County Judge-Executive

Lafferty Says Drug Fight Aid Will Be Asked

The scene in the county judge-executive's offices Monday was unmistakable. It was the changing of the guard.

Except for County Attorney Arnold Turner, Jr., who will serve both administrations, and a couple of holdover secretaries, who were counting the minutes before their jobs would be at an end, no vestige remained of the former administration.

Desks had been cleared out, walls stripped, drawers emptied. A workman was preparing to change locks on the doors and file cabinets. Even the coffee pot was gone.

The offices would soon bustle with new people—friends supporters, well-wishers, seekers of favors—and, at the center of the throng, Judge-Executive Jerry Lafferty, Jr.

Grace Damron, secretary to former Judge-Executive Bill Wells, performed the final rite of passage, handing over to the new judge the combination to the safe, a number of check books, a bunch of keys, some cash designated "soft-ball money," and reminding him that the "Social Security deadline" drew near.

Lafferty, who an hour earlier had taken the oath of office before Circuit Judge Hollie Conley, was effectively installed.

Floyd Man Held On $165,000 Bail In Johnson Jail

A Hi Hat man was held in the Johnson county jail in lieu of $165,000 cash bond early Saturday morning after holding hostage for several hours three police officers who had arrested him.

According to reports, Ransom Mullins, 25, was arrested at Star Musicland, near Paintsville, around 2 a.m. Saturday on charges of public intoxication and possession of marijuana.

The arresting officers, identified as Constable Edgar Sherman and Deputy Sheriffs Rufus Blair and Doug Arms, placed Mullins in the back seat of a police cruiser, where he reportedly drew a pistol from his boot, commandeering the vehicle and forcing the officers to drive him into Floyd county.

When it stopped at Allen to refuel, Deputy Sheriff Blair reportedly got out of the car while Mullins continued to train his pistol on the other officers. Blair reported their plight to the gas station attendant, who handed the officer a hammer, according to the report.

Trial Of Mine Operators Set For Next Week

It appears that the case of a Johnson county coal operator and his son, charged with assaulting a mine inspector early last summer, will finally come to trial next week.

Alvis Randall Frasure, 36, of Martin, a mine analyst for the state Department of Mines and Minerals, told Johnson Circuit Court Judge W.B. Hazelrigg that Jerry Mullins, about 30, struck him and kicked him for about 15 minutes during an inspection of Meally Coal Co.'s No. 5 mine at River on June 5, causing him "serious cuts and abrasions and other extensive injuries."

Mullins' father, Dewey, about 60, kept Frasure from entering his truck and exposed him to additional physical injury, the mining official charged.

Judge Hazelrigg last month overruled a motion by then-Commonwealth's Attorney Paul Deaton to dismiss charges against the two men, saying he thought the case should be handled by the newly elected commonwealth's attorney, John David Preston. Preston defeated Deaton in the May primary.

While the Mullinses are reputed to be political allies of Deaton, the former commonwealth's attorney said this had nothing to do with his motion to have the charges against them dismissed. He tried to have the case dropped, he said, because witnesses said it was Frasure who began the fight.

In a June interview with the Paintsville Herald, Frasure said the incident occurred during a follow-up inspection at Meally Coal Co. to check on violations he had spotted on June 2.

Frasure said Dewey Mullins "accused me of lying about the violations and then struck me in the head." Then, "both of them started stomping me while I was on the ground."

35-Year Construction Work Ends With Harris Bros. Sale of Firm

The Harris Brothers Construction Co. Inc. ended 35 years of operation with the year 1981 when it sold its equipment and Auxier real estate holdings to Floyd S. Pike Electrical Contractors, of Mt. Airy, North Carolina.

Amount involved in the transaction was not disclosed.

Pike Contractors, which has a branch at Pikeville, will continue operation from the Harris Brothers location at Auxier and will retain all present Harris employees, it was said. The new ownership, which employs about 900, operates in 10 states, including Kentucky.

Harris Brothers, which specialized in transmission line construction, began operation Aug. 5, 1946, as a partnership of Irvine, Bascom and Floyd Harris. Upon leaving military service in 1949 a fourth brother, Fred, became a member of the firm, but the number of partners was reduced to three again in 1953 when Floyd Harris sold his interest to the others. At the time of the sale Bascom Harris was president of the corporation; Irvine Harris, vice president and Fred Harris was secretary-treasurer.

"We began with borrowed tools and one old, beat-up International pickup," Irvine Harris recalled last week in a discussion of the company's early days. He added that there was nothing sensational, or "flashy," about the company's growth or operations—"mainly, work and sticking to the job."

"We hired six or seven men at first, and the power company loaned us a few tools for our first job, building a transmission line into the Inland Steel company's Price preparation plant," he said.

After that, the brothers began contract work for Kentucky Power Company. The work included everything, Harris said—"digging holes, setting poles, stringing line, installing transformers, the lot."

The company also did similar work for coal companies, including Inland Steel and Republic Steel, and for 18 years held a construction contract with Southern Bell Telephone Company.

By the mid '60's, the number of Harris employees peaked at around 80. Currently, they employ 55.

Operating in eight Kentucky counties and two in West Virginia, often over treacherous terrain, they have had in all their years of work only two fatal accidents.

One bit more of reminiscing the brothers do as they retire from the construction business.

When they started in 1946 they paid common laborers 65 cents an hour. Now, the wage rate is $7.55 an hour.

Wells Reviews Term As County Judge

Near the end of the fiscal court meeting Dec. 28, the last at which he was to preside before leaving office, County Judge-Executive Bill Wells reviewed accomplishments of his administration and found a certain degree of satisfaction.

He described his tenure as "a pleasure in some respects and a headache in others."

The headaches, he said, came mainly from lack of funds. "When I took office there was no budget and we had to make out till July 1, then by the time July had rolled around the state had rearranged their plans and the budget was cut twice," he said.

Addressing court members who would take office after Jan. 1, Judge Wells reminded them: "You can never satisfy everybody. The quickest way to make a fellow mad is to deliver two tons of gravel to him when he asked for three."

But, he added, "the people of Floyd county don't owe me one thing, and I owe them everything for just the fact

TV Dukes' Fund Created To Help Miners' Families

While five of eight families bereaved by the Dec. 7 Topmost mine tragedy were reported carrying on their own investigation of the mine explosion—possibly as a prelude to the filing of damage actions—the television's "Dukes of Hazard" announced this week a $25,000 trust fund has been created to benefit survivors of those who were killed.

Warner Communications, Inc., producer of the television show, announced Monday that it is sending one of the "Duke" cast, actor Tom Wopat (the show's Luke Duke) to meet today (Wednesday) with the family survivors of the victims and to place the $25,000 in trust at the Bank of Hindman.

An all-star benefit for the families also is planned next month at Hazard, and Loretta Lynn has been asked to head the cast of performers. The chairman of the board of Warner Communications was quoted as saying a national appeal for additional funds for the families will be made.

City Council Action Confirms New Chief of Police Sought

A new city council was sworn in here Monday and, in a brief business session following, voted to advertise for a police chief, confirming earlier reports that Keith Lawson would not be rehired in that capacity.

The oath of office was administered by City Attorney Paul P. Burchett to council members George Cecil Brown, Estill Lee Carter, Dick Clark, Bill Ray Collins, Carolyn Ford, Paul Philip Hughes, Cloyd Johnson, and Eunice Shepherd. Of the new incumbents, Brown served previously on the council, while Mrs. Shepherd is assuming the office for the first time.

One of the council's first items of business was the rehiring of some 47 city employees, including police and fire officers, street and sanitation workers, office staff and parking lot attendants. The staff list was unchanged except for the omission of the police chief and two sanitation workers.

they thought enough of me to let me serve as county judge."

Turning to accomplishments of his administration, the judge remarked, "We've managed to get in a few licks here and there and see some progress."

He termed the solid waste program his administration's greatest accomplishment, a success attained, he pointed out, only after 14 "solid months" of work, countless trips and phone calls. He cited the role of County Planner Dick Leslie and County Attorney Arnold Turner in helping put through the FmHA application for 601 funding and getting "the only 601 funds ever approved for a solid waste program in the country."

Commenting further on the solid waste program, Wells said, "A lot of people, maybe 50 percent, object to the collection fees. It's hard to change the habit of generations of throwing your garbage in the creek or at the top of a hill."

"I believe," he added, "your children some day will ask who was responsible for changing these habits and cleaning up the county, and then you can be proud that you played a part."

He termed the establishment of a county transit authority another major accomplishment and pointed out that funding, which may total up to $500,000, is 90 percent free with 10 percent matching funds. (Dick Leslie, who retired as county planner last week, was quoted as saying that if the plan is supported by the new administration, "the business may be rolling by March.")

Stewardship, Judge Wells said, "Our audits have shown that our budget is among the most accountable of all county governments in the state."

State law requires an outgoing administration to leave for its successor at least 35 percent of the budget. Wells said 49 percent of the budget had not been spent at the end of November and that about 45 percent would remain at the end of the year.

He called on the two incumbent members of the court, Magistrates Kenneth Roberts and Ed Caudill, to give the new judge "100 percent cooperation."

"I think this county can prosper, I think it will, but it needs your experience and leadership," he advised.

