Reversal Plea To Use Remarks Of Trial Judge

William "Oakie" Bevins, 71-year-old Printer man, last Friday became the fourth Floyd countian to be sentenced to die in expiation of murder.

The death sentence was pronounced shortly after 10 o'clock Friday morning in the Greenup circuit courtroom by Judge James D. Atkinson, Jr., who during the preceding week had heard testimony and arguments in the sensational case.

Seated alongside his attorney, Lester H. Burns, Jr., the confessed slayer of five men inside the Mountain Truck Parts Store at Allen 18 months ago, Bevins listened to his condemnation with the same stoic calm that had marked his courtroom conduct during the trial. At least one of the widows of his victims broke into sobs.

"I got nothing to say, I guess," Bevins replied to a newsman's question, shortly afterward.

"To say that we're satisfied (with the verdict) is putting it mildly," Commonwealth's Attorney James R. Allen, who led the prosecution, said after his return here. "The...court has given justice to the people of Floyd county, and the only penalty that fits this crime is death, the penalty that the court has given," he had said earlier.

But Burns, Bevins' defense counsel, termed the verdict "outrageous and outlandish" and said statements made by Judge Atkinson during the trial were improper and would guarantee a reversal of the sentence. Said Burns:

"We have discovered some evidence which has flatly reversed the decision of the judge, in my opinion. We have it on tape. The judge in a press interview stated that he had called the parole

14-Year Plan for P'burg Looks to Small Industry

If the planners are right, the population of Prestonsburg will grow, mostly by annexation, to 5379 by the end of the century.

If the trend of the past 30 years continues, men in the 20-30 age group will tend to move out, causing the average age to rise and increasing the proportion of women in the city population.

If the city is to prosper, a way must be found to diversify the present economic base and provide new jobs to attract the younger employee.

If communities in this area can create an atmosphere of confidence, private developers might invest here.

But population and economic indicators do not point to a bright future for the city.

These are among the findings of VTN, Inc., the Orlando, Fla.-based planning firm charged with the task of updating Prestonsburg's 14-year-old comprehensive plan.

A draft copy of the report was presented this week to the city council for review.

There is nothing new about the planners' diagnosis of the area's illness—dependence on coal as its single economic base—and, if some of the proposed remedies are novel, they may also appear to tax credulity. But, as comprehensive plans go, the present draft is unusually specific and all the more useful for that, said City Manager David Evans.

Regional and local "industrial development boards" might be created, the report suggests, which would be responsible for readying "a variety of developed vacant sites" for prospective commercial tenants. Such sites should range from two to 10 acres, be on paved roads, and have access to water, sewer and other community facilities, the report notes.

Among new industries that might be anticipated the planners list small slope skiing and "pocket" industries such as rustic hardwood furniture; polished, etched coal lumps; handmade rag rugs; quilts and homemade bread and cookies.

A local small-business loan association might be created to fund new development ideas. Many such ideas could be expected to fail, the planners concede, but they add, "should one succeed, the benefits may be limitless." Look at the profits reaped, for example, by the inventors of the safety pin, the hula hoop and the pet rock, they argue.

Garbage should be cleaned up from the approaches to the city and replaced with evergreens and flower beds. Shrubs and flowers, the planners note, could also do a lot for the city's shopping areas, public buildings and churches.

The report is perhaps strongest on general principles of planning that would appear to be as applicable in Punxsutawney as in Prestonsburg. Future city leaders should discourage development in natural water-storage areas, enforce air and water quality standards, encourage energy-efficient housing, prevent the encroachment of commercial and industrial activity in established residential areas, provide sufficient open space and recreational areas, increase as necessary the carrying capacity of existing highways and intersections, extend water and sewer services to surrounding areas, and upgrade solid waste, educational, health, library and fire protection services.

Among the plan's specific suggestions:

—If continuing development is permitted within the floodplain, plans should be made for accommodating floodwaters.

—Multi-family housing and housing for elderly and low-income families should be developed.

AFTER SUFFERING a bleak weekend, complete with drizzle and 40-degree temperatures, Floyd residents welcomed Monday's clear, sunny weather. A full moon even brightened up the evening as it shone over rooftops and through the branches of trees.

New City Budget Above $1 Million

Prestonsburg's proposed budget for 1982-'83 represents a number of "firsts."

It is the first time the general fund has passed the million-dollar mark, the first time the budget has been prepared for the fiscal rather than the calendar year, the first time in years that an alcohol tax has figured in the receipts, and the first time—for as long as anyone can remember—that the sanitation department is expected to make a profit.

General fund receipts of $1,041,500 are anticipated. In addition, $107,364 is expected in revenue sharing monies, $50,000 in coal severance tax, $36,000 in alcohol taxes, and $30,000 in municipal road aid (gasoline tax).

When surplus balances from this year are added—some $30,266 will be left in the coal severance budget and $21,900 of municipal road aid—the city council will have $1,352,760 to work with in the coming year.

As a result of a fee hike this year, the city's sanitation department, which last year collected $82,000 for a net loss of $18,000, is expected in the coming year to raise $185,000 for a tidy profit. Monthly rates were raised from $4.50 to $6 for residential customers last March and commercial customers saw hefty increases in June.

Occupational licenses—recently hiked by half a percentage point—are expected to yield $417,000, property taxes $144,000, and insurance license fees $125,000.

The largest single budget appropriation, $425,226, is for general government; street repairs are expected to consume $294,940; some $199,132 has been set aside for the fire department, $197,437 for the police, $136,600 for garbage removal, $45,550 for the city garage, and $36,600 for parks and recreation.

The budget includes a 7 percent cost-of-living increase for city employees, effective Jan. 1, 1984. Police Chief Jim Curtis also urged the council to consider merit raises, to be earned by employees on the basis of work performance.

The $50,000 listed as anticipated coal severance tax revenue should be regarded

AD-MIXTURE

This being, as you may have begun to suspect, the year when the Kentucky, if not the national, pastime is politics, I reproduce here a contribution from my friend, Dr. Richard Howard, of Winchester. It appears that somebody in the composing room of this newspaper had partaken of the grape long after it had ceased to be grape and jumbled the type from two advertisements—one for a man entering politics for the first time; the other, a patent medicine testimonial. This was the result:

Fear of Firebug Spreads After Series of Blazes

"I don't like to say it, but it looks like we've got a firebug on our hands," Policeman Hershell Lester, of Martin, said this week.

The admission was made after a series of fires, including one which caused an estimated $100,000 damage at the Beaver Valley Lumber and Building Supplies Co., and two recent attempts at incendiarism.

Soon after the lumber yard blaze, an attempt was made to burn the old Beaver Valley Hospital, less than 100 yards away. A flare similar to that used as a railway signal was found by Martin firemen inside a first-floor rear window. A small area of the wood interior was ablaze when firemen arrived.

The same night, Lester said, a man with a flare was seen outside Druthers Restaurant. He fled to the nearby creek banks and eluded pursuit.

The Lora Stephens News Stand, near the hospital, has been ablaze two or three times over a period of months, Lester recalls, and before all these blazes were fires which destroyed or damaged perhaps half a dozen residences in the Buck's Branch section outside Martin.

The fires have occurred so often on Thursday nights that residents see a time pattern in the string of events.

Officers find the situation frustrating. "We're doing the best we can," says Lester. "I'm telling the people that if their dogs bark or they hear an unusual noise to get out of bed and take a look. I can't be more than one place at a time, and by keeping watch the people can help."

Deputy Sheriff Doug Baldrige is helping Lester on patrols. More help is expected when an auxiliary police unit is organized.

Year's Back Pay Ordered For Five Fired at Center

Five women who worked at the juvenile detention center here until they were fired three years ago must be paid a year's back wages, according to an order handed down last week by the Kentucky Commission on Human Rights.

The commission found that the former employees, Phyllis Gilliland, Bonnie Blair, Emily Layne, Helen Jarrell and Martha Hicks, were victims of sex discrimination.

The women worked for the Human Resources Cabinet's bureau for social services, Miss Hicks as a counselor, the others as juvenile treatment officers. They were fired after the girls' unit at the center was closed as a cost-cutting measure in June, 1980.

An investigation by commission staff revealed that the women were recruited and hired with the understanding that they would be supervising both male and female juveniles and that they did in fact routinely supervise detainees of both sexes.

The laid-off workers did their jobs competently, posed no threat to the juveniles' privacy and represented no security risk, the commission staffers found.

When staff reductions were to be made because of difficult financial circumstances, however, the five were selected for layoff because of their sex while male employees were retained, the commission concluded.

Stumbo Says He Will Not Appear For Panel Quiz

A week ago, District Judge Harold Stumbo was at the point of resigning. On reflection, he now prefers to finish the four-year term, feeling, he said, that he has an obligation to the people of the county to do so, since they elected him to do the job.

But if holding his office means that he will have to make trips to Lexington again at his own expense and undergo "harassment" from the state Judicial Retirement and Removal Commission—forget it.

"I have sent the Commission my complete files on cases in question but I do not propose to go before them (the commission) in person," he said last Friday. They could come here and make their own investigation. My records are open, I have nothing to hide."

At issue are complaints from two sources. One of these related to the dismissal of speeding citations issued by Policeman Engle, of Wheelwright. Judge Stumbo said the dismissals were made on motion of the county attorney, on the grounds that the officer had never attended a school of training for radar operators and that citations based on the policeman's radar readings are not legal.

Water Plant Hit By Sludge Spill

Sludge pumped from a Spurlock Creek coal washer, near Printer, into an abandoned mine, broke free last week and the blackened water had by 7 a.m. last Wednesday stilled the pumps at the Martin water plant.

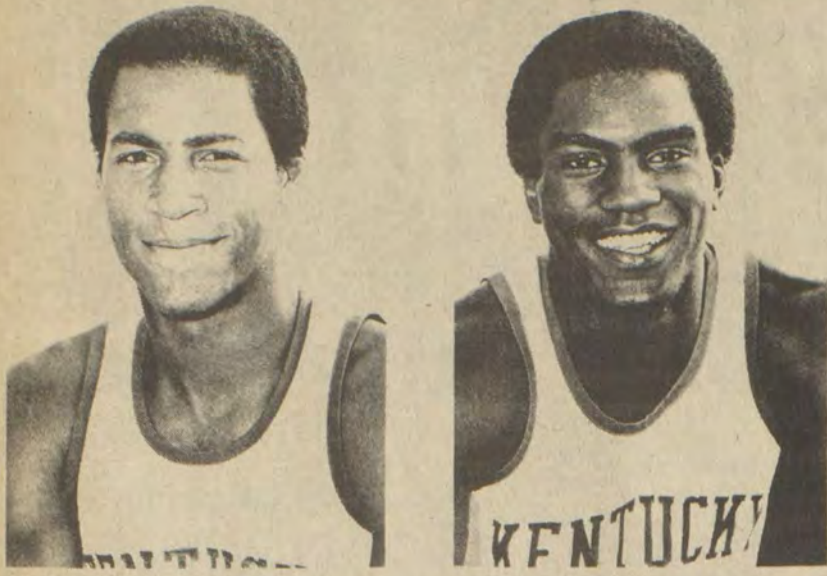

The town's water plant had sufficient reserve to maintain service until the plant became operable again about five hours later. The Beaver-Elkhorn Water District's supply was not affected, since its intake is from the Big Sandy, upstream from where Beaver Creek enters the river.

The effect of the spillage on the Prestonsburg water plant was negligible, since its submersible pumps take water from the bottom of the stream, but it was said Paintsville's supply was affected.

Mine operators are permitted, under license, to inject sludge into old mines for storage and stream protection.

Clyde Baldwin, head of the Water Division's London (Ky.) office, said Island Creek Coal Company reported the situation to his office immediately. Gene Blair, a field representative of the division, inspected the site, it was said, but his report had not been received Tuesday at the London office and he could not be reached by telephone.

Game Here Features UK Stars

Today's U. of K. net stars such as Derrick Hord and Charles Hurt will face former Wildcat greats such as Louie Dampier, Mike Phillips and others in a game here, Saturday.

The University of Kentucky Wildcat basketball seniors will play in a special game, this Saturday, April 30 at 7:30 p.m. at the high school gymnasium here.

Area sports fans will have the opportunity to see Derrick Hord, Charles Hurt and Dirk Minnefield match up with recent UK graduates like Bo Lanter, Jay Shidler and Truman Clayton to play against a group of former Wildcat standouts, including some almost legendary names.

Leading off will be two players from the 1978 NCAA championship team including center Mike Phillips and forward James Lee. Jim Andrews, who was the All-SEC Conference center in 1972 and '73 will also be playing along with Mike Casey, Jim LeMaster and Jerry Hale. Louie Dampier, who holds the American Basketball Association scoring title with 13,726 points during his professional career, will be seeing plenty of action.

The game is expected to be particularly exciting considering the excellent play Charles Hurt has displayed in recent weeks. Two weeks ago, for example, Hurt scored 29 points and pulled down 15 rebounds in the SEC vs. ACC All-Star Game which the SEC players won.

The game will be preceded by a 5:30 p.m. reception which will allow fans to meet and talk with some of Kentucky's greatest basketball players, past and present. The reception will be limited to the first 400 persons purchasing reception tickets.

Tickets for the game and the reception will be available at the door or the following locations: Francis Stores, Herrin-Johnson, and Wildcat Beverages.

The game is sponsored by the Prestonsburg Kiwanis Club.

PHS Ups Standings In District Baseball

By WENDE BUCHANAN

Over the past week Prestonsburg High School's baseball team hurred their way to a 4-2 win-loss record in district play.

In a high-scoring game last Wednesday in which PHS downed Allen Central, 17-10, the Blackcats hit 15 singles. While shortstop Gordie Ratliff collected two home runs and a game high five "ribbies," right fielder Todd Tucker cracked the bat for a grand slam home run in the third and an RBI record of four. J. C. Hale was the winning pitcher.

Three Allen Central players, D. Moore, C. Hall and M. Rister, knocked in two runs each with Moore driving in a home run in the third inning.

Hackworth and Hall, each with a home run and Kelly Cecil's three hits led the Blackcats against Wheelwright, 8-2 in the first game of a double-header, Thursday. In the second game, matters went from bad to worse for the baseball Trojans as the Blackcats drove in six runs in the first inning. G. Shepherd, Hall, Slone and Hackworth hit doubles.

Freshman pitcher Greg Shepherd hurled a three-hitter game with no earned runs and seven strike-outs as Coach Russell Shepherd's Blackcats won the contest, 12-1.

Floyd Native, Turner To Play Vs. Russians

Jimmy Dale Turner, Drift native and a star basketball player with this year's Sheldon Clark High School team has been selected as a member of the A.A.U. team which will face the touring Soviet squad in basketball competition.

The team will first face the Russians in the game, May 11 at the Charleston, W. Va. Civic Center. In June, the American team is expected to travel to Moscow for a rematch.

A son of Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy "Gabe" Turner, he is said to be considering attending either the University of Kentucky or Wake Forest.

Board Negligent, Is Woman's Claim

The failure of the Floyd Board of Education to keep the steps at the Drift school in a "reasonably safe condition" caused her to slip and break a leg, a Minnie woman claims in a suit filed in circuit court here last week.

