U.S. SENATOR EDWARD M. KENNEDY talked briefly to the crowd which waited for him at the Mud Creek Clinic at Grethel last Wednesday. The ranking Democrat on the Senate Labor and Human Resources Committee, Kennedy visited Floyd and Letcher counties in the course of a week-long survey of hunger and deprivation in America. He was joined here by Congressmen Carl D. Perkins and state Rep. Clayton Little, of Pike county.

Kennedy Looks at Poverty On Tour Here, Wednesday

Some hinted at other motives, but Senator Edward M. Kennedy said he was here last Wednesday, the day before Thanksgiving, to learn the facts about hunger and poverty in America.

For those who turned out to see him, there were various reasons: for the small crowds who gathered near Honaker and Grethel, a chance to see a celebrity; for staffers at the Mud Creek Clinic, a chance to snare the attention of those who might choose to work there and those who furnish the funds; for the few poor families chosen to tell their stories in person, a chance that the telling might make a difference.

From the time he put down at Wise, Va. airport Wednesday morning to the time he wrapped up a public forum in Fleming-Neon more than seven hours later, Kennedy lost no opportunity to criticize the Reagan administration for cutting welfare programs and to pledge that he would bring the plight of the nation's poor to the attention of his colleagues in Washington.

In-between, there were visits to a rundown water plant in Jenkins, several needy families on Little Mud, the Spruce Pine school, and the Mud Creek Clinic at Grethel. It was the last leg of a fiveday "fact-finding" tour which had earlier taken the Massachusetts Democrat to poorer sections of San Francisco, Minneapolis, Detroit and Pittsburgh.

Kennedy said he plans to issue a report on his findings next month and he indicated that legislative proposals to deal with hunger and poverty would also be forthcoming.

Last Wednesday's eastern Kentucky swing repeated in part a 1968 tour by his late brother, Robert, Kennedy noted at his various stops. Following a 1960 campaign tour through West Virginia, another brother, President John F. Kennedy, initiated a food stamp program "that began the whole tide" of federal poverty programs, he recalled.

"The issues of human concern that motivated my brothers continue to motivate me," the senator told about 100 people gathered outside the Mud Creek Clinic. By contrast, the Reagan administration has cut funds for human services in favor of "gold-plated weapons systems," he charged.

Sketching a picture of a president "perplexed" by news reports of hunger in America, Kennedy told applauding audiences on Mud Creck and at Fleming-Neon that Reagan "should come to eastern Kentucky to find out what the real problems are." Cuts ordered by the Reagan administration in funding for food stamps, child and maternal care, school lunches and meals for senior citizens have led to "an insidious growth of hunger" in this country, he said.

To illustrate the point, Kennedy joined Eula Hall, social worker at the Mud Creek Clinic, on a tour of Little Mud which included a stop at Billy Joe Hunter's camper on Trace Branch, a conversation on Spruce Pine Branch with Margaret Hall, who was fixing soup beans for lunch, and a visit with Norman and Glena Damron, on Big Branch.

With a joking apology to the boy's teachers for his being out of school, the senator introduced his 16-year-old son, Patrick, to well-wishers at Grethel, toured the clinic there with Congressman Carl D. Perkins, and continued on, still a passenger in Mrs. Hall's four-wheel-drive vehicle, over Jack's Creek into Letcher county. On the way, (See Story No. 1, Page 4)

Two Builders Fold As Creditors Sue, Bankruptcy Filed

One Floyd builder filed for bankruptcy and creditors began closing in on another in lawsuits filed last week.

William Tavis Wallen, of East Point, who heads the Wallen Construction Company, listed debts of $30,000 and assets amounting to $4757 in a petition filed in the Pikeville division of U.S. Bankruptcy Court.

In a suit filed last Wednesday in Floyd Circuit Court, the First Commonwealth Bank claims that David Bruce Spradlin and his wife, Nancy, of Mays Branch, are in default on debts totalling $1,163,986. Spradlin owns a construction firm called Bruncy Enterprises, Inc. In an earlier suit, the United Federal Savings and Loan Association claimed the Spradlins owed that institution $469,700. Commonwealth seeks First foreclosure on tracts put up as security on 10 construction loans made to the Spradlins between August, 1980 and June this year. The properties include the family's College Heights home; ten tracts in Bruncy's Creekside Community on Abbott Road; Woodland Hills, a subdivision near the Clark school; and Lee-Wal Manor, a Mays Branch development.

United Federal seeks foreclosure on a recently-completely townhousecondominium complex, called The Fifth Season, on Goble Street here. The suit also asserts the priority of United Federal's claim over a lien held against the property by the F.S. Vanhoose Company and over other liens that might be claimed by Floyd county and the City of Prestonsburg.

MISSED THIS SHOW

I suspect I wasn't alone when I skipped "The Day After," the grisly aftermath of atomic warfare as depicted by the television camera. I figured that my imagination had already conjured up enough horrors and that I had no need of visual aids to convince me of what lies, some day ahead, for us all.

This powerful argument against the ultimate folly will very likely be shown in Britain, France, Italy, West Germany-wherever human rights are respected. But do you think Russia will ever permit its people a glimpse of it?

Hale Makes Bid For Democratic Chair in County

The nearly-cold body of Floyd Democratic politics appears to be stirring with new life these daysresuscitated, some say, by the recent election of Martha Layne Collins as governor.

Already, contenders are emerging for the job of executive committee chairman, a position which does not become vacant until next April and which has not recently been regarded as much of a prize, anyway

But chance threw the local party machine a rare opportunity last spring-when the untimely death of Judge-Executive Jerry Lafferty, Jr. less than three weeks before the May primary meant that the executive com-

Hepatitis Cases Total 18 for Nov.

Another four cases of hepatitis reported to the Floyd Health Department in the past ten days bring to 18 the number of cases listed this month.

Two school-age children, one from Hi Hat and the other from Bevinsville, were recorded as victims on Nov. 21; and two others, whose ages were not given, were listed, one at Wheelwright and the other at Wayland, Nov. 28. An Eastern infant was also listed as having been in contact with a hepatitis carrier

The cases on Right Beaver Creek are the first to have been reported in that section for several months, said Health Department Administrator Earl Compton. Cases were discovered at Garrett and Lackey in the early summer, he said mittee got to nominate a candidate for that position.

And the election of Mrs. Collins, who has a reputation for being more considerate of local party structures than was Gov. John Y. Brown, Jr., holds out for some a promise that there might be patronage jobs to dispense and that the local chairperson might again have a say in where they go.

One issue that rankled some party regulars and appears certain to color next year's election of party officers was the hotly-contested executive committee decision to name John M. Stumbo as Democratic nominee for judgeexecutive, despite the fact that Gov. Brown had already named Barkley J. Sturgill to replace Lafferty and Sturgill had made it clear he wanted to fill out Lafferty's term.

The decision came on a 10-5 vote in a May 17 meeting that was tightly controlled by Executive Committee Chairman Morris Isaac Isaac, a Martin coal operator whom Stumbo chose as his deputy, indicated yesterday (Tuesday) he would likely run again for the chairmanship in April. We're going to have a good candidate and it will probably be me," he said.

But Sheriff Henry Hale said Monday that he is interested in the job, too. Hale was a strong backer of Sturgill to succeed Jerry Lafferty as judge-executive.

The sheriff pointed to the relatively poor voter turnout this month-about 9800 voted the straight Democratic ticket in an election Hale thinks should have seen 14,000 or more come out-as a consequence of the party's internal bickering. He would like to restore unity to the party, he said.

'I want to bring the party together. (See Story No. 6, Page 4)

Said Suicide At Jail Here

A 19-year-old Knott county woman died, apparently by suicide, in the Floyd county jail last Tuesday evening.

Mary Vinamae Tackett, who had received a 30-day sentence earlier that day on shoplifting and other charges, was found hanged in her cell around 10:20 p.m. Death is thought to have occurred several hours earlier.

Mrs. Ila Hale, wife of Jailer Lawrence Hale and a deputy matron at the jail, found the victim suspended from cell bars by a narrow belt. Attempts to revive her failed.

Mrs. Tackett, whose address was later listed as Halo, had been arrested and lodged in jail Monday afternoon under the name of Mary Vinamae Hall, of Topmost. She was charged with public intoxication and shoplifting, following a complaint that she had tried to take three jars of coffee and other items, valued at $60, from the Pic-Pac store in Martin

For Speeding Ticket Judge Sets Homework

When state police allegedly clocked John Keith Adkins traveling at 96 miles an hour on U.S. 23 at Ivel last Monday night, the 23-year-old Martin man could have lost his driver's license and incurred a stiff fine.

Instead, District Judge Harold Stumbo ordered him to write a 1000-word essay entitled, "Why I Should Not Speed." Adkins turned in the six-page assignment this week.

Others sentenced in district court, following guilty pleas or verdicts, were:

Jimmy McKinney, Harold, drunk driving, $137.50 in fine and court costs, alcoholic driver education (ADE); Carol Ann Mosley, Dwale, no driver's license, $54.50; Delbert Snodgrass, Ivel, overweight truck, $37.50; Christopher W. Hall, Prestonsburg, speeding, $37.50, state traffic school; James E. Scott, Martin, no insurance sticker, $37.50; Wornald Slone, Auxier, overweight,

DESPITE THE PROVERB, the still waters of Dewey Lake do not run as deep this week. With the annual drawdown of five feet now complete, water in the dam is at winter pool level, the Corps of Engineers reports.

County Finances Under Scrutiny

A state police investigation of alleged irregularities in Floyd county finances, which several weeks ago was thought nearly ready to lay before a grand jury, has recently been expanded, The Times has learned.

