

Pharmacists Say UMW Drug Ceiling May Be Ruinous

It was prescribed to help cure a malignant growth, but coalfield pharmacists complain they are being asked to swallow a bitter pill.

The diagnosis was worked out in contract talks between the United Mine Workers' Association (UMWA) and the Bituminous Coal Operators' Association (BCOA), talks that produced a four-year contract last month and, for the first time in 20 years, averted a union-wide strike.

One problem the negotiators tackled was the sharp rise in the cost of providing health benefits that have traditionally been an important part of the miners' contract. They resolved it in part by setting a new ceiling on the amount pharmacists will be reimbursed for the drugs they dispense to working and retired miners.

But about 40 pharmacists who met here last week say they have been blamed unfairly for the problem and are being made to bear a disproportionate share of the cost of a remedy. While the coal operators and the union might be healthier as a result, some pharmacists fear they will not survive the cure.

"They have really made us look like the bad guys," said Eric Herrin, a partner in the Herrin-Johnson Pharmacy in Highland Plaza, one of several area pharmacists to claim that coal industry leaders have systematically portrayed them as greedy opportunists, reaping undue profits by overcharging miners for their drugs.

Their first news of the new deal worked out between the operators and the union came in a notice most area pharmacists received around Oct. 4 from the Washington, D.C. office of the UMWA Health and Retirement Funds, the agency that administers health benefits for 160,000 retired miners and their families. ### Town of Martin Ready for 15th Red, White, Blue

The 15th annual renewal of Red, White and Blue Day, to be held Saturday at Martin, has been dedicated to American servicemen who were prisoners of war or missing in action.

Red, White and Blue Day was founded by Marcella Bailey, Eastern housewife, to emphasize patriotism and the customs and interests of the area from pioneer days to the present.

The flag raising initiating the day's events will be held at 10 a.m. Saturday at the Martin Elementary School. An antique car show at 1 p.m. will precede the long parade of floats, bands, beauty queens, civic groups and school organizations at 2 p.m.

The parade route will be lined with decorated shop windows, patriotic colors and booths displaying various products.

The Red, White and Blue beauty pageant was staged at 7 o'clock last Saturday evening at Allen Central High School, and the winners will share prominent places in the parade. Rodney Hutchinson will act as parade marshal.

For the day's festivities fair weather is predicted. Never in history of Red, White and Blue Day has the event been marred by rain.

Threat of Layoffs Mars Dedication of New Clinic

The dignitaries were on hand, a modest crowd turned out, and—as befits the dedication of an important community facility—the speeches were of hope and congratulation. But, for some of those standing in the warm autumn sun, Saturday would be remembered as well for what was not said.

Not in public at any rate. For, while the official orators spoke of the new Mud Creek Clinic at Grethel as a dream realized, a tribute to its founder and a monument to teamwork, another word was spreading like brushfire among clinic staffers.

The word was layoffs. From their trucked dais, officials and politicians chronicled the clinic's growth from its humble origins on Tinker Fork 11 years ago, through the years it operated out of a cramped cottage on Mink Branch, to its rebirth now in an elegant brick building at the mouth of Mitchell Branch.

But, for staff members at the Mud Creek clinic and a Magoffin county clinic also managed by the Prestonsburg-based Big Sandy Health Care, Inc., the talk was not of growth but of the cutbacks needed at least until the agency can get a new infusion of the federal funds on which its life depends.

While details of the shakeup are not yet complete, one proposal doing the rounds among anxious clinic workers Saturday would have pink slips going out to seven employees, including four at Mud Creek, two at the Magoffin Clinic, and one on the agency's central office staff. Effective for a three-month period beginning Nov. 1, the proposed retrenchment would shut down the pharmacy opened only five months ago at the Mud Creek site and now poised for transfer to its new quarters.

The themes of the dedication speeches were of communities pulling together, federal policies that neglected the poor, the tenacity of clinic founder Eula Hall. Mrs. Hall called the new $400,000 facility "a symbol of what people can do if they stick together." State Rep. Chris Perkins, lamenting that the social programs of President Lyndon B. Johnson's Great Society are no longer fashionable, promised to "keep on working for people whether it's the chic thing or not." Don Lafferty, board chairman of the Mud Creek Community Health Corporation, which owns the new clinic, drew applause when he said, "Really, this is Eula Hall's day."

Technically a social worker at the clinic she organized, Mrs. Hall has defended it and its clients over the years with a mother's zeal. Clinic staffers presented her with a portrait of herself to hang in the new facility. So did Middle Creek artist Tim Sizemore. "This is the lady that never gave up," said one speaker. "And never will," added Mrs. Hall, who vowed, "I'll be here as long as there's strength in this body."

But Sarah Ragalyi, a nurse at the clinic for the past four years, may not be there as long as next month. Sister Cathryn Wright, a nurse-practitioner, pharmacist Gwen Roe, and pharmacy aide Flossie Slone may also be let go. They are among those targeted for layoffs by Big Sandy Executive Director Ellis G. Buchanan in an effort to trim expenses by $63,000 over the next three months.

