

McGuffey Enters Plea, To Testify For State

Jury Selection Under Way In Marshall Trial

One of two half-brothers facing trial in Fayette Circuit Court this week for complicity in the murder last June of a McDowell school teacher entered a guilty plea yesterday (Tuesday) and agreed to testify against his brother.

In a plea bargain worked out during the first day of the trial, Monday, and announced shortly after 8 a.m. Tuesday morning, Bobby Gene McGuffey, 30, of Lafayette, Tenn., pleaded guilty of complicity in the death last June 20 of Glenda Sharon Marshall.

Commonwealth's Attorney James R. Allen, prosecutor in the case, recommended that McGuffey be given a life sentence. Conviction could have resulted in the death penalty.

Jury selection began Tuesday in the trial of the remaining defendant, Clyde Douglas Marshall, 31, of McDowell, husband of the dead woman.

The charred body of Mrs. Marshall, a 35-year-old math teacher at McDowell High School, was found inside a burned automobile that had plunged several hundred feet off Sizemore Mountain, near Minnie. Police said she had apparently been killed by a blow to the head before the vehicle burned.

Marshall, McGuffey and Carl Harold McFarland, 52, of Glasgow, Ky., were indicted last August for conspiracy to murder Mrs. Marshall. McGuffey and another man, Edward Wright, were said to have actually committed the murder.

Wright was shot and killed last July outside the cabinet shop which he and McGuffey operated near Lafayette. McFarland previously agreed to turn

Grand Jury Held Over

The February term of the Floyd Circuit Court grand jury, which would normally be sitting at this time, has been postponed because of the current Lexington murder trial of Clyde Douglas Marshall and Bobby Gene McGuffey, said Commonwealth's Attorney James R. Allen. The grand jury will be called into session when that trial, which began this week, is over, Allen said.

Murder Attempt Alleged, Bond of $100,000 Posted

A Cow Creek man was accused of attempted murder and criminal mischief Friday, after he allegedly fired on a coal truck driver during an early-morning chase from Emma to Martin.

Palmer Crider, 31, of Endicott, said Paul David DeRossett, 37, tried to kill him as he pulled his tractor trailer out of Cow Creek around 5:10 a.m. He made the same charge in a civil suit filed Monday in Floyd Circuit Court.

DeRossett's wife, Betty Foley DeRossett, said her husband was at home in bed at the time of the alleged shooting.

Crider said he was hauling his first load for the day from the Cow Creek Construction Co. mine to a Huesville tippie, when a 1975 Monte Carlo with two men inside pulled over in front of him. When the car's dome light came on, he recognized DeRossett, who fired a rifle shot, Crider said.

The shot shattered the cab window, spraying him with glass, the truck driver said. His assailants then pursued him in the early morning darkness along KY 1428 and old KY 80, firing shots repeatedly, until he collided with their vehicle in the parking lot of the Pic Pac store at Martin, Crider said.

Linda Laudermilt, of Endicott, who is the proprietor of Linda's Trucking Co. and the truck's lessee, said at least nine rifle shots had hit the truck. A bullet was recovered from the cab, it was said. Buckshot pellets had also struck the rig.

Damage, including that done when the truck and the Monte Carlo collided and the truck hit a stanchion, could amount to more than $8000, Mrs. Laudermilt estimated. "It's a mess. There's no reason for this," she said.

Crider also claimed he knew of no reason for the alleged attack on him but DeRossett, who is married to Crider's ex-wife, had previously threatened to kill him and Mrs. Laudermilt, Crider said. "It's a shame when you can't get out and work without somebody waiting to take a shot at you," he said.

DeRossett was booked at the Floyd county jail and released Friday after posting a $100,000 property bond. His wife attributed the charges against him

Akers To Deliver Petitions To Clerk

Almost 9,000 petitions asking that the move by the Floyd County Board of Education to impose a 3% utilities tax on residents of this county be put to a vote will be presented to County Clerk Carla R. Boyd, today (Wednesday). Everett Akers, one of the leaders of the drive to put the question to a vote, will deliver the petitions to the clerk's office at 10:30.

Following delivery of the petitions, the clerk is required to send via certified mail notification to the Board of Education of a petition having been filed. Upon receipt and acknowledgement of the notice by the Board, the utilities tax will be held in abeyance until verification or rejection of the petitions by the election commissioners. If they are judged valid, the tax will not be imposed unless a majority of voters cast their ballots for it in the next general election.

The number of petitions required is 2,308 or 15 percent of votes cast in this county in the last presidential election.

Civil Air Patrol Unit Here Plans Recruiting Drive

Even as one emergency services organization closed its doors here, another was out recruiting new members. While the Big Sandy Chapter of the American Red Cross disbanded after 55 years in this county, the Dewey Lake Squadron of the Civil Air Patrol (CAP) struggled to take off.

The local squadron, part of a group that embraces 32 eastern Kentucky counties, was chartered last June. The group boasts a single light aircraft—a Cessna T41B retired by the U.S. Air Force—which is housed at the Combs airport here. And this week the 35-member squadron met to plan a drive to boost its numbers.

If the CAP has lost some of the romance of its early, wartime years—it was founded in 1941 to draw volunteer civilian fliers into the war effort—it still has an important peacetime role, said Major Denzil Allen, a Prestonsburg insurance agent who heads CAP Group 3.

With more than a little nostalgia, auto

CIVIL AIR PATROL Major Denzil Allen prepared the organization's Cessna for a recent training flight. A volunteer, civilian adjunct to the U.S. Air Force, the Civil Air Patrol was organized in 1942 to assist with the war effort and now provides rescue and other emergency services. A local squadron was formed here last year and is presently recruiting new members.

Population Growth Of County May Add Extra Rum Outlet

Because of growth in population, Floyd county is entitled to another package liquor store, Edward A. Farris, commissioner of the state Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control, announced this week. Applications for the new license will be received for thirty days from today (Wednesday), he said.

Meanwhile, two Prestonsburg businessmen who were among the original 21 selected by the Alcoholic Beverage Control (ABC) board to receive licenses in December, 1982, will be asked this week to show cause why their claim to a license should not be withdrawn. James R. McClung and William L. Smith have never used their license, although McClung bought a liquor store originally licensed to another. Under ABC policy, license designees are

Council Argues Role Of Fire Department

The extent of their responsibility for fire protection outside the city limits again exercised members of the Prestonsburg city council this week, one member proposing that a subscription service be made available for out-of-town residents.

Under a plan proposed by Paul Hunt Thompson, county homeowners and merchants within five road miles of the city's main fire station would be served by one of the city's smaller units and a limited firefighting crew in return for an annual fee.

Thompson said he took exception to a recent council decision limiting out-of-town fire runs to hospitals and schools. "We can't suddenly stop providing service to people who have been depending on it for years," he said.

But Bill Ray Collins wanted to know why Prestonsburg should be concerned about residents who have resisted attempts to incorporate them in the city. "They can come into the city if they want to," he said, adding, "They've slapped down our annexation ventures."

(City ordinances annexing sections on Katy Friend and at Lancer have been challenged in court; a recent proposal to annex a strip along the Auxier road also ran into considerable public opposition.)

Bobby Watson, arguing against the subscription plan, vowed he was "not going to sell the people of Prestonsburg down the river. We've got to draw the line somewhere. The line is already there. It's the city limit," he said.

But Mayor Harold Cooley said Prestonsburg benefits from the county and may have some responsibility beyond its own borders. Thompson's proposal is a "well-thought-up ordinance" that merits further consideration, he said.

Under the subscription plan, homeowners would pay $24 a year and businesses from $90 to $750 depending on area. In return, the city fire department would respond to fire calls with the 260-gallon "mini-pumper" and a maximum of six firefighters for house fires, 10 for business fires. (City residents are served by three 500-gallon fire trucks as well as the mini-pumper.)

The section of old U.S. 23 in front of Prestonsburg High School will be closed to all vehicles except buses between 7 and 8:45 a.m. and 2:30 and 3:45 p.m., according to a council decision. The Board of Education sought the restriction in order to comply with a state Department of Education regulation, it was said.

A random audit will be made of 10 firms to see that they are collecting enough occupational tax from their employees and paying their fair share of license fees, the council decided. The

Broadform Bill Gets Nod From Senate Panel

Advocates of a bill that would limit application of Kentucky's broadform deeds were heartened yesterday (Tuesday) when a Senate committee voted unanimously to send the bill on for a vote in the full Senate chamber.

The bill, House Bill 32, cleared the House by a 77-vote margin last week. The Senate Judiciary-Civil Committee approved it yesterday, 6-0.

Among those speaking on behalf of the bill before the committee in Frankfort were its sponsor, Rep. Greg Stumbo, Floyd landowners Everett Akers, of Martin, and Marion Taylor, of Printer, and John Rosenberg, director of the Appalachian Research and Defense Fund. Sen. Benny Ray Bailey will sponsor the bill in the Senate, where coal industry representatives are expected to mount an effort to kill it or weaken it by amendments.

Kentucky Coal Association Vice President Bill Caylor urged the Senate committee to consider an alternative bill, Senate Bill 198, introduced recently by Sen. Gus Sheehan, of Covington, which would not permit landowners to block stripmining on their property but would allow them to sue for damages done by the mining operation.

Writ Asks Arrest of Man Free 6 Years after Trial

A warrant has been issued for the arrest of a former Drift man convicted of robbery and assault here six years ago. The warrant was signed after court officials learned that, through an apparent oversight, the man never served his penitentiary sentence.

Gary Lee Castle, at the time a 31-year-old belt examiner for the Martin County Coal Co. in Warfield, was convicted in April, 1978 of robbing and shooting a gas station attendant on Katy Friend the year before.

Prosecutors said that, on Jan. 14, 1977, Castle held up Cletis Boyd, then 20, of Dana, at the TCT Truck Stop on U.S. 23, forced him to hand over about $200, and then shot him through the neck and chest. Castle, a Vietnam veteran, claimed he had a war-related mental disorder, had taken a combination of drugs and alcohol that day to relieve the pain of a back injury, and remembered nothing of the robbery or shooting.

On the recommendation of a Floyd Circuit Court jury, he received sentences of 17 years for assault and 11 years for robbery, the two terms to run concurrently, but remained free on bond while the convictions were appealed.

In filing his appeal, Castle said his defense attorney had performed so poorly as to make his trial "a farce and a mockery." Moreover, the trial judge had erred, he argued, in failing to tell jurors they could find he acted "under extreme emotional disturbance."

The Kentucky Court of Appeals rejected Castle's complaint about his lawyer, Prestonsburg attorney Burnis Martin—although "the trial transcript appears to indicate trial counsel did at best a mediocre job," the court said—and upheld the circuit court's robbery conviction. But the higher court directed that Castle be tried again on the assault charge, on account of Circuit Judge Hollie Conley's failure to instruct the jury on extreme emotional disturbance.

In fact, Castle was not tried again on the assault charge and was never brought in to serve his 11-year sentence for the robbery conviction—facts that might never have come to light except for inquiries made here recently by an Inez attorney.

Both Mac Preece, personnel manager for the Martin County Coal Co., and John R. Triplett, a lawyer said to be working for the company, declined to comment on the case. But the coal firm is reported to be testing its legal obligation to pay worker's compensation to a man who apparently should be in the penitentiary.

Although there is no record of it in the court file, Commonwealth's Attorney James R. Allen said this week he thinks he agreed not to re-try Castle on the assault charge since a substantial sentence had been given for the robbery conviction. But the reason Castle never served time for the robbery remained hazy this week.

Allen thought an agreement may have been reached suspending the sentence, but there is no court order to that effect on file; defense attorney Martin said he knows nothing of such a deal; and Pikeville attorney Herman W. Lester, who

KHA Explains New Medicare Rulings

Due to various new government regulations, confusion has developed on the part of some elderly Medicare patients regarding hospital admission and whether their hospital stay will be paid by Medicare.

The bulk of the confusion stems from the requirement that Medicare patients must be assigned an authorization code number by the Kentucky Peer Review Organization (KPRO) prior to any non-emergency hospital admission. KPRO, a federally funded organization, was established to review the medical necessity of hospital admissions of non-emergency Medicare and Medicaid patients.

Some patients have been confused and have assumed they are required to obtain the authorization code number when, in fact, it is the responsibility of the patient's admitting physician to call KPRO for approval.

Since patients are not able to get such authorization from the KPRO and because of the reluctance of a few physicians to call KPRO for a review of the patient's condition, some patients have refrained from visiting physicians. They have assumed that they will not be admitted or that Medicare will not cover their hospital charges.

However, should a physician determine this patient is in need of hospitalization, a hospital will not refuse to admit the patient simply because of the lack of an authorization code.

This regulation for physicians applies to all non-emergency Medicare/Medicaid patients except admissions for alcoholism, drug dependency, rehabilitative psychiatric treatment, and maternity care.

The process for obtaining an authorization code works like this. The admitting physician of any non-emergency Medicare or Medicaid patient calls KPRO and includes information about the patient and reasons for the admission. Once the KPRO has the necessary information, a determination is made regarding the necessity for hospitalization.

The patient is not involved in this process and normally is unaware that this process has ever taken place. If admission is approved, the physician is given an authorization code which then will accompany the patient to the hospital.

The first collective bargaining agreement in the U.S. was obtained in 1795 by Philadelphia printers, according to "Labor Firsts in America," a publication of the U.S. Department of Labor.

Q. My doctor has found that I have lung cancer, and he has referred me to a thoracic surgeon. What is a thoracic surgeon, and why do I need one? He's Board certified too. What does this mean?

A thoracic surgeon specializes in surgery of the organs in the chest area. To be certified by the American Board of Thoracic Surgery, a physician first must have been certified by the American Board of Surgery, have two additional years of training in thoracic surgery, and have successfully completed written and oral examinations.

Each type of cancer grows and spreads differently, so it is vital that a surgeon performing cancer surgery be experienced in treating the particular form of cancer. Your family physician doubtless referred you to a thoracic surgeon because he believes that your particular case should be handled by a specialist. This is frequently done and is in your best interests.

In addition, the thoracic surgeon is in a position to consult with other specialists in the treatment of lung cancer. You might ask him/her about doing so if it is not suggested. Examples of consultants are a medical oncologist who is expert in the use of chemotherapy drugs and a radiation oncologist whose skill is in the use of radiation therapy. Such consultations among physicians in various disciplines provides added assurance that your cancer is being well handled, for then the best single therapy or combination can be applied to your particular case.

Generally, your family physician will be kept abreast of your progress and will cooperate with the surgeon in the management of your case. If you have questions about these procedures, don't hesitate to contact your family physician.

IN MEMORIAM

In memory of Linda Sue Hale who passed away ten years ago on February 18, 1974.