Bessie Butler, 52, is seeking $150,000 for injury and pain already suffered as a result of the fall, which occurred April 20 last year, and a further $10,000 for anticipated medical expenses.

The schools superintendent and board were negligent in failing to maintain the steps, she claims in the suit, which was filed on her behalf by Prestonsburg attorney Larry D. Brown.

HOW CAN ONE FACE THEM?

Having failed to attend a friend's funeral service, one may experience difficulty in facing members of the bereaved family without embarrassment.

So, too, may members of the deceased's family find it hard to face some one who did not pay their respects at the funeral service, the wake or other form of visitation.

To avoid such embarrassment, a person who could not attend the service ought to make a personal condolence call afterwards. He should also explain to the family why he could not attend.

Although one must make these decisions individually, as the situation requires, it must be pointed out that funeral attendance and condolence calls are social responsibilities. We occasionally observe this "loss of friendship" when a simple phone call might have prevented the hurt feelings.

If you are not clear about visitation etiquette or duties, feel free to call on us for assistance. We will be pleased to help you at any time.

Pike Magistrates Offer To Cut Salaries in Half

Floyd county is not alone in having financial troubles, these days. Pike, largest of Kentucky counties and perhaps the wealthiest in the eastern section of the state, is having to do drastic trimming of its budget.

Pike county's four magistrates voted last week to give up their secretaries and close their offices to help make up for a sharp cut in coal severance-tax revenue.

The magistrates also voted to cut their $30,000 salaries in half, but County Judge-Executive Paul Patton said there was some question whether that would be legal.

Patton said other cuts will be discussed in two weeks at the next fiscal court meeting to try to cut the county's $8.25 million budget by about $670,000.

"This will just destroy our road program," he said. "We had a pretty ambitious road program planned."

The pinch is because of a decline in coal severance-tax revenue and a resulting decline in the amount returned by the state to coal-producing counties, Patton said.

The state projected last year that Pike county would receive $4.3 million. "They now advise us we will receive $1.2 million, so that's roughly a $3.1 million cut," he said.

Patton said the impact was less severe because county officials first prepared their budget for this fiscal year using the severance-tax figure from the previous year, $2.6 million.

It was not until last July that the state made the $4.3 million estimate, and the county decided not to revise the figure until the $2.6 million was spent.

For several months last year, Patton said, "We were mentally working with a $10 million budget."

But before the county officially adopted the higher figure, he said, state officials warned of cuts in October, "and in January Revenue Commissioner Ron Geary said there were serious problems, so we never did revise it."

Because of that, and because the county had more money than expected in some other areas—including the amount of severance-tax funds left from the previous year—the actual cut will be $670,000, Patton told the magistrates.

Magistrate Louisa Varney moved that the magistrates cut their salaries in half, give up their secretaries and close their offices.

The salary cut, which would save $60,000, may not be legal, Patton said.

"They were elected to serve under that salary. The salary for the present court was set by the previous court, and we set the salary for the next court," he said.

But he said giving up the secretaries, who earn $12,500 a year, would save $50,000, and closing the offices would save rents amounting to "a few thousand dollars a year."

The rest of the $670,000 will come from cuts to be determined at the next meeting, Patton said.

"We'll cut every place we can, and what's left over we'll cut from the road program," he said. "We have discretion on how much gravel we can buy, but we don't have discretion on the utility bills at the courthouse."

He said the county will have to give up plans for "massive drainage improvements, resurfacing and new surfacing" on the 1,500 to 2,000 miles of roads it maintains.

Phone Co. Improves Artificial Larynx

South Central Bell has introduced an updated version of its electronic artificial larynx, which enables persons who have lost their voices through paralysis or surgical removal of vocal cords to use the telephone.

And until March 1, 1984, owners of earlier models can get a $30 trade-in allowance when they buy the new model. Art Willett, local manager for Bell, said the device is available from South Central Bell's Telecommunications Center for Disabled Customers.

The artificial larynx produces substitute vibrations for the natural vibrations of the human voice, Willett said. The user places the larynx on the throat and uses the teeth, palate, tongue and lips in the usual manner to produce speech.

Willett said more information on the new device is available by calling the Telecommunications Center for Disabled Customers, toll free, at 1-800-544-5000. Customers who use a telecommunications device for the deaf or a teletypewriter can call, toll free, 1-800-251-5325.

Salaries Can Be Legally Cut

Pike county's fiscal court last week began trimming its budget in an effort to get it in balance with county income, and in the process its four magistrates voted to cut in half their $30,000-a-year salaries.

But Pike County Judge-Executive Paul Patton says this estimable sacrifice of their official incomes may be illegal, since, he says, "they were elected to serve under that salary" ($30,000 a year).

Judge Patton may be correct in his assessment of the situation as it pertains to the cutting of official salaries, but without consulting a lawyer we have our doubts. In the first place, we are certain no voter would be offended by such a move, and in the second we would give heavy odds that the matter of a $30,000-a-year salary for each of the four magistrates was never mentioned by them in their quest for votes.

Such salaries for magistrates whose duties have been narrowed till they no longer issue warrants of arrest for violators of the law, no longer preside in the trial of minor cases, may not legally supervise road construction but in reality may act only in a legislative-advisory capacity at official meetings of the fiscal court—such salaries in view of their lessened workload are ridiculous.

The idea that magistrates or any other official may draw "all the law allows" when the law is over-liberal with the people's money is equally ridiculous.

By way of contrast, it might be noted that Floyd county's four magistrates are paid almost $25,000 a year, including $3600 a year expenses. This county, however, has a population of about 49,000 while Pike's totals approximately 81,000. But Pike county has been paying $12,500 a year for the services of a secretary for each of its magistrates, plus "a few thousand" for rent of offices for each.

The offices of the magistrates in Pike county have now been closed, however, and the secretaries let go during the budget-trimming process.

If any magistrate, in Pike or Floyd, wants to cut his salary in half, and if such an action is by any chance illegal, we have a suggestion: simply accept the full salary—and who's to say you can't give half of it back to the county?

"I wish to announce to the voters of this county that for 25 years I suffered from asthma and lumbago on the Republican ticket and thought they was no cure for me till I heard of the Office of County Superintendent of Schools, for which my doctor advised me to run.

"I have never held county office but have been troubled with nervousness and handshaking, so I feel I am well qualified. I was operated on 2 months ago for appendicitis, so I feel I am cut out for the duties required. I had 14 teeth pulled out to see if it would help me pull in votes. I have gained 40 pounds and hundreds of votes and am feeling like a new man. While it has been impossible for me to see all the voters personal, I will say that this has been a godsend to me and I will appreciate your vote and 2 bottles of your magic tonic."

PEACE!—SOUNDS WONDERFUL

Premier Andropov of Russia has written a little girl living in Manchester, Maine, according to the public printers, to say that "we want peace for ourselves and for all people of the planet, for our own kids and for you, Samantha."

A beautiful thought—but on whose terms would we have this peace?

Maybe we shouldn't but, somehow, we have the feeling that his goodwill for us amounts to about what the carpetbagger had for the ex-slave to whom he had promised 40 acres and a mule. The old fellow got his strip of land but the mule was missing. But, the carpetbagger told a friend, "I aim to get that fella a mule, soon as I can find one that's blind on his off side and has enough bone spavins."

I had no more than finished congratulating myself on not fouling up on the date for Daylight Saving Time than the wind was taken out of my sails by the information that Dorothy Thompson didn't pen that pelican ditty. Who wrote it? Obviously I don't know. More later.

The other complaint, he said, cited his handling of cases against Noma Ruth Stumbo. He said that two cases were brought to trial against her in his court. In one he fined her $100 and costs and revoked her driver's license; in the second, he fined her $17 and costs for operating a vehicle on a revoked license.

All other cases against her, except one in which the complaining witness declined to prosecute, "went upstairs," to circuit court, he said.

Almost three years ago, Stumbo was the target of an investigation by the Judicial Retirement and Removal Commission. That probe, too, followed complaints emanating from Wheelwright.

—Strip commercial areas along North and South Lake Drive should be upgraded to residential wherever possible. While the city's 1969 plan called for highway-oriented businesses (each as motels, restaurants and gas stations) north and south of the city, many retail businesses which have sprung up in the past decade in those areas would be better located within the central business district.

—Rezone the central business district to allow private businesses there to expand and new businesses to move in.

—The Joint Planning Board should prepare a plan for the "two major areas of future development"—from the present city limits to the Mountain Parkway—U.S. 23 intersection and along the Lancer-Watergap road—and the city and county should agree to stick to the plan.

—The intersections of North Lake Drive with U.S. 23 and Court Street pose major traffic problems and the traffic circulation on Prestonsburg's narrow streets needs to be improved.

—The city's newly-expanded water system provides a good service at minimum cost, the report notes, but it is vulnerable to pollution and no backup source is currently available. The city should look for alternative water sources.

—Any expansion of sewer services could tax the system beyond its capacity and plans should be made to expand the existing facility. The city should also plan for additional treatment and disposal methods in case state or federal regulations restrict the present discharge of effluent into the Big Sandy. —Archer Park is the kind of recreation area one would expect to find in a city at least three times the size of Prestonsburg. The city could also use a park overlooking the river downtown. If the recommendations of the comprehensive plan are followed, Prestonsburg will one day have no single-family dwellings downtown. What residential areas remain—some are planned for Third Avenue and Graham Street—will be for multi-family dwellings. Other recommendations:

A parking facility and park overlooking the river on First Avenue, at the head of Court Street. On-street parking would be banned from Court Street, Arnold Avenue and First Avenue and those streets will again become two-way. No traffic would be permitted to turn left from Arnold Avenue at U.S. 23.

According to the plan, the city and county would buy up everything in an area bounded by Trimble Branch, Highland Avenue, Francis Street and North and South Lake Drive to construct a new city-county facility "which would house all city, county and other governmental offices now scattered throughout the community."

The city government and downtown businesses would get together to improve the appearance of the area by constructing new storefronts, installing soft vapor lights, planting trees and flowers, and replacing neon signs with small wooden signs.

Rezoned multi-family residential would be a section north of the downtown area bounded by North Lake Drive, U.S. 23, the old West Prestonsburg bridge, Arnold Avenue and Music Street, and another area to the south of the downtown district bordered by Third Avenue, Francis Street, Highland Avenue, Howard, Richmond and Graham streets. West Prestonsburg and a tract at Cliff would be zoned industrial.

The comprehensive plan, which has been about a year in preparation, cost the city $4000.

Preston To Handle Rum License Probe

John David Preston, commonwealth's attorney for the Johnson-Martin judicial district, has been designated to handle the investigation of whiskey and beer licenses issued in this county.

He was named after Commonwealth's Attorney James R. Allen had disqualified.

Preston will be responsible for any grand jury probe that may be made and also will head the prosecution if indictments are voted. A State Police investigation of the licensing in this county has been under way for the last few weeks.

board in Frankfort and they said eight years is all that Mr. Bevins could get under five life sentences, that he would be out in 6½ years." (The 18 months Bevins has been in jail awaiting trial would count as time served on such a sentence.)

"And," Burns added, "the judge said he (Bevins) may get back out on the street and kill someone, so that was one of the main reasons that he gave him death. We have him on tape saying that. That's improper. He should not have done that, and that—it alone—will reverse his sentence."

Commonwealth's Attorney Allen declined to comment on Burns' statement. The tape referred to was said to have been made by Rick Darby, Prestonsburg radio station manager.

No date was set for Bevins' execution. His death sentence will under state law automatically be appealed to the Kentucky Supreme Court.

Some have predicted that, regardless of high court action, the case will drag through the courts so long that Bevins will die of natural causes before time of his execution.

In reading the final sentence, Judge Atkinson said that on the basis of all the evidence presented there was only one penalty: "I, therefore, sentence William O. Bevins to death in the Kentucky electric chair for the murders of Roger Hatfield, Michael Halbert, Jarvey Hamilton, Rufus Hamilton and Roger Click," was the judge's final pronouncement.

Bevins has been returned to the Laurel county jail at London and is expected to remain there until his appeal is decided. Fourteen prisoners are now on death row in Eddyville state penitentiary, and if Bevins joins them he would be the oldest in the prison for execution.

The first Floyd countian condemned to death was Gus Finley, who was hanged here April 17, 1885 for the slaying of a youth, Jim Hunt, at Ivel. The second was Ishmael Scott, who was electrocuted at Eddyville in 1933 for the slaying of Martin Stephens on Stone Coal, near Garrett. The third, Roy Salisbury, was convicted Feb. 5, 1965 of the murders of three persons, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Denney and Thomas Combs, near Drift, but after the Supreme Court had temporarily outlawed capital punishment his sentence was commuted, along with those of several others, by Governor Breathitt to life imprisonment. He is yet in prison.

Bevins' death sentence followed his plea of guilty to the five murders and to three shooting and wounding counts. After his plea was entered, Judge Atkinson heard the testimony of witnesses and attorneys' arguments before his final decision.

Don't "Clean Out" Wildlife

"Spring housecleaning" down on the farm can be hard on quail and other ground nesting birds. Mowing operations are among the prime destroyers of nests, according to wildlife biologists with the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife.

Quail will begin actively nesting about now and will continue to nest through the middle of July. Unfortunately, this nesting period coincides with both hay cutting and many clean-up operations such as mowing weeds and clearing fence rows.

Farmers who want to enhance wildlife on their property can take several steps to reduce their losses. One easy way is just to postpone clearing operations until late July, after the young birds have hatched and left the nest.

Of course, hay must be cut when it's ready and the weather is right, so waiting isn't possible. However, leaving an eight-foot uncut strip around field borders will save most nests, since wildlife tends to concentrate around field edges, where cover is nearby.

Idle fields must be mowed periodically to keep down brush, but if this mowing is done in strips on alternate years, much wildlife cover will be preserved. In addition, the new growth in the mowed areas will provide additional food for rabbits and other species. Again, remember to wait until after the middle of July to do most of your clearing. And don't be too intent on having a perfectly clean farm. The brush that is cleared out of fence rows and odd corners of the farm represents home for a variety of beneficial wildlife species. Clear it up and you have destroyed wildlife habitat—and wildlife.

Remember that wildlife thrives in areas with varied landscapes and vegetative types. An abundance of edges—where croplands, meadows, pastures or woodlands meet—is particularly important to wildlife. "Clean" farming, growing large fields of a single crop, fence-to-fence plowing and other current agricultural practices, while necessary from an economic standpoint, do destroy wildlife habitat.

So it is becoming increasingly important for landowners to be aware of wildlife and of wildlife habitat. Often making small changes—such as delaying mowing for two or three weeks or leaving a fence row uncleared—can make a big difference.

The Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources offers technical advice and assistance to anyone wanting a wildlife plan for his property. Interested landowners should get in touch with their local conservation officer for details or write to Division of Wildlife, Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, Frankfort, Ky. 40601.

Public May Assist Nat'l Forest Program

An opportunity for people to make donations to finance planting trees on National Forests was announced recently by Secretary of Agriculture John R. Block.

In response to numerous public requests, Block said, the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Forest Service has established the Plant-A-Tree Program to give individuals and groups an opportunity to help improve the nation's forests. Contributions may be made by groups and individuals in their own names or in honor of others.

