Red Cross Here Ends 50 Years of Service

An institution reckoned to be at least the national organization could still be 50 years old died last month when the local chapter of the American Red Cross closed its doors for the last time.

The organization, which provided emergency and educational services, had been in financial trouble but, for the past few years, members were able to rally enough public support through media appeals and roadblocks to stave off collapse. Now, even that fitful existence can no longer be sustained.

Larry Adams, Prestonsburg fire inspector and a volunteer Red Cross instructor, said this week that classes in lifesaving, cardiopulmonary resuscitation and first aid will still be available. But-short of a declared disaster, when Adams cited dwindling public interest as the reason for closing the Red Cross office. The donations on which the organization depends have not been sufficient to cover office expenses, the dues the local chapter must pay the national organization, or the salary of its single paid staff worker, he said.

Two-and-a-half years ago, the Floyd County Chapter was merged with other local chapters to form the four-county Big Sandy Area Chapter. About $6000 a year was needed to keep the office open-enough to meet the $300-a-month salary paid to Charlotte Adams, the chapter's executive director since 1979, a nominal rent for office space in the Prestonsburg Municipal Building, the phone bill and national dues.

Many times that amount was returned to this area from the national Red Cross in the form of emergency services. Purchase orders issued to victims of single-family fires in Floyd county, for example, amounted to around $25,000 last year, Adams said, and a flood at Pigeon Roost in Martin county the year before elicited $38,000 in emergency aid.

Prompted by the Red Cross response, Martin County fiscal court donated $500 to the local chapter in 1982; Floyd and Magoffin fiscal courts each budgetted $1000; Johnson county, the fourth county represented by the Big Sandy Chapter, gave nothing.

Public support has been minimal also. (See Story No. 1, Page 4)

He has not said publicly that he hates Inc., Mac Mining Co. and Ray-Mac, was unions and his companies have no policy of excluding the United Mine Workers' Union, a Pike county coal operator said yesterday (Tuesday), during the trial of a group, including some union officials and members, accused of plotting to drive him out of business.

Property Annexation At Lancer Attacked

A property owner at Lancer filed suit this week to have the Prestonsburg city council's recent annexation of a tract there declared invalid. The suit followed by only a few days a circuit court order enjoining the city council from acting on its attempted annexation of a section at Katy Friend.

Hazel Rorrer is owner of property leased by three Lancer businesses-Hobert's Pizzaria, Jacobs Gulf, and the Jenny Wiley Village complex. The tract was annexed by a council decision which took effect Jan. 1.

When the question of annexation turned up on the November ballot, six Lancer residents voted against it and two for it, but council members said none of the ballots was cast by qualified on the witness stand in U.S. District Court in Pikeville. It was the fourth day of testimony in the trial of Prestonsburg coal operator Edgar Jones and 17 others on federal conspiracy charges.

In indictments handed down by a federal grand jury last June, Jones and the others are accused of conspiring to shut down the Ray-Mac strip mine near East McDowell by violence and extortion. Jones is president of the JRM Coal Company and most of the other defendants worked for companies in the East McDowell area with which JRM had contracts to mine coal.

As evidence of a conspiracy, the indictment listed 42 incidents which occurred between January and March, 1982, including two occasions when shots were fired at the Ray-Mac mine, the dyamiting of a coal auger owned by Ray-Mac and the burning of a tipple leased by the firm.

In opening remarks last Wednesday, Nashville attorney Aubrey Harwell, representing Jones, portrayed the violence that flared at the Ray-Mac mine that winter as a spontaneous outgrowth of union efforts to organize the mine. As Harwell described it, his client, an old union man himself, simply gave moral support to a group of miners who were anxious to organize a large, non-union operator who had intruded six months previously into strong union territory

• Marshall, McGuffey Bond Hearing Slated

A bail hearing has been set for next Wednesday, Feb. 8, five days before their scheduled trial date, for Clyde Douglas Marshall and Bobby Gene McGuffey, accused of complicity in the death last June 20 of Marshall's wife, Glenda Sharon Marshall.

The defendants' plea for bail will be heard by Special Judge C.R. Luker at Barboursville. it will be the second such hearing for Marshall, who was denied bond by Floyd Circuit Judge Hollie Conley last August. No bond hearing has yet been held for McGuffey, who was still awaiting extradition from Tennessee in

In a pre-trial hearing in London last Tuesday, Judge Luker denied a motion by Marshall that his trial be severed from McGuffey's. Marshall's attorney, Floyd Public Defender Ned Pillersdorf, has argued that Commonwealth's evidence that might be admissible in the trial of McGuffey would not be admissible in the trial of his client. Luker said that, if such a case were to arise, he would rule on it at that time.

Judge Explains Demand of $100 Cash with Bond

If you have to make bond in Floyd Circuit Court, from now on you will have to put at least $100 down in cash, according to a rule made last week by Circuit Judge Hollie Conley. The new rule is designed to make it easier for the clerk to collect court costs from defendants, the judge explained.

Some attorneys expressed misgivings when the rule was announced Thursday, one claiming it would deny some defendants their right to make bail. But Conley said such fears are groundless.

"I have never known anyone who could put up a $10,000 property bond who could not put up $100 in cash," the judge said. Were such a case to arise, it could be easily resolved, he said, adding, "No one is going to stay in jail because he can't come up with $100.

Persons without means, who are not liable to pay court costs anyway, and those released on their own recognizance will not be subject to the new fee. For other defendants, the fee will go to pay court costs, which typically amount to about $57.50, and a 10 percent fee payable to the state Administrative Office of the Courts. Any balance will be returned to the person posting bond. When defendants were allowed to put up a property bond alone, it proved impracticable to collect court costs from them, a deputy clerk explained.

Legislator Sets

Representative Greg Stumbo will hold a public meeting in the Floyd County courthouse Saturday, Feb. 4, at 10 a.m. Bills under way and issues yet to surface in the current legislative session will be

Also denied were defense motions to exclude testimony of Carl Harold McFarland, who is expected to be a key prosecution witness, and to have McFarland examined by a psychiatrist, Defense attorneys have questioned the reliability of McFarland, who has a lengthy criminal record. The judge authorized Pillersdorf to spend up to $1500 for psychiatric testing of his client and ordered that copies of the psychiatrist's report be given to the prosecution before the trial.

Turned down were defense motions for an exclusion of the death penalty and for a limit on the Commonwealth's use of peremptory challenges. (Defense attorneys commonly argue that peremptory challenges-by which a potential juror can be rejected for any reasonallow prosecutors to exclude jurors who might be sympathetic to the defendant.) By agreement of court and counsel, defense lawyers in the present trial will together be allowed 10 such challenges and Commonwealth's Attorney James R. Allen will be allowed six.

McGuffey, who is represented by Stanton attorneys Jeffery Darling and James Barrett, is being held in the Bourbon county jail and Marshall in Pike county. McFarland, who is expected to testify for the Commonwealth in return for a guarantee of immunity, is being held in the Johnson county jail.

Trial is set for February 13 in Fayette Circuit Court.

This Town...That World

And now February. Spring is somewhere out there, coming to meet us.

ONE GROUNDHOG DAY

The date is disputed, I believe, but many will assure you that tomorrow (February 2) is the true Groundhog Day. Wherever, whenever, the "whistle pig," as it is sometimes irreverently referred to, is supposed on Groundhog Day to quit hibernation for a season, emerge from his hole and take a gander at the weather. And-so it is written-if said groundhog sees his shadow he returns to his hole and there will be six more weeks of "dark and stormy weather.'

We do not want to be cynical about this weighty matter, but we would remind one and all that the groundhog will return to his hole, whether or not the sun shines or if he does or does not see his shadow. Besides, in February where else is there to go?

Every knoll and hillock is high and steep and a mere gully can be a veritable canyon in the eyes of a child. Live long enough and you'll decide the youngsters' eyes didn't deceive them.

A NEW BRIDGE at Boldman is taking shape to replace the old suspension-type span that has served both Pike and Floyd residents for years. Work on the $900,357 project, which is under contract to Bush & Burchett Contractors, of Allen, was begun in mid-October and is expected to be finished "around the first of July," according to Paul Gravely, district engineer for the Jackson Department of Highways office.

The proposed water district would serve residents on KY 114 (the Mountain Parkway) from Rough and Tough west to the Floyd-Magoffin line, and on State Road Fork, from its junction with KY 114 to the community of Bonanza.

There are 151 households in the 16-square-mile area, of whom about 103 are thought to be interested in signing up for water service-too few to bear the estimated cost of the project, according to PSC engineer Eddie B. Smith. Rather than trying to establish an independent water district, these residents would be better served if they were taken in by the Prestonsburg Utilities' system or by the neighboring Parkway Water Association, Smith said in a Jan. 6 report.

Initial cost of the project would likely be around $500,000 and the system would take about $28,500 a year to operate, the engineer estimated. That would mean customers would need to pay an average of $23 a month just to meet operating Prestonsburg Utilities Superintendent Bill H. Howard said of the petitioners that it would be "most economic for them to hook on to the Parkway system." But they could also tap onto the city system through its Middle Creek or Abbott Creek lines, he conceded. The fact that homes in the proposed service area are relatively spread out means serving them is not an attractive proposition for either of the existing systems, he said.

Under state law, the PSC must approve any plan to establish a water district. The law also prohibits the formation of a new district in an area that can be more feasibly served by an ex-

'They don't lie.' In fact, as gas and water meters get old, they tend to err in favor of the consumer, he says. And Billy Robinson, who was calibrating gas meters in the Prestonsburg Utilities shop one day last week, agrees. Although the Public Service Commission allows a two percent error either way, the greatest error he had seen that day was three-quarters of one percent and most errant meters 'run slow''-that is, record less gas than

The effect of HB 32 would be to ban coal operators from strip-mining land leased under broad-form deeds, unless they got permission from the surface owner. Kentucky courts have historically held that broad-form deeds give mineral owners "dominance" over surface owners, but Stumbo said recent court rulings in other states and earlier rulings in Kentucky give reason to believe that the courts would now uphold the measure if it became law.

'Every state in the nation except Kentucky has addressed this problem and found that the owner of the mineral rights should not be dominant," Stumbo told the committee. And Rep. Clayton Little, of Virgie, who is co-sponsor of the bill, said the broad-form deed "is basically a wound that's been eating at the heart of the people of the mountains since the turn of the century."

PTA Fund Raiser For Task Force

At a press conference last week Mitch McConnell, Chairman of the Kentucky Task Force on Exploited and Missing Children, helped the Kentucky Parent Teacher Association launch a two-year fund raising campaign.

McConnell purchased the first commemorative art print from PTA President Iris Irish. Proceeds from the print sales will be used for a number of PTA programs, principally to fund an educational program on exploited and missing children to be shown in school systems throughout the commonwealth.

'The PTA has always been an important element in the education of our children," McConnell said. "We are very pleased that the 110,000 members of this state organization have joined the large number of Kentuckians who are now convinced that our children need preventative programs to educate them about the possibilities of victimization and how to avoid potentially dangerous situations.

During the next 24 months the PTAs plan to sell 20,000 commemorative prints which are reproductions of a watercolor painting by Top Twenty artist John Jones. The painting, "Yesterday's School," is a scene of a one-room frame schoolhouse in a picturesque autumn setting. The original painting, valued at $2,000, was donated to the Kentucky PTA by Top Twenty president, John

This fund raising campaign officially began in all 500 PTA groups in Kentucky today, February 1. The prints will cost $22.50 mailed; $10 of which will be divided among the PTAs on three levels: school, district and state.

