Traffic Control Demand Follows Accidents Here

A traffic accident that injured a Prestonsburg High School freshman near the unemployment office here last week brought renewed calls for stepped-up traffic control on the city's northern approach.

James J. Carter III, 14, suffered a broken leg around 5 p.m. Wednesday when he was struck by an auto as he crossed U.S. 23. A member of the high school football squad, he was reportedly going for a soda after a weightlifting session at the school when he stepped in front of a car driven by Diane Blankenship. No citations were issued.

Prestonsburg Police Chief Dick Campbell said the mishap was one of three in the same general area last week. Of the two dozen vehicle accidents handled by city police in an average month, as many as half occur on the congested stretch between the Bert Combs bridge and Prestonsburg Community College, he estimated.

Laura Baldridge, of Little Paint, was one of several parents who called city and state officials last week to complain of the hazards their children face getting to and from school. A traffic light should be installed in front of the high school or a police officer assigned to help students (See Story No. 2, Page 4)

FORMER STATE REPRESENTATIVE EVERETT AKERS and County Court Clerk Carla Boyd examine one of the more than 9,000 petitions which Mr. Akers delivered to the clerk's office last Wednesday. Looking on are Mrs. Otela Smiley and Jack Freed, who were on hand as representatives of the local A.A.R.P.

No Decision Reached On Tax Referendum

In the wake of a petition to force the issue to a referendum, it remained unclear this week whether the Board of Education will pursue its bid to levy a utilities tax to finance county schools. But, whatever its decision, the Board will reach it without the help of the task force which first recommended the levy.

Members of the panel, following the lead of Chairman Ralph O'Quinn, decided Monday to back the Board's decision but not to suggest what that decision should be Superintendent E.P. Grigsby, Jr. said that, assuming the petition is validated by the county court clerk, the Board has three options. It may conduct a special election at its own expense within 60 to 90 days. It may have the issue put to the voters at the general election in November. Or, Grigsby maintains, it may call the whole thing off.

He would have no recommendation to make until he knew how many petition signatures were verified and had an opportunity to "analyze" them, Grigsby said. Even assuming that most of the 9000-plus names filed last Wednesday were held to be bona fide petitioners, some of them could be expected to support the tax, he said.

Marshall Trial Up For

County Clerk Carla Boyd said Tuesday she had been waiting to see whether the Board intended to withdraw its tax-an option she thinks they havebefore beginning the arduous task of checking the petitions. She said later she would start verifying the signatures today (Wednesday).

Some organizers of the petition argue that the Board has no right to withdraw the tax at this stage. "It was not a petition for them to drop it, but to put it on the ballot," said one

Board members were surprised by the number of petitioners and their hopes for the tax were obviously dimmer this week. But several said they favored putting the question to the voters in

"From the petition, it looks as if the public is not wanting it," said Ray 'Shag'' Campbell, of Banner. With the odds against passage, the Board could not justify spending the estimated $25,000-$30,000 it would take to hold a special election, but "we should let the public speak in November," Campbell

James A. Duff, of Hueysville, and Dr. J.D. Adams, of Prestonsburg, also favored a November ballot, although (See Story No. 1, Page 4)

State To Continue School Board Watch

The state Board of Education will continue to monitor Floyd schools and school officials here will be asked to report by June 30 on what they have done to resolve problems voiced by a citizens' group.

Kathy Hatfield, of Drift, chairperson of the Floyd County Citizens' Education Council, told the panel last Tuesday that improvements seen here in recent months came about only because of the intervention of state officials. The only way Floyd school officials can be made accountable is by dismissing the present superintendent and board members, she said, repeating a request the group first made last June.

'If your action is not strong enough to convey a message...that you do intend to make changes, there may never be another citizen from eastern Kentucky who is willing to accept the consequences of speaking out," Mrs. Hatfield

Robert E. Spillman, assistant superintendent for local services in the Department of Education, said Floyd school officials have been cooperating to correct deficiencies in the system. And Superintendent E.P. Grigsby, Jr. said local officials were doing the best they could with the funds available.

Although public opposition made it doubtful whether the measure would stick, the Floyd Board of Education recently adopted a utilities tax which could raise $700,000 annually in school funds, Grigsby said.

continue to monitor the situation here. A state official will attend and report on meetings of the local board, it was said.

In a seven-page letter addressed to state Superintendent of Public Instruction Alice McDonald and read to the state board, the Floyd citizens' group decried the county's "alarming" dropout rate. "Almost half our students who begin high school never receive a diploma" and Floyd officials show few signs that they are prepared to deal with the problem, the group said. Last year, 44.5 percent of those who began high school four years previously were said to have dropped out.

The citizens' council called for tougher action against principals who allow athletics to intrude on daily instructional time, a closer watch on internal accounting procedures, and more involvement of parents in school affairs.

The group asked why parents are not included in the textbook selection and Chapter I advisory committees, why parent input was not solicited by a state accreditation team, why the system plans no regular parent-teacher conferences, and why parent-teacher organizations do not exist even where parents have asked for them.

MONTH AT ITS LONGEST

Although February this Leap Year has, as usual on Leap Years, an extra day, it remains the shortest month of the lot. Yet it has as many Wednesday publication dates for us this year as the longest month of the calendar. The month came in of a Wednesday and ends on one, so we have five of them, this time around. If the sands in the hourglass don't run out, another such February will come again-when, I do not know, The state panel voted unanimously to and the mere thought of trying to find out makes me tired.

Jury Decision, Today Clyde Douglas Marshall, 31, of

McDowell, on trial in Fayette Circuit Court the past week on a charge of plotting the murder of his wife, Glenda Sharon Marshall, last June 20, took the stand in his own defense yesterday (Tuesday)

By day's end, all evidence had been presented in the case. After instructions by the court and closing arguments by the prosecutor and defense counsel, the case is expected to go to the jury today for a verdict. Fourteen jurors, seven men and seven women, have heard the case; two of them are alternates.

Since the prosecution is seeking the death penalty, a guilty verdict would mean the case would then enter a second phase to determine the penalty.

Mrs. Marshall, 35, was found dead in a burned-out car at the foot of Sizemore Mountain, near Minnie. She and Marshall had been married little more than a year when she died. At the time of her death, she had a month-old baby; she was also the mother of a 9-year-old boy by a previous marriage.

County Pays Loan...

But Court May Face Money Crunch Later

In a dizzying series of fund transfers, the fiscal court last week scraped together the money needed to pay off $202,500 it borrowed from the Bank

Josephine last August. But there were signs the county may simply have postponed for two months a fiscal crunch threatened by sharp cuts this year in two key revenue sources. Of the principal borrowed in August, the bulk-$150,000-was paid back out of property taxes turned over by Sheriff Henry Hale in January. The other $52,000 was wrung out of the county's revenue-sharing account, a federal allocation that Floyd officials recently learned would amount his year to about half of what they had anticipated. And the interest payment of $8606 was squeezed from coal severance taxes already badly shrunken on account of the lackluster coal market.

The decline in revenue—the county budget fell from $2.9 million last year to $1.7 million this year-does not necessarily mean that bills will not be paid. Strict monitoring of the county by Finance Cabinet officials last year was designed to see that the fiscal court did not again run up bills it couldn't pay.

Instead, the revenue shortfall means for the most part that costly services are simply not being provided. There is neither money for blacktop nor workers to spread it.

Since the end of December, when 20 road workers were laid off, the entire county road crew consists of a mechanic, a foreman, a timekeeper and four grader operators—one for each magisterial district. That's one worker in each district to grade the roads, haul the gravel, and dig the ditchlines. And neither the laid-off workers nor the citizens who crowded the fiscal court Friday to complain about the condition of their roads were given any reason to hope the situation would improve before July 1, the start of a new fiscal year.

But if the economic squeeze will (See Story No. 3, Page 4)

Two prosecution witensses testified last Thursday that Marshall masterminded a plot to kill his wife to collect her insurance, which prosecutors said would total about $133,000.

DUI 'Repeaters'

Three men were sentenced to jail terms after conviction on drunk driving (DUI) charges in Floyd District Court last Thursday. All were repeat offenders

Calvin Dean Ousley, 40, of Martin, who was tried in his absence, was sentenced by District Judge Harold Stumbo to 90 days and ordered to pay $247.50 in fine and costs on each of two drunk driving charges dating from last September and October.

They were his fifth and sixth DUI convictions in four years. Another DUI charge is still pending.

Clifford Ousley, 33, of Drift, was ordered to spend weekends in jail for a total of 30 days and to pay $197.50, after pleading guilty to charges of drunk driving, driving on a suspended license, and failing to carry insurance.

He was previously convicted of DUI in 1980, 1981 and 1982

Hardy Kilburn, of Arkansas Creek, , was sentenced to 30 days on the same charge and fined $100. It was his second

DUI conviction. (See Story No. 7, Page 4) Wright-to come to Floyd county to kill McGuffey, 30, of Lafayette, Tenn. said Marshall instructed them on how to carry out the killing, telling them to 'make it look like an accident.

The next day Marshall sent his wife to the Spurlock Creek road near Printer on a pretext of delivering mining supplies to two men there, McGuffey said. The Marshalls had opened a mining supply business a few months previously.

McGuffey said McFarland and Wright struck Mrs. Marshall with a large wrench, strapped her body in the front seat of her car, stuffed gasoline-soaked rags around the body, drove the car to Sizemore Mountain, ignited the rags, and pushed the car over the side. McFarland, 58, of Glasgow, Ky., told a similar story; but he said it was McGuffey and Wright who did the killing. Defense Attorney Ned Pillersdorf tried to discredit McFarland's testimony, focussing attention on his lengthly criminal record.

As the trial opened last week, McGuffey, who was also facing a charge of complicity to murder, pleaded guilty and agreed to testify for the prosecution. Commonwealth's Attorney James Allen recommended that he be given a life sentence. McFarland had earlier been granted immunity in exchange for his testimony. Wright is now dead.

As the trial continued this week, seven insurance agents testified that Marshall stood to collect large sums of money when his wife died. Billy Ward, of Paintsville, also said that Marshall owed him a $35,000 gambling debt.

Also testifying Monday was Mrs. Marshall's son, Donald Brent Morgan, who said he saw Marshall put something in

An early morning delivery, Monday, of mortar ended just short of its goal when a wooden bridge spanning Left Beaver Creek at Hi Hat, collapsed, plunging a truck driven by James Robinson, of Prestonsburg, about 20 feet down to the water. The truck, owned by F.S. VanHoose Lumber Company landed on the driver's side, but Robinson is said to! ave suffered only minor injuries.

The four families whose members have been provided access to Ky 122 via the bridge for the past 20 years, can still reach the other side of the creek,

KET Hopes To Double Membership During Upcoming Telefund

KET embarks on its annual on-air fund-raising effort, TeleFund '84, March 3-18. While the campaign theme promises a lineup of stellar performances ("The Stars Shine Bright On Your Kentucky Network"), the purpose of the fund raiser is strictly down-to-earth, according to Membership Director Marilyn Hankins.

"Our goal is to double our support in the Friends of KET, currently 18,000 members strong, and to work toward replacing the $1 million in federal support KET has lost since 1981," says Hankins.