The mixture of public confidence and private anguish that pervaded Saturday's dedication ceremony is nothing new for the Mud Creek Clinic which, from the time it first grew out of a "health fair" organized by Vanderbilt University students in the early 70's, has blended doughty self-reliance with economic dependency. A focus of continuing loyalty, especially among the poorer families who make up the bulk of its clientele, the clinic has also been a beggar at the door of any agency with funds to spend on their health care.

Until 1976, when a long strike bankrupted the union's health funds, the United Mine Workers' Association picked up the tab for much of the health care administered at the Mud Creek Clinic. Since then, the clinic has been dependent on a federal Health and Human Services Department grant, administered by Big Sandy Health Care, which still accounts for 58 percent of that agency's $1.2 million budget.

While the agency is under constant pressure from federal officials to increase the income earned through patient fees, that becomes especially problematic, Buchanan explained recently, when hard economic times cause more indigent patients to turn to the agency's

$5 Million Mine Exhibit Planned for Opening Here

Construction is slated to begin in coming weeks on an estimated $5 million project to create an exhibition coal mine, designed as a major tourist attraction for the area.

Plans for the undertaking were revealed recently by Donald L. "Dootney" Horn, Prestonsburg businessman and chief developer of the project which will be located on 27 acres of land along KY 114 (Mountain Parkway), opposite the entrance to Archer Park (see story, this issue).

Work on the site, which was purchased from J. W. Clifton, area coal developer, and consists mostly of steep hillside, will begin soon, according to Horn, and will require extensive excavation to provide for as much as three acres of parking and an outside coal museum building. Fill from the site has been promised to the City of Prestonsburg for a small fee for the construction of a floodwall at Archer Park (see story, this issue).

Although another such mine has been operated successfully at Beckley, W. Va. since 1964, the Prestonsburg project is considerably more ambitious, according to Horn. Terming the project "the Smithsonian Institute of Coal Mining," he said the mine, which will extend 1,200 feet to the coal face, would include displays depicting the entire history of coal mining, from the 1850's to the present.

Already antique mining implements as well as modern tools have been donated, including tools used by Loretta Lynn's father, which have been donated by a brother of the famed Van Lear songstress. Lifelike, motorized mannikins will pick tirelessly at the coal and a continuous miner will be displayed as an example of "state of the art" technology.

A tram will shuttle visitors in and out of the mine with stops along the way to view recorded video and sound explanations of the history of coal and mining practices. In addition, Horn pointed out, "visitors will be able to dig a lump of coal and, for a small fee, receive a document certifying that they have dug coal in a Kentucky coal mine."

It is planned that in the farthest reaches of the mine will be a gift shop and snack bar, with a coal museum located at the mine mouth.

According to Horn, he has the blessing of state officials. "They want to encourage tourism any way they can, and they consider this to be sort of what the Kentucky Horse Park is to the Bluegrass," he said. State and federal mine officials have offered to work in the safe design and maintenance of the facility and will conduct frequent inspections, Horn stressed.

With an April 1 target date for opening, Horn said the exhibition mine will employ between 20 and 30 people and could attract as many as 200,000 visitors annually.

Town Branch Man Seriously Wounded Following Holdup

A Town Branch man was shot and critically wounded early Saturday morning and faces a charge of first-degree robbery after he allegedly held up a gas station attendant near Paintsville.

State police said Elmer Blankenship, 22, is charged with robbing the Solo service station, about a mile south of Paintsville, around 2:30 a.m.

He apparently left the scene but returned a few minutes later and fired six shots from a .22 caliber handgun at the gas station attendant, Charles E. Dollarhide, 29, of Van Lear. The shots missed but Dollarhide returned the fire and two of three shots struck Blankenship in the head, police said.

Blankenship was taken first to the Paul B. Hall Medical Center and then to St. Mary's Hospital in Huntington, where he was in critical condition. Police said $125 was taken from the gas station.

Investigators were also looking into a possible link with an earlier armed robbery at Martin. Carl Jarrell, 44, of Dana, said he was working on his disabled auto on KY 80 when an armed man robbed him of his wallet and $2. In both incidents the alleged assailant's weapon was described as a small handgun with a long barrel.

$3 Million Contract Awarded On Shopping Center Near Here

Hughes & Associates have awarded a contract for approximately $3 million for "turnkey job" construction of Glyn View Plaza, the 65,000-square-foot shopping center planned on US 23, near the intersection of that highway with KY 80, outside Prestonsburg.

The contractor is the Branscum Construction Co., of Russell Springs, which already had been listed as the developers' general contractor on the project. Next March 1 has been set for the completion date.