Forest Supervisor Richard H. Wengert, Daniel Boone National Forest, Winchester, Kentucky, suggests that trees be planted to commemorate birthdays, anniversaries, reunions, graduations, promotions, retirements and other special occasions. He also suggests that trees can be planted as memorials for loved ones. These trees would provide a living monument and improve the environment in many ways.

For a minimum $10 donation, contributors will receive a certificate acknowledging their gifts. Individual trees will not be marked to recognize contributors, but will probably be planted on the National Forest nearest the honoree's home.

Based on current needs, the Forest Service will select the species and sites to be planted as a result of the donations. The number of plantings that will result from an individual donation will vary due to differences in costs in various parts of the country. Donations to the Plant-A-Tree Program will be accepted at all Forest Service offices. Donations to the program are tax deductible. Donations may be made at these offices on the Daniel Boone National Forest:

Wins UMWA Endorsement

State senate candidate David Lemaster picked up another endorsement here Saturday when members of UMWA Local 1827 voted to support him.

Sixty one members of the union local, meeting in Auxier, heard addresses from Lemaster and Dr. Larry Leslie, another candidate for the state senate seat, before voting 56-5 in favor of the Paintsville attorney.

Lemaster previously garnered endorsements from two local chapters and a tri-district council of the United Steelworkers union and a local chapter of the Union of Operating Engineers.

Grade Level Skills Being Coordinated

Educators in 15 local school districts are currently field-testing information to determine what skills should be mastered at certain grade levels.

The Kentucky Department of Education will use this information to ensure that students throughout the state are studying the same things at roughly the same grade level.

According to Dr. Donald Hunter, head of the bureau of instruction with the Department of Education, this project is an effort to furnish some guidelines for basic skills to local school districts.

"We are designing the minimum basic skills curriculum, however, with the knowledge that school districts should go beyond this," Hunter said.

A basic skills committee met for the first time last year, at the request of Superintendent of Public Instruction Raymond Barber, to design and implement the minimum basic skills plan.

The group divided into five subcommittees to define the minimum basic skills in reading, writing, spelling, mathematics and library/reference skills. Each subcommittee also pinpointed the grade level at which a skill should be mastered.

According to Hunter, this will aid teachers in making sure students are adequately prepared to succeed at the next grade level.

"We want to emphasize that this is simply an effort to furnish local districts with a guideline," Hunter explained. "Kentucky has a list of approved textbooks and other than that, what is taught in the school is pretty much left up in the air."

The districts that are field-testing the work of the committee include Woodford, Henderson, Bullitt, Morgan, Lyon, Carroll, Monroe and Grayson counties. Pikeville, Murray, Newport, Harrodsburg, Berea, Raceland and Middlesboro independent districts are also reviewing the material.

The districts were selected by computer, based on geographic distribution and size.

Each district received lists of minimum competencies for the five subject areas and the designated grade level at which the student is expected to show mastery of the skill.

The 15 participating directors were asked to take those lists and give them to representative teachers in grades one through 12 along with a questionnaire. On the questionnaire, teachers can voice their opinions on what should be added, deleted or changed in the minimum basic skills listing.

"It's extremely important that we get teacher reaction to this," Hunter said. "If it's not usable in the classroom, it's not worth anything."

Teacher comments on the minimum basic skills curriculum will be turned over to the committee this month.

Collins Receives "Wings"

Earning of the "Wings" designates Collins, a son of Prestonsburg Attorney and Mrs. Scott Collins, as a Naval Aviator with a special certification in rotary wing aircraft (helicopters).

In a congratulatory letter to Collins' parents, T. W. Tilt, Commanding Officer of the United States Navy, stressed the intensive training and demanding academic, military and airborne curriculum which is involved in the Naval Flight Program. According to Commander Tilt: "To some, the Navy 'Wings of Gold' are only an insignia worn by individuals who know how to fly. However, anyone knowledgeable of the demands and challenges of naval aviation would affirm that no greater understatement could exist. Naval Aviators are the best trained and most highly skilled military pilots in the world."

Pilot Collins, a graduate of Prestonsburg High School, will stop off at Combs Airport, Friday as part of a cross-country flight in a Naval "Huey" helicopter.

Mark Twain Specials Highlight May Line-Up

KET presents a "Great Performances" encore with a month of Mark Twain specials. The series begins with "The Innocents Abroad," Monday, May 9, at 9:00 p.m. Adapted from Mark Twain's book of the same name this dramatization is a humorous account of the writer's first trip to Europe.

The program was filmed in France, Italy, Greece and Egypt with a multinational cast. Craig Wasson portrays young Mark Twain; David Ogden Stiers is Doc Jackson, the ship's surgeon; and Brooke Adams is Julia Newell, a small town Wisconsin reporter.

"The Innocents Abroad" was coproduced by the Nebraska ETV Network and The Great Amwell Company in association with WNET, New York.

NEW NATURAL GAS FURNACES ARE HOT ON EFFICIENCY.

They're really hot on saving you energy and money, while keeping you comfortable.

And, a natural gas furnace combined with a central air conditioning unit offers many advantages over a heat pump, which is a compromise unit that both heats and cools.

Greater comfort. A natural gas furnace doesn't compromise on comfort. During the winter months, you feel warmer, because a natural gas furnace circulates warmer air than a heat pump.

Greater efficiency. During the hot summer months, you'll benefit from the increased efficiency of a central air conditioning unit over the compromise unit.

If you're considering changing your present system, contact your local heating and cooling contractor. He'll show what you can save (and what you won't have to compromise) with the many new high efficiency natural gas furnaces and a central air conditioning unit.

Natural gas. The energy that makes your home more efficient.

Spring Is Time
To Gather Wood

Cold weather can quickly become a memory when temperatures rise and garden and yard work beckon. But before thoughts of winter recede entirely, some consideration of the next fireburning season is in order, suggests a University of Kentucky Extension specialist in forestry.

"It will be hard to act on the following advice," admits Douglas McLaren, who is located at Robinson Substation-Quicksand. "But now is the time to begin gathering fuelwood for the next season."

McLaren explains that wood to be used for home heating requires four to six months of air drying to arrive at proper moisture content for burning. "So, just as you are about to deplete your present woodpile, you must begin the tasks of gathering, splitting and air-drying your cache to be used next fall."

The specialist notes that the more dense species of wood, such as oak, beech and hickory, need six months of drying time. Yellow poplar is a species requiring less drying time, but McLaren says, "You wouldn't want an entire woodpile of yellow poplar because it would burn too rapidly."

In planning for next season's firewood supply, then, a first consideration is density of the wood, determined by species, and the amount of moisture that will be in the wood at the time of burning.

A next step is locating a source for firewood, a step that is simple if you own your own woodlot. "However, most homeowners do not have this luxury," says McLaren. An alternative he suggests is being on the watch while driving for trees already on the ground due to landslides, blow-downs and wood cuttings.

After obtaining permission to remove the wood, and paying for it if the owner requires payment, the next task is cutting and hauling it. "Remember when locating your wood source that every piece must be transported to its final destination, so vehicle access and distance to the site must be considered," says McLaren.

He notes that the type of firebox used dictates the length wood pieces should be cut. Some stoves can accommodate pieces up to 24 inches, while others use 12-inch lengths more efficiently.

"When log sections get to their final destination, it is almost always necessary to split each one, points out McLaren. He recommends splitting the wood as soon as possible to achieve proper moisture content for burning.

Once split, pieces should be stacked to allow air circulation around and through the woodpile. Wood should be stacked away from the house to prevent insects in the wood from infesting the house. And the stack should be kept dry from the rain and snow by covering the top.

If several species of wood are to be utilized, each species should be stacked separately, according to McLaren. "This will allow easier mixing at the time of burning and allow more efficient use of each species' burning capabilities," he explained.

And don't forget the kindling that will be necessary for each fire. McLaren suggests obtaining this from small limbs and branches of the trees used for wood. "You also could ask permission from contractors of new building sites to allow you to haul off their scrap wood," he added.

Finally, the specialist advises those who will be procuring firewood for the first time to consider renting a chainsaw, splitting ax or sledge hammer and wedge rather than investing in several hundred dollars worth of equipment.

"Many people burn fires only on weekends and need a small supply of wood," notes McLaren. "These people could rent necessary equipment and a vehicle for hauling for the short time they would need them."

Jury Holds Music Not Guilty Of Murder, Assault Charges

A Floyd Circuit Court jury yesterday found Alfred Music, 22, not guilty of the murder and assault of which he stood accused.

The charges against Music arose from an incident at his Martin home last December 10, when he shot to death Curtis Hall, 31, of Topmost, and wounded Fred Greer, 21, then also of Topmost but now of Wheelwright.

After hearing testimony for a day-and-a-half, the jury received the case around 4:30 Tuesday afternoon and returned a verdict at 6:10 p.m. Following the acquittal on the murder and assault charges, Circuit Judge Hollie Conley, on a motion of defense counsel, dismissed four wanton endangerment charges against Music stemming from the same incident.

When Assistant Commonwealth's Attorney Albert Burchett outlined the case against him Monday, the slightly-built, boyish-looking defendant sat between his attorney, Public Defender Ned Pillersdorf, and his older brother, Dee Mart Music, who comforted him periodically throughout the trial.

According to the prosecutor, Alfred Music returned about 9:30 the morning of Dec. 10 last year to the house he occupied with his 45-year-old wife, Glenna Mulkey Music, Mrs. Music's children by a previous marriage—Diane, 21, Debbie, 14, and Linda, 11—and Diane's two-year-old daughter.

Also staying over at the house that night were Hall, described as Diane Mulkey's boyfriend, and Greer. Some witnesses later testified that a "party" was in progress at the house.

While Mrs. Music apparently approved of the arrangement, Music "did not like the idea of these men spending the night with his stepdaughters," the prosecutor said. Music left the house after an argument earlier that night, filed a complaint with police, and spent the rest of the night at his mother's, he said.

As soon as Maloney's store opened in the morning, Music bought a .22-caliber revolver and three boxes of ammunition, returned home to find all the occupants in the one bedroom and "started shooting," Burchett said.

The defendant emptied his gun, killing Hall and seriously wounding Greer, and was himself hit by shotgun pellets as he fled, said the prosecutor. Music had not fired in self defense and his killing of Hall was intentional and without justification, Burchett told the jury.

But defense witnesses would give a significantly different account of events leading up to the shooting and the sequence in which the shots were fired, Pillersdorf said.

Hall and Greer were at the Music house the night before the shooting to discuss the disposal of stolen property, the defense attorney said. An argument ensued, in the course of which Hall threatened to shoot Music; when Music left, the others went to fetch Hall's shotgun, he said.

According to the defense version, when Music returned in the morning to find the visitors and his two older stepdaughters in various stages of undress, he ordered the men out of his house.

Hall reached for the loaded shotgun by his bed; Greer tried to wrest Music's pistol from him but was struck twice in the arm by bullets; Hall then "nearly blew off" Music's right arm and pursued him into an adjoining room; but Music, a left-hander, shot Hall through the heart and fled, the defense attorney suggested.

Testifying for the prosecution, Glenna Music, her two older daughters and Fred Greer all denied that Music had been attacked or threatened when the shooting broke out. When her husband appeared armed at the bedroom door, she "screamed at him not to do it, but he didn't pay any attention," Mrs. Music said.

Diane Mulkey, who explained that the whole family was in the one bedroom because it was the only heated room in the house, said that, when he entered the room, Music "looked at Fred and Debbie," who were sharing a couch, "like he was jealous of her talking to a boy." Earlier that night Music had tried unsuccessfully to persuade Debbie to accompany him to his mother's house, Diane Mulkey said.

Accused by the prosecutor of intentionally arming himself and "hunting for Fred and Curt," Music conceded he returned with a pistol "to run them out of my home." "They was in the bed naked," he said.

But he only fired the weapon in self-defense, he insisted. "It was my home. They tried to run me out of my home. I had every right in the world to protect my home."

To bolster his argument that Hall shot Music before and not after Music shot Hall, Pillersdorf called to the stand Coroner Roger Nelson and Dr. Charles Hieronymus, both of whom testified that Hall would have died almost instantly from the bullet that perforated his heart.

Several prosecution witnesses claimed Hall shot Music—and even walked around and conversed briefly—after he had been shot.

"The jury upheld the right of people to defend themselves," Pillersdorf said after the verdict was announced. On his advice, his client has left the county, he said.

The first use of federal government contracts to restrict the employment of child labor took place in 1918, according to "Labor Firsts in America," a publication of the U.S. Department of Labor.

Need an army to get justice?

Nine hundred years ago in England, a landowner unjustly deprived of his property had five days to round up an army and retake his property by storm. If the landowner failed, his land became the lawful property of the usurper.

As late as the 1600s in the United States, those accused of crimes were sometimes thrown, with hands and feet bound, into tanks of water. If they floated, they were judged guilty and hung. If they sank, they were declared innocent and, of course, drowned.

Barbaric? Unfair? Most people probably did not think so then. We think so because our notions of justice have changed. The democratic concept of participation, of sharing in America's system of justice, has impelled our concepts of justice to evolve as our society has changed.

Sharing in the making of important decisions determined such changes as voting rights for women, civil rights legislation, and environmental protection measures. Together, we have forged justice in the fires of social and economic change.

Sharing in justice is an obligation that should not and must not be left to the few. Justice belongs to you and to all of us.

This Law Day and throughout the year, share in the making of justice. Justice demands it.

★ CANCER HOPELINE ★

Q. My father has just told he has cancer of the prostate. Is there a cancer treatment center in or near Kentucky that specializes in this cancer?

A. Thank you for asking that question, for it is with great pride that those of us at the University of Kentucky just recently received word of being named a Treatment Center for the National Prostate Project. This organization is composed of 17 institutions, including UK, and is supported by the National Cancer Institute. It offers protocols (procedures) for treating patients with different stages of prostatic cancer using surgery, chemotherapy, and radiation.

If your father wishes to be referred to the UK clinic, ask his physician to call 606-233-6677 to make the necessary arrangements. Having a physician make the contact with the clinic may save your father time and money because his records can be sent, and tests will not have to be repeated.

Cancer is the second leading cause of death in the United States, and prostate cancer is one of the most common forms among men. For men over the age of 55, it is the third highest cause of death. For men over age 75, it becomes the major cause.

The goal of the National Prostate Cancer Project is to identify and evaluate single chemotherapeutic agents and combinations of hormonal and/or chemotherapeutic agents which might be useful in the treatment of prostate cancer.

For further information about prostate cancer, or for assistance with other cancer questions, call the Cancer Helpline toll free at 1-800-4-CANCER, from 9 to 5, weekdays, or write 915 South Limestone Street, Lexington, Ky. 40536.

LET'S SET THE RECORD STRAIGHT!

Carla Boyd has said she was fired from her job in the County Clerk's Office when Tommy Lafferty, Jr., was appointed.

We, the undersigned, want to set the record straight. When Tommy Lafferty took over the Clerk's office, Carla Boyd or no other employee was fired. What actually happened was that Carla Boyd QUIT her job. She was asked to stay on and help with the transition, but refused to. We feel like it's time for the truth to be told.

CARLA BOYD WAS NOT FIRED. SHE QUIT. We are making this statement because we want to end the misrepresentations and rumors.

AT CONTINENTAL CONGRESS

Mrs. James B. Goble, Regent of the John Graham Chapter, NSDAR, represented her chapter as delegate to the 92nd Continental Congress, National Society, Daughters of the American Revolution, held in Constitution Hall, Washington, D. C., April 19-23.