Hankins thinks the fund raiser also will point out the uniqueness of the Kentucky Network. "We're different in that most stations have three or four on-air fund raisers each year and we have only one. Our TeleFund also emphasizes a wealth of Kentucky talent with programs featuring Florence Henderson, Rosemary Clooney, the Everly Brothers, Ricky Skaggs, Loretta Lynn and Bill Monroe, and a play, 'The Gin Game,' that had its world premiere at Actors Theatre of Louisville.

"During TeleFund '84 we'll be offering special membership gifts such as the 1984 Kentucky Derby poster, and items in our Anniversary Auction to be held March 16 will have a definite Kentucky flavor such as a first edition of author James Still's 'River of Earth.'

Another source of pride for TeleFund '84, says Hankins, is its broad-based support throughout the state. "This year we have such groups as the Kentucky Federation of Women's Clubs, the Kentucky Broadcasters and Kentucky Press Associations and Kentucky Thoroughbred Owners and Breeders Inc., lending us a hand to help us reach our goals, as well as our Friends of KET and county coordinators who will be canvassing their local areas for support the last week of February."

"We're looking for continued support from the business community as well," says Hankins, "in the areas of major donations and challenge grants."

"KET is very dependent on private support to maintain quality evening and weekend programming," says Hankins, "and it has been this unique partnership between Kentuckians and the network that has enabled KET to maintain a tradition of excellence in its 15-year broadcast history. We hope everyone will join us for outstanding programming during TeleFund '84 and be a part of KET and its tradition of excellence in the next 15 years."

American Electric Elects Directors

James G. Saltz

William W. Zoellers

James G. Saltz, of Ashland, and William W. Zoellers, of Pikeville, were elected last week to the board of directors of the American Electric Power Service Corporation at its annual meeting in Columbus, Ohio.

Service Corporation at its annual meeting in Columbus, Ohio.
Saltz is vice president and Zoellers is Pikeville Division manager of Kentucky Power Company. The Service Corporation is the management, professional, and technical services subsidiary of American Electric Power Company, Inc., of which Kentucky Power is one of eight operating companies.

This brings to three the number of Kentucky Power representatives on the Services Corporation's board. Robert E. Matthews, president, is already a board member.

Saltz joined the AEP System in 1958 as an auditor in Roanoke, Virginia, and came to Kentucky Power in 1960 in the accounting department. He has been administrative assistant to the president, Ashland Division manager, and executive assistant, and was named vice president in July 1982.

Zoellers joined Kentucky Power in 1951 as an engineer trainee, and held a number of engineering posts before being named customer services manager in 1966. He was named Hazard Division manager in 1977 and Pikeville Division manager in 1978.

Stumbo To Serve On Nat'l Panel

House Speaker Bobby H. Richardson has appointed Rep. Greg Stumbo (D-Prestonsburg) to serve as Kentucky's representative on a national legislative panel.

Stumbo, a second-term legislator, will serve on the Commerce, Labor and Economic Development Committee organized under the auspices of the National Conference of State Legislatures (NCSL) Assembly on the Legislature.

"Greg's experience in our legislature, coupled with his interest in the areas falling within the committee's jurisdiction, will put him in good stead to prove a valuable addition to the national panel. I am confident he will represent the interest of Kentucky and represent them well," Richardson said in announcing the appointment.

Stumbo had previously served on the
NCSL Regulatory Improvement Committee.

In the state legislature, he serves on its Energy; Natural Resources and Environment; and Judicary-Civil Committees.

In addition, he serves on the Administrative Regulations Review Subcommittee.

Medical Seminar Series Continues

Dr. Nabil Basha

Prestonsburg Community College's medical seminar series will continue Feb. 28 with presentations by two well-known surgeons on the topic of cancer, its detection and treatment

Leading the seminar will be Dr. William B. Cook, chief of surgery at Highlands Regional Medical Center, and Dr. Nabil Basha, a surgeon in private practice who is associated with Highlands, Paintsville and Our Lady of the Way hospitals.

Dr. Cook is well-known for his work in the field of cancer. He has many papers, presentations and teaching appointments to his credit. After graduating from Tufts University School of Medicine in Boston, he did a stint in Korea, followed by a residency at Memorial Hospital for Cancer and Allied Diseases in New York. Dr. Cook is a clinical instructor for the Department of Community Medicine at the University of Kentucky. He has received the AMA Physicians Recognition award four times, the most recent being in 1981.

Dr. Basha is a graduate of Damascus University Medical School in Syria and completed an internship at Wheeling (W. Va.) Hospital and a surgical residency at Providence Hospital, Southfield, Michigan.

The seminar will offer the public an opportunity to learn and ask questions about cancer. To register for the seminar, call Continuing Education at Prestonsburg Community College at 886-3863, ext. 215.

The 'Broad Form' Deed

The injustice imposed on hundreds of Kentucky-mostly, Eastern Kentucky--landowners for almost a hundred years by the so-called "broad form" deed has finally so impinged itself on the consciences of the state's lawmakers that they have done something about it.

And congratulations for this apparent victory must go to two Floyd county legislators. It was Representative Greg Stumbo who introduced corrective legislation and led the House fight for it through three sessions of the General Assembly, and in the Senate it was Senator Benny Ray Bailey in the same role.

Few of us who recognized and opposed the violation of landowners' rights through the provisions of this old deed had any firm hope that corrective legislation had any real chance of success at the current legislative session. But it did, thanks to this legislative leadership and the support of their efforts by one or two organized groups and a limited number of

The new act awaiting Governor Collins' signature--and, almost certainly a test in the courts--is not intended to destroy the coal industry. It simply states that coal mining methods that were unknown at the time the deeds to the coal were executed cannot be used without the consent of the landowner. (Most responsible coal operators have in recent years satisfied owners of the land by paying them a royalty on strip-mined coal and by complying with environmental regulations.)

At least three other major coal-producing states--West Virginia, Tennessee and Pennsylvania--already have laws appying to the broad form deed that are similar to the one now belatedly adopted by Kentucky. And the consequences of the law in those states have not been destructive to the industry.

The Times has an idea that no sane resident of Eastern Kentucky, a region whose economy is inescapably bound to coal, wants to damage the industry. But the individual, the owner of the surface, has rights that cried out for recognition, and now, at long last, they are recognized.

Duff predicted voters would reject the Campbell and Duff said supporters would need to work hard to "sell" the tax between now and November. "If people could see what this would mean, say five years down the road, in the way of new and renovated buildings, they would be in favor of it," said Duff. "We need to make them aware of what it will mean. Then, if they want it, good; if not, it's their decision.

Campbell said the petition was not a reflection on the Board but a reaction to the idea of a tax, a reaction heightened by Gov. Martha Layne Collins' call, within days of the Board's decision, for increased state taxes to finance her education program. "The word 'tax' tears people all to pieces," he said.

Grigsby agreed. "I was glad to see it," he said of the governor's proposal, "but "It was being said prior to that that we wouldn't be getting any help from the state until next year. Governor Collins said she would not be putting on new taxes," the superintendent recalled. 'We felt like we were doing the right thing, that local residents might come through on a tax at this time.

In explanation of harsh criticism of Everett Akers, which was attributed to Grigsby in a news story published in the Ashland Daily-Independent last Saturday, the school official said he felt that a "personal attack" had been made on him. Grigsby reportedly described Akers, a former state representative, as "a political has-been, an unscrupulous person, and a slanderous individual." An outspoken critic of the school system, Akers was a leader of the petition drive.

Grigsby said Monday that the tax issue is too important to be decided on the basis of personal animosity. "I'm not angry at anybody," he said. "Derogatory language is out of place in an issue of this nature.

CARD OF THANKS

The family of Arnell Kidd takes this opportunity to thank everyone for their help upon the loss of our loved one. We thank those who sent food and flowers, those who prepared the grave, and the ministers of the Church of Christ, who so helped in preaching the word of God when we needed it. We deeply appreciate you all. Most of all, we thank God for you the good members of the Little Dove Church for letting us use the church in our time of sorrow. Also, thanks to the ministers of the Regular Baptist Church for their comforting words. We thank God for you good friends who gave so generously. We also want to thank the Hall Funeral Home for being so good and understanding.

Broad Form Deed Act Waits Signature of Gov. Collins

The broadform deed bill, a measure that has attracted the interest and support of eastern Kentuckians like few other bills this legislative session, was passed by the Senate last Friday without

House Bill 32, which restricts the ability of coal companies to strip mine coal without the landowner's permission, cleared the Senate by a 34-0 margin and now awaits the signature of Gov. Martha Layne Collins

Prestonsburg Rep. Greg Stumbo, sponsor of the bill, was "elated" by its passage and praised the role played by Senate colleague Benny Ray Bailey, who managed the bill in that chamber.

Much of the support for the measure, and for a similar bill that failed in the last legislative session, was organized here by the Kentucky Fair Tax Coalition, which is now focusing its attention on a bill that would tax unmined coal. Winning approval of that bill, HB 92, will likely prove an even greater challenge than passage of HB 32, said Billy Arms, a member of the Coalition, Monday

The lack of open Senate opposition to the broadform deed bill has led some supporters to conclude that its coal industry opponents are saving their energies for a court challenge. A 1974 law requiring coal operators to get permission from surface owners before applying for a mining permit was held unconstitutional by the Kentucky Court of Appeals the following year, the judges ruling that it violated valid contracts.

Supporters of the present bill predict it will survive a court challenge because of its focus on the intent of those signing the turn-of-the-century deeds. Under HB 32, mining methods not commonly in use at that time could not be used without the surface owner's consent unless there is clear evidence the signers of the deeds intended that such methods

While there was little debate about the bill on the Senate floor last week, coal industry officials criticized it as unjust and unnecessary. Bill Cryder, an attorney for Sierra Coal Co., predicted HB 32 would result in widespread land speculation by people wanting to use surface holdings to take advantage of coal companies.

generally mean simply that services will not be provided, there is at least one bill that may not be paid, and failure to pay it could scuttle the county's foundering solid waste system.

Of the $202,500 paid back to the bank last week, $52,500 had been borrowed to meet a bond payment on the solid waste system last October. That sum was repaid Friday. But it was paid with $52,500 set aside in the revenue-sharing account to meet the solid waste system's next bond payment in April

Last June, when the revenue-sharing budget was being prepared, state financial advisor Al Howell, who was then managing the county's fiscal affairs, estimated that funds allocated to Floyd county from the U.S. Treasury this year would amount to around $400,000, more than enough to allow the county to help out the shaky garbage system. In fact, over half the revenue-sharing budget was earmarked for Floyd County Solid Waste, Inc., the quasi-independent agency that runs the system.

When coal severance funds dwindled -from $511,000 last year to $107,00 this year-it came as no surprise. But the cut in revenue-sharing funds-which are distributed according to a formula which takes into account population, income and local tax effort-was an unexpected blow.

Federal officials first reckoned Floyd's revenue share at $301,000 and later-halfway through the fiscal year-revised it down to $178,243. The reason for the revision, the feds explained, was a clerical error made in 1980 which resulted in this county's being overpaid the next two years.

By drawing on its depleted revenuesharing account to help pay off its bank note last week, the fiscal court in effect paid Paul by robbing Peter. Peter will have to be paid back in April-with $52,500 in funds the county doesn't have.

almost superhuman self-control while I held center stage in such an act.

In those days when Dewey Lake was barely impounded we kept our flatbottom boat tied up where Stratton Branch runs into the lake. The 21/2-horsepower outboard motor we took home with us.

