Blaze Sweeps Beaver Valley Lumber Firm

A midnight blaze swept through a Martin lumber yard Friday, causing heavy damage and disrupting telephone service, communitywide, for more than 12 hours.

Destroyed was the Beaver Valley Lumber and Building Supplies Company. The only survivors of the fire were a block structure housing the company office and miscellaneous items and a building across Old KY 80 from the center of the blaze.

E.C. Moore, owner of the 41-year-old business, estimated his loss at $100,000, of which less than a third was covered by insurance. Although he is 70, Moore plans to rebuild a portion of the business.

Cause of the blaze has not been determined. "I don't want to think it's arson," Moore said, but, he added, the state fire marshal and Martin police think otherwise. The investigation continues.

Martin firemen said the fire had spread over 75 percent of the yard when they arrived and they could do little except fight to control it against further spread. One home, that of Joe Everidge, Martin city councilman, which is at the rear of the lumber yard, was damaged.

Woman in Case Collapses After Defense Grilling

Trial Judge James D. Atkinson, Jr., announced Tuesday afternoon at conclusion of the hearing at Greenup of testimony and arguments in the case of William "Oakie" Bevins that he will pass sentence on the 72-year-old Floyd man at 10 a.m. Friday, April 22, for the slaying of five men at Allen 18 months ago.

Although Bevins' attorney, Lester Burns, last Tuesday suddenly withdrew his client's plea of not guilty, after which Bevins pleaded guilty to killing the five men and wounding three others in a wild shooting spree, Judge Atkinson heard a full-scale review of what happened.

The testimony heard Monday included that of Katie Sue Click, 23-year-old widow of Roger Dale Click, one of those killed inside the parts store. The woman, who has since remarried and who now resides in Boston, Mass., insisted that she was afraid to end a sexual relationship with Bevins which began when she was 13 or 14 years old.

More than an hour on the witness stand, she was obliged by Burns:

—To identify nude and semi-nude photographs of herself that investigators found in Bevins' home after his arrest.

—To listen to the reading by Burns of pornographic "stories" which, she claimed, Bevins forced her to write.

Countering the woman's claim that she was forced by Bevins' threats to kill

Coal Leaders View Industry Direction At Lodge Seminar

Theme of the sixth annual coal mining seminar conducted last Thursday and Friday at May Lodge, Jenny Wiley State Park, was, "Where Do We Go from Here?", and the consensus of opinion expressed by industry leaders was, "There's only one way to go—and that's up."

That was in recognition of the slump that now afflicts the industry.

But the hope of better days ahead was reflected in the record attendance of more than 300 at the seminar. "It was our best meeting ever," said Sophia Cahill, veteran supervisor of the Martin office of the Kentucky Department of Mines & Minerals. (She rounded out her 17th year with the department, April 4.)

Jerry Halvorsen, the National Coal Association's vice-president for congressional affairs, began the meeting Thursday afternoon with a discussion of "The Case for Coal." Other speakers Thursday included Tom Poletti, chairman of the board of Southeast Coal Sales, Lexington; on export markets; John Smith, vice-president for operations of the A.T. Massey Coal Co., Beckley, W. Va.; on labor-relations; B.B. Cooper, director of the state of Georgia's mining services, on coal research; Frank Linkhous, Westmoreland Coal Company's health and safety director, and his assistant, Doug Lester, on the company's accident-repeater program.

The speaker at Thursday evening's banquet was Jack E. Katlic, vice-president for engineering of Island Creek Coal Co., Lexington. The banquet followed a 6 p.m. social hour hosted by Orville Adkins, owner of Floyd county's S & H Manufacturing Company. Tom Duncan, president of the Kentucky Coal Association, was the banquet toastmaster. The welcome to banquet guests was by Willard Stanley, state commissioner of mines and minerals.

Friday's program was featured by the "MSHA Update" given by Joseph Lamonica, administrator of the federal Mine Safety and Health Administration (MSHA). Other speakers were Gerald

This Town...That World

After days and days and nights of cloud and gloom, did ever the sun shine so bright (brightly?) as on Tuesday?

MONTH OF MIRACLES

For a while there, we thought they were fighting a losing battle, those red-buds that bloom to bless each spring, but they've made it—and, ready to burst out all over, are the dogwoods.

FROM THE FILES

Before a computer chip was ever a beam in anybody's eye, we were having our troubles with typesetters, people and things. Just now I've run across the following, which we printed in our Nov. 20, 1941 edition:

"This newspaper has been afflicted with many ailments. It has had presses with the bots (nobody could ever discover anything else that made them want to do us that way) and linotypes with the mechanical heaves (which is a lot worse than the physical brand). Both the editorial and mechanical departments have been accused of having moronic tendencies. We've ranged the gamut of human and mechanical afflictions, real and imaginary, so to speak...But we've never been accused of entertaining delusions of grandeur."

Now, two score years and one later, I wonder what brought that up. And you may wonder why I revive it now.

Dr. Akers' Death Held Accident

The death of Dr. Roger Darrell Akers, 37, prominent Floyd county physician, is viewed by authorities as a tragic accident.

Dr. Akers' body was found late Sunday afternoon in his auto inside the garage at his home at Price by his wife, Ruth Ann, upon her return from a weekend trip. Preliminary findings from an autopsy performed in Lexington indicate accidental asphyxiation, Floyd Coroner Roger Nelson said.

Dr. Akers was chairman of the campaign of Ray Turner for state senator, and Turner may have been the last person to see him alive. They had attended a political rally at Hazard Saturday night and had made several campaign stops, en route home, arriving at Turner's home at Drift around 5 a.m. Sunday. Akers drove on alone to his home at Price.

Coroner Nelson said investigation shows that Dr. Akers drove into his garage, the door of which opens electrically, and that he apparently fell asleep with the motor running. The headlights of the car were still on, but the battery had run down, he said, and the motor was no longer running. He said the electric door control was still in the physician's hand.

The death of the doctor, regarded as one of the profession's most promising in the area, shocked not only relatives and intimate friends but also the medical community and those who had come to know him as physician and friend over the 10 years of his practice.

A son of Mrs. Orpha Chaffins Akers, of Drift, and the late Clive Akers, onetime Floyd tax commissioner, Dr. Akers received his early education in the Drift and McDowell schools and graduated from the University of Kentucky College of Medicine in 1972. Returning to this section, he was associated with Dr. Grady Stumbo in the founding of the East Kentucky Health Center in Knott county, where he remained two years, later practicing at Wheelwright before opening an office at Martin. He had concluded only shortly before his death tenure as chief of staff at Our Lady of the Way Hospital in Martin.

A former chairman of the Floyd County Board of Health, he was a member of the Floyd County Medical Society, the Eastern Kentucky Medical Society, was vice-speaker of the Kentucky Academy of Family Physicians, and was a trustee of the Kentucky Medical Association.

Surviving, besides his mother, are his wife, Ruth Ann Patton Akers, of Price; three sons, Brett and Bart, of Hunter, and Roger Darrell, II, of Price; two daughters, Christy, of Price, and Bridget, of Hunter; two brothers, Kenneth Ray Akers, of Drift, and Clive Akers, Jr., Emerson, N.J., and one sister, Mrs. Betty Jean Hodges, Biloxi, Mississippi.

Funeral services will be conducted tomorrow (Thursday) at 10 a.m. from the chapel of the Hall Funeral Home, the Revs. Burton Howard and Paris Tackett officiating. Burial will be in Davidson Memorial Gardens at Ivel.

Siren Test Set Friday

If you hear a series of siren blasts Friday between 1:00 and 1:15 p.m., it will mean neither that the Russians are coming nor that a tornado is headed this way. It will mean only that the Prestonsburg Fire Department is testing weather alert equipment at both its No. 1 and No. 2 stations, according to Fire Chief Tom Blackburn.

Colson To Speak Here Friday

If you're still wondering whether you could ever put your faith in a man like Charles Colson, you can get a firsthand impression of the man this Friday, when he is scheduled to give a luncheon address in a Prestonsburg church hall.

After 10 years, does he still deserve to be remembered as Richard Nixon's "hatchet man," the aide who boasted he would run over his grandmother to help his boss? Or is his six-year ministry to prison inmates not evidence enough that he is—as he claims in his book, "Born Again"—a profoundly changed individual?

And even if he is now a person of genuine moral idealism, does he have any workable solutions to offer the thorny questions of prison reform?

Whatever the long-term prospects for his Prison Fellowship organization—which columnist William F. Buckley, Jr. predicted last year "could just possibly be the agent of the most important prison reforms of the century"—faith in him, Colson would no doubt argue, matters a good deal less than faith in Jesus Christ.

The former Watergate defendant will be bringing his message in a luncheon meeting sponsored by the First United Methodist Church here at noon on Friday. The meeting, which will be held in the church's Fellowship Hall, is open to the public.

Prison Fellowship, the organization founded by Colson to minister to prison inmates, ex-offenders and their families, is supported by 12,000 volunteers working in 141 "community care committees" across the nation, according to a spokesman for the group.

The one-time presidential aide and big-time Washington lawyer formed the non-profit ministry in 1976, shortly after serving seven months of a one-to-three year sentence for obstructing justice. Colson was convicted of disseminating information designed to discredit Daniel Ellsberg, who drew public attention to classified documents, later referred to as the Pentagon Papers, pertaining to the U.S. role in Vietnam.

Since then, he has visited prisons across the country, lecturing on the Gospel, leading Bible-study classes, and praying with inmates. He has also emerged as an advocate of prison reform.

The 51-year-old Colson's conversion in 1973, which came just as Watergate was beginning to unfold, has been described in two books, "Born Again," published in 1976, and "Life Sentence," published in 1979. A classic "road to Damascus" experience, his change of heart came one August night as he was traveling to Maine. It was five months after he had left the White House to return to private law practice.

Although he insisted it was unrelated to Watergate, his conversion was widely thought to be self-serving. But Colson found support in a prayer group comprised of prominent Washington people including Sen. Harold E. Hughes, who was about to retire from the Senate to become a religious layworker. And his perseverance in what many would regard as one of the least attractive church ministries has given even the skeptics pause.

Besides spreading the Gospel among the 359,000 men and women in this nation's prisons and urging churches to become more involved in ministering to inmates and their families, Colson urges alternatives to incarceration at a time when others are urging construction of more jails.

Prisons are necessary for "that roughly 20 percent of the prison population convicted of dangerously violent crimes," but alternative punishment—like mandatory community service—should be available to non-violent offenders, Colson believes.

Prisons don't rehabilitate. Instead, they harm the offender, his or her family, and society itself, Colson argues. Strict probation, "house arrest," and restitution to crime victims should be tried as alternatives, he says.

And, for those who are locked up, he recommends weekend sentences, separating violent from non-violent offenders, and protecting inmates against brutal acts by other inmates.

Prison ministry is perhaps not all that (See Story No. 1, Page 6)

Floyd P.O. Hosts Film Crew

Mary Parsons received her mail as usual at Red Town, Mrs. Jim Wagner got her flower seeds and other parcels on Pike-Floyd Hollow, and D. W. Howard and Woody Conn picked up their letters and newspapers outside their homes in Betsy Layne, yesterday as they customarily do. But the big difference for these folks, all customers of the Betsy Layne Post Office, was the appearance of a film crew from the U.S. Postal Service.

Each of these people, and several others around Betsy Layne, will be part of a documentary film which is being made to represent rural post offices all over America.

The Betsy Layne Post Office was the focus of filming this week while the Jeffersonville Post Office near Mt. Sterling, the only other location chosen for the film, hosted the three-member crew which travelled to Kentucky from the postal service's Central Region Headquarters in Chicago, Illinois last week.

Betsy Layne Postmaster Aileen Hall, who has accepted the considerable responsibility of writing the script for the documentary, explained that the film, which will be shown not only for postal employees but for civic clubs and other organizations across the U.S., will try to depict how rural America is served by the U.S. Mail and the vital role it plays in the lives of the residents of rural areas.

"Most depictions of mail service have shown the highly mechanized and complex systems in large urban centers," she pointed out. "We want to show the very different but equally important rural side of mail service...and to depict the system as an integrated network."

According to Tony Sabo, director and cameraman, who commented that he

IS THERE A PURPOSE FOR A FUNERAL?

Many social and personal customs undergo changes and are criticized as obsolete and void of purpose. Funeral customs and directors have not escaped these critics. However, these very criticisms have given strength to the tradition of funeral service, because it has caused the public to think seriously about the purpose of the funeral.

The funeral provides, of course, for the proper disposition of the body. It also provides a service of love and caring for the living, those who place value in life and pay respect to the dignity of man.

The funeral is generally a basic religious rite just as the baptism and the marriage ceremony. It provides a time for friends, neighbors and associates to express group support and compassion for the bereaved.

The funeral director is professionally trained to provide a compassionate and understanding service during the difficult emotional experience of death.

We are at your service, whenever needed.

Educating Our Children: State Government's Most Important Job!

"I can think of no better gift we can give to Kentucky than equal access to a quality educational program for all our children."—
Grady Stumbo, March, 1983

Education consumes the largest percentage of our state tax dollars. State funding of our educational programs is a complex formula that demands that our legislators have an intimate knowledge of the educational needs of our young people.

Senator Benny Ray Bailey has an earned doctorate in education, the highest academic degree awarded in the American educational system. As a member of the Senate Budget Committee, Senator Bailey has demonstrated a unique ability to analyze the state educational budget and mold it to assure our area of equitable funding for our children's education. Let's look at a few facts:

1. In the two terms Senator Bailey has served in the legislature, average teacher salaries have increased by $5,303 per year;
2. Current operating expenses, which pays the cost of operating costs of our schools, has been increased 10% per year;
3. Capital Outlay, which provides money for our school building maintenance and equipment costs, has risen 5%;
4. Transportation funding, which provides for the cost of transporting our children to and from school, has increased by 10% per year;
5. Power Equalization, which provides funding for school districts from the state treasury to try and equalize funding available for school districts across Kentucky, has increased every year;
6. Gifted and Talented Programs. In the Senate Budget Committee, Senator Bailey was able to include money in the budget for a program for gifted and talented children in every school district in Kentucky;
7. Teacher's Retirement System, which provides pensions for our retired teachers, was increased by 1% each year in the 1980 Session; in addition, the 1982 Session provided for an increase of 1% for each year a teacher has been retired, not to exceed 5 years.