The investigation, which had members of a special state police unit again poring over fiscal court records this week, is said to have been widened to include two sums intended for transfer from the fiscal court to Floyd County Solid Waste, Inc., during the administration of the late Judge-Executive Jerry Lafferty, Jr.

The transactions reportedly came to light in the course of an examination by the state auditor's office of the county's 1982 files.

As much as $82,000 remains to be accounted for, according to sources close to the investigation.

Although it's the southernmost of all our states, Florida isn't really southern. They come from all over; so its population is pretty well cosmopolitan and doesn't share the usual regional prejudices. Folks don't refer to dammyankees or rednecks or crackers or hillbillies. But they do have a name for all who come shivering into the sunshine.

"Snowbirds," they call us, with-as the old novels described it-a curl of disdain on the lip.

Unlike its sister states of the South, Florida is no Democratic citadel; instead, it's pretty evenly divided between the two major political parties.

One of my neighbors is from Connecticut. Another left New Jersey for Florida 35 years ago. This New Jersey native brought his Republicanism with him and was not long apprising me of that fact.

"I believe," said he, "in the Republican party and a high, protective tariff.

"A high, protective tariff"-forsooth! Shades of Mark Hanna and William McKinley! I hadn't heard that doctrine mentioned since the days of William Howard Taft.

But there you are-one man's reason for being a Republican.

Sheriff's Staff Miffed At Fiscal Court Rebuff

Because the extra work they did to get this year's tax bills out on time was not appreciated by the fiscal court, they will not be putting out any extra effort next year, sheriff's department workers vowed this week

The fiscal court this week paid a $5523 claim by the sheriff's office for mailing out about 33,000 tax bills. Last week the county rejected a $6598 claim, saying it represented overtime as well as postage costs

But the difference was not a result of overtime, insisted Grace Damron, a clerk in the sheriff's office. Rather, it represented the time spent by sheriff's employees in pre-sorting the tax bills before they were mailed, she said.

Pre-sorting means faster mailing of the bills and earlier tax income for the county; it also means a saving of three cents on the cost of mailing each bill, a saving that should be realized by the sheriff's department, Mrs. Damron argues.

If the sheriff's office is not going to be paid for it, they will not pre-sort the tax bills in future and the county will be forced to pay the post office for the same service, she said.

The causes of Reye's Syndrome, an often-fatal illness found mostly in children, have remained something of a mystery since it was first identified in 1963.

Some facts, however, are clear: it almost always follows a cold or flu (90 percent of cases) or chickenpox (7 percent of cases); it is rare (two or three cases in 100,000 children); it most often hits children between the ages of 5 and 14, and it occurs more often in rural areas than in cities. Also, its victims often took aspirin for the first illness.

Reye's Syndrome can cause liver problems and brain swelling—and the brain swelling is what can be fatal.

In most cases, the relatively mild cold or case of chickenpox is followed by vomiting. Since most children sometimes have vomiting spells, this does not necessarily mean that your child has Reye's Syndrome. It does mean you need to be on the lookout in case your child becomes tired and listless, or even If Reye's Syndrome is suspected, your I doctor probably will order a blood test to check the ammonia concentration in the blood. This, and possibly other tests, will indicate whether the liver is working properly.

If the brain begins swelling, steps must be taken to reduce the pressure inside the skull. These procedures are tricky, so they should be done only by doctors who are experienced with this illness.

Time is vitally important with this illness, so if your child begins vomiting and becomes listless after a mild illness, contact your doctor promptly. Watch carefully for any changes in your child's behavior.

Although not everyone agrees, many doctors advise against using aspirin to bring down fever in colds or flu. An aspirin substitute such as acetaminophen (Tylenol) is suggested instead.

Floyd Court Overruled In Compensation Case

A Workers' Compensation Board ruling, later upheld by Floyd Circuit Judge Hollie Conley, has been reversed by the Kentucky Court of Appeals.

The ruling followed the death by electrocution of Randy Patrick, a Magoffin county man, as he was erecting® a mobile home on October 4, 1980.

In awarding benefits to Patrick's widow, the compensation panel found his employer, Tom Gibson, liable but exonerated from liability Nelson Mobile Homes, the firm for which Gibson did contract work.

The appeals court held that the question of the liability of Nelson Mobile Homes had not been adequately explored by the lower court.

A lot of heavy breathing has been going on at Highlands Regional Medical Center recently, the life-saving kind. Sixteen hospital employees have been trained and certified as Cardio Pulmonary Resuscitation (CPR) instructors and are offering classes to the public.

In just four hours, you can learn this life-saving technique and become certified by the American Heart Association to administer CPR.

The CPR course involves some reading prior to class time. During class, this material is discussed and a written test is taken. CPR techniques are demonstrated and participants then practice on "Resusci—Annie," a life-size mannequin. She has lights that flash when students correctly perform CPR. For certification, each participant must properly resuscitate the mannequin.

"Lives could be saved if more people knew CPR," said Clarence Traum, HRMC administrator. "We are offering these classes as a community service of Highlands Regional and encourage everyone to take advantage of them."

WHAT IS A FUNERAL TRUST FUND?

It is an interest-bearing fund set aside at a bank or S & L for use specifically to pay for funeral and burial expenses for one or more members of your family. It is an investment, too, since it earns interest and acts as a hedge against continued inflation.

As the fund grows, with its interest accumulating, it may even provide MORE than the amount you have pre-arranged to pay for funeral expenses. This depends on factors such as the rate of interest paid, items and services to be covered, and how great was the inflationary effect during the duration of the funding.

Most states have laws governing the pre-financing of funerals and burial expenses. We are experienced in handling these matters, having conducted many such arrangements. We can advise and assist you in setting up a Funeral Trust Fund for you and your family. You might want to stop by and discuss this in full detail.

AUDIO ANALGESIA

Q. There's been some talk about audio analgesia. What is that?

A. Audio analgesia is an interesting concept in pain control. It's the use of sound to block out the discomfort, if not the actual sensation of pain, by scientifically blending certain sounds—namely, that of a waterfall working with carefully-chosen soft music. Using earphones, the patient can control both the waterfall sound and the music. The explanation for how it works is complex and interesting. The sounds move in and take over the part of the brain that interprets sensations and jams it like an overworked telephone switchboard so that the pain stimuli from the dental treatment are misinterpreted. Since the brain center that interprets is filled with sound impulses, it sends back acceptable rather than distressing sensations. Audio analgesia is often used in combination with local anesthesia.

When winter arrives in Floyd county with snow, the state transportation crews will be out to clear the roads.

To help motorists plan their winter driving, the Transportation Cabinet has announced which roads will be cleared first.

State crews will clear U.S. 23, KY 80 and KY 114 first.

The next roads to be cleared are KY 1428, KY 3 from U.S. 23 north to KY 3026, KY 7, KY 404 from KY 114 to KY 850, KY 550, KY 122 and KY 979. Other state-maintained roads will follow.

The roads are cleared as soon as precipitation becomes significant. Crews set out with salt or plows to clear the top priority roads first. The priority system is based on the traffic carried by the road.

Top priority roads include interstates, parkways, urban expressways and other state roads with exceptionally large volumes of traffic.

Second priority roads are state primary roads, bypasses and roads with slightly less traffic.

State secondary roads, rural secondary roads and other routes with equal traffic fall into the third category.

Remaining state roads are cleared after these categories have been treated. The Pikeville district office is responsible for clearing the roads in Floyd county.

Grants were also awarded to LaCenter, Carrollton, Flemingsburg, Berea, Stanton, Irvington, Berry, Mt. Vernon, Owensboro, Franklin, Springfield, Mt. Sterling, Corbin, Morganfield, Somerset, Louisville, Princeton, Lawrenceburg and Williamstown.

The grants will be combined with local funds on a matching basis of 75 percent federal and 25 percent local, state officials explained. As a result of this combined financing, $41.9 million in total construction costs for improvement of water quality will be available.

Changes in federal law require the level of federal participation for most construction grants to be reduced from 75 percent to 55 percent beginning on October 1, 1984. State officials said that while this federal reduction will spread scarce grant dollars to more projects, the 20 percent increase in local funding could cause problems for some communities.

In order to provide a solution to this funding problem, the Natural Resources and Enviromental Protection Cabinet is conducting a financial capability study in conjunction with the state's area development districts. The resulting financial information gathered from potential grant applicants will aid in determining the need for other assistance programs, state officials said.

"The Natural Resources Cabinet is also proposing that the Governor and the legislature consider a state assistance program to supplement the money available from the federal Construction Grants Program," said Richard Shogren, director of the Division of Water.

A total of approximately $41 million is available in federal construction grants during the Fiscal Year '84, prior to the conversion to the 55 percent federal funding level, Shogren said.

Craynor dairy bar. At a public forum in the Fleming-Neon senior cliffens' center in the afternoon, Kennedy heard testimony from community and health workers and their clients about deprivation he attributed to economic policies of the Reagan administration. About 300 people filled the hall.

He and his pregnant wife had gone three days without food the previous week, Leroy Madison, 29, of Honaker, told Kennedy. After serving four years in the Army, he worked six years in the mines before being laid off, Madison said. The family's only income is $100 a month in food stamps, he added.

Prompted by Kennedy, Cindy Madison said that, because she sometimes has to go without food, she is worried about whether she will give birth to a healthy baby.

Kennedy, who lost the 1980 Democratic presidential nomination to then-President Jimmy Carter and who has said he will not be a candidate for president next year, did no explicit campaigning here. But others were not reticent. A sign at the Mud Creek Clinic proclaimed a welcome to "Senator (President) Kennedy"; Leroy Madison ended his testimony with a plug for the senator; and Congressman Perkins told cheering onlockers at Grethel, "I agree with you. I want to see him president of the United States."

