The new $375,000 McDowell school building opened Monday, the first day of spring, and concurrently with picketing by parents in protest of other features of the school and its properties. Pictured at its recent final inspection are, from left, Supt. Pete Grigsby, Jr., District 4 Board Member Mary L. Hall, Asst. Supt. Ray Brackett and School Principal Hugo Miller.

Floodwaters destroyed three McDowell classrooms in 1980, and since that time the school auditorium and stage have been used for classes. Three of the new classrooms will house Practical Arts and Social Studies classes for the high school; the other two, mathematics classes.

Waste System To Go to Court On Collections

The county's troubled trash-collection system can survive only if people are compelled to use it, says the board chairman of the agency that operates it. His office is ready to prosecute any cases referred to it, says the county attorney. They are prepared to support the county attorney whatever the political fallout, say members of the fiscal court.

And—while those protestations have been made often, without a single prosecution to show for them in the 22 months the system has been in operation—their reliability might be finally coming to a test.

For some 42 delinquent accounts have been turned over this week to the county attorney for action, said Robert McAninch, chairman of the board of Floyd County Solid Waste, Inc.

The cases include individuals and businesses, he said, some of whom have been using the garbage system and not paying for it, but most of whom are neither using nor paying for the weekly pickup service.

In addition, a case is being prepared against one person accused of dumping trash by the roadside, McAninch said.

The county attorney will probably send final notices to the delinquents, giving them 10 days to conform with the mandatory pickup law before taking them to court, he said.

McAninch said he is "relatively sure" the solid waste agency will be able to renegotiate its $1.5 million bond (See Story No. 1, Page 4)

Attorney for 30 Denied Licenses Suggests Action

The question of whether or not alleged favoritism in the granting of package-liquor licenses here constituted criminal activity should be left for a grand jury to decide, said an attorney representing some of those who applied unsuccessfully for the licenses.

According to a story in the Louisville Courier-Journal last Saturday, a state police investigation has turned up evidence of political favoritism in the granting of the 21 licenses last Dec. 3.

The investigation was requested by state Alcoholic Beverage Commission officials in response to allegations, most of them made by some of the 116 unsuccessful applicants, that influence-peddling and bribery played a part in the license selection process.

State police officials were quoted as saying no evidence of bribery was found and, while some public officials may have used their influence to seek favorable consideration for particular applicants, that did not appear to be a criminal violation.

Gary Johnson, a Prestonsburg attorney who represents 30 of the unsuccessful applicants, is not happy with that assessment. "One man's political influence is often another man's crime," he said, claiming that influence-peddling is prohibited by federal law.

According to Courier-Journal staff writer Richard Whitt, state police appeared interested in a meeting held shortly before the licenses were awarded, between Floyd Judge-Executive Jerry Lafferty, Jr., Sheriff Henry C. Hale, ABC Commissioner Edward A. Farris and Distilled Spirits Administrator Michael W. Davidson.

Lafferty reportedly suggested that if certain individuals did not get licenses they might be able to bring about another local-option election and Hale was said to have given one of the ABC officials a slip of paper on which were written the names of four or five people he thought should receive licenses. Sen. Benny Ray Bailey was also said to have submitted six to eight names for consideration. (See Story No. 5, Page 4)

Court Approves Howell's Advice

In another "housecleaning" move, the Floyd fiscal court voted Friday to implement all 20 recommendations made by state Local Government Advisor Al Howell in his recent report on county finances.

Following the state official's advice, the court voted to stop subsidizing the commonwealth's attorney's office, beginning April 1. Cut from the payroll last week were Computer Utilities, Inc. the firm that had been preparing the county checks, and the Damron and Caudill law firm.

The court's decision Friday apparently means that the status of five persons listed as Allen Park workers—a matter to which Howell recommended that the court give attention—will be addressed at a later date.

Commonwealth's Attorney James R. Allen noted after Friday's meeting that he had recently requested that the fiscal court stop payments to him and his assistant on account of the county's strained fiscal condition.

In view of a discussion at the last court meeting of the treasurer's responsibility for the county's fiscal difficulties, County Treasurer David D. Allen circulated at Friday's meeting lengthy documentation in support of his argument that primary responsibility for approving payment of claims rests with the fiscal court.

Despite the fact that ambulance services are generally reported to be experiencing lean times—only last week a Campbellsville-based service retrenched in the face of mounting debts—William Adams, of Water Gap, told the court he wants to provide another ambulance service in this county.

The county is currently served by P. and B. Ambulance Service, operated by Charles "Buck" Joseph and Harold "Junior" Joseph, and the Left Beaver and Floyd County rescue squads. The Josephs were given a franchise by the fiscal court last year but County Attorney Arnold Turner, Jr. explained that it is not an exclusive franchise.

Adams, a certified emergency medical technician (EMT) employed as a safety inspector by a Martin county coal operator, said after the meeting he plans to buy two new ambulances with equipment that would exceed state requirements and which would be operated by EMTs. County residents will be better served by more competitive ambulance services, he said.

Buck Joseph doesn't see it that way. Given his firm's six ambulances, Left Beaver's three vehicles and the Floyd County squad, the county is well provided with ambulance services, he said. Another operator would be hard pressed making ends meet and would impose a burden on existing operators, he said.

Adams was invited to submit a formal application to the court by its next meeting. (See Story No. 3, Page 4)

Teacher Death Ruled Accident

A Knott county coroner's jury held last Thursday that the Dec. 31 gunshot death of a Floyd schoolteacher was accidental. Coroner Ken Gayheart had earlier reckoned as "probably suicide" the death of Linda Gay Moore Martin, 35, a teacher at Clark Elementary School.

Charles Martin, the dead woman's husband, told the jury his wife did not appear to be depressed the morning of her death and left no suicide note. She may have accidentally discharged the pistol in her hand after falling in the cluttered, unlit bathroom where her body was found, he theorized.

As the result of a fire at their Wayland home last September, the family had been staying in a house belonging to Martin's grandfather at Dema.

The coroner's jury, which met in Hindman, was told that Mrs. Martin took a .357 magnum from a dresser drawer as the family prepared breakfast and went alone to a bathroom adjoining the house, whence a shot was heard soon after. She died of a single wound in the chest.

He and his wife had done some target shooting with the pistol the previous weekend and he had subsequently reloaded it with two shells, probably unknown to his wife, Martin said.

A native of Wayland, Mrs. Martin had been a teacher at Clark for five years. Besides her husband, she is survived by her mother, Mrs. Ruth Hall Moore, of Wayland, two teenage daughters, and three sisters.

DEFEATED DAFFODILIS...Bowed and bedraggled following Monday night's freezing temperatures and light snowfall, the attitude of these long-awaited harbingers of spring no doubt reflected the dampened spirits of many folks in the area who were convinced that such weather was surely over and done.

PUTTING THE CASE for a large delegation of senior citizens, Delmas Saunders addressed a meeting of the Floyd fiscal court last Friday morning. Noting that the magistrates have been taken to task in recent weeks for their handling of the county budget, Saunders assured them they would never be criticized for supporting the county's elderly residents. The group sought funding for bus drivers to serve the county's three senior citizens' centers.

Picketing Parents Issue Improvements Ultimatum

The group of parents which picketed Monday in front of the McDowell school to emphasize its demands for improvements in the schools threatened to "pull" their children out of school again next Monday if certain of their requests are not met by 8 o'clock that morning.

Monday's picketing involved between 20 and 30 parents, and upwards of 350 pupils were out of school as a consequence, it was reported.

The picketing was peaceful, but Hugo Miller, principal of McDowell

High School, expressed the belief that some children who were not in school Monday were kept at home out of fear of a disturbance. Others, he said, had been told there would be no school that day.

The requests with a Monday morning deadline that were made by the group known as the Concerned Parents Organization, are:

- Inspection of all buses serving the school by State Police mechanics or some mechanic recommended by the group; also a "Bus Code of Behavior" and clarification of disciplinary methods. "We feel buses are unsafe due to bad brakes, other mechanical faults, being overcrowded, lack of discipline and broken and damaged seats," the request list noted.

- Each child to have a book for each class to take home if he or she desires, this at school board expense.

- Repair of "worn-out" bathrooms in the high school, first grade and third grade buildings; another type of sweeping compound to control dust, and repair or replacement of the boiler in the first-grade building.

- Spraying procedures put into effect to control roaches in the lunchroom. This request asked that this be repeated as often as necessary "to take care of (the) terrible roach situation we now have."

These and other requests were presented to Principal Miller Monday but he refused to accept them, said Mrs. Aileen Hamilton, one of the group of protesting parents. Mr. Miller said he accepted what was presented to him as "a letter for you," which was a compilation of requests being made but that the copy was partially illegible.

Miller said he had met with the protesting group on at least five occasions, had checked their requests and where improvements were needed had asked that work be done. "I can't do these jobs, myself," he noted.

New Kentucky Map Taken From Satellite Photos

A new Kentucky map—composed of images made by a NASA satellite traveling 570 miles above the earth—has been published by the Kentucky Geological Survey, located at the University of Kentucky.

The "Satellite Image Map of Kentucky" measures 23 by 29 inches and is printed in two colors on coated sack.

The new map is a mosaic produced by combining images taken at various times during the period 1972-76, from NASA's Landsat I and Landsat II. All images were made in late fall or early spring, and all were made when the sun was in the southeast at a relatively low angle, so all shadows are on the north-west side of hills and ridges.

State and country boundaries are overprinted on the map, and small-scale county, geologic and physiographic maps appear in the map margins as an aid in locating and identifying features.

The state's physiographic regions such as Eastern and Western Coal Fields, the Bluegrass, the Knobs, can be seen on the two-color map. One can easily identify such features as Pine Mountain and major lakes and rivers.

Scale of the map is 1:1,000,000, or one inch on the map equals approximately 16 miles on the ground.

Copies of the map, compiled by Roger B. Potts of KGS, may be ordered by sending $3.90 (which includes postage and state sale tax) to Publication Sales, Kentucky Geological Survey, 311 Breckinridge Hall, University of Kentucky, Lexington Ky. 40506-0056.

A Beginner's Guide to Computers

By MADELEINE JACOBS
Smithsonian News Service

Are you put off by input? Do disk drives make you dizzy? Do modems give you migraines?

If you have these symptoms, watch out! You may be suffering from "computer illiteracy," a mysterious malady of relatively recent origin that rarely strikes anyone under the age of 30. Left untreated, the consequences of this dread disease are, well—dare we say it?—terminal.

But don't despair, you're not alone. Last year millions of Americans sought cures for computer illiteracy. Their remedies ranged from the commonplace—hanging out at the growing number of computer stores or taking cram courses in basic computer literacy at community colleges, libraries and even museums—to the exotic—combining sun and study at Club Med resorts and adult computer camps or vacationing at computer-controlled Walt Disney World Epcot Center in Florida.

Choosing the proper prescription depends on the individual, according to Rachelle Heller and Dianne Martin, two Maryland-based computer scientists. These instructors and authors, both 39, represent a new kind of practitioner: the gentle guide who diagnoses and helps overcome computer shock and network neurosis.

The two women define computer literacy in terms of a "comfort level."

Heller explains: "The person who is a laboratory scientist needs a different kind of computer literacy than an elementary school teacher or a parent or newspaper reporter. Computer literacy than an elementary school teacher or a parent or newspaper reporter. Computer literacy is what you need to know to feel comfortable in your daily life."

Not surprisingly, what you need to know to feel comfortable is increasing.

"Ten or 15 years ago," Martin points out, "computers were the domain of the technological elite. Now, the average person comes in contact with computers, or the effects of computers, perhaps 50 times in a single day—at the gas station or bank, in the grocery store and office, at home. Today, computers are for the people. Everyone needs some level of literacy."

"Fine, but how does the beginner begin? Often a person's first thought is to wander into one of the proliferating number of computer stores displaying and selling personal computers—so-called "microprocessors" that can be programmed for a variety of applications, from preparing household budgets and income taxes to carrying out inventories for small businesses or playing video games.

"Visiting a computer store first may be about the worst thing a computer 'illiterate' can do," Heller opines. "What happens? The individual who is already feeling intimidated by computers is either approached by a hard-sell computer salesman—an expert who speaks some strange language filled with words like bit, byte, ROM and RAM—or he's mobbed by the 'skinned-knee' crowd, kids who are right at home working at a computer terminal. Either situation simply turns up the anxiety level."

Instead, Heller suggests an approach that is "user-friendly"—a term applied to a computer system that is easy and non-threatening to use and understand.

In the past year, for instance, Heller and Martin have taught a one-day computer literacy course, offered every few months, for the Smithsonian Institution Resident Associate Program. The course is held in the National Museum of Natural History, where participants on their way to the computer revolution pass through halls filled with nature's wonders.

In this "out-of-context, non-traditional setting," Heller says, people feel more at ease. A recent course attracted some 450 people, mostly over the age of 30, including attorneys, accountants, bankers, economists, artists, writers, physicians, secretaries, homemakers, teachers and even a special agent from the FBI.

The Smithsonian course is similar to those offered across the nation by community colleges, libraries, computer clubs, some commercial enterprises and the adult-education programs of colleges, universities and recreation centers.

Most courses explain the basic principles and terminology of computers, discuss applications and explore social and ethical concerns. Some even teach basic programming. At least one public-broadcasting station, WETA-TV in Washington, D.C., is running a 23-week course in basic computer literacy, which viewers can take for credit through local colleges. As an added bonus, each college offers "hands-on" time in the school's computer facilities.

More exotic—and more expensive—introductions also are available. Club Med, a company that offers pre-packaged week-long getaways at various "villages" in tropical locations, has equipped several of its resorts with personal computers and instructors.

From Connecticut to California, adults also have their very own computer camps, a luxury formerly reserved for precocious kids. And virtually all large children's camps now promote computer instruction as a prime selling point in their ads.

For the whole computer-curious family, there is Epcot Center, the newest Walt Disney venture, adjacent to the Magic Kingdom in Florida's Walt Disney World.

"It's fair to say there wouldn't be an Epcot Center without computers," Louis H. Kompare, corporate manager for scientific systems at Epcot, declares. "Computers are behind-the-scenes and on-the-scenes at Epcot, controlling everything from security and sprinkling systems to rides and restaurant reservations."

But these computers have that old Disney magic. Many of Epcot's estimated 20 million visitors this year will see the impressively vast central computer facility in action—with a few surprises added. Or they may learn about the workings and applications of computers by "playing" one of the many "games"—all of which are actually sophisticated touch-sensitive television screens, totally computer-controlled with nary a keyboard in sight. "Most guests don't realize they've come in contact with a computer," Kompare says.

Epcot does indeed have the most "user-friendly" computers in the world. Throughout the 260-acre park, visitors line up early at the 29 terminals of the World Key Information Service, computer-controlled television screens that—at the touch of a finger—provide full-motion video, audio and text information about the park's attractions, special events, hotels and restaurants, this in English or Spanish with French and German to be added soon. Developed by the Bell System in a joint project with Walt Disney World, the unique information system is still experimental but could soon find wider use.

Of course, none of these gentle introductions will make you a computer expert overnight, but they may be all you need to reach your "comfort level." If more is called for, the next step, Heller says, "is to find a friend and visit a computer store for some hands-on experience." Martin advises, "Look around, see what's available, try some out." Dozens of brands are now on the market, ranging in price from under $100 to $8,000 and up. Many people prefer to build their own systems by mixing components from various firms.

Nor is there a lack of reading material. Many newspapers and magazines feature columns on the latest computer developments. Scores of new book titles have been published within the past year; more than 2,500 titles are now on the market. One large bookstore chain reports that computer books are "second only to romances" in popularity.

Among the books most often recommended for novices are Computers for Everybody (Dilithium Press, 1983), The Beginner's Guide to Computers (Addison-Wesley Publishing Co., 1982), The Personal Computer Book (Prelude Press, 1982) and Bits 'n Bytes About Computing: A Computer Literacy Primer (Computer Science Press, 1982).