Mrs. Richard Denny Shelby, president general of NSDAR, presided during the week. This congress gave a special observance to the Treaty of Paris, signed September 3, 1783, between the United States and Great Britain. It remains to this day, the most important treaty negotiated by the U.S., in which, not only was American independence recognized but the nation's western boundaries on the Mississippi River were set.

The Daughters were honored to have Vice President George Bush, give brief remarks, and the President-General read greetings from the White House.

A welcome to Washington was given by the Rev. Lewis Anthony, special assistant for religious affairs to the mayor of the District of Columbia.

A memorial service for the 92nd Continental Congress was held Monday, April 18, and a wreath was placed at the Founders' Monument.

The President-General and the members of the National Board of Management placed a wreath at the Vietnam Veterans' Memorial, in memory of those who lost their lives in this conflict. At this memorial stand Vietnam veterans, seeking help from the American public, to have those U.S. soldiers who served in this war, and who remain in Vietnam—either dead or alive—returned to this country. These soldiers remain there at all times, and have done so since December, 1982. The White House tour was Tuesday, April 19.

ABBOTT HOMEMAKERS MEET

The Abbott Homemakers met Tuesday evening, April 12, at the church annex building. Due to the absence of the president, Mrs. Sharon Sparr, Mrs. Christine Ross presided.

Mrs. Frances Pitts, Floyd county home economist, announced plans for a lesson on the matting and framing of pictures, to be held at the Floyd County Library at 10 a.m. Friday. Mrs. Pitts gave slide presentations on the topics, "Appearance Makes the Difference," and "Spring Fashions." The hostesses, Mrs. Christine Ross and Mrs. Mary Creed, served a dessert course to: Mesdames Frances Pitts, Mary Adkins, Ethel Ratliff, Grace Conley, Eukie Merritt, Cynthia Frasure, Ruby Frasure, and Grace Greer.

The next meeting will be Tuesday, May 10, at 7 p.m., at the same location. The hostesses will be Mrs. Eukie Merritt and Mrs. Mary Adkins.

Don't Be Sold Short with Lease Lotteries

Consumers should be wary of aggressive sales pitches and of overly optimistic advertisements which promote oil and gas lease lotteries, according to Dr. Rhonda Paul, director of the Kentucky Division of Securities.

Across the country, thousands of consumers have been contacted by telephone, through mail or through media advertising by companies offering to help them get instant profits by entering oil and gas lease "lotteries" run by the U.S. Government and the State of Wyoming. Kentucky Securities Division officials point out that many firms charge exorbitant fees, use high pressure sales tactics and misrepresent the services they offer as well as the nature of the leasing system.

In Kentucky, these private filing firms that propose to help clients find the most profitable oil and gas lease lottery around have advertised primarily in the Lexington and Louisville newspapers.

Lease lotteries work something like this: The United States Bureau of Land Management six times a year posts in its offices a list of parcels of federal lands available for lease by public lottery. Any U.S. citizen can file for a chance to win the option to lease the mineral rights on a parcel by paying $75.00 per entry. Lands available in this program are not within "known geological structure" of a producing oil and gas field. The majority of leases have little or no market value.

Some private filing services, however, encourage the public to enter the lottery in hopes of drawing a "sleeper," a valuable lease with few people filing on the land. Many filing services promise that skilled geologists on their staffs can pick the winning "sleeper".

In addition, while each filing generally costs $75.00, filing services have charged from $300.00 up to $20,000 to cover the supposed expertise of the geologist selecting the allegedly prime land.

The big problem is that abuse is growing in the program, with unscrupulous promoters who charge inflated rates and make false promises of winning leases and striking it rich, said Dr. Paul.

Dr. Paul pointed out that the primary concern, according to the North American Securities Administrators Association and the Better Business Bureau, is "the possible losses to the public from investing in the oil and gas lease lottery services—losses which have been staggering. Investors in 33 states, including Kentucky and all the surrounding states, have been approached to make these kinds of deals."

The Division of Securities has received numerous inquiries from consumers who have spotted the ads and who have contacted the Division for further information. No specific complaints have been filed.

No one is helpless in this situation, said Dr. Paul. There are several procedures to follow to lessen one's risk if a consumer is interested in filing for the lease lottery.

* Contact the state Division of Securities at 911 Leaward Drive in Frankfort or call (502) 564-2180. Clip and mail the literature to the Division and request additional information. For example, has any action ever been taken against the particular company or its principals?

* Consult the Better Business Bureau to see if complaints have been filed against the company.

* Check the credentials of the filing services' geologist. Some firms have been known to falsify the backgrounds of their onstaff geologists.

* Ask the company for statistics to verify the total number of customers who have invested with the oil and gas lease service compared with those who have successfully obtained the valuable lease.

* Ask why the company feels so confident in finding a profitable "sleeper" lease when the vast majority of land is known to be unproductive.

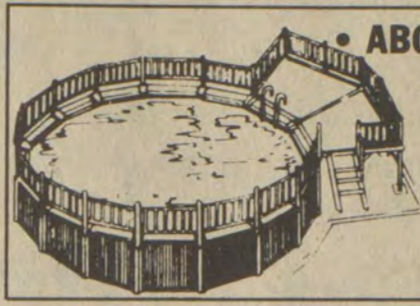

* Don't be overwhelmed by high figures of $40,000, $90,000 or $300,000 awarded to those whose names have been drawn. Remember: entering your name through a filing service does not increase the chance of that name being drawn.

* Anyone who wants to enter the lottery can do so without the aid of a filing service. Just contact the local Bureau of Land Management Office or the Wyoming Commission of Public Lands.

"We are urging consumers to take the time to investigate this supposed 'dream deal'," added Dr. Paul. "Salesmen who pressure investors with statements that 'time is of the essence' should be viewed with suspicion. 'There's always time to check the deal out.'"

Business, Education Partnership Proposed By Supt. Candidate

Alice McDonald, Democratic candidate for superintendent of public instruction, has announced that she will create a Kentucky Education Foundation when elected to the state's top education post.

The foundation, comprised of major business representatives from across the state, will be Kentucky's first statewide effort to formally bring business and industry into a partnership with public education.

Representatives from Kentucky's education organizations would serve the foundation in an ex officio capacity.

... about your Social Security

Notes Social Security Changes

Several changes in Social Security benefits have been made by a new law designed to strengthen the Social Security system, Jim Kelly, Social Security district director for the Big Sandy area, said recently.

The new law is intended to provide financial stability to the system both in the near term, through the 1980's, as well as into the next century, Kelly said.

The benefit changes made by the new law will:

—Continue benefits for disabled surviving spouses, ages 50-59, disabled divorced surviving spouses, 50-59 and divorced surviving spouses 60 or older who remarry. Heretofore, benefits continued only for surviving spouses 60 or over who remarried. (The present-law provision restricting entitlement to the higher of the surviving spouse's or worker's benefit will apply to these new categories.) This provision is effective next January.

—Provide a new way to figure benefits for widows or widowers whose spouses die before age 62. In many cases the new method will result in a higher benefit rate. This provision is effective for widows or widowers who become eligible for benefits beginning January, 1985.

Increase benefits to disabled widows and widowers, ages 50-59, to 71.5 percent of the unreduced benefit amount the deceased worker would have received. Previously, a disabled survivors benefit rate ranged from 50 to 71.5 percent. This provision is effective after December, 1983.

—Permit payment of benefits to a divorced spouse at 62, even though the former spouse has not filed an application or is not receiving benefits because of work, provided the divorce has been in effect at least 2 years and the former spouse is eligible for benefits. This provision is effective starting January, 1985.

—Change the benefit formula to reduce benefits for workers who are eligible for a pension based on work not covered by Social Security, but who have also worked long enough in jobs covered by Social Security to be eligible for Social Security retirement or disability benefits. The new formula will apply to workers who first become eligible for both retirement benefits (they reach age 62) or disability benefits and for a pension from noncovered employment after

December, 1985. (However, this new formula will generally not apply to current employees whose work was newly covered by this legislation.)

—Gradually increase the delayed retirement credit, now 3 percent for each year a worker does not receive benefits between the full-benefit retirement age (now age 65) and age 70 because of work, to 8 percent a year between 1990 and 2008.

—Liberalize the annual earnings test, the measure used to determine whether, and to what extent, benefits can be paid, for people 65 and over starting in 1990. Under the present test, $1 in benefits is withheld for each $2 of earnings above the annual exempt amount for people 65 and over. Starting in 1990, $1 in benefits will be withheld for each $3 of earnings above the annual exempt amounts for people 65 and over. (Beginning in the year 2000, the age at which this withholding rate applies will increase as the retirement age increases.)

—Apply the government pension offset, which causes a reduction in Social Security spouse's and surviving spouse's benefits for people who receive a pension based on their own work for a Federal, State, or local government not covered by Social Security, to two-thirds of the pension for people who first become eligible for a pension after June 1983. Presently, the full amount of the pension is offset against the Social Security spouse's benefit.

—Supplemental Security Income payments will be increased by $20 for an individual and $30 for a couple, effective July 1983.

A free leaflet, "Social Security Strengthened," which tells about all the changes made in the Social Security system, is available from the Big Sandy Area Social Security office, located on U.S. 23 between Prestonsburg and Paintsville.

ANNOUNCE BIRTH

Mr. and Mrs. David Maynard, of Endicott, announce the birth of a son, David Benjamin, on March 26 at Highlands Regional Medical Center. Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. E.J. Goble, of Cow Creek, and Mrs. Margie Maynard, of Endicott, and the late Bill Maynard.

"East Kentucky Needs a Governor Who Relates To Our Area."

Kentucky's budget for the next two years is in excess of $5 billion dollars. That's $1400 for every man, woman and child in Kentucky. Many of our East Kentucky people feel that our area doesn't share equitably in the distribution of state funds and many feel that the reason we do not is that there hasn't been a Governor of Kentucky with East Kentucky roots in the last 25 years. We have an opportunity this time to change this.

Grady Stumbo is a native born East Kentucky man and proud of it. From his boyhood in a small mining camp to chief executive officer of state government's largest, most complex agency, Grady Stumbo has always been an advocate for our area and our people. Each election year, candidates trek up to the Mountains and tell us of their interest in our area, then leave the area and go back to their homes. Grady Stumbo doesn't have to leave East Kentucky to go home; East Kentucky is home.

East Kentucky has special people with special needs. Our people want and deserve jobs at wages sufficient to allow them to provide for their families. Of all the major candidates, Grady Stumbo speaks to the need for responsible development of our mining and timber resources, development of our agriculture economy and re-vitalization of our construction and manufacturing industries. That's why Kentucky's working people are supporting Grady Stumbo for Governor. Vote for Grady Stumbo—it's a vote for progress for East Kentucky.

Named to Golden 100

Two of Kentucky's highest honors for high school students have been awarded to the son of a former Floyd countian. Donald Rudolph Laferty, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Laferty, of Clearfield, was chosen in March to the Golden 100, a group of Kentucky's most outstanding high school juniors. He was nominated by his high school, Rowan County Senior High at Morehead.

More than 50,000 high school juniors were eligible for selection. From those 400 were nominated and then the top 100 were chosen on the basis of academic records and leadership ability. An academic tournament was held at Murray State University, March 27-28.

Young Laferty has also been chosen, upon recommendation of faculty and Rowan County Superintendent John Brock, to represent Rowan County Senior High in the Governor's Scholars program this summer. The five-week session will be held at Centre College in Danville. Students are selected for the program on the basis of academic excellence, personal and leadership qualities. Tuition, room and board are free to the approximately 250 delegates. The theme of the program is, "Science, Technology and Kentucky's Future."

Donald is the son of Donald Laferty, formerly of Martin, and Carol Fraley Laferty, formerly of Dungannon, Virginia. He is the grandson of Jesse Laferty, of Martin, and the late Zelda Laferty.

Among his honors and activities are Society of Distinguished American High School Students, Who's Who in Music, All-District Band, first chair in trumpet, as well as many clubs and organizations.

He plays guitar in jazz band and trumpet in the concert and marching bands. He holds a 4.0 grade point average at the end of his junior year, and is a member of Morehead First Christian Church.

State Gets $816,300
For Parks, Recreation

Kentucky has been allocated $816,300 as part of a new $50 million nation-wide park and recreational development program, the U.S. Small Business Administration announced today.

In Kentucky, this program will be administered by the Kentucky Department of Local Government, Richard D. Cole, commissioner.

Commissioner Cole recommended that Kentucky communities, counties and other organizations that may be interested in the program should delay contacting his office until local guidelines are established. The Kentucky Area Development District Offices will be asked to participate in developing and administering the program. Specific information will be available in early May. The Federal Jobs Bill limits the use of these funds for landscaping development and rehabilitation of parks and other recreational facilities.

B.R. Wells, district director of the Louisville office for SBA, said the program is part of the overall Jobs Bill signed into law by President Reagan on March 24 and the $50 million was voted "for the specific purpose of involving small business in providing jobs during a time of high unemployment to accomplish benefits of lasting value." Governors or their designated officials have until July 1 to apply for the funds. All projects must be completed by October 1.

States can do the tree and shrub planting directly or through qualified small businesses. Those businesses, according to SBA regulations published in the Federal Register, must have 70 or fewer employees.

Individuals employed on the projects, either directly by the State or through a small business contractor, must not have full-time employment at the time and must not be drawing unemployment compensation at the time.

The first compilation of monthly employment figures was by the Massachusetts Bureau of Labor in 1886, according to "Labor Firsts in America," a publication of the U.S. Department of Labor.

Commissioners of the Beaver Elkhorn Water District will hold their regular monthly meeting Wednesday, April 27, at 6:30 p.m. in the water office at Estill. JAMES A. SCOTT

TO THE VOTERS OF FLOYD COUNTY

It never ceases to amaze me what some people won't do to get attention in a political race. Politics can get nasty if you go along with the crowd. However, I feel that I must clarify a few statements.

Last week there was an advertisement in the Floyd County Times stating that I quit my position in the Clerk's office. It seems odd that when two people are involved in a conversation alone, how two other outside individuals can state that I was not fired. People who make false statements will only get their reward in the end.

Below is an article printed in the Floyd County Times on March 9, 1983, stating the "Firing" views:

Opposing Candidates State 'Firing' Views

Carla Boyd said she was fired by County Clerk Thomas Lafferty, Jr. Monday, shortly after she officially entered the race for county clerk.

Lafferty denied he fired Miss Boyd. Rather, he said, he wanted her to stay on in the clerk's office and hoped she would resist those he said were pressuring her to seek the office of her late uncle, C. Ollie Robinson. Nevertheless, he considered it "only fair" that she resign if she insisted on running, he said.

Semantics aside, Boyd was not working in the clerk's office as of Monday morning. Lafferty, who was recently appointed by his uncle, Judge-Executive Jerry Lafferty, Jr. to fill the vacancy created by Robinson's death, announced on Monday his intention of seeking election for the rest of Robinson's unexpired term.

Boyd, who ran the clerk's office during her uncle's last illness and who made no secret of the fact that she had hoped to be named to succeed him, insists she is in the clerk's race to stay and indicated she may fight to get her old job back in the meantime.