Let the Voters Decide

When I was campaigning for Mayor of Martin, I promised to oppose any tax increase for Martin citizens. That is why I am opposed to the Board of Education's passage of a three-percent utilities tax.

I am not against salary increases for teachers or upgrading the schools. But I am against the Board trying to generate money off retired people and lowincome families.

I urge Martin residents and all Floyd citizens to petition to have the utilities tax put on the ballot. Let the voters decide.

The same year, a 12-hour "radiothon," which sponsors hoped would yield at least $2,000, drew $800 in pledges, of which $400 was actually collected. A roadblock, for which Job Corps students collected donations in Prestonsburg, Lancer, Allen and Martin, netted about

Last year, none of the fiscal courts contributed anything to the organization, and the local chapter proved too dispirited to approach a reluctant public for further assistance and too disorganized to tap available government funds. Prestonsburg City Manager David Evans, who was a member of the board, said directors met only twice in the past four years. A $20,000 federal grant available to the Red Cross for emergency services last year went begging for want of an organization to apply for and administer it, he said.

Former Red Cross workers here agreed that the death in 1982 of Mrs. Sallye Clarke, described by one as "the backbone" of the Floyd chapter, figured largely in the organization's collapse.

year," Howard said. The way it is now, Prestonsburg Utilities buys gas at 60 degrees Fahrenheit but, when it sells the gas to customers, the temperature might be zero or below. Gas is denser at colder temperatures, which means that customers get more for their money.

Of course, it cuts the other way when temperatures soar in summer. "But when do people use most gas-in summer or winter?" Howard asks rhetori-

Bills went out about 10 days late in January because the computer program used for billing had to be altered to reflect Kentucky-West's 58-cent increase. The West Virginia firm handling that took longer than anticipated, a Prestonsburg Utilities bookkeeper

But one improvement that might save some grief both for the utilities company and for its customers, Howard conceded, is an indication on the bill of what usage period the customer is being

How many customers are aware that the bill dated Jan. 17 was for gas consumed in November? From the number of calls she gets, just about everyone is aware of it, insists bookkeeper Phyllis Spradlin.

But there is nothing on the bill that says what period you're being billed for, and Howard agrees it can be confusing. After the relatively balmy week we've just enjoyed, for example, bills due to go out about a week from now could prove a rude shock for householders unless they realize they're being billed for chilly December usage

Because of the complexities of billing, there is no way to close the month-long gap between usage and bill but, if he can figure out a way to do it, future bills may at least indicate the usage period, Howard said.

He was bent over at the door, stooped low, lookin' for that varmint and had the gun ready, pointed right inside. And just then Old Lead comes up behind Pa and stuck his cold nose against Pa's back side where the long johns didn't cover. Pa flinched and both barr'ls of that shotgun went off. arson that government witnesses would describe during the trial represented no union organizing effort but an attempt by Jones to shut down a competitor he thought was trying to steal a contract from him. JRM was under a five-year contract to supply 360,000 tons of coal a year to the South Carolina Electric and Gas Company.

The incidents listed in the indictment were "Edgar Jones' way of driving the competition out of the area," the prosecutor alleged.

Harwell said the violence escalated on both sides-the defendants "shot at folks and were shot at by them"-and most of the defendants "were motivated by a belief in the UMW," a union that had delivered miners from long hours of dangerous, low-paying work.

'A lot of folks were upset" when Ray-Mac "moved into No. 5967 territory," said Harwell, a reference to the UMW local at East McDowell. "They feared it might provide a toehold for the whole area to become non-union.'

When some of his contract miners wanted time off to organize Ray-Mac, Jones "gave them some moral support," Harwell said. "But he did not set up or create the situation. He did not spearhead or lead it," the defense lawyer insisted.

In response to questions by Louisa attorney Eldred Adams, representing defendant Ranny Blankenship, Ray-Mac President Justice denied that he had once told a newspaper reporter he hated unions. While his companies are non-union, there is no company policy on union representation, he said.

Raymond "Pete" Barker, who was foreman at the Ray-Mac mine, said a group of 10-15 men led by Drexil Hall turned up at the minesite on Monday, Feb. 15, 1982 and spoke to Ray-Mac workers about joining the union. His men returned to work after the meeting without presenting a petition for union representation, Barker said. The following day, the unionists turned back coal trucks approaching the mine, he said.

Tuesday, Feb. 16, also brought the first reports of violence, the prosecution charging that pickets fired on trucks as they left the Ray-Mac mine. Jones is alleged to have furnished the demonstrators with whiskey and to have assured them they "would get the guns and ammunition needed to stop Ray-Mac from operating.'

With the jury out of the courtroom, Justice said under questioning by defense attorney Bernard Pafunda that Ray-Mac had purchased weapons, including semi-automatic Uzis, which were stored in his Pikeville office. But he denied suggestions that he had instructed Barker to issue the weapons to company workers on Feb. 16. Barker said Ray-Mac employees were armed that day, but with personal, not company, weapons. U.S. District Judge G. Wix Unthank said the question of when or whether Justice's companies purchased weapons was irrelevant to the issues being tried.

Apparently with a view to a likely appeal, Unthank has kept meticulous control over conduct of the trial, even overseeing the seating of the few courtroom spectators. The case, which is being heard Mondays through Thursdays, got under way last Wednesday after a lengthy jury-selection process and is expected to last some weeks. Throughout, defendants have been seated in two rows behind the dozen attorneys who represent them, the 63-year-old Jones dressed in a conservative business suit, the others in more casual attire.

Charges against Morris Ray Hall, 47, of Hi Hat, one of those originally indicted, have since been dropped.

Martin Man Is Shot Thursday Following Domestic Quarrel

Walter Carroll, 40, of Martin was hospitalized Thursday night after he was shot, reportedly by his estranged wife, following an argument outside Frazier's Restaurant on Main Street,

State Trooper James Rederick, who investigated the incident along with Troopers Zellers and Slone and Martin Police Chief Hershel Lester, said Ellen Carroll, 38, apparently shot Carroll after being beaten during the quarrel. Both were admitted to local hospitals and were said to be recovering.

No charges were preferred, according to Trooper Rederick.

A Tale of Two Taxes...

We attended the public hearing of the Floyd County Board of Education a few days ago which aired the matter of a proposed 3 percent tax on our utilities

Supposedly, all those persons who chose to speak on the matter were allowed to be heard. The pros ... the cons.

The meeting was scheduled to last one hour. At the end of that time the Board adopted a recommendation of the superintendent that the tax be approved.

Nothing that could have been said would have changed the outcome of the vote. The die was cast. Neither the plea heard on behalf of those who were elderly, the retired, nor those persons on limited incomes had any effect on the members of the Board. Nor were the suggestions of an alternate tax given consideration.

However... As they say, everything is not all bad.

I notice in your paper last week that Prestonsburg City Council voted to decrease the tax on liquor by 3 percent. Perhaps one tax will offset the other, assuming that they will pass the savings on the liquor tax on to us, the consumer.

Metropolitan Blues Bringing It On Home

Whitesburg music lovers are in for a treat Saturday, February 11. Popular Lexington band, The Metropolitan Blues All-Stars, will perform in the Appalshop Theater at 8 p.m. This will be the band's first performance in the area, but for two of the All-Stars, Saturday night will be just like coming home. Rodney Hatfield, a native of Blackberry Creek in Pike county, will be making his first appearance in Eastern Kentucky. Hatfield, who is known as one of the best harmonica players around, left Pike county in 1965. With Lexington, as his base, Hatfield has traveled around the country, fronting a series of bands, and playing with such notables as Charlie Daniels Nick Stump, the lead guitarplayer, was raised in Knott county. His music school was the nightclubs in Perry county. "I got my degree at Russel's, and did my graduate work at the Imperial club", says Stump, implying he learned more than guitar playing during those years.

In 1966, the two met and formed their first band. It lasted less than a year and Stump left for the Air Force. After four years, Stump returned and formed a band with Frank Schapp, present rhythm guitar player for the band. Schaap's acoustic guitar playing provides a strong base for the distinctive sound of the band.

Bassist Stewart Miller has been seen in Whitesburg before. During a two-year stint with the Glenn Miller Orchestra, Stewart played in Eastern Kentucky. His bass playing, combined with the rock steady beat of drummer David White, provides the All-Stars with the finest rhythm section available in the

Although they call themselves a blues band, the All-Stars play a wide variety of music. The music is unique blend of blues, rock and roll, country, folk, and even a little gospel thrown in for good measure.

The Metropolitan Blues-All-Stars are coming to Whitesburg, Saturday, February 11, at Appalshop, and no matter what kind of music you like, there will be something for you. As for the All-Stars, they're just glad to be coming home.

Congratulations to Ron Marstin for a fine column of January 11th. If we have a future, it's in education.

Linda Sue Niece Lyon's letter to the Editor was very interesting. She reminds me of my own situation while fighting overwhelming odds in trying to get educated at the head of the Conley Fork of Spurlock. Five miles in each direction, do the chores and fall into bed. There weren't any buses to catch in those days

You said it well, Linda, and I admire you for saying it. But how would you feel about accepting welfare if you were disabled and couldn't scratch for food? Would you still refuse welfare?

Welfare is help from other people. It was instituted by Jesus Christ when he appointed church elders to help widows who couldn't help themselves. It's a sad day indeed, if we lose our self-respect for accepting help from others in our times

It's almost like a challenge sometimes when people ask me why I don't move back to Floyd County. I can't do that for the same reason I am moving from Akron, Ohio to Florida just as soon as we sell our house. I am old and my ailments are many. Cold weather is more than I can stand

Always, I have thought of Floyd Countians as my family. It hurts me to see one of them fail. That's why it angers me to hear people talking about us. I don't mind much for myself. I have to tell them where I came from or they won't know. I know I am just as good as anybody, including Presidents and Kings. I know you are too. But there's a lot of people who don't know that. They say we don't care about education or that we don't care if our children get educated or not. I can't accept that. I have to speak out against it, even if I am old and

Many years ago, I did improve our image greatley. While working on the railroad in several states, I listened to this crap about how we didn't care for education, of how we practiced incest and many other totally unacceptable accusations directed at us. Then I became the boss. These same people then told me how great we were and Kentucky became their favorite vacation land. I think I liked them better when we were

Despite all the bad experiences, I like Ohio, Akron in particular. Most people here are from W. Va. and many who crossed an ocean to get here, some are black, and some speak Spanish. They too, are my people.

The recent NBC television movie "Adam" about my son, who was abducted and murdered, graphically depicted the horror which can happen to any family in Kentucky or anywhere. For those people who missed seeing the movie, NBC plans to run "Adam" again this spring. I urge everyone to watch this important movie.

On November 10, 1983, I came to Kentucky to announce at press conferences in Covington, Lexington and Louisville my wholehearted and enthusiastic support of the package of recommendations recently developed by the Kentucky Task Force on Exploited and Missing

I ask every Kentuckian to contact his or her State Representative and State Senator in support of the Kentucky Task Force proposals which would make Kentucky the unchallenged leader in this most important field.

