State Auditors Schedule Meet Here Tomorrow

Last year's county administration bankrupted the road maintenance fund, mismanaged the $2.4 million county budget, and left the new administration only a fraction of the budget on which to run the county for the remainder of the fiscal year, county officials charged last week.

Twenty-four workers were "temporarily" laid off by the fiscal court last Thursday, strict curbs were placed on county spending, bids on a car for the judge-executive were left unopened—and further austerities appeared likely as a result of the county's precarious financial situation, Judge-Executive Jerry Lafferty, Jr. indicated.

"The money's all spent and we can't get any more until July (the beginning of the new fiscal year)," Lafferty told the court. "There is no money left for gas or gravel. All of it was spent in the first six months (of the current fiscal year)," he added.

At the direction of state auditors, the fiscal court voted to pay only utility bills, salaries, and hospitalization and life insurance premiums until further notice. Other creditors will apparently not be paid before next July at the earliest.

Auditors from the state Department of Finance, who began examining county records last month at the request of the new administration, reported their preliminary findings to county officials last Wednesday and promised a fuller accounting this week. They are scheduled to meet again with the fiscal court at 11 a.m. tomorrow (Thursday).

In ordering immediate layoffs and spending restrictions, the state officials indicated they would assume control of the county budget unless the county gets its house in order.

Albert Howell, Jr., a field officer with the state finance department, reported last week that the county's unpaid road maintenance bills amount to more than $188,000. Some $150,000 is yet due from the state and about $15,500 remains in the road fund account—leaving a $22,500 deficit, he said. About $800,000 was budgeted for road work during the current fiscal year.

Safety Ignored, Says Mining Commissioner

Owners and workers at the Mink Branch mine where seven died in an explosion last month completely ignored safety precautions, State Mines and Minerals Commissioner Willard Stanley told a May Lodge audience Saturday night.

The Joyce Ann Coal Co. mine, formerly known as the RFH mine, was in such poor condition "I could hardly believe my eyes," Stanley told about 200 coal operators, safety officials and miners at the monthly meeting of the Big Sandy Elkhorn Coal Mining Institute.

His assessment of conditions in the mine was in sharp contrast to the report made soon after the explosion that the mine was "one of the cleanest."

The commissioner said he counted 25 active working faces in the mine, none of which was properly clean and rock-dusted. In 40 places "blown-out shots" had occurred, he said.

"Blown-out shots" cause backfiring of explosives, which is highly dangerous in mines with excessive levels of coal dust and which is believed to have caused the recent fatal explosions in both the Mink Branch and Topmost mines.

To lessen the risks of backfiring, miners are supposed to plug with non-combustible material holes drilled into the coal seam for the explosives. The Mink Branch miners apparently failed to plug the holes, Stanley said.

The commissioner said state inspectors may conduct more blitzes—like those which led to the recent closing of 27 mines—to check on mining practices, inspections may become more stringent, an effort may be made to crack down on illegal operators, and more regulations are likely for operators working near abandoned mines.

Meanwhile, a supervisor with the state mines department this week cited as a cause of both recent mine disasters the pressure on small mine operators to keep pace with modern machinery. Albert Alexander, the agency's district supervisor at Hazard, said men in both the Knott and Floyd mines apparently were firing multiple blasts in order to keep up with the coal-hauling machinery employed in the mines.

With large battery-powered scoops and high-speed conveyor belts, even small mines can now remove coal from a mine faster than it can be dislodged—especially when it is shooting only one face at a time—Alexander explained. In a rush to dislodge more coal, miners may skimp on safety precautions, such as rockdusting and stemming drill holes, he said.

Market Holdup Nets $1000 Haul

One man has been jailed and a juvenile has been lodged in the detention center here following the holdup early last Thursday night of the Velocity Market at Betsy Layne.

Larry Isaacs, 20, of Teaberry, was jailed on a first-degree robbery count by State Police Detective Danny Stumbo and Deputy Sheriff Gillis Conn. He and the juvenile are accused of taking approximately $1000 from a cash register at the store.

Two masked men entered the market, shortly after 8 p.m., one brandishing a handgun. While store employees and four or five customers were held at bay the two rifled the cash register, then fled on foot. The arrest of Isaacs was made about three hours later.

Meanwhile, State Police were investigating the armed robbery on the preceding night at nearby Stanville of Tommy Boyd's self-service gas station. As Boyd was closing the station for the night an armed man came from behind a car and robbed him of approximately $150.

Although the man was not masked, the station owner was unable to identify him, partly because of the shadows. Boyd said the robber wore a toboggan.

Grant Will Aid Left Beaver Squad

Members of the Left Beaver Rescue Squad were on hand in the county judge-executive's office recently to receive a state grant of $14,000. The money will be used to buy communications equipment for the highly-regarded rescue unit, which is based at Price.

Noel Case Ends With Guilty Plea

Insurance Plot Defendant Will Serve Life Term

James M. Noel's plea of guilty to murder and arson in the insurance plot murder of James T. Neimi at Wayland, Oct. 15, 1980, was accepted by the Floyd circuit court Monday afternoon, with the understanding that he will be sentenced to a life prison term for the slaying and to 20 years for arson, the two terms to run consecutively.

The murder term is the maximum, short of the death penalty, and the 20-year term he accepted is the longest that may be imposed for arson.

The "plea bargaining" conclusion of the case was effected on the arrival here of Noel's new attorney, Jack Vititow, of Louisville. The Public Defender had withdrawn from the case.

Noel's plea came with his Feb. 15 trial date here only two weeks away. Circuit Judge Hollie Conley did not pass sentence immediately, setting Feb. 12 at 1 p.m. for the time of formal sentencing. He explained that Noel's case will be up for pre-sentencing review in the meantime.

Commonwealth's Attorney James R. Allen said, prior to Noel's courtroom appearance, that the defendant has no prior criminal court record and that

Group Formed To Plan Event

Prestonsburg, which last year lost Red, White and Blue Day to Martin, may again host an annual parade if plans of a group recently organized here materialize.

Mrs. E. L. Bierman, named last week as chairman of the newly-formed Jenny Wiley Festival committee, said the group is planning a countywide celebration which would embrace the activities presently sponsored by the Jenny Wiley Folk Festival and the Floyd County Fair board.

It is hoped that the planned four-day festival will increase participation in the traditional events and boost tourism here, Mrs. Bierman said. Organizers of the fair and folk festival have shown an interest in a combined event, she said, and Prestonsburg city officials are also said to favor the idea.

"Every city needs to have some type of festival," commented Prestonsburg City Manager David Evans, who stressed that the new festival is not intended to compete with Red, White and Blue Day.

Organizers of the festival are presently looking to a September date for the event. Both the folk festival and Fair are traditionally held that month. Red, White and Blue day is traditionally held in October.

The new festival committee, which met last week with James VanHoose, director of the Paintsville Apple Festival, is scheduled to meet again at 4 p.m. tomorrow (Thursday) in the Municipal Building here, when it is hoped a board of directors will be named.

THOUGHTS ON GROUNDHOG DAY

If a groundhog goes only to the mouth of his hole and looks out, how can he see his shadow? And, if he is on the north side of the hill, would you think he'd see his shadow, even if he took a stroll outside? I am speaking of Eastern Kentucky groundhogs, of course. Whatever the prediction resulting from this Groundhog Day, it will be as accurate as the National Weather Service reports.

BY ANY OTHER NAME HE'D SMELL AS DOGGY

Maybe I would have done well to leave off any conjecture about this matter. Last week, I idly asked the name of the dog that chased the train in the TV show, "Petticoat Junction," and now we are confused.

Thirty minutes or so after the paper hit the street last Wednesday morning, Sandy Hall at Heck's called with information. Said the dog's name was plain "Dog," that she had heard that fact mentioned on one of the shows. Shortly thereafter, Isabelle Stephens and at least two others confirmed that name as correct.

But did that lay the matter to rest? It did not. Later in the morning Peachie Collins and Abigail Grant reported that they have a book of trivia and that printed clearly therein is the name of the pooch—Higgins.

Still later came word from Danny Brian Stone at Hueysville who declares the name is—you'll get a charge out of this—Dynamite.

If I can find the proper authority, we may hold hearings on this matter. While I wait, I recall, a bit late, the old adage about letting sleeping dogs lie.

FOR BARNYARD SCIENTISTS

This brings me around to another disputed topic which may stir up the populace. It pertains to those tiny frogs sometimes seen after a spring or summer shower. Whence the frogs?—from the ground, or did it rain frogs? Christine Spradlin insists that I give answer, and I have none.

I have contentedly labored along, all these years, with the idea that they simply crawled out of their holes to enjoy a refreshing shower, but there goes another of my theories. Shot down.

Four Solid Waste Directors Resign on Court Invitation

Four members of the board of directors of Floyd County Solid Waste, Inc., the non-profit corporation responsible for the county garbage system, resigned last week, apparently at the request of the fiscal court.

At their monthly meeting Friday, members of the board considered what purported to be a resolution adopted by the fiscal court the previous day, calling for their resignation.

John Allen, Ed Caudill, Robert McAninch and David Scott honored the request. Four other members—Blaine Hopkins, Hershel Hamilton, Ray Wilcox and John Ed Shepherd—chose to stay on the board.

Red Cross Service To Continue Here

Floyd Chapter, American Red Cross, will be able to keep its office here open, with all its normal services, at least till its 1982 fund drive next month, it was announced Tuesday. Lack of funds had threatened to close it.

The Red Cross Chapter began moving today (Wednesday) from the Floyd County Emergency and Rescue Squad building to the second floor of the Municipal building on Lake Drive (US 23).

Severance Bill Irks Residents

Two years ago, state legislators were stumping eastern Kentucky on behalf of Gov. John Y. Brown, Jr., urging support for the governor's plan to alter the formula for distributing coal severance taxes.

In return for a year of belt-tightening here, when the coal money would go largely to offset that year's state budget shortfall, eastern Kentucky would reap unprecedented benefits in the years to follow, was the promise.

The bargain was struck. According to a law enacted in 1980, half the annual growth in severance-tax receipts goes

Teachers Lose Idle Pay Claim

In the state Court of Appeals last week a group of Floyd schoolteachers lost a bid to be declared eligible for unemployment benefits for workdays missed on account of snow.

The teachers, whose appeal was consolidated with similar appeals by teachers in eight other counties, had filed claims for unemployment benefits for days they missed because of bad weather in 1980.

The state Unemployment Insurance Commission ruled they were not unemployed and so were not entitled to benefits—a decision upheld in nine circuit courts and now by the Appeals Court.

In its ruling, the appeals court noted that teachers' contracts say they are to teach 185 days of classes over a specified period. "It is within the province of the respective school districts to determine which 185 days appellants must work," the court said.

"For as long as they themselves and the school system adhered to the terms of their contracts, they were employed and ineligible for unemployment benefits."

Four Solid Waste Directors Resign on Court Invitation

All were appointed by the previous administration to four-year terms beginning last June.

By Monday this week nobody had been named to replace the four who resigned. James Cline was recently appointed to take the place on the board of the late Charles Clark.

As in the case of the detention center and transportation boards, the appointment of members of the solid waste board to terms which would carry well into the life of the new county administration has been interpreted by some as an attempt by the last administration to prolong its influence beyond its term in office.

Winter of 1982 Sets Only Two Record Lows

Sunday, Jan. 17's bitterly cold temperatures ranged from minus five at London, Ky. to a minus 19 at Covington and Somerset, but according to statistics compiled by Kentucky's Climate Center, the day was not the coldest on record for most locations in the Commonwealth.

According to Glen Connor, state climatologist at Western Kentucky University, memorable cold days in the past must include Jan. 12, 1918 when temperatures plunged to a minus 17 at Mayfield, minus 18 at Calhoun and minus 20 at Paducah.

"These extremes were generally confined to the western part of the Commonwealth," Connor says, reporting that Jan. 18, 1930 was a repeat performance in the western part of Kentucky with Paducah and Mayfield reaching minus 17 and Murray recording a minus 20 degrees.

Connor says the record low for January temperatures for almost all stations in Kentucky was 1963 when the warmest spot in the state that year was Paducah on Jan. 24 with a year 8.

"The frigid weather of Jan. 8, 1942, was more widespread, with Beaver Dam, Lovelaceville, Clermont and Shelbyville each recording a minus 20 degrees," Connor says.

On that date, Somerset recorded minus 28, Bradfordville minus 30, and Bonnierville an Arctic-like minus 34 degrees.

On the 29th of that same year, Farmers in the northeastern part of the state recorded minus 28 and Cynthia tied Bonnierville's record of 34 degrees below zero.

Connor says that the long-term average annual extreme lows ranged from 2 in the far West to about minus 6 in the East.

A record low was set at both Maryland and Quicksand on January 17 when the former recorded a minus 18 and Quicksand hit a chilly minus 15. The previous low for Mayfield was minus 17 on January 13, 1918, and for Quicksand, minus 11 on January 8, 1942.

Statistics provided by the Kentucky Climate Center comparing the January 17 low with January lows of past years demonstrates that while this has been a winter to set teeth chattering, there have been colder ones for most of the state. There follows a listing of several cities in the state, with the current January 17 low, followed by the previous recorded January low.

Bardstown, minus 11, with minus 20 on Jan. 28, 1963; Berea, minus 14, with minus 18 on Jan. 24, 1963; Bowling Green, minus 14, with minus 26 on Jan. 12, 1886; Campbellsville, minus 10, with minus 21 on Jan. 24, 1963; Cumberland Gap, minus 14, with minus 17 on Jan. 24, 1963; Glasgow, minus 13, with minus 25 on Jan. 24, 1963; Grayson, minus 14, with minus 21 on Jan. 29, 1963; Greenville, minus 17, with minus 19 on Jan. 24, 1963; Hardinsburg, minus 14, with minus 18 on Jan. 17, 1977; Henderson, minus 15, with minus 18 on Jan. 31, 1936; London, minus 5, with minus 18 on Jan. 24, 1963; Paducah, minus 14, with minus 20 on Jan. 12, 1918; Princeton, minus 16, with minus 24 on Jan. 24, 1963, and Somerset, minus 19, with minus 28 on Jan. 24, 1963.