This Town...That World

I expect to be able within the next two or three weeks to write it correctly—1982.

OFF AND NOT RUNNING

How's this for a way to begin a new year? This week, my friends, begins our 55th year of publication.

But it's no occasion for celebration or for reminiscing about "way back when, etc. For this very same first week of the good year 1982 finds us at age 55 in deep trouble, reminded of the cruelty of fate, the fickleness of fortune and all sorts of discouraging facts of life.

In a word or two, we're down. Here it's Tuesday, our first number of Volume LV is due tonight, and not a line of type can be ground out, all because of one accused computer.

Regional Question for New Year . . .

Will Coal Boom Continue, Or Is Slump Threatened?

What does 1982 hold for the economy?

That almost-universal question reduces itself in Eastern Kentucky to, "What does 1982 hold for the coal business?"

But the answer is not so simple. There are those who pessimistically view the future coal market as poor. At the same time, others just as qualified to predict, say the current boom will continue.

But the boom at the moment is not at its boomiest. The market is, in a word, weaker than it was a few months ago. Particularly so for independents with no firm contracts from buyers.

Some look darkly on the future of the small miner, predicting that the "big fish will gobble the little ones up;" that they lack the resources to withstand adverse conditions, though they may be temporary, and are afflicted by regulations and production costs that may stifle them.

Those predicting a declining coal market cite U.S. and European stockpiles as proof that the industry is heading for a lean period.

But the National Coal Association says record railroad haulage and high production levels prove the industry will continue to thrive. The association also is predicting a continued increase in utility, export and industrial coal demands.

STRONG WINDS buffeted much of the county Monday although damage generally amounted to little more than broken tree limbs and misplaced garbage can lids. Not so at Lackey, however, where strong gusts stripped away siding, broke windows and tore away a top section of the store front of Collins Hardware. Damage was estimated at $4,000.

If Smoke Gets In Your Eyes,
Your Chimney May Need Cleaning

Don't let Santa Claus be the only one to inspect your chimney this year. Fireplaces, wood and coal stoves and chimneys should be inspected frequently to ensure that they are in proper working condition.

Inspection should include a check of the fireplace masonry, which can be damaged by excessive temperatures, and a check of stovepipe connections, which should still fit properly. Also, a frequent check should be made for creosote deposits in chimneys and flues.

Creosote is a flammable material produced by incomplete burning of wood. Deposits can be lessened somewhat by avoiding pitchy wood, usually softwoods, and wet, green wood. In the fall and spring people tend to let their fires smolder because they need less heat. This produces large amounts of creosote, also.

During wood burning season, burning a hot fire for a short time reduces the potential for creosote buildup. This should be done only with a chimney or stovepipe that was cleaned at the beginning of the season, or one that is cleaned regularly. Burning hot fires with dirty chimneys can lead to chimney fires that create very high temperatures in the chimney and can cause adjoining building material to burn. Chimney fires also produce sparks that can land on the roof, causing it to burn as well.

Chimneys can be inspected from the roof or, in some cases, a mirror can be used to look up, through the chimney flue. An easy method of inspecting stovepipes is to tap on them with a metal object. If a dull, thudding, sound is produced, rather than a metallic ping, the pipe is in need of cleaning.

Besides reducing the threat of fire and damage to your chimney, cleaning can improve its draft, making less smokey fires.

Wire brushes are recommended for cleaning chimneys because they provide a uniform scrubbing of the entire surface. Stiff wire chimney cleaning brushes, used by professional chimney sweeps, are available at a reasonable cost, in sizes that match chimney flue sizes. The brushes are pushed through the chimney with extension rods, or they are pulled up with ropes.

If you clean the chimney yourself, be careful when climbing on high, steep roofs. You may want to hire professional chimney sweeps who have the proper safety equipment and who usually clean up soot with large vacuum cleaners.

How often the chimney should be cleaned depends on how frequently it is used. Some people suggest chimney cleaning should be done after every third cord of wood is burned; others suggest that once a year is enough. The best rule to follow, "Anytime an inspection shows excessive soot and creosote, the chimney should be cleaned."

Approximately 2.3 million disabled veterans received an 11.2 percent cost of living increase in their Veterans Administration compensation, effective November, 1981.

Cervical cancer kills over 11,000 women each year in the United States alone; this is a tragic figure since cervical cancer can be one of the most curable of all cancers if it is discovered and treated in time. The Pap test for cervical cancer is a painless test which takes only a few moments of a woman's time. This test can discover cervical cancer when it is most curable, and the best way a woman can protect herself from cervical cancer is to have a Pap test regularly.

The Floyd County Health Department is having a Pap clinic on Friday, January 8, from 8:30 until 11:30 and from 1:00 until 2:00. This clinic is a free service of the health department and any woman who has not had a Pap test in the past year is urged to take advantage of this service.

A nurse from the health department will be in Wayland at the Methodist Church on Monday, January 11, from 10:00 until 2:00. She will offer T.B. skin tests, urinalyses, blood pressures, anemia screening, and immunizations.

The Floyd County Health Department branch office at Wheelwright is now open and offering general clinic services every day; these include immunizations, blood pressures, anemia screening, urinalyses, and T.B. skin tests. These are free services of the health department and the public is welcome.

No nursing services will be offered at the health department on Wednesday afternoon, January 6, due to a special clinic being held at that time.

The Changing of the Guard

Monday saw the quadrennial "changing of the guard" as new county and city officials were inducted to office—an event that challenges all who with the beginning of a new year indulge in looking ahead to what may or may not be.

The predictions, if any, depend upon who is gazing into the crystal ball. One thing is certain. However sincere they may be, and no matter how hard they may try, new officials will find it more difficult than they ever imagined to achieve the things they thought would be so easy in the days when they were campaigning for election. But they will be in good company—the President of the United States is having his troubles with campaign dreams, too.

We have no idea of affording elected officials an excuse, but it is true that they will have less money this year than last for public programs and improvements because of national policy and economic trends. Meanwhile, the cost of labor and materials will remain high. As road work retains its top priority status, local officials face rather dismaying problems without much of the state and federal help that was available in other years.

On their ability to adapt to the changing situation will depend much of the success of those responsible here at home. Another certainty: New officials and old may find those who pose as their friends to be in reality their worst enemies. With "friends" who will urge an elected official to "strain a point" and do the indiscreet or downright illegal thing "as a favor," or even to look the other way while such chicanery is afoot—with such friends, no officeholder needs an enemy.

steam coal exports for the next several months.

At home, utilities that stockpiled enormous quantities of coal prior to the union's strike still have large stockpiles, in part because of energy conservation, he said.

Island Creek Coal Co., based in Lexington, is meeting its contractual obligations with its own mines, a company spokesman said. As a result, a number of independent operations with which Island Creek used to subcontract are having to cut back operations, he said.

"If there is going to be a turnaround, it won't come until the third quarter of next year," the spokesman said.

Louie Hunter, spokesman for the National Independent Coal Operators Association, predicted a bleak future for a number of small companies, especially in Pennsylvania, Eastern Kentucky and southwestern Virginia.

"We had thought with continuing trouble in Poland, the foreign market would improve, but it hasn't," he said from his Richlands, Va., office.

As he returned to the cruiser, Blair is said to have struck Mullins on the head with the hammer, stunning him and allowing the officers to regain control of the situation.

After their enforced detour, the lawmen finally delivered their prisoner to the Johnson county jail around 5 a.m., where he was booked additionally on three counts of kidnapping, first degree wanton endangerment, and carrying a concealed weapon.

Arrestment on the charges is expected today (Wednesday).

"The Dukes of Hazzard" became acquainted with the area when cast members appeared last fall at the Black Gold Festival held in the Perry county-seat, which is about 25 miles from the scene of the mine tragedy.

Mike Casey, director of television publicity for Warner Communications, said the company's interest in the disaster victims was inspired by the "warm, wonderful reception" received by "Dukes of Hazzard" cast members during the Black Gold Festival.

Families of some of the victims apparently are being assisted in their probe into the fatal blast by the Council of the Southern Mountains. The family of the Floyd county victim of the explosion, Keith Crager, reportedly did not join in the investigation.

The mine at which the explosion occurred is operated by Orville Adkins, of Langley.

At 53, the new judge was assuming his first elective office. The people who gave him his convincing victory in November were looking for a change—for "somebody who would get the job done"—he said. "I don't intend to disappoint them," he added.

The county has been badly managed, Lafferty charged, without citing specific instances, and communication with the public has been poor. "Things will change completely," he asserted, pledging—in a phrase that invited comparison with Gov. John Y. Brown, Jr.—an administration "run like a business."

"I have been successful running my own business," he said, referring to the auto dealership he has headed most of his working life. "I hope I can be successful running the county."

Above all, his administration will be open to the public and the press, he promised. "There has been too much hiding behind doors," he said. "Now people won't have to dodge around. They can just come in here and talk to me."

High on the new judge's list of priorities, he said, would be "working with the sheriff to break up the dope problem in the schools." He would soon be asking the fiscal court to provide funds for a dog trained to "sniff out" drugs in such places as school lockers, he indicated, adding that he felt confident the board of education would cooperate in the task.

