driver, Dennie Carroll, 24, of Craynor. Students hospitalized included Patrick McKinney, 16, of Craynor, who was admitted to Pikeville Methodist Hospital with a broken leg; Leann Hall, 16, Tina Newsome, 16, Teresa Evans, 16, and Thedia Henderson, 14, all of Craynor, who were admitted to the McDowell Appalachian Regional Hospital for x-rays and observation; Michelle Tackett, 14, and Yulema Tackett, 17, both of Craynor, who were treated and released from Methodist Hospital; Priscilla Tackett, 15, of Craynor, treated at Betsy Layne, and Greg Frasure, 16, of Grethel who was also treated and released from an area hospital. All were later reported in satisfactory condition. Dwayne Hall and Johnny Tackett who helped passengers from the overturned bus, said the students remained calm. Also on the scene were workers from the nearby Mud Creek Clinic, where some of the students were taken for first aid. On Jan. 2, 1980, three grade-school children were hospitalized with bone fractures after a school bus collided with a county gravel truck, about half a mile south of the scene of Friday's accident here for the Bureau of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement, said state and company officials reached general agreement on short-term remedies for environmental problems caused by the tipple operation and discussed some long-term alternatives to the present, antiquated system of piping slurry wastes into old mine workings at the head of Clear Creek.

Tipple operators agreed to remove two valves which permitted discharge of wastes directly into Clear Creek and to provide better protection for the pipeline, Thacker said. The pipes would probably be buried, he said.

In the long run, the whole system of injecting coal waste into the surrounding hills may have to be scrapped in favor of a more satisfactory disposal method, the state official said. The tipple owners are being required to submit their plans for upgrading the plant as part of an application for a mining permit revision,

Ex-Workers Tell Jury Of Threats, Gunfire At Ray-Mac Mine Site

Former workers at the Ray-Mac strip mine on Bill Hall Branch, near McDowell, and truck drivers who hauled coal from the mine told a federal court jury last week that they were threatened and fired on by workers from nearby mines.

Federal prosecutors claim the shots. were fired by miners in league with Edgar Jones, president of the rival JRM Coal Company, as part of a plot to disrupt the new Ray-Mac mine and take over the operation themselves. Defense attorneys say two weeks of incidents reported at the Ray-Mac operation two years ago stemmed from efforts by UMWA members to organize the nonunion mine.

Danny Blanton, of McDowell, who drove a coal truck under contract with Ray-Mac, told of pickets gathered at the entrance to the Ray-Mac mine as he attempted to lead a convoy of three laden coal trucks off the site on Tuesday, Feb. 16, 1982. His truck was sprayed with gunfire as he crossed the picket line, he said. Blanton said he saw Drexil Hall, one of the defendants, take aim at him with a handgun as he approached the mine entrance. He shifted to neutral and lay down as a bullet whistled through the open cab window, the driver said. About 100 shots were fired, including some which damaged his truck's engine and brake lines, he said.

The pickets scattered when Ray-Mac foremen Raymond "Pete" Barker and Glenn Hurley and equipment operator David Stevens returned their fire, Blanton testified

Over the objections of defense counsel, Blanton also told of telephone threats he allegedly received at home the night before. Phillip Booth, whom he identified as one of those firing shots at the Ray-Mac mine entrance Tuesday morning, had warned him Monday night not to haul any more coal from the mine, Blanton said. Booth told him, "we'll get you one way or another," the truck driver testified. Earlier that day, Hall threatened to blow up Blanton's coal truck, the driver alleged.

Booth, who is listed by the government as an unindicted co-conspirator, is expected to be a key prosecution witness. U.S. District Judge G. Wix Unthank admonished the jury that Booth's alleged threats to Blanton could not be counted as evidence against any of the defendants unless it was subsequently shown that they were in fact linked with him in

On the other hand, those opposed to the tax express the opinion that the only problem is seeing that voters have the opportunity to sign a petition to put it to

Opposition to the tax generally focusses on the hardships it would impose on the poor and elderly. "It's a regressive tax, a tax on the very poor," said Bill Reynolds, of Allen, a former state legislator.

And some who are not necessarily opposed to the tax argue that the measure should nevertheless be put to a vote. 'That was the reason the state took off the utilities tax-to give every district the right to vote on it themselves, Reynolds said. "All it is, is democracy."

Board Endorses Minerals Levy

The Board of Education last week voted to "endorse and support" a bill which would tax unmined coal like any other real property.

The vote to back House Bill 92, which is currently in the hands of a state legislative committee, followed recommendations by a task force set up by Supt. E.P. Grigsby, Jr. to study ways of financing the Floyd school district and by the Kentucky Fair Tax Coalition.

The task force, which was represented at last Wednesday's board meeting by McDowell Principal Gary Frazier, also won board support for legislation permitting local governments to levy a sales tax on alcoholic beverages and for consideration of a state lottery as a way of funding the schools.

Joe Szakos, of David, an organizer for the Kentucky Fair Tax Coalition, said Floyd county's estimated 3.5 billion tons of unmined coal could yield $1.7 million in revenue for the county and $1.5 million for the school district, based on 1982 tax rates. Szakos had previously appeared several times before the board to seek its support for an unmined minerals tax

School principals have been told they must not use school time for basketball practice, Grigsby told the board. A team of state inspectors said in a report to the board last month that they had turned up some instances of physical education classes being devoted to ball practice.

In a curt memorandum initialled by Grigsby, Asst. Supt. Ron Hager and Physical Education Coordinator Frankie Francis, principals were told the class-time practice "is to stop immediately." Grigsby said later that Betsy Layne and Allen Central high schools had been named as offenders by the state inspectors. School board policy requires that a minimum of six hours daily be given to classroom instruction. Hired by the board were:

Bonita King, teacher at Clark Elementary; Ruth Webb, certified substitute teacher; Joyce Hall, Headstart bus driver at Stumbo Elementary; Pamela Little, janitor at Melvin; Deborah Belcher, part-time clerk at Clark; and Nancy Vaughn Martin, emergency substitute teacher.

UTILITY TAX: WHY?

By GARY FRAZIER

On January 19, 1984, the Floyd County Board of Education proposed a 3% utility tax to finance improvements in our local schools. This action came following the recommendation of the Floyd County Task Force on School Finance. As a member of that Task Force, I found that we needed to address several fundamental questions concerning our schools:

- 1. Are improvements needed in instructional programs in the Floyd County Schools?
- 2. Are new buildings and/or renovation of existing structures necessary?
- 3. Is there sufficient revenue available to fund the improvements in instructional programs and construct or renovate buildings?
- 4. Is it feasible for the Floyd County Board of Education to adopt a utility tax at this time?

As a task force, we found the answers to these questions to be relatively obvious. It was our conclusion that improvements are needed in existing instructional programs in Floyd County. While the tremendous majority of our teachers are making every effort to provide quality instruction for our children, they are hindered in this effort by a lack of instructional materials, a shortage of needed, but expensive, supplemental materials for reading, etc., lack of funds for field trips, a lack of funds for needed paper, duplicating materials, equipment, etc. We found that ther e was no question that improvements are needed, and most of them are expensive.

The second question can be answered with a tour of the existing schools in Floyd County. Many of our children are attending school in the same buildings attended by their grandparents! Other buildings in the county system are very overcrowded. The need for a new middle school in the Prestonsburg area is critical. New facilities are desperately needed for McDowell High School and Wheelwright High School. Additions and/or renovation are needed at Allen Elementary, Prestonsburg High School, Allen Central High School, Garrett Elementary, Prestonsburg Elementary, Wayland Elementary, and Melvin Elementary.

The third question was the simplest to answer. Sufficient revenue does not exist to fund the improvements in instructional programs and to construct new buildings or renovate existing structures. The Floyd County school system is not adequately financed to fund existing instructional programs and maintain existing structures properly. To suggest that the mentioned improvements could be done without a substantial increase in revenue is fantasy! On the contrary, unless more revenue is generated locally, cutbacks in existing programs will surely begin next year!

The fourth question concerns the feasibility of the utility tax at this time. The Task Force felt that the tax was not only feasible but necessary. We favor the utility tax because it will provide the needed revenue, will be simple to administer and collect, and will fall fairly on all classes of taxpayers. If, for example, an average family has a utility bill totaling $100, then the tax would amount to $3.00 per month. Surely, no one could argue with payment of such a small sum to provide quality education for Floyd County's children.

One final question needs to be answered: What will the money which results from the utility tax achieve for Floyd County? The bonding capacity generated by the utility tax would allow the following building projects to begin in the near future:

- 1. A new middle school in the Prestonsburg vicinity to serve grades 6-8 to relieve overcrowding at Clark and Prestonsburg Elementary Schools.
- 2. A new addition at Allen Elementary consisting of six classrooms, library, physical education facility, administrative offices, and restrooms. The existing structure will be renovated. 3. A new high school at McDowell.
- 4. Additions at Prestonsburg High School and Allen Central High School to house industrial education
- 5. A new high school to replace the existing facility at Wheelwright. 6. A new kitchen/cafeteria at Martin Elementary with conversion of the existing cafeteria area to instructional space.
- 7. The following elementary schools would be renovated:
 - a. Garrett
 - d. Wayland e. Auxier
 - b. Prestonsburg c. Melvin
- 8. A four-classroom addition at Betsy Layne Elementary. The existing facilities would be renovated and the old high school structure removed from the site.

Additionally, the new revenue would allow our schools to have art teachers, music teachers, counselors for the elementary schools, computer education, as well as significant increases in instructional materials. We have an opportunity in Floyd County to provide the revenue needed to make the improvements we all know are necessary for our schools. The price each of us will pay for these improvements, however, is small. The question should not be whether we can afford to pass the utility tax; for the future of our children, can we afford not to?

A MYSTERIOUS VISITOR

Back in the days when the 20th century was young, there was a sheltering roof for every stranger, for the ne'er-dowell, the feeble-minded, all whose handicaps, mental or physical, left them at the mercy of others. Refuge for such as these was not supplied at taxpayers' expense in those days. Instead, charitable householders accepted these unfortunates, almost without exception.

As a consequence, some strange characters showed up as guests. Perhaps the strangest of these to visit and remain for a time in our rural community was a man known only as Cap-

Whence he came has not to this day been fully determined. Some said he was a Rebel captain who had made his way up from Virginia; others said he hailed from nearby Magoffin county.

Anyway, he was first reported in our area at a farm where the owner was doing his spring plowing. Without a word, the burly visitor shunted the farmer away from the plow and himself began doing the work, continuing till he tired and then walking off without a word.

After that, Captain Jenks became a familiar neighborhood figure, going uninvited to various farmhouses, walking in-almost bursting in-without a knock at the door, helping with the chores and accepting as his due his bed

Sometimes he was friendly, engaging in fireside conversation with his hosts; at other times he was a forbidding figure as he sat glowering, silent even when addressed The man remained in the community perhaps a year, then disappeared as mysteriously as he had appeared. Where he came from and why, what his antecedents were, why the name-all these questions were as puzzling as his eccentricities. Incidentally, the last heard of Captain Jenks was that he had been killed in Virginia-shot by a householder at whose door the captain had, as usual, failed to knock before entering.

Thornsberry Reinstated As Wayland Policeman

It used to be that those in charge could hire and fire whom they pleased, noted Steve Banks who, as a city commissioner, is one of five in charge at Way-

As she understood it, his wife added, this is one of the main reasons people get to choose their city officials in the first place. "Why do people put someone new in there if not to get a change for the better?" she wanted to know

But city employees are protected by the law, countered Mayor Patricia Murphy-specifically, by a two-year-old ordinance passed by the Wayland board of commissioners in the wake of a "home rule" bill enacted by the last state legislature. One of the provisions of the ordinance is that city workers can be fired only "for cause.