Time is like an endless sea,
Which carries grief away.
The healing process is slow-indeed,
For unbearable loneliness brings empty days.
"My friend, I walk through a valley and weep,
For the wounds of grief are painful to bear."
When time seemed to be as endless as shared dreams,
Thoughts linger to past days.
But, the gracious Providence of God is a great healer,
Through trusting, grief gradually flows away.
The sunlight of healing lends,
Precious memories of a friend who went away.
Of a friend who was kind, faithful and dear.
And one with a smile on her face.
Of a friend whose life was brief,
And one with a generous and caring heart.

Miss Floyd Co. Pageant To Be Chosen April 28

The Prestonsburg Junior Woman's Club will again sponsor the Miss Floyd County Pageant this year.

Winner of the county pageant will enter the Kentucky State Pageant held to select the state queen, who will compete for the crown of Miss America in the national competition.

The club is again serving as sponsor of the pageant this year because its members believe it provides a valuable contribution to the community and to the young ladies who will enter the competition. It also serves the community in focusing attention on the high calibre of young women who are residents of our area and serves them well in providing the opportunity for them to gain added poise through public appearance and added maturity through participation in a community program such as the Floyd County Pageant. Most importantly, it provides the opportunity for the girl who is winner to seek scholarship awards at the Kentucky State Pageant, which will aid her in obtaining an education at the college of her choice.

To qualify a young woman must be between the ages of 17 and 26 on the Labor Day holiday, must be a high school graduate by Labor Day and must never have been married. Personality, poise, beauty, and talent are the major requirements. Interested young ladies or organizations who wish to sponsor contestants are urged to contact Betty Slone at 886-8286 after 5 p.m., Peggy Kidd at 886-6262, or any other club member. Entry Deadline is March 3, 1984. The pageant will be held Saturday, April 28, but the time and place have not yet been scheduled. This will be a community endeavor and the club will be requesting the community and its organizations to sponsor contestants, to attend the pageant, and to support it financially.

Nation Salutes Hospitalized Vets

The nation salutes its hospitalized veterans during the week of February 14 and the Veterans Administration is inviting citizens nationwide to visit the nearly 90,000 patients in its medical facilities.

The VA, which administers veterans medical and benefits programs, has also mounted an effort to encourage Americans of all ages to serve as hospital volunteers year-round.

Over 50 national volunteer groups and veterans organizations have joined in the effort.

With the First Lady as honorary patron and Harry Morgan, star of AfterMASH, as honorary chairman, the program's theme is "Nothing hurts like being forgotten—Nothing helps like being remembered."

Morgan, who plays the Chief of Staff at a fictional VA hospital in the AfterMASH show, is featured on radio and television spot announcements.

World War II Navy veteran John Chuchola, in a wheelchair, personifies the salute on the informational printed material urging participation.

"In addition to honoring our veterans and volunteers," said VA Administrator Harry N. Walters, "this is an opportunity for us to share with the public the professional excellence of the VA's health care system which is the nation's largest."

The system includes 172 medical centers, 16 domiciliaries and 99 nursing home care units throughout the country.

Walters noted that "volunteerism is critical to the quality of care provided those who have served their country in time of need."

During Fiscal Year 1983, 79,000 volunteers provided 11.9 million hours of service to hospitalized veterans. The value of their participation, based on the generally accepted average value of $6.50 per hour, would be $77.2 million. Volunteers also generated $10 million dollars in donations.

Volunteers are involved in everything from patient care and recreation to administration and transportation assistance.

Examples of volunteer services range from helping in home rehabilitation of stroke patients to supervised youth groups from pre-school through junior high school in one-to-one "adopted grandparent" activity.

Because of the rising age level of the veteran population, there is a growing emphasis on geriatrics and services for the terminally ill and their families.

The groups supporting the drive to get more volunteers are members of the VA Voluntary Service's National Advisory Committee. In addition to major veterans groups they include organizations such as the Red Cross, the American Association of Retired Persons, the ELKS and the Salvation Army.

About 60 percent of all VA volunteers are affiliated with a group or organization, ranging from very large national ones to local clubs and churches. Those without organizational affiliation are recruited by VA staff members.

If you want to join in the salute to veterans, or volunteer on a longer-term basis, call the VA medical facility nearest you.

Having you to think about
And plan for every day
Is something that means more to me
Than I can ever say
For knowing you are happy
Is my greatest joy in life
And Honey, it's really wonderful
To be your loving wife.
Happy Anniversary, Johnny
Love, Becky

Our Turn To Be Heard

If there is any immediate hope of relief from the brutally high bills natural gas consumers are facing these days it may lie in a bill now under Congressional consideration.

This bill, known as the National Gas Consumer Relief Act, would lower gas prices to their January, 1982 levels, extend price controls for two years and require that pipeline suppliers of natural gas buy their gas at the lowest cost available.

If such relief is not afforded by the Congress, the law now in effect will continue to permit gas rates to rise by the month and most of the nation's natural gas supply will be decontrolled next January 1.

There are those who will tell the long-suffering public that removing price controls will bring down the cost to the consumer, but most of those who argue that decontrolled gas will be cheaper are the big corporate producers and suppliers of the fuel, and their track record should not be very convincing to the consumer who this very month is hard-pressed to meet his bills.

These are the companies which two years ago or longer were operating at a profit while charging only a fraction of today's prices for the gas they produced. Yet they have convinced government and its regulatory commissions that they must be permitted to skyrocket their rates.

These are the same companies which not long ago were warning—and convincing many of us—that there was a shortage of natural gas.

They also declared they needed more money and less regulation in order to justify exploration (drilling) for new gas.

What happened when the price rose? There was no visible gas shortage. And what happened to drilling for new gas? The independent producer in this part of Kentucky now finds it difficult to sell his gas to the two or three major companies that enjoy a virtual monopoly on the market.

The "facts" that the consumer swallowed were downright deceptive.

The utilities, municipal and private, which sell this gas to the consumer must raise their prices as the producers and pipeline companies go merrily along, raising rates almost at will. These major suppliers are in interstate commerce. Federal law must give whatever relief that is given. And that's why it is most important that the consumer should let his or her Representative and Senators in Congress know they can help the citizen back home by enacting this Natural Gas Consumer Relief Act.

The opposition is already busy. Now it's our turn.

What Can Kentucky Learn from New Hampshire?

(An editorial in The Lexington Herald-Leader)

This session of the Kentucky General Assembly is likely to be remembered as the "education legislature." The legislature, under the guidance of its own leaders and the urging of Gov. Martha Layne Collins, is moving toward higher taxes to provide for a major increase in funding of state schools. And rightly so. Schools need the money for a variety of programs, like mandatory kindergarten and increased remedial education, that offer us some hope of turning the state education system around.

The danger, of course, is that the state will throw a ton of money at the problem and then promptly forget it. That won't help. Money alone is not a solution. If it were, then the major increase in education funding during the term of former Gov. Julian Carroll would have produced something other than a continued decline in student test scores.

Just as money can't buy happiness, neither can it buy a good education. All it can buy are the tools and resources that make a good education possible. Taking advantage of those tools and resources is entirely another matter.

The definitive example of taking advantage of available resources may well be the state of New Hampshire. For the 10th time in 10 years, New Hampshire students who take the Scholastic Aptitude Test, one of the two widely used college entrance examinations, have bested their counterparts in the other 49 states. It is also a state where 56.2 percent of high school seniors take the SAT, compared to a national average of 38 percent.

New Hampshire's success is impressive, particularly in light of the state's spending on schools. New Hampshire is dead last in the nation in state funding for education. New Hampshire ranks 40th nationally in spending per pupil, only two notches above Kentucky. New Hampshire ranks 48th in the nation in teachers' salaries; Kentucky ranks 31st.

Obviously, New Hampshire taxpayers are getting more for their money than Kentucky taxpayers are. So what makes New Hampshire's schools so effective?

Are New Hampshire's teachers and administrators better and more dedicated? Are their school boards more interested in education than in politics? Are New Hampshire parents more interested in the education their children receive? Is it a matter of attitude or tradition?

We don't claim to know, but we are inclined to believe that it would be worth the time and effort for Kentucky education officials to find out.

Kentucky is a state of limited financial resources. We will never approach the top of the heap in spending on education. The state is simply too poor.

So even though we will add some money to school treasuries this year, our main concern must always be getting the most out of each dollar. To turn our education system around, we must first educate ourselves—state officials, local school officials and the public—on what it takes in addition to money to give our children the best education possible.

Something or somebody in New Hampshire obviously has what it takes to make schools successful without a great deal of money. Let's find out how they do it up there. It may be time to put some of that Yankee ingenuity to work in Kentucky.

Granted at the same hearing was a defense request to question jurors individually about their attitude toward the death penalty. Thirty jurors will be qualified for the trial, of which 14 had been seated Tuesday. When all 30 are qualified, 14—including two alternates—will be chosen to hear the case against Marshall.

First Cliff Access Road Work Slated

Contractors said yesterday (Tuesday) that they expect to start clearing next month in preparation for construction of the Cliff access road, scheduled to begin April 1.

The construction firm, H. and S. Equipment, of Flemingsburg, has six months to complete the road, which will eliminate two railroad crossings for Cliff residents. Cost of the project is put at more than $800,000.

City Manager David Evans, who met with the contractors in Pikeville Tuesday, said right-of-way must still be obtained from the C. and O. railroad. Evans said he expects the necessary easement to be secured in time to begin construction of the road on schedule.

Stumbo Says His Bill Target of Mine Closure

A state surface mining inspector last week shut down a Minnie stripmine operating in the names of Floyd District Judge Harold Stumbo and his son, state Rep. Greg Stumbo.

The shutdown prompted a charge by the legislator that coal industry officials were trying to scuttle the broadform deed bill he sponsored in the current legislative session.

(The bill, House Bill 32, cleared the House by a wide margin last week and was unanimously voted out by the Senate Judiciary-Civil Committee yesterday.)

Inspector John Ross, of the Department of Surface Mining, cited the Minnie Development Corporation Friday for violations at its small strip job off Sizemore Branch. The two Stumbos are listed as stockholders in the firm and the mine, which started operating around Jan. 10 under a special permit for stripmines of less than two acres, is on property owned by the elder Stumbo.

Mining operations have extended beyond the 1.98 acres specified on the permit and closer than 300 feet to a house occupied by Sam Martin, Jr., the inspector reported. The operators have failed to channel all surface drainage through an approved silt structure, to set aside sufficient topsoil for reclamation purposes, or to properly monitor surface and ground water, he said.

Minnie Development Corp. was ordered to stop all coal removal and begin reclamation immediately. Before they can resume work at the site, they will have to obtain a regular stripmine permit and obtain waivers from homeowners living within 300 feet, the operators were told.

The only homes within 300 feet are said to be those of the elder Stumbo and Martin, whose property adjoins Stumbo's. Martin and E.P. Grigsby, Jr., another neighbor of Stumbo's, filed complaints against the operators and asked the Dept. of Surface Mining on Feb. 3 to conduct a pre-blasting survey on their properties.

In the complaint filed on their behalf by Prestonsburg attorney Janet Stumbo, the homeowners charged that the mining operation was "outside the permit area in stripping behind Mr. Grigsby's residence." Grigsby said he tried for several weeks to stop blasting operations, which he claimed have damaged his swimming pool. Stumbo last week denied responsibility for the violations, noting that the mining is being done by a contractor, the Pine Tree Coal Co., owned by Randy and Ray Combs of Letcher county. Randy Combs, who was on the job Friday, refused to sign the stripmine inspector's report.

annual license fee for soft drink vending machines was raised from $2.50 to $10.

Purchase of a gasoline pump that would record who was using the gas was considered and tabled for further study. Purchase of the $2121 pump was proposed as a way of curbing unauthorized use of city gasoline. "We're getting stole blind," explained Councilman Collins.

Attendance at city council meetings was made mandatory for heads of city fire, police, streets and parks departments. An earlier motion to dock the pay of department heads who failed to attend council meetings was defeated.

City Attorney Larry Brown was named Alcoholic Beverage Control Administrator at a rate of $50 an hour. Council members voted to put their $3-a-meeting expense fee into a special fund to be used for some charitable or public purpose. Councilman George C. Brown said he would admonish a forklift operator employed by Brown Foodservice whom a neighbor said operated the machine in a noisy manner all night.

mechanic John P. Wells, who maintains the Cessna and is one of the squadron's four pilots, recalled World War II stories of CAP aircraft, with small bombs aboard, tracking German submarines off the Atlantic coast. The civilian patrol spotted 173 enemy subs, dropped bombs on 57 of them, and was credited with sinking or seriously damaging two, he noted.

But the organization now exists chiefly for search and rescue work and for disaster relief, Allen said, and measures its efficiency in lives saved—it listed 140 rescued last year—rather than ships sunk.

What turned out to be a false alarm just before Christmas gave the Dewey Lake and Pikeville squadrons a chance to test their readiness for a real emergency.

On Dec. 20, word came of a radio signal being picked up at Olive Hill. Because it was the kind transmitted by aircraft and activated by impact, it suggested a downed plane. But when local CAP units, unable to take off from here on account of freezing rain, drove to the source of the signal, it turned out to be a faulty transmitter in a plane parked at the Olive Hill airport.

It all amounted to a bone-chilling night on the road for nothing—but demonstrated, CAP members said, that they can be and will be on the job when they're needed.

Since 1948, Civil Air Patrol has been by federal law a permanent civilian auxiliary of the U.S. Air Force. That entitles it to a small slice of the huge Defense Department appropriation and to surplus Air Force uniforms and equipment. In Kentucky, the organization also draws $10,000 annually in state funds.

Members are not paid but local units are reimbursed for expenses incurred on rescue and relief missions. A lot of voluntary effort, including use of private planes, goes into maintaining a CAP squadron, Allen said. But its official status and modest governmental funding may give the organization an edge over similar groups, like the Red Cross, which are wholly dependent on private contributions.

A Well-Picked Goose

It is a fact, I have wondered all of my life how some people could take so very little and turn it into so very much. The public has been hearing about Floyd County Board of Education favoring a 3 percent tax increase on utilities. The previous week, we read that the Prestonsburg City Council voted to reduce the tax on whisky 3 percent.

This hurts the ones on a fixed income to have to pay the tax on their utility bills when they can't hardly pay them as they are.

It has taken me all of my life to figure out just one thing; that the world is a goose, it is either pick or get picked in this present world. And I have been picked until I don't have a feather on me. Well! let's sum up the facts involved concerning the tax matter.

It simply boils down to the fact that it's going to cost less in the future to get stoned and it will cost more in the future to cook the beans and to keep from freezing to death.