At the conclusion of one our jaunts on the brand-new lake the son had tied the boat to a small tree atop the steep bank and watched while I staggered the length of the rocking boat, carrying the motor. I finally stood on the flat space at the brow of the boat and raised a foot to step ashore.

But the youngster hadn't tied the boat snugly. As I stood with my right foot poised above solid ground and the left still waterborne, the boat, like a balky horse, shied backward the foot or so of slack rope. I did the well-known split and a moment later stood in water up to my withers, still holding the motor.

There stood I like bold Cortez when first he gazed on Darien. And that boya consummate actor, I declare to this day-cracked not a grin as I gained the mainland and squashed away, still hanging on to that precious motor, the while making several pointed comments about fate, fortune and my luck, in particular.

Only the other day I was reminded of the occasion when Lenna Moore was showing me the length of splinter that had been removed from his hand, and Jewel Fitzpatrick declared he saw termites and suggested we call Orkin.

blame for waste reported by state inspectors last year in the school transportation department, claimed some students are suspended without due process, complained of continuing textbook shortages, and sought a probe into the reasons that deteriorating buildings have been "ignored" for years.

Other questions put by the council: -Why is there apparently no systematic approach in the Floyd school district to ensure quality education? Why do practical arts courses take time that should be spent on "the basics"? Why are art and music units cut before coaches?

-Could the central office be better organized? Were school monies used for the campaign five years ago of Dr. James B. Graham when he was running for state auditor? In 1982, how did Supt. Grigsby's daughter come to charge gasoline to the Floyd Board of Education? What was the reason for the superintendent's lending a school bus engine to District 3 Magistrate Ed Caudill in October, 1982?

State Supt. McDonald said county school officials will be required to answer the council's questions, because "at every turn, when we have looked where (the council) told us to look, it has turned out to be true.

The "incompetence and neglect" of which the council accused Floyd school officials last June are a problem of attitude, not lack of money, Mrs. Hatfield said. "It will take an outside force to break this cycle and change old habits, she added.

Earlier, Sen. Nelson Allen, D-Ashland, chairman of the Senate Education Committee, asked the state board to support a bill to make local school officials 'more accountable." SB202 would require the state board to intervene in school districts that fail to meet the state's academic standards.

A new era in education has begun. A fresh and welcome breeze is blowing through the offices of the Kentucky Department of Education. Open meetings are being held at state level and it certainly is a refreshing change.

Superintendent Alice McDonald is to be applauded and thanked by the people all over the Commonwealth. If this is any indication of the direction we can expect education to take in the future, we are on the right course.

Citizens must help Superintendent McDonald, the board members and her staff continue in this direction. We must get involved with our children's education; join citizens groups and let our voices be heard.

Alice McDonald has given people in Floyd County a renewed vigor to continue our pursuit toward equality and excellence in education. She has kept her campaign promises and has shown us, through her open administration, that parents, citizens and administrators TOGETHER "can make a difference."

Burned Up

It burns me more than one way to think of the way the City Council is limiting five department runs.

The country people pay taxes and deserve to be treated equally. We spend our money in the city and if we work there we pay city taxes. The federal grants that the city gets for fire departments don't come only from city residents' taxes; they come from everyone, including us country folks. When the fire department needs volunteers they don't limit it to city residents only They've got several country boys on the list. I don't think they should be asked to fight for the city-people and then be turned down when they need help.

I think all the county people outside the city should get together and boycott the city. Show them what the county means to them.

City residents are welcome if they want to help us. We'd appreciate it. SUSIE (MORRISON) EMANUEL Rt. 1, Prestonsburg, Ky

Has Different Idea

Let's face the fact about the Prestonsburg Fire Department not going out in the county. First I would like to thank Mayor Cooley for the quote he made at the last Council meeting, where he stated the city benefited from the county. How true this is. Every time the city gets a federal grant, this is some of the county people's tax money, and the county boys do volunteer firefighting. Also the county people pay the occupational tax to work in the city, and most of all, what if the county people didn't take their business into their own home town. I think the members of the Council who want to draw a line between the city and county should stop and think that everyone can't live in the city; some people like living in the country, but I think if one life could be saved from a fire it would be a great honor.

A Beautiful Sight?

I want to thank two members of the City Council who showed interest in voting to let the Prestonsburg Fire Department continue to serve the county. These two were Ranier and Goebel. It's a beautiful sight to see all the city fire hydrants, setting out in the county just for looks.

I understand one member of the City Council is seriously thinking of being a candidate for a county office. Well, I think the county people can already see how this member feels toward the people in the county. I would also like to thank Mayor Cooley for stating that the city benefited from the county RANDY BURCHETT

Knox Co. Brothers Face Mine Charges

Two Knox county brothers were arrested Friday for operating underground mines without a mining permit, officials of the special investigative unit of the state Department for Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement an-

The brothers, Curtis Mills, Jr., and Paul S. Mills both of Flat Lick in Knox county, were charged with operating two illegal deep mines near Flat Lick. The mines were located on the property of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. C.A. Mills, Sr.

The mines had been under surveillance for several days when the arrests were made, investigators said. "Over the past year several hundred tons of coal, far in excess of the 250 tons allowed by state law, were removed from the site. We have traced some of the coal to a tipple in Tennessee," said Doug Shoulders, head of the investigative unit.

"Our investigations uncovered cancelled checks totaling more than $200,000 from the sale of coal mined at these sites," Shoulders said.

The brothers turned themselves in to state officials at the Barbourville courthouse. They were released on their own recognizance. Additional arrests in the case are expected to be made this week.

The arrests were the result of investigative work by Special Investigators Judge O. Sullivan and Tom Spellman.

Mining without a permit is a Class D felony and may result in a jail term of from one to five years or a fine of up to

Rock Fall Claims Miner at Justell

Arnell Kidd, 33, of Harold, died around 8:35 p.m. Tuesday, last week, in a rock fall in a deep mine at Justell.

Kidd was said to have worked only two days in the mine, which is operated by the Somerset Coal Co. A roof bolter, he was reportedly killed about 6000 feet underground when he walked under part of the mine roof that had not yet been supported.

It was the seventh Kentucky mine death this year and the second in four days. A Pike county miner was killed the previous Friday in a machinery acci-

Kidd was born Jan. 11, 1951, the son of Carmel and Draxie Elliott Kidd, of Printer. He also leaves a wife, Kathy Jean Collins Kidd; a daughter, Rosechelia Artina Kidd, at home; four brothers, Vincent Kidd, of Hammond, Ind., Ricky and Patrick Kidd, of Printer, and Granville Kidd, of Honaker; and three sisters, Diana and Noralene Howell, of Lake Stratton, Ind., and Christy Stewart, of Honaker.

Funeral services were held at 11 a.m. Saturday at the Little Dove Regular Baptist Church at Honaker, with Regular Baptist ministers officiating. Burial was in the Kidd family cemetery at Printer, under direction of the Hall Funeral Home.

Grant Funds Available To Rural Fire Depts.

More than $40,000 in grant funds are available to Kentucky's rural fire departments to help them improve their firefighting capabilities, state Forestry Director Donald A. Hamm has announced.

'These funds are available to communities with less than 10,000 inhabitants," he said. "Grants are awarded on a matching basis, with each dollar awarded being equally matched by local communities," Hamm explained.

Forestry officials said the grants were developed to help rural communities conduct fire protection programs and to help upgrade firefighting equipment or training. In 1982, the last year the grants were available, 112 rural fire departments received grants totaling $40,130.

Lack of Funds Cited As Work On Roads Asked

The fiscal court was peppered Friday with complaints about the state of the county roads. But citizens who told of ruts that can age a new car long before its time, ditchlines so full of mud they serve no purpose, and children trudging through mud to get to school were told that little could be done until the county has more money.

The coal slump, and the resulting falloff in coal severance taxes, was blamed for the lack of road funds and County Attorney Arnold Turner, Jr. unleashed a bitter attack on the 1980 law that altered the formula by which severance tax receipts are distributed among the counties.

John and Helen Newsome, who complained of coal sludge fouling their Clear Creek road, got a promise from Judge-Executive John M. Stumbo and District 3 Magistrate Ed Caudill that they would inspect the problem and try to persuade officials of the Turner Elkhorn Mining Co., which operates a nearby tipple, to correct it.

But delegations led by Martha Garrison, of Calf Creek, and Guy W. Preston, of Bear Hollow, were told that little could be done for them without more road workers and the means to pay them. The county currently employs only one grader operator for each magisterial district.

County Attorney Turner accused former Gov. John Y. Brown, Jr. of cynically manipulating the coal severance tax formula in 1980 to ensure that coal counties, not the state, bore the brunt of the economic recession. Between the 1982-'83 and 1983-'84 budget years, coal severance taxes returned to this county fell from $511,309 to $106,751. "I feel that the Brown administration saw the hard times coming. They took money out of the counties' pockets to put it in their own pockets. They absolutely gutted the coal-producing counties," he said.

Under the 1980 formula, which advocates said would see much more of the tax revenue returned to the counties in the long run, the first $177 million raised in severence taxes goes to the state;

half of any monies collected over and above that is returned to counties producing coal or through which coal is transported.

The county will not pay for last

November's general election until it is resolved which of two claimants should be paid for the service. Mrs. Ruth DeRossett said her Coal Bit Company had a contract with the county to store, transport and program voting machines for $7240. But a Lexington firm, Harp Enterprises, has submitted a $16,400 bill for setting up the machines. Harp claimed former County Clerk Thomas Lafferty, Jr. hired them to do the work but Lafferty denied this, the court was told.

The court agreed to file applications for Economic Development Administration funds to extend water and sewer lines from Prestonsburg to a planned shopping center and motel on U.S. 23 at Katy Friend and for a community Development Block Grant to renew and extend the Mud Creek water system. Also authorized was a bid advertisement for water lines for the Ford Gap area.

A contract for health insurance for county employees was renewed with the Hatton and Allen Insurance Agency, although magistrates warned Allen they might cancel the contract if he went ahead with a threatened rate hike. Blue Cross-Blue Shield also competed for the contract.

The court heard a complaint from Sam Hale that the county had not properly closed out a landfill on his Blue River property and a request by Sheriff Henry Hale for funds to assign a separate radio frequency to sheriff's department vehicles. The court authorized the radio hook-up but provided no funds for the work.

Hale complained angrily that, since responsibility for collecting auto taxes was transferred from his to the county clerk's office, he has insufficient revenues to run his department.

Miss Blevins Named USSAA Award Winner

The United States Achievement Academy announced today that Carla Diane Blevins has been named a 1984 United States National Award winner in Student Council.

Miss Blevins, who attends Johnson Central High was nominated for this National Award by Wava Lemaster, English teacher and student council leader at the school. Her biography and photograph will appear in the United States Achievement Academy Official Yearbook, published nationally.

The Academy selects USAA winners, upon the exclusive recommendation of teachers, coaches, counselors or other school sponsors and upon the Standards of Selection set forth by the Academy. The criteria for selection are a student's academic performance, interest and aptitude, leadership qualities, responsibility, enthusiasm, motivation to learn and improve, citizenship, attitude and cooperative spirit, dependability, and recommendation from a teacher or dimentary.