The issue came to a head in Wayland last month when a majority on the new council voted not to rehire the town's only police officer, Normes Thornsberry. Banks, a disabled miner, said replacing Thornsberry was one of the main reasons that he, Linda Webb and Bonnie Clark-the three newly-elected, said later. "He said if he was a lawyer commissioners-had run for office. The three ran as a slate, he said.

The way incumbent Sam Fraley put it, what happened was that "a new bunch took the election over" in order to hire Glenn Martin, an unemployed miner, as town policeman. Thornsberry, who has been Wayland's law officer for the last six years, is "a good policeman," said Fraley, who added, 'The new bunch thought they could fire him for nothing.'

Thornsberry's opponents said they had good reasons for wanting to get rid of him, including misuse of the police patrol car and use of excessive force in making an arrest. But the unproven allegations did not add up to a justification for firing him under the city's current personnel policy, insisted Mayor Murphy.

The mayor's position was supported by Larry Wingate, a local government specialist with the Big Sandy Area Development District, and Lee Troutwine, an advisor with the state Department of Community and Regional Development. Both officials met with Wayland officials in a special meeting of the city commission last week, which also attracted an unusually large audience of townsfolk.

Wayland's personnel policy is part of a "pretty standard" ordinance he helped draft as part of a statewide effort to bring order into the affairs of local governments, Wingate explained. Troutwine told council members that, if they found fault with a city employee, they should give verbal and written warnings before firing the employee.

Troutwine "told us some of the awfullest tales there ever was," Banks he'd take (Thornsberry's) case and sue the town and us as individuals." He has asked for an attorney-general's opinion on the matter, Banks said.

After the state official had spoken to them, Bonnie Clark said she felt that reinstating the police officer was "the only way we could go without being sued." In any event, Thornsberry "does the best job he can," she said, adding, 'We don't have much to choose from.

Mrs. Webb and Steve Banks voted against Thornsberry to the end. But Mrs. Clark joined the mayor and Fraley in voting last week to reinstate the was cited as a reason for both proposals; and word that Floyd county would suffer a 50 percent cut in federal revenuesharing money this year gave the measures added urgency here.

On the argument that an estimated 18 percent of travel in Kentucky is on local roads, the judges' association is asking the legislature to return to the cities and counties 18 percent of the money collected in motor vehicle license fees and gasoline tax. Local governments currently receive 11.1 percent of the state

Floyd county, which received $388,337 in state road money this year, would receive an additional $258,892 under the proposed formula, Stumbo said.

In the meantime, the counties need an emergency appropriation from the state road fund to repair winter-damaged roads, a delegation of judges-executive told Gov. Martha Layne Collins last Thursday. The need is especially acute in coal counties, where road damage is severe and the coal slump has reduced to a trickle the share of coal severance taxes returned to the counties

Floyd county has received a mere $106,751 in coal severance taxes this fiscal year and the state Revenue Cabinet has told the county to expect no more before June 30. In the 1982-'83 budget year, Floyd received $511,309 in revenue from the severance tax.

Stumbo cited the cut in severance tax as a reason for seeking also a five percent sales tax on alcoholic beverages. Under existing law, city governments may levy such a tax provided the revenues raised by it are spent on the extra police work needed to enforce state liquor laws. In a letter to Ed Logsdon, executive director of the Kentucky County Judges Association, Stumbo asked for help in drafting a bill that would allow counties to levy the tax, but without restrictions as to its use.

Of the $400,000 Floyd authorities expected to receive this year in federal revenue-sharing monies, only $176,000 will be forthcoming, it has been learned. Over half the anticipated money has already been committed to the county's solid waste system; much of the remainder was earmarked for road materials.

State officials explained that the reason for the cut is that, because of a 1981 error in Washington, Floyd received too much revenue-sharing money in 1982 and 1983. Revenue-sharing funds are awarded on the basis of a formula which takes into account a county's population, its per capita income, and funds generated by local taxes. A Washington bureaucrat calculating Floyd's share three years ago overstated the amount of tax revenue raised here and consequently overpaid the county the next two years.

Because of the high unemployment rate—and lower per-capita income—this county's revenue-sharing allotment increased this year, but Floyd will see a net cut in revenue to make up for the two years the county was overpaid.

Pageant Is Scheduled

The Miss Northeast Kentucky Cameo Pageant will be held February 25, at Greenbo Lake State Park. The deadline for entries is February 12. Quality Means Cost

There are two basic questions involved in most discussions of the Board of Education's tax on utility receipts. What should be accomplished through public education? How much should it cost?

These two questions are interrelated. When the quantity or quality of education is increased, financial support generally needs to be increased. When the financial support is restricted, the quantity and quality of education are likely to be limited. Financial provisions establish the limits within which schools must operate.

Some voters begin their consideration of the utilities tax with the assumption that a reasonable quantity and quality of education can and should be financed. Others begin with the assumption that taxes are high and financial support

The better educated people become, the more clearly they seem to recognize the need for increased education. Quantitative increases-in supportive services, materials and supplies, and building programs-would set the climate for providing quality education for all Floyd county students. RALPH G. O'QUINN,

Pre-Measurement Service Available

The Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service provides premeasurement and other producer services to assure farmers that they are in compliance with 1984 acreage reduction requirements and eligible for program

At the request of the producer, the Service will stake and measure acreages before crop planting time. Farmers are required to plant within the stakes that are placed when the land is measured and to report their crop acreages to our office when planting is completed.

To be eligible for price support loans, target prices and other program benefits, producers must certify actual planted acreages. Thus re-measurement is important in helping farmers plan which land to devote to the acreage conservation reserve and which fields to

Other ASCS producer services include measuring total cropland, field or subdivisions to be planted and land areas for other purposes. Fees vary, based on the type of service rendered.

In order to service the requests on a timely basis, farmers are encouraged to apply early.

Dr. Jung

Anesthesia: What the Public Should Know, will be presented at Prestonsburg Community College in Pike Auditorium at 7 p.m., Tuesday, February 14. This is the second presentation of the Medical Seminar Series to be presented by the Floyd County Medical Association.

Dr. Arriola, who will chair this session, is board certified in anesthesia and comes from the Philipines and Boston where she did her residency at Harvard. She was a fellow in anesthesia at Harvard Medical School and a consultant and professor for Boston University and Boston City Hospital. Her topics will be local and regional anesthesia.

Speaking on outpatient obstetric anesthesia will be Dr. Mina Majmundar. Dr. Mina is a Fellow of the American College of Anesthesiology. She is from India and did her residency at the College of Medicine and Dentistry in New Jersey. She is associated with Highlands Regional and Paintsville Hospital.

Dr. Jung will be speaking on monitoring anesthesia and its complications. Dr. Jung is from Korea and completed his medical training at Baylor College of Medicine in Houston and was associated with the Department of Anesthesiology at Baylor University in Houston. He is associated with Highlands Regional Medical Center and is in private practice.

The fourth panel member is Willie Barrowman who will discuss general anesthesia. Mr. Barrowman, a nurse anesthetist with Our Lady of the Way Hospital, is from Elkhorn City. He received his BS in nursing from the University of South Carolina and his BSNCRNA from Richlands Memorial Hospital for nurse anesthetists. He holds the Advanced Registration for Nurse Practioners in Kentucky. Mr. Barrowman is married and has two children. He resides at Stanville.

Entertainers, Craftsmen Being Sought By State

The state Department of Travel Development is looking for entertainers and craftspeople to show off Kentucky's rich artistic heritage at the 1984 New Orleans World Exposition, said Tourism Secretary Wendell Combs.

The department is scheduling performers desiring to play for thousands of visitors either at Kentucky's exhibit or on one of six stages situated on the fair site. Kentucky's exhibit is located in the Louisiana Exhibition Hall, aboard a riverboat replica, the Great River Queen. Kentucky shares the boat with nine other states and two Canadian provinces that comprise a tourism collective called the Great River Road Asso-

The Travel Development Department will take written requests only from square dancers, Bluegrass musicians and others whose entertainment or demonstrations symbolize Kentucky. Craftspeople like room-makers and potters will be considered, provided the artisan actively involves the audience in the demonstration.

Performers won't be paid and must provide their own transportation, food and lodging. Each will be admitted to the fair free on the day of performance, Combs said.

The department and world's fair officials together will schedule performances. It would be useful for applicants to provide several alternative

Applicants should furnish the department with this written information: a description of the act, the number of persons in the group, stage equipment needs, and the desired date for performing. The department's address is: Department of Travel Development, Attn.: Kim Aubrey, 22nd Floor, Capital Plaza Tower, Frankfort, Ky. 40601.

John C. Hall Founder Hall Funeral Home

HOW DOES ONE DEAL WITH A DECEASED'S BELONGINGS?

One of the most painful jobs the family of the deceased must face after the funeral is the disposition of the deceased's personal possessions.

Hastily discarding possessions is not always the wise thing to do. Memorabilia can become valuable with time; not intrinsically, perhaps, but sentimentally.

Clothing, jewelry, books, a stamp collection, a camera, a pocket watch-are these items to be discarded? Or retained as keepsakes?

We've observed that many articles, like jewelry, or a watch, are not discarded; rather they are prized by members of the family as precious mementos. Nostalgia often takes over and a simple item, like a small pocket knife, becomes a son's pride and bittersweet pleasure.

Clothing, on the other hand, may find its way into the hands of the needy by way of a favored charity; or, very often, many mourners take great pleasure in seeing a close relative regaled in a favorite suede jacket, a suit, a fur.

Choose Your Tax Return

Preparer With Care

The choosing of a preparer by taxpayers to do their federal income tax returns should be done carefully and

Most tax return preparers are honest and do not deliberately attempt to defraud either their clients or the IRS. However, a few misuse the responsibility of preparing a tax return for someone else, and we have some suggestions on how to identify these preparers.

Do not sign a blank return, or one which is partially complete. These returns could be altered by the preparer. Tax returns preparers are required by law to sign and date the return and to enter his or her identification number. You must be furnished a copy of the completed return.

Preparers who promise a refund, claim a special relationship with the IRS, or boast of ways to beat the tax system should be avoided.

The choosing of a preparer is particularly important because you, not the preparer, are responsible for the accuracy of your tax return. As much care should go into the choosing of a tax preparer as the selection of any attorney, doctor, or any professional

A new photograph catalogue featuring over 70 crafts was released by David Appalachian Crafts this past week.

The non-profit craft organization with a membership of approximately 133 men and women sells its work to over 50 retail shops and department stores throughout the country.

The craft shop utilized a sketch catalogue for several years which served the center well, but due to an increase of catalogue requests as far away as Maine, California and Alaska, according to center personnel, a photograph catalogue was required to convey the exceptionally high quality of the handcrafts.

The Craft Center hopes the following five benefits will result from the catalogue: 1. The crafts of 133 craftspeople will be exposed to at least 2000 people in the U.S. and abroad; 2. the income of 133 craftspeople will benefit by sales of their crafts through the catalogue; 3. the momentum of the crafts movement will be thrust forward by high quality crafts being presented in a high quality catalogue; 4. the preservation and proliferation of traditional mountain crafts will be continued, and respect and understanding of handmade goods and their unique value will be spread throughout the U.S. and abroad.

The craft center functions as a cottage industry allowing craftspeople to work in their homes at their individual pace. Local craftspeople from six counties create quilts, sewn items, wood crafts, pottery, corn shuck items and other traditional crafts. Many of which are included in the catalogue and are on display at the David shop.