Improving county roads will also be a priority task, he said. While road funds are expected to be scarce, "the right men and proper management" will ensure that they are spent as efficiently as possible, he predicted.

Lafferty said he would see that county parks are effectively used "for the children," noting that the former administration had four years to complete the county park at Allen but still had not opened the swimming pool there. He would try to see that the pool was opened in the spring, he said.

What of the charge, leveled by some state officials, that magistrates in some counties exercise considerably more power in their districts than is permitted by law? According to law, decisions about what roads are to be patched and the order in which the work will be done properly belong to the fiscal court in open meeting.

In fact, such decisions are the jealously guarded prerogative of the magistrates in some counties—and Lafferty would not deny that such is the case here.

For all that, the new judge said he does "not anticipate any change right now" in the way power is exercised by the four county magistrates. "I'm going to ease into it," he said. "The magistrates need to give some responsibility."

Recent speculation that he would dismantle the county's new garbage collection apparatus in favor of a return to the old franchise system is without foundation, Lafferty said. Floyd County Solid Waste, Inc. will stay in business as the county's only authorized garbage collector outside Prestonsburg. And, though there may be some changes in personnel, the system will remain under control of the solid waste board, he asserted.

Any attempt to undo the innovative solid waste system, regarded by many as the crowning achievement of the previous county administration, would be "a joke," Lafferty said.

The incoming judge said he is still uncertain of what will become of another major project that sorely exercised the fiscal court during Wells' term as judge—the regulation of cable television operators.

Cable firms here have been unregulated since a recent appeals court ruling overturned the county cable TV franchise ordinance on technical grounds. Among the alternatives facing the new administration are reinstating the original ordinance, dropping the franchise system in favor of a different regulatory structure, or leaving the industry unregulated—perhaps in the hope that the jurisdiction of the Public Service Commission will soon be extended to cable operations.

Lafferty and his wife, Stella, have two grown children, Jerry Bryan Lafferty and Patricia Ann Hites, and two grandchildren. His son-in-law, Tim Hites, will manage the auto dealership on the Lancer-Water Gap road while Lafferty is in office, it was said.

Lafferty's brother, Thomas Lafferty, Sr., proprietor of a Prestonsburg motel, will be hired fulltime as "deputy judge pro-tem." He will run the judge's office in the judge's absence but will not preside at fiscal court sessions, Lafferty explained.

Malcom Layne, a former teacher and assistant basketball coach at Betsy Layne High School, is the new county planner, replacing Dick Leslie, who held that position in the Wells administration and whom Lafferty defeated in the judge-executive's race in November.

Office personnel hired as of Monday included Delores Dingus, Alma Hughes, and Jan Chaffin.

The fiscal court at which Lafferty will preside as judge-executive includes Gerald DeRossett (magistrate for District 1), Kenneth Roberts (District 2), Edward Caudill (District 3), and Lowell Samons (District 4). DeRossett and Samons will be serving their first term in the office.

The new court will hold its first meeting on Saturday, January 9, at 10 a.m. in the courthouse annex, it was said this week.

Deaton, whose term as prosecutor ended Dec. 31, said he does not believe Hazelrigg's ruling was motivated by past differences between the two men.

In 1980, Deaton filed a $1 million lawsuit charging Hazelrigg and District Judge John Gardner with conspiring to deprive him of his civil rights.

The suit, dismissed later in U.S. District Court at Pikeville, was only one of several filed on his own behalf by Deaton during his frequently controversial term as prosecutor for Johnson, Martin and Lawrence counties.

In 1980, three weekly newspapers in the district criticized his performance as a prosecutor and his private conduct. Two papers called for his resignation—and two were sued for libel by Deaton—while a third urged voters to turn him out of office in last spring's primary.

Tax Platform To Be Discussed Thursday

The Kentucky Fair Tax Coalition will hold its platform meeting in preparation for the 1982 General Assembly on Thursday, January 7, at the Perry County Library. The meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m.

The Kentucky Fair Tax Coalition (KFTC) is comprised of community-based organizations and interested individuals "promoting more effective and efficient community services through a fair and equitable taxation system," according to their statement of purpose.

The group works throughout the state of Kentucky, with particular interest in the coal counties.

At the platform meeting, the group will set their priorities for the legislative session, hoping to push for additional revenues to make up for the recent state and federal budget cutbacks, according to KFTC chairperson Gladys Maynard. Additional revenues could come from the inequitable taxes that large corporations are paying for their landholdings, Mrs. Maynard said.

An outgrowth of the Land Ownership Study which detailed the ownership patterns in Central Appalachia and pointed out the low taxes paid by absentee corporate interests, the KFTC is working with groups and individuals in various counties to make residents more aware of these issues, Mrs. Maynard said.

For more information about the coalition, and the January 7 meeting in Hazard, interested individuals are encouraged to contact the chairperson at 606-395-5135.

Department of Biological and Environmental Sciences

The last article examined the 1968 federal Wild and Science Rivers Act, a measure providing for the designation of three types of protected streams. Most of the information for that article and this one was obtained from the Kentucky Rivers Coalition's "Guide to Wild and Scenic Rivers Programs." The Coalition (P.O. Box 1306, Lexington, Kentucky 40501) is a non-profit corporation organized to redirect the course of water resource development in Kentucky, to research river issues, and to provide citizen education in the value of natural rivers and streams. This reprinted article (it first appeared in August, 1978) describes the Kentucky Wild Rivers Program.

The Kentucky program provides protection only for rivers designated "wild" by the General Assembly; the federal program recognized wild, scenic, and recreational rivers. The Kentucky Wild Rivers Act of 1972 recognized the natural, scientific, and scenic values of some of the state's most pristine rivers. There are presently eight designated rivers and streams, all but two of them in the Cumberland River watershed. Only the most scenic parts of the eight streams (Cumberland River, Red River, Rockcastle River, Green River, Big South Fork, Rock Creek, Martins Fork, and the Little South Fork) have been designated. The total system is a comparatively small 110 miles, touching 12 counties. Four of the streams are completely in or border McCreary County, one (Rockcastle River) borders Whitley County, one (Martins Fork) is completely in Harlan County, one (Red River) borders Menifee, Wolfe and Powell Counties, and one (Green River) flows between Hart and Edmonson Counties.

Rivers (or parts of them) are submitted to the Governor and General Assembly for nomination into the system by the Secretary of the Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection (DNREP). Before submission is made, the Act requires that the river segment be completely studied by DNREP. Citizens can nominate river segments, but they must eventually be approved by the General Assembly.

Inclusion brings certain protective features to the river segment. Water development projects (dams and the like) are not permitted unless specifically excluded by the General Assembly, stripmining is prohibited for 2,000 feet inland, mechanized travel and timber clear cutting are not permitted, but alternate mineral recovery methods (deep mining, oil and gas drilling) may be permitted if other requirements are met.

DNREP has eminent domain powers, but the agency has not yet used these powers. They can also secure land through scenic easements, in which case landowners still maintain some rights, or through grants and gifts. Agriculture is permitted and with the exception of access easements, where public access is granted to the state, the landowner may still prohibit trespass.

Portions of the Kentucky law are very controversial and lawsuits have been filed by individual citizens and companies. Next: the controversies.

Kentucky Resubmits Its Proposal To Enforce U.S. Strip Mine Act

Kentucky, the nation's largest coal-producing state, has resubmitted its proposal to attain primacy in enforcing the Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act by next spring.

Kentucky submitted its proposal to the Interior Department's Office of Surface Mining, Region II, in Knoxville, Tenn., December 30. It now will be reviewed by OSM for adequacy prior to the ultimate decision by Secretary of the Interior James Watt.

OSM will hold a public hearing on the Kentucky plan January 26, beginning at 6:30 p.m., at the Harley Hotel, 2143 North Broadway (I-75 at the Paris Pike exit), Lexington. Written comments may be submitted to OSM Region II, 530 Gay Street, Knoxville, Tennessee, 37902, until February 8.

"I would like to commend Secretary (of Natural Resources and Environmental Protection) Jackie Swigart for the great effort and many long hours which she and her staff have devoted to this resubmission package," said W. Hord Tipton, acting director of OSM's Region II. "The path has not been easy but the goal certainly is worth the effort.

"I wholeheartedly endorse the concept of individual states being the primary enforcer of laws affecting it," he added. "I think that approach serves the best interest of all the citizens of the state and am happy Kentucky agrees."

Once Kentucky attains primacy, OSM will fall back to an oversight and assistance role and federal inspections of coal mining operations basically will be to assure that the state is adequately enforcing the program and to work with Kentucky to solve any future problems.

Primacy also means that Kentucky, after it has an approved state reclamation plan, will start receiving one-half of federal reclamation fees that have been levied on Kentucky coal operators since August 3, 1977, date of the federal act.

The money, which totaled more than $60 million as of last September 30, will be used to reclaim land that had been mined and left abandoned prior to August 3, 1977.

After Kentucky gains primacy, Tipton will become OSM's state director for Kentucky.

RCA Comment Time Drawing To a Close

Floyd countians have less than two weeks to mail their comments on the proposed U.S. Department of Agriculture program for conserving soil and water resources.

