Circuit Court Jury Clears 2 In Arson Case

Billy Joe Harrington was cleared by a Floyd circuit court jury last Saturday at the conclusion of a three-day trial on six charges stemming from the fire which last September destroyed the Bypro home of his neighbor.

The neighbor, Silas Elkins, also was acquitted of charges of complicity with Harrington in arson and burning personal property to defraud an insurer. Besides these two charges, Harrington also was accused of burglary, receiving stolen property and two counts of obscuring the identity of an item.

A list of items claimed to have been destroyed in the fire at the Elkins home was supplied Arson Investigator McKenzie. Corresponding items, including a stereo and furniture, were later found in the Harrington home. Commonwealth witnesses, including some of Harrington's children, testified, according to Assistant Commonwealth's Attorney Jerry Patton, that they helped carry certain items from the Elkins building to Harrington's. The prosecutor said one of Harrington's daughters told of accompanying her father to the Elkins building, of seeing there liquid in a con-

Financing Costs Cited as Factor In 2-Year Delay

Nearly two years after the fiscal court approved an application by K-Mart for $2.8 million in industrial revenue bonds to finance construction of a store here, the project is still up in the air, a company official concedes.

On account of the depressed economy and higher interest rates now prevailing, K-Mart officials are still trying to decide whether the project—an 8000-square-foot store intended for a site near the intersection of U.S. 23 and the Mountain Parkway—is economically feasible, Don Dayne, the company's real estate representative for this area, said this week.

One factor that may influence the decision here is the fate of a similar proposal in Paintsville, where the city council is scheduled to vote tonight on the issuance of $1.75 million in the industrial revenue bonds for a K-Mart store on Route 40 East.

The Paintsville council is said to be sharply divided on the issue, some members claiming the bonds—interest on which is tax-exempt—give the firms for which they are issued an unfair competitive edge over companies dependent on conventional financing.

When K-Mart sought approval of the bond issue here in August, 1980, company representatives said construction would begin in October that year, with the store opening expected the following August or September. The project would produce from 90 to 100 jobs here and generate an annual payroll of $900,000, it was said.

State Heads Off Floyd Land Sale

State officials were having trouble this week explaining why last Friday's public auction sale of a tract of land on new KY 80, at the southern city limits of Martin, was cancelled.

The sale had been well-advertised, there was no shortage of prospective bidders, and their bids, it was indicated, would have been perhaps as much as $50,000 above the value placed on the property by state-employed appraisers—but when the 10 a.m. hour of the sale came a representative of the Department of Transportation arrived only to announce there would be no sale.

The only reason given for the cancellation was that the state appraisal of the property, which was $148,000, would be exceeded by bids by as much as $50,000.

When Joe Clark, Department of Transportation spokesman, was asked if appraisals aren't mainly for the protection of the seller, to give assurance that property is not sold below its worth, and that that appraisal figure does not preclude higher offers, his comment was that "we just want a better idea of how much the property is worth."

He said the department had no plan for a "private" sale to any individual or group and that the property again will be offered for sale after an outside appraiser has determined the minimum value of the property.

Some would-be-bidders said they had been told as early as last Thursday there would be no point in attending the auction, that it would not be held. Some 15 bidders, however, were on the site, it was said.

Some would-be bidders had indicated they would offer $200,000 or more for the tract. Among those interested in the property were the Church of Latter Day Saints (Mormon), the Fairchild Mining Machinery Co., George Barnette, John C. Hall and Denzil Ray Hall.

Lovel Hall, county property valuation administrator, said a state appraiser called on him before making his appraisal, to ask his opinion of the value of the property. He said he told him it "could well be as much as a quarter of a million dollars."

Hall described the property as "the best commercial site on new KY 80." It was acquired by the state from heirs of E. L. Dingus and its 6.336 acres includes 4.2 acres of level land fronting 950 feet on the highway.

Court Majority Approves Lights Despite Opinion

At issue were blue lights but some of the magistrates saw red.

In discussing during last Friday's fiscal court meeting an ordinance which would authorize flashing blue lights on constables' cars here, Magistrates Kenneth Roberts and Lowell Samons argued strongly for the measure, noting that Constable Bob Hackworth, of Martin, needed the lights if he was to carry out his duties effectively.

The problem with that, County Attorney Arnold Turner, Jr. told the court, is that it is not legal.

Turner cited an attorney-general's opinion, according to which the state appeals court held in 1974 that constables could not use the flashing blue lights.

The state law providing for blue lights on police vehicles does not include constables' cars, and an ordinance of the kind proposed here

Martin's Water Board Resigns

Martin's three water commissioners have submitted letters of resignation.

Neither the mayor nor city council, which does not have a regular meeting scheduled until June 3, has acted on the resignation, and Water Commission Chairman Raymond Griffith indicated he and the other commissioners would remain in office until replacements are appointed.

However, they will make no major policy decisions, Griffith said, "in case the new commission has different ideas."

The other commissioners are McDouglas Whicker and Steve Jenkins.

Griffith declined to comment on the reasons for his resignation, which follows criticism of a recent hike in water rates and a lingering controversy over the question of whether Martin should buy water from the Beaver-Elkhorn system or, as the commission has recommended, rebuild its own water plant.

If the council can work out its problems, he might yet be able to work with it, Griffith said. "But I'd rather be out of the picture," he added. "It has been nothing but a headache."

A SUPERB PERFORMANCE

When I think of the size of the crowd, I am disappointed but when I recall the program presented here Tuesday night, last week, by the U.S. Army Field Band and Soldiers' Chorus, all thought of chagrin fades.

They were superb. I confess, I am no great shakes of a music critic, but my assessment of the performance has been confirmed by so many I know my critique is right.

These two groups are known nationally as "the musical ambassadors of the U.S. Army," and they did themselves and the Army proud. For me personally it didn't hurt the Field Band's ratings a bit for its commander to be Lt. Col. William E. Clark whom I have known perhaps longer than he can remember.

If ever the Band and Chorus play a return engagement here—and we hope they will—don't miss them.

One of the finest moments of the concert was when Col. Clark directed the Soldiers' Chorus in the singing of "Happy Birthday" to his father, E.E. Clark, who was a young 85 that day and had driven the 400 miles from coastal Virginia to be here. I don't have the record before me, but I hazard the guess that he is the first ever to be so honored by the Chorus.

Road Funds Said Shy, Salaries Draw Fire

Although Judge-Executive Jerry Lafferty, Jr. made it clear in advance that a good portion of it had already been budgeted, several citizens turned out for hearings last week with suggestions as to how federal and state money expected in July should be spent.

The $448,266 in county road aid—derived from state gasoline taxes—drew predictable interest, even though Lafferty pointed out that, spread over 770 miles of county roads, the fund amounted to only $580 a mile. With roads costing $25,000 a mile to build and $10,000 a mile to resurface, "it's not a lot of money," the judge-executive explained.

The 8.9 percent salary raise which the fiscal court voted itself last month came in for some spirited criticism, the Rev. John Henry Woods—who had come to ask for a bridge to be replaced on Slick Rock Fork of Cow Creek—making the irrelevant suggestion that the salary increase might have been better spent on blacktop.

With 24 road workers laid off earlier this year because of the current fiscal crunch, the court's salary raise "did not seem logical," Woods said. He questioned whether, in view of the state of the roads here, the county could afford to employ magistrates at all.

Pursuing Woods' lead, the Rev. Bob Houghton—one of an Auxier delegation requesting money for road work in that community—suggested that volunteers rather than paid magistrates might be recruited to report on roads in need of repair, after the fashion of the volunteers who supply information for the flood warning system here.

Commenting on the salary hikes voted themselves by Congress, state legislators, and now the fiscal court, Houghton wondered aloud whether this might not illustrate the "trickle down" theory of economics.

Judge Lafferty said he had appealed to Congressman Carl D. Perkins for assistance in obtaining a rock crusher and blacktop machine for the county, an arrangement that would enable the court better to maintain the roads here, he said.

Among those who approached the court seeking a share of $764,218 anticipated in coal severance tax monies and $336,848 in federal revenue-sharing funds were representatives of the Parkway Community Development Association and the Clark PTA playground committee, who want to renovate the ballfield there for use as a community park; Prestonsburg-Floyd County Disaster and Emergency Services, who seek $29,957 in operating expenses; the county's three senior citizen centers ($18,000 for bus drivers); the Wheelwright Library ($7000 for a librarian); District Judge Harold Stumbo ($300 a month for a trial commissioner); the U.S. Soil Con-

Slone Hearing As a Juvenile Held Required

Although he is 47 years old, Frederick Slone, who has by his own statement made himself suspect in the murder here 31 years ago of Muriel Baldrige, Prestonsburg High School girl, must go through juvenile court before any formal prosecution of the case can be undertaken.

Because he was a minor, said to have been only 15 years old at the time of the crime, the murder charge lodged against him last week was dismissed in district court here Monday on motion of the public defender.

City officials promptly filed a juvenile petition, naming Slone as defendant, and a juvenile hearing was set by District Judge Harold J. Stumbo for June 7.

Meanwhile, Slone is at liberty, without bond.

If the case develops further—and that's doubtful—the County Attorney's office will ask, first, for a mental evaluation of the defendant who has been a mental patient three times in the last 10 years, according to his own statement.

"At this time," said County Attorney Arnold Turner, Jr., "I have seen nothing independent of his own statement to support the charge against the defendant. No corroborative evidence has yet been found."

CONSIDERED A NUISANCE by some, the prolific honeysuckle may, indeed, just about "take the place" if the plant's spread is not controlled. But there are those who would argue that the beauty of the vine's delicate flowers and their almost intoxicating fragrance make any aggravation well worth it.

Spouse Accused In Davis Death

Mrs. Ella Bray Davis, 62, former Prestonsburg woman, is at liberty under $5000 cash bond, charged with the fatal shooting at her home in Lexington, last Wednesday of her estranged husband, well-known Lexington attorney Kenneth C. Davis, 59.

Mrs. Davis has pleaded not guilty to the murder charge lodged against her. An autopsy report said Davis was shot three times in the back with bullets from a .38-calibre revolver.

The two were alone in the home when the shooting took place, and details are lacking. It was reported that in their divorce action both had expressed fear of the other and that their segregation had been directed by court order.

The couple met during World War II at Ft. Knox where Davis was in the Army and his future wife was a member of the Women's Army Corps. They were known to acquaintances as "good neighbors."

Davis first practised law in Louisville, later becoming corporate attorney for Time Finance Company. The late Garvice Kincaid subsequently employed him as senior vice-president and general counsel of Kentucky Finance Company, and in May, 1960 Davis joined Kentucky Finance, a subsidiary of Kentucky Central Life Insurance Company, a post which he held till he took early retirement last February. He was a former president of the Kentucky Consumer Finance Association and was recognized as one of the experts in consumer finance laws of the various states.

Trial of Bevins Set At Greenup, Nov. 29 In Slaying of Five

The trial of William Okie Bevins, 70, charged with the murder of five persons at Allen last October, has been set for trial in the Greenup circuit court next November 29, Commonwealth's Attorney James R. Allen announced this week.