The hardest step to take on the road to computer literacy is the first one, Heller and Martin acknowledge. In their work, they meet people who feel alienated and isolated by computers, some who believe that computers have gained control of their lives and others who are downright hostile, believing that computers will take over their jobs.

"People have endowed the computer with a mystical, godlike quality," Martin says, "but it really is nothing more than a 'dumb tool.' We try to assure people that a computer is no more intelligent than a wooden pencil. It does exactly what it is told to do—by you."

One thing to remember: There is no escaping the computer revolution, so you might as well join it. "Just think about the computer," muses Dr. Uta Merzbach, who, as curator of mathematics at the Smithsonian's National Museum of American History, is in charge of the world's largest and most comprehensive collection of computing devices.

"It took 250 years from the time man first described the notion of a mechanical desk calculating machine until it became widely used," she says. "In contrast, in less than 40 years, the computer has gone from a concept to a part of everyone's life. Few other technological developments in the history of mankind have had this kind of impact on daily life." Yes, computers are here to stay.

indebtedness in order to buy some time, replenish its reserve fund, and purchase new equipment. The fiscal court, itself no stranger to financial woes, agreed this week to continue to guarantee, for another six months, $51,500 loaned to the garbage agency by the First Commonwealth Bank. But the key to solvency for the solid waste system, McAninch said, is to force people to participate in it.

Noting that the Internal Revenue Service is authorized to withhold tax refunds from individuals who owe the government money, he has asked the attorney general for an opinion as to whether money owed the solid waste agency might be likewise withheld, McAninch said.

Collections have improved since the garbage system's financial woes were publicly aired in January, he said. Barely had the system weathered its own crisis, however, than the fiscal court, accused of mismanagement, was plunged in a crisis of its own. It is the fiscal court, not the solid waste agency, which was recently placed under state supervision, McAninch wanted it understood.

THE OLDEST STORY The youngest grandson eyed a forbidden object and tried to talk himself out of it ("No, no, Drew")—and then went straight for it. Are children becoming more like adults, these days?

AMONG THE MISSING

Biologists are mystified by the loss of white bass in Herrington Lake which was once noted for them. I am equally bugged by the absence from our little run at the back of the place this spring of the peepers. It's so strangely quiet without them. I may have to start a restocking program of my own.

FOR KICKS

Youngsters, these days, turn for their kicks to television and movies for horror pictures—ghouls, vampires, the grisly lot of them. One recently told me, without batting an eye, how many heads she had seen fall on one of these late, late monstrosities that pass for shows. But I still maintain there has never been a more eerie scene or situation to send chills coursing a youngster's spine than an old woman or old man telling in low, hollow tones a ghost story in a low-ceilinged room on a black night with a flickering fire in an open grate creating that admixture of light and shadow from which any weird visitant might emerge.

All three public officials have denied they intervened in the selection process on behalf of any particular applicants. And Distilled Spirits Administrator Davidson, who told the Courier-Journal reporter of the lists allegedly submitted by Sheriff Hale and Sen. Bailey, said last week that he could not find either list. In any event, the public officials' submissions had no influence on the selection process, the ABC officials insisted.

"My clients do not believe that," said Johnson, who suggested that the names allegedly put forward by the public officials should be disclosed and compared with those who actually received licenses. "Since Davidson 'conveniently' lost his copies, perhaps the county officials would be willing to share their lists with us," the attorney suggested.

Johnson said he intends to ask Attorney General Steven Beshear to appoint a special prosecutor to submit to a grand jury here evidence uncovered by the state police investigation. His clients want Commonwealth's Attorney James R. Allen to disqualify himself because he and his assistant have been subsidized by the fiscal court, Johnson said.

Allen said Tuesday that, in view of Johnson's request, he has already written to the attorney-general requesting that he name a special prosecutor in the case and has received verbal indication from Ray Larsen, head of the special prosecutions division, that his request will be honored.

The grand jury is scheduled to convene here in May.

meeting, scheduled for April 15. Joseph said he would oppose the application.

The court approved payments of $1869.30 to Unijax, supplier of cleaning materials, and $1236.80 to the sheriff's department for office supplies; agreed to guarantee for another six months a $51,500 First Commonwealth Bank loan to Floyd County Solid Waste, Inc.; instructed William Joe Kendrick, the county electrical inspector, to split his fees with the county; and authorized the judge-executive to file a $650,000 grant application on behalf of the Prater Creek Water District.

Rita Davis complained that she had approached the court four times in unsuccessful efforts to have a road widened at Dwale. A sharp crest in the narrow road has been the scene of several head-on collisions, she said. Judge-Executive Jerry Lafferty, Jr. said he would have the road widened as soon as possible.

James McKinney asked for repairs to the bridge at the mouth of Mink Branch of Mud Creek. Magistrate Lowell Samons said money for the project would be budgeted in the next fiscal year.

Dorothy Osborne asked for construction of a bridge over the Big Sandy as an alternate access to the Goble Roberts Addition. Judge Lafferty said he was "working with the state" on the problem.

George Vaughan asked if the county could do anything to expedite construction of the planned road at Cliff. County Attorney Turner said it was Prestonsburg's responsibility and that the city is currently negotiating purchase of the last tract needed for right of way.

At the request of Charlie Warrix, the court will publish its intention to close an unused road and bridge near his Middle Creek property. The county attorney was instructed by Magistrate Samons to research the county's right-of-way on South Pinhook, near Harold.

"What upset me, some of the pickets had come into the building, apparently to use a restroom, and told children they wouldn't have to go to school tomorrow." He said it is true that he asked those who came inside the school from the picket line to leave.

Supt. of Schools Pete Grigsby, Jr. said most of the complaints he knew about have little foundation. He said the school board has people working on the boiler; that the lunchroom passed recent inspection by the lunchroom supervisor, and that the buses serving the schools are checked monthly. "The complaints about the buses, as far as I can find out," he said, "are strictly unfounded."

Of requested curriculum changes Mr. Grigsby said the curriculum had been prepared according to state guidelines. Changes requested would eliminate five practical arts classes, leaving five hours from practical arts which could be used for reading. "In practical arts we want the three six-week clusters taught as required by the state and we want materials for the teachers to work with in this class, such as woodworking, drafting, cooking, sewing, etc.," the written request said.

Other requests involved campus cleanliness and drainage and the task of keeping all buildings clean, more janitors hired, children not to help keep the grounds clean; the group's Education committee to be allowed more input on all school policies, schedules and the like; better communications between parents and teachers; an updated student handbook defining methods of discipline and students' rights, and a handbook for teachers containing similar information.

"We ask," the list of requests concluded, "that all of these things be enforced this year, not just this next nine weeks."

The LaFollette Seamen's Act was approved in 1915. It regulated conditions of employment for maritime workers, according to a publication of the U.S. Department of Labor, "Important Events in American Labor History."

Ten Years Ago

(March 21, 1973)

Governor Wendell H. Ford announced Tuesday morning the establishing in Prestonsburg of a Department of Natural Resources and Environmental Protection reclamation office. Prospects are dim for the employment next school year of any new teachers in Floyd county, Supt. of Schools Charles Clark said last week because of a drop in enrollment. Two weeks of summary weather which brought flower and leaf a month ahead of schedule were broken by heavy rains last Wednesday night which threatened lowlying sections with flood. This threatened crisis ended with snowfall Saturday and a killing frost Sunday night. The Clark Elementary School has just completed its first book fair for children. Three hundred students purchased 670 books. Eastern Kentucky's dream of providing a dark horse winner of the Kentucky high school basketball tournament faded when McDowell, representing the 15th region, lost to Madisonville, 84-69. There died: Mrs. Margaret Conn, 84, of Martin, Saturday at a Martin hospital; Mrs. Joanna Davis, 80, formerly of Garrett, March 8 in a hospital at Rensselaer, Ind.; Silas England, 85, of R. 3, Warsaw, Ind., formerly of Floyd county, March 11 in a Fort Wayne, Ind. hospital; Mrs. Mazie M. Castle, 73, of Lexington, formerly of Auxier, last Wednesday at Central Baptist Hospital; Mrs. Catherine W. Patton, 88, of Langley, Thursday at a nursing home here.

Twenty Years Ago

Rampaging streams last Tuesday and Wednesday cut a swath of destruction through Floyd county that brought to all the county memories of the flood of 1957 and to some sections damage and suffering exceeding even that of the disaster of six years ago. The recent flood damaged properties of the Floyd county school system approximately $250,000, it was estimated this week by Superintendent Charles F. Clark. A total of 106 classrooms had anywhere from one inch to 110 inches of water, he said. Fires became a destructive aftermath of last week's flood in this county and at least six homes and one business were destroyed and another home severely damaged. A $10-a-plate fund-raising dinner here for gubernatorial candidate A. B. Chandler on March 23 was announced Saturday by the Chandler-Waterfield campaign headquarters for the Seventh Congressional district. The Garrett Black Devils defeated the McDowell Daredevils Saturday night for the 15th region championship. McDowell's 58-56 victory came in the final seconds of an overtime period. There died: Samuel S. Porter, 81, of Lexington, pioneer Floyd county coal operator, Saturday at Lexington; Mrs. Gypsy Pack, 82, Tuesday at home at Martin; George Moles, 62, native of Floyd county, March 12 at home at Leivasy, W. Va.; Harrison Gibson, 51, Sunday at home at Estill; Mrs. Dinah T. Staley, 62, of Hippo, Tuesday at the McDowell Memorial Hospital; James Campbell, 87, March 6 at his home at Hippo; Mrs. Lydia Crisp, 79, formerly of Martin, Monday at Knox, Ind.; Mrs. Martha Dale Hobbs, 62, last Tuesday at her home at Drift; Mrs. Martha Alice Stambaugh, 72, of Dwale, Tuesday; Mrs. Verna Mitchell, 40, of Craynor, last Thursday at Pikeville; Harvey G. Banks, 75, March 8 at Wayland; Devenis Ray Hall, 20, of Wayland, Tuesday at McDowell; Mrs. Louise Gearheart, 82, of Hueysville, Tuesday; Mrs. Jennie P. Wireman, 83, of David, March 5; Mrs. Rebecca Frazier, 85, of Manton, Sunday; Andy Newsom, 54, last Thursday at home at Beaver; John E. Lafferty, 73, March 12 at home at Martin; Elder William Isaac (Bill) Flanery, 85, at home on Buck's Branch; Mrs. Carrie Osborne, 79, March 6 at her home at Hite; Joe Stone, 89, of Betsy Layne, last Tuesday at Lexington; Mrs. Sarah Baker, 92, of Wheelwright, last Thursday; Harvey Tackett, 88, last Thursday at his home at Melvin; McClellan Baker, 78, March 3 at home at Wheelwright.

Thirty Years Ago

(March 19, 1953)

Only two school buildings in this county are of fire proof construction, a survey made by the Local Legislative Research Committee on Education shows. Josh Tye Williams, 62, Prestonsburg drilling contractor, was killed last Thursday afternoon in a fall over a precipice on Grapevine Creek, Pikeville. Prestonsburg has given up on its two-way radio communications system, Mayor Curtis Clark said this week. The Floyd circuit court has not a murder trial docketed for the coming April term. H. L. McCrary, Pikeville group manager for the Southern Bell Telephone Co., has been transferred to Shelbyville. The area has been divided into two districts; J. C. Stone is manager at Paintsville, John Stout at Pikeville. The 12,000 acres around Dewey Lake last week were "posted" as a game refuge. There died: Susie Daniel Wiley, 66, March 14 at Garrett; Tommy Hall, 72, March 14 at Kite.

Forty Years Ago

(March 18, 1943)

One hundred fifty-seven selectees will leave here next Thursday for army service. The City Council last Monday night voted to buy from Joe Hill the Prestonsburg Gas Company for $50,000. An "act of God" is credited with the escape of three occupants of the Fred Workman home at Allen when the wall of the Allen Baptist Church collapsed last Friday before daybreak. Cpl. Shirley Lewis, 24, has been taken prisoner on the Italian front, and Pvt. Frank Crabtree, formerly of Prestonsburg has been seriously wounded in North Africa. There died: Green Bingham, 56, of Cliff, at the Prestonsburg hospital, Thursday morning; Martin L. Robinson, at Estill, Sunday, his 18th birthday; Robert, 7, son of Jack Hackworth, of Bonanza, Wednesday of dropsy; Mrs. Florence Freeman, 77, last Thursday at a Martin hospital; Mrs. Betsy Miller Patrick, Friday at Tram; Charles, 14-year-old son of Melvin Allen, of West Prestonsburg, Saturday at a Martin hospital, believed a victim of tetanus; Jack Hall, 78, of Frasure's Creek, March 9 at a Martin hospital; Thomas S. Burton, 72, at Auxier last Wednesday; Mrs. Anna Elizabeth McCloud, 73, of Drift, March 4; Debbie Jean Skeans, 7, of Martin, last Thursday at the home of her parents Mr. and Mrs. Darb Skeans.

Fifty Years Ago

(March 17, 1933)

Appalachian Coals Inc., a cooperative sales agency designed to stabilize the bituminous coal industry in Kentucky and adjoining states, has been declared legal by Chief Justice Hughes. The survey of the Johns Creek road will be completed this week, County Attorney Joe P. Tackett said. Terms of most consolidated schools have been shortened because of a lack of tax income. Only two such schools—Maytown and Dwale—will be open the full nine months. Dalton W. Morgan, 23, who was injured in a car wreck near Allen, November 1, died March 1 at Scranton, Pennsylvania. Miss Sally Marshall, 17, of Prestonsburg, was seriously hurt when struck by an automobile, Sunday night. Construction of the gym on Highland here is under way under the supervision of E. H. Howard. B. W. Baker, 55, veteran conductor on the Right Beaver branch of the C. & O., died at his home at Maytown, Saturday evening. R. W. Harris, 81, former Floyd sheriff, died Monday at his West Prestonsburg home. Others who died: Donald Lee, eight months old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Crabtree, at the Paintsville hospital, Monday; Thelma Lee Amburgy, 25, wife of R. H. Amburgy, Monday at the Pikeville hospital.

RECOVERING FROM SURGERY

Mrs. Ethel Franklin, who underwent major surgery at Central Baptist Hospital in Lexington March 2, is now recuperating at her home on the Auxier road.

RETURN FOR FUNERAL

Mr. and Mrs. Denver Sammons, their son Steve and daughter Susan, were called here recently due to the death of his father, Dewey Sammons, of the Auxier road. After an extended visit with his mother, Mrs. Elva Sammons, they have returned to their home in Hollywood, Florida.

CARTER COMPETES IN CINCY HEART MINI-MARATHON

Ron Carter, a professor at Prestonsburg Community College, competed Sunday in Cincinnati, along with 4,500 other runners in what is considered to be one of America's top 25 road races. The race drew runners from 30 states and Canada.

The Cincinnati Heart Mini-Marathon 6 is a road race of 15 kilometers or 9.3 miles. Carter finished the run in 59:15 and placed in the top 10% of his age division. He improved over last year's effort by six minutes and moved his finishing order down by 200 in his age division.

Letters to the Editor

The views expressed here are those of the writers, and not necessarily those of this newspaper. No unsigned contributions will be published.

The Daniels Creek Story

I appreciate the interest of the Floyd County Times in the cleanup effort on Daniels Creek, as reflected in the "Prettiest Spring" story and accompanying picture, published March 2, 1983.

Three errors should be noted, in the interest of accuracy.

First, it was Daniels Creek Development Company, a limited partnership, owned by George Harkins, Monte Harkins, Don Harkins, Jr. and Scott Harkins, who funded the major portion of the private sector's contribution to the program. No "Daniels Creek Development Club" yet exists. But forming one for future projects is an intriguing idea.

Second, none of my efforts in the beautification of Daniels Creek were undertaken "as administrator of Harkins Mineral Associates of Betsy Layne". Harkins Mineral Associates (which was not involved in the project) is a limited partnership owned by more than thirty people. Its business is managed by four general partners. I am not a general partner, nor do I have the authority or responsibility to administer its affairs. My only relationship to it since April 15, 1981 when my son replaced me as a general partner, has been as a limited partner. Of course, as a limited partner, I do have a financial interest in Harkins Mineral Associates, which I try to advance by bringing it, as a major coal owner, together with responsible coal operators through coal leasing. Any "administration" performed by me relative to the removal of trash and debris from Daniels Creek was on behalf of Daniels Creek Development Company in the expenditure of its funds in support of the project.