"The proposed national conservation program would increase the roles of local and state governments in conservation work and target a greater share of USDA dollars and people to critical resource problems and areas," according to Pat Beyler, U.S. Soil Conservation Service spokesman.

For more information on the program and to obtain a response form for mailing your comments, contact your local SCS or Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service office. The offices have a leaflet that summarizes the main points of the program and contains the pre-addressed, postage-paid response form.

The program is the USDA response to the Soil and Water Resources Conservation Act of 1977 (RCA). Details of the program are presented in the revised program report, which is available for reference at SCS and ASCS offices throughout the state.

Comments must be mailed to the SCS Field Office, P.O. Box 429, Prestonsburg, Ky. 41563, before Jan. 15, 1982.

★ Cancer Hopeline

Q. I know there are some warning signals for cancer, but I'm not sure I know them. What are they, and could someone get cancer without having these warnings?

A. The American Cancer Society states that the seven warning signals for cancer are:

1. Unusual bleeding or discharge.
2. A lump that does not go away.
3. A sore that does not heal within two weeks.
4. Change in bowel or bladder habits.
5. Persistent hoarseness or cough.
6. Indigestion or difficulty in swallowing.
7. Change in a wart or mole.

Any of these symptoms is a reason to see your doctor, it may mean you have cancer, but in most cases the doctor will find that you do not. Do not think that this means you can safely ignore a symptom. It is vital that any symptom be reported to a doctor, for only through medical tests can he make a definite diagnosis.

You asked if someone can get cancer and not have these warnings. It is possible, but it is more likely that the symptom is so slight that it is ignored. For example, coughs are so common that most people do not become upset over one. They usually decide it's the result of too much smoking or say they must have "picked up a bug at work." However, that persistent little cough may be the first visible sign of lung cancer. Another example is the woman with unusual vaginal bleeding. It may be caused by any one of a number of things, but it may also be the first sign of cancer of the uterus. Thus, it is wise to have any unusual symptom that persists longer than expected (such as a cough following a cold) checked by a physician.

Do you have questions about cancer? Would you like to learn to examine yourself for breast or testicular lumps that, found early, could save your life? Call the Cancer Hopeline toll free at 1-800-432-9321 from 9-9 Monday through Thursday and 9-5 Friday, or write us at 915 South Limestone Street, Lexington 40536. All calls are confidential, all services free.

Two Mine Sites In Floyd Listed For Reclamation

A list of 44 projects which would reclaim some of Kentucky's abandoned mined lands and control or end the adverse effects of past coal mining in these locations has been compiled by the state division of abandoned lands for submission to the U.S. Office of Surface Mining.

The list, part of the first annual grant submission by the division, cites specific locations in the state's coal-producing regions.

The two Floyd county projects are Red Fox Slides, Prestonsburg and Hall's Silt Structures, Galveston.

Among other abandoned mine sites listed are five in Johnson county, two in Knott, eight in Pike and one each in Magoffin, Martin, Morgan, Perry, Lawrence and Letcher counties.

Funds for the reclamation program will come from grants from the federal Office of Surface Mining. Revenue for this program is raised through fees collected by the federal government on each ton of coal produced in Kentucky.

The sites listed were chosen after the completion of a statewide inventory of abandoned mined sites and a series of public meetings.

Older Artists Create an 'Ageless' Beauty

By Margery Byers

Smithsonian News Service

Gilbert Stuart painted a portrait of John Adams in 1826 when he was 71, Benjamin West was 81 in 1819 when he executed a self-portrait, Benjamin Franklin invented the bifocal lens when he was in his 70's and Verdi composed "Otello" when he was 73.

"You're only as old as you feel" and "age is a state of mind" may be hackneyed expressions, but they also are true. Some people are old at 21, others young at 80, or as Oliver Wendell Holmes put it, "To be 70 years young is sometimes more hopeful than to be 40 years old."

The image of grandpa and grandma doing little but telling stories, rocking and knitting sweaters is less valid now than ever before. For generations, many members of the "graying" population have rightly rebelled against these stereotypes, and many more—in large part, because there really are many more of them—are doing so today.

Indeed, older Americans are the fastest growing segment of our population. One of every seven Americans is 60 years old or over, and that figure is expected to increase. Older Americans have become a powerful political force as well; organized into nationwide groups, they have tirelessly lobbied Congress to revise or abolish mandatory retirement ages, seeking to prove that age is no barrier to creativity and inspiration.

The careers of older artists who continued to work well into their later years is a testament to the older Americans' cause.

Thomas Hart Benton died at 85 in 1975, a few hours after working on a mural in his studio. He had maintained for years that each mural would be his last—"I'm just too old to do all that climbing of ladders."

Maria Martinez, the San Ildefonso pueblo potter, created her world-renowned black pottery until she was in her 90s.

Grandma Moses, who died at 101, began to paint at 76 when her arthritic fingers could no longer embroider.

Henri Matisse, confined to his bed, cut out brightly colored paper patterns which were acclaimed when they went on exhibit 24 years after his death at 84 in 1954.

Artist John Grabach avoided admitting his age but, when he died in 1981, his World War I draft card revealed that he was 101. He never stopped producing paintings.

In a tribute to the dedication and vision of older artists such as these, the paintings of older Americans have been highlighted in a 1982 wall calendar published to commemorate the White House Conference on Aging. The calendar contains 12 paintings from the collection of the Smithsonian's National Museum of American Art; almost all the works, including paintings by George Inness, Georgia O'Keeffe, Gilbert Stuart, Alma Thomas and Benjamin West, were created by artists after the age of 60.

"Just as a painting is far more than the pigment that adds the color or the wood that makes the stretchers so, too, creative genius is more than technique or even vision," Dr. Robert N. Butler, Director of the National Institute on Aging, wrote in an introduction to the calendar. "...By viewing the paintings of these artists, we see that beauty and genius are ageless and that creative imagination is not limited by time."

Time has certainly been no obstacle to Georgia O'Keeffe, now 94. As famous as she has been indomitable, O'Keeffe has long refused to let poor vision stop her from painting. Laurie Lisle, in Portrait of An Artist, A Biography of Georgia O'Keeffe, writes of this instinct for artistic survival despite shadowy vision: "She even courageously and proudly remarked that her new way of seeing light, shadow, color and line was

"interesting" and that it gave her new painting ideas...O'Keeffe learned to take tubes of paint to her housekeeper, ask her to read out loud the names of the colors on the labels and then, with the information memorized, she would return to her studio."

New York City sculptor Seymour Lipton, still extraordinarily vigorous at 78, has said he feels like a man of 40. "He's lean and tough and in top shape," Harry Rand, curator of 20th-century painting and sculpture at the National Museum of American Art, says. "He gets up at 6 and, by 8, he's wrestling his sculpture together."

With his strong right hand, partially developed by years of tournament tennis, Lipton manipulates huge cutting shears. "I'm still exploring," Lipton explains. "To me, sculpture is a great adventure, unending and always fresh. There is no such thing as maturity—that is just a word. The creative person who loses the spontaneity and naivete of his childhood becomes an academician. What you gain with experience is a sense of control but my next piece is as exciting as the drawings I made in public school."

It usually takes many years for artists to attain recognition and, despite illness, a sense of humor can feed their (Continued on Page 11)

CARD OF THANKS

The family of Mrs. Lucy Whitaker Hackworth wishes to thank all her many friends and relatives who were so kind during her long illness and at her recent passing. To those who came by with kind words of sympathy and for the food, flowers, cards, telephone calls, we are truly grateful. We would like to thank the Revs. Dean Pack and Bill Campbell for their consoling words, the singers for the beautiful songs, and the Floyd Funeral Home for its kind and efficient services. To each of you, our deep appreciation and lasting gratitude.

DONORAMA Gives Blood Center Most Successful Week Ever

The real spirit of Christmas resulted in 62 units of blood being donated during the DONORAMA, giving the Prestonsburg Donor Station its most successful week since its opening. The purpose was to avoid a shortage of blood over the holiday period.

The Central Kentucky Blood Center this week extended thanks to the many who helped make this "a real community affair." The Floyd County Times picture of Mayor Harold Cooley donating and Radio WPRT and WQHY making frequent announcements brought in many residents from every section of Floyd county.

Refreshments were provided by Hecks, Piggly Wiggly, Price's Pic Pac, Thompson's IGA, Wendy's and Captain D's. Coupons were donated by Dairy Cheer, Druthers, Long John Silver and Pizza Hut. Brown's Produce donated a turkey which was won by John Mann and Frasure's Catalog Store contributed a mixer won by Lonnie Reynolds. The event's last donor, Dwight Justice, drew the winners.

Special advertising help was given by Jerry's, United Federal, Municipal Sign and a billboard, courtesy of Jerry Flannery from Dick's Signs.

Zelma McDowell and Gwen Alexander, volunteers, have been working for the Station for two months and helped to speed the donating process.

Older Artists Create 'Ageless' Beauty

creativity long after many of their contemporaries have retired to rocking chairs. Peggy Bacon, now 86 and living in Maine, is known for incisive and penetrating caricatures as well as illustrations for approximately 60 books. Over the decades, she lost little of the freshness and frankness of her youth, and her wit has delighted everyone. She was suffering from a joint disease when she turned 80, but her humor surfaced even then.