Footers for the overall structure were completed this week, steel is due on the site today (Wednesday) and it will begin going up Monday, according to James A. Hughes, head of the developing firm. The shopping center, designed to accommodate 17 separate businesses, fronts on KY 114 (the Mountain Parkway), and its site has been raised by earthen fill to a height of seven feet to eliminate the threat of flooding. Parking lot paving will be done next month, Hughes said. Approval of the state highway department of plans for a turn lane off US 23 at a point near the Western Sizzlin' Steak House and an entrance to the shopping center from KY 114 has been gained, and this is work to be completed this year.

The business occupying the largest floor space in the center will be Piggly Wiggly, which will be moving from its present location in Prestonsburg. Others include Rite-Aid Drug Store, Arby's Restaurant and a self-service gasoline station.

CALL IN THE STEWARDS

The great Terrapin Trot has been held, and I am disconsolate. "Deadline," the Floyd County Times' entry, was outplodded, so they say.

Now, I don't want to be a poor loser, but if it could be arranged I'd like what amounts to a recount. The fact is, I suspect dirty work at the crossroads. Deadline showed such an unconcern about the whole matter that he (she?) must have been drugged. Deadline wasn't dead last, but he lived up to his name enough to stay well out of contention. Maybe we should have called him Headline.

Anyway, I demand a saliva test for this terrapin—if we can locate him.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

Ran across what struck me as an interesting situation in a story, the other day.

The time, near the end of the Revolutionary War; the locale, a log cabin on the Pennsylvania frontier. The cabin was furnished only with what the family could make: hand-crafted furniture; wearing apparel knitted and woven by hand from the wool of sheep raised in the field nearby and from the flax which they grew; moccasins from the skins of wild animals; wooden spoons, and so on.

PART OF THE CROWD which turned out Saturday for dedication ceremonies milled about in front of the new Mud Creek Clinic at Grethel. The $400,000 facility at the mouth of Mitchell Branch replaces the Mink Branch cottage which housed the clinic for 10 years until it burned to the ground two years ago.

The federally-funded clinic was built by Clyde McCain, who heads M & S General Contractors, of Pikeville, according to a design by Don Harford, a partner in the architectural firm of Music and Harford, of Ashland. Clinic staffers hope to move into the new building within the next few weeks from the two trailers out of which they have worked for the past two years.

Mr. and Mrs. Willis R. Hall, of Minnie, announce the graduation of their daughter, Rhonda, from the McConnell School, Inc. in Minneapolis, Minnesota. The 12-week travel industry course of study included instruction in travel agency procedures; airline fares, tickets and reservations, typing, and training on SABRE computer systems. She finished the program in the top 5 percent among 125 students.

A 1981 honor graduate of McDowell High School, she is the widow of McDouglas Whicker, Jr. She is the granddaughter of Mrs. Maud S. Hall, of McDowell, and Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Allen, of Minnie.

Special Energy Plans May Help Homeowners

It won't be long before cold weather is upon the region. With the cold weather comes another change in many homes—higher use of electricity. Part of the reason for the increased usage comes from heating systems. Part is attributed to lights being on longer because of fewer daylight hours. Part can be traced to electric water heaters and increased use of hot water in colder months.

While electricity usage is a bit more, there are some steps which can be taken to make a house more energy efficient and to reduce the amount of heat necessary to make it more comfortable.

W.W. Zoellers, Pikeville Division manager of Kentucky Power Company, said insulation in walls, ceilings and under floors, and storm doors and windows are among the most common—and most effective—methods of raising the comfort level of a house and lowering heating bills.

"We also suggest turning down the thermostat on the water heater to 130° or less if an automatic dishwasher is not in use. And we recommend caulking or weatherstripping throughout the house. If there is any sort of a gap at all around a door or window, cold weather will find it. It also helps to close drapes and window curtains on cold days and always at night.

"Another place a number of people fail to recognize as a cause of heat loss is a fireplace. While a cracking fire might look pleasant, the real fact is the house is probably losing more heat than it gains because of the number of Btu's going up the chimney. In fact, some of the house's normal heating system's output also goes up the chimney, especially if the damper is left open when no fire is present. This is especially true when the wind is blowing outside," Zoellers explained.

Adding insulation and other weatherstripping types of material, however, can be a fairly expensive operation. In recognition of that fact, Kentucky Power has taken steps to help ease the cost of such improvements for customers.

"We have a program, in cooperation with the Kentucky Public Service Commission, whereby one of our trained employees conducts an energy audit of a house at a customer's request. The small fee charged for the audit is easily offset in the knowledge of what can be done to lower costs in the future," Zoellers said.

In addition, Kentucky Power offers Residential Insulation Financing options to qualified customers. Low-interest loans can be made to customers who meet certain basic requirements to help meet the costs of adding insulation or storm doors or windows. Customers do not have to heat with electricity in order to qualify.

Details of such programs can be learned by contacting any Kentucky Power Company office and asking to speak with an employee of the marketing and customer services department.