WHAT EMOTIONAL STAGES ARE THERE FOR THE SURVIVORS?

In her widely-read books on death-and-dying, noted psychiatrist Dr. Elisabeth Kubler-Ross discusses many perplexing aspects of coping with terminal illness... from the point of view of the patient, the medical professionals and the families involved.

Her studies indicate that the stages of denial, anger, bargaining, depression, and acceptance of death are common to most terminally ill patients.

Some of these stages are common, too, with the survivors of the deceased. Survivors, too, may experience a denial of the death of a loved one. They may also experience anger, depression, and, finally, acceptance... and then begin rebuilding the pieces of family life without the deceased.

Relatives and friends all interact and find strength in communicating and sharing each other's strong points, thus making the adjustment less difficult and prolonged.

For more information on how to cope with these stages, stop by for suggested reading material.

Senator Bailey Faces Critics Of Senate Redistricting Bill

In an attempt to quell, to some degree, local resentment which followed the passage in the senate recently of a redistricting bill which would transfer from the rest of Floyd county and the 29th district most of Prestonsburg's voting precincts to another district, Senator Benny Ray Bailey last Friday told a group of concerned area Democrats that he would work to introduce an amendment in the House of Representatives which might nullify the proposed plan.

Meeting with about 25 local officials, Democratic leaders and concerned citizens in the circuit courtroom here, Senator Bailey faced sharp criticism throughout the session and spoke in his own defense against charges that he had allowed the redistricting bill to be approved, as one area Democratic leader said, "either by design or through negligence."

The redistricting bill calls for the removal of the Courthouse, Trimble Branch, and Cliff precincts and a section of Richmond precinct from the 29th district, and their inclusion in the 25th district, which is represented by Sen. Lowell D. Hughes, D-Ashtand. Only Porter and a part of Richmond precinct in Prestonsburg would remain in the 29th.

Two petitions are being circulated to protest the plan and resolutions passed by both the Prestonsburg city council and Floyd fiscal court echo the feeling, as expressed in one petition, that the plan "dismembers Floyd county by placing its head in the 25th senatorial district and its heart and body in the 29th."

Countering allegations made last week that he made no more than a token effort to vote down the bill and claims that he may consider the plan an advantage since loss of the Prestonsburg precincts, in which he is politically weak, anyway, would lend strength to Knott county's political pull, Senator Bailey argued that "Everybody knew I was against this plan," and cited his opposition to any redistricting plan that would divide Prestonsburg as a matter of record.

Bailey explained that the redistricting, which is carried out every 10 years, calls for each senator to represent 98,000 people, based on the most current census. "The way things were, I had 115,000 and that made some kind of redistricting within the 29th district a necessity," he pointed out.

Bailey said that he was not actively involved in defining new district limits and implied that the plan came as something of a surprise to him.

Barkley Sturgill, Prestonsburg attorney, criticized Bailey for not conferring with area Democrats when the plan was being drawn up. "It's absolutely ridiculous to me that this bill was drawn up and passed without us knowing about it," Sturgill said. "If everybody had been advised, we would have stopped it," he added.

Bailey told the group that he had been in Prestonsburg four times since mid-December but was never consulted.

Sturgill argued that "It doesn't make sense for these lines to be drawn," and told Sen. Bailey, "Nobody touches Floyd county unless we know about it."

Sturgill and others at the meet called for an amendment to be introduced in the House of Representatives to throw the bill back to the Senate for revision and Bailey assured the group that "we'll introduce an amendment," but he stressed that "there'll have to be an alternate redistricting plan—a specific plan."

Alternative redistricting plans were discussed with Sen. Bailey and Representative Greg Stumbo in meetings with Floyd Democrats, Saturday and Sunday, according to Dr. Herbert Salisbury, III, Prestonsburg dentist.

"If we can get an amendment to the bill passed in the House with full cooperation from Sen. Bailey and Rep. Stumbo," Salisbury said, "then we should have a good chance in the senate to reinstate the head back onto the dog and maintain Floyd county's strength."

District Road Map Shocks Magistrate As No Work Shown

Magistrate Lowell Samons looked aghast as a state highways engineer spread out a map before the fiscal court at its meeting last Thursday.

On the map were designated some 109 miles of county roads to be maintained by the state with $317,000 due the county in gasoline tax receipts. It appeared that none of the road work was scheduled for Samons' fourth magisterial district.

"Where was the man who was supposed to be representing the fourth district (when the state road work was being scheduled last year)?" Samons asked, incredulously.

Hershel Hamilton, his predecessor as magistrate, said this week that Samons was the victim of a misunderstanding. Some streets at Betsy Layne and a mile of the Mare Creek road—both sections in the fourth district—are scheduled for blacktopping this spring, he said. The state engineer's map apparently reflected only road work already completed this year, he said.

Meanwhile, Samons was busy explaining to constituents last week how 600 tons of gravel could be spread on the Mink Branch road, scene of the recent mine tragedy. While county labor was used on the project, the gravel was furnished by various coal companies, he said.

The first women's labor organization was established in 1734 by maid servants in New York City to protest the abuses that they suffered from their mistresses' husbands, according to a publication of the U.S. Department of Labor.

Sturgill argued that "It doesn't make sense for these lines to be drawn," and told Sen. Bailey, "Nobody touches Floyd county unless we know about it."

GIFT OF BLOOD WILL AID EASTERN BOY

Several employees of the First Commonwealth Bank recently rallied to aid a five-year-old awaiting open heart surgery in March, donating blood in his name at the donor station here. Debbie Hoskins, head bookkeeper at the bank, is pictured giving blood under the direction of nurse Kimberlee Boyd. Helen Neeley and Gilva Horn were also among the donors.

Patrick Boyd, the youngster facing surgery, is the son of William and Carla Boyd, of Eastern.

Western's Sale To Energy Coal Effected Friday

The Energy/Coal Corporation, Paintsville, has confirmed the closing of a sales agreement with Western Coal Corporation under which Energy Coal acquired the coal mining assets of Western, including surface mines in Eastern Kentucky and southern West Virginia.

Merle E. Duensing, president of Energy Coal, said his company, assumed operational control as of last Friday.

"It is a point of personal pride for me to be able to return to the coal business in Eastern Kentucky and to do so in a new and exciting coal management concept," Duensing said. "We begin with more than 500 experienced, hard-working men and women, and a commitment to our employees and the community to be a concerned, efficient and effective corporate citizen."

Energy Coal Corporation is a subsidiary of Energy Management Corporation of Denver, Colorado.

In addition to Duensing, who will maintain corporate offices in Lexington, other management personnel of Energy Coal Corporation include: Robert F. Knarr, vice-president, engineering; Bruce R. Rohrer, manager of development, and John H. Bruens, treasurer. Mr. Knarr is a former Prestonsburg resident.

Jerry A. Lewis, an eight-year resident of Johnson county, has been named general manager of Energy Coal's mining operations. Most recently, Lewis was general foreman at Mapco's Martiki mine in Martin county. Lewis was with Peabody Coal before joining Mapco.

Henry Cherpak has been named general superintendent of maintenance, and Gary Gamblin has assumed his duties as office manager at Energy's Coal's local office near the Paintsville-Prestonsburg Airport. Lonnie V. Waller is manager of engineering and Don McConnell became Energy Coal's director of safety and training on January 28.

Western Coal was founded years ago by J. W. Clifton, former Prestonsburg resident, and B.W. McDonald. They recently purchased the Marvin Music Gulf distributorship here. Their plans for future activities were not announced.

The Governor's Honor at Stake

His record as governor of Kentucky indicates that John Young Brown, Jr. indeed does not have any desire to meddle with the state legislature, but now he must turn from that policy.

His word is on the line; it is under attack by that same legislature.

We refer to promises made to mountain legislators when the existing coal severance tax was adopted. It was to the effect that if the coal counties would forego any severance tax for one year their share of the tax thereafter would be all above the $177 million earmarked for state government.

Coal county legislators agreed to that. Everybody agreed. The state got the financial help it needed for the one year the counties renounced any share in the tax, and after that they began reaping the satisfactory harvest of heavier income from the tax on coal. Members of the General Assembly who represented Floyd and other coal counties were jubilant.

But now comes House Bill 333 which would invalidate that arrangement and compromise Governor Brown's promise by changing all that to give the state government more at the expense of the counties from whom the coal is taken.

No serious attempt is being made to find other revenues for a state that admittedly is hard-pressed for funds. Instead, the counties which produce coal—counties that are losing an irreplaceable resource, having their roads torn up, their streams and lakes silted in, the natural scenery desecrated—are asked to accept less, much less, than has been promised.

For generations Eastern Kentucky has suffered in the beggar's role. Now that its coal is the one bright spot in the economy of the state, the authors and supporters of this proposed legislation look to the mountains for their strength and would leave those same mountains begging for handouts from Frankfort.

Another generation or so, and Eastern Kentucky will have lost most of its coal resources. It must plan and work now to provide new industry against the day when coal no longer is king and coal booms are only memories. That will require money, and this area can depend upon no other source than its coal for it.

Governor Brown's integrity is at stake. He will defend it, surely. That means, he will have to tangle with a legislature that threatens to make his promise to the coal-producing counties worth not a plugged nickel him with the slaying and the wounding of Stanley had not been issued Tuesday morning, but the grand jury was expected to vote indictments during the day.

Slone was transferred to an undesignated jail outside the county after telephoned threats were received at the county jail here.

State Police Detective Don Weedman, who is investigating the shooting, and Deputy Sheriff Harold Johnson arrested Slone. The weapon believed to have been used in the shootings was found in a small stream at the rear of the Dollie Hall home.

The three youths were described as "close friends." The shooting may have resulted from a poker game, officers said. One report said Johnson and Stanley left, following an argument, then returned to the residence with two others.

Victim of the shooting was a son of Milton and Verna Hall Johnson, of Melvin. He was a graduate of Wheelwright High School and was employed by the state Department of Transportation. Survivors include the parents, his wife, Terri Sue Ferrari Johnson, and two sisters, Misses Teresa and Jeanice Johnson, both of Price.

Funeral rites were conducted at 11 a.m. Tuesday from the Wheelwright Free Will Baptist Church, the Rev. Louis Ferrari officiating. Burial in the Buckingham cemetery was directed by the Hall Funeral Home.

"If they don't come down with the rain," I am asked, "please explain how they're found on the roofs of tall buildings?"

Why ask me for an explanation? As I grow older I become curiouser and curiouser, but never curious. I've never even challenged anybody when they came in and announced that it was raining cats and dogs outside. So why should I be expected to question the idea that it rains frogs?

CAN OIL BE TRIVIA?

Something I—and, maybe, you—would not have known, had not James Morell sent me this newspaper clipping. It tells of the 25,000-acre Yates Field in Texas which Mobil Oil and U.S. Steel have been battling over in their desire to buy it from Marathon Oil. The field since 1926 has produced 850 million barrels of oil and has an estimated one billion barrels more in reserve, good for 40 years' production.

And—would you believe it?—the name of the town in the middle of all this is Iraan.

No, there wasn't anything prophetic about its name. The town was named for the owner of the land, Ira Yates, and his wife, Ann; hence, Iraan.

the previous administration's last official acts was the awarding of a $67,493 bid for a road grader, December 28. Gravel bills amounting to $60,000 and a $44,000 blacktop bill were also outstanding, it was said.

While it is not clear whether the outgoing fiscal court left to the new administration the 35 percent of the county budget required by state law, purchase of the grader would almost certainly plunge the county below the stipulated minimum, Howell said, indicating that the deal might be held void unless the vendor, Brandeis Machinery, agreed to a delayed payment.

Explaining the need for laying off 24 county employees, most of them road workers, Howell explained that $190,000 would be needed in salaries alone for the rest of the fiscal year if the county road department was retained at its present strength. Each of the four magistrates was allowed to retain only three road workers of their road crews, which previously numbered about eight in each district.

In voting to dismiss the workers, veteran magistrate Ed Caudill said it into a fund, the bulk of which is divided among coal-producing counties in proportion to their coal production.

A bill introduced in the state legislature last week would largely undo the deal, however, sharply limiting the amount of severance tax collections the state would return to the coal counties.

The proposed House Bill 333 would allow the amount of severance tax returned to grow by only 20 percent a year—a measure which, it is estimated, would cut the return by more than $40 million over the next two years.

Under the present law, counties will share about $30.1 million in severance-tax money this year. Floyd county is due to receive some $606,000 of it. Next year the counties are projected to share about $49.3 million, a jump of almost 64 percent. In 1984, the figure is expected to rise another 45 percent to an estimated $71.6 million.

But, if HB 333 were adopted, counties could look forward to dividing only about $36.1 million next year and $43.3 million in 1984.

Governor Brown, who said in 1980 he would oppose changing the severance-tax rebate plan while he was in office, last week repeated his commitment to the existing formula.

Sen. Benny Ray Bailey reportedly described as "ludicrous" the proposal to limit the amount returned. "I don't think it has a chance of passage," he is reported to have said of the proposal.

An alternative measure expected to be introduced this week—which would link a limit on the amount returned with a 1.5 percent increase in the severance tax rate—threatens to put supporters of a severance-tax hike in a quandary.

Kathy Hatfield, of Drift, one of those who has urged the tax increase, was angered by last week's attempts to put a cap on the amount of severance tax returned to the counties. "I think it's an outrage," she said, "—a slap in the face for eastern Kentucky."

Craft Workshops Set Friday at MSU

Kentucky crafts are hot items in the marketplace. As a result, Morehead State University's Appalachian Development Center and the Kentucky Arts and Crafts Foundation are sponsoring two workshops to help Kentucky craftspeople develop sound methods for pricing and marketing crafts.