"My bones were grinding together—you could hear them," she said at the time. "They made reports like a pistol." She was given a false hip of steel and plastic, spent two months in the hospital and promised to use a cane which she called "a peculiar and dreadful looking thing with treads on it."

When complimented on her remarkable recovery, she retorted: "The surgeons perform these miracles and they get old battered relics back on their feet again. My face looks as if it's been ploughed. I'm not really very vain but I don't like to look dilapidated." Although partially blind, she continued to paint in her Maine home—with a magnifying glass mounted to her drawing board.

Alma Thomas, who lived in Washington, D.C., did not begin to paint seriously until she was in her 60s, following many years as a demanding junior high school teacher who expected her students to excel. Well-educated and a member of a middle-class black family, she had a strong personality and a flair for the dramatic, and she was totally dedicated to her art and her students. She found young people stimulating, enjoyed being surrounded by her proteges and provided scholarships to promising students. Energetic and enthusiastic, she continually worked to perfect the techniques of her craft.

Handicapped by arthritis, she sallied forth to Washington art openings with a goldheaded cane—and continued to create her joyful paintings. A number of these are on exhibit at the National Museum of American Art in Washington, D.C., through Feb. 22, 1982. Thomas used her kitchen or living room as a studio, propping the huge canvases on her lap or balancing them on a sofa. She painted with a firm stroke, but first she had to soak her arthritic hands in hot water to enable her to hold a paint brush.

"There's nothing like aching knees when you get old," she once told Adolphus Ealey, director of the Barnett-Aden Gallery in Washington. "Do you have any idea what it's like to be caged in a 78-year-old body and to have the mind and energy of a 25-year-old? If I could only turn the clock back, I'd show them."

But she did show "them" with, in 1972, a one-woman exhibition at the Whitney Museum of American Art in New York City and a retrospective at the Corcoran Gallery of Art in Washington. In 1977, the year before she died, she visited the Matisse cut-out show at the National Gallery of Art several times. "If that old guy can still cut out paper," she said defiantly, "I can still paint pictures."

What To Do in January And February

USE SNOW AS MULCH. Snow serves as an insulator and protects many plants from extremely cold temperatures and drying winds. Broadleaved evergreens especially benefit from leaving snow piled around them. Snow loads weighing down branches should be gently shook off. But snow around the base of a plant should be left there.

HOUSEPLANT CARE. To keep holiday plants and houseplants healthy and attractive, place them in the sunniest spot available in your home. Locate them away from hot and cold drafts. Keep them on the cool side, especially at night. An ideal spot would be a bedroom with a large south window where the heat vents are closed. Water houseplants sparingly during the winter months. Many plants don't need any fertilizer until spring when they resume active growth.

ORDER SEEDS AND PLANTS EARLY. In order to guarantee getting desired varieties of plants, place your orders now.

Seasonal Forestry Work Open

Persons interested in a possible summer or seasonal job with the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Forest Service should act now. Applications must be filed by January 15, 1982. Those postmarked after that date cannot be accepted.

Applications will be accepted for jobs as aides and technicians in forestry, range, engineering, surveying, biological science, hydrology and physical science. These aids will be responsible for

★ Consumer Alert

'Effective Complaining'

Many consumers are uneasy about letting sellers know of their dissatisfaction with the products and services they have purchased. To be effective in getting your complaints resolved, you must take action and voice your opinion, says Attorney General Steven L. Beshear.

"Complaints can do a lot more than solve individual problems," says Beshear. "Complaints help drive illicit businesses from the marketplace by drawing unfavorable attention to them. Honest, reputable firms need to know of your complaints, too, so they can pinpoint problems and make corrections. Furthermore, such actions may help other consumers experiencing similar problems get the satisfaction they request."

If you feel you have received unsatisfactory products or services, it is important that you complain about it. However, there are certain guidelines to follow when making consumer complaints, Beshear advises.

Start where you purchased the item or service. Many stores have complaint departments which handle consumer problems. Explain your problem in a factual manner and leave out any irrelevant details. Most reputable stores, agencies and service providers will help you, the attorney general says.

If the problem is related to an item, write to the manufacturer. Most libraries have references with the addresses of large manufacturers. Address your letter to the service department and to the attention of a particular official if you can find his or her name.

If this is not successful, try some of your local agencies. In Kentucky, there are two Better Business Bureaus that handle complaints and offer information about individual businesses. One is located in Louisville, and the other is in Lexington.

"The consumer protection division of my office handles thousands of consumer complaints yearly and is currently resolving complaints at approximately a 75 percent rate," says Beshear.

The consumer protection division serves as a mediator between businesses and consumers when a problem and misunderstanding occur. They have developed a "Consumer Complaint Form" to help resolve complaints faster and more efficiently.

If you have a consumer complaint but have not received satisfaction by contacting the business, write to the Office of the Attorney General, Division of Consumer Protection, Frankfort, Ky. 40601. The division also operates a Consumer Hotline; the toll-free number is 1-800-432-9257.

BETSY LAYNE COMMUNITY NEWS

Christmas programs centering on the theme of Christ were given at the Calvary Baptist and the United Methodist Churches on the Sunday evening preceding Christmas and were well attended.

The annual Christmas Eve "get-together" of the families of Mrs. Eliza Blackburn and Mrs. Elizabeth Spears was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Spears, in the Wells Addition with children and spouses; grandchildren; great-grandchildren and some family guests attending. A devotional period in keeping with the birth of Christ was observed and carol singing followed. A pot-luck dinner was enjoyed.

Eliza, widow of William (Woody) Blackburn, and Elizabeth, widow of Andrew J. Spears, are twin sisters. The occasion marked the 40th such get-together when all or most of the families of each renew acquaintances of some who live in distant states and see each other but once each year.

Mrs. Mildred Davis and Mrs. Kelsa Elliot are both home from the hospital.

Friends and relatives were visited by Gary Taylor and members of his family, of Michigan, recently, and are rejoicing that in addition to his family's attending and following the Lord in a Missionary Baptist Church there, Gary has answered the call to preach as a layman. He attended Church with his family at Gulnare Freewill Baptist Church, Sunday. He made a special trip to visit the missionaries, Eleanor Acker and Mary Lou Rhodes, at Dana, to express his appreciation of learning about the Lord in Sunday School and when they were allowed to teach Bible lessons in the schools.

Among out-of-town residents visiting relatives and friends were Mr. and Mrs. Larry Hale, Jimmy and Ray Byron, of Ypsilanti, Michigan; Mr. and Mrs. Porter Layne, Philadelphia, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. John Smith, Ponca City, Okla.; Mr. and Mrs. Squire Hall, Lexington.

Mrs. Emma Grace Hartley visited her daughters, Donna and Marie, and their husbands and children through the Christmas vacation.

Dr. June Brose D.D.S., returned Thursday from Lebanon, Ind., where she visited her parents, brothers and other relatives.

Mrs. B.C. Caldwell and Mrs. Alberta Williamson met in Ashland Saturday; Mrs. Darlene DeBord, of North Carolina, who came to be near her father, Bekham Caldwell, who was scheduled to undergo surgery this week.

Asks Correction

Mrs. Betty Patton, grandmother of John Kenneth Manns, the child whose life was saved last year by a trainman in the Cliff vicinity, has asked The Times to correct the report to the effect that she was responsible for the care of the children at the time. She says the mother, Mrs. Anna Manns, was watching the children at the time of the incident.

Mrs. Della Ormerod, of Prestonsburg has won fourth place honorable mention in McCall's Needlework and Crafts magazine "Design Your Own" sweater contest. Mrs. Ormerod received prizes totaling more $125 from the American Thread Co. and Boyle Needle Co., and her original "Designer" Sweater will appear in the March-April issue of McCall's, Needlework and Crafts magazine.

This is Mrs. Ormerod's second winning effort. She also won an honorable mention in the 1980 "On the Double" contest, sponsored by the same magazine.

Makes Tourney Team

Pete Grigsby, III, of the McDowell Daredevils, recently became the fourth player in the school's history to be named to the All-Tournament team in the Ashland Invitational Tournament. Grigsby, a 6'2" senior guard, earned this honor for his 26-point effort in his team's 77-71 loss to the Ashland Tomcats.

According to Grigsby, playing in this prestigious tournament—that included several highly ranked teams from across the state—was a good experience for him and his teammates. "It was good that we got to prove to the crowd and to ourselves that we've got a team capable of competing against the best teams in the state," he said, adding that the tournament experience would give the Daredevils a boost of confidence going into the rest of the season.

Grigsby currently leads the McDowell team, averaging 23 points and 8 assists, his personal high being 37 points against Cordia, December 22. The four-year starter, who is also an honor student, is the son of Schools Superintendent and Mrs. Pete Grigsby, Jr.

Kentucky Afield

Can you imagine fishing in a lake where you can keep six-inch bass but have to throw 15-inchers back?

That's going to be the case at Elmer Davis Lake, a state-owned body of water in Owen county, beginning March 1, when a "slot limit" protecting bass between 12 and 16 inches goes into effect.

Under a slot limit, anglers may keep bass below and above certain sizes, but must release all fish which fall within the protected "slot"—in this case, 12 to 16 inches.