"There is no county law that says you can't hold a job and run for office," said Boyd, who hinted she might file a grievance with the state Labor Department over her ouster.

There was also an article in the Mountain Chronicle, published April 20, 1983, stating that funds were missing from February. The funds are NOT missing, the state auditor is now doing the audit and he can verify that the monies have been deposited in the proper accounts.

This again is just another way to play the dirty political game.

I am asking for you, the good people of Floyd County, to realize what others are trying so desperately to achieve, that you will see through all their mumbo-jumbo and continue supporting me, the one who is running the race to do the best for all Floyd Countians. Thank you and.....

Sincerely,
Carla Robinson Boyd

Mime Group in Free Performance Here

Offering a free public performance Thursday night is My Nose Turns Red, a small theater company which is originally from Lexington but is now based in Cincinnati. The company specializes in creating original pieces from the oldest forms of theater—mime, clowning, juggling and dance. The players conducted a series of workshops this week for "gifted and talented" students at Clark, Martin, McDowell, Osborne and Prestonsburg grade schools. Thursday's public performance will be in the Pike auditorium at Prestonsburg Community College, from 7:30 to 9 p.m. Their visit here is made possible by a grant from the Kentucky Arts Council.

Special Profiles Generous Doctor

KET presents a narrative documentary about a noted heart surgeon who saved the life of a seven-year-old Filipino boy. "The Most Endangered Species: Dr. Denton Cooley" airs Wednesday, May 18 at 9:00 p.m.

Dennis Rayoan was born with congenital heart defects and his family, who lived in the slums of Manila, could not afford treatment. His father contacted Dr. Cooley for help and the special follows the boy's experience from his homeland to the Texas Heart Institute in Houston.

Throughout the story is a profile of Dr. Cooley, one of the world's foremost heart surgeons. "The Most Endangered Species: Dr. Denton Cooley" shows never-before-seen footage of heart transplant operations, as well as the doctor's generosity in helping those who cannot afford his services.

"The Most Endangered Species: Dr. Denton Cooley" is a production of Mafuta Mingi Productions.

Birth Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Doug Horn announce the birth of their second child, a son, Joshua Mitchell, on April 14. Grandparents are Bill and Lucille Adkins, of Prestonsburg, and the late Peggy Napier, also of Prestonsburg.

Lower Dropout Rate Is Conference Topic

Dropout Prevention is the topic of a statewide conference April 26-27 in Louisville at Executive West sponsored by the Kentucky Department of Education.

The conference will feature programs from local school districts that have been successful in keeping kids in school.

Superintendent of Public Instruction Raymond Barber appointed a task force to help local school districts plan programs to prevent dropouts.

Educators, community leaders, parents and students are invited to attend the conference.

East Point Plane Crash Kills Cattle; Pilot Is Unhurt

Three cows were killed shortly after noon, Friday when a Troy, Mich. man was forced to crash-land his single-engine aircraft in a field at East Point.

Fred Junod, returning from Florida to his home in Michigan, "belly flopped" the four-passenger plane in an area of bottomland on the farm of Taylor Price, a short distance across the Floyd county line into Johnson county, when his engine died in mid-air, it was reported.

Three of the cattle grazing in the field were killed as the foundering craft touched down.

Junod, a band director in the Troy school system, was taken to Highlands Regional Medical Center by members of the Floyd County Emergency & Rescue Squad for observation and later released.

State Police and units of the Johnson County Sheriff's Department responded to the mishap as well as several members of the Dewey Lake Composite Squadron and Pike (county) Rangers Squadron of the Civil Air Patrol (C.A.P.), who remained with the plane as a safeguard against vandalism, until an F.C.C. investigation was concluded the following day. C.A.P. personell also transported Junod to Pikeville where he caught a ride on a mail plane to Lexington and later home to Michigan.

The plane, which was removed by truck to Somerset, sustained extensive damage although it was not believed "totalled."

Misfortune Plagues Family Moving Here

Misfortune has dogged Birchell Hicks and his family since the day they left Indiana to return to this county.

The trip "back home" was interrupted April 8 when the brakes of a bus-camper containing a part of their household effects failed as it followed the Hicks station wagon down Abbott mountain. The result was a collision. The station wagon burst into flames. Mrs. Hicks and five-year-old daughter Nancy suffered severe burns and are yet being treated at the Norton Burns Center, Louisville. Mr. Hicks received lesser burns but was not dismissed from an area hospital till April 15. Less seriously burned were the couple's other daughter, Angie, 13, and the Rev. Dewey Conley who reached into the flaming vehicle to rescue five-year-old Nancy after family members had failed to reach the child.

The family's belongings were later taken to their original destination, a dwelling owned by Sola Burchett at Bays Branch. And Thursday night, April 14, a day before Mr. Hicks' release from the hospital, that home burned.

Nothing was saved. Neither gas nor electricity had been turned on, it was said. Lightning and arson are being considered as possible causes of the blaze.

Big Sandy Crusade Rally Slated Here

The Big Sandy Area Crusade will hold its first rally at the First Baptist Church (Irene Cole Memorial) here at 7:30 p.m. Monday, May 2. Evangelist Jesse Buell, who will be the evangelist for the crusade, will be the speaker at this rally.

The choir from the Fitzpatrick First Baptist Church will render special music for the evening worship service. Reports from all the committees involved will be presented, and special needs will be made known.

Everyone in the area is invited to attend.

The crusade itself will be held July 17-30 under a huge tent at the mouth of Cowpen on U.S. 23, between Prestonsburg and Pikeville.

The first use of public construction bonds for the alleviation of unemployment was in New York City in 1854, according to "Labor Firsts in America," a publication of the U.S. Department of Labor.

Pharmacy Footnotes

By HAROLD COOLEY

Drug tolerance results in the body's needing a higher dose to get the same response as previously attained. Tolerance can result from specific antagonistic enzymes in the body which detoxify the drug. Or, the body's cells may simply become less sensitive to a drug. A possible danger arises because the body may more rapidly tolerate beneficial effects of a drug while adverse effects are slowly tolerated. In the case of some sleeping pills, the margin of error between an effective dose and a lethal dose may be largely reduced. For this reason, great care and consultation with a physician must be observed.

If you have been taking a particular medication for a long time, you may want to discuss whether or not the drug still has beneficial effects, with your physician. Here at COOLEY APOTHECARY, INC., we have a full service prescription center and a pharmacist is always here to answer your health related questions. You'll also find home health care aids and convalescent items. Located at No. 2 Town Center Bldg. Mon.-Fri., 9-5:30; Sat., 9-4. VISA and Mastercard welcome. 886-8106.

HAND HINT:
 Be sure that you maintain a large therapeutic safety ratio as your tolerance to a drug builds.

Rehab Services Cut
To 20% of Disabled

Laurel True, head of vocational rehabilitation in the Kentucky Department of Education, announced today that beginning April 15 vocational rehabilitation services are not available to approximately 20 percent of disabled clients.

True stressed that disabled individuals currently receiving services, including those clients at the Eastern Kentucky Comprehensive Rehabilitation Center in Thelma, will not be affected by the ruling.

"When it is determined that all eligible clients cannot be served, the state must assure that individuals with severe disabilities will be served first," True said. "This means that persons classified as non-severely disabled by federal regulation cannot be provided purchased services." He said several states have been forced to take similar action.

He said numerous cost-saving measures have been initiated by the agency since January 1980 including a 26 percent reduction in staff. True cited as causes for the action of the following:

Rising health care costs; 78 percent increase in number of clients accepted; 12 percent increase in number of severely disabled clients served; loss of support services due to cuts in other programs at state and national levels; and loss of direct benefits to the disabled population causing demand to outstrip the resources of the agency.

Continuous reviews of the agency's financial status will be conducted to determine when services can be restored to those disabled individuals affected by the action, True said.

State Bd. Again Calls For Higher Standards

Following testimony in Frankfort, the state Board of Education gave a second endorsement to more strenuous academic standards for Kentucky students.

The board first approved the tougher requirements, submitted by Superintendent of Public Instruction Raymond Barber, at a February meeting.

Those recommendations include:

- * requiring a minimum of six hours instructional time in a school day excluding lunch and recess;

- * increasing graduation requirements from 18 to 20 credits;

- * requiring ninth and 10th graders to take two English, two science and two math full year courses before the end of their sophomore year;

- * and teaching citizenship at the sixth-, seventh- or eighth-grade level.

Plans call for the citizenship requirement to be phased in by the 1987-88 school year to coincide with adoption of new social studies textbooks.

The two credit increase required for graduation will affect students entering high school in the fall of 1983.

Barber said that he did not perceive the new requirements as a "revolution in education" but part of a master plan developed when he took office as superintendent of public instruction.

Dr. Donald Hunter, head of the bureau of instruction with the Department of Education, maintains that the new 20-credit requirement for graduation will improve educational planning by students.

Complete In-Service Course

Both Coroner Roger Nelson and Asst. Coroner Glen Frazier have successfully completed coroner's in-service training at Louisville.

The training course was conducted by the Department of Training for coroners and deputy coroners who are to be certified by the Kentucky Justice Cabinet in meeting state standards for death scene investigations. Coroners and deputy coroners who wish to be certified as meeting the state standards must successfully complete a 36-hour basic training course and each year thereafter complete an 18-hour inservice training course.

Good News Report

By THOMAS W. PAUKEN
Director of ACTION

An idea can be like a stone thrown in a pond, its ripple effect reaching out to the far shore. Caroline Donnan, third grade teacher at Weybridge Elementary School in Weybridge, Vermont, had such an idea, and through her efforts its ripple-effect has reached halfway around the world. In so doing, the school's 78 pupils have been directly influenced, and through their own efforts, Caroline's idea is now at work, saving young lives in distant lands.

The school's lunchroom was the pond into which Caroline tossed her idea. What stimulated it was her observation of how much food was wasted by the children every day at mealtime, anywhere from 15 to 30 pounds. Caroline brought her concern to Mrs. Ross, the school principal. That was in the fall of 1981, and the result was that Mrs. Ross and her staff of five teachers initiated a nutrition program. The program included everything from outside speakers to family-style eating—with table manners observed; children taking turns waiting on tables; and a Waste Watch system begun with the amount of wasted food weighed daily and indicated on a graph.

The idea also rippled into the classroom—mathematics used to figure hot lunch costs; reports written on visits to a dairy farm and apple orchard. A poster contest on meal planning and lunch packing was a big attraction. In English class, the children studied fables where food was used as a means to convey the moral. In social studies they learned the whys and wherefores of economic and political difficulties in world food distribution.

It was in this last point that troubled Caroline. Sure you can save food and talk about global hunger, but you can't ask children to mail peas in an envelope.

Shortly after the new school year began, she contacted UNICEF and explained the Waste Watch program. She learned about a food product called K-Mix II, a supplement that saves the lives of starving children. The question was: how to translate the Waste Watch into K-Mix II?

At New Year's, the local newspapers published a story under the heading, "Children Challenge Community to New Year's Resolution." The challenge was this: the students at Weybridge had determined to cut the amount of food wasted to less than a pound a day. For every day they succeeded they were asking community residents to volunteer whatever amount of money they chose. At the end of the month, the amount pledged would be sent to UNICEF to buy K-Mix II for starving children. Today there are 45 regular contributors to the Weybridge School Waste Watchfarm families, teacher's families, organizations, a Middlebury College fraternity, even "a mom in Massachusetts"—a broad cross section of New Englanders.

Every day at the school a student is chosen by lot to be the next day's Waste Watcher. It is his or her job, after the noon meal is over, to weigh the wasted food. The following day, the student announces the results and places the amount on a chart before the entire student body. If the amount is less than a pound, the cheers follow and the figure of a child is placed on the Common Room wall. There are 247 figures there now, and they soon will have them circling the entire room.

As for her idea, Caroline says, "The real credit must go to our 78 children who are making the Waste Watch a loving reality each day."

All this grew from an idea tossed into the classroom pond in rural Vermont, with many volunteers reaching out to help children in need half a world away.

Protecting Your Pet from Disease

By MAHENDRA R. VARIA, D.V.M.,
Just as a fire is easier to prevent than to put out, disease is easier to prevent than to cure. Pet owners who are the most conscientious about preventive medicine for their pets have healthier pets and spend less money on veterinary services. Many pet owners are conscientious about preventive medicine but are not sure what they should do.

There are four elements in a preventive program: vaccinations, stool examination, physical examination and, for dogs, a heartworm test.

Vaccinations that should be given to puppies when they are six to eight weeks old include DHLPP (distemper, hepatitis, leptospirosis and parainfluenza) and parvovirus. Rabies vaccine is usually given after the puppy series.

Cats are given vaccines for "cat distemper" at 6-8 weeks and for rabies after the kitten series.

Canine distemper is prevalent worldwide, is present year round, is very contagious and is usually fatal in puppies. An affected dog often appears to have a cold.

Hepatitis localizes in the kidneys. It can range in severity from a slight fever to a fatal illness. Leptospirosis in dogs usually produces no visible symptoms but can do irreparable damage to the kidneys, liver, and gastrointestinal tract. Parainfluenza can trigger "kennel cough," which can reach epidemic proportions where a large group of dogs is concentrated.

Canine parvovirus appeared suddenly in the summer of 1978, spread quickly and is one of the most serious diseases in dogs. Rabies, which is on the increase nationwide, is an acute inflammation of the brain and spinal cord.

"Cat distemper" (feline panleukopenia), the most virulent and devastating of all diseases in cats, is highly contagious and characterized by sudden onset, fever, loss of appetite, and depression. Cats are also vulnerable to rhinotracheitis and calicivirus, two respiratory diseases.

Most puppies and kittens have worms and rare is the grown dog or cat that does not need deworming occasionally. With proper treatment the common worms are nothing to worry about. But they can become serious when neglected or when the dog is dosed with some patent remedy that may remove only part of the worm infestation.

A stool examination for worms is one of the most important points in preventive medicine for your pet. Every puppy and kitten needs deworming and mature animals should be dewormed in spring and fall.

A physical examination is especially important in older pets. Sometimes blood tests, urine tests and X-rays are recommended.

A heartworm test is recommended for dogs every spring.

'Supertrain' Choice Questioned On 'Nova'

High-speed trains are finally coming to America. But a "NOVA" investigation, encoring Tuesday, May 10, at 8 p.m., on KET, raises questions about the huge construction program about to begin.

"Tracking the Supertrains" reports that the Japanese trains were chosen over faster French, cheaper British and Canadian, and sturdier but slower American models. That choice was recommended by former Amtrak officials who had received a $5 million gift from Japanese financier Ryoichi Sasagawa to study the matter. The hour-long "NOVA" program asks whether this was a proper way to make such a momentous technological choice.

Perhaps more important, the California Bullet is in danger of becoming obsolete before it's built, as energy-efficient magnetic levitation vehicles, capable of speeds up to 500 mph, become operational. Germany and Japan are in hot competition to build these first commercial Maglevs; ironically, their progress is based on pioneering work done by United States engineers—work which was squelched by lack of public interest.

"Tracking the Supertrains" is a production of WGBH, Boston.

11th Birthday

Sam Stevie Burchett celebrated his 11th birthday, April 17, at his home at Pyramid. He is the son of Audrey and Sam Burchett and the grandson of Oma Jarrell and the late Lonnie Jarrell, of Cow Creek.