Third, I cannot help feeling that the story glorified my personal role at the expense of others without whose strong help little could have been done. Rudolph Lewis, Lowell Sammons and David Cooley were mentioned, but their contribution greatly exceeded the credit given. To them, to Scotty Jarvis, Dwayne Jarvis, Greta Harkins and the staff of Floyd County Solid Waste, Inc., I tip my hat and offer my warm thanks.

Finally, the interest and support of the Times' own staff was vital. If errors occurred in the telling, they were human and minor. Your staff worked hard and wrote objectively. If this project and your story strikes that "spark of hope" that ignites a broader program of county beautification, it will be a bright new day for us all. Our mountains and our valleys are gifts from God. The litter and trash came from us. Surely what we have thrown down we can pick up. I hope, for all who love these mountains and valleys, that we have just begun.

DONALD D. HARKINS Lexington, Ky.

Urges Opposition

A proposed change in Kentucky's budget seriously challenges the state's funding for highways. The Blue Grass Automobile Club-AAA urges motorists to voice their opposition to their legislators and to the Governor's office.

A recommendation made by the Governor's budget advisors to solve a shortage in the General Fund is to hold back $44 million in coal severance tax originally earmarked for the Road Fund. In 1978, the Kentucky General Assembly designated the coal severance tax to be used to pay off the coal road bonds. If this recent recommendation is accepted, it will create serious consequences to our highway program.

In the past, Kentucky was able to obtain federal highway funds because it was ready with the planning and required matching funds. Due to recent increases in federal revenues for some states, there is an excellent chance that Kentucky could get substantial money this and next year when other states fail to use their apportionments. Any cutback in revenues for the Road Fund jeopardizes our ability to receive these funds.

Kentucky cannot maintain its present highway system and complete needed improvements without keeping current revenues and creating new funding sources. The Blue Grass Automobile Club asks motorists to express their concern to members of the General Assembly, or call AAA toll-free at 1-800-432-0996 and share your opinion with the Public Relations department.

Wonders About Amnesia

I heard on TV a woman had misplaced one million dollars and that they were placing her in jail and were going to pay her for her health problems. She said she had amnesia—couldn't remember misplacing the money. So far, they had not found the money. Guess you people in Floyd county have by now heard about Floyd county being broke and in debt. Wonder if this could be another amnesia case? You know, for the past while no work has been done on Floyd county roads. You people up the creek hollows can't get out in the winter time for the mud, yet Floyd county has no money for gravel and is broke. Wonder where all the coal severance tax went? It should have been put on the roads.

I have been in Floyd county all my life. This is the first time I ever heard of the state having come in Floyd county, see what is going on in our county. All you can hear is, Floyd county is broke, but if you have read the papers like Huntington Herald and Floyd County Times you can see who got the money. It's been wasted. Like that park up above Allen. As I see it that bridge money spent on that place was wasted. That is why we don't have anything we need. Here in Stanville, we have a big new high school building and the road to it is a dirt road. When the road is dry the dust from the school buses and cars goes half-way to the top of the hill back of the school, then the rest falls down on the people in the valley below. Which reminds me of a woman I once saw. She had a big mink fur coat and a pair of worn-out shoes to go with it. No use to ask Floyd county to pave the road; she is broke. So the state will probably say, it's Floyd county's duty to pave the road.

Another thing; the road up to the new school building should come off the new 4-lane road. But there is a curve above where the road starts up the hill, so they drive 1/4 or 1/2 mile on down the road, cut across up all US 23, then back to the road up the hill to the school. In one year's time the extra gas, bus wear, time will cost a lot more than a red light which every one needs here on old 23 to get on the 4-lane road. But Floyd county is broke. No use to ask for anything the people need.

I don't know how the rest of the people of Floyd county feel about the state having come in to our Floyd county, see what is going with its money. I don't feel like it put a red feather in Floyd county's cap. But there is one thing people in Floyd county can do. If they are not satisfied with the mess Floyd county is in, when the next election comes say we are going to make a change.

MR. AND MRS. GEORGE CONN Stanville, Ky.

Information Wanted Recently I read an article in the paper under the column, "Nature Trails," about poke greens. In the article it was stated that poke greens were canned for eating during the winter months. It also stated that "poke is rich in Vitamin C and other minerals which fortify the body against cold and flu viruses." Do any of your readers have a recipe or know how to can these poke greens? If so, I would very much like to hear from you. I would like to try poke greens myself. Thank you so much.

Highlands Emergency Entrance Relocated

A temporary front entrance to the Highlands Regional Medical Center emergency room will open on Monday, March 28, hospital officials announced this week. The current rear entrance will be blocked due to construction for their $10 million expansion project now underway at the hospital. Signs are posted to direct patients to the new entrance.

There will be no interruption in emergency room services during the construction, it was said. The new emergency room, which will be the first new section of the expansion to open, will be more than twice the size of the current emergency area. It will have five trauma beds, a fracture room, separate examination rooms, a cardiac room, patient holding beds, an expanded visitor waiting area and staff and physician facilities.

FIRST PERSON POETRY IS FEATURED ON KET

Thirteen poetic characters come to life in the "American Playhouse" production "Verse Person Singular" airing Tuesday, March 29, at 9:30 p.m. on KET. In this one-man show, actor Richard Kelly gathered some of his favorite first-person poems, which he performs with the help of modern video technology. Throughout the program, he wears a black suit and black turtle-neck sweater to which are added various costume pieces and props to assume the characters he is portraying. Each poem is acted out, not recited in the usual manner. For example, in "The Walrus and the Carpenter," Kiley performs all the parts—Walrus, Carpenter and Oysters; in "A Maine Roustabout," Kelly is seen in an old barroom and the reality of the scene is heightened by the addition of sound effects of an old piano player, crowd noises and the clinking of glasses; and in Edgar Allen Poe's "The Raven," Kelly has been placed in an ominous setting consisting of a single, eerie blue background, a projection of a tall abstract window and a deep purple velvet wing chair. "American Playhouse" is a production of KCET (Los Angeles), South Carolina ETV, WGBH (Boston) and WNET (New York).

Yes, You Can Go Home

By Judd Arnett

(An expatriated Eastern Kentuckian, writing in the Detroit Free Press)
Return of a native...

Well before this narrative lands on your doorstep, the Old Curmudgeon will be "somewhere in West Virginia." If this destination sounds like the invasion of a battle zone, it may be appropriate, for the trip is being made in tribute to a sister, Lillian, who is about to battle herself out of a nursing home. She was 89 years old last Thanksgiving, seemingly as tough as a street urchin and twice as sassy, when suddenly a collapse put her into the intensive care unit of a hospital. The doctors finally diagnosed a hiatus hernia, probably induced by carless eating (she has been a widow for many years) and recommended induction into a nursing home, where she has since lived "bar-racks style" with nine other ladies.

There were friends and relatives who said, well, that is the end of Lillian and her home of more than a half-century in Huntington, but they forgot that she is constructed of whale bone and tiger claws.

There is remembrance of a telephone conversation held midway in 1982 when the subject of her personal safety was introduced. After all, an old widow, in an old home, in an old neighborhood?

"Oh," she replied, "when I go to bed I feel perfectly secure. I lock the door and prop a chair against it, and then I tuck into bed after making sure my revolver is where I can reach it."

Her revolver? Holy jumping Toledo, what sort of a revolver?
A long-barreled .38, she replied, left over from the arsenal collected by her late husband, Joe, who was a hunter and marksman of some repute.

Would she use the revolver in the event of an emergency?
"Of course," she responded. "If anyone tries to get in my room at night I will take a shot at him."

And there was the realization that she would have, too, even if she had blown the west end out of Huntington.

So there will be a rally of relatives to welcome her home to her own beloved precincts, if everything goes as planned. There will be much jollity, with perhaps the thumping of the piano and voices lifted in song. But one is warned that it will be an exceedingly "dry" occasion, for she is a devout Methodist with a feeling for fire and brimstone, and whose lips touch Old Slippery Elm shall never touch hers.

For This Sojourner it will also amount to the return of a native, for he was born in Russell, Ky., about 20 miles from Huntington, at the junction of what is called the "Tri-State" area, where Ohio, Kentucky and West Virginia kiss and then go their separate ways.

Further, he knows that as soon as he gets about 100 miles south of Columbus, in the general area of Chillicothe, he will return to the embrace of the dark hills, which jut against the horizon. Oh, you can take the boy out of the hills, but you cannot take the hills out of the boy.

For they have an irresistible and indefinable pull on the subconscious of all those born to them. They may seem worthless at first return, covered as they are with brambles and trees of non-descript ancestry, but shortly they become the handiwork of God, put there in part to remind the wayward that forebears came here in the infancy of the Republic, or even before, and either out of awe or weariness settled for better or worse. The hills were the starting place at journey's end for many of those who helped tame the wilderness, and their marks remain on what is now called civilization.

One understands, too, that one will be returning to an area now being passed over by the new industrial revolution. The railroads and steel were formerly the crown princes of America's prosperity, but now the massive freight yards are subject to rust and only small puffs of smoke issue from the tall stacks which once belched flame.

Nowhere in this portion of the heartland is change more evident than along the banks of the Tri-State allotment of the Ohio River, where one skinny-dipped as a vacationing youngster and marveled at the enterprise of ones elders.

But all of it is still under the spell of the dark hills, beloved in prose and poetry. Many may have come, and conquered, and departed in some disarray, but the hills are still there. After all, they belong to the Creator, who decided that was where they should be, forever and ever.

CARLA ROBINSON BOYD FOR COUNTY COURT CLERK

Since announcing my candidacy for the position of County Court Clerk, I have had numerous phone calls county-wide pledging their support. Many have pledged their support because they supported and cared so much for my uncle, the late C. "Ollie" Robinson, and all the others have pledged their support because they now need a County Court Clerk qualified to hold the position and to accommodate the people of Floyd County.

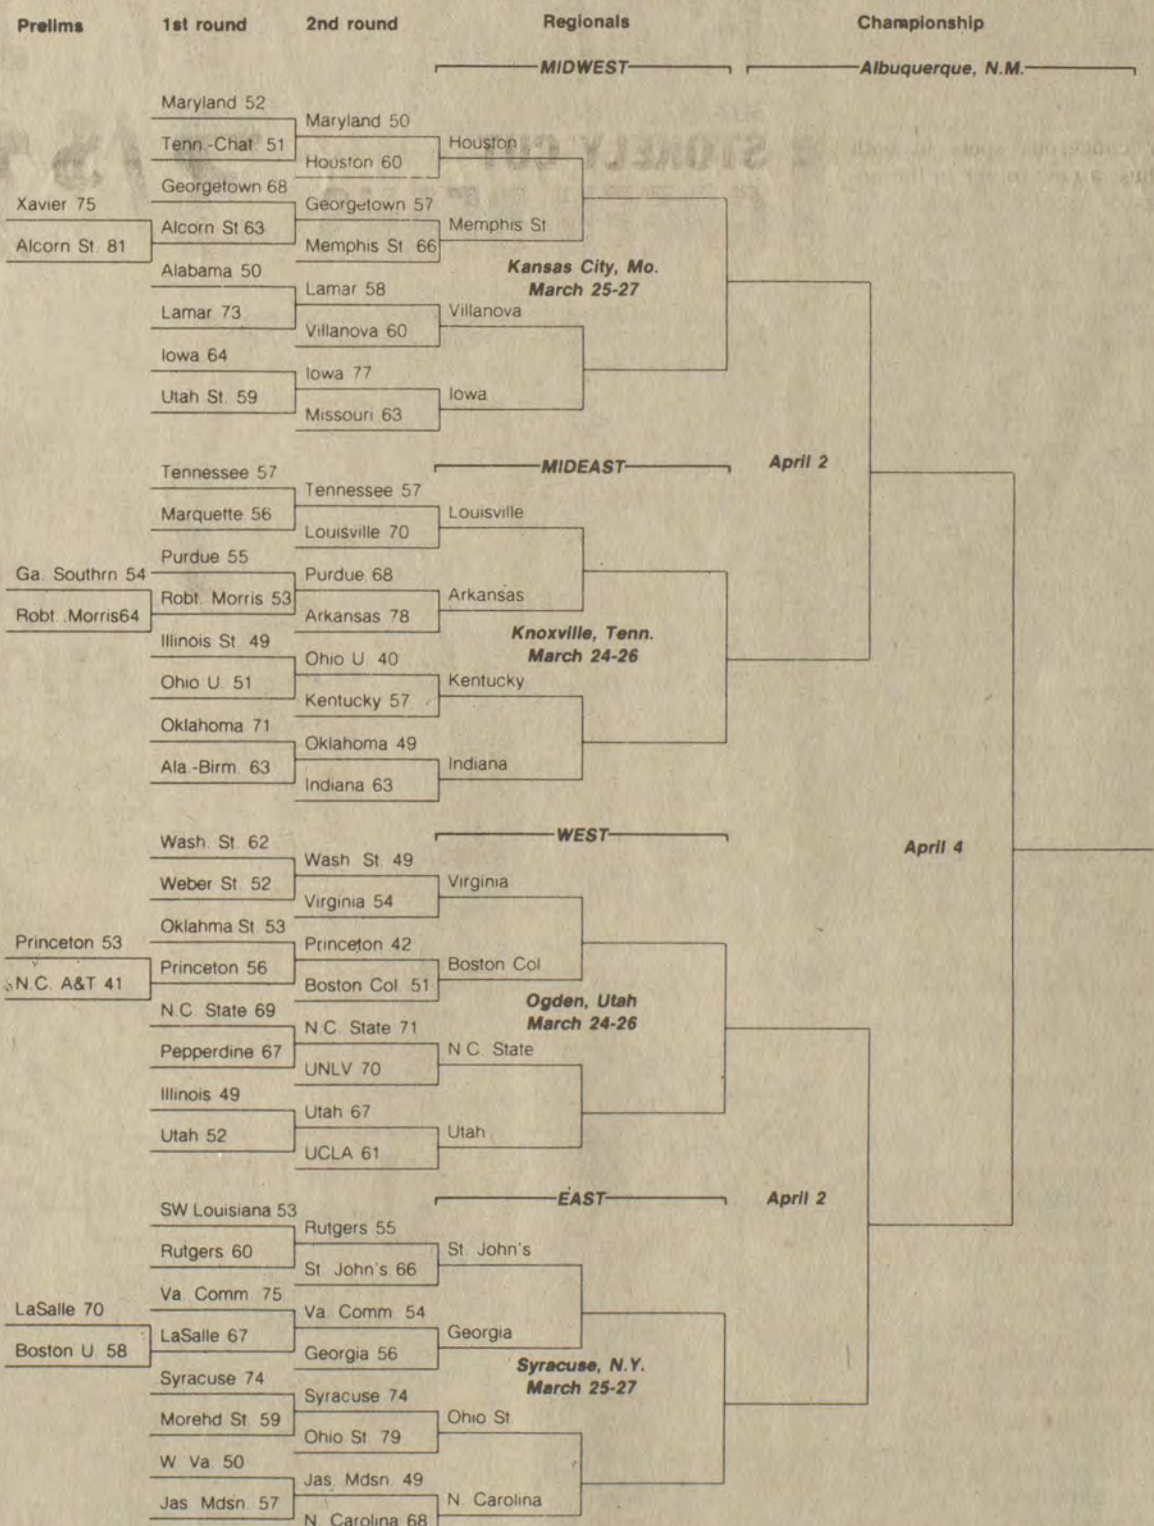

The next County Court Clerk needs to know what is required, how to accommodate the people and should be qualified in all aspects. I am duly qualified to run this office!

I have had several years full-time and part-time experience in all areas of the County Court Clerk's office. I am the type of person who believes that honesty and sincerity are the best qualities that a person can have, and these qualities, I trust, you will always find in me. These are two qualities that money cannot buy.