David crafts received financial assistance for the catalogue's production from the Public Welfare Foundation, The Kentucky Crafts Council and Christian Appalachian Project. Paula Goble, of Prestonsburg, did all photography and Gwen Heffner, a local potter and graphic artist, played the major role in design and layout.

The 2000 catalogues will be released to the public for the spring buying season. Retail craft shops, department stores and individuals will be mailed copies upon request for $2.00.

The catalogue is now available at David Appalachian Crafts in David, located on Rt. 404. The public is invited to visit the shop Mon-Fri. 10-4.

Stewart-Rexroat Vows Spoken

Miss LuAnne Stewart and Mr. Jeffery David Rexroat were united in marriage in an afternoon ceremony January 21, in Oakland Avenue Baptist Church, Catlettsburg. The Rev. J. Gene Hall performed the double-ring ceremony at 2:30 following a program of nuptial selections by Mrs. Jack Taylor, organist, Jill Taylor, pianist, and Keri Skasss, soloist.

The bride is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Melvin K. Stewart, Catlettsburg. She was given in marriage by her father. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Mary Rexroat, of Campbellsville, Ky., and J.D. Rexroat, of Tennessee.

Julie Stibbe, Dayton, Ohio, was maid of honor, and bridesmaids were Lisa Salisbury, Printer, Ky., cousin of the bride, and Barbara Lee, Elizabethtown, Ky., cousin of the groom. Dr. William Lee, Jr. served his nephew as best man. Groomsmen were Alan Witham, Campbellsville, and Todd A. Stewart, brother of the bride. Barry Lee, Elizabethtown, cousin of the groom, was ringbearer. The bride's aunt, Mrs. Timothy J. Salisbury, of Printer, presided at the guest register.

A reception was held in the church immediately following the ceremony.

The bride is a graduate of Boyd County High School and the University of Kentucky where she earned a B.S. degree in Computer Science. She is employed by McCormack and Associates, Indianapolis, Indiana.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Taylor County High School and the University of Kentucky where he earned a B.S. degree in Computer Science. He is employed by Naval Avionics, Indianapolis.

Out-of-town guests attending the ceremony were Mrs. Mary Rexroat, Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Graham, Mrs. Alan Witham, Campbellsville; Mrs. William Lee, Jr., Elizabethtown; Mrs. James W. Salisbury, Prestonsburg; Mrs. Walter E. Stewart, Allen; Mr. and Mrs. David Shaw, Miss Jane Driskell, Miss Lexi Bohn, David Simmons, Mrs. Helen Smith, Miss Donna Scrosham, John Entsminser, Gres Mudd, all of Lexington; Robert Stacey; Miss Donna Cline, Mr. and Mrs. Glen Pinkerton, Dr. and Mrs. Bob Crider, all of Ashland; Mr. Gary Adkins, Kenova, W. Va.; Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Howell, Cincinnati, Ohio.

The bridegroom's mother was hostess for a rehearsal dinner at the Convention Center Hotel in Huntington, W. Va. On Wednesday preceding the wedding Mrs.

CARD OF THANKS

The family of Kenis Tackett wishes to thank all of those who were so kind and considerate during our time of grief. We want to thank those who sent flowers and gifts of love. We especially want to thank the members of the Pilgrim Home Regular Baptist Church, the nurses, aids, and especially the cooks at the Mountain Manor Nursing Home, Pikeville, Ky., and the Hall Funeral Home for being so kind.

UK Issues Admissions Deadline Reminder

Feb. 15 is the priority deadline for freshman admission to the University of Kentucky for the fall semester of 1984, says George Gaddie, associate dean of

After that date, Gaddie says, only students meeting the criteria for automatic acceptance to UK will be admitted.

Gaddie also reminded students who have been admitted to UK and assigned summer academic advising conference dates to confirm by Feb. 15 with the admissions office their intent to participate in their scheduled summer advising conferences. This should be done by returning the reply card they have received. Gaddie says.

Students who are currently in the delayed consideration pool can expect to receive an admissions decision after

IRS Notes 1983 Form 1040A Changes

Taxpayers who qualify to file the form 1040A Federal Tax return this year will notice a few changes and additions, the Internal Revenue Service said.

One additional credit and one additional deduction have been added to the Form 1040A. These are the credit for child and dependent care expenses and the deduction for contributions made to an Individual Retirement Arrangement (IRA). In the past, taxpayers were required to file the Form 1040 to take advantage of these tax benefits.

Also, for the first time, a schedule has been added to the 1040A Form. The fourpart Schedule 1 includes sections to report interest income, dividend income, the deduction for a married couple when both work, and the credit for child and disabled dependent care expenses.

The Form 1040A tax package contains complete instructions for preparing the form plus several worksheets to help

Stumbo, Bailey Disagree On Unmined Minerals Tax

A courthouse meeting sponsored Saturday by Rep. Greg Stumbo and Sen. Benny Ray Bailey prompted spirited debate over a wide range of issues, including one measure the state awmakers had nothing to do with.

Bufford Conn, a miner from Arkansas Creek, wanted to know how the Floyd oard of Education could impose a ilities tax without putting the measure a popular vote. "It's like comnunism," he said, "to pass something ke that without the people having a right to say what they want.

Some decisions are meant to be left to the lawmakers in a representative democracy, Bailey answered. And the Board of Education's utilities tax might yet be put to the vote if enough people sign a petition to that effect, it was pointed out.

Stumbo noted also that Floyd taxpayers contribute only four percent of he monies needed to run the county schools, compared to a statewide average of 20 percent. "Why don't we have decent schools?" the legislator asked. "(It's because) we don't pay any

The state representative urged more realistic assessments on Floyd properties, noting that the county boasts real property worth around $4 billion. "If we can't raise enough property taxes off hat, we ought to quit," he said.

But Sen. Bailey rated as "slim and none" the chances of lifting the four percent cap on annual increases in property tax revenues. Because of the ceiling imposed by House Bill 44 in 1979, an increase in the assessed value of properties would not necessarily yield more tax

Both legislators expressed confidence in a bill limiting the application of Kenucky's broadform deeds-the bill pass-

NOTICE OF INTENTION TO MINE

Pursuant to Application Number 436-5231

In accordance with the provisions of KAR 350.055, notice is hereby given that Buck Coal, Inc., Route 2, Branham Village, Prestonsburg, Kentucky, 41653, has filed an application for a permit for an underground mining operation. The roposed operation will affect a surface isturbance of 5.0 acres and will underlie an additional 81.0 acres located 1.1 miles north of Hunter in Floyd county.

The proposed operation is approximately 0.5 miles west from State Route 122's junction with Akers Branch Road and located 0.25 miles west of Akers Branch. The latitude is 37° 31' 18". The longitude is 82° 45' 45'

The proposed operation is located on he Martin U.S.G.S. 7 1/5 minute quadangle map. The surface area to be disturbed is owned by Jake Bates and Orphie Akers. The operation will underlie land owned by Claube Webb, Bud Hayes, Mander Moore, Virgil Moore, and James Slone.

The application has been filed for public inspection at the Department for Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement's Prestonsburg Regional Office, 503 South Lake Drive, Prestonsburg, Ky. 41653. Written comments, obections, or requests for a permit conference must have attached a copy of the newspaper clipping and must be filed with the Regional Administrator of the Prestonsburg Regional Office, 503 South Lake Drive, Prestonsburg, Ky.

ed in the House of Representatives by 87 votes to 10 Monday—and were skeptical of reports that an alternative bill, backed by coal interests, had been introduced in the Senate by a northern Kentucky

(Sen. August "Gus" Sheehan, D-Covington, has reportedly filed a bill-Senate Bill 198-that would give landowners a right to claim for damages done by stripmining on their property but would not permit them to block the operation.)

On the question of legislation taxing unmined minerals at the same rate as other real property, the two local legislators parted company. Despite uncertainty about how much revenue such a tax would yield, he supported it because "it is the right thing to do," said Bailey

But Stumbo said he did not want to make it harder for the state's sagging coal industry to compete with coal producers in other states and overseas. "If (the unmined minerals tax) were to cause one person to lose his job in eastern Kentucky, I'd be against it," he

If it meant helping 12,000 school children have better schools, he would "tell that person he's just going to have to lose his job," Bailey replied.

The state senator told Dr. Henry Campbell, director of Prestonsburg Community College, he understood the college's need for a $2.2 million classroom block. "If they don't get it, they'll have to start teaching classes at Jerry's," Bailey explained.

Getting funding for the project would depend on winning the governor's backing, and "that will depend on how badly she needs us to get something passed," he said.

Bailey held out little hope for teachers who retired before 1976, however, noting that no increase in teachers' retirement benefits was recommended in the governor's budget. Mrs. Norma Stepp, president of the Floyd County Retired Teachers' Association, noted that teachers retired seven years or more receive only a fraction of the benefits given more recent retirees.

Home Improvement Loans Are Available

Home improvement loans through FmHA can be made to low income families who may not need or cannot afford a new house but need some work done on their present dwelling.

Loans may be made for $7,500 or less at 1% interest. The maximum repayment period is 15 years.

To be eligible for such a home improvement loan, the family income must be less than $6,000 annually, and be owner-occupant of a dwelling in need of repairs to make it safe and sanitary, or to remove health hazards.

Those who would like to apply for a home improvement loan should come to the Farmers Home Administration of fice in Prestonsburg on any Monday from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Applications may also be placed at the ASCS Office at Pikeville on the second Wednesday of each month from 10 a.m. to noon. Answers to questions may be procured by calling 886-9545.

War On Drugs Chapter Meets

Dr. Mary Fox, of the Pike County Board of Health, explained the problems of drug-trafficking and abuse from a local angle at Monday night meeting

Members of the Floyd County Chapter of the Kentucky War On Drugs met at the Floyd County Library here Monday evening to hear Dr. Mary Fox summarize the drug problem as it exists in this area.

Dr. Fox, of the Pike County Board of Health, listed marijuana, PCP or "angel dust," and Mexican Quaaludes as the drugs of most concern in Eastern Kentucky although she pointed to cocaine as showing up more and more frequently

Pointing out that "drugs will always be a problem as long as pushers can make a profit," she illustrated by comparing prescription prices for various drugs as compared to "street" value. Dilaudid, potent pain-killer, for example, costs about 30 cents through a legal prescription purchase from a pharmacy, while the same tablet commonly brings as much as $35 on the street

She discussed dangers of drug abuse, both physical and mental, and cited PCP as particularly hazardous since it may cause irreversible brain damage in many cases. She also listed symptoms demonstrated by young people involved in drug abuse as a means of helping parents detect a possi-

The Kentucky War on Drugs Task Force, which concentrates particularly on educating young people to the dangers of drug use and abuse, is open to anyone who would like to become involved in trying to better control drug problems in the area. The Task Force meets the first and third Mondays of each month at the library here at 7:30 p.m.

To Conduct Bass Seminar

Billy Westmoreland, of Celina, Tenn., six-time Bass Masters Class qualifier, TV personality, and the angler generally agreed upon as the "king" of smallmouth bass fishermen, will conduct a bass-fishing seminar. Saturday, at Music-Carter-Hughes Chevrolet-Buick here.

Billed as Music-Carter-Hughes and Bassin' Buddies Bass Club's first annual Fishing Seminar, the day's activities will begin at 12 noon and will feature angling tips and tales from the popular East Tennessee angler as well as a show of fishing boats, motors, baits and tackle.

The public is invited to attend the seminar which is free of charge.

