BILLOWING SMOKE AND FLAMES shooting 200 feet into the air engulfed the Allen Lumber Company, Saturday night. Although eight fire departments joined in fighting the blaze, it is said that the loss may be near one million dollars.

Jury Clears Marshall Of Murder Plot Charge

Fayette Circuit Court jury last Wednesday acquitted Clyde Douglas Marshall of a charge of plotting the death of his wife, Glenda Sharon Pack Marshall, last

Members of Mrs. Marshall's family surged toward the defendant, some crying out "No, no!" as the verdict was announced. Court officials quickly ushered Marshall and three of his sisters from the courtroom while others restrained

In a ten-minute outpouring of anger and disbelief, members of the victim's family screamed out, pounded on walls with their fists and sobbed.

By agreement of Floyd Circuit Judge Hollie Conley, Commonwealth's Attorney James R. Allen and Public Defender Ned Pillersdorf, the trial had been moved to Fayette county because it was thought the 32-year-old Minnie man could not receive a fair trial here.

The verdict came shortly after 9 p.m., after the six-man, six-woman jury had heard four days of testimony and deliberated about eight hours. Judge C.R. Luker told the jury it could return one of three verdicts: not guilty, guilty of complicity to commit murder, or guilty of complicity to commit first-degree manslaughter. For a conviction, all jurors would have to have agreed on Marshall's guilt "beyond a reasonable Prosecutors argued that Marshall hired three men to kill his wife, put her body in her car, set the car on fire and push it over Sizemore Mountain last June 20. Two of the three men-Bobby McGuffey, who is Marshall's younger brother, and Carl McFarland-testified that Marshall wanted his wife killed so he could collect on life insurance policies. The third man, Ed Wright, was killed July 7 in Tennessee.

McFarland also testified Marshall wanted revenge against his wife's former boyfriend.

The prosecution included testimony by Mrs. Marshall's nine-year-old son from a former marriage. Donald Brent Morgan said he saw Marshall put something in the trunk of his mother's car as he and his mother were leaving a Martin dentist's office, shortly before she died. McGuffey and McFarland had

The insurance that Marshall stood to collect was nearer to $40,000 than to the $133,000 claimed by the prosecution, Pillersdorf maintained. Night Blaze Hits Allen Lumber Co.

Origin of Fire Court House Happenings Is Undetermined In Early Probe

Fire of undetermined origin destroyed the main office and most of the storage sheds and supplies of the Allen Lumber Company late Saturday night at a loss that may approach a million dollars.

Evelean C. Akers, president and major shareholder of the company, said no estimate of the damage has been reached. She said the loss was partially insured but added, "I know we've lost the biggest portion of what we've got.'

Early investigation of the blaze was made by J.B. McKenzie, State Police arson investigator, and was continued Sunday and Monday by Richard Carlson, deputy state fire marshal.

The fire, which was reported around 10:45 p.m. by Allen Fire Chief Roy Compton, was first seen at the rear of the main office. Eight fire departments joined in fighting the blaze.

It (the lumber yard) went fast," Prestonsburg Fire Chief Tom Blackburn said. "Flames shot 200 feet in the air."

Roughly two-thirds of the sprawling installation was levelled. There are no fire hydrants in New Allen, where the lumber company was located, and fire trucks were obliged to shuttle back and forth to a hydrant owned by the Prestonsburg water system, near the Allen Baptist Church, across US 23 from the fire scene, for water needed in fighting the fire. The blaze was brought under control around 1:45 a.m. Sunday Fire departments at the scene were

This Town...That World

Almost every year, after complaining my way through a dreary February, I am reminded of the late Noah Harris' sage remark which ran to this effect: 'I've always noticed that if I made it to the first of March, I made it through the rest of the year.

Hope we all keep on noticing'

THE BRIDGE

One oldtimer has been quotedaccurately, I hope—as saying that if the month wasn't necessary to get from winter to spring, he would be in favor of skipping February.

WELCOME!

And now March, with all its whimsies bows in, and whate'er betide-storm, snow, sleet, gale, sunshine or scented zephyr-we longingly gaze upon that magic date only twenty days ahead.

Office Moved

The offices of Floyd County Solid Waste, Inc. are now to be found in the courthouse annex. The offices of the Big Sandy Community Action Program have been moved to the Allen park.

The Marshall Jury Verdict Long after the verdict was announcweak, said allen, noting that Floyd Public Defender Ned Pillersdorf, moments before closing arguments in the case, sounded out the Commonwealth on the possibility of a plea

> The jury decision confirmed his courtroom description of the handsome, clean-cut Marshall as "a con artist," said Allen, explaining, "Apparently he conned the jury." The verdict raised questions about the criminal justice system itself, he said.

deliberation, nine jurors were in favor But Pillersdorf, who represented Marof acquittal, one of them said; the other shall with the assistance of Mary Lou Chandler, public defender in Johnson said an incredulous Floyd Comcounty, insisted the verdict was "not monwealth's Attorney James R. Allen unexpected." who, with Albert A. Burchett assisting,

His last-minute request for a plea deal was nothing more than a routine defense strategy to sound out the strength of its position, the defense lawyer said. At most, his client might have pleaded guilty to a charge of receiving stolen property in return for a five-year sentence, ne said. "Doug would certainly not have agreed to anything more," Pillersdorf said. "He was not interested in a deal. He told me he would go to the electric chair protesting his innocence.' Widespread skepticism here about the propriety of the verdict was attributed by Pillersdorf to the fact that most Floyd countians were dependent on a single newspaper reporter for a day-by-day account of the trial. Lexington Herald-Leader reporter Thomas Tolliver so seriously understated the defense position in his reports, "I didn't know what trial he was covering," the attorney

Although he had successfully petitioned to have the trial moved away from Floyd county for fear that jurors here would be biased against his client, Pillersdorf insisted this week that a Floyd jury hearing the evidence presented in Fayette county last week would have returned the same decision. But Allen, who agreed to a change of venue provided prosecutors could have a say in choosing the trial site, said that "obviously we were wrong" in choosing Lexington.

CITY UTILITIES WORKERS were hard at it a few days ago filling in the gaping hole which caused a portion of Lake Drive near the Municipal Building, here, to buckle.

(See Story No. 4, Page 4) • Woman Says Jones, Others Sought Rival Mine Close

A 34-year-old McDowell woman, who took the stand last week in the trial of Edgar Jones and 17 others on federal racketeering charges, said the Prestonsburg coal operator ordered contract miners working for him to "do what it took" to shut down a rival coal company.

Prosecutors are arguing in U.S. District Court that what it took to cripple the Ray-Mac strip mine near East McDowell two years ago was violence and extortion and that Jones, president of the JRM Coal Company, orchestrated efforts by his subcontractors-including firing on Ray-Mac workers, blowing up a $400,000 auger, and burning down a tipple—to sabotage the operation.

The defense contends there was no plot to drive Ray-Mac out of business but that the winter, 1982 violence there grew out of attempts, which Jones supported, to organize the large, non-union operation which had set foot only six months previously on what is traditionally strong union soil.

Testifying for four days in the Pikeville federal court last week was Pearl Newman Booth who with her husband Phillip—the couple has since divorced—operated two chal companies that were under contract to JRM. At the outbreak of the clash with Ray-Mac on Feb. 15, 1982, Jones instructed her to permit her workers to join a "strike" calculated to shut his competitor down, she said.

Jones told her Ray-Mac had underbid him by $3 a ton on a contract he had to supply coal to a South Carolina utility and implied that, unless Ray-Mac was stopped, JRM's contract miners would be out of a job, she said.

She later paid $2500 for weapons and ammunition for the demonstrators, for which Jones promised to reimburse her,

After being lured into several conversations which were secretly taped by an undercover agent of the federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms in the weeks following the violence at Ray-Mac, Mrs. Booth was arrested in August, 1982 and subsequently agreed herself to tape secretly three conversations with Jones.

In an October, 1982 arrangement with prosecutors, she pleaded guilty to an explosives charge, on the understanding prosecutors would recommend a sixmonth jail term. She received two years and a subsequent request to have the term reduced is pending.

Nashville attorney Aubrey Harwell, representing Jones, noted the plea bargain in the course of lengthy crossexamination designed to erode credibili-(See Story No. 5, Page 4)

Floyd Churches Complete Trade Of Sanctuaries

Churchgoers who skipped last Sunday could find themselves at the wrong services this week, following a trade of church buildings, finalized this week, between Floyd county Catholics and members of the Watergap Freewill Baptist congregation.

The exchange will see members of the Watergap church gather for services this Sunday in the 81-year-old church building in Prestonsburg occupied until now by St. Theodore's Catholic community. Catholics from St. Theodore's and from St. Juliana's parish in Martin will celebrate Mass in the four-year-old sanctuary vacated by the Baptists on the Lancer-Watergap road.

The trade had been sought by the Watergap group which, badly split by an internal dispute last year, was hardpressed meeting mortgage payments on its $350,000 property. The deal was approved on the Catholic side by the Most Rev. William A. Hughes, Catholic bishop of Covington.

In addition to the church building on Third Avenue and an adjoining cottage on Westminister Street, the Catholics will reportedly pay the Baptists $175,000 under terms of the exchange.

The Prestonsburg building, which will now be known as the Third Avenue Freewill Baptist Church, will be housing its third Christian denomination. Originally built in 1903 for the First Presbyterian Church community, the Presbyterians sold it to the Catholics in Catholics have yet to choose a name for their new Watergap church. Acquisitions of the site will enable them to combine their two Floyd parishes whichthough they have shared a pastor, the Rev. Ralph Beiting-have been managed independently. They hope to buy land adjoining the existing property to construct a rectory and playground, a church spokesman said.

Liquor-by-Drink Move Cancelled By City Council

A move to raise the standing of Prestonsburg from a fourth to a third class city was nipped in the bud at a city council meeting Monday by a church group opposed to the easier access to liquor such a move could bring.

Those seeking to change the city's status were identified by Mayor Harold Cooley only as "people interested in the restaurant business" but were said to include backers of a proposed inn on U.S. 23 at Katy Friend. The change would have meant that licenses could be issued allowing sale of liquor by the drink in this county

In view of a reported increase in drunk driving convictions, such a change would be undesirable, Rev. Taylor Biggs, pastor of the Community United Methodist church here, told the council. "The city does not need any wider permission to sell liquor," he said, adding that he had been in touch with the Kentucky Temperance League with a view to possibly organizing a petition to "vote Prestonsburg completely dry" after the May primary.

Following the lead of Councilman Paul Hunt Thompson, who said he did not want to be responsible for a decision affecting the whole county, the council abandoned the idea even before it was officially proposed.

While the council might have petitioned for a change in the city's status, the change would have to have been approved by the state legislature. One of those in favor of killing the proposal locally noted outside the meeting that State Rep. Greg Stumbo is attorney for developers of the Katy Friend Inn.

According to state statute, a city of the third class should have a population of 8000 or more, but recent court decisions appear to give a city some latitude in reckoning population size, said City Manager David Evans. The right to serve liquor by the drink is enjoyed not only by a third-class city but by any county containing a city of that standing.

Residents and merchants living outside Prestonsburg but within five road miles of the main city fire station will have 60 days to decide whether to subscribe for city fire protection. Under a plan adopted by the council, residences within that radius will be eligible for fire services for a $24 annual fee, businesses for a fee calculated mainly on square

One of the city's 500-gallon "frontline" trucks as well as the 260-gallon "minipumper" will be available to serve county subscribers. A crew of up to six firefighters will be dispatched to residential fires, up to 10 to business

The council authorized applications for two grants totalling about $27,000 for improvements at Archer Park. The grants, administered by the state Department of Local Government, will permit rewiring lights at the ballfield area and building a playground nearby. The city will bear half the cost of the projects.

If Insurance Paid, Defendant May Be Asked To Pay Defender

If an insurance company pays Clyde Douglas Marshall following his acquittal last week on charges of having ordered his wife's murder, the state public defender's office may move to have Marshall pay for his defense, Public Advocate Paul Isaacs confirmed last week

Because Marshall was said to be without means, he was defended at state expense by public defenders Ned Pillersdorf and Mary Lou Chandler. Cost of the defense, at private attorneys' rates, could amount to as much as $75,000, Pillersdorf estimated. Involved in preparing the case, besides the two attorneys, were two investigators and Frankfort psychiatrist Dr. John A. Gergen, who helped in jury selection and was prepared to testify had the trial

Commemorative Stamp Is Available Locally

A new 20 cent commemorative stamp marking 50 years of soil and water conservation in the United States was issued by the U.S. Postal Service at the National Association of Conservation Districts (NACD) Convention in Denver, Colorado, on February 6, 1984.