REMEMBER, ELECTION DAY IS MAY 24

Annexation's Foes May Fight A Losing Battle

Even Prestonsburg City Manager David Evans had to admit it seems hardly fair, the resistance people are required to mount in order to block a city's bid to annex them.

It takes only half the property owners of an area proposed for annexation to have the proposal put on the ballot at the next election. And, after fielding questions from about 150 Auxier road residents at a meeting in Horn Chapel last Thursday, Evans concedes that the city's proposal to annex that section will more than likely be on the ballot in November.

But for the foes of annexation—and that includes most, if not all, of those who spoke their mind at Thursday's meeting—getting on the ballot is only the first of their problems. In order to stop the city's plan to make their neighborhood part of Prestonsburg, 75 percent of their neighbors must vote against it.

That does not mean three-quarters of those who vote in the election in that precinct. It means three-quarters of the area's eligible voters. Conceivably, 100 percent of those who actually vote could oppose the plan and yet, if voter turnout was relatively light, not amount to 75 percent of the eligible voters.

Although they were hard-pressed to defend it as an example of majority rule, Evans, Mayor Harold Cooley, and council members Eunice Shepherd and Bill Ray Collins outlined what they saw as the merits of annexation for an audience that appeared fairly hostile to the idea.

Fire insurance on a $60,000 home, which would cost them about $475 a year in the county, where they are burdened with a Class 10 underwriters' rating, could be had for $286 in the city, which enjoys a Class 6 rating, according to a fact sheet distributed by city officials.

The bill for 6000 gallons of water, amounting to $15.25 at county rates, would come to $10.65 at the city rate—a saving of $4.60 a month or $55.20 a year—it was said.

For the same $6-a-month fee, they could get twice-a-week garbage pickup in the city compared to a weekly pickup in the county—and the city, unlike the county, offers a discount to senior citizens, the Auxier road residents were told.

Add to that round-the-clock police and fire protection, and street lights and road maintenance, and the offer is clearly a bargain, as city officials see it.

Even after paying Prestonsburg taxes at a rate of 29 cents per $100 valuation—$174 on a $60,000 home—they stood to realize an annual savings of around $243, the Auxier road residents were told.

If anyone was convinced by the city's sales pitch they were not admitting it Thursday night. The sheriff's department and state police could take care of their few crime problems and the Auxier fire department could extinguish their fires, some argued.

Some disputed the city's figures on fire insurance costs; others said they had invested heavily in their own sewage facilities and had no need to hook onto Prestonsburg's system; one man worried that he would not be able to keep livestock if his property was incorporated.

"It's always a volatile issue," Evans said after the meeting. "Either you're for it or against it. There seems to be no middle ground."

"We felt we should present the people with the facts so that they could decide for themselves," he said of the city-sponsored meeting. "Nobody can force annexation on them."

Maybe not, but the law can certainly make it hard to resist. Of the 1068 estimated by one count to be eligible voters in the area proposed for annexation, 801 would have to vote "No" before the plan could be stopped.

When Mays Branch was proposed for annexation in 1981, fully 100 percent of the area's 26 voters cast a vote, rejecting the proposal by 19 votes to 7. It was one vote short of the number required to block the annexation.

"I don't think we changed anybody's mind," City Manager Evans said after last week's Horn Chapel meeting. What the city is apparently unable to secure by persuasion, however, it may yet exact with the help of the law.

Seniors, Out in Force, Get Promises, Individual Support

"You can tell we're fairly desperate or we wouldn't be here in these numbers," Delmas Saunders, spokesman for a group of more than 80 senior citizens, told the fiscal court Friday.

Most of the magistrates found the numbers convincing. They hastened to declare their esteem for the elderly, several of them donating money from their own pockets to help support the county's three senior citizen centers.

But, while they appreciated the donors' sincerity, Saunders said, what the seniors were asking for was not charity but a reliable share of the county's resources.

The size of the delegation, which also presented to the court a petition bearing 600 signatures, forced the transfer of the fiscal court meeting from the courthouse annex to the circuit courtroom.

Essentially, the group sought funding for the busdrivers who provide for many of them their only access to stores, physicians, and companions. "There is no way I can get into town without the bus," said Myrtle Skeans, who lives up a hollow two miles from Martin. Helping seniors stay in touch with the community is "the most important thing the county can do," she said.

Vernon Rice said the future of the county's three senior citizen centers—at Archer Park, Martin and Wheelwright—was at stake. "Without some funds the program will die," he warned.

Judge-Executive Jerry Lafferty, Jr., who said he had already contributed $500 to the program, pledged another $1000 from personal funds. His brother Adrian, who was seated in the audience, also promised to give $1500. "I have a mother-in-law involved in (the senior citizen program)," he explained. Magistrates Gerald DeRossett and Ed Caudill contributed $300 apiece, each of the donations drawing audience applause.

But what the county's elderly citizens need is "something of a sustaining nature," Saunders said. "We should not have to depend on the generosity of individual donors," he added.

Although it was not clear where the money would come from—the Community Action Program might help, the judge said—he would "see that they get the buses back on the road this month," Lafferty promised.

The seniors, who have had their share of unfulfilled promises, appeared willing again to take the court at its word. But, even as they took their leave, the issue of the county's support for its elderly population was clearly not about to go away.

"Senior citizens are going to be coming on all the time," Nora Martin, of Turkey Creek, reminded the court. "After we've gone, there will be others to take our place."

The lesson, "Salt and Sugar in the Diet," was presented by Mrs. Allen. The hostess, Miss Christine Spradlin, served refreshments to Mrs. Frances Pitts, Mrs. June Adams, Mrs. Mabel Allen, and Mrs. Thelma Wallen.

The next regular meeting will be April 19, at 7 p.m., at the Kentucky Power Company.

Church Cannot Block License, Judge Decides

Saying that it violates the First Amendment separation of church and state, Franklin Circuit Judge Squire Williams last Friday struck down a state law giving churches the right to veto alcoholic beverage licenses within 200 feet of their buildings.

The decision came in response to a suit filed by a Lawrenceburg market which was denied a beer license because of objections by a nearby Church of God. It was the first ruling on the issue in Kentucky since the U.S. Supreme Court last year struck down a similar law in Massachusetts.

The ABC Board is expected to appeal the ruling.

Among those awaiting a final ruling on the issue are Kenneth and Betty Robinson, owners of The Back Porch restaurant at Betsy Layne. They were denied a beer and wine license, also because of a protest from a neighboring Church of God.

Carroll Tells Drug War Aims

Former Governor Julian Carroll says the new Kentucky War on Drugs will seek to reach one million Kentucky parents with an educational effort aimed at informing parents of the drug abuse potential facing their sons and daughters. Carroll told the Cabinet for Human Resources' Institute for Children that the "primary focus of this drive must be parental education on the dangers of drugs."

Appointed by Governor John Y. Brown, Jr., March 4, Carroll called the public response to the new anti-drug abuse campaign "tremendous...we've yet to hear anyone say 'No' to us." Carroll briefed Institute members on a three-pronged effort by the Kentucky War on Drugs: Education, Communication, and Law Enforcement Coordination. "There are an enormous number of drug abuse prevention programs and law enforcement anti-drug campaigns, but they need some coordination in order to achieve their potential impact," he said. Carroll also noted the organization has to develop more resources and decide how best to utilize the offers of assistance that have already come in.

The Kentucky War on Drugs is assembling a staff under executive director Raymond LeRoux, a former deputy secretary in the Cabinet for Human Resources. Chairman Carroll met following the Institute for Children session with Human Resources Secretary Buddy Adams, Justice Secretary Billy Wellman and Education Secretary Raymond Barber to discuss the role those cabinets will play in the War on Drugs game plan.

Institute for Children Chairperson Sandra Kerlin termed the Kentucky War on Drugs "an effort we are very interested in, and one we want to be involved with." Members of the Institute will serve in a voluntary advisory capacity to the new anti-drug abuse organization, with one representative serving on the Kentucky War on Drugs board of directors.

Bottling Firm Named in Suits

Three Floyd residents who claim they found foreign matter in bottles of Pepsi Cola, have sued East Kentucky Beverage Company in two suits filed in circuit court here this week. The two suits bring to four the number of similar lawsuits pending against the firm—and have drawn a strong response from a senior official of the company.

Phillip Hall claims he gagged and vomited after drinking from a bottle he purchased from the Stop and Shop store at Estill last December. In another unopened bottle bought at the same time there is visible "what appears to be a worm or other crawling type insect," he alleges.

In his suit, filed by Martin attorney Greg Stumbo, Hall is seeking $50,000 in compensatory damages and $25,000 in punitive damages.

In the other lawsuit, also filed by Attorney Stumbo, Thomas and Janice Hackworth say they found a foreign object that they first thought was a piece of ice floating in a bottle of Pepsi they purchased Jan. 7 at the Martin Save-Mart. They claim $25,000 each in compensatory damages and a like amount jointly in punitive damages.

In both suits East Kentucky Beverage, of Pikeville, named as the firm that bottled the drinks, is accused of negligence.

But John Dupuy, the company's senior vice-president, thinks his firm is the victim of a fad if not of a downright hoax.

"It's very easy to open a bottle of Pepsi, put something in it, and take it to a lawyer," he said this week.

And, short of deliberate fraud, it is quite possible, he thinks, that the current spate of lawsuits says more about public perceptions than it does about the cleanliness of the Pikeville bottling plant.

"In the ten years I've been here this is the first time we've had any cases like this—and suddenly we have four of them," he noted. Moreover, he added, when the company does much more business in Pike county, all four suits have originated in Floyd county.

In a plant that last year turned out 50,589,432 bottles of Pepsi, Seven-Up and Dr. Pepper, it is inevitable that impurities will occasionally turn up, Dupuy concedes. Even though each bottle is visually and electronically checked before it leaves the plant, there can be no absolute guarantee against human or mechanical error, he argues.

It is a problem that all sectors of the food and beverage industry have to live with, he said.

The Pikeville plant is regularly inspected by officials from the state Health Department, the Food and Drug Administration, and the firms that supply concentrate for the bottled drinks, Dupuy said. "They say our plant is one of the cleanest in the country," he added, "and we pride ourselves on that."

Paternal grandparents were the late Amos and Sarah Blackburn, of Dwayne. Miss Fannin's paternal grandparents were the late John and Virgie Fannin, of Endicott.

Office Workers' Bags Theft Targets Here

Handbags owned by women office workers in Prestonsburg appear to have become the latest target for a thief or thieves operating here, Police Chief Jim Curtis said Monday.

Women in two legal offices—Dan Rowland's on South Lake Drive and the Appalachian Research and Defense Fund on Front Street—who reported purses stolen Monday were simply the latest in a string of victims, he said.

Curtis said the thief apparently watches for where the office worker keeps her pocketbook, waits until she leaves the office on an errand, snatches the bag and disappears.

Even if they are planning to be absent only for a minute or two, office personnel should either lock their offices or stow their valuables in a locked drawer, the police chief cautioned.

Police Nab Juvenile Escapee from Center

The second of four juveniles who fled the juvenile center here Feb. 22 after locking two staff counselors in a cell was arrested last Wednesday morning in the Dixie subdivision here by Chief of Police James Curtis and two other police officers.

Little more than hour later, a warrant was issued for 19-year-old Dave Mullins, of Dixie, accusing him of hindering prosecution. Chief Curtis said Mullins had allegedly been hiding in his apartment the youth who was arrested earlier in the day.

One escapee was captured, a few hours after the break. Two other have not been apprehended.

Prestonsburg police recently booked Terry Bartlett, about 25, of Prestonsburg, and a juvenile in connection with the holdup at his home here last month of William J. May, Jr. The two also are accused of taking an auto from the premises of East Kentucky Auto Parts here. The car was wrecked shortly thereafter it was stolen.

Funding Is Possible For Regional Airport

A proposal for funding the Big Sandy Regional Airport is contained in a conference report on the jobs bill expected to come up soon for a vote in Congress, a spokeswoman for Sen. Walter Dee Huddleston announced Tuesday. If passed in its present form by both houses, the bill would earmark $3.2 million for the project.

A Felon Is Convicted—So What?...

Prosecutors View Issue Of Probation and Parole

Jurors and potential jurors ought to know that the felons they send to prison will, in all likelihood, serve only a fraction of their sentence before being released on parole, Commonwealth's Attorney James R. Allen said this week.

Since Kentucky law prohibits prosecutors and judges from telling a jury how long or short a time a person may have to serve before being eligible for parole, some jurors labor under the misapprehension that the convict they sentence will actually stay in prison for the time they fix, Allen said.

"If jurors in these cases had all the facts," the commonwealth's attorney said, "they would probably set a different sentence."

Allen's argument finds an echo in a Johnson county prosecutor's dismay this week on learning that Lynn Holbrook, sentenced last fall to 20 years in prison for murdering her policeman husband, had been granted a parole hearing April 4.

In order to publicize the situation, the Kentucky Commonwealth's Attorneys' Association has launched a statewide educational program on the issue of probation and parole, Allen said.

Under existing Department of Justice rules, an individual sentenced from one to two years may be paroled after serving four months; those jailed for terms ranging from two to 30 years may be released after serving one-fifth of their sentence; for sentences ranging from 30 years to life, parole is possible after eight years.

What does it mean, then—the question is raised in a press release distributed by the commonwealth's attorneys' group—that a jury sentences a defendant to 10 years' hard labor in the state penitentiary?

For one thing, it may not mean that the defendant will spend even a day in prison, say the attorneys, who note that the trial judge may probate the sentence. Or the defendant may spend only a month in prison if the court, judging that he has learned his lesson, grants him "shock" probation.

But, even if his sentence is not probated, the chances are very high that, as long as he behaves himself in prison, he will make parole in two years.

Theoretically, it is up to the state parole board to decide each case on its merits. But the overcrowded condition of the state prisons, and the fact that there is little public support for building more prisons, means that the parole board really doesn't have much choice, the prosecutors argue.

If 100 new prisoners are brought into an already full prison, there is no alternative but to parole 100 existing prisoners. Over the years the parole board has shortened most sentences until only the most hardened prisoners serve their full term, they point out.

Under state law, however, these considerations may not be raised in the presence of a jury. If they could be raised, prosecutors contend, jurors would be in a better position to render a verdict and to fix a sentence commensurate with the offense.

One answer to the problem, they suggest, would be to allow the judge to make a brief explanation to the jury of the rules of probation and parole. Others have suggested that state courts follow the federal system of requiring juries simply to determine guilt or innocence while leaving it to the judge to fix the sentence.

Grand Ole Opry Star To Appear Here

Speck Rhodes will be one of the featured stars on the Liz LaMac Country Show scheduled at the Prestonsburg High School Auditorium at 8 p.m., Friday, April 15. Sponsored by Sheriff Henry C. Hale and the Floyd County Sheriff's Department, proceeds from the show will be used to fund a new drug abuse program in this county and to aid the Kentucky Boys and Girls Ranch.

Speck Rhodes, one of the original members of the Porter Wagoner TV show and a star of the Grand Ole Opry for 18 years, will appear on the two and one half hour show along with the Vic Willis trio, Dave Sign and the Co. Band, the Cloggin' Dolls and Joe Wood, Liz LaMac's side-kick. The country-western and Gospel show will be co-hosted by Bob Brunner, of WSAZ Channel 3 TV.

Ticket sales will be made directly from the sheriff's office, and those who wish to support a program to combat the drug problem in this county and at the same time enjoy an evening of wholesome entertainment will have an opportunity to do so. Children eight years old or younger will be admitted free when accompanied by a parent.

Sheriff Hale said, "Drugs are a problem in Floyd county, and with the help of each law enforcement spirited resident, we can make this show a real success in our fight against drug abuse."

CHURCHWOMEN MEET

A call meeting was held by the Local Church Women's organization, Friday, at the Riverview Manor Nursing Home, with the president, Mrs. Eleanor Robinson, in charge. Mrs. Robinson explained that the purpose of the gathering was to discuss further plans for the proposed food pantry and clothing center, sponsored by the Local Church Women and the Prestonsburg Ministerial Association, a project which has been under way for the past few months.