U.S. Has Gasoline Tax Advantage In Survey

Drivers in the United States enjoy a significant gasoline cost advantage compared to other drivers around the world, according to a newly released report by the Energy Information Administration (EIA). The advantage is due to large differences in other countries' energy taxes. In the fourth quarter of 1982, average European gasoline taxes constituted 40 to 60 percent of the total retail price, compared to 26 percent for Canada, 19 percent for Australia, and only 11 percent for the United States.

PHS Students Named to All-State Chorus

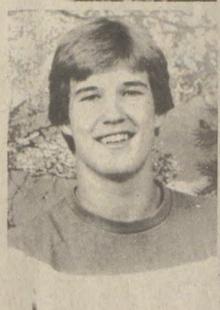

Five Prestonsburg High School students were selected through statewide auditions to perform with the 1984 Kentucky All-State Chorus. They are from left, above, John Anderson, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Anderson; Donna DeRossett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth DeRossett; Lisa Lafferty, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Lafferty. At left are Mona McKinney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dale McKinney, and right, John Goble, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Goble.

The chorus performed, February 3, at the Kentucky Music Educator's In-Service Conference in Lexington. The choral director of Prestonsburg High School is Elizabeth Frazier, who has been selected as a member of the KMEA Choral Council.

EKU Again Offers College Warm-Up

High school seniors graduating this spring can jog into a college atmosphere in a special program at Eastern Kentucky University, June 18-August 3.

College Warm-Up will again offer students seven college credit hours prior to their freshman year, according to Benny Hall, director of the program.

College Warm-Up will give students foundation courses in English composition, college reading and study skills, and orientation before they attempt their first full semester of college. The program will also offer an honors English composition course for the first time, enabling honors students to satisfy the normal requirement of six hours of English composition by taking the threehour honors course

Credits earned can be transferred to another college or applied directly to a degree program at Eastern. Thus, College Warm-Up can assist all high school seniors, but especially those who want a constructive start to their college careers, wish to strengthen their language and study skills, or are not

"Students will be given academic and vocational counseling, as well the opportunity to develop skills and habits necessary for the successful completion of college courses," he said.

Information about enrolling in College Warm-Up may be obtained from Hall, who is an assistant professor in the Department of Learning Skills. Any student considering applying to the Warm-Up program should have a composite ACT score of at least 14 and a high school grade point average of at least 2.2 (C+) on a 4.0 scale.

Registration will be held on Eastern's campus at 9 a.m. in the Grise Room of the Combs Building, June 18.

SEEK ABANDONED

MINE INFORMATION The local conservation district needs help in locating coal mine lands that were left abandoned or inadequately reclaimed before August 3, 1977. Persons who have information about these sites are asked to call the conservation district at 886-3128. It is the district's goal to get these abandoned mine sites reclaimed through the Rural Abandoned Mine Program (RAMP). RAMP is a second chance to get needed funds and technical assistance to correct the adverse effects of past mining. Under RAMP, Floyd county gets high priority to human health, safety and welfare. So far only one RAMP job has been done in Floyd county. In a heavily mined county such as Floyd there are surely more sites than this. Conservation district supervisors ask that citizens help in getting these sites identified and correctly reclaimed. There may not be another chance like this one.

BIRTH ANNOUNCEMENT

Mr. and Mrs. David Allen Barber, of Prestonsburg, are announcing the birth of their first child, a daughter, Betty Megan, January 19 at Highlands Regional Medical Center.

Maternal great-grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. W.H. Patton, of Prestonsburg, and paternal greatgrandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Banks, of Hueysville.

A rose was placed on the altar of the Community Methodist Church, Sunday, January 30, for Betty Megan.

Mrs. Rister To Lead Garrett Bike-a-Thon

The Central Regional Office of St. Jude Children's Research Hospital announced today that Mrs. Patricia Rister has agreed to chair the St. Jude Children's Research Hospital Bike-a-Thon in Garrett.

St. Jude Children's Research Hospital was founded by entertainer Danny Thomas. The institution opened its doors to the public in 1962 to combat catastrophic diseases which afflict our children. St. Jude Hospital is non-sectarian, nondiscriminatory, and provides medical care to over 4,200 patients.

All findings and information gained at the hospital are shared freely with doctors and hospitals all over the world. Thanks to St. Jude's, children who have leukemia, Hodgkin's disease, sickle cell anemia, and other child killing diseases now have a better chance to live.

The funds raised in the Bike-a-Thons this spring will help assure the continuation of the life giving work at the

The concern which Mrs. Rister has for the work being done at St. Jude is greatly appreciated. The children hope that the citizens of Garrett will wholeheartedly support the upcoming Bike-a-

Working Couples Get Special Tax Break

Married couples who work are eligible for a special tax deduction worth as much as $3,000, according to the Internal Revenue Service.

This deduction is subtracted from gross income and may be taken without itemizing deductions, which means that taxpayers may use Form 1040A, the IRS added. If Form 1040A is used, the deduction must be figured on Part III of Schedule 1, which must be attached to the return. If Form 1040 is used, the deduction is figured on Schedule W. which also must be attached to the return, the IRS said. In either case, however, a joint return must be filed.

The most that may be deducted is the smaller of 10 percent of the qualified earned income of the lesser-earning spouse, or 10 percent of $30,000 for a maximum deduction of $3,000. To take the deduction both spouses must have earned income, such as wages, salaries and tips. However, income earned by one spouse working for the other does not qualify. Neither does such income as interest, dividends, pensions, annuities, distributions from an individual retirement arrangement (IRS), unemployment compensation, deferred compensations or nontaxable income.

Last year, the deduction was new and was based on five percent of the qualified earned income of the lesserearning spouse or $30,000, whichever was smaller. However, some two million taxpayers, or nine percent of the 22 million eligible taxpayers, failed to take advantage of this tax break, the IRS said. They can still do so by filing an amended return using Form 1040X the IRS noted. Since the rate of the deduction has increased to 10 percent for the 1983 tax year, the IRS added, it is even more advantageous for taxpayers to

More information can be obtained by calling the IRS at 584-1361 in Louisville or toll-free 1-800-424-1040, elsewhere in Kentucky.

The theme of his birthday was "Smurfs" and his cake was baked and decorated by a friend of the family, Glenda Stumbo. He received many gifts and cards from people unable to attend. Brian is the grandson of George E. and Effic Clark, of Harold, and Jim and Edith White, of Lexington. His stepgrandparents are Nell Ruth Bohanan, of Southgate, Michigan, and Raymond Coggins, of Shelbiana, Ky.

Kentuckians can look forward to a brighter economic picture as they usher in 1984, especially those who are looking for clerical or service jobs, according to Cabinet for Human Resources studies. State labor market analyst Ed Blackwell cited Department for Manpower Services figures which show employment could increase by some 25,000 dur-

'We expect most of the job openings in 1984 to be for clerical and service workers. We could have more than 12,000 job openings for clerical workers, with about 4,800 being new jobs," he said. "We expect to see about as many openings for service workers, with some 4,500 due to economic growth. While most of these probably will be for food service workers, especially in fast food restaurants, we also anticipate a number of job openings for janitors, nurses aides and orderlies, child care workers, and guards and doorkeepers.

The Manpower Services studies proiect a continued increase in white collar workers, following a 30-year trend. In addition to clerical jobs, other white collar occupations in which substantial job openings are expected are for sales workers, health technologists and technicians, professional nurses and teach-

'In the blue collar sector our projections show almost 2,500 openings for workers in construction crafts, such as carpenters, electricians, and plumbers and pipefitters," Blackwell said. "Almost half of these are expected to be new jobs." Other blue collar workers who can expect substantial job openings are mechanics, assemblers, semi-skilled metalworkers and semi-skilled packers and inspectors.

The manpower department's projections are based on surveys completed by the state's employers and include information on about 1,500 non-agricultural jobs, he said. "The data reflect job activity for about 86 percent of the state's total labor force. Agricultural workers, who are expected to make up about four percent of the state's labor force by 1985, and self-employed workers and people who work on an unpaid basis in a family business, who are expected to make up about 10 percent of the work force, were not included in the surveys.'

Collecting data on these two categories of workers is difficult to do, said Blackwell, whose staff gathers employment and occupational data. "We are trying to work with the federal Bureau of Labor Statistics to develop a method

Scholarship Pageant Scheduled April 7

The Pikeville Junior Woman's Club is once again preparing for its annual scholarship pageant. The pageant date is set April 7, at Faith Chapel on the Pikeville College campus.

The Pike, Floyd, Johnson, Martin, Perry, Letcher, and Magoffin counties are eligible to send contestants to the

The Miss East Kentucky Scholarship Pageant is an official preliminary to the Miss Kentucky Scholarship Pageant and the Miss America Scholarship Pageant

To qualify for the pageant, a young woman must be between the ages of 17 and 26 on Labor Day, must be single, never been married or had a marriage annulled, of good moral character, and a United States citizen. The contestants will be judged on their quality of talent, personal interview, swimsuit, and evening gown.

The deadline for entries is February 17. Anyone interested in entering the pageant, should contact Janet Thompson at (606) 432-1191, Susie Mullins at (606) 835-2354, or any member of the Pikeville Junior Woman's Club to use census figures to make projections for agricultural and self-employed workers, but we don't expect to be able to do this for several years," he said.

He pointed out that the occupational projections are based on continued economic recovery. "Since employment dropped to 1,448,700 in February, the lowest level for this recession, we've recorded steady employment gains. We did have a jump in unemployment during the summer, but this was a normal seasonal occurrence. Overall, there has been gradual improvement," he said, noting 1,508,500 Kentuckians had jobs in November. "However, we don't expect our employment in 1984 to reach the October 1981 level, when 1,568,600 people were working, an all time high for Kentucky.

KET To Televise State Tournament Draw

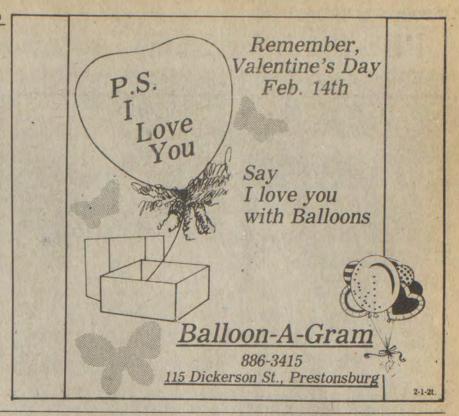

KET will air the 1984 State High School Basketball Tournament drawings from the KET Network Center in exington at 2 p.m. Friday, Feb. 24. Earl Cox. Courier-Journal sports columnist, will host the program, which will feature guests Vanous Lloyd, coach of Warren Central High School, last year's winning girls' team, and Al Prewitt, coach of Henry Clay High School, last year's boys' champs. The drawings will determine the pairings in the first round of this year's competition. The boys' tournament will be held March 14-17 at Rupp Arena in Lexington; the girls' tournament will be March 21-24 at Eastern Kentucky University in Richmond.

HOLD YOUTH ACTIVITY

An overflow crowd attended the Youth Spectacular held at the Irene Cole Memorial (First) Baptist Church annex, following the Blackcat basketball game here with Letcher County Saturday night. Mrs. Sue Wells and other members of the youth social committee at the church were in charge of arrangements. Refreshments were served to those in attendance.

INJURED IN FALL

Mrs. Margaret P. Alley is confined to her home on Riverside Drive, due to a fall sustained this past week while walking out to get the morning newspaper during the icy weather. Her family and friends are concerned about her and are hoping she will show improvement soon.

The G.F.W.C. /Prestonshurg Woman's

The G.F.W.C./Prestonsburg Woman's Club's executive committee met Thursday evening, February 2, at 7 o'clock, at the Floyd County Library, with Mrs. Elizabeth Ramey, president, presiding. A discussion regarding membership dues and the dinner-meeting for the installation of officers during the early part of May was held. Board members present were, Mesdames Elizabeth Ramey, Betty Rowland, Arnita Snavely, Dorothy Harris, and Joyce Allen.