FUGITIVE FROM SHORTS

One or two natives and I are the only iconoclasts to show up at the beach wearing long pants like a big boy should. The wife has spoken darkly of lassoing me and dressing me in shorts for such occasions, but I remain hopeful.

The situation relating to the shorts recalls a story told, years ago, by the late Irvin S. Cobb. I trust a fickle memory in retelling it.

It was drawing on to daybreak of a foggy morning, and the train bearing Cobb and others southward had pulled into a little station in rural Mississippi. Outside, on the cinder platform, a pack --- 2 ----

An alleged threat on a store employee led to a further charge of terroristic threatening.

Mrs. Tackett entered a guilty plea on the charges, which were consolidated, Tuesday morning, and District Judge Harold Stumbo sentenced her to 30 days' jail and imposed a $100 fine.

Deputy Jailer Don Hall said he checked on Mrs. Tackett, the only inmate in the women's section of the jail, at about 6:50, shortly before he went off duty, Tuesday night.

"I asked her if she needed anything. She said she needed to get out of jail, was the only thing, and I told her there wasn't anything we could do about that," Hall said. Mrs. Tackett had made several telephone calls earlier and had not appeared despondent, the deputy jailer said.

The victim was indicted by a Knott county grand jury in August on a charge of criminal conspiracy to commit murder, following a June 7 incident in which Rosetta Hall was shot and her unborn baby killed. Between July and October, she was lodged in the Knott county jail.

C.B. Hall, with whom she is said to have lived at some time and whose name she sometimes assumed, was charged with murder and assault in that case. However the murder charge was subsequently dropped and the conspiracy to murder charge reduced as the result of a recent court decision narrowing the legal rights of a fetus.

Nine inmates at the Floyd county jail were said to have signed a statement last Wednesday raising the possibility that Mrs. Tackett was murdered, a claim rejected as frivolous by Deputy Jailer Hall.

Born Sept. 26, 1964, at Hillsdale, Mich., the victim is survived by her parents, Denver and Lula Tackett, and three brothers, Amos, Scott and David Tackett, all of Halo, and two sisters, Betty Cook and Lucille Gayheart both of Buckingham.

Funeral services were conducted Friday at the home of her father, with Regular Baptist ministers officiating, and burial followed in the family cemetery at Melvin under direction of the Merion Funeral Home.

Kennedy's Visit . . .

No Time for Cheap Shots

By RON MARSTIN

His Thanksgiving Eve visit to eastern Kentucky was billed as a fact-finding tour. But long before he set foot on Little Mud or heard a word of testimony at Fleming-Neon, it was clear that Sen. Edward M. Kennedy knew exactly what he would 'discover' here.

And he obviously knew, too, what image the news media would be beaming out to Americans across the country as they gathered for Thanksgiving dinner. A politician who cares, slogging along some muddy Appalachian hollow, announcing in tones of moral outrage his discovery that "millions of Americans can afford no turkey," and blasting President Reagan for his indifference.

A month ago, an advance man began combing this area, eventually flushing out half a dozen families considered suitably illustrative of the tour's theme. Some would receive a home visit from the senator; others would tell their stories of hunger and poverty at a public forum.

Where they did not turn out to be articulate enough, Kennedy put into their mouths the words he wanted to hear. "But haven't you found it hard to get a job? ... Isn't it rough toward the end of each month?...Don't you worry that your baby may not be healthy?"

It was hard to escape the impression that the report promised next month has been written long ago and only awaits the addition of a little "local color"—a pithy one-liner from an unemployed steelworker in Pittsburgh, say, or a 70-year-old widow in a place called Mud Creek.

It all looked suspiciously like a put-up job, a charade. And any report that comes from it would appear likely to evoke more cynicism than soul-searching among Kennedy's Washington colleagues.

Parent Participation Urged

Our children deserve to attend a school that is safe and that is as pleasant as possible. As parents you should be aware of the poor condition of our Wayland school. The P.T.O. is making an all out effort to see that our school is made safe for our children, but we need your help. We need your support and interest—only by working together can we solve the problems and help our children. We urge you to attend the next meeting of the Wayland P.T.O. and find out for yourself some of the conditions of the buildings that exist.

The next regular meeting will be at 6 p.m., Dec. 8, at the Wayland school lunchroom. Please attend if possible. If not, then visit your school whenever possible. We are sure that a lot of you will be surIt may be that, as some surmise, the senator is playing to a wider audience, planning against the possibility that a draft or some other contingency might yet propel him into a bid for the presidency in 1984. But, in any event, the contrived mission that found Kennedy making one-day stands in San Francisco, Minneapolis, Detroit, Pittsburgh and eastern Kentucky seems sad for a number of reasons, not the least of which is that too many Americans are poor.

Some go hungry near the end of each month. Some cannot afford to heat their homes. Increasing numbers are dependent on emergency food aid. Some cannot afford the health care they need. More and more children are undernourished.

How widespread is the deprivation, what is causing it, and how it can best be ameliorated are questions worth resolving. It may even turn out that, as Kennedy asserts, the priorities of the Reagan administration are to blame.

The bald assertion proves nothing, however, and stage-managed "factfinding" tours add little if anything to our understanding of these issues.

There appears to be no reason to doubt the veracity of the witnesses paraded before Kennedy and, since this was no criminal trial, no legal call for rigorous cross-examination. But certain national choices were on trial and the senator's shamelessly leading questions amounted to something less than fair treatment of the issues.

"A country is not just a geographical area," Kennedy reminded a Mud Creek audience last week. "It's a group of people who care about one another."

That is a message this country needs to hear. In all fairness, it is a message the Kennedys have done much to promote. It's no excuse for cheap shots.

of hounds was baying; horses stamped and snorted. Awakened, Cobb viewed the scene with some concern.

Mounted men were in hushed conversation. Occasionally, one would curse a yelping hound or a restless horse. They circled their mounts around one tall, slicker-clad individual who obviously was their leader.

"You, Bill and Tom, ride nawth ... Jim, take two with you and ride east." So ran his instructions.

Men turned the horses and rode away, the lights of their jostling lanterns paling against the dawn.

Cobb saw before him what he was certain was a lynch mob in pursuit, no doubt, of some poor black. He stuck his head out a window and called, "Who are you after—what has he done?"

"Oh, no serious trouble," the leader replied. "We're just helpin' a neighbor. You see, Jed Hawkins' boy, Tim, is 16 years old today and we have to help catch him and get some store shoes on him."

POST-ELECTION NOTE

"Dootney" Horn lost his race for City Council, and little wonder—one of his strongest supporters, Lenna Moore, left town before the election and went to Indiana.

A few days before the event, Lenna reported to this newspaper; dateline, Evansville:

"I've been busy campaigning for Dootney Horn, and no doubt he will carry Indiana, 2 to 1."

A health department sanitarian was being dispatched Tuesday to check on sanitary conditions in the homes of the most recent victims, Compton said.

Some 60 cases of the disease have been reported to health officials in the past four months, most of them involving school-age children and almost all in the Upper Left Beaver area.

Strict hygiene is the only effective means of controlling the spread of the virus, health officials say. Children should be taught to wash their hands well after using the bathroom, and rest rooms and kitchens should be cleaned and sterilized frequently, they advise.

In China, the word for cat is Mao.

"People are taking no interest (in electoral politics)."

Another sign of declining interest in the electoral process, Hale said, is the difficulty experienced in recent years in getting election officers to serve in each precinct. Furnishing a list of election officers is the responsibility of the county chairman, with help from precinct committee members.

But the party has been so disorganized in recent years, it is hard to get a complete list of officers and, even when the list is forthcoming, there are more names on it than there are willing bodies, the sheriff complains.

Hale said he would like to open up the party, to recruit workers from beyond the ranks of the old-time party regulars. "We should get out more. We need new blood. We shouldn't have husbands and wives on the executive committee," he said.

Currently, there are two husband-andwife combinations on the committee— Bill "Crush" and Delores Dingus and Paul and Cedar Hoffman—all four of whom voted for Stumbo over Sturgill on May 17.

Under no circumstances would he support Isaac for county chairman next spring, Hale said this week. On the other hand, Isaac's supporters insist that, if anybody can unify the party, it is not likely to be Henry Hale, whom they identify with the party's Prestonsburg faction.

One contender sometimes suggested as a compromise candidate is Dr. Larry Leslie, who served as county chairman from 1980 to 1982 and lost a bid for the 25th District state senate seat in May. Leslie backed Sturgill in the May 17 executive committee decision.

The process of selecting a new chairman begins the first Saturday in April, when elections are scheduled in each of the county's 48 precincts to name a precinct chairman, chairwoman and committee member under 25 years of age. On the following Saturday, the precinct committee members set about choosing an executive committee, of a size to be determined by the sitting county chairman. The executive committee then selects the county chairman.

In 1980, County Chairman Paul P. Burchett, who chose not to run again, asked for an executive committee of 15. The committee decided to split the chairmanship, naming Leslie for the first two years and Isaac for the latter two.

Child Abuse On Increase

The number of children abused and neglected in Kentucky has increased more than 60 percent since 1978, according to Ted Marshall, associate professor of social work at Morehead State University.

The law requires anyone who suspects a child is being abused, neglected or exploited to report it to the Department for Human Resources. But how can you be sure? What are the signs and symptoms of child abuse?

"A general definition of child abuse is physical harm," explains Marshall. "You can spank your child with your hand and leave red marks, but if you spank your child and leave bruises, that's child abuse."

Hairbrushes are the most often used weapon of child abusers, followed closely by electric cords, according to Marshall.

Some of the signs of child abuse are bruises on the back, neck, backs of legs or buttocks, and deep bruises anywhere on the body.

"It's primarily bruises, although younger children often have broken ribs or bones out of socket," says Marshall. "A lot of times when a child is hospitalized or killed by abuse, X-rays show old breaks that have healed."

