

Budget Loosely Handled, State Auditor Alleges

Whether any criminal charges will come of it is not yet clear, but a state auditor's report released last week strengthened earlier claims that Floyd county's $3 million budget was so loosely handled under the administration of the late Jerry Lafferty, Jr. that hundreds of thousands of dollars may have been improperly used.

The report by State Auditor Mary Ann Tobin, which was read to a meeting of the fiscal court by an audit supervisor Friday, covered the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1982, the one budget Lafferty controlled. The former judge-executive took office in January of that year, inheriting a budget prepared by his predecessor, Bill Wells. He died in May, 1983.

The audit confirmed the findings of an investigation conducted a year ago by the state Department of Finance, findings which resulted in the state's taking control of Floyd finances for seven months and which triggered a state police probe into possible criminal wrongdoing on the part of Floyd officials.

A report on the lengthy police inquiry has been for some weeks in the hands of Raymond Larson, director of the special prosecutions division of the attorney-general's office, who will decide—next month, according to one source—whether to convene a special grand jury to consider whether anyone should be indicted on criminal charges.

The audit report, read without embellishment by audit supervisor Jim Rogers to an attentive fiscal court audience Friday, told of "incomplete records and numerous noncompliances" on the part of the 1982 county administration.

Various unauthorized persons turned up on the county payroll that year. County officials used credit cards to charge "extravagant and unjustified" expenses to the county. Many people were allowed to make purchases with public money, often without any proof that the goods were delivered to the county.

Money intended for road work was used for other purposes. The law requiring that large purchases be advertised for bids was often ignored. Record-keeping for the newly-opened Allen park pool was so primitive, auditors cannot be certain how much was taken in or where it went.

Recommendations made by the auditor read like a primer in money management. Someone should be appointed to say what can be bought with county money, they counseled. County jobs should be advertised when they fall vacant, not simply handed out by magistrates according to the customary quota system. A cash register might help keep track of receipts at the Allen pool. There is no excuse for officials to be charging meals and lodging to the county unless they are away on official business and, even then, they should pick up their own tab for entertainment, bar and room service.

Judge-Executive John M. Stumbo was quick to point out that he did not take office until after the period covered by the audit. Moreover, most of the auditor's recommendations for tighter control have long since been implemented here, he said, a fact confirmed by Al Howell, a field officer with the state Finance Department.

When Lafferty was in office, control over purchases was "seriously deficient," the auditor found. Of 20 purchases of drainage pipe, for example, none was properly documented; there was no indication the pipe was delivered to the county; and five of the claims, none of which included invoices or other documentation, were made out to individuals rather than businesses. A RIVER OF MUD and trees cracked down a mountainside and partly engulfed this Prater Creek cottage as a result of heavy rains that saturated the area Saturday night.

Odas Hamilton, who lives in a trailer with several rooms attached at the head of the right fork of Rice Branch, said his wife Lois was awakened around 6 a.m. Sunday by the sound of trees snapping on the hillside high above them. The couple got out with their two children and managed to remove some belongings before a tide of mud and debris from an abandoned stripmine rolled onto their home. The flow crumpled a back porch and wall, shifted the dwelling several feet, and oozed through the family's living quarters.

Two years ago, the Hamiltons were hit by an almost identical slide. That slip, which was reclaimed with federal funds last summer, was not involved in Sunday's mishap. The unstable slope is a legacy of mining by the Triple Elkhorn Mining Co. about 10 years ago.

ALTHOUGH FLOODING in the county was not severe, Archer Park here was inundated, as it is almost annually, by the waters of Middle Creek. All the park's ball playing fields were covered by the muddy water although tennis courts and other facilities escaped flooding.

This Town...That World

I have the word of Clifford Wright for it. Daylight savings time begins next Sunday. Which means, set your timepieces ahead one hour. Which also means that I, who can be late even with slow time, will need winding up.

WHILE WE GRUMBLE

The weather has been downright discouraging—cold, wet, bleak, the sky so sealed over (or under) by cloud so long that you almost forgot that it's still blue. Yet, while we grumble, birds sing, flowers bloom and all nature awakens—not because of the warmth of sunshine or gentle, warming rains, but simply because it's that magic time again.

REDBUD TIME

Easter, late as it was, arrived before the dogwoods. But the redbuds were present in all their beauty. The colors of spring as well as those of autumn invariably leave me tongue-tied. What is the color of the redbud, anyway? It's not red. Pink, then? or purple? or heliotrope?... whatever the hue, spell it "beautiful."

Speaking of colors, I must admit that my artistic eye just ain't. As an artist I couldn't draw water or even a deep breath.

City Council Demands Change at Job Corps

The federal Department of Labor will be asked by Prestonsburg city council to sack the Singer Corporation and find new managers for the Prestonsburg Job Corps Center.

The decision followed a lengthy hearing at the council meeting Monday night on charges which began circulating several weeks ago with the distribution of an anonymous letter purportedly written by a staff member at the facility.

Council members Paul Hunt Thompson and Bill Ray Collins closely questioned a Singer official who attended the meeting on charges that discipline has broken down at the 165-student Job Corps Center and that Singer, which operates the facility under contract with the Labor Department, has proven incapable of managing it.

Job Corps students have recently been booked at the county jail on arson, rape and assault charges, Thompson said.

Gene Baker, executive director of Singer Career Systems, asked Thompson rhetorically whether some without Job Corps connections have not also been jailed on the same charges. But Thompson remained unimpressed. "There probably have," he said, "but these are born and raised here. We have our own problems. We don't need to bring them in."

To complaints by Collins that "12 to 20" Corps members can typically be found on the streets after the center's 10 p.m. weekday curfew and that the students in general are "not getting supervision or discipline," Baker replied that a recent change in Department of Labor policy has resulted in "different kinds of people" being referred to the facility.

Whereas students were formerly drawn from Kentucky, Tennessee and North Carolina, recent recruits have been drawn more from the deep south, Baker said. Students from states like Alabama, Mississippi and Florida do not easily adjust to the mountains and so have more behavior problems, he said.

In any event, Job Corps recruits are "not the cream of the crop but the bottom of the barrel," said Baker, who explained that 97 percent were high school dropouts and most were on a fifth grade reading level. "These are all losers... Our job is to transform losers into some winners," he said.

Nor are the students the only potential

Solid Waste Funding Wins on Split Vote

They have themselves to blame, a state official told members of the Floyd fiscal court, some of whom were clearly irked at being asked to come again to the rescue of the county's embattled solid waste system.

The fiscal court's "reorganization" of Floyd County Solid Waste, Inc. in the summer of 1981—barely two weeks after the countywide waste collection system got going—ushered in a year of "terrible mismanagement" from which the system has yet to recover, said Al Howell, a state Department of Finance official specializing in county government.

"You've got yourselves in a hole. And now, to dig your way out, you're going to have to put up this money," Howell told the court at its monthly meeting last Friday.

The state official earlier asked the county to commit $125,000 to Floyd County Solid Waste next fiscal year and to approve immediately the renegotiation of a bank loan to enable the garbage agency to meet a $52,500 bond payment at the end of this month.

Two magistrates—Gerald DeRossett and Kenneth Roberts—refused to go along. They complained that, while the fiscal court has no say in the management of Floyd County Solid Waste, the county is expected to keep footing the garbage agency bills. Moreover, these claims on the county purse come at a time when their constituents are crying out for road repairs, they said.

In addition, Roberts sought to block a recent rate hike for garbage service and cited an attorney-general's opinion in support of his claim that the fiscal court has the final say on rates.

To blame for the garbage system's troubles, Roberts said, is Robert McAninch, chief architect of the system and chairman of the solid waste board. And the Second District magistrate also lashed out at County Attorney Arnold Turner, Jr., implying that he had not tried hard enough to force the system's delinquent subscribers to pay their bills.