Workshops for "Product Costing" and "Sound Business Practices" will be conducted in the Riggle Room of the Adron Doran University Center on Friday, Feb. 5, from 9 a.m. until 4 p.m.

Accurate costing of a craft item, determining exactly how much money you've invested in materials, how much time you've spent, what your time is worth, and what kind of profit you can reasonably expect, can mean the success or failure of a craft business. These factors will all be discussed during the morning session.

The Daughters of the American Revolution urge you to join in their observance of February as American History Month. October 1981 was the celebration of the 200th anniversary of the Battle of Yorktown, when the British surrendered. This month we are celebrating the 250th anniversary of the birth of George Washington, the first President of our country.

was the hardest decision he had been asked to make in his four terms on the fiscal court, adding that some of the workers had been county employees for 16 years.

The fired workers will be rehired "as soon as funds become available," it was said, and their insurance premiums will be paid in the interim. The remaining workers will be paid out of monies diverted from other county funds, it was indicated.

The personnel reduction now means that the 12 remaining road workers will be the responsibility of a management team numbering 13—the four magistrates, the county road foreman, and a staff of eight in the judge-executive's office—and drawing annual salaries totalling $227,708, not counting expenses.

In an interview shortly before he left office at the end of last year, former Judge-Executive Bill Wells estimated that some 45 percent of the county budget would be left for the incoming court. "Our audits have shown that our budget is among the most accountable of all county governments in the state," he added.

State and county officials last week sharply disagreed with that estimate. "We've been left with an ungody amount of past bills," lamented Thomas Lafferty, Jr., the county personnel officer, who also claimed that Dick Leslie had drawn salaries both as county planner and deputy judge under the previous administration.

State auditor Howell attributed the county's fiscal woes to "poor management" on the part of the previous administration. His advice to the fiscal court this week will focus on "upgrading the accounting system and the accountability" of the county government, said Howell, who also indicated he would be "hard on the bank" for permitting the county to incur deficits in some of its accounts.

Fiscal court funds are deposited with the Bank Josephine. Maintaining deficit balances in county accounts is a violation of state law, Howell noted.

Wells said he saw nothing unusual in the county's present financial situation, describing it as typical of that inherited by new county administrations. "I'm leaving it a hell of a lot better than when I received it," he said, claiming that less than 10 percent of the budget remained when he took office in November, 1979. "You inherit these situations and you have to live with them," he added.

One question raised by the auditors' report is the adequacy of the state law requiring that 35 percent of the total budget be left for an incoming government. In the wake of last week's revelation of the state of the road fund here, some have suggested that the law should require that 35 percent of each fund remain at the end of the fiscal court term. Others have suggested that, in an election year, the incumbent administration be permitted to prepare only a six-month budget.

Of the county workers laid off last week, two were on the county attorney's staff—assistant county attorney Eric Hall and secretary Alta Burger. County Attorney Arnold Turner, Jr. said he expected to find alternate funding sources for the two employees and that no reduction in legal services is anticipated.

The other workers laid off, said to be all from the road department, were:

In Memoriam

In memory of the seven men who lost their lives in the R.F. & H Mining Co., on Mink Branch at Craynor, Ky.

The day began as any others. To everyone it was the same. They began work as friends and brothers. Then, without warning, tragedy came. It came like thunder across the way. Black smoke rose from its mouth. The dragon of death had claimed his prey.

And no goodbyes were they allowed. God is kind to each and all. Agony and pain is no longer their song. Sadness and sorrow to their families must fall. But prayers and faith in God will make you strong.

Drilling Rig Overturms at East Point

When a big Kentucky-West Virginia mobile drilling rig attempted to turn, Saturday, in the vicinity of the Four Sisters Meat Company at East Point, a soft shoulder gave way and the rig overturned. Weight of the vehicle then broke a water main which resulted in interruption of service to a number of East Point area homes so that both the gas company and utilities employees found themselves occupied for some time with a bit of unexpected and hard work. Specialized equipment, including two cranes had to be employed to right the foundered drilling rig, and workers labored throughout the afternoon to repair the broken water line.

Defends Coal Rebate

In a newspaper article which was published on January 29th, Minority Leader Art Schmidt was quoted as saying, "I think the coal counties would be satisfied with 20% growth."

Mr. Schmidt, how much growth would Cold Springs agree to if your county had 100% of the coal and related problems?

We in Eastern Kentucky have been the step-children of this state for generations. Our only industry is coal. We desperately need industrial diversification. Now that we are getting 50% (AFTER THE STATE TAKES THE 1ST 177 MILLION) you have the audacity to suggest we should be satisfied with 20% growth?

How dare you and Rep. Joe Clarke suggest, through HB 333, that we be satisfied with 20% growth? We have 100% of the problems associated with coal, 100% of the deteriorating roads, schools, scarred mountains, deaths related to mining. One hundred percent of our coal leaves our counties.

I am appalled at the attitude that some people have in the central counties of Kentucky. We'll give them 100% of the problems associated with coal. Then, perhaps, we may be content with 20% growth in severance tax.

Proud To Reopen

Although we closed the animal shelter, Sept. 1980, due to lack of funds, we are proud to announce that we are now open. We have a new manager, Paul Burke, and a new set of rules that we hope will help keep the shelter operating. We hope you can state this fact in The Times. Also, we would like you to know how much we appreciate everyone at The Times and want to express our appreciation to WPRT, the Prestonsburg Fire Department and to everyone who has helped us in any way.

On Genealogy

I wish to thank The Floyd County Times for printing my letter seeking information on Spencer Adams. Some seven readers were kind enough to contact by phone, or mail.

I thank Avery Wiley, Elder Walter Akers, Wardie Craft, William A. Salisbury, Anita Clarke, John Wes Hall and Mrs. Hubert Stevens for responding so kindly. I will be contacting each of them by letter.

It seems that I was misinformed as to the date he came to the Mayking area, and to his being the first to organize the Old Regular Baptist Church. I was told it was 1803. It seems an Elder Thompson holds that honor.

What I seek is this: Date and place of Spencers Adams' birth. I know his father's name. I need his grandfather's name, and the country from which they came into America. I seek all this for a dear friend in New Orleans. Spencer Adams was her great (or great-great) grandfather.

Me—my own interest is in tracing William Martin back to the family entrance to America and running the line of Capt. Bill Boling Hall down in the same way. Someone somewhere must know all this.

By the by—if the teens of Eastern Ky. want to enter a field that pays excellently, try being a Certified Genealogist. One such asked me of my correspondents $100 a day for expenses—with a $750.00 downpayment! I have seen, handled and read her letter concerning this.

Didn't Like Cartoon

This week's cartoon on co-ed sports (1-27-81) was an unlovely example of kindergarten social comment. I was surprised that a newspaper of such often praised calibre as the Times would permit this silly, tilted presentation to assume the posture of intelligent and newsworthy fare.

Since I was unaware that sports were gendered, I found it neither clever nor amusing. Just such slanted ideas on inter-activity between the sexes has been the reason for the patently ignoble attitude toward women who serve or have served in the armed forces and other traditionally male occupations or situations where their associates were basically male.

It has been said that we learn to be human. I considered the cartoon a crude and vulgar indictment of the male species and can hope that this is not the prevailing attitude among men. Certainly if it is we need to reevaluate our educational processes.

Describes Severance Bill As 'Despicable'

Despicable is the only nice way to describe HB333 introduced in the state Legislature by Rep. Joe Clarke and Rep. Art Schmidt. This bill proposes to change the formula by which the coal severance tax is divided between the state and the coal counties.

I would like to remind everyone that coal counties gave up their share of the coal severance tax for one fiscal year after the present formula was established because the state budget was in need. The state now receives approximately $177 million of this tax before it shares with the coal counties on a 50-50 basis. According to a report done by Kentucky Youth Advocates, Inc., the coal severance tax revenues contribute more than three times as much as the cigarette, alcohol, and wagering tax revenues to Kentucky's income.

No, Rep. Schmidt, the coal counties will not be satisfied with 20 percent growth! We want what we were promised, even though 50-50 is not enough to make up for the years of neglect (until 'the coal boom' when all of a sudden coal was popular and profitable again) and the possibility that some of the counties may run out of coal before economic dependence on it can be changed.

The Kentucky Fair Tax Coalition is calling for a tax on unmined minerals (all minerals) and an increase in the coal severance tax (which would be shared by the state and the counties 50-50 as promised). This could provide the state with more than $40 million and also boost the needy budgets of the coal counties. The coal counties should help support the state but the support rendered should be a fair share, not a lopsided one.

I urge all Floyd Countians as well as citizens of other coal counties to call your representative (1-800-372-7181, toll free) or write them a note to express your opposition to this terrible bill.

Six Are Arrested In Fraudulent Coal Mining Ventures

NEW YORK—State Attorney Steven Beshear last week announced the indictment and arrest of six men who allegedly promoted a scheme to defraud more than 200 investors nationwide in a deal involving 16 fraudulent Kentucky coal mining ventures.

The scheme involved 16 limited partnerships which offered investments in coal mining ventures in Lawrence, Elliott, Johnson and Magoffin counties. Events leading to the indictments occurred from June 1, 1979 to July 1980.

Beshear's office initiated the indictment after investigators became suspicious while reviewing documents related to tax shelters involving Kentucky coal mining. The subsequent probe was conducted by the Leviticus Project Association, a multi-state federally-funded agency which investigates crime in the coal industry. Beshear and Robert Morgenthau, association chairman and New York County district attorney, announced the results of the probe in New York Jan. 20.

The defendants, who have New York or New Jersey addresses, are charged with giving false representations and soliciting investments without any intention to mine coal. The suspects collected more than $8.79 million in cash and $31 million in promissory notes from investors, according to the attorney general's office.

Attorney General Beshear said, "These fraudulent coal tax shelters have a devastating effect on the Kentucky coal industry. The tens of thousands of acres of viable coal leases that are controlled by fraudulent coal programs prohibit the exploration and mining of these lands by legitimate Kentucky coal companies."

The defendants, listed in a press release from the attorney general's office, are: Richard Firestone, 52, New York City; Milton Dorison, 70, East Orange, N.J.; Peter Gettinger and Raymond Mirrer, 62, both New York attorneys; Herman Friedman, 46, Short Hills, N.J.; and Albert Wahl, 54, Seaford, N.Y.

Floyd Woman's Book Published

Mrs. Aileen Hall has been postmaster at Stanville and Betsy Layne 32 years now, and for almost that long she has been setting down in verse the thoughts, memories and emotions that lifted her above the workaday world of "keeping house" and attending to postoffice.

And now her poetry has been published by Exposition Press, Smithtown, N.Y. in a volume entitled, "Candlelight."

"Here," say the publishers in a jacket review of 'Candlelight,' is the wit, wisdom and philosophy of a life well lived. 'Candlelight' offers poetry lovers touching, unforgettable remembrances of joy and sorrow, fulfillment and disappointments, faith and hope...the emotions of a lifetime."

The author is the wife of Walter Hall, Stanville business man. As a member of the National Association of Postmasters she was the first woman to be elected president of the organization's Kentucky chapter, and for years wrote a regular column for the chapter publication, "The Kentuckian." She also spent two years as editor-at-large of The Postmasters' Gazette, contributing to that publication feature and editorial material.

"Candlelight" was so named in part because of Mrs. Hall's love of the light of candles. Over the years she, husband and daughters, Rhonda and Nancy, have dined by candlelight. On an occasion, she recalls, daughter Rhonda refused to light the candles. "I simply refuse," her mother recalls her saying, "to light the candles when we're having only bean soup!"

Anyway, "Candlelight" won. It's the title of her book, and the first poem inside has these lines:

Whatever else a day may bring to me,
Of good or bad, of all that's wrong or right,
The evening is a special time to be
Bathed in the soft, warm glow of candlelight.

Floyd School Attendance Improved Over Year Ago

The attendance for the third month in the Floyd County School System was 92.8 percent. This is up 1.2 percent over the third month of last year. The schools which led in attendance for this month are Bonanza Elementary with 95.8 percent and McDowell high school, 94.2.

Several schools award homerooms with the best attendance for added incentive and the strategy has proved to be successful in several schools, it was reported.

Floyd Cooperates In Drop-out Study

Floyd county is one of 17 school districts cooperating with the state Education Department in a pilot program to identify at the ninth grade level potential dropouts.

The three-year plan for the study is to modify the dropout instrument for use at lower grades. This will enable school districts to implement intervention strategies before the student psychologically drops out of school.

Raymond Barber, superintendent of public instruction, has listed the dropout problem as one of his eight educational goals during the next two years. Mr. Barber's office, the Kentucky Department of Education, and the State Board of Education are committed to helping school districts deal with the growing dropout problem.

Proclaims Job Corps Week

This week, Feb. 1-6, has been proclaimed Prestonsburg Job Corps Appreciation Week in Prestonsburg by Mayor Harold W. Cooley. The proclamation was signed last week by Mayor Cooley as Ted Dunaway, student government member from the Job Corps Center here (left), and center director, Tom Hummer looked on. The proclamation recognizes the center as "providing a tremendous educational opportunity to the region's youth," and cites the fact that in one year of operation here, 93 youths have received GED's, completed various vocational courses or have been placed in jobs, the military or entered college. The center has a current enrollment of 165 and employs 39 Floyd countians.

As part of the week, the public is invited to attend the Job Corps Center Open house, Saturday, February 6.

Hamilton Urges Support Of 979 (Mud Creek Rd.) Project

I am asking for the support and full cooperation of the Floyd Fiscal Court and all concerned citizens in seeing the Mud Creek (KY 979) Project begun and completed. I would urge everyone to use your contacts and any influence in Frankfort and Washington to have this road built as soon as possible. The Tram Bridge is now under construction and it took a lot of support for this bridge, and now it will take continued support and working together to get the KY 979 Project under way.

I am listing again the petition which has been submitted to officials in Frankfort and Washington concerning the Mud Creek road and I also include some of the projects which have been accomplished in the District 4 area over the past four years through working together.