Clark Allison, district conservationist for the U.S. Soil Conservation Service at Prestonsburg said the new stamp is now available at the local post office.

The soil and water conservation movement began in 1934 when the Soil Erosion Service in the U.S. Department of Interior began to work directly with farmers through demonstration projects. In 1935, the agency was transferred to the U.S. Department of Agriculture. Later that spring, when Congress passed Public Law 46, it became the Soil Conservation Service.

Today SCS works through nearly 3,000 local conservation districts that are local units of state government. The soil conservation movement is a voluntary one that has involved 2.5 million landowners and operators since its inception. In the Floyd County Soil Conservation District, over 500 landowners and operators are cooperating with the District to apply needed conservation

All interested persons may contact the County Judge/Executive for the necessary specs. The Court reserves the right to reject any and all bids.

FLOYD COUNTY JUDGE/EXECUTIVE John M. Stumbo

reached the penalty phase.

David Marcum, an agent for Woodmen of the World Insurance, said last week his company would pay Marshall as beneficiary of a $10,000 life insurance policy on his dead wife. Since the death was accidental, the policy would pay $20,000, Marcum said. But members of the victim's family are expected to file a circuit court challenge to the settlement and the insurance company will withhold payment in the meantime, according to a knowledgeable source

Proving the prosecution case would be less formidable in a civil suit, where juries do not have to be convinced of a defendant's guilt beyond a reasonable doubt but have to find only that a preponderance of the evidence favors that conclusion

Public Advocate Isaacs last week asked Pillersdorf and Chandler to total their hours and expenses with a view to collecting payment from Marshall if he collects from the insurance company. State law permits the public advocate to collect legal fees up to five years later if a defendant originally declared indigent later comes into money. In Marshall's case, a claim would probably have to be filed before Trial Judge C.R. Luker, either in Floyd Circuit Court, where the original determination of indigence was made, or in Fayette Circuit Court, where the case was tried.

Pillersdorf said last week he felt "ambiguous" about his boss's interest in pressing Marshall for payment. "Doug was found innocent. Why should he be penalized?" he asked. Commonwealth's Attorney James R. Allen said he felt that any insurance proceeds should go to Mrs. Marshall's children rather than to the public defender's office.

State Ag Dept. Aids Cattle Feed Program

Livestock in eight Kentucky counties will have enough corn to eat during the remaining winter months because of help the state Department of Agriculture gave to a federal emergency feed assistance program.

"The Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service offices in these counties were having trouble locating enough rail cars to ship the low-cost grain into Kentucky from Iowa," said state Agriculture Commissioner David E. Boswell. "Rita Jones at the Scott County ASCS office called the department for any help we could provide.

"Fortunately, we were able to get in touch with the right people and make enough rail cars available to get the 120,707 bushels of corn to Kentucky," he

The program, administered by each county ASCS office, allows livestock producers who live in counties which were designated disaster areas to purchase Commodity Credit Corp. corn at a reduced cost. Farmers in nearly all counties in the state qualified for the program after last summer's drought. They are receiving feed from surrounding states and throughout the Midwest.

The first rail cars from Iowa began arriving in the state, Monday. About 25 farmers from Scott county unloaded the 20,000 bushels allocated to their livestock at Blue Grass Grain in Lexington. Farmers in Henry, Owen, Woodford, Shelby, Oldham, Fayette and Bourbon counties will soon be receiving their

The corn is good quality feed, according to Ms. Jones, and it will cost about $1 less per bushel for the qualifying

"We had to go all the way to Coon Rapids, Iowa, to get all the corn we needed at the cheapest cost for the farmers," said Ms. Jones, executive director of the Scott County ASCS office. "But because so many rail cars were tied up delivering PIK grains and moving corn for this program to other states, we couldn't get enough cars to get the corn back to Kentucky "We're certainly glad Commissioner Boswell put the efforts of the Department of Agriculture to work to help solve our problem," she added. "Our farmers were really about to run into a feed shortage problem, so the help came at a very good time.'

Social Security Number Is Key To Protection

A person's Social Security number is the key to his or her future protection against the loss or reduction of income because of retirement, disability, or death, Jim Kelly, district director for the Big Sandy Area said recently

This is because future Social Security benefits will be based on the record of earnings kept under the Social Security number during a person's working

Many people have the same name, but each person has his or her own Social Security number. The number singles each person's record from some 200 million others.

A person should show his or her Social Security card to each employer and make sure the number is copied correctly for the employer's records. This will help avoid any mistakes as earnings will be reported under the correct number. A person should keep a record of his or her number in a safe place so that he or she can apply for a replacement card should that become necessary. A person should apply for a replacement card only if he or she loses the card or there is a change in name.

A person applying for a replacement Social Security card must show evidence of identity. A person whose name is changed should show evidence showing both the old and new names.

It is against the law to use another person's Social Security number or a number not assigned to you. It is also against the law to use a Social Security number obtained by giving false information on the application. Penalties include a fine, a jail sentence, or both.

"People applying for a Social Security number should have their birth certificate and some proof of identification when contacting the Social Security office. If you have your proofs you can have your Social Security card in about two weeks," Kelly said.

More information about Social Security numbers and their use can be obtained at the Big Sandy Area Social Security office, located on U.S. 23 between Prestonsburg and Paintsville. The telephone number is listed in your local telephone directory under U.S. Govern-

Unusually Dry Weather Poses Forest Fire Hazards

Unseasonably warm and dry weather in much of Kentucky has accelerated the state's spring forest fire season, bringing large numbers of forest fires unusually early this year, officials of the state Natural Resources and Environmental Protection Cabinet say.

State Division of Forestry officials report that 330 forest fires have taken place in Kentucky since Feb. 2, a figure which they say surpasses average February fire occurance rates. The forest fires, which have been concentrated in Eastern Kentucky, have burned approximately 4,300 wooded acres.

'With extended forecasts calling for additional dry, warmer weather, we may be facing conditions which mean danger to the state's forests," warned Natural Resources Secretary Charlotte

"In view of the potential threat to one of our richest natural resources, I urge all Kentuckians planning to travel through the state's forests and fields to use extreme caution with any burning. Even a small fire which gets out of control means a damaged environment, wildlife sacrifice and loss of potential income from our abundant forest products," Baldwin said.

Forestry officials estimate that an average forest fire results in the longterm loss of $2,000 per acre in the value of forest products which would have been produced, marketed and sold. 'Many people do not realize what a fire does to our forests. A fire may kill only the seedlings and saplings present, but it also injures the bark on larger trees, allowing insects and disease to enter the trees," Forestry Director Donald A. Hamm explained

'The activities of these insects or of disease may result in a tree becoming completely worthless," he said.

Hamm said that the Division of Forestry has increased its law-enforcement activities during recent fire seasons.

Morehead State Names Barker To Coordinate Center Communications

Garry Barker has been named communications coordinator for Morehead State University's Appalachian Development Center.

Barker, a Fleming county native, received his bachelor's degree in English from Berea College in 1965, and has been employed by such regional institutions as the Southern Highland Handicraft Guild, Berea College, and Marketing Appalachia's Traditional Community Handicrafts, Inc.

He is the author of "Fire on the Mountain," a 1983 short story collection, and is currently writing "The Appalachian Handicraft Revival: 1930-1980," for the University Press of Kentucky.

"We feel fortunate to have Garry Barker on our staff," said ADC Director Dr. Donald L. Fogus. "His familiarity with the entire Appalachian region, and his 20 years of writing and administration, will streng munications programs.

Barker's articles, essays, and short stories about Appalachia have appeared in "The Mountain Spirit," the Louisville Courier-Journal," "Delta Scene," "Ceramics Monthly." "Southern Exposure," "Grit," "Berea Magazine," "The Crafts Report," and "Facing South" a syndicated column. His first novel, "Copperhead Summer," is scheduled for 1984 release, as is "Two Part Harmony," an art-essay book done with Berea artist Mitchell Tolle. Barker serves on the advisory board of the Appalachian Writers Association, and is vice president of the Berea Craft Festi-

"This month alone, we have issued 29 citations for illegal burning," he said.

Under Kentucky's forest fire season regulations, it is illegal for anyone to set, or to have another person to set, fire to any flammable material within 150 feet of any woodland or brushland except between 4:30 p.m. and midnight, Hamm

This regulation and others governing burning and fire activities during forest fire season, becomes effective March 1, the official beginning of the spring fire forest fire season.

"While we are not officially into the fires season yet, we have stepped up our activities and expect all citizens to observe local and state burning ordinances and regulations," Hamm said.

During the 1983 spring forest fire season, lasting from March 1 to May 15, 1983, there were 1,380 forest fires reported in Kentucky, with more than 26,701 wooded acres burned.

ed." said Pillersdorf in his closing argument Wednesday. "What motive is there? The insurance that's so blown out of proportion it defies description?"

Prosecutors contended that Marshall, McGuffey, McFarland and Wright hatched their murder plot during a June 7, 1983 meeting at the Plantation Motel, just north of here, Marshall booking and paying for the motel room. At the meeting, Marshall spoke of his desire to collect on his wife's insurance policies and of his anger at her "stepping out on him" with an unnamed schoolteacher, McFarland testified.

Sandy Boyd, of Dana, a former schoolteacher, later testified he had dated Glenda Pack for four years prior to her marriage to Marshall in July, 1982. In the first few weeks of her marriage to Marshall, she confided to him that she had been beaten by Marshall and wanted a divorce, but soon after said she and her husband would be able to "work things out," Boyd said. He had no further contact with the woman after that,

Marshall admitted beating his wife once, soon after they were married. "I'm not proud of it," he said. They enjoyed a peaceful relationship thereafter, he said.

The "revenge" motive was first suggested inadvertently to McFarland by state police, argued Pillersdorf, who played for the jury a tape recording of a June 29, 1983 conversation in which Det. Danny Stumbo used the phrase "stepping out on him" that McFarland would later repeat in his testimony.

The real purpose for the June 7 meeting at the Plantation Motel, the defense said, was to conclude a deal by which Marshall would pay the others $4500 to steal a bulldozer for him. He intended to lease the bulldozer to Adrian Lafferty, operator of a Prestonsburg pipeline firm, Marshall said. The deal fell through when Lafferty insisted that ownership papers be delivered with the machine, he said.

Angered at what they took to be a breach of their agreement, McGuffey, McFarland and Wright came back to get their money, anyway, and, frustrated at their inability to get their hands on it, killed Mrs. Marshall, the defense

In an exchange with Pillersdorf during cross-examination—an exchange which the defense attorney recited twice to the jury during his closing argument-McFarland appeared to acknowledge a bulldozer agreement with Marshall. Asked by the defense lawyer whether he was on parole for a particular tractor theft, McFarland replied, "You've got the wrong 'dozer deal there. That was in 1979. We're talking about 1983, with Doug Marshall's 'dozer. That's a different 'dozer, different case

Although McGuffey and McFarland denied there had been a deal involving a bulldozer, the defense said McFarland had a long history of dealing in stolen equipment—he was on parole for a 1979 tractor theft at the time of Mrs. Marshall's slaying-and drew from him an admission that he sometimes cooperated with police in order to "get even" with those he thought had welched on a

McFarland was granted immunity from prosecution on a complicity to murder charge in return for his testimony, but he would not have been immune from a stolen property charge and so had reason to deny the alleged bulldozer deal, the defense counsel said.

Four prisoners were brought from Floyd and Pike county jails to testify for the defense. James Lewis Bradley, Kenny Sanders, Jake Jackson and Phillip Dale Moore all said McFarland, in jailhouse conversations, had mentioned a bulldozer deal as the reason for his being in Floyd county last June. During closing arguments, attorneys on both sides attacked the credibility of each other's key witnesses, all of whom had criminal records. McGuffey, who was scheduled to be tried with his brother, entered a plea of guilt before the trial opened, and agreed to testify against Marshall in exchange for a recommended life sentence. He has yet to be sentenced.

Petition Certified, Tax Goes To Vote

Some 4987 petition signatures were certified by County Clerk Carla R. Boyd this week, apparently ensuring that the question of a utilities tax to finance Floyd schools will be on the November

A total of 9380 signatures were affixed to the petition, which was filed two weeks ago by a group which wanted the Board of Education levy put to a general vote. Only 2307-15 percent of those in this county who voted in the last presidential election—were required to force a referendum on the issue.

Checking the signatures took her staff four days to complete, Mrs. Boyd said.

he suggested.

Harwell, who argued at the trial's opening a month ago that much of the prosecution case rested on the Booths' testimony, sought to show that the couple was prejudiced against Jones and that they had themselves admitted responsibility for crimes they were attributing to others.