McAninch and Turner had ready alibis, however. McAninch pointedly reminded the magistrate that he, Roberts, was a member of the fiscal court which replaced McAninch as president of Floyd County Solid Waste, Inc. in June, 1981, when the system was barely under way.

Moreover, the management of the garbage system was again disrupted in February, 1982, McAninch noted when, shortly after he took office, Jerry Lafferty, Jr., then county judge-executive, called for the resignation of the agency's entire board and largely took over the management himself.

(Between May, 1982 and February, 1983—when McAninch was summoned back to take charge of the system at the insistence of bondholders and state officials—the solid waste board never met, McAninch said after Friday's meeting.)

Under the first year of the Lafferty administration, the county attorney's office was "pretty well excluded" from solid waste affairs, said Turner, who reminded the court that legal matters were at that time handled by Floyd County Solid Waste by "the county judge's private counsel," a reference to Prestonsburg attorneys Phil Damron and Danny Caudill.

TINY RIVULETS in the heads of hollows became cascading and picturesque little streams as a result of weekend rains, belying the situation along larger streams where swollen, muddy water posed the threat of flood.

Charges Against 2 Are Dismissed

Charges against two David men accused of mining without a permit were dismissed in Floyd Circuit Court last Wednesday, after a key prosecution witness failed to appear. But an angry judge vowed that the absent witness would himself stand trial on the charge.

The charges related to an alleged wildcat stripmine on Open Fork of Middle Creek, from which 556 tons of coal were reported to have been removed over the 1982 Labor Day weekend. A newly-created investigative unit made up of state police and Department of Mines and Minerals officers shut the operation down and seized mining equipment in use there.

Both Seeking Party Leadership Claim They'll Win, Saturday

After weekend precinct elections, both leaders of the two factions vying for control of the Floyd Democratic Party claimed to be confident of victory in the county convention to be held this Saturday.

"We've got 'em thumped," said Morris Isaac, who reckoned his supporters were elected committee members in as many as 31 of the county's 47 precincts.

Dr. Larry Leslie, who hopes to wrest the county chairman's position from Isaac, was reluctant to say how many precincts he thinks his people won but scoffs at his opponent's claim. "I don't want to count my chickens before they've hatched," he said, "but I feel very confident. We'll know Saturday."

The Prestonsburg physician had particular scorn for Isaac's claim to have won eight out of the 16 precincts in the first magisterial district—territory where support for the Martin coalminer was thought to be weakest. "If he thinks he's got eight precincts in the lower end of the county, he must believe in Santa Claus," Leslie said of his rival.

Isaac partisans lay claim to seven out of 10 fourth district precincts, fair support in the third district, and all but a clean sweep in the second district, where Garrett is said to have been the only precinct won by Leslie's supporters.

One factor that makes predictions risky is that in some precincts the three committee members elected—a man, a woman and someone under 30—are pledged to different candidates.

The officers elected last Saturday will meet in the circuit courtroom of the Floyd County Courthouse here this Saturday at 2 p.m. to elect an executive committee of five to 15 members. The committee will then elect its chairman and vice-chairman.

During the current four-year term, the executive committee has numbered 15 and the chair was occupied first by Leslie and then by Isaac. Leslie has indicated he favors a smaller committee and stressed he will not again consent to any power-sharing arrangement.

Some Isaac supporters have billed the contest as a chance to "beat the Prestonsburg political machine," and cite Saturday's gains in the first district as evidence that even the city's traditional allies are ready to buck the leadership of an urban elite.

Leslie stresses his rural origins and points to a good showing last Saturday in sections of Left Beaver and Mud Creek as evidence of his appeal to Democratic voters both in and beyond the county seat.

Kentuckians Pursue Dreams Of Unclaimed Oil Fortune

By Judy Jones
(In The Lexington Herald-Leader)
Dan and Sue Profitt of Elsmere have spent the past four years searching for what they think is a $100 billion unclaimed oil inheritance.

In Laurel County, Gerald Rice, a used-car wholesaler, thinks that he is an heir to an oil fortune tied up in banks all over the world—and that an oil company in Pennsylvania is ready to settle with him and other heirs.

The Profitts and Rice are among about 5,000 people, many of them in southeastern Kentucky, who are staging a frenzied search for a link to a fortune rumored to be worth $20 billion to $100 billion.

Persistent legend says that the fortune was amassed by James Ruben Meadors, or Medders, and his brother William, who left southeastern Kentucky for Beaumont, Texas, at the turn of the century. There, according to the legend, one or both of the brothers obtained an interest in the Spindletop gusher—the 1901 oil discovery that formed the basis for three of the nation's oil giants, Gulf, Sun and Texaco.

No one seems to know for sure when or where the Meadors brothers died, and even their exact names are in doubt. Neither apparently left a will nor any record of an estate, but those who claim to be the brothers' heirs maintain that money from the estates has been accumulating in banks throughout the country.

That belief led Profitt, a commercial artist from Northern Kentucky, and James Clark, a Cincinnati roofer, to file probate proceedings for the Meadors brothers' estates last November in Pittsburgh, Pa., the brothers' last known whereabouts. The legal date of death was given as Dec. 11, 1939, the day their Kentucky relatives last heard from the brothers.

The court actions in Pennsylvania, which named Profitt and Clark co-administrators of the brothers' estates, have fueled a renewed effort to claim the fortune. Since then, some estimate that as many as 5,000 people in Whitley, Wayne, McCreary, Laurel and Leslie counties have claimed to be heirs to the money.

But first they must prove they are true descendants of James Meadors. The proof they need is sought in county marriages and deed books, school records and birth and death certificates.

County courthouses, especially those in Wayne and Whitley counties, have been swamped with requests for information on the Meadors family. Libraries are flooded with inquiries. And weekly newspapers publishing stories on the fortune routinely sell out, then resort to making photocopies to fill requests for reprints.

Despite all this activity, there is little evidence that the fabled fortune actually exists.

One of the skeptics is Michel T. Halbouty, a Houston geologist, petroleum engineer and independent oil producer who is perhaps the foremost authority on the Spindletop gusher.

Halbouty, co-author of a 1952 book on Spindletop, dismissed the idea that a fortune from Spindletop was waiting for a herd of Kentucky heirs.

"A claim like this turning into anything is very rare. I'd say one in a thousand. One in a million," said Halbouty, who also serves as an energy adviser to the Reagan administration.

"Few wells are drilled unless the title is absolutely clear. If there is a flaw in the title, the well would never be drilled. In the old days, they would drill on a handshake. But if a case like that would be won, it should have been won immediately—not 82 or 83 years afterwards."

Rep. Perkins Receives Nat'l Citizenship Award

U.S. Rep. Carl D. Perkins has been named recipient of a national citizenship education award presented by the Close Up Foundation. The award was presented recently before a group of students and teachers from Kentucky who were participating in the Close Up Foundation government studies program.

"The support that Rep. Perkins has given in the development of citizenship education has been tremendous," said CLOSE UP president, Stephen A. Janger, who made the presentation. "Very few people have exhibited the enthusiasm that he has shown to create opportunities to promote greater understanding of how young people can become involved in government."

CLOSE UP, the nation's largest citizenship education program, annually brings more than 18,500 high school students and teachers to Washington to participate in the week long-program. Nearly 800 participants have hailed from Kentucky since the program was introduced there. There were more than 250 participants from Kentucky this year.

To ensure that the program is available to all types of students, CLOSE UP awards fellowships for low- to moderate-income students. Supporting these fellowships for the local students are Ashland Services, Inc., MAPCO Inc., and R.J. Reynolds Industries, Inc.

Rep. Perkins is a member of the Close Up Foundation honorary Board of Advisors.