The president presented the Rev. John Woods, pastor of the Fitzpatrick Baptist Church, who is already working with a project such as this in his community. The Rev. Woods told of the ways food and clothing may be obtained, and other matters pertaining to this effort, and offered to help in any way possible with the organization's hopes of getting the program under way.

The possibility of getting a building for this purpose was discussed at length, and the president asked that, if possible, a decision about this and other matters pertaining to the endeavor be made by the next meeting, which is scheduled for Friday morning, April 15.

Holy Week, which the Local Church Women, in cooperation with the Prestonsburg Ministerial Association, sponsors each year, was discussed. Services will be held, and light lunches will be served from March 28 through April 1, at the Irene Cole Memorial (First) Baptist Church, beginning at 12:05 noon and members of all churches are cordially invited to participate.

Representing the local churches at Friday's meeting were members from the First United Methodist, the Community United Methodist, the Irene Cole Memorial (First), and the Fitzpatrick Baptist Churches. Mrs. Robinson served a dessert course.

Blunders Abound In World War II Comedy

It happened during World War II—Nazi Germany's S.S. tried to win the war by flooding the country with forged five-pound banknotes calculated to wreck the economy. The six-part drama of the incredible but true story of "Private Schulz," begins on "Masterpiece Theatre" Sunday, April 3, at 9 p.m. on KET.

Author Jack Pulman based the Private Schulz (Michael Elphick) character on Johann Rasch, an ex-convict and one-time underwear salesman. He schemes to spend the war sitting behind a desk, but such is not to be. His superiors draft him into the S.S.'s counter-espionage unit as confidential clerk to arrogant, ambitious Major Neuheim (Ian Richardson.)

The major takes full credit for Schulz's clever ideas, claiming the forged banknote scheme as his own. He winds up a millionaire, while the put-upon Schulz reaps neither glory nor riches.

Phillip Hinchcliffe produced "Private Schulz" for WGBH, Boston.

'Miss Edith' Has Memorable Birthday

Mrs. Edith James is shown as she cut her decorated cake at the home of her nephew and niece, Dr. and Mrs. Herbert Salisbury, III, who entertained many of her relatives and longtime friends, honoring her on her birthday Thursday evening.

Near the end of her birthday party, Mrs. James bade good-bye to "Fiddlin'" Dewey Shepherd, one of the musicians in attendance who have long been participants in the Kentucky Highland Folk Festival, which she founded.

Dr. and Mrs. Herbert Salisbury, III, entertained at their home here last Thursday evening relatives and longtime friends of their aunt, Mrs. Edith James, in commemoration of her birthday.

The St. Patrick's Day motif was used throughout the house, with banners at vantage points in each room proclaiming the birthday of the honoree.

An arrangement of assorted spring flowers, intertwined with greenery, and a large, decorated birthday cake furnished the main decorations for the dining room table, while a matching bouquet, a gift from Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Tucker, of New York City, was used as the centerpiece for the table on which the gifts were assembled.

Music for the occasion was furnished by a group of the musicians who participate each year in the Kentucky Highland Regional Folk Festival here, of which the honoree, Mrs. James, is the founder and Mr. and Mrs. Chalmer Frazier now help to sponsor. They included: Paul Neal Allen, Mike Hall, Dave Sizemore, L.B. Fairchild, and "Fiddlin'" Dewey Shepherd, all of Prestonsburg and Floyd county, and Dr. Harry Bickle, Kentucky's champion banjo-picker, from Louisville. A solo was rendered by Miss Betty Rowland, who is a member of the Jenny Wiley Chantresses, a group which also participates each year in the Festival.

After the honoree had opened her many gifts, she and the host and hostess, Mr. and Mrs. Salisbury, invited the guests into the dining room for birthday repast.

Those who signed the guest-register, and others who sent gifts, were: Mr. and Mrs. Joe Weddington, Mrs. Norma S. Stepp, Mrs. Margaret Spradlin, Mrs.

Mae S. Kendrick, Mrs. Zella Archer, Mrs. Belle Sturgill, Mrs. Delphia Hicks, Mrs. Sally Goebel, Miss Betty Rowland, Garry Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Dave Sizemore, Mrs. Lydia Margaret Howard, Miss Ethel Burke, Mrs. Margaret Alley, Mrs. Docia B. Woods, Mrs. Diana Williams, Mrs. Dorothy Wells, Mr. and Mrs. L.B. Fairchild, Larry Brown, Miss Tammy Francis, Charles Yancy Ferguson, Mr. and Fred James, Miss Kathy Harris, Mr. and Mrs. Chalmer Frazier, Mrs. Anna Stumbo, Mrs. Edna Carol Greenwade, Mrs. Alice G. Buchanan, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Ed Music, Miss Cindy Shepherd, Jack Scott, Dewey Shepherd, Tim Sizemore, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Neal Allen, Mike Hall, Mrs. Frances Compton, Miss Janice Hamilton, and Miss Sally Ann Goebel, all of Prestonsburg and vicinity; Mrs. Mary Ann James, Mrs. Ardena Wheeler, and Mrs. Nancy England and daughter, Mahoney, of Pikeville; Mr. and Mrs. Ray Brackett, of Allen, and Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Tucker, of New York City.

Near the close of the evening, the guest of honor, accompanied by the musicians, sang the ballad, "The Girl I Left on Big Sandy." Then she cut her birthday cake, and, assisted by the host and hostess, served this and other refreshments to guests.

TWINS HONORED ON BIRTHDAY

Mrs. Joy

Mrs. Powell

Mrs. Leatha Joy and Gladys Powell twin sisters, were honored on their birthday Sunday by Mrs. Joy's daughter, Mrs. Ruth Joy DeRossett, and family at her home here. Relatives and friends sent congratulations and best-wishes. A decorated cake and dinner were enjoyed by many friends and guests at the Carriage House in Paintsville.

Mrs. Joy and her late husband, Wilbur R. Joy, moved to Prestonsburg in 1949 from Sessor, Illinois. He founded and operated the Coal Bit Company here, the first Manufacturing plant of its kind in Floyd county. He was one of four brothers connected with mining. The Joy family is one of the best known in the mining industry. Joseph F. Joy, brother of Wilbur R. Joy, pioneered in mechanical mining and built the first successful loading machine, the Joy loader.

Mrs. Powell came here from Parkersburg, W. Va. in 1959 to make her home with her sister. Her late husband, Maclyn Powell, was employed in that city by the Internal Revenue Service for several years. Both sisters have been in the Order of the Eastern Star for the past several years. Mrs. Joy is now a "life member," having served for 31 years in the Order. Both are members of the First Methodist Church here. The only living members of their family are two brothers who live in California, one in Fort Placid, Fla., and one sister in Morgantown, W. Va. Mrs. Joy has one grandson, Greg R. DeRossett, who resides at Spurlock. Many congratulations and phone calls from many parts of Kentucky and other states, as well as Saskatchewan, Canada, were received and gratefully acknowledged.

AUTOMOTIVE SERVICE CONTRACTS

"A service contract and a warranty are not the same," says Attorney General Steven L. Beshear. "A service contract provides a specific time during which the service contractor agrees to repair or maintain your car for a predetermined price. It is purchased separately from the car and does not necessarily have to be bought from the dealer. The service contract may cover routine inspection and maintenance only, or it may cover major repairs."

If you are one of the estimated 50% of new car buyers who have already purchased an automobile service contract, or if you are considering such a purchase, Beshear suggests that you consider the following:

1. Who is responsible for the contract? Service contracts can be purchased from automobile manufacturers, independent contract companies, individual dealers or dealer associations. Beshear warns that although most companies that sell service contracts are reliable, some companies lack funds, insurance, or go out of business. When this happens, you are left with a worthless contract and bills to pay. Be certain the company with which you deal is reputable.

2. What benefits are included in the contract?

Contracts may offer different coverage for different parts of the car. It may cover all parts or major mechanical repairs. Some contracts pay for maintenance, towing and car rental expenses. If you are unsure of the benefits offered, ask the person from whom you are purchasing the contract to explain it more fully.

3. Is a service contract necessary in addition to a warranty?

If the coverage provided by the service contract overlaps with the warranty coverage, compare costs and coverages to determine if the additional expense is justified.

4. How will repair bills be paid?

The service contract company may pay the mechanic or dealer directly, or you may be required to make the initial payment and later be reimbursed by the service contract company.

5. Who can service the car?

Most service contracts allow the selling dealership to service the car. Manufacturers have dealerships nationwide, so service is available if you travel or move. Some contracts allow the automobile owner to choose his/her own mechanic. Other companies may only offer service in a specific geographical location.

6. What is the cost of the service contract?

Most contracts cost between $100-$345 and can last from a few months to 5 years/50,000 miles. Manufacturers' service contracts offer basically the same coverage for all new cars. Price changes by car model. Independent and dealer service contracts are based on car make, model, condition, what is covered and length of contract.

7. Will there be other costs involved?

Some may require you to pay a fee for each unrelated repair, while some may request a flat rate fee each visit for all repairs. The service contract may limit the total amount charged for towing expenses and car rental. A cancellation fee may also be charged for ending the contract.

"Before entering into a service contract, read the contract very carefully," advises Beshear. "If you do not fully understand all of the information in the service contract, do not sign it. Have the salesperson or someone who his knowledgeable in the area explain the contract to you."

For further information, contact the Office of the Attorney General, Consumer Protection Division, 209 St. Clair Street, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601-1875, or call the toll-free Consumer Hotline number: 1-800-432-9257.

Homecoming Queen

Miss Dena Curry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Curry, was chosen as the 1982-'83 basketball homecoming queen. A 16-year-old junior, she has been a varsity cheerleader for two of her three years at the school, a band member for two years, and an honor student for three years.

Her escort was Tim Cole, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Cole, also a junior. He has played basketball for three years.

Other attendants on the homecoming court were Kay Hall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Hall, escorted by Charlie Martin; Nawonia Hall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Hall, escorted by Jeffery Boyd; Terri Sue Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Ferrari, escorted by Michael Williams; Marilyn Harris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Harris, escorted by Jimmy Caudill.

Martin Church To Show "God's Prison Gang" Film

"God's Prison Gang," a newly released film featuring Al Capone's getaway driver, the last member of Bonnie and Clyde's gang and two other notorious criminals who have become Christians will be shown at Church of Christ at Martin (church), Sunday, April 3, at 7:30 p.m.

The film, shot behind the walls of New York's Attica prison, is hosted by Art Linkletter. It tells the story of how the work of International Prison Ministry is accomplishing what more guards, higher prison walls and greater financial expenditures have failed to do—keep released inmates from returning to lives of crime.

Telling their stories in the 44-minute film are George Meyer, Al Capone's favorite driver; Floyd Hamilton, (Public Enemy No. 1) the last of the Bonnie and Clyde Gang; Jerry Graham, the "robber king" of California; and Ted Jefferson, convicted of crimes from drugs and robbery to murder.

Also featured is "Chaplain Ray," whose Dallas-based International Prison Ministry has changed the lives of thousands of inmates over the past 18 years.

Roger L. Madden, pastor of The Church of Christ at Martin, said he hopes all citizens concerned about the problem of rising crime will attend the free screening of the film.

Candidate Proposes Debate On List of "10 Tough Questions"

Releasing a set of 10 "tough questions" that Kentucky's next governor must answer, Grady Stumbo, Democratic candidate for governor, last week reissued his call for a series of public debates by the candidates.

While thanking KET for sponsoring a candidate forum in May, Stumbo noted that the most popular programs on educational TV reach only 3 percent of the television audience. Lt. Gov. Martha Layne Collins, Louisville Mayor Harvey Sloane and Stumbo have agreed to debate on KET, May 5. Stumbo wants to debate his opponents in all seven congressional districts.

Stumbo's "10 tough questions:"
1. A record of 207,000 Kentuckians are out of work. They have exhausted their unemployment benefits. What will Kentucky's next governor do to respond to this emergency?

2. Kentucky currently imports 63 percent of its food at a cost of nearly $2-billion each year. What will Kentucky's next governor do to promote markets for Kentucky agricultural products, both inside and outside the state?

3. Last year, more small businesses went under than at any time in the last 50 years. How will Kentucky's next governor act to insure the survival of the state's small business?

4. Coal, the backbone of Kentucky's economy, is experiencing its worst depression in a generation. Independent operators are struggling to survive, and more than 15,000 miners are out of work. What will Kentucky's next governor do to stimulate the market for coal today, and bring about greater industry stability for the future?

5. At present, 37 percent of those entering the 9th grade drop out of school before graduation. What actions will Kentucky's next governor take to insure that our education system is preparing our children for a productive future, and keeping our children in school?

6. Ten cents of every dollar Kentuckians earn is spent on health care. What role will Kentucky's next governor play in insuring that our people have affordable, accessible, and reliable medical treatment?

7. Candidates Sloane and Collins have expressed opposition to the Work Performance and Planning Review system for evaluating state employees without suggesting a reasonable alternative. What will Kentucky's next governor do to insure that state employees are deserving of tax-supported salaries and raises?

8. Kentucky's economy depends on getting our products to market. What will Kentucky's next governor do to change the current rules and regulations so that those who haul our products, particularly coal, can make a "legal living."

9. Kentuckians expect their government to conduct its business in an honest and above-board manner. What will Kentucky's next governor do to prevent the powerbrokers and kingmakers from benefiting unfairly from the taxpayers money through patronage and sweetheart contracts?

10. Candidates Collins and Sloane have already made commitments to education and pay raises for state employees that will use up all of the new money for Fiscal Year 1985 without a major tax increase. Recognizing that we need $250-million for minimum repairs on our roads, $50-million for repairs and construction of jails, $23-million for ambulance service improvements, and a long list of needed expenditures, how will Kentucky's next governor pay for the campaign promises made?

Jenny Wiley AARP To Meet Thursday

The local chapter of the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP) will hold its March meeting at 6 p.m., Thursday, March 24, at the Western Sizzlin Steak House, Prestonsburg.

The speaker will be Jim Kelly from the Social Security office who will speak on changes in medicare for senior citizens.

Members will be contacted by the telephone committee to determine who will be present, and all members and friends are urged to attend. Those attending will order their choice of meal from the menu.

The telephone committee is composed of Wilma Montgomery, Virginia Goble and Glenn Anderson.

Painting Series To Air In April

Television personality Bill Alexander shows viewers how to paint on "Magic of Oil Painting," premiering on KET Saturday, April 9, at 6:30 p.m.

Alexander demonstrates on each half-hour program how to paint a variety of pictures, giving additional assistance to viewers by displaying the finished paintings throughout the program.

"Personalized paintings are the most successful in my mind," explains Alexander. "The artist must bring life to the paintings. Creativity doesn't just happen with the snap of a finger for any artist—not even me."

"Magic of Oil Painting" is a KOCE production from Huntington Beach, California.

ER Doctors Are A Bonus, Says Traum

Highlands Regional Medical Center has been providing twenty-four hour emergency room coverage with experienced emergency physicians for the residents of the Floyd County, Kentucky area since the early seventies. However, a number of the residents may be unaware of this service, or take it for granted.

"Many people," said Clarence Traum, administrator of Highlands Regional Medical Center, "do not realize that twenty-four hour emergency physician coverage is not necessarily a standard feature in all hospitals. Most of the area residents may realize that a physician is always available, but they probably do not understand that this is a special service and that the physician is specially trained."

"The trained emergency room coverage in the past was often provided by the hospital's own medical staff. Even though this was—and still is in many hospitals—a fairly standard means of coverage, it is not necessarily the most efficient or effective way to provide treatment," explained Mr. Traum. "This arrangement results in frequent inconveniences for both the patient and the physicians. If a staff physician is busy in his office or is some distance away from the hospital, the emergency room patient could be in for a long wait. On the other hand, the staff physicians are subject to frequent interruptions and are sometimes forced to leave office patients who have less urgent problems."

