community will come in the form of a study team composed of Commerce officials and development council members, working with local leaders. The team will set goals to address a problem and identify the means by which the goals can be reached. As those goals are met, the city will be honored as a GEAR community. That designation is expected to show prospective new industries that the city is serious about welcoming economic growth, said Dale Smith, commissioner of the Department of Economic Development.

At the Aug. 5 conference, Commerce officials will outline the program and distribute questionnaires that community leaders need to complete to qualify a city for the GEAR program. National, state and local development authorities will also be featured at the conference.

The Commerce Cabinet will work with as many communities as the workload permits, Smith said. Cities of any population may take part in GEAR. Applicants will be accommodated on a first-come, first-served basis, he added.

"Industrial development is one of the most intensely competitive activities in business today," Smith said. "We believe GEAR is one more valuable tool in maintaining an edge for Kentucky in generating and protecting jobs." He added that GEAR is an all-volunteer effort. No grant money is involved, so the only costs to the state will be administrative in nature.

Something Special for the Kids

The WHO is the Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre and your kids. The WHAT is a meeting of minds, a workshop, or two weeks full of fun and adventure. The WHEN is July 26-August 6 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. The WHERE is the Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre at the Jenny Wiley State Resort Park. The WHY is...a long story.

The Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre has long been aware of a need for the youth of Eastern Kentucky to understand and appreciate the arts and theatre arts in particular. So this summer, with financial assistance from the Kentucky Arts Council and the National Endowment for the Arts, Jenny is sponsoring its first Youth Workshop on Theatre. It will be an opportunity for youngsters, ages 8-13, to meet the artists at Jenny Wiley, learn about what they do, and try a little of it themselves.

During the workshop, mornings will be spent getting to know the theatre staff, touring the various areas at the theatre (costume shop, scene shop, offices, stage), and playing theatre games. The kids will also plan their own production to be performed at the conclusion of the workshop. Following lunch at the theatre, Rick Fuller, Jenny Wiley State Resort Park Recreation Staff Member, will plan activities with those registered.

At the close of the two-week session participants will be the guests of the theatre at one of the regular evening performances where they will receive recognition and certificates of completion.

A registration fee of $20.00 per child is required. However, financial assistance is available upon proof of need.

For information or to register call 886-9274 or 886-9297. Space in the program is limited and on a first-come, first-served basis.

State Tax Collections Up $32 Million Over Estimates

Gov. John Y. Brown, Jr., announced last week that net General Fund tax collections for the fiscal year ending June 30 exceeded official revenue estimates by $32 million or 1.5 percent of total revenues.

Total General Fund revenues for Fiscal 1982 were up 10.7 percent over comparable tax collections for 1981, Brown said.

Brown said he was pleased with the receipts report which was slightly higher than earlier projections, and attributed the results to slightly stronger income in two areas, along with the continued cost efficiency of management of all departments and the more aggressive and effective auditing programs by the Department of Revenue implemented six months ago.

Two pleasant and mild surprises arrived in June, Brown said.

First, corporation income tax declaration payments due June 15 were unexpectedly strong. While total corporation income tax collections for the fiscal year were expected to lag behind last year's collections due to the recessionary economy, actually they increased by 7.7 percent, or $16 million over the estimate.

Second, coal severance tax collections continued strong despite reports of a weak coal market in recent months. Coal tax collections exceeded a revised December revenue forecast by $19 million, Brown said. The December forecast had been increased over the initial July forecast due to strong collections for the first six months of the fiscal year.

Half of that additional $19 million is earmarked for the Local Government Economic Assistance Fund.

June Jobless Rate In Double Digits

After one month of single digit unemployment during May, Kentucky's jobless rate in June jumped back into double digit figures. According to the Cabinet for Human Resources labor market analysis section, the state's unemployment rate increased .8 percentage points from May to a June rate of 10.6 percent.

The estimated number of jobless Kentuckians in June was 176,600, or 17,000 more than were unemployed in May. "The two main reasons for this increase was in-school youth entering the labor force for summer employment plus added job layoffs caused by the current recession," said Ed Blackwell, Human Resources' chief labor market analyst.

The comparable national jobless rate for June was a nonseasonally adjusted 9.8 percent. Kentucky's unemployment rate for June 1981 was 8.4 percent.

Kentucky's civilian labor force for June numbered 1,659,300. This figure was 37,700 higher than in May, but 38,900 less than the record high of 1,698,200 for June, 1980. The civilian labor force only includes persons currently employed and unemployed persons actively seeking jobs.

During June, the state's total employment figure was estimated at 1,482,700. This represents a 20,700 increase over May and was caused primarily by a seasonal jump in agricultural wage and salary employment, according to cabinet figures. Even though the state's total employment increased from May to June, the number of jobs occupied has decreased 60,800 in comparison to June 1981.

Hardest hit by the current recession has been the state's construction industry whose unemployment rate was 21.6 percent in June. During the month, the state's coal industry experienced a jobless rate of 17.6 percent, and the manufacturing industry's rate was 13.5 percent. Joblessness in all other major industries in Kentucky remained in single digits.

Tips To Ease Trauma Of First School Day

Parents can do a few simple things that will make the first days at school go smoothly, the National Education Association points out. Here are some tips that can help your child start the school year right:

Be sure the school has a record of your child's immunization record, completed medical forms, and proof of age.

Make certain the child can take care of basic personal needs, such as tying shoes, knowing the first and last names of parents, home address and telephone number, and how to use a bathroom.

Make certain the child gets a good night's sleep and a good breakfast before the first day at school.

Practice the best route to and from school or the bus stop.

Remember that the parents' own reactions and attitudes go a long way toward determining how a child feels about school.

Van Lear Reunion Set

More than five hundred person are expected to attend a second reunion of former Van Lear townspeople, Saturday, August 7 at 6:00 p.m., at the Johnson Central School in Paintsville. About three hundred attended last year's reunion, the first ever held.

Constructed during the 1909-1914 period by Consolidation Coal Company to provide housing and services to support miners' families and coal production from five mines, Van Lear had a population of around five thousand at its peak in the 1920s. When deep mining of the remaining thin coal seams became unprofitable, the town property was sold off in the early 1950s. Although there is no industry there, many homeowners continue to live at Van Lear while working in neighboring communities.

The showing of a videotape documentary about Van Lear will be a highlight of this year's reunion program. The documentary includes old photographs accompanied by a narrative, and comments by former Van Lear school superintendents C. V. Snapp, of Jenkins, and Verne P. Horne, of Paintsville; former Johnson County School Supervisor Virgil Porter, now residing in Lexington; Paintsville's Dr. Paul B. Hall; Silva Lyon, of Frankfort, son of former Van Lear physician Dr. John Lyon; Beulah Hammond Williamson, of Ashland; James Preston, of Paintsville; and Christina Wetzel Stapleton who has remained at Van Lear.

Numerous mementoes of bygone days will be displayed and food will be served, buffet style. Donations to a non-profit organization to preserve the town's heritage will be solicited. All former students, residents and friends of Van Lear are invited.

The number of women working in construction and kindred trades increased by 39,000, or 5.1 percent, from July 1980 to July 1981, according to the U.S. Department of Labor's Office of Federal Contract Compliance Programs.

A 20 percent hiring rate for women in coal industry entry-level jobs was achieved through conciliation agreements in 1981, according to the U.S. Department of Labor's Office of Federal Contract Compliance Programs.

Murder Charge Against Slone Dismissed Here

The murder 33 years ago of a Prestonsburg girl remained this week as it was when it was committed—an unsolved mystery and one that appears to be insoluble.

The crime, which claimed the life of 17-year-old Muriel Baldrige, reverted to its unsolved mystery status with the dismissal by District Judge Harold J. Stumbo last Thursday of a juvenile murder warrant lodged against 47-year-old Frederick Slone after he had told officials at a Toledo, O. mental health center last May that he was the slayer.

Dismissal of the warrant came when County Attorney Arnold Turner, Jr. asked Judge Stumbo for permission to withdraw a motion to transfer Slone's case to circuit court and to dismiss the murder charge, "without prejudice," because of insufficient evidence.

(Dismissal "without prejudice," Turner explained, means that if sufficient evidence can be produced later, the charges against Slone can be renewed.)

Officials here were obviously skeptical of Slone's "confession," from the first, but Chief of Police James Curtis pointed out that police here were obligated to investigate any confession of murder.

"All that investigating officers have been able to produce was an unsworn, out-of-court admission that was not supported by any significant, independent evidence," Turner said.