PETITION

TO: THE KENTUCKY DEPARTMENT OF HIGHWAYS

Ky. Highway 979 is a narrow and crooked road beginning at Harold, Ky. off U.S. 23 running through the valleys, across the creeks, around the foothills of the mountains to Hi Hat, connecting to Ky. 122 in Floyd Co., Ky.

This narrow and crooked road was built in the 1930's and 1940's by the WPA Project men with picks, shovels, and wheelbarrows before modern equipment was introduced in this area of the nation. It was badly needed and well appreciated because the only road at that time was creek beds and bridle paths around the hills. This road served its purpose and was built to meet the needs of the people in those days.

In those days there were 1- and 2-room school buildings along this road and up the hollow, and one High School (Betsy Layne). There were about 10 branches with these 1- and 2-room school buildings, about halfway up each hollow, about the same amount along this road with no school buses traveling this road. To drive over this road now and see all the traffic, especially 11 school buses hauling 1350 children, meeting small trucks and large coal trucks, tandems, semi-tractors, cement trucks, lumber trucks and all kinds of trucks continuously traveling day and night. To count the traffic would be surprising to anyone, to know how busy and heavy the traffic is. When this badly needed road was built so many years ago it evidently never entered anyone's mind that some day small coal mines (now we have approx. 42) would be opened in about every branch and hollow and that this coal would have to be transported to market by trucks traveling like they are today on this road.

To live in the modern days like we are today, and travel the narrow and crooked road around the foothills with embankments two to three hundred feet high with no guard rails, the narrow sharp curves where the driver of one truck can't see as far as 60 to 75 feet ahead, and then to meet a school bus loaded with children with the road not wide enough to pass and not enough time to stop. To see this bus load of kids roll over one of the embankments as we experienced Wednesday, the 2nd of January, 1980, is evidence enough to know this road is no longer safe to accommodate the heavy traffic and especially the 11 or more school buses that hauls the kids from all the hollows. Since the John M. Stumbo Elementary School has been built and all the 1- and 2-room school buildings done away with, all the children have to travel by bus to John M. Stumbo, and Harold Elementary, Betsy Layne High and McDowell High.

The citizens of the Mud-Creek Section of Floyd County (this includes Toler Creek, Branham Creek, Mink Branch, Tinker Fork, Tackett Fork, and all the other hollows leading from the 979 Highway) are common people and are not as hard to please as one might imagine. They very seldom complain about local or state government, but there has been a growing concern about the safety of our children. Having to travel this crooked, and narrow and very dangerous road on school buses where there is no guard rails around the hills where the buses can again very easily roll over one of these high embankments and no one on the bus will escape.

We the people of this section of Floyd County would appreciate it if the Ky. Dept. of Highways would investigate our problem before another accident occurs, and for the future safety of our kids and all that will travel this out-dated road.

It is impossible to identify all the conditions of the road, the sharp curves, broke-off places, no guard rails. So we the undersigned petition the Ky. Dept. of highways for a fact-finding information tour of Ky. 979. An immediate reply from the Department on what action will be taken concerning this request would be greatly appreciated. Please send reply to: Bill Wells, County Judge-Executive and the Floyd County Fiscal Court, Prestonsburg, Ky. 41653

It is not enough to take home the prescription, place it in the medicine cabinet and forget about it. If the accompanying literature indicates that it should be stored in "a cool dry place", it means just that. Today's powerful and complex new drugs may not be very chemically stable. Rapid changes, in humidity, temperature and environmental conditions may adversely affect them. Storing prescription medicine in the glove compartment of a car can be harmful as well. As a result, ask your pharmacist about proper storage conditions as well as dosage. Treat medicine carefully as the active ingredients may be more susceptible to change than is generally realized.

When taking a prescription drug, it is as important to properly care for the medication as it is to follow the directions for dosage. Road Fund Found In "Real Crisis"

The state's road fund is facing "a real crisis," according to a study by the Kentucky Department of Transportation (KYDOT). The highway needs study indicates the state will need an additional $250 million, in 1981 dollars, next year to perform "very minimal needs."

The report was presented to a highway advisory committee established by KYDOT to look at highway funding problems and possible revenue solutions. In presenting the report, A.R. Romine, KYDOT's assistant state highway engineer for operations, said the state needs $250 million additional each year for the next ten years, starting in the 1982-84 biennium.

About $180 million of the needed funds would be used for reconstructing the most severely deficient state roads. Romine said that approximately 4,500 miles of the 25,000 mile state road system should be rebuilt.

Transportation Secretary Frank Metts, commenting on the report, said, "we've got to do something. The department has made all the budget cuts and changes that are possible. We have the ship in shape, but we're going to have to have some money fuel to run the place."

Clair Nichols, KYDOT's deputy secretary, said that unless additional funding is forthcoming, "Kentucky will essentially be without a construction program. Without a construction program," he added, "you are not contributing to the economic characteristics of the state. You are doing nothing progressive."

The decrease in fuel consumption and rising cost of highway construction and maintenance, according to Romine, have caused this "real crisis" in the Road Fund.

In addition to the $180 million for reconstruction, $10 million is needed annually to pave 700 miles of gravel roads. Debt service to pay for road bonds purchased over the years will require an annual expenditure of $128 million—more than 30 percent of Road Fund revenue.

The report also calls for an annual resurfacing program of about 1,000 miles of state roads at a yearly cost of $37 million. According to KYDOT, on the average, the state's highways should be resurfaced every 15 years to "provide for public safety and convenience, prevent failure of the roadway structure, and minimize costs."

In a discussion of surface conditions of the state maintained system, Romine said, only 16 percent is in "good condition," 65 percent is in "fair condition" and 19 percent (4,750 miles) is deteriorated so that reduced driving speed is necessary, and needs "either resurfacing or may need reconstruction."

According to KYDOT, 998 of the state's 8,000 bridges are eligible for funding under the federal bridge replacement program—requiring about $40 million each year to match federal funds. Meeting more of the state's bridge needs would require 100 percent state and/or local financing.

A report by the U.S. Secretary of Transportation to Congress, notes that there are some 5,539 deficient bridges in the state, putting Kentucky 17th from the top in a list of states with deficient bridges.

State To Sponsor Handcraft Market

Kentucky's finest handcrafts will be in the spotlight this spring as retail buyers from shops and department stores all across the country visit the Bluegrass for the spring craft market.

Co-sponsored by the Kentucky Department of the Arts crafts division and the Kentucky Department of Parks, the market will be held March 1-2 at the Kentucky Home Park near Lexington.

Exhibits of baskets, rag rugs, quilts, pottery, furniture and wood carvings, and original knit and woven crafts are among the many displays planned. The market will be strictly for buyers not the public, and all buyers must be pre-registered to attend.

"We will be exhibiting only the finest in Kentucky handcrafts at the market," said Karen Horseman, crafts coordinator. "All work must be original or traditional in design. Works executed from commercial patterns, stencils, molds or from kits will not be included," she said.

Between now and mid-February a selection committee will screen all prospective exhibitors, and strict guidelines will be followed. For example, Horseman said photographs, paintings, drawings, lithos or etchings will not be included. No string art or decoupage items will be included nor will knit, crochet or tatted items which have been done from purchased or published patterns. "Only original designs," the coordinator stressed.

Applications from crafts people must be received by 4:30 p.m. EST, Feb. 15 and must be accompanied by slides or photos of work.

For further information, Horseman can be contacted at the Kentucky Department of Arts, 2200 Capital Plaza Tower, Frankfort, Ky. 40601 (502) 564-8076.

Time To Sign For Medicare

From now through the end of March is the general enrollment period for the medical insurance part of Medicare. Jim Kelly, Social Security district director for the Big Sandy Area, said recently. During these three months people who passed up the chance for this protection, or who had it and dropped out, can again sign up. Protection for people who sign up during this period will start July 1.

Medical insurance is a bargain because the federal government pays more than two-thirds of the premium cost. Medical insurance complements the hospital insurance part of Medicare. Hospital insurance helps pay for medically necessary inpatient hospital care and certain followup care in a skilled nursing facility or at home.

Medical insurance helps pay for doctor's services no matter where they are received in the U.S., including surgical services, diagnostic tests and X-rays that are part of the treatment, medical supplies furnished in the doctor's office, services of the office nurse, and drugs that are given as part of the treatment and which cannot be self-administered.

Medical insurance also covers outpatient hospital services received for diagnosis and treatment and other services and supplies not covered by hospital insurance.

Medical insurance pays for 80 percent of the approved costs or charges for covered services and supplies after the patient has met the $75 annual deductible.

A free medicare booklet as well as other information about Medicare medical insurance can be obtained at the Big Sandy Social Security Office, located on U.S. 23 between Prestonsburg and Paintsville. The telephone number is listed in your local directory under U.S. Government.

Escort retains the highest percentage of its original price of any compact car.
And, Escort has remarkable owner satisfaction. In an independent survey, nine out of ten Escort owners said they would buy Escort again.
And now, Ford is making an offer that gives you even more good reasons to buy a new Ford Escort.

TWO YEARS OF FORDCARE COVERAGE:

COST-FREE MAINTENANCE.

For two years or 24,000 miles—whichever comes first—Ford will provide your Escort with free scheduled maintenance. Absolutely free—including the cost of labor. Things like oil changes, filters, fan belts—even wiper blades. They're all covered. So, you don't pay a cent, except for gas. It's an offer without equal on any small car in the country—foreign or domestic.

WORKMANSHIP COVERAGE.

We're convinced this is the best workmanship coverage in the business. It protects your Escort for two years or 24,000 miles—whichever comes first. And that means protection from virtually any problem that might come up—from clocks to cables, to carburetors. In fact, only things not covered are fluids between recommended changes, tires, abuse and accidents. Legally, we have to call it a limited warranty. But compare it to any other small-car warranty. We're convinced it's the best.

5% CASH BONUS.

Take delivery of a new Escort by March 13 and you'll get all this plus 5 percent off the base vehicle sticker price directly from Ford. That's a 5 percent savings up front that you can keep or apply to your down payment. Check the list below. Your savings can add up to hundreds of dollars on any new 1982 Escort model. (Five percent savings limited to one car per customer.)

MODEL	BASE PRICE	5% CASH BONUS
Base 2-Door	$5462	$275
4-Door	5668	285
L 2-Door	6046	305
4-Door	6263	315
Wagon	6461	325
GL 2-Door	6406	320

GLX 2-Door	7086	355

GT 2-Door	6706	335

We're convinced Ford Escort is the best small car sold in America. And, now we're out to convince you. (FordCare Coverage and Cash Bonus offers good on vehicles delivered between January 13 and March 13, 1982.)

Supreme Court Backs Cession Of Coal Rights

Mineral rights that are not used may lapse. It is not the law in Kentucky but it is in Indiana, and the U.S. Supreme Court—ruling recently in a case in which attorneys for the David Community Development Corporation played a role—has now held the law to be constitutional.

Indiana was within its rights, the court ruled, in declaring that oil, coal and other mineral rights that have not been used for 20 years revert to the owner of the surface property.

The ruling significantly shifts the balance in the long legal struggle to regulate the relation between surface and mineral owners and its influence could eventually be felt here, where coal rights derived from ancient "broad form" deeds have traditionally given mineral owners formidable control over the land, an attorney for the David community organization said this week.

David Rubinstein, an attorney with the Appalachian Research and Defense Fund here, said the ruling could prompt mineral holders presently unknown to declare their ownership and pay taxes on their holdings—or alternatively, could result in the cession of long-unused mineral rights to the surface owners.

The Indiana law, which the Supreme Court upheld in a 5-4 ruling, and similar laws in 10 other states, are designed to encourage development of mineral-rich land that is not being put to productive use.

Under the law, the mineral owner's rights are protected as long as the owner pays taxes or files a written statement of ownership. The law does not provide for notice to the owner that the mineral rights are about to expire, however—an omission that caused the Supreme Court split on the decision.

Honored At E.K.H.S.A. Banquet

Lawrence Bentley, of Langley, newly-elected president of the Eastern Kentucky Horse Show Association, is shown here presenting an award to out-going president, Janice Allen, for her outstanding contributions to the organization. The presentation was one of several made at E.K.H.S.A.'s recent business meeting and awards banquet held recently at Jenny Wiley State Park.

51 Cattle Drown in Big Sandy

Like the Gadarene swine that ran down into the sea, but not for the same reason, 51 head of cattle ran into the Big Sandy River and drowned recently.

The incident, perhaps the oddest of a winter darkened by tragedy in Eastern Kentucky, took place Jan. 18 on the Thurston Hurt farm, near the Kentucky Power Company plant, north of Louisa. Don Gauze, of Louisa, and Raymond Haney of Milo, Martin county, had a herd of more than 100 cattle grazing on the Hurt land which they had leased.

It began with one cow venturing too near the edge of the high river bank that was described as "solid ice" and sliding down the slope into the river. In her distress, she began bawling, and others followed.

"It was like the blind leading the blind," remarked Haney.

Trainmen in a Norfolk & Western locomotive across the river, in West Virginia, saw the cattle in the water. The Lawrence county sheriff, the Louisa Rescue Squad and owners of the herd were notified. Of the 54 cattle in the river, only three were rescued.

The loss may exceed $200,000, it was said.

Perkins Says Reagan Should Emulate FDR in Present Crises

Representative Carl D. Perkins (D. Ky.) last Thursday urged President Reagan to display the courage and character of President Franklin D. Roosevelt in dealing with the country's economic situation.

In a speech prepared for delivery during House of Representatives ceremonies marking the 100th anniversary of Roosevelt's birth, Perkins recalled the late President's decisive and immediate action to save the banking system from collapse in early 1933.

"We need a man like Roosevelt in the White House today who will take command of the perilous situation and shake some economic sense into our monetary policies," Perkins said.

He recalled the manner in which Roosevelt gave courage and hope to the people during the darkest days of the Great Depression.

Perkins said that the present economic situation has not yet reached the seriousness of the one faced by Roosevelt when he came to power in 1933.