Since June 1979, Highlands Regional Medical Center has contracted with Medical Associates Inc., a multi-hospital emergency physicians group, to provide emergency room services. The physicians specialize in emergency medicine.

Retraining Classes

AIRMAN FINISHES BASIC TRAINING

He is a 1982 graduate of Prestonsburg High School.

RAY TURNER FOR STATE SENATOR

"THE HILLBILLIES' CANDIDATE"

As all of you know, our gas bills this last month were unbelievable. How can our parents on fixed incomes pay bills that were, in some cases, higher than their incomes? The March 11 Lexington Herald stated that our electric bills are going up, also.

WHERE WAS OUR STATE SENATOR WHEN ALL THESE RAISES WERE APPROVED? Our government is supposed to work for us—not against us! Something must be done—Vote for me as your next State Senator, and I promise that something will be done.

AN ORDINANCE

OF THE COUNTY OF FLOYD, COMMONWEALTH OF KENTUCKY, PROVIDING FOR THE TAXATION OF SALES OF ALCOHOLIC BEVERAGES ON THE RETAIL LEVEL

WHEREAS, the citizens of the County of Floyd have enacted local option for legal alcoholic beverages sales, and

WHEREAS, this Court believes that the citizens of the county of Floyd desire a local tax, if legally permissible, now THEREFORE, it is hereby ordained that this Ordinance be enacted effective the 14th day of March, 1983.

ARTICLE I: DEFINITIONS

For the purpose of this Ordinance, the following terms, phrases and their derivations shall have the meaning herein, unless the context clearly indicates that another meaning is intended. When not inconsistent with the context, words used in the present tense include the future, words in the plural include the singular number, and words in the singular number include the plural number. The word "shall" is always mandatory and not merely directory.

(1) "Alcohol" means ethyl alcohol, hydrated oxide of ethyl or spirit of wine, from whatever source or by whatever process it is produced.

(2) "Alcoholic beverage" means every liquid or solid, whether patented or not, containing alcohol in an amount in excess of that permitted under KRS Chapter 242 and capable of being consumed by a human being. It includes every spurious or imitation liquor sold as, or under any name commonly used for alcoholic beverages, whether containing any alcohol or not. It does not include the following products if they are unfit for use for beverage purposes: (a) medicinal preparations manufactured in accordance with formulas prescribed by the United States Pharmacopoeia National Formulary or the American Institute of Homeopathy; (b) patented, patent and proprietary medicine; (c) toilet, medicinal and antiseptic preparations and solutions; and (d) flavoring extracts and syrups.

(3) "Licensee" means any person to whom a license has been issued, pursuant to KRS 243.020 to 243.670.

(4) "Retail sale" means any sale where delivery is made in Kentucky to any person not holding a license.

(5) "Retailer" means any person who sells at retail any alcoholic beverage for the sale of which a license is required. (6) "Sale" means any transfer, exchange or barter for consideration, and includes all sales made by any person, whether principal, proprietor, agent, servant or employee, of any alcoholic beverage.

(7) "Sell" includes solicit or receive an order for, keep or expose for sale, keep with intent to sell, and the delivery of any alcoholic beverage.

(8) "Wholesale sale" means a sale to any person for the purpose of resale.

(9) "Wholesaler" means any person who sells at wholesale any alcoholic beverage for the sale of which a license is required, except a distiller, rectifier brewer or vintner.

(10) "Person" meaning any individual, firm, copartnership, joint venture, association, social club, fraternal organization, corporation, estate, trust, business trust, receiver, trustee, syndicate, cooperative, assignee, government unit or agency, or any other group or combination acting as a unit.

(11) "Sales price" means the total amount for which the alcoholic beverage is sold, valued in money, whether paid in money or otherwise, without any deduction on account of any of the following:

- (a) The cost of alcoholic beverage sold.
- (b) The cost of transportation of the alcoholic beverage prior to its purchase.
- (c) The cost of labor or service cost, interest charged, losses, or any other expenses.

"Sales price" includes any amount for which credit is given to the purchaser by the seller and does not include cash discounts allowed and taken on sales or the amount of any tax (not including, however, any manufacturer's excise or import duty) imposed by the United States upon or with respect to retail sales, whether imposed upon the retailer or the consumer.

(12) "Seller" includes every person engaged in the business of selling alcoholic beverages, the gross receipts from the retail sale of which are required to be included in the measure of the sales tax.

(13) "Taxpayer" means any person liable for tax under this Ordinance.

(14) "Gross revenues" means revenue derived directly or indirectly from the sale of alcoholic beverages by a licensee without deduction of the cost of doing business.

(15) "In this county" means within the interior limits of the County of Floyd and includes a territory within these limits owned by or ceded to the United States of America.

ARTICLE II: IMPOSITION OF SALES TAX

For the privilege of making "retail sales" of alcoholic beverages within the confines of Floyd County, Kentucky, a tax is hereby imposed upon all retailers at the rate of six per cent (6%) of the gross receipts of any retailer derived from "retail sales" made within this county on and after 1983.

ARTICLE III: RETAILER'S POWER TO COLLECT FROM CONSUMER

The taxes herein imposed may be collected by the retailer from the consumer.

ARTICLE IV: PROHIBITED ADVERTISING

It is unlawful for any retailer to advertise or hold out or state to the public or to any customer, directly or indirectly, that the tax levied by this Ordinance or any part thereof will be assumed or absorbed by the retailer or that it will not be added to the selling price of the alcoholic beverage sold or that if added it or any part thereof will be refunded. ARTICLE V: PRESUMPTION THAT ALL GROSS RECEIPTS ARE TAXABLE

For the purpose of the proper administration of this Ordinance and to prevent evasion of the sales tax it shall be presumed that all gross receipts of a retailer of alcoholic beverages are subject to the tax until the contrary is established. The burden of proving that a sale of alcoholic beverages is not a "retail sale" is upon the person who makes the sale.

ARTICLE VI: EXEMPTION

Excluded from the computation of the amount of taxes imposed by this Ordinance are the gross receipts from sales of, and the storage or use of returnable containers when sold with the contents in connection with a retail sale of contents or when resold for refilling. As used in this section the term "returnable containers" means containers of a kind customarily returned by the buyer of the contents for reuse. All other containers are nonreturnable containers.

ARTICLE VII: TAXES ARE DUE MONTHLY

The taxes imposed by this chapter are due and payable to the county monthly and shall be remitted on or before the twentieth day of the next succeeding calendar month.

ARTICLE VIII: REQUIRED MONTHLY RETURN

(1) On or before the twentieth day of the month following each calendar month, a return for the preceding month will be filed with the County Clerk. Said report may be a photocopy of the state sales tax return required by KRS 139.550 with such additions as are necessary to show the amount due to the Floyd County Treasurer for that month, provided said return contains the information required by Article IX.

(2) For purposes of the sales tax, a return shall be filed by every seller.

(3) Returns shall be signed by the person required to file the return or by his duly authorized agent but need not be verified by both.

ARTICLE IX: CONTENTS OF MONTHLY RETURN

(1) For the purposes of the sales tax, the return shall show the gross receipts, the total sales price of the alcoholic beverages sold by him, and the storage, use or consumption of which property became subject to the use tax during the preceding reporting period.

(2) The return shall show the amount of taxes for the period covered by the return.

ARTICLE X: THE PERSON REQUIRED TO FILE

The person required to file the return shall deliver the return together with a remittance of the amount of the tax due to the Floyd County Treasurer, said remittance to be made payable to the Floyd County Treasurer.

ARTICLE XI: PENALTY FOR LATE FILING

In every case, any tax not paid on or before the due date shall bear interest at the tax interest rate provided in KRS 131.183(i).

ARTICLE XII: PERMIT TO COLLECT TAXES

Each retailer of alcoholic beverages shall submit to the Floyd County Alcoholic Beverage Commission a statement of the following information:

- (1) Name of license holder.
- (2) Address of place of business.
- (3) Name and title of license holder.
- (4) Person designated to file return under Article X.

ARTICLE XIII: AUDITS

The Floyd County Treasurer or others at his direction shall audit the licensee tax returns no later than four (4) months after being turned in and shall refund over-payments or access the balance of underpayments plus an interest rate as set forth in Article XI.

Congressional Group Files Bill To Control Gas Prices

Congressman Carl D. Perkins last Wednesday joined more than 70 of his colleagues in co-sponsoring the Natural Gas Consumer Relief Act, legislation that is designed to roll back the huge increases in natural gas to consumers. The elements of this Act follow:

1. The maximum lawful price for any first sale of any regulated category of natural gas after the date of enactment shall be the maximum lawful price for such category under the NGPA on January 1, 1982. On a case-by-case basis, FERC may permit an individual producer to increase prices up to the applicable NGPA ceilings in effect on the day before enactment, if the producer can demonstrate that such increase is just and reasonable.

2. The maximum lawful price for the first sale of any category of high-cost natural gas (i.e., Section 107 natural gas) after the date of enactment shall be 150% of the maximum lawful price under Section 103 of the NGPA on January 1, 1982. On a case-by-case basis, FERC may permit an individual producer to increase prices above this cap if the producer can demonstrate such increase is just and reasonable.

3. The maximum lawful prices thus set shall be adjusted monthly in accordance with changes in the GNP implicit price deflator or the Bureau of Labor Statistics' energy index. However, the increase in the maximum price for any month shall not exceed the lesser of 75% of the monthly increase in the GNP implicit price deflator or the monthly increase in the energy index.

4. Sections which, it is argued give FERC authority to increase prices for certain categories of natural gas above the statutory maximum, are to be repealed, as is a section giving FERC authority to create new categories of high-cost gas.

5. The maximum lawful price shall be deemed to include all costs necessary to, or associated with, the delivery of natural gas to the purchaser. To the extent the seller incurs costs which would prevent the earning of a just and reasonable rate of return, FERC will be authorized to provide an allowance to permit the seller to earn a just and reasonable rate.

6. FERC shall reduce the maximum lawful price by the value of any consideration the purchaser provides to the seller in addition to the maximum lawful price.

All categories of new and high-cost natural gas shall remain subject to statutory maximum lawful prices until January 1, 1987.

Take-or-pay obligations under existing and future contracts shall be void to the extent they exceed 50% of daily deliverability. This limitation shall be in place for the three years following date of enactment.

Pipelines shall have the right to require renegotiation of contracts for new and high-cost gas, and any renegotiated price shall supplant the old price. If the parties fail to agree upon a new price, the contract may be terminated, provided the pipeline which has been a party has the right of first refusal of gas tendered to another purchaser. If the right of first refusal is not exercised, the pipeline shall arrange transportation for the new purchaser depending upon pipeline capacity and receive just and reasonable compensation for such transportation.

Section 601 (c) (2) is to be repealed. This will subject pipelines' natural gas purchasing practices to the just and reasonable standards in Section 4 and 5 of the Natural Gas Act.

Minimum commodity bill tariffs shall be void to the extent they exceed 50% of the maximum daily contract amount or do not permit make-up purchases of gas paid for, but not taken under the tariff.

Each pipeline shall be required to make available any capacity not used to transport its own natural gas to purchasers and sellers under terms which are just, reasonable and non-discriminatory under the Natural Gas Act.

All contracts and ancillary agreements for the first sale of natural gas shall be filed with FERC and made available to the public.

FERC shall be required to establish a rate design mechanism which would ensure that prices of natural gas purchased by pipelines are sensitive to end-use market conditions.

The bill would require the President to report to Congress within 60 days concerning efforts to renegotiate prices for Canadian and Mexican natural gas.

A MESSAGE FROM CARLA ROBINSON BOYD

Since last week's paper, I have had several people ask if there is any connection between Sandy Boyd of Dana and myself. There is absolutely NO RELATION!

Similar last names do not mean that we are related. When voting REMEMBER—Sandy Boyd is a man running for office, and CARLA ROBINSON BOYD is the woman running for COUNTY COURT CLERK!!!

Pharmacy Footnotes

By HAROLD COOLEY

Air humidifiers provide a constant source of moisture in your home's environment. Raised humidity levels can greatly reduce the dry, scratchy feeling found in the throats of people who live with forced hot air heating systems. Humidifiers work with quiet efficiency. As a thin circular roll of moisture-laden sponge passes by a fan, atomized particles of water pass into the air. After a relatively short time, the air holds a healthy balance of moisture. Not only is this beneficial to a person's respiratory system, but humidified air greatly reduces the amount of static electricity found in dry homes. One will also experience greater comfort at reduced thermostat settings.

When you bring a prescription for yourself or a family member into a pharmacy to be filled, you'll want to deal with people in whom you can place your trust. At COOLEY APOTHECARY, INC. we use only the finest quality ingredients available, and you'll always receive friendly, helpful and courteous service. And if you need information for tax purposes, just ask us. We're located at #2 Town Center Bldg., where we're open Mon.-Fri. 9-5:30; Sat. 9-4. 886-8106

In observance of the April World Holocaust Remembrance Month, KET will present the following programs: "THE HOLOCAUST: ARTISTS AND IMAGES" A profile of Jewish artists who perished in the Holocaust and their eye-witness art, Monday, April 4, at 10:30 p.m.

"FROM DUST AND ASHES" Tuesday, April 12 at 10 p.m. Frank Blair hosts, as survivors, scholars and clergy gather to recount Holocaust events. "GETO: THE HISTORIC GHETTO OF VENICE" Opera star Regina Resnik traces the history of the Jews in Venice from 1515 to the present, airing Wednesday, April 13, at 11 p.m. Americans remember the agony of the events during World War II.

"KENNEDY CENTER TONIGHT: MEDEA" Wednesday, April 20 at 8 p.m., Zoe Caldwell and Dame Judith Anderson re-create their Broadway roles in an outstanding presentation of Robinson Jeffers' modern adaptation of Euripides' ancient play.

"FREEDOM TO SPEAK" Hosted by William F. Buckley, Jr., this 12-part series premieres on Thursday, April 21, at 8:30 p.m. The series will feature a distinguished company of actors portraying the famous Americans who have shaped our country's destiny.

KET Drama Explores 'Right To Silence'

"Until She Talks," an original drama about a young woman's experience with the American grand jury process, will air on "American Playhouse" Tuesday, April 5, at 9 p.m.

Produced and directed by Mary Lampson, the drama was inspired by Lampson's personal experiences with the grand jury process in 1975 while she was making a documentary about the Weather Underground Organization.

The play focuses on Judith Ashe, a 23-year-old woman portrayed by Pamela Reed. Judith has refused to testify before a federal grand jury and she is in jail "until she talks." The film opens with Judith in jail. She has not been accused of any crime and has not been sentenced.

"Until She Talks" touches on many questions which are fundamental to our constitutional system, such as what happens when an individual's right to silence and privacy conflict with the government's right to know.

"American Playhouse," a weekly drama series on KET, is presented by KCET/Los Angeles, South Carolina ETV, WGBH/Boston and WNET/New York.

Pavarotti Featured

Lincoln Center for the Performing Arts will present international opera star Luciano Pavarotti and the New York Philharmonic, conducted by Zubin Mehta, Monday, April 4, at 8 p.m. The special "Great Performances" programs runs two and one-half hours.

The first half of the concert will be an all-Verdi program, beginning with the overture to "I Vespri Siciliani" performed by the Philharmonic. The New York Choral Artists' Men's Chorus will then sing "Va pensiero" from "Nabucco," followed by Pavarotti's first aria. This half of the concert will conclude with the overture to "Luisa Miller" and the final scene of Act II of that opera, sung by Pavarotti, Metropolitan Opera bass James Morris and the chorus.

The program will continue with the overture to Weber's "Oberon." Pavarotti then will sing the aria from "Manon," to be followed by two pieces from "Carmen." Selections from "Tannhauser" and "Lucia di Lammermoor" will be sung by Pavarotti, Morris and the chorus.

The Emmy Award-winning "Live from Lincoln Center" is produced by Lincoln Center for the Performing Arts, Inc. in cooperation with WNET, New York.

Escorted Vacation Has Its Advantages

Could you easily follow a map of a foreign country? Can you read a French menu?