The regular meeting of the club was held at 7:30 at the Emma Wells May Cultural Center there, with Mrs. Ramey in charge. Members recited the Lord's Prayer in unison and gave the Pledge of Allegiance to the American Flag. Mrs. Ramey welcomed those in attendance.

The minutes were read by Mrs. Joyce Allen, secretary, and the treasurer, Mrs. Dorothy Harris, gave her report. Mrs. Joyce Allen read a letter stating that Monday night, March 5, is K.F.W.C. night on the K.E.T. telethon, which will be in progress at that time. The president announced that the club's publicity committee had submitted the Prestonsburg Woman's Club Press Book to the K.F.W.C. headquarters to be on display during the forthcoming K.F.W.C. convention, and that news of the local club had been sent to the "Kentucky Club Woman" magazine.

Mrs. Wonnell Godsey, a member of the Arts and Crafts committee, reported that ceramics classes would start soon at the club's arts and crafts building at Archer Park.

Mrs. Eva Collins, program chairman, presented Mrs. Pat Salisbury, assistant vice-president and manager of the Twin Bridge Branch of the First Commonwealth Bank at Martin, who spoke on, "Women and Finance." Mrs. Salisbury covered importance phases of banking, as they relate to women, and distributed I.R.A. pamphlets to those present.

A desert course was served by the hostesses, Wonnell Godsey, Ora Bussey, and Nancy Martin. Those in attendance were: Pat Salisbury, a guest, and members, Elizabeth Ramey, Betty Rowland, Arnita Snavely, Dorothy Harris, Joyce Allen, Eva Collins, Mabel Brown, Dorothy Osborne, Mabel Donahoe, Rebecca Rasnick, Dolly Pettrey, Dorothy Burke, and the hostesses.

The next meeting will be Thursday evening, March 1, at this same location, with Garnett Fairchild, Sarah Goble, Betty Francis, Norcie Burchett, Honey May, Lois George, and Christine Spradlin as hostesses. The program on "Education" will have Roberta Davidson as leader. Phyllis Herrick will lead the devotionals.

PREMATURE PERMANENT TEETH

Q. Do permanent teeth ever come through a child's gums before the first teeth are gone?

A. Once in a while, adult teeth will come through the gums earlier than expected and create a temporary second row of teeth in a child's mouth. This happens more often in the lower jaw. If the baby teeth are already sufficiently loose, they probably can be removed at home; if not, the services of a professional should be obtained.

When a double row of teeth pops through in the upper jaw, see a dentist right away, as this may be a more complicated condition. Once the baby teeth have been removed, the new adult teeth should move into proper alignment via the normal action of tongue and/or cheek muscles.

Rated High On Nat'l Test

The most recent testing on the National Educational Development Tests the following ninth and tenth graders scored in the upper 10% nationally and received a certificate of Educational Development in recognition of this accomplishment:

Ninth Grade-Cathy J. Horn, daughter of John and Mary Lou Horn; Brian D. Wallace, son of Frank and Virginia Wallace; Sharon L. Minns, daughter of Edward and Patty Minns; Susan P. Cooley, daughter of Harold and Kay Cooley; Anthony Patton, son of Kenny and Lema Lyon; Jackie Stanford, daughter of Jack and Lucinda Stanford. Tenth Grade-David P. Allen, son of Denzil and Janice Allen: William Fleming, son of Harold and Verla Fleming; William M. Hager, son of Randall and Judy Hager. All are from the Prestonsburg area.

This test is a nationally administered test and is given to ninth and tenth graders who take it on a strictly voluntary basis. It is sponsored by Science Research Associates, Inc. The areas tested are English Usage, Mathematics Usage, Natural Sciences Reading, Social Studies Reading, and Educational Ability. It is nationally normed.

The purposes of the test are to help the student and his parents to identify areas of strengths and weaknesses early in his high school career and to recognize those who demonstrate a high degree of Educational Development (who score in the top 10% nationally).

FLOYD COUNTY HEALTH NEWS

By JANE BOND Health Educator

There will be a Pap clinic at the Health Department, today, (Wednesday) from 8:30 until 11:30 and from 1:00 until 2:00. This clinic is open to women of all ages but those women age 45 and over are especially urged to take advantage of this service since this is the high risk age for the disease. This is a free service of the health department.

Glaucoma screening clinics will be held at the health department on Friday, February 10, and Wednesday, February 15. These clinics are free services of the health department and are open to persons of all ages, but those persons age 40 and over are urged to be screened for glaucoma since this is the high risk age for the disease.

A nurse from the health department will be in Wayland at the Methodist Church on Monday, February 13, from 10 until 2. She will offer T.B. skin tests, urinalyses, anemia screenings, blood pressures, and immunizations. This clinic is a service of the health department and the public is welcome.

Blackcats Break Betsy Layne Jinx

By LAURA COOLEY

(Scoring stats by Maleta Campbell)
Four was the lucky number for the Prestonsburg boys, Tuesday night, as the Blackcats secured a long-awaited victory over the rival Betsy Layne, the Cats' first in four meetings with the Bobcats.

The game was tense throughout and scoring never went beyond four points difference. By halftime the score was tied at 28-28.

After the half, both teams came out fired up and ready to go. The nip-and-tuck game continued and at under a minute-and-a-half to go in the game the Blackcats were ahead by two points. The score was tied when Betsy Layne's Levi Hamilton connected on a layup. At that point Prestonsburg regained control of the ball and ran the clock down to two seconds when Blackcat Kelly Cecil was fouled by Jeff Campbell. Cecil came through for the Cats hitting both foul shots securing for Prestonsburg the win, 55-53.

Betsy Layne showed a better shooting percentage with 63 percent over Prestonsburg's 41 percent while free throw percentages were practically identical with Betsy Layne 71 and P-burg 70.

Prestonsburg's Kelly Cecil was high scorer for his team as well as the game's top scorer with 17 points. Other Blackcats figures were Tony Whitaker 14, Marty Minix 12, Todd Nairn 8, and Gordie Ratliff 4.

Betsy Layne's scorers included Dwayne Kidd with 16, Levi Hamilton 11, Jeff Campbell 10, Lester Newsome 8, and Jimmy Parsons 8.

Alben Barkley, who served with President Truman, was the only Vice-President to marry while in office. He married his second wife, Mrs. Carleton S. Hadley in 1949.

Bobcats Add Two Wins To Record

By BETTY HYDEN

The Betsy Layne Bobcats added two more victories to their already impressive 18-4 season record by defeating the Boyd County Lions and Allen Central, Friday and Saturday nights at Betsy Layne.

In Friday's game against Boyd County, the score was neck-in-neck during the opening quarter although Betsy Layne had established a 31-28 lead by halftime. The second half was also close throughout until the closing minutes when Betsy Layne, through excellent foul shooting, beat the Lions, 70-62.

Scorers for Betsy Layne were all in double figures including Levi Hamilton and Jeff Campbell with 17 points each, Lester Newsome 13, Jimmy Parsons 12, and Dwayne Kidd 11.

Allen Central, following a win over Lawrence County, Friday night, traveled to Betsy Layne, Saturday, where they fell to the Bobcats, 68-58.

Levi Hamilton was high scorer for the game with 24. Other Bobcat scorers included Jimmy Parsons 18, Jeff Campbell 10, Mike Conn 6, Dwayne Kidd and Dwayne Hall, 4 each, and Brett Meade 2. Parsons pulled down 10 rebounds and Hamilton six.

For Allen Central, Craig Hall hit for 16 points while Tim Lawson, Dale Pack and David Green all contributed 12 points each. Paul Rice hit for six and Don Moore, 2. Allen Central now stands with a 14-8 record.

The Bobcats were scheduled to play Paintsville last night (Tuesday) and will face Elkhorn City Saturday night for Betsy Layne's Homecoming.

Bassin' Buddies Fishing Tips

By TEE WATKINS

PREVENTABLE MISTAKES
Did you ever wonder why some fishermen always catch more fish than others.
Could it be the bait they are using; could it be their boat; maybe their knowledge of the lake; maybe their knowledge of fish behavior; maybe their equipment. Certainly all these things and many more are important. All fishermen know that the sport can be very challenging.

There is one simple thing all good fishermen have in common, they do not make preventable mistakes. No one has yet come up with a way to force fish to oite. That's one thing we don't have control over, but we do have control over preventable mistakes. Let's take a look at a few mistakes most fishermen make which are all preventable.

HOOKS-All lures have one thing in common no matter what kind or size, they all have hooks. Most lures are purchased, placed in a tackle box and not looked at until on the water at which time they are tied on and thrown out with hopes of a strike. The hooks are never looked at-preventable mistake! Fact, Most hooks that come on new lures are not sharp. A good way to check a hook is to gently slide it across your fingernail. It should scratch your nail. If it doesn't, it is not sharp! A good habit to get into is go through your tackle box every winter and sharpen all hooks, and as new lures are bought, sharpen before placing in box, and always check before each use. Hooks will need to be touched up as they are used.

LINE—Fishing line is the only legal link between the fish and the livewell, but yet this is often the most overlooked and abused item a fisherman has. Line is usually bought, put on a reel and forgotten for years. This is a very preventable mistake! If you frequent the lakes or streams several times a year, you should replace your line annually. Most tournament fisherman think line is so important that they replace it daily when fishing a major event.

When purchasing line, try to match the size to your fishing condition. If the water you will be fishing is clear with little cover, select line in the 6 to 10 lb. size. If the water is stained with heavy cover, try 14 to 20 lb. line. A good rule to remember is try to use as small a line as conditions will allow. Learn how to tie a good quality knot and always wet the knot before pulling it tight. This will reduce friction and make the knot stronger. Check the first two feet of line from the lure frequently when fishing, especially if using it in heavy cover. A good way to check it is to run the line between your thumb and forefinger. If any nicks are felt, cut out and retie. Believe me, there is nothing more disgusting than to break a line after several hours of hard fishing-just to get one strike. This is preventable 90% of the time with good line maintenance.

FAIRY WANDS—This is a name frequently given to very limber rods. These rods are fine for small panfish, such as bluegill and crappie, but they are a NONO for bass fishing. These rods are a lot of fun to fight a fish on, but offer several disadvantages. Because they bend from the tip all the way to the handle it is very difficult to set the hook, especially if the fish is over 3 lbs. These rods are so limber it is very difficult to cast a lure which weighs over 1/4 oz. very accurately, and once a fish is hooked the fishermen has no power to force the fish away from cover.

There are literally hundreds of good quality rods on the market today. They come in all lengths and actions and it is very difficult to pick up a rod at the bait shop and tell much about it. You need time on the water under real life condition to properly judge a rod, but two things to look for at the bait shop is the tip and the butt.

The tip or last third of the rod should have the action you want. This is the part of the rod that throws the bait and plays the fish once hooked. The butt or first two thirds of the rod should have enough backbone to firmly set the hook and force the fish when in heavy cover.

These are just a few simple mistakes fishermen make all the time without realizing it. Ask any good fisherman you know and I assure you they do these little things without ever giving them a second thought. Start practicing these tricks and I am sure you will put a few more fish in your livewell each year and next time you are on the water and lose a fish, for whatever reason, ask yourself, was that a preventable mistake"?

God bless and good fishin'.

LATE SEASON HUNTING

Although most hunting seasons are still open, many sportsmen have left the field and are already beginning to think about spring fishing.

But there's a small, dedicated group of sportsmen who continue to hunt until the seasons close. They find the woods and fields less crowded and hunting conditions often better than earlier in the season.