"But we will be foolish indeed if we underestimate the potential of the present administration's economic policies to buy us a calamity rivaling that of the early 1930's," the Kentucky legislator warned.

Perkins, who is chairman of the House Committee on Education and Labor, noted that today in this country some 9.5 million workers are unemployed, that housing and automotive industries are in deep trouble, and that the nation's farmers are struggling to keep in business.

The nation's prosperity is falling before the juggernaut of high interest rates, Perkins said.

"We should learn from history that if the rates are permitted to continue at the current levels much longer, they endanger the whole economic system," he said.

Perkins said President Reagan could profit by a careful reading of the history of Roosevelt's actions to save the nation's economy 49 years ago this winter, and so could the Congress.

Signup To Weed Out Fraud

Within the next 90 days Uncle Sam wants the 20,115 military retirees in Kentucky signed up to fight again—this time, against fraudulent use of military medical facilities. He wants their 51,000 spouses and children to help, too.

The battle will only take about 15 minutes to win, according to Sgt. 1st Class James L. Toscano, Fort Knox project officer for the Defense Enrollment Eligibility Reporting System (DEERS). "That's how long it takes to enroll in DEERS," he said.

"DEERS affects everyone who uses military medical facilities and military health programs. In short, it's a nation-wide, computer-based system, ordered by Congress, that will identify who is illegally using military identification cards to get free care at military hospitals and clinics," Toscano explained.

The system is already in use across most of the country. Kentucky is one of the last states to be phased into the program.

DEERS has two basic objectives, Toscano said.

"The first is to collect and provide, for medical management use, information on the needs of the local population entitled to receive Department of Defense health benefits. The second is to substantially reduce fraud and misuse of those benefits."

The General Accounting Office said that the Department of Defense is losing about $60 million a year to persons illegally using valid military identification cards to get free military medical care. Congress has ordered this misuse stopped. DoD officials say DEERS is the way to catch who is cheating.

All active-duty military members and retirees, their dependents, surviving spouses of members of the Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine Corps, Coast Guard and the commissioned corps of the Public Health Service; and the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration must enroll in the DEERS program, defense officials said.

By mid-February, all military retirees and survivors of retirees should receive the DEERS packet in the mail. Anybody in Kentucky who does not get one should call the service he or she retired from and ask for one," Toscano said. The service numbers are:

Army—Fort Knox, (502) 624-1818 or 624-3248; Navy—Naval Air Station, Memphis, Tenn., (901) 872-5682; Air Force—Wright-Patterson, AFB, O., (513) 257-6870 or 257-7778; Coast Guard—Washington, D.C., 1-(800)-424-7950; Marine Corps—Washington, D.C., (202) 694-1958.

If retirees and their families don't receive the enrollment information by February they can write the Fort Knox DEERS project officer and ask for the instruction packet. They must be sure to say which service they retired from. The address is: DEERS, SFC James L. Toscano, Building 1310-Pike Hall, Fort Knox, KY 40121.

"Enrollment is mandatory," said Toscano. "This spring we will have a computer terminal right here at Ireland Army Hospital that will be able to tell us who is legitimate and who is not."

Both Lexington hearings are scheduled for Friday at 9 a.m. The sub-committee to study mining laws, chaired by Joseph P. Jones, of the U.M.W.A., will be held in Room 245 of the UK Student Center. Persons wishing to testify or file a statement should contact Linda Harmon at 606-258-8818.

KIWANIANNES MEET

The Prestonsburg Kiwanians held their regular luncheon meeting at May Lodge, Thursday, with the president, Mrs. Thelma Wallen, presiding. The speaker for the program was Michael McCarthy, a physician's assistant at the Mud Creek Clinic, who told the group that the social and community services of Eastern Kentucky would not be sufficient until there is an adequate tax base. He added that an Appalachian study had shown that coal land, both surface and mineral, has been undertaxed, and that sufficient taxes on unmined minerals and an increase in severance taxes would give real support to schools and county services. Mrs. Jane Bond, who works with the Floyd County Health Department, and Mrs. Ortha Meece, a member of the health board, discussed the effort on the part of the State Health Department in its attempts to combine five Eastern Kentucky counties into one regional health department, and told of the problems encountered in this endeavor.

The president, Mrs. Wallen, appointed Mrs. Carolyn Ford and Mrs. Garnett Fairchild to plan a Founders' Day program, to be held during the March meeting. Mrs. Fairchild read a list of the club's charter members, who were Mesdames Ora Anderson, Norcie Burchett, Marie Burns, Nancy Camicia, Judy Clark, Vertner Clark, Mildred (Turp) Combs, Maisie Crace, Margaret Crawford, Edna Carol Greenwade, Geneva Harmon, Jean Francis, Betty Fiedler, Marjorie Francis, Kathryn Frazier, Sarah Goble, Sally Goebel, Gladys Hughes, Alta Leslie, Jess Mahan, Ruth Moore, Florence Music, Lucy Regan, Frances Rose, Una Smith, Flora Spotte, Stella Spurlock, Carmen Strahan, and Gladys White. CHOOSING THE RIGHT IRA

Today, practically anyone with an earned income can get an Individual Retirement Account. This type of account allows you to invest up to $2000 each year for retirement. Under an Individual Retirement Account plan, you can defer taxes on investment and interest until you retire or upon death or disability.

According to Attorney General Steven L. Beshear, "The account that you choose is extremely important because different plans are designed to fit different needs. The wrong choice of an Individual Retirement Account plan could mean loss of interest or back taxes and penalties for you".

Individual Retirement Accounts allow tax-free transfer of investments just once every three years. If you buy savings certificates of deposit, make the expiration dates coincide with your three year re-investment schedule. This gives you flexibility to change if you want.

Fixed-payment Individual Retirement Accounts are also an option for investment, but you should be sure you can meet regular payments, even if you change jobs or need emergency cash. Fees are deducted from your first contribution, so early cancellation or default will mean very little interest has been earned.

"Individual Retirement Accounts are a wise choice if you secure the type of account you need as an individual," says Attorney General Beshear. "However, flexibility and interest are two factors you should consider before starting an account of this type." For a free brochure explaining more about Individual Retirement Accounts, write to the Consumer Information Center, Pueblo, Colorado 81009.

The Consumer Protection Division of the Attorney General's Office provides consumer literature, information, and assistance with consumer problems. If you feel you could benefit from these services, write to the Consumer Protection Division, 209 St. Clair Street, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601 or call the toll-free Consumer Hotline: 1-800-432-9257.

February is American History Month and the Daughters of the American Revolution is recognizing famous Americans born in February. Try to imagine what life would be like without the electric light bulb and the electricity generating plants, and then you will know how different our world would be today without the work of the great inventor, Thomas A. Edison, whose birthday we celebrate on February 11.

Business Graduates

To Have Feb. 13 Reunion

A reunion of all Western Kentucky University business graduates, whether from the original Bowling Green College of Commerce, Business University, or the present College Business Administration, is planned for Saturday, Feb. 13 at the Dero Downing University Center in Bowling Green. The reunion will be held in conjunction with Western's 16th annual Business Education Conference which coordinator Marvin Albin, associate professor of business education at WKU, says includes all former faculty and students.

Americans are shaping up—almost half of the adult population takes some form of physical exercise each day. The February Reader's Digest reports that Americans spend more than $24 billion a year keeping fit, and the effort pays off. Heart disease, the nation's number one-third and life expectancy has risen to a record 73 years.

PCC To Begin Course

To meet the needs of the area, Prestonsburg Community College is offering a Continuing Education course in elementary heating and air-conditioning. This course is designed to teach the electrician, plumber, carpenter, salesperson and others the basics of installing and servicing gas and electrical heating and cooling units. The class will include lecture and demonstration. Several sessions will meet in shop.

The class will meet on Thursday evenings, beginning February 11, and continuing through April 15. Instructor for the course will be Larry Short. The Community College will grant 2.0 Continuing Education Units for those attending all 10 sessions.

ESTATE PLANNING INCLUDES
LETTER OF INSTRUCTION

A letter of last instruction, as well as a will, should be included in an estate plan. It helps survivors handle financial and burial affairs in an orderly manner following a death.

A letter of last instruction is beneficial in answering questions such as these: Is burial or cremation most appropriate? What kind of memorial service would you prefer? Did you have any agreement to donate the use of body or organs to a medical school or transplant bank? Should a donation be made to charity? Who will handle financial affairs? Where are insurance policies and other financial records kept?

Although it's important, don't confuse a letter of last instruction with a will. Unlike a will, the letter of last instruction is not a legal document. It is not substitute for a will.

Writing a letter of last instruction does not have to be a foreboding experience. You might think of it as a security measure which assures that family members or friends know your wishes upon death. It may keep loved ones from having to make costly decisions when they may not be able to think clearly.

Any information that you feel is important or beneficial to your survivors can be included in the letter. The following suggestions are what you could include:

List names and addresses of those to be notified when you die. You also want to include information about your estate executor, family religious leader and people who are familiar with your personal and business affairs (physician, attorney, insurance agent, accountant, employer). Also include father's name and mother's maiden name for the death certificate.

List the locations of your will, birth certificate or other evidence of birth, marriage license(s), Social Security card, certificates of automobile ownership and other proofs of ownership and other personal papers.

Include a list of all checking and savings accounts. Also list insurance policies, especially life insurance, and their location.

Give location of safe deposit box and keys along with a list of stocks and bonds owned and their location, if not in a safe deposit box.

Give location of burial plot along with funeral and burial instructions. You may wish to include any special burial benefits to which you are entitled, i.e., Veterans' burial benefits, lodge or fraternal benefits. List any prepayments that have been made, especially for funeral arrangements.

Indicate if a memorial fund or charity is desired. You might also consider including a brief obituary.

List all personal property and its location. Even if personal property has no monetary value, it may have sentimental worth to your family or friends. Instructions regarding distribution of this property may be included.

If you've just purchased a microwave oven, don't think all you'll be able to cook are "microwave" recipes. It's possible to make some adjustments to cook your favorites.

It's best to select a familiar recipe to the microwave. Knowing how the food is supposed to look and taste will help you determine when you have achieved success.

But first you must determine whether your recipe is suitable for microwave cooking. Use the basic microwave information supplied in the microwave's manufacturer cookbook. Some foods which require a crisp crust or a dry surface should be done conventionally for best results.

If your recipe is suitable, look for a recipe in the microwave cookbook with similar main ingredients. Leaflets on microwave cookery are available from the County Extension office by calling 886-2668.

NEW REPORT ON FOSSIL FUELS

The Kentucky Department of Energy has released a new publication, "An Assessment of Alternate Fossil Energy Resources in Kentucky."

The report examines coal, oil shale, tar sands, gas from Devonian shale, and coal-bed methane resources in Kentucky and the prospects of their development into sources of liquid and gaseous fuels.

Information in the new publication is based largely on completed or ongoing research by the state Energy Department. A companion document assessing nonfossil alternate energy resources in Kentucky is planned for later publication.

COMPUTER PROGRAMS TO BE FEATURED

Farmers and homemakers will be able to see how computers can help in decision making at the Kentucky Farm Machinery Show Feb. 10-13 in Louisville.

An exhibit by the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture will demonstrate computer programs analyzing various aspects of farm and home management and family living. UK specialist will be on hand to help visitors use computers to address individual farm and home situations as well as answer questions about the availability of programs through the College.

Program subjects include crop budget and risk analysis, farm building materials and cost estimates, planning a vegetable garden, dairy management and nutrition, integrated pest management, fertilizer recommendations from soil tests, diet analysis and home energy and insulation analysis.

More than 200,000 farmers, homemakers and agri-business persons are expected to attend the internationally recognized show, which will include about 660 exhibits. The show will be held at the Kentucky State Fairgrounds, with about 100 of the exhibits scheduled for the Commonwealth Convention Center in downtown Louisville.

Martin Co. Weekly Newspaper May Hold Libel Suit Record

THE MARTIN COUNTIAN, weekly newspaper published at Inez, may hold the state record for being named defendant in libel suits.

The newspaper was sued recently for the eighth time in its seven years of operation. None of the eight has to date, been successful.

The most recent libel action, filed by Wanda "Kitty" Cassidy, was originally filed in the Floyd circuit court but was dismissed when Circuit Judge Hollie Conley agreed with defendant's attorneys that the action should have been taken in the Martin circuit court rather than Floyd's.

Mrs. Cassidy's new suit named as defendants the newspaper, its editor, Homer Marcum, the Communicate Corp., Landmark Community Newspapers, Ken Mills, Michael Smith Fauri and Joe Szakos.

Mrs. Cassidy is a former employee of the Martin County Housing Agency, where she served as financial officer under Pauline Smith, director of the agency. Mrs. Cassidy is no longer working for the agency.

She asks for $10,000 for past and future medical expenses; $100,000 for emotional, mental and physical agony and pain and suffering; $200,000 in compensatory damages; $250,000 in punitive damages; a trial by jury; and the cost of the action, including attorneys' fees.

She alleges that she was libeled by a series of newspaper articles, and a cartoon, which she alleges were untrue. The publicity was generated after a special grand jury, of which Mrs. Cassidy was foreman, found no wrongdoing by county officials but singled out the newspaper for "reckless journalism."

Plaintiff alleges that as a result of emotional and physical problems which now has as a result of the articles, she is unable to perform her job duties and work regularly as she did prior to publication of the articles and believes that her present employment is in jeopardy as a result.

Mrs. Fauri and Szakos are former reporters for the newspaper. Mills is its cartoonist.

"Bull," said Editor Marcum of the latest suit against him. (Civil suits reflect only one side of the case at issue.)

Checking Tax Return May Speed Up Refund

If you're one of the millions of people who gets a tax refund each year, the Internal Revenue Service says you may be able to speed things up by simply checking your return for errors and legibility.