In Ireland you might want to visit the Blarney Stone. But, could you find it?

If you are planning a vacation in a place where you have friends and relatives who are well acquainted with points of interest, and have all the time in the world to show you around, then you are in great shape. If not, or if you are visiting an unfamiliar American town or foreign country, you need to know the advantages of taking a good escorted tour.

Depending on the package you select, an escorted tour can provide transportation to and from the airport; attractive hotel accommodations in central locations; meals in appealing restaurants; quality entertainment; a variety of sight-seeing excursions, and a guide who is a seasoned traveler with a great deal of knowledge about the places you will visit.

There are many ways to travel...different price ranges...and a diversity of tours. Some are better than others. Yet, with thoughtful planning, and the advice of a dependable travel agency, you can pick one that suits your needs.

But how do you select the right tour? For example, you have just read two brochures, each describing a seven day trip to Europe. Both tours visit the same towns, and each folder displays beautiful photographs. But one costs $900. The other costs $1,500. Why? A careful analysis of what is actually being offered can mean the difference between a dream vacation and a nightmare.

"It is important to know what you want and what you are getting," says Mike Paige of AAA Travel Agency, Lexington. "Read the fine print. The fine print matters."

Quality and quantity are not always equal. A seven day trip to Europe is not likely to be pleasant if most of the time is spent traveling, and not actually sight-seeing.

The number of stops on a tour is not as significant as the duration of each. A "stop" in London could mean an overnight stay with no time to visit the city.

Will there be time for you to rest up from a long flight before jaunting about? You have to eat and sleep no matter where you stay, so make certain you know what is included in the total cost of your tour package. Is the hotel located in the heart of things, or will you have to dish out $15 everytime you want to go somewhere? Does the tour company have transportation of its own to take you to various attractions? Is there a detailed itinerary for you to follow?

"Keep in mind that the best tour operators are interested in planning a travel package that is exciting for you," Paige says. "They encourage feedback from their clientele and plan trips according to what most people enjoy seeing and doing."

"You deserve to get the best value for your money," Paige says. "You may have been looking forward to your trip for months or years. Regardless of whether you vacation once a year or once in a life time, you want the experience to be one which will be treasured long after you return home. So it is valuable to shop before paying."

Columbia Cuts Bill To Budget Customers

Many Columbia Gas customers who chose to soften the impact of winter heating bills by budgeting equal monthly payments are getting some good news in the mail: their payments are being reduced.

The reason is that this winter has been considerably warmer than normal and most customers on the budget payment plan have used less gas than they normally would have. The reduction will run for the remaining five months of the budget-plan year.

Larry E. Cameron, Prestonsburg manager for Columbia of Kentucky, said, "We know that many customers are having difficulty paying their bills, even though this winter has been the warmest we have ever recorded. So we are taking this unusual step of reducing budget payments now, so our customers can realize immediate benefits."

"While most customers will receive reductions in their budget amounts, some will increase," Cameron said. "This is because gas usage from one year to the next depends on many factors, in addition to the weather—such as an increase in the number of people living in a house, a change in the thermostat setting, or the addition of gas appliances."

The budget payment year runs annually from August through July of the following August through July of the following year, and a customer's payments are divided evenly over the 12 months. New budget-year amounts for 1983-84 will be set next August. Since future-year budget payments are based in part on normal weather expectations, customers now receiving a reduction might see their new payments increase more than usual in August, Cameron pointed out.

A Death Every 21 Minutes . . .
Drunken Driving Affects You

Drunken drivers cause more deaths, injuries, and destruction than murderers, muggers, robbers, or rapists.

In the last decade an estimated 250,000 Americans died in alcohol-related traffic accidents. This reflects an average of 25,000 deaths per year, 500 per week, 68 per day, or one every 21 minutes. "In the course of a lifetime, one out of every two Americans will be effected by this problem in some way," says Bob Owen, Blue Grass Automobile Club-AAA.

Nationally only one out of approximately 1,000 drunken drivers are ever caught. Although there are laws designed to protect society, they are ineffective without help from the public. If someone is injured or killed, then intervention comes too late.

We have come to believe things about alcohol consumption which are incorrect. We are helpless to contribute to the solution until we began to separate fact from fiction.

* The way a person acts (slurred speech or staggering) when he has been drinking may have nothing to do with the amount of alcohol in his system.

FISH AND WILDLIFE CAMPS ARE A BARGAIN

If your fifth or sixth grader comes home with an application for summer camp, take a close look—it could be one of the best bargains around.

A week (Monday through Friday) at one of the camps operated by the conservation education division of the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources costs just $30, plus transportation to and from camp, which generally costs an additional $6 to $8.

Students who have participated in the conversation education program in schools throughout Kentucky are eligible to attend camp. Since this school program reaches over 90 percent of all fifth and sixth graders in Kentucky, chances are your child is among the 100,000 who will be getting information about, and applications to, the camping program this month.

Although the deadline for returning the completed applications is May 1, you shouldn't wait until the last minute, says Kelley Hubbard, assistant director of the conservation education division. Applications are processed on a first-come, first served basis and there isn't always room to accommodate everyone who wants to attend.

The fish and wildlife department has had a summer camping program since 1946, so it's entirely possible that the youngsters going to camp now have both parents and grandparents who have participated in similar camping programs.

The department operates three camps, one at Kentucky Lake, one at Lake Cumberland and one at Grayson Lake. The week-long program is primarily educational, with trained instructors giving lessons in boating, swimming, water safety, fishing, archery, first aid, nature study and hunter safety.

Students who successfully complete the program are certified as safe hunters. Hunter safety certificates are required by many states and for hunting on some federal areas in Kentucky.

"Our primary goal in both our school and our camping program," Hubbard says, "is to pass along the traditions of good sportsmanship and conservation and to encourage the safe and ethical enjoyment of our fish and wildlife resources."

And if the kids have fun at camp (which they certainly do), then that's an added benefit.

Week of March 27-April 3

ARIES
(March 21-April 20) Try not to offend someone whose feelings are easily hurt. Remain on the good side of those who can help to forward your goals in life.

TAURUS
(April 21-May 21) Words spoken angrily can't be taken back. Be careful what you say this week — you can easily make enemies instead of friends.

GEMINI
(May 22-June 21) Be flexible and serene. Don't look for cooperation in areas where it can't be found. Romance might be disappointing if you push too hard.

CANCER
(June 22-July 23) Treat a love relationship with all possible care, but don't let it dominate your life. Exchange ideas with people you respect.

LEO
(July 24-Aug. 23) Promote important ideas at work. Team up with someone who gives you support and helps you achieve a goal. Plan a party.

VIRGO
(Aug. 24-Sept. 23) Stabilize relationships. Fresh enthusiasm should be accompanied by genuine values that help cement an unsteady relationship.

LIBRA
(Sept. 24-Oct. 23) Finances are worrisome. New work opportunities will pull you through this week but don't count on friends helping you this time.

SCORPIO
(Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Income should rise dramatically. Don't think this will last forever, so save for a rainy day.

SAGITTARIUS
(Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Keep your payments up-to-date and bills in order. Remain on good terms with those who can help you career-wise.

CAPRICORN
(Dec. 22-Jan. 20) Keep regular hours and don't work around the clock. You need to rest more. Personal projects are slow.

AQUARIUS
(Jan. 21-Feb. 19) You'll have to find a solution to an important work problem. Someone there could be kidding you about a situation that doesn't exist.

PISCES
(Feb. 20-March 20) This is a poor time to sign contracts and enter any sort of agreement. Wait longer and don't let others pressure you into any sort of partnership.

Idle Rate Up Last Month

For the third consecutive month, the number of unemployed Kentuckians has set a new record high for the state. During February, an estimated 207,600 persons were jobless in the Commonwealth. Kentucky's unemployment rate rose .4 percent, up to 12.5 percent in February from 12.1 percent in January. The national unemployment rate for February was a nonseasonally adjusted 11.3 percent.

State labor market analyst Ed Blackwell says February's rising unemployment can be attributed to employment declines in the construction and trade industries and layoffs in the manufacturing and mining industries. At the same time, unemployment rates in the three major job sectors held steady or declined in February. The unemployment rate in Kentucky's bituminous coal mining industries was 23.7 percent in February, down from 24.7 percent in January. In manufacturing industries the rate dropped from 21.5 percent in January to 20.2 percent in February. Things remained at the same level in the state's construction industries, with the jobless rate at 27.5 percent. "Enough people either exhausted their benefits or simply dropped out of the job market to allow for higher overall unemployment even as rates improved for specific industries," he noted. According to Blackwell, total unemployment in Kentucky was 5,500 from January and 24,300 from February 1982. The civilian labor force fell from 1,668,100 in January to 1,657,300 in February. He explained that the civilian labor force includes only persons currently employed and those unemployed persons actively seeking jobs. It does not include the military or unemployed persons who have dropped out of the job search market.

There were 1,449,700 Kentuckians employed in February or 16,300 less than in January and 2,700 fewer than in February 1982.

National Press Club Series Airs on KET

KET encodes the "National Press Club" series, to run for three months, beginning Sunday, April 3 at 10 p.m.

Prominent people from journalism, politics, business and the arts will be featured. Tentatively scheduled to appear are General Matti Peled; Elie Wiesel; R. Poremadasu; Sherill Milnes and Donald Siebert. Each guest will speak for approximately 20 minutes, followed by a question and answer period from members of the press. The focus will be on this part of the program.

The "National Press Club" is produced by SECA.

Holocaust Remembered Through Victims' Art

The depth of brutality, despair, agony and numbness that was a part of everyday life for Jews under the Nazis is portrayed on "The Holocaust: Artists and Images," to be seen on KET Monday, April 4, at 10:30 p.m.

Acquired from the Israel Museum, "The Holocaust: Artists and Images" is a compelling visual statement in two parts. The first, "Light and Shadow," focuses on the works of promising Jewish artists who perished in the Holocaust of World War II.

The second part, "Scenes from the Holocaust," is a compilation of riveting black and white sketches drawn by Jews who managed to survive long enough to record what they witnessed in the death camp infernos. The works of the artists featured in "The Holocaust: Artists and Images" are often all that remain as testimony to their existence. The sketches, done hurriedly and secreted away for safe-keeping by imprisoned and condemned Jews, are more powerful than photographs or newsreels.

"The Holocaust: Artists and Images" was written, directed and narrated by Steve Edwards. The program was presented by Herbert Krosney and the Israel Museum, and is presented by KQED, San Francisco.

Good News Report

By THOMAS W. PAUKEN
Director of ACTION

You cannot measure the height or breadth of the human spirit, or categorize it into a statistic. Like the air we breathe, it is simply there—free, constant, willing to be tested.

For Dorothy Bellinger the testing began four years ago at Temple University Hospital in Philadelphia. There she learned she had throat cancer. The operation that followed not only removed the malignancy, it also removed her larynx and thus her ability to speak. She was 60 years old, self-assured, confident, a black woman who enjoyed expressing herself. Now she could no longer to talk—not to her three children, her fifteen grandchildren or her seventeen great-grandchildren. She was ready to quit. The only way she could communicate was by writing notes. Her frustration and feelings of helplessness grew, and grew worse when she learned that because of her infirmity she couldn't get her job back.

At the hospital she had met a woman too old to go through the long and difficult speech therapy required to learn how to speak by vibrating the esophagus. The technique demands patience, hard work and no assurance of success. A year went by, a year of feeling locked up inside, "like I couldn't get out," she said. Then a therapist at the hospital, Rhonda Rulnick, wrote Dorothy a letter and said, "please come and try our therapy." And her great-grandson, David, whom she had raised and who lived with her, said, "Please, Nanna, come on, you can't give up any more. You've got to try, you've got to."

And so Dorothy Bellinger gave up giving up and took up trying. Long, hard, difficult months of learning a new way to speak followed, but finally, once again, she could communicate with all her loved ones. Encouraged by David, guided by Rhonda, she fought her way out of the empty world of her own silence. But having succeeded was not an end unto itself. It was a beginning, for now she volunteers to help others suffering as she had.

Today, with Rhonda and other speech therapists at Temple, Dorothy visits with patients who must undergo throat surgery, some before their operation, some after. She brings them hope and encouragement and proof that a lost voice is not the end of the world; that with the skilled help of speech therapists, with faith and determination, a voice can be found again, found through the invisible magic of the human spirit.

Rock-Dance Special Will Air, March 28

"The Catherine Wheel," a dance television special, will air on "Great Performances" Monday, March 28, at 9 p.m. on KET.

Choreographed by award-winning Twyla Tharp to an original score by David Byrne, lead singer and composer of the rock band, "Talking Heads," this dance had its world premiere on Broadway at the Winter Garden Theater and features Tharp's entire 16-member company.

Assuming the dimensions of a fable, "The Catherine Wheel" is a multilevel, poetic fantasy which, through the use of mime, dance, music and theater, depicts the deterioration of the American family unit. Drawn with cartoon strokes, the Mother, Father, Children, Maid, Poet and Pet fall from grace, from morality and order to decay, destruction and chaos in a descent both comic and frightening. In the final section of the work, however, the characters turn their energies to a constructive end.

"The Catherine Wheel" for television was shot originally on film and later transformed to videotape. It incorporates the use of computer graphics, standard animation and a variety of post-production video technologies.

"The Catherine Wheel" is a co-production of The Catherine Wheel, Inc., and the BBC in association with WNET/New York.

Parent-Teacher Talks Scheduled

Parents who want to talk to teachers about their children's progress in school will have an opportunity this Friday, according to a memo to teachers from Superintendent E.P. Grigsby, Jr. and Asst. Superintendent Ronald L. Hager.

Beginning this week, parents may also inspect science and health textbooks recommended by Floyd teachers for use over the next five years, Hager said.

Except for Betsy Layne High School, whose teachers have already had their four mandatory in-service days for this term, Friday will be in-service day for all certified teachers.

While most of the day will be taken up with a "self-study" required of each school as part of the school district's bid for accreditation, the hours from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. have been set aside in most schools for parent-teacher consultations.

Teachers from the county's rural schools—Spruce Pine, Drift, Bonanza, Daniels Creek, Auxier and Prater Creek—will meet for the in-service program not in their respective schools but in the superintendent's office.

At Betsy Layne High School, classes will be held as usual.

The science and health texts proposed for use in Floyd schools from 1983 through 1989 will be on display at the Board of Education offices until April 1. Members of the public are invited to preview the books and to make written comments. They will come up for final adoption by the board at its April 6 meeting.

Jehovah's Witnesses To Host Langan

Leroy J. Langan, circuit supervisor for Jehovah's Witnesses, will visit the Paintsville Congregation March 22-27, according to Meredith Spurlock, local elder.

Langan is in his 30th year of ministry and held administrative posts in congregations in Oklahoma, Montana and North Dakota before being asked to represent the Watchtower Society as a traveling supervisor in 1970. Since then he has overseen circuits of Jehovah's Witnesses in Arkansas, Texas and Mississippi as well as the current one in this area.

During his visit to the Paintsville Congregation, Langan will direct the house-to-house visitation program and speak to the congregation on several occasions.

The highlight of the visit will be his public address Sunday morning at the local Kingdom Hall on the subject, "Paradise Restored by Christ's Millennial Rule."

"He ministers to our congregation about twice a year," Spurlock explained, "and this special week of activity is always a real encouragement."

MARTIN HOMEMAKERS

The Martin Homemakers met March 14 at 7 o'clock at the Town Center Recreation Room with Jean Meade, club president, presiding.

The devotional was given by Alice Hayes from Luke 16. Dorothy Tackett called the roll and read the minutes from the previous meeting. Francis Pitts reported on the area meeting, and the group decided to put any pennies which were in their purses at each meeting into a fund for Ovarian Cancer.

The lesson on "Sugar and Other Sweeteners in Your Diet" was given by Dorothy Tackett, followed by Jean Meade on the subject, "Salt and Sodium in Your Diet". Marena Hale led the group in playing two games.

The hostess, Jean Meade, served refreshments to Francis Pitts, Alice Hayes, Geraldine Bartrum, Dorothy Tackett, Jean Watson, Gail Osborne and Marena Hale.