Allen said efforts were made to get an earlier trial date but that the trial judge, James T. Atkinson, Jr., was firm in setting the November date.

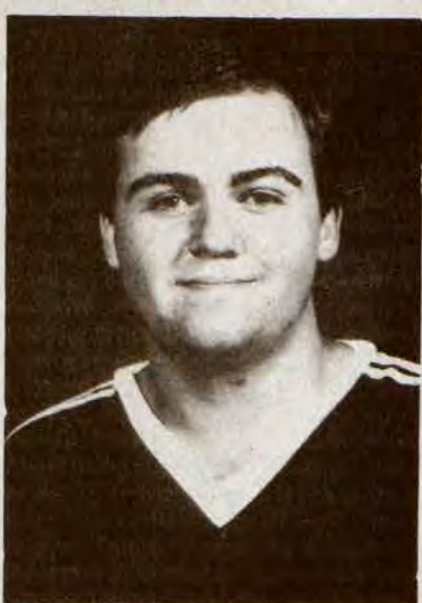

A state psychiatrist has completed a mental evaluation of the defendant and has held that he is mentally competent to stand trial.

Bevins is accused of killing Michael Halbert, 28, of Martin; Roger Click, 28, of Allen, Rufus Hamilton, 42, of Ligon; Jarvey Hamilton, 27, of Grethel, and Roger Hatfield, 34, of Matewan, W. Va. Three others were wounded as Bevins allegedly fired a fusillade of shots from an automatic rifle inside a truck parts store on the outskirts of Allen.

CAN WE TOUR YOUR FUNERAL HOME?

As professionals dealing with death and bereavement, we funeral directors feel a close kinship with the clergy. We work closely with them before, during and after the funeral service. It is for this reason we extend an invitation to members of the clergy in the area to visit with us, view our facilities, and become better acquainted with our funeral home, our staff and directors. It also becomes an opportunity to discuss how we can serve more appropriately your congregations from a religious viewpoint. This invitation is also extended without reservation to all others whose professional or personal interests would be served or benefitted by our "open house" visit. Please phone in advance so we can personally spend this time with you. To further indicate our desire to share our common concern with the clergy, we offer the use of our library of professional reference books on death and dying. These are likewise available to other interested persons.

Pleas for Assistance Deluge Human Resources' Ombudsman

"My wife and I have worked since we got out of school, we have never depended on any kind of subsidy from the government," says the person talking by the phone to a member of the Department for Human Resources' Ombudsman's staff.

"After both of us were laid-off from our jobs, we managed on our savings and unemployment insurance benefits until they ran out a few months ago. Now we are desperate," explains the caller. "Neither one of us can find a job, we're out of money and we don't have any food. Please help us."

Staff members of the Ombudsman's office hear about situations like this every day.

Within the last year, the staff of the Ombudsman's office have seen a shift in the number and type of calls they receive.

In the past, the majority of calls were complaints about the benefits and services the Human Resources Department offered. Calls about late food stamps, lost Aid for Families with Dependent Children checks, and complaints about the department's field staff were typical.

Now most of the calls are from people who are desperately looking for help, any kind of help. Prior to 1981, the office could expect to receive about 600 calls a year. Last year calls numbered 25,515.

Most of the people calling the ombudsman are trying to find out whether they are eligible for any assistance. "Many of these callers earned a good living before the current recession," said Michael Rankins, Human Resources ombudsman. "These are the people whose tax dollars supported the department's programs. Asking for help through the ombudsman's office is often the last resort," he said.

Unfortunately, many of the people calling for help are ineligible for many of the assistance programs the department administers," Rankins said. "Sometimes they are eligible for food stamps and a one-time energy assistance check. They usually are not eligible for AFDC benefits because the husband has not abandoned his family and he is not physically incapacitated," he said.

"What the ombudsman's office can do in these situations is call on churches, civic organizations, and local government agencies," said Rankins. "Many times the department's local office staff can direct the caller to local aid groups. We don't rule out any resource that can possibly help someone in need," he said. "Also the ombudsman's staff calls landlords and utility companies in order to buy time for a family.

Sometimes the calls come from people who have been refused medical treatment. A typical situation is that of a young expectant mother who is ineligible for any of the department's medical assistance programs. Often, the father of the child-to-be is in school, has no work history and is not physically incapacitated. Sometimes the father is working, but earns only the minimum wage with no health insurance.

The expectant mother usually calls the ombudsman only after hospitals and doctors have turned her away because she doesn't have a Medicaid card, insurance or large sum of money for immediate payment. Also, the expectant mother often calls in the last months of her pregnancy.

In situations like this, the ombudsman's staff tries to find someone or some facility that will provide the needed medical attention. "In the past, the University of Kentucky and University of Louisville hospitals were able to help our clients," said Rankins. "Because these hospitals are going through hard financial times, we are having to look elsewhere for help."

Most of the time, the ombudsman's staff can find some kind of assistance through local private or public health agencies, especially through the regional health departments. "However, sometimes we simply cannot find any assistance for persons in need of health care," Rankins said.

tainer and of her father "smelling like gasoline" when he emerged from the house, shortly before the blaze started.

The credibility of the witness was challenged, however, since she had in an earlier written statement failed to mention the odor of gasoline. Both defendants denied guilt. Harrington testified that he bought from Elkins some of the items introduced as evidence. Two young sons of Harrington testified they were with their father on the night of the fire and that he had no opportunity to set fire to the house.

The jury deliberated about two hours.

would conflict with the law, Assistant Deputy Attorney-General Charles W. Runyan wrote in a January 15 opinion.

Roberts and Samons voted to enact the ordinance anyway. Judge-Executive Jerry Lafferty, Jr. joining them in the vote. In deference to the attorney-general's opinion, Magistrates Gerald DeRossett and Ed Caudill abstained.

Hackworth said he had used the lights for the nine years he has been constable for the Right Beaver section and that the issue would not have arisen now except for a political feud among factions of Floyd Democrats.

Coal trucks may soon have to be covered here, according to a fiscal court decision. On a motion of Magistrate Samons, who said he receives many complaints about falling coal, the county attorney was instructed to draw up an ordinance which would require that any loose load in trucks traveling county roads be covered to prevent spillage.

The court approved an application by Highlands Regional Medical Center for a $12 million bond issue by the Kentucky Development Finance Authority. The hospital revenue bonds would finance construction of a 47-bed addition to the existing facility.

The county will not pay South Central Bell money the phone company says is due it. The company claims county road crews severed phone cables in October, 1980 and September last year, doing $2230 worth of damage. The magistrates said Bell is responsible for burying its cables deep enough to avoid damage by county backhoes.

Entrance to the county park at Allen will be sealed at midnight following reports that motorcycles and jeeps have torn up newly-sown grass and that water fountains have been vandalized there.

Bids will be asked for 20,000 tons of gravel for road maintenance over the next six months.

HRMC Newsletter Wins Award

For the second year in a row, the public information office of Highlands Regional Medical Center received recognition at the Kentucky Hospital Association Annual meeting in Louisville.

"Vital Signs," the hospital newsletter was awarded second place honors in the Kentucky Society of Hospital Public Relations competition. It was judged against newsletters from hospitals with fewer than 200 beds throughout Kentucky. A plaque was given to Amy Conn, HRMC Public Information Officer during the "Run for the Winners Circle Awards Banquet" at the Galt House in Louisville. Russell Dean, Assistant Administrator edits the prize-winning newsletter and Diana Crum, Secretary, is the typist.

Suspect Shot In Little Mud Break

A 25-year-old Little Mud man is in hospital with a gunshot wound to the back and a warrant has been issued for his arrest in connection with a break-in at a Honaker grocery early Sunday morning.

Det. Keith Scott, of the Kentucky State Police, said a burglary was reported at the grocery owned by Terry and Joanne Lykens around 2:50 a.m. Sunday, in the course of which Sam Williams, of Honaker, was shot once with a pistol.

While Mrs. Lykens declined to comment on the incident, it appeared that Williams was "caught in the act" by the store owners, who live nearby.

Williams was said Tuesday to be in satisfactory condition in the Pikeville Methodist Hospital.

Says Thanks Overdue

At this time, we feel acknowledgment is long overdue for the time and efforts given by Miss Elizabeth Frazier (better known as Miss Fra). Miss Frazier is the music teacher at Prestonsburg High School and who is very dedicated in serving all her students. She also gives so much of her precious time to the Honor Choir. Through her dedicated service and many long practices, she has managed to gain 110 percent effort from all of her choir members.

Through all of our long practices, performances and concerts, Miss Frazier has continued to be patient, understanding and a continuous example and a truly great leader.

Her kindness and encouragement gain much respect from everyone, and through her example, patience and true dedication, she maintains a good spirit throughout performances as well as practices.

And much thanks goes to her mother, Miss Kathrine, whose smiling face always offers much encouragement and warmth to all.

Through the year, the time we have spent with these two very special ladies, who have given so much of themselves and asked for nothing in return, will always be memorable to all and be a constant reminder of what giving of oneself, as they have, can do and how, by gaining respect of the "Modern-Day Kids," can accomplish so very much.

We have been undoubtedly blessed with such excellent leaders and examples and it is truly amazing what progress these ladies have made, not only enriching our interest in music, but by truly enriching our lives.

Much more appreciation is in need for such two marvelous people. We are honored to be members of the Honor Choir and to know such beautiful people exist and really care.

We, the Choir and the community, have truly been blessed with such wonderful people as these. And a special "Thank You" to Miss Frazier who, through much effort and patience, took the time to practice with us and teach us as much as she possibly could. She also had the courage to take us to Atlanta, Georgia, to participate in the 6 Flags Music Festival, where, through much effort, we were rated Superior and won 1st Place in our Division in a National Competition. Through Miss Frazier's kindness and true interest in all of us, it is obvious to all how much caring and hard work can accomplish. Our appreciation also to the community and mostly parents who supported us and kept our spirits high, and gave us such a tremendous welcome home.

REBEKAHS MEET

Members of Miriam Rebekah Lodge No. 31 held their regular meeting Tuesday evening, May 18, at the I.O.O.F. building, with Mrs. Virginia S. Goble, noble grand, presiding. During the business session, plans were made for initiation services to take place June 7. Several members reported making visits to the sick and elderly during Nursing Home Week. The appointive officers for the year were honored, with the noble grand recognizing and thanking each of them for their support during the year. "Happy Birthday" was sung to Mrs. Alicia Adkins, vice noble grand. Present for the meeting were Mesdames Virginia S. Goble, Alicia Adkins, Norma Stepp, Venelia Rinehart, Rebecca Bingham, Maman Leslie, Mabel Jean LeMaster, Otelia Smiley, Nancy Duff, Verlie Joseph, Sallie B. Goble, Myrtle Allen, Edith Burchett, Amma Kendrick, Nola Stepp, Opal Dings, and Jean Hickman. The next regular meeting will be June 1, at 7:30 p.m., at the same location.