The IRS says a neat, accurate, carefully prepared return can be processed faster, and that can mean a faster refund. On the other hand, an incorrect or hard-to-read return can take weeks to straighten out. A mathematical error will not necessarily cause a long delay, the IRS stresses, but it could prove inconvenient if you were counting on getting an exact amount back, and instead end up with less.

How can you check your return? The IRS says good preparation is the best way to begin. Start as soon as possible—and before you begin, check these tips supplied by the IRS:

—Collect all necessary forms and records you will need to complete your return.

—Make sure you have enough paper, or a calculator, for your math figuring.

—Don't rush your work. Take your time, and consult the instructions for each line.

—Make sure you received a Form W-2, "Wage and Tax Statement," from each employer you worked for during the past year.

Once you finish your return, take a few moments and look it over. Then go through the following check list:

—Are your W-2 Forms attached?

—Have you attached all the supporting schedules if you're filing Form 1040?

—Is your arithmetic correct?

—When you used the Tax Table, did you follow the line across to the correct column for your filing status?

—Is the return signed and dated? Remember, if it's a joint return, your spouse must sign too.

—Did you attach the peel-off label to your return, and is the information on the label correct?

—Have you retained a copy of your return for your records?

—Did you remember to put a stamp on the pre-addressed envelope? And last but not least,

—Aren't you glad you're finished?

"HOME SWEET HOME" IN FLOYD COUNTY

By H. G. NOBLE

Back up in the hills of old Floyd county.

Where in childhood I did roam,
When my thoughts are sad and lonely,
My heart goes back to "Home Sweet Home."

When the golden sun is sinking
And I am all alone,
My thoughts go out a-wandering,
My heart goes back to "Home Sweet Home."

While sitting in my study
My thoughts are wont to roam,
Those hills loom up before me,
My heart goes back to "Home Sweet Home."

FORD ORCHARD MAY LEAD TO MORE FRUIT GROWING

Henry Ford's venture in horticulture in Pike county may lead to the development of this region into a flourishing fruit-growing section, and its success will mean much to this industry in the mountains. Of the undertaking W. S. Kaltenbacher writes the following in Sunday's Courier-Journal:

FORD'S FRUIT VENTURE

The fruit growers of Kentucky are evincing much interest in the venture of Henry Ford, the auto magnate, in operating a fruit farm in Pike county, where the Ford interests own thousands of acres of coal lands. The Ford orchard is looked on as an experiment that may have a most important bearing on the fruit-growing industry in this state.

In its operation the Ford fruit farm is conducted along the same lines of a unit of the Ford organization. The minimum wage paid to the Ford orchard workers is $6 a day, the same as that paid to every other Ford employe in whatever capacity. The Ford fruit farm is equipped with very modern device used in expert orcharding and the tract is pronounced a model of its kind.

Mr. Ford has never made any fuss about his fruit-growing venture in Kentucky, but it is said that he has kept in close touch with the development of his Pike county orchard since it was set out to fruit trees of the most approved varieties. Some see in the Ford fruit-growing experiment the purpose eventually to plant the extensive coal-bearing area in fruit trees. If such a plan should even approximately materialize the Ford orchard would rank with the largest and most extensive anywhere.

It is generally conceded that whatever may be the result of the Ford fruit-growing experiment in Pike county, it will have an important bearing on the horticultural industry in Kentucky that has made such advancing strides within a few years. It seems to be well understood that Mr. Ford is not operating his experimental orchard for profit and because of that his fruit-growing venture has aroused the keener interest among fruit growers and those concerned with the horticultural development of the state along the most approved lines.

HUEYSVILLE

KICKED BY MULE

Mrs. Exa Gearheart, wife of Sam Gearheart, this place, suffered a severely bruised leg a few days ago when a mule kicked her. Mrs. Gearheart was returning to her home from the postoffice, and was forced to go close to the mules in order to get by, the wagoner having parked his wagon and four-mule team squarely in the middle of the road. When she was opposite one large mule, he kicked, striking her on the leg. Mrs. Gearheart was helped to her home, and is now recovering nicely.

SCHOOL PRINCIPAL ILL

Mr. Damron, principal of the school here, was unable to teach last Friday on account of a severe cold, which made him so hoarse he could hardly speak. His classes were handled by his wife, Mrs. Lura Damron, whose classes in turn were taught by Miss Gola Huff. Mr. Damron was much improved Saturday, however, after using a short treatment given him by Dr. R. W. Duke. Mr. and Mrs. Damron left for Prestonsburg Saturday where they attended to some business affairs, returning home Sunday.

PIPE LINE WORK

The largest amount of pipe ever seen on the plot of ground used as an unloading yard here at the railroad siding, is now here. Several men have been unloading pipe here for two weeks, mostly men who live here. The pipe is being hauled away to Brush Creek and Salt Lick, where it will be used to lay a large pipe line. The camps for this section of the work will be located on Salt Lick and will be set up within a short time.

A good crowd attended Bosco Theater last Wednesday night to see the famous picture made from Peter B. Kyne's "The Enchanted Hill." The picture was a high class western, starring some of the best players of today.

JOLLY HAY RIDE

What was probably one of the jolliest times ever known around Bosco was enacted and enjoyed by the following participants, in a hay-ride Sunday night: Claude, Bert and Miss Gola Huff, Leroy and Opal Coburn, Johnny Allen, Hobart Hayes, Earl Allen, Mr. and Mrs. Bud Turner, Mr. and Mrs. Alex Damron, Misses Cara Hayes and Clarice Webb.

A wagon belonging to Johnny Hayes was secured; a team belonging to Will Hayes, and some hay from the feed house of F. P. Hays. With these the procession got under way, lumbering up the road as far as Garrett and returning. Considerable gear trouble had to be attended to, along with Hobart Hayes and Mr. Turner who landed in a soft-surfaced mudhole when the back end of the wagon broke off short.

Claude Huff, Cara Hayes, Opal Coburn and Hobart Hayes claim credit for first suggesting the recreation. Mrs. Damron, wife of our school principal, was chaperon.

... about your Social Security

People who receive Social Security disability benefits as well as benefits from another public disability program should be aware of a recent change in the law that provides for an offset that may limit the total amount of their disability benefits.

The provision, enacted last summer as a part of P. L. 97-35, extends the Social Security disability offset that applied to workers' compensation to certain other public disability benefits provided by Federal, State and local programs. Under the law, payments to a disabled worker who also receives another public disability benefit cannot exceed 80 percent of the worker's average earnings before he or she became disabled. The age at which the offset applies was also raised from 62 to 65.

The offset applies to people who become disabled after February 1981 and who first become entitled to disability benefits for months after August 1981. It will apply the first month the disabled beneficiary receives both Social Security and the public disability benefit.

The offset will not apply to needs-based benefits, to Veterans Administration disability benefits, private pensions, or insurance benefits, or public employee pensions based on service covered under Social Security.

A Social Security survey showed that about 44 percent of people who received Social Security disability benefits also received benefits from various other public and private programs. Total benefits to these people were, on the average, more than twice the amount paid to those receiving Social Security disability benefits only. About 12,000 workers and dependents are expected to be affected in fiscal year 1982.

People who need more information on the disability offset provision should contact any Social Security office.

Q. I expect to receive a disability benefit from a State job that I held for 20 years, as well as from Social Security. How can I find out if the offset will apply?

A. If you did not pay Social Security taxes while employed by the State, the work was not covered by Social Security and chances are the offset will apply. Check with your Social Security office.

Q. I applied for disability benefits in July 1981. Will the offset apply to me?

A. Only if you became disabled after February 1981 and your first check starts after August 1981.

DRUG RAID NETS 44

Kentucky State Police have concluded a two-month undercover narcotics investigation which is expected to result in arrest of 44 people from Louisville's Portland area.

The Louisville Police Department assisted state police in taking several suspects into custody. The state police investigation resulted in 69 sealed indictments from the Jefferson County grand jury, according to a state police press release. Of that total, 65 were felonies.

State Police Commissioner Marion D. Campbell said this investigation is part of a continuing effort by his agency to alleviate Kentucky's drug-related problems.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of my dear mother, Mae Williams Akers, who passed away Feb. 6, 1981.

It has been one year ago today Since mother passed away, In a cold and silent graveyard just a few miles away, Lies a form of my dear mother Who is sleeping day by day. Your going left an empty spot in my heart. That never can be filled. And many years slowly pass But the pain will linger still. We often sit and think of you, and how you died, And to think we couldn't say good-bye Before you closed your eyes. Some may think we have forgotten you Here on earth you are no more, But in memory you are just as you were before. So sleep on dear mother, take your heavenly rest Not a wave of trouble rolls across your peaceful breast. A voice we love is still A seat is vacant that never can be filled.

Home-Bound Care Taught at MSU

Care for medically home-bound patients requires more than just medicine.

"You have to look at a person as a total being and consider their mental and social as well as physical needs," says Pauline Ramey, assistant professor of nursing at Morehead State University.

Preparing home health aides to provide such needs was the basis of 60 hours of instruction throughout Kentucky in home nursing care and nutrition. As part of a federally-funded continuing education program administered by the Kentucky Department for Human Resources, Mrs. Ramey and Eena J. Adams, assistant professor of home economics at MSU, taught more than 100 aides who currently care for home-bound patients.

Using a curriculum prepared by the National Council for Homemakers-Home Health Aide Services, Inc., Ramey and Adams adapted the material to teach student's specific needs.

"Some of the ladies had zero experience, some had years of experience," Ramey says. "Some of them may not have a degree at all, but I saw more love and compassion than I have seen anywhere."

The students, who Ramey says are of all ages and backgrounds, were awarded continuing education credits for the classes, which were counted as work days.

Sara Hellard, who coordinated the program for the state, says she came to Morehead for help because, "I found the attitude and the willingness to cooperate so accommodating." She added that the department will hold similar workshops on the Morehead and Bowling Green campuses this year for licensed and registered nurses.

First Presbyterian Elects Elders, Deacons

Flowers were placed in the sanctuary of the First Presbyterian Church for both morning and evening services by Mr. and Mrs. Fred James in honor of their anniversary.

The evening program was preceded by a pot-luck supper under the sponsorship of the Board of Deacons. During the church business meeting that followed, reports were heard from the various organizations of the church, and business transacted. James E. Goble, clerk, gave the statistical report, and the financial secretary, Gladys Allen, and the treasurer, Wesley Howard, submitted their reports.

Reports were printed from the women of the church, the Men's Fellowship, the Sunday School, and from the historian, Jack Freed.

Elected as ruling elders were Rose Price and Leatha Kendrick, to succeed Gladys Allen and Joe Hobson. Mr. Hobson was elected Ruling Elder Emeritus, and will be recognized on the Sunday nearest his birthday, February 21.

★ CANCER HOPELINE ★

Q. My neighbor has cancer and is going to a famous research and teaching hospital for treatment. Is it worth it? Isn't she just a guinea pig for somebody's research project?

A. The decision on where to go for cancer treatment is a very personal one based on many factors.

The care provided in a teaching and research hospital is very attractive, the staff is highly competent, and the patient is assured of the most up-to-date treatment.

However, there are demands placed on the patient which may be disturbing or comforting, depending on the individual. Patients are often interviewed many times by physicians, nurses, psychologists, and social workers. Members of the medical staff other than the patient's own doctor also may conduct examinations. Certainly, any patient has the right to refuse treatment by any physician other than his/her own (except in emergencies when quick decisions are vital).

If a person is apt to be bothered by the care patterns described above, he or she would be wise to seek treatment where only the attending physician and/or staff carrying out his direct orders are involved.

You demonstrate your care and concern for your neighbor when you express concern about her participation in cancer research. Many people believe patients are experimented on without their knowledge, but this is not true.

Every proposed research project must be approved by the hospital's research committee, following strict guidelines for evaluating whether or not a particular project can be carried out at that hospital. Thus, the clinician wanting to test theories does not make the final decision. In addition, every patient who participates in a research project must sign a consent form which explains to him/her both the possible advantages and the risks of participating.

If you would like to know more about cancer and it's treatment or if you have other cancer-related questions, give the Cancer Hopeline a call. The toll free number is 1-800-432-9321. Counselors are on duty from 9-9 Monday-Thursday and 9-5 Friday. Or write us at 915 South Limestone Street, Lexington, KY 40536. All literature and services are free.

Chinese Art Exhibit Scheduled at MSU

An exhibit of contemporary Chinese calligraphy and paintings is scheduled at Morehead State University's Claypool-Young Art Gallery from Feb. 16 through Feb. 26.

Sponsored by the Republic of China's National Museum of History and the American Association of State Colleges and Universities, the traveling exhibit includes selected works by eminent modern Chinese artists.

Calligraphy, the art of handwriting Chinese characters, has increased in popularity throughout the twentieth century. Based on traditions passed down from generation to generation, many writing styles, including the modern formal and cursive styles, the ancient style and seal script, are depicted in modern calligraphy.

Chinese painting, an ancient art more than 3,000 years old, has been changing throughout this century because of the influence of Western Art. While continuing to follow traditional Chinese theories and methods, today's painters have added Western techniques to their skills.

The MSU gallery is open weekdays from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. The exhibit is free and open to the public.

It is said to be bad luck to bring your broom from your old house to your new one.

Cattle Rustlers Are On the Prowl in Ky.

Cattle rustling, a crime historically associated with a slumping economy, is on the upswing in several states. Increasing livestock thefts plague the Midwest, as one might expect, but rustlers also are causing problems in Kentucky.

In mid-December, thieves stole 25 steers valued at more than $7,000 from Trigg County farm. Just a few days before that theft, two dairy cows worth more than $1,500 were taken from a Laurel County farm. In November, rustlers in Rockcastle County made off with seven beef calves, representing another $1,500 loss.

According to Kentucky livestock sanitation director J.D. Wolf, the conviction of several thieves in central Kentucky has caused rustling to pick up in the western part of the state. He said there were five or six convictions in late 1980 and early 1981, and several court cases are now pending.