The next meeting will be on April 11 at 7 o'clock in the recreation room of the Town Center.

Johnson Prosecutor Says He's Surprised At Hearing on Parole

Johnson county Commonwealth's Attorney John David Preston announced Saturday that he has learned that Lynn Holbrook, who pleaded guilty to the murder of her husband, former Paintsville police officer, William Holbrook, by poisoning, will come up for a hearing on parole, April 4. Mrs. Holbrook was sentenced by Circuit Judge W.B. Hazelrigg to 20 years in the penitentiary for the crime. She will have served a total of less than nine months in confinement, including both time in jail awaiting trial, and time in the state penitentiary, by the time her parole hearing takes place.

Preston expressed surprise and disappointment at learning of the parole hearing. He said, "The State Parole Board has a practice of paroling people after they have served only about 20 percent of their sentence, which I disagree with, but I think it is absolutely ridiculous that someone should be paroled after serving nine months on a 20-year sentence, particularly when the crime committed was murder."

Among many other rehabilitation services, Easter Seal Societies nationwide provided diagnostic treatment and services for speech, hearing, and related disorders for more than 150,000 people last year.

The House voted this week to protect the home of former President Harry S. Truman in Independence, Mo., as a national historic site. The measure, passed on a voice vote, was part of a largely non-controversial package of amendments to the National Park Service and other public lands. The bill now goes to the Senate.

The first federal legislation calling for a 40-hour week with time and a half pay for overtime was the Walsh-Healy Act, which applied to workers employed under government contracts exceeding $10,000, according to "Labor Firsts in America," a publication of the U.S. Department of Labor.

One Society's Fly Swatter Is Another's Status Symbol

Smithsonian News Service
There were no wailing sirens, no long black limousines, but there could be no mistake about this man's identity. The huge red umbrella signalled the arrival of the Fanti chief as the colorful procession moved through the festival crowd in Ghana. Atop the umbrella was a gilded carving shaped like the native babadua, a plant that towers over other plants just as that day the chief looked out over his followers.

African societies, like their American counterparts, have drummed up a wealth of emblems that telegraph the power and achievements of their movers and shakers. In addition to the ceremonial umbrellas, Africans have fashioned fly whisks, beaded crowns, fans decorated with ostrich feathers, big brass anklets worn by wealthy women and a long list of other items to let all know of their importance.

One society's fly swatter, it seems, is another's status symbol. Though seldom used to bat at insects, elaborately decorated fly whisks made of costly materials are a key part of many an African chief's ceremonial regalia, serving as important political signals that extend the ruler's gestures and rivet attention to him.

Crowns, worldwide emblems of power, take the shape of tall, beaded-embroidered conical caps among the Yoruba of Nigeria. Sculptured birds, human figures and faces created by the beads relate to the mystical power of the monarchs, while beaded fringe that partially conceals the king's face symbolically separates him from the material world, thus uniting the ruler with the Yoruba ancestors.

As for the fans decorated with ostrich feathers, these were carried by Nigerian notables but used more for show than cooling (a social custom not unknown elsewhere). And the country's wealthy Ibo women gladly suffered the inconvenience (to us) of wearing round, plate-like anklets of hammered brass permanently attached to the leg by blacksmiths: the larger the anklet, the greater the prestige!

"What does this custom say?" poses art historian Roslyn Walker, who along with Edward Lifschitz organized the recent "African Emblems of Status" exhibition at the Smithsonian's National Museum of African Art in Washington, D.C. "I don't have to worry about inconvenience...I have someone to take care of the house. I am a lady of leisure. My husband has taken care of me."

Throughout the exhibit, pinned to the theme that all societies reward individuals for "correct social behavior and superior achievement," a similarity of symbols between America and Africa kept surfacing. Persons of great wealth can afford custom-made ornaments created from expensive materials, the curators explain: the Dogon women of Mali decorate their complex hairstyles with costly brass pins, while the women of Senegal wear a "virtual treasury" of gold-washed silver fashioned into ornaments of complex design.

In African homes, as well, there are similarities between the two cultures. In Timbuktu, the need for security and seclusion dictated the style of house once built by successful merchants trading in gold and salt throughout the Sahara. Shutters and doors, carved and decorated with metal appliques, concealed as well as revealed wealth—an ingenious balancing act practiced more and more in large American cities.

There is another important cultural similarity: Powerful and high-ranking Africans are expected to share some of their bounty with the less fortunate. "As long as some of what is coming in is going out, everyone is happy," Walker explains.

Today throughout Africa, change, propelled in turn by the forces of colonialism, Christianity, Islam and independence, is lapping over old traditions and altering the continent's art forms. European colonial powers frequently provided salaries to African rulers as compensation for the total allegiance once paid by their followers. But high costs made it difficult for these leaders to keep up with the traditional pomp of their courts, according to the late anthropologist William Bascom, and royal patronage of art forms began to decline.

Independence brought a shift in political power from the back country to increasingly western-looking cities. Old cultural values eroded further. Now, reports one American newspaper correspondent, "the hinterlands—vast, unruled and untaxed tracts—are irrelevant and often forgotten."

One Society's Fly Swatter . . .

Along with this change have come other powerful influences: multinational corporate ties and international assistance and loan programs. "Before the United States and other nations began giving tractors and heavy machinery, the African societies were self-sustaining, structured," Walker comments.

The consequence of these complex forces, concludes art historian and archaeologist Frank Willett of the University of Glasgow, is that the "materialistic values of Western society, which are its easier to export, are almost everywhere replacing the traditional African spiritual ones." Walker adds: "When the underpinnings of religion are gone, the art goes with it." Some things remain unchanged, however. In contemporary African life, mainly in the cities, prestige clothing and textiles—"but not other objects" such as traditional masks and ceremonial items—continue to be "very important," Walker comments. "What clothing said about status and prestige in the past is still the same."

And yet the materials of clothing are showing signs of change. "We are seeing textiles that have a lot of Lurex, shiny man-made fibers produced from petroleum derivatives," Walker says.

Tribal customs, nevertheless, do endure in many parts of Africa. The continent, after all, is almost incomprehensively large—the United States could be superimposed on the Sahara desert and not even touch the coast of Africa at any point—and its mere size indicates the dangers of generalization. For art historians and anthropologists, more over, the field work required to keep up with change far outstrips available time and resources.

In many of the 40 African societies studied for the Smithsonian exhibition, status based on achievement played a role in tribal life, especially in those governed by council's of elders rather than kings. "Prestige objects in most societies are associated with status and wealth," Walker says, "but when there is some democracy, the average person does have a chance to achieve."

Among the Dan people of Liberia and the Ivory Coast, for example, young women who have successfully completed their initiation into womanhood dance, in public ceremonies, holding before them small wooden chairs belonging to the village elders. With these "grandfather chairs," symbolic of heritage, order, authority and ultimate wisdom, the young women display their marriageable status to the community.

Among the Suku, Yaka and Pende peoples of Zaire, young men who have completed rites of manhood display their readiness for adult status in performances highlighted by carved and decorated masks symbolic of hunting, sexuality and other aspects of adult life.

Africans also commission and use art works to show the status achieved in their communities; successful Dan chiefs often commission carvings and brass castings that represent their favorite wives. These are prominently displayed before guests.

Though the objects signify that one has achieved certain position and knowledge, "they also represent a certain level of wealth, since one has to pay for the symbol," Walker says. "The two are interrelated." In addition, well-to-do Africans, who have the best access to the best craftsmen, may commission a carver from another village because he has a good reputation. "These people want the best."

But when it comes to the conspicuous display of status, the hats worn in some tightly ruled societies are definite head turners. A collection of headgear made of buttons, cowry shells, beads, feathers and fiber, which have been woven, appliqued, crocheted, knotted and braided into caps, hats and clothes, would surely delight the most determined American status seeker.

Ohioan, Victim of Fall

A Cincinnati man fell 175 feet to his death the night of March 14 in the Red River Gorge in Powell county.

The victim was identified as Ricky E. Fry, 22. Fry and three friends, all from Cincinnati, were camping in the Gorge when the accident occurred, according to a State Police spokesman in Morehead.

Fry's friends told U.S. Forest Service employees that they last saw Fry at 11:30 p.m. Monday. Forest Service employees found Fry's body at the foot of a 175-foot cliff.

Fry was pronounced dead at the scene by Powell County Coroner Carl Wells. Death was attributed to a fractured neck and multiple skull fractures.

Though there were no witnesses, the death has been ruled an accident.

Pre-Measurement Service Made Available by ASCS

To take the guesswork out of crop certification and help farm program participants obtain and report accurate crop acres, the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service provides pre-measurement and other producer services.

"One gamble that a farmer should never take is the loss of program benefits because of failure to comply with acreage requirements, an ASCS spokesman said.

Before crop planting time, ASCS will take stake and measure any type of acreage, or portions thereof, that a farmer requests. To be assured that program requirements are met, producers must plant within the stakes that are placed when the land is pre-measured. After planting, they are required to report their crop acreages to ASCS.

Other producer services include measuring total cropland, field or subdivisions to be planted and land acres for other purposes. Fees vary, depending on the type of service rendered.

For ASCS to fulfill all requests on a timely basis, prior to spring planting, farmers are urged to request pre-measurement early.

Water Patrol Ready As Spring at Hand

With Spring officially arriving later this month, officers of the Kentucky Division of Water Patrol are gearing up to return to their patrol of the waters of the Commonwealth.

"Spring will bring warmer air temperature and more boaters and recreational water users," Water Patrol Director Larry Hatfield said. "While the air will be warmer, the water temperatures will remain relatively cold for another month or so. We want to remind boaters that the cold water will continue for several weeks to be capable of causing hypothermia, or rapid loss of body temperature in the central portion of the body."

"If you plan to go boating we advise you to dress warmly, wear a life preserver and to observe all boating safety precautions," Hatfield said.

Butch Clifton Memorial Tourney Set April 22

On April 22, 23 and 24, The Phi Beta Lambda Chapter at Prestonsburg Community College will sponsor its third softball tournament at Archer Park in memory of Kentucky State Police Trooper James "Butch" Clifton, who was killed in the line of duty in 1980. All proceeds from the tournament will be donated to Trooper Island, the KSP-sponsored youth camp for underprivileged children, in memory of Trooper Clifton. The drawing for the pairings will be held on Monday, April 18 at 6:30 p.m. at the Archer Park men's softball field. Entry fees for the tournament will be $75 per men's team and $60 per women's team. Trophies or plaques will be awarded for first, second, and third places and a homerun trophy will be given for both the men's and the women's teams. Teams are asked to use ASA red stitch restricted flight balls.

For further information, you may call (606) 886-3863, Extension 244 or be present at the drawing on Monday, April 18.

Sheldon Clark Girls Vie in State Tourney

In the 15th Regional girls' basketball tournament at Johnson Central High School last week, Sheldon Clark defeated Betsy Layne, 68-58, for a place in the state tourney at Eastern Kentucky University tonight. (Wednesday.)

The first quarter was close with Betsy Layne leading the Cardinals, 14-12, and by the end of the half, the Lady Bobcats had increased their lead to 30-22. The third quarter, however, was the turning point in the game as the Cardinals edged past Betsy Layne, 40-39. Once ahead, the Cardinals completely turned the tables for a 68-58 win at the buzzer.

Sheldon Clark's Betty Crum led in individual scoring with 26 points. Teammates Lori Ann Mills and Debbie Scott scored 24 and 22 points, respectively. Other scorers for the Lady Cardinals were Tammy Dalton, 8; Mildred Robinson, 6, and Tammy Fannin 2. Individual scorers for Betsy Layne were Cassandra Keathley, 18; Lela Layne, 16; Sheila Johnson, 15; Kris Lawson, 7, and Chris Grace, 2. Sheldon Clark hit 83.3% of their free throws while Betsy Layne's percentage was 55.6.

Special Fishing Rules At Herrington Lake

Frankfort, Ky., March 11—Fishermen at Herrington Lake and in the Dix River headwaters may keep only 20 white bass or rockfish hybrids, and only five of these fish may be 15 inches long or longer, according to Department of Fish and Wildlife regulations now in effect.

In other waters of the state, the limit on white bass is 60 and on rockfish or rockfish hybrids, five with a 15-inch minimum size limit. A separate regulation for Herrington Lake and the Dix River was necessary because the white bass is difficult to distinguish from the rockfish hybrid, a fish which has been stocked in the lake for several years, according to Pete Pfeiffer, director of fish and wildlife's fisheries division.

"This new regulation relieves anglers of the responsibility of correctly identifying these confusing species and at the same time protects the hybrids from over exploitation," Pfeiffer says.

The 20 fish limit is also in response to a greatly reduced white bass population at Herrington. For reasons that biologists still don't understand, there was an extensive die-off of white bass at the lake several years ago.

The hybrid rockfish is a cross between a male white bass and a female rockfish (salt water striped bass). This fish grows much larger than the native white bass (the current world record is over 20 pounds) and is more hardy than the rockfish.

Both Herrington Lake and the Dix River are traditional fishing "hot spots" for white bass, particularly during the spring, when these fish leave the lake and run up the river to spawn.

The new regulation does not apply to that portion of the Dix River between the Kentucky River and the dam at Harrington.

FLOYD COUNTY HEALTH NEWS

By JANE BOND
Health Educator

Cervical cancer kills approximately 11,000 women in the United States each year. This type of cancer is one of the most curable of all cancers if it is detected and treatment is started in the earliest stages of the disease. So many of these 11,000 women could possibly have been saved if the disease had been detected early enough. There is a simple test to check for cervical cancer; this is the pap test, it is a simple painless test which takes only a few moments of a woman's time and it could save her life.

The Floyd County Health Department is having a Pap Clinic on Wednesday, March 30, from 8:30 until 11:30 and from 1 until 2. This is a free service of the health department, and any woman is welcome to attend. Those women over age 45 are especially urged to take advantage of this service since this is the high risk age for the disease.

Our Mistake

The Times erroneously listed last week in advertisements of Thomas D. Lafferty, Jr., Democratic candidate for County Court Clerk, the name of Barry A. May as treasurer. The name should have been Gary A. May. This was our error, not Mr. Lafferty's.

TENDER MERCIES, from Universal Pictures, Directed by Bruce Beresford, screenplay by Horton Foote. Starring Robert Duvall, Tess Harper, Betty Buckley. Rated 'PG' ★ ★ ★

By J.T. YURKO

With the success of so many films from Australia, it was only a matter of time before American producers would take advantage of all that talent from Down Under. "Tender Mercies" is a good example of the notion that film has always been a collaborative, as well as universal, art form.

Combine a pair of producers who have formerly worked in the documentary field with an Australian director, make sure you have at least one certified Hollywood star and, voila, financing becomes available — and a feature film is born.

The producers are award-winning filmmakers Philip and Mary-Ann Hobel, who have more than 200 documentary films to their credit. They came across the script for "Tender Mercies" written by Horton Foote, who won the Academy Award for his screenplay of "To Kill a Mockingbird." Playing Boo Radley in that film was Robert Duvall, and when friend Foote showed him the script, he agreed to be the star.

Duvall plays a former country-and-western singer who's now a penniless alcoholic. He meets a young Texas widow whose husband was killed in Vietnam after less than a year of marriage. Duvall gets a new start in life, but it's hindered by his ex-wife who is now a successful singer, singing songs that he'd written.

The script may not sound like much, but "Tender Mercies" has a quiet moving simplicity that makes its message universally recognizable. Fate has dealt Duvall a few blows, but can he control his fate or is fate controlling him?

Australian director Beresford knows how to let the power of a screenplay come through in his visual techniques — as his "Breaker Morant" amply illustrated. Although he's never been to Texas before, Beresford manages to capture the sleepy atmosphere of a lonely Texas town and its inhabitants.

This is a film with a fine, understated script, terrific performances by Duvall (he even sings well) and by newcomers Tess Harper and Allan Hubbard. "Tender Mercies" is tender, moving and definitely worth your attention.