Ask Show "Good Faith"

You get what you pay for. This is the conclusion we came to recently after visiting an elementary school in a nearby school district. About 40 to 45% of the financial support for that district comes from local taxes compared to less than 5% local financial support of the Floyd county school district.

A lot of people tell us they would be willing to pay more taxes but they don't approve of how the money is being spent now. If the community of Floyd county were to prove its willingness to pay for quality education (teachers, materials, facilities) by paying more taxes, then perhaps it could also expect "good faith" decisions from its board of education. For example, it is rumored that there may be some retirements of central office personnel soon. In the face of large funding cuts from state and federal sources, a "good faith" decision could be not to fill any central office positions which are vacated due to these retirements. Duties of these positions could be redistributed among other central office employees. Teachers are expected to handle extra responsibilities (in the form of extra students) when there aren't enough teachers. Why shouldn't we expect administration personnel to handle extra responsibilities, also? Not replacing retirees could save the system as much as, or more than, $18,000 per year, depending on how many retire and what their positions are.

HB 44 limits the amount of property tax a school board can raise without risk of recall (voted by the people) or without asking the people to vote a special tax. But if the school board needs to raise taxes then they should be willing to demonstrate, in a meaningful way, their "good faith". "We the people" should then demonstrate our "good faith" by allowing them to raise taxes but demand the right to vote again on the same issue in a year or two. If "good faith" is not kept, then we can rescind the tax increase through our next vote.

During legislative sessions we hear a lot about calling or writing our legislators to express our opinions. The same holds true for our Board of Education. They can't represent us properly if we don't let them know our opinion.

Lauds Concert

Thanks to you and all who were responsible for the visit to our community of the Army Field Band and Soldiers' Chorus. I was privileged to attend both performances, and found them entertaining, uplifting, and carefully tailored to the needs of the audience. It was a rare treat, and everyone who attended is most grateful.

The only disappointment is that more people—especially our youth interested in music—were not there to enjoy the concerts. All who missed this opportunity, however, missed something great. We who shared it are in your debt, and express our thanks.

Tough On 'Worm Drowners'

My good friend, Frank Gray, in a letter published a week or so ago in The Times, wondered why in district court they were "throwing the book" at the unlicensed fisherman while it saved others—charges amended, or suspended or dismissed—but no mercy to "worm-drowners," as most of us are.

Maybe the opinion of the court is that those speeders, drunk and reckless drivers will in time take care of themselves by running into a tree or utility pole or over a hill. The overweight trucks, if let alone, will soon mire down in their own ruts and won't be able to operate empty, not to mention overloaded. So why bother with them?

I might suggest we assign our state police and weight people to shore patrol. They could assist our game wardens in rounding up all those unlicensed fishermen, or worm-drowners, and also help keep honest those who try to sneak off with those 11 3/4-inch bass. Like the idea? Well, it seems that is where the convictions are.

CHAPTER HAS MONTHLY MEET

The Jenny Wiley Chapter of the American Chapter of Retired Persons (A.A.R.P.) held its regular monthly meeting at the First Presbyterian Church here last Thursday afternoon, with the president, Jack Freed, presiding. The devotionals were given by Delmas Saunders, who was elected to serve as vice-president.

James Kelly, director of Social Security for the Big Sandy area, gave helpful information about various phases of this program. He told the group that this year's Social Security increase, which is to become effective July 1, will be 7.4 percent, and that no person eligible for these payments would lose any benefits. He said that changes were being made in this program, but that these changes would not affect the older citizens. He added that children in school, who were eligible for loans or grants to continue their education would be allowed to receive these. Mr. Kelly discussed Medicare in detail, explaining that eligibility for this program is to be 65 years of age, or totally disabled for two years.

Following the program, Mr. Freed distributed A.A.R.P. materials to those present, and urged them to encourage all persons aged 55 and older to join this organization in order to benefit from the services which it offers.

It was announced that Edward L. Ryan, state coordinator of the Kentucky Driver Improvement Program, is available to come here and present a course in "55 Alive—Mature Driving." This course would be taught at the First Presbyterian Church, 3-1/2 hours per day, for two days. There would need to be at least 15 persons to enroll. It was suggested that A.A.R.P. and N.R.T.A. may become interested in jointly sponsoring the program, which is available during September.

The next regular meeting will be held in conjunction with a picnic, Thursday, June 17, at 2 p.m., at the Dewey Dam recreational area. Each member is asked to bring a basket of food; coffee and soft drinks will be furnished by the board of directors. In case of rain, the picnic will be held at the First Presbyterian Church.

The next board of directors' meeting will be Monday, August 9, at 10:30 a.m., at Archer Park. Lunch will be served following the meeting.

Present for Thursday's meeting were Jack Freed, Otelia Smiley, Norma Stepp, Virginia S. Goble, Hagar White, Alice Baldrige, John R. Baldrige, James E. Goble, Delmas Saunders, Glenn S. Anderson, Phyllis A. Reed, and Social Security Administrator Kelly.

Thanks

"Skimp Skamp"

Unique Single Back Seam!

A whisper of Lycra® stretch combined with unique single-seam construction means Henson's SkimpSkamp panties won't ever show through, even under your closest-fitting clothes. So silky sleek and comfortable, you might forget you have them on. The fabric of Dupont Lycra/Antron III® molds delicately to your shape — never wrinkling or bagging. Won't ride up or bind, either. Single back seam eliminates side seams that bunch and twist.

McConnell Urges End To Child Exploitation

Jefferson County Judge/Executive Mitch McConnell this week appealed to county judges across the state to help eliminate the problem of victimized children in Kentucky, little is being done to deal with the problem and urged each county to take steps to keep the problem from growing.

"Across the nation, children are being sexually assaulted, murdered and forgotten," said McConnell. "We have seen the exploitation of kids as young as two to three years old and teenagers enticed into prostitution and crime."

Several child tragedies over the last few years have attracted national attention to Atlanta, Chicago and Houston. Recently, in Louisville, a ring of young pickpockets were arrested after stealing thousands of dollars from Kentucky Derby fans. One told police he owed a pimp money. McConnell wants to alert people in the state that these problems are not confined to urban areas.

"Unfortunately," said McConnell, "the press, law enforcement officials, politicians and the public don't realize how common the problem is, every day, in every part of the country." he also feels the way to prevent tragedies such as in Atlanta is to realize if the problem does not currently exist, there is certainly the potential for it to develop.

Even before the murders in Atlanta surfaced, Jefferson county was aware that the problem of child exploitation and victimization were becoming a serious problem, nationally and locally. Early in 1980, Judge McConnell requested the Police Department and the FBI to study the problem in Jefferson county. The results were alarming. Children in Louisville were being exploited and prostituted. As a result, Judge McConnell appointed the Jefferson County Task Force on Child Prostitution and established an Exploited Child Unit.

To date, nearly two dozen major arrests have been made in Jefferson county, freeing literally hundreds of children from abuse. This effort has also decreased the occurrence of victimized children in Jefferson county. However, Judge McConnell feels much more attention needs to be given to the problem elsewhere in Kentucky and throughout the country. And in a continuing effort to help battle this serious situation, McConnell has offered his assistance. "We will be available around the clock to give advice. We'll help to determine if a problem exists in a community and offer information on how to handle the problem." As official co-chairman of the National Child Tragedies Coalition, he is making available the resources and help of the Coalition, the Jefferson County Task Force on Juvenile Prostitution/Pornography as well as the Exploited Child Unit.

"The youth are our very precious resource," said McConnell, "they are tomorrow's leaders and cannot be forgotten. I urge each county official in Kentucky to make a commitment to deal with this horrible problem, before it gets out of control."

After decreasing for the past two months, the average price per gallon for gasoline in Kentucky increased one cent at both full- and self-service stations, according to the Blue Grass AAA May Fuel Gauge Report.

The average cost per gallon had dropped seven cents in March and three cents in April at full-service pumps, and eight cents in March and three cents in April at self-service islands.

AAA's March survey shows the average price for gasoline at full-service stations is now $1.24 for regular; $1.30 for no-lead; and $1.37 for premium no-lead. The average price for diesel fuel is $1.28.

Self-service prices, nine cents lower than full-service, are now $1.15 for regular; $1.21 for no-lead; and $1.28 for premium no-lead.

Know Your Enemy Who Am I?

I have more power than the combined armies of the world. I cause mothers to neglect their children.

I have destroyed more men than all the wars of the nations.

I have caused millions of auto accidents and wrecked more homes than all the tornadoes, floods and hurricanes put together.

I am the world's slickest thief. I steal billions of dollars each year. I even steal food right out of the mouths of little children.

I find my victims among the rich and poor alike, the young and the old, the strong and the weak.

I am relentless, insidious and unpredictable. The Wet forces want to make me legal in Floyd county.

I am everywhere: in the home, on the streets, in the country, in the offices, on the highways, etc.

I bring sickness, poverty and death.

I give nothing and take all.

I want you to vote for me, so you can easily see more of me. I am your worst enemy, you can easily find me in bars, saloons, beer halls, taverns, road houses and honky-tonks.

Local Crew Learns Art Of Sealing Shoulders

During the next few weeks, 26 miles of U.S. 23 in Floyd and Pike counties will receive shoulder improvements thanks to a maintenance crew from the Department of Transportation's Bowling Green district office.

Since maintenance crews in the Pikeville district office were not experienced in sealing shoulders, the Bowling Green crew volunteered to train them, according to Ed Patton, general manager of the Pikeville district office.

"Sealing the shoulders is the best preventative maintenance there is because it keeps water from seeping under the road and damaging it," Patton said.

The sealing process consists of laying gravel and sealing it with oil to form an asphalt-like surface.

The crew from Bowling Green will be sealing the shoulders on both sides of the route from the Bert Combs Bridge at Prestonsburg to Ratliff Creek at Pikeville while providing on-the-job training for the Pikeville crew. U.S. 23 was chosen for the project because it is the most heavily traveled route in the area, Patton said.

After the Bowling Green crew completes the 26-mile stretch, the local crews will seal the shoulders on the remainder of U.S. 23.

"With the assistance of the Bowling Green crew, we will now have the skill to seal the shoulders on all the major roads in the Pikeville district," Patton said.

Feds Able To Give and Take, City Officials Are Learning

"Beware of strangers bearing gifts." Members of the Prestonsburg city council have new reason to heed that old adage following yet another claim by a government agency this week that the city owes it money.

This time the reputed debt dates back to April, 1977, when the federal government contributed $346,000 to repair public property damaged by that month's record-setting flood.

Following federal and state audits, however, it was determined that only $312,938 of the city's flood expenses were eligible for reimbursement. That left Prestonsburg with a $33,062 debt on its hands.

Last November, the city made a payment of $7633, leaving $25,429 to be paid. The next month, the government began charging interest on the balance at an annual rate of 18.35 percent (or $12.78 a day).

As of May 3, the debt, including interest, stood at $27,397. And unless it is paid, or arrangements are made to pay it, within 30 days, Maj.-Gen. Billy G. Wellman, Disaster and Emergency Services adjutant-general, has informed Mayor Harold W. Cooley, the matter will be turned over to the attorney-general.