Official Whose Trial Scheduled Sued for $50,000

While Trial Commissioner Thomas Lafferty, Sr., 51, is docketed to appear in district court tomorrow (Thursday) to face charges that he assaulted and harassed a news reporter last March, postponement of the case appears likely.

The special prosecutor assigned to the case did not receive notification of the trial date until two days beforehand and apparently no special judge has yet been assigned to try the case.

The charges stem from an alleged altercation between Lafferty, who was then deputy judge-executive, and Ralph Dunlop, of the Louisville Courier-Journal's Hazard office, in the court-house parking lot here.

Both District Judge Harold Stumbo and County Attorney Arnold Turner, Jr. have declined to take part in the trial, the judge because of his official relationship with Lafferty, Turner because he may be called as a witness.

Johnson County Attorney J. Scott Preston, who has been appointed special prosecutor in the case, said he received a letter from the Floyd County Attorney's office only Tuesday informing him of Thursday's trial. Neither the prosecutor, the defendant, nor Judge Stumbo had been notified Tuesday of the appointment of a trial judge.

Meanwhile, Dunlop last week filed a $50,000 lawsuit against Lafferty in Floyd Circuit Court. The suit claims that Dunlop was talking to the late Jerry Lafferty, Jr., Thomas Lafferty's brother and Floyd judge-executive at the time, when Thomas Lafferty approached and began to "raise his voice, scream, curse and threaten" him. Lafferty "forcefully began to strike and beat" the reporter, "while continuing to curse," the suit alleges.

Dunlop, who was working on a story about Floyd county's financial affairs, alleges the assault was designed to intimidate him and prevent him from carrying out his function as a reporter.

In the suit, the journalist asks for $25,000 in compensatory damages—$12,000 for his injuries, $13,000 for damage to his reputation—and $25,000 in punitive damages.

(Claims made in lawsuits represent only one side of the issue in dispute.)

New Book Features Kentucky Stories

A moonshine making college professor, a pet rattlesnake named "Patton", and a motorcycle riding minister are among the colorful characters in FIRE ON THE MOUNTAIN, a short story collection by Berea author Garry Barker.

Reviewers have praised the book's authentic dialect and lean, perceptive storytelling, the uproarious humor and moving, bittersweet emotions. Barker, a 9th generation Eastern Kentuckian, writes in a bare, crisp style not unlike the direct and uncluttered speaking patterns of rural people, and he creates characters based on real life.

Best selling novelist Stephen Birmingham called FIRE ON THE MOUNTAIN "... a joy—the kind of stories one returns to again and again." Dr. W. Gordon Ross, in his review for The Berea Citizen, praised the author's understated, literary style, with particular admiration for the accurate descriptions of mountain people and their emotions.

"The Hunters", the story of a lifelong hunter trying to teach his teenage son to share his joy, is also the fiction feature in the Fall, 1983, issue of Delta Scene magazine, published by Delta State University in Cleveland, Mississippi.

Garry Barker grew up in Elliott and Fleming counties in Eastern Kentucky, graduated from Berea College in 1965, and worked as a craft administrator in North Carolina and Kentucky. He has written for Cavalier, Grit, Chevron USA, Michigan Living, and many other national magazines, and has contributed essays on Appalachia to the Louisville Courier-Journal and Southern Expo-

HOMEMAKERS MEETING

The Abbott Homemakers held their monthly meeting Tuesday evening, Feb. 14 in the church annex building, with Mrs. Sharon Sparks, president, in charge. The devotionals, given by Mrs. Ruby Frasure, were entitled, "Look on the Bright Side."

The lesson, given by Mrs. Frances Pitts and Mrs. Sharon Sparr, was on "tennerife," better known as "chicken scratching." Each member is to finish the designs started during this meeting, by the club's next meeting date.

Two new members, Mrs. Kathy Marshall and Mrs. Bessie Marshall, were welcomed.

The hostesses, Mrs. Cynthia Frasure and Mrs. Ruby Frasure, served Valentine cake and other refreshments to members, Mesdames Frances Pitts, Eukie Merritt, Grace Conley, Christine Ross, Mary Creed, Grace Greer, Joyce Campbell, Sharon Fugate, Mary Lynn Crisp, Kathy Marshall, Bessie Marshall, Sharon Sparr, and Mary Ann Adkins, and guests, Melissa Justice and Deanne Campbell.

It was announced that members-atlarge, recruited by Mrs. Sharon Sparr, were Mrs. Kathryn Poe, Mrs. Lillie Parker and Mrs. Susie Poe, and those recruited by Mrs. Ethel Ratliff were Mrs. Phyllis Lenox and Mrs. Sonja Ratliff.

The next meeting will be held March 13, with Mrs. Eukie Merritt and Mrs. Sharon Sparr as co-hostesses.

Income Averaging Can Save Dollars

Many taxpayers whose incomes increased substantially in 1983 can save tax when filing their federal tax returns by using the income averaging method to compute tax, the Internal Revenue Service said.

Under the income averaging method, part of an unusually large amount of taxable income is taxed at a lower rate, according to the IRS.

Taxpayers must have been U.S. citizens or residents for at least the last five tax years to qualify. Taxpayers usually must have provided more than 50 percent of their own support during the four years prior to 1983 and have an averageable income of more than $3,000 to be eligible for income averaging, the IRS said. The easiest way to determine averageable income is to complete Schedule G, "Income Averaging."

Complete instructions on how to compute the tax by income averaging appear in IRS Publication 506, "Income Averaging." Schedule G and Publication 506 are available free from the IRS and can be ordered by using the handy form in the tax forms package, or by writing the IRS at P.O. Box 6900, Florence, Ky. 41042.

Taxpayers who use the income averaging method must have copies of their tax returns for the four years prior to 1983, the IRS noted.

Copies of prior year tax returns can be ordered by completing Form 4506, "Request for Copy of Tax Form or Individual Income Tax Account Information," available by calling or writing the IRS.

Taxpayers will be charged $5 per return for copies of prior year tax returns. Payment must accompany the order. Allow at least 45 days for receipt.

Advises Feed Grain Growers To Sign Up For '84 Program

Putting 10 percent of your feed grain base in the 1984 acreage con. ervation reserve is a small premium for the price and income protection you get from the feed grain program," according to J.P. Hill, chairperson of the Floyd County ASC Committee.

Sign-up for the 1984 program is currently underway at the local Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service offices.

In addition to the reduction in risks, corn producers who participate in the program can expect to make more money per acre than nonparticipants, if average farm prices are less than $3.00 per bushel. "In fact, if prices average $2.75 a bushel, the farmer who participates in the program should realize about $25.00 more per acre than the average non-participant," Mrs. Hill said.

Farmers who plant no more than 90 percent of their feed grain base are eligible for federal target prices of $3.03 per bushel for corn. They are also eligible for price support loans at $2.55 per bushel.

"We are encouraging program participants to place their more erosive eligible cropland in the acreage conservation reserve and by so doing, feed grain producers can control over-supply situations and at the same time, qualify for special 90-percent cost-sharing for long-term cover crops or forestation on their idled acres."

Mr. Hill advised feed grain growers to study the benefits of participating in the 1984 acreage reduction program and take advantage of the unique opportunity to contribute to efforts to maintain a reasonable level of carryover stocks by placing 10 percent of their base in the acreage conservation reserve. The program sign up period closes February 24.

"Whatever your advice, make it brief."

CARD OF THANKS

For Circuit Court CLERK Of Floyd County

Very respectfully,

YOU SHOULD VOTE FOR ME FOR CLERK OF THE FLOYD CIRCUIT COURT: | When the tocsin of war was sounded, and Kentucky and Floyd county boys were called, I was them. I went, ready and willing to go across at the tap of the drum and the sound of martial music. Your boys went along—some never came back—some tattered and torn and the sound of martial music. I have never fully recovered from the financial loss. I feel that there the start in the line was wised out. That a good position and was getting a line start in the. This was wised out. That it is the line in no money more than a living. If my past life has been such as to have gained friends, rest assured that when elected to this office, it will be conducted in a business way accomby friendship and courtesy, and not for the sake of the emoluments of the office, but to lighten your buildens where I can do so. I will appreciate your support.

Dr. Lafferty To Head New Center

From the day when Mark Lafferty, Prestonsburg native, entered medical school at the University of Kentucky his interest has centered on emergency medicine.

Next month, Dr. Mark Lafferty will open in Lexington, S.C. his brand-new Emergency Medical Center which, he says, will be dedicated to the work of "healing the sick at all hours."

Relatively new, such centers have had a phenomenal growth across the country. The availability of trained professionals, the accessibility of such centers and the relatively low cost involved account for much of their popularity.

"A majority of the people want care when they want it," Dr. Lafferty says, commenting on the popularity of these centers. "They get sick and can't get to a family doctor or to a hospital emergency room. We're here for them."

Lafferty's new center will be open seven days a week, and the public is promised that no patient will have to wait longer than 30 minutes to get attention. His center will have two fulltime physicians, one or two physicians on parttime duty; nurses, X-ray technicians and a modern laboratory.

The son of James and Doris Spradlin Lafferty, Dr. Lafferty, now 29, attended Prestonsburg schools before entering medical school. After receiving his M.D. degree he entered general surgery and did his residency at Richland Memorial Hospital, Columbia, South Carolina.

Barrow Show Slated March 12 in Linville

With the Louisville Barrow Show fast approaching, Manager Dennis O. Liptrap has confirmed that deadline for entries event is February 25. The show will be held at the Kentucky Fair and Exposition Center, Broadbent Arena, March 12-13. Premium catalogs are now available.

This year marks the silver anniversary of the Louisville Barrow Show. Over the 25 years, the event has become a nationally-respected showcase for competition among top swine producers in the United States. A major Barrow Show, Carcass Contest, Purebred Classes for eight breeds of swine, a Grand Champion Barrow Drive and Sale of Champions will highlight 1984 Louisville Barrow Show activities.

Youth activities have also become a major feature at the Barrow Show, according to Dr. Liptrap. As the show has matured during its 25-year history, management has recognized the need to include young people in meaningful competition in order to provide them with an arena for training in the industry. The upcoming event will, as a result, include the National Junior Showmanship Contest, National Junior Barrow Show and a Junior Judging Contest. Young people between the ages of 9 and 18 will compete. More than $2,000 in prizes and scholarships will be awarded to young people, in addition to major purses which will be won by established breeders in the open competitions. Entry deadline for the Showmanship and Junior Barrow Show is February 25. No formal entry is necessary for the Juding Contest.

Information for both breeders who wish to exhibit and to others who wish to attend the Louisville Barrow Show can be obtained from: Dr. Dennis Liptrap, Animal Science Bldg., South, University of Kentucky, Lexington, Ky. 40546, Phone: 606-257-7535.

'Ingrid' To Be Seen On KET, March 7

"Ingrid," a moving documentary about one of the screen's most extraordinary actresses, will be aired during KET TeleFund '84, on Wednesday, March 7, at 9:00 p.m.