8. Average Daily Attendance. Kentucky state government allocates $24,000+ for each 27 children in average daily attendance in each school system. In our mountain counties, bad weather causes attendance to drop during the winter months, this in turn causes our mountain school systems to lose money. Senator Bailey amended the budget bill in the 1982 Session to allow each local superintendent to calculate average daily attendance on the 7 1/4 best months of pupil attendance. This will mean hundreds of thousands of additional dollars for our mountain school systems. The chairman of the Senate Budget Committee called Senator Bailey's amendment "the most important improvement in educational funding since the beginning of the minimum foundation program."

We have made great strides in educational programs in the recent past; there is still much left to be done. Teachers' salaries, as a minimum, should equal the salaries paid to teachers in the surrounding states; retired teachers should receive a more equitable increase in their pension payments; innovative programs for construction of new facilities must be instituted; monies for training in new, high technology instructional programs must be added and a major effort needs to be implemented to assure all Kentucky school districts of equal funding.

Education and state funding of educational programs is a complex issue. Senator Benny Ray Bailey understands the complexities of our educational programs and works in the state senate to assure our area of adequate funding for our children's education. That's why the educator's professional association, KEA has endorsed Benny Ray for re-election. That's why we need to keep him on the job.

Washington, Place To Push For Lower Gas Rates

An editorial in The Courier-Journal

IT'S NOT surprising that Laura Murrell, chairman of the Kentucky Public Service Commission, wants to go to the source of the trouble that has consumer gas bills soaring. The PSC, and the companies that retail the gas, take most of the bombardment from folks who may not realize how gas prices got where they are.

The source of the trouble is Washington, where Mrs. Murrell has taken a strong role on the national effort to see that the consumer's voice is heard among the welter of special-interest groups battling over decontrol of natural-gas prices. A state commission can do only a modest amount of good in Frankfort when gas prices are soaring at the wellhead. Not even the most consumer-oriented PSC can ask utilities to sell their product at prices that won't keep them in business.

So Mrs. Murrell, though named to the PSC as chairman only five months ago, worked her way quickly onto the natural-gas committee of the National Association of Regulatory Utility Commissions. Her aim is to give state regulatory commissions the power to judge whether high-priced contracts for wellhead gas have been negotiated prudently. A necessary corollary is that Congress would give the pipeline companies some legal relief from one-sided contracts negotiated during the gas panic period of the late 1970s.

That's the only way out of a situation in which, though gas is in surplus, some homeowners' gas bills have become larger than their mortgage payments. Many current contracts serve to keep cheap "old" gas in the ground, while "new" gas is sold to the consumer at exorbitant prices.

This situation stems from defects in, or abuses of, the Natural Gas Policy Act of 1978—and from contracts between gas producers and pipelines that, at least in hindsight, were foolish. The act was intended to keep the price lid on "old gas," most of it discovered at low cost many years ago, while allowing higher prices on "new" gas to encourage exploration.

Fine, except that many contracts, signed when gas was thought to be scarce, sound like anything but purchases made for resale on a competitive market—as indeed they weren't. Gas distributors and consumers alike are at the mercy of what comes through the pipeline. If there's no competition to get gas into the pipeline, there's none anywhere.

But the pipeline companies agreed to take new gas at high prices—or pay for it just the same. They also signed "escalator" clauses agreeing that prices on existing contracts would rise to the level of the highest negotiated with a contractor in the same gas field. State regulators were and still are required by federal law to let such increases be passed on automatically to consumers.

Mrs. Murrell's efforts on the committee have resulted in a bill that would let utilities escape 50 percent of the straitjacket of "take or pay" contracts that force them to buy higher priced gas when cheaper gas is available. As she explained in an article in Sunday's Courier-Journal, the bill also would allow purchasers to escape contracts if the price were so high that the gas couldn't be marketed. And some of it couldn't be, if state utility commissions weren't required to accept whatever is charged for pipeline gas.

With proposals from President Reagan and others for amending the natural gas price control law before Congress, Mrs. Murrell's intervention is timely. It assures that consumers, their voice often weak in such debates, will get a better hearing. Even the Reagan administration, which once sought to drop all regulation of gas, wants to partially free pipelines from the "take or pay" contracts and temporarily cap some prices. But the administration's keystone proposal is to take the lid off "old" gas prices as rapidly as possible.

Mrs. Murrell notes that this would mean a windfall for the owners of "old gas"—mostly the big oil companies. It also could create eventual shortages by eliminating price incentives for "new" gas. That position has strong support from a seemingly unlikely ally, the American Gas Association, which represents distributors and pipeline companies.

The gas association says the problem is how best to arrive at a free market. But the route, its president said recently, isn't by decontrolling gas that "has already been discovered and paid for." What the nation needs is a policy that will both protect consumers and provide incentives for continued discoveries of natural gas. Mrs. Murrell's initiative should help get it.

surprising a calling for one whom many remember as the "tough guy" of the Nixon administration. For, by his own account, it is tough work. "Sharing the suffering of others is often a painful experience," he wrote recently. "It requires a spiritual toughness to slug it out day after day in the sometimes thankless, often frustrating task of working with bruised and hurting people."

It is not a work to which he is driven by "civic duty, guilt complexes, noble motives, or lofty aspirations," he insists, but one which flows "naturally and necessarily" from his religious faith.

But, heated as this one may become, and as hot as others before it have been, there usually is a "comic relief" of some sort to ease the tension.

One such I recall, back in the days when the courthouse had a porch and a stone wall in front—all to accommodate us who weren't going any place in particular and had nothing to do when we got there. There was a lulu of a campaign going. The candidates were so thick they were canvassing each other, and on occasion partisans let their feelings run so high there was fear of bloodshed.

It was in such an atmosphere that I ran into Watt Hale, for either the first or second time in our long acquaintance.

"Have you seen, anywheres around," he wanted to know, "a Ree-publican?"

I told him I wasn't sure, but I didn't recall having seen one of that political leaning in the last hour. "What do you want with a Republican?" I asked.

"Well, sir," Watt explained, "I've found one—got him tied up, up there on the Uncle Hi corner—hope nobody turns him loose, but he's making an awful racket. If I can hold him till I find one more, and can make them both sign my papers, I can be a candidate, myself."

(Watt Hale, whose gentle humor has helped still some of my own tensions over the years, is now a patient in the Riverview Nursing Home here.)

(April 11, 1973)

Purchase of acreage for an athletic field at Allen Central high school and a move to change the site of proposed Phase II construction there were approved by the Floyd County Board of Education at its meeting here Saturday. A ready-made plant in Prestonsburg became available Friday when Irvin Industries, Inc. opened to sub-lease the long-vacant building in West Prestonsburg which formerly housed Kentucky Appalachian Industries. A Mud Creek man who was named in a warrant procured Tuesday by Deputy Sheriffs Dester Hamilton and Ralph Howell, charging him with shooting and wounding with intent to kill, retaliated later by swearing out warrants for the officers' arrest, accusing them of shooting into his trailer-home and into his auto. Born: to Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Brown, a daughter, Trudy Dawn, March 30 at Point Pleasant, W. Va.; to Mr. and Mrs. James R. Allen, of Prestonsburg, a daughter, Robyn Lynne, March 30 at Ashland; to Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Ray Horne, of Little Paint, a son, March 26 at Highlands Regional Medical Center; to Mr. and Mrs. Stuart E. Stephens, of the Goble-Roberts Addition, a son, Ray Eugene, April 6 at the Methodist Hospital, Pikeville. The Dana contracting firm of Akers & Akers is the low bidder on construction of Floyd county's new courthouse with a bid of $496,848. The work of conveying the Floyd County Water & Gas System to private management and, eventually, to private ownership is well under way, it was learned this week. The Jenny Wiley Escape Trail had its first hikers Sunday when nearly half a hundred Boy Scouts of Troop No. 27, Prestonsburg, broke the way for what is hoped will be a flood of hikers in the years to come. Born: to Mr. and Mrs. Byron Nunnery, of Prestonsburg, a daughter, Leigh Ann, March 28 at Prestonsburg General Hospital. There died: Mrs. Lula Harris, 83, of Prestonsburg, April 2 at a Louisville hospital; Mrs. Martha Cole Henson, 79, of Hi Hat, Thursday at Methodist Hospital, Pikeville; Joseph McCoy, 59, of Thomas, Sunday at Ironton, O.; William C. Johnson, 92, of Minnie, Monday at the McDowell Memorial Hospital; Mrs. Rebecca Hayes, 72, of Langley, Sunday at Prestonsburg General Hospital; Fred N. Caudill, 50, former Floyd miner, Monday at Warsaw, Ind.; Mrs. Levina Hunter, 63, of Ivel, last week at Pikeville.

Thirty Years Ago

(April 9, 1953)

Faced with need of doing something about a variety of city problems, among them sewage disposal, an expanded water system and street repairs, the Prestonsburg City Council voted unanimously Monday night to authorize a bond issue of $1,000,000. With no more than $400,000 available for the work to be done, and the lowest bids offered totalling $475,430.66, the Floyd fiscal court and Floyd County Board of Education in joint session Tuesday were forced to delay awarding of contracts on the proposed 23-classroom county high school building here. John E. Manies, 47, of Detroit, Mich., drowned in Dewey Lake early Wednesday morning when his auto dropped from the road leading to the Brandy Keg dock into approximately eight feet of water. Ashland Nelson, 21-year-old Blue River man, was accidentally killed Thursday by a blast from his shotgun while hunting on Buekeye Fork of Middle Creek. There died: Mrs. Bessie Greer Mullins, 37, of Printer, Tuesday morning when struck by a hit-run driver on the highway at Printer; W. I. Myers, 57, of Detroit, Mich., formerly of Drift, Monday at Detroit; Mrs. Mary Campbell, 91, of Prestonsburg, at the home of a step-daughter at Lancer, April 2; Mrs. Kate Wallen Hammonds, 39, of Water Gap, last Thursday at a Paintsville hospital; Dr. Gideon D. Ison, 72, formerly of Blackey, Sunday at Atlanta, Georgia.

Forty Years Ago

(April 8, 1943)

The Howard Motor Company, Ford dealer here, was destroyed by fire early Sunday morning. Johnson county authorities Tuesday expressed the belief that Cpl. Ennis Spradlin, 30, of Spradlin Branch, near here, whose body was found late Friday night beneath a railway trestle at Paintsville, died as the result of a fall. All temporary gasoline rations were discontinued as of March 31. Of the $13,000,000,000-goal for the Second War Loan which will be conducted throughout the nation, Floyd county's quota is $463,000. Willie Hicks, 21-year-old soldier, of Middle Creek, has been reported missing in action after the first big push on the Tunisian front. The fiscal court at its special session Tuesday added the services of a home demonstration agent to the county's farm and home program. Funeral rites for Miss Irma Mae Vanderpool, 19, of West Prestonsburg, who was a murder victim at Bisbee, Arizona, March 27, were conducted Sunday afternoon at West Prestonsburg. Born: to Mr. and Mrs. Billie Mayo, of Hite, a daughter; to Mr. and Mrs. Will Little, of Weeksbury, a son.

Fifty Years Ago

(April 7, 1933)

Deputy Constable Bev Scott was shot to death Sunday afternoon and on the preceding day Jack H. Hatfield was seriously wounded in the chest, both shootings taking place at Lackey within a radius of 75 yards. Robert Sammons was shot and wounded on Arkansas last week. Fiscal court, Tuesday, voted its annual appropriation of $1,750 in support of the Floyd County Health Department. Enactment of an ordinance to provide revenue for the city of Prestonsburg through legalized beer sales was made at a meeting of the city council Wednesday night. Major indictments by the grand jury this week include six murder charges. In competition here Friday evening, Miss Margaret Spradlin, Prestonsburg high school senior, won the Floyd county oratorical contest. Representative A. J. May, of Prestonsburg, last week, conferred with President Roosevelt, reopening the issue of locking and improving the Big Sandy River from Louisa to Elkhorn City. There died: Judge Jay A. Vinson, 60, Sunday, at his home at Wayland.

had "loved every minute" of his stay in Eastern Kentucky. "Most people in the city receive necessities from the store or business down the street, while many rural Americans do business for a good portion of their goods and services through the mail."

"That's what we want to get across—just how important this service is to these people," he said.

Filming began last week at the Lexington airport where mail, bound for either Betsy Layne or Jeffersonville, was shown being unloaded. From there, delivery was followed through Jeffersonville routes over the rolling hills of Montgomery county and, occasionally, through narrow creek beds where the film crew found the going difficult at best.

Filming in this county has attempted to give an accurate representation of this area. Scenes of customer relationships with Betsy Layne postal employees such as senior clerk Ganell Clark and carriers Angie Hall and Susan Porter, as well as Mrs. Hall were filmed in the modern post office while interviews with area professional people such as Betsy Layne dentist Brent Clark were recorded to show the service's effectiveness in serving a modern business community. Much of the crew's time, however, was spent with Mrs. Hall and mail carriers as they made deliveries to individuals, many elderly, who depend on the mail for social security checks, catalog merchandise, even life-sustaining medicines.

Deliveries were carried out across the swinging bridge at Tram and the one-lane Justell bridge with its rattling planks. "We don't want to depict this area as backward or disadvantaged," Sabo emphasized, "but we do want to show the difficulties which face postal service employees in any rural setting."

One mail delivery which was recorded on film was at the home of long-time Betsy Layne school official D. W. Howard. Howard, 82, always insisted on picking up his mail at the post office, according to Mrs. Hall, where his "stories" and good humor made him one of the employees' favorite customers. According to him, "there was always more sunshine at the post office than anywhere else." But a broken hip over the past year made it necessary for him to stick closer to home and allow his beloved newspapers, both dailies and weeklies, along with the rest of his mail, to be delivered. His situation is a common one in rural areas, and one which underlines the importance of the mail service. His comments to mail carrier Susan Porter in front of the camera turned out to be "prime" material for the documentary.

Mrs. Hall took the crew, which also includes technicians Don Telposky and Barbara Froman, to a coal tippie at Ivel and Harkins Mineral Associates at Betsy Layne. "We want to point out the importance of the coal industry to this area, too," Mrs. Hall explained, "and the vital role the postal service plays in serving the industry."