IN MEMORIAM

In memory of Sara M. Vaughn, who died Jan. 31, 1976.

The days pass so swifly, each year goes a little bit faster;

Has it been eight long years Mom, since I've heard the echo of your laughter? They say that time heals all wounds, but my heart, it just won't mend;

There's nothing in this world I wouldn't give just to see your face again; For all the times you've danced for us kids, right there on the kitchen floor; Why just one glimpse would do me, I wouldn't ask for more. But Mom, don't you worry, cause all of us kids are doing alright; It's just that we miss you terribly, to our, lives you were such a delight. But I still have my memories Mom, that's one thing time can't erase; And I'll keep reliving them over and over, until again I see your smiling face. For all of you who still have your Mom, I have only one thing to say;

The rest of this poem is meant for you, and what you'll remember one day. The sorrow that you'll feel, the pain you can't compare;

Just to know when you go home, your Mother won't be there.

There'll be times that you'll remember when you left her all alone; Holidays that you let slip by, saying

"Lord, I wish that I had gone! It use to be so easy, just to pick up the telephone:

And the first thing that she would ask you was, "When are you kids coming home?'

We always made excuses and thought she'd always be there;

Did we realize how much we hurt her, when she thought we didn't care? So I'm sharing with you this poem and hope that you won't wait;

Never put if off till tomorrow, because tomorrow might be too late.

knew my Mom wouldn't mind my tellng of the love that we both shared; For without that reassurance, the burden I could never have bared. Sadly missed by her Mother, Ella B Vaughn, her children, Billy Joe, Ella Mae and Logan, and all her family. Written by, Ella Mae Smith

Lower Tuition Equals More College Students

A recently released research report supports the view that low tuition at public junior colleges, senior colleges, and universities is essential for equal educational opportunities in the United States. In keeping with its commitment to making quality higher education programs accessible to qualified students, Western has kept its tuition considerably below the national norms tor state uniersities The report, entitled "Low Tuition Fact Book" is very supportive of Western's policies with regard to student fees. It cites eight reasons why low fees are essential to the promotion of educational opportunities in this country:

The percentage of high school graduates going on to college is generally lower in states with high tuition;

The percentage or veterans using their G.I. benefits to attend college is generally low in states with high tuition;

New data on public colleges show that great many students at such colleges have little or no parental help and work their way through. Many students are self-supporting;

A University of Wisconsin study found that lowering tuition increases the number going to college;

A California study showed that lower tuition would particularly encourage low-income students to continue their educations;

Department of Labor statistics show that very few families have adequate resources for college; and

Current federal and state student aid programs are not adequate to meet student needs.

In loving memory of Ishmael Hall who departed this world on January 24th.

A man of meekness, dignity and pride, A year ago this month you died.

The Lord took you from us for his reasons I'm sure. But the burden of your absence is so hard to endure.

We'll forever carry your memory within our heart And piece back your family that's been torn apart. But again to see your loving smile that We miss so much or to hear your voice or feel your touch. We'll be patient and struggle on and do the best we can do. We know you can never come back to us, but Daddy-one day-we'll come home to be with you. Deeply loved and missed By Your Family

Taxpayer Assistance; Questions and Answers

Q. I received an IRS bill and I'm not sure what I should do. Who do I call? A. You should call 584-1361 in Louisville or toll-free 1-800-424-1040 from outside the Louisville dialing area. Also, you may visit or write your local IRS office to inquire about any tax account question. Such questions include those related to tax accounts, notices, and refund inquiries.

Q. I'm completing my federal tax return and I want to take the child care credit, but I'm not sure how to claim it. Can I call the IRS for help?

A. Yes. You can also use the handy form in your tax package to order publication 503, "Child And Disabled Dependent Care," and form 2441. You might also be interested in obtaining publication 910, "Taxpayer's Guide to IRS Information, Assistance, and Publications," which includes an explanation of IRS services, filing tips, a list of tele-tax topics and telephone numbers, record keeping information, how to file an amended return, a list of all films available free of charge, and also lists of all available IRS publications with many descriptions, and a handy order

Q. I heard about recorded answers for tax questions. How do I reach these recorded messages?

A. You can use your pushbutton or rotary (dial) telephone to call the Tele-Tax Information Service which provides recorded information about a variety of tax topics. The telephone number and a list of taped tax topics for Tele-Tax is available in IRS publication 910. The Tele-Tax numbers and topics are also available in the Tele-Tax brochure, which can be found in many local libraries, and in your tax package.

Q. Can I get personal help when I'm filling out my income tax return?

A. Yes. There are several ways to receive personal assistance. If you visit a local IRS office, you and others completing tax returns can get group assistance. Also, the IRS offers group assistance for low and middle income groups, called outreach. This service is available in local communities during normal working hours, after hours, or on weekends at various community locations such as high schools, libraries, and through civic group meetings. Or, if you are near a Volunteer Income Tax Assistance (VITA) site, an IRS-trained volunteer is prepared to help taxpayers with special needs-low income, nonenglish speaking, elderly, or handicapped-to fill out their income tax returns. A similar program, Tax Counseling for the Elderly (TCE), is available to help persons, generally over the age of 60, with the special tax problems of the elderly. To learn where there's a VITA or TCE site near you, contact your local IRS office or call IRS at 584-1361 in Louisville. Outside the Louisville dialing area you may call toll-free 1-800-424-1040.

Q. Now that it's time to file federal income tax returns, my civic group is planning to have a meeting to discuss general tax information. Is there anything available to help us understand some of the steps involved in completing the form 1040, form 1040A, and form

A. As a matter of fact, there are two films available. One film discusses preparation of the form 1040 and schedule A and B. The other film follows the preparation of the form 1040A and form 1040EZ. These films are available, free of charge, by contacting your local IRS district public affairs officer at 582-5376 in Louisville or through the tollfree number 1-800-424-1040 from outside the Louisville dialing area.

Q. I heard that I can get publications and forms at my library. Is this true?

A. Local libraries may carry a set of IRS publications to be used as reference material. In addition to the publications, reproducible forms are often available, which can be duplicated on a machine copier. Forms are available at some libraries.

PRENATAL EFFECTS

Q. What prenatal elements affect a baby's teeth?

A. The tooth buds of baby teeth form in utero as early as the 6th or 8th week of pregnancy, and start to harden during the 5th month. By birth, most of these baby teeth have calcified and permanent teeth are already forming in the baby's gums.

The calcium and phosphate needed to form the two sets of teeth are obtained from the mother's bloodstream, as are the vitamins essential for the hardening process. A high fever or a viral infection of the mother during pregnancy can indirectly affect the mother's vitamin/mineral balance. Antibiotics and other drug therapy pass through the placental barrier and also affect the developing teeth. A poor prenatal diet affects this vitamin/mineral balance directly. Therefore, foods rich in vitamins and minerals are essential during pregnancy. Diet guidelines should be provided by the mother-tobe's doctor and dentist.

Banker Boosts Overseas Ties By Employing German Student

H.D. Fitzpatrick, Jr., president of The Bank Josephine, is doing his share to further international relations by inviting a West German university student to work in the bank here this summer.

The idea of inviting a University of Frankfurt student here occurred to Fitzpatrick last summer after he visited West Germany on a three-week journey retracing some of the route he took with the U.S. 26th Infantry Division in World War II. In Frankfurt, he had dinner with two university students who questioned him closely about the intentions of the U.S. in placing missles in West

"I defended the U.S. position, and they seemed somewhat satisfied. But the scene kept coming back, almost haunting me during the rest of the trip and after I got home. The older Germans seemed a lot like us. But the younger Germans are a very concerned age

"I think they deserve to know more about America. How we work and what

In this frame of mine, Fitzpatrick invited one of the students, Reinhold Seibert, 26, to visit his home and work at his bank during the summer vacation.

'He has spent three years in a German bank, so he can understand what goes on at ours," Fitzpatrick said. Seibert can also visit with Fitzpatrick's grown son and daughter who are near Seibert's age Fitzpatrick said, "We haven't done a very good job as a nation in maintaining proper relations with all age groups around the world. We have to forge closer ties with the younger generations, obviously, because they'll be running things some day

Docu-Drama Explores Industrial Slavery

The seldom-explored topic of industrial slavery is the subject of an unusual hour-long docu-drama, "A Bond of Iron," encoring on KET Monday, February 20, at 7 p.m., as part of KET's salute to Black History Month.

Most people think of life in the antebellum South as being like a scene from "Gone With the Wind," complete with white-columned mansions, southern belles in hoop skirts and slaves tending the cotton fields. Slavery was an integral part of life in the old South, indeed, but it was not limited to the cotton plantations. The South had industry, and slave labor was used for this work

In "A Bond of Iron," two on-camera narrators-one white and one blackexplore two viewpoints on the condition of industrial slavery. The program was filmed entirely on location at the site of an actual slave-operated iron works. Noted television and film actors Darren McGavin and Brock Peters are the narrators, playing themselves and serving simply as storytellers.

The story is a true one, and the program unearths some surprising aspects of the complex master-slave relationship which were common to both industrial and agricultural slavery. Peters explains several subtle ways slaves had of getting what they wanted, and McGavin says there was often little choice but to go along with them.

"A Bond of Iron" was produced by the South Carolina ETV Network.

Newsreels Are Subject Of KET Documentary

'The generation of Americans born since 1960 has probably never seen a newsreel," says Bill Moyers of his documentary special, "The Reel World of News," which will air on KET Wednesday, February 22, at 8:00 p.m.

Part of the series of documentary specials, "A Walk Through the 20th Century with Bill Moyers," in which the host explores the major events, personalities and mores which shaped our century, The Reel World of News" depicts newsreels as the point where generations divide. Newsreels, to a nation without television sets, showed movie theatre audiences vivid images of war, pestilence and disaster, accompanied by evocative music and the urgent bark of an off-screen announcer. The 10-minute reels would end with lighter, less traumatic stories.

'The Reel World of News' features a varied sampling of movie-house newsreels and interviews with former newsreel announcer Ed Herlihy, cameramen Denny Bossone, "contact man" Tom McMorrow and music editor

many dyslexics are left-handed.

Since motor control of the left hand is governed by the right side of the brain, and since the language centers in most that the language problem in dyslexia

Dyslexia-for most persons, this psychiatrist, who noted that a good terms means a reversal of letters.

But according to medical and theoretical definitions, dyslexia goes much farther into being termed "word blindness", a disability that conservatively affects 10 to 15 percent of the population, with six times more boys than girls being affected.

Dyslexia is a visual motor perception disability, caused by a breakdown in the central nervous system and resulting in reading, writing and spelling problems.

Further, a dyslexic child is one who has trouble with reading, writing and spelling even though he is intelligent; has normal sight and hearing; does not have a primary emotional problem; is exposed to a conventional education, and usually comes from a home which stresses educational values.

According to the Kentucky Association for Specific Perceptual Motor Disability, dyslexia is also seen as a dysfunction in the central nervous system which causes the child to have at least seven problem areas, as follows:

Reverse letters and words in reading or writing; difficulty paying attention; difficulty following directions; confuse left and right; slow variability in performance; do poorly on written tests; and display a unique performance on diabnostic tests which is different from that of a mentally handicapped, emotionally disturbed, educationally deprived or normal child.