It is often hard to tell whether injuries are caused by accidents or abuse, comments Marshall. But if the explanation don't make sense or if a child is repeatedly having "accidents," child abuse should be suspected.

"Kids often protect their parents," Marshall says. "They'll say 'I fell off my bike.' What are you to do unless you can see distinct strap marks on the back?" Marshall's advice is to report it, even if you are not sure. "If it is child abuse, something can be done about the situation, and if it isn't, fine," says Marshall. Where does child abuse happen?

"People picture a ghetto scene, poor people beating their kids," explains Marshall. "But this isn't necessarily the case. I've done investigations where they were so poorly they didn't even have a front door. And I've also investigated homes where I was met at the front door by a maid."

In addition to the increase in the number of child abuse cases being reported, the severity of abuse is also increasing. Sexual abuse is also on the rise. Marshall attributes this increase in part to a heightened public awareness of child abuse.

"There is no doubt that more existing cases are being reported, but there is also a rise in the number of children being abused," he says. "Over 60 percent of abused children will grow up to be abusers themselves, so you can see how it grows from generation to generation. That's scary."

Children have a tendency to grow up to be the kind of parent their parents were, Marshall says, adding that "Women whose mother was an abused wife are more likely to be abused wives." # KET Airs Special On Dr. McDowell

Christmas Day, 1809, Danville doctor Ephraim McDowell performed the first successful abdominal surgery, removing a 22<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> pound ovarian tumor from a Kentucky woman. KET will encore a special, "Ephraim McDowell's Kentucky Ride," Sunday, December 18, at 2 p.m.

Ephraim McDowell attended the University of Edinburgh and worked with the outstanding anatomist, John Bell. Although he practiced without a formal degree, common for the time, his background and training prepared him for his advances in medicine.

Married to Sarah Hart Shelby, daughter of Kentucky's first governor, McDowell maintained a successful practice in Danville. One of the reasons McDowell never became associated with a medical college was his interest in anatomy. Dissection, crucial to the study of anatomy, was illegal at that time.

"Ephraim McDowell's Kentucky Ride" tells the famous story of Thanksgiving holidays here with Mrs. Sarah Allen and Mrs. Agnes Van Hoose. They returned to Atlanta, Sunday.

Mrs. Sonja Ramey and Tim, of Alexandria, Ky., were the holiday weekend guests of her mother, Mrs. Marie Martin and Yvette. Tim also visited his aunt, Mrs. Thurmal Click.

Another cause of abuse is stress, according to Marshall.

"Just look at our society today—more single parent homes more homes with step-parents, unemployment, worry about basic necessities, not enough money, no extended families for support in hard times. Most abusive parents are isolated physically or emotionally, and with all these pressures adding onto the pressures of raising children, they just blow up," explains Marshall.

Tips for Recording Family Folklore

Professional folklorists offer the following advice for those who may want to collect the folklore of their own families:

Start with a question or topic that you know will elicit a full reply from the subject, such as a story you have heard the relative tell in the past. This will give the person confidence in his ability to contribute something of value to your collection.

Avoid generalities. "Tell me about your childhood," for instance, often elicits nothing more than a list of names and dates.

Ask evocative questions. Nothing can kill an interview faster than a long series of questions that require only yes or no answers.

Face up to the fact that there will be some information you will not get. You may be the wrong age or sex. A relative may simply not trust you with sensitive details. If you feel you must have the missing material, you may be able to solicit help from another relative as an interviewer.

Be aware that role switching will occur. You have changed from a son or daughter to an interrogator, and both Professional folklorists offer the you and your informant may feel uneasy in these new roles.

Show interest. Encourage your informants as much as possible. Interject remarks whenever appropriate and learn to be a creative listener as well as a good questioner.

Never turn off the tape recorder unless asked to. It breaks the conversation and suggests that you think some of the material is not worth recording.

Use props whenever possible—photos, letters and so on that can stimulate memories.

Be sensitive to the needs of family members. Don't slight family members who show interest in your project; interview them, even if you have reason to believe their material will be of minimal value.

Prepare some sort of report for the family as a tangible result of participation.

Before publishing diaries, letters and other written artifacts, check on copyright regulations that govern the writer, not the recipient or present owner, of the material.

Missouri Chianina Dominate National Chianina Bull Show

Breeders from Missouri and Illinois swept the championship at the National Chianina Bull Show on Thursday at the North American International Livestock Exposition.

More than 200 American, full blood and black Chianina bulls were led before Judge Dan Hoge, Cambridge, IL. The three breed divisions were kept separate in class evaluations

Speaking to a full house, Hoge gave reasons to a responsive crowd. In the American show, the senior champion bull from Super Gainer Syndicate, Kearney, MO., was named grand champion. Reserve grand champion was also from Missouri. Tom W. Kissee, of Springfield, captured that honor with his unior champion.

Kissee also showed the grand champion black Chianina bull. Darrell Hammons, who works for Kissee, said they have had a national champion four of the five years they have attended the North American. This was, however, their first year with a bull champion.

Missouri breeders, Blue Sky/Bellar Exotic Farms, of Kearney, won the titles to both full blood and black reserve grand champions, with their two reserve senior champions.

Judge Hoge referred to full bloods as the "dominant breed of Chianina." Horsley Brothers, of Tulon, IL, won grand champion full blood bull honors. That achievement led to the capture of the junior get-of-sire, get-of-sire and best six head titles. Horsley's grand champion, "JB High Expectation", was the sire of the animals in these group classes. He was also the sire of the Jim Horsley said this is their eighth year at the NAILE. They had the full blood champion bull in 1981. Horsley also explained their partiaality to full bloods. 'There is more money in full bloods. We are specializing and sticking with bred and owned full bloods," he said.

Full blood Chianina are all white in color. They are purebreds and usually the largest of the three types. American Chianina are anything that is less than full blood, but are still basically white in color. Black Chianina can be up to 15/16 percent purebred, but must be black in color.

The American Chianina Association Sale will be held Thursday night at the exposition center.

DIAMONDS

There is a difference in the quality of diamonds.

Are you buying diamond rings at what you think are wholesale or discount prices?

When economic times get tough, a number of predictable things happen. One very unpleasant fact is that too many retailers or so-called retailers or "wholesaler-retailers"-take advantage of consumers' genuine desire and/or need for a bargain to cheat them blind. This is politely called deceptive pricing. In fact, it's stealing.

What these so-called discounters are doing is taking very cheap quality diamonds and marking them up two or three times more than what they are worth. Then they put them on sale and usually you pay more than what the ring is worth to begin with.

If you want to buy diamonds at a fair price and be told the truth about what you are buying, come to Earl Castle's Jewelry in Prestonsburg, Ky will present "The Messiah" Sunday, December 4, at 4 p.m. in Pike Auditorium, Prestonsburg Community College. Soloists for the performance will be Doug Smith, bass; Vicki Pack, contralto; Malinda Cruthers, contralto; and Elma Jessen, soprano. Mary Grace Garland will accompany the chorus and soloists. The performance will be under the direction of Gus Kalos, head of the music department at Prestonsburg Community College.

Chorus To Present "Messiah," December 4 The Prestonsburg Community Chorus

'The Messiah'' was completed by Handel during the 24 days between August 22 and September 14, 1741. After a rehearsal on April 8, 1742, it was performed for the first time at a charity concert held at Dublin. Approximately a year later, it was heard in London on March 23, 1743, and since that time has probably had more performances than any masterwork in the history of music.

The public is invited to attend.

For a natural munch, team up equal amounts of sunflower seeds, peanuts and raisins. Blend in dry roasted and cocktail nuts and both light and dark raisins.

Rat Control Program Popular This Year

More than 70,000 pounds of rat bait mix have been distributed this fall through a program of the Kentucky Department of Agriculture to help curb the state's rat and mice populations.

"While there aren't more rodents around than usual," said state Agriculture Commissioner Alben W. Barkley II, "more and more people are learning about the program. They want the free bait made available in their areas. We've already mixed more than half of the bait we mixed all last fall and winter, and we've still got four months left in the program.

Rats are just one of the pests attacked each year by programs of the Division of Pest and Noxious Weed Control. The division also helps local governments control mosquitoes, ticks and blackbirds, as well as weeds like multiflora rose and Johnson grass.

"Rats are very destructive, both physically and economically," Barkley pointed out. "One pair of rats can eat about $75 worth of grain a year and contaminate 10 times what they eat. They're a pest we can all do without." Local governments and health

Harold Housewife Earning Degree at Pikeville College

When George Anna Case withdrew not have been able to attend college.' from school to get married, after completing her freshman year in high school, one of the farthest things from her mind was someday graduating from college. But today, she is a junior at Pikeville College and says, "I would like to continue with graduate school next year. I may always be taking classes. Now that I'm back into it, I want to continue to learn for the rest of my life. There's a world out there, and you can see and be a part of it through education.

The way has not been easy for the 30-year-old housewife. She received her GED diploma in 1970, and went back to high school for one year to discipline herself in studying and doing home work.

Mrs. Case attended Prestonsburg Community College for a year and a half, where she was awarded work study aid to help meet expenses. She decided, however, to transfer to Pikeville College because it was closer to her home at Harold and also is a four-year college.

Her first concern was whether she could meet the financial obligation, but she found her chances of receiving financial aid at Pikeville were excellent. Through a Pell Grant, also known as a Basic Grant, and the Pikeville College campus employment program, she has been able to cope with her educational costs. Today, Mrs. Case is working in the college's alumni office, doing filing, typing, and in addition, she was the recipient this fall of the Nettie Pierson Scholarship, funded by the U.S.A. Presbyterian Church, for women who receive some financial support, but not enough to meet their needs

The Pell, or Basic, Grant may be awarded to students enrolled on at least a half-time basis, in good academic standing, and is awarded on a "free" basis with no repayment generally required by the students. Federal law stipulates that no Pell Grant can exceed half of the cost of attendance.