He received gifts from his family and friends. His birthday party was given by his sister, Geneva Jervis, and his grandmother, Oma Jarrell.

Social Skills at Three Years Old

A three-year-old is usually gregarious, full of talk, and willing to be friends with other children.

But in strange social situations even the most outgoing child may suddenly turn anxious, fearful, and clinging, according to Growing Child, the monthly child development newsletter.

An only child may be overwhelmed by a group of as few as four strange children. Even a normally friendly child may be unable to adapt to strange children if she is under stress—like adjusting to a new baby at home.

Pushing a child forward and insisting that she makes a place for herself in a group of strange children who are already involved in play is not a good idea. This only adds to the child's anxiety and tension.

Parents sometimes seem to expect social skills of children that they do not expect of themselves! We forget the sinking feeling that we have when we find ourselves all alone in a social group of strangers. In fact, most of us avoid such situations by saying, "If I have to go alone, I won't go!"

Yet we expect a socially inexperienced child to feel comfortable and happy under the same circumstances.

Three-year-olds are capable of cooperative play. They enjoy it but are not yet very experienced in social interaction. It takes time and experience to share toys comfortably, to take turns, to role play, to play together in a group. She needs the support and reassurance that only her parents can give as she attempts to strike out into the social order of her peers.

The Growing Child newsletter follows a child's development month-by-month. For more information and a free sample copy of the newsletter, write Growing Child, P.O. Box 620N, Lafayette, Indiana, 47902. Include child's birthdate when writing.

'Sons and Lovers' In Seven-Part TV Series

The novel that first won D.H. Lawrence fame is "Sons and Lovers," judged by some to be his greatest work. Published in 1913 when he was 28, it is his autobiographical story, reflecting much of his early life in a British mining community. A seven-part television dramatization of "Sons and Lovers" debuts on "Masterpiece Theatre" Sunday, May 15 at 9 p.m.

Filmed on location in Lawrence's own town of Nottinghamshire, "Sons and Lovers" is the story of a mother's obsessive love for the most artistic and sensitive of her sons and its shattering impact on the son's relationships with two young women. As "Masterpiece Theatre" host Alistair Cooke defines the story, it is the Lawrence novel "least cluttered with (his) sermons, fetishes and contemptuous outbursts against the world around him."

British television critics praised the series for its "dramatic viability," saying it captured the novel "exactly right." They especially applauded the cast, saying Eileen Atkins as Gertrude Morel, the mother, is "good, strong, convincing, with just the right balance of arrogance and desperation" and Tom Bell delivers a "memorable performance" as Walter Morel, the father who turns to drink because he can't live up to his wife's standards.

Karl Johnson portrays Paul Morel, the young Lawrence, with a "convincing performance." Critics were enthusiastic about Leonie Mellinger as Miriam, the soulful young woman with whom Paul has a "tortuous adolescent relationship" and Lynn Dearth as Clara Dawes, the worldly-wise woman who succeeds Miriam in Paul's life.

British playwright-TV writer Trevor Griffith adapted the BBC-20th Century-Fox co-production, which is produced by Jonathan Powell and directed by Stuart Burge.

Seven-Time Tony Winner To Open Jenny Wiley Season

After seven Tony Awards and six years on Broadway, ANNIE is coming to Prestonsburg. The Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre will premiere the first non-Broadway resident production as the opener of its 19th consecutive season at the Jenny Wiley State Resort Park Amphitheatre on Saturday, June 25, at 8:30 p.m.

"We are so proud...being the first theatre in the nation to receive the rights to produce the play," said Managing Director John McCann. "It's a wonderful musical. Of its seven Tony Awards it received, one was for best musical, one for best book, and one for best score. ANNIE is a solid hit." McCann added. In addition to ANNIE, Jenny Wiley is also presenting the longest-running Broadway show ever, GREASE. The season is rounded out with a Blue Grass fantasy, THE ROBBER BRIDE-GROOM, which first appeared on Broadway in 1977, and was last presented at Jenny Wiley in 1978.

ANNIE, Harold Gray's lovable cartoon character, comes to joyous life in this sentimental and warmhearted musical that overflows with fond spirits. Saved from the dreadful orphanage tyrannically controlled by Miss Hannigan, Annie and her dog, Sandy find love and security with Daddy Warbucks in mid-depression 1933.

GREASE, takes one back to the wild and innocent world of Rydell High, class of 1959. A smash Broadway hit and Hollywood movie, this musical captures those never-to-be-forgotten days of boys with hot-rods and D.A.'s flirting with girls in bobby sox who swap the "latest gossip" at all night pajama parties. The music and the dancing are light-hearted rock n' roll, as the greasers and their dates play the courting game at the prom and the burger shack.

An outrageous cast of characters create mayhem, music and pure old down-home fun in THE ROBBER BRIDE-GROOM set along the Natchez Trace in the early 1800's. THE ROBBER BRIDE-GROOM has all the ingredients of a first-rate family musical—a heroine languishing for her mysterious lover, a villainous mother-in-law, a handsome gentleman-robber, and a slew of oddball characters who sing and dance their way through this script based on Eudora Welty's prize winning novel.

"We are more excited about this season than any in the past," said McCann. "We feel we have the best, most well-rounded season ever."

In addition to the new season, the Jenny Wiley Amphitheatre will have a totally new look this summer. Thanks to the continuous support of Kentucky Parks Commissioner Lou Karibo, and the generosity of several Eastern Kentucky individual s, organizations and corporations, the theatre is being totally renovated to include new rest room facilities, additional office space, renovated dressing rooms, expanded concession facilities, and the most important item is the addition of new, permanent, individual seating. "The seating is the most needed renovation," said McCann. "The assistance of our local supporters and the Parks Commission will never be forgotten," McCann added.

The 1983 summer season opens on Saturday, June 25, and runs through Sunday, August 21. Performances are nightly, Wednesday through Sunday at 8:30. Season tickets are available now by writing: Box Office, Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre, P.O. Box 22, Prestonsburg, Ky. 41653; or calling 606-886-9274.

NOTICE

Due to increased cost of natural gas from our supplier, Kentucky West Virginia Gas Company, the Prestonsburg City's Utilities Commission regretfully has to pass this increase on to its customers. Effective May 1, 1983, the Prestonsburg City's Utilities gas rates will be increased $49 per thousand cubic feet of gas. The new rates are as follows:

Inside Corporation Rates First 1,000 cu. ft. - $6.02 minimum All over 1,000 cu. ft. - $5.72 per 1,000 Outside Corporation Rates First 1,000 cu. ft. - $7.22 minimum All over 1,000 cu. ft. - $6.22 per 1,000

PRESTONSBURG CITY'S UTILITIES COMMISSION Bill H. Howard, Supt. 4-20-2t.

Columbia Official Tells Views on High Gas Rates

By MARVIN E. WHITE
Chairman, Columbia Gas of Kentucky

We in the natural gas industry are very concerned about the financial hardship that many utility customers face today, and the Reagan Administration has recognized the problem, too. But the natural gas bill that the Administration has proposed in Congress would not bring prices down any time soon. Instead, it would allow them to rise further.

Action by Congress is badly needed to deal with the natural gas issue, and it should be directed to the heart of the problem—which is that the price of natural gas simply is too high.

The Natural Gas Policy Act of 1978 (NGPA) started us toward a desired goal of a free market for gas—by a gradual removal of many stifling federal regulations. What we have today, however, is a situation where there is more gas available than is needed by gas consumers, but the price keeps rising. This is because the way the Act works is to influence gas prices in only one direction—up. What we need are adjustments to reverse that steady upward movement.

The Administration believes the way to lower costs is to remove federal price controls at the wellhead on all gas—both "new" gas, developed since 1977, and "old," low-cost gas. This is what we in Columbia believe to be the most serious flaw in the Administration bill. The price of "old" gas, under present law, would remain under federal controls, and we believe that should not be changed.

The Administration's theory is that we would get a lower average price for all gas by allowing producers to get a higher price for the "old," low-priced gas while permitting the principal purchasers—interstate gas supplier companies—to negotiate a lower price for the "new," or more expensive gas.

The Administration expects this result from a provision in its bill to give either the purchaser or producer a one-shot chance to terminate a gas-producer contract—through a "market-out" clause—effective in 1985.

Based on Columbia's experience, it is extremely doubtful that producers would agree to renegotiate lower prices on contracts covering "new" gas immediately after enactment of the Administration proposal. Producers can be expected to try to maintain high prices for "new" gas, particularly for gas that already has been deregulated (such as the most expensive, very deep gas) for as long as possible, or at least until 1985 when buyers could exercise the "market-out" option.

At the same time, producers of "old" gas would most certainly insist on higher prices for that less expensive gas if it were deregulated. And if the original purchaser did not match a higher offer for the gas, the producer, after next year, could cancel the contract and sell it to the higher bidder.

The result as we see it will only be higher, not lower, consumer prices if "old" gas price controls are removed at the same time all controls are lifted on "new" gas. Columbia is against deregulation of any gas not already intended to be deregulated under the NGPA because this would raise the price to consumers unnecessarily.

Corrective legislation is urgently needed, however, from Congress to give gas suppliers more flexibility in contracts with producers. Specifically, such legislation should include these provisions:

—In all contracts that require a gas purchaser to accept or pay a producer for a minimum percentage of contract volumes, there should be a limit of 50% on such "take-or-pay" obligations for three years.

—A market-out option on gas-purchase contracts should be effective immediately on passage of legislation, but only for gas already deregulated or scheduled to be deregulated—not "old" gas.

—"Most favored nation" clauses should be banned in both existing and new gas purchase contracts as against public policy. These clauses permit gas purchase contracts as against public policy. These clauses permit gas contracts to automatically "track" the highest prices paid to producers under other gas contracts, are anticompetitive and have a tendency to ratchet prices upward irrespective of the purchaser's market conditions.

—Contracts covering more than one price category of gas should be considered as separate contracts. Presently, when it becomes necessary to reduce gas "takes" from a producer with both "old" and "new" gas sources, the producer often primarily cuts back on deliveries of the low-cost, "old" gas, and thereby increases the percentage of high-cost gas delivered to the buyer and ultimately to the consumer.

The complex bill that the Administration has proposed inevitably means there will be lengthy congressional debate. But financial hardship on consumers resulting from the current situation, primarily involving inflexible gas-purchase contracts, makes it essential that Congress act as promptly as possible to relieve the burden on consumers.

Air Mark Twain Epic

A two-hour film dramatization of Mark Twain's epic chronicle of a young man's coming of age on America's greatest river, "Life on the Mississippi" will air in the "Great Performances" series on Monday, May 16, 10 p.m.

This encore performance is a fictionalization of 18 months in the life of Mark Twain when, as a young man, he fulfilled a long-dreamed-of boyhood ambition to become a river pilot.

Robert Lansing stars as Horace Bixby, the experienced pilot who assumes the responsibility for "learning the river" to an eager, if often bumbling cub, and David Knell plays the apprentice "Sam," a figure based on Twain himself.

The host for the series is one of America's finest and best known novelists, Kurt Vonnegut, Jr., who is himself a Twain scholar. Vonnegut will offer background and personal commentary on the program.

Feeding Hungry Topic Of Meet in Frankfort

Feeding the hungry is the topic of a one-day statewide conference set for 9 a.m., May 3, at the Civic Center Auditorium in Frankfort. The Cabinet for Human Resources is bringing together people and agencies interested in starting a nutrition center or expanding existing meal programs. A wide range of governmental, social, religious and community organizations are being asked to send representatives to discuss how to obtain the food, manpower and funding needed to operate a meals program.

"Because of increased unemployment and cutbacks in public assistance, many more people are dependent on food distribution programs," said Human Resources Secretary Buddy Adams.

To meet growing needs, the cabinet's Department for Social Insurance has stepped up its efforts to obtain United States Department of Agriculture commodity food for distribution. Nearly 2.5 million pounds of cheese are being given out monthly, and the department expects to begin distributing other foods in the next few months.

"We will bring in all the food we can get," said Secretary Adams. "But more people can be fed if our efforts are combined with the many programs throughout the state where community citizens are preparing and serving meals every day. That's why I called this conference," said Secretary Adams.

The Department for Social Insurance is mailing conference invitations to agencies and individuals throughout the state who are identified with nutritional programs. Others interested in attending may write to Barbara Anderson, Kentucky's Nutritional Support Project, Cabinet for Human Resources, 275 E. Main St., Frankfort, or call 502-564-7514.

BENNY RAY BAILEY

"A SENATOR FOR THE WORKING PEOPLE"

STATE SENATOR BENNY RAY BAILEY

The United States of America has grown into the greatest Nation in the World on the strength of the common man. The people who settled this Nation and those who followed formed a Nation that rewards hard work more than any other Nation in the world.

The belief of our people that everyone should have a clean, safe working environment and that hard work should be rewarded with an honest day's pay has guided our economic development and allows our people to enjoy the highest standard of living in the world. Government leaders must understand that our working people are the backbone of our Nation and programs that benefit our working people should be supported; those that are not in the best interest of our working people should be opposed.

Senator Benny Ray Bailey knows the concerns of Kentucky's working people. Throughout his life, from his experience as a service station attendant, factory worker, public school teacher, college professor, health care administrator and state senator, Benny Ray has always championed the cause of Kentucky's workers. In the State Senate, Benny Ray has always come down squarely on the side of the working people.

"The revision in the worker's compensation law in 1980 and the abolition of the prevailing wage law in 1982 are two of the most unfair laws imaginable for Kentucky workers. A job related disability doesn't stop after 425 weeks and neither should the payment for that disability; Kentucky workers deserve to be paid the same amount as workers in other areas for the same type of work. I'm proud that I worked against both these pieces of legislation in senate committees, on the senate floor and voted against both pieces of legislation. I will continue to have my actions as state senator guided by what's best for the working people of Kentucky because when our people are working and earning sufficient wages, all Kentucky prospers."

On every issue of importance to the common, working people of Kentucky, Benny Ray Bailey has supported them. That's why Benny Ray Bailey was selected as the Outstanding Freshman Senator in the 1980 Session; that's why the United Mine Workers, the United Automobile Workers, the United Steel Workers, the Kentucky Transportation League, the Kentucky AFL-CIO and the Kentucky Education Association have endorsed Benny Ray for re-election and ask their members and everyone who supports the rights of Kentucky's working people to vote for and work for Senator Bailey's re-election. That's why the people of East Kentucky need to keep Senator Bailey on the job.

No Coal Tax Checks Issued For LGEAP

Although the Revenue Cabinet has not changed its estimate of the coal severance tax, the Secretary of Finance has exercised his option and decided to issue no checks from the Local Government Economic Assistance program for the third quarter.

Secretary Fisher bases his action on a number of factors:

March receipts of coal severance tax were only a little more than $14 million, down $12 million from March, 1982.

The total for '82-'83 through March is now only $14.9 million, down 17.5 percent from '81-'82.

In order to reach the estimate of the Revenue Cabinet, receipts would have to average about $19 million for the last three months of this fiscal year, virtually the same as collections in the same three months of '81-'82.

The LGEAP has already paid out $11 million in coal severance funds this year. At that level, total collections would have to total about $200 million for the year. At the current rate of 17.5 percent below last year, collections would total only $196 million.