The Kentucky Garden Journal

By Bonnie Lee Appleton
State Urban Garden & Home Horticulture Specialist
COOPERATIVE EXTENSION PROGRAM
KENTUCKY STATE UNIVERSITY

Write an article on attracting wildlife to your garden and some people will be ready to run you out of town. Easter's bouncing baby bunnies too quickly learn to prune off the tops of seedling peas, beans and lettuce.

Bunnies may be out, but how about birds and butterflies. Although some birds are as good at "unseeding" a vegetable garden as some of us are at seeding one, or know just when we're ready to harvest our blackberries and peaches and thin the crop for us, they do have a positive place in the garden. They prey on many insects harmful to our plants.

And the visual delight. Brilliant red male cardinals dining on red-orange pyracantha (firethorn) fruits. Bluebirds nibbling the grayish-blue berries of eastern red cedars. Ruby-throated hummingbirds sipping from the throats of pink petunias and orange trumpet creepers. Combine these sights with a rainbow of butterflies, and the caring gardener can sit mesmerized for hours.

Spring planting season has arrived. Drought-killed dogwoods and burning bushes may need replacing. Why not select a tree or shrub that will provide food and shelter for the birds.

If you need a vine try honeysuckle, bittersweet or trumpet creeper. If you need a shrub try deciduous and red-fruited evergreen hollies, pyracantha and viburnums. Or natives such as elderberry and sumac.

Trees provide birdfood via fruits, nuts and seeds. Mini-apples from crabapples and hawthorns are treats, along with walnuts and oak acorns. Conifers such as pines, firs, spruces and hemlocks yield seed as well as deciduous trees such as ash, beech, birch, elm, maple, poplar and sweet gum. You can cut winter birdseed costs by collecting seed from landscape plants in the fall.

The hummingbirds might well be the favorite birds of gardeners. Their colors and flight patterns delight. Deep-throated flowers, especially in reds, pinks and oranges, yield the nectar they prefer. Try red columbine, scarlet sage, honeysuckle, phlox, bee balm, lilies, gladiolus, fuchsia, sweet William, larkspur, nasturtium, hibiscus and morning glory.

Flowers can be grown not only to attract hummingbirds but also to yield seed for birdfood. Collect seed from annuals such as bachelor buttons, coreopsis, cosmos, marigolds, sunflowers and zinnias. And from perennials such as asters, black-eyed Susans, butterfly weed, golden rod, globe thistle and purple coneflower. Many ornamental grasses also yield good birdfood seed.

The same flower colors that attract hummingbirds attract butterflies. Reds are their favorites followed by yellows, pinks, whites and purples. The butterfly, like the hummingbird, is searching for nectar, but because it "lights" to feed rather than seemingly pausing in suspended animation like the hummingbird, it needs flowers that provide a perch.

Keep flowers constantly coming into bloom to insure a constant supply of butterflies in your garden. Their colors will change with the calendar as their various life cycles progress. April showers will greet the powder blue spring azures, August heat the pale yellow-orange of the sleepy oranges.

$3 Million Bond Proposal For Motel Wins Court OK

A group of Prestonsburg businessmen received approval from Floyd fiscal court last week to make application for $3 million in industrial revenue bonds to build a motel on U.S. 23, near the top of the Katy Friend hill.

The request was made to the court Friday by H.D. Fitzpatrick, Jr., one of four partners in the FADA Service Company—the name is an acronym for Fitzpatrick and the other three partners, Dr. J.D. Adams, Tom G. Dingus, and Jack Absher. The four have managed nursing homes here since 1965; their intention of operating a motel first became widely known in December, 1982, when they received a liquor license in the name of Prestonsburg Inn, Inc.

In defense of its bid for the state-backed bonds, Fitzpatrick said the motel project would create 80 jobs directly and 20 "indirectly" and make Floyd county more attractive to the tourist and other industries.

His group had applied unsuccessfully for a conventional bank loan but was told the project would not be feasible unless it were approved for a revenue bond issue, said Fitzpatrick. Because interest on the bonds is tax-free, they are more attractive to lenders than are conventional loans.

Cost of the hotel-motel was put at $3.6 million. If a state oversight commission approves Prestonsburg Inn for industrial revenue bonds, they will be bought by the First National Bank of Cincinnati, the Bank of Louisville, and the Bank Josephine, Fitzpatrick said.

The court approved the 1984-'85 budget for the Floyd county jail in the amount of $162,080, upped Jailer Lawrence Hale's salary to $30,605, and approved a 3.8 percent cost-of-living adjustment for all other jail employees.

Harp Enterprises, of Lexington, was awarded a $2634 bid for setting up and servicing voting machines. The fiscal court will save $5000 annually by storing the machines on county property, Judge-Executive John M. Stumbo said. The court also entered an agreement with Motorola Communications and Electronics, Inc. to service the county mobile radio system for a fee of $133 monthly.

Gordon Boyd was rehired as supervisor at the Allen park at a salary of $1000 a month; Elmer Johnson was hired as deputy jailer at $5.19 an hour.

Bascom Hall decried the fact that there is no playing field for young ballplayers in the county and received a pledge that something would be done this summer to drain the Allen park ballfield. Virginia Ousley was told Conley's Fork of Spurlock would be graded when weather permitted.

A grader will be sent up Mink Branch of Mud Creek when the road dries up, Judge-Executive Stumbo assured Dennis Reynolds. But Reynolds was told there is no money to buy the rock he sought for the road.

A proposal to take over from the state and then to close an abandoned section of old KY 80 at Maytown was rejected. The road, which used to lead to Martin from the top of the Maytown hill, has become a site for drug and other undesirable transactions, some said. But others noted the road still serves two family cemeteries.

A road leading to a fish pond on an abandoned stripmine near Bevinville was taken into the county roads system. In proposing adoption by the county of the last half-mile of Riley Branch, Magistrate Ed Caudill argued simply, "I want to go fishing."

Mountain Laurel Blooms Outside Its Native Hills

Lynn Weddington Tucker is today's Southern Woman, possessing all the traditional charm, but with plenty of brains, talent and an unerring sense of direction.

These attributes, plus an abundance of energy, have helped her achieve a long-established goal—her own design firm, Mountain Laurel—at the age of 30.

"I've always wanted to design children's wear," she explains, "and all my education, my job experience for the past seven years, has been but a stepping stone to that end."

Graduating from Stephens College in 1975 with a Bachelor of Fine Arts in fashion design and illustration, and winning the coveted Senior Award for Illustration, Lynn was on her way! "My junior year, at Oxford University, England, where I received a Certificate in Art History and Costuming, was enormously valuable," remembers Lynn, "for it forged a bridge to my love of folk crafts in Kentucky, giving me fresh insights as to the historical traditions from which many early American shapes derived."

Moving to New York with her husband, Andrew, an Englishman she met while studying in Oxford, and to whom she was married in a church wedding in her home town, Prestonsburg, Lynn was hired by the renowned designer, Vera Maxwell. Working there as an illustrator and assistant designer, Lynn furthered her design career with courses in fashion and textile marketing at New York University and The Parsons School of Design.

In 1978 Lynn joined Dan River, Inc., as assistant to director of corporate advertising. The scope of her talents were such that her work activity quickly embraced corporate publicity. Later she was promoted to marketing services manager, home fashions. Prior to starting her own firm, she was made director of promotional services.

"It was while attending the opening of an OH! KENTUCKY shop at Bloomington's," recalls Lynn, "that everything fell into place. And just like the old adage, 'right in your own backyard,' I found the focus for my firm only a few miles away from Prestonsburg with a group of craft specialists."