The Pikeville College Campus Employment Work Program is similar to the federally funded College Work Study Program with the exception that students with or without a demonstrated financial need may be served.

Mrs. Case says, "Pikeville College has provided me with an opportunity that I otherwise wouldn't have had, the chance to get a college education. Without these various forms of financial aid I would

Honorary pallbearers were Champ Gibson, Elbert Caudill, Avis Osborne, Herbert Ousley, Cleo Hale, Jeff Burkett, Doug Burkett, Rubin Stephens, Soloman

In other ways, she says, "It has been a sacrifice, going to school. My husband is disabled, and I have two children, Kerbi, 12, and Juli, 7, in school. But we all work together-with the cooking, cleaning, and home work. When I've been ready to call it quits, my husband has given me that extra incentive to keep on going, to reach my goal.

"I think my parents are proud of me, too. Their views on education have changed over the years...So many people have told me, 'Your parents are realproud of you.

Mrs. Case is just one of the 79% of students enrolled at Pikeville Colege who are receiving some form of financial aid, through scholarships, state and federal grants, work opportunities and loans

The application deadline for financial aid is April 1. Those interested in further information may call the Financial Aid Office at 432-9317.

districts can participate in the rodent control program from October through March. The local groups provide ground corn to mix with the concentrated bait they purchase from the pest control division.

The division provides the mixing equipment and bags to package the bait. Staff members also supervise mixing and bagging the bait.

Another service in the rodent control program is available to farmers, Barkley said. Since they may need more bait than someone controlling rats in an urban area, division employees travel to farms and mix the bait for the farmer. They also show how to use the bait in outbuildings and around livestock.

The bait is safe to use around adults and large animals, but it should be used cautiously around small children and pets, Barkley said. Instructions on how to use the bait are given with each bag.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

KENTUCKY A FRUIT COUNTRY

The declaration of Ben E. Niles, secretary of the Kentucky Horticultural Society, that Kentucky is just at the beginning of a great development of the fruit-growing industry has confirmation on all sides. There is increasing enthusiasm in many parts of the state for orcharding, which is bringing good returns to those who have invested in trees and have devoted patience and earnest efforts to the production of marketable fruit. This ardor for fruit growing has affected the Purchase and the mountains alike.

Recently the State College of Agriculture sent out a piece of publicity which revealed that McCracken county orchardists received $23,800 net for twenty carloads of peaches this year. Now this is not a g :at many peaches, even for McCracken county, but the average profit was 50d. One grower in that county reported a gross income of $361 and a net profit of $290 from 150 trees. This is n : an extraordinary average, but the item about McCrack-en's peaches was printed and commented upon from one end of the state to the other

The Floyd County Times, pointing out that the Big Sandy valley has re-markable advantages for fruit growing, urged the farmers in the vicinity Prestonsburg to get out from under the yoke of bondage to the tyrant, Corn, and to plant their hillsides with fruit. Floyd county need go no further than its neighbor, Johnson, for tips on orcharding. Lawrence and Pike, other counties in the Big Sandy, also have the efforts to improve agricultural methods and increase farm incomes. Simpson, one of the Southwestern Kentucky counties already noted for their strawberries, has lately taken an increased interest in orcharding. Inspired by the example of Henderson, McCracken and Ballard counties to the north, Simpson farmers have inaugurated a movement to plant a commercial acreage of peaches this fall, with the idea, according to the Franklin Favorite, of making carload shipments of strawberries. The latter brought Simp- more games with Van Lear this season. son county a quarter of a million dollars this year and another such addi-tion to its income would be welcome. The'story of Henderson, the banner fruit county of the state, as related by Mr. Niles, should be an inspiration to every prospective fruit grower. Protected from ordinary frosts by certain natural conditions that prevail for a distance of about 100 miles on each side of the Ohio river, Kentucky has an advantage not shared by many fruitgrowing districts. Henderson this year produced a 90 per cent crop of peaches. One Henderson grower was paid as high as $4.75 a bushel for his fancy Hale peaches—a price that the quality of the fruit justified. The Kentucky Winesap crop this year, like all apple crops, is a bit off in quantity, but the care and attention which experienced growers give their fruit have enabled Henderson apples to come up to their usual quality. The result naturally is pleasing to the grower, for quality al-

WHY YOU SHOULD VOTE FOR ME FOR CLERK OF THE FLOYD CIRCUIT COURT: ¶ When the tocsin of war was sounded, and Kentucky and Floyd county boys were called, I was one of them. I went, ready and willing to go across at the tap of the drum and the sound of martial music. Your boys went along-some never came back-some tattered and torn and maimed for life. [Before I went, I had a good position and was getting a nice start in life. This was wiped out. I have never fully recovered from the financial loss. I feel that there is a bond of sympathy between your boys and myself, and the mothers and sisters of the boys that went through those trying days of the war and anxiety. They needed us then-It need you now-"Lest we forget." 5 What little money I have earned, has been earned through honest methods and industry, and I have always tried to see the other fellow's side and help those who needed help. When elected to this office, I will never turn from those who need help or those who have helped me. Live and Let Live shall always be my motto. I have accumulated no money more than a living. If my past life has been such as to have gained friends, rest assured that when elected to this office, it will be conducted in a business way accom-panied by friendship and courtesy, and not for the sake of the emoluments of the office, but to lighten your burdens where I can do so. I will appreciate your support.

Very respectfully.

Cats Open Season Vs. Sheldon Clark

By LAURA COOLEY The Prestonsburg Blackcat basketball team open its 1983-84 season, here, Friday night, matched against the region's No. 1 ranked Sheldon Clark Cardinals. Junior varsity and varsity games will be played, starting at 6:30 p.m.

One word describes the Cats this year. The work is "tough." Under the tutelage of new basketball coach Jack Stanford, former coach at Paris High School, the Cats are playing a different ball game, compared to last year. It is a faster paced, more aggressive game, which most fans will enjoy.

In the starting lineup for the Cats this season are the following:

Kelly Cecil, 6'5", 190-pound senior who picked up 20 points in the Panorama. Great things are expected of him this season.

Marty Minix, 6'6" junior and parttime starter last year, will be fulltime starter this year. He scored 15 points in the Panorama, and Coach Stanford expects him to do well this season.

Tony Whitaker, 5'9" senior, is termed by Stanford a "playmaker." Lightning fast and very aggressive, he scored 12 points, Friday night.

Doug Greene, 6' guard-forward, is another starting hopeful, and Stanford says he is a "player who will come through when times are tough.

The next two were football players and are working to get into shape. Todd Nairn, 6' senior, is a good player and very level-headed in sticky situations, while Godie Ratliff, 6'2" junior, is very aggressive whether he is playing football or basketball.

Richie Slone, 5'9'' senior, contributes greatly to the team. He is level-headed and a good playmaker.

Jon Hale, 5' 11" junior guard, has impressed Coach Stanford so far, and he will probably see a lot of play this year.

Last, but certainly not least, is Kenny Music, 5' 11" senior, who was not eligible to play until the second semester last year. He plays aggressive, hardnosed brand of ball, and the team can always depend on an all-out effort from him

Come out and support the Blackcats.

We Have A Birthright

By LINDA NEICE LYON

Once again I feel that I must pull up the old typewriter and speak out about something which I feel very strongly about; my birthright and yours.

I have been watching the TV reviews of Sen. Edward Kennedy's recent trip into eastern Kentucky. I feel sick as I see once again the media representation of this part of our state. This is home to me. I am not sure that they do not share my sense of pride in the mountains they have grown up in.

I do not dispute the fact that the sights which the film crews and Mr. Kennedy saw were there. I am asking why must this side of eastern Kentucky always be the one exposed to the nation. I have met people outside of Kentucky who think we have one leg shorter than the other from walking on the hillsides. They think we only wear shoes in the winter. Where do they get these ideas? From the people who are willing to sell their birthright for a Thanksgiving turkey or a little limelight. They are selling out themselves and their children and their children's children. Nothing sticks in the minds of men as long or gets stretched quite as much as a negative idea. Those who point out the sights of poverty without showing the progression going on in eastern Kentucky are committing a crime against the mountain people. What is being taken from us cannot be replaced in our lifetime.

I heard the statement that so many people would not have Thanksgiving dinner this year in eastern Kentucky. I take issue with that. Where is it written that it takes a Kroger basket and a Butterball turkey to make a Thanksgiving dinner. I seriously doubt that anyone here went without dinner on Thanksgiving unless he or she chose to do so. A Thanksgiving dinner is a time of sharing and caring among family, friends, and neighbors. It doesn't matter what the menu is. Some people don't like turkey anyway. As I was growing up we had a chicken or sometimes killed a hog about that time or even a beef. After all can't we be as thankful over a porkchop and potato as we can over a drumstick and stuffing? How many remembered the Thanks while they were worrying about not having turkey'

I have recently moved my family back home to eastern Kentucky. I left a home I loved and my husband resigned a good job with security. We came home because we wanted to give our children something they cannot get in the city. We brought them home so that they would grow up with that something that only can be found here in these mountains. It's something that defies words and can only be experienced. I have only found it here. We already are seeing a change in our children. They are becoming one of the people. I also must say we do not have much money. We have not found jobs yet. We simply came on faith and a deep feeling that now was the time to bring them home. We are struggling but we will hang in there because there is something here that is more important than money. This is our birthright. How can we let it be sold across this nation for a few welfare dollars and a few people's need to have public exposure? I feel like we have been stripped and exposed, naked for the world to see. When the moneys secured in this way are long spent, the impressions in the minds of the public will remain, vivid and ugly,

I want to issue a challenge. I challenge Mr. Kennedy to take a tour of our homeland with someone who does not want something from him. Go up on Mud Creek and ask for Eddie Akers or go to Little Mud Creek and ask for Millard Parsons or Lester Parsons. These are not rich men. They are poor men but they are proud of their heritage and not willing to sell. There are many others there that feel the same. More than was found waiting at the Mud Creek Clinic for the Senator. Any man who does responsible research knows that information volunteered and indeed thrust upon the researcher is not always reliable. It should be checked out if that researcher is indeed a responsible person.