Council-members Monday expressed indignation at the claim, Bill Ray Collins declaring he would "not vote to pay them a dime" and asserting he "would not have the city made a laughing stock."

Estill Lee Carter also urged that no further payment be made on the claim and suggested that Congressman Carl D. Perkins and state legislators be asked to intervene on the city's behalf.

"Let them come and get us," Carter said of the government officials pressing the claim, whom he accused of "talking out of both sides of their mouth."

Mayor Cooley said the money for which reimbursement was denied was mostly spent on paving the Mays Branch road and replacing water and gas lines in the Goble-Roberts Addition.

The auditors did not accept that the Mays Branch road was flood-damaged, disallowed payment for the Goble-Roberts water and gas lines since they were relocated, and questioned the hourly rate at which repair crews were paid.

Q. Is there a cancer epidemic in the United States? What can be done about it?

A. Belief in a cancer epidemic is popular, but scientific evidence does not support it. Except for lung cancer, age-adjusted cancer death rates for most other forms of cancer have decreased or remained about the same for the past 50 years.

A cancer cure in our lifetime is not likely, but we can all take measures to reduce our risk. Current scientific knowledge indicates our focus should be on prevention in our personal habits, especially smoking, alcohol consumption, and sunbathing.

The Surgeon-General has said, "Cigarette smoking is the single most important preventable cause of death." Just eliminating the effects of cigarette smoking would eventually reduce cancer incidence (occurrence) and mortality (deaths) between 15 and 35 percent. Before 1930, lung cancer was rare, but now it is the leading cause of cancer death among men and is expected to surpass breast cancer as the major cancer among women by 1983. Cancers of the mouth, throat, bladder, pancreas, and possibly the stomach have also been linked to smoking.

Sunlight is the most widespread environmental carcinogen. It accounts for the increase in most superficial skin cancers, which generally occur among fair-skinned people and are rarely fatal. Thus, it is wise for sunbathers to limit their exposure and use special protection. A sunscreen with an SPF of 8 (see tanning lotion label) effectively protects the skin from cancer but allows tanning; one with an SPF of 15 is a total sunblock.

Popular belief aside, occupation-related cancers occur only after high dose, long-term exposure to a variety of industrial chemicals and manufacturing processes. About 20 industrial chemicals have been confirmed as carcinogens with 200-300 suspected. Cigarette and alcohol consumption by workers exposed to these chemicals increase their risk.

It also may be surprising that only very small differences in lung cancer death rates exist between urban and rural areas. According to an American Cancer Society study, "General air pollution had little effect in a comparison between urban and rural people."

If you have questions about cancer, its prevention, treatment, or ways to cope with it more effectively, call a Cancer Hopeline counselor toll free at 1-800-432-9321 from 9-9 Monday-Thursday and 9-5 Friday. You may also write us at 915 South Limestone Street, Lexington, KY 40536.

Pharmacy Footnotes

By HAROLD COOLEY

Remember when your mother would crush an aspirin tablet between two teaspoons when you were a child? This was often necessary if you could not swallow a whole pill. Well, this crushing process is not a bad idea now that you are grown. When you swallow a whole aspirin, it may lie against the stomach wall as it dissolves. In some rare cases, this can lead to minor gastric bleeding. A tablet, which is crushed into small particles will dissolve more quickly. There will not be enough time for them to exert any adverse effect. Remember, crush the aspirin tablet. Do not chew it. Chewing runs the risk of entrapping particles on the gum and mouth lining leading to possible irritation.

Often times even what appears to be one of the simplest medications can cause problems. So always use your common sense, even if you're just taking an aspirin. And if you have any questions, don't hesitate to consult your Pharmacist. At COOLEY APOTHECARY, we don't play doctor, but we do render assistance. We're your one-stop pharmacy, small enough to know you and large enough to serve you. Located at No. 2 Town Center Bldg. Open Mon.-Fri. 9-5:30; Sat. 9-5. 886-8106

Anybody Who Works Can Have An IRA

The law provides that any individual who is under age 70½ and who has earned income may establish an IRA. The maximum contribution for an individual IRA is $2,000.00 or total wages, whichever is less. If both spouses have earned income, each spouse may establish an IRA and calculate their contributions separately even though they file a joint tax return.

A spousal IRA is also available for a working individual with a non-working spouse. This applies as long as the two individuals are married at the end of the year and the non-working spouse received no compensation during the year. No contributions may be made to a spousal IRA if either spouse has reached 70½. You can contribute 100% of your wages up to $2,250 per year by depositing to both an IRA for yourself and one for your unemployed spouse. You can split your deposit between these two accounts anyway you wish as long as no more than $2,000 per year is put into either account. However, you must file a joint tax return to take advantage of this provision.

Pocahontas Drops Its Appeal From Tax Hike in Martin County

Shortly before its appeal from 1980 and 1981 assessments of its huge Martin county holdings was ready to begin in Catlettsburg last Thursday in Catlettsburg, the Pocahontas Kentucky Corp. withdrew its petition and agreed to pay the $200-an-acre assessment made by Betty J. Muncy, Martin county property valuation administrator (tax commissioner).

About $83,000 was involved. That was the difference between what the county wanted the company to pay for the two years—$133,000—and what the company thought it should pay—$50,000.

In the eyes of the Concerned Citizens of Martin County, an important principle was at stake, too—not to mention the quality of life in the county.

But the tax issue wasn't resolved, at that.

The company has 47,869 acres of surface land in the county.

Pocahontas Kentucky had argued for a $50-an-acre assessment for 1980 and a $100-an-acre assessment for 1981 on its land—which constitutes nearly one-third of the entire area of Martin county.

Pocahontas Kentucky, a subsidiary of the Norfolk & Western Railroad, also owns more than 81,000 acres of mineral rights—about 55 percent of the county's total.

Even though the company is now proposing to drop the case and to accept the higher assessment, it won't necessarily be able to dodge a fight with Concerned Citizens of Martin County.

The group, which wants to improve the quality of life in the county, apparently is the first citizens' organization ever to challenge a corporate assessment before the Board of Tax Appeals.

It's pressing the issue because of what its attorney, Joe F. Childers, views as a "classic case of corporate irresponsibility."

Childers, who works for the Appalachian Research and Defense Fund of Kentucky, contends that Pocahontas Kentucky's holdings in Martin county are grossly undervalued even at $200 an acre.

So he plans to ask the Board of Tax Appeals to raise the company's assessment to at least $800 an acre, perhaps higher.

"We have evidence, and so does the county, that the land is worth much more than $200 an acre," he said.

"The company claims its entire holdings in the county are worth only $11 million for tax purposes, but they earned $37 million in gross profits from mining royalties during the past two years alone."

Childers said one recent estimate valued Pocahontas Kentucky's holdings in the county at a minimum of $150 million.

The Board of Tax Appeals could accept the proposed agreement reached between Pocahontas Kentucky and Martin county, or grant the request Childers plans to make for a full-blown hearing on the matter.

If it does hold a hearing, Childers said, the board would have the authority to assess the company's property at whatever amount it deems appropriate.

Bruce Montgomery, a member of the state Board of Tax Appeals, before whom the aborted appeal was ready to be held when it was cancelled, said a decision on which course to follow could be made on June 2, at the three-member board's next regularly scheduled meeting in Frankfort.

Childers, who was Kentucky coordinator of the 1981 Appalachian Land Ownership Task Force study, was irate because the company and the county had tried to settle the assessment appeals without giving him advance notice.

Board Chairman Edward F. Prichard Jr. last week gave Concerned Citizens of Martin County permission to intervene in the case. Childers says that means that any settlement must have the group's approval.

Childers said he thinks the company backed off because he had subpoenaed numerous maps, deeds and leases for use at the hearing.

"The documents would certainly have shown that the land is worth more than they say it is," Childers said. "The maps would show that not all the land is hillside, and that a lot of it is valuable because it is bottomland, or abuts roads."

Tennis Team Makes Good Tourney Showing

Prestonsburg was considered the Cinderella team of the regional tennis tournament held in Morehead this week. Well, Cinderella did right well and so did Prestonsburg, coming in second to Bath county by only two points, 11-9, and bringing home the over-all team point runnerup trophy.

trouncing Don Weller, of Russell, defending champion of the tourney and number one seeded player of the region, 6-3 and 6-0. Third round play saw Hamilton facing the strong Phelps player, Randy Blalock. After winning the first set, Hamilton, ahead 5-1, in the second set, won by default when Blalock left the court due to an injury.

for Prestonsburg, sixth grader Aaron Crum shut out Rowan county's Steve Conn, and in the second round won a fierce three-set match against Sam Smith, junior from Paul Blazer. Moving into third round competition, Crum faced Glenn Conyers, of Bath county, who overcame a valiant effort by Crum to win 6-3, 6-3. Crum, who is only 11 years old, acquitted himself well and impressed the gallery as a player to watch in the future.

PHS Tennis Team Shuts Out Pikeville

Prestonsburg High School's tennis team wound up the season in style last Tuesday when they shut out Pikeville in the final meet of this year held here. Final score for the meet was Prestonsburg, 8; Pikeville, 0.

The six singles matches went quickly for Prestonsburg, and although they took the doubles strongly too, the best match of the day was the No. 1 doubles when Doug Adams and Ted George were given quite a battle by Pikeville's Goss and Malenpate. The 8 to 6 win was a big one for Prestonsburg.

Following the meet, the team members were guests at a cookout at the Adams farm.

Scores for the meet were as follows: Singles—A. Crum, M. Goss, 8-1; B. Hamilton, S. Malenpate, 8-0; D. Adams, S. Malenpate, 8-3; T. George, N. Scott, forfeit; T. Johnson, K. May, 8-1; J. Cook, J. Huffman, 8-2.

Doubles—Adams, George vs. Goss, Malenpate, 8-6; Johnson, Cook vs. Malenpate, May, 8-2.

State To Aid Towns Which Need Doctors

Kentucky communities which need a doctor have a new source to help find one.

Dr. Grady Stumbo, Secretary of the Department for Human Resources, announced today a new service which will serve both communities who need physicians and physicians who are looking for a place to practice.

The Kentucky Physician Placement Service was established by the 1982 General Assembly to identify communities in need of physicians. It will be coordinated by the department's Bureau for Health Services which has already started identifying those communities.

"Lack of access to doctors is a major problem in some areas of Kentucky, especially in the eastern part of the state," said Stumbo. "This service will assist communities in finding a physician to practice in their area and will help physicians locate practice opportunities. The end result will be better health care available to the citizens of Kentucky."

As communities notify the placement service of their desire for a physician, staff from the Bureau for Health Services will work with the community to assess their particular health needs. The staff will help the physicians and communities get in contact with one another and arrange visits between physician recruits and their families and the communities.

Emphasis will be placed on physicians reared in Kentucky or who have received their medical education in Kentucky, but the search will also include physicians on a national level.

Placement efforts will be coordinated with the National Health Service Corps to allow interested physicians the opportunity to satisfy their service obligation while practicing in underserved areas of Kentucky.