This will be the first time a slot limit has been tried in Kentucky, although other states have used it to advantage. The reasons for a slot limit are complicated, but let's look at a few of them.

First, at a lake with heavy fishing pressure and a conventional limit system, a surplus population can build just below the minimum keeper size. At Elmer Davis, there are too many bass between eight and 12 inches. These fish are slow growing and generally in poor condition, biologists say, indicating that they have outgrown their food supply.

But fishing pressure removes most of these bass as soon as they reach the keeper size of 12 inches, meaning that there is ample food for fish in this size range. When we impose a slot limit on this situation, fishermen immediately begin removing the eight to 12 inch bass, which allows more food for the ones which are not caught.

With a better diet, these "survivors" soon grow past 12 inches and enter the protected slot. It will then take them a couple of years to grow out of this slot, but when they do, anglers can expect some high-quality fishing, with an abundance of "trophy" 16-inch plus bass.

So basically the slot limit does two

Basketball in the 58th District and the 15th Region was as light as the snowfall on Christmas Day. The week started on December 21 and ran through Saturday, December 26.

Monday night, December 21, in the Pikeville Invitational Tournament, undefeated Boyd County won over Allen Central, 83 to 72, and Pikeville defeated Magoffin County, 78 to 70.

Against Allen Central, Boyd County, undefeated and rated 7th in the state, got off to a lead at the end of the first quarter, 26 to 13, but the Rebels came roaring back in the second quarter and outscored the Lions, 27 to 16. Bruce Mullins fired in 14 points in the quarter and Boyd County led at halftime, 42 to 40. Pacing the Rebel attack was Wally Ridener with 11 points, but Boyd County led at the end of the third quarter, 59 to 54. In the fourth quarter the Rebels were cold again and lost by the score of 83 to 72. Wally Ridener was the bright spot for the Rebels. The 6'1" senior got out of his personal scoring slump and fired in 23 points. Bruce Mullins had 17 and Tim Lawson had 13 points.

Tuesday night in the consolation game the Rebels won over Magoffin County, 96 to 65. The Rebels led at the end of the first quarter, 21 to 11. The second period, much like the first, was all Allen Central as Rebel forward Wally Ridener poured in 13 points in the second quarter to spark the Rebels and they led at halftime, 44 to 25. The Rebels had 11 players to score in the game. Coach Johnny Martin substituted freely but couldn't keep the score down. Ridener again found the range and scored 25 points and had 10 rebounds. Bruce Mullins had 21 points and 13 rebounds. Tim Lawson had 10, Rick Conn 9, Pete Holbrook 8, Tommy Dingus 4, and Billy Dingus 6 points. Boyd County won the tournament by defeating Pikeville, 76 to 65.

Selected on the All-Tournament team were Bruce Mullins and Wally Ridener, from Allen Central; Todd Stai and Mark Vanhoose, from Boyd County; John Venter and Gayle Taylor, of Pikeville, and Paul Arnett, of Magoffin County.

In a regular season game the McDowell Daredevils won over Cordia at McDowell, December 22. It was McDowell's homecoming and the Daredevils pleased the homecoming crowd with a 93 to 61 win over the Lions. Pete Grigsby took scoring honors with 37 points. Teammate Roger Moore had 19 points. Miller led the Lions with 26 points.

McDowell and Allen Central both were in holiday tournaments on December 28. The Daredevils were in the Ashland tournament. They faced the Ashland Tomcats and had the Tomcats against the wall but hit a cold spot and foul trouble in the third quarter and the Tomcats pulled the game out to win, 77 to 71. Pete Grigsby scored 26 points and Jimmy Turner scored 23 and had 17 rebounds. Grigsby was things. First, it allows fishermen to harvest surplus fish which actually need their numbers lowered (the eight- to 12-inch ones) and at the same time creates a quality fishery for larger fish—those over 16 inches.

Also, anglers will still get to enjoy catching the 12- to 16 inch bass, even if they can't keep them. All in all, biologists feel that a slot limit will create much better fishing conditions in certain lakes than a conventional "minimum-size" limit.

The size limit on bass will be removed completely at Shanty Hollow Lake (Warren County) and at the Lake Malone (Todd, Logan and Muhlenburg counties) effective March 1. At these lakes, biologists have identified surplus populations of under 12-inch bass, but no shortage of fish over the current size limit of 12 inches. Removing the size limit is temporary measure, after which biologists could well recommend slot limits for these two lakes.

In practical terms, manipulating size limits is the effective bass management tool biologists now have at their disposal. Effective management dictates that this tool be applied to each body of water in the most biologically suitable manner for that particular lake or stream.

Bailey Says Brown Should Leave If Education Needs New Taxes

Sen. Benny Ray Bailey of Hindman affirmed his support for public education during a recent appearance at Morehead State University.

Joining him in a discussion of legislative issues for 1982 were Rep. Gene Cline, of Olive Hill, Rep. Pete Worthington, of Ewing, and Rep. Walter Blevins, of Morehead.

"Those who wish to attend college should have the opportunity to do so," Bailey said. "If we need to raise taxes to support quality education, then the governor should take the lead and propose the measures."

Bailey, who represents the 29th district, predicted that educational needs on all levels would receive "a fair hearing" during the 1982 session of the General Assembly. But, he was pessimistic about the prospects for major new revenue sources.

"First, we will have to do a better job of using the resources now available to state and local government," Bailey added. "No one will support tax measures until they are convinced of the real need."

His comments included criticism of the Kentucky Council on Higher Education for raising tuition at public universities in the face of "serious" cuts in federal student aid programs.

Traveling Over Fifty

People over 50 in America take more foreign vacations than any other age group. If you are over 50, you'll appreciate these travel tips.

- Make sure your travel agent or tour operator has recently checked the quality of the hotels and restaurants you'll be frequenting.

- Your tour should have an experienced full-time tour director to cope with unexpected problems and details. A true director is with you from the start, through all stops, right to journey's end.

- Carefully read your brochure to determine if the activities involved are suitable for you. If a highlight demands strenuous activity, you should be advised of it in advance of booking.

- Take along more than enough prescription medicines for the trip. Store at least half in another bag. Have a duplicate generic prescription from your doctor. Ask him if it's available in the area you're visiting.

- Take along an extra pair of glasses and their prescription.

- Wear a medical alert bracelet and carry a card that identifies your blood-type, any health problem you have, and emergency phone numbers.

- If sitting for long periods of time, elevate your feet on a tote or other small bag to promote circulation and prevent swollen feet.

- Once you've arrived, consider your options, decide on a list of key sights, then stick to it. Keep it short so you can relax.

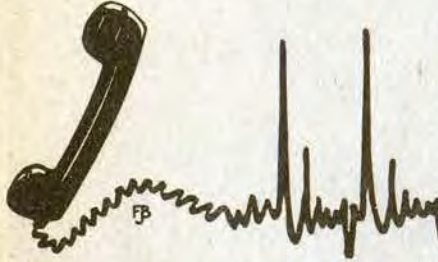

- Restricting the number of meals you eat is false economy. Traveling takes energy; eat a minimum of two meals a day, plus a snack or two.

- An extended stay in one location where you have a chance to live among the local inhabitants is likely to be a more personally rewarding experience than visiting a myriad of different locations.

Electronic Nurse Controversy

A conflict between privacy and convenience is being quietly played out in Florida's Pinellas County as GTE Sylvania conducts tests of its new Companion Service System. The system is an automated, computerized electronic nursemaid. It is now carefully monitoring the daily habits of selected subscribers for signs of a sudden, life-saving need for medical assistance.

According to GTE, one of the leading developers and suppliers of communication systems for hospitals, the unobtrusive sensors are placed at strategic points throughout the home. These sensors then monitor daily habits such as turning on and off a most-often-used lamp or television set, opening and closing the refrigerator, and entering and leaving the bathroom.

A series of interviews determines the subscriber's normal daily routine. That information is then fed into the computer. This becomes a personal activity pattern. If the usual daily pattern is broken, and no activity is detected within a predetermined period, the Control Unit attached to the telephone signals the person attending the Communication Center. This person can then take appropriate action.

Appropriate action can be phoning the subscriber, a neighbor, or an ambulance—depending on the situation. In addition, the subscriber has a portable "assist button," allowing him or her to signal for help if unable to reach the phone.

GTE's Companion Service System seems to be a sensible marriage of technology and necessity, but it raises some questions. Who will pay the $500 a year the system is estimated to cost per subscriber? Unless the system leads to lower overall medical costs, it is unlikely that a budget-conscious Congress will allow Medicaid and Medicare to pick up the tab.

Do the citizens want still another intrusion into their private lives? Who would have access to the personal activity pattern? At what point would the personal activity pattern begin to determine a person's activities?

With today's senior citizens more aware of the variety of programs and opportunities for personal development available to them, they are less likely to have an "activity pattern" that fits neatly into the machine logic of a computer.

Phone Prices Coming Down
As the number of people who own (instead of rent) their own telephones increases, the cost of these phones is coming down dramatically.

General Telephone and Electronics (GTE) will start marketing two electronic telephones early this year for $17.95 and $34.95. At that price, the phone would pay for itself after two years by eliminating the monthly rental you would otherwise pay for phone company equipment.