He filed the motion for dismissal after testimony was given by City Detective David Caudill during a closed hearing in Judge Stumbo's office. Caudill said his investigation resulted in only "hearsay" evidence. There were those, including Public Defender Ned Pillersdorf, who opined that Slone confessed "to get a ride home."

The defendant on one occasion, in response to a direct question asking if he committed the murder, replied "I must have."

His legal status as a juvenile was established by Pillersdorf, who pointed out that Slone was a juvenile at the time of the slaying.

When the murder warrant against him as an adult was quashed Slone was released from jail. He now is a patient in a Salyersville rest home.

Dyslexic Child Tutoring Group Organized Here

If your child is having difficulty learning to read, dyslexia may be the problem.

Dyslexia is a learning disorder that makes it difficult for a child to learn to read despite conventional schooling and adequate intelligence.

A special tutoring program for dyslexic children has been operating in Knott county, and now a group of parents in Floyd county has organized to begin a similar program here.

Mrs. Ann Latta, one of the members of the new organization, Floyd County Reading Research Program, said testing and screening to determine if a child is dyslexic will be held in Hindman, August 28-30.

"Dyslexic children have several common characteristics," Mrs. Latta said. "They are usually average or above average in intelligence, but on IQ tests they score high in some areas and low in others."

"The most commonly known characteristic, is that they tend to read from left to right and to reverse letters or words."

Mrs. Latta, whose son, Jack, is enrolled in the Knott county program, said it is important if a parent thinks their child might be dyslexic to have him or her screened. If the test results show dyslexia, then the child would be eligible for the tutoring program.

The tutoring involves both the parent and the child and is done on a one-to-one basis, she said.

"This extra, intensive tutoring enables the dyslexic child to keep up with his proper level in his regular school classes."

The tutorial program at Hindman is held on Tuesdays during the regular school year, from 3:45 to 7:30 p.m.

The Floyd county group hopes to have a similar program ready to go into operation by the start of the second semester, in January, Mrs. Latta said.

A meeting will be held Thursday, August 5, at 7 p.m. at the Floyd County Library for parents or teachers who are interested in learning more about dyslexia, she said.

Anyone who wants to have their child screened should send in their application now to the Kentucky Association for Specific Perceptual Motor Disabilities (SPMD), 400 Sherburn Lane, Room 378, Louisville, Kentucky 40207.

The Association for SPMD sponsors the Knott program and does the screening and evaluation. The request for screening should include the child's name, age, birthdate, school and grade, parent's name, address and telephone number. Cost of the screening is $50, payable at the time of testing.

For further information on dyslexia or the meeting, contact Mrs. Latta, 886-9287, Mrs. Denise Clark, 886-3698, or Mrs. Karen Bingham, 886-1683.

Summer Work Program To End In Area, Friday

The Summer Youth Employment Program (SYEP) employed 27 of Floyd county's post high graduates. The SYEP program, a service of the Big Sandy Community Action Program, is funded by Eastern Kentucky Concentrated Employment Program, otherwise known as EKCEP.

SYEP is designed to aid post high graduates between the ages of 17 and 21 who are planning to further their education through college or vocational school. But furthering their education was not the only requirement factor in the selection of the enrollee. Each enrollee also had to fit into the financial guidelines set by the U.S. Department of Labor.

SYEP, which lasts for five weeks, beginning June 28, only aids the student financially in returning to school, but it will also introduce them to the career in which their academic majors or specific interests lie.

Each enrollee is allowed to work a maximum of 33 hours per week with two additional hours of counseling. The purpose of counseling is to advise the students of financial aid available to them, how to budget money, how to develop a resume, how to find a job, how to hold a job.

This summer there are 14 separate worksites throughout the county, all of which are with non-profit public service agencies.

The program also developed a community project that utilizes SYEP participants. The Senior Citizens' Center at Archer Park is receiving a new coat of paint in the interior of the building. By using the manpower provided by SYEP, this gives the taxpayers of the county a way to see their tax dollars at work providing a service to a segment of the population.

The closing date of the program will be July 30, 1982.

Mud Creek Clinic Finds Temporary Home

Getting a hand up to the trailer which is likely to be home for the Mud Creek Clinic for the next year or two is clinic supervisor Eula Hall. Since fire destroyed the clinic on Mink Branch on June 16, it has operated out of the John M. Stumbo school at Grethel.

The present trailer was erected this week at the mouth of Mitchell Branch, on what clinic officials hope will soon be the site of a permanent clinic. To that end, some $42,000 has been raised since the fire.

A benefit show for the clinic building fund has been set for this Saturday, at the Betsy Layne grade school, from 8 until 11 p.m. The benefit is being sponsored by the East Floyd Kiwanis Club.

$80,000 Sought As County Sues 'Annex' Builder

Floyd county, through its fiscal court, went to court three times in two days last week, seeking redress for wrongs which it claims the county has suffered.

One suit deals with the leaky roof of the new "Courthouse Annex," which houses the juvenile detention center and county government offices. The court last Saturday filed suit against the prime contractor on the building Barco, Inc., and the architect, Forrest G. McClosky, claiming the roof leaks, resulting in water damage and safety hazards, and that upper portions of building are unsuitable for their intended use.

The court alleges that the contractor's failure to build the structure according to specifications has resulted in $80,000 damages. It also claims the express or implied duty of McClosky was to inspect the work and that this the architect failed to do. As an alternative, the suit alleges the design of the roof was defective.

The suit asks judgment against Barco and McClosky jointly in the amount of $80,000 and that, in the event that proof shows defective design, that amount be recovered from McClosky.

Two suits were filed Friday on county road situations. In one, which names the Johnson County Gas Co., Inc. as defendant, the court claims $35,000 damages, alleging that the gas company entered upon the county road near Auxier with machinery and personnel and dug into the right-of-way so that reconstruction of support, shoulder and surface is required.

In the third action the county asks that its title to the roadway on Royal Branch of Frasure's Creek be cleared and that Claude Howell be directed by the circuit court to refrain from obstructing right-of-way and that he be ordered to remove immediately all obstructions placed in or adjacent to the roadway. The suit alleges that Howell has laid claim to certain portions of the right-of-way and has impeded the flow of traffic and made road maintenance impossible by stakes, wood, rock and other obstructions on the right-of-way.

A hearing of the county's motion was set for 9 a.m. Friday.

(Reports of civil suits reflect only one side of the case.)

Martin Station May Go on Air By October 1

Floyd county's third radio station, and the first to be located outside the city limits of Prestonsburg, is expected to begin broadcasting this fall from a location near Martin.

With its 180-ft. twin towers erected and construction on a new studio well under way, a target air date for radio station WMDJ has been set for October 1, according to Dale McKinney, of Prestonsburg, part-owner of the new station.

McKinney and Monty McAnnally, a Williamsburg, Ky. radio station owner and construction engineer, purchased the stock, in May of this year, of a group of Martin businessmen who were issued a construction license by the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in 1979 for a similar project.

Although the FCC permit had not been utilized for three years, it was still valid, and construction on the facility was begun by the new owners soon after the purchase.

The station, which will be located at 14.40 on the AM band, is authorized for 2,500 watts, although field measurements have revealed WMDJ will go on the air at 5,000 watts, according to McKinney. A Harris 5,000-watt transmitter, referred to by McKinney as the "best you can buy," was purchased for $40,000 and will give the station's AM broadcasts a much-improved sound over most AM transmissions, it was said. Other equipment designed to enhance AM clarity will be employed to bring the station's broadcast quality to a promised high level.

McKinney stressed that, unlike most stations, WMDJ will be a directional station, enabling station personnel to have considerable control over the strength and quality of broadcasts in predetermined directions.

"One of our towers is directed up the Beaver Creeks, while the other will aim the signal toward Prestonsburg," McKinney said.

"Geographically, our station is in the center of the county, and this will enable the signal to cover the county in its entirety," McKinney said. "Signal strength will remain pretty much constant over the county without the sudden fadeouts and loss of reception that is so common in hilly terrain like ours," he added.

Scientists are discovering that colors and patterns can induce direct biological changes in people. Take the color pink for example. The July Reader's Digest says that one particular shade appears to have the power to tranquilize, to replace aggressive impulses with passivity. One researcher's experiments reveal that pink, even in a brief exposure, can cause a measurable weakening of the body's muscles that lasts for about thirty minutes.

Kidnap-Murder Suspect Nabbed In Traffic Check

What began as a routine traffic check by a Prestonsburg police officer early last Wednesday morning resulted in the arrest of three men who were sought by Ohio authorities for kidnapping and murder.