The defense attorney's questioning of Mrs. Booth, whom he earlier characterised as "as vengeful and vindictive as she is charming," reduced the witness to tears on several occasions. U.S. District Judge G. Wix Unthank ordered several recesses to allow her to regain her composure.

After a year of good profits and high living, the Booths faced mounting debts in 1982-including bills for $80,000 in state and an undisclosed amount in federal taxes-and asked in vain for help from Jones, Harwell said. Their financial problems were compounded-and their animosity toward Jones sharpened-when he began rejecting their coal as being too dirty, the defense counsel sought to prove.

Asked whether she had said to Benny Caudill, one of the 18 defendants, "I swear on my kids' lives I'm going to get Edgar Jones one way or another," Mrs. Booth said she did not remember making such a statement.

Nor did she recall statements her former husband allegedly made claiming responsibility for the dynamiting of a Ray-Mac auger and the burning of a tipple leased by the firm. If he did make such remarks, they were idle boasts, she said, adding, "He was all the time bragging. I knew he didn't do half the things he said he did.'

In three days of cross-examination, much of it drawing strong denials from the witness and some of it conducted out of the jury's hearing, Harwell portrayed the attractive, blond woman as chronically bent on violence, mentally unstable, and a liar.

Mrs. Booth admitted once having shot her ex-husband's finger off but denied trying to kill him. She also admitted shooting at C.B. Hall at McDowell in March, 1982.

When Harwell noted that, even after agreeing to deceive her friends by working undercover for the government, she failed to get on tape a single admission by Jones that he was involved in the Ray-Mac violence, Mrs. Booth said she had been afraid to press Jones on the

The defense attorney suggested that meetings attended by some defendants shortly before violence erupted at the Ray-Mac mine reflected unionists' concern to organize the operation. Even Phillip Booth, who as an operator was not eligible, had recently applied for membership in Local 5976, he noted. But, under questioning by U.S. Attorney Thomas L. Self, Mrs. Booth said the question of organizing Ray-Mac was not discussed at the meetings.

The prosecution continued to present its case this week. Some attorneys involved in the trial predicted last week it could stretch out for another month.

Judge Commends Officials

Hon. James Allen Commonwealth Attorney Floyd Circuit Court Prestonsburg, Kentucky 41653

Just a note to express my appreciation for your work in the Marshall case.

Your experience and expertise made my job much easier. I am aware of the time and effort expended by you, Mr. Burchett and your staff in the preparation and trial of this case. I know you must be disappointed in the result, but the case was well and fully presented and that is all that can be expected.

The people of Floyd County and the Commonwealth of Kentucky were competently and professionally represented and I congratulate you.

Sincerely yours, CHARLES R. LUKER

Lt. Gary Rose Kentucky State Police Post 9 Route 3, Box 356 Pikeville, Kentucky 41501 Dear Gary:

As you know, I did not ask for the assignment as trial judge in the Marshall case, but did not hesitate to accept

This was the longest trial over which I have presided, and I am relieved to return to routine.

Before closing the file, I feel impelled to express to you and the officers in your command my appreciation for excellent police work.

I am concerned that the trial result may be discouraging, especially to your younger officers.

There is no reason for this.

I observed the results of meticulous, persistent, impartial investigation. The murder was solved, the guilty identified, the whole sordid affair completely exposed to public view. Your officers conducted themselves properly and with reserve.

As the Court's responsibility does not begin until arrest, the police responsibility ends with trial.

I am proud of you and your men and the manner in which all of you discharged this responsibility.

It was a pleasure to be associated with you in this matter and I hope to have the opportunity again in the future.

Sincerely yours, CHARLES R. LUKER

Clarification

The Randy Burchett who wrote a letter to the editor, published in last week's edition of The Times, regarding Prestonsburg City Council's restriction on out-of-town fire runs, is not Randall Clyde Burchett, Prestonsburg architect.

A Serious Problem In the often congested, sometimes confusing traffic flow of downtown Prestonsburg, the strangest request one can make is for another traffic control devise. It is quite obvious though, that this request is not unwarranted. With the large number of accidents that happen in the area around Prestonsburg High School, city officials should realize that something must be done. A local traveler knows to avoid trying to make a left turn from University Drive on to US 23, but often cars sit there for 10 minutes or more only to charge boldly into traffic, several times in front of me. The speed limit in the city limits beyond the High School should be reduced to 35 MPH and strictly enforced.

The Prestonsburg Businessmen's Association was quick to admit their mistake and resume traffic flow to its original course. One would think that city officials would be just as prompt to admit that the traffic flow in front of Prestonsburg High School was fine 10 years ago, but poses a more serious and deadly problem now

Pikeville College Trustees Support President Hall

Pikeville College has its troubles, but 'positive things are happening" there, according to Burlin Coleman, vicechairman of the college board of

The recent board meeting held at the college spurred this renewed optimism. "We are operating within the budget for the 1983-84 fiscal year, the board is looking forward to approving a balanced budget for the '84-'85 fiscal year,'' Coleman said.

The board of trustees, investigated in depth the challenges facing the college and adopted resolutions to this effect.

The board expresses its unamious support and confidence in President Jackson O. Hall as the chief exectuvie officer of the college, and commends him for his outstanding efforts in generating financial support for the college from private, corporate, and foundation sources; expresses its unanimous appreciation of the faculty for articulating their concerns about the college and its future, and their offer to work with the board and the administration in resolving the challenges facing the college.

The board of trustees listed three primary concerns-recruitment, cost control and communication with and among the entire college family.

Dr. Jackson O. Hall, president of the college, said, "I interpret this as a very direct statement of unswerving commitment by the Trustees to the mission of this college. And, when you get down to bedrock and you look at the foundation of this college, which is its history and tradition of leadership and service, the commitment of the Trustees has been and will always be so essential. "It is evident that we are joining together at the institution. This college will survive. It will endure. Good and caring people, both within and outside of the institution, will make certain that this happens.

WOMAN'S CLUB MEETS
The GFWC/Lackey-Garrett-Wayland
Woman's Club met Thursday evening,
Feb. 23, at the home of the club president, Mrs. Otto Martin, of Wayland.

In the absence of the speaker, State Trooper Phillip Tucker, who had planned to show a film on drunk driving, the club president spoke on MADD (Mothers Against Drunk Drivers). She urged each club member to become a member of MADD and do everything possible to help get drunk drivers off the

The club president called attention to the district spring contests and reported that Allen Central High School's art department would have entries in the Art division. The Miss Floyd County Pageant was also discussed, and the club decided not to sponsor an entry this year.

The president asked that the club consider contributing money to help in the purchase of uniforms for Allen Central's students in the Special Olympics. A $50 contribution was approved for tank tops or T-shirts, whichever is required.

It was also mentioned by the president that the club's scholarships to both Alice Lloyd and Prestonsburg Community colleges were now due and checks would be mailed from the club, as well as checks to both the Wayland and Garrett volunteer fire departments.

A nominating committee was elected to present a slate of nominees for the upcoming spring election to be reported on at the March meeting, which will be held at the home of Mrs. James A. Duff, Hueysville, March 19. The election will be held in April, with installation of officers at the May meeting.

Following adjournment, refreshments were served to Mrs. Alma Souleyrette and Mrs. Betty Mullins, of Wheelwright, and Mrs. James O. Childers and Mrs. Charley Sergent, of Wayland, guests; and Mrs. Hansel Bradley, Mrs. Marcellous Dunfee, Mrs. Don Hughes, and Mrs. Buford Layne, by the hostesses, Mrs. James E. Martin and Mrs. Otto Martin, assisted by little Miss Anna Marie Martin.

ALLEN

WOMAN'S CLUB MEETS

The Allen Woman's Club held its February meeting at the George and Josephine Evans Multi-Purpose Complex at the Allen Park, Feb. 7. The president, Hollie Blanton, presided.

Roy Compton, chief of the Allen Volunteer Fire Dept., talked about the problems of the department. He said a new building is necessary for the fire department to continute and that more members are needed. The Allen Woman's Club will be mailing letters on behalf of the fire department to all area residents.

The club voted to donate $50 to KET. President Blanton appointed a committee of Joann Adams, Belle Conn and Diana Reed to present a slate of officers for the March meeting.

Judy Hester is the chairman of the Little Miss Floyd County Pageant, which is sponsored annually by the Allen Woman's Club.

Members present were JoAnn Adams, Hollie Blanton, Belle Conn, Judy Hester and Diana Reed.

The next meeting will be Tuesday March 6, at 7 p.m. Allen area women are invited to attend.

BIRTHDAY PARTY IN FLORIDA

Herman Porter, of Allen, celebrated his birthday, Feb. 15 in Ft. Pierce, Florida, with members of his family joining him for the occasion. The group went on a boat cruise to Lake Okeechobee, visited orange and lemon groves, and enjoyed a smorgasbord lunch, with live music. Sharing in the festivities were the guest of honor, and his wife, Mrs. Bernice Porter, his sister, Mrs. Goldia Williams, and the sons and daughters-in-laws of Mr. and Mrs. Porter; Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Porter, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Porter, and Mr. and Mrs. James Henry Porter.

Boat Rebuilding In Progress

"People are lonely because they build walls. We help people break through the wall by providing a bridge of love and concern," according to Gerald Sublett, director of operations for the Christian Appalachian Project, a non-denominational, non-profit organization, this is one of the central themes for the organization's work in the region. Appropriately, the name of the Martin location is "Bridges."

Currently, the group at Martin is engaged in working on boats. There are two full-time employees and six volunteers directing the activities of the group. The Christian Appalachian Project, funded by the Department of Human Resources and Mountain Comprehensive Care, is headquartered in Lancaster, and has 43 ministries throughout Appalachia, chiefly in Kentucky.

The ministry at Martin is located in the former location of Hall Brother's Funeral Home on Main Street, which will become an activity center for many of the projects serving this and surrounding counties. Sublett said that one of the first areas of concentration will be to build bridges for young people who are walking a tight rope of trouble by offering them work therapy, sports, outings, and an opportunity for Christian growth.

In addition to programs carried on at the various centers such as that at Martin, the Project reaches out in other areas. The following is an example of one of these.

Christy (not her real name) is a little four-year-old girl. The smile on her face tells you how bright and beautiful she is, but the braces on her legs and the walker she uses also tell you how severely handicapped she is.

Christy lives deep in the hills of Appalachia. She was born with an open spine, and her doctors could not guarantee she would live very long. Her unemployed parents could not afford the mounting medical costs.

That's when the spirit of the Christian Appalachian Project came into her life. Suddenly there was hope. Her birth defect was partially corrected by several long and expensive operations.

Then, when Christy did get out of the hospital, a volunteer was there to see that she got the special attention she required.

Through work such as this comes their motto. "In God's service, our greatest

Through work such as this comes their motto, "In God's service, our greatest ability is our availability."

Anyone in the community who would like to participate in Christian service can call or write the Christian Appalachian Project.

Opportunity for participation in serving can be found in any of the follow-

RELIGIOUS DRAMA Anthony Hopkins and Robert Foxworth will star in "Peter and Paul," a twopart drama, which CBS rebroadcasts Tuesday, April 17 and Wednesday, April 18. Hopkins plays Paul, the Apostle to the Gentiles, while Foxworth is cast as Peter, the rock of the Christian Church. The cast also includes Eddie Albert, Raymond Burr, Jose Ferrer, Jon Finch and Jean Peters.

PEOPLE'S CHOICE -CBS will air the tenth annual "People's Choice Awards" on Thursday, March 15, live from the Santa Monica Civic Auditorium. The awards, which cover TV, movies and music, are determined by members of the public.

CABLE COMEDY "Down to Earth," the first original sitcom airing on Superstation WTBS, make its debut on Saturday, March 10. The show concerns Ethel MacDoogan (Carol Mansell), a zany angel who has one last chance to earn her wings. She must return to earth and restore harmony to the home of a widower and his three children.

TV HONORS ITS OWN pioneers Lucille Ball, Milton Berle, Nor-Lear, William S. Paley and the late Paddy Chayefsky, Edward R. Murrow and David Sarnoff will be honored for their outstanding achievements when they become the charter inductees into the Television Academy Hall of Fame on Sunday, March 4 during the NBC special "The Television Academy Hall of Fame.

'Hullabaloo,'' debuting on NBC in 1965, was one of TV's first attempts to give rock 'n' roll a big-budget, top-quality showcase in a prime-time slot. Each week top recording artists performed their current hits backed by elaborate production and the frantic, miniskirted "Hullabaloo" dancers.