The dyslexic person also has problems metabolizing carbohydrates and often reacts to medication adversely. Additionally, a dyslexic person usually has allergies, and is labeled as lazy, immature or slow by teachers.

Serious medical study of dyslexia was not begun until the 1920's by Dr. Samuel T. Orton, a University of Iowa

Roger Daltrey Stars In Shakespeare Play

Roger Daltrey of "The Who" band makes his Shakespeare debut when KET presents "Comedy of Errors" Monday, February 20, at 9:00 p.m. on Your Kentucky Network.

Daltrey stars as both of the Dromios twins, and Michael Kitchen plays the Antipholus twins in a story of two masters and two servants who are constantly mistaken for each other.

The cast includes Cyril Cusack as Aegeon, the father of the Antipholus twins, who saved one twin son and one twin servant in a shipwreck and wound up in Syracuse. Wendy Hiller plays Aemilia, Aegeon's wife, who saved the other twin, but wound up in Ephesus. The action is set in Ephesus, noted in the ancient world for the study of magic and spells, and scene after scene adds a new and inventive twist to the theme of mistaken identity.

"Comedy of Errors" is part of the 'The Shakespeare Plays" cycle which is presenting all 37 of the bard's plays on public television. The series is a coproduction of BBC-Tv and Time-Life.

'NOVA' Looks At Meaning Of Time

We are all acutely aware of the passage of time. But if asked to define time, most of us would not have an answer. NOVA features British actor Dudley Moore in a lively quest for the meaning of time in "It's About Time." The program will air Tuesday, February 21, at 8:00 p.m. (ET), 7:00 p.m. (CT), on KET.

In his hunt for clues to the nature of time, Moore sits at his piano and chats with various experts, who materialize out of the past and then vanish. St. Augustine racks his brain over the meaning of time in the fifth century. Was there a beginning of time? Is there an end to it? Albert Einstein explains relativity with an animated film of moving clocks. Isaac Asimov helps Moore grapple with the prospect of time travel. Backwards is impossible, says Asimov—but travel into the future, he claims, is quite possible if we are willing to go on a one-way trip.

With animation and special effects, "It's About Time" makes both humor and sense of the mystery of time. Moore and his piano come and go, assembling and disassembling, as the film shifts freely among times, locations and concepts. Time, it appears, is as great a puzzle for philosophy as for science.

THE BEST OF THE ROCKIES.

Coors starts out clean and fresh. And then it stays that way.

Like every other beer in the world, Coors starts with water.

But that's where the similarity ends. You see, we start with pure Rocky Mountain spring water.

That's because we make our beer in one place and one place only: Golden, Colorado. And its perfect brewing water is why we started there in the first place.

In the second place, we use a brewing process that's unique to the industry. We start with only natural ingredients—absolutely no additives or preservatives—and then we brew Coors more slowly and age it longer than most beers

Then, we package Coors cold. Other beers are subjected to extreme heat (up to 140°) after being put in cans or bottles. Coors doesn't do that, simply because the less you heat beer, the better it tastes.

One of our secret ingredients has 18 wheels and weighs 32,000 pounds.

When Coors and Coors Light are finally through aging, they have a wonderfully cold, clean, brewery-fresh taste. The last thing in the world we'd want to do is put that nice, cold beer on a big, hot truck like other brewers do. So we don't

We use refrigerated trucks. And they take our beer-nice and coldup to 2,000 miles (give or take a detour) distributors. At this point, it makes no sense to truck cold beer all that distance and let it get warm in some warehouse.

Don't worry. It doesn't. Our distributors use refrigerated warehouses for our beer. (It's more expensive, but we know they like that brewery-fresh taste as much as we do.) Next, our distributors take that nice, cold Coors and put it in their own refrigerated trucks and take it to where you can finally buy some.

Does Coors have to be refrigerated?

No. But every now and then, the folks who sell Coors to you will have more on hand than they can keep on ice. So, you might see Coors out in one of those big displays at your store.

If you do, don't be concerned. Even though we go through all the expense and trouble to keep Coors and Coors Light fresh from the Rockies to you, our beer is no more affected by heat than any other beer.

> To kind of sum it up, we refrigerate our beer because we want to, not because we have to.

Now on tap. Soon in your store.

We're getting Coors and Coors Light out to you as fast as we can. Chances are, you might find it first on tap at your favorite tavern. Check around. It's worth it. And when you do find it, give it a chance. The real beauty of Coors is how it keeps that brewery-fresh taste beer after beer, hour after hour. Thanks for reading all this, and there's just one more thing: Enjoy!

The Best of the Rockies is yours

Do Something Wild With State Refund

The Kentucky cave shrimp, the Blackside dace, Short's goldenrod and at least seventeen other species of plants and animals known to exist only in Kentucky need help to ensure their continued survival, help that Kentuckians can give through a state program available to all taxpayers.

The program, known as the "Do Something Wild" contribution checkoff to help non-game species protection and habitat acquisition programs, is sponsored by the Kentucky Nature Preserves Commission and the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife

Simply by filling in the amount of their desired tax-deductible contribution on line 21a of the Kentucky Income Tax form, citizens can designate all or a portion of their state tax refund for these programs, explained Nature Preserves Director Richard Hannan.

'This program offers Kentuckians a convenient way to participate in the protection and preservation of our rich natural heritage," Hannan said. "The fate of Kentucky's unique species has been entrusted to all of us whose intelligence allows us to either protect or destroy these species.

Hannan noted that the original settlers of the Commonwealth were first "lured to Kentucky by the tales of its bountiful waters, its skies darkened by fowl and its seemingly endless abundance of

"It isn't useful or productive to lament the loss of the buffalo, the passenger pigeon, or the rich canelands and undulating prairies of primeval Kentucky," Hannan stated, "Each is now history, the victim of man's pressures for food, homes, work, and perhaps his ignorance of nature's complexity.'

"Today, however, citizens can help protect the remaining natural history of Kentucky for future generations by contributing all or a portion of their Kentucky tax refund to support natural area acquisition and non-game species protection," Hannan said.

In the past, money raised through the "Do Something Wild" program has been equally shared by the two state agencies. Past contributions allowed the Nature Preserves Commission to begin negotiations for the acquisition of Metropolis Lake, a fifty-acre floodplain lake in McCracken County which is a habitat for five species of rare fish. Contributions will be used to finance the acquisition of this property.

Program funds were used by the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources to begin osprey "hacking" or reintroduction of ospreys to their former nesting grounds in Kentucky.

For additional information on the program, contact the Kentucky Nature Preserves Commission at (502) 564-2886 or the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources at (502) 564-3400.

Buddy Rich To Appear At Ashland Art Center

A professional performer practically since birth, Buddy Rich will display his famous drumming Monday, February 6, at the Paramount Arts Center in Ash-

The 66-year-old Rich will appear along with his band for an 8 p.m. concert of jazz, swing and rock music. Tickets are available by calling the PAC at 606/324-3175. Half-price student seats will be sold beginning January 30.

People who expect Buddy Rich to live up to his "bad boy" reputation will be disappointed, at least according to his press agent. He is supposed to be rude, arrogant and volatile, but while Rich describes himself as a man of little patience who hates social amenities, he says, "I'm not really arrogant. I'm secure at what I do.

Rich's personality may be controversial, but everyone agrees that he is a topnotch, professional drummer and band leader. "I owe the audience the best I can give them," he feels. "When an audience goes out and spends their bucks they are totally entitled to the best performance you can give them, nothing

Born Bernard Rich, "Buddy" first appeared on stage in a vaudeville act at age 18 months. He played Broadway as a boy, but by 1938 he turned to jazz.

After working with the likes of Frank Sinatra, Artie Shaw, Tommy Dorsey and Runny Berigan, he formed band in 1946. Ever since, he has earned accolades as one of the greatest drummers in the world.

Rich's appearance is the third presentation on the annual four-event Entertainment Paramount Series, which concludes March 19 with a concert by pianist/humorist Victor Borge. For further information call Celeste Winters at 606/324-3175.

Support Pro-Consumer Utility Legislation

Utility Ratecutters of Kentucky opened up their third state office in Covington last week. At the same time, Rep. Terry Mann announced his plans to sponsor the Consumer Utility Rate Board (CURB) in the General Assembly this year. Other legislation supported by Ratecutters and Project Independence would save consumers millions of dollars each year by having utilities buy lower rate natural gas and to stop certain monopolistic practices that produce higher gas and electrical rates.

The proposal of a Consumer Utility Rate Board (CURB) is an important milestone for utility consumers of our state. It will give better representation to the consumer in the regulatory process used in our state. Rep. Terry Mann's decision to sponsor this bill is applauded by consumer groups throughout the state and is especially important because of his position as chairman of the House Energy Committee.

Utility Ratecutters of Kentucky, a consumer advocacy group fighting spiralling utility rates, is part of a larger coalition called Project Independence. Project Independence is composed of over 40 labor, consumer, community and church groups through out the state promoting consumer utility legislation in the 1984 General Assembly

Other legislation supported by Project Independence include

H.B. 57-This bill would direct the Public Service Commission to review transaction between affiliated companies to insure that the costs of coal and gas sold to one another would be just and reasonable. (Introduced by Harper, Mann, Clapp, Layman, Petty Bronger and Yates)

H.B. 215-Would require the PSC to review gas purchasing practices to insure that the lowest priced gas is being purchased. (Harper, Mann, and Yates).

S.B. 14-Would require all large utilities to undergo a management and operations audit for review by the 1986 General Assembly. (O'Daniel)

Pro consumer utility legislation has been almost ignored in the general assembly until now. With the recent passage of utility reform bills in other states and natural gas prices being deregulated, interest arose in developing a similar piece of legislation for Kentucky. With the help of Project Independence, the Utility Consumer Protection Act is being introduced as bills into the 1984 Kentucky General

Last April, representatives from various citizens' organizations came from throughout the state to the first Kentucky Energy Conference to discuss possible utility reform measures. The meeting marked the first time that Kentucky citizens had joined together to mount a coordinated campaign around utility issues. Representatives then took the proposed legislation, called the Utility Consumer Protection Act, back to their groups for endorsement and

A steering committee was formed, called Project Independence, and held a press conference on July 4, 1983 at the state capitol to announce their legislative campaign. Copies of the Act were sent to all the legislators and to all government agencies affected by the Act in order for them to review and comment on the proposed legislation.

Some of the highlights of the sevenpage bill include:

-a full moratorium on utility discon-

VA To Pay Dividend On GI Insurance

Almost $7-million will be paid to 34,945 Kentucky veterans during 1984 as a result of dividends declared by the Veterans Administration on insurance

Lee Caudill, regional office director of the VA in Louisville, said these veterans have kept their GI insurance in force since their discharge from military

The record high dividend was made possible because of improved interest earnings on the insurance funds' investments

No application for the annual dividend is needed, Caudill said. Each policyholder will receive the dividend in the month of the anniversary of the individual policy.

In Kentucky 530 World War I veterans will receive $127,000 in dividends; 28,830 World War II veterans will receive $6,008,000; 4,154 Korean War veterans will receive $497,000, and 1,411 veterans holding Veterans Reopened Insurance policies will receive $277,000.

Dividends differ under each program depending on the amount of insurance, age, plan selected and length of time the policy has been in force.