It began with a Cadillac leaving a pump at the Save-Mart service station on North Lake Drive here, around 1:15 a.m. City Detective David Caudill, 22, who saw the car "scratch off" onto US 23 and head uptown, followed. Caudill noted that the car was being recklessly operated and that somebody in it was tossing paper cups and perhaps a paper bag from the window.

Caudill overtook the Cadillac and arrested the driver, Vernon Holland, 30, of Columbus, O., who, the officer said, had been drinking. A search of the car uncovered a pistol beneath a front seat armrest, and Holland was booked at the county jail on charges of carrying a concealed deadly weapon, reckless driving, littering and Dyer Act violation. Holland's companions—Michael Columbo, 21, and Richard Miller, 20, also of Columbus—were released because the police department's computer files were out of order at the time. But two hours later, they were sought when it was determined that the Cadillac had been stolen.

Policemen Larry Wood arrested the two, about 10 a.m. Wednesday, as they were hitchhiking on US 23, near the Floyd-Johnson line. Columbo is held here on a Dyer Act violation. Miller, who was taken to the Pike county jail, has waived extradition, it was reported.

The other men were yet in jail Monday as their extradition to Ohio was sought and while the investigation of the crime of which they are accused continues.

The body of 86-year-old Russell P. Smith, a Florida resident who had been spending the summer with a son in Columbus, was found last Wednesday morning in a small stream beneath a covered bridge in Fairfield county, Ohio, about 25 miles east of Columbus. He had been shot twice in the head.

The check made by authorities here revealed that the car in which the three men were driving was owned by the dead man's son and had been stolen last Tuesday from a grocery store parking lot in Columbus.

The victim's son was quoted as saying he left his father in the car when he went inside the store.

Second Birthday

Tony Tackett, Jr., adopted son of Sola and Bennie Tackett, of Galveston, celebrated his second birthday, Friday, with his cousins, Twana, Sandy, and Jamie Tackett, brother Ritchie, and sister, Bennie Lynn.

Here's the Number To Call

State police communications with rural Kentuckians will take a giant step forward in August.

State Police Commissioner Marion D. Campbell has announced a statewide, toll-free emergency hotline for use by Kentuckians and travelers in the commonwealth.

A statewide, 24-hour-a-day hotline was needed because in many regions citizens living outside the actual county where their state police post is located must either pay long distance charges or call collect to the post, said Commissioner Campbell.

The new, centralized toll-free number operated by the Kentucky State Police will ring in on one of five lines at the KSP Communications center in Frankfort where the emergency call will be quickly transferred by automatic dialing after the appropriate post is determined.

At each state police post there will be "dedicated" telephone lines which will be used solely for these emergency 800-number calls.

The new number, 1-800-222-5555, became available Aug. 1 for public use.

The state police hotline should be especially useful to people traveling away from their home area who do not know which post is the nearest. For instance, a traveler has just pulled off an interstate, is calling from a phone booth and doesn't even know the closest town. The central office can determine the nearest post by the prefix of the caller's telephone number and relay the call.

In addition, the toll-free number will be a great help during natural disasters, said Commissioner Campbell.

Commissioner Campbell stressed the toll-free line is for emergency use only. The public should call 1-800-222-5555 only when they believe there is an immediate danger to life or property, Campbell said.

Routine calls for information or other nonemergency matters will not be accepted on the Kentucky State Police hotline.

The state police commissioner said the toll-free line should be an enormous boost to law enforcement efforts in Kentucky, especially in rural areas. National studies have shown a number of crimes are not reported, simply because there was a lack of easy access to police, Campbell said.

The commissioner said the cost of the new system is minimal since it will take the place of state police toll-free lines now operating.

The crime prevention line is being eliminated since information it once handled will now be distributed directly by the 16 state police posts and by local police departments. The toll-free lines operating at eight posts will be discontinued upon implementation of the new statewide number.

Commissioner Campbell said since the statewide hotline is being operated from a central location, the cost of making an emergency line available to all Kentuckians is the same as maintaining hotlines at just eight posts. That's twice the service for the same cost, he said.

The state police will be conducting a public awareness campaign to promote use of the new toll-free number through the press, advertisements, billboards and signs placed near major access areas in the state.

Paintsville Reservoir Real Estate Project Office Closing Slated

The Paintsville Reservoir real estate project office will close August 6, according to Donald E. Thompson, chief of the real estate division in the Huntington District Office, U.S. Army Corps of Engineers. After that date any questions about land acquisition may be referred to the headquarters office at 502 Eighth Street, Huntington, West Virginia, 25701, phone 304-529-5270.

"This does not mean that the Corps of Engineers is leaving Paintsville," said Thompson. "The construction field office located on Route 580 at Staffordsville under the direction of resident engineer Ray K. Boley, will stay open until the relocated highways and recreational facilities are completed. Other questions can be directed to Bob Beverly, reservoir manager, phone 606-297-6312, or a visit can be made to the Paintsville operations office at the dam site," concluded Thompson.

During the 10 years the Paintsville real estate office has been open, 13,250 acres of land have been acquired for the lake project at a cost of $11,750,000. Plans are to impound the waters of the Paintsville Lake in November, 1983.

Another Way To Save — Timely Dental Care

Everyone can use a good investment tip these days, and here are two from the Kentucky Dental Association.

Dr. T.E. Logan, Sr., Executive Director of the KDA, recently offered two suggestions:

"First, parents who invest in their children's attractive smiles are doing their youngsters a valuable service with many tangible returns.

"Second, everyone can save many dollars over a lifetime through proper treatment to prevent periodontal disease."

Dr. Logan continued, "Whether we like it or not, society makes a fast read of people, and a first impression may be the only one a person has a chance to make.

"How often do you see the lead in the school play going, not to the youngster with the best reading of the part, but to the one with the attractive smile that wins the audience?"

"Later on, when business has to choose between two candidates with exactly the same qualifications, especially in a sales job, the one chosen usually has the most attractive smile and ability to get past the reception area.

"I've known some parents who spend sizeable sums on varied and frivolous things for their youngsters, but wait until there's a complaint of pain before taking their child to the dentist. Regular checkups by the dentist are a solid investment, and will help your children all their lives."

The second investment concerns periodontal (gum) disease—the main cause of tooth loss in adults.

"You know you have it," Dr. Logan says, "when your gums become inflamed and painful to the touch, and bleed easily. It's caused by a build-up of plaque (rhymes with black)—a sticky, invisible film of saliva, cells from the mouth and bacteria in the mouth that mixes with sugars in foods to form acids. Left untreated, plaque can eat away at the bone that supports the teeth, causing the teeth to become loose and then lost."

There's an easy way to avoid the discomfort and dollars for treatment that advanced periodontal disease involves.

"In fact," Dr. Logan says, "it's as easy as one, two, three.

"One, brush and floss your teeth every day.

"Two, avoid refined sugars in foods. Instead, use fresh fruits and vegetables, nuts, unsweetened juices, cheese, milk and sugarless gum.

"Three, see your dentist at least twice a year for a checkup and cleaning."

For more information on periodontal disease, or answers to any questions about dental care, call the Kentucky Dental Association at 1-800-292-1855.

Children Victims . . .

Lack of Precautions Costs Lives

This summer a little girl riding in the back of a pickup truck leaned out over the tailgate and fell to the grassy shoulder when the truck came to a stop.

In another case, two small boys were riding on the back of a farm truck when the vehicle hit a sinkhole and overturned.

The little girl was injured but survived the accident. The two little boys were both killed.

This type of incident occurs too often to be called a freak accident, says Commissioner Marion D. Campbell of the Kentucky State Police.

In 1981 there were 74 accidents in Kentucky involving a person falling from a moving vehicle. These accidents resulted in at least five deaths and 68 injuries.

The No. 1 concern of drivers must be the safety of their passengers and the dangers should be weighed carefully

IN APPRECIATION

We would like to take this opportunity to thank everyone who sent flowers, brought food, or helped in any way upon the recent passing of Burnis (Bud) Ousley. Special thanks to the ministers for their comforting words, also to Bender Funeral Home for its efficient service. Thanks to all of our relatives and friends who expressed sympathy during this time of sorrow.

PBS in the spotlight

Marcel Marceau, the master of mime, will be the subject of a one-hour PBS special.

Marceau: Mime over matter

On Wednesday, Aug. 11, PBS will air "Marcel Marceau," an hour-long special. (Air dates may vary; please check local listings.) No words can explain what Marceau's language of mime can express. The world's greatest living pantomimist has performed in 65 countries on five continents without ever saying a word.

In sequences filmed in Paris, Marceau explains how even as a youngster he found it necessary to recreate the world around him by imitating gestures and other elements of his imagination.