Park Floodwall Planned by City

Relief may be in sight for oft-flooded Archer Park here in the form of an earthen dike and the city may not have to spend a great deal to get it.

Following the disastrous flooding of the past spring, an Army Corps of Engineers specialist recommended a floodwall to protect the central section of the park, which includes the swimming pool, tennis and racquetball courts, playground, skating rink and park buildings, but informed the city that the Corps did not currently have the money to manage the construction, according to City Manager David Evans.

The city, with little in the way of resources to undertake such a project, had to forget the idea—until this week, at least.

The recent announcement by Prestonsburg developer Donald L. "Dootney" Horn of a planned exhibition coal mine near the park as a tourist attraction and the necessity for the disposal of the thousands of cubic yards of fill dirt which will result from the earth removal has revived interest in the flood control project, making construction of the dike a virtual certainty.

According to an agreement signed this week, the city will pay $1.00 for each truckload of dirt which will be hauled, when possible, by city vehicles. Through the agreement, more than enough raw material for the flood wall will be made available at low cost while providing Horn a convenient location for disposal of the fill.

Evans said a Corps engineer would provide final specifications and recommendations on placement and height of the earthen structure.

"It will be our best opportunity to do something like this in the cheapest way possible," Evans commented.

Dam Should Be Delayed

Nobody is arguing that the Yatesville Dam should be built because it is necessary to flood control.

It has been envisioned as a recreation spot, bringing an income from tourists, fishermen, boaters and others that would justify its cost. That is the only basis for any acceptable cost-benefit ratio.

But in the Martha area, which will be flooded if the dam is completed, there are more than 800 producing oil wells, and from those oil wells come the brine, oil and other excretions which will pollute the water of the lake.

This could make Yatesville Lake unused by fishermen, because there could be no fish in its polluted waters, and other recreation values could be equally doubtful.

The federal Environmental Protection Agency, the U.S. Wildlife Service and the Kentucky Department of Wildlife Resources—all join in arguing that construction of the dam should be delayed till the water problems there are solved.

The brine and oil escaping from hundreds of oil wells along Blaine Creek, the stream that is proposed to be impounded to form the lake, constitute an unavoidable problem. The state of Kentucky, apparently, is to be given the task of regulating the mess, keeping the water of the lake free of that salt and oil.

Col. Robert Wilson, chief of the Huntington, W. Va. district office, U.S. Corps of Army Engineers, says the Corps "has to trust" Kentucky's declared intention of doing something about the pollution problem.

But Kentucky, as of this date, has no standard for chlorine and brine discharges into the water, and no standard is expected till next year. Besides, says Leon Smothers, assistant director of the state Division of Water, of these 800 or more oil wells in the reservoir basin, "regulating them would entail a tremendous effort."

To which we add:

If the state's performance at Dewey Lake is its standard of excellence in keeping the water of a lake pure, the outlook for Yatesville Lake is deadeningly drear.

The federal government has already spent a lot on this project. It has acquired 13,000 of the 20,000 acres of land in the reservoir area. It has appropriated $15 million for completion of an outlet works tunnel and a stilling basin at the dam site. The outlay of money already has been heavy. But what has gone before should be relegated to the time-honored "profit and loss" account and further work should be stopped till such time that the state of Kentucky shows it is capable of controlling the pollution and, moreover, will actually do it.

clinics for care. Clinic patients are billed according to a sliding fee scale based on their income. Of new patients registered this year, the vast majority are eligible for the minimum fee, a Big Sandy Health Care official said. The result is that, even with its federal subsidy, the agency's income over the next three months will not cover projected operating costs unless stringent economies are effected.

At the end of this month, staffers who survive the anticipated cuts hope to move into accommodations more spacious and better appointed than any they have known. The crowd gathered for chicken and dumplings and country music after Saturday's dedication ceremony was a pledge the clinic will never lack patients. And the new building, Tim Sizemore said, made him proud to see "our people do something for themselves."

But the clinic's debt to the late Carl D. Perkins, the fact that 80 percent of construction funds for the new facility came from an Appalachian Regional Commission grant, and the chronic problem of generating enough income to keep the operation alive, were reminders this week that, on Mud Creek, independence is still a dream unrealized.

Floyd Teachers To Get Advice on How To Deal With Pupils and Drugs

Floyd school teachers will be getting some advice this Friday on how to deal with the problem of drug and alcohol use by students.

While students have the day off, their teachers will receive in-service training, a major part of which will focus on the drug problem. Scheduled are talks by Jim Recktenwald, of the Floyd County Drug Education Awareness Program, Mrs. Terry Buchanan, a grade school teacher here, and Greg Walters.

On Friday afternoon, staff members from the Betsy Layne, Clark, Harold, Stumbo, McDowell and Prestonsburg elementary schools will attend a training session on a state-sponsored environmental awareness program in those schools. The "Waste in Place" project will be explained by Vicki M. Petus, state coordinator of the Kentucky Clean Community Program.

