Stumbo Goes Home To Open Campaign

"People in Kentucky are looking for an alternative," Grady Stumbo told a crowd of about 350 in the McDowell High School gym last Sunday. "People in Kentucky want a governor who they feel will come to their community and listen to their problems.

The implication was clear; Stumbo is such a person, his likely opponents are not.

The 37-year-old physician was launching his campaign for Democratic nomination for governor. Though they have yet to enter the race officially, his opponents are expected to include Lt. Gov. Martha Lavne Collins and Louisville Mayor Harvey Sloane.

In his 21/2 years as Human Resources secretary in the John Y. Brown administration, Stumbo noted, he had managed more people, programs and money than Sloane and Mrs. Collins 'in their entire public careers added together and Morehead, Stumbo challenged them to stand with him on the same platform. "Let's see who is the most creative. Let's see who has the best ideas for this state. And let's see who is just reacting out of habit," he said.

State government should be a 'positive force'' in the lives of people, especially those in need, Stumbo said. In the rush to balance budgets, government officials have forgotten one thing," he added. "They've forgotten people.

Stumbo was presented to the crowd by Floyd Schools Supt. Pete Grigsby, Jr., his high school basketball and baseball coach. Managing his campaign is his lifelong friend and business partner, Sen. Benny Ray Bailey.

Wells Says Site Made Favorable By Road System

State Labor Commissioner John C. Wells announced at a press conference in Frankfort Tuesday that one of the two black lung clinics to serve Kentuckians will be in Prestonsburg and that it is scheduled to begin service around December 1.

The East Kentucky Black Lung Clinic, to be established here, will serve the eastern part of the state. The second clinic, in Louisville, will receive claimants from the Western Kentucky coal field.

Dr. Ballard F. Wright, of Lexington, fomerly of Prestonsburg, will head the clinic here.

"This," said Wells, "is one of the best things I've ever done. In the past I have seen so many of my friends and relatives in Eastern Kentucky who were sick, many old, hauled to Lexington, all over-now I am proud that they and others will have a clinic near them.

The Prestonsburg choice, he said, was based on the number of patients and the accessibility of the location. Of about 1100 black lung claimants in the area, he said, 700 are from the Prestonsburg area, 230 from Harlan and 200 from Hazard. Accessibility of Prestonsburg has been strengthened by an improved road system, including US 23 and new KY 80.

"In terms of black lung miners," the commissioner said, "Pike county is No. 1 and Floyd is second."

He said the decisions announced Tuesday constitute the first revision of the black lung program in the state.

Dr. Wright, a native of Floyd county, is a son of a miner, Wells pointed out He said Wright was selected from a list of a dozen applicants for the post and that it was made on the advice of professionals in the Department of Graham, II, a branch manager with the Natural Resource Cabinet's division of abandoned lands.

Coal operators pay a tax of 35 cents a ton on surface-mined coal and 15 cents a ton on deep-mined coal to be used to reclaim sites that were mined before August 3, 1977 and later abandoned. Persons who know of such a site, especially if it is dangerous, an eyesore, or a serious environmental blight, should contact his office, Graham said.

Graham urged public officials to look for opportunities to turn abandoned mine sites into parks, housing sites or other public facilities, His office submitted applications for $161/2 million in reclamation funds under the program This year and is preparing a $30 million package for next construction season, he said. The phone number for the Division of Abandoned Lands is 502-564-2141

The ADD directors approved a resolution calling on all candidates for statewide office to commit themselves to retaining the present formula for returning severance tax monies to the coal counties and recommending support for those candidates who agree and opposition for any who do not.

OSM Vows Removal •Of Noxious Slag Pile

Relief for residents of the Lackey-Garrett section who have lived for more than a year under a more or less constant pall of acrid, sulphurous smoke seems assured now with the contract for removal of a large burning "gob" pile in the Baptist Bottom vicinity scheduled to be let in coming weeks.

The contract was to have been awarded Friday but unexpected rightof-way problems required a rewriting of the specifications stated in the original contract, according to Keith Harrison, federal reclamation program specialist with the Office of Surface Mining (O.S.M.) in Pittsburgh, Pa. Harrison said he hoped the contract would be let "within three to four weeks" with actual work toward removing the 50-year-old slag pile beginning in a matter of days afterward

Promise of removal of the refuse pile which has plagued the health of dozens of local residents and made the air quality along the thickly-settled Right Beaver Creek-Jones Fork area at times near intolerable comes after a long series of bureaucratic entanglements and legal uncertainties.

The refuse, which has occupied the bottom since the days of Wells-Elkhorn and later Central Elkhorn Coal Company in the late 1920's and early '30's, began burning in July of 1981, according to Hollie Allen, whose home lies within a stone's throw of the smoldering pile and whose leadership has spearheaded the effort to see the refuse removed. It was then that a Jackhorn, Ky. concern leased the material from owner Gorman Collins, of Prestonsburg, for removal of any marketable coal. According to Allen, the burning of brush on the pile and the generating of powdery coal dust through shaker operations started the pile burning.

Curtis Clark, 73, former mayor and first city manager of Prestonsburg, died Saturday night at Highlands Medical Center here after an illness of a few months.

Mr. Clark served as mayor from 1949 to 1955 and as U. S. marshal from 1955 to 1962. He became Prestonsburg's first city manager in 1964, serving till 1979, and it was during that time that he, with the late George P. Archer as mayor, led Prestonsburg in unprecedented development. He was named Prestonsburg's Outstanding Citizen of 1965 by the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Clark was twice nominated by the Republican party as its candidate for Congress from the Seventh district. He had been county chairman of the Big Sandy Development Association and was district chairman of the Kentucky Retail Merchants' Association, had been a director of the Prestonsburg Chamber of Commerce and a member of the Kiwanis Club here. His last activity was as manager of the swimming pool at Jenny Wiley State Park. He was a convert of Irene Cole Memorial (First) Baptist Church.

A native of Prestonsburg, Mr. Clark was a son of the late Cal and Hettie Jones Clark. He attended local schools and the Kentucky Military Institute. Surviving are his wife, Judy Salisbury Clark; a daughter, Mrs. Doris Anne Hyden, and two grandchildren, Jack Clark Hyden and Mrs. Judy Ann Combs.

County Out of Line In'81, Says Audit

Some employees were paid two salaries, others received illegal payments for expenses, and a firm was awarded a contract without competitive bidding.

These were among allegations of financial irregularities under the previous county administration that came to light with the release last week of the annual audit of the county books. They follow an earlier charge that state funds were misused during the same period.

According to the audit, which covers the year ending June 30, 1982, the coun-

Judge Delays Tipple Closing

U.S. District Judge G. Wix Unthank last week agreed to stay his order that would permit 16 Dinwood residents to evict the Dinco Coal Sales tipple fror. . their neighborhood.

In granting Dinco's motion in Pikeville federal court last Wednesday, the judge said the company would have to post a $300,000 bond against any possible damage done to residents by operation of the tipple

Last month Unthank ruled that the federal government must enforce a law requiring permission from everyone living within 300 feet of the tipple before it can operate legally.

Earlier rulings by the federal Office of Surface Mining that it could not regulate the tipple because it wasn't at or near the company's mine "were clearly erroneous," the judge said at that time

Unthank then remanded the case to the Interior Department for "further proceedings not inconsistent with this opinion.

Dinco has appealed that decision to the 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Cincinnati.

Last Wednesday's ruling means that Dinco can operate the tipple while the appeal is pending.

English Watchmaker Locates In 'Head of Holler' To Ply Trade With his lean face, ruddy cheeks and well-worn woolen sweater, Mike Bond looks the part of the Old World Craftsman as he peers intensely into the myriad gears, cogs and polished escapements of a grandfather clock. His speech, colored by a dialect of distinctly British origin, tends to confirm the visual impression. Everything is "right" except that his clock-making and repair business is guartered not in some centuries-old, tile-roofed structure on a London sidestreet but in the basement of a modern, brick residence on a branch of the Prater Fork of Brush Creek, Floyd county, Kentucky, A native of Cheltenham, a city in the rolling hills of England's West Country, his marriage to the former Effie Lois Bailey, a Prater Fork woman who had resided in England for a time about 20 years ago, brought him to this country only four months ago and most of that time has been spent on Brush Creek

The unlikely transition from most of a lifetime spent in the pastoral landscapes and centuries-old cities of England to the ridges and winding hollows of Appalachia is not really a problem at all for Bond whose longtime dream of establishing a business in clock-making has been realized here.

Sheriffs Talk about Pay

A spokesman for the Kentucky Sheriffs' Association says a proposed succession amendment is the organization's first priority, but several sheriffs indicated that compensation is most important. The views were given last week to the legislative interim Subcommittee on County Officials Compensation.

Ray Stoess, the sheriffs' association executive director, said succession is the primary goal in the next regular session.

If the 1984 General Assembly puts a new version on the ballot, the referendum would be held later that year.

However, similar proposed amendments have been defeated by voters four times since the first one was placed on the 1959 referendum ballot.

Several sheriffs said they should be placed on a fixed salary to give them independence from local fiscal courts and enable them to know their annual compensation in advance.

Under the current law, the state sets a maximum salary for sheriffs, who depend on fiscal court appropriations and fees to achieve it.

This year's maximum, which is tied to the cost of living, is $28,387, plus a state expense allowance of $3,600.