During the 1940s, Marceau studied as a painter, but his admiration for the great silent screen actors, such as Charlie Chaplin and Buster Keaton, inspired him to pursue the ancient art of silence as his career.

In 1946, Marceau enrolled in the Charles Dullin School of Dramatic Art in Paris. There he created Bip, the clown in the striped pullover and battered opera hat topped with a red flower. He describes this character as his alter ego and constant companion.

In addition to performing some of his most famous Bip characterizations, the program uses film clips from some of Marceau's early performances.

The film portrait also offers insights into Marceau's creative process, his philosophy, his paintings and thoughts about art, and concludes with Marceau instructing some of the students from around the world who have enrolled in the Marcel Marceau International School of Mime, which recently was reopened with a grant from the French government.

Cooking in the Cumberlands

By IRENE HAYES

In my area, August is the hottest month of the year. Food tastes change when the weather is extremely hot. Heating up the oven is unthinkable, even with air-conditioning.

When I was young, we did all the baking and as much of the cooking as possible early in the morning. We baked all our bread and seldom bought a loaf from the bakery. There was no air-conditioning then and the heat from a coal or wood-burning stove made the kitchen unbearable in the middle of the day. During canning season we were forced to ignore the heat.

When I moved to the farm I used a wood-burning stove because it was cleaner and less expensive. We had plenty of wood on the farm. I bought a gasoline stove to use in the summer. Today, I wouldn't go into a house where a stove like this one was used but I wasn't the least bit afraid of it then. You put out all the fires and poured gasoline into the tank. You then pumped air into the tank and the flame burned like natural gas. I wouldn't consider one of these stoves now, even for the relief from heat.

When I baked on a wood-burning range, I learned by trial and error just how much wood to place in the fire box to start the baking process and how much to add to finish baking without burning the food. When baking a cake I allowed the fire to go completely out. I then laid a fire with kindling on top of paper and two large pieces of stovewood on top. When the cake was almost ready to go into the oven, I lit the fire with the draft open. When it was burning just right I closed the damper to allow the heat to circulate around the oven. Then I put in the cake. When the cake was about half-done I added another piece of wood. I could bake beautiful angel food cakes which raised to the top of the pan. I should add that I burned many, many cakes before acquiring this knowledge.

Everyone wanted a Home Comfort range because they baked better than any other. They had a huge warming oven above the cooking top where food stayed warm for hours. A large water reservoir was on the side of the stove, providing a constant source of hot water, depending on how often it was filled. It was our job to keep it filled. When I think of the old stoves it makes me wish I had the opportunity to cook on one again (in the winter, of course). When you popped corn you could move it to a cooler place on the stove and it would continue to pop without burning. You had high heat, medium heat and low heat always on a coal or wood-burning range at the same time but no thermostats to control it. You moved the skillets or cookers to the cooler places on the stove top. None of the early gas stoves had thermostats, either.

The following dish is one that will make it worthwhile to heat up the oven. This recipe for Squash Supreme is an original recipe given to me by Wilma May of Langley, Kentucky. I tasted it at a church social and said, "I must have that recipe for my cookbook." In addition to being delicious, it is a good source of Vitamin A and C and potassium, iron and other minerals. If you have never liked squash, at least try this recipe. I didn't like squash but I really like this dish.

Squash Supreme

SLICE:
6 to 8 medium-sized fresh tomatoes
6 to 8 fresh yellow straight or crookneck squash
(not over 6 inches long)

DICE:
4 large bell peppers
2 or 3 small onions or 1 large onion

FRY until crisp: 3 or 4 slices bacon

PLACE in large iron skillet: 4 tbsps. butter, margarine or oil

Add vegetables and simmer 15 minutes or until vegetables are almost tender. Drain. Season well with salt and pepper. Add half of bacon crumbled. Pour into greased casserole or loaf pan.

POUR over vegetables: 1 (10 $\frac{3}{4}$ -oz.) can mushroom soup

Crumble balance of bacon over top. Sprinkle with dash of paprika.

Bake about 45 minutes in 350° oven. Remove from oven. Serve hot.
Note: For variations, add bits of cheese or small amount of fresh sage or almond slivers. Whole mushrooms make it extra special.
This is an original recipe.

I can remember the first time I tasted cabbage rolls. I liked them from the beginning. This is a special recipe. It is Mrs. Clinton Moore's sister, Corene's, recipe. Mrs. Moore lives at McDowell, Kentucky and Corene lives in Virginia.

Corene's Cabbage Rolls

PLACE in boiling water: 1 large head of cabbage
Set aside. Allow to stand for 10 minutes.

COMBINE:
2 eggs, beaten
1 lb. ground beef
3 medium-sized potatoes, diced thin
1 tsp. salt
 $\frac{1}{4}$ tsp. pepper

Set aside.

SAUTE in small amount of oil in a skillet:
 $\frac{1}{2}$ cup regular rice
1 large onion, chopped fine
Add meat mixture. Mix well.
Remove cabbage from water and drain well. Separate leaves. Place meat mixture on cabbage leaves and roll and pin with toothpicks.

COMBINE in Dutch oven:
 $\frac{1}{4}$ cup brown sugar
 $\frac{1}{4}$ tsp. caraway seed
2 cups water
2 cups catsup

Let come to a boil. Place cabbage rolls in mixture and reduce to low heat. Cover and cook for 1 hour. Add more water and catsup mixture if necessary.

Would you like to make an old-fashioned dessert that is light and not too sweet? Then try this recipe for Old-Fashioned Float. It was given to me by Bess May of Prestonsburg, Kentucky. This was one of our favorite desserts as a child.

Old-Fashioned Float

COMBINE:
 $\frac{1}{2}$ cup sugar
1 tbsps. flour

BEAT: 4 egg yolks
Add flour mixture. Beat until light yellow.

SCALD: 1 qt. milk
Add to above mixture. Cook until spoon is coated. Remove from heat. Cool.

ADD: $\frac{1}{2}$ tsp. vanilla
Pour into baking dish.

BEAT until frothy: 4 egg whites
ADD: 8 tbsps. sugar
Continue beating until stiff. Pour over mixture in baking dish.

Place baking dish in pan of cold water. Bake 45 minutes in 350° oven.
This recipe is foolproof. It was given to me by my sister, Maude Mayo. It was her husband's mother's recipe.

If you have a garden try these pickles. Even if you have to buy the vegetables at the market it will be worth it. The recipe was given to me by Mrs. Raymond Hicks of Hippo, Kentucky.

End-Of-Garden Pickles

COMBINE:
1 cup diced onion
1 cup chopped cucumbers
1 cup chopped sweet peppers
1 cup chopped green tomatoes
1 cup shredded or chopped cabbage

Soak overnight in salt water ($\frac{1}{2}$ cup pickling salt in 2 quarts water). Drain thoroughly.

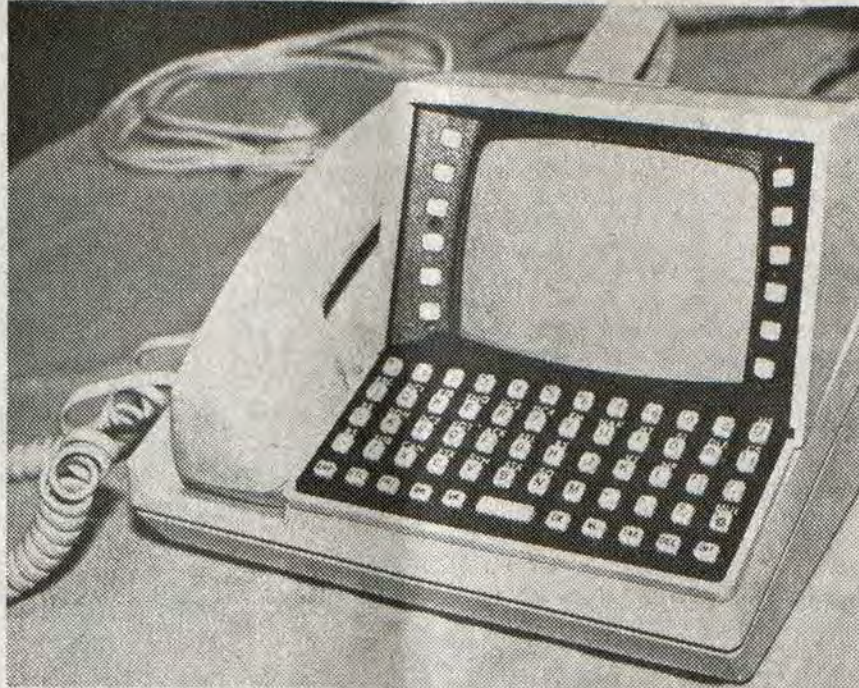

COOK until tender:
1 cup green beans, broken into small pieces
1 cup diced carrots
Drain well. Add to first mixture.