Squirrel season closed Dec. 31, along with the deer archery season. But waterfowl and small game seasons are still open. Rabbit and quail seasons will close Feb. 12 and grouse season, Feb. 29. Seasons for both ducks and geese will run through Jan. 20, except in the Ballard Quota Zone, where the season closed Jan. 5 after the 6,000 goose quota was taken. Furbearer hunting and trapping seasons will run through Jan. 31.

But before you grab your gun, whistle up old Rover and head out, better check your hunting license. 1983 licenses expired at midnight, Dec. 31, so you'll need a new license to hunt now.

The best bet for the sportsman who both hunts and fishes is to buy a combination license, so you'll be able to hunt now and also be all set when the walleye, white bass or crappie start running in a couple of months.

A resident hunting or fishing license costs $7.50 each, while a combination license is $14. Youngsters under 16 years old may fish without a license, but they will need a junior hunting license $4.00 for residents—non-resident youngsters must pay the full price for a non-resident license).

An annual non-resident license costs $40, while a three-day non-resident small game permit is $14.50. Deer permits are $11.50 and turkey permits $6.50 for both residents and non-residents.

Non-resident fishing licenses are $5.00 for a three day permit and $6.50 for a 15-day license. Trout stamps are $3.50 for both resident and non-resident trout fighermen.

Kentucky residents 65 years old or older do not need sport licenses, but they should obtain a free lifetime license from their county court clerk. Landowners and members of their immediate families do not need licenses to hunt or fish on their own property. Tenants and their family members also don't need licenses to hunt or fish on lands where they both reside and work. Non-resident landowners must have

Allen Central Downs Wheelwright, 88-49

By BETTY HYDEN

Allen Central's Rebels downed the Wheelwright Trojans last Tuesday at Allen Central in a fairly easy win. 88-49.

With a halftime lead of 52-25 over the young Trojans, ACHS Coach John Martin used his reserves who made an impressive showing scoring 36 to the Trojans 24 points.

Craig Hall scored 20 points to lead the Rebels. He was followed by Tim Lawson and Dale Pack with 14 points each, David Green 10, Mike Rister 8, Jeff Powell 7, Larry Gibson 4, Don Moore, Stan Mullins and Ronnie Ousley, all with 2 points each, Paul Rice and Fred Ridener, 1 each.

For Wheelwright, David Hall was top scorer with 11. Tim Cole had 10, Charlie Martin and Jeff Boyd, 7 each, James Hall 6, Tim Harris 4, Tim Hughes 3, and Jack Hall 2.

P-burg Girls Down Morgan Lady Cougars

By LAURA COOLEY

The Prestonsburg Lady Cats recorded their sixth win of the season, Feb. 2, by defeating the visiting Morgan County Cougars girls squad, 60 to 57.

Although the final score was close, the Lady Cats led for most of the the game, at one point the score being 31 to 16. Morgan County fought back in the second half to pull within three of PHS, but the Cats prevailed, led by Jeana McKenzie with 26 points. Glenda Shepherd and Lucreasie Reed joined forces to pull down 12 and seven rebounds, respectively.

The Lady Cats were scheduled to play the strong Wheelwright Lady Trojans last night (Tuesday) at the gymnasium here.

Move Under Way To Make Dogfighting A Felony

The Kentucky Humane Society-Animal Rescue League announced to-day their support, in conjunction with the Humane Society of the United States, in Washington, D.C. and Friends of Animals, of Kentucky, in getting a bill passed that will make dogfighting a felony in Kentucky.

The bill, which currently is in the house and senate, is sponsored by Senator Lewis Peniston, of Henry county, and State Representative, Louie Guenther, of Jefferson county.

Dogfighting is illegal in all states, however, in Kentucky, it is only a misdemeanor. In Kentucky's neighboring states, dogfighting is a felony. Due to our state's lax law, dogfighters select Kentucky as a major sport for their cruelty. And in Kentucky, dogfighting is spreading.

Dogfighting is a criminal act which encourages illegal gambling, use of illegal firearms, and cruelty to animals. Dogs fight for up to two hours until one is too mangled to continue fighting and the other is declared a winner. Pets are stolen and commonly used as bait for dogs training to fight and kill.

The Humane Society is asking letters be sent to state legislators to help stop dogfighting. This, is said, could help to save the life of someone's pet.

State Nurseries Offer Low-Cost Seedlings

By some state estimates, there are currently more than one million acres of land in Kentucky in need of reforestation

The land is often farmland which is no longer being farmed or land which is poorly forested, with defective or undesirable trees, Forestry Director Donald A. Hamm said.

"In an attempt to make this land more productive and to upgrade the timber produced on it, we have, for a number of years, offered a very low-cost way for Kentucky's landowners to reforest their land. We offer, at nominal cost, tree seedlings from the state's tree nurseries," Hamm explained.

"These seedlings are useful to landowners for a variety of reasons—erosion control, windbreaks, reforestation and provision of wildlife habitats," he said.

The seedlings, sold by the state Division of Forestry in bundles of 100, 500 and 1,000, are one to two years old and range in height from six to sixteen inches, depending to species.

Prices for the seedling bundles range from $12 per 100 for most species to $125 per 1,000 for black walnut seedlings and Chinese chestnut seedlings.

Public Meetings Set To Intorn Public Of Red River Status

The Forest Service, U.S. Department of Agriculture, will hold a number of public information meetings regarding the Red River Draft Environmental Impact Statement and Wild and Scenic River Study Report which was made available recently for public review.

The U.S. Congress authorized a study in 1978 to determine if a section of the Red River should be included in the National Wild and Scenic River System. A nine mile section of the river is a designated wild river under the Kentucky Wild Rivers Act.

Richard H. Wengert, Forest Supervisor, Daniel Boone National Forest, Winchester, has announced the following schedule for the meetings

7:00 p.m. Monday, January 30, Stanton, Powell County High School; 7:00 p.m. Tuesday, January 31, Frenchburg, Menifee County High School; 7:00 p.m. Wednesday, February 1, Campton, Wolfe County High School; 7:00 p.m. Friday, February 3, Lexington, Seay Auditorium, Agricultural Science Building North, University of Kentucky.

These will be information type meetings, according to Wengert, with the Forest Service presenting a brief overview of the study and answering questions. Individuals or organizations desiring to present a statement for the record should bring a written copy to the meeting or mail it by March 15 to the following address:

Unemployment in Floyd Tops in Big Sandy ADD

The unemployment rate went down in 78 Kentucky counties in December as the state rate dropped below 10 percent, according to Cabinet for Human Resources figures released last Unemployment in the Big Sandy district dropped from 16.1 percent in November to 14.6 percent in December. Rates ranged from a low of 7.1 percent in Martin county, the only one with single-digit unemployment, to a high of 16.4 percent in Floyd county.

The monthly sample of unemployment insurance benefits recipients showed 55.8 percent had held jobs in mining, 12.5 percent in trade and 11.3 percent in services.

In the Kentucky River district unemployment fell from 16.7 percent in November to 15.5 percent in December. Rates ranged from a low of 10.0 percent in Breathitt county to a high of 22.4 percent in Letcher.

There were 63 counties reporting rates of 10.0 percent or higher, compared to 68 in November. For the first time in 19 months the state reported single-digit unemployment, as the rate fell from 10.4 percent in November to a preliminary 9.8 percent in December. Nationally unemployment dropped from 8.1 percent in November to 8.0 percent in December.

Jobless rates in Kentucky's 120 counties ranged from a low of 3.5 percent in Bourbon and Woodford counties to a high of 34.3 percent in Russell county. where state labor market analyst Ed Blackwell said, "The closing of a clothing manufacturing plant cast a dark shadow over the employment picture." Menifee county's 26.4 percent rate was the second highest, followed by Casey county's 24.3 percent, Greenup county's 23.1 percent, Morgan county's 22.8 percent and Letcher county's 22.4

* GOOD NEWS REPORT *

By THOMAS W. PAUKEN Director of ACTION When Raechel Browe, of Wells, Vermont, dropped in to see Marsh Peck, editor and publisher of The Vermont News Guide, she had a special purpose in mind: to put $200 to good use.

Sixteen years old, an 11th grader, extremely attractive in looks and manner, Raechel did not give the impression of one whose life for the past year had been in grave danger. Born without the link between her esophagus and stomach, she had grown up with an artificially placed connection which as the years passed, became less and less operative. As a result, she has spent half of the last ten months in hospitals and when at home, 12 out of every 24 hours on a feeding machine.

As Raechel was to write: "I almost died three different times, but each time I fought my way back to life because I had the love of people back home, pull-ing for me, praying I would not give up." Of course, she didn't give up, and her coming to Editor Peck was not so much to talk about her own problems as it was to talk about the problems of other kids she had seen while in the hospital. It was her wish to help them.

Because of her illness, the hospitalization and the treatment it required, the community of Wells had pitched in to raise funds to help Raechel's parents, Dick and Peg Browe, with the medical bills. One such effort was a dance held by the Wells Modern Woodman of America Teen Club. The Club raised $200.00 and here is some of what Raechel wrote in thanks-and talked to Marsh Peck about:

"My illness is very rare, and even in Boston they never had a case exactly like mine. I met a lot of kids down there, really sick kids, some who won't make it-some who will... These kids, one was only 13 and had a heroin addiction: it's horrible to think here I am and many others born into this world sick with physical or mental defects who suffer a life-long battle with illness. Then there are ones born perfect and end up on drugs or alcohol, destroying themselves. Why? Because they take a dare or want to be liked by the rest of the crowd. Some kids I saw, because of drugs and alcohol, can't even be left alone to go to the bathroom. They have bodyguards-straight jackets. Drugs made them crazy, lifeess, helpless. I wish to give back the $200.00 and ask your wonderful group to sponsor a drug and alcohol awareness program for the kids and parents in this community. I want to do something to help others, and I hope, as a group, you can use this money to hire guest speakers who can tell everyone about what drugs and alcohol can do to your body and mind.

"I do very much appreciate the thoughtfulness and kindness which comes from your family group and I thank you and so does my family, but I feel there is a much greater need to be met, and I think your group could do a great job. I would like to help in any way that I can, too... Love always, Raechel Raechel's long-range plan is to become involved in the medical profession herself. Thanks to Dr. Lucien Leape of Boston Floating Hospital of Tufts University, chances are good that she will do just that. Through Dr. Leap's skill and four operations, Raechel is now able to eat normally and is back in school. "I push myself every day to keep going and not give up and get discouraged," she wrote. And as Marsh Peck puts it, "Her courage and thoughtfulness are something special, and believe me, so is

Baptist Evangelism Area Conference Set

The Kentucky Baptist Convention will conduct an area evangelism conference, Monday, Feb. 20, at the First Baptist

The conference is for pastors, Sunday School workers, church leaders, lay witnesses, and other church members. The time is 7 p.m. to 9:25 p.m.

Group conferences will be conducted on the following subjects: Women and Family Evangelism, Youth Evangelism, Laymen in Evangelism, Evangelism Resources, and Evangelism Follow-up with the Survival Kit.

The group conferences will include information on evangelizing the family, training and leading youth in evangelism, conducting lay-led revivals, counseling for the evangelistic invitation, conducting prayer seminars, personal witness training and conserving the results of evangelism.

Kentucky Baptist personnel will include Rev. and Mrs. Harry Hunter, Rev. Harold Barnes, Dr. Donald Garrison, Rev. Vernon Cole, and Rev. Jay Brown. Rev. James Cartwright, Rev. Luell Smith, and Rev. Glenn Smith from the Baptist Sunday School Board in Nashville will also assist in the group conferences.