The filming has been fun, and particularly satisfying for Aileen Hall and the other employees of the Betsy Layne Post Office who welcome the opportunity to help give the credit they believe is due small rural post offices all over America.

As Mrs. Hall said, "The mail touches every life at some time, and rural Americans probably depend on it more than anyone."

Blackmore, vice-president for fuel supply, American Electric Power Corp., on cost benefits of coal preparation; Al Tuomisto, director of administrative and technical services for MAPCO, Inc., Tulsa, Okla., on the company's benefits and incentives program, and Marcus P. McGraw, attorney, on legal issues involved in surface-mining primacy in the state.

Lamonica, the administrator of the Mine Safety and Health Administration, told coal company officials that the agency has improved understanding between inspectors and mine operators.

"The joke was that two of the biggest lies told in the coalfields were the MSHA inspector saying, 'I'm here to help you,' and the coal operator saying 'I'm glad to see you,'" Lamonica said.

"We've been attempting to turn that around," he said.

Reorganization of the federal agency has put more emphasis on prevention of accidents and injuries and on attempts to communicate with operators about problems found in the mines, Lamonica said.

Before the reorganization, he said, "mine operators were disputing roughly 70 percent of the citations issued. That's been reduced to 9 percent" through conferences with mine operators.

Halvorsen, the National Coal Association's vice-president for congressional affairs, said coal operators, mine workers, transit firms and utilities are preparing their joint opposition to acid rain legislation expected during the current term of Congress.

"It (the legislation) would have such a severe impact on our members it is far and away the most important priority," he said.

The legislation, which would restrict the use of high-sulfur coal, failed during Congress' last session.

"We were lucky," Halvorsen said.

"We in essence have lost the media war on acid rain," he told coal company officials.

A Peabody Coal Co. study predicted that enactment of an acid-rain bill would cost utilities and their consumers a total of $100 billion and result in the loss of 170,000 mining jobs, Halvorsen said.

He said the causes and effects of acid rain have not been established, though "people really believe acid rain is the product of sulfur-dioxide emissions from coal-burning plants in Midwestern states."

Halvorsen attributed that to the efforts of "a coalition of Northeastern senators, environmentalists and the Canadian government, which is ganging up on the Midwestern states."

"Most of the claims are pretty outlandish," he said. "There is no evidence at all that acid rain is hurting crops and forest land."

Halvorsen said a Canadian study indicating damage to 48,000 lakes did not differentiate between lakes damaged by acid rain and "naturally acid lakes."

He also suggested that many problems in the Northeast were caused by pollution sources closer to home.

The National Coal Association favors legislation to speed up an acid-rain study being conducted by the federal Department of Energy, Environmental Protection Agency and National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration to be completed in 1987, and to set aside funds for "mitigation" of acid conditions in damaged lakes.

"We think this is the voice of reason," he said. "There is just no scientific evidence right now to point the finger at sulfur-dioxide emissions from coal-burning plants in the Midwest."

her and members of her family, the defense attorney showed her a photograph in which she seemed to be smiling. "Where's the threat, the coercion, the force that led you to this?" he asked.

Her testimony was interrupted by outbursts of sobbing and she fainted while leaving the witness chair. More than 30 tapes said to be "shockingly pornographic" were not played.

When Floyd Commonwealth's Attorney James R. Allen, who is leading the prosecution of Bevins, asked Mrs. Click if what appeared on the tapes and in the "stories" were true, she said, "No, sir. I'm willing to take a lie-detector test. He told me what to write and how to write it."

Other witnesses heard Monday:

—State troopers Arnold Weddington and James Stevens, who arrested Bevins at his Printer residence. Weddington said Bevins asked him, "Why don't you just shoot me? I'm 70 years old—it don't matter to me." Stevens testified Bevins otherwise appeared rational at the time of his arrest.

—Dr. John Gergen, Frankfort psychiatrist, who testified that interviews and tests showed the shootings were premeditated. Under cross-examination, however, he described the slayings as "a crime of passion." He added that Bevins has no mental disorders and described his claim that he remembered nothing of what happened between 6:30 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. of the day of the murders as intentionally self-serving, or psychological, or both.

—Charles May, of Allen, who told of Bevins firing shots into the bodies of his victims as they lay "quivering" on the floor.

Security in the Greenup courtroom was tightened Monday after Rick Darby, Prestonsburg radio station representative, and Liz Baldwin told Judge Atkinson of receiving what was interpreted as a threat to kill Bevins in the courtroom.

Aviation Program To Open at ECU

A new aviation program will get off the ground at Eastern Kentucky University this summer and next fall when students may enroll in a private pilot ground school course and engage in an integrated flight program.

The establishment of an aviation program in the College of Applied Arts and Technology was approved in January by the ECU Board of Regents. The program will be coordinated by Dr. Wilma J. Walker, assistant professor of geography and planning, who is affiliated with the Richmond Flying Club. She says the ground school course, (AVN 191), will be taught by a Federal Aviation Administration-approved instructor and the flight experience will be given by an airport fixed base operator which the University is contracting with at this time.

According to Dr. Joseph Schwendeman, dean for undergraduate studies, this course represents the initial step in the development of a certification program in aviation that could possibly lead to associate and baccalaureate degree programs. He says the response and interest shown by students will decide the future development of the program.

The ground school course offers four hours of undergraduate credit which students may use as an elective in any program. Satisfactory completion of this course will result in the passing of the FAA's private pilot written examination. The integrated flight training experience, consisting of 37 hours of flight, may be taken at the same time as the ground school course, but this is not required of the student. A student who completes the flight training segment will be issued a FAA private pilot's license (certificate).

Persons interested in registering for the aviation program may sign up in Room 409 of the Jones Building or contact Dr. Walker, telephone 622-1758 or 622-3047.

CHURCH CIRCLE MEETS

The Annie Allen Circle of the Irene Cole Memorial (First) Baptist Church met at the church, Monday evening, April 4. The meeting was opened by the president, Mrs. Sarah Laven, who gave a reading about the Easter season. It was decided that trays would be purchased for the church kitchen. The possibility of the donation of eyeglasses, to be sent to one of the Baptist missionaries, for people in Indonesia was discussed. Since the Mission Action project for the month of April is to help the patients at the local nursing homes, gifts for this purpose were brought to the meeting, and items of clothing are also to be donated.

The Mission Action project for May will be the sending of Sunday School literature to the Indians, in Mexico. The president appointed Mrs. Eva Collins, Patsy Evans, and Mrs. Julia Curtis on the committee to select new officers for the year, 1982-83.

Mrs. Pat Minns presented the program on "The Cooperative Program of Southern Baptists." Mrs. Lucy Regan gave the Missionary Prayer Calendar report. Refreshments were served to Mesdames Sarah Laven, Rebecca Rasnick, Eva Collins, Pat Minns, Patsy Evans, Lucy Regan and Lucy Ransdell. The next meeting will be Monday evening, May 2, at 7 o'clock, the location to be announced later.

Observe 62nd Anniversary

The Rev. and Mrs. Jessie Holbrook, formerly of this county, now of Ada, O., recently celebrated their 62nd wedding anniversary with a dinner held at the McGuffey Community Building. Approximately 200 family and guests were present. The Rev. Holbrook's 80th birthday, which was February 27, was also observed.

Two Badly Burned In Crash, Friday

Three members of an Indiana family remain hospitalized, two in serious condition, after suffering burns in the flaming wreck of their station wagon, Friday on Abbott Mountain, near here. Most seriously injured was five-year-old Nancy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Birchell Hicks, who was burned over most of her body, and Mrs. Hicks, who also suffered extensive burns. Both remain in Norton Burns Center, Louisville. Mr. Hicks, who was at first treated and released at Highlands Regional Medical Center, was readmitted to the hospital this week for treatment of burns. Another daughter, Angie, 13, received minor burns.

The wreck occurred as the Hicks family, native Floyd countians, moved back to this county from Ft. Wayne, Ind. They were, in fact, within a few miles of the home where they were to live at Bays Branch at the time of the accident. The Ford wagon in which they travelled was followed by a converted school bus-camper driven by Mr. Hicks' brother, Ricky, and loaded with much of the family's possessions. After topping Abbott Mountain and beginning the descent on the Little Paint side of the hill, the brakes failed on the bus. Ricky Hicks said he blinked his lights on and off as members of his family frantically waved to the occupants of the station wagon to speed up to avoid a collision.

Intending to ditch the bus if necessary or just let it slow down on the level stretch of road at the bottom of the hill, Ricky Hicks said, "I thought we were going to make it all right." It was then, however, that the station wagon reportedly was forced to brake for a wrecker which had pulled across the road to retrieve a Chevrolet Blazer which had run into the creek.

The careening bus, unable to slow down for the situation, struck the station wagon in the back, causing the fuel tank to explode and knocking the vehicle into a deep ditchline. The Hicks family was able to escape from the burning vehicle except for young Nancy, who had gone to sleep in the rear of the station wagon. While family members tried in vain to extract the little girl, by now enveloped in fire, from the rear of the vehicle, an Abbott Mountain resident, the Rev. Dewey Conley, was able to reach through the flames and pull her out through a front door.

Rev. Conley, who suffered burns to his hands, said "we did all we could to comfort the little girl with milk sponging until the ambulance arrived," and he rode with her in an ambulance to the emergency room at Highlands.

The bus driven by Ricky Hicks, travelled about a quarter-mile down the road after the impact where he ran it into a shallow ditch. Hicks, his wife and three children, of Liberty Mills, Ind. were unhurt.

The first convict labor law was passed in Virginia in 1642, according to "Labor Firsts in America," a publication of the U.S. Department of Labor.

CARD OF THANKS
The family of Columbus Conn wishes to express appreciation and thanks to the people who helped in any way, to the ministers for their comforting words and to the Hall Funeral Home for its kind and efficient service.

Grady Stumbo was born and reared in East Kentucky and he's proud of his Mountain heritage. The life story of Grady Stumbo, from his life as a small boy in the coal mining town of McDowell, Ky., to his graduation from medical school to chief executive officer of the largest, most complex state agency, is one that symbolizes the determination, dedication and commitment to service of all East Kentuckians.

Throughout his life, people have told Grady Stumbo what he cannot do. You can't go to medical school...Grady graduated at the top of his class; you can't build a non-profit health care clinic to serve the people of East Kentucky...today that clinic is recognized as the "model" program for all rural America; you can't manage the state's largest agency...today, most agree Grady was the best executive that department ever had. Now, Grady is running for Governor.

Unlike his opponents, Grady Stumbo doesn't have to search picture albums and research his family tree to find his East Kentucky Heritage. He's one of us. He doesn't have a million dollars to glamorize his image or his message. But, as a fellow East Kentuckian, you should recognize that Grady knows the special priorities and needs of East Kentucky and, among the major Democratic candidates, Grady Stumbo is uniquely qualified to speak to our people and our area. Grady Stumbo for Governor. It's a vote for you.

Official Blames Mismanagement For Shortage

Mismanagement of the textbook program has resulted in textbook shortages in some Floyd classrooms, a state Department of Education official charged last week. Enough money has been allocated to the school district over the last six years to furnish all students with a full set of current textbooks, he said.

The criticism was contained in an April 7 report by John B. Shoemaker, unit director in the textbook utilization division, to Superintendent E.P. Grigsby, Jr. It followed his inspection of the textbook supply at McDowell schools, undertaken in response to parents' complaints, March 30.

Shoemaker noted that state funds totalling $601,912 have been allocated to Floyd for textbooks over the past six years and that the school district allowed $12,854 in unused monies to revert to the state, most of it at the end of the 1980-'81 school year.

"Enough money has been allocated and spent to provide all Floyd county pupils with a full set of appropriate current-adoption textbooks if the textbook program had been properly managed," the state official said.

Instead, shortages exist in seven of the eight primary grades at McDowell and there is "a lot of evidence" that textbook problems there are system-wide, Shoemaker reported.

The state officer described as "a noble attempt to meet individual pupil needs" the practice here of allowing school principals to order texts on the basis of pupils' achievement-test scores. According to this practice an eighth-grade student with a fourth-grade reading ability, for example, is given a textbook that corresponds to his ability rather than one designed for his grade level.

Some parents have complained that the practice leads to shortages in the lower grades, however, and Shoemaker said it "has resulted in disarray."

A system of accounting for textbooks is required by law and is operating satisfactorily at the high school level here, but there is no accounting for what happens to elementary school textbooks once they are assigned to individual schools, Shoemaker said.

To correct the problem, a textbook inventory should be made in every school, with surpluses in one school being used to remedy deficiencies in another, he said. Then, if shortages still exist, his office might be able to help—perhaps by transferring surplus textbooks from another school district—he said.

In the meantime, the law requires "full accountability from the superintendent, principals, teachers, pupils, and parents," Shoemaker noted. In each textbook there must be an identifying number and the name of the pupil to whom the book is assigned and "each teacher must require that pupils' parents sign forms accepting responsibility for the textbooks assigned to them," he explained.

Noting that an "intolerable" number of McDowell High School students reported textbooks lost or stolen, Shoemaker warned that high school students here need to take more responsibility for the books assigned them. Money should be collected for lost or damaged books, he said.

Because of Floyd's current non-compliance with the law, the state textbook utilization office is obliged to check here soon after the start of the next school year to see that a "full and exacting" system of textbook accountability is in place and that all grade school students have a "full set of appropriate and current-adopted textbooks," he said.

Shoemaker noted that he was accompanied on his inspection of the McDowell schools by Supt. Grigsby, Floyd Textbook Administrator Gordon Moore, Supervisor Ulysses Horne, Principal Hugo Miller, and a committee of five parents. Mrs. Ann Bailey, one of two parents whose complaints prompted the inspection, appeared to be the spokesperson for the parent group, he said.

By HAROLD COOLEY

Most of us, by now, are familiar with the genital herpes epidemic that is sweeping the country. There is at present no known cure. This sexually transmitted virus now affects more than 20 million Americans. Science has come up with a drug that shortens the length of the first attack. Acyclovir has been approved by the Food and Drug Administration that relieves the discomforts from the itching, sometimes painful blisters that plague the genital area. It has been found to more substantially relieve the pain experienced by men than that of women. It also shortens the period during which the virus is active. Acyclovir is but a first step. Many physicians feel that the furor over herpes has been blown out of proportion.