The $17.95 GTE phone only relays incoming calls (you can't dial out on it), and is suggested for use in places such as the bathroom, where you are likely to want an extension for receiving calls, but not necessarily for dialing out.

Both of the new phones are examples of the sized-down trend in telephone equipment. They have an on-off switch instead of the bulky phone body standard to the usual two piece telephone. To answer or make a call on these one piece phones, all you have to do is slide the switch to "on." When you want to hang up, you turn the switch off.

Department and mass merchandise stores, catalogue showrooms, electronic specialty stores, telephone boutiques and chain drugstores market telephones, and many of the phones are in the $20-$30 range. If you want pushbutton service, make sure the unit has a Universal Dialing Keyset which enables pushbutton operation on most private lines; that way you won't have to pay extra for the pushbutton service from the phone company.

Gifts That Help Handicapped

About one of every six Americans suffers from a variety of crippling diseases, including arthritis, (the nation's number one crippler), muscular dystrophy, multiple sclerosis and cerebral palsy.

Chances are you know one of these people. When you shop for them, give special thought to their special needs.

"The purpose of your gift," says Gail E. Riggs, president of the Allied Health Professions Section of the National Arthritis Foundation, "should be to help the handicapped person to be more independent."

"While you should be aware of the person's limitations, you should also be sensitive to those limitations," Ms. Riggs continues. "Many handicapped people do not perceive themselves to be as crippled as you might perceive them to be."

According to Ms. Riggs, places to look for appropriate gifts include medical supply houses, gift catalogues and your local department or specialty stores.

Useful gifts that will make the lives of those with physical handicaps easier and more enjoyable are:

- Stationary nail file: an emery board with suction cups on one end that fasten onto a table or arm of a chair for those who suffer from pain in the hands and fingers.

- Cape or poncho: will give warmth, and its loose fit is easier to manage than a tight, restricting coat, especially for those on crutches or in a wheelchair.

- Electric scissors reduce stress caused by manual shears.

- Bath mitt: makes soap management easier. A bath mitt is a helpful personal hygiene item and makes a nice gift with an assortment of soaps and toiletries.

- Sliding shelves can be purchased to fit existing shelves. These shelves bring items within easy reach, and are convenient for storing commonly-used items in the kitchen, bathroom and workroom.

- Bar stools for the kitchen, laundry, desk or bathroom enable a person with a physical handicap to work comfortably without fatigue. A bar stool with a padded seat and a backrest reaching up to midback helps maintain proper posture and eases pain in the neck, back, hips and spine.

Winter is the season for colds and flu. One way to help avoid becoming susceptible to these illnesses is to dress warmly. Clothing thickness is even more important than the type of fabric. Wearing layers is helpful because it allows one to take off clothes as the day gets warmer and conversely, to add clothes as the day gets colder once again. Avoid too much clothing. Perspiration, creating wet layers, will make you feel colder later. If your torso is kept warm, extra heat will be forced toward hand and feet. A hat will not only keep the head warm, but, by preventing loss of body heat, will help keep the rest of your body warm as well.

We all know that this is the time of year when we and our families come down with colds and the flu. At COOLEY APOTHECARY, INC. we care very much about your health, and know that we can offer you the most complete and Professional Prescription service in the area. ## Parents Can Help Children Learn at Home

As parents know, most children dislike homework even when they enjoy school.

Children with reading and learning difficulties especially get upset with schoolwork which continues at home. They may become angry at their parents for being made to fail one more time at their schoolwork.

These students with a slower-than-average learning rate can frustrate their caring parents. The parents need to show how their school-related skills can be used in fun ways at home.

Many helpful ideas for children with learning difficulties have been developed by the Arkansas Association for Children with Learning Disabilities. This group was aided by parents who worked with their children on needed school skills. These ideas help children use the skills as they learn them.

One such idea is to let your child count change in different amounts. Children can better learn math with objects they regularly see, such as dimes and nickels. A jar of change can be kept handy with the child as the keeper of the amount of the jar.

Plastic magnetic letters can be bought for refrigerator doors. These letters are not costly and can be used to spell out words such as "buy milk" or "clean stove." The child learns spelling while also keeping up with home duties.

A kitchen newspaper for the family can be started by placing paper and attached pencil on the wall or cabinet door. Each member of the family then takes turns writing messages, telling jokes and leaving news.

Riddle and joke books will encourage slow readers to read for fun. The child can also practice telling jokes or riddles, which will encourage memory and thinking.

Another helpful hint is to let children play "Beat the Clock." One parent whose children never finished tasks on time invented this game. The kitchen timer was used to time children on their tasks. When the buzzer went off, the children became aware of how their time had been spent. They developed a better sense of time, and even tried to beat the clock by finishing jobs early.

Sign writing for fun can be a way to get children to put the dreaded pencil to paper. Children can be encouraged to make signs for each room of the house, such as "Handle with care," "Wet floor," and "My room—please knock."

Most children like to cook, and recipes can be a fun way to learn math skills. Parents can help children double or halve ingredients in recipes. Temperature settings on stoves also involve math.

The daily newspaper is a wonderful tool for parents to use with their children. Each member of the family can give reports on certain parts of the paper, such as sports, comics, and front page. Parents can encourage reading of the paper by talking about certain articles which interest children. Spelling words can be made from newspaper stories—it might be much more fun to cut out spelling words than to read them from a list.

Tallying (record-keeping) of any kind is a practical way to use math in daily routines. Board games like Monopoly or checkers can provide the child a chance to keep score. Many parents buy these games for their children—the hard part is finding the time to play games with them.

Tape recorders are less costly now and can be wonderful learning tools for children who like to learn with their ears instead of their eyes. Spelling lists can be taped and played back with the child's voice doing all the talking. Math drills, such as multiplication tables, become more fun when the child can tape them. Children can also use a tape recorder to tell about stories they read in papers or books.

Some parents have asked their children to keep a "dream book," which is a notebook with the child's nightly dreams. The dreams can be drawn or described in words. Memory skills are helped with this exercise as well as a child's ability to interpret and explain.

Comic books have limited value, but they are favorites with many children. They may be just the thing for the very reluctant reader.

A photograph album or a notebook of drawings called "All About Me," have interested many children. Baby pictures, school pictures, drawings of a summer vacation, can all be included. The child improves in drawing, thinking and putting together material for projects. These skills are very valuable in school and will be fun when the topic is on the child.

There are many more learning activities which parents can use at home. Patience is the key, and interest in the child is reason for this extra work.

Homework may never be called fun, but learning at home sure can be!

Mayor-Elect Sloane To Speak at Opening Of New Holiday Inn

Louisville Mayor-Elect Harvey Sloane will be the featured speaker at a banquet Saturday, January 16, in connection with grand opening ceremonies for Paintsville's new Holiday Inn-Carriage House, according to an announcement from Blake Ratliff, owner and developer of Eastern Kentucky's newest motor hotel and convention center.

Sloane's address will climax a full day of activities inside the 400-foot-long motel.

The 150-room Holiday Inn-Carriage House opened for business just 15 months after the beginning of construction. Contained within its 95,000 square feet of space are three conference rooms, a restaurant, a game room, a beauty salon, an indoor-outdoor swimming pool, a whirlpool, a sauna, a putting green, private dining rooms, a gift shop and a fountain square.

The building's architecture is highlighted by a three-story atrium extending the length of the building and is fashionably designed in its interior in New Orleans French Quarter decor.

The $6 million motel opened its restaurant December 3 and began accepting guests December 10.

Cooking in the Cumberlands

By IRENE HAYES

Christmas has come and gone and has been added to our holiday memories. It is time to make New Year's resolutions, take down the tree (a chore I have always dreaded) and pack away the decorations until next year. I still have a treetop ornament I bought for our first Christmas tree.

When my children were little, after two or three weeks, I would pack away half of their toys. Later when I exchanged them for the ones they were playing with, they thought they were new. They were never bored with their toys that way.

In my area real winter weather begins in earnest in January. Cold windy nights make home and fireside very attractive. Now is a good time to get together before an open fire, popcorn and play games. You can make candy and cookies too. It will be a great time to train the future cooks in your family.

Early in my cooking career as housewife and mother I decided to try making yeast bread and rolls. I am during the winter months. We lived on the farm. The house wasn't as well heated or as well insulated as the houses are now. I either let the yeast mixture get too hot by being too close to the heat or too cold when I moved it farther away. I was so discouraged with the results that I gave up. I regret this very much as my children never had the pleasure of coming home from school to be greeted with the delicious aroma of homemade bread as I did as a child.

Nothing adds more to a fine dinner than homemade yeast rolls. I am including a recipe from my cookbook for dinner rolls. It was given to me by Leona Prater, formerly of Garrett, Kentucky, and now living in Westland, Michigan. If you are making yeast rolls for the first time don't expect them to be perfect. This is truly one recipe where "practice makes perfect." Keep trying. You will be pleased with the results.