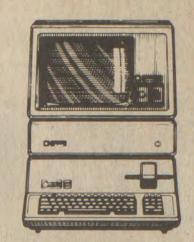

Ingrid Bergman's screen quality was one of complexity and elusiveness, reinforced in each film with brilliant, critically-acclaimed performances, such as "Intermezzo," which made her a star. "Notorious," "Casablanca" and "Anastasia" are shown, and "Gaslight," for which she won an Academy Award in 1944. "Ingrid" presents an overview of Bergman's career, with an abundance of film clips. Also shown are scenes from her private life. As a result of her affair with film director Roberto Rossellini, Bergman was viciously denounced on the floor of the U.S. Senate and ostracized by Hollywood. Seven years passed before Hollywood accepted her back, and she rose to greater heights of public acceptance and acclaim.

Also on March 7, preceding "Ingrid" at 8:00 p.m., a "National Geographic Special," "Return to Everest," will be aired as part of KET TeleFund '84. Richard Kelly narrates the accomplishments of Sir Edmound Hillary, who conquered Mount Everest 30 years ago and since has spent much of his life serving the people who live in the shadow of the great mountain. Hillary's accomplishments on and off the mountain and his relationships with the Sherpas are recounted.

"Ingrid" is produced by Wombat Productions; "Return to Everest" is produced by the National Geographic Society and WQED/Pittsburgh.

Addresses D.A.R. Chapter

Charles C. Wells, Paintsville businessman and genealogist, was the guestspeaker for the meeting held last Tuesday afternoon by John Graham Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution at the Emma Wells May Cultural Center. Mr. Wells' book, entitled "Annals of Floyd County, 1800-1826," was recently published, and may be purchased locally.

The regent, Mrs. Ray Brackett, presided at the meeting. Mrs. Opal S. May, Chaplain, conducted the ritualistic service. The National Defense program, "Americanism is Our Responsibility," was given by Mrs. James Goble.

The chapter voted to send a monetary gift to Duncan Tavern, Paris, Ky., in memory of the late Mrs. W. Barlow, a D.A.R. member, who served as recording secretary of the Kentucky Board of Management, and did much work for Duncan Tavern. Mrs. Barlow passed away in January.

Mrs. Edith James reminded members that she would need their assistance with the planning of the Kentucky Highlands Folk Festival, to be held this fall, and that meetings for the formulation of festival plans are now being

The regent announced that John Graham Chapter plans participation in the National D.A.R. Centennial, to be held in 1990.

Mrs. Brackett distributed copies of programs for the conference of the Kentucky Society, D.A.R., to be held at the Marriott Hotel, Lexington, March 6-8, and urged members to attend. Delegates and alternates elected to this conference are Mrs. Frances Brackett, regent; Mrs. Norma Stepp, secretary, Mesdames Opal May, Olga Preston, Mae Kendrick and Margaret Alley.

Elected as an alternate to represent the chapter at the 93rd NSDAR National Convention, in Washington, D.C., April 15, was Mrs. Margaret D. Collins, who will be accompanied by her aunt, Mrs. Sally Humphreys, a member of this chapter, who now resides in Florida.

The leader, Mrs. Eleaner Horn, presented the guestspeaker, her son-inlaw, Charles C. Wells, of Paintsville.

The hostess, Mrs. Virginia Goble, was assisted by Mrs. Mae Kendrick in serving refreshments in keeping with the Valentine season to guests, Charles C. Wells, of Paintsville, and Mrs. Peachie Howard, of Prestonsburg, and members, Mesdames Frances Brackett, Virginia Goble, Eleanor Horn, Norma Stepp, Olga Preston, Opal May, Edith James, and Mae Kendrick.

Martin Spelling Bee Finalists

Dawn Rowe

John Wohlford

Participating in a spelling match is an honor, contenders were told in the Martin Elementary spelling arena. Demonstrating that spelling is not an archaic skill, eleven students, ranging from grades four through eight, vied for the school championship in a spirited contest of fifty-one rounds. In the final stage, correctly spelled words bounced back and forth between the two remaining contestants until John Wohlford tripped on the word 'videotape.' Dawn Rowe then spelled both 'videotape' and 'newscast' to become the 1984 Martin Elementary Spelling Champion.

Other contestants and their misspelled words were: Christy Kidd, 'carrying'; Melissa Howard, 'annoy'; William Wohlford, 'across'; Chris Kidd, 'approach'; Melanie Stokley, 'traffic'; Chuck Lafferty, 'you'd'; Ann Castle, 'Ave.';

Beverly Conley, 'grinned'; and Reva Hale, 'windy.'

The eighth-grader spelling champion, Dawn Rowe, is the daughter of James and Judy Rowe, of Martin, and will represent the Martin Elementary School in the county spelling match to be held later this month. The runner-up, seventh grader John Wohlford, is the son of John and Rose Wohlford, also of Martin.

The spelling match was conducted by reading teachers Virginia Martin,

DENTAL TIPS

Dr. H.G. Salisbury RICHMOND PLAZA, PRESTONSBURG PHONE 886-2676

WATCH FOR THESE SYMPTOMS

Q. What are the symptoms of periodontal disease?

A. Periodontal disease has four main stages of progression. Stage #1—plaque and calculus accumulate, causing inflammation at the gum line. Stage #2—the inflammation or irritation causes gums to swell and bleed easily. Either of these first two states is a "red alert" that something is not right; it's time to see your dentist.

If you ignore these, Stage #3 is the heavy build-up of calculus and plaque. Gums recede around the teeth still further, periodontal pockets form between gums and teeth, and the disease infects the bone. This is called "periondontosis." Stage #4 (pyorrhea) occurs when most of the bone support for the teeth is destroyed and the remaining teeth fall out or must be extracted.

NOTICE

The City of Prestonsburg is considering implementing an out-of-town fire subscription service for residents of the county within five (5) road miles of the main fire station in Prestonsburg. This service means that county residents would pay a set fee bi-annually for fire protection from the City of Prestonsburg, with the city mini-pumper. This, of course would lower the fire insurance rates of the subscribers. If you are interested in subscribing to this proposed service, please fill out the form below and mail it to the City Administrator, P.O. Box 31, Prestonsburg, Ky. 41653 by March 7, 1984.

Betsy Layne Ups Record To 22-4

(Stats by Maleta Campbell) Seeing action last Tuesday and Friday nights, the Betsy Layne Bobcats defeated McDowell and Pikeville to bring their record to 22-4, best of all county teams.

Levi Hamilton was Betsy Layne's high scorer in the Bobcats' 70-42 defeat of McDowell, Tuesday with 13 points. He was followed closely by Chris Conn and Brett Meade, both with 12. Jeff Campbell and Duran Hall had 10 each, Dwayne Kidd 4, Lester Newsome 3, and Jimmy Parsons, Patrick McGarey and Darrin Daniels with 2 each.

For the McDowell Daredevils Jimmy Jones hit for 11 points, Tim Newsome and Doug Hall 8 each, Bill England 4, Kip Kidd 3, and David Pack and Robin Tackett 2 each.

Playing at Pikeville Friday night. the Bobcats pulled out a tough win, downing Pikeville's Panthers, 57-55. Betsy Layne's Levi Hamilton was high scorer with 18, Jeff Campbell had 17. Jimmy Parsons 8, Dural Hall and Brett Meade 5 each, and Dwayne Kidd 4.

For Pikeville it was Mark Stumbo with 20, Butch Davis 18, Matt Coleman 16 and Jeff Akers 1

The win at Pikeville was the 200th for the Bobcats' highly successful coach Junior Newsome and his players honored him on the occasion with a pla-

To Daytona Win Calling his Hardees-sponsored

Yarborough Powers

Ranier-Owned Car

Chevy "the most dominating car I've ever had," Cale Yarborough found himself for the fourth time in the winner's circle of the prestigious Daytona

The car, owned by Prestonsburg native Harry Hale Ranier and Central Kentuckian J. T. Lundy, ran exceptionally strong the entire race thanks to a superior engine courtesy of crew chief Waddell Wilson, a legend in NASCAR circles.

Although Owensboro resident Darrell Waltrip led the race as the white flag fell for the final lap, Yarborough's last-lap pass of Waltrip was predictable-actually inevitable considering the awesome power of the Hardee's Chevy. "A sitting duck," Yarborough said of Waltrip.

"I knew what would happen," said Waltrip. "I knew I couldn't pass Cale from behind (which is why Waltrip didn't try to get out of the lead position). If I'm going to get smoked off, I'm going to be in front when it hap-

Referring to the superiority of his car, Yarborough said, "I just could run 'em down at any time. And that's very unusual at a place like this.'

Yarborough's dominance at Daytona was reflected in the stats which saw him lead 11 different times and a total of 89 of the 200 laps (next best was Waltrip, who led only 39-and most of those simply because Yarborough chose to remain behind him).

From the 162nd lap until the 200th, Waltrip led. But when the track went green after the final caution of the day on the 183rd lap, Yarborough was right on his bumper. Given the strength of the car, did Yarborough consider blowing past Waltrip to see if he could run away from the entire field, which is virtually unprecedented at Daytona?

"It was a temptation," Yarborough said. "On the other hand, I felt like it was a sure thing being in second. A bird in the hand is worth two in the

Allen Central Loses To Johnson Central

Although Johnson Central won, 71-64, over Allen Central, the Rebels made them earn every point in a well-matched game. After being tied after the first quarter of play, Johnson Central pulled ahead at halftime, 36-31, only to have Allen Central come on strong in the third quarter, outscoring JCHS, 18-10, and leading by as many as seven points.

Harry Meek and Roger Fairchild zeroed in for Johnson Central in the fourth quarter to tie the game, 50-50, with six minutes to go. Game's end saw the Eagles winning by seven-point margin over a tough team of Rebels.

Harry Meek led both teams in scoring with 24 points, and Dale Pack led the Rebels with 18. Also scoring for Allen Central were Tim Lawson, 14; Craig Hall, 12; Fred Ridener, and Larry Gibson, 10 points each. For Johnson Central, Morris Hall had 15 points, Roger Fairchild, Les Trimble, each 12, and Mike Hall, 8.

Fest Slated in May

A committee representing Floyd, Johnson, Pike and Magoffin counties met this week at Martin to plan activities for the First annual Admiral Dewey Boat Parade and Festival.

The festival will be held at Jenny Wiley State Park, Friday, Saturday and Sunday, May 18, 19, and 20.

A giant parade of boats of all kinds will begin at Terry boat dock and proceed to the state boat dock near May Lodge. In addition to the boat parade, which will be held on Sunday, races featuring all classes of boats will be held Saturday. Exhibitions of skiing will also be a part of the Saturday program. A special blessing of boats will take place

Open house will be held by all the houseboat owners at the state dock and the public is invited to inspect the boats. Besides the water activities, there will be a large boat show featuring dealers and manufacturers from the Eastern Kentucky and Lexington areas. New boats, motors and trailers will be on exhibit. Travel trailers, campers, and vans will also be displayed.

Fishing exhibits and contests, archery demonstrations and old-fashioned firearms will be a part of the festival. There will be special entertainment each day, and contests and concerts by various groups will enliven the three-day

Besides all of the above, there will be craft booths and flea market stalls throughout the grounds. Antique cars of all kinds will also be on display.