Staff members from the remaining county schools will be at those schools working on students' CTBS scores. They will also be available from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. to talk to parents about their children's work.

There was not a piece of glass in the home; the few windows had only oiled paper for panes.

In that rude cabin were two women. One, the mother, had known a better life, back in "civilization," before she and her husband had pushed farther westward. She had been a beautiful woman, but the rigors of weather, hard work and perilous times had made their inroads. The other, her daughter, was a backwoods beauty.

But there was not a mirror in the house, not a piece of glass that could be used for one. They parted their long hair by feel, sometimes one helping the other. Neither knew what she herself actually looked like.

Then, one day, one of the men-folks brought home a mirror that he had acquired by bartering furs with a passing trader. And that little piece of glass became a fearsome thing to the mother. How would she look after all these years? She steeled herself for the confrontation with her reflection, finally summoned up enough nerve to take a quick look—and saw what the years had written on her face.

The young daughter took her turn at the magic piece of glass with a sense of wonder, but she was not afraid to look. She had no image of herself to remember. But now—who was this stranger staring back at her? What she saw was a soft, fresh beauty that brought to her as much joy as the mother's look in the mirror had brought dismay.

So it was in the "good, old days."

I hate like the mischief to admit it, but the trees aren't as colorful this year as I expected. Or could it be that I need my glasses filed down?

director, said last week it would be only a matter of time before pharmacists received similar notices from the private insurance companies that cover working miners.

Under the terms of the new contract, the notice said, the funds "will cover only reasonable charges for prescription drugs and insulin," with a reasonable charge defined as no more than 25 percent above the average wholesale price of the drug. That leaves a markup of only about 20 percent over the selling price to cover their overhead costs, said the pharmacists, a number of whom quoted the Lilly Digest—which figures overhead at around 30 percent—as an authoritative guide.

In reference to UMWA President Richard Trumka's boast that he had stuck to a pledge of making no concessions, Herrin noted that, while miners may have made none, a substantial concession was exacted of pharmacists. Smaller pharmacists, especially if drug sales make up a large part of their business and miners a large part of their clientele, could be forced out of business under the new reimbursement formula, some said.

"They're going to have the fee so low, it will be marginal for the small man like myself to stay in business," said Ron Johnson, pharmacist at Rose Rexall Drug here. "I don't know what it will mean for sure, but it will be real, real close."

Pharmacists from six counties, apparently unanimous in their dissatisfaction with the new formula, decided at a May Lodge meeting last Tuesday to form a committee to relay their feelings to BCOA-UMWA negotiators. If the industry did not agree to renegotiate the reimbursement formula, they would stop accepting the miners' card at the end of this month, they resolved.

Morris Fiebusch, BCOA's vice-president for public affairs, said Monday he had not heard of the pharmacists' complaints and declined to comment on them. The recently concluded contract, he said, reflected several "health-care cost-containment initiatives."

If pharmacists turn down the UMWA card, it will mean that working and retired miners will pay cash for their drugs and it will be up to them to apply to their insurance company or the UMWA funds for reimbursement. Harold Cooley, a member of the pharmacists' committee, said the druggists had no choice. "It would be foolish of us to keep on billing at cost plus 25 percent," he said. "It is not financially possible."

One of the things that most rankles the pharmacists is that they feel taken by surprise. No one asked for their opinion before the new formula was drafted, noted Tim Conn, president of the East Kentucky Pharmaceutical Association. "We feel slighted at not being involved in negotiations regarding our own profession," he said.

And worse, some believe the industry has been following a deliberate policy of misrepresentation aimed at misleading pharmacists and turning miners against them.

First came the asterisks. They began appearing on the notices the funds send out to retirees, explaining what drugs the funds have paid for. Pharmacists understood they were to be reimbursed according to the profession's "usual and customary charges," but on the notices sent by the funds to their clients asterisks appeared next to any charge the insurer deemed excessive.

Many pharmacists thought that problem was resolved when, about 18 months ago, they agreed on a new formula suggested by fund officials. But soon the asterisks began to reappear. The latest formula, further eroding their margin of profit, looks to some of them like the final move in a deliberate strategy of deceit.

That impression is strengthened by what some pharmacists take as a distinctly hostile tone in the notice they received from the UMWA funds. "Beneficiaries are being notified separately that they are not responsible for payment of any amounts which exceed reasonable charges," it said, "and the Funds or their agent will defend them in any action to collect excessive charges."

That is for some the cruelest cut. "The (lower) price is part of it," Eric Herrin explained, "but there has (also) been a campaign to make us look like the bad guys. If they felt that some pharmacists were abusing the system, they should have talked to us or gone after the ones abusing it. But I grew up in a family where the UMWA was very important. My father was a miner for 49 years. He helped organize Harlan county. I don't feel I've ever tried to cheat a miner."