Fifty-eight counties and parts of 11 other counties are classified as having a health manpower shortage, especially a lack of primary care physicians. This is based on the physician to population ratio, number of births to women of child-bearing age, infant death rate and the percent of the population with incomes below the poverty level.

Communities interested in recruiting a physician and physicians interested in exploring practice opportunities should contact Sheila R. Everly, R.N., Physician Placement Coordinator, Bureau for Health Services, 275 E. Main, Frankfort, Ky. 40621, or call (502) 564-7387.

Good News Report

By THOMAS W. PAUKEN

Robert J. Smithdas is a poet, an author, a philosopher, and he holds three honorary doctoral degrees in the humanities. His major area of activity is rehabilitation of the handicapped. It's a subject with which he is well acquainted, for Smithdas is both deaf and blind and has been since the age of four.

As a child whose world had suddenly gone black and silent, it was imperative that he go to school and in this case the Western Pennsylvania School for the Blind. From there he entered the famous Perkins School for the Blind in Watertown, Mass. At Perkins he achieved a nearly perfect scholastic average, and although deaf-blind students do not usually attempt the complexities of undergraduate work, Robert was anxious to take on the challenge, with his teachers encouraging him to do so. The result was that in 1950, Smithdas graduated cum laude with a B.A. from St. John's University in Jamaica, N.Y., the first deaf-blind student to earn a college degree since Helen Keller received hers from Radcliffe a half century before. Smithdas was not content; he was determined to reach higher, and three years later he was awarded his Master's degree at New York University, the first deaf-blind student ever to attain such academic distinction.

He could not have accomplished any of it alone, and to aid him, he had the unstinting assistance of assigned volunteers. They recited class lectures to him, using the manual alphabet; transcribed his texts into braille; accompanied him on his rounds, always present, always ready to help sustain his efforts. He could never thank them enough.

Having specialized in vocational guidance and rehabilitation, Smithdas went to work for the Industrial Home of the Blind, where he had studied before entering college. Involved in the home's community relations program, he was inspirational proof to other handicapped students how an individual can overcome physical adversity.

Writing had always been a means of expression for him, and his autobiography, "Life At My Fingertips," published in 1958, brought considerable acclaim. As a member of the Poetry Society of America and a fellow of the International Institute of Arts and Letters he was named Poet of the Year for 1960-1961. His book of poems "City of the Heart," speaks to the heart, for, as he says, "My heart sang (these poems) to me over the years—because poignant moods or powerful emotions made me ache to crystallize my thoughts and feelings into verbal expressions..." His second book of poems, "Shared Beauty," is soon to be published.

A winner of presidential citations and a member of key committees to aid the deaf-blind, Smithdas considers his most important achievement to date was to play a major role in developing the legislation by which Congress voted in 1967 to establish the Helen Keller National Center for Deaf-Blind Youths and Adults at Sands Point, N.Y.

The Center is a unique and vital training facility, the only one of its kind. It houses up to fifty deaf-blind clients at one time, who come under the tutelage of a dedicated staff of experts assisted by trained volunteers, many of whom are high school age.

As the Center's Director of Community Education, Dr. Smithdas spends a great deal of time on the lecture circuit. He travels without help, using public transportation, impressing and holding audiences with his remarkable capabilities and stimulating personality. He's a swimmer and an avid angler also, but perhaps most important of all, he's married.

His wife, Michelle, is deaf-blind, too, having lost her hearing at 16 and her eyesight in an accident five years later. She entered the Helen Keller Center in 1972, and on her first day there she met Robert Smithdas. Perhaps it was love at first touch; they were married in 1975, and today Mr. and Mrs. Smithdas reside in their own home in Port Washington not far from the center, where she is also employed as an assistant instructor.

Together, though deprived of sight and sound, they offer to anyone who wishes to see and hear, the sight and sound of the human spirit at work.

Pikeville Graduation Speaker

Dr. Jackson O. Hall, president of Pikeville College, confers honorary degree on Governor Combs at recent commencement exercises.

Former Governor Bert Combs, addressed 104 graduating seniors during commencement exercises at Pikeville College, May 16 in Faith Chapel.

He pointed out graduation is not only a symbol of progress in educational careers "but it also is a day of challenge, of course, because in order to compete in the age of computers, radar and laser beams and all the rest you have to continue to educate yourselves."

Combs also said he felt that the graduating seniors should stay in eastern Kentucky. "I think that eastern Kentucky is an underdeveloped area. I think that, comparatively speaking, there are more opportunities in eastern Kentucky than almost anywhere in this country. For the foreseeable future a significant part of the energy which will turn the wheels of industry in this country will come from eastern Kentucky. You live in the heartland of that energy producing area and so I think you should stay in eastern Kentucky. . . Much of our best talent doesn't stay in Kentucky. . . I think that the opportunity for brains and imagination and expertise and technology will be greater in eastern Kentucky than anywhere I know in the next quarter of a century."

The honorary degree of Doctor of Humane Letters was conferred on Combs by Dr. Jackson O. Hall, president of Pikeville College, before the presentation of degree candidates.

Stop and Think Is Warning Here

Policemen here say before you drink and drive, you should stop and think for three reasons—the safety of life, the safety of property, and because the Prestonsburg Police Department will be out in full force to apprehend all drunk drivers during the Memorial Day holiday weekend.

A spokesman for the department said that at this time last year, officers made 23 alcohol-related arrests in the three-day weekend and that the number is expected to increase by one-third. So, before you drink and drive, stop and think. There are at least three good reasons not to.

In Memoriam

In memory of my beloved husband, Oliver Hunter, who passed away May 23, 1981.

Spring has come with all its splendor. It brings back thoughts of my fondest memories.

A year has passed since you were called away, the saddest day of all my life was the 23rd day of May.

I remember things we did and all the things you said. As I recall the memories, it's as if you wasn't dead.

I know you're in that beautiful land of which you often talked. Your life down here left me no fear for the way you lived and walked.

I see by the eye of faith, my dear, the street you're walking on, and by the eye of faith, my dear, I see the golden throne.

Some day, my dear, I'll join you there where we never shall grow old. We'll sing and shout and praise our Lord, while all the ages roll. We'll be together in a place where cancer takes no toll.

Written by his wife, Bessie Hunter, and children.

In Memory of My Beloved Dad, Oliver Hunter

My carefree life is gone for good, It won't be back, it never could. For my loving Dad, to me so dear. Has gone away, never to be near. He died and left this world so bad, And left me and others, oh, so sad. My dad could light up the night for me, Just by being near, he made it be, I could never forget him, he was so good. I'd love to see you dad, if only I could. It's been one year since you went away.

But, Dad you're still in my heart every day. (Written by his daughter, Jennifer Sharrow).

In Memory

(In memory of Lula Ousley Brown) Now I lay me down to sleep, If I should die before I wake, I pray the Lord my soul to take.

Oh, dear Mommy, it's been 12 years since you went away. You went to sleep but you didn't wake up on that Sunday. They say the pain eases as time goes by, But that I don't believe, because at time, I still have to sit and cry.

You were so wonderful to all of us, your children and grandchildren. You never turned any of us away. We always had a place to stay.

You had so much pain and sorrow for one person to live with. So now, you deserve to rest in heaven in peace. And know that we all love and miss you so.

"JEAN"

In Memoriam

In loving memory of my mother, Marie Hall, who passed away July 1, 1975.

No morning dawns, no night returns But that I think of you. Those left behind are very dear, But none replaces you.

Sadly missed by her family. MARY SUE AND FAMILY

Karen Boleyn, of Garrett, a senior biology major at Pikeville College, has been accepted to the Health Careers Summer Program to be held at the University of Kentucky, June 10-August 5.

Mrs. Boleyn was one of 25 persons from Kentucky to be accepted to the program. She will graduate from Pikeville College in May 1983 with a bachelor of arts degree in biology.

The program, for minority and disadvantaged students, orients them to a health career in dentistry, medicine or pharmacy with the main idea being to give students the opportunity to see what medical school will be like. Students will enroll in classes in biology, chemistry and physics and will work in jobs related to their particular fields, Mrs. Boleyn's being medicine.

Honor Student Dies in Collision

Harold Dwayne Fraley, 18-year-old honor student at Allen Central High School, was almost instantly killed last Thursday afternoon when the pickup truck in which he was a passenger collided with an explosives truck on new KY 80, near Langley.

The collision occurred at the foot of the Maytown hill at Warco during a heavy afternoon rain. Although the exact cause of the mishap is not known, State Police Sgt. Danny Stumbo said only that the pickup truck, which was driven by Tobe Brian Lawson, 18, of Langley, and headed west "was apparently on the wrong side of the road at the time of impact."

The explosives truck, which was travelling east, belonged to Sandy Valley Explosives Company, of Allen, and was driven by Jimmy Brown, 23, of Abbott Creek. State Police reported the truck which overturned and burned in the crash, was not hauling explosive material, although a spokesman for the Maytown Volunteer Fire Department said the vehicle may have been carrying non-explosive "dummies" which are used in mining operations to fill drill holes. Members of the Maytown and Martin fire departments extinguished the truck blaze.

Brown escaped serious injury and was treated for cuts and bruises at Our Lady of the Way Hospital, Martin, while Lawson, driver of the pickup, was said to have been seriously injured and remains in a Lexington hospital.

The victim, a son of Harold Deane and Ella Faye Faulkner Fraley, of Eastern, was a senior at Allen Central where he was a member of the Beta Club and 4-H Club. He was named by his fellow students as "Friendliest Boy in the Senior Class."

In addition to his parents, he is survived by two brothers, Eddie Dean Fraley, of Hippo, and Paul Richard Fraley, at home.

Funeral services were conducted at 1 p.m., Sunday in the chapel of the Hall Funeral Home with Don Fraley, Jr., officiating. Burial was made in Davidson Memorial Gardens at Ivel.

MSHA Ends Investigation Of Adkins No. 11 Mine Disaster

WASHINGTON—Federal investigators have released a comprehensive report on the Dec. 8, 1981, coal dust explosion that took the lives of eight miners at the Adkins Coal Co.'s No. 11 mine at Kite, Knott County, Ky., the U.S. Labor Department's Mine Safety and Health Administration (MSHA) announced.

The report identifies several unsafe blasting, ventilation, and rockdusting practices that contributed to the cause and severity of the disaster.

Investigators concluded that the accident occurred when one of a series of explosive charges placed in the No. 1 entry face of the mine's 007 working section failed to detonate properly, leaving too much coal for the last charge in the sequence to dislodge. As a result, the last charge "blew out," expelling its force and flame outwards, rather than into the block of coal, and ignited coal dust in the mine atmosphere.

Coal dust left by previous mining activity on the mine's floor, ribs, and roof was suspended in the mine air by the blasting, and, when ignited, helped to fuel an explosion. Concrete stoppings hundreds of feet from the explosion's source were knocked down by the concussion, and an automobile parked near the mine's surface openings was damaged by flying debris. Evidence indicated that flames accompanying the explosion forces reached at least 550 degrees Fahrenheit in some underground areas.