THEN ADD:
2 cups vinegar
1 cup chopped celery
2 tbsps. mustard seed
1 cup corn
2 cups sugar
1 tbsps. turmeric

Bring to a boil. Boil 10 minutes. Pack into sterilized jars and seal.
Makes 6 pints.

HAPPY COOKING!

Phone of the Future

An experimental "teleterminal" complete with typewriter-like keyboard and TV-screen display, is being displayed and demonstrated in the "Home of the Future" at the 1982 World's Fair in Knoxville.

In 1876, a healthy shout defined the limits of communicating by voice. But an exhibit at the World's Fair that summer in Philadelphia offered a glimpse of the future, when a whisper could be sent around the world—it was Alexander Graham Bell's telephone.

Today, the telephone is universally used to communicate by voice. And at the 1982 World's Fair in Knoxville, an exhibit co-sponsored by South Central Bell offers a glimpse of the latest in telephone technology, using the telephone as the key to the Information Age.

Art Willett, Bell local manager, said visitors to the fair can see future communications wonders at the "Home of the Future," sponsored by South Central Bell and Cathedralite Inc., a builder of geodesic dome homes.

"The home features the latest experimental technology, along with a number of our current products, to show how people might one day draw upon huge banks of information, and communicate from their homes," Willett said.

The experimental system includes a television-like screen, a typewriter-like keyboard and telephone handset. A demonstration shows how information can be retrieved from the computer and shown on the screen.

"The Home of the Future is just one example of how future telecommunications services will enable families to keep records, shop, bank and more, all with the touch of a few buttons," Willett said.

Sassafras, The Old Reliable

By Rufus Reed

Our foreparents drank sassafras tea every spring, and most of them were strong and active to old age. They hunted for the rich red roots of the large red sassafras found in deep woods. They dug the roots in March, washed and dried them in the sun. They used the bark of the roots to make a sparkling aromatic tea and they strictly required every member of the family to drink a glass of it. It toned up the sluggish winter blood, they claimed and cleaned the system of poisons.

The word, "sassafras," is an old Indian name meaning "smelling stick." The Indians often browsed on the tender green twigs in early spring. Sassafras is used to give a good flavor to candy and cosmetics. Also it is used in making soap. Sassafras also gives the zip to grandpa's root beer.

Our great Kentucky author, Jesse Stuart, calls sassafras the "presiding tree," as it completely takes over old fields and dominates them. The tree bears pretty, light-yellow blossoms in early spring. In September the blooms produce the most beautiful berries found in Nature. It seems not many persons have ever seen the berries of a sassafras. They are large and of a deep blue color. They are formed on deep scarlet stems two inches long. Sassafras forms dense thickets in old fields and soon takes over. It makes a large tree when growing in deep woods. The red roots of these larger trees make the best tea.

Sassafras is a member of the Laurel family and bears two kinds of leaves on the same twig. One kind has three finger-like lobes and is mitten-shaped. The other has no lobes.

Sassafras is a good stimulant and purifier of the blood. It removes all the winter toxins from the system. It is also a quick cure for toothache, is a good kidney medicine and helps cure skin eruptions, such as sores and boils.

The wood of sassafras makes good fence posts that last as long as locust wood.

FLOYD COUNTY HEALTH NEWS

Summer brings with it a lot of fun through vacations or just the enjoyment of being out doors; this fun can quickly lead to unhappiness if something unexpected or unpleasant happens. A safety check list is always important when planning any outing so that one can be prepared in the event that something unexpected does happen. Remember that planning for safety is just as important as planning where to go and what to do.

Are Annual Physicals Necessary?

For decades, annual head-to-toe physical examinations have been a must for millions of Americans. But today, a growing number of researchers are questioning whether the yearly checkup is anything more than a costly indulgence.

According to the August Reader's Digest, research at several public health and medical schools has shown that the 20 or so diagnostic tests used during routine examinations usually don't provide information that can predict medical events or make a difference in a patient's longevity.

Instead, many doctors suggest patients undergo selective examinations based on "potential risk factors" every two or three years or more. Among the diagnostic tests and procedures believed to provide the greatest benefit in terms of cost, risk and prevention are these:

—Immunizations, which according to The Digest, "should be at the top of everybody's list." Included are tetanus boosters, and pneumonia and flu vaccines. The latter two are recommended for senior citizens in particular.

—Blood pressure measurement, which is considered the least expensive test with the highest possible health return. Early detection of hypertension—the major cause of strokes and a dominant factor in heart attacks—and its subsequent control through diet, exercise, drugs or a combination of methods can head off most ill effects.

—The Pap test, the most widely heralded diagnostic procedure for the early detection of cervical cancer. Doctors suggest this test at least once every three years in women over age 20 after two initial negative tests taken a year apart.

—Mammography, a low-dose X-ray of the breast. Though controversial, both the American Cancer Society (ACS) and National Cancer Institute (NCI) have found mammography could detect more early breast cancers than could palpitation by a doctor. However, because of radiation risks, the NCI does not recommend it as a routine procedure for women under 50 except for those with a personal or family history of the disease.

—The guaiac test, which detects the presence of hidden blood in the stool, is thought by many experts to rank near the top as an efficient way of screening cancer and other bowel diseases. Some studies have suggested starting guaiac tests at age 40 and repeating them every two years thereafter; the ACS recently recommended yearly stool tests beginning at age 50.

Modern technology lost out to the horse last November. A U.S. Senator dispatched two letters for a destination 64 miles away. One letter went through the mail, another by way of a young woman mounted on a horse. The "pony express" letter arrived in less than nine hours. According to the July Reader's Digest, the letter sent in the mail arrived three days later.

Stilley-Meade Vows Spoken

Miss Holly Jeanne Stilley and Samuel Demorris Meade, of Isle of Palms, S.C., were married at 6 p.m. Saturday, August 7, in the First United Methodist Church, of Conway, South Carolina. The Reverends Ben Cunningham and Tom Brittain performed the double-ring ceremony. Carter Breeze, of Conway, presented the wedding music, and Miss Donna Johnson and Miss Jenny Johnson, of Conway, sang.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Augustus Stilley, III, of Conway, S.C., and the groom is the son of Mrs. Georgia Tucker, of the Isle of Palms, South Carolina, and Mr. Rex Meade, of McDowell, Kentucky.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in her mother's wedding gown, styled with a full-length gathered skirt of candlelight satin covered with net and scalloped overlays of chantilly lace. The halter bodice of the same material featured satin covered buttons down the front, and the neckline was fashioned with a stand-up rolled collar. A lace bolero finished with satin piping had long sleeves which extended into points over the wrists. The bridal ensemble was completed with a soft fitted headpiece of lace with a full-length veil of illusion topped with a finger-tip veil. The bride carried a cascading bouquet of white roses, stephanotis and baby's breath.

Maid of honor was Miss Margo Stilley, of Fort Lauderdale, Florida, sister of the bride, and bridesmaids were Miss Sally Proctor, of Conway, Miss Terri Purvis, of Conway, Miss Gina Cooper, of Andrews, South Carolina, Mrs. Debbie Luxmore, of Lexington, Kentucky, sister of the groom, Miss Carmen Meradal, of Columbia, South Carolina, Miss Suzette Stone, of Lexington, South Carolina, and Miss Connie Culbreth, of Fair Forest, South Carolina.

Flower girl was Kelly Robinson, of Douglasville, Georgia, and ring bearer was Gary Cooper, of Andrews, South Carolina.

Best man was Carl Stamps, of Columbia, S.C. and ushers were Larry Luxmore, of Lexington, Kentucky, nephew of the groom, Frank Stilley, of Myrtle Beach, South Carolina, brother of the bride, Clay Price, of Myrtle Beach, Dennis Casey, of Conway, Tod Mahon, of Charleston, Ken Gustafson, of Charleston, and Danny McIntosh, of Isle of Palms.

Following the ceremony, a reception was hosted by the bride's parents and grandmother, Mrs. Walter A. Stilley, Jr., of Conway, S.C. at the Conway Country Club.

After a wedding trip to Florida and a Caribbean cruise, the couple will live on the Isle of Palms.

The bride is a graduate of Conway High School and of the College of Charleston where she was elected to the Women's Basketball Association's All-American Team for 1982.