The public is, of course, invited. For additional information contact Mike Sanders or Rodney Hutchinson at P.O. Box 1119, Martin, Kentucky 41649 or call

Refund Discounting: A Taxpayer Rip-Off

Each year during tax filing season, there are individuals, at various locations throughout the state, who buy income tax refunds. These individuals are called "refund discounters" or "refund buyers" and they offer quick cash in return for the taxpayer assigning his refund to them. This may sound like a good deal, but the terms are stiff, and there are other adverse consequences for the taxpayer who deals with a refund discounter

Generally, this is the way the transaction works: A taxpayer whose tax return shows that he is entitled to a refund of say, $300 would have to wait six to eight weeks to get his refund, depending on when he flies his return with the IRS. So. instead of waiting, he sells his refund to a discounter for as little as $180 cash on

As part of this deal the address at the top of the taxpayer's return is changed so that the refund check will go directly to the buyer. Also, the taxpayer usually gives the discounter a power of attorney to cash the check, or simply signs it over after the discounter receives it.

The difference between the amount of the refund, in this case $300, and the amount the discounter paid for it, $180, is all profit for the discounter. Discount rates vary among those who buy refunds, but 40% to 50% is not unusual. This is a very steep rate to pay for not waiting the few weeks it takes to get the full amount of refund.

Not only does the taxpayer pay a stiff price for selling his refund, but there are adverse consequences from changing the address on the return. Once the address is changed, all further correspondence from the IRS, including error or deficiency notices, examination appointment letters, etc., are sent to the discounter's address. Often this kind of corrspondence is not forwarded to the taxpayer, and he is often unaware of any action until IRS Collection Division tracks him down. If the discounter falsely alters the original return, the taxpayer is fully liable for any subsequent deficiency in tax.

Taxpayers should be alert to the potential problems that they face when they sell their refunds. The quick cash may result in tax problems later.

The Good News Report

By THOMAS W. PAUKEN Director of ACTION

In California, a juvenile who has been involved in delinquency or crime and ends up in a court room is frequently remanded to the California Youth Authority (CYA). The Authority's purpose is to try, through education, training and firm guidance, to turn the offender around before he or she crosses over into becoming a hardened criminal.

The methods for achieving this are often diverse and inventive, such as a one-on-one relationship between the young person and a member of the law profession who volunteers his time to counsel and befriend the juvenile. Whatever the method, an effective treatment program is CYA's goal.

In seeking ways and means to bring a positive influence to change a negative outlook, ACTION's Foster Grandparent Program has brought a rich source of talent to CYA. Many older citizens have a great affinity for young people, a way of getting through to them that others don't have. Conversely, young people often are more open to listening to the elderly; the chemistry is there. With 73-year-old Mrs. Lu Henderson, it is there in a way both remarkable and unique. "Grandma Lu", as she is known by her students, had never taught a day of school in her life, but as a Foster Grandparent interested in the CYA program in Stockton, she thought she'd like to give it a try. Her nephew, a teacher, supplied her with some learning materials and she sat down to it. That was three years ago.

Some of her pupils were illiterate, unable to read or write. Others had given up hope of ever making it, and still others didn't give a damn. All were juvenile criminals on their way to nowhere, with a tough "who cares?" attitude. Grandma Lu not only showed them that she cared, she also taught them how to care about living, how to face a challenge and not run from it.

When Robin first sat down with Grandma Lu, he was reading at a second grade level. Three months later he' wrote his first letter home. Eight months after that, he earned his General Equivalency Diploma and also his parole.

Anthony had no idea of his capabilities or talents until Grandma Lu opened the world of books to him. Among the pupils he became known as "the smart one."

Grandma Lu's teaching methods and results have been so successful that a CYA psychiatrist has recommended that juveniles considered by trained educators to be "beyond help" be turned over to her care. In her ability to get behind the exterior of the delinquent, she has aided, encouraged and stimulated her pupils so that often in less than a year, they have earned high school equivalency diplomas. Grandma Lu has literally turned the world right side up for more than a score of young people who came to her filled with suspicion and distrust, and after being her students for a while, took heart and inspiration from her caring and guidance.

Consumer Alert

DISABILITY INCOME INSURANCE

"If you are younger than 65, the odds of your having a disability lasting three months or longer are greater than your odds of death," says Attorney General David L. Armstrong. Approximately 80% of wage earners have some type of disability income protection, usually through their place of employment. Many times the coverage is short-term with benefits payable for two years or less. About 20% of those under 65 have long-term disability insurance.

The value of a disability income policy is based on the company's promise to pay the policy holder in case of lost in-come resulting from injury or illness. If considering this type of insurance, check with several different companies to compare benefits, prices and restric-

Ask the following questions: How much? It is impossible to buy a policy that pays as much as or more than gross income. In most cases, a company will not pay beyond 65 to 85% of gross income. Your payment to the company, or premium, is in direct proportion to the amount of the benefit yielded by the policy. Benefits received from disability insurance are usually not affected by any benefits received from other private or public disability programs, such as Social Security. Some policies provide a specified level of income from the policy and Social Security combined.

How soon? Most companies will begin paying benefits after 30 days, 60 days, 90 days, six months or 12 months, whichever you choose. The longer you are willing to wait, the lower the premium.

How long? The benefit period determines how long the benefits continue. This period is chosen by the consumer. Short periods will save expense, but may leave open the possibility of a long-term loss of income. Benefits exceeding age 65 usually make a policy prohibitively expensive.

Under what circumstances? Every disability income policy contains its own definition of "disabled." It is the policy's written definition, not any phrasing of it by a salesperson, that determines what benefits will or will not be paid. Insist on reading a sample policy before committing yourself.

Before buying this, or any type or insurance, check to see that the company is financially sound. Best's Insurance Reports, published annually by the A.M. Best Company, is a good source of information. This reference book is available in most public libraries.

"Investigate and compare before making a decision. Pay close attention to provisions dealing with rehabilitation, partial disability, and exclusion clauses," advises Attorney General Armstrong.

To register a consumer complaint, contact the Office of The Attorney General, Consumer Protection Division, 209 St. Clair Street, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601-1875, or call the Consumer Hotline toll-free at 1-800-432-9257.

Miss Burke Returns

From Study in England

Jennifer Burke, a junior at Centre College, participated in the college's offcampus program in England.

Miss Burke is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Burke, of Prestonsburg. At Centre, she is a member of the Delta Delta Delta sorority.

The college's off-campus program in England was led by Paul Cantrell, professor of English at Centre. Students in the program participated in two courses while in England: medieval literary history, and an independent study. The first course required the students to keep a journal while visiting Chester, Leicester, Salisbury and London.

The group left Jan. 5, and was set to return last Tuesday, Feb. 6.

During the six-week winter term, Centre students and faculty members have also traveled to France, the Bahamas and Denmark as part of off-campus

The college's off-campus programs are designed to give students the opportunity to gain knowledge and personal experience outside the classroom.

Michael Jackson's night

By Andy Noble

Just as he dominated the recent American Music Awards, Michael Jackson is expected to be the preeminent personality at the 26th annual Grammy Awards, airing Tuesday, Feb. 28 on CBS.

Jackson, the corkscrew-legged, 25-year-old superstar is unquestionably the most popular entertainer today in the world. Jackson received a record total of 12 Grammy nominations and his LP, "Thriller" has sold 23 million copies, which makes it the biggest selling solo LP of all time. His singles, "Thriller" and "Say Say Say," a duet with Paul McCartney, are the latest in a string of top-10 smashes. He is writing his smashes. He is writing his memoirs with Jacqueline Onassis as his editor and he will star in a new film version of "Peter Pan" directed by Steven Spielberg.

"Thriller" is responsible for 11 of Jackson's nominations, including Record of the Year ("Beat It"), New Song the Year ("Beat It") and Album of the Year ("Thriller"). In the prestigious Album of the Year category, "Thriller" faces formidable competition: Billy Joel's "An Innocent Man," the "Flashdance" soundtrack, David Bowie's "Let's Dance" and the Police's "Synchronicity."

'Thriller' also generated nominations for Producer of the Year (Jackson and Quincy Jones); Best Pop Vocal Performance, Male ("Billie Jean"); Best Rhythm and Blues Vocal Performance, Male ("Billie Jean"); three for Best New Rhythm and Blues song ("Billie Jean," "P.Y.T.," "Wanna Be Startin' Somethin' "); Best Pop Vocal Performance, duo or group ("The Girl Is Mine, with Paul McCartney) and "Best Engineered Recording. Jackson's twelfth nomination is for Best Recording for Children, for the "ET" album, which he narrated.

Jackson who is considered the frontrunner in eight categories. If he wins all eight, it would give him the biggest one-year sweep in the history of the Grammys. The current record is five, shared by Henry Mancini (1961), Roger Miller (1964, 1965), Paul Simon (1970), Stevie Wonder (1974, 1975, 1976), Christopher Cross (1980) and Quincy Jones (1981). Jackson's Ione previous Grammy was for the 1979 single, "Don't Stop Till You Get

However, Jackson's megabuck video "Thriller" wasn't nominated for Best Video because it wasn't commercially released by the eligibility cutoff date. "Thriller," however may be nominated for a "Best Short Subject" Oscar.

In his latest film, "Unfaithfully Yours," Dudley Moore plays an orchestra leader, the same profession he had in his first film, "Foul Play." But this orchestra leader, unlike the gigolo of "Foul Play." is a jealous husband, a comedic Othello who believes his wife may be cheating on him. With nymphet of a wife (Nastassja Kinski), most men might not need an lago to spur them on to these fits of jealousy.

"Unfaithfully Yours" is a remake of a 1948 film written remake of a 1948 film written and directed by Preston Sturges. Its director is veteran Howard Zieff, whose films include "Hearts of the West," "House Calls" and "Private Benjamin." Zieff is more than able to tackle film comedian able to tackle film comedies. He also knows a good one when he sees one. "Unfaithfully Yours" is ripe with possibili-most of which Zieff delivers in pleasant if uproarious style.

Zieff is also smart enough to surround himself with the best people. There are probably few comic actors better than Moore, and his talent for delivering a comic line is matched by his ability to per-form slapstick in grand old style. Albert Brooks is superb in a supporting role, and Armand Assante is a fine foil for Moore as the suspected

Good film comedies are rare. "Unfaithfully Yours" is just a bit too thin on story line and development to rate four best names in the industry on its credit list, and they make the best out of a good, if not great, situation.

B. & M.

with the support of over 30 legislators last week announced 10 legislative recommendations designed to prevent unwarranted utility rate increases. Beshear warned that soaring utility rates have rapidly become one of the most serious issues confronting

'Many citizens suffering through an already difficult economic period have watched in amazement as utility costs continue to rise," he said. "During the past two years alone, the major electric and gas utility companies in Kentucky have requested rate increases exceeding $420 million.

In the fall of 1983, several of the argest telephone companies in Kentucky filed for rate increases which were unprecedented in their magnitude. Since the summer of 1971, residential oneparty monthly phone bills have increased dramatically for a number of Kentucky communities, rising approximately 151% in Bardstown, 135% in Bowling Green, 132% in Lexington and 99% in

The Lt. Governor said he feels the utility increases represent a serious burden to all Kentuckians, especially those on limited and fixed incomes such as the elderly and disabled. "This legislaive package has been written from the perspective of the people instead of the utility compay. "We have put together a package which will address the weaknesses in our present law

The legislative recommendations

1. Construction Work in Progress Under present Commission policy, investor-owned electric utilities actually have an incentive to continue questionable building programs since they are allowed to earn a cash return on their construction costs before the facilities produce a single kilowatt hour of electricity. The costs involved in the construction and operation of utility plants are immediately borne by the present consumer, not the stockholder, as a type of forced investment. These

"future costs" can be immediately passed on to the consumer before any benefit is derived. In addition, there are regulatory incentives to invest in capacity beyond the needs of the service area because construction costs increase the rate base, and stockholders are allowed to earn a return on the total rate base. In other words, the bigger the rate base, the bigger the profit. If we are to have any success in holding utility rates down, this overbuilding must stop. Our proposal would prohibit the inclusion of construction work in progress costs in a utility's rate base except under extraordinary circumstances, thereby removing the incentive for over-construction among investor-owned electric utilities.