The subcommittee staff report showed that of 98 sheriffs audited in 1980, only 56 were making the maximum of $23,184 that year.

"If we can change the law (by allowing succession), a majority of our problems can be solved," Stoess said. "We're just getting started and, believe me, we're going to be heard from." 75,000 population.

He said he has paid for two official automobiles with his own money, is two months behind on paying himself a $1,200 monthly salary and has borrowed $9,000 from the state to operate his department.

As for the fees to which he is entitled, Wilson said, "there are so many I need a fulltime expert to sort them out."

"I honestly believe that someone, somewhere, somehow needs to do something for sheriffs in small counties," Wilson said, adding that he strongly favors a set salary.

Sen. Lewis Peniston, D-New Castle, noted that Wilson is the third lowest paid sheriff in Kentucky and Heleringer asked: "Why are you having so much trouble down there?"

"Because I beat the clique." Wilson replied, contending that public opinion forced McCreary fiscal court to give him $3,000 in aid.

"It has been told to me that if you are dishonest, you can make $200,000 a year in McCreary County," the sheriff said.

Equipment Firm Held Victim of Espionage

Attorney General Steven L. Beshear has announced the recent arrest of a Birmingham, Alabama, man on charges of theft and corporate espionage stemming from the theft and resale of blueprints from Joy Manufacturing Co., a firm which makes machinery and parts used in the surface-mining industry. Beshear stated that Birmingham police working through the Leviticus Project, a multi-state task force created to investigate crimes in the Appalachian coal region, investigated the case and made the arrest. Members of the Leviticus Project, of which Beshear's office is a member, stated that other companies had been producing mining equipment from plans stolen from Joy. The parts and equipment were then sold at prices below Joy's. The loss to the firm, according to its officers, involved millions of dollars over the past several years.

Beshear stated that while espionage has plagued the equipment industry for years, this is one of the few cases that has ever resulted in arrest. Leviticus agents working in an undercover capacity paid a former Joy employee $18,000 for blueprints of the firm's equipment.

Additional evidence will be presented to a grand jury and a number of additional arrests are expected.

Beshear praised the efforts of the project citing the recent efforts in thwarting stolen heavy equipment and other recent indictments involving frauds in the coal industry.

Honor Long Past Due

Vietnam veterans last week were finally accorded the longpast-due honors they deserved.

It is passing strange that the nation has so long been derelict in recognizing these veterans, the living as well as those who lost their lives in the conflict.

All the sham surrounding this nation's participation in a Vietnamese civil war, the dissension it created here at home and the timorous strategy in the conduct of the war—all this aside, these men fought a war that was not of their making. And many lost more than a war—they lost their lives.

Welcome, Candidate!

Frank Metts has not yet announced his candidacy for governor. We hope he does.

For that will bring him to Floyd county, in which event we might learn why all pleas for completion of US 23—specifically, converting the Prestonsburg-Paintsville two-lane gap into a four-lane road to fit in with the highway as in other counties—have failed.

With all the millions earmarked for expenditure in the recently announced Five-Year Plan,—a plan which does not mention Floyd county—, surely there is a strong reason for the highway to be left in its present inadequate, dangerous condition.

Mr. Metts surely knows that reason. We would like to hear it from him.

"It's something I could have never done in England," said the 44-year-old Bond who pointed out that his modest income in his native land would have made acquistion of a suitable space and necessary tools almost impossible. With the required skills and more than enough enthusiasm, Bond needed only a location for his shop, and that was provided by his wife's parents, Lacy and Edna Bailey, the basement of whose home offered a clean and convenient work area.

With a small newspaper advertisement and word-of-mouth spreading news of "The Clock House," the Bonds admit they were surprised at the number of customers who began to respond, even in the first weeks. Most of the business came in the form of repair work although there were enough inquiries into custom-made clocks to convince the Englishman that his creative ability might also be put to Patricia Ann L. sheriff's staff in September last year. Janet Tackett, an $883-a-month secretary, picked up an extra $882 a month as juvenile support staff worker.

The use of grant funds to pay additional salaries to county workers violated grant guidelines and resulted in the county's being required to repay $14,892 in state funds that were intended to help juvenile offenders.

The legality of paying an employee two salaries out of county funds depends on circumstances—for example, on whether the worker was being paid twice for the same work—and could raise conflict-of-interest issues, Assistant Attorney-General Charles Runyan said this week. He would not comment on the situation in this county, however.

In the final months of the administration of former Judge-Executive Bill Wells, the fiscal court agreed to pay $9000 a year to Computer and Utility Services, Inc., to prepare the county payroll. Registered with the Secretary of State as the firm's agent is Stephen R. Allen, of Prestonsburg, a brother of county treasurer David D. Allen.

The county's arrangement with Computer and Utility Services violated a state law requiring that all expenditures above $5000 be advertised for competitive bids, Bottoms said.

John Allen, attorney for the computer firm, disputed the auditors' analysis, claiming that, since the fiscal court resolution that authorized it is rescindable at any time, the county's arrangement with Computer and Utility Services is not a contract.

Even if it were a contract it would be exempt from the law requiring competitive bids because it involves highly complex equipment, Allen added. (Kentucky law provides that, where "highly complex equipment which requires technical discussions" is involved, a county may contract or purchase through "competitive negotiation" rather than competitive bidding. In that case, the law demands a written finding that the complexity of the product makes it impracticable to award the contract according to the normal bidding process.)

Ron Johnson, executive-director of the Kentucky Coal County Coalition, Inc., an organization of coal-county legislators and officials. "We want to put all the candidates on the spot regarding this (coal severance tax) program," he explained.

LETTERS To the Editor

Thanks from Congressman

The campaign of 1982 is now history, and I take this means of thanking all of those who supported me in my bid to continue as United States Representative from the Seventh District.

The 98th Congress which convenes in January will have to face many difficult questions which do not admit of easy answers. These include how we are to deal with social security; with the intolerably high interest rates which are strangling our economy; with the unconscionably high unemployment; and, with the massive problems that face the elderly, the sick, the children, the handicapped, and the general citizenry.

Our region has a vital stake in the decisions Congress must make, and I pledge to continue to represent our people with every bit of wisdom and energy of which I am capable.

Thank you all for your confidence and your support. Your Congressman's door is always open. CARL D. PERKINS good use.

Bond became familiar with the workings of delicate and complex mechanisms while serving an apprenticeship at a Royal Aircraft Establishment project as a young man. It was also during this time that he became fascinated with horology, the study of clocks, and the art of their construction.

Although repair work is the "bread and butter" of The Clock House, the design and construction of clocks is Bond's first love and his wife proudly points to the fact that "clockmakers who can repair, design and build clocks number only about 300 in the world." Four small, polished brass clocks designed and built by Bond decorated a table while parts of a larger, steepleshaped clock lay scattered about, awaiting assembly. He cuts the gears and shapes the precision escapements, using formulas related to geometry and trigonometry, combined with a good deal of drafting, and it's vital that the cogs be formed to perfection. "You don't want to throw away a handful of brass gears you've just spent hours on cutting," Bond remarked. Bond stressed that he was not involved in the production of grandfather clocks, since he has no connections at present with a skilled cabinet maker. "Maybe later," he said.

In addition to his own work, he has close connections with Dutch and British firms which include the clocks of his mentor, Mike Harding, of England, whom he calls "the best clockmaker in the world,"

Bond is pleased with the way his business is going and he credits much of its success to the "business sense" of Mrs. Bond. He is thrilled that his love for clockmaking is generating some income and he hopes that the repair work he does as well as sales of some of his clocks in area stores will allow him the opportunity to concentrate on more design of originals.

"Our ultimate aim is to make beautiful clocks," he said.

"It had burned once in the early 1930's," Allen recalled, "but never after that until last July." The state Division of Air Pollution cited the coal recovery operation for illegal burning yet later an inspector from that agency's Hazard office along with a federal inspector claimed that the pile had been burning all along. "They looked at a section of the pile where red dog had formed during the burning 50 years ago and figured from that and the smoke flying from the new fires that it had burned for years," Allen said. But Allen pointed out that "snow used to lay on the pile as long as anywhere else in the winter, and I can show you right now a tree 18 inches through that grew there." Other residents on the creek confirm Allen's observations

The company soon abandoned its attempts at coal recovery and Allen began the long search for help in ridding the community of the problem. For a year the question of responsibility for the mess was bantered back and forth between numerous agencies and offices, and Allen has the bundles of correspondence to prove it. Finally, a representative of O.S.M. from Pittsburgh, Dyrel P. Delaney, visited the site in July and told Allen, "This has got to go."

O.S.M.'s Harrison inspected the site with potential contractors last summer although, again, right-of-way problems delayed further progress. He is confident now, however, that work can proceed on the project through O.S.M.'s Rural Abandoned Mines Program (R.A.M.P.).

Even after the source of the noxious haze is cleared away, Allen will harbor more than a little resentment and bitterness for the many months he and his family have suffered. But, as he said, "Maybe we'll be able to sit out in the yard without dreading it."

PUBLIC NOTICE

James Sizemore and Ricky Robinson have applied for a license to operate a place of entertainment, to be called the R. and S. Game Room, at McDowell. C. OLLIE ROBINSON County Court Clerk Reading the Times dated Nov. 3, 1982, I came across the article announcing Tel-Com's intention to improve service and add stations to their systems in Toler Creek, Big Mud, Middle Creek and Wheelwright in this county.