Says She Bought a 'Lemon'

In late July of 1983 I purchased a new Ford Escort. The purchase price was $9,950. Little did I know at the time that I had bought a "lemon".

In December, the car started idling at 3,000 RPM, and the shift light would no longer work. The service manager told me that the computer module was bad. I took the car in 7 times before they finally ordered the right module. Even then, the car wasn't fixed. On the eighth trip they replaced the "processor". By this time it was April.

In early May, the car began to backfire and fail to start when it rained or was very humid. They told me the air filter was dirty, and they replaced the air and fuel filters. On the way home, my car pumped over half a tank of fuel out under the hood. The next day, they apologized for leaving off a clamp.

The next week it rained again, and I was left stranded. They replaced the computer processor, again. To date, they have replaced the processor 3 times. Also, they have replaced the spark plugs, spark plug wires, reversed the vacuum hoses, changed air filters twice, fuel filters, distributor cap, etc.

As of October 5, my car has been serviced 22 times with little progress. In addition to the moisture problem, I have replaced 3 tires. I was reimbursed for the tires, but only after threats of legal action. I was told in April that my tires had worn out in only 7,000 miles because the cambor was out. The next day, they delivered the car to me. The service manager told me that he had looked at the car pulled on the rack, and after turning it around they could not see a problem, so they aligned it. I replaced the tires that day and was told the car was out of line. I took the car back to the dealer that same afternoon. After keeping it for 3 days, they aligned it.

The following week I had the wheels checked, and they still turned in at the top. They finally admitted that they did not have the facilities to do "4 wheel thrust alignment", the proper procedure required for my front-wheel drive car. The same day, the service manager approved payment for the car to be aligned. By July, the left back tire was worn slick. The tire dealer would not guarantee a new tire due to the cambors being out so badly.

After a heated confrontation, the car dealer agreed to modify the cambors and set the tow out. This time the car was in for four days.

Meanwhile, each time it rained I was stranded. Each time they worked on my car. After 20 service visits the manager advised me to call Customer Relations, because they couldn't find the problem. Customer Relations advised me to make another appointment for service.

This time my car went in for service September 7, and was returned to me on September 25. As of September 28, my car was idling at more than 3,000 RPM, and backfiring (it was raining). The shift light, which worked on September 7, does not work now.

It is not my claim that the dealer will not service my car, but rather that they cannot service it. One year to the month after purchasing it from them for almost $10,000, they offered me $5,100 trade-in on a new car. Of course they don't want to trade for a lemon! At that time, I owed about $6,000 on the car. Should I be expected to suffer this great a loss because they sold me a defective product? Should I suffer because they lack the technical expertise to fix my car?

Since they started working on my car in January the mileage has fallen from 36 MPG to 28 MPG. They have put nearly 1,000 miles at 60 miles per round trip for service calls.

I have asked the Consumer Appeals Board to review my case. I have yet to hear from them as far as a hearing date is concerned. I wonder if my 1983 car is the only "lemon" in the bunch, or if other owners are having similar problems. Anyone who is having a problem with either the tires wearing out quickly, or with the car not wanting to start when it rains, please write me and describe the nature of your problem. Write to Betty Tackett, Box 195, Robinson Creek, Ky. 41560.

Twenty Years' Service

Twenty years ago, in October 1964, the Wattses were instrumental in establishing a Sunday School mission on Daniels Creek. Over the past twenty years, other workers have come and gone. But the Wattses are still there, and dedicated as ever.

Brother Leo Watts serves as mission director as well as adult Sunday School teacher. His wife, Pearl, serves as secretary and treasurer as well as Sunday School teacher for the young children. This is only a small part of the work they do at the mission. They also have visitation, visit the sick, and supply food and clothing for the needy. In addition to this, they perform their regular duties at the First Baptist Church in Allen, where Brother Leo is chairman of the deacons.

We are proud to have had a part in working with them at the mission.

State Tax Base Hearing Slated

Representatives of civic, business and education groups will be among those giving testimony in Frankfort at a public hearing on reforming the state's tax base.

The hearing by the legislative Interim Joint Committee on Appropriations and Revenue will be held Thursday, Oct. 25, in Room 109 of the Capitol Annex, beginning at 10 a.m.

Those submitting written testimony include the League of Women Voters, the Kentucky Fair Tax Coalition, the Kentucky Automobile Dealers Association, the Kentucky Chamber of Commerce and the Kentucky Parent/Teachers Association. Other groups are expected to be represented, and oral summaries of the testimony will be heard.

Sen. Mike Moloney, D-Lexington, presiding chairman of the committee, said the panel felt the need for such a hearing because of the state's unstable tax base over the past few years.

"It is the feeling of the committee that we need to have a sound revenue base for the future—particularly with the situation we are facing with declining federal revenues. We need sounder planning for the future of this state."