The whole affair had the atmosphere of a discotheque in full swing, including the "girl in the cage," doing a perpetual frug. Among the hosts who presided over each telecast were Paul Anka, Jack

Jones, Frankie Avalon and Annette Funicello, and Jerry Lewis and his rock star son, Gary. Performing were such artists as the Beatles, the Supremes, the Ronettes mat to "Hullabaloo," but had a regular host, Jimmy O'Neill. It also featured a musical "discovery," teen-dream Bobby Sherman. Can you name this show?

'Airwolf' role turns Cord's hair white

By Joan Crosby

"I have to go in soon and have my hair touched up, said rugged Alex Cord with a smile, adding "and those are words I never thought I would hear myself say.

Cord, a natural brunette, had to get his hair lightened to play the white-haired character, Archangel on "Airwolf," the CBS series about a high-powered heli-

'They finally convinced me to lighten my hair. At first after it was done, I wouldn't go out without a hat," says Cord. "But now I'm beginning to like it.

Before he came to Hollywood, Cord was an accomplished stage actor as well as a published novelist. His "Sand Song," was written under his real name, Alexander Viespi.

Horses have been one of Cord's other interests. He is a professional horse trainer and a fine polo player, a game that is having a resurgence in Hollywood.

'There are lots of polo jokes going around now," he says. "One goes: Do he says. you know how to make a small fortune in polo? Start with a large one.

"I have tremendous patience when I am dealing with horses and I get an energy from them. Animals can provide such joy to us from the very simplicity of their own lives. Horses are my passion and people tell me I'm crazy to devote so much time to them.'

Alex pauses. "Do you want to know what I think is crazy? I think it's the person who pays $500 a week to snort cocaine. That's crazier than anything I may sacrifice to devote time to my animals.

THIS WEEK'S HIGHLIGHT - Ann-Margret stars as the tragic Blanche DuBois in Streetcar Named Desire," an "ABC Theater" adaptation of Tennessee Williams' Pulitzer Prize-winning drama, airing Sunday, March 4. The drama also stars Treat Williams as Stanley Kowalski, Beverly D'Angelo as Stella and Randy Quaid as Mitch.

Recognized For Sales

James H. Nunnery, Jr., of Betsy Layne, has been named top salesman for the new account award by Kenway Chemical Company. Mr. Nunnery was awarded a free trip to Florida.

Clark Equipment Company has also recognized Mr. Nunnery's salemanship, the president of the southeast region having presented him with an engraved plaque for the most sales of high-speed buffers.

Mr. Nunnery serves a six-county area of Floyd, Johnson, Martin, Pike, Morgan and Magoffin counties. He is the son of the late James H. Nunnery Sr., well-known Prestonsburg businessman, and Sylvia Nunnery Rudy, of Portsmouth, Ohio.

Church Honors Elder Seniors

The Cow Creek Free Will Baptist Church honored three of its elder seniors for the month of January. They were Jack Mosley and Mr. and Mrs. Conny Darby. There were more than 60 friends and relatives attending a dinner given in their honor. They were each presented a certificate of appreciation for their years of working for the church.

Mr. Darby, who is 83 years old, was also presented a birthday cake.

PUBLIC NOTICE

The City of Prestonsburg will accept applications until March 1, 1984 at 3:00 m. for the position of Mechanic. The successful applicant will perform maintenance and mechanical repairs on all city owned vehicles and equipment and do related work as required. Considerable knowledge of the standard practices, equipment, and tools used in the automotive mechanic and equipment mechanic trade is necessary. Applicant should have knowledge of the operation of gasoline and diesel engines. Salary will be based on training, qualifications and experience. Applications can be obtained by contacting the City Administrator in the Municipal Harman, of Paintsville.

The ceremony will take place at 1 p.m., Saturday, March 3, at the First Presbyterian Church, here. The pastor, the Rev. Timothy Jessen, will be the officiating minister.

The gracious custom of open wedding will be observed with a reception following at the D&M Restaurant.

HOMEMAKERS MEET

The Cow Creek Homemakers held their regular monthly meeting at the church annex there Tuesday, Feb. 21, at 1 p.m., with Mrs. Louise Carey, president, presiding. Mrs. Louise Carey and Mrs. Hester Leslie presented the lesson on "Consumer Products Safety," with special emphasis on reading and following the directions on purchased items. Mrs. Imogene Caldwell shared with the group a short story, "Pink Ribbons," which she had written and submitted for the State Homemakers' short story contest.

Mrs. Frances Pitts exhibited some pillow-tops, made with the currently popular "chicken scratch" stitching, and asked those who may wish to learn this art to bring the required materials to the next meeting.

The hostess, Mrs. Sally B. Goble, served refreshments to Imogene Caldwell, Edith Burchett, Louise Carey, Virginia Goble, Hester Leslie, and Frances Pitts.

The next meeting will be Tuesday afternoon, March 20, at 1 o'clock, with Mrs. Mary Zemo giving the lesson on "Food and Drugs," and Mrs. Hester Leslie serving as hostess.

CARD OF THANKS

The family of Charles Newsome would like to thank everyone for their kindness and concern. Thanks to all who sent flowers and food; especially Prestonsburg IGA, and the Fraternal Orders of Eagles, of Prestonsburg. Also Mrs. Geneva Scalf for her help, and the many others. We very much appreciated everyones concern for the loss of our love one.

EQUAL OPPORTUNITY EMPLOYER

Woman Witness Invokes 'Fifth' At Jones Trial

In response to an attorney's questions Thursday, a key prosecution witness in the federal conspiracy trial in Pikeville of Edgar Jones and 17 others repeatedly invoked her Fifth Amendment right against self-incrimination.

Cross-examining Pearl Booth in an effort to demonstrate her unreliability as a government witness, Aubrey Harwell, the Tennessee lawyer heading the defense team, laid a minefield of questions-suggesting her involvement in arson, insurance fraud and perjury, and raising doubts about her mental stability-that her attorney advised her to avoid.

In all but one instance, Mrs. Booth's recourse to her constitutional right of silence occurred out of the jury's hearing and was elicited only for the purpose of the trial record, which an appeals court may need subsequently to review. Even so, the defense strategy drew a protest from the prosecutor and—when the questioning moved into Mrs. Booth's mental health care—a question by the judge about the source of the defense counsel's information.

One line of questioning the jury did hear suggested Mrs. Booth had lied under oath when she appeared as a witness in her husband's March, 1982 trial in Winchester on charges of drunk driving, speeding and driving on a revoked license. Mrs. Booth did not deny telling an undercover agent later that "the judge caught me lying twice" but said she was only trying to impress the agent, who was posing as a "hit man" interested in buying dynamite.

On the advice of her attorney, David Justice, of Ashland, Mrs. Booth refused to answer charges by Harwell that she and her husband paid Gary Martin, a friend of theirs and a former employee of the state motor vehicle licensing division here, to have the revocation of Booth's license erased from the record.

During an "avowal"-a court procedure which allows questioning of witnesses on matters the trial judge holds inadmissible but the defense wants recorded in case of appeal-Harwell questioned Mrs. Booth about the 1980 burnings of a home she owned on Jacks Creek and a trailer owned by Vern Hall; the 1981 burning of neighbor Arlie Potter's house at McDowell and of a 1977 Lincoln Continental; and the reported theft of the Booths' new 1981 Cadillac and its later recovery from a Wheelwright slate dump.

In arguing for the admissibility of Mrs. Booth's answers, Harwell said his questions involved allegations of arson, insurance fraud and perjury and were relevant to her credibility as a witness. Moreover, the fact that she was immune from prosecution by reason of a plea bargain meant she could not invoke the Fifth Amendment, the lawyer contended.

U.S. District Judge G. Wix Unthank held, however, that the issues were peripheral to the central matters on trial and that the witness had not waived her Fifth Amendment right—a right Mrs. Booth exercised in response to all ques tions relating to arson or fraudulent insurance claims Questions by Harwell stemming from Mrs. Booth's visits to a mental health agency prompted a protest by prosecutor Thomas L. Self that the information was confidential and so protected by law against public disclosure and an inquiry by the judge as to how the defense attorney came by it.

Harwell said he subpoenaed Mrs. Booth's records from the Mountain Comprehensive Care Center in Prestonsburg and that, if the information was protected by law, it was up to agency administrators to assert that right.

Don Lafferty, a social worker at the agency, said later he was angered at the use made of his former client's records. Disclosures of such information is forbidden by agency policy, said Lafferty, who hinted the information might have been obtained by deceit.

When lightning strikes, it's hot. In fact, a bolt of lightning is more than twice as hot as the surface of the sun, says National Wildlife's Ranger Rick magazine.

Teen Pageant Finalist

Miss Debra Karen Hall, daughter of Lloyd and Amanda Hall, of the Goble Roberts Addition, Prestonsburg, has been chosen to be a finalist in the 1984 Miss Kentucky U.S. Teen Pageant to be held in Bowling Green, April 28, at the Holiday Inn Holidome at 7:30 p.m.

The Miss Kentucky U.S. Teen Pageant is the official state final to the Miss U.S. Teen Pageant to be held in Alabama, July 18. Miss Kentucky U.S. Teen will receive prizes including a round trip flight to the national finals, $200 cash, jewelry by Aubrey Creations, crown, banner, trophy and other gifts.

Miss Hall, who is a junior at Prestonsburg High School, is being sponsored by Action Petroleum, Inc., Prestonsburg.

Berea College Offers Rising Seniors Program

Berea College is accepting applications for its 1984 summer program for outstanding high school students.

This summer's Rising School Program, open to students who have completed the junior year of high school with a B average, consists of college-credit courses in Wildlife Biology, Creative Writing, Elementary German, Mathematics and Critical Issues for Black Americans. The four-week session, which allows students to do intensive study in one subject, begins June 10 and continues through July 6.

Each course offers one college credit, the equivalent of four semester hours. The per student cost of $204 covers room and board, use of college facilities, insurance, health service and activities fees. Some full or partial scholarships are available, and each student will receive pay for participation in Berea's on-campus work program. The college library, tennis courts, pool and gymnasium, as well as planned activities, are available.

Applications and additional information are available from Charles E. Morgan, Rising Seniors Admission, CPO 2344, Berea College, Berea, Ky. 40404. Students from Berea's nine-state admissions territory, especially those with limited financial resources, will receive preference in admission to the summer program.

Cutter to Conduct Region XI Workshop

Ron Cutter, executive director, Kentucky Association for Retarded Citizens, will conduct a workshop for parents and professionals working with handicapped persons in Region XI. This includes Floyd, Johnson, Magoffin, Martin, and Pike counties

The workshop will be held at 7 p.m., tomorrow (Thursday) in the old Fellowship Hall of the First Baptist Church on 4th and Scott streets in Pikeville.

Spelling Bee Winner

Lynn Branham, 14-year-old eighth grader student at Harold Elementary, won the Floyd County Education Association's annual spelling bee, spelling down representatives from 15 other schools in the county. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Steve Branham, of Betsy Layne.

Miss Branham was presented a $50 check from the Floyd County Education Association and will compete in the Eastern Kentucky Education Association spelling bee in Ashland, March 24.

Runner-up was Tammy Johnson, 13-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Johnson, also of Betsy Layne, who is an eighth grade student at Betsy Layne Elementary.

Philip Dingus, director of pupil personnel, was pronouncer for the annual bee and judges were Betty Flanery, reading teacher and Debra Rollins, learning disabilities teacher, both of Allen Elementary, and Edith Hopkins, retired teacher, of Minnie. The bee was held at Allen Elementary School, February 16.

CARD OF THANKS

The family of Betty Miller wishes to thank everyone for their help and kindness in the recent passing of our dear mother. We thank those who sent food and flowers, also those who prepared the grave. We deeply appreciate the Little Nancy Regular Baptist Church and its members, also Old Samaria Baptist Church members, and the Regular Baptist ministers for their wonderful preaching. We also wish to thank Dr. Kent Gibson and the Wheelwright Clinic staff, the fourth floor nursing staff at H.R.M.C., the Hall Funeral Home for their kindness and help. To all our friends and neighbors, we thank and

Paula Michelle Trautner, daughter of Elder and Mrs. Paul T. Trautner, of Versailles, and Maurice Mark McGuire, son of Mr. and Mrs. Tom O. McGuire, Sr., of Prestonsburg, were united in marriage in a candlelight ceremony, December 23, at the Lexington Primitive Baptist Church. The bride's father officiated at the double-ring

At the front of the sanctuary, the baptismal shelf held a large triangular arrangement of white pine, magnolia, and pink poinsettias behind which stood the unity candle. Two brass candelabra holding lighted white tapers and accented with pine, magnolia, and pink bows flanked either side. Pink poinsettias were banked between their bases. A cottage candle, pine, magnolia, and poinsettias decorated each window.