The one question that came to mind upon reading this article was, "What is this, some kind of joke?"

You see, I live on Middle Creek, and some three to four years ago, when Tel-Com purchased this system from Hamilton Cable Vision, we the people of Middle Creek that were hooked to the Hamilton system, received letters from Tel-Com, announcing this very same thing.

The only improvements that have been made from that time to now were in Tel-Com's favor; i.e., rate increases to $6.50 per month and now $7.50 per month. During this same time the quality of service has diminished. Just last night, (Nov. 5), for instance, there was so much interference that during an hour program we missed about a third of the program due to the signal flashing in and out. And now, this evening, you can barely see the picture on the Hazard station, and hear even less of the sound. The only reason I'm still on this system is that there is no other system offered in this community.

So, with quality drooping, and promises unfulfilled for from three to four years. Maybe now you can see why I'll believe it only when I see it.

Teacher Retires

After 26 years' service in the teaching profession, Leo Roberts has retired due to health reasons. On October 8, the Floyd County Board of Education issued him Certificate of Commendation for his years of outstanding service and contributions to the children in the Floyd county schools, and Supt. Pete Grigsby, Jr. expressed gratitude for a job well done.

Mr. Roberts has taught in Jessamine and Floyd counties but spent most of his career in his home county, Floyd. He was teaching at the John M. Stumbo School at the time of retirement.

"I want to thank the parents and teachers for the kind, cooperative relationship I shared with them over the years and the Floyd Co. Board of Education for its continued faith and support of me as an educator, "Roberts said.

Roberts is the son of Lurlie Roberts and the late Harmel Roberts. He and his wife Sue and children reside on Toler Creek.

Pike Meet Slated To Explain Tax Plan

Revenue Secretary Ron Geary said last week that the will conduct a series of eight public meetings across the state to inform Kentucky taxpayers about Gov. John Y. Brown's proposal to reform and simplify the Kentucky individual income tax.

The schedule which Geary released includes meetings in Bowling Green, Owensboro, Paducah, Somerset, Lexington, Ashland, Covington and Pikeville. The meetings begin, Tuesday in Bowling Green and conclude November 24 in the Pike county courthouse at 12:45 p.m.

At the meetings, which are open to the public, Geary and other Brown administration officials will explain the proposal in detail and will answer any questions taxpayers may have. Ballots Prove Trumka's Boast Is Well-Based Candidates are expected to be optimistic and, when Rich Trumka was in this county last month on a final swing in his campaign for the UMW presidency, he was no exception. "We're going to win, nationwide and in District 30. There's no doubt in my mind," he predicted in the course of an interview here.

As election returns came in last Tuesday, it became apparent that the 33-year-old union lawyer had beaten Sam Church, Jr. by a greater margin than even the challenger had anticipated.

With 669 of 868 locals reporting, according to UMW headquarters in Washington, Trumka had 75,393 votes to Church's 36,088—a 67 percent margin.

The margin for Trumka in District 30, which includes eastern Kentucky, was smaller but still substantial. There were some 3,444 votes cast for Trumka here and 2,070 for Church, district secretary-treasurer Bobby Roy Justice said. Trumka also won District 23 in western Kentucky by a lopsided vote, 3,677 to 1,393.

5,677 to 1,393. Kentucky's other UMW district, District 19, based in Middlesboro—where Church got 1975 votes to Trumka's 475—was one of only three districts that Church carried. The other two were District 18 in western Canada and District 21 in Arkansas.

An Estimated 1,000 Hunters Converge on Dewey Lake Area

The announcement last spring that a three-day gun season for deer hunters would be allowed in the 8,650-acre wildlife management area surrounding Dewey Lake and Jenny Wiley State Park drew protests from a number of individuals and sportsmen's groups. Since the herd at Dewey was perhaps the best in twenty years, a "slaughter" of male deer was predicted and one Pike county bow hunter estimated as many as 500 guntoting hunters would converge on the lake over the weekend.

But state policy prevailed as Division of Wildlife officials termed the season, the first open to gun hunters around the lake in six years, a new stage of "deer mangement," and the weekend of November 6-8 saw a virtual army of hunters descend upon the hills around Dewey Lake. The aftermath of that weekend has rekindled and intensified objections to the state's ruling, from hunters and non-hunters alike.

It is estimated that as many as 500 hunters took to the lake's environs the first day and that the weekend hunter total exceeded 1,000. Parking areas from the German Bridge section at the head of the lake to the dam were crowded with vehicles and scores of boats transported hunters to all sections of the impoundment. State Conservation Officers worked long hours at weigh stations in an effort to record the deer kill and the weekend's total figures showed 125 bucks (males) killed with an estimated 20 illegal kills of does. "It was a slaughter," said Conservation Officer Dalton R. Conley who added that "five and six vehicles would be lined up at one time waiting to weigh deer.

During the past three years a onemonth bow-hunting season has resulted in a yearly average of 20-25 deer killed, it was reported.

Although objections to the gun season are varied, the fear of drastically and unnecessarily reducing the size of the deer herd may be most often heard. Dr. Brent Clark, a Betsy Layne dentist who helped organize a letterwriting protest against the opening of the lake to gun hunting last spring, says he has spent the last 20 years as both a hunter and observer of the deer at Dewey Lake. "I don't have exact statistics but I feel I know pretty well what affects the deer population at Dewey and, generally, what will happen in a given situation," he said. He was not surprised then, he said, when a trip to the lake over the past weekend with some friends concluded without a single deer sighting. "We did find a four-point buck lying dead and a couple of does somebody had left," Clark commented.

Though Division of Wildlife staff biologists argue that the deer herd in the Dewey Lake preserve is large enough that as many as 90 percent of its males could be "harvested" without affecting the size of the deer herd next restricted area (the Dewey wildlife area) and hunt deer that are actually hemmed in by the lake waters on one side and strip-mine areas on the other," Howard commented. "I'm a hunter myself," he pointed out, "but in this type of situation the deer just doesn't have a sporting chance." Howard said a number of the deer taken were shot by one hunter while running from another.

A number of people are also upset because, as Howard said, "For the first time you could go to the lake and almost count on seeing a deer." Officer Conley also expressed fear that the recent weekend would make future deer sightings few and far between. "You could go out on a family drive around the lake and even if you had to look at the milk jugs, still, there were many times you'd get to see a big buck or a doe and some fawns," he said. "It's really nice to see wildlife like that in this country."

Fish & Wildlife Department conservation officers in this section were against opening the preserve to gun hunting. "None of the Eastern Kentucky officers wanted it opened for anything more than bow season," said Conley who also stated that Tim Dash, of Whitesburg, commissioner for the state's Seventh Conservation District, which includes Floyd county, expressed his opposition to the gun season at a regional meeting. Regional wildlife biologist Larry Short also reportedly disapproved of the proposal as did the county's fish and game clubs.

Since there was apparently no local support, area sportsmen wonder why their objections were ignored Bowhunter Charles Franklin Johnson, of Pike county and others who joined for a letter-writing campaign in the spring accused the state of bowing to the pressures of gun hunters and possibly looking to attract late season business to the state park, allegations which were flatly denied by the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources. Clark spoke of the possibility that the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, which controls most of the land surrounding Dewey lake, exerted its influence to see gun season open in order not to discriminate against one group while allowing bowhunters use of the lake.

"If there's a problem with fear of favoring one group of hunters over another," Dr. Clark said, "I'd be in favor of closing the area completely since it's a seed area for the rest of this whole section."

It is feared by many that gun season will again be open next year since, as Clark stated, "It's a lot easier to get a certain season opened than it is to close one." If the season is allowed, those who object contend, the sight of a deer along the water's edge at Dewey Lake will once again become a rare spectacle.

Body Found Near KY 80

Identity of a man whose body was discovered yesterday afternoon (Tuesday) along KY 80 near Hueysville is being sought by State Police.

The body was reportedly first spotted at 4:15 p.m. in a weedy area near the Right Beaver Food Market by a passing school bus driver. Birchell Duff, owner of the nearby grocery, confirmed the discovery and notified authorities.

Floyd County Coroner Roger Nelson said the man had been shot in the side of his chest and had also suffered a skull fracture. Although the body was not badly decomposed, damage to the victim's face caused by predators made immediate identification impossible, Coroner Nelson said.

State Police Detective Roger Castle, who investigated at the scene, said police have a "strong suspicion" who the victim is although positive identification must await findings of the medical examiner's office in Louisville. Coroner Nelson said X-rays which were obtained of the suspected victim were sent along with the body to aid pathologists in confirming the identity.

Cleanup Losing, Official Watch On Dumps Seen

Sheriff's deputies will be on the lookout for illegal dumping and a stiff penalty awaits any who are convicted of it, members of the fiscal court were eager to make clear last week. The warning followed magistrates' complaints that their efforts to clean up some well-known garbage dumps are being thwarted.

No sooner had he cleaned up a section on the hillside road between Allen and Banner, said Magistrate Lowell Samons, than the area was littered again. Magistrate Gerald DeRossett, who said he plans to clean up the chronic eyesore on the old Middle Creek road at West Prestonsburg, received assurances from Sheriff Henry Hale that his officers would keep the area under close surveillance. Persons convicted of illegal dumping could be fined up to $500, it was said.