With more and more public information about the disease, herpes, some of the previous stigma attached to this disease has faded. If you have questions about herpes or think you may even have it, don't hesitate to seek out the attention of a physician. At COOLEY APOTHECARY we can fill any prescription for you. We're a full service pharmacy, dedicated to the health of you and your family. We're located at #2 Town Center Bldg., where we're open, Mon.-Fri., 9-5:30; Sat., 9-4. 886-8166.

HANDY HINT:

Do not be ignorant about herpes. Seek out information from a qualified source.

Learning How To Play

Friendliness, like courtesy, makes the give and take of life more enjoyable. And, like courtesy, friendliness is learned by experience as well as by example. When a child begins walking is a good time to give him a start in learning the art of being friendly, according to Growing Child, the monthly child development newsletter.

At two years old, children are so busy exploring, so curious about people and things, that they have not yet become self-conscious about themselves. This is the ideal time for them to meet other children in a play situation.

Even though children don't usually play with other children until they are about three, two-year-olds are not too young to learn the fun of mutual exchange. Skills in "getting along" with others will increase with each exchange and self-confidence will grow with each new acquaintance made.

Friendliness is basically a love of other people, and enjoyment of their company, and a spontaneous desire to please them.

Beginning at two years, it is a good idea to take a toddler to some place where other children play two or three times a week. Toddlers get acquainted with other children in their own way and at their own rate. Don't push them, but quietly encourage them to respond to any overtures made.

Don't be overprotective, either! Toddlers must learn some give and take, and that includes holding on to a toy when another child snatches it. A little roughness and noise are not fatal. Toddlers should have the chance to learn to stand up for their rights!

These early play experiences help children learn to play side by side or in company with other children, and to share and exchange toys. At this age, communication is largely wordless. Most toddlers talk more to themselves than to others.

This early play behavior is known as "parallel play." Only after a long period of parallel play do young children begin to engage in cooperative play, which requires more language skill than most toddlers have at two years.

Celebrates Birthday

Willard Osborne, Jr., the son of Willard and Peggy Osborne, of Teaberry, celebrated his 13th birthday with his family, April 5, at his home.

A Fishman cake was served after dinner. He received many nice gifts. He attends John M. Stumbo School at Grethel. He is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Estill Blankenship, of Teaberry and Mr. and Mrs. Victor Osborne, of Beaver.

High School Senior Here Wins Jefferson Grant

Transylvania University has named Todd Johnson, a senior at Prestonsburg High School, as a Thomas Jefferson Scholar.

Thomas Jefferson Scholarships are recognized as being among the most valuable academic scholarships available in the nation. The scholarship is for four years and includes the remission of all tuition, fees, and room and board. The present value of each scholarship is in excess of $32,000.

In announcing Johnson's selection, Dr. David G. Brown, president of Transylvania University, noted the intense competition to be named a Thomas Jefferson Scholar and the criteria for selection.

"This year we had 179 aspirants from 14 states for the 25 scholarships that were available. Each of these applicants was judged on the basis of academic achievement, leadership ability, character, and uncommon promise as a citizen leader. To be among those named Thomas Jefferson Scholars is a distinct honor and a tribute to the individual," said Dr. Brown.

Johnson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Johnson, of Prestonsburg. He is a member of the National Honor Society and the Beta Club.

Medical Technology At UK To Celebrate Its 50th Anniversary

Medical technology is celebrating its 50th anniversary on the University of Kentucky Lexington campus April 29-30 at Lexington's Harley Hotel.

The weekend celebration is highlighted by a seminar featuring nationally and internationally recognized experts in the field, historical and photographic exhibits, tours, reunions and a dinner/dance.

Dr. John D. Baxter, of the University of California at San Francisco who is internationally recognized in the field of genetic engineering, will be the keynote speaker.

UK students who major in medical technology are enrolled in the UK College of Allied Health Professions and may receive a degree of bachelor of health sciences. The four-year program qualifies graduates for a variety of career opportunities in health service facilities, industry, research, education or administration.

Kentucky students enrolled in medical technology at UK include Linda Hicks, senior, of Route 3, Versailles, who is a graduate of Prestonsburg High School and Elizabethtown Community College.

RAY TURNER FOR STATE SENATOR

"THE HILLBILLIES' CANDIDATE"

Our children are our most valuable asset and the educators of this county play a major role in their lives. The educators are the classroom teachers and, indirectly, the administrators and the Board of Education. We work to provide food, clothing and shelter for our children, we protect them from harm, we love them. But, it is the classroom teacher who spends the day with your child. We entrust our children to teachers we value so little that we pay them a lowly average salary of approximately $14,000 per year!

Teachers are the creators of the future. They create lawyers, dentists, secretaries, welders, mechanics, electricians—the list is endless! Only the Legislature with enacted salary increases and money for classroom supplies can move our teachers into the ranks they deserve.

Help me to help our teachers by casting a vote for Ray Turner in the May primary. It will be a vote for your children. I will work closely with the teachers and school officials to insure that all our classrooms provide a healthy educational atmosphere.

Good News Report

By THOMAS W. PAUKEN
Director of ACTION

Frank McSweeney is a cross between the famous animal lover Dr. Doolittle and Santa Claus. He combines the talents and spirit of both in his unique volunteer activities that are known and hailed by children and adults alike throughout Union County, New Jersey. In his Dr. Doolittle role he lives with three dogs and two cats; Muffin, Sunshine and Midnight are the canine residents, while Shanghai, a 20-year-old Siamese crowned in her salad days as the All-American Glamour Cat, and Trickster, a seven-month-old calico wonder, are the feline borders. All at various times were headed for uncertain futures at the Humane Society where McSweeney rescued them and became their friend, teacher and mentor. He taught them all kinds of tricks, even though cats aren't supposed to perform feats like jumping through a hoop, riding a bike, shaking hands and rolling over. Of course, certain dogs are noted for their acting ability and McSweeney's trio are great clowns and applause-getters with the kids. And that's really what his four-footed quintet is all about—the kids.

By day, Frank McSweeney drives the kids to school; he's been a school bus driver for 23 years, and the children who ride with him are not soon to forget him because, for nearly 20 years he's been master-minding shows for them, featuring his animal friends. And in so doing, he is able to transform himself into a real Santa Claus. Admission to a McSweeney school performance is in the form of a toy or food or any gift a healthy child or adult would like to donate to bring happiness to someone less fortunate. The less fortunate on McSweeney's circuit include a great many organizations—children's hospitals, day care centers, juvenile detention homes, special medical institutes. Wherever there are those in need of cheer, children who at Christmas or Easter or anytime would be giftless; the elderly, the crippled, the ill, all are on Santa McSweeney's performance list. Three dogs and two cats steal every show, and then when the master of ceremonies passes out the toys and candy, and sometimes rabbits, at Easter, the eyes of the young glisten with joy.

There's something magical about Frank McSweeney. Whatever hat he's wearing, the kids love him, their parents are glad to have their children ride his bus, his animal friends are unusual companions who share his bed and board, and the people in all the towns and places to whom he offers his quiet and gentle ministry are grateful to him.

What inspired him to offer entertainment in this delightful way? "The kids gave me the idea," he says. "Kids respect animals and animals know it, and I suppose I really enjoy seeing people of all ages getting fun out of life. Heck, I'm a kid myself. You know what I do in my spare time? I go roller skating."

Something for the Kiddies

Get-well presents of tickets to the Oleika Shrine Circus were given to all children discharged from Highlands Regional Medical Center last week. "I've never been to a circus," said Whitney Henry, daughter of John and Deborah Henry, of Hager Hill. Her smile shows how she felt about receiving a ticket from Toni Briggs, cashier (right). The Medical Center has supported the efforts of the Shrine Circus because all proceeds go to the cause of helping children.

Taxing Unmined Minerals To Be Discussed At UK

The Appalachian Center at the University of Kentucky will sponsor a forum Friday at noon in Room 214 of the UK Student Center, focusing on the proposed tax on unmined minerals.

Speakers will be Joseph Childers, an attorney with the Kentucky Fair Tax Coalition, and Virginia Wilson, a doctoral candidate in management science at UK and author of "Economic Analysis of a Proposed Property Tax on Unmined Minerals in Kentucky," a study recently published by the Appalachian Center.

Wilson's study indicates that a property tax on unmined minerals could generate between $70 and $113 million in state revenues.

The Kentucky Fair Tax Coalition, coordinated by Joe Szakos, of Lovely, Martin county, has proposed a bill that would provide for the taxation of Kentucky's unmined mineral resources, arguing that the revenues from such a tax would provide needed financial support for schools and county governments in Eastern Kentucky.

Childers and Wilson will discuss the purpose of an unmined minerals tax, its possible effects, and ways such a tax could be implemented in Kentucky.

The forum is free and open to the public.

29 Acres Enrolled In Farm Program Signup in County

The signup period for the 1983 acreage reduction and payment-in-kind programs ended March 11 with 29 acres or 7 1/2% of the eligible feed grain base acreages in Floyd county enrolled.

Sharon Conley, county executive director, said 7 farms are enrolled in the acreage reduction program and 6 acres in the payment-in-kind program.

"Program enrollment and cropland acreage reductions are favorable and impressive," she said.

Faced with record-level surplus crops and weak demand, the U.S. Department of Agriculture offered a payment-in-kind program to further reduce 1983 crops of corn, from the regular acreage reduction program and bring supplies more in line with demand. The PIK provides farmers with the commodity normally grown on the acreage they withdraw from production as payment for participating.

For complying with the acreage reduction and paid land diversion programs, farmers will be eligible for program benefits such as land diversion payments, Commodity Credit Corporation loans and purchases, PIE and target price protection. Wheat and feed grain program participants will also be eligible for use of the grain reserve.

What Is Head Start

Project Head Start is a federally funded child development program serving 3 to 6 year old children from low-income families. Ten percent of the children may be from families whose income exceeds federal poverty guidelines. Another ten percent of the children, those with handicapping conditions, are provided with experiences to play and learn with non-handicapped children.

Head Start programs operate under annual grants from the Department for Health and Human Services/Administration for Children, Youth and Families. Program staff plan Head Start activities and services with the assistance of parents and area residents. They also work with other community agencies to insure that children and families receive needed services.

If you are interested in enrolling your child in the Rural Child Care Project Head Start Program, please contact: Floyd County Rural Child Care Project at 886-3548 (between hours 8:00 a.m.-3:30 p.m.)

The Rural Child Care Project is recruiting handicapped children to take part in the program.

The children are being enrolled to use the full range of Head Start education, health and other program services under a Congressional Mandate providing ten percent of Head Start enrollment nationwide for the handicapped.

The mixing of handicapped and non-handicapped children is expected to give all the children a valuable experience in learning to understand and respect differences among people.

For more information or to enroll a child, call (886-3548) 8:00-3:30 p.m. or come by the Rural Child Care Project Floyd County Office at Floyd County Emergency & Rescue Bldg. Prestonsburg, Ky.

Nature Trails...

By RUFUS REED

This column is especially addressed to those students who plan to study Kentucky's wild flowers to get college credits as offered by Pikeville College and some other schools. It is also for those who love to go to the woods in springtime to see the pretty smiling faces of the wild flowers, which come out to greet us with a glad, "Hello, spring is here again."

In the woodlands of Eastern Kentucky, we have the most beautiful wild flowers found anywhere, but we have to go early to see them. They come quickly and all too quickly are gone. Their free show ends about the middle of May. So you should begin your wild flower study in March and keep it up until May. April is the month of Kentucky's pretty spring flowers.

The spring woods is the garden of God in which he plants and sows and brings forth great beauty that expresses God's love of beauty.

The earliest of all wild flowers to bloom is hepatica, whose name pertains to the liver and is also called liverleaf. The leaves have three lobes and are hardy evergreen. By spring

Property Rights Said Basic National Strength

Homeownership and the rights of private property are vital to the strength of the nation, Linda M. Moore, president of the Big Sandy Board of Realtors, said this week.

She went on to explain that the concept of private property rights originated in Rome many centuries ago. Ancient Roman laws concerning property influenced English common law, which came to America with the British colonists. These colonists strongly supported the belief that buying, selling, and protecting property was an essential and inalienable right.

"Private Property Week, April 10 to 16, is a perfect opportunity for Americans to join together in recognition and celebration of their constitutionally-guaranteed rights to own private property," Moore said.

Private Property Week also serves as a reminder to each and every American of the importance and need for the preservation of individual property rights. Moore commented that while many laws are enacted to protect the public interest, many times these same laws conflict with and adversely affect the property rights of the individual.

"Just as the American colonists believed so long ago, the rights of individual citizens are important and must be considered to ensure an effective and free society," she added.

The Private Property Week observance is sponsored by the National Association of Realtors and its more than 600,000 members. Local communities across the country are participating in activities which celebrate and help preserve private property rights for every American. This year's theme, "The Strength of a Nation Lies in the Homes of Its People," is a quotation from President Abraham Lincoln. The National Association of Realtors is the nation's largest trade association.

EVENTS SCHEDULED AT 1ST PRESBYTERIAN

The Youth Club of the Presbyterian Church, a joint venture with the Drift church, will travel to Phelps, Saturday. Members are participating in an exchange with two mission churches there. The Phelps group visited here in the fall.

Sunday afternoon, April 17, the women of the church will meet at 3 p.m. The program, which will include a film, was rescheduled from earlier in the month.

The Men's Fellowship will meet Sunday evening at 5:30, for their monthly dinner and meeting. The speaker will be Allen Feith, an engineer from General Electric in Cincinnati, who will speak and show slides of a trip visiting Christians in Africa. Mr. Feith is in Eastern Kentucky to attend the board meeting of the Buckhorn Children's Center. The women's group will be invited to remain for Mr. Feith's presentation.

the leaves begin to lood wan and winter flawed.

Hepatica is a member of the Crowfoot family, and our kind has three rounded lobes. Find a patch of it, and you have a rare treasure trove. In the same bed there will be flowers of pink, purple, white, deep blue and light blue.