Enforce Support Law

I have had custody of my two children for the past seven years. My ex-wife and I separated when the boy was four and my girl was five. I have never received any help or child support from my ex-wife. I know how hard it is to be both mother and father plus somehow manage the expenses alone! Child support laws should be fairly enforced.

Against HB 30

It is inconceivable that the General Assembly would knowingly vote against the safety of Kentucky motorists. Yet, House Bill 30, an amendment to KRS 189.150, section 1, will do just that unless motorists contact their legislators and voice their disapproval.

The current law, KRS 189.150, states: "No vehicle shall be operated upon any public highway for a distance of over one (1) mile whose load is susceptible to shifting or spillage unless said load is covered with a device suitable for prevention of spillage." House Bill 30, if passed, will amend this to read: "No vehicle shall be operated upon any highway unless it is so constructed as to prevent its contents from escaping."

The subtle word changes in the new amendment would leave the law virtually unenforceable in that a police officer must actually see an object fly from a truck before a citation can be written. The present law requiring covers, however, provides an enforceable standard while protecting the motorists at all times.

Anyone who has traveled some of our highways, particularly in the coal regions of eastern and western Kentucky, can recognize the hazards of having to swerve to miss an object in the road that can cause front-end damage to a car. Likewise, anyone who has ever driven behind an uncovered gravel or rock truck knows the constantly threatening probability of objects flying out and cracking windshields and chipping paint.

Clearly, the present law requiring covers on trucks carrying loose loads is vital to the safety of all motorists.

The three AAA clubs of Kentucky, which represent more than 300,000 members in the Commonwealth's strongly oppose House Bill 30 and urge you to contact your legislators and voice your concern. You can call them in Frankfort toll-free at 1-800-372-2985. As a motorist, you, too, deserve to drive on safe highways.

Ky. Horses To Air On KET, March 6

On Tuesday, March 6, at 8:00 p.m., KET encores a NOVA segment of special interest to Kentuckians, "A Magic Way of Going: The Story of Thoroughbreds," at 9:00 p.m., KET will air an "American Playhouse" special of particular interest of older Americans, "The Gin Game."

"A Magic Way of Going," filmed in Canada, the U.S., England and Ireland, examines the poetry of running horses with slow-motion footage of Northern Dancer, Secretariat (at stud on Claiborne Farm in Paris, Ky.), and others. Also shown are scenes from the Keeneland Horse Sales. Horsemen discuss the "black art" of predicting winners from yearlings. And NOVA cameras capture the thrill of the turf, with a kaleidoscope of views of the horse-racing world from the backstretch at dawn to the finish line.

Following NOVA is the "American Playhouse" drama, "The Gin Game." This D.L. Coburn Pulitzer Prize-winning play stars Hume Cronyn and Jessica Tandy. It is the moving story of an older man and woman, hidden away in a nursing home, whose gin game becomes a catalyst for unleashing years of hidden pain and emotions. "The Gin Game" premiered at Actors Theatre of Louisville as part of the first Festival of New American Plays.

PHS Downs Tough Daredevil Team

By BETTY HYDEN

Facing a fired-up McDowell Daredevil team, the powerful Prestonsburg Blackcats found the going a bit rough on the Daredevils' home court, fighting off a second half "move" by McDowell to win 70-60.

The 'Cats led most of the game posting a halftime lead of 40-28 and it appeared the Daredevils might be "blown away" until the third quarter when McDowell came back from a 12-point deficit to narrow Prestonsburg's lead to four.

PHS fought off the attack by using their full court press causing McDowell to cough up three straight turnovers. Excellent free-throw shooting during the last few minutes of play secured the victory for Prestonsburg.

The victory also confirmed Prestonsburg, with only one loss in conference play, as conference champions.

Leading scorers for the Blackcats were Tony Whitaker and Marty Minix, each with 17 points. Others who contributed were Todd Nairn 14, Gordie Ratliff 11, Kelly Cecil 9, and Doug Green with 2.

McDowell's Tim Newsome led the Daredevils with 15 points with David Pack connecting for 12. Anthony Mullins had 10, Doug Hall 8, Jackie Lawson 6, Greg Slone 5, and Jimmy Slone 4.

John M. Stumbo, Harold, Make It To Net Finals

By BETTY HYDEN

In Floyd County Grade School Tournament play last week, the Harold Red Devils boys team and John M. Stumbo Mustang girls came out winners, assuring themselves a berth in the finals this week.

In Harold's game against the Osborne Eagles Saturday night, the Red Devils brought their season record to 17-6 by defeating Osborne, 49-38.

With the lead changing hands several times during the first two quarters, both teams went into halftime deadlocked at 22 all. Continuing to play hard, the score stayed close through the third and mid-fourth quarters with Harold finally easing ahead, largely through foul shooting.

Dale Spurlock led the Red Devils with 17 points. Micky Stapleton had 12 points and 15 rebounds, Mike Carroll 7, Mac Conn 6, John Bush 5, and Willie Watson with 2.

Leading scorer for Osborne was Steve Cole with 13 points and 7 rebounds, followed by Tony Isaac 8, Jason Cook and Tommy Jones with 6 each, Bobby Hood 3, and Todd Bailey with 2.

John M. Stumbo's Lady Mustangs found Maytown a tough competitor Saturday night at the Allen Central gym but came out on top in the end, 36-27. The girls have compiled a perfect 24-0 for the season.

Sheila Newsome was leading scorer for the Mustangs with 12 points. Sandy Flanery had 10, Tammy Hall 7, Tracey Hall 3, and Kim Newsome 2.

Becky Rice led Maytown with 16 points followed by Kim Mynhier with 6, Tonya Brown, Heather Bailey and Cyrena Rice, each with 2, and Tabby Hensley with one point.

Learning Mathematical Concepts In The Kitchen

Children begin to learn mathematical concepts long before they go to school. They gain this knowledge through everyday activities, according to Growing Child, the monthly child development newsletter.

Early number awareness comes from simple activities:
 *Determining the difference between these things and those things.
 *Sorting objects which belong together.
 *Ordering objects in space.

Ordering objects in space
 An example of how children order things in space happened when Jennie was helping her mother put away the dishes, flatware, and pots and pans in the kitchen.

In the beginning Jennie, who is three years old, would push the pots and pans into the cupboard any old way. She discovered, however, that when she did this, the door wouldn't close.

Then her mother suggested, "Why not try to put the cookie sheets in first? I always put the trays on the bottom."

When Jennie accepted that advice, it didn't take too long before she got the door closed. There was really no mystery: she used her knowledge of how parts fit together. Children develop a mathematical sense when they must arrange or share space, food, or other materials.

Learning by cooking
 Cooking and baking are rich experiences for language enrichment and mathematical challenges, too.

With sugar, flour, eggs, salt, and water to measure, mix, sift, and stir, a child can work through abstract mathematical concepts long before starting school.

Think about all the concepts involved with cooking tasks: "heavy," "light," "long," "short," "more," "less," "a little bit," "a lot," "spoonful," "cupful," "hot," "cold," "cool." They proceed to the complex "more than but not as much as," and comparatives such as "long," "medium," "short."

Learning from water
 Water play can be very enriching, too, if a child has a place to play, understands the rules for water play, and has the proper materials—old raincoat, washtub, plastic bottles, funnel, straws, sieve, sponges, soapsuds, egg beater. Bathtime can be a time for experimentation: "What floats? What doesn't float? Why?" A variety of common materials can be used in the tub—sponge, soap, paper, plastic cup, wooden spoon.

The Growing Child newsletter follows a child's development month-by-month. For more information and a free sample newsletter, write to Growing Child, P.O. Box 620N, Lafayette, Indiana 47902. Include child's birthdate when writing.

Robinson Forest Display To Be Unveiled At UK

The University of Kentucky Student Government Association and the students to Save Robinson Forest will conduct a dedication ceremony of a Robinson Forest display at 11 a.m., Feb. 15, in Room 230 of the Student Center addition.

The display is intended to acquaint the public with the value, purpose, history and use of Robinson Forest.

The 14,000-acre forest owned by UK in Breathitt, Knott and Perry counties was the center of controversy in 1982 when the UK Board of Trustees considered—then rejected—a proposal to mine coal in the forest.

Dedication ceremony speakers will be Dr. Art Gallaher, chancellor of the UK Lexington campus, who will accept the gift on behalf of the university; Dr. Charles Barnhart, dean of the UK College of Agriculture; Tom FitzGerald, attorney for the Appalachian Research and Defense Fund Inc., and Ann Phillippi, past president of Students to Save Robinson Forest.

The exhibit includes pictures of wildlife and flowers found in Robinson Forest such as the arrow darter, yellow lady's slipper, partridge-berry, the gray fox, cinnamon fern and the goldenseal.

The exhibit will be on display on the first level floor of the Student Center during April and then will be housed in the lobby of the Agriculture Science Center-North at Limestone Street and Cooper Drive.

The dedication ceremony is free and open to the public.

Vaughan-Howard Vows Said

An altar covered in white, with brass candleabra holding lighted tapers and entwined with lilies-of-the-valley was the setting at the East Point Church of Christ on January 14 for the wedding of Miss Sandra Lea Vaughan to Mr. Gregory Kirk Howard.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Vaughan, of Auxier Heights, and the bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Carlotta Howard, of Salyersville.

The double-ring ceremony was performed at 6:30 p.m. by minister, Dave Flanery. A program of nuptial selections presented by Miss Debbie Rowe, pianist, and Mrs. Kathy Sparks, vocalist, included "Endless Love," "Ice Castle" and "Whither Thou Goest."

The bride honored the mothers by presenting them with a red rose.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a traditional white gown that featured a chapel-length train edged in wedgewood lace. Her gown had a V neckline with a ruffled flounce of chantilly lace and a bodice of sheer point d'esprit. A Juliette cap secured her lace-edged fingertip veil of illusion. She carried a cascade bouquet of white silk lace roses, white orchids and stephanotis with ivy.

Miss Pamela Jo Wilson, maid of honor, was attired in a wine taffeta gown. Bow trim accented the shoulder. She carried a silk wine rose with matching streamers and matching headpiece.

Bridesmaids were Miss Lisa Vaughan, sister of the bride and Miss Judy Helton. Their matching gowns were of rose taffeta with modified melon shaped sleeves. Each carried a silk cream rose with matching streamers and matching headpiece.

Wilford Keaton served Mr. Howard as best man, and ushers were Michael Howard and William Howard, brothers of the groom.

The wedding party also included Miss Melanie Leann Combs and Miss Melinda Lynette Thompson, cousins of the bride, flower girls, and Master Timothy Jason Kestner, nephew of the bride, ringbearer.

The ceremony was following by a reception in the church fellowship room.

The bride's mother received guests in a mauve quiana gown with matching accessories and a corsage of silk cream carnations. The groom's mother wore a pink crepe gown with asymmetric skirt and matching accessories. Her corsage was of silk brown-and-rust carnations.

The bride's cake was served by Mrs. Yvonne Hyden. Mrs. Frances Howard presided at the punch bowl. Mrs. Debbie Kestner, sister of the bride, attended the register table.

Following a wedding trip to Lexington, Ky., the newlyweds are residing at Highland Apartments, Auxier road.

The bride is a graduate of Prestonsburg High School and Morehead State University. She is employed as a teacher at Porter Elementary School.

Mr. Howard is a graduate of Salyersville High School and Morehead State University. He is employed by the London Bridge Company.

The wedding cake was baked by Mrs. Connie Scarberry, of Paintsville. The wedding was directed by Mrs. Clayton Holland. The reception was catered by Mrs. Holland and Mrs. Rose Collins, assisted by Mrs. Mary Lou Rose and Mrs. Debbie Webb.

Post-nuptial events honoring the bride included a household shower given by the Ladies Fellowship of the East Point Church of Christ.

Court Sees Rash Of DUI Cases

Four drunk-driving cases this week—including one of a driver facing his third charge in less than a year—were only the latest in what district court officials described as a recent "rash" of such cases.

A jury trial was scheduled March 13 for Willis Ray Akers, 34, of Dana, who was cited by state police in November for drunk driving, driving on a suspended license, attempting to elude police, having no registration plates and an expired insurance sticker.

A little more than a month earlier, Akers pleaded guilty to charges of drunk driving—he recorded .31 percent on the breathalyzer—and driving on a suspended license. He received a month's probation and paid $200 in fines and court costs.

After a drunk-driving conviction last April, he was fined $137.50 and referred to state-run classes for alcoholic drivers. Court records list similar convictions in 1978 and 1979.

Under state law, drunk driving convictions have a cumulative effect for five years. Conviction on the present charge could result in Akers receiving a jail sentence of up to one year and a $500 fine.

Clifford Ousley, of Drift, and Edward Young, Jr., of Hager Hill, were convicted of drunk driving in their absence yesterday (Tuesday). Young will forfeit a $200 cash bond. Ousley, who was also found guilty of driving on a suspended license and without insurance, was sentenced by District Judge Harold Stumbo to 30 days in jail and ordered to pay $297.50 in fine and court costs. A bench warrant was issued for his arrest.

Trial of Paul Halbert, of Printer, on a drunk driving charge was continued to March 1, as the state police witness was unable to be present Tuesday.

Meanwhile, the driver licensing division of the state Bureau of Vehicle Regulation moved recently to revoke the license of Timothy Paul Caudill, 23, of the Goble Roberts Addition. According to court records, Caudill owes $247.50 in fines stemming from convictions last April on charges of drunk driving, racing, reckless driving, and driving on a learner's permit without a licensed driver present.

In four earlier arrests on drunk driving charges, Caudill was twice convicted, was once found guilty of a lesser charge, and had one count dismissed.

Others sentenced this week in district court, following guilty pleas or verdicts, were:

Dee Mart Music, Garrett, speeding, fined $67.50; Jimmy Hall, Topmost, reckless driving, attempt to elude police, 30 days' probation, $97.50; George Crisp, Drift, cold check, 30 days' jail, $97.50, to make restitution to Pic-Pac; Inez Smith, David, cold check, $62.50; Shirley Osborne, Topmost, cold check, 30 days' jail, $97.50, restitution to Pic-Pac; Dean Coleman, Lookout, shoplifting, 30 days, $97.50, plus $50 restitution to Pic-Pac.

ENJOYS BIRTHDAY

Mrs. Lula Wallen, of Green Acres, enjoyed celebrating her birthday with members of her family recently. Joining her at her home for the occasion were her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Woodrow Wallen, of Henderson, Ky., and another son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Wallen, of Stanville, all of whom entertained her to dinner at Pikeville. After returning from Pikeville, Mrs. Wallen placed a conference call to other members of the family, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Marler, in Boise, Idaho, and Mr. and Mrs. Sam Wallen, in Spring Valley, California.