Rev. Jay Brown, of the Department of Evangelism of the Kentucky Baptist Convention, will be directing the conference

ETERNAL PUNISHMENT

Yes. God is going to punish Sinners, (un-saved), forever in Hell. 2 Thes. 1:7-9, Matthew 25:31-46, Romans 6:23 Rev. 20:11-15, Matthew 18:8-9.

Some people think, Rom. 6:23 refers to Physical Death Only. Not so, Paul is saying, Sin entered the world. As a result it brought Physical Death. It also brought Spiritual Death. (Eternal separation from God), in Hell. This is referred to as the Second Death, for the un-saved. Rev. 20:14-15.

Those who do not get right with God in this life by obeying the Gospel of Christ, Mark 16:15-16, and live faithful until death, II Peter 2:20-22, will live in the torments of Hell forever and ever.

Hell, (Eternal Punishment) for the wicked, (un-saved) will last just as long as Heaven will for the Saved.

Hell, (Eternal Punishment) for the wicked, will be just as real, as Heaven will be for the Saved. Eternal, Everlasting are the same, Matthew 25:41-46,

'Frontline' Probes Hunger And Politics

Several weeks ago the Presidential Task Force on Food Assistance in America submitted its controversial report. "Frontline" examines the commission's findings and takes a look at the evidence presented by private groups on "Bread, Butter, and Politics," airing Monday, February 20, at 8 p.m. on KET.

At the center of the controversy is the number of people facing starvation in America. A pitched debate has raged in the press, beginning with Edwin Meese's December 9 comment: Some people go to soup kitchens "because the food is free and...that's easier than paying for it." On December 11, the Chicago Tribune responded: "More than one million residents in the Chicago area suffer from severe hunger and often go to bed unsure whether they have food for the next day.'

President Reagan, in an effort to solve the dilemma, appointed a special commission to explore the problem of hunger in America. Several private groups have castigated the commission's findings and its blue ribbon sponsors as being grossly inaccurate. 'Frontline' is a production of Parker Markey Charitable Trust. The gift, accepted officially (Jan. 25) by the UK board of trustees, is part of a $5 million matching-fund grant from the estate of the late Lucille Parker Markey. It will be used for the construction of a comprehensive cancer treatment and research facility at UK's Albert B. Chandler Medical Center.

Mrs. Markey was owner of Calumet Farm in Lexington, one of the most famous horse farms in the world, from 1950 until her death in 1982.

"Mrs. Markey was so generous during her lifetime, and now this latest gift from her estate will serve as a lasting memorial to her support for cancer care and research," said Dr. Otis Singletary, president of the University of Kentucky.

"The most important part about her generosity, of course, is that it will benefit thousands of Kentuckians and other people throughout our nation and world for years to come," Singletary

Mrs. Markey was an early supporter of cancer care and research at the university, contributing $5,192,763 during her lifetime. Remembering this support in her estate, Mrs. Markey bequeathed $641,800 to the continued pursuit of the cancer research project. Two-Car Accident Friday, Claims One

Leonard Anderson, 65, of McDowell, was dead on arrival at the McDowell Appalachian Regional Hospital, Friday, where he was taken shortly after colliding head-on with a pickup truck while traveling south on Ky. 122.

A witness to the accident told state police that the Anderson vehicle veered across the centerline several times before striking the pickup driven by Paul Caudill, and according to the State Police a large quantity of alcoholic beverage was found in Anderson's car.

Caudill, driver of the pickup, was treated for minor injuries at McDowell Appalachian Regional Hospital, and released.

Born March 8, 1918 at McDowell, Anderson was a son of the late Melvin and Mary Jane Sizemore Anderson. He was a disabled dental technician. His first wife, Gladys Patton Anderson, died in 1953, and he later married Annie Tackett Anderson, who survives him.

In addition to his wife, he is survived by two sons, Willie C. Anderson, of Topmost, and Danny Anderson, of McDowell; three daughters, Mrs. Donna Rigsby, of Miami, Fla., Mrs. Peggy Sue Hubbarg and Mrs. Roberta Hawkins, both of Waynesburg; three brothers, Milford G. Anderson, of Dandridge, Tenn., John Anderson, of Fairborn, O., and Richard Anderson, of Lexington; five sisters, Elymas Olsen, of Cedartown, Ga., Rose Floyd, Mary Anderson, and Sarah King, all of McDowell, and Zella Howell, of Neville, Ohio. Fourteen grandchildren and two great-grandchildren also survive.

Funeral services were conducted at 11 a.m., Monday, at the First Baptist Church of McDowell by the Rev. H. Billie Sadler, and burial was made in the family cemetery at McDowell under direction of the Hall Funeral Home.

Because the largest percentage of a bank's expenses are incurred in processing checking account transactions, most banks charge a nominal fee for this service.

Like you, we have always felt that charges can become burdensome. That's why WE base our checking account charges on AVERAGE balances rather than minimum balances, like our competitors.

DAY	THE BANK JOS	SEPHINE	BAN	IK Y	BANK Z
	Balance	Potential Charge	Balance	Pot. Charge	Balance	Pot. Charge
1	$350	-0-	$350	$4.00	$350	-0-
2	$250	-0-	$250	$5.00	$250	$3.00
3	$300	-0-	$1,000		$1,000
TOTALS	$900	-0-	$1,600	$5.00	$1,600	$3.00

As you can see, our checking accounts really DO cost less. In our example your total balance is divided by 3. And even though your balance at The Bank Josephine dropped below $300 for one day during the period, you pay NO service charge since your AVERAGE balance was $300. Banks Y and Z charge on MINIMUM balances. And even though your average balance with them was higher, you will still pay their HIGHEST charge just because your balance dropped below the minimum for only one day!

AND TALK ABOUT CONVENIENCE!! We have six full-service locations.

Bank Y has four; Bank Z has only one.

You'll find a Bank Josephine location on every major highway in Floyd County. And our combined locations offer a total of 102 more banking hours per week than Bank Y and 208 more than Bank Z. And NONE of OUR locations close for an hour in the middle of a busy Friday.

Now, you know what we mean when we say we're

AND EASTERN KENTUCKY TOO!

X-Ray Radiation Cut At Pikeville Methodist

When the Radiology Department at the Pikeville Methodist Hospital recently began using Kodak Lanex rare earth intensifying screens, it immediately cut radiation exposure to patients by 50 percent, according to Doug Hall, Chief Xray Technologist.

'The new screens can also save money and increase efficiency in the department," he said. "The speed of exposure helps reduce the number of x-ray examinations that must be redone if the patient moves. The less time it takes for the exposure, the less likelihood of movement blurring the x-ray study, which reduces the number of retakes,'

But it is the reduction in radiation exposure to patients and staff that Doctors Poulos and Kim consider most impor-

'Everyone involved in the use of diagnostic x-rays is concerned with minimizing unnecessary exposures to achieve a diagnosis. The opportunity to reduce x-ray exposure to the patient is one that must always be seized. We have seen the reports in the journals and noted the results of tests of these screens and they indicate that the combination reduces patients' exposure between two and three times that of conventional screen/film combination.'

They also noted that radiologic technologists and others who work with x-rays also are exposed to less radiation. one study indicating a 62 percent reduction to the staff. Protection of the staff has always been carefully controlled and monitored to maintain minimum radiation levels. The new screen/film combination makes it that much easier and provides greater protection.

To Avoid Penalty, File Information Tax Returns

Farmers and other business operators still have a little time left to file informat nal returns, otherwise known as IRL orm 1099-MISC, for payments of $600 or more they made to nonemployees who performed services for them during the year.

That reminder comes from Dr. Chuck Moore, Extension farm management specialist in the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

"This requirement is not new, but the penalty for failure to file has finally attracted business owners' interest," Moore said.

The penalty for each failure to file is $50, with a maximum of $50,000 per calendar year.

If farmers in the course of their business pay more than $600 to a nonincorporated business or an individual who is not an employee, they must file a 1099-MISC. One copy must go to the payee by January 31 and one copy to the IRS by February 28.

If the payment is interest of more than $600 to such an individual, then a 1099-INT is required (but not for interest paid to lending institutions).

Moore gives several examples of payments that would necessitate filing a 1099-MISC:

Contracting with someone to paint a barn for $1,500 where $600 or more was for services.

Paying a non-incorporated repair shop for overhauling a tractor, say for

A landowner paying a farm manager to manage his farm.

A farmer paying $4,000 in cash rent for additional land

A farmer paying a crew chief or independent contractor $1,500 to harvest

Farmers who filed informational forms last year for calendar year 1982 may remember form 1099-NEC that was used for non-employee compensation. But, Moore said, for 1983 this form has been discontinued and 1099-MIC is to be used instead.

The IRS copy of each 1099 must be attached to the transmittal from 1096 and filed with the IRS service center by February 28, said Moore.

"With the $50 penalty for failure to file, it could be very costly to farmers and other business owners if very many of these required forms were neglected," Moore said.

Dinosaur To Visit Allen Central

With the help of his prehistoric friend, Daphne, teacher-demonstrator Winston Baird presents "GasWorks: Pipeline to the Future" to area students. The traveling energy education program, sponsored by Columbia Gas of Kentucky, will be presented to Allen Central High School students, Monday, February 20.

"GasWorks" was developed by Oak Ridge Associated Universities, a not-for-profit science education and research organization headquartered at Oak Ridge, Tennessee, near Knoxville. It uses a variety of colorful graphic and electronic teaching aids to explain where gas comes from, how it is transported and stored, and how natural gas will continue to play a vital role in the U.S. energy picture.

"GasWorks" features a giant dinosaur to illustrate the origin of fossil fuels; an illuminated map of the million-mile, cross-country pipeline network; liquid nitrogen to demonstrate how super-cold temperatures liquify natural gas for ease in overseas transportation; and tips to encourage wise and economical energy management in the home

Students participate in most of the demonstrations led by program conductor Winston Baird of Oak Ridge Associated Universities. Baird, a former teacher and guidance counselor, received extensive training in energy technology and research to prepare him to demonstrate the "GasWorks" program, Cameron said.

The assembly program may be followed by special classroom sessions where teachers and students explore ideas about current energy concerns and the impact of science and technology on social issues.

The traveling energy education program is one of six "GasWorks" units being presented to students across the country, Cameron said.

EDB Incidence In State Said Extremely Low

Kentucky Commissioner of Agriculture David E. Boswell has asserted that Department samplings of bulk grains in storage areas and handling facilities across the Commonwealth indicate an extremely low incidence of the banned fumigant chemical ethylene dibromide (EDB). The testing was done on a random basis during recent days by the Department's Division of Pesticides.

"These results show that at the grain handling level at least, Kentucky is in extremely positive shape with regard to the use of this chemical," Commissioner Boswell said. There are a number of other pesticide/fumigants that can be as effectively used and our research indicates that the Kentucky industry generally selected chemicals other than

The federal Environmental Protection Agency Friday, Feb. 3, issued a general ban on the agricultural use of EDB.

Tolerance levels for human consumption in stored grain also established today by EPA are well above those identified through Kentucky Agriculture Department testing. EPA indicates that a tolerance of .9 parts per million for human consumption is acceptable for grain in handling and storage facilities. Kentucky's figures for wheat indicate a level of .035 parts per million and for white corn of .004 parts per million.

'We know that no milling operation in Kentucky is using EDB," Commissioner Boswell said today. "We have also contacted chemical companies that have EDB registered in Kentucky and know that since an earlier September cancellation imposed by EPA, there has been no EDB shipped into Kentucky.'