Kim Cowgill, harpist, presented a program of classical music, and during the ceremony, two vocal selections were performed acappella by Pamela Trautner, sister of the bride.

On behalf of her parents, the bride was given in marriage by her uncle, Harold Fletcher, Sr. She wore her mother's floor-length gown of pearl white satin with long, closely fitted sleeves tapered to points over the hands and fastened with satin covered buttons. The gown was of princess style with a scalloped neckline, featuring a deep front yoke of Alencon lace embellished with pearls and crystals. Extending from the yoke, the front panel of satin was edged with pearl and crystal embroidered Alencon lace motifs spreading to the hemline. Satin piping highlighted the back of the dress at the bottom edges of the yoke and extended center panel of the bodice which was fastened with satin covered buttons. Falling from the hipline, a bustle like effect was created by the fully gathered back center panel of the skirt which flowed into a chapel-length train.

A Juliet headpiece covered with Alencon lace, seed pearls, and crystals held a fingertip veil edged with a narrow band of matching lace.

The bride carried a cascade of bridal white roses and stephanotis enhanced by English holly and white pine foliage.

The maid of honor was Pamela Trautner, sister of the bride. Bridesmaids were Amy Hammonds, of Danville, Bridget Salyers, of Lexington, and Renee Smith, of Winchester. The junior bridesmaid was Emily McGuire, of Pikeville, niece of the groom. The bride's attendents wore floor-length gowns of wine tissue taffeta and burgundy velvet. The maid of honor carried a triple-tiered posey drop bouquet of sweetheart roses, miniature carnations, snowflake poms, statice, English holly, and boxwood foliage with contrasting velvet ribbon and she wore a hairpiece of sweetheart roses. The other attendants carried identical double tiers tor of youth, and Miss Kathy Harris, and wore nairpieces like that of the honor attendant.

Sarah McGuire, of Pikeville, niece of the groom, and Tracy Ramey, of Versailles, were flower girls.

Dr. Tom O. McGuire, Jr., of Pikeville, served his brother as best man. Groomsmen were Dennis Ashley, of Two Years Old

Free Tax Help For Elderly And Low Income In County

Free tax assistance for elderly and low income taxpayers in Floyd County will be available through April 14. Two sites will be staffed by volunteers from the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP), and one site will be staffed by volunteer students from Prestonsburg Community College.

All volunteers either participate in an IRS training program or receive special tax instruction at their college. The volunteers at the AARP sites will give priority help to taxpayers 60 and older, but will also give assistance to other low income and handicapped persons of any age. The Prestonsburg College site will give assistance to any low income and elderly taxpayers. All sites will help with both federal and state returns.

Taxpayers coming to the sites listed below should bring their tax packages received in the mail, records of income such as Form W-2, "Wage and Tax Statement," Form W-2P, "Pension Statement," information on deductions and credits, and copies of last year's tax and Mrs. Robert Dye, of Pikeville.

REBEKAHS MEET

The regular meeting of Miriam Rebekah Lodge No. 31 was held Tuesday evening, Feb. 21, with the noble grand, Miss Kelly Sue Moore, presiding, and conducting the business session. Those who were ill were noted, and "get-well" cards to be sent to them were signed.

Members welcomed back Mrs. Virginia Goble, who had been ill. Mrs. Goble was installed during the evening, as inside guardian for this year.

Reminders of important events were given, and are to take place as follows: The I.O.O.F. district meeting will be held here March 10; the District No. 4 Rebekah meeting, at the Paintsville R.E.C.C. Building, with Pleasant Valley Lodge No. 116 as hostesses, March 17; and an initiation will be held by the local lodge during the latter part of March.

Members of Miriam Lodge have been asked by District Deputy President Wilma Castle to be in charge of a memorial service for the members of District 4 who passed away during last year. This memorial will be held at the school of instruction, with several members helping to demonstrate different phases of the work of the order.

Following the meeting, a Valentine party was enjoyed inthe lodge dining room. Games were conducted by Mrs. Sue Moore, and refreshments in keeping with the Valentine season were served. All game and door prizes were won by Mrs. Jean Hickman.

Present for the meeting and party were Kelly Sue Moore, Mabel Jean LeMaster, Rebecca Bingham, Hope Whitten, Sue Moore, Theckley Short, Venelia Rinehart, Paulena Owens, Virginia Goble, Myrtle Allen, Norma Stepp, Willa Mae Branham, Effie Hopkins, Nola Stepp, Jean Hickman, and Helen Ormerod.

The next meeting will be next Tuesday evening at 7 o'clock at the I.O.O.F. Hall.

The United States Achievement Academy announced recently that Sally Huffman, Prestonsburg High School student, has been named a 1984 U.S.A.A. award winner in business education.

Sally, who was nominated for the national award by Mrs. Francis Brackett, business education teacher at Prestonsburg, will appear in the Academy yearbook, published nationally

The Academy selects USAA winners upon the exclusive recommendation of teachers, coaches, counselors or other school sponsors and upon the standards of selection set forth by the Academy.

Sally is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Huffman, of Prestonsburg, and granddaughter of Mrs. Myra West, of Dearborn Heights, Mich., and the late Frona Compton, of Phoenix, Arizona.

Jaycee Women Receive Charter

The Prestonsburg Area Jaycee Women attended the Winter All-State meeting, Feb. 10-13, in Owensboro. The meeting included a dance, breakfast buffet, workshops, and an awards dinner where this newly formed club was presented with their charter. Those in attendance were President Margaret Hunt, Vice-Presidents Kay Hale and Jane Wallace, Treasurer Renita Haywood, and Pat Vincent.

Week, President Hunt called a special dinner meeting to inform those members that did not attend the meeting of the developments at the All-State Meeting. The next regular meeting will be an orientation meet, March 8, at 6:30 p.m. at the Ky. Power Building, here.

REPEAL THE GREED BILL AND SAVE TAXPAYERS MILLIONS Senate Bill #103 (Legislative Retirement Bill), better known as the "Greed Bill" that became law

Senate Bill #103 (Legislative Retirement Bill), better known as the "Greed Bill" that became law in the 1982 Legislative session as the following State Legislators voted IN FAVOR OF THE BILL by overriding Governor Brown's veto of the bill.

This retirement bill for the Legislators provides up to $27,500.00 a year to retire on for working only part time 60 to 120 days every two years.

Sixty-five (65%) of the Legislators can presently qualify for the $27,500.00 annual retirement benefits if they serve in the Legislature for twenty years. If they serve for ten years the annual retirement benefits would be $13,750.00. If a Legislator lived on the highest retirement benefits for twenty years he could receive up to $550,000.00 in cash, not mention other medical and dental benefits he will receive.

These same Legislators received a typical salary and expense allowance of $19,800.00 for 1983 which will increase to $23,200.00 in 1984, for working part time 60 to 120 days every two years.

Weights, Measures Week Scheduled For March 1-7

When you make a purchase at the grocery store, fill your tank with gasoline at the service station or buy any product by weight or measure, you think the transaction is only between you and the vendor.

"There's always a third person involved in every consumer transaction, even though it may not be apparent," said Kentucky Agriculture Commissioner David E. Boswell.

That third person is the weights and measures inspector from the Kentucky Department of Agriculture. He checks all weighing and measuring devices used in sales to the public.

"This third person is always present in spirit to protect both the buyer and the seller," Boswell said. "The buyer is protected by receiving full measure. The merchant is protected from giving away part of his profits in overweight or overflow.

"Most people take the accuracy of scales and measuring devices for granted," the Commissioner added. "But it actually takes our inspectors thousands of hours each year to make the inspections necessary to insure his accuracy.

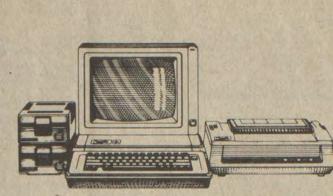

"Because accurate weights and measures are so essential to everybody, I am very proud to honor these consumer protection officials during National Weights and Measures Week, March 1-7," Boswell said.

The theme of the 1984 observance is "Weights and Measures—Equity in the Market Place." National Weights and Measures Week has been observed for the past 26 years during the first week in March to focus attention on the work of Weights and Measures officials.

The days were selected by weights and measures officials and the Scale Manufacturers Association for their historical significance. On March 2, 1799, President John Adams signed the nation's first weights and measures law.

ANKYLOSED TEETH

Q. What is an ankylosed tooth?

A. An ankylosed tooth is one which is partly or wholly fused to the jawbone. Sometimes the entire tooth is submerged in the gum and can be seen only by X-rays. In other instances, the tooth may erupt partially, then stop where it is. The condition may not be noticed until the teeth on either side of it have fully erupted. Other than its stunted size, the tooth can look perfectly normal, for the enamel looks fine. The X-rays tell a different story.

If the ankylosed tooth is a baby tooth, it must be removed to allow eruption of the permanent tooth beneath it. However, when a permanent tooth seems to be ankylosed, the dentist will very likely wait and watch to see if it moves into proper position on its own. It may not present any problems whatsoever.

The latest report from the U.S. Department of Agriculture indicates that an avian flu epidemic hitting poultry flocks in the Northeast may be under control, according to state Agriculture Commissioner David E.

WHEELWRIGHT'S NO. 12 was caught in a mid-air leap as he launched one during the Trojans' 59-51 win over Dorton at Wheelwright's homecoming game last week.

THE REBELETTES of Allen Central lost a heartbreaker, 56-54, to the Clay County Cougars, last Thursday night. The Rebelettes will face the winner of the Wheelwright-Prestonsburg game in the district tournament here, Friday night.

THOUGH THE DAREDEVIL'S Tim Newsome hit for two with his jumper during the McDowell-Hazard game, Saturday night, the Bulldogs held on for a tough 55-53 win.

Rebelettes Fall To Clay County

By BETTY HYDEN

The Allen Central Rebelletes had their hands full tangling with the Clay County Cougars, last Thursday night at Allen

Clay County jumped out to an early lead, 27-19, in the first half. Very few fouls were committed by either team, and both were displayed the philosophy that a good offense is the best defense.

The Rebelettes shot six of 12 free throws for 50%, and the Cougars shot seven of 14 for 50%. Allen Central came back after halftime to outscore Clay County, 18-14, and a basket by Lisa Green tied the game at 35 all. Clay County came back in the fourth quarter, scoring three quick baskets, but Allen Central hung in there to tie the game with two minutes left in the game. The Cougars wound it up with an exciting 56-54 victory over the Rebelettes, raising their record to 17-5, while Allen Central drops to 18-11. Leading scorer for the Cougars was Missy Davidson with 16 points, followed by Lotta Hobbs with 12; Gill Carnahan, 8; Missy Carnahan, Lillie Mae Bowman, and Diane Baker, with 7 each. For the Rebelettes, Belinda Click led all scores with 20 points; Lisa Green, 13; Robin Roope, 10; Rhonda Combs, 7, and Missy Bentley with 4.

It takes, on average, 37 seconds to deal a deck of 52 cards.

W'wright Homecoming Sees Trojans Winner By BETTY HYDEN

The Wheelwright Trojans came through with a 59-51 win over Dorton to make their homecoming festivities a victory celebration, too. Both teams started out slow in the first quarter with Wheelwright leading, 9-4. The Trojans quickly got their offense going in the second quarter, outscoring Dorton by 10 points and went into halftime with a 27-17 lead. Dorton, trying to make a game of it, came within four points but Wheelwright pulled away and stayed out front for the win.

David Hall led all scores with 24 points: Charlie Martin had 17; Jeff Boyd, 6; James Hall, 5; Tony Hutton, 4, and Jackie Hall, 3.

Dorton was led in scoring by Freddie Mullins with 15 points, followed by Joey Goodson, 10; Donnie Hall, 8; Chris Wright, 7; Gary Cantrell, 6, and Shannon Beverly, 5

Homecoming ceremonies were held between games when Miss Maunia Hall, escorted by Johnny Isaac, was crowned Wheelwright's 1984 Homecoming Queen. Her attendants were Sabrina Curry escorted by Charlie Martin, Beth Hall, escorted by Delmas Johnson, Ronda Johnson, escorted by James Sweeney; Sharon Meade, escorted by James Hall. Miss Hall was crowned by last year's queen, Miss Dena Curry, who was escorted by Tim Cole.

Sabrina Hall was flower girl, and Kelly Johnson was crown bearer.

Sure Sign of Spring— Bass Tourney Slated

Cabin fever got you down? Well, one sure cure for cabin fever is spring, and one sure sign of spring is the scheduling of bass fishing tournaments. The first open tournament in Eastern Kentucky will take place in less than eight weeks.