On Sunday, while members of her family were here, they all attended church services, after which they enjoyed a lunch at Jerry's Restaurant. Following the meal, Mrs. Wallen, was presented a decorated birthday cake and many gifts.

Join the Daughters of the American Revolution in celebrating February as American History Month all across our Nation. It was founded in 1800 and its prime function is to furnish such books as may be necessary for the use of Congress. All are allowed in the Library of Congress where you will find 18 million books and pamphlets, more than 46 million manuscripts, maps, prints, photographs, and other examples of man's graphic expression through the ages.

SHATTERED WINDOW in this coal truck cab resulted from a rifle shot fired at her driver, Palmer Crider, during a Friday morning chase from Cow Creek to Martin, claims Linda Laudermit (pictured). Following the incident, Crider swore out a warrant accusing Paul David DeRossett of attempted murder. DeRossett denies he was involved.

Mrs. Laudermit, of Endicott, is proprietor of Linda's Trucking Co., and leases the tractor-trailer from Columbus Ousley, of Blue River. More than $8000 in damage was done to the rig during its early-morning flight, she estimated.

House Passes Agent Orange Vets' Benefits

WASHINGTON, D.C.—The House of Representatives has passed H.R. 961, the Agent Orange and Atomic Veterans Relief Act, of which Congressman Carl D. Perkins is an original co-sponsor. This legislation seeks to provide service-connected disability benefits to veterans of Vietnam who were exposed to Agent Orange and those veterans who participated in the occupation of Hiroshima and Nagasaki as well as the atmospheric tests of nuclear devices which ended in 1963.

Congressman Perkins said, "I strongly support this legislation, but I just wish it went much further."

In a letter dated April 25, 1983, and signed by the Administrator of the Veterans Administration the Administration stated, "We oppose the enactment of H.R. 961." "The Administration's position is inhumane in my opinion," Perkins said.

Agent Orange contains dioxin, one of the most highly toxic substances known to science. Agent Orange is believed to increase the likelihood of three types of disease; soft-tissue sarcoma, a form of cancer; porphyria cutanea tarda, a liver condition known as PCT; and cloracne, a skin condition. The legislation covers three diseases. In addition, a number of other diseases are suspected to be caused by Agent Orange. There has been some indication in the medical literature that Agent Orange may result in genetic alteration.

Numerous veterans of Vietnam has applied for service-connected disability for various diseases which they contended was the result of Agent Orange. The Veterans Administration has denied an overwhelming number of these claims. As a result of the growing scientific evidence it has become necessary for Congressional action as a result of the Administration's intransigence.

"Personally, I think the section concerning Agent Orange should be much broader. From the scientific evidence to date, it appears that dioxin is a chemical time bomb and more diseases may result from this exposure," Perkins said.

A second portion of this legislation concerns those veterans who served in the occupation of Hiroshima or Nagasaki or who participated in the testing of nuclear devices. A number of veterans who suffered this exposure subsequently developed various forms of cancer. When they applied for service-connected disability from the Veterans Administration, many were denied.

Just a few years ago, a veteran from Eastern Kentucky who participated in nuclear tests in 1957 was denied benefits unjustly by the Veterans Administration, Perkins said. Under this legislation benefits would be available to these veterans or their survivors if a veteran suffered from cancer of the thyroid, polycythemia vera, or leukemia. "According to my investigation, I believe that this section should be a bit broader but it does not appear possible to get a broader bill passed at this time as a result of the Administration's opposition," Perkins said.

GARTH AREA VOCATIONAL EDUCATION CENTER IS PROUD TO ANNOUNCE

NATIONAL VOCATIONAL EDUCATION WEEK FEBRUARY 13-17, 1984

WHAT IS NATIONAL VOCATIONAL EDUCATION WEEK?

Each year one week is designated to focus national attention toward the importance of Vocational Education. Vocational Education is the segment of education charged with preparing people for work. It is the backbone of the employment-related education and training program. Vocational Education draws its strength from the fact that it is an integral part of this nation's public educational system, representing a joint federal, state, and local partnership effort to meet our nation's need for skilled workers. The week of February 13th through the 17th is National Vocational Education Week. This is an appropriate time to think about the importance of vocational education to our community and to our nation.

WHAT IS THE THEME FOR NATIONAL VOCATIONAL EDUCATION WEEK FOR THIS YEAR?

The theme this year is Vocational Education: Creating Partnerships for Excellence. This theme clearly communicates the ideal link that should exist between vocational education and the community. Vocational education is charged with preparing people for work and achieves its goal of excellence through partnerships with students, community agencies, trade associations, business and industry.

DO YOU REALIZE THERE IS A VOCATIONAL SCHOOL IN YOUR AREA?

Yes, Garth Area Vocational Education Center located on Route 122, Martin, Kentucky.

WHO DOES IT SERVE?

Garth Area Vocational Education Center serves the students of the five Floyd County High Schools: Allen Central, Betsy Layne, McDowell, Prestonsburg, and Wheelwright.

WHAT PROGRAMS ARE OFFERED?

The programs offered are Auto Mechanics, Business and Office, Carpentry, Electricity, Health Careers, Machine Shop, and Mining Mechanics, and Welding.

ARE ALL PROGRAMS OPEN TO BOTH MALE AND FEMALE?

Yes, we encourage our students to enroll in non-traditional programs.

INDUSTRIAL ELECTRICITY

The industrial electricity course is designed to provide educational experience which will enable the students to acquire an understanding of electrical theory, bell and signal circuits, small construction wiring, A.C. and D.C. motors, transformers, motor controls and electronic controls. Basic knowledge in mathematics, algebra and science would be helpful to anyone seeking a career in electricity.

AUTO MECHANICS

The automotive mechanics course is purposely designed to develop the needed skills and attitudes, and to familiarize the student with the basic fundamental principles and operational procedures necessary for the maintenance and repair of cars, trucks, and buses. Students are taught the proper use and care of tools, tool room procedures, shop safety, and shop maintenance. High school classes in mathematics, science and physics would be helpful to the student training in this program.

WELDING

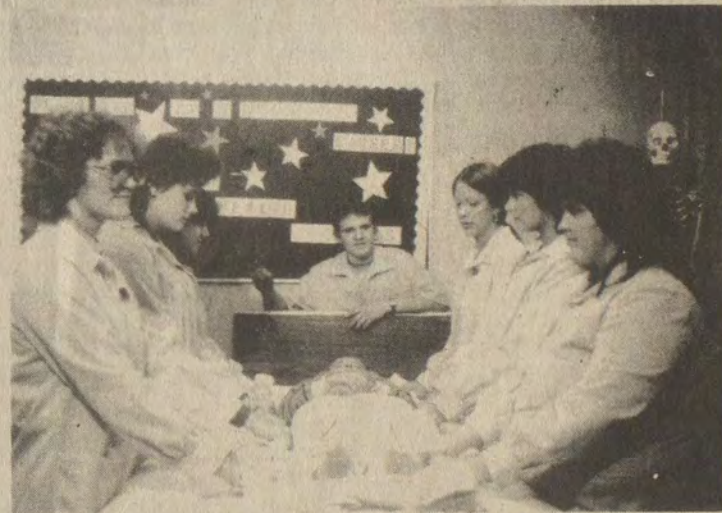

Welding is a very popular skill in Floyd County and the surrounding area. Starting with the basic fundamentals the student learns to identify and use the various types of welding equipment, the characteristics of the welding flame, the different welding techniques, safety on the job and other related subjects.

MACHINE SHOP

The Machine Shop program is designed to provide a course of instruction which will enable the student to acquire a fundamental knowledge of machines and their functions as applied to industry. The student receives basic training on the use of precision measuring instruments, shaping, grinding and other machine tools. Also, that student receives instruction in blueprint reading, machine trades, safety, and shop math.

CARPENTRY

The course offered in Carpentry is designed to provide training in use of tool and machine skills. The beginning student makes some small projects to learn about the basic fundamentals of hand tools and power tools. Instruction is given in site layout and framing techniques that pertain to building a house. Scale models and some full size framing members are used in the fabrication procedures. Competency Based Vocational Education Modules are used to aid students in individual instruction on different phases of the carpentry program.

HEALTH SERVICES

The secondary vocational education health occupations program is an attempt to meet present and predicted needs for health workers within the diverse occupations in the health field. Students that take this course can get a start on professional training. For those who want to do something to help people, this course can provide guidance and direction by "hands-on" experiences. In the classroom situation students study basic health subjects and after an acceptable level of performance they may participate in selected activities in clinical facilities under the close supervision of the vocational instructor.

BUSINESS AND OFFICE EDUCATION

The future of American business is the future of America. The vocational business and office programs are designed to give the student theory and practice in addition to selected learning experiences. In the first year of training specific courses are selected to develop skills for secretarial or clerical careers. The last year of training involves the application of these skills to that of a simulated office with equipment and facilities similar to those in a modern office.

MINING MECHANICS

The purpose of this program is to help the student acquire a basic knowledge of mine mechanics and related industries. The development of skills in hydraulics, electricity, welding and the related subjects of math and science theory are emphasized. Students are assigned practical hands-on projects to complement the theory and technical information of their training.

WHEN CAN YOU VISIT THE GARTH CENTER?

Baryshnikov Soars In New Production

The American Ballet Theatre Company and Mikhail Baryshnikov present the Spanish classic by Miguel de Cervantes, "Don Quixote," on "Great Performances: Dance in America," to air Monday, March 5, at 9 p.m. during KET TeleFund '84. Baryshnikov's performance in Cervantes' classic tale of "Don Quixote" features ballet fireworks combined with lavish production elements in this tale of romance and marriage.

Traditionally the central figure of this story has been "The Knight of the Rueful Countenance" and his ever-faithful page, Sancho Panza. In this "Great Performances" presentation, the focus is on Kitri's wedding, from the second volume of Cervantes' novel.

"Great Performances" "Don Quixote" is a National Video Corporation Production in association with WNET/New York.

Prior to "Don Quixote," dive into the depths of the Sea of Cortez and discover "Secrets of a Desert Sea," also to air Monday, March 5. The special begins at 8:00 p.m. (ET), 7:00 p.m. (CT), during KET TeleFund '84. The breeding ground for a variety of sea life and birds, as well as the refuge and home of numerous species, is concealed in the depths of this unique body of water located off the coast of Western Mexico.

"Secrets of a Desert Sea" is produced by KQED/San Francisco.

Florence Henderson Stars On KET Show

The works of four great American lyricists—Dorothy Fields, Johnny Mercer, Howard Dietz and Ira Gershwin—formed a pop Golden Age. The lyrics of these celebrated personalities will be featured in "I Feel a Song Comin' On!," Friday, March 9, at 9 p.m. during the KET TeleFund '84, when "The Stars Shine Bright on Your Kentucky Network."

This star-filled song and dance tribute is a gala event taped at New York City's Savoy Theatre and featuring many of the classics of the four lyricists. It is performed by some of today's finest stylists including host Anthony Newley, Maureen McGovern, Billy Eckstine, Florence Henderson, Rex Smith, Greg Burge, Roberta Flack, Ann Reinking, Larry Kert and the Grover Dale Dancers.

Singer and actress Florence Henderson, who grew up in Owensboro, has appeared in a number of prestigious musicals. She starred as Maria in "The Sound of Music" in the national company, and on Broadway in "The Girl Who Came to Supper." She also was featured in her own television situation comedy, "The Brady Bunch."

With such a stellar lineup, each of the four acts of "I Feel a Song Comin' On!" explodes into sparkling performances of music and dance with full-chorus productions and vibrant solos.

"I Feel a Song Comin' On!" is produced by Erizoe Productions.

A STEP FORWARD

Recently, in Paintsville, the Epworth League took a stand which evokes admiration from every person who has a wholesome respect for law and order.

This stand was taken with a resolution condemning crime in Johnson county and asking the county officials to become more active in suppressing crime.

The Paintsville Herald at that time praised the courage and the clean thinking of those young people for their action, and we add our tribute now. Johnson county has the promise of real men and women for the future.

Every organization wields a certain amount of influence, often wields more influence than is realized. If, then, the church organizations and the civic clubs would take a stand similar to that assumed by these courageous young people, only good could result. Such action would go to mold public opinion. The movement would act as a contagion—as a mild contagion, perhaps, but certain that others would take up the fight.

Floyd county needs an epidemic of such a spirit. Leadership must be furnished. There is no immediate success to be realized, no brilliant, sweeping victory to be won; but, when victory does come to those waging such a fight, it will be glorious.

WORSHIP WHILE YOU MAY

The beauties of every season are the material things from which those spiritual creations known as poems grow, and for this reason we have refrained from commenting in crude prose upon the glory of the autumn now growing to a close. But we would ask you:

Have you reveled in the hazy beauty of Indian Summer; feasted your eyes upon the wonderful mosaic of color presented by these forests of ours; stopped to admire the myriad colors of the tree-covered hills with their green and scarlet, brown and golden cloaks of leaves? Have you sensed a sort of awe as you watched the sun stream between the branches and then, sinking, leave all hushed in solitude and a warm sort of gloom?

If you have missed all this, there is another season coming—it is almost here—which, despite, and because of, all its grim, cold beauty, will bring to you keen appreciation of the warm loveliness now passing or past.

A MAN AND HIS JUDGES

A young man, whose body was brought here this week, had died shortly after being released from the Pike county jail.

Some judge in Pike county had sent him to jail for an act unknown to us. The man's life was darkened by such, it is said. The judge of the kangaroo court collected his fee of two dollars.

Then, perhaps two months later, the prisoner walked out—a free man. And met death.

He has faced his last judge—save One.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

SATISFIED?

"Vice is a monster of so frightful a mien,
To be hated is but to be seen;
But seen too oft familiar with its face,
We first endure, then pity, then embrace."

This is the condition of our town and county at this time.

There was a time when we hated vice in any form, but, as the poet says, "If seen too often we endure, we pity, then we embrace." It becomes one of us. We are satisfied; self-satisfied to conditions around us.

Our moonshiner comes to town, brings his nicely wrapped box as though he had but made a purchase at one of our stores, places it on the steps or hangs his saddle pockets on the fence, seemingly all unconcerned. He proceeds to mingle with the crowd for buyers of his wares. After finding his man, they go to some convenient building to dispose of it. "Satisfied."

But not all our moonshiners are from out of town; we have them in our midst. Young men, men of good families, starting out in life; men, whose fathers and mothers would be ashamed to own that they have raised boys who had fallen so far below the moral standard of a man. These are they who ask your boy to brink and see that he gets it. Knowing they are pulling your boy down to their level, they, too, are satisfied to know one more has fallen a victim to their wiles.