She persuaded her father, Joe Weddington, Prestonsburg business man, to back her. "I used all my powers of persuasion on him," confesses Lynn, "but actually, as an entrepreneur himself, he encouraged me. Besides, he knew if he did, he'd be able to see me a lot, since I'd be commuting back and forth from New York."

And indeed, Lynn spends a great deal of her time with the "production team" in David, a few miles from Prestonsburg. "It's a visual time warp, and so personally rewarding, to visit these women, sitting around a table, deftly sewing our fabrics and designs, very much like an old-fashioned sewing bee of a century ago."

The Mountain Laurel collection of fine infants' and children's clothes, toys, and accessories, based on classic designs of by-gone times, became a reality six months ago. These hand-sewn cottons and cotton blends, made in the mountains of Kentucky from Liberty of London fabrics, have been enthusiastically purchased by mothers throughout the U.S.

With the United States experiencing a mini-baby boom, particularly among women 30 to 40 years old, it's no wonder that Mountain Laurel is flourishing. And for all these mothers, who yearn to clothe their babies and infants in these nostalgic classic children's looks, but who have had to resist due to budgetary restrictions, Freitag Mfg. Co. has announced the introduction of their own readymade Mountain Laurel Division. This complementary line of infants' and children's clothing, bedding, and accessories are all in especially designed fabrics by Lynn Weddington Tucker.

Public Promised Its 'Say' On State Water Standards

Kentucky citizens can "have their say," concerning the state's water quality standards, according to Bob Ware of the program development branch of the Division of Water.

The division, in the Environmental Protection Cabinet, is revising state regulations governing the Kentucky water-quality management program.

The regulations under review are 401 KAR 5:029, listing general provisions, and 401 KAR 5:031, setting surface water standards. "These standards set water quality goals and requirements for specific bodies of water in the Commonwealth," according to Ware.

"They also form the basis for enforcement and regulation of municipal and industrial wastewater discharges into the state's waters under provisions of the Kentucky Pollutant Discharge Elimination system, state law and the federal Clean Water Act," he said. "They help us plan our pollution control programs and measure their effectiveness."

He explained that the regulations are reviewed and revised periodically in accordance with both state and federal law. Ware said that public comments are especially requested in four areas:

- determining appropriate water use classifications and associated criteria,
- refining water quality criteria and the application of that criteria,
- refining provisions for the control of toxic pollutants, and
- revising general policies dealing with mixed zones, variances and low-flow regulations.

City May Form Body To Enforce Parking Rules

If you park in the wrong place or put no money in the meter, you may soon face a Prestonsburg city commission being set up to enforce the city's parking regulations.

Traditionally, parking infractions have been adjudicated, if at all, in district court, where city police officers have complained it is all but impossible to win a conviction.

The state legislature this year passed a bill enabling cities to establish their own parking enforcement commission, with authority to impound cars and levy fines. Prestonsburg city council voted Monday to set up such a panel.

Draft of an ordinance to that effect is being prepared by City Attorney Larry Brown. If the new commission is created, motorists will be able to appeal its decisions to district court.

The council awarded a $179,500 bid to the Smeal Fire System Company, of Snyder, Nebraska, for a ladder truck for the city fire department. East Kentucky Mack, which competed vigorously for the business, submitted a bid for $199,950. The White truck offered in the Smeal bid has been used for demonstration purposes, it was explained.

On a motion of Bill Ray Collins, Mike Wells was hired as a city firefighter.

Harold Man Cleared Of Equipment Theft

A Floyd Circuit Court jury Wednesday acquitted a Harold coal miner of a charge of receiving stolen mining equipment.

William Lloyd "Bimbo" Hall, 25, was accused of hauling motors, pumps, jacks and other equipment from a deep mine on Spewing Camp Branch, near Orkney, last June 24, and of selling it later to a Hi Hat mining firm.

The property allegedly stolen from the P.I.A. Mining Company mine was valued at $17,115. Prosecutors produced a check for $1800 made out to Hall by Dennis Jones, an officer of the Jones Branch Coal Company at Hi Hat, which they claimed was in payment for the stolen equipment.

But Hall denied stealing any equipment from the Orkney mine and said the check he received from Jones was in payment for timber props he sold Jones.

The case was prosecuted by Assistant Commonwealth's Attorney Albert A. Burchett; Hall was defended by Pikeville attorney Randy G. Clark. The jury returned its verdict in little over half an hour.

Mrs. Elizabeth Wells Garrett, who suffered a fall at the Riverside Manor Nursing Home, where she had been a patient for the past few years, was taken recently from there to a Lexington hospital for treatment, and was later transferred to the Highlands Regional Medical Center here.

Learning Machine Or Glorified Toy

By JAMES E. MILLER, Phd.
Transylvania University

Today, we constantly hear of the need to have a computer in the home or office. A child is thought to be deprived if he does not have computer courses in the elementary, junior, and senior high schools and does not attend computer camps during the summer. Those of us who have spent many years working with the computer and teaching computer science know that the computer is a fantastic tool for problem solving and is possibly one of the best teaching devices we have for learning organization and logic. In short, the computer is a great tool if used wisely, but only a tool.

Too often we hear that the computer will replace man in most all functions. It is true that the computer can do many different tasks simply by programming, but it can do nothing without the logical sequence of steps written by man telling it how to perform a given task. The automobile certainly was an improvement over the horse and buggy as a mode of transportation. Similarly, we can say that the computer is a vast improvement over the mechanical Marchant calculator. The computer is a versatile and far reaching tool, especially if viewed by a person with computer skills; it has the capacity to store many different programs which enables it to perform business, and scientific calculations, as well as make logical decisions.

The computer is very attractive for children today, particularly because it is frequently advertised as a toy. If care is not taken, this view of the computer will dominate throughout the child's secondary school years and he or she will be somewhat surprised upon entering college with plans for a major in computer science. Most college computer science programs are more concerned with algorithm design—studying sequences of steps for solving problems—than actually tinkering with the hardware. Hence, problem solving skills obtained through mathematics, logic, and physics courses are essential for students interested in excelling in the computer field.

Today many of our brighter students are electing to go into the computer field. This is a result of many things, such as enticing job opportunities upon graduation from college; a challenging career in which a person can expand his or her intellectual limits; and the shiny new equipment placed in sterile-type rooms. It is felt that students could be attracted to other rewarding careers in English, mathematics, physics, economics, biology, religion, and many others if time were taken to show the student how interesting these fields of study can be. Students lose interest quickly in many fields if they seem outdated. Incorporating the computer's varied capabilities, professors can now introduce their area of study in twentieth century fashion. The computer is here to stay and is truly the tool of the future. Man must use the tool wisely before the full benefits can be reaped.

Although the computer has become a major facet of our lives, it cannot solve all our problems, but rather it can solve the more time-consuming ones, and give us time for entertaining and self-improving activities.

That Burning Feeling May Be Peptic Ulcer

Burning, like a hot poker resting just below the ribs... Burning, like a knot of fire in the stomach... Burning, that only an easily digested snack will cool. If you know the feeling, you may have a peptic ulcer.

Peptic ulcers affect more Americans than any other single physical disorder. In the United States, ulcer prescriptions rank second in number only to relaxants, according to pharmaceutical statistics.

If the burning pain is tolerated or ignored, the vomiting and bleeding in severe cases usually prods ulcer victims to finally visit a doctor, according to Dr. Robert W. Shaw, a specialist in internal medicine of the staff at Norton Hospital in Louisville.

"Peptic" refers to the digestive system. An ulcer is inflamed tissue that develops into a crater on the surface of the stomach.

To accurately diagnose an ulcer, Dr. Shaw studies the result of an outpatient test called an upper G.I. The patient drinks a large glass of barium and an X-ray is used to detect ulcer craters in the stomach lining. A crater on the upper area of the stomach indicates a gastric ulcer, Dr. Shaw said. Treatment usually includes restriction of alcohol, aspirin, caffeine, and cigarette smoke.