Last of all I want to say, people of eastern Kentucky, you are a unique people. There is a rich heritage here. Sure there is a group of poor people here. There have always been. But poor is one thing and pitiful is another. We never sought the pity of the world before, why now? Stand up and be proud of who you are. You can improve your lot if you try. Grow a chicken and you will have Thanksgiving dinner. A welfare turkey cooked and eaten can never be given back. Pull up your pride and cover yourself. Do not sell your birthright. It cannot be gotten back for a very long

FIRST AID FACTS

(Courtesy of Highlands Regional Medical Center and Our Lady of the Way Hospital and the emergency physicians of Medical Associates)

Highlands Regional Medical Center and Our Lady of the Way Hospital have a physician in the emergency room around-the-clock to treat emergency illnesses and injuries. However, in many emergency situations there is a great deal that can be done for the victim's health and safety before he reaches professional medical assistance. One such condition is a third-degree burn.

A burn that destroys all layers of the skin is a third-degree burn. In a thirddegree burn the injured area appears white or charred and little pain is present because nerve endings have been destroyed. Do not remove clothes that are stuck to the burn, put ice or ice water on the burns or apply ointments, sprays, antiseptics or home remedies.

If the victim has been burned around the face, neck and mouth, check to be sure that the victim is breathing. If not, place the victim on his back on a firm surface and clear the mouth and airway of foreign material. Gently tilt the victim's head backward and pinch the nostrils together using thum finger. Open your mouth widely and take a deep breath, placing your mouth tightly around the victim's mouth and giving four quick breaths. These should be followed by approximately twelve breaths per minute. Twenty breaths per minute should be administered to infants and small children. Continue this practice until assistance arrives. Place cold cloths or cool water (not ice water) on burned areas of the face, hands, or feet to cool the burned areas. Cover the injured area with a thick sterile dressing such as a clean sheet, pillow case or disposable diaper. Call an ambulance immediately. It is very important that a victim with even a small third-degree burn consult a doctor If possible, the burned area should be elevated higher than the victim's heart. Treat the victim for shock by elevating his feet eight to twelve inches unless the victim is unconscious, has neck, spine, head, chest or severe lower face or jaw injuries. These victims should be placed on their sides to prevent choking on secretions. The victim should be kept comfortably warm. First degree burns are characterized by redness and mild swelling and have no blisters. These burns should be held under cold water until pain decreases and then covered with a sterile bandage. Second degree burns are characterized by redness, swelling and blisters. They, also, should be held under cool water until the pain subsides, and patted dry. Do not break blisters or apply medication. Seek medical attention. If there is any doubt as to treatment, contact the Highlands Regional Medical Center emergency department, 886-8511, or Our Lady of the Way Hospital emergency department, 285-5181.

PR(

OLYMPIAN FEAT — While NBC's "Sportsweiday" CBS' "Sports Saturday" and ABC's "Wide World of Sports" can provide winter-sports fans with their fixes of double-axels, slaloms and schussing, the true cold-weather addicts still have two months before the piece de resistance - the 1984 Winter Olympics in Sarajevo, Yugoslavia.

For the past 20 years, ABC has been covering the Winter Games, and this year, from Feb. 6 to Feb. 19, the network will keep Olympics fans happy with 65 hours of Olympic action, live or on tape (11 more than the 1980 games), with more than 43 hours scheduled for prime time.

Among the 900 ABC employees putting the Winter Olympics on the air will be the network's announcanchorman Jim McKay, Jack Whitaker, Bill Flemming and Chris Schenkel, plus such former Olympic gold-medal winners as Dick Button, Peggy Fleming, Eric Heiden and Bob Beattie, who lend their expertise.

Part of the show will be the site of the games, Sarajevo, an not-often-seen city in a country that is only 50 years old. Sarajevo is better known as the scene of the 1914 assassination of Archduke Franz Ferdinand, the heir to the Austrian-Hungarian crown. It started World War I.

McKay hopes nothing along those lines happens during the games, having covered the 1972 Summer Olympics in Munich, which the terrorist Black September organization took over the Israeli dormitory in the Olympic village and killed 11 Israeli athletes.

For his outstanding reporting of the event, McKay was awarded an Emmy, the George Polk Memorial Award for Journalism, and the West German government gave him the Officer's Cross of the Legion of Merit.

DO YOU WANT TO SEE UNEMPLOYMENT DOWN IN EASTERN KENTUCKY??? DO YOU WANT TO HELP PUT A STOP TO THE RECESSION IN EASTERN KENTUCKY???

If your answer to the above questions is "YES," then we have the answer for you. SPEND YOUR MONEY WITH EASTERN KENTUCKY BUSINESSES. Don't drive to Lexington or Huntington to do your shopping....buy from the people you know ... the people who support your schools through taxes....by buying advertising from you....by donating to your Halloween carnivals....by buying ads from the FHA and FFA....supporting the athletic programs and band programs....buying ads for the women's clubs projects....ads from the service clubs....supporting the horse shows....buy from the people who have concern for you when you have problems....people who care for your needs and for you.

Not only do these local business people do these things for your children and grandchildren, but they offer you the same quality and even better quality merchandise at better prices than you can find in larger cities. How can we do this? It's only logical that a store in a big mall has to pay larger rent than a small town business....they have to pay bigger utilities....larger advertising rates....higher taxes....just a lot more overhead than stores in Eastern Kentucky and they pay these bigger expenses by having a BIGGER mark-up on what they sell you. They have big sales to make it look like they are giving you a big deal...but what they are really doing is marking the items higher so they can mark them down to what they should be in the first place...and you don't always know for sure that you're getting first-guality merchandise...they could be irregulars....

Can you go to these city businesses and take things out on approval to see if they fit you in the privacy of your home?....or if you get something with a flaw...can you take it right down to your local merchant to get it exchanged or do you have to drive all the way back to the city and, MAYBE, if you still have the sales slip or proof of purchase, to exchange it? Your local people know you and your honesty and usually take these things back without question.

If you need help with a project, both financial and physical, how much help do you think you can get out of a Lexington store?? NONE...If you really want to help those people that help you...shop at home with them so they can help you when you have a need..

And then watch our RECESSION take an upswing....our unemployment go down....If you make a living in Eastern Kentucky...then spend your money in Eastern Kentucky first....spend it with a friend....the people in the larger towns could care less about you and your everyday needs....all they are interested in is getting your money.

LET'S STOP THE RECESSION .... LET'S LOWER UNEMPLOYMENT .... LET'S SPEND OUR MONEY AT HOME WHERE YOU MIGHT STAND A CHANCE TO GET SOME OF IT BACK THROUGH YOUR BUSINESS OR PROFESSION....DON'T LET YOUR MONEY GO TO NEW YORK OR TO ATLANTA WHERE THE CITY STORES ALL SEND THEIR BANK DEPOSITS. KEEP YOUR MONEY IN THE MOUNTAINS...SHOP AT HOME...IT'S CHEAPER....IT'S MORE CONVENIENT AND EASIER TO FIND WHAT YOU WANT. AND IT HELPS YOUR FRIENDS ....

Home Heating Needs Is Focus of HEAP

Local Department for Social Insurance offices will begin taking applications Dec. 5 from low-income Kentuckians who need help to pay fuel bills this winter. Elderly, blind and disabled people will receive top priority for assistance, and 40 percent of the approximately $17 million in federal HEAP money is earmarked for these groups. The remaining funds will be used to help people who are in danger of losing their home heating source because they cannot pay the bill.

"Kentucky will receive about $17 million in federal funds to provide energy assistance payments this winter," Cabinet for Human Resources Secretary Buddy Adams said. "Many Kentuckians are going to need help with fuel bills, and with these funds we expect to assist about 76,000 households. The amount of assistance will range from $175 to $300 per household.

Households with at least one member who is 60 years old or older or a member who is permanently and totally disabled may apply for the regular component of the Home Energy Assistance Program beginning Dec. 5. They may apply through Dec. 16 unless the funds earmarked for the elderly, blind and disabled are used before that date.

Other households facing a heating crisis may apply for assistance from the crisis component beginning Jan. 16 and continuing until the funds are exhausted. All households applying for HEAP benefits must meet financial criteria to be eligible.

The average American household does six loads of wash a week.

The Wildflower That Changed The Destiny of American History

A little wild flower called "Trailing Arbutus" changed the destiny of American history. Had it not been for the inspiration this little flower gave to our Pilgrim Fathers in the spring of 1621, we might today be living under the French or Spanish government.

This wild flower has been highly honored in being made the state flower of Massachusetts and also of Nova Scotia. The Trailing Arbutus is a member of the heath family and often forms patches on sunny hillsides of south facing slopes with acid soil.

Wild arbutus is an evergreen with course leathery leaves. As soon as the cold March weather is over, it begins to bloom. In order to find the pretty pinkish-white flowers, one has to rake away the old winter leaves, under which the fragrant white blossoms often hide from the cold. The blossoms are mostly white and are very fragrant.

As history tells us, the Pilgrims had a hard winter at Plymouth in 1620. During that cold, hard winter, the Pilgrims

President Approves Veterans' Jobs Bill

President Reagan has signed legislation appropriating $75 million in support of a job training program to aid unemployed Vietnam Era and Korean Conflict veterans.