Officers? Yes, we have some. Some, perhaps, would like to live up to their duty-bound oath, others who know that all this lawlessness is going on. They are satisfied to see our youth going to destruction and traveling leisurely along with them, they see and don't interfere with our moonshiner. He's one of their number.

Our streets reek with rubbish and filth. There was a time when our different clubs would take things in hand, but they, too, seem to be satisfied.

We used to hear the epithet, "Bloody Breathitt." But could it not justly be said "Bloody Floyd?" Our killings, if they were not so tragic, might be compared to the childhood story of the Little Tailor who killed seven flies at one stroke and thereby became famous. We killed six at one stroke one week and five another week.

Fathers, mothers, are you satisfied for your sons and daughters to grow up in such a community? Won't you take that permit away from your sons and stop them from becoming habitués of the pool rooms, where not only pool is indulged in. Take that boy or girl and have a heart-to-heart talk with him or her and show them where they are drifting. Go to church with them. It will do you all good and brings memories of childhood and of mother and that old, forgotten piece so dear to our childhood:

"Backward, turn backward, O Time in thy flight,
Make me a child again just for tonight;
Mother, come back from that echoless shore,
Take me again in your arms of yore."

Oh, what memories! Then and there make a resolve that you can and will stand for the right; that you will no longer be satisfied with present conditions. Get a list of the candidates for office, and, before it's too late, study and investigate their characters. Lay aside all political prejudices, be honest with yourself and your neighbor. Vote for the men who will enforce the law and protect your boys and girls.

MRS. HOBSON HONORED WITH PRETTY SHOWER

Mrs. J. O. Webb, Mrs. Wm. J. May and Miss Josephine Cooley were joint hostesses last Thursday evening at a beautiful shower given in honor of Mrs. Joseph Hobson, formerly Miss Inez Cottrell, at the lovely home of Mr. and Mrs. David Richmond.

The guests were received at the door by little Misses Ina May Richmond, cousin of the bride, and Lillian Rea-therford, receiving the numerous and handsome gifts which more than filled a very large basket. The receiving line which stood just inside the door was formed by Mrs. Hobson, the bride, Misses Nell Allen, Josephine Cooley and Mrs. Wm. J. May, each handsomely gowned in evening dresses. The bride was unusually lovely in an imported gown of transparent velvet. The beautiful home was beautifully and attractively decorated with a profusion of fall flowers. The dining room was especially pretty, and, together with the beautiful wall tapestries, was a lovely scene for a bridal shower. Halloween decorations added much beauty to the setting.

The guests, on entering the dining room, found the bride seated at one end of a lovely table covered with a handsome maderia and flit' banquet cloth, a lovely bouquet of autumn flowers forming an exquisite center piece, surrounded by four lighted candles, which shed a soft light over the entire room.

The large basket containing the presents was then brought in. The bride was the recipient of many beautiful and handsome gifts, and in a most charming manner thanked the donors. She was assisted by Mrs. Wm. J. May and Mrs. Pearl Allen.

A delicious salad course was served, and beautiful Halloween favors were presented to each guest. Mrs. Hobson is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred H. Cottrell, a grand-daughter of the late and lamented Isaac Richmond, is well and favorably known to the citizens of the Big Sandy valley. Mr. Hobson is the son of Judge Hobson, of Frankfort, Ky., and is a law partner of Mr. B. M. James. Mr. and Mrs. Hobson will in the near future be at home to their many friends in Prestonsburg, who wish them a life of much joy and happiness.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

There will be a public lecture by a distinguished speaker, at the Rosenwald colored school, and dinner on the ground, at Tram, Ky., Saturday, November 5. Let everybody come that will come and hear the wonderful lecturer, and share your part of the dinner, and see the crowd. All it will cost you is to come. You will be treated with the greatest of hospitality that can be shown, and will be assured of a nice time. We are looking for you.

P'burg FFA Joins Nationwide Campaign

Members of the Prestonsburg FFA Chapter are currently gearing up to join nearly one-half million other FFA members across the country for the 1984 nationwide FFA public relations campaign.

This three-part campaign will culminate around the theme, Keeping America on the Grow. The campaign's three components highlight newly developed public service announcements featuring actor Eddie Albert, funded by the General Fund of the FFA; a National FFA Week celebration, February 18-25, with the design, development and promotion funded by Estech, Inc., and an annual theme show audio-visual, sponsored by The Wrangler Brand. The purpose of the campaign is to solicit support for the Vocational Agriculture and FFA program.

Chapter President, James Little, reports that the Prestonsburg FFA Chapter is preparing to take the necessary steps to make the campaign a success. Little also adds, "Our chapter is planning to hold a meeting and a 15-minute radio program."

ADDED TO CHURCH

Welcomed into the fellowship of Irene Cole Memorial (First) Baptist Church last Sunday morning was Miss Randi Lynn Polk, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Randy Polk.

The Pentagon is the world's largest office building. With an area of 6,500,000 square feet, the Pentagon has a Main Street lined with shops, restaurants, a bus depot and a post office.

The Kentucky Garden Journal

By Bonnie Lee Appleton
State Urban Garden & Home Horticulture Specialist
COOPERATIVE EXTENSION PROGRAM
KENTUCKY STATE UNIVERSITY

Are you prone to make New Year's resolutions? You will go on a diet and lose a bit of your bulging holiday cheer? Well sure, if the food was going to waste, it might as well go to your waist, right? That's probably the most common New Year's resolution, but for those of us who garden, be our thumbs green or brown, may I propose a few New Year's resolutions for the gardener.

I will undertake a new gardening project in 1984 for the improvement of my landscape, my environment or my community. (Does your town or county have a community garden? Perhaps you could help organize a place for cooperative growing and fellowship.)

I will be more considerate of my environment. I will work the soil when it is ready, not merely at my convenience. I will test the soil and fertilize only as needed. I will view my water supply as a precious limited resource and manage its application more carefully.

I will learn the needs of the plants I grow and live amongst. I will water, fertilize and harvest on their schedule, not mine.

I will respect the beneficial inhabitants of my garden—the "good" bugs, the toads, the earthworms, the insect-eating birds. I will learn to identify them and avoid practices that will harm them.

I will select my plants carefully to maximize yield and beauty and to minimize loss to cold, drought and pest problems.

I will avoid polluting my environment. I will use chemicals sparingly and on a when-needed basis, be they fertilizers or pesticides.

I will recycle whatever and whenever possible. Weeds will be pulled when young and composted. "Clean" garden and landscape debris will be composted. Household throw-aways will be recycled—newspaper and old carpet for mulch, milk jugs for hot caps, pantyhose for garden ties.

I will share my gardening with a friend by offering information or labor, or by giving a bouquet of flowers or a bag of beans.

I will enjoy my gardening activities for the enrichment of my body and soul. I will view a weed not as a nuisance to pull but as future organic fertilizer. I will view a bumper crop of beans or zucchini not as hours of labor canning or freezing but as good-will to be shared with those less fortunate.

I will take pride in my garden and my state because 'my green thumb grows in Kentucky.'

A Happy and Productive 1984 to All Kentucky Gardeners!

Timely Tip: Have you heard the warning for years—poisettias are poisonous? Well, now that Christmas is over, go ahead and eat it if you want, says Dr. Shumach, of Auburn University. Seriously, though not very palatable or tasty, if a child eats a few colored leaves, it won't be fatal.

Surprise Drill Tests Response

A member of Prestonsburg's emergency dive team probes the murky waters of Middle Creek.

Mock disaster exercises and drills have become a regular part of preparedness training for various emergency response groups, but the one staged Sunday at Archer Park here to test Prestonsburg personnel was somewhat different.

Unlike other such exercises, Sunday's came as a complete surprise to most of the participants. In fact, only Fire Chief Tom Blackburn and a couple of other firemen knew anything about it.

"It was kind of out of the ordinary," said Blackburn, "but it's really the only way to get an accurate picture of the ability of the men."

With the scenario arranged by Blackburn, a call went out at 12:16 p.m. Sunday that an explosion had occurred at Archer Park, a car with an injured occupant was visible, and there was a reported drowning. "Since no one had been told of the drill, an emergency really existed as far as anyone knew," Blackburn explained.

Response of emergency personnel could hardly have been better. At 12:17 the first fireman arrived, at 12:18 the first police car. A minute later the fire department's truck No. 5 pulled in. "Between 12:19 and 12:22 13 trained workers were on the scene," Blackburn commented. The city's emergency Squad 6 arrived at 12:26, a detachment of the Floyd County Emergency & Rescue Squad at 12:28, and city gas and water personnel at 12:29. By 12:34 members of the police and fire department's dive team (a unit almost unique among the state's smaller cities) were in the frigid waters of Middle Creek.

When units arrived they found an old car on fire, and smoke was issuing from the racquetball court at the park. The men soon discovered that the situation was, indeed, a drill, but the "emergency" was soon in hand.

Family Farms Said To Be On Decline

Family farms may soon become a thing of the past, according to Kendall Seaton, state director of the Farmers Home Administration.

"Only 3 1/2 percent of the people in the U.S. today live on a farm," Seaton said to a group of Morehead State University agriculture students in a recent lecture. "The farmer is ready for a change and a balance between production and agriculture is the future of farming."

In America, production agriculture has made tremendous strides since the soy and corn bumper crop of 1973 and the equity financing which took place in 1977-1980. The greatest strides in the future of agriculture are the farmer's knowledge of financial management, cash flow projections and computers, according to Seaton.

The FmHA works with farmers and the rural population who are unable to attain credit from a commercial lender, such as a bank, and tries to establish financial planning along with terms they can meet.

County offices are located in 70 of 120 counties in Kentucky for farmer's loans. There are also seven district offices to process community loans. In 115 counties, emergency loans of $20,000 or less are available. Any farmer who wants to apply for a loan should contact his county office and complete a financial and personal history form.

"They (the agency) are going to want to know your credit rating and assets and liability," said Walter Lacey, an MSU alumnus from West Liberty and representative of the FmHA Lexington office.

"Make sure you know this before you go in. It will help more than anything else," Lacey said.

"We are supplementary credit, not competitive," added Seaton. "People get in trouble with other lenders and they send them to Farmer's Home."

Although debts do continue to increase due to inflation, 50 percent of all farmers in the U.S. are debt free. FmHA extends 11 percent of the total operating credit to rural farmers in the U.S. Last year alone, $110 million was loaned by the agency to rural families to finance a house and one acre with interest rates as low as one percent, according to Seaton.

"We can be tough on problems," Seaton said. "We cracked down on delinquency rates and have it down to 11 percent. In Kentucky we have a six percent delinquency rate compared to 53 percent in Texas and 36 percent in Mississippi." This is due in part to Kentucky's wide variety of agriculture and stable tobacco crop.

"We are fortunate to have worked with farmers. Farm families are the cream of the crop," Seaton concluded.

Direct Deposit For Social Security Checks

From: JIM KELLY
Social Security District Director
For the Big Sandy Area
Prestonsburg, Kentucky 41653

People in the Big Sandy Area that receive Social Security or Black Lung should consider direct deposit, according to Jim Kelly, Social Security District Director for the Big Sandy Area.

Direct deposit means having the monthly Social Security check sent directly to a financial institution—a checking or savings account in a bank, savings and loan association, or similar institution, or to a Federal or State-chartered credit union. There are many advantages in having direct deposit, Kelly said.

The first advantage is obvious: A person who has direct deposit doesn't have to worry about having a check lost or stolen. If away from home on vacation or for any other reason, the person doesn't have to worry about a check remaining in the mail box for days at a time.

In addition, a person who has direct deposit doesn't have to stand in line to cash or deposit a check since it goes directly into an account.

Anyone wishing to arrange for direct deposit should contact the financial organization of his or her choice and they will assist you in completing the form, Kelly said.

Moreover, people who later change their mind about direct deposit can arrange to have their checks mailed to their home once more. People may also change the financial institution to which their checks are sent.

Additional information about direct deposit can be obtained from your local bank or the Social Security office. The Big Sandy Area Social Security office is located on U.S. 23 between Prestonsburg and Paintsville. The telephone number is listed in your local telephone directory under U.S. Government.

ORTHODONTICS FOR ADULTS

Q. Is there a difference between the amount of time required for orthodontic work for young people and for adults?

A. Orthodontics—straightening teeth and correcting any disharmony in the mouth—usually takes more time for adults.

As a person grows older, the jawbone becomes more calcified and dense, so it takes longer to move teeth along the jaw. This extra time is essential, since moving them too fast may result in dissolving of the roots. Great care must be taken in moving teeth where there is minor gum disease, and this, too, calls for time and patience.

Since the teeth and jaws of grown-ups offer special problems, they may need the services of other professionals—a restorative dentist, a periodontist, a prosthodontist, or an oral surgeon—when mouth rehabilitation is required. These needs may arise because adults can no longer rely on the growth and developmental forces of youth to help correct mouth irregularities and disharmony.

'These Troubled Waters' Dupont Award Finalist

WLEX-TV's documentary program "These Troubled Waters" has been selected as a finalist in national competition for the prestigious Alfred I. DuPont—Columbia University Award in Broadcast Journalism.

"These Troubled Waters" is one of four journalistic efforts selected as finalists among the entries from television stations in markets of comparable size across the country. The award winners will be announced on Wednesday, February 8, and highlights from the winners will be shown in a 90-minute telecast, beginning at 10:00 p.m., on the Public Broadcasting Service.

The WLEX-TV documentary started as a five-part series on water pollution on 18 Action News, and developed into an 18-part report on all aspects of the water problem facing Kentucky. The series evolved into the one-hour program that is now under consideration for what is perhaps the nation's most prestigious award for broadcast journalism. It was the foul taste of Lexington's drinking water that prompted WLEX-TV to begin asking local water company officials, "Why?"

A lack of satisfactory answers to the question led to further research and additional questions. After two months of pursuing the issue, it became apparent that there is more to Kentucky's water problem than a foul taste.

The conclusions were that (1) more than half of the state's drinking water is unsatisfactory, (2) the Kentucky River is one of America's more abused rivers, and (3) very little is being done about it.

"These Troubled Waters" was produced for WLEX-TV by 18 Action News anchorman Greg Gerlach, who also narrated the documentary.

The Alfred I. DuPont—Columbia University Awards program was established in 1942 to recognize excellence in broadcast journalism. The program has been administered for the past 16 years

T.G. Sheppard and Clint Eastwood have teamed on a new single, "Make My Day." The title is the catch phrase from Eastwood's current film, "Sudden Impact." The song, produced by Jim Ed Norman, was rushed into release. The song marks Sheppard's second duet (first was 1982's "Faking Love" with Karen Brooks) and Eastwood's third (he cut "Barroom Buddies" with Merle Haggard and "Beers to You" with Ray Charles).