Power Demand Hits Record High During Latest Cold Snap Here

During the last cold snap, customers of Kentucky Power Company demanded more electricity during a one-hour period than at any other time in the company's history. And, the record demand came within about 2.6 percent of exceeding the generating capacity of the company's Big Sandy Plant near

The peak demand was 1,033,000 kilowatts during the hour ending at 10 a.m. Friday, Jan. 20, according to Robert E. Matthews, president. This exceeded the company's previous demand-984,000 kilowatts in February 1981-by 5 percent. "Ironically, our Big Sandy Unit 2, rated at 800,000 kilowatts, was down for maintenance and repairs at the time and, therefore, Kentucky Power Company was totally dependent on the other AFP company plants to meet its customers' needs for electricity. This was a good demonstration of the need to maintain strong transmission ties with the AEP system," Matthews

It was the second time the company exceeded its 1983-84 forecast winter peak of 970,000 kilowatts. On December 30, 1983, it reached 973,000. The most recent peak actually surpassed the forecast for 1984-85, which was 1,020,000 kilowatts. Matthews added that the peak load was 10.8 percent greater than last winter's

He attributed the Kentucky Power record to two factors. One was the very

Check Credentials of Person Claiming to Represent IRS

Persons posing as employees of the Internal Revenue Service occasionally attempt to harass taxpayers or collect money for what the imposter claims are unpaid taxes.

Taxpayers should request to see the credentials of any individual claiming to represent the IRS. Every IRS employee who makes contact with the public is required to carry distinctive identification and must show this when conducting official business. Generally, taxpayers who owe money to the IRS will receive written notification before being contacted in person.

Taxpayers who doubt the validity of the credentials offered or the identity of telephone callers can verify the person's employment by contacting the IRS' Internal Security Division, Office of Regional Inspector, collect at (502) 582-5298.

cold temperatures which put the company's 20-county service area in eastern Kentucky into a deep freeze. The other was a general improvement in the economy, with manufacturing and other industries generally up.

"However, the record becomes even more significant when one considers that coal mining in the company's service area still has not seen a recovery. The mining industry tends to lag the general economy by many months and many mining firms are still operating at reduced capacity or are temporarily shut down," Matthews added.

"It is obvious we need more generating capacity now, and that is the reason we have been working to obtain 15% of the Rockport Plant," Matthews said. Kentucky Power has made application for part ownership of the plant under construction in Indiana.

He explained that Rockport unit 1 is scheduled to go into operation later this year, and the plant represents the best option for Kentucky Power customers to obtain needed additional generating capacity.

Commonwealth of Kentucky AUDITOR OF PUBLIC ACCOUNTS Frankfort, Kentucky 40601

Dr. James B. Graham Auditor

Room 168, Capitol Annex 502-564-4226

July 25, 1983

To the People of Kentucky Honorable John Y. Brown, Jr., Governor Honorable John M. Stumbo, County Judge-Executive Members of the Floyd County Fiscal Court

We have examined the Statement of Receipts, Disbursements and Excess Fees of the County Clerk of Floyd County for the year ended December 31, 1982, and the period January 1, 1983 through February 22, 1983. Our examination was made in accordance with the "Standards for Audit of Governmental Organizations, Programs, Activities and Functions", issued by the Comptroller General of the United States, and accordingly, included such tests of the accounting records and such other auditing procedures as we considered necessary in the circumstances.

As recommended by the State Local Finance Officer, pursuant to KRS 68.210, the accompanying financial statements are prepared primarily on a cash basis. Consequently, certain revenues and the related assets are recognized when received rather than when earned, and certain expenses are recognized when paid rather than when a liability is incurred. Accordingly, the accompanying financial statements are not intended to present financial position and results of operations in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles.

We are unable to express an overall opinion on the receipts, disbursements and excess fees of the office of the County Clerk because of lack of compliance with KRS 68.210 which establishes minimum accounting requirements and internal control for all counties and county officials. We have included in our report computations of excess fees for the year ended December 31, 1982, and the period January 1, 1983 through February 22, 1983, based on the available accounting records and computed in accordance with the applicable laws and regulations. In our opinion, the excess fees reported herein reflect a minimum amount due the county.

We did not conduct a study and evaluation of internal accounting control as we concluded that the audit could be performed more efficiently by expanding substantive audit tests. Therefore, we placed very little reliance on the internal accounting control system.

We also conducted tests of compliance with state laws and regulations, and unless otherwise noted below, the tested items were in compliance with applicable state laws and regulations. During our examination, nothing came to our attention to cause us to believe that the untested items were not in compliance.

Area of noncompliance are as follows:

EXCESS FEES:

The accompanying Computations of Excess Fees reflect that the County Clerk owed excess fees to the county in the amounts of $7,057 for calendar year 1982 and $4,351 for the period January 1, 1983 through February 22, 1983.

DEFICIT IN ACCOUNTS:

Based on the available records, there was a deficit of $510,671 in the County Clerk's official accounts as of April 30, 1983.

DELINQUENT TAX DISTRIBUTION:

The County Clerk's office failed to properly distribute delinquent tax collections during the audit period. There was no remittance of taxes due the Health, Library, Extension and Fire Protection Districts. The County Clerk also did not pay the Floyd County Sheriff for the Sheriff's fees collected on delinquent taxes, nor the County Treasurer for advertising costs collected. The totals due from these collections and other inaccurate distributions for the period January 1, 1982 through February 22, 1983 are: State - $457; County - $665; School - $388; County Attorney - $418; Sheriff - $1,277; Extension District - $286; Health Department - $619; Library Board - $395; Fire Protection - $94; A Total of - $4,599.

DEED TRANSFER TAX:

The County Clerk's office did not pay deed transfer tax totaling $1,806 for the audit period. This amount is comprised of $164 from calendar year 1982 and $1,642 from February 1983.

DUE COUNTY FROM PRIOR YEARS:

We call the fiscal court's attention to the fact that previous excess fee audits of the County Clerk's office have indicated amounts due the county. These reports are detailed below:

1976 - Auditor of Public Accounts - $30,812; 1977 - Burchett and Bottoms, CPAs - $11,046; 1978 - Burchett and Bottoms, CPAs - $15,773; 1979 - Burchett and Bottoms, CPAs - $124; 1980 - Burchett and Bottoms, CPAs (Overpayment) - ($6,708); 1981 - Burchett and Bottoms, CPAs - $0; A Total of -

According to OAG 80-579, the fiscal court no longer has a claim on the excess fees due for calendar years 1976 and 1977 due to the five-year statute of limitations.

The fiscal court should also be aware that the calendar year 1981 report issued by Burchett and Bottoms, CPAs, indicates that in addition to the excess fees owed, the County Clerk also owed the following to the county or county agencies for calendar year 1977 through 1981:

Occupational License Tax - $7,330; Deed Transfer Tax - $32,974; County Delinquent Taxes - $5,266; School Delinquent Taxes - $14,984; County Attorney Delinguent Taxes - $6,082.

We recommend the fiscal court direct the County Attorney to take any necessary action to collect the remaining excess fees, i.e., calendar years 1978 through 1981, the taxes detailed in our previous comments and above, plus the excess fees of $7,057 for calendar year 1982 and $4,351 for the period January 1, 1983 through February 22, 1983 as shown in this report. We note that the excess fees in this report are dependent on the fiscal court's acceptance of the additional deputies salaries discussed under "Disallowed

Disbursements" FAILURE TO ISSUE RECEIPTS:

The County Clerk failed to issue receipts as required by KRS 64.840. PUBLICATION OF FINANCIAL STATEMENT:

The County Clerk failed to publish an annual financial statement for calendar year 1982, resulting in a violation of KRS 424.220.

DISALLOWED DISBURSEMENTS:

INADEQUATE RECORDS:

The County Clerk's disbursements included several payments which were not allowed on the Computation of Excess Fees. We have deducted these payments from the disbursements totals as shown on pages 7 and 10 of this report. We have also included notes explaining why, in our opinion, these payments should not be allowed. We refer the fiscal court to pages 8 and 11 of our report.

We note that the payment of personal expenses during 1982 detailed in Note B on page 8 constitutes a violation of KRS 64.850.

The fiscal court may at its descretion agree to accept any or all of the amounts shown as "Deputies Salaries and Extra Labor in excess of Fiscal Court Order". Any amount accepted by the fiscal court would serve to decrease the amount of excess fees due for the particular audit period.

Although we did not conduct a study and evaluation of internal accounting control, the following matters came to our attention during the course of our examination: (1) The County Clerk failed to maintain either a cash receipts or cash disbursements ledger.

(2) Daily receipts were not deposited promptly nor intact.

(3) Undeposited receipts were often held overnight or longer in a file cabinet in the County Clerk's office. (4) There were no bank reconciliations.

(5) Supporting documentation was not maintained for disbursements.

Respectfully submitted,

To the People of Kentucky Honorable John Y. Brown, Jr., Governor Honorable John M. Stumbo, County Judge-Executive Members of the Floyd County Fiscal Court

We have examined the Statement of Receipts, Disbursements and Excess Fees of the Sheriff of Floyd County for the year ended December 31, 1982, and the Jailer for the period January 1, 1982 through June 30, 1982. Our examination was made in accordance with the "Standards for Audit of Governmental Organizations, Programs, Activities and Functions", issued by the Comptroller General of the United States, and accordingly, included such tests of the accounting records and such other auditing procedures as we considered necessary in the circumstances.

Commonwealth of Kentucky

AUDITOR OF PUBLIC ACCOUNTS

Frankfort, Kentucky 40601

As recommended by the State Local Finance Officer, pursuant to KRS 68.210, the accompanying financial statements are prepared primarily on a cash basis. Consequently, certain revenues and the related assets are recognized when received rather than when earned, and certain expenses are recognized when paid rather than when a liability is incurred. Accordingly, the accompanying financial statements are not intended to present financial position and results of operations in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles.

In our opinion, the accompanying financial statements present fairly the receipts, disbursements and excess fees of the Sheriff for the year ended December 31, 1982, and the Jailer for the period January 1, 1982 through June 30, 1982, in conformity with the accounting system described above applied on a basis consistent with that of the preceding year.

We did not conduct a study and evaluation of internal accounting control as we concluded that the audit could be performed more efficiently by expanding substantive audit tests. Therefore, we placed very little reliance on the internal accounting control system.

We also conducted tests of compliance with state laws and regulations, and unless otherwise noted below, the tested items were in compliance with applicable state laws and regulations. During our examination, nothing came to our attention to cause us to believe that the untested items were not in compliance.

Comments and areas of noncompliance are as follows:

EXCESS FEES DUE COUNTY:

The accompanying statements reflect that the Sheriff and Jailer owed excess fees to the county in the amounts of $6,091 and $222 respectively at the completion of this audit.

Deficit in Accounts: Based on the available records, there was a deficit of $5,199 in the Sheriff's official accounts on December 31, 1982. He had a cash balance of $892 in the bank, but owed the county excess fees of $6,091

Publication of Financial Statement: The Sheriff failed to publish an annual financial statement as required by KRS 424.220. We recommend this statement be published annually beginning with calendar year 1983.

Overpayment of Statutory Maximum Salary: During the year, the Sheriff was paid $2,281 in excess of the statutory maximum salary of $28,387. This overpayment occurred in September when the Sheriff was paid his gross salary in advance for the months of October through December 1982. The payroll taxes relating to this gross salary were subsequently paid from the fee account without the account being reimbursed by the Sheriff. We have explained this error to the Sheriff's Chief Clerk and the reimbursement will be made.