Work will begin as soon as possible on the extension of water lines up the left fork of Middle Creek, Spurlock and Bucks Branch, Judge-Executive Jerry Lafferty, Jr. said. The project will be financed by $35,000 awarded Monday from the Big Sandy Area Development Fund, which came in addition to $26,000 given previously out of ADD funds.

year, Dr. Clark and others are unconvinced. They point to the gun season of 1964, a year, apparently, when deer herds were thriving after a long period of no hunting, and speak of the first "slaughter."

"Each season after that the kill was small since the herd had been so severely reduced," recalls Chalmer Howard, secretary of the Dewey Lake Fish & Game Club, one of the local sportsmen's organizations which protested the gun season. "It was closed then sometime after that and later restocked with 78 deer from the Mammoth Cave area," Howard pointed out.

"I know the deer herd at Jenny Wiley," said Dr. Clark. "It's very delicate and can be thinned out very fast.

In addition to practical questions of game management those who would close the lake to further gun seasons speak of ethics. "I think you've got to ask whether it's really ethical for 1,000 hunters to crowd into a realtively

HEALTH NEWS

Cervical cancer kills 11,000 women each year—a tragic figure which should be much lower, since cervical cancer can be one of the most curable of all cancers if it is detected and treatment is started in the earliest stages.

There is a simple test to determine if a woman has cervical cancer. This is the Pap test, a simple painless test that only takes a few moments of a woman's time. This test could have saved some of those 11,000 women who died of cervical cancer.

The Floyd County Health Department is having a Pap clinic next Monday from 8:30 a.m. till 2 p.m. This clinic is a free service and any woman who has not had the test in the past year is urged to take advantage of this service. Women age 45 and over are especially urged to take advantage of this service, since this is the high risk age for the disease.

Floyd County Family Planning will be closed Nov. 17-19 while the staff is attending a family planning conference in Louisvile.

Chill Future Seen As Heat Costs Soar

With winter coming on, everyone's thoughts are turning to the high heating bills that can be expected.

Because of that, the state Public Service Commission recently invited the Kentucky Congressional delegation to a hearing on natural gas price increases. The hearing was for two utilities that were facing increases in the cost of gas to them. Those high costs go straight to consumers and the commission wanted to inform the legislators of the problem and ask for their assistance.

"These flow-throughs of high-cost gas are the result of a federal law and the commission is hoping Congress can make some changes in it," said state Public Protection and Regulation Cabinet Secretary Neil Welch. The PSC is one of 13 agencies in the Public Protection and Regulation Cabinet.

Welch was referring to the Natural Gas Policy Act approved by Congress The act was designed to offer incentives to producers to explore for gas and thus eliminate the shortages the country had been experiencing. It has worked. In fact, there is now a surplus of gas. However, the marketplace has not taken over and caused a reduction in prices. Because of provisions in contracts between producers and pipeline companies, the high-cost gas continues to be produced and the pipeline companies must take it. This is true even though cheaper gas is available. "These contracts are a major concern of the commission and that is what they're hoping Congress will look at," Welch said. "They are urging everyone who uses gas in the Commonwealth to write to their Congressmen and ask for help. The Public Service Commission can be contacted at P. O. Box 615, Frankfort, Kentucky 40602.

available in today's market. We recognize whenever a banking service is offered, there will be questions to be asked and answered. And we have tried to anticipate those questions and provide you with the answers you need to make an informed decision on the best way to invest in your I.R.A.

□ Who can participate in the new IRA plan?

Anyone with earned income of at least the amount deposited in the IRA.

□ How much can be deposited in an IRA each year?

$2,000 per person. A married couple with both spouses working can set aside up to $4,000 a year, providing each separate account does not exceed $2,000. And a couple with one working spouse can set aside up to $2,250 a year divided between two accounts.

When may I open an IRA?

An IRA may be opened at any time during the calendar year, but to receive the tax deduction, you must make contributions to your IRA before you file your tax return each year-prior to April 15, or if you file an extension, June 15.

What are the tax benefits of an IRA?

The money you contribute to your IRA-including the interest it earns over the years-is tax deferred. This means that you do not have to pay taxes on that money until you withdraw it at retirement. At that time, you will probably be in a lower tax bracket. In the meantime, you simply deduct the amount you deposit each year to your IRA from your total income. The result is a lower tax bracket and a tax savings.

□ At what age may I begin withdrawing funds from my IRA?

You may begin withdrawing at age 591/2; however, you must begin withdrawing funds at age 701/2.

□ What if I need to withdraw funds early?

You may withdraw funds at any time, but there will be penalties imposed. The Internal Revenue Service will impose a 10% excise tax. In addition, all amounts withdrawn early will be considered taxable income. There will be no penalty if early withdrawal is due to death or disability.

If you need further details, we invite you to call our savings experts at 886-9101, or stop by any of our convenient county-wide branches.

BELIEVE IN ADVERTISING

(Mt. Sterling Gazette) There was a man who said he did not believe in advertising. He is a married man. When he was young and gay he had a sweetheart. She became his wife. He is happy now. But why and how did he get her? Not in magazines or by joining a "lonesome club." But he advertised just the same. He "showed off" at picnics; did stunts of physical skill where she could His trousers were always pressed when he went a-courting. His tie was the latest hue and pattern. He talked of big, brave things in her presence. He told her of the little home they would acquire and how it could be done on his salary. By the time she answered "yes" she knew who he was, where he was and what he was worth financially and morally. By his "advertising" her attention was directed to him, she knew all about him, and she was convinced of his value. She simply "answered his ad." Both are happy now and both have profited by the transaction. Advertising is simply letting the world knows what YOU have to offer. Newspaper advertising is the best

Late Victims of Blight

Our highly useful white walnuts have lately fallen victims of a serious blight which may eventually destroy them like the blight that killed our valuable chestnuts.

The white walnut blight works from the top limbs down slowly but eventually it kills the tree. You may have noticed white walnuts with dead branches in the top. This is the work of the killer fungus, which scientists call, Melanconis Juglandis to distinguish from the chestnut blight, which they called Endothia Parasiticus. They have not yet found a way to combat this fungus.

Books call this tree, "butternut," but I prefer the name, "White Walnut," given to it by the oldtimers. They had many uses for the white walnut. They tapped their white walnuts in the spring to draw out the sweet sap. From it they made a delicious sirup which they claim was as good or even better than sugar maple sirup. Also the thrifty housewife of early days always gathered a basketful of the soft, green nuts and used them to make delicious pickles. Only once have I eaten pickled white walnut nuts and I remember they had a delicious tang.

The nuts of the white walnut are better to eat than most fall nuts. They are enclosed by a hard corrugated shell sharp at both ends and two inches long. The kernel inside is oily and of good flavor. The nut is enclosed by a hull which sticks like glue to one's fingers.

When not damaged by the blight, the white walnut is a lovely tree. Its trunk looks silvery against the dark background of winter woods. It has large, compound leaves two feet long. Each leaf is composed of 17 leaflets, with the odd one at the end.

The hulls of the nuts were used in early times to make a beautiful orange-colored dye to color fabrics. It was regarded as a very rich color.

Both the bark and roots of white walnut are medicinal. In passing through the woods, I have seen where white walnuts had been dug out of the ground and their roots taken to sell to the herb markets for medicine. The roots are used to make medicine for stomach trouble and as a cure for chronic constipation. A tea made from the bark will quickly expel worms from a child. Also medicine from the roots and bark will cure flu and bad colds.

The white walnut lumber makes fine furniture and feels smooth as satin when polished.

Let's all do everything in our power to save the precious white walnut from the blight.

Grethel Man Killed Self After Chase, Officials Say

Authorities in Vancouver, Wash. said last week they think a parole violator from Kentucky being pursued by a state trooper shot and killed himself because he did not want to return to prison.

Chief Deputy Robert Songer, of the sheriff's office in Clark county, Wash., identified the dead man as Amon Mature, 25, formerly of Grethel.

State Patrol Trooper David Combs stopped Mature last Thursday afternoon on Interstate 5 at the Cowlitz-Clark county line on suspicion of drunken driving, Songer said.

While being questioned outside the car, Mature broke away from the trooper and raced off in the vehicle, Songer said. The trooper chased Mature's car south to Ridgefield.

At one point, Mature turned into a dead-end street in Ridgefield, spun his car around and headed back past the pursuing Combs, firing shots at the trooper, Songer said.

ANNUAL EVENT SLATED The annual "Hanging of the Greens" will take place Sunday, Nov. 28, at 7 p.m., at the First United Methodist Church, here. The public is invited to attend. The shots injured, no one, but sheriff's Sgt. Larry Byler said one bullet crashed through a beauty-shop window.

Mature's car eventually careened into an embankment.

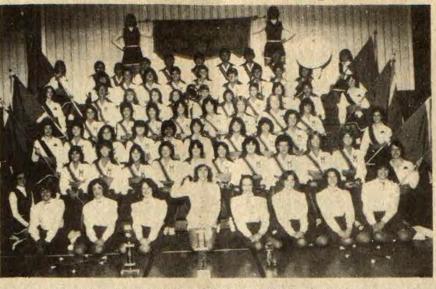

Combs reported seeing Mature bring a gun to his head then and pull the trigger, Songer said. The man died after paramedics reached the scene.