Gastric ulcers tend to occur in older patients and may indicate cancer in less than one percent of the cases. For this reason, Dr. Shaw recommends a biopsy for gastric ulcer patients to allay any fears of cancer.

But in most patients, the ulcer is not cancerous. Often, it has been aggravated by something they ate or drank. Alcohol, aspirin and coffee all tend to irritate the stomach.

The most common type of peptic ulcer is the duodenal. It occurs in the lower area of the stomach where the intestinal tract begins. Excessive acid secretion often cause duodenal ulcers and acid secretion inhibitors, such as Tagamet or Zantac, can be used to treat the problem. Antacids are also commonly prescribed. Another medication, Carafate, is also an effective treatment for both gastric and duodenal peptic ulcers. Carafate is used to fill the ulcer crater to protect the inflamed tissue.

Eating several small meals throughout the day or changing the diet to include milk snacks has been a long standing treatment for ulcer patients. However, these measures may not be as helpful for ulcer victims as once believed, Dr. Shaw said.

He counsels his patients about eating habits and only rarely prescribes radical diet changes unless large amount of alcohol, aspirin, or caffeine are regularly consumed.

If an ulcer does not heal in six to eight weeks and remains inflamed for three to six months, more extreme treatment may be required. The unhealed crater or inflamed area of the stomach lining may be surgically removed. But that is usually a last resort in the treatments of ulcers.

Dr. Shaw has found little evidence in his practice to indicate probable ulcer victims or types. However, duodenal ulcer patients are often young, aggressive, stressed people.

"But I see many duodenal ulcer patients who appear very calm and simply have overactive acid secreting systems," Dr. Shaw said.

Though ulcers are common among Americans, Dr. Shaw cautions against casual diagnosis. Gallstones or hiatal hernia foster similar symptoms and require completely different treatment.

But if that smoldering burn wakes the patient up in the middle of the night to be soothed only by a midnight snack, an ulcer is probably in the making, Dr. Shaw said. And proper treatment may save the patient a lot of pain.

WE'D LIKE TO PASS THE BUCK... TO YOU!

Pharmacy Footnotes
By HAROLD COOLEY

Laxatives, overused by millions of Americans, can rob the body of important vitamins and minerals. Because muscle-stimulant laxatives are potent and fast-acting, they are the ones most commonly used and overused. It is believed that they can prevent the body from absorbing adequate amounts of vitamin C, vitamin D and protein by speeding waste through the digestive tract before the nutritional contents of the food can be absorbed. As a result, although heavy laxative users may eat adequate diets, they can still suffer from nutritional deficiencies and may be vulnerable to toxins in the air and food.

At COOLEY APOTHECARY we take great pride in the role we play in promoting the health of folks in our community. First see your doctor and then if he prescribes medication for any reason have him call us directly. Our records are readily available to you and to your doctor. You'll find us in No. 2 town Center Bldg., 886-8106. Open: Mon.-Fri., 9-5:30, Sat., 9-4. Master Charge and Visa accepted plus we honor all third party payments including insurance, unions and Medicaid.

HANDY HINT:
Laxatives should be used only when absolutely necessary and for limited periods of time.

MANY ATTEND SERVICES

Holy Week Services, sponsored annually by the Local Churchwomen and the Prestonsburg Ministerial Association, and held this year at the First United Methodist Church, began Monday, April 16, and ended on Good Friday. Easter sunrise services were held at May Lodge. Large crowds were in attendance during all six meetings. Under the direction of the Local Churchwomen, women of the participating churches furnished food, which was served following each of the services. The speaker of Easter sunrise services was the Rev. Steve Hopkins. Music was by Miss Elizabeth Frazier and members of the Prestonsburg High School Honor Choir.

To Speak Here, Friday

He was later head coach at both the University of Tampa and at Miami. He continues his interest in football today as football announcer for both ABC-TV and the Mutual Broadcasting System. Since 1982, he has been chairman of the board of People's Bank and Trust of Hazard.

At the time of his death, "Butch" was a senior at Pikeville High School, was involved in playing basketball and baseball, and was guided by Elizabeth Goff in developing his art skills.

Some of his favorite art work was of animals that he had played with and developed a very close relationship to with in his life.

Coleman, Rita Hall, Lucy Wells, Dianna Tackett, Sandra Ferguson, Lisa Barnett, Sally Sell, Beth Copley, Katie Meyer, Betty Daniels, Marlene Robinson; second row—Pam Wooten, Bridgett Hall, Ella Sexton, Paula Howell, (Nursing Faculty—Rita Mulcahy, Sandra Travis, Jenny Bottoms), Penny Tiller, Diane Menditto, Georgia Hall, Cheryl Bowles, Daletta Richardson, Chris Deaton, and Robin Waddles.

The group was served lunch at Wendover, the home of Mary Breckinridge. Wendover housed the first clinic of the Frontier Nursing Service and Wendover postoffice until the mid 1970's. The students were amazed by the good condition of the two-story log house and the story of how it was hand-built in 1925 by local craftsmen.

Times Writer Cashes On Feature and Poem

Will Boggs, Hueysville correspondent for The Times, is the author of a poem, "On the Death of E. E. Miller," which was published in the November issue of the Southern Agriculturalist.

A highly interesting feature story written recently by Mr. Boggs was purchased and published by the Lexington Leader.

Mr. Boggs has a happy faculty of expression for a young man of his experience, and has the industry to apply himself toward real achievement.

The poem appearing in the Southern Agriculturalist, follows:

ON THE DEATH OF E. E. MILLER

By Willie Boggs
The Dixie Guards and Girls, and Dixie Mothers, too,
And all who love a life that was fine and strong and clean,

"Green be the turf above thee, friend of our happy days"—
Softly we say them over, those sweet, immortal lines;

"None knew thee but to love thee, or named thee but to praise,"
Rest you well forever in the narrow grave's confines.

LEADERS SELECTED FOR MAMMOTH CAVE PARK

Leadership in Kentucky's great campaign to raise $2,500,000 for the purchase of the Mammoth Cave area and its presentation to the United States government for perpetual maintenance and development as a National Park, was selected recently at a meeting of the directors of the Mammoth Cave National Park Association held in the executive headquarters, Louisville.

Congressman Maurice H. Thatcher was named national chairman. Tom Wallace, one of the leading journalists of Kentucky, was selected for the place of state chairman. Harry G. Smith, secretary of the Kentucky Bankers' Association, was made campaign treasurer.

In his statement of acceptance of the post of national chairman, Congressman Thatcher said:

"The task ahead is a formidable one, but if Kentuckians can but visualize what the Mammoth Cave Park will mean to Kentucky, it will not be difficult."

"To repeat what I have often said before, the opportunity which has been presented to Kentucky for the establishment of this great park is the most important in a material way that has ever come to the state. The project is one in which all interests may center. It is non-political, and should receive the enthusiastic endorsement and effective aid of all political organizations and of candidates, as well as of every civic and social body within the commonwealth, and of every school, church and community."

"No state can afford to neglect to capitalize natural resources which would attract those who travel for recreation. Kentucky has in the Mammoth Cave area a section which must become a national park and a revenue producer for Kentucky as well as a recreation ground for the densely populated part of the United States, which now has no national parks, but soon will have one in Virginia and another in Tennessee and North Carolina."

"To fail to procure the Mammoth Cave National Park would be a calamity. Every Kentuckian should be governed by a realization of this fact."

High School Journal

E. D. Bingham, Editor, Jack Allen, Asst. Editor, Ed May, Asst. Editor.

Girls are today rising as high as Rome did when she was in her glory, by increasing their high heels, inch by inch.