Disallowed Disbursements: The Sheriff's disbursements included some payments which were not allowed on the Statement of Receipts, Disbursements and Excess Fees. We have deducted these payments from the disbursements total as shown on page 6 of this report. We have included notes A through D explaining why, in our opinion, these payments should not be allowed. We refer the fiscal court to page 7 of our report.

We disallowed $645 paid to employees of the Sheriff's office in excess of the amounts authorized by the fiscal court. These disallowed disbursements are discussed in Note A. The fiscal court may at its discretion agree to accept any or all of the $645 excess deputies salaries. It is our understanding that the Sheriff's office considered the additional salary necessary as compensation for overtime worked by the two individuals involved.

We also disallowed $1,800 of lump-sum auto expenses as explained in Note B. We have recommended the Sheriff obtain documentation of the lump-sum auto expenses and this is currently being done. Should proper documentation be obtained, the fiscal court may allow the amount documented as credit against excess fees.

As explained in Note C, we have disallowed $48 paid to the Internal Revenue Service as late payment penalties. We also disallowed $299 of disbursements which we considered predominately personal in nature. Our reason for disallowing these disbursements is discussed in more detail in Recommend Fee Account Reimbursement: In addition to the $2,281 salary overpayment discussed on a previous page, we recommend the Sheriff reimburse his fee account for the $48 IRS penalty and the $299 of personal expenses. We further recommend that the Sheriff reimburse his fee account for the lump-sum auto expense which he cannot document to the satisfaction of the fiscal court and all excess deputy salaries the fiscal court does not agree to accept.

We also recommend the Sheriff deposit to his fee account $125 he received as a county election commissioner. The Sheriff failed to deposit this fee to his fee account upon its receipt.

Contract Labor: There were some payments made as contact labor to employees in 1982, all of which have been allowed; however, in our opinion, these employees do not meet the criteria necessary to qualify as independent contractors. They are employees who are under the direct supervision of the Sheriff with established working hours, and who may be discharged at any time without any further financial responsibility. In order to avoid future liabilities for payroll taxes, we recommend strict adherence to state and federal regulations regarding payroll tax withholdings.

JAILER: Publication of Financial Statements: The Jailer failed to publish an annual financial statement as required by KRS 424.220. Disallowed Disbursements: As shown on page 8 and explained in Note A on page 9 of this report, the Jailer paid Deputies Salaries of $2,080 and Cook's Salary of $26 in excess of the amount allowed by the fiscal court. We have disallowed these disbursements on the Jailler's Statement of Receipts, Disbursements and Excess Fees. The fiscal court may, at its discretion, agree to accept any or all of this overpayment, and thus reduce the amount of the Jailer's excess fees by a corresponding amount. PRIOR YEAR EXCESS FEES:

at the date of this audit.

On May 5, 1982, this office issued an audit report showing Ex-Sheriff,

Douglas Lewis, owing excess fees of $20,843 to the county for the period

January 1, 1981 through August 31, 1981. This has not been paid to the county

A. You are correct that your chances of getting cancer increase with age; at 50, the incidence begins to rise significantly.

The National Cancer Institute, with which the Cancer Hopeline, Kentucky's Cancer Information Service, is affiliated, has just published a new brochure entitled "Cancer Facts for People Over 50." It is free.

This brief document is written in question and answer form and deals with such subjects as the symptoms for common cancer, what to do if you have a symptom, the regular medical tests that people over 50 should have, and what to do if you learn that you do have cancer. It also points out the progress that is being made in cancer care.

Q. My little girl died of cancer this summer. I was all right for a while, but now that my other child is back in school, and I'm back at work, the grief is worse than ever. My husband is very upset, too. is all this normal? Can you

A. Getting back into a routine after the death of a child may seem impossible at first and then even disloyal to the one who died. Perhaps the following, excerpted from Darcie Sims, the San Antonio, TX, newsletter of The Compassionate Friends, a support group for bereaved parents, will help:

'Why does it hurt so much? Why is this grief so incapacitating? If only the hurt weren't so crushing. Nothing can touch the pain of burying a child.

"There are no magic formulas for surviving grief...We know...the emptiness will never go away. It will become tolerable and liveable some day.

"Time is the longest word in our grief. We used to measure time by the steps of our child, the first word, the first tooth, first date, first car. Now we don't have to measure anymore. All we have is time, and it only seems to make the hurt worse.

'So what do we do? We must give ourselves time to hurt, to grieve, to cry. to remember.

"Be nice to yourself! Don't measure your progress through grief against anyone else. Be your own timekeeper.

'Don't push. Eventually, you will find the hours and days of grief have turned to minutes and then moments, but don't expect them to go away. We will always hurt. You don't get over grief. It only becomes tolerable and liveable.

"Change your focus a bit. Instead of dwelling on how much you lost, try thinking of how much you had. Try letting the good memories come over you as easily as the awful ones do. We didn't lose our child, he died. We didn't lose the love that flowed between us. It still flows, just differently now.

"Does it help to know that if we didn't love so much, it would not hurt so badly? Grief is the price we pay for love. And as much as it hurts, I'm very, very glad I loved! 'Don't death cause ugly shadows, but rather warm memories of the loving times you shared. Even though death comes, love never goes away.

Careful Addressing Will Get It There

If you want your Valentines to be delivered on target and on time, you can help the postal service by addressing them properly, Postmaster Don Osborne, of Prestonsburg Postoffice, said today.

"A return address should be the first address a person puts on an envelope" he said. "If there is a delivery problem, it will allow us to return the letter, card or parcel to the sender.

Both the return address and mailing address should contain complete address information. This includes all of the following elements that apply.

Full name of recipient; apartment mailbox number or house number; star route number and box number; street name and number or post office box number; city, state and—very important—ZIP CODE.

Postmaster Osborne also urged use of legible handwriting, a ball point pen and correct postage (oversized cards require extra postage). Proper addressing is especially important around holidays such as Valentine's Day, when many people do not use their return address in order to momentarily surprise the recipient. But when the card or letter is undeliverable, the one who is surprised is the sender when he or she discovers it was not received, Osborne said.

Spring Into Tree Planting

Sitting in front of a roaring fire, thinking of spring, is a good way to spend these cold winter days. A little planning for the spring months can also be done now. Spring tree planting season in Kentucky is March through April. Now is a good time to order your trees to insure getting the tree species you prefer.

Erosion control is a good reason to plant trees. Many areas have been bulldozed, exposing mineral soil. This precious soil may wash away soon in heavy rain. Planting grass and trees can stabilize the ground and save the soil. The trees will also increase in value as

Beautification is another good reason to plant trees. As a backdrop behind a house or as a screen between properties, roads, or swimming pool, trees can efficiently cut down on unwanted sound and vision while improving the overall appearance of the land. White pine is especially desired for this purpose due to its fast growth, beautiful blue-green color, delicate symetry and limb-holding

Four other species of pine are also available from the Kentucky Division of

Job Training Funds To Be Allocated

Human Resources Secretary Al Austin recently announced preliminary Job Training Partnership Act allocations to the state's nine service delivery areas for programs operating between July 1, 1984 and June 30, 1985.

"Almost $25.5 million is available under Title II-A for such programs as classroom and on-the-job training programs and employability skills development for youth and adults," he said. "In addition, the allocation for 1985 summer youth programs is nearly $12 million.'

Each area's share of JTPA dollars depends on the number of unemployed and low-income people compared to other areas, Employment Services Commissioner James Daniels explained. "We have used our most recent unemployment figures as the basis for these preliminary allocations so the areas can have a 'ball park' estimate to begin planning programs: However, final allocations won't be known until late February or early March because they will be based on revised unemployment data," he said.

For EKCEP, which includes Floyd and 22 other area counties, $4.8 million in Title II-A funds have been allocated along with $2.2 million for summer

Forestry, as well as 10 species of hardwoods, including black walnut. Trees can be ordered in bundles of 100, 500 and 1000, with prices ranging from $12.00 to $125.00. A special wildlife packet containing a mixture of 100 seedlings is also available for $17.00.

For more information or to order trees, contact the Kentucky Division of Forestry, 503 South Lake Drive, Prestonsburg, Ky. 41653, telephone: 886-8562.

USAA Winner

The United States Achievement Academy announced today that Patricia Ann Howell has been named a 1984 United States National Award winner in science.

Miss Howell, who attends McDowell High School was nominated for this National Award by Mrs. Joan Caldwell, science teacher at the school, and will appear in the United States Achievement Academy Official Yearbook, published nationally.

Miss Howell is the daughter of Delmer and Ruth Howell. Her grandparents are the late Henry and Rosa Skeans, of Hunter, and the late Wayne and Nancy Howell, of McDowell.

W-2 Forms Necessary To File Tax Return

Every person employed during 1983 should receive a Form W-2, "Wage and Tax Statement," from your employer(s) by January 31, 1984. Even if you worked only part of the year, you must be furnished a statement.

Form W-2 provides a record of the amount of wages that you were paid, and the amount of federal income tax withheld. It also shows the amount of social security (FICA) tax that was withheld from your wages, and any uncollected employee FICA tax on tips.

The form is important because a copy of it must accompany your tax return as proof of income and tax withheld. Taxpayers who worked for more than one employer during the year must attach a Form W-2 from each employer. If you have not received a Form W-2 from each of your employers by mid-February you should first check with your employer(s). After making a reasonable effort to obtain the Form W-2 and having been unsuccessful, you should contact your local IRS office or call the IRS at 584-1361 in Louisville, or toll-free 1-800-424-1040 elsewhere in Kentucky.

Occasionally, a taxpayer receives a 'Wage and Tax Statement' which contains the wrong Social Security number or incorrect dollar amounts. In case of an error, ask that your employer issue a Form W-2C to replace the incorrect W-2. A copy of the Form W-2C statement, and copies of any other statements received, should be filed with your return.

Boulder Now in Georgia Memorial to Floyd Romance

A rock that lies in the backyard of J.J. and Rosa Lee Jacob in the Waycross, Georgia area is more than merely a little part of their native Floyd county. It is a monument to their continuing romance which began at Garrett almost

They call the 842-pound boulder 'Rosie's Rock" and moved it last year from its original site on the property of Bessie Scott Jackson at Garrett to Waycross. The story is reprinted in part from The Times-Union, Jacksonville,

"It's just a big rock, but it's a very sentimental rock," said Mrs. Jacobs, a mobile-home sales manager in Waycross.

'It brings back memories of our childhood-of our meeting.'

It was September, 1945 when Mrs. Jacobs, a sophomore at Garrett (Ky.) High School, first saw Jacobs, now director of marketing for Guerdon Industries Inc. in Waycross.

Young Jacobs was sitting on the huge rock, a spot usually reserved for tobacco-chewing and wood-whittling

"I used to walk home along the railroad tracks, and I saw J.J. sitting on the rock in front of the small country store. I had never met him. He used to deliver feed and hay in a horse-drawn wagon for the store," Mrs. Jacobs

"I thought to myself that he was cute. He had on a pair of bib overalls, a checkered shirt and a brimmed hat that was turned up in the front ... like what Gabby Hayes used to wear.'

Although shy, young Jacobs made the first move. He said hello.