The groom is a graduate of the College of Charleston where he received basketball All-American honorable mention for three years and the Scholastic Athlete of the Year award. He received his master's degree in Education Administration from the University of South Carolina. He is presently employed with MAC Construction Company of Charleston as a general contractor.

Prudent home remodeling means more than getting an electrician in to do the wiring. It means choosing improvements that will return your investment. According to the August Reader's Digest, remodeling your kitchen, modernizing or adding a bathroom, and increasing the insulation in your home are three of the safest investments you can make.

Few Youngsters "Buckled Up" Properly, Is Survey Finding

Very few Kentucky children under 4 years old are "buckled up for safety," according to preliminary survey results released by the Kentucky State Police commissioner.

KSP Commissioner Marion D. Campbell said preliminary results from a University of Kentucky study being conducted for the state police revealed that in 18 cities an overall average of 14 percent of children under 4 were in some type of auto safety seat or child restraint device.

However, the surveyors also concluded that less than half the "restrained" infants and toddlers were properly buckled or placed in an approved crash-tested seat, harness or shield.

Commissioner Campbell said this means approximately 6 percent of children under 4 traveling on Kentucky highways are protected against death or injury in a traffic accident.

Employees of UK's Transportation Research Program conducted the survey by observing passenger vehicles at stop signs and traffic lights.

The most common mistake was absence of tethering or anchoring when the child restraint system required that modification, said Ken Agent, a UK research engineer who is the project head.

Lexington rated highest on child restraint system usage with 30 percent while Hazard, Carrollton and Somerset rated low with 6 percent.

Money for the survey came from a federal grant administered by the Kentucky State Police's highway safety standards section. The purpose of the study is gathering of "before" data prior to implementation of the new state law requiring children under 40 inches tall to be placed in an auto restraint system while traveling in a passenger vehicle.

The new law, Senate Bill 2, goes into effect on July 15.

Toxic-Liquid Leak Forces Evacuation Of Ky. Power Plant

Liquid sulfur dioxide escaped from a railroad tank last Thursday, forcing the temporary evacuation of a section of the Kentucky Power plant near Louisa.

C. Richard Lovegrove, a spokesman for Kentucky Power, said 29 workers were taken to the hospital and 10 were admitted for observation.

State Trooper Steve Miller said the chemical was being unloaded when a leak developed. Exhaust fans picked up the fumes and carried them through the plant, Miller added.

He said the chemical is a corrosive that can irritate the eyes and skin.

Lovegrove said there was no disruption of power from the plant during the evacuation, which ran from 11:15 a.m. until 2 p.m.

Clark Nursing Home Named in Indictment

Attorney General Steven Beshear has announced the return of an indictment July 19 by the Clark county grand jury against Glenway Lodge, Inc., of Winchester, on charges of wanton endangerment in the second degree, involving the neglect of Thomas Paige, a former patient at nursing home.

The indictment charges the corporation with failure to provide necessary and proper medical nursing care, including the failure to assure adequate observation and examination of Paige, age 78, to detect the presence of a broken arm and pneumonia, resulting in the death of Mr. Paige last August 8. Named in the indictment are various agents and employees of Glenway Lodge, including the administrator of the nursing home, the treating physician, and nursing supervisors. The potential penalty against the corporation is a fine of $10,000.

The case was investigated and presented to the grand jury by the Medicaid Fraud Control unit of the office of the Attorney General. This is the second case brought this year by the Attorney General's office against Glenway Lodge, Inc. involving patient neglect.

Increase Seen In Computer Careers

By 1990, there will be nearly a 50 percent rise in jobs that require computer skills. This anticipated growth, says the Federal Bureau of Labor Statistics, surpasses all other occupational groups.

Thousands of students each year are leaving careers with uncertain futures and low salaries for more lucrative fields such as computers that promise to grow at rapid rate in the next decade. And, for many of these students, the fastest way to start a promising career will be learning specialized skills from schools accredited by the National Association of Trade and Technical Schools (NATTS). According to Henry Herzing, president of NATTS, "A lot of students are turning to our schools because they want to learn a skill that will be in demand. They are finding that even in hard economic times—such as we have now—our graduates are getting excellent well-paying jobs in a wide variety of industries."

The computer occupations—which include systems analysts, programmers, computer operators, keypunch operators, and computer service technicians—already increased 50 percent between 1970 and 1978 while the rate of growth for all occupations in the economy was only 20 percent. Advances in technology and the widespread use of computers in all industries are responsible for this rapid growth.

However, the computer field is just one example of careers that will be in demand. The Bureau of Labor Statistics lists 20 careers that will show the most rapid employment growth in the next decade. Of the 20 careers listed, 14 require vocational training.

For many young people searching for a new career, training at a career school has provided the answer. In fact, there has been a 25 percent increase in enrollment over the last two years in private postsecondary vocational schools. According to students, the attraction of these schools is that they offer faster training at a less expensive price than a four-year institution. The average NATTS course is about forty weeks, and tuition averages around $2,000. Because these schools depend on the placement of students for their success, they must offer careers that are in high demand in today's tight job market.

Herzing said he expects the demand for skill training to continue. "In fact," he said, "private technical schools are operating around the clock in certain cases to meet this demand." He also states that it's not just high school graduates entering these schools. More and more college graduates are enrolling in trade and technical schools in an effort to improve their career skills.

The health care field is another fast-growing area. Studies indicate that the demand for health care services will increase during the '80s due to a growth in the older population, rising incomes, and greater health consciousness. There will be particular demand for dental assistants, respiratory therapy workers, physical therapists, and medical laboratory technicians. Because tuition for health care courses at a private university is expensive, private career schools that train the health care worker are quickly becoming more attractive to students.

For these students, and thousands more like them, training at trade and technical schools has been a key to a brighter future. They assessed their interests and talents and investigated what careers would be in demand for the years ahead. A relatively short training period and the chance for a good job are two reasons why they attended a career school to be trained for their future.

If you are interested in information about these NATTS accredited schools that offer this kind of training for tomorrow's careers, write for the free Handbook of Trade and Technical Careers and Training, 2021 K Street, N.W., Washington, DC 20006-1077.

Second Birthday

Vanessa Kay Tackett celebrated her second birthday July 2 at Myrtle Beach, S.C. Upon returning home a birthday party was given in her honor at her home July 7 at West Prestonsburg. A Mickey Mouse cake and refreshments were served to her friends and family. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rodney W. Tackett. Her maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Otis Ousley, of Martin, and her paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Foster Tackett, of West Prestonsburg.

Administrative complaints were filed against 13 companies in 1981 as the result of actions by the U.S. Department of Labor's Office of Federal Contract Compliance Programs.

In an Auto Wreck . . .

You Can't Protect Your Child By Holding Him in Your Arms

You've probably heard the facts about children dying in wrecks. Motor vehicle accidents are the No. 1 cause of death for children, according to the National Safety Council.

And you've found out the myths about children and car wrecks just aren't true:

Even the strongest adult cannot protect a child by holding him in his arms. The force of a crash or sudden stop will rip the child from your arms.

It is not safer for your child to be thrown out of the car. The chances of death are 25 times greater if your little boy or girl is thrown out of the vehicle. The force of a collision can fling a human body 15 car lengths.

It is not true that a child's young, limber body is less vulnerable to injury than an adult's. A child's head is heavy in proportion to the rest of his body, making it more likely to go headfirst through the windshield. His skull is fragile, his rib cage thin and his internal organs more prone to injury than an adult's. Because a child's body is delicate, restraining a child with an adult seat belt is risky.

After sorting the facts from the myths, now what? The Kentucky State Police are hoping parents and guardians will make the decision to secure their children in a crash-tested restraint whenever the children are riding in a car or truck, said Commissioner Marion D. Campbell of the Kentucky State Police.

Since July 15, there is an added incentive. Kentucky has a new law requiring children under 40 inches tall to be in a child restraint device while traveling.

A parent shopping for a child restraint device and making sure it's correctly installed and fastened faces an obstacle course of do's and don'ts, so it's best to arm yourself with some information before going to the store.

At least two consumer magazines recently had articles about auto restraint devices for children. "Consumer Reports" had an article in the April 1982 issue which contains a detailed shopper's guide listing disadvantages and advantages of the major brands. The December 1981 issue of "Consumers' Research" had an article with information about common mistakes made in positioning and fastening restraints. Both articles can probably be found at your local library.

Reprints of the Consumer Reports article can be obtained by sending $2 and the reprint number (No.RO 46) to: Reprints, Consumer Reports, P.O. Box 1949, Marion, Ohio, 43345.