About ten days after you find hepatica in bloom, look for bloodroot which the Indians called "Red porcupoon." It has a large white flower, which lights up the drear march woods like a candle aflame. Bloodroot was the favorite flower of the Indians. Its roots bleed blood-red when cut which shows it to be a member of the poppy family. The Indiana used the red juice to paint everything—their faces, hands, their bows and arrows.

Bloodroot has pretty silky leaves with about nine lobes and are white underneath. It is one of nature's rare immortal plants whose roots never die but send up new plants every spring.

My father called bloodroot "cow tonic." Every spring he would go to the woods to get the roots which he would put in corn to feed the cows.

In looking for bloodroot, you will also see the delicate little pink white flower called "rue anemone." The poet, Bryant, called the anemones the "windflowers" as they tremble in every little wind. In April, also look for the trilliums. They are called our most beautiful and exotic of all our spring wildflowers. You'll find them along rocky ravines or brooks that foam over stones. They often cover several acres of ground, and don't forget to look for trailing arbutus. This historic flower is the state flower of Massachusetts and of Nova Scotia.

Honor School Official

Ray Brackett, assistant superintendent of Floyd County Schools and outgoing president of the Kentucky Association of School Business Officials, was honored by the latter organization last week at the Association's 23rd annual conference at Louisville.

Brackett was presented an engraved gavel and honored by resolutions that stated: "That special appreciation and recognition be given to Ray Brackett for his time and efficient leadership to the Kentucky Association of School Business Officials."

Dr. Jack Oatley, national director of the organization, presented Brackett with a plaque inscribed, "In appreciation for your able and effective leadership."

The major objective of the Kentucky Association of School Business Officials is "to establish high standards of professional ethics in all non-instructional areas of school organization, administration, and operation."

Mr. Robert Wood, finance officer of Bowling Green, succeeds Brackett as president.

Three Candidates To Appear, May 12

The three top contenders for the Democratic nomination for governor, Martha Layne Collins, Harvey Sloane and Grady Stumbo, will appear in a forum on KET May 12, part of "Campaign '83: The Primary" series, airing on KET on weeknights, beginning May 3 at 7:30 p.m.

During the major portion of the program, a panel of three journalists will ask each candidate four rounds of questions. After each round, candidates will be given the opportunity for rebutting statements made in that particular round. The program also will feature opening and closing statements from the candidates. Al Smith will host the special 90-minute program.

Campaign representatives for each candidate met with KET producers March 31 about the forum and adopted guidelines. These included that no new material be introduced during the closing statements and that visual materials not be permitted. KET will hold a drawing during the week prior to the broadcast to determine the sequence of each candidate and will announce the journalists to appear on the program. Other gubernatorial hopefuls and candidates in the remaining statewide races will be invited to appear on the series.

"We are happy to provide this statewide coverage for Kentuckians. Because of KET's unique ability to broadcast statewide, we feel this, and our legislative coverage, are two of the most important public affairs services we offer," said KET Programming Director Kirk Lehtomaa. "Campaign '83: The Primary" is a KET production.

Abortion Issue Explored On KET

One of the most difficult decisions a woman can make is whether or not to have an abortion. "Frontline," anchored by Jessica Savitch, examines this controversy on "Abortion Clinic" which airs Monday, April 18, at 8 p.m. on KET.

The film's deeply emotional impact gains its power by the portrayal of two pregnant women who experience abortions and two who decide to have their babies. "Abortion Clinic" was filmed in and around Chester, Pennsylvania, a small industrial town. The filmmakers spent several months with doctors and staff of a private abortion clinic in Chester where more than three thousand abortions were performed last year. They film a young woman in the counseling session that precedes abortion, and the operation itself.

Since abortion became legal in 1973, it has become a widely performed operation. The documentary explores the subject of abortion by focusing not only on the clinic but also on the activities of a "Right-to-Life" doctor who pickets the abortion clinic every Saturday.

"Frontline" is produced by KCTS Seattle; WGBH Boston; WNET New York; WPBT Miami, and WTVS Detroit.

GROUP CONTINUES PLANS

After working with the Prestonsburg Ministerial Association in sponsoring the World Day of Prayer, held at St. Theodore's Catholic Church, and the Holy Week services and luncheons at the Irene Cole Memorial (First) Baptist Church here, the Local Churchwomen, of which Mrs. Eleanor Robinson serves as president, met with her last Friday at 10:30 a.m., to discuss the impact of these meetings, and to continue the planning, in cooperation with the ministerial group of a food pantry and clothing center for the needy of this area.

Mrs. Robinson announced that she had talked with Mrs. Patsy Evans, director of the Archer Senior Citizens' Center, and others regarding the use of a room there for the storage of food for this purpose, and Mrs. Dacia Woods reported that she had discussed with Mrs. Eva Collins the possibility of using a building owned by her and her family for the storage of clothing. Both reports were that these places could be used. It was decided that shelves, a refrigerator, and a deepfreeze would be needed for the storage of food. Persons having any of these necessities to donate should call Mrs. Eleanor Robinson, at 886-2039. Food and clothing donations will be accepted as soon as the storage places are ready, about May 1.

The President expressed the hope that the ministers of this area would promote this cause through the churches which they serve.

The group decided to seek further information concerning the National Day of Prayer, proclaimed by President Reagan, to be held May 5.

Mrs. Robinson served doughnuts and coffee to Mesdames Fannie Runnels, Vera Ford, Lucy Regan, Mabel Brown, Eileen Burchett, Elma Jessen and Dacia Woods, representing the First United Methodist, Community United Methodist, St. Theodore's Catholic, Irene Cole Memorial (First) Baptist, and the First Presbyterian churches, here.

The next meeting will be held at the First Community United Methodist Church, Friday morning, May 20, at 10:30.

HRMC Lab Tour Offered

Highlands Regional Medical Center is celebrating National Medical Laboratory Week, April 10-16, with an open-house in the laboratory. The public is invited.

On Thursday, April 14, from 1 p.m.-4 p.m., a tour will be conducted of the lab, blood bank and microbiology area. Free blood typing and a memento of the tour will be offered.

The HRMC laboratory is staffed with six medical technologists. These health professionals have two- or four-year college degrees in medical technology. Their goal is timely, accurate test results to assist physicians in diagnoses for the best possible patient care.

The equipment and procedures used by Highlands medical technologists have changed greatly in the past several years. They now draw "micro samples" of blood from patients. Five drops of blood can be utilized to run seven tests whereas twenty times that amount would have been needed in the past. Computerization and state-of-the-art instruments have added to the efficiency and reliability of laboratory test results. The equipment and procedures will be explained during the tour April 14.

'Rothko Conspiracy' Tale of Legal Battle

The world of the rich and powerful, intertwined with the courtroom, is the setting for the factually based drama "The Rothko Conspiracy," airing Tuesday, May 3 at 10 p.m. on KET.

This "American Playhouse" presentation features international intrigue involving the world of art collectors and dealers, and the outraged daughter of a famous American painter seeking redress through litigation.

In February 1970, Mark Rothko committed suicide after setting up a foundation to care for his 798 "children"—his paintings. On the board were three friends who also served as executors of the Rothko will. The friends violated the will by selling the paintings. Rothko's wife, Mell, incensed at the handling of the estate, retained legal counsel. Days later, she was dead, leaving the daughter, Kate, to see that justice prevailed. Kate enlisted the aid of a determined New York State assistant attorney general to challenge the powerful nemesis of the Rothko estate and punish their sordid deeds.

"American Playhouse" is produced by KCET/Los Angeles.

A report on the Blazer and Cathedral quilt workshop was given by Mrs. Pitts and Mrs. Arietta Hall. Homemakers present were Shirley Hamilton, Christine Crisp, Arietta Hall, Glenna Evans, Flora Tackett, and Eileen Martin.

Tent Caterpillar Control

Budding trees are a welcome sight to homeowners who cheer such signs of spring. Unfortunately, the pleasure can turn to dismay if the trees are victims of Eastern tent caterpillars.

These insects are the most widespread early spring insect in the United States, says Dr. Doug Johnson, an Extension entomologist with the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture. They overwinter on trees, hatch and spin webs in limb crotches.

"Most people get really concerned when they see the large number of caterpillars," said Johnson who is headquartered at UK's Research and Education Center near Princeton.

While the insects usually don't kill a tree, they do make it unsightly by defoliating it. Johnson said a tree can be defoliated as many as three times before damage is severe. However, a tree that is stressed in other ways, such as one whose roots have been trimmed for water lines, is more susceptible to damage, according to the entomologist.

As the caterpillars increase in size, the web is expanded until it may reach the size of a football.

Dr. R.A. Scheibner, another UK entomologist, points out that tent caterpillar problems usually begin on wild cherry trees and often do not cause problems. However, if a tree is stripped bare before the caterpillars are feeding, "When caterpillars have become fully grown, they also wander down out of the trees and scatter in all directions seeking a niche to change to pupae and then to moths," explains Scheibner.

Once the caterpillars have migrated, it is too late to apply effective controls, according to the specialists. They recommend control steps when webs are small. Webs may be torn from trees when the caterpillars are congregated in them, such as at night or rainy or overcast days. The contents should be crushed and discarded.

If the webs are too high to reach, they may be sprayed with insecticides, such as Methoxychlor, Sevin, Diazinon or Malathion, according to directions for use.

Scheibner notes that in some years, tent caterpillars are an overwhelming problem, even when controls are applied at the right time. "The good news is that this coming season is not one of those years," reports the entomologist. "Egg mass surveys made by UK forest entomologists indicate that the count is down about 20 percent from last year." Scheibner says if controls are applied diligently this year, the population could be suppressed enough to keep the caterpillars from being a serious problem for the next couple of years.

TO THE PEOPLE OF FLOYD COUNTY:

In a recent news publication (Floyd County Times), there was a statement to the point of me owing approximately $20,000 to the county in excess fees. I would like to take this opportunity to explain.

I feel since I was a public official and you had put your trust and confidence in me, that I owe you an explanation. I have always been reluctant in answering articles in the news concerning me, but I feel you have the right concerning this matter.

In 1978, my first year in office as Sheriff of Floyd County, I signed a contract with the Army Corps of Engineers (this was a personal contract between me and them personally). I received approximately $33,000 from said contract before expenses were deducted. I had desires and wants as anyone else and worked long, hard hours to make extra money which I thought would be mine personally. Never was the county mentioned in the contract and was, I thought, exempt from the funds. This money did not come from fees or your real and tangible taxes.

When the State auditor came to do the annual audit, I made mention of this money voluntarily, though it was not received as fees. He said he would check with his supervisors to see if the money would be exempt from his audit and they advised him it would need to be included in their opinion, though there had never been a court case on it.

I feel at this time it is right for me to refund the money to the county because I believe in the Laws of the Land and the spiritual law of restitution to clear the conscience to have peace within.

Man is basically selfish and sinful and will try to get gain in any way possible to satisfy selfish desires. I am not exempt from this race. Unless a supernatural change comes into a person's life and gives him a new nature and birth from above (as happened to me June 3, 1979), there is no hope to overcome the selfish, sinful nature.

I humbly apologize if I have offended you in any way and ask your forgiveness. May God bless you.

Sincerely Yours,
Doug Lewis
Ex-Sheriff, Floyd County

What profit a man if he gain the whole world and lose his soul. (Mk. 8:36)

Surplus, Contraband Items Auction Set

An auction of contraband and surplus equipment will be held at the Game Farm, Frankfort, Monday, May 2, at 9:30 a.m. EDT.

Among the items to be sold to the highest bidders are rifles, shotguns, handguns, boats, motors, boat trailers, rods, reels, binoculars and miscellaneous equipment of a similar nature.

The sale, under the direction of the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, is to dispose of both surplus equipment and items declared contraband and confiscated by the courts from convicted game and fish law violators.

According to Kentucky law, contraband items can be only sold to Kentucky residents. There is no residency requirement for the purchase of surplus equipment. Most of the firearms, hunting, fishing and trapping equipment are contraband.

All bidders must register before the sale. Registration will begin at 9 a.m. Only cash or certified checks will be accepted, no guarantees will be given on any item and all sales will be final.

The Game Farm is located three miles west of Frankfort on U.S. 60.

Honored on Birthday

Emma Moore celebrated her 70th birthday, Feb. 26, and was given a surprise birthday dinner at the home of her daughter, Sharon Little, of Price. She received many gifts, but the biggest surprise was that all of her 10 children were present.

Those attending were Myrtle Garman, of Goshen, Indiana; Violet Webb, Betty Hall, and Bennie Moore, of Elkhart, Ind.; Phyllis and Ivan Green and Tammy, Tina, Sheila and David, of Edison, Tenn.; Jackie and Charles Moore, Uvon, Crissie, Carrie, and Emily, of Willard, Ohio; Larry and Brenda Moore and Bryan and Candy, of Hi Hat; Ruby and John Moore, Sharon and Bobby Little, Robbie, Ryan, and Tasha, all of Price.

Knott Mother, 17, Charged in Death Of Infant Daughter

The 17-year-old mother of a Knott County infant was arrested last Friday afternoon and charged with murder in the baby's death, authorities said.

Knott County Coroner Ken Gayheart said the mother's 23-year-old companion, Timothy Terry, of Montgomery Creek, was also charged with murder.

The mother, whose name was not released because she is a juvenile, and Terry were lodged in the Knott County jail. Bond had not been set, Gayheart said.

The baby, 14-month-old Rebecca May Thomas, died March 31 at a Hindman clinic.

Gayheart said a preliminary report from the state medical examiner's office showed the baby suffered "multiple acute recent and old bruises" from a blunt instrument, possibly a fist.

Top Contenders For Governor To Be On KET

The three top contenders for the Democratic nomination for governor, Martha Layne Collins, Harvey Sloane and Grady Stumbo, will appear in a forum on KET, May 12, part of "Campaign '83: The Primary" series, airing on KET weeknights, beginning May 3 at 7:30 p.m.

During the major portion of the program, a panel of three journalists will ask each candidate for rounds of questions. After each round, candidates will be given the opportunity for rebutting statements made in that particular round. The program also will feature opening and closing statements from the candidates. Al Smith will host the special 90-minute program.

Campaign representatives for each candidate met with KET producers March 31 about the forum and adopted guidelines. These included that no new material be introduced during the closing statements and that visual materials not be permitted. KET will hold a drawing during the week prior to the broadcast to determine the sequence of each candidate and will announce the journalists to appear on the program. Other gubernatorial hopefuls and candidates in the remaining statewide races will be invited to appear on the series.