That brief greeting led him to bolder action several days later when he knocked on his future wife's door

'This I remember distinctly. I was out back washing clothes. We didn't have electricity, a washing machine or a telephone. We boiled our clothes back then in an old black kettle and used a washboard," Mrs. Jacobs said.

This must have been a Saturday because we always washed on Saturday, and J.J. asked me to go the show with him the next day," she said.

At 16, Mrs. Jacobs said she had never had a real date. She gave Jacobs a maybe on his offer.

Playing hard-to-get, Mrs. Jacobs said, she went to the movie with a girlfriend, the former Bonnie Jean Daniels, who later married Jacobs' older brother,

"I saw J.J. at the show and talked to him when I came home. He wanted to know why I stood him up. He wouldn't speak to me for a couple of days, but we became close friends," she said.

After high school, the two went their separate ways.

'J.J. went to Pennsylvania to pick asparagus, and he later joined the Army. I went to live with my sister in LaPorte, Ind. I worked in a laundry and then in a canning factory in Belevedere, time," she said.

> John C. Hall Founder Hall Funeral Home

IS IT IMPORTANT TO ATTEND A FUNERAL?

Yes, it is, and for a variety of reasons.

First, it shows you care. Your being there is appreciated by the members of the family. You can help just by offering to help and meaning it. By attending the funeral, you help share the grieving-and grief-shared is grief-diminished.

Of course, if you were out of town or incapacitated during the funeral period, your not attending is understandable. In such a case, a telegram, letter or phone call helps the family understand your plight.

Visiting the bereaved to offer your assistance and condolences is proper conduct. In fact, many mourners may feel it your obligation to observe this custom out of respect for the family or friendship for the deceased.

If you fail to observe these simple social amenities, you may be unintentionally cutting your ties with the family of the bereaved. It behooves you to attend, to visit, to console the bereaved.

Hearst Foundation Sponsors Award

In 1897 Phoebe Apperson Hearst, mother of newspaper magnate, William Randolph Hearst, helped to found the National Congress of Mothers, which later became the National Congress of Parents and Teachers (PTA). The William Randolph Hearst Foundation, in memory of Mrs. Hearst and her commitment to excellence in education, has granted the National PTA $75,000 to establish the annual Phoebe Apperson Hearst Outstanding Educator Award.

According to Elaine Stienkemeyer, president of the 5.3 million member National PTA, "The Phoebe Apperson Hearst Outstanding Edcator Award will honor an outstanding educator whose achievements and commitment to education inspire excellence in students and educators. We will ask our 25,000 PTAs to nominate an outstanding educator in their community who continues to carry on the work of Mrs. Hearst by contributing to the mental, physical and emotional development of children."

The outstanding educator who is selected will receive a cash award of $2,500 and a trip to the National PTA convention which in 1984 will be held June 17-20 in Las Vegas, Nevada. The local PTA which nominated the Outstanding Educator will also receive $2,500 to use in a school project of interest to the winning educator. The name of the outstanding educator and nominating local unit will be announced at that time.

Nominating forms will be sent to presidents of local unit PTAs to fill out and return to National PTA Headquarters. Entries will be judged by a selection committee consisting of National PTA leaders. Deadline for entry forms will be midnight, April, 1984

Poultry Influenza Causes Price Rise

As a result of the avian influenza outbreak in the eastern United States, egg and broiler prices are higher now than they have been for some time, according to Extension animal scientist Dr. John Tuttle in the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

"When the influenza was first discovered in Pennsylvania last April, the mortality rate was about one percent," he said. "Since then, the virus has modified and mortalities run as high as

Since April, losses from the influenza-through the disease and through eradication efforts-have been more than nine million birds. The disease is still spreading and eradication efforts have not quelled its spread.

Egg and broiler prices will continue to be high until late spring at least, Tuttle said. He advises consumers to shop around. "Some supermarkets are still carrying broilers as a loss leader and it pays to seek out such specials," he said, Diuretics are often prescribed for patients without their being appraised of the potential dangers. The instant slimming power of diuretics, commonly prescribed to relieve menstrual bloating, is seductive. Unfortunately many women think that they are losing weight when in reality they are losing salt and water. Soon they turn to the pills whenever they want to shed a few pounds in a hurry. When taken chronically, diuretics can pose a real danger. The chronic user's potassium level can become abnormally low, leading to erratic heart rhythms, which in turn can lead to sudden death. Diuretic abuse can also lead to metabolic disturbances and deterioration of kidney function.

Whether your physician prescribes a diuretic or any other type of medication for you or a member of your family have him call it into COOLEY APOTHECARY. We meet the highest level of professionalism in our business and would be honored to become your pharmacy. We are located in No. 2 Town Center Bldg., 886-8106. Master Charge and Visa. Osteoporosis Can Be Prevented

Many of us know someone—usually a woman over the age of 60-who has broken a hip or wrist while doing a routine task. Bone fractures are common among elderly women, we have heard, because their bones simply weaken with age. In point of fact, weakening of the bones is not an inevitable part of the aging process. It is a treatable disease called osteoporosis. Roughly 15 million Americans suffer from some degree of osteoporosis, and about 88 percent of the cases occur in women. Osteoporosis can begin as early as age 35, so that by the time a person reaches the age of 60, her (or his) bones are thinner and break more easily than those of someone who has not developed the disease. Every year, 190,000 elderly persons fracture hip bones. Osteoporosis is often the underlying cause, and many of these people decline in health and die within six months of the injury. This tragedy is made all the more terrible by the fact that osteoporosis is largely preventable.

Osteoporosis is a progressive disease, meaning that once it begins, it continues to worsen if not treated. Osteoporosis is caused by a decrease in calcium and other substances that maintain strong bones. Women are more likely to contact the disease, partly because their bones are smaller to start with, and also because changes that occur during menopause lower the levels of calcium and estrogen in their bodies, thereby accelerating their loss of bone tissue.

For most women, the gradual bonethinning process that occurs in osteoporosis is painless. In fact, the first sign of disease often appears on an x-ray taken for another purpose or, unfortunately, when a bone is fractured. The disorder usually shows up first in the bones of the forearm and the spine. It may later affect the upper part of the thigh bone, where it helps to form the hip. Women who lose bone mass in their vertebrae or spine may suffer from lower back pains because the shrunken vertebrae move closer together and put strain on the back muscles. This type of bone loss and weakening can result in outstanding job, yet the commission's loss of height or a curvature of the spine that you may have heard referred to as 'dowager's hump.

Doctors try to stop or slow down the rate of bone loss in patients with osteoporosis in a number of ways-by prescribing diets rich in calcium and adequate in protein, for example, and by encouraging patients to get plenty of daily exercise, such as walking, bicycling or another activity appropriate to the age and physical condition of the patient. Vitamin D supplements often are rescribed because vitamin D aids in the absorption of calcium from food. An effective and common drug treatment for slowing bone loss in women after menopause is estrogen therapy. Neither vitamin D nor estrogen should be used, however, except under close medical supervision.

Of course, the osteoporosis that shows up in the later years had its beginnings much earlier, which is why medical experts today recommend that preventive measures be started as early as possible. A woman should get plenty of calcium in her diet throughout life, but particularly after the age of 40 and following menopause. Dark green, leafy vegetables are excellent sources of calcium, as are milk and milk products. To make sure that you get the calcium you need, discuss your diet with your doctor. After estimating the calcium content of a person's normal diet, a doctor can recommend calcium supplement tablets, if necessary, to bring daily calcium intake up to the proper level for that individual.

Staying active appears to protect against osteoporosis, too. While there is no hard proof that exercise will prevent the disorder, we do know that lack of physical activity hastens bone loss and that regular exercise of the type that works the muscles against gravity, such as walking, bicycling and running, serves to maintain and actually strengthen bones.

Osteoporosis is a common problem, a serious problem for millions of Americans. But it is not an inevitable consequence of the aging process. By keeping your calcium intake at the proper level and by getting the right kinds of exercise on a regular basis, you can do a great deal to protect yourself against this disabling, but preventable, disease. Why not start today?

Kentucky Music Educators To Convene In Lexington

The Kentucky Music Educators Association will convene for their Twenty-Sixth Annual In-Service Conference, February 1-4 at the Lexington Convention Center-Hyatt Regency-Radisson Plaza complex in Lexington. An impressive array of over thirty clinic sessions will be provided the practicing music educators plus opportunities to hear musical performances by twentysix performing groups from Kentucky's elementary and secondary schools, colleges and universities. The theme for the 1984 In-Service Conference is "Speak Out For Music Education" as the Kentucky Music Educators showcase music education in the Commonwealth.

Bell Heatedly Defends Quality of Operations

Saying its business practices will withstand the toughest examination, South Central Bell has asked the Kentucky Public Service Commission (PSC) to conduct a full management audit of Bell's Kentucky operations.

"We're completely frustrated by the PSC's unjustified criticism of how we run the business," said Stan Dickson, Bell vice president. "We want an audit, to remove the cloak of suspicion thrown over us by the PSC's latest rate order, and to resolve the issues keeping the company and the PSC apart.

The PSC's harsh judgments of Bell operations are completely unfounded, Dickson said.

'Every one of our employees has worked hard and sacrificed to trim this company down and bring it through a period of wrenching change," he said. "We've cut our employee force by 28 percent since 1980. This enabled us to save about $60 million in salaries and wages in 1983 alone. There's been no recognition of this effort from the PSC. Instead, we get reprimands for supposedly doing little to cut costs."

A letter detailing Bell's audit request was delivered to the commission Thursday. The letter emphasized that the audit firm the PSC chooses should have the experience and resources to fully study a company Bell's size.

'We want this job done right, to erase any questions about the quality of our operation," Dickson said. "The fact is, we've done too good a job for any knowledgeable organization to ignore.

'Kentucky's telecommunications network is second to none. We've steadily provided the latest technology to Kentucky homes and business, and we're serving more customers and more phone lines than ever. We're switching more than 9.5 million local calls everyday, and the number continues to grow. We've accomplished all this while continually cutting our costs and trimming our work force," Dickson said.

That's just the tip of the iceberg. The fact is, we've done a whale of a job here. We've set the standards for all Kentucky companies, not just regulated ones. We think it's time for the PSC to recognize that, and to recognize the day-to-day realities of our operation.

"Our business doesn't run on textbooks theories—we have to deal with real competition and real costs, and we have to be there when the customer wants a dial tone. We've done an latest ruling hints that we're stupid or dishonest or both. We're requesting a management audit, to prove that we're

'Some folks will say we wouldn't ask for an audit if we didn't think we'd look good. That's absolutely right-we think we'll look very, very good. And if the audit shows areas we need to shape up, we'll do it. Nobody's perfect.'

Nevertheless, study after study shows the Bell companies to be among the country's best-operated, Dickson said. Proof lies in the fact that telephone rates have risen less than half as much as consumer prices, while at the same time, servica quality continues to improve, he argued.

Money Problems...

Money problems are not confined to people on the lower end of the economy, the February Reader's Digest reports. Because salaries usually lag behind rising expenses, 36 percent of families with annual incomes over $25,000 interviewed in a recent survey reported that they "frequently" had trouble meeting their monthly bills.

I find that it is impossible for me to thank each individual who has been so kind to me during my illness. So I use this method to acknowledge my deep gratitude to each of you who remembered me with visits, cards, prayers and other expressions of love and concern. You have meant more to me than you perhaps realize.