The Arthritis Foundation will hold its third annual national telethon on April 29, live from the Gaslight Studio inside Opryland USA in Nashville. The eight-hour extravaganza will feature Mickey Gilley as celebrity host and Lee Greenwood as celebrity anchor. Nashville radio and TV personality Ralph Emery will be master of ceremonies. They will be joined by entertainers including Charly McClain and Johnny Lee.

Forty-four markets have already committed to carry the telethon, with other markets currently undergoing clearance. This will give the telethon, which will be distributed live via the Westar satellite, a potential viewing audience of 37.2 million households. Last year's telethon, which also originated from Opryland, raised more than $1.3 million in contributions and pledges.

Don Williams has three new albums out, or coming out, within the first four months of 1984. "Don Williams," a Heartland album sold via TV, includes 18 of his past hits.

FUTURE PLANS — Santa Barbara, that paradise of old money and quiet elegance about 90 minutes up the coast from Los Angeles, will become the site of a new NBC soap opera. Jerome and Bridget Dobson are developing the serial, which will be filmed in Santa Barbara and in a new studio under construction at NBC-Burbank. They will also be its head writers and co-executive producers. The Dobsons have been head writers on soaps like "General Hospital," "Guiding Light" and "As the World Turns." The series begins production this summer.

HEMINGWAY TO TV — NBC is turning Ernest Hemingway's novel, "The Sun Also Rises," into a four-hour miniseries. Boswell Supports Current Farm Bills

State Agriculture Commissioner David E. Boswell has given his support to two pieces of agricultural-related legislation being considered by the 1984 General Assembly meeting in Frankfort.

"These bills address one of the most crucial issues facing agriculture today—the loss of prime farmland," Boswell said.

From 1969-1979, 250,000 acres of prime Kentucky farmland were irretrievably lost, Boswell said, citing a report by the Governor's Agricultural Land Study and Policy Committee. In addition to each acre lost directly, at least one more acre was lost indirectly to agricultural use through a "leap-frogging effect," he added.

The farmland conversion problem is so serious that some agricultural experts believe that if conversion continues at its present rate, Kentucky's agricultural production capacity may be severely reduced, the Commissioner said.

"What we are looking at is Kentucky having to import food rather than exporting it as a major source of revenue," Boswell said. "House Bills 34 and 35 are efforts to protect our future as an agricultural state."

HB 34 requires any state agency planning to take more than 50 acres out of farmland to report to an inter-agency task force. Although the task force cannot stop the project, it can work with the agency to minimize the adverse impact on agriculture.

HB 35 is basically an amendment to an agricultural districting bill passed during the 1982 General Assembly.

The 1982 bill permitted land owners to form agricultural districts which could not be annexed. An exception was made for any land falling within a federal 201 planning district. That land could be annexed.

A 201 district is a result of a city's deciding the direction of its growth and determining where it plans to annex land. Legislators felt that cities which had already invested time and money in such planning might feel unfairly treated if they were then prohibited from annexing the land as planned.

HB 35 eliminates the 201 planning district exemption.

"We found out," Boswell said, "That more land than expected fell in a 201 planning district. All of Fayette county is in a 201 district. The state received five agricultural districting requests from Fayette county and had to reject them out of hand.

"Twenty other requests also had to be rejected," he added.

Boswell said he feels the HB 35 is especially important to central Kentucky because most of the land now in agricultural districts (about 17,000 acres) is in the western part of the state.

The cities are still protected, Boswell said, because HB 35 also provides that agricultural districts can be reviewed every five years by the government with jurisdiction over the land.

If the review indicates that the land should be annexed or provides the only feasible direction of growth, the state could be asked to make a ruling to that effect.

"The main thing here is that the needs of agriculture will have to be addressed before annexation can take place," Boswell said. "For that reason, if no other, these bills are very important to the future of agriculture."

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of Walter S. and Reginald G. Lazar, who passed away August 15, 1983.

Memories of yesterday flood through our minds
When fate would have been a little more kind
Fate as it has taken you both from us
But one thing fate could not take, is the memories with us you've entrusted.
You helped us through when things were bad
You helped us laugh though times were sad
You kept good times going as only you knew how
To you both with appreciation and honor our thoughts we bow
These things and more are just such little parts
To the memories you both left us of your smiles and faces
Which hold warm feelings in our hearts.

Sadly missed by your families

Has Art Exhibit, Here

Cynthia Roth Manuel, local artist, will exhibit her work, chiefly pastel chalks and pencil drawings, at the Floyd County Library, beginning Friday, February 17, through Friday, March 2.

A graduate of Alice Lloyd College with a Bachelor of Science degree, she teaches children's drama in the Community Services Program at Prestonsburg Community College. Mrs. Manuel is the daughter of Walter and Helen Roth, of Goble-Roberts Addition, and is married to Terry Manuel. They reside on the Middle Creek Road.

Scholars Program Deadline Is Feb. 22

Local school officials have only until Wednesday, Feb. 22, to submit their nominations of outstanding high school juniors for the 1984 Governor's Scholars Program.

Last year's program for 250 selected students at Centre College was so successful that the program will expand to 600 this year on two campuses, Centre College and Eastern Kentucky University.

Noting the enthusiasm for the program by last year's Scholars, Governor Martha Layne Collins called on school officials and students to submit their nominations and applications by the deadline.

"This program for Kentucky's brightest high school juniors is included in my plan for education," she said. "It offers students an exceptional opportunity for academic and personal growth."

The number of Scholars accepted from each school district is based on the size of the junior class. Additional nominations are offered to districts where 16 percent or more scored above the 89th percentile in the statewide achievement tests taken in the sophomore year.

Nominations and completed student applications should be mailed to Governor's Scholars Program, Post Office Box 496, Frankfort, Kentucky 40602.

State Plans To Avert Avian Flu Outbreak

Kentucky agriculture officials and poultry industry leaders have agreed on some critical planning steps to avert an outbreak of the avian influenza which has decimated chicken and turkey flocks in Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia and New Jersey. The planning is also calculated to isolate the disease should there be signs of it in flocks in Kentucky.

"It's important that we know, step by step, the procedures we must follow and the resources we can bring to bear should the worst happen and Kentucky suffer an outbreak of this industry-crippling disease," said Kentucky Agriculture Commissioner David Boswell. "Of course, we are determined to see that this doesn't happen, but we are going to be prepared for any eventuality."

Avian influenza has been the cause of the destruction of ten and one-half million birds in the affected states, at an industry cost of 27 million dollars. The United States Department of Agriculture has indemnified $20.7 million of that cost to the owners of the depopulated flocks.

An eleven-person group now comprises the new Kentucky Avian Influenza Task Force. The task force will be responsible for every phase of planning to stem any outbreak of the poultry disease in Kentucky, including: developing a surveillance system to watch for the illness; creating a communications system for notification of key individuals, should an outbreak occur; pre-selecting disposal methods and sites in concurrence with EPA guidelines for public safety; the diagnostic training of veterinarians who have probably had little exposure to this disease; the dissemination of information to industry service personnel so that they can recognize the disease; Arranging laboratory support, and spreading information about emergency steps such as indemnification procedures to industry representatives.

Among other steps that will be taken is the identification and location of poultry flocks throughout the Commonwealth, also processing plants, hatcheries, feed mills, rendering plants and the general density of the poultry population in Kentucky.

It will be necessary to list and locate veterinarians, poultry health specialists, animal health officers and law enforcement people likely to be brought into an infestation situation.

The task force will also oversee the identification of the kinds of disinfectants necessary to use in areas where an outbreak hits, along with heavy equipment necessary for burial and cleanup.

"The work involved in preparing for an all-out isolation effort is many-faceted, and is a job whose results we sincerely hope we'll never have to put to use," Commissioner Boswell pointed out. "But we'll be much worse off without a plan of action, and we know it."

The Avian Influenza Task Force members are Jack Graves, Keith Rogers and Bob Armstrong, representing poultry growers, Dr. John Tuttle, University of Kentucky, Dr. Robert Hail, State Veterinarian, Dr. Pat Tuttle, Lexington Pathologist, Ed Bryant, Glasgow poultry processor, Dr. Don Labere, UK veterinarian, Dr. Presley Winner, USDA Veterinarian, Ellis Carter, Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife, and John Fretwell, of Corydon, Kentucky.

Commissioner Boswell points out that there is no known drug or vaccine for avian flu. "That is why the only economically feasible form of treatment and control at this time is the destruction of any flock found to be infected," he said. Though highly infectious among birds, avian flu does not threaten people and in that regard does not pose a public health danger, the commissioner added.

Boswell says that the current outbreak of the disease in other states is a real national emergency because it not only disrupts poultry supplies to domestic markets, but if unchecked, will affect American poultry exports.

Census Bureau To Take Employment Survey Here

Local representatives of the Bureau of the Census will conduct a survey of employment in this area during the week of February 21-25. Joseph S. Harris, Director of the Bureau's Regional Office in Charlotte, announced today.

The survey is conducted for the U.S. Department of Labor in a scientifically designed sample of approximately 71,000 households throughout the United States. Employment and unemployment statistics based on results of this survey are used to provide a continuing measure of the economic health of the nation.

For example, in December 1983 the survey indicated that of the 112.1 million men and women in the civilian labor force, 102.9 million were employed. The nation's unemployment rate was 8.2 percent, 0.2 percent lower than reported in November.

Information supplied by individuals participating in the survey is kept strictly confidential by law and the results are used only to compile statistical totals.

State Helps Search For Iron Table Bases

The Cabinet for Human Resources is assisting the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission in locating and testing some iron table bases that may be contaminated with low-level radioactivity.

According to an NRC letter sent this week to the cabinet's Radiation and Consumer Product Safety Branch, the table bases were cast in Mexico using scrap iron apparently contaminated with cobalt-60 from a medical therapy device. The bases were made between Dec. 10 and Jan. 25 and shipped to a wholesale distributor of restaurant furniture, Falcon Products, St. Louis. NRC has halted the company's distribution of the bases and is asking states for help in locating those that were shipped to customers before the problem was discovered.

Branch manager Edsel Moore said his office has received a list of Falcon's shipments and has already started testing table bases sent to Kentucky. Low levels of radioactivity have been measured in bases received recently by a company in central Kentucky, and arrangements are being made to return them to Falcon Products. NRC reports indicate that as many as 398 bases have been shipped to Kentucky during the past few months.

"We will check each one of the units and follow up as appropriate," said Moore. "Falcon has agreed to pick up any radioactive bases, return them to the Mexican foundry and replace them with pedestals that are not contaminated."

Don Hughes, supervisor of the branch's Radiation Control Section, said the bases pose no immediate health hazard. "The situation certainly is not life-threatening," he said, "but it does expose the public to unnecessary amounts of radiation. Every base contaminated with cobalt-60 will be replaced."

Hughes said the radioactive cobalt contamination is fixed in the metal and cannot be spread beyond the table base.

According to the NRC, Falcon Products sells only to commercial, industrial and institutional customers. Its products are not sold to retail outlets for residential use. Representatives of companies that have purchased iron items from Falcon Products may contact the state's Radiation Control Section at 502/564-3700 for assistance or additional information.

Multi-Bank holding Said People Issue

Charles D. Bennett, president of the Independent Community Bankers Association of Kentucky, told a crowded public hearing Wednesday, Jan. 25, that a proposal for multi-bank holding companies in Kentucky is a "people issue," rather than a "big bank bill."

Bennett, president of the Farmers Bank, of Hardinsburg, was one of several Kentucky leaders who presented testimony opposing the Multi-Bank Holding Company Bill (House Bill 67).

The public hearing was conducted in the chambers of the Kentucky House of Representatives. It was interrupted a number of times by supporting applause from the crowd of spectators on the floor and in the chamber gallery.

Bennett presented his testimony before several members of the Banking and Insurance Committee of the House of Representatives, conducted by Rep. Jerry Lundergan, D-Lexington, Rep. Hoover Dawahare, D-Whitesburg, assisted by Rep. Ward "Butch" Burnett, D-Fulton.

"We submit to you," Bennett said, "that the troubled 'Butcher' Banks in Tennessee were closed quickly and the big bank holding companies were allowed to take over with substantial losses to the shareholders of those banks."

"It is our opinion," Bennett said, "that the same situation that brought on the troubled banks in Kentucky would have resulted in banks being closed if multi-bank holding companies had been permitted at that time in this state."

Referring to a statement made earlier by the Kentucky Bankers Association in support of multi-bank holding company legislation, Bennett asked, "Who, in the final analysis, pays for these higher acquisition costs?"

"We submit to you," he said, "that the bank's customers, the consumers if you please, will pay dearly through higher interest rates and service charges."

Bennett said studies done by both the University of Kentucky and Western Kentucky University both pointed out that higher interest rates and higher service charges prevail when multi-bank holding companies operate local banks, as contrasted with the rates and charges of community banks doing business in the same area.

Bennett also hit hard at the concentration of economic power that could result by having many banks owned by a central holding company.

"The lobbying efforts," Bennett said, "of the big money center banks on a national level, and the metropolitan area banks in Kentucky would bring about an even larger threat to our governmental and economic affairs as they gain control of the money supply in our state and nation."

Bennett pointed to another basic issue as "the responsiveness of the immediate community needs when addressed by banks whose headquarters may be in distant cities of the Commonwealth, or even other states."

"We would ask this question," Bennett said. Do you think that financial managers of large multi-bank holding companies located in Louisville, Lexington or even New York City would be more responsive to the community needs of smaller businesses, farmers and smaller consumers than officers and directors of community banks, who live in and work in local communities throughout this state?"

The Independent Community Bankers Association of Kentucky represents more than 150 community banks in Kentucky. ICBAK was formed in 1982 and has consistently opposed multi-bank holding companies.

Happy Valentine Day

To my three wonderful children and my brother, Kelly Clemons, in Breathitt Co., and all my friends and neighbors. A smile goes a long way, please try it some time. Ever notice how someone's smile really brightens up a day. Somehow a smile says so much more than words could ever say. A smile can make you welcome no matter where you go, and in crowds of strangers, a smile can say hello. A smile can help to cheer you when you are feeling kind of sad; or even sooth your anger if you happen to be mad. A smile can give a feeling of warmth and pleasure too, for there is happiness in knowing a smile is meant for you. I will be thinking of you all on Valentine day, so please don't forget to smile.

God bless you all,

Students Must Apply Early For Loan Aid

It's financial aid application time again, for anyone either attending or planning to attend college in fall, 1984. An April 1 priority filing date looms ahead for those who need to file a Kentucky Financial Aid Form (KFAF). By filing a KFAF, a student, or potential student, applies for Pell Grant, Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grants, National Direct Student Loan, College Work Study and Kentucky State Grant.