"We are happy to provide this statewide coverage for Kentuckians. Because of KET's unique ability to broadcast statewide, we feel this, and our legislative coverage, are two of the most important public affairs services we offer," said KET Programming Director Kirk Lehtomaa. "Campaign '83: The Primary" is a KET production.

When Purchasing a Used Car...

Purchasing a car is one of the most significant expenses a family has. Shopping for an automobile can be exciting, but careful planning is crucial.

Whether you buy a used car from a dealer or a private owner, Blue Grass AAA offers these tips worth following:

- Before you make any agreement, make sure you know what you are getting. Although it is not required by law, some dealerships offer guarantees. If this applies to the vehicle you are buying, see what the limitations are and only accept a written warranty.
- Know the cost of the car including finance charges (if they apply), license, and taxes.

- Beware of places that offer weekly or monthly installments that seem too good to be true. Because loan interest accumulates, low payments may mean paying more over a longer period of time. And, you could end up with a car that is not worth what you paid.
- Check the "Blue Book" (a publication which will give you the current market value) price of the car. Blue Grass AAA has this information available through its Approved Auto Repair program. You do not have to be a mechanic to get some idea of what kind of condition a car is in. Tom

Woolery of Blue Grass AAA offers these suggestions:

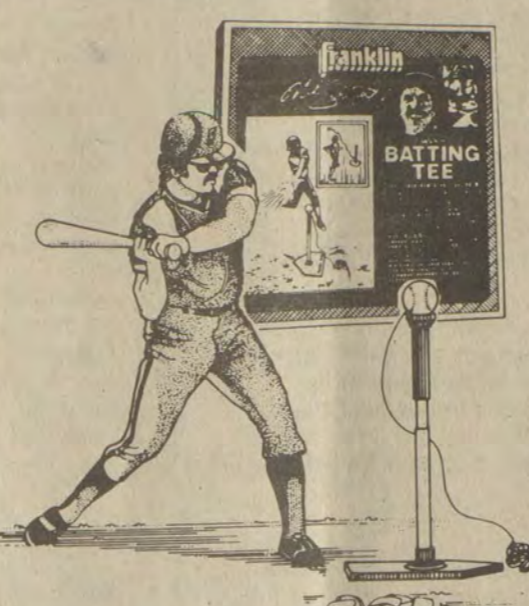

- With the owner's permission, lightly scrape the under portion of the car with a knife or screw driver. If rust is found, or if there is a fresh undercoating (something used to hide rust) look elsewhere.
- Lumps in a vinyl top may indicate that the substance used to hold it in place is no longer adhering. As a result, water will sometimes collect under the top causing rust.
- For signs of interior rust, check under the floor mats.
- If black smoke pours out of the tailpipe when the car is started, or if there is an oily feeling when you touch the inside of the tailpipe the car may be burning oil.

- If the vehicle has an automatic transmission, check the fluid level when the engine is warm. If it is low, there might be a leak. Additionally, if the fluid has a burning odor, or if it is brown in color, this might indicate transmission problems.
- If the car has power steering, check the fluid well and make sure it is filled to the appropriate level. If it is significantly low, there may be a leak.
- Check the tires for unusual wear. If they are worn on the sides, the car may be out of line. Also, look for depressions on the tire tread (sometimes known as "cupping") which may be an indication of suspension, shock absorber, or tire balancing problems.
- If you are buying a car with a standard shift, check for grinding sounds or difficulty when shifting. These might be signs of clutch or transmission problems.
- To get an idea about the condition of brakes, apply strong pressure with your foot to the pedal. If the brake goes immediately to the floor, then it is likely that work is needed. If the pedal sinks to the floor after you have applied about 30 seconds of pressure there may be a leak in the brake line; pressure has a tendency to force the fluid in the lines downward.
- Check wipers, window washer, lights, turn signals, heat, air conditioning, seat belts, radio, tape deck and anything that is part of the car's equipment (other than the engine).

Federal law requires that upon request from the prospective buyer the seller must furnish the name and phone number of the previous owner. If a private seller claims to have been the sole owner, request this in writing.

When you contact the previous owner, ask him what major problems he had with the car and why he sold it.

The law requires that a written statement must be issued by the seller that, to the best of his knowledge, the mileage reading is correct and the mileage odometer has not been tampered with.

Finally, never sign a contract until you have read it completely and understand the terms.

Pulitzer Prize-Winner To Be Creason Lecturer

Pulitzer Prize-winner Harrison E. Salisbury will present the sixth annual Joe Creason Lecture at 8 p.m. April 20 in the Recital Hall of the University of Kentucky Center for the Arts.

The lecture will be preceded by a 6 p.m. banquet of the UK School of Journalism alumni at the UK Alumni House on Rose Street. A reception will begin at 5 p.m.

An announcement of significance to the future of UK journalism education will be made at the dinner, according to Donald B. Towles, UK Journalism Alumni Association president.

Salisbury is a leading specialist on the Soviet Union and Communist China. He received the Pulitzer in 1955 for his dispatches from Moscow to the New York Times. His Book, "The 900 Days: The Siege of Leningrad," was on the New York Times bestseller list for six months. His "Black Night, White Snow: Russia's Revolutions 1905-1917" is recognized as the classic account of the Bolshevik Revolution.

Salisbury is the first western observer to have raised the question of conflict between Russia and China. On many occasions he has succeeded in gaining entry to countries long closed to the outer world, among them North Korea, Albania and North Vietnam, at the height of the Vietnam War.

He has written 18 books including two novels—"The Northern Palmyra Affair" and "The Gates of Hell."

The Joe Creason lecture is free and open to the public.

Eight journalists also will be inducted into the Kentucky Journalism Hall of Fame. They are John Mack Carter, J.B. Faulconer, A.B. Guthrie, Henry Ward, and, posthumously, Arthur Krock, Victor R. Portmann, Frank L. Stanley Sr. and Elmer G. Sulzer.

Downtown Development Conference Set April 14-16

Creating partnerships to stimulate downtown retail development will be the major theme of a two-and-a-half-day conference, April 14 through 16, at the Washington Hilton Hotel in Washington, D.C.

Jointly sponsored by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development and the International Council of Shopping Centers, the conference is designed to help mayors, other state and local officials, real estate developers, and lenders—key partners in downtown development—learn how to plan and execute successful urban projects.

"Recent years have seen a renewed emphasis on downtown retail development," said HUD Secretary Samuel R. Pierce, Jr., "and we have found that there is a common thread running through all successful development. The conference will help mayors understand the process of downtown retail revitalization and help explain why some projects work and others don't."

Model Moms:

Doing What Comes Naturally

By MADELEINE JACOBS
(Smithsonian News Service)

The time has come to set the record straight: There is no such thing as a "bad mother."

This, of course, will come as no surprise to millions of moms who have been telling their children that for years.

On the other hand, there is no such thing as a "good mother."

No, when it comes to motherdom, at least in the wild, scientists say mothers merely do what comes naturally.

In fact, what appears in the eyes of the human beholder to be maternal ministering, or lack of it, is something that is largely "pre-programmed" by Mother Nature, explains Dr. Devra G. Kleiman, head of the department of zoological research at the Smithsonian's National Zoological Park in Washington, D.C.

For the vast majority of animals, Kleiman points out, this program means doing absolutely nothing. Thousands and thousands of animal species never even see their mothers, much less get a good-night hug.

Still, throughout the animal kingdom there are creatures who know the "true" burdens of motherhood, those who put their hearts, heads and even, on occasion, their stomachs, into mothering. To all these model moms, and with special thanks to Smithsonian scientists who proposed their candidates for Mother of the Year, we dedicate this Mother's Day salute.

Not surprisingly, animals occupying the lowest rungs of the evolutionary ladder appear to have the least complex parenting plans. In most invertebrate species—animals without backbones—a mother's work is done when she lays her eggs. But there are some notable exceptions. A female whip scorpion carries her newly hatched babies in the brood chamber of her abdomen until the young go through several molts, and the wolf spider gives her one hundred youngsters a free ride on her back during their first week of life.

Some insect mothers even tutor their tots. In one species of cobweb spider, the young remain in the mother's tangled web for about a month after hatching, feeding on ants captured by mom. If they venture too close to a struggling ant, mamma warns them off by thrumming her forelegs on the web, rather like a musician strumming the strings of a violin. But as they grow larger and can help with the capture, mom changes her tune, summoning them with a different, sweeping motion of the forelegs.

Still other invertebrates take motherhood seriously. In at least one genus of snails, the female broods her eggs in a special pouch in her head; the young are released through a slit in the neck. Other snails really put their hearts into reproduction: Females of these species store the male's sperm in the pericardial sac prior to fertilization.

Maternal care is largely lacking in amphibians and reptiles, which lay eggs or even produce live young but don't have the guts to stay around for midnight feedings. One amphibian that does seem to stomach motherhood is a recently discovered Australian frog. As a prospective parent, the female has peculiar tastes: She actually swallows her eggs and they develop to maturity inside her stomach. Propelled by a motherly hiccup, young adults emerge from mom's mouth. No one can yet explain this miracle of motherhood but, needless to say, scientists are anxious to learn how this unorthodox diet defies digestion.

Moving on to reptiles, the most advanced form of motherhood occurs, somewhat surprisingly, among the crocodilians. The mother lays her eggs in a specially constructed nest of dirt, leaves, sticks and debris and keeps a watchful eye—and fearsome teeth trained for potential predators. Just before they hatch, the young emit high-pitched croaks that bring mamma croc scurrying to her nest. She begins tearing material off the top to free her young from the sun-baked dirt. Then, this 20-foot-long mom gingerly plucks on the tiny eight-inch-long babies with her powerful jaws and carries them singly or by pairs to the water where she will protect them from predators for a year or more.

Birds are the most devoted parents and this includes fathers, who are conspicuously absent from parental provisioning in most of the animal kingdom. But there are exceptions to this avian partnership. The male bowerbird of Australia and New Guinea, for instance, woos a wife by building an elaborate altar, on which he sings loudly, dramatically displaying his plumage. Alas, having fallen for this flight of fancy, the expectant mother finds herself left alone in a simple nest to brood over single parenthood. So much for romance.

Even when she has a helpmate, a feathered female may go to extraordinary lengths to protect her nest and young. If an intruder approaches the home of many ground-nesting mothers, such as killdeers (in the plover family), the mother will lead it away by feigning a broken wing. The ostensibly injured mom drags her wing on the ground, flops around and tries to fly, all the while moving away from the nest. As soon as the predator is well away from the nest, however, mom miraculously recovers and flies home.

But if you're looking for the true meaning of motherhood, your search must end with the mammals, that eclectic class of animals that includes, among other creatures, the duck-bill platypus and the spiny anteater (the only two mammals that lay eggs), as well as kangaroos, bats, giraffes, zebras, California sea lions, hippopotamuses, blue

Model Moms: Doing What Comes Naturally

whales, giant pandas, macaques, chimpanzees and, of course, humans.

The National Zoo's Kleiman, who has studied parental behavior in a veritable menagerie of animals, explains that mammal mothers are, simply put, "indispensable to their young."

"This is understandable," she says, "since the female mammal has internal gestation [with two exceptions] and nurses her developing offspring with the products of her own body. The mother-infant relationship is the first and, in most cases, the longest-lasting relationship that a mammal forms."

It's a relationship that may be exceedingly close, as in the case of marsupials like the kangaroo and opossum; their babies are nursed in built-in pouches and mom doesn't leave home without them. Other mobile moms include some species of bats that fly with their young attached until the babies are nearly as large as the mothers.

For sheer motherliness, it's hard to beat most monkeys. A macaque mother, for instance, is in constant contact with her infant for its first three months. The baby is born with the ability to cling to its mother's underbelly; immediately after birth, mother and child can be on the go with the entire troop.

Kleiman's personal favorite candidate for supermom is the giant panda, one of the world's rarest mammals and a creature she has studied both in its native China and at the National Zoo. The female giant panda, despite her 250-pound heft, is a tender and skillful mother. She has to be: A newborn panda cub weighs a scant four ounces. It is a fragile, completely helpless, pink-skinned baby totally dependent on its mother—who lavishes it with nonstop mothering. No matter that mom picks up her infant with her mouth to groom and to manipulate the baby for nursing—it works. In just a few weeks, baby is a miniature version of its cuddly black-and-white mother.

Yet, the measure of a "good" mother is not how much time she spends with her children, Kleiman insists. "In order to be 'motherly,'" she says, "some mothers literally have to ignore their young"—or risk exposing them to deadly situations.

Thus, mothers who appear to be malingerers turn out to be model moms when closely examined. For instance, the mother Dorcas gazelle, a small North African antelope, is rarely seen with her calf during its first few weeks, but this sleek, swift creature only seems to be a bad mamma. In truth, shortly after birth, the calf crouches down into the grass, nearly disappearing from view—and from potential predators. Mom returns periodically from her foraging to nurse the hidden infant. This behavior, by the way, is typical of many deer and gazelles including the common white-tailed deer.

Although these no-nonsense relationships may not sound much like "motherly love" to human ears, each is an example of successful mothering. What, if not success, is motherhood all about? Or could there be something more?

Says Kleiman, "Most mothers, including human mothers, do what they do because they're genetically 'pre-programmed' to respond specifically to the sound, sight and smell of their own offspring. And there's a real deep underlying responsiveness of mothers to those particular qualities. These mothers develop a special bond with their own. I don't know if you call that motherly 'love,' but it certainly is motherly."

"Of course," she adds, "in humans as in some other animals, successful mothers are not necessarily born. There is a lot of fine-tuning involved in this relationship, in learning to be a 'good' mother." And that, in the end, may be what motherhood is all about.

Herd Owners Urged To Protect Cattle

Calfood vaccination against brucellosis may become essential to exporting breeding animals from Kentucky, according to Agriculture Commissioner Alben W. Barkley, II.

Kentucky normally ships out about 1,250,000 head of cattle a year. But those export numbers could drop significantly without calfood vaccination, Barkley warned. He said that 20 states now will accept female breeding animals only if they have been vaccinated.

Fortunately, Barkley said, calfood vaccination is available free to Kentucky farmers. The state and federal governments will pay to have a veterinarian come to the farm to vaccinate against brucellosis in calves between four and ten months of age.