Inefficient management operations by a utility can dramatically affect the costs passed on to consumers. Information concerning the internal operations of utility companies is necessary to a fair decision in rate cases, and regular management audits are, therefore, an essential component of our utility package. I am endorsing Senator Ed O'Daniel's management audit bill, SB 14, presently before the General Assembly

2. Management Audits

3. Quality of Service Many utilities argue that the Commission should grant them higher rates to enable them to improve services or that rates and services are separate issues. We maintain that the primary duty of a public utility is to render quality service at reasonable rates and, therefore, should not be rewarded for poor service. Our proposal, SB 253, which was recently introduced by Senator David Karem, provides that the Commission may take quality of service, efficiency of operations and quality of management into consideration in setting rates—an option not now available. It would allow the Commission to penalize companies offering poor service or being mismanaged.

4. Statewide Planning This bill would require the Public Service Commission to design and conduct periodic statewide studies of the load and energy forecasting methods, power needs, generation and transmission planning and conservation methods of the electric generating utilities subject to its jurisdiction. The objective of this measure would be to ensure the most efficient and economic provision of electric service to Kentucky ratepayers. One of the major problems in the electric industry is that of excess capacity. The reduced growth and demand for electricity and the poor load forecasting by utilities have resulted in a situation where numerous electric utilities in the state possess excess capacity. The reluctance to share generating capacity by major utility companies has created an unfair economic burden on the ratepayer, and utilities should be forced to share excess electricity and generating capacity. Our proposal will require that one consideration in cerfification and rate proceedings be whether the study indicates a lower cost alternative to providing power to consumers through sharing power rather than the construction of new facilities.

5. Anti-Monopoly Present law prohibits municipallyowned electric systems from buying or selling excess power to each other. Present law also prohibits sales by rural electric cooperatives to municipallyowned systems. This monopolistic situation established by the investor-owned utilities artifically inflates ratepayer costs. Our proposal would amend present law to permit rural electric available from any source.

6. Natural Gas Pricing and Affiliated Transactions

Natural gas pricing is one of the most serious issues now facing Kentucky consumers. Numerous unregulated purchasing practices of gas companies encourage unfair pricing. Of particular significance are affiliated transactions between parent companies and their wholly-owned subsidiaries. While most of the wholesale pricing policies are set at the federal level by the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission, there are certain steps that the state can take to regulate and control these costs.

House Bills 57, 214 and 215, sponsored by Representative Terry Mann and Representative Ken Harper, will greatly help to control many of these unnecessary costs and would correct a purchasing system that offers few incentives for minimizing price. House Bill 57 would grant the Public Service Commission the authority to scrutinize gas sales transactions between subsidiaries and parent companies. House Bills 214 and 215 would promote and encourage gas distribution companies to obtain the least expensive gas by requiring intrastate natural gas pipelines and distribution companies to transport natural gas for other customers. Also, the Public Service Commission would be allowed to review natural gas utility purchasing practices when considering rates and purchase gas adjustment requests.

7. Telecommunications Kentuckians already suffering from some of the highest telephone costs in the country are obviously concerned over the possible events emanating from the breakup of the Bell Telephone System and a series of decisions by the Federal Communications Commission. Divestiture and recent actions by the FCC will result in a number of changes in the industry. However, it is our position that these events should not be used to blindly justify unnecessary increases in the cost of basic telephone service. In this respect, we offer two specific proposals:

1. We are proposing a new section of KRS Chapter 278 which would prohibit end user access charges for intrastate long distance service in Kentucky, except under specifically demonstrated extraordinary circumstances. This bill, SB 254, was recently introduced by Senator David Karem.

2. We propose a resolution stating that it is the sense of the General Assembly that the Public Service Commission should maintain a policy of universal service for all customers by assuring that rates for basic service and intrastate toll service for rural telephone customers are maintained at a reasonable level. Recent proposals by the major telephone companies may be devastating to the elderly and disabled who often rely on the telephone as their primary link to the outside world but who may simply not be able to afford higher telephone rates. This particular resolution would again reinforce our position that achieving universal affordable telephone service should be the policy of the Commonwealth of Kentucky.

Beshear complimented the Public Service Commission on its efforts in beginning to implement a number of the recommendations outlined. But, stressing the importance of the legislation to ensure that the actions continue in the years ahead, they made a plea to citizens to contact their representatives and senators and let them know their feelings about utility rates, and to urge passage of this legislation.

know about if you are paying or receiving alimony, a tax break if you qualify for "Head of Household" status, a tax credit if you pay someone to watch your child so you can work, and an earned income credit that returns money to you if your income is low. You should know about these important rules before you prepare your return. This article tells you what some of these rules are. If your divorce has been declared final during this tax year, you are considered to be in the "Single" filing status. However, you can save money on your taxes if you can qualify for the "Head of Household" filing status. If you qualify as a head of household, your tax rate will be lower than the rate for single people, or for married couples who file separate returns.

To qualify for head of household status, you had to be unmarried on the last day of the year. You also must have paid more than half the cost of maintaining a home during the year for an unmarried child who does not have to be your dependent, for a married child whom you can claim as a dependent, or for any other relative whom you may claim as a dependent. Except for your parents, any of these relatives for whom you maintain a home must live with you

If you are married, you can file as "Single" if you paid over half of the cost of maintaining your household for the year, your spouse did not live in your home at any time during the year, and your child, whom you claim as a dependent, lived with you for more than six months. But if your dependent child lived with you for the entire year, you can file as "Head of Household."

If you pay someone to care for your child so you can go to work or look for work, you can save money on your taxes as well. The credit for child and dependent care expenses allows you to take a tax credit of up to 30 percent of the money you pay for child care in 1983. Your dependent child has to be under 15 years old or be unable to care for himself or herself for you to take this credit.

It is important to remember that you may claim this credit only if you had child care expenses to allow you to work or look for work. You can claim a credit for the expense of having a pre-school child attend a day care center or nursery school during the day. However, the regular costs of schooling for a child in the first grade or above cannot be considered for the credit. Care for the child before and after school hours can be used to figure this credit.

You may also claim a credit if you're paying somebody to care for your child in your home. You may even claim a credit for the expenses of having a housekeeper, maid, or cook if the person you have hired performs tasks necessary to run your home and does work that benefits your child.

If you were divorced or separated under a decree of separate maintenance, you may claim the credit if you had custody of your child for the longer period during the year. The child does not have to be your dependent. Your child also must have been in the custody of one or both parents for more than half the year and have received more than half his or her support from one or both parties. Generally, a person who is married at the end of the tax year must file a joint return to claim the child care credit. A person who is legally separated under a decree of divorce or separate maintenance is considered unmarried and may claim the credit on a

However, if you are married but living apart and not legally separated, you should check the special rules for claiming the child care credit.

People who are divorced should know the relationship between alimony and taxes. If you are paying periodic alimony or separate maintenance

If you are receiving alimony, you are required to treat these payments as taxable income. Remember that not all payments are considered alimony. for instance, property settlements, even if paid periodically, are not alimony.

payments, you may be able to deduct these payments from your income. You may deduct alimony from gross income to find your adjusted gross income. You may only deduct the amount of alimony payments specified in the court decree or written separation agreement. Any additional amount of money you pay to your former spouse may be considered a gift, and is not deductible. You also are not allowed to deduct child support

Check the special rules on alimony.

Also of interest to many divorced people is the Earned Income Credit. If you earned less than $10,000 and have a child living with you, you could get up to $500 back. If you think you will be eligible for the Earned Income Credit, you can receive it in advance as a part of your weekly paycheck. If you want to begin receiving earned income credit payments with your weekly wages, you should submit a Form W-5, "Earned Income Credit Advance Payment Certificate," to your employer

Who Can One Turn To In One's Deepest Sorrow?

Doctors are surrounded by the sadness of many an irreversible and fatal illness. They've learned through their schooling and experience how best to deal with grief situations. Ministers are well-read and experienced in grief-therapy and belong to the family circle as friends and counselors.

Doctors and ministers can help. They are professionals who have given over their lives to helping families in emergency, sudden sadness and mourning.

Depending on the individual circumstances, you can turn to each professional for his particular assistance. For the assurance that everything that could possibly be done was done-your family doctor can be of unquestionable aid.

For consolation and aid in working through the mourning process, your minister's assistance can be invaluable

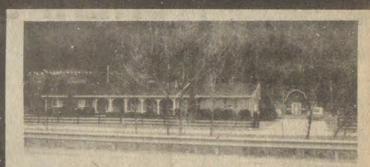

We are also at your service for whatever information and personal aid we can provide-in obtaining necessary forms, contacting relatives, insurance companies, unions or Social Security offices for benefits to which you may be entitled. Please feel free to inquire. Just stop by or call.

CARD OF THANKS

We, the family of Morris Leonard Anderson his wife, Annie; his brothers and sisters and nieces and nephews wish to extend our heartfelt thanks to our many friends and relatives for their kindness, love and words of comfort during our time of sorrow. A special thank you to our cousins of the Hall Funeral Home, to the staff of the McDowell Hospital, to the Rescue Squad and to the First Baptist Church of McDowell, its members and to the minister for his words of comfort.

Pallbearers for their uncle Leonard were John Floyd, George Floyd, Glenn Floyd, David Howell, Dean Howell and Billy Hamilton.

Again we say thank you to each and everyone and may God continue to bless

Because the largest percentage of a bank's expenses are incurred in processing checking account transactions, most banks charge a nominal fee for this service.

Like you, we have always felt that charges can become burdensome. That's why WE base our checking account charges on AVERAGE balances rather than minimum balances, like our competitors.

DAY	THE BANK JOS	SEPHINE	BAN	IK Y	BAN	IK Z
	Balance	Potential Charge	Balance	Pot. Charge	Balance	Pot. Charge
1	$350	-0-	$350	$4.00	$350	-0-
2	$250	-0-	$250	$5.00	$250	$3.00
3	$300	-0-	$1,000		$1,000
TOTALS	$900	-0-	$1,600	$5.00	$1,600	$3.00

As you can see, our checking accounts really DO cost less. In our example your total balance is divided by 3. And even though your balance at The Bank Josephine dropped below $300 for one day during the period, you pay NO service charge since your AVERAGE balance was $300. Banks Y and Z charge on MINIMUM balances. And even though your average balance with them was higher, you will still pay their HIGHEST charge just because your balance dropped below the minimum for only one day!

AND TALK ABOUT CONVENIENCE!! We have six full-service locations.

Bank Y has four; Bank Z has only one.

You'll find a Bank Josephine location on every major highway in Floyd County. And our combined locations offer a total of 102 more banking hours per week than Bank Y and 208 more than Bank Z. And NONE of OUR locations close for an hour in the middle of a busy Friday.

Now, you know what we mean when we say we're

AND EASTERN KENTUCKY TOO!