Counties receiving shares of the severance tax on other minerals have no such problems. With $2,445,848 being paid to those qualifying local governments, those receipts have remained on the targeted estimates.

Roberts Compiles Book of Folklore

"A Family's Repertoire", written by Dr. Leonard Roberts, director of the Appalachian Studies Center at Pikeville College, has been published in "Handbook of American Folklore", edited by Richard M. Dorson. The book contains writings from 75 to 100 experts in various fields of folklore from across the United States.

"For the past five years I have been hovering around the Couch family (subject of Roberts' book) of Harlan and Leslie Counties," says Roberts. "The first two years I lived in the area while doing research on the family."

"I found very early that the father had made banjos and played them for entertainment and square dancing. He won prizes for playing at square dances at the courthouse. Couch's eight children also learned to sing and play the banjo. The family felt a sense of unity in knowing the songs of folklore."

"The mother had been an outstanding storyteller. She would share her stories with her children at home to entertain them and relieve the boredom of hard life living, while working in the fields, in the shade of the yard before supper and at the table to keep the children quiet until pa came home."

Dear Senior Citizens,

As your Lt. Governor and a candidate for Governor I want you to know where I stand on issues that are especially important to you. It is my belief that our Senior Citizens are entitled to safe housing, whether in a residential neighborhood, apartment complex or personal care home. Every Senior Citizen in Kentucky should have prompt medical care and nutritious meals. And, each Senior Citizen has earned our respect.

In the past few years, there has been a tendency in government not only to cut back services, but to whittle away at aiding citizens, young and old, in meeting basic needs. It is time that government returns to helping, not hindering people. As your Governor I want to work for those Kentuckians who must live on a fixed income—yet are faced with spiraling costs for food and utilities. Kentucky needs a Governor who will work for the people of Kentucky and I believe my experience and my commitment to the people I have served in public office, for nearly a decade, best qualify me to be your next Governor.

With your help, I can continue working for you. Your vote for Martha Layne Collins on May 24th will assure that Kentucky will have four years of government that will provide the services you need and deserve.

Sincerely,

Martha Layne Collins

State Unveils Its Plan To Cut Health Care Costs

(In The Lexington Herald-Leader)
A new state health plan designed to slow the rise of medical costs could be bitter medicine for hospitals.
The plan also offers this unpalatable idea for individuals who are victims of heart disease, cancer, strokes and other diseases: Many of them, the report suggests, are victims of smoking, lack of exercise and poor nutrition. In short, their own lifestyle is to blame.

The state would de-emphasize "curative" medicine under the plan and direct more attention to education programs that could help people prevent the onset of serious illnesses.
Whatever the cause of those illnesses, last year the state's hospitals spent a record amount building new facilities for treatment. Some $369 million in capital improvements was approved by the state last year, twice the amount approved in 1981 and about 11 times the amount approved in 1977.

Enough is enough, a committee of the Kentucky State Health Planning Council seems to have said. The council's committee on planning approved a preliminary health plan yesterday and the full council is expected to give at least a tentative OK to it today.

"We've always made the assumption that none of these ideas would float," said state health planning director George Kent. "We think it's time to test the waters."

For starters, the plan would place a $166 million limit on capital expenditures for 1983, less than half the $369 million approved last year.

Hospitals that overbuilt in the past or for any reason have too many empty beds might have those beds taken away from them. A hospital with more than 300 beds, for instance, would have to keep 87 percent of those beds filled or risk losing licenses for some of them.
The state also is overloaded with physicians, according to the plan. Noting that each physician represents at least $9 million of health care expenditures over the course of his career, the plan says the supply of physicians in Kentucky is increasing at a rate faster than anywhere in the nation. The state has 58 percent more physicians than it had in 1970 although population has increased only 13.6 percent.

The state would reorder its educational priorities under the plan by encouraging the training of students in the allied health professions.

Students still in the state's medical schools would get a few more lessons in saving money as well as lives. Both of the state's medical schools would be required to start a department of "Affordable Medicine" which would teach mandatory courses in cost containment and the role of nutrition and lifestyle in health.

Other points of the plan include:
* A three-year ban on the construction of nursing homes.

* Certificates of need—that is, permission from the state for new facilities or programs—would no longer be required for new birthing centers, primary care centers, community hospice programs, rural health centers, urgent-treatment centers, ambulatory surgical centers and home health care programs. State laws must be changed to exempt those types of facilities from the jurisdiction of the state Certificate of Need Board.
* Establishment by the General Assembly of a Rate Review Commission.

* Wherever possible, limit long term institutional health services in favor of in-home services.

* Reward physicians for providing services outside hospitals by giving them preferential Medicaid reimbursement.

* Tax credits for physicians who practice in underserved rural areas.

* Allow Advanced Registered Nurse Practitioners to write prescriptions for noncontrolled drugs.

The plan would designate Lexington and Louisville as tertiary care centers, where the most specialized kinds of care are available. Each hospital in these areas would emphasize different specialties to reduce duplication.

In other areas, one hospital would be designated a Medical Service Center. These hospitals would become regional centers and offer medical specialties and more sophisticated care. MSCs would be given greater freedom to purchase certain equipment and expand but in return would have to offer an array of services and spend designated amounts on indigent care.

The plan's education programs run the gamut from nutritional requirements for day care centers to blood pressure screening for older adults.

One recommendation would encourage the study of living wills whereby individuals could record whether they wanted relatives to employ extraordinary medical means to prolong their lives.

The public has 30 days to send in written comments on the plan and a public hearing will be held May 19. The council will then revise the plan and send it to the governor for his approval.

Sons of Revolution To Meet at Lodge

In connection with its meeting in this county, the Ashland chapter points out that 56 Revolutionary War officers and soldiers settled in Floyd county, that there were 36 pensioners of that war in this county and that 23 Revolutionary War soldiers are buried in the county.

Floyd County Students In Honors Convocation

Dr. Jackie Kleinman, Ohio State University, addressed Pikeville College students at the annual Academic Honors Convocation recently.

Certificates were awarded to students being named to the Fall, 1982 Dean's List and Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges. Two $100 Grandville Church Awards were also presented to Doris Robinson, of Regina, a junior elementary education major, and Patricia Putty, of Pikeville, a secondary education major, who have shown potential for becoming effective teachers.

Floyd county students named to the Dean's List are:

Jeanne Caudill, Tony Childers, Sylvia Marshall and Jane Reynolds, of Allen; Charles Ward, Auxier; Tammy Hall, Bevinsville; Audreyette Moore and Michelle Moore, Drift; Karen Boleyn, Garrett; Roy Johnson, Halo; Coranne Estep, Valeria Hale, Don Spears and Elmer Sturgell, Harold; Vickie King, Hueysville; Nantha Billips, Elizabeth Conley, Terri Hall, Surekha Maddiwar and Jeffrey Sammons, Martin; Jerri Ward, McDowell; Benny May, Ruth Patterson; Jane Wallace, Prestonsburg.

HOW DOES SLOANE REALLY STAND ON GUN CONTROL?

Harvey Sloane is in the process of a flip-flop on gun control. He keeps saying he opposes gun control, but when Louisville aldermen proposed strict qualifications for persons wishing to buy handguns, Harvey said he was in favor of it.

Sloane is becoming famous for taking expedient stances on policy, in this case to please his constituency in Louisville. What I would like to know is how Harvey Sloane can be for gun control in Louisville and Jefferson County and against gun control in the rest of Kentucky?

Martha Layne Collins has taken her stand against gun control laws, and there has been no quibbling or flip-flop on the issue. The people of Eastern Kentucky, who strongly believe the citizens of Kentucky have the right to keep and bear arms, should remember Sloane's wishy-washy stance on this issue when they go to the polls on May 24.

Community Groups To Handle Funds For Food, Shelter

About 100 community organizations around the state will receive new federal funds to provide emergency food and shelter this summer, according to Cabinet for Human Resources Secretary Buddy Adams.

The Federal Emergency Management Agency allocated approximately $880,000 to the Kentucky Department of Military Affairs to provide emergency food and shelter for hungry and homeless individuals. Major General Billy Wellman recommended to Governor John Y. Brown, Jr. that assign the responsibility for administering the funds to the Cabinet for Human Resources.

"I chose to work with local community groups who are close to the people and know the needs," said Secretary Adams. "I am appointing an independent board of labor, business and agency representatives to decide which groups will receive the money," he added.

Further information, forms to be used by agencies to apply for funds, and technical assistance in completing the forms, will be furnished at a one-day conference in Frankfort, May 3, beginning at 9 a.m. at the Frankfort Civic Center Auditorium. The conference is jointly sponsored by the Cabinet for Human Resources' Nutritional Support Project, the Kentucky State AFL-CIO and the Kentucky Retail Federation.

The emergency food and shelter funds for Kentucky are a part of a $50 million appropriation in Public Law 98-8, the "jobs" bill signed by President Reagan March 24.

"Working through our Department for Social Insurance we will select a nine-member board to review applications and make recommendations on what distribution can do the most good for the people with the greatest need," Secretary Adams stated.

Sharon Louetta Martin, resident of Langley and a student at Alice Lloyd College, was selected as the school's most outstanding student in history for the year 1982-83. The award accompanying this selection was presented to Miss Martin by Dr. Charles Martin, associate professor of History, at the honors banquet held at the college, April 20.

In his presentation speech, Dr. Martin noted Sharon's diligence in research and her willingness to expend "one hundred ten percent" effort in order to see a task well done.

Miss Martin, daughter of Clem and Alice Martin, of Langley, is a graduating senior at Alice Lloyd College and has been recognized several times for academic excellence during her four years' study at the college. An elementary education major, she is currently completing her student teaching at Martin Elementary School under the supervision of Mr. James Silliaman, instructor of education.

Grady Stumbo was born and reared in East Kentucky and he's proud of his Mountain heritage. The life story of Grady Stumbo, from his life as a small boy in the coal mining town of McDowell, Ky., to his graduation from medical school to chief executive officer of the largest, most complex state agency, is one that symbolizes the determination, dedication and commitment to service of all East Kentuckians.

Throughout his life, people have told Grady Stumbo what he cannot do. You can't go to medical school...Grady graduated at the top of his class; you can't build a non-profit health care clinic to serve the people of East Kentucky...today that clinic is recognized as the "model" program for all rural America; you can't manage the state's largest agency...today, most agree Grady was the best executive that department ever had. Now, Grady is running for Governor.

Unlike his opponents, Grady Stumbo doesn't have to search picture albums and research his family tree to find his East Kentucky Heritage. He's one of us. He doesn't have a million dollars to glamorize his image or his message. But, as a fellow East Kentuckian, you should recognize that Grady knows the special priorities and needs of East Kentucky and, among the major Democratic candidates, Grady Stumbo is uniquely qualified to speak to our people and our area. Grady Stumbo for Governor. It's a vote for you.

Women's Hall Of Fame Ceremony Set

The Kentucky Women's Hall of Fame will hold its second annual induction ceremony in Central City, Sunday, May 1 at 2 p.m.

According to organizers of the event, the Hall of Fame will this year honor Thelma Stovall, the first woman to be elected lieutenant governor of the state; Agnes Harralson, author of "Steamboats on the Green," a highly acclaimed book on the history of steamboating on the Green River, and the late Pearl Carter Pace, from Tompkinsville, who was the first woman to be elected sheriff in Kentucky.

At the ceremony, biographies of the three women will be presented and their portraits unveiled to the public. The portraits will be housed in the City Building.

The Kentucky Women's Hall of Fame is a project begun last year by a group of women from the Central City Business and Professional Women's Club. The late Lena Madess Phillips, founder of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, was the first woman inducted to the Hall of Fame.

Turner, Allen State Position In Probe Here

In a joint statement issued this week, Floyd County Attorney Arnold Turner, Jr. and Commonwealth's Attorney James Allen disclosed that they met last Wednesday with state police in regard to "the current investigation of Floyd county finances."

The two attorneys said they proposed that the scope of the police probe extend to "any criminal violations involving the expenditures of county monies by the Floyd fiscal court, including the issues raised by the February, 1983 report of the Department of Local Finance."

After consulting with Floyd Circuit Judge Hollie Conley, they told the state police that a grand jury would be available, if needed, to help collect and evaluate any evidence, the attorneys said.

Turner and Allen pointed out that their role in the investigation "is solely to assist and advise."

"The control, scope and direction of the investigation rests solely with the Kentucky State Police," they said in the prepared statement. "No time limit has been set for this investigation nor any limit as to other questions that the Kentucky State Police may deem worthy of investigation."

Boy Scouts Hold Court of Honor

Dennis Holbrook, center, accepts the charter for Boy Scout Troop 880 on behalf of the Wheelwright United Methodist Church, which sponsors the troop. Pictured with Holbrook are Scoutmaster Bobby Isaac, Assistant Scoutmaster Buford Huff, Gary Faine, troop committee member; and Ron Hurley, unit commissioner for the troop and pack 880.

Boy Scout Troop 880, sponsored by the Wheelwright United Methodist church, held its first Court of Honor and Parents Night, March 15, at the Pool building in Wheelwright.

Scoutmaster Bobby Isaac presented Scouting Coordinator Dennis Holbrook with the troop charter to display in the church. Troop members staged three first aid demonstrations for parents.

The first rank in the Boy Scout advancement plan is the Scout rank. Scoutmaster Isaac presented the Scout rank to Jason Cook, Johnny Isaac, Chris Bowling, Brian Boyd and Kevin Hamby.

A summer camp promotion slide and cassette show was presented by Parker Locke, executive for the Lonesome Pine District. The troop is planning to attend the Blue Grass Council's Camp McKee, near Mt. Sterling, during the week of July 17-23.

David Marcum, a representative of Woodmen of the World, presented the troop with a new U.S. flag for use in its ceremonies and troop programs.

The troop's attendance at the spring camporee, April 8-10, of the Lonesome Pine District was discussed.

Troop leaders and special guests introduced at the meeting included Isaac, Holbrook, Buford Huff, assistant Scoutmaster; Gary Faine, troop committee member; Ron Hurley, unit commissioner for the troop and pack 880; and Locke.

Refreshments for the boys, parents, and leaders followed the meeting. Troop 880 was organized last November. (If interested in joining or starting a Cub Scout or Boy Scout troop anywhere in one of the counties of the Lonesome Pine District, contact J. Parker Locke in Pikeville at 432-0626.)

Plan Crackdown On Fee Violators

The state Transportation Cabinet will soon begin a special enforcement effort aimed at increasing compliance with Kentucky's weight-distance truck fees.

Tim Helson, commissioner of the cabinet's Department of Vehicle Regulation, said that information gained through interviews with truckers at selected locations across the state will be used to identify companies and individuals who may not be paying the weight-distance tax enacted by the 1982 General Assembly.

The weight-distance tax applies a rate of 2.85 cents per mile on all trucks licensed to carry 60,000 pounds or more traveling through Kentucky.

According to Helson, collections for the weight-distance tax are running about 35 percent below estimates. "This is simply a method to determine why our collections have not matched the revenues forecasted while this bill was being considered in the legislature. The truck tax was supposed to collect about $8 million per quarter and we have been receiving only about $5 million per quarter," he said.

Helson said that there may be a combination of reasons why the revenues are low. "The trucking industry is not operating at full capacity in the current economy and there may be some non-compliance. We will know the reasons for the low collections in a couple of months," he said.