The Grayson Lunker Hunters Bass Club, of Grayson, will sponsor a bass fishing buddy tournament out of the Bruin Ramp on Grayson Lake from 8 a.m., until 5 p.m., Saturday, April 7. The event will be open to the public with a guaranteed $1,000 first place purse, plus other cash and merchandise awards.

Those that have not fished Grayson Lake in a few years, or those that will be fishing the lake for the first time, are in for a pleasant surprise. The 1400-acre impoundment, just south of the town of Grayson, is on the bass comeback trail. The lake now offers some of the areas finest bass fishing.

Local fishermen credit the good fishing to two factors, decreased fishing pressure and a special bass size limit. The first factor, decreased fishing pressure came about because other lakes have been built in the area which gave fishermen a wider selection of places to fish. The second factor is Grayson Lakes special size limit. There is a 15-inch size limit on the bass at Grayson, but here again, most local fishermen feel it improved the bass fishing. After fishing Grayson Lake, two time Kentucky state bass fishing champion, Phillip Cooper said, "Having fished most of the lakes in this area, I have found 15-inch bass easier to catch on Grayson than 12-inch bass on most other area lakes. It is my opinion the special limit has really improved the bass fishing." On the upcoming tournament, Cooper speculated, "If the weatherman cooperates, the winning weigh at the April event could go well over 20 pounds, with many fishermen catching impressive stringers

A $1,000 first prize is guaranteed. In addition to first, cash or merchandise prizes will be awarded to at least the top ten finishers. According to officials of the Grayson club, at least 75% of all entry fees will be returned to the participants in the form of cash awards. At this point, club officials estimate the total cash payback will be from $2,500

The tournament is open to the public. Registration may be made by mail, or in person at the Bruin Ramp before the tournaments 8 a.m. starting time. Club officials pointed out participants starting positions will be determined by their order of registration, Mail-in entries (based on the postmark) will start first, then those registering in person on a first come, first start bases.

To insure a fair tournament, top finishers may be required to take a polygraph, and members of the sponsoring club will not be allowed to enter the Entry forms will soon be available at most Giovann's Pizza and many area marinas, tackle shops, and other retail outlets catering to the fishermen. For additional information, entry forms, and tournament rules, write, GLH Bass Club, P.O. Box 925, Grayson, Ky. 41143 or phone (606) 474-4724.

Despite the growing popularity of recycling in many countries, International Wildlife magazine reports that only about one-fourth of all paper, aluminum, iron and steel is recycled. A report from Worldwatch Institute says that in 1981 people in the United States threw away more aluminum in the form of beverage containers than all the aluminum produced in Africa.

Deer Hunters To Get Refunds

Hunters who purchased a 1983 deer permit after Dec. 31 to hunt on the perimeter of Bernheim Forest can get their money back, Fish and Wildlife Commissioner Carl E. Kays announced

The four-day open deer season in portions of Bullitt and Nelson counties was originally scheduled to be held in conjunction with the Feb. 3-6 hunt on Bernheim Forest Refuge, but a court injunction prevented this hunt from taking

Only those hunters who purchased 1983 deer tags in 1984 and who did not or were not eligible to hunt on the Bernheim refuge itself will be granted refunds, Kays said. Because county court clerks retain a 75-cent fee from every tag sold, only the fish and wildlife departments share ($10.75) of the $11.50 tag will be refunded.

To receive a refund, mail the deer tag along with your complete mailing address to Deer Tag Refund, Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, No. 1 Game Farm Road, Frankfort, Ky. 40601.

Bulldogs Win 55-53 Over McDowell, Sat.

In Saturday night action, the Hazard Bulldogs won a hard-fought overtime victory, defeating McDowell, 55-53. In overtime play, Carl Wallace made two clutch free throws and a field goal to put the Bulldogs ahead.

Tim Newsome, of McDowell, fired a desperation shot from center court at the buzzer, but came up short.

TO MY FRIENDS, BOTH REPUBLICANS AND DEMOCRATS OF THE 31st JUDICIAL DISTRICT OF KENTUCKY:

Ladies and Gentlemen

In pressing my claims for the office of Commonwealth's Attorney of this Judicial District, I first canvassed my own county, that of Floyd, and found that most all my friends in same were enthusiastically for me; however, a few of them had "cold feet," so to speak, but were my friends and would have voted and done all they could to have elected me, but were weak in the faith,

I believe without a doubt I would have carried this county by a good majority. It is not necessary for me to say here how much, but it would have been a large majority in this county, for nearly all the Republicans would have voted for me, as well as a great number of the best Democrats in this county,

In Knott county, I found things entirely different. The Republicans were opposed to my running for this office and many of them were actually for my opponent, but said they were my friends and many of them wrote me about withdrawing from the race and I made a visit to see and talk with them personally about this matter, but was unable to convince them and get them to urged the ardent support of the Meth- was shot and killed near West Union, help me, so about half of the Republicans in Knott county would have voted against me, although they said they were my friends and that they had nothing personally or otherwise against me and that I would make a good Common> wealth's Attorney. The other half of the Republicans were enthusiastically for me and would have followed me until the last vote was cast and counted as cast. There are two factions of the Democratic party in Knott county opposed to each other on most all candidates for county and district offices, but I tried to get the support stopped at the home of a former wife, of one or the other of these factions, but could not get their help. I found, however, a great many of the best Democrats in Knott county for me and would have voted for me, and would have done all they could to have elected me. Knott county would have given a large majority against me; much larger against me than Floyd would have given for me, so that I could not have been

After arriving home from Knott county on Tuesday, October 25, and after reading many letters sent me and taking counsel with many of my friends both Democrats and Republicans, and after calling the Republican Committee together and after much deliberation and counsel with my friends of both parties here in Prestonsburg, on Saturday, October 29, it was thought to the best interest of my friends in this campaign for me to tender the resignation of my nomination for the office of Commonwealth's Attorney in the 31st Judicial District, which was accordingly done and accepted by the committee and at the court house at 7:00 o'clock p. m., October 29, I publicly announced my withdrawal from the race for the office of Commonwealth's Attorney to be voted for at the November election on November 8, 1927.

My friends, I would have not withdrawn from this race if there had been any reasonable hope of being elected, and would have run on anyway, if my running on had not appeared to be injurious to my friends in this campaign.

I have not words sufficient to express to my many friends, both Democratic and Republican, men and women, the gratitude and the heartfelt thanks I have for my many friends who encouraged me in this race and were ready to help

The day or night will never be too dark, cold or wet, that I will not be ready and willing to aid and assist you, if it be in my power so to do, and I will always remember you as my friends and will aid you when the opportunity presents itself. After I have done all I can for my friends, if I can, I am willing to aid my enemies, if I have any,

Your sincere friend,

William Dingus

Don't Lose Cattle To Grass Tetany

This year many farmers will lose cattle because of a problem that is simple to solve.

The culprit is grass tetany, a nutritional disorder of cattle caused by an abnormally low contration of magnesium in the animal's blood. And although grass tetany can strike at any time of the year, it is most likely to occur during the spring when cattle are grazing early, rapidly growing grass.

Dr. Warren Gill, Extension livestock specialist in the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture, says grass tetany typically strikes older cows after the second lactation. And it's most likely to occur when the temperature is cool with average daily temperatures between 40 and 60 degrees.

"It's unfortunate so many farmers lose cattle to grass tetany because a simple supplementation program can prevent it," said Gill who is headquartered at Robinson Substation, Quicksand.

He notes that commercial mixtures which contain magnesium are available. Producers also may mix their own supplementation using one part magnesium oxide, part trace mineralized salt and one part soybean meal.

Another mixture which Gill says has the advantage of providing other essential minerals is one part magnesium oxide, one part trace mineralized salt, and one part dicalcium phosphate and one part soybean meal or finely ground shelled corn.

Campbellsville Offers Scholarships in Music

Three $1,600 music scholarships will be awarded by Campbellsville College through a competition Friday, March 9, sponsored by the music faculty. Only first time freshmen for the fall 1984 semester are eligible.

The scholarships, to be spread over a four-year period, will be given to one vocal student, one keyboard student and one instrumental student. Scholarship recipients may also apply for performance grants and other financial aid at the College.

The competition schedule will begin with a written exam of approximately one and half hours length at 10 a.m. in Room 200 of the Fine Arts Center. Auditions will be held from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. in the Recital Hall of the Music Annex, after lunch at noon, compliments of the College, in the Student Union Building's Knowledge of the following will be tested during the exam: basic theoryscales, key signatures, intervals, rhythmic notation, time signatures and triads; and music literature-musical periods, promifient composers and im-

Individual auditions will last about 15 minutes and will be performed for the College's music faculty. Each student must perform two pieces from memory, with classical selections preferred, and will be asked to sight-read a brief

Students auditionining may bring an accompanist or, if preferred, one will be supplied. Students may not accompany themselves but unaccompanied pieces are allowable.

If a student is proficient in more than one performance area, auditions in each category will be permissible.

Perhaps you sent a lovely card, or sat quietly in a chair. Perhaps you sent a funeral spray, if so, we saw it there. Perhaps you spoke the kindest words, as any friend could say. Perhaps you were not there at all, just thought of us that day. Whatever you did to console our hearts, we thank you so much whatever the part.

Big Business Has Bargaining Power

It's late at night and you're watching TV. You get hungry and decide to fix a sandwich, but there's no lunchmeat. "No problem," you say, "I'll just run down to the corner convenience store and buy a pack.'

You get there and to your surprise the price of the package of lunchmeat is nearly double the price you normally pay at the town grocery. Why is this so? Dr. Larry Finley, associate professor of management at Western Kentucky University, says larger businesses buy in larger quantities and receive discounts from the suppliers which allows them to sell for less to the consumers. One reason big businesses can do this is because they have more bargaining power with the suppliers—they have more financial resources and suppliers are going to need their business more,'

Also when suppliers sell more, their costs per unit become less, Dr. Finley

Dr. Finley has recently published an article on the "Effects of Level of Transactions on Organization Resource Ac-'cess" as part of the WKU College of Business Administration Working Paper Series, and in his article says an organization's or business's survival ultimately "depends upon access to

"This is not a relatively new problem," he points out, "but a study was needed to explain why this occurs and to see exactly how wide-spread it has become." And Dr. Finley says he has ound the big business vs. small business situation to be much larger than ever before thought

"There appear to be many connections between an organization's volumes of transactions...and its access to resources of customers, suppliers, owners, creditors, and others," Finley says in his article. "While economists and sociologists have long been interested in effects of scale and size of efwiciency, little is written or known about effects of transactions volume on resource access, costs, and terms of acquiring these resources.

"Not only can the large company often sell at a higher price, but the large seller has a definite advantage in being able to reach customers for less cost per customer and per sales dollar.'

Dr. Finley's paper is a follow-up on an earlier study on organizational effectiveness, which dealt with a business's ability to acquire needed resources as a measure of its effectiveness

The article is also being reviewed by the American Journal of Small Businesses as a suggestion on how small businesses can act together to achieve some of the benefits the larger companies are receiving.

Speaks at HRMC Nursing Workshop

Dr. Roger Jurich spoke to area nurses about croup and epiglottitis at Highlands Regional Medical Center.

What treatments are available for a child with a hoarse, barking cough or one who wheezes when breathing in? Many area nurses spent a Saturday recently in the classroom at Highlands Regional Medical Center learning about and discussing the care of children with these symptoms. Croup and epiglottitis are the medical terms for the illnesses. They are viral infections of the upper airways that make children seriously ill and can cause death.

Dr. Roger Jurich, Family Practitioner, spoke at the workshop on the medical treatment of these infections. Clara Garrett, R.N., M.S.N., Director of the Prestonsburg Community College Nursing Program, discussed the nursing care of children with the two illnesses. An overview of the anatomy of the upper airways of pediatric patients and the respiratory care treatment of these patients was presented by George Stevens, HRMC Technical Director of Respiratory Care.

Nurses attending received continuing education credit for the seminar. Many commented on the value of the workshop. "It was an excellent program," said workshop participant Teresa Lynn Leslie, R.N., who works in the family practice office of Dr. Larry Leslie in Prestonsburg. "I received practical, down to earth knowledge that can be applied to our patients," she said.

W'wright Earns Award In Nat'l Water Project

The Wheelwright water treatment plant has earned an award for outstanding achievement in National Demonstration Water Project's Comptrain Project, NDWP Executive Director Edwin L. Cobb has announced. Certificates of participation were presented to the Martin water and wastewater treatment plants in Floyd county and the Salyersville water and wastewater plants in Magoffin county.