Dinner Rolls

DISSOLVE in 1/2 cup warm water:
2 pkgs. dry yeast
COMBINE in a large bowl:
1/2 cup sugar
1 tsp. salt
2 cups warm milk
1/2 cup soft shortening
THEN ADD:
2 eggs, slightly beaten
Yeast mixture
STIR IN: 7 to 7 1/2 cups flour
Mix with a spoon until dough is stiff enough to handle. Turn out onto floured board and knead lightly. The dough should be soft. Place in a greased bowl, turning dough so as to grease both sides. Cover. Let rise in a warm place until doubled in bulk (about 1 1/2 hours). Punch down dough. Let rise again until almost doubled in bulk (about 1 1/2 hours). Punch down again. Form into balls about 1/2 the size desired for dinner rolls. Let rise again (about 1/2 hour).
Bake 12 to 15 minutes in 400° oven until golden brown.
Note: The dough can also be used for cinnamon rolls.

If you would like to make a delicious chicken dish, try the Chicken Breasts With Bacon. It looks like it has taken hours to prepare but it is really quite simple. It has received raves every time I have served it. The recipe was given to me by Virginia Clark, of Lexington, Kentucky.

Chicken Breasts With Bacon

SPLIT, SKIN and BONE 6 whole chicken breasts, using very sharp knife, or buy them prepared in this manner. It will save you some time. Salt lightly. (Bacon will add salt.)
COMBINE:
1 (8-oz.) pkg. cream cheese, softened
10 or 12 young green onions, chopped fine, including a great deal of the green
Form into 12 walnut-sized balls.
Wrap half a chicken breast around each one.
THEN WRAP 2 slices of bacon around the chicken, covering as much of the chicken as possible.
Secure with toothpicks, which can be removed after baking.
Bake uncovered in 350° oven for 1 hour or until chicken is tender.
Serves 6.
Note: This recipe may be made ahead and refrigerated until time to bake.

I have a failing concerning a recipe I like. I make it so often that I wear my family out on it. The following recipe is an exception. I still make it and everyone loves it. It was given to me by Dorothy Pinson, of Danville, Kentucky.

Broccoli Casserole

BOIL 5 minutes: 2 (10-oz.) pkgs. frozen chopped broccoli.
Drain.
COMBINE and ADD:
2 beaten eggs
1 cup mayonnaise
2 tbsps. minced onion
1 cup grated sharp cheese
1 can cream of celery soup
Salt and pepper to taste
Pour into buttered 2-qt. casserole.
Cover with buttered party snack cracker crumbs.
Bake about 35 minutes in 350° oven.
Serves 8.

There is one thing that goes back to childhood memories. My Mother made the best gingerbread I have ever tasted. This recipe is as old as the one Mother used. I do not have her recipe. Gingerbread is inexpensive and delicious. Men love it. It is Erna Prater's Mother's Gingerbread. Her mother is Frona Gearheart, of Hueysville, Kentucky.

Mother's Gingerbread

CREAM: 1/2 cup shortening
ADD: 1/2 cup brown sugar
Beat until light.
STIR IN:
1 cup molasses
1 tsp. cinnamon
3 cups sifted cake flour
1/2 tsp. salt
1 tsp. ginger
ADD to 1 cup boiling water: 2 tsp. soda
Pour into mixture, stirring hard.
THEN ADD: 2 beaten eggs
This makes a very thin batter.
Pour into greased and floured 9x13x2-inch pan.
Bake in 350° oven until done when tested.

If you have become bored with cooking, there is no better time than now to begin trying new recipes and getting interested again. If you have been using easy to prepare food, start cooking "from scratch". The response from your family will make it worthwhile. Take care.

PUBLIC NOTICE TO OWNERS OF RENTAL HOUSING

The Floyd County Housing Authority is administering a Section 8 Moderate Rehabilitation Program in Floyd County using funds provided by the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Under this program, owners will rehabilitate rental units which are now substandard or have major building systems or components requiring repair or replacement. The cost of this work, which must total at least $1000 per unit, may be financed by a local lending institution, by the owner, or by any other source available to the owner. The agency does not make rehabilitation loans or grants, but will assist owners to obtain financing.

After required rehabilitation work has been completed, the agency and the owner will execute a contract which establishes a rent for the unit(s) that will cover rehabilitation costs, meet monthly operating expenses, and allow a reasonable profit on the owner's investment. For a fifteen year period, the owner will rent the rehabilitated unit(s) to eligible lower income tenants, who will pay approximately 25 percent of their income toward the rent. The agency will pay the remainder of the rent directly to the owner. The initial occupant of a rehabilitated unit may be the owner's present eligible tenant. After rehabilitation the rent (including utilities) cannot exceed the following Maximum Rents:

BEDROOM SIZE
1	2	3	4
206	244	282	319

The agency's current funds will allow rehabilitation of 35 units of rental housing as follows:

1 BR	2 BR	3 BR	4 BR
8	18	7	2

No unit will be assisted which results in the permanent displacement of a current tenant. Proposals from owners will be received by the Housing Authority until further notice. Owners who wish to submit a proposal must obtain an application form from:

Floyd County Housing Authority
Housing Office
Green Acres
Prestonsburg, Ky. 41653

Assembly To Consider Enterprise Zone Plan

A 24-member task force is putting finishing touches on a proposed bill that would establish one or more enterprise zones in Kentucky.

The Commerce Secretary's Committee on Enterprise Zones recently made final revisions on its draft, after hearing an urban expert praise the proposal for its breadth.

The expert, Edgar Vash of a Washington-based legislative organization, told the group, "You folks will have the most comprehensive, creative and constructive legislation anyone has passed." Eight states have adopted enterprise zone laws, he noted, and others are expected to follow suit. His remarks came during a Dec. 18 meeting in Louisville.

Commerce Secretary Bruce Lunsford said recently the committee soon will submit the draft to the Legislative Research Commission for consideration by the 1982 General Assembly.

Enterprise zones are depressed areas where government agencies offer incentives to lure business and industry. Those incentives may include tax breaks, improved municipal services and relief from certain regulations.

One area in Kentucky that is expected to apply for enterprise zone designation is the West End of Louisville.

The idea behind enterprise zones is to bring about neighborhood revitalization with private rather than public funds. The concept has caught on with the Reagan administration, which is expected to endorse legislation that would set up such zones throughout the nation, Lunsford said. In the meantime, several states are proceeding with zones on state and local levels.

The state committee's draft sets forth criteria for the designation of an enterprise zone. The proposed bill doesn't set a limit on their number, but perhaps a dozen areas of the state are expected to qualify, Lunsford said. The zones would be set up within the next four years, the proposal states.

A city or county would apply for designation to a state committee whose members would come from throughout the state. The committee would decide which areas would qualify.

A business moving into an enterprise zone would be offered one-stop licensing and permitting and would be exempt from state taxes on the sale of property and on loan interest. Also, state and use taxes on business equipment would be abolished and commercial buildings would be eligible for a property tax moratorium.

The bill also allows state agencies to exempt an enterprise zone from any regulation, assuming no health or safety issue is involved. The proposal also would let residents of an enterprise zone set up a neighborhood enterprise association. The group would be allowed to lease for a token amount all state and local-government property in the zone not being used. That provision would, for instance, allow the organization to take over an abandoned plot of city land to establish a community park.

Report Questions If Medical Profession Will Police Itself

For years the medical profession was unable to police itself. Then Congress set up a system that has shown real promise of working. And now—according to a report in the January Reader's Digest—organized medicine itself is trying to kill it. The Reagan Administration appears willing to help.

Professional Standards Review Organizations, established by Congress in the 1970s, are policing groups originally set up to review Medicaid and Medicare programs. PSRO's are not run by organized medicine but by volunteer physicians. So far they are well staffed and have adequate budgets, and so far they are extremely cost effective as well as instrumental in improving medical care.

The New York County unit, which a budget of $2.5 million and strong staff support, has cut billings to the government by $6 million annually. In one instance it closed down a hospital, based on investigations following an increasing number of bad-medicine complaints.

Yet professional medical societies and hospital peer-review boards often claim they can police themselves without outside help. Unfortunately, there are few statistics to support their view.

Dr. Kenneth Kaplan, a cardiologist who is a volunteer for the Winchester County, N.Y., PSRO, sums up the view of many. "The old system didn't work and couldn't work," he says. "The PSROs are the profession's last chance to prove that it can police itself. If we can't make them work, the only logical conclusion the public can draw is that we don't want them to work."

Vietnam—Era Veterans Get New GI Bill Chance

As many as 39,000 Vietnam-era veterans are expected to take advantage of a one-time, two-year extension of their GI Bill delimiting date, the Veterans Administration estimates.

Extended eligibility for certain training programs was included in the Veterans' Health Care, Training and Small Business Loan Act of 1981 signed into law by the President, November 3. The extension period, which opened January 1 and runs through December 31, applies to educationally disadvantaged or unskilled Vietnam-era veterans who allowed their 10-year delimiting date to expire before using all their entitlement for educational training.

Eligible veterans may use their remaining entitlement to obtain a high school diploma, or its equivalent, or pursue a program of apprenticeship, other on-the-job training or a program with a vocational objective.

I.W. Abel retired as Steelworkers' president in 1977 after reaching the mandatory retirement age of 68, according to "Important Events in American Labor History," a publication of the U.S. Department of Labor.