Congress authorized the funds last week to provide financial incentives to employers to hire and train veterans. Congress is considering an additional $75 million in funding for the first year of the two-year program.

'This is a major undertaking and it underscores the nation's special commitment to those who have served in the military," Administrator of Veterans Affairs Harry N. Walters said.

The joint Labor Department-Veterans Administration effort will be administered by the VA. The program will fund 50 percent of the starting hourly wages up to $10,000 for veterans to provide a maximum of 15 months of training for certain veterans with serviceconnected disabilities, and up to nine months for other participants. It also will allow employers to enter into agreements with educational institutions to provide vocational instruction. To be eligible for participation in the program, a veteran must have been unemployed for at least 15 of the 20 weeks immediately preceding the date of his or her application. Eligible veterans will be furnished a certificate of eligibility by the VA to be presented to an employer offering a job training program that meets specified requirements. Applications may be obtained from any VA regional office or local State Employment Job Service offices. Employers wishing to take part in the program are urged to contact the local VA or Job Service Office lost over half of their colony. The governor, John Carver, died. The hardships were just too much for the hardy Pilgrims to endure. Their ship, the Mayflower, was riding at anchor in Plymouth harbor. She would soon be sailing back to their homeland. So the few remaining Pilgrims firmly resolved to go back to England on the Mayflower. While they waited for the weather to improve for sailing and just as the snow began to melt away on the hill above the settlement, one of the Pilgrim men took a walk upon the hill, hoping he might see just one small sign that spring might be near. He found a clump of Trailing Arbutus still with green leaves and fell on his knees beside the plants. He raked away the old winter leaves and there he found dozens of little white flowers in bloom. He rejoiced at their boldness to come out with a rare sign of spring. He ran to the other Colonists and led them upon the hillside to see the flowers. They decided the flowers were sent to inspire them to take new hope and go ahead and plant their crops

So, the very sight of this little flower changed the course of American history. If the Pilgrims had gone back home on the Mayflower there would have been no permanent colony in Massachusetts. What might have happened if they had abandoned their colony? No doubt the Spanish or French would later have come and established colonies in New England.

The little flower was a sign that the long winter had been endured and relief was in sight. The Pilgrims had endured the worst. And they took heart in their victory over the elements and persevered to maintain their position.

Steer Shown Are Down Reflecting Crops, Economy

The North American International Livestock Exposition Junior Steer Show got under way Friday as more than 140 steer paraded before Judge Dee Woody of Carbondale, Il.

The number of steers shown was down by 50 this year. Coy Trapp, of the NAILE staff, head of the steer show, attributes the decrease to a bad crop season and the state of the economy. He claims that another factor affecting the number shown is that unlike most winter shows, this steer show is terminal-the animals are slaughtered and their carcasses are evaluated.

"The NAILE steer show benefits those exhibitors who have heavy animals close to a slaughter weight," Trapp added. He also feels that the steer show is especially important because it helps the youth exhibiting learn responsibility.

The title of grand champion steer was won by "Magnum", a 1,304 pound halfblood owned by Mark Sneed of Ewing, Il. The steer was named grand champion in open shows at the 1983 Illinois and Indiana state fairs.

Reserve grand champion honors were won by Keela Howard's 1,305 pound steer, a Chianina-Angus cross. The steer was named grand champion at the Oklahoma Junior Chianina Association Show and reserve grand champion at the 1983 Oklahoma state fair.

Murco's of Kalamazoo, MI, will purchase at market price all of the remaining steers. They will slaughter and evaluate them according to USDA grade and yield grade.

The grand and reserve grand champion steers will be sold in the Sale of Champions. Purchasers of these animals often pay several times the market price per pound for the purpose of publicity for their firm.

Social Security Card Is Harder To Falsify

Staring this month, people in the Big Sandy Area who apply for a Social Security number for the first time and those applying for a replacement card will get a Social Security number card printed on banknote paper, Jim Kelly, Social Security District Director for the Big Sandy Area, said recently.

The new card is being introduced to make the Social Security system more secure, Kelly said. The new card is much more difficult to alter or counterfeit than the old card.

Social Security cards now in use are still valid, Kelly said, and there is no need to get a new card unless it is necessary.

People who do need a new Social Security card because they lost their old one or who have changed their name can apply at any Social Security office for a replacement. They will need evidence of their identity, and if they have changed their name, the evidence should show both the old and new names.

A person applying for a number for the first time needs evidence of age. citizenship or immigrant status, and identity.

A person will receive his or her card about two weeks after applying and supplying all necessary evidence. All Social Security cards are issued from Social Security headquarters in Baltimore, Maryland.

More information about applying for Social Security numbers can be obtained at the Big Sandy Area Social Security Office, located on U.S. 23 between Prestonsburg and Paintsville. The telephone number is listed in your local directory.

Martiki Recognized for Reclamation Work

The highlight of Martiki's reclamation program was the announcement in 1982 that under a joint agreement with Morehead State University, an agricultural research and development complex would be constructed on land reclaimed by Martiki

The project involves the construction of several phases over a 15-year period. Martiki has agreed to fund the project, and Morehead State University will manage it. The first phase of the project is nearly completed. It is a 240 sow-swine facility, which will produce 4,500 pigs per year. Martiki has already constructed a 70,000 gallon water-storage tank and treatment plant and has laid more than 4,000 feet of water-lines for the complex.

Martiki and Morehead have recently been joined in the venture by Pocahontas Development Corporation. Future phases of the project are planned to include a 82,000 hen-poultry facility, commercial greenhouses, and commercial cattle herds. An orchard is currently in place at the site and has produced it's first crop.

Manure from the animal phases is being spread on the reclaimed land in order to stabilize it, and add organic, chemical, and water-holding characteristics to the existing surface material.

The total acreage now being used by Morehead State University exceeds 200 acres of the 4,000-acre final planned area. The Martiki Reclamation crew has played an important role in the reclamation phase of the mining operation.

that special youngster on your holiday list? Before you buy, be selective, warns the Kentucky affiliate of the National Society to Prevent Blindness. A little forethought can prevent giving harmless looking toys that can actually become dangerous in the hands of a child.

According to the Society, more than 60% of toy-related eye injuries occur in children less than 15 years old.

"Most of these injuries are caused by commonly available toys," says Elinor Zollinger, executive director of the Kentucky affiliate. "These include toy guns. slingshots, flying toys, dolls and vehicles.

Equally alarming are eye injuries caused when using BBs, pellets, bows and arrows, and air, gas or spring operated guns. "Sometimes handled as

Pizza Hut Shares Food With Needy

Many local families received Thanksgiving canned goods, Wednesday, November 23, when Pizza Hut shared the horn of plenty with needy residents.

The community-donated canned goods were collected at the local Pizza Hut restaurant and distributed by volunteers from the local chapter of the Rescue Squad.

Jay Coulter, vice-president of marketing and operations of Coulter Enterprises, a Pizza Hut franchise, said, "We were pleased at the total contribution we were able to make and we are especialy grateful to the community for its support and participation.

a toy, these weapons can be especially dangerous in the wrong hands," Miss Zollinger adds.

"Almost every eye injury can be prevented. Parents who are alert to the potential dangers of certain toys, and the need to supervise children at play, can avoid turning holiday fun into a tragic memory

'Don't take chances. Don't give your child easily breakable playthings, those with sharp, pointed edges, or toys with projectiles that could be shot into someone's face," she said. "After careful selection, the next important element to consider when giving toys is supervision of their use. It's vital that parents explain how best to operate or use toys safely-and then keep an eye on children while they are playing. Remember, children can be surprisingly creative, that is, they can take an otherwise safe toy and turn it into a dangerous weapon," Miss Zollinger concluded.

Even popular toys such as chemistry sets and those that launch rubber-tipped projectiles, can be dangerous if used improperly or without supervision. A child may, for example, pull rubber tips off toys or inadvertently splash harmful chemicals into his or her own face or a playmate's eyes.

State Workers Aid United Way

Exceeding their goal by more than 12 percent, employees of the state's Cabinet for Human Resources have contributed an estimated $67,400 to this year's United Way campaign.

Secretary Buddy Adams last week brought his cabinet's United Way fundraising drive to an official close with a reception for the agency's campaign coordinators. He told one group at the reception that he wasn't surprised that cabinet donations surpassed the $60,000 goal.

"Human Resources exists to meet basic human needs, and our employees know there are many people needing many kinds of help," Adams said. "The workers in this cabinet routinely give more than 100 percent to deliver the kinds of help government can provide, so I am gratified but not surprised that they would also give more than 100 percent to help support other kinds of services as well.'

Adams announced that the largest single group contribution within the cabinet was $11,352 collected by the staff of Western State Hospital, a mental health facility in Hopkinsville. The 572 employees there raised the money through weekly reminders, showings of a film about United Way programs, a special United Way Day and one-to-one appeals.

Almost every department, division and facility in the cabinet collected more money this year than last. Some doubled or even tripled their totals, even with fewer employees than they had a year ago.

The cabinet's United Way coordinator, Virginia Nester, said the cabinet this year collected at least $5,223 more than last year's $62,177 total. Nester, a program specialist in the Department for Social Services, added that the 1983 contributions are still being tallied and the total may go even higher when last-minute donations are received and counted. Most of the money has been donated through voluntary monthly payroll deductions.

Preliminary subtotals from the cabinet's four departments and the staff offices are as follows: Department for Health Services, $24,887; Department for Manpower Services, $5,439; Department for Social Insurance, $13,387; Department for Social Services, $12,783; and Staff Offices, $5,830.

Also included in the cabinet's contribution is more than $4,600 raised through bake sales and United Way raffles for donated prizes, many of which were supplied by the employees themselves.