In addition, the Kentucky State Police public affairs section has compiled these tips:

Look for a tag or label on the car seat or carrier which states it has been crash-tested and is federally-approved. Plastic feeder chairs, sometimes displayed side-by-side with the safety seats, are for home use and won't protect your child.

Safety car seats and carriers are held in place by adult seat belts so "try before you buy" to make sure the device you choose can be used in your car.

Trying before buying is also important to determine if you can easily fasten the device and if the restraint is comfortable for your child. You can encourage a toddler to stay put by giving him quiet toys or books. But half the battle is won if the seat is comfortable, gives him freedom of arm movement and allows him to see out the window.

Before buying, read installation directions. Some require anchoring or tethering to a bolt in the rear window ledge if the safety seat is placed in the front seat. This requires drilling through sheet metal to install the bolt. Child restraints must be properly installed or they won't protect your child.

For all these reasons, it's a good idea to see if you can return the device plus sales slip in a few days if unforeseen problems arise.

Signs That Say "Fish Here"

Wouldn't it be nice if there were signs out on the lake directing you to good fishing spots?

Well, on several lakes around Kentucky there are such signs, and more are going up all the time. The signs, pictures of a fish approaching a hook, indicate where man-made fish attractors have been established. Currently, the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers and the Tennessee Valley Authority are engaged in attractor programs.

Most attractors are made from brush piles anchored to the bottom. Brush is easily obtained and seems to attract fish better than "artificial" objects such as old tires or concrete blocks.

Some fishermen will fish attractor sites only during the spring crappie spawning season. However, studies have shown that attractors are effective fish concentrators virtually all year long. And it isn't just crappie that are attracted to brush piles. Expect to find bass, bluegill, channel catfish or just about any other species lurking in or around these sites.

Most of the attractors established by the fish and wildlife department cover about an acre of lake bottom and are marked at each corner by a buoy with the fish attractor symbol stenciled on it.

"A lot of fishermen think they have to park their boat right next to a buoy to be over productive water," says Bill McLemore, the biologist in charge of the attractor program for Western Kentucky. Actually, McLemore says, there might not be any brush right beside the buoy, since these markers only serve to show the outer limits of the site.

"One way to determine if you're over an attractor is to notice how often your hook gets snagged on brush," McLemore says. "If you're not getting hung up, you're not fishing in the right place."

The problems of getting hung up can be solved by using a light wire hook coupled with fairly heavy line—around 20 pound test. A hefty pull on the line will straighten the hook and free you from the snag. Then the hook can easily be bent back to shape by hand and you're ready to continue fishing. This is an old crappie fisherman's trick, one which works anytime you're fishing brushy areas with live bait.

So far, attractors have been established in Kentucky, Barkley, Barren, Rough River, Grayson and Dewey Lakes, with attractors scheduled to go in Carr Fork and Buckhorn lakes later this year. Most of the work has been done in the Kentucky-Barkley area, where three agencies—the fish and wildlife department, the TVA and the corps of engineers—have all built attractors.

Maps showing the location of attractors on Kentucky, Barkley and Dewey Lakes are available from the Department of Fish and Wildlife, Frankfort, Ky. 40601.

And when you're out fishing, keep your eyes open for these attractor bouys—they're signs saying "fish here."

Plan Ahead For Retirement

People in the Big Sandy area who are planning to apply for Social Security retirement benefits soon can help speed the application process if they get some information together first, Jim Kelly, Social Security district director for the area, said recently.

A person will need proof of his or her age. The best evidence is a public or church record of birth recorded before age 5. If no such record exists, other evidence may be used. The best is often the oldest, Kelly said.

Other records that might be used include school, church, state or federal census, insurance policies, marriage, passports, employment, military service, children's birth certificate, union, immigration and naturalization. There are other records as well that may prove acceptable. Kentucky residents should contact the local Health Department first and request their birth certificates.

A person needs his or her Social Security card or a record of the number.

Also requested are W-2 forms for the past two years; or, if self-employed, copies of self-employment tax returns and proof of filing for the past two years.

If the worker's wife or husband is also going to apply, she or he will need the same documents. Kelly said it is also important to have the marriage certificate available. Birth certificates should be available for any eligible, unmarried children as well as their Social Security numbers.

Other documents may be needed in some situations, but these will be enough in most cases, Kelly said. Only original documents or copies certified by the issuing agency can be used. Uncertified photocopies are not acceptable.

For more information about applying for Social Security benefits, contact the Big Sandy Area Social Security office, located on U.S. 23 between Prestonsburg and Paintsville.

Last Chance for Crafts Listing

A late October date has been set for publication of the first directory of Kentucky craftspeople, which was planned by First Lady Phyllis George Brown.

The directory, an organized list of Kentucky craftspeople, will serve as a guide for retail outlets and private individuals who want to locate Kentucky crafts.

Craftspeople throughout Kentucky who want to be in the directory must send their listing by the Aug. 31 deadline. To apply for inclusion in the directory, write the Kentucky Department of the Arts, Craft Section, Berry Hill Mansion, Frankfort, Ky. 41601. Anyone who has already applied but wants to make a change in their listing should also write the craft section.

Mrs. Brown, who has been actively promoting Kentucky crafts throughout the country and the world, said, "One of the problems we've discovered while promoting our crafts has been in locating and referring our craftspeople to stores, shops and to individuals. We want this directory to include all of the quality craftspeople who could be selling their work in fine stores across the country."

Buyers from stores like Bloomington's in New York, and more recently, the Ohio based Higbee group, have visited Kentucky and been taken to various craft areas or shown crafted products at special markets and shows.

"But, to continue the surge in sales for Kentucky crafts, and to keep up with the demand, we need to locate and list all of our fine craftspeople," she said. "Once buyers are aware of our fine quality, they'll order directly from the craftspeople, so it is important that craftspeople be listed."

Observe 55th Anniversary

Ollie May and Gaynell Clark were married on July 2, 1927 at Manton, by the Rev. Albert Bailey, and on July 4, 1982, their descendants gathered to honor Mr. and Mrs. May on their 55th wedding anniversary.

A three-tiered wedding cake topped with candles trimmed with peach icing furnished the centerpiece and the peach color theme was carried out for other decorations.

Mr. and Mrs. May were very pleased that all their living descendants were able to join them.

In attendance were Kathryn Fraley, Jean and David Watson, Altonette and Earl Bentley, Joe Smith, Marena Hale, Jeannie and Reva; Sue and Frank DeRossett, Stephanie and Jamie, Debbie and Jerry Prince, Ryan, Lindsey, and Dusty, Sharon and Doug Fraley, Jay, Heidi and Tony, LaDonna Bentley, Gayle and Mike Wells and Todd, Anna and Tim Allen and Leslie, Jeff Fraley, Jennifer Fraley and Nickie, Carla Caudill, Brent and Misti, and David Watson, II. Also attending were Edna and Beryl Fraley, of Ashland.

Number Out Of Work Is Down In Kentucky But Rising In Floyd

Seventy-seven of Kentucky's 120 counties reported lower unemployment rates in May than in April, according to statistics released by the Department for Human Resources.

The lower county rates caused the state's overall unemployment rate to decline for the fourth consecutive month. The state's May unemployment rate was 9.8 percent, down from the 10.3 percent April rate but up from the May 1981 rate, 8.1 percent.

The May rate marks the first time since December 1981 that the state has recorded an unemployment rate below 10.0 percent. Nationwide, May's comparable unemployment rate was a nonseasonally adjusted 9.1 percent.

Even though a large number of Kentucky counties reported declines in unemployment there were 74 counties whose rates were above 10.0 percent. The highest unemployment rate in the state during May was reported by Menifee county, 28.2 percent.

Kentucky's civilian labor force this May was 1,622,800 persons, 23,700 more than in April, but 52,100 fewer than May 1981.

A total of 159,000 Kentuckians were unemployed in May, down 6,400 from April, but 22,700 more than were jobless in May 1981.

The state's total employment during May was estimated at 1,463,800. This is 30,100 higher than the department's April estimate, but 74,800 lower than the May 1981 estimate.

The increase in the state's employment was primarily due to workers being recalled in the transportation equipment manufacturing industry, according to the Human Resources' labor analysis section. Significant employment gains also occurred among agricultural and nonagricultural self-employed and unpaid family workers, as well as workers in the textile, apparel and trade industries.

Labor market analysts in Human Resources report that employment in Kentucky's construction industries is at a standstill and employment in the bituminous coal mining industry is declining because of decreased demand.

The eastern Kentucky area had the state's highest unemployment rate during May, 12.0 percent.