As a Kentucky resident, full-time students have access to money set aside by the State Legislature. This Kentucky State Grant money means a Pikeville College student can qualify for up to $1,400 in grant money, an amount actually made up of two parts. The State Student Incentive Grant (SSIG) provides a maximum of $400 for students who attend any college in the state of Kentucky and the Kentucky Tuition Grant (KTG) provides up to $1,000 (in addition to the SSIG portion) for students attending an independent (private) college within the state.

To receive full consideration it is important to apply early. Money is awarded on a first-come, first-served basis according to financial need. "With an increase in grant amounts, the available money will be exhausted earlier this year", says Bobby Price, Director of Financial Aid at Pikeville College.

The Pikeville College Financial Aid Office is currently conducting workshops at area high schools to help students complete their financial aid forms before the April 1 priority deadline. Anyone wishing to arrange such a workshop for parents and/or students, or anyone needing individual assistance completing the forms, contact the Pikeville College Financial Aid Office at 432-9305 or 432-9322 between the hours of 8:30 and 4:30, Monday through Friday.

Most people have come to realize that the biggest is not always the best. Big cars get poorer gas mileage than small cars.

The same can be said of the vegetable and flower (bedding) plants we will be buying for our spring and summer gardens.

Spend a few extra minutes this year checking the quality of the transplants you buy. Start with the potting soil and root system.

Put a plant or two from its pot or container and examine the roots—healthy roots should be white in color, firm, well branched and should fill the soil ball.

Now look at the stem right at soil level. Is it strong and the characteristic color for the plant or are there brown to black sunken areas?

For transplants with upright stems, look at the quality and size of the stem and the space between the leaves.

Rip-offs are on the rise again, making it very easy for the uncautious to fall prey to the unscrupulous.

Earn big money right in your own home! Get $1000-$3000 monthly for stuffing envelopes. Again, you're asked for up-front money, and what you receive is an offer of an instruction manual for even more money.

Get the best in TV with our special introductory offer! Some sharp operators canvas a neighborhood not yet scheduled for cable, claiming they're representing a cable company and asking for a $25 deposit and $25 installation fee.

There are many other scans. The name of the game is to get your money without giving you anything in return. Keep that fact in mind, and you should be able to resist most of the traps set by rip-off artists.

should be firm and thick. If stems are overly flexible and thin—what we call spindly—the seedlings were probably pushed to grow too fast, were grown under too low a light intensity, or are too closely spaced for their size.

You can tell the above has happened by also looking at the length of stem between where leaves are attached—the internodes. If leaves are spaced quite far apart, again shading or accelerated growth has occurred.

Examine the leaves. Are they a good green color or are they pale? If they are pale they probably are either being kept where the light is too dim or the plants have run out of fertilizer.

Now check the top of stems, the buds, and the leaves (especially the underside) for pest problems. Spots on leaves may indicate disease problems as can dried up, brown buds.

Lastly, don't buy tomato transplants already covered with flowers (or even small fruit). Research has shown that young transplants—around five weeks old—will give you larger fruit than older plants.

Poultry, Eggs, Pace Leap In Food Prices

If 1983 was the year of drought, 1984 may be starting out as the year of the chicken. A whopping 4.3 percent jump in retail food prices for January can be traced, in part, to the hen house door.

The price increase was documented by Kentucky Farm Bureau's first marketbasket food price survey for the year. Jumps in cost for poultry cuts and eggs, combined with smaller increases for beef, pork, fruits and vegetables, raised the average value of 40 selected food items in Kentucky stores to $60.28, up from $57.51 for December.

Although some two-thirds of the marketbasket selections increased in price during the month, eggs and poultry raced ahead of the pace with a 15.5 percent hike in 30 days. This uncharacteristic volatility pushed the average price of a dozen large eggs from 91 cents to $1.26 and kicked up the tab for whole fryers from 76 to 86 cents a pound. Extra large eggs went to $1.33 a dozen, on average, while chicken breasts vaulted to $1.75 a pound.

Getting the blame for the increases were last summer's hot weather, which caused high mortality among laying flocks in Southern states, combined with a severe outbreak of avian influenza in the Northeast. Bitterly cold weather also contributed, analysts say, by cutting down on hens' productivity and broilers' gain rates.

Prior to this recent surge, egg prices had been relatively stable for three to four years, according to Dave Williamson, with the Kentucky Crop and Livestock Reporting Service. At retail, large eggs had moved generally in the 75 to 85-cent range since 1980. That translated into prices in the 40's for farmers.

Williamson said many egg producers had felt their prices were not keeping pace with the rest of the farm sector during that period. He noted that his office's latest survey had pegged farm-level egg prices at better than 81 cents a dozen, up almost 70 percent from a year ago, when producers were receiving 48 cents.

In other sectors of the January marketbasket, beef and pork prices moved higher by 4 and 3 percent respectively, while dairy products actually decreased in price and grain-based foods held steady.

Fruits and vegetables were 11 percent higher, paced by potatoes and salad-type items. Much of those increases were seasonal in nature, including the 44-cent jump for potatoes and hikes of 10 cents for green bell peppers and 20 cents for a head of iceberg lettuce.

Morehead checked in with the lowest local marketbasket average for the month of January, while Louisville showed the highest figures. Overall, volunteer surveyors working through Kentucky Farm Bureau Women canvassed grocery prices in 21 Kentucky communities.

Those local figures are Morehead, 52.15; Greensburg, 55.11; Campbells-ville, 56.98; Scottsville, 57.73; Salyers-ville, 58.18; Hopkinsville, 58.23; Elizabethtown, 58.83; Wilmore, 59.08.

Glasgow, 59.20; Brandenburg, 59.44; London, 59.91; Shelbyville, 60.57; Madisonville, 60.90; Henderson, 61.22; Jackson, 62.17; Owensboro and Lexington, 62.64; Georgetown, 63.08; Cynthia, 63.30; Greenup, 65.94; and Louisville, 67.62.

Ask Driver Opinion Of State Transport

The first of 9,600 questionnaires were mailed this week to Kentucky drivers to find out what they think of the state's transportation systems and services.

The mail survey is being directed by Jerry G. Pigman and Kenneth R. Agent, research engineers with the Kentucky Transportation Research Program at the University of Kentucky. It is funded by a grant of $30,000 from the Kentucky Department of Highways through the University of Kentucky Research Foundation.

The UK researchers developed their questionnaire in consultation with highway department officials. Some questions in the two-page survey are the same as those asked on a similar 1980 inquiry and will allow researchers to measure opinion shifts.

Respondents will be asked questions about bumpy and uncomfortable roads, problems with traffic signs and pavement markings, attitudes about car-pools, and their opinions about whether and how much the state should increase, or decrease, expenditures for such items as road maintenance, repair of rough road crossings, snow and ice removal on roads and public transportation.

Questionnaires will be mailed in the next two weeks to a random group of 800 registered drivers in each of the state's 12 highway districts. Respondents are asked to return their marked questionnaires in postage-free envelopes.

The researchers expect to have results tallied and a report filed to the highway department by the end of June 1984.

Benefit Recipients May Be Entitled To Increase

Kentuckians receiving social security or railroad retirement pension payments who have received reduced employment insurance benefits may be entitled to more compensation, and those who have been denied compensation may be eligible for it, according to Human Resources officials.

"If a person retired from a job with one employer and received these pension payments, then began working for another employer and was laid off, our staff may have reduced unemployment compensation by the amount of social security or railroad retirement payments," said Mae Girkey, director of the cabinet's Division of Unemployment Insurance.

"We have tried to notify by mail each person to whom this happened," she said. "But even those who didn't receive notices from us who feel they fit the criteria should contact one of our local Unemployment Insurance offices, even if they were told earlier they weren't eligible for benefits or were eligible only for reduced benefits." About 5,500 people were affected, she said.

Wood Is Good Fuel, But Presents Hazards

Each year, more and more people are turning to wood to heat their homes, either to supplement their home heating system or even to use as a primary fuel source.

While burning wood offers some real cost savings for some homeowners—especially those with their own timber or inexpensive source of firewood—it also poses hazards.

The sharp increase in residential wood burning has caused concern about some health and safety issues, according to Extension forestry specialists in the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

John Shelly explains some of the risks that go along with the economic advantages of burning wood.

Chimney emissions. When wood is burned, the emissions (smoke) produced contain components which include fine particulates (as much as 50 percent may be respirable), carbon monoxide, and various volatile hydrocarbons. Other compounds, some of which are known health hazards, are produced in small quantities.

"The health risk of these emissions is not clearly established," said Shelly, "but recent evidence indicates it may be a potential major threat to public health in concentrated residential areas."

He added that the health hazard associated with wood emissions is increased dramatically when preservative-treated wood is burned, adding toxic and sometimes carcinogenic compounds into the air.

Indoor pollution. Health hazards inside a home can be traced to wood emissions and the ash remaining after combustion. Improperly installed wood burning equipment may often result in combustion products being emitted into the room, said Shelly.

Wood emissions inside a closed house pose a more serious threat than do the emissions from the chimney because the air breathed by occupants inside has such a higher concentration of the emissions. Shelly pointed out that indoor emissions from burning preservative-treated wood can be extremely harmful.

Wood ash is generally not considered a health hazard, he noted, except when there are large quantities of airborne ash. "But the ash from wood treated with preservative salts is extremely hazardous because of a high concentration of arsenic compounds," he said.

Fire risks. Accidental fires in houses caused by using woodburning equipment are on the rise, Shelly said. "Most of these fires result from improper installation, carelessness, or not maintaining the chimney adequately. Since wood-burning stoves and fireplaces can reach very high temperatures, combustible materials need to be kept at a safe distance."

Creosote problems. Creosote is the main cause of chimney fires. That's the highly combustible fuel carried in the smoke from a wood fire, explained Doug McLaren, UK area Extension forestry specialist headquartered at the Robinson Substation in Quicksand, Ky.

Creosote condenses and is deposited on the walls of the chimney. It also accumulates on the stovepipe walls—the section of metal pipe that connects the heater to the chimney—and inside the wood heater.

There are several forms of creosote, McLaren noted. It may be lightweight, fluffy, and ash-like, and this type can be easily removed by wire brushing. Another type is a black, hard, crusty buildup that forms on the flue and stovepipe walls and which is hard to get off.

But the most difficult creosote to remove is a glazed or enamel-like coating on the walls of a wood heating system. "Professional chimney sweeps call this third-degree creosote," said McLaren. "Wirebrushing won't get it off very easily, but it has been successfully removed by sandblasting."

Homeowners with wood burners also may notice creosote in a liquid form that runs down exterior walls of a metal chimney or stovepipe, seeps from the cracks of joints and elbows, or accumulates in the bottom of the heater.

To reduce the amount of creosote deposits in your woodburning system, McLaren advises following these tips:

Burn dry wood, either pine or hardwood that has been cut, split, and stacked for drying at least three months before burning. Six months of seasoning are better, and a year is best. The reason for seasoning is that about half the weight of fresh-cut or green firewood is water.

"The water must be evaporated from the wood as steam when the wood starts burning," said McLaren. "This robs heat from the fire and living area and causes the cooler smoke to condense on the flue as creosote."

Build each fire so that it quickly starts burning when you light it. Put crumpled newspapers on the bottom, then small kindling, then several small pieces of firewood. Place a crumpled newspaper on top of the wood and light it before lighting the fire. The heat from the burning paper will help the chimney draw the smoke faster, McLaren explained.

Be sure not to load the stove so full that the air supply is closed off. You'll have a slow-burning, smoldering fire that causes the largest amount of creosote deposits. Instead, use a smaller amount of wood and keep the heater drafts open more in order to burn a hotter fire, McLaren recommended. Or at least open the stove drafts and damper for 30 minutes a day so the fire burns hot.

To minimize the potential health and safety risks of burning wood in your home, Shelly and McLaren offer these recommendations:

Make sure your equipment is installed properly. Stove manufacturers are required by the Consumer Product Safety Commission to attach specifications to each new stove to describe safe installation.

Do not burn chemically treated wood. Clean the chimney. The buildup of creosote can be reduced by routine cleaning.

Ensure proper damping. Supply enough air to the combustion box to keep the fire from smoldering or smoking; this reduces particulate emissions.

Inspect stovepipe connections to ensure a tight fit, which will minimize indoor pollution.

Pharmacy Footnotes

By HAROLD COOLEY

Vaccination was first used in the late eighteenth century by Dr. Edward Jenner. Dr. Jenner noticed that milkmaids, who frequently came down with cowpox, seemed protected against smallpox, a similar but much more devastating disease. Jenner concluded that exposure to cowpox somehow shielded the women against the more serious disease. He tested his theory by making the first vaccine. The substance that he used came from the cowpox ulcers on the milkmaids' hands. The process took its name from the Latin word for cow, "vacca." People inoculated with this substance did not get smallpox. Since 1980 smallpox has been declared "eradicated."