A total of $25,500,000 was earned last year by students in 400 colleges and institutions. Fifteen percent of these were Kentuckians. Of the students in co-educational institutions, 44 percent are working their way.

The boys of past years enjoyed all the sports of high school, but this season the girls are out in full force for basketball. The coach could pick a fine squad from 20 girls.

Famous First Words: Stop, Look, Listen or Die.

Officer, "Say, did you ever hear of mosquitoes being converted?"

Of all the emotional adventures, none of them stales quicker than marriage.

It is the faculty of reasoning more than the faculty of memory which helps the pupil to success. In proportion, as we increase our faculty of reasoning, we increase our ability to learn and to apply what we have learned.

Here lies the body of Marcus Twain. He died from overwork of the brain.

"That's another story," said the man who fell from the top of a hotel.

Lackey School News (Last week's correspondence)

The Lackey High School Science Club met Friday, October 28, and gave a program as follows: "Is Flying Really Safe?"—Everette Smith; "How to Get into Aviation"—Clarence Akers; "Airman Plunges Seven Miles in Burning Plane"—Clarence Hays; "What Lindbergh Found In His Mail Bag"—Rex Hays; "Latest Ideas in Aviation"—Gorman Collins; New Phases in Air Progress—Josephine Craft; "Jokes"—Doris Wallen.

TEAM LOSES TWICE

The Lackey basketball team played Betsy Layne and Bosco last week. Both games were lost by our team.

Halloween was an evening of much amusement for the school children. Judging from the condition of many things the following morning, several of the boys manifested their initiative power.

Miss Lillian Allen, one of the high school girls, has moved to Garrett, but she will continue to attend the Lackey School.

Four of the Lackey High School students—Ella Triplett, Nonie Triplett, Margaret Conley, and Ervin Conley—attended the Ball Erwin High School Halloween party, Saturday night.

BOSCO NET TEAM TROUNCES LACKEY

Hueysville, Ky., Nov. 8. (Spl.)—A very interesting basketball game was played between Bosco and Lackey Sunday afternoon. A considerable crowd attended, despite the fact that the day was very cold.

Mr. Bailey had been scarcely able to get about on account of an injured knee, sprained a few days previous, while he was practicing. Near the end of the first quarter, he wrenched the injured knee and had to be assisted from the court. The Lackey player had a finger thrust into his eye while reaching for the ball with a Bosco player. Both players were missed by the teams, especially the Lackey player.

Lackey did splendid work in the early moments of the game, but later seemed to be unable to guard the Boscos. Ray Coburn was "high man" of the Bosco team, making 27 of Bosco's 45 points. The final score favored Bosco, 45-14. All players played well, and we hope to see other games.

Bosco theatre was full and overflowing last Wednesday night, when we had with us Judge W. W. Williams, O. C. Hall, and Hon. W. S. Wallen. Each of the men addressed the audience and were heartily applauded.

MINE SHUTS DOWN

The mine of the Beaver Mining Company, near Bosco, has closed operations for the time. Several workmen are thrown out of employment, but it is thought that the mine will start work again soon.

MUMPS AT HUEYSVILLE

Several persons in this community are suffering from mumps. One case appeared in the public school, and it is quite probable that more cases were spread there.

PERSONALS

Miss Gola Huff, high school girl, is unable to attend, due to injuries received while practicing basketball.

Russell Patton, trapper of this place, seems to understand where to locate Mr. Possum, having nine big pelts as a result of recent hunts.

Mr. Damron, teacher of this place, was visiting in Prestonsburg Saturday. Commodore Reed and Cliff Allen were motoring Sunday, despite the cold weather.

Mrs. Suzanne Patton was visiting relatives Sunday.

Leroy Coburn was visiting in Pikeville Sunday. Frank Bailey suffered a slight injury a few days ago while playing a game of basketball, but is recovering rapidly.

Milton Howard was visiting in Dinwood Sunday.

Mildred Duke, student in Mayo College, is visiting her parents here.

WAYLAND

Everyone in Wayland is enjoying the little cold snap, although it forecasts the coming of old man Winter. We are all wrapping our water pipes in anticipation of a cold winter, and quite a few debates arise as to whether it will be cheaper to have the lines boxed and packed or to replace the pipes after they freeze.

The Elkhorn Coal Corporation is still running at top speed. This company normally stands in the forefront, both in production and consistency of operation, due to the enormous capital behind it.

Mr. C. C. Ward, our efficient shipper, has taken unto himself a wife. We congratulate Mr. Ward upon the selection of a suitable partner for his life's voyage, and we wish them both the happiness and the success that is rightfully theirs.

M. E. Deering was a business caller at the new store of Elber, Martin's recently. He reports that Mr. Martin's new store is up-to-date and modern in every respect.

Carlyle Harper, local prohibition officer, was called to Garrett last Saturday to take charge of some confiscated liquors. He is an efficient man in this line of work.

"Illegitimate" Eligible For Survivor Benefits

WASHINGTON, D.C.—"Illegitimate" (out of wedlock) children of deceased Civil Service employees or members from throughout the country are now eligible for survivor annuity benefits on the same basis as other surviving children, as the result of a federal court decision in the District of Columbia. Hundreds of children are affected by the Court's 1978 ruling, and many of them are eligible for benefits, the amount of which will vary according to the provisions of the retirement law.

Persons who think they may be eligible for benefits or who know about children who may be eligible for benefits should write or call P.O. Box 16, Washington, D.C. 20004, 202-632-6853.

Postal Inspectors Warn Public About C.O.D. Misrepresentations

Numerous complaints nationwide are being received concerning vacation packages being offered by various firms through use of C.O.D. Service.

The Postal Inspection Service has reported initial contact with the public is made via phone or postcard to notify the recipient that they have been selected by computer to receive an exciting three-day, two-night vacation in "one of 32 different major resort areas including Atlantic City, Mexico City, Canada or the all new Disney World Epic Center."

They are promised first class accommodations for four and as a further enticement to accept the package, a coupon for a lifetime supply of Kodak color film and several hundred dollars of vacation discount books is offered. For their part, recipients are asked to accept a COD package through the mail usually costing $39.00 to cover the expenses incurred in the processing and handling of the vacation package.

Investigation by U.S. Postal Inspectors disclosed recipients were led to believe no other additional payments or fees would be necessary. Upon receipt of their free gifts, however, customers noted the packages did not include transportation to or from the resort areas, many additional fees and surcharges were required, and the free film and vacation discount books were available only if additional payments were made for processing and handling.

Based on early inquiries about the travel offer, thousands of victims nationwide are losing money to this scheme. With summer approaching, similar schemes may appear. Consumers are asked to check the legitimacy of the advertisement and company before accepting a COD. The U.S. Postal Service allows customers to read and copy the name and address of the mailer from COD mail while the mail is in the possession of a postal employee. The addressee always has the option to refuse or accept delivery of a COD article.

The majority of business people who use the mails are legitimate and ethical in the conduct of their businesses, Postal Inspectors say. To avoid problems, consumers receiving COD's through the mail should deal with reputable firms known to the consumer. If COD merchandise is unsatisfactory, the consumer should first correspond with the sender. If consumers believe a mailer is involved in blatant merchandise misrepresentation, they may refer the information to the Chief Postal Inspector, Washington, D.C. 20260.

Tree-Planting Project Underway

Jim Green, left, and Larry Sanders, supervisors for South Central Bell, are shown taking care to unload tree seedlings. The planting of new trees in Johnson, Pike and Floyd counties has been a project of the Telephone Pioneers of America for several years. Two thousand trees will be planted by Boy Scouts from 26 troops this year. The Telephone Pioneers say they hope that the project will grow to 5000 tree plantings next year.