Mature served two years in an Idaho prison facility on an armed-robbery conviction and had violated his parole to this county, according to Frank DeRossett, Jr., Floyd probation and parole officer.

Songer said authorities do not know why Mature was in Washington but believe he was just drivng through. He said Mature probably killed himself because he did not want to return to prison.

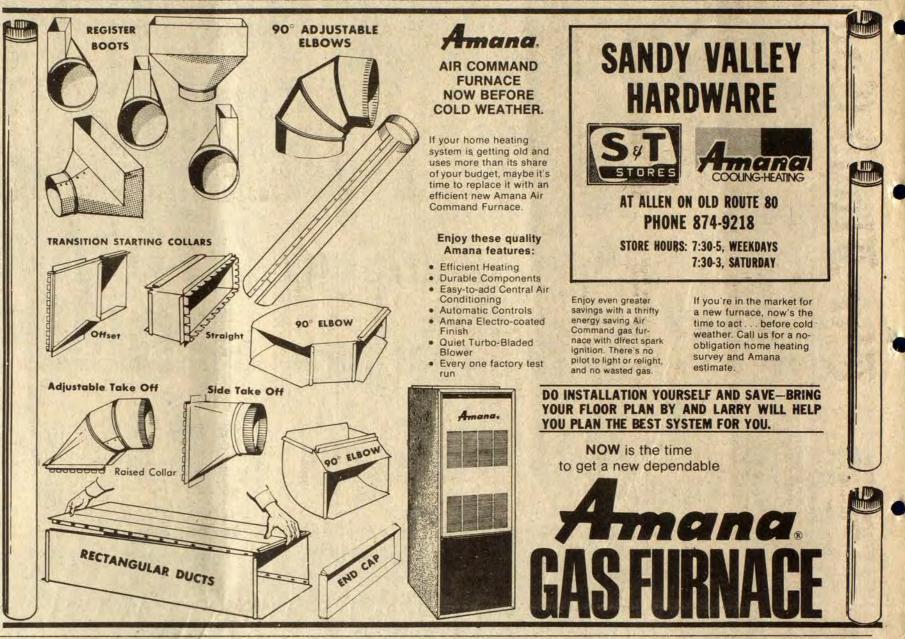

A passenger in Mature's car, identified by the county corrections office as Richard W. Bagley of Tacoma, said he had been hitchhiking and was picked up by Mature at Chehalis. Bagley jumped out of the car after the shots were fired and before Mature's car skidded into the embankment. Bagley told deputies Mature had said police would never take him alive.

The McDowell High School Band, under the direction of Judy Looney and field commander, Lisa Chaffins, has recently been awarded several honors. Among these are first place at the Sorghum Festival at West Liberty; second Place at the Jenny Wiley Festival at Prestonsburg, and third place at the Black Gold Festival at Hazard.

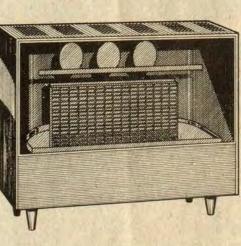

NEW NATURAL GAS ROOM HEATERS VS. KEROSENE

(RUIN)

KEROSENE

Natural Gas $6.29 VENT-FREE NATURAL GAS ROOM HEATER • Cost per 1 million BTUs • Based on 65¢ per 100 cubic feet

$11.15 VENT-FREE KEROSENE ROOM HEATER • Cost per 1 million BTUs • Based on $1.55 per gallon kerosene price

Kerosene

All the heat, none of the hassle, 40% to 50% savings in fuel costs with gas.

The more you compare the compact new natural gas room heaters with kerosene models, the more sense a natural gas unit makes.

If you have natural gas service in your home, it offers the vent-free "zone" comfort you need for an add-on room, basement, garage or other hard-to-heat space. And it offers the comfort with unique 99.9% efficiency and economy.

Compare for yourself.

You'll find that a natural gas heater saves you as much as a half in fuel costs over kerosene. And the fuel is automatically available. It doesn't have to be brought in, stored or handled at all.

Natural gas is clean heat, too. There's no fuel to mess with. And you'll never have to be concerned about odors or residue.

And for safety, a natural gas heater offers a unique, extra cutoff system. An oxygen depletion sensor (ODS) constantly monitors the air. It will automatically shut off the gas flow if the normal (20%) oxygen level in the room ever falls to 18%.

COLUMBIA GAS

Check into all the features of the new natural gas room heaters. And compare their efficiency and economy with kerosene units.

See the new natural gas room heaters at your Preway dealer, or your nearest Sears Store. Your Columbia Gas office can direct you to dealers near you.

With simple ventless installation, a natural gas room heater can be a quick, easy addition to your home. You'll have the extra "zone" heat you're after — provided with the cleanliness, convenience and economy only natural gas can offer.

attention for its fully realized, synthesizer-based, romantic

IN CONCERT

The Clash has declared was on complacent, mindless rock n' roll. The band took to the stage at a Northern California concert dressed in combat gear, while a red dome light signaled "emergency emergency." The songs are punctuated by a bank of strobe lights that flash into the audience's eyes, leaving a vis ual as well as aural imprint. A slide show projects images of violence and despair, and the songs are a cry of agony, rage and frustration at a world on a rollercoaster ride to hell This is not to ignore the fact that the music itself is rhyth mic, accessible and haunting you've only heard the tailored-to-radio "Train Vain" or "Rock the Casban, 115 you have but a hint of what the Clash is about

There is no cheerful chatter in a Clash performance. In a frenzy of sound, the band moves from one song to the next without pause "London Calling," "Radio Clash." "Straight to Hell" - gut-punch to karate chop, subtle dub spiderweb to frantic power-chord assault remarkable experience

Foreigner can bandy about the term "urgent." The Clash live it

Word Processing Comes to HRMC

Rhonda Miller and Judy Castle, Highlands Regional Medical Center's medical records transcriptionists, are shown training on the new word processors

Word processing in medical records spells another "first" for Highlands Regional among Eastern Kentucky hospitals.

Four Lanier TypeMaster word processors are now being used by medical records transcriptionists. It is estimated that they will increase efficiency by at least 25% per transcriptionist. There are no rough drafts or whiteouts, since all changes, corrections and proofing are done on a TV-like screen. The processor's printing can produce a full page in 40 seconds.

"The physicians and the Medical Records staff think our new system is fantastic," reports Dolores Preston, Medical Records director. The doctors receive perfectly-typed, letter-quality reports. The transcriptionists don't have to worry about margins, centering and inserting paper. These are all done automatically by giving the processors simple commands. They can store information and recall it for future use in seconds. The word processors also print 3 copies simultaneously which eliminates copying time and expense

The new word processors can be tied in with the hospital's computer system and expanded if needed. For the future, word processing applications are being explored in Development, Radiology, Personnel, Administration, Finance and other departments.

The reduction of fever is no longer seen as an end in itself. Today, fever is recognized as a symptom, not a disease. The agents which cause fever are known as pyrogens. They may emanate either from within or from outside the body. Inflammation or tissue damage, for example, may activate the release of pyrogens to result in a fever. It is the hypothalamus, at the base of the brain, which primarily controls body temperature. An antipyretic drug is administered to control this "thermostat". As a result, heat production is vented through blood flow and perspiration. Immediately report any fever above 103° to your physician. Fever due to flu can be reduced by antipyretics which say "for reduction of fever" on the label.

Now that the cold season is fast approaching, take care not to come down with a cold or the flu. But if you do, we at COOLEY APOTHECARY have a full service prescription center, plus the kinds of medications that can help control your symptoms. We also carry convalescent items. And remember, we don't play doctor, but we do render assistance, offer alternatives to a problem and advise when first aid is appropriate. Located at #2 Town Center Bldg. Open Mon.-Fri. 9-5:30; Sat. 9-4. 886-8106

HANDY HINT:

While the normal body temperature is 98.6°F if temperature is taken or ally, rectally, it is 1°F higher.

Mr. Sherman served as an instructor and district supervisor and is now chief examiner for Eastern Kentucky of foreman, inspector and analyst examinations and is supervisor of the Martin district, Dept. of Mines and Minerals, which comprises 14 eastern counties. #### Whodunit Next On 'Mystery!' Series

Remember the Saturday matinee that ended abruptly with the hero facing imminent death or disaster? The next "Mystery!" presentation imitates the cliff-hanging style of those serials with a tale of murder and suspicion entitled "Melissa."

The three-part whodunit, created by suspense writer Francis Durbridge, premieres Tuesday, November 30, at 9 p.m.

Peter Barkworth, twice winner of British TV's Best Actor award, stars as Guy Foster, an aspiring writer who becomes the No. 1 suspect when his wife Melissa (Moira Redmond) is mysteriusly murdered. As he stumbles through a quicksand of lies and accusations, he begins to wonder whether he can trust even his friends.

When Foster insists that he has never met a psychiatrist who claims to have treated him, the police believe he's losing his mind. Not until after another murder and an attempted third does Foster convince authorities that he may not be the murderer after all.

The first episode ends just as Foster is about to meet the man who was allegedly his wife's lover. Anxious to learn who he is? Tune in next week.

"Mystery!" is a presentation of WGBH, Boston, which features Vincent Price as host. "Mystery!" is repeated Saturdays at 10 p.m.

You don't need to be a weather expert to predict your electric bill.

Every month you get an electric bill. And every month it's different. Because your electric usage varies with the changing seasons.