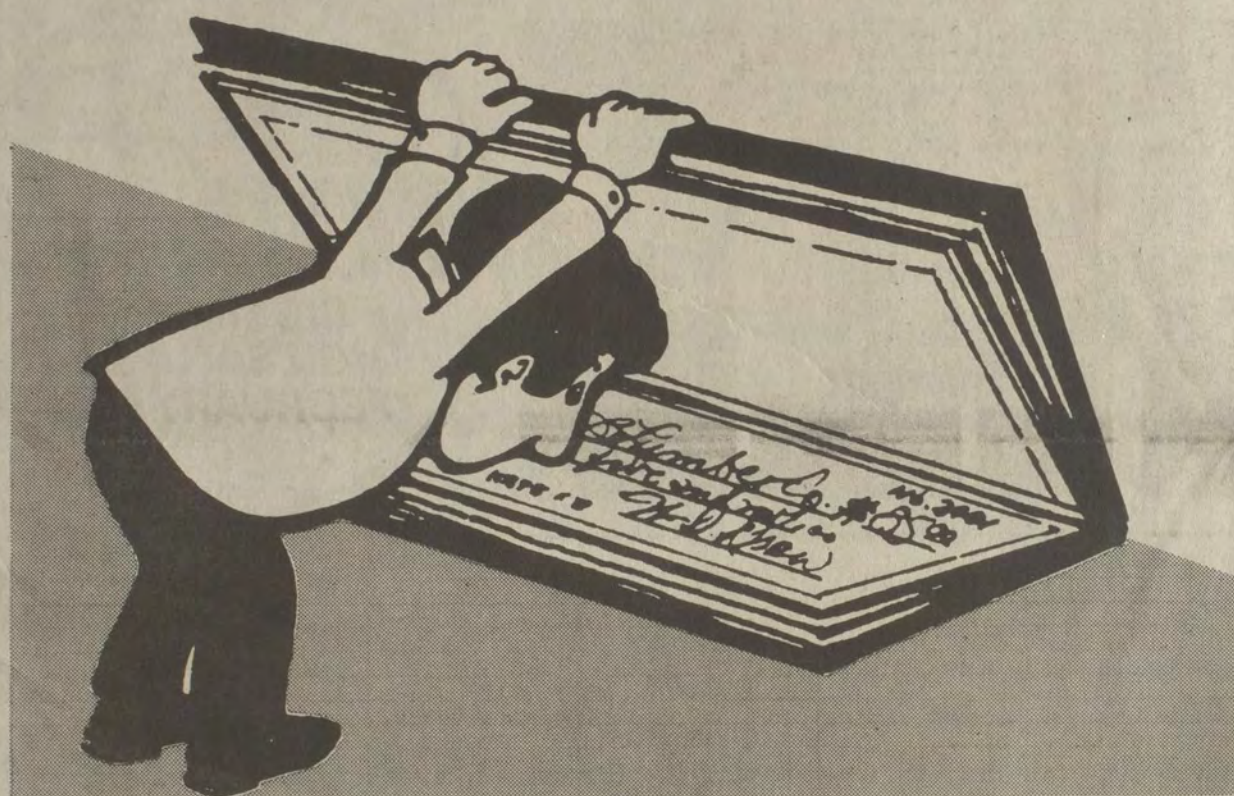

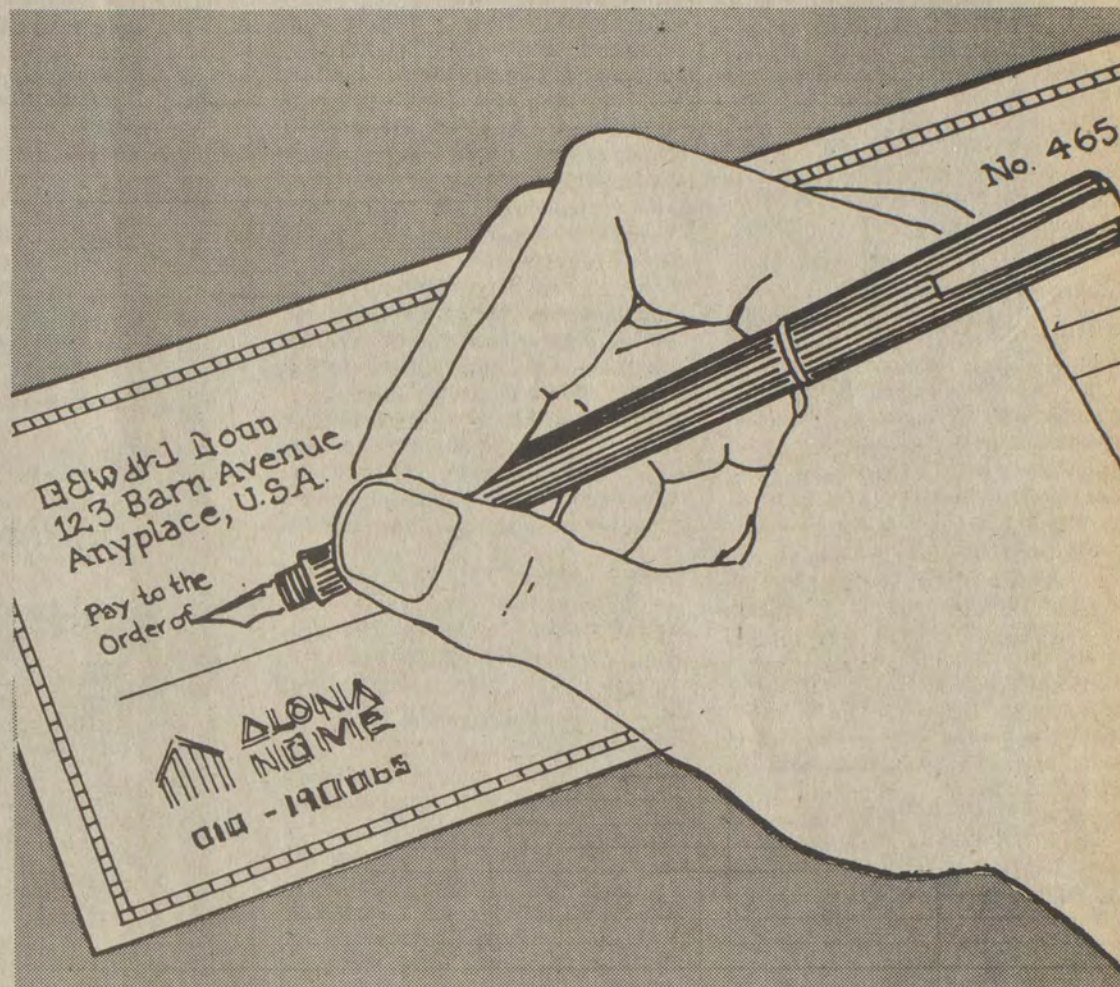

All prescription items and over the counter remedies are available at COOLEY APOTHECARY. Join your many friends and neighbors who already are familiar with us. We are located in No. 2 Town Center Bldg., 886-8106. Keep in mind that our prices are very competitive. Open: Mon.-Fri., 9-5:30, Sat., 9-5.

HANDY HINT:
Consult your doctor about vaccinations if you are pregnant.

Because the largest percentage of a bank's expenses are incurred in processing checking account transactions, most banks charge a nominal fee for this service.

Like you, we have always felt that charges can become burdensome. That's why WE base our checking account charges on AVERAGE balances rather than minimum balances, like our competitors.

DAY	THE BANK JOSEPHINE		BANK Y		BANK Z
	Balance	Potential Charge	Balance	Pot. Charge	Balance	Pot. Charge
1	$350	-0-	$350	$4.00	$350	-0-
2	$250	-0-	$250	$5.00	$250	$3.00
3	$300	-0-	$1,000	---	$1,000	---
TOTALS	$900	-0-	$1,600	$5.00	$1,600	$3.00

As you can see, our checking accounts really DO cost less. In our example your total balance is divided by 3. And even though your balance at The Bank Josephine dropped below $300 for one day during the period, you pay NO service charge since your AVERAGE balance was $300. Banks Y and Z charge on MINIMUM balances. And even though your average balance with them was higher, you will still pay their HIGHEST charge just because your balance dropped below the minimum for only one day!

AND TALK ABOUT CONVENIENCE!! We have six full-service locations. Bank Y has four; Bank Z has only one.

You'll find a Bank Josephine location on every major highway in Floyd County. And our combined locations offer a total of 102 more banking hours per week than Bank Y and 208 more than Bank Z. And NONE of OUR locations close for an hour in the middle of a busy Friday.

MSU Robotics Classes First of Kind in State

Citing the world trend toward automated manufacturing, Morehead State University President Morris L. Norfleet welcomed 21 employees of Emerson Manufacturing Co.'s Browning Manufacturing plant to the first of a semester-long series of robotics and computerized manufacturing classes.

"Our job at the University is to help the people of this region," said Dr. Norfleet. "We hope this training is just the beginning of our relationship because we learn along with you."

Dr. Norfleet talked to the Rowan county employees of the Maysville-based firm Tuesday at the beginning of their twice-weekly, three-hour class in MSU's Department of Industrial Education and Technology. Dr. Robert Newton, head of the department, said the co-operative training is a pioneering effort.

"Right now, this training is the only one of its type in the state," he said. The class is funded by a $90,000 Job Training Partnership Act grant from the Kentucky Cabinet for Human Resources. The training will prepare employees for operating computerized machines and robots that Browning, Rowan county's largest industrial employer, will begin using by mid-year.

"This type of joint training is a good example of the intent of the JTPA," said Employment Services Commissioner James Daniels in a prepared statement.

"While it won't increase the number of jobs at the Browning Manufacturing plant, it will prevent displacement or unemployment of current employees as a result of the company's switch to high technology equipment."

The workers to be retrained will attend either a day or night class twice a week.

According to Gary Koch, plant manager, 30 of Browning's 150 employees will be trained by the grant. All will be learning on company time.

Browning Manufacturing makes power transmission parts, including gears, sprockets, bearing units, bushings and gear reducers. Five new robots will be on-line by mid-June, according to Koch. They will load and unload parts into computerized machinery.

DO SOMETHING WILD!

Kentuckians can now participate in the protection and preservation of our rich natural heritage. On Line 21a, you can designate all or a portion of your Kentucky tax refund to help wildlife.

Your tax deductible contribution will support non-game species protection programs by the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources and the purchase and maintenance of natural areas by the Kentucky Nature Preserves Commission. These programs have no other sources of funding.

Wildlife needs your help - No amount is too small, your contribution is important!

Pitts, son of Mr. and Mrs. John K. Pitts, of Prestonsburg, George C. Stephens, son of Mr. and Mrs. Danny Stephens, of Prestonsburg, all seniors.

To be eligible for the Dean's List, students must achieve a B plus average for the semester.

Some Assets Allowed Beneficiaries of SSI

An individual or married couple can own some property and still be eligible for Supplemental Security Income (SSI) payments, Jim Kelly, Social Security district director for the Big Sandy area, said recently.

"A single person can have assets worth up to $1,500 and a couple can have assets worth up to $2,250," Kelly said. "Moreover, in figuring the value of the assets, the cost of a home the person occupies is not counted."

"Other items that might not count, depending upon their value, include personal property, household goods, insurance policies, a car, and burial plots and burial funds."

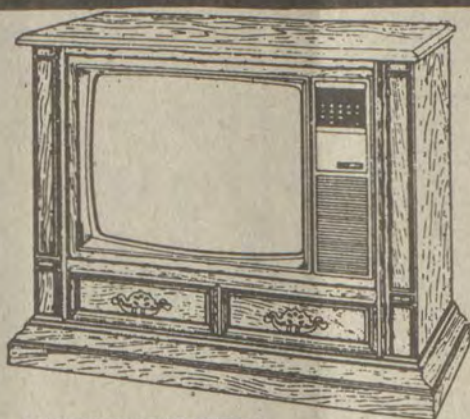

"An individual or couple should not hesitate to apply for SSI payments simply because they own property or other assets," Kelly said. "Rather, they should contact any Social Security office to see if they qualify and to file an application."

"Anyone planning to file should bring a list of other income they have as well as papers to show property and vehicle ownership," Kelly said. "Of course anyone that has a disability should contact their doctor before contacting the Social Security office."

First Birthday

Miss Krystal Dawn Deaton celebrated her first birthday at her home in Hueysville, January 28. Krystal's brother, Jarrod, age 6, and her parents, Jad and Alberta, planned a festive occasion in recognition of this date.

Krystal Dawn's first birthday celebration was accentuated by a Strawberry Shortcake cake, plenty of ice cream, many gifts, and shared fellowship with friends and relatives. Those making this day more festive were paternal grandparents, Julian and Nellie Deaton, of Bypro; maternal grandparents, Willis and Melba Sexton, of Hueysville, aunts, Sherri Dusina, Pat Slone and Roberta Adkins; uncles, Rev. Glen Dusina, Danny Slone, and Donald Adkins; cousins, Leigh Erica Dusina, Jami Dusina, Carrie Summer Slone, and LaDonna Adkins; friends, Bud Coburn, Loveda Snyder, Coburn, Ann Snyder, Clifford, Deloris and Barry Conley, Roger, Catherine, and Jeremy Wireman, and Phyllis and Ashley Hall.

Krystal Dawn extends a very special, belated happy birthday to her Sissy Veet, who shares the same birth date.

Public Hearing Set on Fishtrap

Congressman Carl D. Perkins announced last week that he has arranged a public meeting which will be held Sunday, February 19, 1984 at 1:30 p.m. at the Pikeville High School to discuss the future development of Fishtrap Reservoir and its adjoining lands as might be affected by a proposal of the Kentland Coal Company to mine its Elk Foot properties in the Fishtrap drainage basin, by the strip method of mountain top removal.

Perkins said that a number of factors make this meeting important to all citizens of Pike County, citing the following:

1. The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, in acquiring lands for the Fishtrap project, did not condemn all the land in fee simple but, instead, acquired for the most part title to the surface, plus varying restrictions on the mineral rights of the private owners of the land. Kentland Coal Company is the owner of coal and other minerals but not the surface of lands bordering Fishtrap Reservoir, including the so-called Elk Foot properties. In acquiring the surface rights, the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers also obtained restrictions on how the land could be mined.
2. Kentland Coal Company, through an affiliate, owns properties in West Virginia along the New River which are now being sought by the National Park Service for development as a part of the New River Gorge National Area. Kentland Coal Company proposes to donate the West Virginia properties to the National Park Service if, in turn, the Department of the Interior will give it the surface rights to its Fishtrap Reservoir Property along with the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers' approval to strip mine the Fishtrap properties by the mountain top removal process.
3. Exchanges of property as proposed by Kentland Coal Company require the approval of Congress by legislation.
4. Proposals are before the State Legislature in Frankfort for the state to acquire Fishtrap properties for park development.

Perkins said that the February 19 meeting is important and should bring together Pike county officials and citizens, representatives of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, the State Park services and the Department of Natural Resources, in order that all of the expertise and public thinking can be brought to bear on the future development of the Fishtrap Reservoir area.

Miss Floyd Co. Pageant Contestants Are Sought

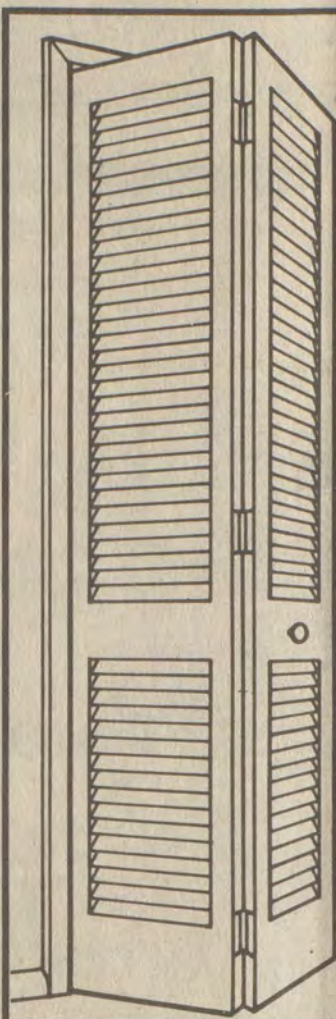

Those interested in competing in the Miss Floyd County Pageant are asked to call Betty Slone at 886-8286 after 5 p.m., Peggy Kidd at 886-6264, or any other member of the Prestonsburg Junior Woman's Club. Entry deadline is March 3.