Economic trends seem to have generated this surge in cattle thievery. "When cattle prices and unemployment are high, as they are now, these two factors combine to produce increased activity by rustlers," said Wolf. "Rustlers sell the stolen cattle when the market is up and consume the meat prices are low."

Livestock are usually an accessible target which present relatively little risk to the thief. "Fences designed to keep cattle in can't be expected to keep thieves out," said Dr. Roy Burris, Extension beef cattle specialist at the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture's Research and Education Center in Princeton. "Isolated and widespread herds can't be watched constantly," he added.

Pat Carter, spokeswoman for the state veterinarian's office, termed cattle rustling "an easy theft" and explained that because of the large numbers in many herds, cattle often can be taken without the farmer noticing they are missing.

Carter said dairy cattle are more difficult to steal than beef because they are handled more often—usually twice a day for milking purposes. The dairy farmer therefore is more apt to "know his cows" and tell readily when one is missing.

"Calves also are an easy mark for thieves," said Carter. "When someone approaches a calf, the animal thinks the person is trying to feed it."

Cattle thieves generally tour remote back-country roads to spot cattle and loading sites, according to Burris. "Most thieves are experts at handling a trailer and loading cattle quickly," he said. "It might not take more than 30 minutes to pull in, load and drive off."

The specialist added that thieves try to determine if the owner has a set pattern for checking and feeding cattle, so they can work around that schedule.

In many cases, cattle are shot and slaughtered in the field. "It is easier to put 200-300 pounds of carcass beef in the trunk of a car than to load live cattle in a trailer," said Burris.

Sources agree that it is often difficult to locate stolen cattle and Burris said the lack of proper identification usually is the reason way.

"A well-designed brand is the most effective means of identifying cattle and is a deterrent to thieves as well," said Burris. Ownership can be established by registering a brand with the State Department of Agriculture, which has more than 300 farmer's brands on record, and then properly applying it to each animal. Burris said records also should be kept of numbers on ear tags or tattoos along with such information as gender and color.

According to the state veterinarian's office, the cattle stolen in Trigg County were unmarked and will be difficult to trace. Wolf noted that in early 1981, 60-70 head of cattle stolen in Bourbon County were recovered easily because a branded brucellosis reactor was detected at the Paris Stockyards, where the thief was trying to sell the cattle. "We never would have suspected anything if the cattle hadn't been branded," said Wolf.

Democrats Tell How Delegates To Be Picked

Kentucky Democratic Headquarters announced last week the process by which delegates will be selected to the 1982 Democratic National Mid-Term Conference to be held in Philadelphia, June 25-27.

To be eligible for selection as a delegate, a registered Democrat must file a written notification of his or her desire to be a delegate with the Kentucky Democratic Party, P.O. Box 694, Frankfort, Ky. 40602, by March 11, 1982.

Five delegates and three replacement delegates will be selected by the Kentucky Democratic State Central Executive Committee at its meeting, to be held on Monday, March 15. The delegates will be equally divided between male and female and at least one delegate shall be black and one shall be 30 years of age or under. All interested Democrats are encouraged to participate in this selection process.

★ KENTUCKY AFIELD ★

TROUT STOCKING BEGINS
Although January and February aren't the ideal fishing months in Kentucky, fisheries crews from the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources are braving cold winds and icy launching ramps to stock rainbow trout in several lakes around the commonwealth.

The trout don't mind the cold weather. In fact, they prefer water temperatures around 54 degrees and remain active even when ice starts to form on the surfaces of the lakes where they are stocked.

Winter stocking assures a high survival rate because warm-water predator fish are inactive in cold water. By the time the lakes warm up enough for the predators to become active, the trout are accustomed to their new surroundings and are better able to stay out of trouble.

One welcome addition to the stocking schedule this year is Cumberland Lake, where repair work on the dam caused a suspension of the trout stocking program for several years. But now that work has been completed and water levels are back to normal, the stocking program has been resumed.

While the lake was drawn down for repairs, trout habitat—a layer of cold, oxygenladen water—became severely limited, with trout survival and angler success both dropping according to Ted Crowell, assistant fisheries director of the fish and wildlife department.

Cumberland will be stocked at about the same rate it was before—around 100,000 trout per year—but the fish will now be larger. Instead of six- to nine-inch trout, current plans call for trout with a minimum length of nine inches. This means that many trout will be in the 10- to 14-inch range when stocked.

Fisheries biologists expect the trout fishing at Cumberland to be as good as, if not better than, it was before the program was discontinued in the middle 70s. And there won't be a wait for the fish to grow up, since they are being stocked at a catchable size.

Laurel, Stanford and Woods Creek lakes are scheduled for winter stocking, and several smaller lakes around the state will receive trout in April, May and October. Streams and tailwaters will begin receiving trout in early April.

As the water warms and the trout move deeper, most anglers switch to still fishing with "organic" baits such as worms, cheese or whole kernel corn. During the heat of summer, the best fishing is generally after dark.

Trout fishermen must have a trout stamp in addition to a valid fishing (or combination) license. The $3.50 price of the stamp pays for hauling and stocking the trout, which are obtained free from the federal hatchery system.

FLOYD COUNTY HEALTH NEWS
By JANE BOND
Health Educator

Venereal disease has been called the No. 1 communicable disease in the United States. Not so very long ago no one talked about these diseases, but this attitude is changing as more people become aware of the drastic effects of gonorrhoea, syphilis and other sexually transmitted diseases.

Many times these diseases have no outward symptoms. If you think you have recently been exposed to V.D., you need to have an examination to determine whether or not the disease is present. Since the symptoms, if they do appear, vary from person to person, an examination is the only way to be sure.

The Floyd County Health Department has a V.D. Control Program, and anyone who thinks he or she may have been exposed to V.D. may come to the Health Department to be checked. Kentucky law permits the treatment of minors for venereal disease without parent's permission.

A nurse from the Health Department will be in Wayland at the Methodist Church next Monday (Feb. 8) from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m., to offer T.B. skin tests, urinalyses, blood pressures, anemia screening and immunizations.

The Wheelwright branch office of the Health Department is now open Monday-Friday from 8 a.m. till 4:30 p.m. Services offered include blood pressures, T.B. skin tests, urinalyses, anemia screenings and immunizations. Special services such as WIC, EPSDT and Family Planning are offered on an appointment basis.

To Wed Saturday

Mr. and Mrs. Everett Hunter, of Martin, announce the engagement and forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Trudy Gaye, to Mr. Gary Dale Johnson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Grover Johnson, of Buckingham, Ky.

Miss Hunter is a graduate of Allen Central High School and Mayo State Vocational School and is employed with Sandy Valley Explosive Co., Inc.

Mr. Johnson is a graduate of Wheelwright High School and is employed with P & G Coal Company.

The wedding will be solemnized Saturday, February 6, at 3 p.m. at the Martin Methodist Church in Martin, Ky. The gracious custom of open ceremony will be observed.

A reception will be held in the church fellowship hall immediately following the ceremony.

Scoop Decapitates Pike County Miner
A 28-year-old man was killed last Thursday in a mining accident while operating a scoop to extract coal from a mine near Rockhouse in Pike county.

Kenneth Moore, of Danville, Va., was pronounced dead at the scene after the accident in the Moore and Moore Co. mine, operated by his uncles, Pike County Coroner Bradford Hall said.

There were no witnesses, but Hall said Moore, who had been employed at the mine about six months, was decapitated by a rock that apparently had been dislodged by the scoop. The 5:25 p.m. accident occurred about 2,300 feet inside the mine.

The accident was the sixth in a series of coal field accidents that have claimed the lives of 34 miners in the past two months. Eight days ago, two Pike county miners were killed in a roof fall at a family-operated mine near Phelps. Seven men were killed in an explosion and fire at another family-operated mine near Craynor.

Plastic bottles turned into a tie? The January Reader's Digest reports that Goodyear has produced a polyester bottle than can be turned into wall tiles, suits, home insulation or roofing material. It takes two polyester bottles to make a tie. That's what you call real recycling.

Formula For Grant Distribution Approved

FRANKFORT, Ky.—A state advisory committee has approved a formula for distributing federal block grant money to local school districts.

The Advisory Committee on Federal Funding for Education approved the formula during a meeting Jan. 21 in Frankfort. The proposed formula now goes to the secretary of the U.S. Department of Education for further approval.

The formula will be used to distribute federal money available under Title II, which consolidates 28 programs, including basic skills, school library resources, community education, gifted and talented, health, and career education. Local school districts must receive 80 percent of the block grant. Twenty percent can be retained on the state level.

It isn't known exactly how much money Kentucky will get under the block grant, said Alice McDonald, head of the Kentucky Education Department's office of federal programs. "We know at this point that we have $6.8 million under the continuing resolution passed by Congress. But that figure could be cut again. It may be September before we have a firm figure to work with," she said.

Under the distribution formula approved last week, each local school district will get an allotment based on the total enrollment of pupils in its public and private schools, based on the latest available data. Additional funds will be allotted to districts that have: high transportation costs due to sparsely settled areas; a high percentage of children eligible for Title I (a remedial reading and math program for economically deprived students); or a tax rate above the state average with an expenditure per pupil below the state average.

PUBLIC NOTICE TO OWNERS OF RENTAL HOUSING

The Floyd County Housing Authority is administering a Section 8 Moderate Rehabilitation Program in Floyd County using funds provided by the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Under this program, owners will rehabilitate rental units which are now substandard or have major building systems or components requiring repair or replacement. The cost of this work, which must total at least $1000 per unit, may be financed by a local lending institution, by the owner, or by any other source available to the owner. The agency does not make rehabilitation loans or grants, but will assist owners to obtain financing.

After required rehabilitation work has been completed, the agency and the owner will execute a contract which establishes a rent for the unit(s) that will cover rehabilitation costs, meet monthly operating expenses, and allow a reasonable profit on the owner's investment. For a fifteen year period, the owner will rent the rehabilitated unit(s) to eligible lower income tenants, who will pay approximately 25 percent of their income toward the rent. The agency will pay the remainder of the rent directly to the owner. The initial occupant of a rehabilitated unit may be the owner's present eligible tenant. After rehabilitation the rent (including utilities) cannot exceed the following Maximum Rents:

BEDROOM SIZE
1	2	3	4
206	244	282	319

The agency's current funds will allow rehabilitation of 35 units of rental housing as follows:

1 BR	2 BR	3 BR	4 BR
8	18	7	2

No unit will be assisted which results in the permanent displacement of a current tenant.

Proposals from owners will be received by the Housing Authority until further notice.

Owners who wish to submit a proposal must obtain an application form from:

Spring Semester Enrollment, 777

The enrollment statistics for the 1982 spring semester at Prestonsburg Community College, released by Mrs. Brenda C. Music, admissions officer, shows a total of 777—the largest spring enrollment ever at the college.

It also was the second largest enrollment in the history of the College. This semester's enrollment is a 5.3 percent increase over the enrollment a year ago which was 738.

Dr. Henry A. Campbell, Jr., director of the college, attributes the increase to the increased awareness by residents in the five-county area served by the college of the quality educational programs and instructors available at P.C.C.

Named To Dean's List

George Christopher Stephens, son of Mr. and Mrs. Danny Stephens, of Langley, has been named to the Dean's List for the fall term at Transylvania University in Lexington. To be eligible, students must achieve a B plus average for the semester.

He is a sophomore and is majoring in chemistry-biology.

Church Protests Reduction In Federal Mine Supervision

UMWA's President Sam Church, Jr. and Vice President Wilbert Killion met Monday with Vice President George Bush, Labor Secretary Raymond J. Donovan and Assistant Secretary of Labor for Mine Safety and Health Ford B. Ford in the wake of a rash of coal mine accidents which have taken 16 lives in the first 22 days of 1982 and 39 lives in the past seven weeks.

Church told the administration officials that he believed that much of the reason for the steadily increasing death toll in the nation's coal mine could be traced to problems in efficiency, personnel and morale with MSHA. "We have 25% fewer inspectors now than we had in 1978 and there are nearly 450 more coal mines in operation," Church said. "There has been a hiring freeze, morale is low because of that and RIF notices, and it appears that inspections are not being conducted as well as they could be."

Church asked that the hiring freeze be lifted and that new and stronger emphasis be placed on completing the inspections as mandated by law.

The administration officials promised that the situation would be studied and that an answer to the UMWA concerns and requests would be forthcoming.

"If a rash of accidents were killing legislators and bureaucrats at one-tenth the rate they are killing coal miners, this country would have hundred-million-dollar safety programs coming out its ears," Church said after the meeting.

"I don't care what level the problems are on," he said. "We must address them on the federal level, on the state level and on the level of the individual mine owner and miner."

"We are dealing on the national level today," Church said. "MSHA is not being given the resources, the direction and the teeth to do its job adequately."

"If they try to cut another dime from the MSHA budget," he said, responding to rumors that further cuts are planned, "they will be showing the American coal miner that dollars are more important to them than coal miners' lives."

The problems, said Church, are not limited to those at MSHA. State safety efforts also need to be examined and improved.

"The death toll in West Virginia was down last year from 34 to 28, but that still isn't good enough," he said.

Church was in Charleston, W. Va., discussing the problems and needs of the state Coal Mine Health and Safety Board when the latest coal mine disaster struck in Kentucky last Wednesday.

"In Kentucky, the death toll rose in 1981 to 41 and this year 11 of the 16 coal mine fatalities have been suffered in that state," he said.

"Governor John Y. Brown is appointing an investigative committee including UMWA members to look into that state's safety problems, including blasting methods," Church said. "But it is clear that more than committees are needed."

Gov. Brown ordered a special inspection of blasting procedures which resulted in the closing of 17 Kentucky mines the first day.

"This shows that the inspection procedure as it has been carried out has not been protecting the lives of coal miners," Church said. "Enforcement of the law is the way to stop these tragedies."

"We contacted legislators and congressmen after the Topmost disaster claimed eight lives and sounded the alarm," he said. "That alarm is ringing louder than ever with the latest deaths."