All eight miners working underground at the time of the accident were killed by the explosion. Autopsy reports revealed that the men died of carbon monoxide poisoning as a result of smoke inhalation.

The investigators determined six conditions or practices contributed to the cause of the accident:

*Boreholes drilled into the coal were loaded with excessive amounts of explosives;

*Paper wrapping around the explosives cartridges reportedly had been slit with razorblades, and deformed cartridges were inserted into the holes without inert "stemming" material, practices which may cause a charge to misfire or blow out;

*Required methods of preventing coal dust from becoming suspended in the mine air were not followed, particularly within 40 feet of the No. 1 mine entry face;

*Sufficient quantities of noncombustible rock dust were not applied to the mine surfaces in order to render the coal dust inert and prevent an explosion from propagating;

*Coal dust and loose coal were allowed to accumulate in various areas of the mine; and *Ventilation controls were not properly installed and maintained in the working places to remove any coal dust placed in suspension by mining operations.

Eight citations were issued to the company on March 15, 1981, for violations of MSHA regulations that the investigators found to have contributed directly to the disaster or were indicative of the blasting and explosives handling practices at the mine.

The explosion occurred at approximately 2:50 p.m. on Monday, Dec. 7, 1981. Rescue teams first entered the mine at approximately 4:55 p.m., and recovery operations lasted until 2:25 the following morning when the victims' bodies were brought to the surface. Officials from MSHA, the Commonwealth of Kentucky Department of Mines and Minerals, and the company directed the recovery in which four state mine rescue teams participated.

Copies of the investigation report are available for inspection at MSHA's District Office in Barbourville, Ky. and headquarters in Arlington, Va.

Kentucky Host Families Needed For French Youths

This summer, the North Atlantic Cultural Exchange League (NACEL) will bring 200 French teenagers into Tennessee and Kentucky families for four weeks. This program has been available in Tennessee since 1978, and 95% of the past participants have rated their experience as "excellent" or "good".

Applications for this summer's hosting (July 12-Aug. 9) are now being accepted. The host family members do not have to speak French, as the French students have studied English. Families without children may host chaperones.

In the reciprocal program (available but not mandatory), American teenagers spend four weeks with a French family. Many of them are invited by a boy or girl who stayed with their family during a previous summer.

The students (ages 13-19) are accompanied by chaperones, bring their own pocket money, and are fully covered by insurance.

Anyone interested in hosting a student should apply immediately to Mr. or Mrs. Jean-Pierre Granju, 905 Kevin Road, Knoxville, Tenn., 37923, or call (615) 693-9305.

Myths About Old Age

Commonly-held myths about old age—that it's a time of illness and unhappiness—cause many people to dread life beyond 65 when, instead, they should be looking forward to it.

Recent gerontological research shows that the vast majority of people are "relatively healthy and happy into their seventies and eighties and even nineties," writes Bernice Hunt in "the June Reader's Digest."

"A still larger number would enjoy old age if it were not for misconceptions they hold," she adds.

Among some of the more baseless myths people hold about old age are these:

—At 65, you're "over the hill." "These days, people who are over the hill at 65 are usually those who expect to be," says Hunt. Sixty-five is "now the prime of life. When it doesn't feel that way, there's something wrong that needs correcting."

—Most old people are poor. Results of a Harris survey released in October 1981 showed that 68 percent of the respondents under 65 thought lack of money was a serious problem for those over 65. But only 17 percent of those over 65 agreed.

—Old people lose their sex drive. Ac-ording to Sex Information Council of the United States and the National Institute on Aging, most people enjoy sex throughout their life. Although functional changes usually do occur, sexual ability continues indefinitely.

—Old people become senile. Because this fear is groundless, professionals in the field of gerontology don't even use the term "senility." Problems people use to attribute to "old age and senility," says Hunt, are actually caused by treatable factors such as reactions to drugs, poor nutrition or sensory impairment.

—Old people are usually sick. Again the evidence speaks otherwise. People over 65 have about half as many acute illnesses as those between 17 and 44.

—Most people wind up in nursing homes. Today, less than five percent of old people are in a nursing homes and most of these are over 85.

Says Hunt: "Once we've freed ourselves of myths about old age, we can help the elderly—and ourselves—to live creatively and stay actively involved throughout life."

Women's Labor Force Expected To Continue

Women's labor force participation in the service sector of the economy is expected to continue, particularly in the fields of health care, maintenance and repair, advertising, and commercial cleaning, the U.S. Department of Labor reports.

A Woman's Place

By VICKI DENNIS.
Kentucky Commission on Women
HOW WOMEN ARE AFFECTING THE MAJOR POLITICAL PARTIES
I'm concerned about the future of our party. Women are leaving the Republican Party in considerable numbers. Little by little, the Republican Party has been turning its back on women's rights.

—Betty Ford, former First Lady
Pollsters don't often agree, but in recent months, surveys taken by the major poll-takers and people-interviewers—Gallup, Harris, the Washington Post, the New York Times, television networks and others—have reached an over-whelming decision. American women could very well hold the future of American politics in their hands. Suddenly, women have political clout and are exercising their right to use it.

This new political savvy on the part of women might not itself make the Democrat and the Republican parties sit up and take notice, but it is accompanied by a statistic that is hard to ignore—women make up 53 percent of the population. Therefore, when women talk, the parties listen. And what women are apparently talking about today is a direct hit on the Reagan Administration.

Women, according to recent polls, are expressing disapproval for the way the president is handling his job in much bigger numbers than men are. Betty Ford and other key Republican women are frankly fearful by what they see as a mass exodus by women away from the party. They tend to blame the party for the defection citing the administration's opposition to the Equal Rights Amendment and to reproductive freedom, the failure of the president to appoint more women to policy-making roles, and the policies taken on such issues as nuclear war and crime.

Kathy Wilson, a Republican, is chairwoman of the National Women's Political Caucus, has said Reagan's stand on women's issues could cause the Republican Party serious political losses in the months to come. "It is a critical time for both the Republican Party and for women. If the former doesn't accommodate the latter, its time in the sun will be brief," she said in a recent Washington Post story. "They're going to be saying, 'We let the Democrats have it because we alienated 53 percent of the population.'"

According to united Press International political writer Clay F. Richards, the Republicans are worried and are admitting privately, if not publicly, that perhaps they do need to spruce up their image with women. "Republicans are so worried about the women's vote in the 1982 congressional elections that their campaign manual urges candidates to play up their identification with women's groups wherever possible," Richards wrote.

Rich Galen, press secretary for the National Republican Congressional Committee, does timidly admit that it is a trend they are watching, but he disagrees on the causes. "It is the economic uncertainty that is the primary factor," he said. "Women are moving away from concern about women's issues now. Their concerns are the same as men's, although they find the situation more jolting because they haven't been looking at these issues in this light before."

Galen feels that the party can best attract women to its cause by "doing a better job of making everyone, men and women, understand our (economic) program and what we hope to do with it." He is quick to add, however, that the Republican Party has by no means abandoned women.

"The Republican Party has more women in Congress than the Democrats, and the executive director of the National Republican Congressional Committee is a woman, Nancy Sinnott, who is responsible for raising and spending upwards of $37 million for congressional candidates this fall," he said.

While Democrats feel that their party has always been more open to women and more supportive of women's issues, they too are reacting to the recent polls and are looking at women in a new light. Andrew "Skipper" Martin, executive director of the Democratic Party in Kentucky, sees women as a great resource. "Because of the economic situation and the Republican's stand on women's issues, there are definitely more and more women who want to be in all levels of politics," he said. "In the past, men have been the ones to make things happen and women have been the recipients of whatever decisions were made. Now women realize they must make things happen themselves and can actually direct the momentum of the country."

Martin said women have perhaps lacked the experience of dealing with politics. "They are saying, 'We are ready but where do we go? What do we do?'" he said. To channel this enthusiasm and to involve more women in the party, Martin said Paul Patton, state chairman of the Democratic Party, will begin a series of political seminars this summer, "designed to teach women the ABC's of politics, everything from polling to fundraising, all levels of campaigning."

Martin added that there are already many women in policy-making positions within the Democratic Party in Kentucky and "we definitely see more women interested in this type of role." Democrat Martin, as well as Republicans, views the fall congressional elections as critical. "It's really the ultimate poll," he said. "A vote for a Republican indicates approval for the president and where this administration is going; a vote for Democrat expresses disapproval. The results should be interesting."

So the courtship goes on. Republicans make mighty efforts to woo women back, all the while saying there is really no serious problem. Democrats, sensing women are smiling favorably upon them, offer bouquets of strong support for women's issues and a sympathetic ear to the problems women face today. And the choices women make, their political clout firmly in hand, could change the course of this country.

State Will Try New Approach To Solve Litter Problem Here

If Kentuckians take advantage of a new state law, which becomes effective July 15, the commonwealth could become a cleaner place.

Passage of the law, a joint Kentucky House and Senate resolution calling for the "adoption and implementation" of the Clean Community System, places Kentucky in the list of states trying a new approach to the problem of reducing the large amount of solid waste which winds up as litter each year.

Sponsored and developed by Keep America Beautiful Inc., the Clean Community System deals with the root cause of littering—people.

The system, established in 1976 after more than three years of research and development, is currently being used in more than 150 cities and counties around the country. Communities using the system range in population from less than 500 inhabitants to more than 1.5 million.

In developing the Clean Community System, researchers found that litter is a "symptom" of public attitudes which rationalize littering. People tend to litter where they see litter already accumulated, where they feel no sense of ownership or where they believe someone else will clean up after them, researchers discovered.

Among the most important priorities of the CSS is the more positive attitude developed among citizens of a community which has become involved in the system, organizers say.

Using four approaches—updated ordinances, improved sanitation technology, public education and vigorous enforcement of all sanitation laws—participating "clean communities" increase public awareness of littering.

Studies undertaken in communities under the system showed that more than half of most communities' loose trash comes not from motorists and pedestrians, as expected, but from construction and demolition sites, loading docks, uncovered trucks and improperly bundled residential and commercial trash placed outside for collection.

Keep America Beautiful officials found that cleaning up litter was only the starting point for some communities. More than half of the 150 Clean Community System members have begun recycling activities. Some communities—Toledo, Ohio, Waterloo, Iowa, and Macon, Ga.—found that a wide range of civic projects were accomplished after the successful establishment of the system.

Simple litter reduction alone in several communities improved community morale and pride. Litter reduction statistics form several CSS communities included a 59 percent reduction in Asheville, N.C.; 71 percent in Evansville, Ind.; 87 percent in Indianapolis, Ind.; 80 percent in Riverside, Calif., and an 84 percent reduction in Sioux Falls, S.D.

Kentucky's Clean Community System will be headed by a council consisting of the secretary in the Natural Resources Department, the secretary of the Transportation Department and representative of the Beverage Industry Recycling Program Association and the Federated Garden Clubs of Kentucky.

One representative of a statewide general business association and one member of each house of the General Assembly will also be on the council.