'Hillbillyism' Topic Of Appalshop Film

The first film in an ambitious new history series by Appalshop filmmakers will premiere Friday, March 9, at the Appalshop Center in Whitesburg.

Appalshop is a nonprofit media organization which has received national recognition for its films, record and plays dealing with Appalachian life.

The new film release, called Strangers and Kin, details the development of the 'hillbilly" stereotype and the impact of that stereotype on the lives of mountain people. Scripted by veteran filmmaker Herb E. Smith, actor/playwright Don Baker and sociologist Helen Lewis, the film juxtaposes clips of Hollywood films and television shows with interviews of people who live in Appalachia, revealing the wide gap between the perceived and the actual.

A special guest at the Whitesburg premiere of Strangers and Kin will be Ned Beatty, a Hollywood actor and native of Kentucky. Beatty, who appears in a segment of the film, has starred in several feature films-including-Deliverance and Kentucky Woman, which have drawn heavily on the "hillbilly" image. Beatty will be present at the Appalshop reception and will address the audience at the film screening.

The reception begins at 7:30 p.m. at the Appalshop Center, 306 Madison St., Whitesburg. The film will be shown in the center's theater at 8:30 p.m. Coffee and snacks will be served following the

The premiere showing of Strangers and Kin will celebrate the completion of the first in a proposed seven-part series of Appalshop films on the history of Appalachia. Beginning in 1979, the National Endowment for the Humanities funded the planning, research and scripting of the series, as well as the production of the first film, Strangers and Kin. The Appalachian Regional Commission also provided money to establish an archive for the wealth of materials turned up during the film research.

The premiere in Whitesburg, and one in Lexington, March 10, are fund-raising events for the second film in the series. Long Journey Home, which is scheduled to begin production on April 1.

Admission to the reception and premiere in Whitesburg is $15 per person. For every person who attends the premiere, Appalshop will receive an additional $15 in matching money from the Kentucky Humanities Council. The Council has awarded $15,000 to the second film as an outright grant, and has pledged to match any private donations up to $20,000.

To make reservations or to get more information, call or write Appalshop, 305 Madison St. Box 743, Whitesburg, Ky., 41858, (606) 633-0108.

Latin America-U.S. Relations Foram Set

Prestonsburg Community College will hold a town forum on U.S. relations with Latin America on Wednesday, February 29, at 7 p.m. in Pike Auditorium. The event is being co-sponsored by Christians for Peace and Justice and the First Presbyterian Church of Prestonsburg. Dr. Thomas Matijasic will act as moderator of the discussion. Vicky Archer, sociologist at P.C.C., and Dr. Ken Coleman, professor of policitical science at the University of Kentucky, wil join Dr. Matijasic in responding to audience inquiries about our role in this critical area. The general public is urged to attend and actively participate in this program which will be free of charge.

Wednesday, March 7, at 7 p.m., Prestonsburg Community College will show the motion picture "Missing". The film portrays events in Chile during the violent overthrow of the Allende government in 1973. It stars Jack Lemmon and Sissy Spacek.

Ledford, Recipient Of Two Top Awards

Cawood Ledford, the "Voice of the Kentucky Wildcats," has been named the recipient of two prestigious awards.

Ledford has been honored with an Eclipse Award for his television coverage of the 1983 Keeneland July Selected Yearling Sale. The one-hour documentary, "Racing's Million Dollar Babies," seen on nine area TV stations, was chosen by the Thoroughbred Racing Association as the top show in the country covering the thoroughbred horse industry. Honorable mention went to KABC-TV in Los Angeles, the New York Racing Association and Pacesetter Productions in Florida.

Ledford had won two previous Eclipse Awards for his work with WHAS-TV in Louisville. He is the only three-time winner for local TV coverage. Ledford accepted the award at a dinner in New York City Feb. 3.

Ledford has also been named Kentucky's "Sportscaster of the Year" for the 15th time. The award is given annually by the National Sportscasters and Sportswriters Association. This marks the eighth straight year Ledford has been named the state's top sportscaster in voting by his peers in the broadcasting and newspaper industry.

Ledford is currently in his 31st year of calling the play-by-play for University of Kentucky football and basketball. He has called the NCAA Basketball Finals for NBC and CBS Radio for the past eight years.

Ledford is president of his own company, Cawood Ledford Productions, 'Inc., in Lexington.

Kentucky, like 25 other states, has legislation protecting farmland and encouraging the formation of voluntary agricultural districts to see that agricultural lands remain in agricultural usage.

Currently, Kentucky has 22 voluntary agricultural districts, with total acreage of 20,144.7 acres. Six new petitions for district formation will be reviewed at the mid-February meeting of the state Soil & Water Commission, state officials

"We have been pleased with the interest shown in this program since its inception in 1982," said Steve Coleman, Assistant Director of the Division of Conservation. Coleman, who has worked with the program since its beginnings in the Agricultural Lands Study and Policy Committee in 1980, said that a total of 44 petitions have been received by the commission for certification in the past 18

'Districts which were not approved often involved land which was located within a '201' water quality boundary and thus not eligible for inclusion under the 1982 Agricultural District and Conservation Act," Coleman said.

'Geographically, we have found that interest in this program has been centered in three main areas of Kentucky-northern Kentucky in Boone, Campbell and Kenton counties, in the Bullitt County area outside Louisville and in the rich agricultural area around Henderson County," he noted.

"Lately, we have been receiving petitions which indicate that interest is growing in other areas of the state as well. For example, one of our most recent petitions is a 2,077 acre area in Fulton County, in the far-western portion of the state," he said.

State officials said that districts have been certified in several counties throughout the state. Districts are found in Hardin, Cumberland, Campbell, Bullitt, Wayne, Breckinridge, Henderson, Kenton, Boone, Taylor, Nelson and Daviess counties.

District sizes range from a 256-acre site in Breckinridge County to a 4,612.5 acre site in Henderson County which includes lands beloning to-15 different landowners.

Two measures which have been introduced into the Kentucky General Assembly will effect the districts. House Bill 34 would create a state advisory committee to review any state agency

Pike Native Honored For Research Work

Dr. Peggy D. Brewer, assistant professor of business administration at Eastern Kentucky University, has been selected to receive an award for the Outstanding Research Paper in the Southwest Administrative Services Association. She will receive the award Feb. 29 in San Antonio, Texas.

Her paper deals with results from a survey of Kentucky's universities and large businesses concerning the changes in the office environment resulting from the use of microcomputers, word processors, and advances in telecommunication technology. She says the survey's findings can be used to update university business curricula in Kentucky to keep up with the changes.

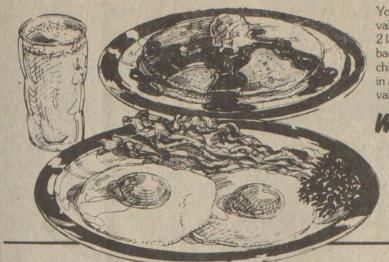

A native of Pike county, she is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hopkins. Brewer earned her BS degree from Morehead; MS from Murray; and a doctorate in business administration from Louisiana Tech. She has been at Eastern since 1980 #### farmland acresd to nonagricultural usage. The committee would advise the Governor on possible actions or alternatives.

House Bill 35 would amend Kentucky's 1982 agricultural district legislation by creating a five-year review of district formation and extending eligibility to participate in districts to those farms located within a "201" water quality

The Only Way To Split Wood

Any wood burners out there who have used the old maul and wedge or an axe to split their firewood know that beyond a little exercise and fresh air it can get to be a real pain. Anyway, that was the case with 25-year-old Lloyd Michael Daniels, of Cliff, so he decided to come up with a "better

Using currently avaiable mechanical log-splitters as a rough model, he began, through a series of skillful "horse trades," to collect the necessary components for a powerful hydraulic splitter which would have been prohibitively expensive if purchased from a manufacturer.

Utilizing hydraulic parts from heavy equipment and coupled with an 8-h.p. motor, the rig, mounted on a trailer and fully mobile, provides a whopping 28 tons of force. A commercially available log-splitter capable of 12-ton pressure output costs about $1,600, he pointed out. His cost around $350, com-

He's arranged the whole layout to make it a one-man operation. One simply sets the log in place and throws a lever. The log splits cleanly with prac-

Daniels, whose regular work with the coal-mining business has been slow this winter, found the project to be a lot of fun, and he's even considering the possibility of picking up a few extra bucks splitting wood for folks who would like to cast their maul aside and take it easy.

Soil Test Early For Pasture Needs

The harsh winter weather now gripping the state makes it hard to realize that only next month you should begin reestablishing legumes in your grass

'Legumes can be sowed in February because the grass will protect the young seedlings from frost and heaving," said Dr. Harold Rice, Extension agronomist in the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture. Heaving occurs when the freezing and thawing of the soil pushes plant seedlings out of the ground.

But before you plant, take a soil test to determine lime and fertilizer needs. Soil samples should be taken now because of the two or three weeks required to get the results back. Later in the spring when the rush is on, getting samples analyzed may take a month or

"Many farmers put off taking a soil sample until it is too late to get the results back in time to apply the needed lime and fertilizer," said Rice.

The most necessary element for establishing legumes is phosphorus, which is essential for plant life and is especially needed in cold, wet soils late in winter.

Phosphorus can be applied well ahead of planting because it does not leach from the soil. Phosphorus reacts with the soil, which ties it up. But high levels of phosphorus can build up in the soil and still be unavailable to plants because of

The phosphorus content in Kentucky soils varies widely. Rice said, because both native phosphorus and phosphorus applied as fertilizer are tied up in soils with low pH.

"Both naturally-occurring phosphorus and phosphorus applied as fertilizer are more available when the soil pH is between 6 and 7," he said. "Liming your pastures will be beneficial in increasing the availability of soil phosphorus."

The only way to know if phosphorus is available in your pastures, concluded Rice, is to have your soil analyzed.

Cost Share Monies May Aid Farm Owners

The Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Service will be accepting applications through February 29 for costsharing under the Agricultural Conservation Program (ACP). Practices available are: Permanent vegetative cover establishment; permanent vegetative cover improvement; forest tree plantation; forest tree stand improvement and permanent vegetative cover on critical (erosion) areas.

Under ACP, ASCS can pay up to 75% of the cost of eligible materials and labor if the practice is found to be needed and Persons interested should contact the Floyd County ASCS Office, (Phone 886-2802) prior to Feb. 29.

"HEY-THERE OUGHTA BE A LAW!"

The 1984 General Assembly is under way and the issues have clearly emerged.

Below are some questions that I would like to know your views on. It takes a little time and effort but it helps me decide on how to vote. I appreciate hearing from you, the people of the 95th District, because I just work for you.

important issue facing the 1984 General Assembly?  (2.) Do you favor competency testing for students?  (3.) Do you favor competency testing for teachers?  (4.) Would you support a tax raise for education?  (5.) Do you support a tax on unmined minerals?  (6.) Would you still support such a tax if it would create more unemployment and raise utility rates?  (7.) Do you support a lottery?  (8.) Do you believe coal trucks should continue to use tarps?  (9.) Do you believe coal trucks should pay additional money for hauling overweight?
(10.) Do you believe Coal Operators should pay additional money for allowing overweight hauling?   COMMENTS:  NAME & ADDRESS (OPTIONAL)