Barkley said that the number of farmers protecting their animals through vaccination has increased over the past several years, but the state is far from vaccinating all the animals it should.

He said that USDA officials especially recommend vaccinating heifer calves in herds within heavily infected areas or in herds which regularly sell replacement heifers to such areas.

"Many herd owners purchase their replacement cattle and increase the chance of buying infected or exposed animals. Buying vaccinated animals minimizes the risk."

"Vaccinated animals can be recognized by a metal tag and tattoo in the right ear," Barkley said.

One of the best things about living down home is the comfortable feeling of having relatives close by...up creek and down creek, everyone seems to have aunts, uncles or cousins. Everybody seems to know everybody else and waves "hello" in passing.

Many people have a double, triple or even longer name. Many are known simply by a nickname. Well I remember one of the cousins by the name of Emma Amy Imogene Roma Hazeline Riggsby! We all called her Hazel. Then on another side of the family one cousin was named Polly Mandy Leo Aprila Dot Skaggs—known as Perilla, I believe. Now, on my Ramey side of the family, there lives a more widely known cousin from Butcher Holler, Van Lear, by the name of Loretta Webb Lynn. The whole world knows her as Loretta.

Much good can be said for Loretta. She is never too high and mighty to take time to talk to old friends or listen to the happenings in our hills. She serves as an inspiration to many, which helps overcome the disappointments and hardships of the day-to-day living down home.

The mining camp, per se, no longer exists. Consolidated Coal Company is casually mentioned, while an Addington Brothers Coal Company sign is all but falling down as you enter the former mining site. Most of the homes have been remodeled with porches, patios and wrought iron, their exteriors painted in bright colors instead of the former dull colors typical of a boom town.

My coal miner husband, being a farmer at heart, enjoyed swapping yarns with Loretta's younger brother, Herman Webb, as Herman fed his Duroc and Hampshire hogs. They discussed the operations of the company that had previously mined the coal in Butcher Hollow. The dilapidated scenes of concrete piers and brick walls are all that remain of the processing plant and loading facility where coal was graded and loaded into railroad cars for shipment up North. Herman and Patsy Webb own and operate the local grocery store, Webb's Grocery.

Loretta's old home place is continually being photographed and people like to draw or paint the rustic old two-story house that sits high on a grassy bluff. Easter flowers and wild violets are in full bloom, around and about an old homemade sled, a horse-drawn disc narrow and old farm items. The old holly tree still stands and from it hangs an old rusty coal auger that was probably used by her father in the early days of coal mining.

People wander freely up the dirt road. It is now locked for the winter season, but will be open to the public soon with a counter sales of Loretta's records. These are to be seen now through the windows. I had the urge to take pictures of the people taking pictures, because everybody loves a heroine, especially when she is the beautiful Loretta. (I've stood in line in many states for many shows, sometimes right in the rain, just to speak to her and Crystal Gayle, just to let them know how much we love and respect them.) The old homestead seemed silent except for the songbirds around that seemed to echo the once vibrant and alive home of the late Mr. and Mrs. Melvin (Ted) Webb and their children. It was filled with the day-to-day living of the children—Melvin, Jr., Loretta, Herman, Jay Lee and younger ones, Peggy Sue, Betty Ruth, Donald Ray and Brenda. The whole world knows Brenda as Crystal Gayle, pop and country singer. In memory I could see their grandpa, Nathaniel Ramey, as he sat many years ago on the high front porch and rocked in a homemade rocking chair, not unlike my own grandpa Daniel Ramey as he spent his last years some miles away in Elliott county, often sitting in a homemade cane bottom chair. There he sat on Grandma Sparks' front porch rocking to and fro, listening and listening. No doubt as each old man rocked he relived his own memory of down home.

If you meet me and forget me, you have lost nothing, but if you meet God and forget him, you have lost everything. See you now.

Coal Information Available at MSU

Need information on coal mining, reclamation, mine safety, or anything else related to the coal industry? Help is available from the Coal Information Network of Kentucky (CINK).

"CINK was created to improve access to coal information," says Faye Belcher, assistant director of libraries at Morehead State University and membership chair of the new organization. "Our plans are to locate sources of information, including people who work in or have a knowledge of the industry, and make this available."

MSU was involved in the formation of CINK because, according to Ms. Belcher, "the Eastern Kentucky coal fields are in our service region and many of our students are from the area."

INVITES ALL THE PUBLIC

In February, 1982, Jimmy R. Snow, country music's own preacher, celebrated his 10th anniversary of hosting his own "Grand Ole Gospel Time" program every Friday night on the stage of Nashville's Grand Ole Opry. The program features major country music artists and top gospel artists, as well as the powerful singing and preaching of Snow. The program is carried by the Opry's own "WSW" radio and can be heard in 38 states.

In addition to the countless thousands who have responded through radio and television, in the 10 years Snow has been doing the live program at the Opry, he has seen more than 30,000 people in the Opry audience stand to accept Christ. His program has been termed, "The longest consecutive-running revival in one place on record".

The son of legendary country music artist Hank Snow, Jimmy Snow gave up a promising career in show business and an RCA Victor recording contract when God called him into the ministry 24 years ago. Jimmy Snow also pastored Nashville's most famous church, Evangel Temple. Evangel Temple is the only church to be featured in the Nashville Tour Map to the Homes of the Stars, and appropriately so, for through the ministry of Jimmy Snow such stars as Johnny Cash, Connie Smith, Kris Kristofferson, Dottie West, Billy Walker, Dolly Parton, Jeannie C. Riley, and Barbara Fairchild, as well as many top musicians and such songwriters as Dallas Frazier, Wayne Walker and Eddie Miller, have gone to the altar at Evangel Temple to accept Christ or reconfirm their commitment to Christ. And many of these who have been touched by Jimmy Snow's ministry have gone on to reach thousands of others for Christ through their lives and through their music.

MAY 24TH DEMOCRATIC PRIMARY

"THE PEOPLE'S CLERK"

POL. ADV. PD. FOR BY THE COMMITTEE TO ELECT THOMAS D. LAFFERTY, JR., FLOYD COUNTY COURT CLERK; GARY A. MAY, TREASURER, 11-pd.

© By Lillian Bono *****
Week of April 17-23

ARIES
(March 21-April 20) Love conquers all if you are willing to compromise. This could be a winning time in the romance department. Be on the safe side of a situation, play it cool.

TAURUS
(April 21-May 21) Prestige and money light up your life. Your job environment may be quite dull but offers the ability to manipulate and purchase items you enjoy. Luxury has its price.

GEMINI
(May 22-June 21) A social bash will usher in a new social season altering another trend in your life. People met at this time could change your way of living.

CANCER
(June 22-July 23) A burdensome person could exit from your life now that you've taken a firm stand on an issue concerning you both. Take a short trip to "nowhere" to relax.

LEO
(July 24-Aug. 23) A job project could create an exciting financial boom that involves you. Be prudent and approach the situation quietly. Don't get in a spendthrift mood yet.

VIRGO
(Aug. 24-Sept. 23) Weigh all angles of a decision you'll have to make. Love puts rosy-colored glasses on your romantic eyes and blinds you to the true picture.

LIBRA
(Sept. 24-Oct. 23) Innovative methods could become a habit and you may not want to return to your old methods. Make sure that your new life is a permanent one for your own good.

SCORPIO
(Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Your high sensitivity may be tested. People are looking to you for answers that you may be reluctant to answer. Be sure you are candid when you do.

SAGITTARIUS
(Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You may receive a marriage proposal from someone you hardly know. For those neglected, this is a good time for reconciliation.

CAPRICORN
(Dec. 22-Jan. 20) Dreams could come true sooner than anticipated. You'll have lots to think about this week, especially concerning love and romance.

AQUARIUS
(Jan. 21-Feb. 19) A sudden upset at home could hurt your work schedule and force a change in weekend plans. You need a fun-filled fling to get over your ruffled feelings!

PISCES
(Feb. 20-March 20) Make compromises when it comes to a loved one who may have erred. Further ambitious goals and don't look back if you wish to get ahead in your profession.

Residential Contractors
Installers of Energy Conservation Measures
Suppliers of Energy Conservation Measures
Financial/Lending Institutions

In 1978, Congress enacted the National Energy Conservation Policy Act, a part of which is a program called the Residential Conservation Service or RCS. This program, which will be administered by the Kentucky Public Service Commission through Kentucky's major utility companies, is designed to save energy in existing homes.

- The program includes:
1. Assessment of energy usage and efficiency in residences.
  2. Recommendations on how energy efficiency can be improved.
  3. Assistance to the homeowner in getting the measures installed and/or financed.

The RCS program has strict guidelines regarding materials and measures supplied to a customer, or installed for a homeowner. Institutions who will lend money for this program will also have to meet certain guidelines. A "MASTER RECORD" is to be created listing all installers, suppliers, and financiers of energy conservation measures who are approved by and agree to abide by the rules set forth for this RCS program by the Kentucky Public Service Commission and the U.S. Department of Energy.

ONLY businesses on the Master Record will be allowed to participate in the RCS program.

PBS in the spotlight

Dame Judith Anderson is featured as the nurse in the PBS adaptation of the Greek tragedy "Medea," airing Wednesday, April 20.

A powerful 'Medea'

Dame Judith Anderson, as the nurse, and Zoe Caldwell, as Medea, co-star in the television adaptation of Euripides' tragedy "Medea," airing Wednesday, April 20 on PBS as part of the "Kennedy Center Tonight" series. (Please check local listings for time.)

"Medea" depicts the ultimate revenge of a passionate woman, scorned by her ambitious husband bent on marrying his way to new power and riches. Her love for her husband turns to hatred and horrible revenge; their two children becoming the victims of her rage.

When Euripides created the original "Medea" in 431 B.C., it was the first time in Greek theater that the true feelings and emotions of a woman were portrayed. Medea had magical powers, yet she spoke for women whose passions could boil into horrendous rage when tormented and rendered powerless by the men they have loved.

The play is a dynamic example of interest in the heart of a woman, a subject generally ignored by Athenian theater of that day.

Mark Cullingham directed; Mary Rawson is producer and Dale Bell is executive producer with Barry Weissler.

T.G. Sheppard has been nominated by the American Video Awards for Best Country Video Performance. Six awards in pop, country and rock were given during the taping of the first annual AVA. The ceremonies in Beverly Hills, Calif. were taped for future TV syndication.

Several days preceding the Oak Ridge Boys' appearance in Bowling Green, Ky., WLBJ radio ran a special promotion where callers could win tickets to the concert. The phone company reported that the station received 12,431 calls in 10 seconds, jamming all circuits.

Larry Gatlin & the Gatlin Brothers Band will head back to Las Vegas for their upcoming headlining engagement at the Riviera Hotel April 21-27. Roger Miller is also on the bill.

Howard and David Bellamy are headed back to the Los Angeles area for a round of concert dates including the Palomino Club and a taping of "Solid Gold" the same day.

The Oak Ridge Boys will headline their debut concert appearance at the MGM Grand Hotel in Las Vegas. The comedy team of Williams & Ree will open the shows.

A flood of inquiries have been received at the management office of David Frizzell and Sheily West regarding their status as a duo. Manager Jack Brumley explained that the act will continue to record and perform together as a duo, although each is also pursuing a separate career via solo records and individual concert dates.

To date, the pair have cut three duo albums and each has had one solo album on the market. This spring, Frizzell's second one-man album will be released. Plans call for the award-winning duo to return to the studio with producer Snuff Garrett in May to cut yet another LP together. Brumley estimates that 65 percent of their concert dates are as a duo.

Questions Pile Up For School People

If self-knowledge is good for the spirit, the Floyd school district may be on the verge of a revival.

Since last fall, teachers and administrators have wrestled with a battery of questions—covering, as one administrator put it, "every facet of the school system"—as part of a new process of accreditation.

Questions like what courses are being offered and why; whether there are enough textbooks to go around; what the schools are teaching about everything from math to morals; how much the local taxpayer is being pressed to support the school system; and how much say the community has in what is taught and how funds are spent.

Teachers and administrators have had to answer, and document their answers to, questions ranging from whether they are providing six hours of instruction a day, 175 days a year, to how they see their overall educational goals.

Other questions put to Floyd educators include:

—What exactly is being done to see that pupils are well instructed in "basic skills" and that they are competent before they are promoted? What is being done for those who fall behind? Are handicapped students sought out and given proper instruction? Do students learn enough about alcohol and drug abuse? Do they know how to behave on the school bus? Are the buses properly maintained?

—Does the school district as a whole and do the individual schools have "community relations committees" or other channels for community "feedback and evaluation"? Are the school buildings adequate? Are they safe? Is there a written policy to ensure that pupils and their parents get due process if they have a grievance against the system?

—What is being done to reduce the high school dropout rate? Are the teachers certified? Are they teaching subjects for which they are trained? Is the curriculum free of sex stereotyping or bias? Does the vocational education program usually lead to a job for graduates? Do potential employers have a say in what skills are taught? Is there a program for "gifted and talented" pupils?

—What is the pupil-teacher ratio? Does any class exceed 35 pupils? Do students have handbooks defining their rights and responsibilities? Do they have access to library books, periodicals, newspapers, films, filmstrips and tapes? Do they learn about good nutrition from eating in the school cafeteria?

Known as a "self-study," the lengthy process ended here last week when boxes of documents were sent to state education authorities in Frankfort for analysis.

In one sense, noted Gordon Cook, a state Department of Education supervisor, the self-study is only a beginning—the first phase of a three-phase program which was tested in 15 school districts last year, was extended to 43 districts, including Floyd, this year, and will eventually include all Kentucky's 181 school districts.

In the next phase, teams of state inspectors will visit the county to "validate" the self-study—that is, to make sure administrators and teachers are actually doing what they say they're doing.

A report will be written, with any areas noted where the school district is not in compliance with state policy, and recommendations will be made. The local board may negotiate or appeal the state inspectors' findings but board and state officials must finally agree on a report and on a schedule for correcting areas of non-compliance.

The state teams will be here next week, and a final report is expected to be presented to the school board in June or July. To correct deficiencies, the school district will have from 30 days to four years, depending on the fault to be corrected, when the accreditation process will begin again.