Legislation sponsored by state Rep. Allene A. Craddock (D-Elizabethtown) and state Sen. Doug Moseley (R-Columbia) and signed by Gov. John Y. Brown Jr. also established a position of state coordinator for the Kentucky Clean Community System Council. The coordinator will be appointed and assigned to work in the Natural Resources Department and will work with cities, counties and state agencies to develop a statewide program.

Kentucky currently has four communities which are members of the Clean Community System—Henderson, Jefferson County-Louisville, Bardstown and Fayette County-Lexington.

With the encouragement offered by the new law and the commitment shown by state officials, national CCS officials hope that the list of Kentucky's clean communities will increase as the amount of litter in the state decreases.

Remote Island, Now in News, Recalled by Prestonsburg Man

The current dispute between Great Britain and Argentina has brought into international focus an area which might easily qualify as one of the "far corners of the earth." As a result of the continuing crisis, relatively obscure place names have suddenly become commonplace—names like South Georgia, Port Stanley, East Falkland and Ascension Island.

Ascension, which lies 3,500 miles northeast of the disputed Falklands, is little more than an oversized volcanic rock rising out of the vast South Atlantic. But it has assumed importance as a refueling stop for land-based British Vulcan bombers and a supply stockpile point for the British task force in the Falklands.

Certainly, not that many people had heard of the island until recently, and no more than a handful of U.S. citizens have ever had cause to be there. Prestonsburg merchant Lenny Grant was there, however, and this week he shared some recollections of a barren, although at times, beautiful island.

It was in April of 1944 that Grant was transferred from an Army Air Corps Air Transport Command (ATC) base in Belem, Brazil (itself an isolated spot, one degree below the equator and 150 miles up the Amazon River) to Ascension Island, and since that time, Grant says, "I've lived with the anonymity of Ascension." Until now, any mention of his wartime service on the island brought only incredulous responses and, all too often, a cynical, "Where?"

Where is actually about 1,500 miles from South America and 1,000 miles from Africa. Really, a long way from anywhere. But it served, during World War II, as a vital link in the ATC's southern route, a chain of refueling and rest stops for military aircraft and personnel bound for overseas action, beginning in Miami, Fla. and other Eastern cities and hopping through the Caribbean and South America. Ascension was the last stop before the final, long flight to Europe, Africa, or the Far East.

Although taken for England in 1659 by the East India Company and brought under the direct government of the Crown in 1834, Ascension was leased for 99 years to the U.S. around 1940 in exchange for a number of World War I-vintage destroyers. Now used as a missile-sighting station by the U.S. Air Force, British warplanes are being allowed to use the airstrip there during the current Falklands crisis.

Grant says the island was called "The Rock," and for good reason. Volcanic in origin, the 34-square-mile land mass is "nothing but rock—no vegetation underfoot," according to Grant. There were no indigenous people on the island although a mere "handful" of British subjects resided in a tiny hamlet, Georgetown, where their purpose was to maintain the Atlantic cable which connected Africa to South America.

There was only one runway on Ascension, and that struck Grant as unusual on first arriving there since he had become accustomed to larger strips at South American bases where planes would take off and land in whatever direction was dictated by prevailing winds. "I soon found out that planes only landed and took off in one direction on the island," he recalled, "and that seemed even more out of the ordinary." The reason became clear, however, when he learned of Ascension's almost unvarying wind pattern—a steady 20 m.p.h. south-southeast breeze. Though the strip seemed at first inadequate, it safely accommodated the ponderous (at that time) B-17 bombers, B-24's, and even larger B-29's. "The year I was there," said Grant, who had worked as part of an emergency rescue team at the Brazilian base, "there were no accidents on the Ascension airstrip."

Grant was one of 100 air corpsmen who resided in quonset hut-type barracks on one side of the island while a 500-man defensive force of infantrymen lived in tents on the other. In addition, "natives" from the island of St. Helena, of which Ascension is a dependency and which was the site of Napoleon Bonaparte's final exile, were employed by the U.S. forces on Ascension. (Grant said he was told, while on the island, that Napoleon was to be exiled to Ascension, but "they felt sorry for him" and sent him to St. Helena, instead.)

Servicemen on the island enjoyed no conveniences. There was no running water and showers were taken by filling old airplane wing tanks which had been perforated. (Engineers had built a plant to convert sea water to fresh water.) Pit toilets were the extent of bathroom facilities and recreation was limited to playing cards and going to the narrow beach which ringed the island. Servicemen were not allowed to visit the British settlement and the occasional group of nurses or W.A.C.'s who happened to land on Ascension were sometimes protected by armed military police!

But the island had certain redeeming characteristics, according to Grant. "The climate was magnificent, with a mean temperature of 70 degrees." And, on the island's highest mountain, there was a spot he called a "tropical garden." The men called it, simply, "Green Mountain," because at the very crest of the 2,000-foot mountain was what Grant described as "no more than 400-500 square feet of a tropical forest element." It was the only trace of vegetation on the island, he said, and many hours during his stay were spent basking in the lush, if small area of growth. And, he recalled, there was a cloud which seemed to perpetually cloak the top of Green Mountain.

Duty on Ascension was less than desirable. In fact, most servicemen considered it a punishment assignment, and, consequently, the ATC required only six months duty before reassigning a corpsman to a Brazilian base. But Grant opted to stay on nearly a full year. "I know that sounds crazy," he laughed, "but through some acquaintances and just the unique essence of the place, I developed an affection for 'The Rock.'"

"In retrospect," he continued, "I find it one of the most peaceful years of my life."

DON'T MAKE PETS OF WILDLIFE

This is the time of year when a camper, hiker or fisherman is most likely to encounter young wild animals in the woods. The first impulse, in many instances, is a desire to "adopt" the baby skunk, raccoon, fawn or whatever.

But the best course of action, according to wildlife experts, is to leave baby animals, even those seemingly "orphaned," where they are.

Although this advice may at first glance seem hard hearted, it is actually kinder in the long run for both the animal and the humans involved.

In the first place, the baby animal may not be orphaned at all. A fawn, for example, that seems all alone in the big woods probably has an anxious mother waiting nearby, but she will not show herself while a human is in the vicinity.

The care and feeding of a young animal is demanding and complicated, and most of those taken from the wild will die unless they are given the expert care that only a knowledgeable person can provide.

And if the animal does survive past infancy, other problems arise. Unlike dogs or cats, which have been domesticated for centuries, wild animals seldom lose their "wild" nature. An adult deer, particularly a buck, can be extremely dangerous and a raccoon, even one raised in the house, starts thinking he can whip anybody in the family when he gets to weigh about 25 pounds—and he's right.

Wild animals raised in captivity can seldom be successfully returned to the wilds, presenting their owners with the problem of what to do with an unmanageable adult fox, raccoon, skunk or deer. Often the animal must be destroyed, since it is almost impossible to get zoos to accept wild pets.

Then there's the problem of disease. Wild animals can carry and transmit to man several diseases, the most serious of which is rabies. Often, an animal which allows itself to be captured is diseased. Any animal which does not show a normal fear of man or displays signs of distress should be left strictly alone.

Skunks are particularly dangerous, since they can carry the rabies virus for six to eight months before symptoms appear. Even a skunk bought from a pet store and certified disease-free could develop rabies months after it is purchased.

Skunks and foxes probably represent the most common reservoirs for rabies in the wilds, although virtually all mammals are capable of carrying this disease and transmitting it to man. The danger of rabies, by itself, is reason enough to leave wildlife in the woods.

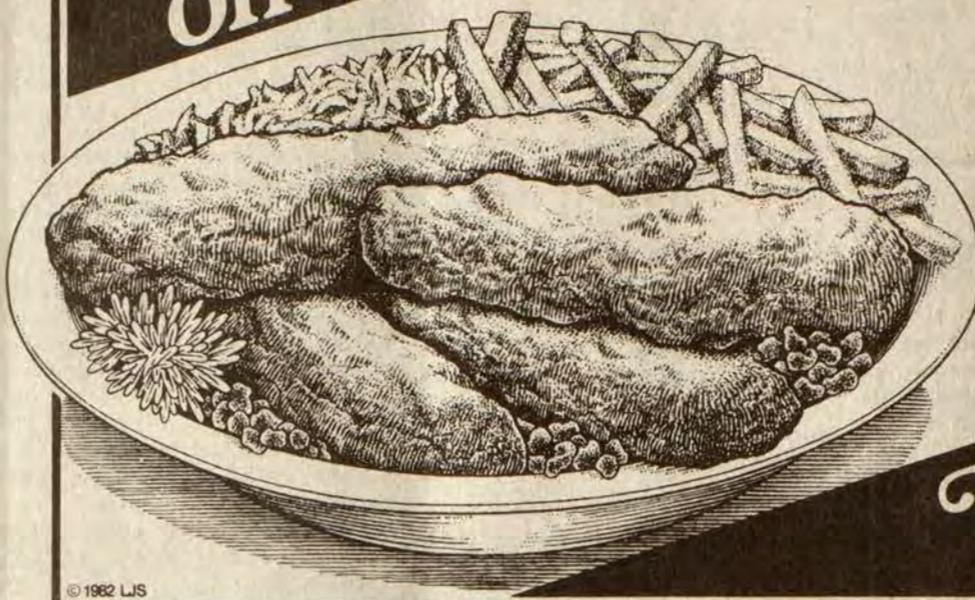

Finally, there's the legal aspect. To keep wildlife as pets, a permit from the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources is required, and a permit will be granted only for those animals taken during the open season for that particular species.

Without a permit, the animal is subject to confiscation and the owner can be fined. A conservation officer, upon application for a permit, will check to see if the animal was obtained legally and if the facilities for keeping it are sanitary and of adequate size. The officer will also make periodic checks to make sure the animal is being well cared for.

So for both animals and people, the best course of action is to leave wildlife in the wilds. Although the impulse to adopt a wild creature can be great, it's better to enjoy birds and animals in their natural surroundings instead of subjecting both them and you to unnecessary hardships.

Some $14.9 billion in unemployment benefits was paid to nearly 9 million persons during the 1981 fiscal year, according to the 69th Annual Report of the U.S. Department of Labor.

Increased Funding Means Expanded KET Programs

This fall, Kentucky viewers will see more programs and a return to the broadcast hours which were cut during the past year.

The reason: During the final hours of its 1982 session, the Kentucky General Assembly voted an additional budget appropriation for KET.

According to KET Executive Director O. Leonard Press, the 1983-84 legislative appropriation of $3,341,200 will enable the public television network to improve its services to Kentuckians at a time when it was facing the prospect of continued reduction in broadcast hours, production and program purchases.

In the past year, KET had already cut back its broadcast time—especially on weekends—and dropped some Kentucky and national series. Now, thanks to the recent appropriation, there is good news on the KET and Kentucky horizon—at least for the next biennium.

"As always, KET is grateful to the Governor and the executives in the Finance Cabinet, including the policy analyst assigned to our agency, for the budget they recommended for the KET appropriations bill sent to the General Assembly," says Press. "And we are particularly grateful to the Legislature which, when further revenues were proposed, initiated additional appropriations to the KET budget which in turn were approved by the Governor."