HOT DOG ... THE MOVIE (R-MGM-UA) Starring David Naughton, Patrick Houser, Tracy N. Smith * *

By J.T. YURKO

Not long ago teen scream movies came forth with regu-larity. Take a few teenagers, put them in a cabin, add one maniac with a talent for instant adolescent dissection, and you had a movie. Then you did a sequel of the movie. The third time around you did it in 3-D.

Movie producers then found that they could save a lot of money on fake blood by having the same teenagers in the same cabin just take their clothes off. What a long way movies have come since
Frankie ogled Annette in her

Essentially "Hot Dog...The Movie" is little more than a

Frankie-and-Annette film, but updated with such staples of 1980s teen movies as wet Tshirt contests and sex in a

The script, however, does litthe script, nowever, does it-tle to improve on the old formula. Boy still meets girl, loses girl and gets girl, but there isn't much more motiva-tion or complexity than that.

"Hot Dog" concerns itself with ski slopes instead of beaches and surfboards, but the rest of the details aren't worth mentioning. The film does have remarkable footage of skiers competing in free-style competition. This is the closest thing to dance and acrobatics on skis that you'll ever see, and some of it is quite spectacular.

Mike Marvin, who wrote and directed three films about sking in the early 1970s, was responsible for shooting the special ski sequences. He also designed the skiing/parachute chase for James Bond in "The Spy Who Loved Me.

Unfortunately, Marvin is also this film's scriptwriter. That task should have been given to someone else, since the story and characters are secondary and characters are secondary to the skiing sequences. With a better script, "Hot Dog" might have approached the best teen movies such as "Risky Business." As it is, "Hot Dog" is a mindless diversion with plenty of nudity to keep you diverted. diverted.

Dee Wallace soars as female astronaut

By Joan Crosby

Dee Wallace, who portrayed the mother who hid playful extraterrestrial in "E.T.," gets a chance to go into outer space herself in "The Sky's No Limit," airing Feb. 7 on CBS.

The film portrays the competition between three women (Miss Wallace, Sharon Gless and Anne Archer) to become the United States' first female astronaut. Miss Wallace portrays Maureen Harris, a botanist and physicist from California with two young children — the only mother among the prospective astronauts.

The drama was filmed on location at the Lyndon B. Johnson Space Center in Houston. The actresses wore real space suits, which Miss Wallace says she found awkward.

'There's a mesh jumpsuit into which tubes go and it's possible to make the temperature warmer or cooler. Then on the outside is that thing I call the 'doughboy' look. When that's on, the gloves go on and are locked on. The helmet is locked on. You have to depend on someone else to get you in it and out of it.

'It's a very claustrophobic feeling in there. I remember saying to the director, 'There will be someone standing by to get us out of these, won't Miss Wallace says the movie might be criticized for making the women astronauts seem overly emotional. "One of the things we hear in life in that astronauts shouldn't bare emotions. That's like saying preachers shouldn't make money or psychiatrists never go to psychiatrists.

In addition to "E.T.," Miss Wallace had a small role in the film "10" and several TV roles. She says she plans to do a series soon, but the deal has not yet been signed.

State-Jobless Rate Hits Two-Year Low

Kentucky's preliminary unemployment rate for December was 9.8 percent, the lowest rate in two years and the first time in 19 months it has fallen below the 10.0 percent mark, according to figures released today by the Cabinet for Human Resources. The rate was onetenth of a percent less than the 9.9 percent rate recorded in May 1982, the last time the rate was below 10.0 percent, and the same as the 9.8 percent rate for December 1981

'Seasonal hiring in tobacco and trade primarily was responsible for the rate decrease." said state labor market analyst Ed Blackwell. The rate dropped six-tenths of a percent from the revised November rate of 10.4 percent. The comparable national rate was 8.0 percent in December, down from 8.1 prcent in November.

'Total employment increased by 15,600, from 1,512,900 in November to 1,528,500 in December," Blackwell said. 'The December estimate was 43,400 higher than the 1,485,100 recorded in December 1982 and the highest total recorded since October 1982, when employment was 1,529,700.

Employment in nonagricultural wage and salary jobs increased by 7,200 in trade, which Blackwell said included temporary jobs in retail trade for the Christmas season and some jobs in the tobacco wholesale trade industry, such as marketing and warehousing. Employment was up by 2,500 in tobacco manufacturing because of a seasonal increase in stemming and redrying jobs.

Other employment increases were in manufacturing of non-electrical machinery, 400; manufacting of electrical machinery, 300; finance, insurance and real estate, 300; state and local education, 300; manufacturing of lumber and furniture, 200; manufacturing of transportation equipment, 200; and bituminous coal mining, 200, Blackwell

The number of Kentuckians who were unemployed in December was 165,300, the lowest figure recorded since December 1981, when 165,100 were unemployed. Last month's figure is down 9,600 from Novomber, when 174,900 were unemployed, and 31,700 below the 197,000 recorded in December 1982, when the rate was 11.7 percent.

The civilian labor force increased for the fifth consecutive month, reaching 1,693,800 in December, compared to 1,687,800 for November and 1,682,100 for December 1982. The labor force includes only non-military persons who currently are employed and unemployed people actively seeking work.

Don't Wait For Tax Package To File Return

If you haven't received your tax package by now, you probably won't receive one this year, the Internal Revenue Service says.

Tax packages are mailed each year shortly after the December holidays, and are received by most taxpayers during the first two weeks in January or earlier. Due to the postage costs involved, tax packages only receive limited forwarding. Those that cannot be delivered as addressed are not forwarded outside of local carrier routes, IRS

Some taxpayers wait well into February hoping that their tax packages will still arrive in the mail. Although tax packages are very helpful in filing federal tax returns, especially due to the computerized peel-off address labels and coded envelopes they contain, these items are not absolutely necessary to file

Taxpayers who do not receive tax returns forms in the mail may obtain forms from many libraries, banks, post offices, IRS offices, or by calling the IRS toll-free number, 1-800-424-1040

The Kentucky Garden Journal

Are you like me—you love new things? A new pair of shoes, a new book, a heavenly, gooey chocolate candy bar (only one week and my New Year's resolution to diet is gone!).

For gardeners, each new year brings new plants—tastier vegetables, new colored flowers, more productive apple trees, hardier trees and shrubs. I always look forward to the announcement of each year's All American Selection winners, and order my seed when the first catalogs arrive to be sure I get my share.

Two vegetables and one flower were chosen as 1984 winners. One in particular interests me because ever since the release in 1979 of the original Sugar Snap edible round-podded pea, improvements have continued to be made of this delicious vegetable.

This year the snap pea "Sugar Ann" won a silver medal. Although I liked last year's Sugar Bon, Sugar Ann sounds even better. Improvements in this snap pea variety are its dwarf size—18 inches—no trellis required, and its early harvest—two weeks ahead of Sugar Snap. Eat it raw, steamed, sauteed or stir-fried, and can or freeze any extra.

The other new vegetable is "Celebrity", a tomato that produced very well last year in test gardens despite the drought. A major objective in its breeding was to develop as much disease resistance as possible. This was accomplished as Celebrity as resistant to two fungal wilts—verticillum (V) and fusarium (F—races 1 and 2), to the major tomato virus—tobacco mosaic virus (TMV), and to those microscopic wormlike organisms, nematodes (N), that cause large growths or root knots on tomato plant roots.

Celebrity is a determinate, not a climbing or indeterminate plant, although a cage or short pole is recommended. First fruits begin maturing about 70 days after transplant. Fruits are round, smooth, firm and flavorful.

The 1984 AAS flower winner is the rose-pink, double-bloomed zinnia "Border Beauty Rose". Heat and disease resistant, plenty of flowers are produced on the twenty-inch plants for cutting and for show. Look for the red, white and blue AAS shield on seed packets of all three of these winners.

There are many, many other wonderful new fruits and vegetables this year but the lists are so long. I've tried to highlight the more unusual or productive ones:

*Florida Lanai—a 12 to 15 inch tomato plant for six-inch pots. Up to 40 halfounch fruits per plant. (Pan American Seed Company)

*Bush Pickle Hybrid—four to five inch pickling cucumbers on a small vine good for containers or small gardens. (Goldsmith and Liberty)

*Packman—heavy-headed broccoli with good side shoot development after main head is cut. (Stokes, Twilley and other seed companies) *Jade Pagoda, Tropical Delight,

China Pride and Hybrid G-new varieties of the increasingly popular Chinese cabbage. (Agway, Twilley and Liberty)

*Green Magic—48 day, six to eightinch dark green zucchini squash on 18 inch by 18 inch plants. (Park Seed)

*Easter Egg and Rainbow—mixtures of round-rooted purple, violet, red, pink and white radishes. (Park Seed and Thompson & Morgan)

*Bush Star—two pound, salmonfleshed cantaloupe on vines spreading only two feet. (Harris and Liberty)

*Red Salad Bowl—a heat tolerant red leafed lettuce. (Liberty) *Spud-Buds—marble-sized notato

*Spud-Buds—marble-sized potato tubers that yield large potatoes when planted. (Park Seed)

Timely Tip: If you start your own transplants, develop an easy-to-check-calendar of starting dates to keep you on schedule. For example, start broccoli transplants in late January to early February for mid to late March planting, and tomatoes when you plant your broccoli for late April to mid May planting. Post your seeding calendar where you'll readily and frequently see it—on the refrigerator, by the telephone, even on the washing machine lid.

Agribusiness, Pesticide Meeting Set Feb. 13-14

More than 70 agribusiness, pesticide, university and government people will provide leadership and training for the second annual Agribusiness and Pesticide Conference scheduled Feb. 13 and 14 in Louisville.

The comprehensive educational meeting is expected to draw some 500 participants from Kentucky and surrounding states, according to Dr. Chris Christensen, Extension entomologist in the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture and conference coordinator.

Four different educational programs will be presented concurrently during the conference. "These are designed to provide technical update training for members from the participating organizations," said Christensen.

The programs to be presented during the conference, which is being sponsored by eight different organizations, are: an agricultural pesticide workshop; turf and ornamental workshop; fumigation short course and pesticide applicator certification training.

Besides pesticide applicator certification training, the conference will provide continuing certification credit for commercial pesticide applicators and private applicator recertification credit.
"Private applicators, which includes farmers, must attend one approved training meeting every five years to maintain their certified status," Christensen noted.

The Kentucky Department of Agriculture's division of pesticides handles certification examination and credit for Kentucky applicators.

Christensen said continuing certification credit for pesticide applicators certified in other states has been requested from Indiana, Ohio, Missouri, Kansas, New York, Virginia, West Virginia, Georgia and North Carolina.

In addition to the educational sessions, technical presentations will be available in the form of poster exhibits and live specimen displays.

The Galt House in Louisville is headquarters for the conference. Christensen said individuals should make their own lodging reservations. Registration will be at the door, unless pre-registration is specifically required by an organization. The fee is $40 per person, and an extra $10 for people attending a fumigation short course to cover the cost of a workbook.

More information is available from Christensen at: S225 Ag Science Center North, Department of Entomology, University of Kentucky, Lexington, Ky. 40546-0091. His phone number is 606-257-5956.

The first iron printing press to be used was the Stanhope press, invented by Charles, the third Earl of Stanhope in 1798.