Eastern Kentucky's unemployment rate rose from 11.2 percent in April to 12.0 percent in May. The number of persons unemployed in the area climbed from 34,080 in April to 37,278 in May.

Within the eastern Kentucky area, 30 of the area's 34 counties had unemployment rates higher than 10.0 percent. The jobless rate in Floyd county stood at 11.5 percent.

As County Goes Wet . . .

Time To Focus on Causes of Alcoholism

BY TIMOTHY JESSEN
Pastor, First Presbyterian Church, Prestonsburg

(Ed note: This article was first published July 16, in the Louisville Courier-Journal.)

The recent victory of wet forces in one of Eastern Kentucky's largest counties, Floyd, has prompted a great deal of interest locally, as well as in neighboring areas. Most surprised of all were the many local citizens who fully expected the county to retain its 35-year-old prohibition of the legal sale of alcoholic beverages.

The dries had waged a hard-fought campaign, far outpacing the wets; the wets had failed in their attempts in nearby Paintsville. But it was not overconfidence on the part of the dries that spelled their defeat in Floyd, in my opinion. As a disinterested party in the recent election and as a clergyman concerned with the problems of alcohol, I suggest several reasons they may have lost.

In the first place, the dries demonstrated lack of political savvy in their campaign tactics. Starting early, they inundated the county with all kinds of anti-alcohol information, some of it erroneous. By the time of the election, it was a matter of "overkill," many voters confessing that they were just sick of hearing about the evils of alcohol.

By contrast, the wets' campaign was limited to the last few weeks before the election and was definitely low-key. They started later but rose quickly and by election day had won many supporters who were turned off by the extremist tactics of the opposition.

In the second place, the dries seemed determined to wage a campaign based on an understanding of the problems of alcohol that was outdated. One tract circulated by a church sought to demonstrate why alcoholism is not a disease (but presumably a sin), even though modern medicine has long since accepted that fact in its search for solutions to the problem.

The dry forces also did not take into account the fact that since the '50s Alcoholics Anonymous has been active in the Big Sandy Valley and has included prominent citizens—though their anonymity is carefully protected by the organization. The picture presented of alcoholics as merely "skid-row bums" simply does not fit when many recovering alcoholics are making contributions to their community's life and work.

There is also a commitment to treatment and help for others afflicted with the problem, a hallmark of the AA program. Recently the first alcohol-and drug-treatment center deep in the mountains opened at the McDowell Appalachian Regional Hospital in Floyd county, strongly buttressed by the local AA and Al-Anon groups. There is a commitment to work with the problems alcohol creates in this valley, and an unspoken understanding among those who know alcohol best that prohibition has not eliminated the problem—perhaps only aggravating it.

Lastly, the defeat was a blow to the prestige and power of the churches in the mountains. If, as the old mountain saying has it, it is the Christians and the bootleggers that keep counties dry, both will suffer from the election. For too long the churches have forced a hypocrisy on their members, requiring that they be "dry" in public while many are "closet wets," as the results on election day proved.

And perhaps the churches have not earned the right to be heard on this issue, when on so many other crying social needs and problems, they have been noticeably absent.

It still is true that such a local-option election, though divisive for the community as a whole, seems to be about the only thing in the mountains that will pull all the disparate churches and sects together. But in this case, for the reasons suggested and others, they were not able to pull off a victory.

Perhaps a better strategy is to accept the fact that alcohol will be around for a long time to come, to work for treatment for alcoholics, to reduce alcohol abuse through education and public awareness, and to provide a healthy climate for living in which alcohol and other drugs are not sought after as a panacea.

The victory for the wets is not a clear-cut victory for progress, given the problems produced by increased alcohol consumption. But neither need it be a crushing moral defeat for the dries. It can be cause for focusing in a new social situation on the root problems that produce alcohol and drug abuse and on efforts to improve the quality of life for all who must cope with its difficult questions and crises.

Sabrina Danelle West, 9-year-old daughter of Patty and Danny West, of Stanville, appears this summer as "Winthrop," one of the three leads in Music Man at the Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theater. She sings two songs, "Wells Fargo Wagon" and "Gary, Indiana," as well as dancing and acting. This is Sabrina's third summer at the JWSMT. Due to her performances she has been guest on the WPRT morning show with Mike Jonathan, appeared with Cheryl Ladd in the movie "Mantrip" to be aired on TV this fall, was interviewed and photographed by the Louisville Courier Journal, did commercial spots for JWSMT on Pike and Floyd radio stations, and received invitations to sing in area churches. While she has enjoyed the attention, she says, "The best part of all is working with all the talented people" at JWSMT. "It really is a great feeling being on stage and looking out into the audience and seeing my friends smile and clap. That's my support," she adds.

Sabrina is a tap-jazz-ballet student of Claire Olson of Betsy Layne, who teaches at Pikeville College. She takes private lessons in piano, saxophone, and voice. She was a fifth grade student at Harold Elementary, where she was a cheerleader. Sabrina recently was chosen Kentucky's Reserve Champion at the Annual 4-H Talk Meet for 9-year-olds at the University of Kentucky. She will be performing at the State Fair in Louisville this month.

Sabrina wishes to remind anyone who has not seen Music Man they can still do so. Showdates remaining are Aug. 5, 8, 11, 14, and 21.

Computers Are a Familiar Sight
As Pupils Return to Classroom

The "new technology" in the classroom—centering on computers in the classroom—will be "old hat" to many students in more than half the nation's 16,000 school districts this fall.

According to a study by the Department of Education, approximately one of every four public schools, or about 22,000, currently has at least one microcomputer or computer terminal for instructional use by students.

The schools represent one-half of all secondary schools, 14 percent of all elementary schools, and 19 percent of all other types of schools, such as vocational, special education, and combined elementary and secondary schools, according to the government's 1981 survey.

"Computers in the classroom mark a significant change in the educational process," says NEA President Willard McGuire. "It is natural for teachers to have a number of questions about them. The so-called 'human issue'—whether computers will possibly replace teachers—is one of these questions, while a second is the effectiveness of the new instructional techniques."

Many children have had their first introduction to computers through computer games, complete with sound, color, explosions, striking targets, and other such phenomena. The problem of changing the mind-set of a child exposed to Star Wars, Pac-Man, Galaxy, and similar games to be receptive to a computer programmed for reading, arithmetic, and other academic subjects—and to make the subject equally, or more, interesting—is one of the major challenges faced by teachers.

"Currently, teachers are spending hours adjusting computer programs—often written by computer company employees who aren't teachers—to classroom work, to the objectives of the academic courses, and to the learning experience of the student," adds Javetta Richardson, program coordinator and member of the NEA's Instruction and Professional Development staff.

Many NEA teachers have taken part in organized discussion panels on quality control in the educational computer world. They've analyzed and debated how teachers can help manufacturers of computers and computer programs better meet the needs of classroom teachers and individual students.

In the near future other emerging technologies are expected to join computers in the classroom. The NEA and the American Broadcasting Company have been working cooperatively on SCHOOLDISC, a program that permits videodisc instructional material to be used with or without a computer hookup. A nationwide pilot program involving SCHOOLDISC is being carried out by the U.S. Department of Education.

The NEA has also announced publication of an important new book designed for teachers of all content areas and at all grade levels at the convention.

Computers in the Classroom, edited by Henry S. Kepner, Jr., and with a foreword by Bruce E. Brombacher, 1982 Teacher of the Year, gives full attention to instructional uses rather than record-keeping, budgeting, or management. The book, at $5.50 until August 20 ($7.95 thereafter), will be available from NEA Professional Library, P.O. Box 509, West Haven, Connecticut 06516. Remittance and stock number (1825-7-30) must accompany the order.

With Columbia's Budget Payment Plan,
the bill you get in January,
is the same as the one you get in August.

You can take the surprises out of next winter's heat bills with the Columbia Gas Budget Payment Plan. With the plan, your monthly natural gas bills will be averaged out over 12 months. So you'll pay a manageable amount each month—even when the temperature drops.

It's easy to get on the plan, too. All you need to do is pay the "MONTHLY BUDGET" amount indicated on your AUGUST BILL. Nothing further is needed. There's no extra charge, and your meter will be read as usual. Each month's bill will continue to show the exact amount of gas you actually used, along with your budget amount.

Then next July you will be billed your budget amount, plus or minus any difference between your total annual budget amount and the actual amount you used during the year.

So make your gas bills more predictable. Even if the weather isn't. Get on the Columbia Gas Budget Payment Plan. And to help your budget even more, ask for a copy of our FREE "Everyday Energy Saver's Guide". It's full of tips on saving energy... and money.