Press adds that the original allocation from the state would have maintained the network's status quo. That would have meant that KET would have continued to operate on reduced hours and curtailed purchase and production of programming. Combined with the rapidly declining funds from federal sources, KET would have had to cut corners in vital areas.

Press states that KET was "trying to counter these losses by campaigning more vigorously for funds from individuals and corporations. We were beginning to have success, thanks to many supporters, including our corporate and major giving friends in the Fund for Excellence and the Friends of KET."

The increased state appropriation is bright news, says Press, and viewers will see why, beginning in the fall.

First, KET will be able to restore the broadcast hours it had to cut out a year ago, as well as the programs that aired during those hours. That means that "Sesame Street" and other children's programs will return on Sunday mornings; "A.M. Weather" will be back on each weekday morning (starting late August); and, college credit courses will air again on Saturdays.

Second, KET will be able to add new hours of broadcast for which it has had great demand over the years. This means that the network can stay on the air until midnight each week night. The late night air time will feature "ABC Captioned News" for Kentucky's hearing-impaired population. The new hours also bring more viewing time to KET audiences in the Central Time zone.

Third, KET can resume production of programs for and about Kentucky that had been eliminated last season. ("Bywords" was one such series). Whether or not "Bywords" returns, several Kentucky series are now being developed. They include the statewide news and information series, "Kentucky Considered"; a "Great Kentucky Homes" series; "The New Jobless" series; and, "Kentucky Congressmen"; among others.

Finally, KET will be able to buy the following programs for next season—programs that otherwise would have been outside the reach of the funds prior to TeleFund '82 and the additional state appropriation: "Evening At Pops"; "NOVA"; "Over Easy"; "Soundstage"; and, "3-2-1 Contact."

"Thanks to KET's friends, the Governor and the General Assembly, this has been a good year," notes Press. "It's been good because it has made possible a much better year in 1983."

Church Praises House Action

Sam Church Jr., president of the United Mine Workers of America, today applauded action by the U.S. House of Representatives, which, he said, "helps block the dismantling" of the Labor Department's Mine Safety and Health Administration.

The House voted May 12 to reverse a December 1981 budget amendment which withdrew jurisdiction over coal mine construction sites and sand and gravel and surface stone operations from MSHA.

During its consideration of the urgent supplemental appropriations bill, the House voted 220 to 186 to restore MSHA authority over coal mine construction projects and all sand and gravel and surface stone mines, except those owned by state and local governments.

The House bill, including the MSHA amendment sponsored by Rep. John P. Murtha (D-Pa.), next goes to the Senate, which is expected to begin deliberations next week.

The December budget rider offered by Rep. John H. Rousselot (R-Calif.) was tacked onto the continuing budget resolution which kept the federal government funded from Dec. 16, 1981 through March 31, 1982.

"The UMWA applauds the House passage of the Murtha amendment," Church said. "This vote is a clear signal that Congress wants these operations restored to MSHA—the only federal agency with the expertise for the job."

"It also sends a signal to the nation's miners that some people in Washington care about their health and safety," Church said.

If upheld by the Senate and signed into law by President Reagan, the legislation would keep 200 MSHA sand and gravel inspectors from losing their jobs through a reduction in force, which is expected at the end of May.

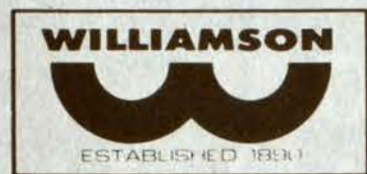

The long-term effect of the law would include the saving of up to 700 MSHA inspection jobs, which were to be phased out because of the Rousselot amendment's budget cutback.

It would also prevent the anticipated problems involved in bumping senior sand and gravel inspectors into the ranks of the coal mine inspection force.

Study Environment in Special Program

Students collected specimens from a small creek and found a variety of creatures which co-exist in the aquatic environment.

McDowell students such as this boy and girl who display a "find" from the creek (left), discovered in the little stream a fascinating system of plants and animals and they learned of the relationships between the various species with each other and their environment from authorities such as Dr. Jerry F. Howell, Jr., who is pictured in photo at right explaining an environmental monitoring device to students. (Photos by Ken Peters)

McDowell junior high school students participated in a very special four days of learning exercises, May 3-7 as part of the school's Environmental Awareness Week.

Instituted by the school this spring in support of the philosophy, as expressed by school principal, Wm. Paul Lumore, that "environmental awareness is an essential component of a basic education program," students observed and participated in field trips and heard several distinguished environmentalists and conservationists.

Following a student orientation, May 3, pupils from grades three through six were treated to field trips to Dewey Dam the following day where they were exposed to an introduction to the effectiveness of flood control projects upon the environment. Leading the session and explaining the workings of the dam and similar reservoir operations was Dean Murray, resource manager with the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, Prestonsburg.

The program, May 6, was presented for seventh and eighth grade students and consisted of an environmental field day workshop with emphasis on fish and wildlife, forestry, and surface mining. Consultants during the day's activities included Bill Phillips, of the Prestonsburg office, Kentucky Division of Forestry; Johnnie E. Ross, senior reclamation inspector, Bureau of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement, and Kerry Prather, fish biologist with the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife, Prestonsburg.

The seventh and eighth graders were treated to a distinguished group of experts in an environmental field day workshop, May 7, which emphasized forestry, water and soil.

Dr. Jerry F. Howell, Jr., professor and director of the Center for Environmental Studies at Morehead State University and author of numerous articles and publications dealing with the environment, led students in a learning exercise which included seining a nearby creek and identifying the different examples of aquatic life and talking of their relationships to one another.

Also taking part as consultants in the field trip were Nancy S. Theiss, program manager of environmental education for the Kentucky Department of Education, Frankfort; John Kelly, soil scientist, presently mapping the progressive soil survey in Pike county, and Pat Beyler, district conservationist.

Value of the week's special studies was summarized by Principal Lumore who stated: "Knowledge of life cycles, non-living matter and man's relationship to his surroundings must have priority to ensure survival."

Program co-ordinators were Fred Hall, Lucy Reynolds, Gloria N. Hall, Jerry Fultz and Wendell L. Martin.

DON'T BE MISLED JUNE 29TH

You are not voting to get rid of bootleggers in Floyd County. You are not voting for better roads, higher teacher's salaries, increased welfare assistance or more old age assistance. You are not voting for state or county-owned package liquor stores or nice cocktail lounges. Kentucky doesn't allow "state liquor stores" per state law.

You are not voting to get drunks off the highways. If you think it is bad now, wait until the drunks return from the saloons and honky-tonks, driving home on our highways... then you will regret your wet vote.

Legalized sales indicate to our children that alcoholic beverages are wholesome, harmless and acceptable to their parents. You are simply voting on whether you want more alcoholic beverages to be sold in our county. Tavern and liquor stores in Kentucky collect very little tax to pass on to the state. Careful surveys show that for every $1.00 paid in liquor tax, it costs the taxpayer a minimum of $6.00 for increased police protection, jails, hospitals and asylum costs.

Look at the question you are voting on: Are you in favor of the sale of alcoholic beverages?

Vote Dry June 29 Vote NO

Do you really want bars, taverns, saloons, beer joints, road houses and honky-tonks in our county?

PSC Denies Immediate Raise In Phone Rates Till Hearing

Chastising South Central Bell for failing to exercise "enlightened self-restraint" in holding down phone rates, the Kentucky Public Service Commission issued an order last Thursday denying a request for an immediate $15.1 million rate increase.

The commission also ordered South Central Bell to provide a complete accounting of expenses it has incurred in its fight against a major bill pending in Congress to revamp telecommunications law.

The PSC ordered that the company's entire rate request of $66.1 million—of which the $15.1 million is part—be suspended until after full hearings, which are to begin Aug. 23.

Phone company officials reacted with frustration to both orders, saying they are already separating costs for their legislative fight, and charging that the commission ignored efforts to cut costs made before requesting higher rates.

Since March the PSC has been urging utilities to refrain from filing for rate increases, and has vigorously pursued a campaign in favor of the federal bill Bell bitterly opposes.

South Central Bell, in the meantime, has joined American Telephone & Telegraph in fighting the bill through an in-house letter-writing campaign.

Arguments center on whether the bill will prevent phone rates from increasing sharply, and whether it puts unfair restrictions on competition for both local phone companies and AT&T. The locals and their parent company are to be split up under an agreement with the U.S. Justice Department to settle an antitrust suit against AT&T.

Proponents of the bill support sections that set up a special fund for rural phone consumers and that give local phone companies some profitable enterprises including the Yellow Pages. Opponents claim the consumer-protection measures will end up costing consumers more in the long run. They also say other measures will hurt both AT&T and the local companies' investors.

It is South Central Bell's efforts against the bill that prompted the PSC to order an accounting, not only of material costs but also of salaries and travel expenses any time the bill is discussed among employees.

Company spokesman Roy McAllister said the commission's order requiring segregated accounting was "a surprise to us."

"When we undertook the campaign, we went to the FCC (Federal Communications Commission) and told them what we were going to do, and our accounting methods, and they approved it," McAllister said.

"Of course, if the commission wants to impose additional accounting restraints on us and increase the costs of keeping books, fine—but we all know who pays for that," he said.

In denying the request for the $15.1 million rate increase, the PSC said that South Central Bell failed to show that an emergency situation exists or that the company's credit would be materially damaged.

To justify the request, Bell submitted evidence that the company was making only an 11.6 percent rate of return on investments, not the 13.25 that is the maximum allowed by the PSC as "reasonable."

In dismissing the earnings situations as an "emergency," the PSC said the fact that Bell is currently "operating very definitely in the black" warranted that it wait for the normal hearing process on its full rate request.

McAllister said that denial of the request would not immediately affect services to consumers, but that the company's earnings position would continue to erode as a result.

South Central Bell serves about 800,000 business and residential customers in Kentucky. The $66.1 million rate request comes on the heels of a $15.9 million increase granted in January, and a $39 million increase granted last August.

Motorists Asked To Report Road Problems

Transportation Secretary Frank Metts is asking Kentucky motorists to be his "eyes and ears" in assisting state maintenance crews in their battle against road problems.

Metts said his request for help is part of a "spring offensive" to tackle the damage to state-maintained roads caused by a combination of winter weather and heavy traffic. State crews have already started filling potholes, patching cracks and clearing ditches.

"We are asking the people that drive the roads every day to first notify the person most familiar with their area—the foreman of the state maintenance garage in their county. If the problem is not solved immediately, then the district highway manager should be called," Metts explained.

"The state is responsible for 25,000 miles of roads and we can't be everywhere. The people driving the highways daily know what condition they are in, and we want them to tell us when they notice a problem," he said.

Metts said the public can alert the maintenance garages and district offices as soon as a pothole or drainage problem develops before it requires major and costly repairs.

Citizens in Floyd county should contact Homer Hamilton at the maintenance garage in Allen. The telephone number is 874-2316. If the problem persists, Ed Patton at the department's Pikeville district office can be reached at 437-9691.

In reporting a pothole or drainage problem, citizens are asked to provide the exact location by highway number and how far it is from a local landmark, such as an intersection or a bridge.