Usually, it's up in the winter, down in spring, up again in air conditioning season, and down again in fall.

So how can you put together an intelligent household budget if you can't predict what your electric bills will be?

Switch to our Equal Payment Plan. With the Equal Payment Plan, we'll bill you a fixed amount each month based on your average yearly electric usage

Your account will be reviewed every six months to see that your budget payment is still as close as possible to your average use. And, at the end of the twelfth month, you'll receive a settle-up bill or a credit.

Want to smooth out the ups and downs in your electric bill and take the guesswork out of your budget? Get on the Equal Payment Plan.

C.A.T. Now Accessible to Area Patients

In top photo, a patient is positioned for the precision scanning of the C.A.T. apparatus while in lower photo technicians "call up" computer interpretation of overall scanner findings on screens and other specialized equipment in an adjoining room.

If you were to walk, unsuspecting, through the doors of Highlands C.A.T. Scanning, Inc. and into the area where the office's equipment is set up, you might think you had wandered into the nerve center of a top secret military project or the heart of some diabolical experiment. But there are no signs proclaiming "Achtung!" or uniformed guards to whisk you away and any sinister thoughts you may have had soon vanish when it becomes clear that the formidable equipment is used only to help solve medical problems and even save lives.

The complex-looking lighted panels, viewing screens and the huge scanning apparatus itself are part of C.A.T., or Computerized Axial Tomography, an advanced diagnostic procedure which only became readily accessible to patients in this area with the opening in January of this year of Highlands C.A.T. Scanning, a concern formed by a group of local physicians. Before, patients would have to travel to Lexington or other urban centers to take advantage of the procedure.

Unlike the conventional X-ray, which produces unidirectional images on sheet film, the C.A.T. process involves a recording "camera" which slowly revolves around a section of the patient's anatomy, the head, for example, rendering computer reconstructions of "slices" of the anatomy from 4-13 m.m.in thickness. The process moves to contiguous slices, eventually giving a detailed picture of the whole. Details can be examined more closely by enlarging slices or sections thereof. Dr. Peter Jakobson, the young radiologist who directs the facility, stressed the great usefulness of the C.A.T. procedure explaining that many conditions which would have required exploratory surgery only a few years ago can now be easily and painlessly interpreted through the new. technology.

Radiation exposure with the C.A.T. scan is generally a bit greater but within the range of conventional X-rays, Dr. Jakobson commented.

Tattered & Torn But Still Aloft

By LAURIE WERTZ Smithsonian News Service The "rocket's red glare and bombs bursting in air" haven't been the only threats to the flag that inspired Francis Scott Key's famous poem.

The Star-Spangled Banner, the giant (34-by-30-foot) flag that greets visitors at the National Museum of American History in Washington, D.C., had collected lots of dirt over the years—a messy mix of dust, soil, grass and even microscopic blue cotton particles from visitors' jeans clinging to the priceless flag.

Museums conservators attributed the grimy buildup to the banner's dramatic location directly in front of the busy, often drafty museum entrance on the National Mall. "The main problem was dust which comes in with visitors and on eddies of air and then settles on the flag," Scott Odell, head of the museum's Division of Conservation, explains. Also, the mere fact that the flag has been hanging in one place, exposed to light and air for 19 years, was a major factor in the accumulation of dirt.

Clearly, the Stars and Stripes were facing new dangers. Besides being unattractive, "dust in the long run wears by abrasion as the flag sways slightly in the drafts," Rita Adrosko, head of the museum's Textile Division, notes. "Chemical substances trapped in dust might also contribute to degradation of the flag's surface."

The museum has just completed a delicate cleaning project to protect the flag from further deterioration. Both sides of the flag were vacuumed by conservators working from a scaffolding, using small low-suction, battery-powered vacuum cleaners. The flag's surroundings—walls, lighting fixtures and air ducts—were also cleaned.

An opaque theatrical curtain was then placed in front of the flag to keep it in total darkness, except when unveiled for brief, hourly sound-andlight shows during museum hours. The air-handling system, which creates a clean air curtain around the flag, was upgraded to control dust as well as humidity and temperature.

The Star-Spangled Banner, which key observed in the "dawn's early light" of Sept. 14, 1814, has had many adventures during its 169 years. Little is known about the flag's treatment from 1814 to 1907, when it belonged to the family of Col. George Armistead, commander of Fort McHenry during Britain's unsuccessful attack on Baltimore in 1814. But the earliest known photograph of the flag, taken in 1874, shows it crudely tacked to a coarse backing, with one star missing and white stripes tattered.

In 1914, Mrs. Amelia Fowler of Building. After Pearl Harbor, it was folded and stored in a tar-papercovered package in a cavern near Luray, Va.

When the war ended, the flag was rehung in a glass case, its bottom edge set in moth crystals. During its stay in Arts and Industries, the flag was vacuumed only once, and no other treatment is recorded. In 1963, the banner was moved to its present location.

The recent conservation project will not undo all the ravages of age, but it should help to preserve the Stars and Stripes for future visitors to enjoy.

WHO EVER HEARD of a magnolia blooming in November? Mrs. Opal Martin, of Allen, not only heard of it but witnessed it in her own front yard. It was a typically brisk fall day when this picture was taken last Thursday but unseasonably warm weather earlier had apparently persuaded the tree it was spring.

"This Is Your Life" Lauds Miss Buchanan

In 1919, a young Wellesley College student arrived on horseback at the Caney Creek Community Center in the remote Eastern Kentucky mountains to spend a one-week vacation.

The student, June Buchanan, cofounder of Alice Lloyd College, stayed 63 years.

A special "This Is Your Life" show, hosted by Ralph Edwards, traces the history of Alice Lloyd College as it honors Miss Buchanan. "This Is Your Life: June Buchanan" airs on KET Wednesday, December 1, at 10 p.m. Sixteen guests share their memories of Miss Buchanan and the school with friends and alumni in the Alice Lloyd College auditorium.

The program marks the second time Alice Lloyd College has been featured on a "This Is Your Life" program. In 1955, when the school was still called Caney Junior College. Alice Lloyd appeared with Edwards for a tribute to her life. Thousands of people donated more than $200,000 to the school as a result of the program.

"This Is Your Life: June Buchanan" is a production of Louisville Productions and Alice Lloyd College.

MIND YOUR OUTDOOR MANNERS Whether or not you have a place to hunt next year could depend upon how well you mind your outdoor manners this season.

Chances are, you'll hunt on someone else's property. If you behave like a good guest should, the landowner will welcome you back next year. But if you act like a slob, don't be surprised if a big "posted" sign greets you when you return.

The most basic and fundamental act of good outdoors manners is asking permission to hunt, yet it's amazing how many hunters don't observe this simple courtesy. Entering the lands of another without permission is trespassing and could subject you to arrest.

With the amount of rural crime there is today, farmers need to know who is on their land, and why. A strange car parked beside the road might belong to a couple of hunters, but it could also be a get-away vehicle for someone "lifting" a tractor battery or siphoning gas.

The landowner who has to track you down on his property to see what you're up to isn't going to be in the best frame of mind and will probably chase you off. But if you had asked first, he most likely would have let you hunt on his place.

Once you do have permission to hunt on a particular piece of property, be extra careful that you don't abuse the privilege the landowner has granted you. If you drive onto his land, stay on the roads or trails and don't go cutting across plowed or soft ground just to see if your new mud tires really work.

And don't litter. Pick up the wrappers from your lunch and don't even leave spent shells lying around. In short, act like you are in your host's living room, not his back 40.

Leave gates the way you found them. In particular, don't carelessly leave a gate unlatched. The fellow who has spent a couple of hours rounding up his cattle isn't going to be exactly overjoyed the next time he sees the person who let the critters escape.

And speaking of gates, don't park your vehicle in front of one then head off for a day's hunting. The reason there's a gate in that fence is so someone can get through, and that someone is generally the landowner with a load of feed for his stock or something equally pressing. If he has to sit there and wait for you to get back to your car before he can go on with his work, he's not going to spend the time thinking kind thoughts about hunters or about you.

It should go without saying that you'll be careful with firearms and won't endanger lives or property by careless gun handling or shooting. Remember that even a .22 bullet will travel over a mile and will ricochet off rocks or off the surface of water. Think

Seven-Gallon Contributor

Dan Keely, foreman in South Central Bell's Distribution Department, is happy. Why? Keely recently contributed his seventh gallon of blood to the Eastern Kentucky Blood Bank. He is very pleased with his accomplishment but says, "There's really not much to donating." Keely is originally from New York City but now has a permanent assignment in Winchester. However, he is presently on loan to Bell's operations in Prestonsburg. Certainly his contribution ranks high among those who give blood. South Central Bell is proud of Keely for his accomplishment. Kimberlee Boyd, R.N., presented him with his pin.

Homemakers' Workshop

The Floyd County Homemakers recently participated in a "holiday door decoration" workshop. Sharon Campbell, of Jenny Wiley

Florist, demonstrated how to use native material wreaths and decorate using ribbons, silk flowers and artificial fruit. The same theme could be used for several holidays with just a change of color of the decorating material used, she said.