HRMC Volunteers Are Honored

Fancy French desserts, beautiful flowers, service awards and praise filled an evening dedicated to honor 67 volunteers at Highlands Regional Medical Center

"We're proud of the important work you do as part of the Highlands Regional family," Chalmer Frazier, the first HRMC Administrator and current Board Member, told the group of volunteers.

Service award pins were presented to the volunteer workers along with thanks for their fine work.

Four different groups make up the Medical Center's volunteer force. Active since May of 1982, the Breast-feeding Support Group is the newest of the volunteer organizations. These women visit the hospital twice a week to give assistance, information, and support to new mothers who want their help. Ministers On-Call give professional, non-denominational spiritual guidance and comfort to HRMC patients and their families. These men see patients daily and are on-call 24 hours a day to help with emergencies. The Teen Volunteers have grown in number and services since their beginning over two years ago. The Teens help on nursing floors, escort patients, and do clerical work. The Auxiliary has been dedicated to fund-raising and providing patient and family services since the hospital opened 11 years ago. They have donated over $27,300. in equipment to Highlands Regional in their many years of service. The volunteers are from Floyd and Johnson counties. HRMC Management staff members joined them for this evening of recognition to show the staff's appreciation for their services.

Arnemann Grender, former Alice Lloyd College physics instructor, has been granted a patent on a torque-free laser system, which field tests have shown can reduce surveying costs by half in the coal industry where it will be used primarily

The flashlight-size laser allows quick and accurate aligment of directional heading in underground mines. It is said that the average, untrained individual will be able to use this device with precision rivaling that of the trained engineer using an engineer's transit

Mr. Grender is design engineer for Johnson Industries, Inc., of Virgie, a manufacturer of innovative mine equipment. He was assisted in development of the laser system by George Johnson, Jr., President of Johnson Industries, and co-owner of the patent.

Celebrates Birthday Movement Begins To Enhance Writing Skills By SHEILA CONWAY, WKU News Editor Bowling Green, Ky.-Looming like a black cloud over every college student is freshman English. "I just hate to write. I don't know how," English teachers hear all the time, always to their dismay.

Forever, it seems, the teaching of writing has been a perplexing task for countless teachers of English as well as students, especially those who do have very real feelings about inadequacies in expressing themselves on paper as they'd wish

Dr. James Flynn, head of Western Kentucky University's English department, has done studies that have shown over the years "a deterioration in students' ability to write." Such studies have also been corroborated elsewhere, and blaming freshman English teachers isn't always a good answer, the studies are also showing.

"There's a general perception that students aren't being asked to write with frequency beyond their freshman year,' says Flynn. "As a result, they aren't seeming to write with a regularity that will improve their writing," he says. The perception is a national one.

A Harvard study that showed senior science students wrote worse than their freshman counterparts started some tremblings up East, and when the University of Michigan began exit interviews of seniors and found much the same thing. Michigan started requiring at the request of some students, an upper division course that required a fair amount of writing.

It has become a movement, called "Writing and Thinking Across the Curriculum," and according to James Kinneavy, who headed the largest freshman English program in the country at the University of Texas, "is the most exciting thing that's happening in the teaching of writing at the present time." Kinneavy, a well-known authority on the subject, visited WKU in October to launch the Writing and Thinking Across the Curriculum program on campus. Last year, a 10-member army of faculty was appointed by Vice President for Academic Affairs James L. Davis to a "Writing and Thinking Across the Curriculum Task Force," to promulgate the concept on WKU's campus. The basic assumption of writing and thinking across the curriculum is that all departments have some responsibility to teach literacy to students in their departments, and teachers should be concerned about students' writing in their disciplines. That's a twist in thinking from the "old days" when the responsibility of teaching writing was delegated to the English department "while the rest of the campus forgot it," Kinneavy said.

The first activity was a two-day workshop at Lake Malone. Appropriately nestled amidst October's forrested miracles, 24 faculty members from across campus retreated to write and think and to learn how to make their students do the same. They started out listening to the husband-wife team of Burt Hatlen and Virginia Nees-Hatlen, writing consultants from the University of Maine. Both have worked at the Bard College in New York's Center for Writing, and they yearly conduct a number of workshops on writing and thinking. Their workshop at WKU was a "first," however, Hatlen said, of working with faculty from all disciplines. "Until now we've mostly worked with English people. We're interested in the outcome of this workshop," Hatlen said. It didn't take him long to like what the WATAC task force had cooked up.

"What's happening here," Hatlen said, only a few hours after the workshop got underway, "is that participants are developing a sense of writing as everyone's responsibility. I'm hearing lively and exicted people interested in what they're doing," he said.

Great Smokeout

Employees at Our Lady of the Way Hospital became personally involved with the annual Great American Smokeout, November 17. Non-smoking employees "adopted" a smoker for the day to offer support and encouragement. The Dietary Department provided snacks of vegetables, fruit, nuts and lollipops throughout the 24-hour period to help curb the desire for cigarettes.

The smokeout was considered a success with approximately 60% of smoking employees making it through twenty-four hours without a cigarette.

The "Smokeout" was coordinated by Judy Hamm, Employee Health Nurse, using materials furnished by the American Cancer Society.

MARH Observes Health Care Week

The McDowell ARH Home Health Agency is expected to play a larger role in the Floyd county area's health care needs as a result of the recent changes in the Medicare reimbursement program.

'Patients are leaving hospitals sooner, and nursing care and other services are being delivered to them in their homes to help them complete their recovery," said Barbara Kiper, of the Kentucky Home Health Association.

In many cases, this means shorter hospital stays and an increase in the need for home health care. In 1982 more than 25,000 Kentuckians received home health care, totaling nearly 400,000 visits by agency staffs.

The McDowell ARH Home Health Agency is a member of the Kentucky Home Health Association (KHHA) which represents 87 percent of the licensed home health agencies in Kentucky and a number of additional organizations and individuals interested in quality home care. "The number of medical and mental health services these agencies provide is constantly growing. Add to that the comforts of home, and the patient is bound to have an easier recovery," Kiper said.

"The demands on home health care are increasing as more people are discovering its advantages. In providing efficient care at lower cost and in the comfortable environment of the person's home, home health agencies are a major part of the health care future," Kiper said

Special Ed Program Funding Is Assured

The U.S. Department of Education has approved the Kentucky Education Department's three-year annual program plan for the Bureau of Education for Exceptional Children.

Approval results in Kentucky receiving federal funding for educational programs for exceptional children during school years 1983-84 through 1985-86. The grant award for fiscal year 1984 is $17,349,486

The majority of funding flows directly to local school districts with the first priority being services to those handicapped children ages five through 17 who are receiving no services at all.

The second priority is to fund programs for severely handicapped children receiving inadequate educational services.

Remaining funds will be used to expand services for handicapped children. The annual program plan establishes policies and procedures for Kentucky's compliance with the Education of All Handicapped Children Act and the Education Division of General Administrative Regulations.

To obtain a copy of the plan, contact the Bureau of Education for Exceptional Children, 8th Floor, Capital Plaza Tower, Frankfort, Ky. 40601.

Elderhostel Program Set at Shakertown

Noted author Clay Lancaster will be among the conference faculty for the Elderhostel seminar "Preserving Our Heritage" to be held in Shakertown at Pleasant Hill during January. The conference is scheduled for two separate weeks and participants may register for either Jan. 15-20 or Jan. 29-Feb. 3.

Sponsored in part by the Kentucky Humanities Council, and coordinated by Dr. Alice Brown of Eastern Kentucky University's Division of Special Programs, the week-long programs will focus on various aspects of preservations, with lectures, slides, and tours. Participants will not only get to stay in historic Shakertown, but will also visit important nearby historic sites in Danville and Harrodsburg.

Along with Lancaster's discussions on Kentucky architecture, the program includes information on preservation with photography and discussions on the preservation of historic homes. Jim Thomas, president of Shakertown, will discuss the development of Shakertown.

Wheelwright Homemakers

"The Wheelwright Homemakers met November 17 in the Senior Citizens Building at Wheelwright. In the absence of the devotional, chairperson, Katie Newsome opened the meeting with the Homemakers Creed.

Roll call was answered by telling a family traditional custom done at Thanksgiving. Minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved. Old business included the sale of pecans by club members which was most successful.

The evening's lesson was on needlepoint and various Christmas items were on display. A "White Elephant Sale" was held during the meeting and earned the club an additional $29.60 for the treasury

Plans for the December covered dish dinner were completed and each member will be reminded by card prior to Dec. 15.

Hostesses for the evening were Sandi Tinder and Linda Holbrook. Refreshments were served to Dolly Hall, Mary Hall, Linda Holbrook, Barbara Johnson, Sue Johnson, Margaret Jones, Katie Newsome, Doris Osborne, Myra Salisbury, Alma Soulyrette, Sandi Tinder, and a new member Carol Miller.'

Tables at court dinners in seventeeth century France were covered not with linen but with baked dough. These "tablecloths" were tossed to peasants when the banquet was over:

Mary Oppel, Kentucky's state historic preservation officer, will provide information on resources for historic preservation and members of her staff will discuss the successful commercial revitalizations in Kentucky's Main Street projects. Directing the program and providing instruction on restoration of historic homes will be Joe DeSpain, executive director of the Commonwealth Preservation Council.

Conference participants will be entertained with musical performances by local artists Michael Breeding and Marti Williamson.

The Shakertown Elderhostel program is one of 19 programs available in Kentucky between February and May. The Elderhostel program began in 1975 with just 200 students. Now over 700 institutions participate in this program designed to bring week-long cultural and educational opportunities inexpensively to older adults.

The cost of the program, including lodging and meals at Shakertown plus tours to nearby sites, is $188. To register, contact Alice W. Brown, State Coordinator, Kentucky Elderhostel, EKU, Richmond, Ky. 40475 or telephone (606) 622-1444.