The action by the federal EPA comes right on the heels of correspondence today with Washington by Commissioner Boswell on behalf of Governor Martha Layne Collins in which he communi-Cated the information about the trace levels found in Kentucky's grain handling and grain storage facilities.

Commissioner Boswell notes that the Department of Agriculture has not been involved in checking manufactured and processed grain food stuffs on store shelves in the Commonwealth. These activities are the responsibility of the Cabinet for Human Resources. Human consumption tolerance levels issued today by EPA for such foods as flour, meals and mixes are .15 parts per million and for such ready-to-eat items as breads and cookies, .03 parts per million.

"We stand ready to cooperate in any and every way with EPA in its action today," said Boswell," and we are glad to be able to issue a note of some comfort in this matter on the subject of the agricultural use of this chemical in Kentuc-

Is Your Drinking Water Safe?

What is the quality of the water in your home? Is it safe or has it been contaminated with bacteria? How can you tell and what can you do about it? These are questions that should be given important consideration, especially if you live on a farm.

The most important type of water quality problem is bacteria, according to Dr. Richard Warner, Extension soil and water specialist in the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

"The disease-producing types of bacteria are viruses and protozoa which can cause illnesses such as typhoid fever, dysentery, diarrhea and hepatitis," he said. "Whenever a disease occurs in the household, especially a recurring disease, there is a potential for having unsafe water and the water should be tested.

Bacteria enter farm water supplies through poor seals between the well and the ground, Warner explained. If you have a pond or stream, it is possible that the runoff entering it may have bacterial growth.

The bacteria in animal wastes infiltrate through the ground. "These can be present if you have cattle grazing upflow from the pond or any animal around the vicinity of the pond, such as deer." said Warner. If there are any animals around the area it is likely that they will carry fecal wastes into the

Other water constituents that people should be concerned about are the elements iron and manganese. Iron causes the rust-colored stains in water. The black stains that appear on fixtures and clothes are a result of manganese. "Iron bacteria are normally the cause of the colored slime in toilet tanks,' Warner said.

Water hardness made up of dissolved minerals such as calcium and magnesium leaves a gray tint discoloring clothes and also leaves soap suds on wash water and bath water. Hydrogen sulfide, which smells like rotten eggs, tends to cause black discoloration

In western Kentucky there is acid water, or water with a low pH level. This acidic water tends to corrode metal pipes and pumps, said Warner. If you suspect that your water is contaminated with any of these constituents, you should have a water test conducted. A bacteriological test should also be done when you install a new water system such as a well, cistern, pond or stream, Warner recommended.

There are several commercial water testing laboratories in Kentucky that are qualified by the Department of Natural Resources and Environmental Protection. They will provide you with a sterile sampling bottle, instructions and a list of fees.

"What they are really testing for is culiform bacteria-those found in the fecal wastes of warm-blooded mammals," Warner said. "This is an indicator organism that is easy to test for. It simply indicates the possible presence of a disease-causing organism.

If you think that your water should be tested, you should first locate a cold water faucet. It cannot be one which mixes hot and cold water and certainly not one that is leaky or connected to a hose. Then remove any strainer device on the faucet and sterilize the inside surfaces of the faucet by flaming them with a propane torch. If you don't have a propane torch, you can make a homemade one. Take a cotton ball, saturate it in rubbing alcohol and hold it with pliers. Then light it and use as you would a blow torch.

Make sure to wash your hands prior to taking the sample. Then open the faucet to full flow for five to 10 minutes. This empties the water pressure in the tank and causes the pump to start, and allows you to test all the water in the

After 10 minutes, close the faucet to a pencil-sized stream and let it flow for about one minute. Fill the sterile bottle about three quarters full. Make sure not to rinse the bottle or contaminate the

When you have obtained the sample, personally deliver it to the laboratory if at all possible. Otherwise, take it to the post office right before mail dispatch time. This is necessary because a sample that is more than 30 hours old gives inaccurate results, Warner said.

If the tests reveal that your water is contaminated, you need to shock chlorinate. "When shock chlorinating, you overload the water supply with a high dosage of chlorine that has the potential to kill the bacteria," said

You shock the system by flushing the chlorine through the system and letting the water run for a while. Then pump the well until the smell of chlorine is gone.

"If you can still taste the chlorine in the water, then the level may be too high," said Warner. "Let the water run for a while longer.'

The bacteria is killed by having the proper dosage of chlorine and correct amount of contact time. A contact time of about 10 minutes is considered minimal, said Warner. "At the normal chlorine dosage, the chlorine needs to be in contact with the water for at least the amount of time to be able to kill the

"It's a good idea to chlorinate all the water for domestic use even if you don't suspect contamination," he said.

"Heart disease is the cause of more than 38 percent of the deaths in the state and the leading killer of Kentuckians over age 20," Ford said. "What a tremendous expression of love, to say to a spouse or a child, 'I want us to be together for a long, long time, so I'm going to do what it takes to have the strongest heart I can have.

What it takes, said Ford, is common sense, moderation and attention to all the daily habits that can help or hurt vour heart.

Unemployment Comp Subject to Taxation

People who received unemployment compensation last year need to report the payments on income tax returns, according to state Cabinet for Human Resources officials. These include people who received unemployment insurance benefits and those who received trade readjustment allowances because they were totally or partially seperated from their jobs as a result of increased imports.

"About 200,000 Kentuckians received" these benefits last year," said Mae Girkey, director of the cabinet's Division for Unemployment Insurance. "We will send each one a statement by Jan. 31, showing the amount of benefits he or she recieved." The UI statement is similar to a W-2 form and must be attached to the tax return.

'While anyone who receives $10 or more in benefits must report it on a tax return, the federal government has set income levels, based on a person's filing status, at which benefits become taxable, "Girkey said. The amount of benefits is added to a person's adjusted gross income

Information for figuring the amount to be included on a tax return is included in the instructions for federal income tax returns and in Publication 905, "Tax Information on Unemployment Compensation. Anyone who received unemployment compensation during 1983 who doesn't receive a form by the second week of Feburary or who questions the amount on the statement should contact the local office where he or she filed for the benefits, Girkey said.

For camping or picnics, freeze water, lemonade, tea, etc., in gallon plastic jugs. Store in portable ice chests. The frozen liquids will keep other items cold and will melt slowly to provide icy drinks.

Need For KPDES Permits Removed

Beginning March 1, 1984, a general permit issued by the state Division of Water will allow wastewater discharges from most coal-mining activities, removing the need for individual Kentucky Pollution Discharge Elimination System, KPDES, permits for most coalmining activities

The sites covered in the general permit, KY G04001, include active mining sites, coal preparation plant associated areas and coal refuse disposal piles which have "satisfied the conditions of the applied permit and which hold valid permanent program permits," said Clyde Baldwin, manager of the Division of Water's permit review branch.

The general permit, issued January 31, 1984 by Richard Shogren, director of the Division of Water, contains limitations on the amounts of pollutants that can be discharged from mining sites. Also included in the general permit are additional conditions, such as the requirement of routine submittal of selfmonitoring reports from all mining

"Any operator with a valid permanent program mining permit, as defined in KRS Chapter 350, may request a general KPDES permit coverage for miningrelated discharges by contacting the appropriate regional office of the Kentucky Department for Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement," Baldwin said.

"All requests for general permit coverage which are under review by the Division of Water will be made public and all comments relevant to the applicability of the general permit will be considered by the Division of Water prior to any final action," he explained.

The general permit will expire on January 31, 1989, state officials said. Prior to the issuance of the general permit, individual mining operations were required to file KPDES permit applications. Jurisdiction over the pollution discharge elimination system permits was granted the state Division of Water in 1983 by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency

Additional information on the general permit, its conditions and exceptions, is available from the Division of Water's Frankfort offices. For information, contact Larry Sowder of the Division of Water's Permit Review Branch, telephone (502) 564-3410 or the Permits Division of the Department for Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement, telephone (502) 564-3220.

Copies of the general permit and fact sheet are available upon request from the Division of Water or the Department for Surface Mining Reclamation and EnSecond Birthday

IRS Publication Contains Helpful Tax Information

Taxpayers interested in year-round tax tips as well as in a thorough guide to filing season tax information can obtain a copy of the free IRS publication 910, "Taxpayer's Guide to IRS Information and Assistance," the Internal Revenue Service said. Publication 910 is available free from the IRS by writing the IRS Forms Distribution Center, P.O. Box 6900, Florence, Ky. 41042.

Contained in publication 910 are descriptions of IRS services available to help taxpayers prepare their tax returns or to receive assistance with their returns. The booklet explains how to resolve questions on bills, letters, and notices from the IRS, and assists taxpayers with questions concerning their accounts and the status of refunds they

Of particular interest to taxpayers, this year's guide will list the telephone numbers for both Tele-Tax, the recorded telephone tax information service, and for the IRS toll-free telephone lines, which enable a taxpayer to call and speak to an IRS employee for tax assis-

Other items of interest in the publication are explanations on collection of taxes, examination of returns, and how to file an amended return. Further, the guide describes many of the free publications that are most often requested by taxpayers and includes a handy order

Dress To Avoid Chill When North Wind Blows

There's more to protecting oneself from severe cold temperatures than just bundling up, according to a Western Kentucky University emergency care

Hypothermia, a condition caused by exposure to severe cold, can happen to people quickly as well as over a long period of time, even from being in a snowball fight, says Dr. Henry Baughman, coordinator of emergency care technology at WKU.

Any body temperature below 95 degrees is considered a state of hypothermia, Baughman says, and since the National Weather Service has predicted more below normal temperatures for February, Baughman offers some tips on how to avoid hypothermia and frost

Tips for dressing in cold weather include: covering the head and face, wearing layers of clothing, wearing outer garments that are wind and waterproof, maintaining a healthy body, eating more often and consuming higher energy foods, and keeping active and dry.

"Covering the head is something many people don't do because they are afraid it will mess up their hair, or because it is simply too much trouble,' Baughman says, adding, "Fifty percent of body heat is lost from the shoulders

Baughman also says to avoid alcoholic beverages and smoking when you're going to be out in the cold, because both cause body heat to escape more rapidly.

"It is important to remember that once the body temperature has dropped below 95 degrees it cannot be rewarmed simply by eating more food or by putting on more clothing, since clothing only acts to retain body heat which has already been lost," says Baughman.

"It is important to remove the wet or constricting clothing and to then consume foods which are body temperature-100 degrees to 114 degrees," he adds. "Don't rub frostbitten areas because that will only damage the tissue even further," he says.

Some symptoms of hypothermia include a slowing down of the body, stiffening of the muscles, hallucinations, amnesia, staggering and poor coordination, shock, low body temperature, irregular pulse and weak respiration, numbness in the fingers and toes, followed by severe pain until eventually there is no pain at all, and chill bumps, white

Every year, Louisiana loses 40 square miles of land into the Gulf of Mexico, says the National Wildlife Federation. This quickly-vanishing area of lush swamps and marshes of the Mississippi Delta provides a nutrient-rich underwater shelf that, in turn, provides more than a third of the nation's annual

To Wed March 17

Leneda S. Rigsby and H. Kenneth Fuller announce their engagement and forthcoming marriage on Saturday, March 17, at 1:30 p.m. at the First Baptist Church in Paintsville, Kentucky.

Miss Rigsby is the daughter of William L. and Ruth Rigsby, of Paintsville, and is presently employed by Transcontinental Coal Processing, Inc., in Prestonsburg. Mr. Fuller is the son of Virgie H. Fuller, of Somerset, and Hugh W. Fuller, of Monticello, and is an Associate Professor at Prestonsburg Community College.

The gracious custom of an open church ceremony will be observed and all friends and relatives are invited to attend the wedding and reception which will follow at the church.