Attending the workshop were: Beckye Short, Sharon Neeley, Christine Spradlin, Garnett Fairchild, Arnita Snavely, Alice Hayes, Marge Sammons, Phyllis Herrick, Doris Boggs, Gayle Bastin, Priscilla Hager, Judy Kittle, Mary Sue Moore, Dorothy Harris, Irene Campbell, Pearl Watts, Donna Reitz, Denise Halbert, Letha Kendrick and Frances Pitts. The door prize winner was Phyllis Herrick.

about where that bullet might eventually end up before you pull the trigger.

Finally, don't put your mind in neutral. Just because you're on a holiday and out for a little recreation is no reason not to consider the consequences of your actions, not to think ahead a little. And the one thing you should think about constantly is how much good hunting land has been lost because someone didn't think about what he was doing or how his actions affect others or how they reflect upon the sport of hunting.

"Books Under Fire!" Examines Censorship

Proposed banning of books by authors such as Ernest Hemingway, Kurt Vonnegut, Jr., and F. Scott Fitzgerald from schools systems across the country is the topic of "Crisis To Crisis," airing Sunday, November 28, at 10 p.m. Congresswoman Barbara Jordan hosts the weekly series which examines issues of national and global concern.

This episode, "Books Under Fire!," centers on a couple in Texas who claims to be representative of a new wave of conservative political and religious opinion sweeping the country. They have formed a coalition to challenge the Texas Educational Agency which serves as a $50 million clearinghouse, distributing textbooks and literature written by American and international authors. The coalition has decreed many once innocent books spanning the decades from the 30's to the 70's as prurient reading material.

"Books Under Fire!" presents a balanced discussion of the issue, from isolated cases in Vermont and Wisconsin, to the central argument in Texas. "Books Under Fire!" is produced by The American University.

By C. "OLLIE" ROBINSON The Prestonsburg Blackcats won over the Whitesburg Yellow Jackets, in the first game of the Class AA play-offs here last Friday night. The Blackcats were awesome on defense and devastating on offense. The Yellow Jackets never knew what had happened. The Blackcats and the Yellow Jackets had the same won and lost records, each 9 and 2, but when the smoke had cleared the Cats had won their 10th game of the season and Whitesburg was eliminated from further competition in the play-offs.

Junior quarterback Todd Nairn hit Gordie Ratliff with a 27-yard scoring pass play to put the Cats in front. A bad snap prevented B.J. Sturgill from kicking the extra point. Todd Nairn scored the second touchdown in the first quarter on a keeper. Sturgill's kick was good and almost before the fans could get their seats, Prestonsburg led 13 to

In the second quarter, all-stater John Gilliam got the third Cat touchdown on a one-yard plunge. "The Toe" Sturgill's kick was good and the Cats led at halftime, 20 to 0.

In the third quarter Todd Nairn again on a keeper scored his second touchdown of the night. Sturgill came up with a bruised hip, and the Cats decided to run for the extra points but failed

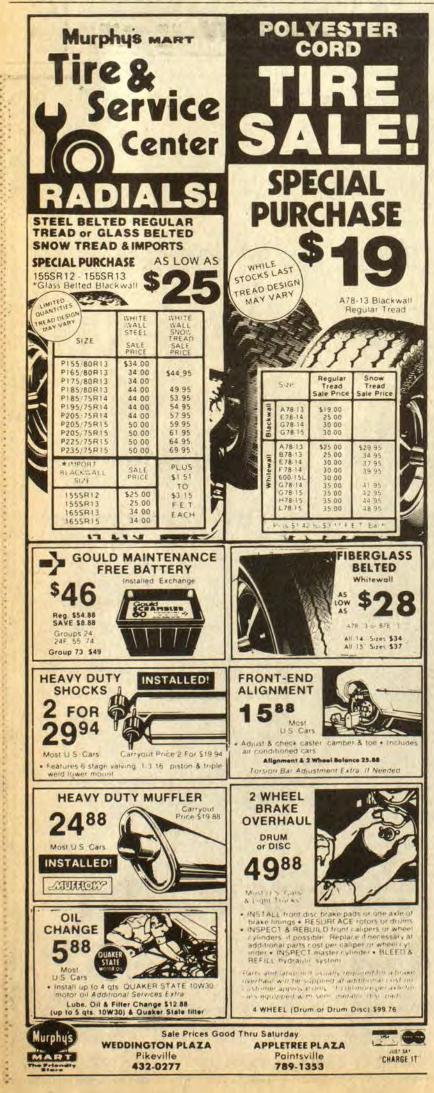

In the final frame, Whitesburg scored its lone touchdown on a twoyard run by Tony Sargent. The run failed

Senior halfback John Gilliam rushed for 78 yards on 10 carries and scored one touchdown

The Prestonsburg defense limited the Yellow Jackets' offense to only 28 total yards in the first half. The Prestonsburg offensive line and defensive line were outstanding and so was the kicking of B.J. Sturgill.

So the stage is set for the state Class AA semi-finals here this Friday night at 8. The Cats (10 and 2) will face Corbin (6 and 4). Should the Cats win over Corbin, they will move into the finals of the Kentucky State High School Class AA Championship and will play either Glasgow or Fort Knox in Louisville. In 12 games this season, the Cats have scored 351 points while holding their opposition to only 103 points. So far this season, the Blackcats have had 17 players to score and as far as we can check the past record, this is a first!

Cats Down Whitesburg In Playoffs, 26 to 6

The Prestonsburg Black Cats may not have scouted their opposition as thoroughly as they would have liked, but they used hard-nose fundamentals to offset any lack of knowledge of the other fellow's game to take an early lead and crush the visiting Whitesburg Yellow Jackets last Friday night in the regional playoffs, 26 to 6.

The victory brings up Round 2 to be played here this Friday night against Corbin, winners in their initial playoff game last week over Boyle County.

The Cats scored early against Whitesburg when Gordie Ratliff snagged quarterback Todd Nairn's pass for a 27-yard gain. The kick for point after failed, but shortly thereafter the Cats were again pounding at the Whitesburg goal-line, and Nairn went over from the 1. Sturgill's kick brought the score to 13-0.

In the second quarter senior fullback John Gilliam, who led his team, both offensively and defensively, scored the third Cat marker, and Sturgil's kick made it 20-0.

Nairn scored his second touchdown of the evening in the third quarter on another one-yard run. This was followed by Whitesburg's only score of the evening on halfback Tony Sargent's run.

Prestonsburg finished with 142 yards rushing and 52 passing for a total of 194 yards. Meanwhile, Whitesburg was making only 73 yards on the ground and 11 passing for an 84-yard total. Prestonsburg was penalized 90 yards to the visitor' 15. Each team had nine first downs.

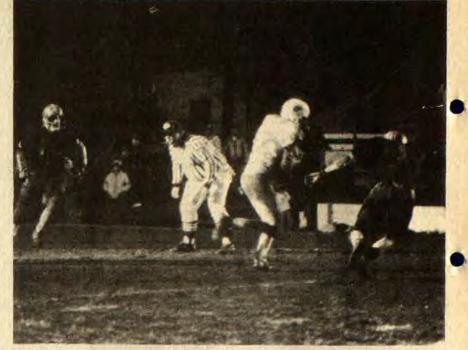

Gilliam, who gained 78 yards on 10 carries, had seven solo tackles and five assists. John DeRossett added 37 yards on 12 carries; halfback Robert Midgette gained 30 yards on 7 attempts Ratliff caught two Nairn passes for 37 yards and a touchdown, and tight end Irvin Spears caught another for 37 yards.

Robert Midgette, Blackcat running back, displayed some fancy footwork in evading two Whitesburg players as they attempted to stop a drive toward the goal line in last Friday's game. Fans braved a steady rain and falling temperature to cheer the Cats as they trounced Whitesburg, 26 to 6.

Emergency Program Set To Provide Heat

Buddy Adams, Secretary of the Cabinet for Human Resources, today announced Project Warmup for low income people who find themselves without heat this winter.

"Our projections show up to 250,000 households in Kentucky may apply for benefits from the Home Energy Assistance Program," Adams said. "However, we will only have funds to help about 105,000 households. We're concerned about the people who may be left out."

To help meet that need Adams explained that Project Warmup has been developed by the Cabinet for Human Resources as a part of the Home Energy Assistance Program. (HEAP). A maximum of $22 million will come to Kentucky for HEAP. Households which have at least one member who is blind, elderly or disabled may apply from January 3, to January 14, 1983. All other low-income households which face crises in paying utility bills may apply beginning January 17, 1983.

To assist those people who are eligible but do not receive HEAP benefits, a total of $1.6 million will be available to local governments and agencies through Project Warmup. Allocations will be made to each county based on the percent of residents below the poverty level.