About 80 checkpoints will be operated on a rotating basis with varying hourly and daily schedules by the cabinet's highway enforcement officers. Truckers will be asked to answer questions from a questionnaire. In addition, enforcement officers will inspect the paper work truckers are required to carry.

The locations and schedules will not be publicized in advance to reduce the possibility of trucks bypassing the checkpoints.

Coal Study Views Relation Of Sulphur to Size of Lump

Many small coal operators have been forced out of business by the high cost of removing sulfur from coal.

If the results of a study being done at Morehead State University are favorable, however, they may be back in operation.

Sam Kumar, assistant professor of mining technology at MSU, says it may be possible to remove sulfur by screening, or crushing and screening, the coal. Currently, the only way to reduce sulfur content is by cleaning.

"The coal cleaning process is very expensive, and most small miners can't afford the necessary equipment," Kumar said.

Kumar is working to determine if the amount of sulfur decreases with the size of the lumps of coal.

"We will crush the coal into five or six different sizes, test the sulfur content of each size and compile the results," explained Kumar.

Small Cities Program Gets $7 Million More

The state Department of Economic Development will receive another $7 million from the federal government for its Small Cities Community Development Block Grant Program, Commissioner Dale Smith announced recently.

The funds are Kentucky's share resulting from a federal jobs bill passed in March and signed into law.

Smith said, "We're pleased to receive this money to help stimulate job-creating projects. This allocation makes the block-grant program an even more valuable tool for spurring Kentucky's economic growth."

Kentucky already received $29.3 million in block grants for the federal fiscal year that started Oct. 1, 1982, Smith noted. Those funded are divided into categories covering economic development, housing and public facilities projects, he noted.

Sally Hamilton, director of the department's Office of Community Development, said the new money will not be placed in any of the three categories.

"We'll make grants based on a project's potential for creating jobs and the local unemployment situation," she said.

She added that all but the state's seven largest cities—known as entitlement areas—are eligible to apply for the new funds. The largest cities will automatically receive allocations.

Why the Kentucky Derby is run at Churchill Downs

TOP TRACK — They call it America's top horse race. So, it's fitting that the Kentucky Derby is run at the track that bills itself as "The Greatest Name in Racing."

Churchill Downs, built in 1874 in Louisville, Ky., on the site of the old Churchill Farm, isn't the oldest major U.S. race track. But it's the only one to have had continuous annual thoroughbred racing since its opening.

Live coverage of the 109th Kentucky Derby on Saturday, May 7, will be telecast by ABC. Among the ABC commentators for the annual "Run for the Roses" are Jim McKay, Jack Whitaker and Howard Cosell.

The race is the first leg of the Triple Crown for 3-year-olds. Next come the Preakness at Pimlico in Baltimore and Belmont Stakes in New York.

Kentucky Derby crowds have been massive for years. In 1974, a throng of 163,628 watched Cannedone win the 100th running. There has been a steady increase in betting on the Derby at Churchill Downs in recent years.

Today about $5 million is bet at the track on the prestigious race.

In the early 1870s, Col. M. Lewis Clark Jr., a well-connected Louisvillian in his mid-20s, conceived the idea for construction of a local dream track — and a series of rich stakes races.

After a trip to England in 1872 to study racing, Clark built the Kentucky Jockey Club course, which later became Churchill Downs.

The late Col. Matt J. Winn, however, is the sportsman who turned the Kentucky Derby into the most publicized horse race in America. In 1875, while standing on the seat of his father's flat-bed wagon, he watched Aristides win the first Derby. He took over management of Churchill Downs in 1902, directing 75 consecutive Derbies until his death in 1949.

Ever since, Bill Corum (1950-58), Wathen Knebelkamp (1959-1969) and current president Lynn Stone have managed the Churchill Downs tradition.

Efforts have been made at Churchill Downs to create an effective blend of new with old. Horsemen like the improvements made in the stable area, which is considered one of the safest and most comfortable in the country.

UPDATE

The 1983 edition of the US Festival in San Bernardino, Calif. will make up for last year's exclusion of heavy metal and country music by featuring such acts as Van Halen, the Scorpions, Ozzy Osbourne, Alabama, Waylon Jennings and Emmylou Harris. There is still one genre conspicuous by its absence, however: Not a single black act has been booked for the Memorial Weekend extravaganza.

New on the market: R-rated aerobics. "Exercise, the Erotic Way to Physical Fitness" is videocassette dance-along that highlights semi-nude instructresses. Jane Fonda, eat your heart out... Musical birthdays on May 1: Judy Collins (44) and Rita Coolidge (38). On May 3: Pete Seeger (64), James Brown (55) and Frankie Valli (46).

Inxs — "Shaboo Shooah" (Atco) — Ah, irony. Now that "new music" — created to counter the domination of "formula rock" — is finally successful, the play-it-safe record companies are beginning to release "formula new music." INXS, (pronounced "in excess") from Australia, could be any three new wave bands put through a Cuisinart and served up like a TV dinner.

Oxo (Geffen) — A high-profile debut for this new band, whose single ("Whirly Girl") is tapdancing its way up the charts. But don't let that sprightly rocker fool you: Oxo's music is more in a Chris Cross/Hall & Oates vein. Still, there's a good market for such easy-listening tunes. These are well done, and the band members are young and attractive.

How To Turn Profit On Cow-Calf Operation

"I think we know enough to do a lot better than we're doing."

That statement sums up Dr. Roy Burris' observations on cow-calf operations which are struggling to stay in the black.

Burris, an Extension beef cattle specialist at the University of Kentucky's Research and Education Center-Princeton, says a must for producers expecting to make a profit is the commitment to treat their operations as a business.

"This includes keeping good records so you know where you are at all times," says Burris. He explains that several years' records of a cow's number, the date she calved, calf's number and weight at weaning allows a producer to make comparisons and decisions on replacement.

The specialist suggests several ways to improve an operation:

Increase cow-calf crop percentage; improve weaning weights; increase selling price; hold production costs to a minimum.

"If a producer doesn't get a calf crop on the ground, he has failed," says Burris. A cow should calve every 12 months, he adds, noting that failure of beef families to become pregnant and losses during calving are the leading causes of poor calf crop percentages.

To counteract these problems, the specialist urges better nutrition before and after calving. If conception rate is a problem, Burris recommends getting clover into breeding pastures or giving supplemental feeds if pastures aren't adequate.

"Proper nutrition can cut down on the time needed for rebreeding, thereby allowing earlier calving dates and increased calf crop percentage," says Burris.

Higher calf-crop percentages also can be achieved with pregnancy checks and culling of open and slow breeders, as well as cows producing lightweight calves. The expense of carrying open cows is considerable, and Burris recommends purging herds of such non-money makers.

"A veterinary check for pregnant cows in the fall is cheaper than pregnancy checking by overwintering," notes the specialist.

Crossbreeding and the use of crossbred females may produce better weaning weights. "It's also important to know a cow's number, age and track record for weaning calves, compared to herd mates," says Burris. In addition, he suggests that producers consider growth implants as a means of achieving heavier weaning weights.

Dehorning, which should be done before the onset of fly season, also improves selling price at marketing. And selling calves in uniform lots—age and size—helps at marketing time.

Holding production costs to a minimum is another major factor in cow-calf operation returns. Burris notes that the largest single expense is overwintering the beef cow herd. Looking at ways to hold down costs, he first suggests culling cows that won't calve in the spring.

"Hold feed costs down by grouping," recommends the specialist. Cows with suckling calves need more feed than dry cows, so they should be separated. "If you feed them together, one group is overfed while the other is underfed."

The use of feeders, such as hay rings if feeding from large bales, also helps cut down costs. Burris estimates that waste can go as high as 30 percent when feeders are not used.

Another way to cut production costs is by soil testing to determine the need for fertilizer on pastures.

Burris also recommends feeling the lowest quality hay going into the winter when nutritional needs are not as great as they will be later in the season.

P'burg Police Offer Firearms Training

The Prestonsburg Police Department will conduct a firearms training class for interested area residents, this Saturday, beginning at 1 p.m. Police Chief James Curtis announced this week.

The class, which will focus specifically on handguns, will include instruction on gun laws, safety and weapon cleaning at City Hall here, followed by live firing at the Stratton Branch range at Dewey Lake.

The session is free and open to all city or county residents, 18 years of age or older. Individuals should provide their own firearms and ammunition. Chief Curtis commented.

For additional information, call Chief Curtis or Officer Sue Blackburn at 886-2335.

Young men and women, 16 through 21, who are out of school and have no marketable skills can benefit from the services the Job Corp program provides. The 107 residential centers across the country have a capacity of about 40,000, but can serve about twice that number yearly as the average length of stay is about 6 months, the U.S. Department of Labor reports.

PHS Tennis Squad Downs Hazard High

Last Tuesday, Coach Joni Jean Shackelford's Hazard team arrived here to find Prestonsburg's strong tennis squad ready and waiting as they shut out the Perry countians in singles and doubles, 6 to 0.

When P-burg Coach Lois Crum saw that the meet was already won, she sent her top four senior players home using only her grade school varsity and two junior varsity players in doubles competition. The young players showed their quite well against the older Hazard team members by winning all three doubles matches.

Next week Prestonsburg will find stiff competition as they face the Russell and Paul Blazer teams. Russell will play here Tuesday at 4 p.m. PHS will face Paul Blazer, away on Wednesday, and then play Paul Blazer again here Friday at 3:30 p.m.

Scoring against Hazard was as follows (P-burg players listed first): SINGLES—D. Adams/S. Cody, 8-1; T. George/M. Hollan, 8-2; T. Johnson/S. Spurlock, 8-4; J. Cook/P. Petrey, 8-5; A. Crum/T. Jones, 8-1; D. Spradlin/D. McGee, 8-2.

DOUBLES—Crum-Spradlin/Hollan-McGee, 8-4; Ousley-Music/Jone-Cody, 9-7; Collins-Gray/Coomer-Napier, 8-6.

(Photo by Ken Peters) PHS TENNIS TEAM member Doug Adams is shown here in action, Monday afternoon in a match against Paintsville. P'burg players, who wore warm-up suits for protection against the day's chilly weather, shut-out the Paintsville team as they displayed the same form which has brought them outstanding success thus far this season.

WHEN STEAMBOATS PLIED THE BIG SANDY, residents of the valley took their children to the boat landings where Mr. Luther, a Louisa Photographer who, on one of his regular visits with the Big Sandy Floating Gallery, would record his subjects for posterity. One such picture was taken here in 1896 of the first five children of Samuel P. and Laura May Davidson. They are, in front from left, Alex L. Davidson, James M. Davidson, and Lack D. Roberts. Standing are Maggie D. Hatcher and Cynthia D. Garnett. Of the group, only Mrs. Roberts, who resides here on Arnold Avenue, survives.

Nature Trails... By RUFUS REED

Fruits from Nature's Store

Berry-picking season doesn't last very long, about two or three weeks, so watch for it and don't let it slip by without canning a supply for winter use. Here are the best ones to can or eat:

1. The Blackberry Season, about July 10 to 20. Great for canning or making jam and jelly. Only our best berries. Blackberry juice is an old cure for dysentery.
2. The Raspberry. Finest flavor of all. You'll find raspberries along streams or at edges of old clearings. Good for canning or pies. You have to beat the birds to get them.
3. Dewberries. This vine trails on the ground and has very sweet berries.
4. The Huckleberry and Blueberry. The blueberry grows on small shrubs and ripens in mid-July. Its berries are fine-flavored, juicy, good for canning or pies. Grows on ridges or dry points. The huckleberry grows taller and bears large, dark blue, very sweet berries. Not as juicy as blueberries. Watch out for rattlers when picking them.
5. The Mulberry. Fruit is jet black when ripe. Talk about something good. Pick a pail of ripe mulberries and make a cobbler. Serve with rich cream and you have something good. Animals and birds go after the ripe mulberries.
9. The Wild Crab Apple. This handsome, little tree bears a crop of small, hard apples, which often lie on the ground until mellow. They make delicious jelly.

10. Persimmons. One of nature's best wild fruits. Rich in vitamins and minerals. Ripens when first frost comes. Makes good jam.

11. The Pawpaw. Here is one of nature's most delicious fruits when brown and fully ripe. They are called "wild bananas" and are good when ripe and soft. They ripen in late September.

12. Wild grapes. Many of our wild grapes are edible and make fine jelly. Muscadins. These are known down South as the scuppernong grape and are used to make the famous scuppernong wine.

Residential Contractors
Installers of Energy Conservation Measures
Suppliers of Energy Conservation Measures
Financial/Lending Institutions

In 1978, Congress enacted the National Energy Conservation Policy Act, a part of which is a program called the Residential Conservation Service or RCS. This program, which will be administered by the Kentucky Public Service Commission through Kentucky's major utility companies, is designed to save energy in existing homes.

The program includes:

1. Assessment of energy usage and efficiency in residences.
2. Recommendations on how energy efficiency can be improved.
3. Assistance to the homeowner in getting the measures installed and/or financed.

The RCS program has strict guidelines regarding materials and measures supplied to a customer, or installed for a homeowner. Institutions who will lend money for this program will also have to meet certain guidelines. A "MASTER RECORD" is to be created listing all installers, suppliers, and financiers of energy conservation measures who are approved by and agree to abide by the rules set forth for this RCS program by the Kentucky Public Service Commission and the U.S. Department of Energy.

ONLY businesses on the Master Record will be allowed to participate in the RCS program.

Says Bus Fails Children

As a parent, I am very angry at the way my children are being treated by the Board of Education's Transportation Department. For the past 12 years my children have walked a mile up our hollow (Upper Allen Branch) in all types of weather. For over three months I have been trying to get transportation for them.

At first I was told by Wayne Ratliff that if the highway approach was fixed a bus could get up the hollow. I got the state and county road departments to do some work on it. Now, Mr. Ratliff tells me the entire hollow isn't safe for a bus.

I again contacted the county road foreman, Sam Fitzpatrick. He agreed to do the necessary work for the road to become passable for a bus. He also said that he would get Mr. Ratliff to come up the hollow and point out what needed fixed. Later I was told by Mr. Fitzpatrick that Mr. Ratliff would not come with him up our hollow. As of now, Mr. Ratliff tells me he has no plans of providing transportation up our hollow.

All I am asking for is transportation for my children out of our hollow, but as of this moment all I receive is promises and no action.

I think it is about time they start doing the job they are paid for, to transport all children to and from school. As parents we should see that our children are all treated equally.

Two Who Cared

I believe I can speak for all who know Dr. Roger Akers. Words can hardly express the sorrow and loss we felt when we heard of his death. He was a beautiful person; with a personality that made us all feel good just to be around him. He was a good doctor. He had the bedside manner of an old country doctor. He loved old people.

He always had kind words for the elderly. He treated all the people as if they were his friends. He didn't act as if he was above anyone.

I have a nine year old child who cried when she heard of his death. If he touched the heart of this little girl, can you imagine how the old people will miss him. Not only the old but everyone. We have a lot of good doctors in Floyd county, but Dr. Roger Akers will be missed for his bedside manner.

Floyd county has lost two outstanding citizens. The other is C. Ollie Robinson. He also cared for the people.

May we hold a place forever in our memory and in our heart for someone who showed love and kindness as these two men did.