"Only then will we know if the district is doing its job or not," said Cook. And in some areas—such as school buildings—the district may simply be unable to comply with the state rules, he conceded.

Accreditation is a "cooperative effort" between state and local authorities, the state official wanted to stress. The point of the exercise, he said, is not to find fault but to help school districts comply with uniform state standards.

And while Assistant Superintendent Ron Hager acknowledged "some apprehension" on the part of local school officials, he said administrators and teachers here generally welcomed the accreditation process as "a guide to what areas we need to work in."

Recommended by a "blue ribbon" panel of experts commissioned several years ago to look into all levels of education in Kentucky, the self-study listed 14 standards for measuring the state's schools and school districts—conformity to state and federal law, overall philosophy, community relations, curriculum, provision for the handicapped, vocational education, "gifted and talented" programs, staffing, pupil conduct, "co-curricular" activities, counseling and other services, plant, transportation and food services, and budget.

Within each category were listed specific objectives, designed to flesh out the different norms. Called "compliance indicators," there were as many as 44 distinct objectives under the heading "curriculum," for example.

The heavy demands this country has traditionally made of its school systems are reflected in both the state standards and the goals proclaimed earlier this year by the Floyd school board. According to a statement of "philosophy and objectives" adopted by the board Feb. 2, the schools "should provide for the total child—mentally, morally, socially, spiritually and physically."

A qualifying phrase in the document reflects the inevitable clash, however, between educational ideal and economic fact. Students here are assured the best education obtainable, say the board members, "commensurate with the resources of the district."

Facing the prickly task of prescribing, in a pluralistic society, what moral education students should receive, state and local planners have generally settled for broad, traditional formulas including, in the Floyd board's statement, "respect for the flag, for authority, for law, and the rights of others... a sense of values for such things as public property and the environment (and)... the development of student responsibility, dependability and citizenship."

An even touchier subject rates no mention. Of 171 compliance indicators listed by the state, none asks whether students are receiving any sex education.

Perhaps the best thing to be expected from the accreditation process has already been achieved, in that teachers and administrators have had to reflect on what they are doing, Asst. Supt. Hager said last week.

Gordon Cook, who is providing liaison between the state and local officials in the accreditation process, agrees. "The biggest backers of this program are those who are involved in it," he said. "I've had teachers tell me they're glad to know at last just what they should be teaching. It forces you to look at the system."

It's PCC's Turn In Blood Drive

Monday, April 18, Prestonsburg Community College is sponsoring a blood drive from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. in Room 216 of the Pike Building. Students and faculty are being reminded that it's PCC's chance to help save lives.

Blood drives are the major source of blood supplied to patients throughout the region by the Central Kentucky Blood Center. CKBC holds two or three drives a day in the 43-county service area. All mobiles must meet their goal to help the Center provide its 39 hospitals with enough blood for all patients.

The need today is great. About 160 pints of blood are needed every day—seven days a week. It's an opportunity to do a real service and all it costs is a few minutes of time.

Phi Beta Lambda challenges all students to accept a position of adult responsibility. For more information call Mazola Salmons at 886-3863.

The first collective bargaining agreement in the U.S. was obtained in 1795 by Philadelphia printers, according to "Labor Firsts in America," a publication of the U.S. Department of Labor.

Named Mt. Dew Festival Queen

"East Kentucky Needs a Governor Who Relates To Our Area."

Kentucky's budget for the next two years is in excess of $5 billion dollars. That's $1400 for every man, woman and child in Kentucky. Many of our East Kentucky people feel that our area doesn't share equitably in the distribution of state funds and many feel that the reason we do not is that there hasn't been a Governor of Kentucky with East Kentucky roots in the last 25 years. We have an opportunity this time to change this.

Grady Stumbo is a native born East Kentucky man and proud of it. From his boyhood in a small mining camp to chief executive officer of state government's largest, most complex agency, Grady Stumbo has always been an advocate for our area and our people. Each election year, candidates trek up to the Mountains and tell us of their interest in our area, then leave the area and go back to their homes. Grady Stumbo doesn't have to leave East Kentucky to go home; East Kentucky is home.

East Kentucky has special people with special needs. Our people want and deserve jobs at wages sufficient to allow them to provide for their families. Of all the major candidates, Grady Stumbo speaks to the need for responsible development of our mining and timber resources, development of our agriculture economy and re-vitalization of our construction and manufacturing industries. That's why Kentucky's working people are supporting Grady Stumbo for Governor. Vote for Grady Stumbo—it's a vote for progress for East Kentucky.

4 Arrested in Knox For Illegal Mining

FRANKFORT, KY.—Agents of the special investigative unit of the state Natural Resources and Environmental Protection Cabinet recently raided an illegal mining site near Parmon in Knox county, arresting four men at the site.

Arrested at a deep mine site and charged with surface mining without a permit were Beverly Helton, of Barbourville, Lowell Creighton, of Hydrick, Carl Collins, of Girdler and James Marion, Jr., of Barbourville. The men were lodged at the Knox county jail pending arraignment.

Investigators said more arrests are expected in connection with the site.

FRIDAY MORNING'S FIRE at Martin which burned a large part of the Beaver Valley Lumber Company, also knocked out power lines and phone service to the town for several hours. Fire departments from all parts of the county combined to restrict the flames from spreading to nearby homes and businesses.

School Board Seeks Ways To Cut Budget

School districts should plan for a three percent budget surplus next year as a hedge against possible funding cuts, Superintendent of Public Instruction Raymond Barber has notified superintendents across the state.

In Floyd county, that means $145,984 will need to be trimmed from next year's estimated $4.2 million budget, Treasurer Ray Brackett told a meeting of the Board of Education Wednesday. The sum is equal to the salaries of 8.3 teachers, he said.

The board went into executive session to consider where cuts might be made in the payroll—by law, non-tenured teachers are rehired automatically next year unless they are warned by April 30 that they may not have their jobs back, and tenured teachers are rehired at full salary unless they are told by May 15 that they may be demoted to a lower-paying position—but no cuts or transfers were announced. Superintendent E.P. Grigsby, Jr. said later the cuts would be discussed again at the next meeting of the board.

In recommending that the board go into closed session, Grigsby stressed that "deletions and demotions" were to be considered "on an individual basis... on a personal basis"—apparently to justify the closed session under the state open-meetings law.

(A group of parents last year took issue with the board for discussing in private how budget cuts were to be made. Assistant Attorney-General Carl Miller later opined the issue should have been discussed publicly except where "qualifications and personalities" of individual employees were to be discussed.)

The board voted to adopt science and health texts recommended by teachers, although Asst. Supt. Ron Hager warned there would not be enough funds to buy all the books. While the state will allot the school district $11.75 per student in grade school next year, the recommended science and health texts for sixth grade, for example, would cost $18.30, he explained.

Hager noted that teacher committees had voted on the choice of texts and that copies of the proposed texts had been on display for public review. Of six citizens who made written comments on the selection, four deplored the lack of sex education at the grade school level, three noted that the primary texts offered no instruction in drug abuse, one praised the materials as "very realistic," one thought the choice "pretty good" in view of the county's cultural diversity, and one urged that textbooks be purchased earlier.

Hired were:

Georgia Lewis, teacher at Harold Elementary, and Carolyn Traum, teacher at Clark; Roy Johnson and Janice Newman, certified substitute teachers; John L. Salisbury and Pamela Stumbo, emergency substitute teachers; Nina Springer, janitor at McDowell; and Klinon Newsome, William T. Harris, and Danette Fannin, substitute drivers.

MAYTOWN HOMEMAKERS

The Maytown Homemakers met for their monthly meeting, April 7, at the home of Susan Goins on the Henry's Branch Road. Helen Boyd, club president, presided at the meeting which was opened with the devotional by Alda Gibson. Mrs. Frances Pitts, county home economist, announced there will be a workshop on framing and matting of pictures, April 29, at the Floyd County Library.

The following officers were elected for the coming year:

President, Helen Boyd; Vice-President, Martha Risner; Secretary and Club Reporter, Susan Goins; Treasurer, Marge Sammons; Telephone, Alice Hayes; Devotional, Alda Gibson, and Recreation, Tribly May.

The lesson, "Spring and Summer Fashion, 1983," was given by Susan Goins.

A buffet was served to Mesdames Francis Pitts, Helen Boyd, Martha Risner, Alda Gibson, Marge Sammons. The May meeting will be Thursday, May 5, at 7 o'clock at the home of Marge Sammons.

Mrs. Annie Stumbo, 98, Is Victim at Martin

Mrs. Annie Elliott Stumbo, who figured in the founding at Martin 60 years ago of the first hospital in Floyd county, died Saturday at Our Lady of the Way Hospital, in Martin, at the age of 98.

After this first hospital, operated by her, her husband, the late Dr. W.L. (Walk) Stumbo, and his brother, the late Dr. Ed Stumbo, burned in the early 1920s, they built in another location at Martin the Beaver Valley Hospital and, later, the Stumbo Memorial Hospital at Lackey. Her early hospital association pre-dated the coming of good roads to the area, and patients were taken to the hospital by wagon or train.

Her husband died Nov. 17, 1941, only a week after he had been elected sheriff, and she was appointed by Judge Edward P. Hill to fill the vacancy, serving as Floyd county's first woman sheriff. She later owned and operated with her brother, M.B. Elliott, the Stumbo Supply in Whitesburg, returning to Martin after its sale a few years ago.

Mrs. Stumbo was born Dec. 20, 1884 at Beaver, on Mud Creek, the daughter of John Wesley and Judy Martin Elliott. She was a member of the Martin United Methodist Church, a member of the board of trustees of Elliott Chapel, for 40 years a member of the Order of Eastern Star and a former member of the Lackey-Garrett-Wayland Woman's Club.

She is survived by her brother, M.B. Elliott, of Orlando, Fla., and one sister, Mrs. Maude Crockett, Jacksonville, Florida.

Her funeral was conducted Monday at 11 a.m., from the chapel of the Hall Funeral Home by the Revs. Edward Parton and Keith Krumm, and burial was made in the Stumbo cemetery at Eastern.

Annexation Not On May Ballot

Opinions differ as to when the questions of annexing Katy Friend and a section at Lancer should be put to a vote. But the issue will apparently be decided by the county court clerk, who is responsible for having the ballots printed, Prestonsburg City Manager David Evans told members of the city council Monday.

According to state law, annexation proposals must be put on the ballot "at the next regular election" if a majority of affected property owners request it. A majority of the affected landowners at Lancer and on Katy Friend did request a referendum on the issue.

That means, according to city officials, that those proposals should come up for a vote in next month's primary. Others have argued the next regular election means the general election in November. City Manager Evans said he is awaiting an attorney-general's opinion on the matter.

But County Clerk Thomas Lafferty, Jr. will apparently have the last word on the subject. The May ballots have already been prepared for printing, he said—and the annexation proposals have not been included.

That may come as welcome news to developers of the proposed Prestonsburg Inn, who sought unsuccessfully two weeks ago to have Prestonsburg postpone annexation of Katy Friend until after their motel was built—or at least until November.

In not scheduling the annexation questions this May, Lafferty said he was following the law as it was interpreted for him by Brady Miracle, executive-director of the state Board of Elections.

"I read 'next regular election' to mean the next general election," Miracle confirmed Tuesday, but he said he deferred to the attorney-general on matters of law.

If city officials are called on to summon an ambulance, they will call the ambulance service currently operating in the city—or will call city-based ambulances in rotation if others are established here—unless they are asked to do otherwise by the party needing transportation, the council decided. The formation of a new ambulance service in the county prompted formulation of the policy, it was explained.

The city manager was instructed to check on whether a variance was given by the city's zoning and variance board for The Home of Body Tone, a new establishment on South Lake Drive and Maple Ave.; a public hearing on the budget was set for 6:30 p.m. April 25; and members of the Committee to Elect Harvey Sloane were denied permission to hang a campaign banner across South Lake Drive.

First Crackdown On Waste Begins

Thirty-five Floyd residents can expect to receive letters from the county attorney this week, warning them to comply with the county's solid waste ordinance or face the consequences.

Theoretically at least, the consequence of non-compliance could be eviction.

County Attorney Arnold Turner, Jr. said he sent out the letters Tuesday to the 35 who, he said, were selected at random by the county solid waste agency from among the agency's delinquent customers.

Commercial and residential customers are among those receiving the letters. Some will be asked to pay for the system they have been using; others will be asked to begin using the system. All will have 10 days to respond before he takes them to court, Turner said.

By then the solid waste agency expects to have another 200 delinquent customers earmarked for legal action, he said.

BUN MONTGOMERY FOR COUNTY COURT CLERK

WHO AM I?

My name is Bun Montgomery, son of the late Dayrus Montgomery and Lula Hale Montgomery. My forefathers migrated from the Montgomery's from Scotland, Ireland. The Hales from England to Virginia and from Virginia to Floyd County, Kentucky. My grandfather Montgomery taught school in the Magoffin County School System. My great-grandfather, the late Sam Hale was the sponsor and founder of the First National Bank of Prestonsburg, Ky., now known as the First Commonwealth Bank.

I attended Prestonsburg High School and now have the equivalent degree in Business and Management and also in Human Relations. I have spent most of my adult life in top management for one of the largest manufacturing companies in the United States.

I am a member of the First Church of God of Little Paint, Ky., a member of the V.F.W. Dads Club, the Moose Lodge, a member of U.A.W., former member of the United Mine Workers and a 32nd degree Mason. To all the above, I devoted a great deal of time and energy.

As a young man some of you may remember me as a coal miner in David, Kentucky for Princess Elkhorn Coal Company.

I feel I am the best qualified to manage the Clerk's office and represent the people of Floyd County.

From time to time I will be asking for your suggestions, after all the office belongs to the people and always will as long as I am your County Clerk.

I have no one running me for this office. I am in this alone and this is why I need each and everyone's help in Floyd County. With the voters permission, I will run this office the way you want it run. I intend to represent all of the people, not just a group.

I feel that the late Mr. Robinson did a wonderful job, however there is nothing which cannot be improved upon and you can be assured that there will be changes.

There is talk of cleaning house, there will of course be changes if you choose me as your County Court Clerk. I hope I will be your choice.

Thank you and may God bless all of you.

Sincerely,
Bun Montgomery