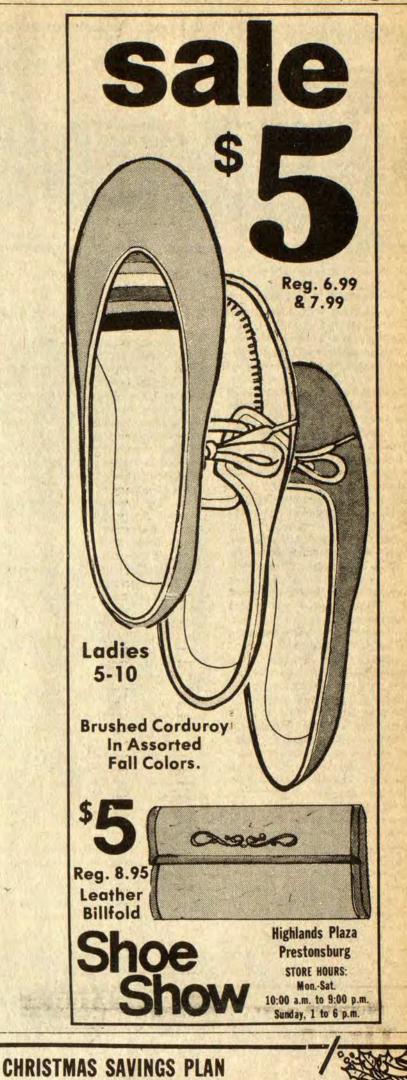

The Cabinet for Human Resources has sent letters to all county judges to invite them to apply for funds to operate two Froject Warmup programs: the County Shelter Program and the County Intervention Program. The County Shelter Program offers temporary shelter to persons without adequate heat in their homes. A total of $1 million is available to pay the utilities and, where necessary, the rent on a shelter. The County Intervention Program provides blankets, space heaters and some fuel to households without sufficient heat. This program can also help pay utility reconnection fees and deposit necessary to restore utility services. A total of $500,000 is available.

All shelter programs must be operating by January 1, 1983 and must continue through March 15, 1983.

To help the counties submit applications for Project Warmup, Human Resources will hold a series of workshops around the state for local officials. Technical assistance will also be offered to develop and coordinate the community shelter program. This assistance will be useful in determining the need for the shelter, the services to be provided, the recruitment of volunteer staff and coordination with other local agencies.

"The involvement of community volunteers is essential to Project Warmup," said Adams. "Volunteers will be necessary to staff the shelters, to determine eligibility of applicants and to solicit funds for services beyond those Human Resources can provide, such as food and transportation."

Community groups interested in applying for the Special Community Energy Project funds should immediately contact Department for Social Insurance, Division for Management and Development, 275 East Main Street, Frankfort, Kentucky 40621.

Mother and Son Are Graduates

Pat (Leedy) DeRossett, former Harold Elementary teacher, received her Ed. Sp. degree in Educational Leadership (Administration) August 20, from Eastern Michigan University. She received a Master of Arts degree in Elementary Curriculum from E.M.U. in 1970, and a Bachelor of Arts degree from Pikeville College in 1964.

Her son, John Dwayne DeRossett, graduated June 7 from Ypsilanti High School, where he was an honor roll student, played freshman football, ran track, and played a euphonium in the freshman band, concert band, and symphony band.

His grandmother, Nancy Leedy, of Stanville, attended both baccalaureate and graduation ceremonies. Oscar and Lexie DeRossett and their daughter, Ruby, former Floyd county residents, were among more than one hundred guests of family and friends who were served dinner during an open house given in his honor. Other family members in attendance included Gwen and George Scherub and her daughters, Kim and Sheri Blankenship. DeRossett will attend Washtenaw Community College in the fall.

Mrs. DeRosett, who taught music one year in Ohio, and three years at Harold Elementary, was recently appointed principal of Chapelle Elementary in Ypsilanti. She has taught 15 years in Michigan, has been very active in community and school organizations, and currently serves as president of the Alpha Sigma Chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma (an honorary teachers society) and as secretary for the Phi Delta Kappa-E.M.U. (an honorary fraternity for administrators and educational leadership candidates). (Notice submitted in Sept. and inadvertently held over.)

SOCIAL SECURITY

People in the Floyd county area who are planning to retire early next year should apply soon for Social Security retirement benefits if they have not done so already, Jim Kelly, Social Security district director for the Big Sandy área, said recently.

It is best to apply about three months before retirement, so that Social Security checks can start shortly after a person's income from work stops, he said.

Before a person actually applies, he or she should gather certain information and evidence to support his or her claim, Kelly said. This includes:

-The person's Social Security card or a record of the number.

-Proof of date of birth. The best evidence is an official record of birth recorded before age 5. Only original records or copies certified by the issuing agency can be used. Contact your two years. Form W-2 can be used by wage earners. Self-employed people should submit copies of their selfemployment tax returns along with evidence showing the return was filed (a cancelled check, for example).

A person applying as a husband or wife will need his or her Social Security card and evidence of his or her date of birth. It is a good idea also to have the marriage certificate available.

These documents will be enough in most cases, but sometimes additional evidence is required. The people at the Big Sandy Area Social Security Office can tell you if additional evidence is needed, Kelly said.

More information about Social Security retirement benefits can be obtained at the Big Sandy Area Social Security Office, located on U. S. 23 between Prestonsburg and Paintsville. The telephone number is 886-8525.

Forest-Fire Law Violations Down

The Division of Forestry's increased emphasis on prosecuting forest-fire law violations appears to be paying off, said Forestry Director Donald A. Hamm.

"During October, the first month of the fall fire season, we issued 76 citations for violations of forest-fire laws," Hamm said. "At this time last year, only 36 citations had been issued."

"For many years the Division of Forestry tried to prevent fires by personal contact with area citizens, news articles and media reminders and various other programs. These had little success and we are encouraged by the results of our increased prosecution of fire-law violators," he said.

The 1982 session of the Kentucky General Assembly substantially raised the penalties for violating state forestfire laws, Hamm explained. "For example, the fine for not taking proper fire precautions was $10-to-$100. Now the minimum fine is $100 and the maximum $500."

Any person convicted of willfully setting fires on someone else's property can now be fined from $1,000 to $10,000, he said.

In addition to the fine, violations are also charged fire-suppression costs for having the fire put out. These costs may range from just a few dollars to several thousand dollars, Hamm said. Forestry officials report that 114 citations have been issued in Kentucky since Oct. 1.

Many Children Need Permanent Adoption

Thanks giving Week is also Adoption Week in Kentucky. Over 150 children are waiting to join a permanent adoptive family. During Adoption Week the Special Needs Adoption Program is placing special emphasis on informing prospective adoptive families about Kentucky's waiting children.

Since the Special Needs Adoption Program began in March, 1979, 240 children have joined adoptive families. The program has proven to be a success for the state economically due to the large sums saved in foster care rates that would have been spent had the children not been placed for adoption. In addition to its economic success, the Special Needs Adoption Program has provided many special children with a family of their own, an opportunity these children would not have had before the program was established.

The children who wait for adoption are children with special needs. These children include white children over the age of ten; black children over the age of three; children of any age who have a physical, mental, or emotional handicap, and sibling groups of three or more children who need to be placed together.

Myths about adoption often keep families from inquiring about adoption. Families do not have to have large salaries or own their own homes. Both married and single adoptive parents are needed. Adoptive families may be childless or have other children. The Special Needs Adoption Program is looking for families who have a stable home life, who take a flexible approach in their problem solving and who can love and accept a child who joins their family through adoption. Any family who wants to know more about special needs children are encouraged to inquire.

To learn more about the special children in Kentucky who are awaiting adoption, call the local Department for Social Services Office at 886-8192, or the Special Needs Adoption Program toll free at 1-800-432-9346.

PARENTS FUND MUSIC PROGRAM

The Jefferson County Board of Education unanimously approved a plan presented by the Jefferson County Elementary Music Association, a coalition of parents banded together to save music programs in fourth and fifth grades, to allow private funding of music programs cut last year because of budget constraints. The group has vowed to fund the program entirely through tuitions paid by parents and private contributions. No district money will be used. The parents' group will donate the money to the school system, which will hire teachers and administer the program. More than 2,000 students are expected to receive about 45 minutes of music instruction per week as a result of the program.

Cancer Hopeline

Q. My father, age 67, has multiple myeloma. We know it's a form of cancer, but what else can you tell us about it?

A. "Multiple myeloma" means many tumors in the bone marrow where blood cells are made. Normally, few plasma cells appear in the marrow where they produce plasma proteins which become the liquid portion of the blood. When plasma cells overproduce, they crowd out normal red cells (food and oxygen carriers) and white cells (part of the body's defense against disease). Eventually, they also invade the bone tissue itself, causing it to become fragile and break easily.

Multiple myeloma accounts for about one percent of all cancer oases. It occurs more often in the middle aged and elderly, in more men than women, and more often in blacks than whites. Although the cause is unknown, no evidence exists that it is either hereditary or contagious.

Myeloma is sometimes very slow growing, and symptoms may not show up for years. However, blood and urine analyses in routine physical examinations can often detect early signs. Early stage myeloma also may be indicated by repeated bacterial infections, especially pneumonia.

The first symptom is almost always mild, intermittent pain, usually in the back or neck. For this reason, multiple myeloma can be confused with arthritis or neuralgia. Given these facts, multiple myeloma demonstrates the need for each person to have regular checkups, know what is normal for his/her own body, and to report persistent irregularities to a physician.

Once myeloma is diagnosed, it is necessary to determine its extent and identify any complications requiring treatment. These include kidney failure, bone pain, anemia, infections, and hypercalcemia (too much calcium). All of these symptoms can be quite successfully treated.

Multiple myeloma is one of the most unpredictable of all cancers in its response to treatment, however, so there is no way to forecast who will do well and who will not. Of course, early diagnosis and the overall good health of the patient are definite advantages.

(For assistance with cancer questions, call the Cancer Hopeline, toll free at 1-800-432-9321 from 9 to 5 weekdays, or write 915 South Limestone Street, Lexington, Ky. 40536.)