"If anybody thinks it is impossible to do the job of making this nation's coal mines safe," Church concluded, "They should look to Illinois, where 95 percent of the coal miners are UMWA members and where miners, state inspectors, federal inspectors and company people worked together and got through 1981 without a single coal mine fatality."

Gas producers and the cost of natural gas.

The cost of natural gas, like all energy costs, has risen sharply ... not only for you, but for Columbia, too. And to find the reasons, you have to start with those who produce the gas we buy. Because the increases you've seen in your gas bill come in large part from the increased cost of producing the natural gas you need.

□ For example, in just the past four years, the cost of drilling a typical natural gas well has nearly doubled to close to half a million dollars. And there's no guarantee that the well will produce. The risk is enormous—but necessary—in order to replace the huge amounts of gas we're using daily and to keep the pipeline full.

□ Increased producer costs mean higher gas bills, because Columbia has to pay more for its gas, whether it comes from Appalachian wells or from the Southwest. But when you consider it means more gas available and more sources being developed for future needs, it's worth it.

Brown To Ask Stiff Drunk Driving Law

Gov. John Y. Brown Jr. said that he will propose a new drunken-driving law and possibly a state task force to study the subject this week.

He made his promise to about 20 representatives of the Louisville chapter of MADD. (Mothers Against Drunk Drivers).

"We're going to come out with a much tougher law," Brown said, adding that he had suggested the meeting with MADD representatives.

"We were happy that he was concerned," said Lois Wendhorst, the founder of the Louisville chapter, after a 45-minute meeting with the governor.

Mrs. Wendhorst said Brown and his aides invited her to discuss the specifics of a new drunken-driving law with state Justice Department Secretary Neil Welch.

MADD members said Brown had doubts about their call for a mandatory two-day sentence for first-time drunken-driving convictions.

Kentucky law now imposes fines of $100 to $500 for first offenses, the same fine and three days to six months in jail the second time, and the fine and one to 12 months in jail for additional offenses.

MADD members asked Brown to recommend a law similar to California's which sets mandatory jail sentences for all such offenses.

MADD was organized nationally in 1980 to press for new drunken-driving laws, support victims of drunken drivers and monitor traffic courts where those charged with drunken driving appear.

Many members of the Louisville chapter have lost relatives to accidents involving drunken drivers. Mrs. Wendhorst lost her father-in-law and mother-in-law in an accident on Father's Day in 1980.

Mrs. Wendhorst said Brown told her the state was not ready to put drunken drivers in jail on their first convictions.

"The public would be ready," she said. "The state police have asked, we have asked. If a first-time offender kills somebody, he (the victim) is just as dead as for a third-time offender. Just the jail time is going to deter people."

A Louisville police officer from the overnight traffic shift joined the MADD members in their meeting. Officer James Gooete noted after the meeting that 85 percent of all fatal accidents occur on his 9:30 p.m. to 5:30 a.m. shift, and that at least half of all accidents involve drunken drivers.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe H. Garrett, of Endicott, announce the engagement and forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Teresa, to Mr. David E. Taylor, son of the Rev. and Mrs. Ralph E. Taylor, father of the groom, officiating. A reception will immediately follow in the church annex.

The wedding is planned for Saturday, February 13, at 5 p.m. at the Irene Cole Memorial Baptist Church in Prestonsburg, with the Rev. Ralph E. Taylor, father of the groom, officiating. A reception will immediately follow in the church annex.

Who Is Eligible For Disability?

An individual's physical or mental impairment must be the primary reason for the person's inability to work if he or she is to be eligible for Social Security disability benefits, Jim Kelly, Social Security District Director for the Big Sandy Area, said recently.

"Moreover," Kelly added, "the physical or mental impairment must be medically determinable—that is, the condition must be subject to verification by medically acceptable clinical or laboratory diagnostic techniques." In addition, the impairment must have lasted, or be expected to last, at least 12 months.

Being displaced from a job as a result of technological changes in an industry, or being laid off from work because of adverse economic conditions, does not make a person eligible for Social Security Disability benefits, Kelly pointed out. "The impairment must be of such a serious nature that the individual is unable to engage in any substantial gainful work that exists in the national economy, regardless of whether such work is available in the immediate area in which the person resides."

"Neither can consideration be given to whether a specific job vacancy exists or whether the person would be hired if he or she applied for the job." "However, any worker who has paid into Social Security and is off work because of a disability should file an application without delay," Kelly said.

Additional information about eligibility requirements under the Social Security disability insurance program may be obtained from the Big Sandy Social Security Office, located on U.S. 23 between Prestonsburg and Paintsville.

Celebrates Birthday

Rachel Liane Wallen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tim Wallen, of West Prestonsburg, celebrated her second birthday, Jan. 23 with a party at the home of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Allen, of the Abbott Road. She received many nice gifts. She is also the granddaughter of Mrs. Ethel Wallen, of West Prestonsburg.

Business Side Of Crafts Is Subject Of Workshops

Kentucky craftsmen, whose talents tend toward the artistic more than the business side of the industry, will have an opportunity to learn more about the later at two major workshops in February.

The Kentucky Arts and Crafts Foundation, in cooperation with Morehead State University and Prestonsburg Community College, will hold a workshop on "Sound Business Practices and Product Costing."

One workshop is scheduled Feb. 5 at Morehead State and another Feb. 6 at Prestonsburg Community College. On each day, the session on "Product Costing" will be held from 9 a.m. to 12 noon and the session on "Sound Business Practices" will be held from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m.

"All workshop leaders and teachers are professional craftsmen with years of successful experience in the crafts," said Mary Norton Shands, president of the Craft Foundation, a non-profit organization established in early 1981 to help promote Kentucky crafts. "This was one of the things Phyllis George Brown wanted to see done when she agreed to serve as chairman of the Foundation," Shands added.

A $3 registration fee will be charged to cover materials, and continuing education credit of 0.6 hours will be granted to those who attend the workshop.

Accurate costing of a product can mean the success of failure of a craft business, Mrs. Shands explained. The "product costing" workshop is designed to aid craftsmen in developing accurate methods of costing their work. Included are ways to figure material costs, overhead, discounts, sales commissions and profit. Also included will be discussions of how each of the above relates to the other for total honest and accurate costing of a product.

Once a craftsman has his design, his production and his costing worked out, he must next be able to sell his work. That involves the actual sale, shipping, billing and receiving payment. All too often, Shands explained, sound business practices are overlooked in the important final stage. The workshop on sound business practices is designed to help craftspeople in developing sound systems for completing the sale and getting paid for the work they have done. Included are order-entry systems, basic methods of receiving, recording and shipping, paper forms—packing slips, invoices, purchase orders, etc., and what to do about late payment.

Kentucky craftspeople interested in attending the Morehead State workshop should contact Shirley Hamilton, 606-783-4731. To register for the Prestonsburg workshop, contact Tony Arms, 606-886-3863.

DHR To Reduce Jobless Services, Result of Federal Cutbacks

Because of federal funding reductions in Employment Service and the Work Incentive Program, the Department for Human Resources will be forced to severely reduce employment services to Kentucky's jobless and its employers.

This recent cut is retroactive to Oct. 1, 1981, meaning that the department will have to reduce services to make up for money already spent.

"Although the full impact of these cuts is not fully known, we already know that we will be forced to close or substantially reduce many employment offices throughout the state," Department for Human Resources Secretary Grady Stumbo said.

Currently the department's Bureau for Manpower Services operates 48 full-time and 45 part-time Employment Service offices around the state. These offices are presently providing employment services to about 169,000 Kentuckians. The offices also serves 34,500 of the state's employers, more than 500 of whom use the department's services exclusively.

Last year, the department's Employment Service offices placed more than 59,000 Kentuckians in jobs. This meant over $500 million to the state in increased tax revenues, decreased unemployment and welfare payments.

These employment-related services are funded through a special tax authorized by the Federal Unemployment Tax Act. "Despite the $1.8 million reduction in federal funds for employment services, federal officials have not indicated that this tax on Kentucky's businesses will be reduced," Stumbo said.

The Work Incentive Program (WIN) will be also severely reduced by these recent cuts. The state's WIN program will receive $1.3 million less from the federal government.

The WIN program provides job referral and counseling services to unemployed Kentuckians receiving food stamps and Aid to Families with Dependent Children. During Federal FY 81, approximately $4.9 million in tax dollars was saved due to WIN participants entering unsubsidized employment.

"These cuts in funding will inevitably lead to reduced services to the very group of people that the Reagan Administration calls 'most in need,'" Stumbo commented. "These cuts will affect the people who have lost their jobs through no fault of their own and are searching for employment. We will have to reduce services to help people find jobs at a time when Kentucky's unemployment rate has jumped to 10.4 percent."

PRESTONSBURG JOB CORPS A YEAR IN REVIEW

FOLLOWING THE LUNCHEON, GUESTS WILL BE CONDUCTED ON A TOUR OF OUR FACILITIES. YOU'RE INVITED TO ATTEND AND MEET OUR STUDENTS AND STAFF.

SUPERMAN

In 1978, "Superman" was released by Warner Bros. and became an impressive memory in the minds of millions of movie-goers.

"Superman" headlined a stellar cast of popular talent: Marlon Brando, Gene Hackman, Ned Beatty, Margot Kidder, Jackie Cooper, Susannah York and introduced Christopher Reeve (pictured) as the Man of Steel.

Christopher's description as an 'unknown' at the time of the filming of this spectacular motion picture was not quite true to the fact, as at the age of 24, he had worked more than ten years as a professional actor including a stint on Broadway and on tour opposite Katherine Hepburn.

"Superman" will air in two parts on ABC-TV, SUNDAY, FEBRUARY 7 and Monday, February 8.

Kenny Rogers

Kenny Rogers' deal with CBS Records for a multi-million dollar contract is reportedly off. Industry sources report Rogers would have earned some $30 million plus in the deal.

Meanwhile, the singer's lawsuit against Liberty Records has been settled out of court, with Rogers fulfilling his contract to record two more albums for the label.

His Liberty single, "Blaze of Glory" is one of the country's hottest singles, and his three albums, 'Christmas, Greatest Hits and Share Your Love,' are still on the country LP charts.

Eddie Rabbitt has been named the 1982 honorary chairman for the National Mental Health Association.

Don Williams will tape a guest appearance on the second annual "Country Comes Home." The taping for the CBS-TV special will be done in March at The Grand Ole Opry House. The show will review the top country hits of 1981.

Williams' MCA single, "Lord I Hope This Day Is Good," is adding to his already long string of hit records.

David Frizzell and Shelly West

David Frizzell and Shelly West got in off the road from their California tour just in time to sit with People magazine for an interview and photo session.

Attend Hearings, Official Advises

One of the ways people can become more involved in government, and thus have a voice in how governmental decisions affect them, is by attending and taking part in public meetings and hearings, according to Tracy Farmer, secretary of the state Cabinet for Public Protection and Regulation.

"One of our agencies, the Public Service Commission, conducted approximately 350 public hearings in 1981," Farmer said. "All of these hearings were open to the public and yet most were sparsely attended." The PSC is the state agency that regulates all but municipal utilities in Kentucky. Its hearings concern service, construction, rates, borrowings, and other matters of the utilities.

"These hearings are similar to court proceedings with witnesses testifying and attorneys asking questions," according to Farmer. Technical and financial information needed by the commission is gathered at the hearings.

A citizen can become involved in the hearings in several ways. He can ask to make a statement which will become part of the case record, he can ask to intervene on his own behalf, he and fellow citizens can have an attorney represent them as a group, or he can work through the Attorney General's Consumer Protection Division.

Almost all the public hearings are held in Frankfort.

The commission sometimes holds public meetings in communities served by the utilities.

These meetings are held primarily to receive public comment and testimony on a proposed rate, on service, or on a possible regulatory change. "The PSC recently held such meetings in Louisville and Lexington on whether gas an electric utilities should be prevented from cutting off service during winter for non-payment of bills," Farmer said. The commission also recently held a public meeting in this county—on rates charged by a Stanville gas company—and has one scheduled for Covington in February.

"The actions of the PSC affect most Kentuckians," Farmer said. "Because of that, I urge everyone to attend and become involved in the commission's hearings and meetings."

The Public Service Commission can be contacted at (502) 564-3940 or P.O. Box 615, Frankfort, Kentucky 40602.

'Creationism' Bill Examined On KET

From outside-the-courtroom interviews to exclusive conversations with Arkansas residents, "Creation-Science On Trial" examines what went on in Little Rock, Ark. during the "Creation-Science" trial which took place from December 7 to 18, 1981.

The half-hour special documentary, airing Friday, February 12 at 9 p.m. on KET, outlines the major issues and the local responses toward Arkansas' Act 590 which called for "balanced treatment of creation-science and evolution in public schools in Arkansas."

The bill, which received endorsement from the Governor of Arkansas, and which passed both houses of that state's legislature, was challenged in court by 23 Arkansians working with the American Civil Liberties Union.

With similar legislation pending in 20 other states, "Creation-Science On Trial" looks at an educational issue of national importance.

"Creation-Science On Trial" is a production of Kingfisher Films.

JOBLESS RATE UP

Kentucky's unemployment rate jumped from a revised 9.4 percent in November to 10.4 percent in December, according to the Human Resources' labor market analyst section.

The number of employed Kentuckians in December was 1,458,200. That is a 37,600 drop from the number employed in November.

FEW JOBS IN ALASKA LABOR OFFICIAL WARNS

Alaska's Commissioner of Labor, Edmund N. Orbeck, urges that job seekers in other states not come to Alaska unless they have a firm offer of employment. Orbeck says that economic conditions across the country have led many workers to leave their home states to seek unemployment; and that nationally publicity concerning proposed construction of the Alaska Highway Gas Pipeline is resulting in large numbers of job seekers coming to Alaska. "Unfortunately," Orbeck says, "many of these job seekers have based their decision to come North on inaccurate or incomplete information, and find that no jobs are available in Alaska where their limited food and housing dollars disappear at an accelerated rate because the cost-of-living is high."