Forty-three water and wastewater treatment plants in South Carolina, Kentucky, Tennessee, West Virginia, Louisiana, and Mississippi received specialized training through the Comptrain Project last year. All of the plants were out of compliance with federal standards before receiving Comptrain assistance. All are in compliance or are nearing that goal after the year of intensive, on-site training assistance.

In 1980 and 1982 studies, the U.S. General Accounting Office found widespread violations of federal standards in small water and wastewater systems. The problem has been so severe that Environmental Protection Agency Administrator William Ruckelshaus recently approved a new 'get tough' policy: EPA will sue violators to force them to comply with GAO identified the lack of properly trained operators as an important reason for non-compliance in small systems. "Over-the-shoulder operator training programs can help bring small systems into compliance," said Executive Director Cobb. "We have shown this in the first year of the Comptrain Project, and we expect even better results in the second year.'

The Comptrain Project is a two-year project funded by the Environmental Protection Agency and the Appalachian Regional Commission. The project identifies plants that are out of compliance due to operator problems and attempts to bring them into compliance through on-site, individualized over-the-shoulder training and technical assistance. Comptrain training, or "Comptraining," was provided by NDWP's affiliate. Water Resources Assistance Corporation of Prestonsburg, with management by the national office. Special financial management assistance was also provided to help communities improve fiscal operation of their water or wastewater systems.

National Demonstration Water Project is a nonprofit organization with a 10-year record of assisting rural communities with their water and wastewater problems. Headquartered in Washington, D.C., NDWP is guided by a board of directors chosen from local and regional water and wastewater assistance organizations from across the

Student Aid Info. For Coming Year

Students and their parents should be made aware of and have an understanding of the various student financial aid programs made available to them by federal, state, and local student financial aid agencies.

There are three major forms of aid for students: Grants and Scholarships, Loans, and Work programs. Grants and Scholarships—These are gift money that does not have to be repaid. Examples include the Pell Grant, State Grants, alumni scholarships, institutional grants, merit awards, local scholarship awards from your community, and grants from private foundations. Loans-There are a number of low interest (5% to 9%) loans available to students to help with the cost of education. These include the National Direct Student Loan, the Guaranteed Student Loan, the parent's Plus Loan program and health profession loans such as nursing loans. College Work-Study program-The federal government supports a campus work program at most colleges and universities. In addition, many institutions have their own work programs to help students meet their costs. Under these programs a student 1t. can work while in school. Many students receive jobs that are not only interesting but improve their chances for employment after graduation.

These three kinds of aid are used together to meet the needs of students. It is very important to apply for aid early. Students who will be starting college in the fall of '84 will have their aid determined based on their parents' income from January '83 to December '83. Kentucky Financial Aid forms are now available and can be picked up from high school counselors and college financial aid officers. Any student or parent interested in any of the student financial aid programs listed above, regardless of the institution he is planning to attend, may contact Mrs. Brenda C. Most sore throats are due to virus infections which will not respond to antibiotics or mouthwashes. For sore throats that are due to bacteria, an antibiotic, administered in tablet form or by injection, will benefit the affected area. The only way to determine if a sore throat is viral or bacterial in origin is by a throat culture. This is very important for severe, long-lasting infections since the possibility of a strep throat is dangerous and demands penicillin treatment or the like to prevent further serious complications. Symptomatic treatment with a mouthwash would be harmful in that it may delay a trip to the doctor.

First see your doctor and then if he prescribes medication for any reason have him call us directly. At COOLEY APOTHECARY we take great pride in the role we play in promoting the health of folks in our community. Our complete medical family profiles are readily available to you at income tax time. Miss Music, Mr. Botkins To Wed

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Music, of East Point, Ky., announce the engagement and forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Miss Brigitte Renee Music, to Mr. Billy Lee Botkins, Jr., son of Mrs. Janice Carpenter, of Clarksville, Ind., and Mr. William A. Carpenter, of Greenville, South Carolina.

Miss Music is a 1981 graduate of Stephens College and presently employed at Salyer's Store in Paintsville. Mr. Botkins' is a 1978 graduate of Clarksville High School and is presently employed with a firm in Charlotte, North Carolina. The wedding is planned for Saturday, June 16, at 6:30 p.m., at Mayo

Memorial United Methodist Church, Paintsville, Ky.

Is Enrolled Agent, Treasury Department

Eugene Russell, H & R Block owner/manager, has achieved the status of an enrolled agent of the U.S. Treasury Department

To become an enrolled agent, applicants must pass a written examination administered by the Internal Revenue Service. As a Block associate, Russell has nearly 200 hours of classroom training including a special course in preparation for the exam.

"H & R Block is fortunate to have Eugene Russell as one of our franchise owners/managers," said Jed W. Utsinger, district manager for Eastern Kentucky and Western West Virginia.

Eugene Russell has been with H & R Block for 16 years. He is currently owner/manager of nine offices in West Virginia and Kentucky, including the offices in Martin, Pikeville, and Prestonsburg

His many friends are wishing him a speedy recovery.

Maytown Homemakers met Feb. 9 at 7 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Alda Gibson who served a lovely meal. Those attending were Vanessa Adkins, a new member, Melvina Scott, Helen Boyd, Frances Pitts, Alice Hayes and Susan Goins. The meeting was called to order by Helen Boyd with devotional led by Alda Gibson and reading of numites by Susan Goins. The lesson by Frances Pitts was on consumer safety. There were three new members present: Libby Flanery, Vanessa Adkins and Debbie Goodman.

YOUR COMPLETE HOME CENTER HEADQUARTERS

Not a pre-fab . . . not a shell house! A Lowe-E* Homestead* is complete. The package has all the materials needed to build the home of the future—today—on your lot from the foundation plate up. Labor and construction costs are not included.

You, the home buyer, furnish the land, labor, and foundation. We provide everything else from the inside out! This includes not only blueprints and building materials, but also paint, carpet, light fixtures. plumbing accessories & supplies etc.

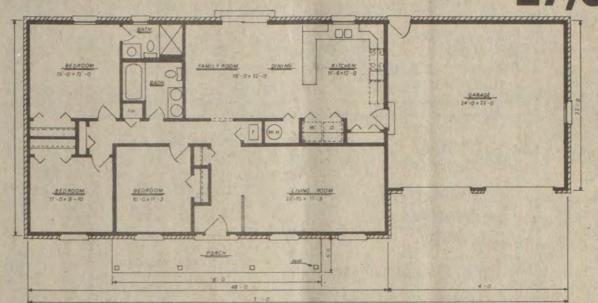

The Lowe-E* Homestead* has been specially designed as the most energy-efficient home you can buy, it has extra insulation • double-paned windows extensive caulking • energy-saving heat pump • light-colored, heat-reflecting roof.

Building materials are delivered to the home site as work progresses, so there's minimal waiting or wasted materials. FHA property standards are adhered to. Any changes required to meet local codes, may alter the price accordingly.

"Special Note"

For your convenience. If you would like an early morning or evening appointment we would be happy to show at our store all materials included in our homestead package. You may choose from one of our 87 home designs or bring your own floor plan for a complete material take off by one of our professional salesmen. And we will guarantee our price for 90 days.

STATEMENT OF NONDISCRIMINATION

Big Sandy Rural Electric Cooperative Corporation has filed with the Federal Government a Compliance Assurance in which it assures the Rural Electrification Administration that it will comply fully with all requirements of Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 and the Rules and Regulations of the Department of Agriculture issued thereunder, to the end that no person in the United States shall, on the ground of race, color, or national origin, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be otherwise subjected to discrimination in the conduct of its program and the operation of facilities.

Under this Assurance, this organization is committed not to discriminate against any person on the ground of race, color, or national origin in its policies and practices in relation to treatment of beneficiaries and participants including rates, conditions, and extension of service, use of any of its facilities, attendance at and participation in any meetings of beneficiaries and participants or the exercise of any rights of such beneficiaries and participants in the conduct of the operations of this organization.

Any person who believes himself, or any specific class of individuals, to be subjected by this organization to discrimination prohibited by Title VI of the Act and the Rules and Regulations issued thereunder may, by himself or a representative, file with the Secretary of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250, or the Rural Electrification Administration, Washington, D.C. 20250, or this organization, or all, a written complaint. Such complaints must be filed not later than 90 days after the alleged discrimination, or by such later date to which the Secretary of Agriculture or the Rural Electrification Administration extends the time for filing, identity of complaints will be kept confidential except to the extent necessary to carry out the purposes of the Rules and Regulations.

COOPERATIVE EXTENSION PROGRAM KENTUCKY STATE UNIVERSITY

I don't know about you, but I frequently get confused when I read or hear news items in which initials and abbreviations are used. The government, the sports community, citizens action groups, every group seems to have its own special set of letters. I might as well join the crowd and hit you with three letters that have become very important in many aspects of agriculture in the past few years.

I'm referring to IPM—Integrated Pest Management (not a new way to control kids at nursery school or a new personal computer). This is a multifaceted approach to insect and disease control. Rather than immediately run for our chemical arsenal when a cabbage looper peeks at us from between the broccoli buds or when we find aphids wandering along our forearms after we brush against the tomatoes, let's look at some alternative pest-control approaches. Let's turn to IPM for some basic maneuvers to outwit, run away from, move away from or even hide from these nasty creatures.

First and foremost, and I know you've heard this before, get pest problems identified correctly before seeking remedies. Nothing makes a control measure more ineffective, more futile, than the incorrect identification of the problem. Believe it or not, Sevin or malathion or captain or benlate won't kill everything. Nor is it necessarily desirable to kill everything-some beneficial insects prey on harmful insects. This is called biological control and is important in IPM.

The University of Kentucky's Plant Diagnostic Lab is available for idenification of insect and disease problems via your county agricultural agent. But do your ag agent and the lab people two favors. First, try to be sure that your plant's problem is pathological—caused by a disease or insect-and not physiological-caused by the weather, too little water, too much fertilizer, even by the urine of your pet puppy! Second, even if the first isn't possible, provide a sufficiently large sample that is in good condition (be it dead or alive, don't bend, staple or mangle it!) and that is typical of the problem. Bigger is better in this

Once as correct an identification as possible has been made—and each year we see new and old problems that leave us puzzled-we need to approach the problem in two ways-how do we control it right now and how do we prevent it in the future. Let's look at future controls first (because many of these things you can do this spring to decrease problems this summer), then we'll come back to "what do I do now?"

Start with garden preparation. First, clean up the debris from last year's garden. If you even suspected that some of your plants had pest problems, dispose of them, don't compost them or leave them lying near your garden. Many diseases and insects overwinter on or in plant debris. This part of IPM is called sanitation.

Sanitation should also be exercised during the growing season. If a cucumber plant suddenly collapses from bacterial wilt, pull it or "rogue it out," as the experts say, and trash it. If a cucumber beetle feeds on the diseased plant, it can be the agent or vector for transmitting the disease to a healthy plant. A quick pull and toss to the garbage can may solve the problem. This also applies to weeds that may harbor

Next, if soil-borne problems plague your plants, it might help to sterilize your soil. Either a chemical designed for homeowner use, or solar sterilization under plastic will help to rid the soil of many insect, disease and even some weed problems.

paper and order your seeds, do three things. First, rotate the location of crops and relatives. Don't put cabbage back where cabbage was, or even where its cousin broccoli was. Put it where the watermelon was. This physically removes plants from areas in which their pests may have built up.

Second, carefully read those pretty seed catalogs. Your favorite tomato variety from twenty years ago may be susceptible to diseases such as fusarium and verticillium wilt. Pick new plant varieties that have been bred for increased disease and insect resistance or tolerance. Also, when shopping at the garden center, be sure to purchase disease-free seed and transplants.

Third, put plants in the environmental conditions in which they belong-sun plants in sun, shade plants in shade. Tomatoes in two hours of sun will be stressed, less healthy and more vulnerable to attack. Likewise, water, fertilize, mulch and apply other cultural practices correctly.

Despite all these good efforts, few gardens will ever be pest free. Effective use of chemicals is an integral part of IPM, but more of a last rather than a first defense. Chemical manufacturers are becoming more and more aware of the public's concerns with regard to both commercial and their own private use of chemicals and are adjusting products accordingly. When you shop for chemicals this year, look for some of the newer products such as insecticidal soaps that use biodegradable fatty acids to kill baddies but not goodies. There are also premeasured, small doses of insecticides and fungicides in individual containers for easy mixing and no waste, and insecticides in easy to insert sticks similar to fertilizer sticks or spikes. Ask your county agriculture agent for more information on these products.