Governor To Name Council To Push School Efforts

Governor Martha Layne Collins announced last week that she will soon name the Governor's Council of Educational Reform to carry on her efforts to improve Kentucky schools.

"Ultimately, the responsibility rests with me to sustain the momentum we have built for educational reform," she said. "And I accept that challenge."

Governor Collins made the announcement in a major address before the Kentucky Broadcasters Association. She also outlined her administration's other priorities, and called for cooperation between herself and the General Assembly in working toward solutions for the state's most pressing problems.

She praised the General Assembly for beginning to respond to the clear need to improve the state's schools, cautioning, however, that the session's accomplishments for education were "only a beginning."

"Kentucky still needs comprehensive education reforms to improve the productive skills of our people, to improve the chances we can diversify our economy and to prepare for long-term economic development," Governor Collins said.

The Governor said her education council "will focus the various reform efforts into a positive plan of action." The council will include representatives of various education groups as well as concerned citizens, she said.

In outlining other priorities, she said her administration will move quickly to address problems in Corrections. "I do not want the federal courts dictating that we release prisoners early," she said, "and most Kentuckians do not either. Neither do they want the federal courts diverting money from other state programs to pay for improvements in Corrections."

Creating new jobs and keeping existing ones in Kentucky will also be top priorities of her administration, she said.

Governor Collins praised Commerce Secretary Carroll Knically for the success already shown in this area. Since she took office, she reported, her administration has announced 85 new or expanded industries.

This represents 4,611 new jobs and an investment of $490 million. "Secretary Knically hopes to be in a position to announce 6,000 more new jobs in the next two months for a total of 10,000 in the first six months of my term," she said.

In Human Resources, Governor Collins said a top priority would be "looking closely at cost containment measures" to combat rising medical costs. These rapidly escalating costs "are hurting our elderly and indigent," she said. "We must be aware of all costs that cause particular hardships for these people and others of fixed income."

Student-Guild Art On Exhibit

Dorothy Johnson, of McDowell, and Audreyetta Moore, of Drift, inspect art work by PCC students on exhibit at the community college library.

Art works of Prestonsburg Community College students and guild members will be on exhibit at the PCC library, April 25-30. The exhibit will include work from figure drawing, oil painting and art education classes taught by Tom J. Whitaker. PCC Art Guild members have also been invited to exhibit. A reception with many of the artists present will be held today (Wednesday) from 6 to 8 p.m. The public is invited.

Participants from Floyd county are Carolyn Tackett, Kim Wiley Francis, Jim Williamson, Tammy Bradley and Regina Mitchell.

Unusual Eclipse On The Way

According to the May issue of Science Digest, an unusual eclipse is on the way, and local residents are in a good geographic position to observe the show.

The phenomenon, known as an annular eclipse, will take place May 30 and should be visible over the southeastern United States. As the moon moves in front of the sun, its shadow will race from Louisiana to just south of Washington, D.C., in about 50 minutes, starting at 12 noon, Eastern daylight time. Other parts of the county will see only a partial eclipse, with the moon seeming to take a "bite" out of the solar disc.

This particular eclipse will be especially interesting for professionals and amateurs alike because the moon will seem to be only a very little bit smaller than the sun. The ring of sunlight will be exceedingly thin—so thin, in fact, that the moon's mountains may be tall enough to cut the ring of sunlight into pieces. What observers may see, then, is the phenomenon known as Bailey's beads, a string of shapes of different sizes defining the moon's outline.

Science Digest encourages observing the remarkable event but stresses emphatically that the eclipse must be observed safely, to avoid irreparable damage to the retina of the eye. Their advice: Never look directly at an eclipse, no matter what filtering device you've been told is safe.

The only certain safe way, SD points out, is by projection. Here's what they recommend. Take two pieces of white cardboard, one larger than the other. Prick a pinhole in the larger one. Then, during the eclipse, hold the large piece so it shadows the smaller one and the light of the sun passes through the pinhole. Change the distance between sheets to focus. Even better: substitute a pair of binoculars for the pinhole, large end toward the sun.

(Thanks to Debbie Lumpkins, of Allen, for providing us with the SD article.)

When her sister gets involved in some sinister dealings in South America, the vicarious author suddenly finds herself mixed up in an adventure straight out of one of her novels, including chapters of murder, kidnapping, ransoms and treasure maps. In yet another chapter, she meets a man appearing to be the very

Indiana Man Gives Plane to MCA

The plane, donated to the school by Mr. Crane, has been flown to the Paintsville airport and will be sold with all receipts going to the academy to relieve the operating fund deficit, according to Don L. Hensley, funds administrator of the school.

There was also a groundbreaking last week at the academy for an additional four classroom-office complex. In addition, bids will be let this month for the second phase of the academy which will include a kitchen/cafeteria, gymnasium, additional classrooms and a science laboratory.

The academy, a private non-profit multi-congregational school, opened last October for students from kindergarten through ninth grade. The sophomore class will be added next fall when enrollment is expected to reach about 320 students. Classes will be added each year until it encompasses all four years of high school with the first graduating senior class expected in 1987.

Mr. Hensley, who is responsible for raising $86,500 needed for grants and scholarships for the 1984-85 school year and an estimated $628,000 for construction costs of Phase II now underway, says, "That's a lot of money...but with...generous people like Mr. Crane...we know we can do it."

Revival Is Scheduled At Betsy Layne Baptist

A week-long revival will be held at the Calvary Southern Baptist Church at Betsy Layne beginning Sunday, April 29, and continuing through Saturday, May 5. Services, conducted by the Rev. John Justice, will begin at 7 each evening.

There will be special singing and a nursery will be provided. Those who need transportation should call 478-5369, according to the pastor, Rev. Cohen Campbell, who extends a welcome to everyone to attend these services.

Miss Chastity Brooke Moore, daughter of Eddie and Pamela Moore, of Prestonsburg, was named Little Miss Eastern Kentucky Sweetheart at the pageant held at the Highland House in Paintsville, April 15. She won in beauty and photogenic categories. She also won the title of Little Miss Valentine in an earlier pageant.

State Jailers Meet To Urge Improvements

Clay County Jailer Homer Weaver, president of the Kentucky Jailers' Association, announced that the association will conduct its second annual Jail Improvement Conference April 29-May 1, in Owensboro.

Purposes of the conference are to inform county officials about the legislation passed by the 1984 session of the Kentucky General Assembly and to provide educational workshops on jail operation, budgeting and official liability. Weaver said that invitations have been extended to county officials, the finance and corrections cabinets in Frankfort and to members of the general assembly.

Development of the conference, Weaver noted, is a recognition that jails now demand more attention, effort and money from our public officials than at any period in the history of the Commonwealth. The 1984 session—even in the face of limited resources—provided jails a moderate increase in funding and doubled the jail bonding authority's bonding capacity for new jail construction and renovation.

In announcing the conference, Weaver said he was pleased with the variety of programs which have been scheduled and with the fact that such officials as Lt. Governor Steve Beshear, Attorney General David Armstrong and Commissioner of Agriculture David Boswell will be making major addresses to the conference.

GOOD NEWS REPORT

By THOMAS W. PAUKEN
Director of ACTION

Two years ago, Gwen Bee Haynes, of Birmingham, Ala., a dedicated member of the South Council Telephone Pioneers of America, attended a chapter meeting that changed the course of her life. In a manner of speaking, Bee declared war.

The Pioneers had become alarmed over increasing reports of drug abuse among young people. A nationwide telephone employee organization, Pioneers volunteer their time providing assistance to community service groups, but now the Council president asked Bee if she would take on an independent challenge: that of setting up and heading a youth education program aimed at putting an end to the spread of drugs in Birmingham. Recognizing the magnitude of the problem, she said "yes". Something deep inside inspired her, made her want to go to war against this most insidious of enemies.