While many of these IPM techniques are common sense and have been advocated as individual helpful practices in the past, this multifaceted approach is now the "in" way to battle the bugs

Timely Tip: Save money on garden seed this year by buying seed in bulk and sharing with neighbors, club members or participants in community gardens or farmers markets. And if you have seed left from last year, check whether enough of it is still alive (viable)-roll 10 seeds up in a moist paper towel, enclose in a plastic bag and germinate in a warm place. If fewer than 5 seeds (50 percent) germinate, either buy fresh seed or double to triple your seeding

JUST TELLING IT LIKE IT IS!

REPLY AND ANSWER TO CHETT'S AND MRS. EMANUEL'S "LETTERS TO THE EDITOR" FEB. 22, FLOYD COUNTY TIMES.

THE PEOPLE SERVING ON THE PRESTONSBURG CITY COUN-CIL DO NOT HAVE ANYTHING AGAINST OUR FRIENDS AND NEIGHBORS LIVING OUTSIDE THE CITY OF PRESTONSBURG. The people that want to be a part of the city can be and the people that don't want to be in can vote down any annexation that ever comes up.

The City Council was saying "that our city taxpayers could not continue pulling the whole load, on fire protection, for everyone in the lower end of the county." All cities and towns are feeling the slow economic times and lack of surplus money.

The whole thing boils down to: Why doesn't the Floyd Co. Fiscal Court treat the people of Prestonsburg and the people in Magistrate Dist. #1, the same on county benefits as the rest of the county gets??

The Mud Creek area has received approx. $30,000 for their fire protection, from the fiscal court—the Beaver Creek area has received nearly the same amount for their fire protection. The people of Cow Creek and Auxier bought their own fire trucks with a very limited capacity of water and that's it, period! The majority of the county's population lives in or around Prestonsburg and gets the least amount of fiscal court help.

The people living in Prestonsburg pay their city taxes and their county taxes also, the people living outside the city pay their county taxes too. All of these people (Abbott Creek, Middle Creek, Cliff, Auxier road, Sugar Loaf and Prestonsburg) get treated like we all live in Johnson County or as if we are not as good as the people in the rest of the county. We must not be; because the fiscal court only hands out crumbs to us while the rest of the county gets the whole cake.

That is the way it has been ever since I can remember and everyone knows that it is the truth. Why??

Since all this started, Frankfort just recently (last week) promised to try and find Prestonsburg a qualified fire truck for service to May Lodge and park, for us to keep at Lancer, thereby making an extra truck that we could use for additional service for our area.

Last week the City of Prestonsburg placed a notice in the Floyd County Times to see if anyone would like to subscribe for fire truck service. The fees are very small but at least they would be something to help buy and maintain fire service equipment with.

The Floyd Co. Fiscal Court's money for fire protection and anything else, goes to the upper end of the county but the people in Prestonsburg and Dist. #1 who pay their county taxes too are treated like (1) They don't deserve it; (2) They don't get it; (3) Aren't good enough; (4) They don't know any better; (5) or let the retired people, home owners, and working people in Prestonsburg continue to furnish fire protection for the whole lower end of the county and the Floyd Co. Fiscal Court won't have to spend a dime for fire protection for the people in District #1. The fiscal court should treat all sections of Floyd County the same.

Another way the people in the Town of Prestonsburg get the county shaft: Our city population doesn't increase, but the extra garbage that we haul for others that bring theirs into town and dump it and don't pay their county garbage fee, does increase. We started paying solid waste fees to the county at $1200 per month but now the city of Prestonsburg pays $2250 per month to the county solid waste or garbage dump. If everyone in Floyd County had to pay their garbage bill at the same high rate that Prestonsburg has to pay, the solid waste project would not be short of money or have to be investigated or be in debt. The dump could or would look like "Disney World" or "The 1984 Olympics," and have plenty of money in the bank.

It seems that the fiscal court is trying to ride a good horse to death.

Asks Rule Change To Deter Fraud

Kentucky Attorney General David L. Armstrong told the Federal judicial Conference Committee on Rules of Practice and Procedure that state efforts to combat Medicaid fraud schemes are being hampered by a rule prohibiting disclosure of federal grand jury investigation information to state investi-

Representing the National Association of Medicaid Fraud Control Units, Armstrong urged the Committee to recommend a revision of Federal Rule of Criminal Procedure 6(e) to allow state law enforcement officials ready access to federal grand jury materials revealing potential violations of state criminal law. Currently, Rule 6(e) severely restricts the disclosure of federal grand jury matters to state officials.

Citing Medicaid fraud as "an intolerable danger to our nation's already beleaguered health care system," Armstrong stated that current losses from Medicaid fraud and abuse present "a burden that public funds cannot and will not sustain.

'State Medicaid Fraud Control Units," said Armstrong, "continue to represent the public's single greatest weapon to deter and punish those who would abuse the Medicaid system." Since Medicaid is a joint federal-state program and state Medicaid fraud control efforts sever both federal and state interests, Armstrong continued, "it is crucial for the state units to have ready access to federal grand jury investigations which might contain evidence of Medicaid fraud.

Kentucky's Medicaid system, which provides for the health care of the poor and disabled, is monitored by Armstrong's Medicaid Fraud Control Unit. The unit's investigative and prosecution efforts in 1983 resulted in 8 convictions of health care providers and produced nearly $400,000 in criminal fines and reimbursements to the Medicaid

Summer Food Service Venders Must Register

Food service management companies which plan to act as vendors for USDA's 1984 summer food service program for children in Kentucky must register with the state on or before March 15.

The summer food program provides nutritious meals to children from areas of economic need, without regard to race, color, national origin, sex or handicap, at qualified public or private nonprofit, nonresidential institutions or residential camps during the summer

Regulations require that companies providing food for the summer food program must be reputable and able to meet the terms of their contracts. In addition, under USDA's rules, food service management companies must provide states, at the time of registration, with detailed information on their operation for the past two years. Companies wanting information on the summer food program or applications for registration in Kentucky should contact: Rendell Butler, Director; Division of School Food Service; State Department of Education; Capital Plaza Tower, 17th Floor; Frankfort, Ky. 40601.

Lawsuit Alleges Failure To Assess Mining Property

in federal court by the Kentucky Fair Tax Coalition alleging that the Kentucky Revenue Cabinet systematically fails to fairly assess several forms of property belonging to coal, oil and gas interests.

The class action suit asks relief for state residents whose property is assessed and taxed at its full value, and who therefore bear a disproportionate share of the property tax burden. Relief should be granted under the 14th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution which guarantees everyone equal protection Vunder the law, according to the lawsuit.

In addition to the failure to assess property correctly, KFTC is also claiming that 1978 legislative action which lowered the tax rate on unmined coal is, in effect, a de facto exemption from taxation. Currently, the tax rate on unmined coal is so low that most counties make no attempt to collect it.

KFTC is pushing legislation in the General Assembly calling for a fair tax on unmined minerals while protecting small landowners.

In a Frankfort press conference last Friday, KFTC attorneys stated that although the suit names Property Valuation Administrators (PVA's) in six counties as defendants, representing a class of all PVA's in the state, much of the blame for the inadequacies in the tax system fall on the Revenue Cabinet.

The state does not provide PVA's with sufficient technical assistance to enable them to properly assess property held by coal, oil, and gas interests," the suit reads. Supervision of such assessments by the state is also inadequate, KFTC claims

Revenue Cabinet Secretary Gary Gillis has also been named as a defendant in the suit.

Mineral properties are underassessed also because it is "politically expedient" for state and local officials to do so, KFTC attorneys stated

Joe F. Childers, a Lexington attorney, said that the types of property which are historically underassessed include land, improvements to land, equipment, unextracted coal, oil and gas, and mineral

Childers also indicated that the federal lawsuit is an attempt to get a definitive ruling on a number of proper-

Could Help Thousands Avoid Heart Surgery

A new diagnostic technique that could eliminate the need for coronary bypass surgery for thousands of patients has been developed by cardiologists at the Ann Arbor, Mich., VA Medical Center and the University of Michigan Medical

The new technique, which is described in the January issue of the American Heart Journal, enables doctors to obtain such precise measurements of the heart's blood supply that they can determine immediately whether the patient will require bypass surgery or whether the blocked arteries can be reopened by the simpler, non-surgical procedure known as balloon angioplasty.

Robert A. Vogel, M.D., chief car-diologist at the VA Medical Center and head of the research team, said about 200,000 persons undergo coronary bypass surgery each year. He said that about 20-25 percent of these patients might benefit from the simpler procedure, in which a balloon is inflated inside the artery to spread the artery walls and restore blood flow to the heart.

In addition to being far less costly than bypass surgery, angioplasty is also much less traumatic. Results are immediate, and recuperation is measured in days rather than weeks.

Another advantage is that if angioplasty is the treatment of choice, it can be performed immediately: the balloon is simply inserted through the catheter already in place for the diagnostic procedure.

The new diagnostic technique uses the computer imaging technique developed for bringing back pictures from space to enhance X-ray movies of the blood flow in patients with coronary artery disease.

Because computer enhancement brings out details not visible to the naked eye, Dr. Vogel said, "We can measure the flow of blood to the patient's heart and determine instantly, artery by artery, whether the obstructions are significant: causing patient's chest pain or other symptoms.

"With these measurements, we can tailor therapy to each patient based on the condition of his arteries," he added.

The system is currently in routine use at the VA Medical Center and is being installed in University of Michigan hospitals as well.

Central Baptist Promises "No-Charge" Satisfaction

Central Baptist Hospital announces the implementation of a new patient satisfaction program.

Called "Guaranteed Excellence", the program means that if a patient is dissatisfied with a service at Central Baptist Hospital, and hospital personnel are unable to solve the problem to the patient's satisfaction, then the patient is not charged for the cost of the service in question. A patient representative is available at all times to handle patient

"We're proud of the 30-year tradition of excellence established by our physicians, nurses and support staff," said Tommy J. Smith, Central Baptist President. "And now we're expressing our pride and confidence in our staff through this Guaranteed Excellence Program.'

Central Baptist Hospital, a 367-bed facility established in 1954, is completing a $22-million expansion renovation project his spring.

NOTICE

The City of Prestonsburg is considering implementing an out-of-town fire subscription service for residents of the county within five (5) road miles of the main fire station in Prestonsburg. This service means that county residents would pay a set fee bi-annually for fire protection from the City of Prestonsburg, with the city mini-pumper. This, of course would lower the fire insurance rates of the subscribers. If you are interested in subscribing to this proposed service, please fill out the form below and mail it to the City Administrator, P.O. Box 31, Prestonsburg, Ky. 41653 by March 7, 1984.

Sponsors of HB 665

Rep. Greg Stumbo, D-Prestonsburg (left), Rep. Roger Noe, D-Harlan, and Rep. Herbie Deskins, D-Pikevile, (right) are sponsoring legislation making special funding available to Kentucky industries if they install coal fired

House Bill 665 directs the Board of Energy Research to issue revenue bonds totaling thirty million dollars to meet the revenue costs of the proposal. The legislative measure would allow industries to have up to ten years to Stumbo, Noe and Deskins agreed the legislation is designed to help the coal producing area of the state that they represent. Plus, they said it should be labeled one of the pieces of consumer legislation introduced in the 1984 session, because the impact of the bill would put miners back to work.

Early Tests Clear Products Of EDB Danger in Four Cities

State Calinet for Human Resources officials report that none of the 20 products tested last week at its Frankfort lab or at a private analytical laboratory in Memphis contained more EDB than the federal Environmental Protection Agency recently declared safe for human consumption. (EDB, ethylene dibromide, is a chemical used by some food manufacturers and processors to control pests.)

Irving Bell, director of the cabinet's Consumer Health Protection branch, said that EDB levels found in the tested foods and mixes range from less than one part per billion to 144 parts per billion. The sample with the highest level (a cake mix) and a cream of wheat sample with an EDB reading of 96 parts per billion are undergoing confirmatory testing in Memphis.

EPA standards established early this month allow maximum EDB levels of 30 parts per billion in ready-to-eat products (dry cereals, for example), 150 parts per billion in products to be cooked (cake mixes, hot cereals, etc.), and 900 parts per billion in raw unprocessed grains. Bell said higher levels can be allowed in foods to be cooked or processed because EDG evaporates when subjected to

"Obviously, all the samples we tested fall within the federal guidelines," said Bell. "There is no cause for alarm. We will continue testing various products over the next three weeks and will let the public know of any food products that exceed the new EDB limits.

Bell said testing would continue beyond the three-week period if high EDB levels are found. If the levels are well within the federal tolerance, he anticipates a slow-down in EDB testing.

Starting this week, Bell's office will begin sampling products from various warehouses in the state. The 20 products already tested came from retail shelves in Louisville, Lexington, Ashland and Paducah. Bell explained that warehouse carry a wider range of products for testing and that problems can be identified faster by sampling at the wholesale level.