To help at the outset was her husband,

Mel, a teacher for 31 years, and her son, Bob, who is now a teacher. She investigated what was being done and what needed to be done, then devised a plan on the best way to fight the war against drugs. She enlisted the help of fellow Pioneers, and by utilizing films, pamphlets, speakers, (herself in the forefront) she began her campaign. Word of her activities spread swiftly. She spoke to the clergy and gained its immediate support. She organized a Birmingham rally for young people with a poster contest featuring an attack on drug abuse. The winning poster went up on billboards all over the city. At a larger rally, Bee brought in famous young athletes, singers, dancers, TV stars, to tell young audiences how they stayed clear of drugs and why.

In the two years that have followed, Bee Haynes' name and fame have spread across Alabama and from the State House in Montgomery to the White House in Washington, D.C.; Nancy Reagan wrote last April sending "heartfelt thanks for your leadership. I am so grateful," wrote the First Lady, "to know you share my deep concern about the epidemic use of drugs by our young people."

Bee's concern has brought some very positive results. She had been the driving force in the establishment of drug education programs in the 22 Councils of the Telephone Pioneers throughout the state. In Alabama more than 10,000 school children have had the benefit of these programs. "Oh, if we'd only had something like this earlier," is the frequent comment from older youngsters.

Not so long ago, their motto was "Doing drugs is cool." Today through Bee's efforts, Alabama students are sporting a button with the slogan, "Be proud with me for being drug free." One hundred thousand of these buttons are now being distributed.

As for Bee, at the request of the president of her Pioneer chapter she has now become the Alabama chairperson for Drug Abuse Prevention—a new and broader challenge for a lady who feels spiritually inspired to carry on this tremendously important crusade.

MSU Appalachian Celebration in June

The eighth annual Appalachian Celebration, Morehead State University's weeklong tribute to its mountain heritage, is set for June 24-30.

Concerts by the McLain Family Band, J.D. Crowe and The New South and Lily May Ledford highlight the week of workshops, films, dance, and study. The McLain Family Band, featured in last year's nationally televised Country Music Awards show, will perform Monday, June 25, at 8 p.m. An admission is charged to the McLain and Crowe concerts, all other celebration entertainments are free.

The Appalachian Celebration is sponsored by the ADC as a tribute to the past, present, and future of Appalachian Kentucky. ADC Director Dr. Donald L. Fogus, who oversees programs in Appalachian Studies, Business Development, Regional Research, and Human Services, terms the Celebration "...one of our most visible, accessible activities, a week which offers a unique experience to the entire family."

The Celebration also includes Mountain Dance Week, the Jesse Stuart Symposium, resident scholar Cratis Williams, craft workshops for children and adults, the Appalachian Arts and Crafts Market and ongoing displays and demonstrations which spotlight Appalachian culture. Also scheduled are a banking workshop, the fifth annual Conference On Appalachian Children and Families, an Elderhostel, and a series of tours and hikes.

"Each day, we offer specialized learning experiences," said Dr. Gifford. "Then, during the evenings, we all gather for music, dancing, films, or speakers. University housing and meals make the Celebration an ideal, affordable, family vacation time."

Day-long activities include Mountain Dance Week and Workshops For Children which offer supervised, professionally planned experiences for children six to 12.

Scholar-In-Residence Cratis Williams, a native Eastern Kentuckian who is America's foremost authority on Appalachian literature and folklore, will spend the week at MSU as a lecturer, consultant and entertaining speaker.

More specialized events include a workshop on "Banking In The Mid-80's"; workshops in pottery, watercolor, and basketry; the Jesse Stuart Symposium and tour of W-Hollow; and guided tours of Red River Gorge and Eastern Kentucky's covered bridges.

Celebration week ends with the Appalachian Arts and Crafts Market, June 30. Featured are mountain crafts and music.

For information and registration forms, write Dr. James M. Gifford, Appalachian Development Center, Morehead State University, Morehead, Ky. 40351, or phone (606) 783-2077.

"Mom, could electricity hurt you?"

When your children ask about electricity, read them these safety reminders. Let your son or daughter know electricity is one of the most convenient and dependable forms of energy we have. But care must be taken when you're around it, or it can injure or kill. Make sure your children know and follow these safety rules:

1. Never fly a kite or model airplane in the rain and never fly one near utility poles. Don't use wire or any metal parts in your kite. If the kite should get caught in a power line, don't try to get it down.
2. Never touch any power line. It could kill you.
3. Don't climb trees near power lines.
4. Don't build treehouses near electrical wires.
5. Don't climb utility poles, towers or other electrical structures.
6. Never stick fingers or any objects into electrical outlets or appliances.

VA Does Not Pay Installation Fee For Headstones

Veterans' service officers, funeral directors and other professionals who regularly deal with the next of kin of deceased veterans are reminded that the Veterans Administration does not pay the installation fee for government furnished headstones in private cemeteries.

VA does pay, for eligible veterans, a $300 burial allowance and $150 plot allowance to help defray funeral expenses and the cost of a grave space, according to Chief Memorial Affairs Director Paul T. Bannai, who noted headstone setting charges could be paid from these allowances.

Bannai said this reminder is necessary because of a lack of understanding by some when applying for the free monument.

While instructions on the application and the application itself state that "all costs to install the headstone or marker must be paid from private funds," VA wants to insure that the next-of-kin of veterans are aware of this requirement.

The VA has no specific authority to pay the installation fee, and Bannai said such a program would be difficult to administer because of the differing charges by private cemeteries for installing a headstone.

"Some cemeteries provide the installation service without charge, but there is no limit to what can be charged," Bannai said.

Pikeville College, in cooperation with the local Manpower Services Office, is offering a 13-week program to improve the reading skills and the employment potential of selected people from eastern Kentucky. Applicants for the program must be screened by the Manpower Services Office for economic eligibility and by Pikeville College/Upward Bound for educational eligibility (must be reading less than an eighth grade level). Only 15 people may participate in the program at any one time.

Classes will be held five evenings a week from 6:00-9:00 p.m. in the Administration Building at Pikeville College beginning Monday, April 30 and ending Friday, June 15. Classes will be taught by J.D. Christle who is associated with the Upward Bound/Headstart Office.

RE-ELECT SENATOR WALTER "DEE" HUDDLESTON

Kentucky Coal Miners need Senator Huddleston who works hard to make Kentucky coal acceptable as the number one energy source for our nation.

Kentucky's Young People need Senator Huddleston because of his strong support for improved education from the beginning of kindergarten all the way through college.

Kentucky Business needs Senator Huddleston who has voted for every measure that would help create new jobs for Kentucky's Citizens.

Kentucky's Senior Citizens need Senator Huddleston because he has strongly supported every program that has come through the Congress in their behalf.

Kentucky needs Senator Huddleston because he understands the need for a strong military force while at the same time recognizing the terrible dangers of a nuclear war.

In Senator Huddleston Kentucky has a Senator with twelve (12) years of seniority and a man who is highly respected among the Nation's other 99 Senators.

A new or freshman senator has no influence in the U.S. Senate. It takes time and cooperation to gain prestige in both the U.S. Senate and House of Representatives. If you don't believe this, ask Congressman Perkins! Perkins can help us because of his seniority (36 years of service).

The Congress of the United States operates on a seniority system. Replacing Senator Huddleston would cause Kentucky to lose 12 years of seniority. Any person who would ask you to replace Senator Huddleston is doing you a great harm.

Help secure our future by working to see that Senator Walter D. Huddleston is re-elected to the United States Senate as Kentucky's Senior Senator! The son of a Methodist minister he is not wealthy. He cannot afford to BUY the office. He must have your vote and support!

Pd. for by the Comm. to Re-elect Senator Huddleston