Moloney said he hoped there would be some consensus among the ideas and testimony presented to the committee. And Rep. Joe Clarke, a Danville Democrat who co-chairs the committee, said that recent attempts at reform or at bringing in more revenue haven't been very successful.

"We need to evaluate the entire tax system," he said. "If you're going to have an equitable system, then you need to look at the entire tax base. We need to determine what is business' fair share, and evaluate the income tax and its relationship to sales and property taxes."

Clarke said that toward the end of the 1984 session when the state's financial situation appeared glum, they received many requests from groups wanting to come forward with their ideas on revenue enhancement.

"At that time," Clarke said, "we needed to do something one way or the other, and really didn't have time to listen to those ideas."

"This is going to be a forum for those people who wanted to be heard and didn't have an opportunity late in the '84 session, and will also give us a chance to get a general overview of how the public and tax experts feel about Kentucky's tax structure."

The committee is inviting public comment on four areas of tax reform:

The stability of the state's tax base; the best methods for enhancing state revenues; how to increase the equity of the state-tax system; how to ease the administration of the state-tax system.

Food Plots Can Help Wildlife

Wildlife food plots can really benefit our local birds and animals. Scattered grain patches near cover act as a "pantry" for many species.

It can be helpful to think of an animal's habitat as a house. In an animal's habitat or "house" there are several rooms. For instance, animals need a "bedroom" to sleep and take refuge in. We often refer to an animal's bedroom as "cover" which is provided by trees and shrubs. Depending upon species, an animal's kitchen could be a vast tree, a clover patch, or a grain field. Some animals require several rooms. Studies reveal that quail spend time in four different types of rooms: woodland, grassland, shrubland, and cropland.

In Floyd county, "cropland rooms" near cover are usually the limiting factor. Animals can't stay in a house without a kitchen or pantry any more than humans can. To correct this situation, landowners and landusers are encouraged to plant crops such as corn near cover such as trees or shrubs. This can be accomplished by leaving a couple outer rows of corn in a farm operation. Others may want to put a special plot of grain specifically for wildlife use.

ASCS has a cost share program to assist in the cost of these special plots. Call the Floyd County Conservation District at 886-3128 for more information.

Honored With Party

Sister James Edward Roach, S.C., was honored by a surprise party at 5 p.m., August 30, to offer her the congratulations and good wishes of the medical staff and employees of Our Lady of the Way Hospital. She recently earned a fellowship to the American College of Hospital Administrators.

Sister Marie Gangwish opened the party with a prayer. A commemorative scroll and floral piece were presented to Sister by Dr. Allen Halbert, president of the medical staff. The floral piece was made of $1, $5, $10 and $20 bills, arranged by Add-A-Touch Floral Shop and had been donated by the two groups. Congratulatory letters from Bishops William Hughes and Kendrick Williams were read and presented, and Phyllis Dingsus wrote and read a very apropos poem for the celebrant. Two personal friends, Sisters Ann Seton and Edward Cecile, of Cincinnati, were present.

A covered dish dinner followed the presentations and cake made and decorated by Sister Catherine Herzog, of the Dietary Department, was served with ice cream for dessert.

Sister James Edward expressed her deep surprise and gratitude to each and everyone who worked to make the party such a success. All present wished her continued blessings and many years of service to Our Lady of the Way.

Agriculture Report: Harvest Nears End

Good weather conditions have enabled completion of a great deal of farm field work recently, especially harvesting corn and tobacco, baling hay and seeding small grains.

Soil moisture is now reported as 51 percent short statewide, with 46 percent of the soil listed as adequate. Some areas of the state have reported light frost, but damage is believed to be slight.

"All crops are progressing about as expected. They are well over last year's yields, which suffered from the drought. But the yields are slightly behind 1982 and five-year averages," said Agriculture Commissioner David E. Boswell.

The burley harvest is virtually complete, with only a few fields remaining to be cut. Curing weather has been generally good, except for when the recent cool, wet weather moved through the Commonwealth.

"Burley quality looks good, with little or no houseburn being reported," Boswell said.

The corn for grain harvest is 30 percent complete, with harvest being more advanced in the western part of the state. The moisture content remains high in many of the fields, and yields are reported as good.

"Soybean harvest is 6 percent complete, compared with 10 percent last year and 11 percent on the average. Forty-two percent of the beans are shedding leaves or mature, but are not yet harvested.

Double-crop beans are late in developing due to the dry weather this summer and will need continued mild weather to mature.

Recent rains have benefited pastures, but hay cuttings have been reduced by the dry summer. Fall hay supplies are expected to be slightly below normal.

Winter wheat is 18 percent complete. Sorghum grain harvest is about one-third complete.

RETURN FROM VACATION

Medicare.

If you're 65 or over, you probably know about Medicare...including the fact that it doesn't cover all your hospital and medical bills. There are deductibles, co-payments and non-covered services you must pay yourself.

Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Kentucky offers two different Medicare Supplement programs to help fill in the gaps left by Medicare. Both meet state and federal standards for Medicare supplement programs. And they're both designed to pay the majority of the Medicare deductibles and co-payments and to fill in where Medicare benefits leave off.

Both programs include extended coverage for skilled nursing-facility care and in-hospital private duty nursing.

In addition, one of the programs also offers prescription drug benefits.

For more information about the Blue Cross and Blue Shield Medicare Supplement programs, complete and mail in the coupon below. All applicants are subject to health care questions and if accepted, there is a six-month waiting period for health conditions which exist at the time of enrollment.

Plan Drug Program For Schools

Members of the Drug Education Awareness Program, a division of the Kentucky War on Drugs, met with Floyd school officials recently to plan a drug awareness program for students. Superintendent E.P. Grigsby, Jr. said teachers will receive advice at an in-service scheduled this Friday on how to combat drugs and alcohol in the schools. Former Gov. Julian Carroll, who heads the statewide drug campaign, has agreed to speak to students here, Grigsby said.

Stumbo Studies Majority Floor Leadership Post

Unopposed for reelection to his fourth two-year term in the state House of Representatives, Gregory Stumbo may later seek a House post for which he's certain to draw competition.

Stumbo admitted Saturday that he is "seriously considering" making the race for House majority floor leader when the General Assembly next meets. In fact, he has been making contacts over the state, seeking—and getting, he says—support in his effort to unseat the present majority floor leader, Rep. James Lemaster, of Paris.

"It's time for Eastern Kentucky to have a role in the leadership of the Legislature," Representative Stumbo said. "There has been little leadership shown by either the speaker or the floor leader recently except in the vote to override the governor's veto of community college improvements," he added.

Stumbo, who represents the 95th district in this county, earned statewide attention with his bill to curb the broad-form deed at the last session of the General Assembly.

Normally, the election of a Representative would be held this year only for the 95th district, but the death of Congressman Carl D. Perkins and the decision of his son, Chris, who now is state representative in the 92nd district (which includes 11 precincts in Floyd county) to run for his father's seat in the Congress makes necessary the election of a successor to the younger Perkins in the Legislature.

Jim Rose, present Knott county clerk, is the Democratic candidate for the post. He is opposed by Christopher Slone, independent.

Trial of Knott Man In Death of Woman May Be Transferred

The case of a Hindman man accused of strangling his 14-year-old girlfriend's mother is expected to go before a Knott Circuit Court grand jury this week but trial of the case may be held in this county.

Gerald Scott Ritchie, 19, accused of slaying Phyllis Slone, 38, at her Hindman home Sept. 28, is being held under bond in the Knott county jail. The victim's body was dumped in the Big Sandy River near Highlands Regional Medical Center, where it was found two days later.

Knott District Judge Graham Martin last week denied a motion to deny Ritchie bail but raised the bond from $100,000 to $500,000 over the objection of the defense attorney. Public Defender Ned Pillersdorf said he would move to have the bond reduced. Moreover, citing public sentiment against his client in Knott county, the defense attorney said he would probably move to have the trial venue moved to Floyd county.

State police said Mrs. Slone, who was five months' pregnant, was strangled after quarreling with Ritchie and her daughter, who said they wanted to get married. The girl has been charged with aiding in the murder.

Ritchie was also charged with assault for allegedly striking Mrs. Slone's 13-year-old son on the head with a stick shortly after the slaying. Ritchie, the girl and her brother drove in Mrs. Slone's car to Clintwood, Va., where he and the girl tried to get married but found the courthouse closed, police said.

$9 Million Suit Filed by Woman In Death of Son

A Floyd woman has filed a malpractice suit asking for more than $9 million from three Ashland doctors, a dentist, and three nurse-anesthetists in the death of her 19-year-old son a year ago.

Barbara Allen, of Prestonsburg, formerly of Drift, filed the suit last Wednesday in Boyd Circuit Court. She acted as administrator of the estate of Kevin Hall, a Boyd County High School graduate who died last year following an operation on his jaw.

Mrs. Allen said her son was admitted to a Boyd county hospital Oct. 11, 1983, under the care of Dr. Lindsey R. Douglas, III, who is a dentist and oral surgeon. The youth was scheduled for an osteotomy, the surgical removal of a small piece of bone, to correct an overbite.

Hall suffered "severe and irreversible brain damage" while under general anesthesia Oct. 12 and died five days later as a result, according to the suit.

"They told me it was just a simple operation, one that's done every day," Mrs. Allen said this week. "It's one nobody should die from."

Her suit alleges Hall was healthy at the time of the operation, that his death was caused by the defendants' negligence, and that one or more of them tried to conceal the cause of her son's death. Entries were made in medical records attributing Hall's death to causes which the defendants "could not reasonably have believed to have been the actual cause of death," the suit claims.

Named as defendants are Dr. Douglas, who has recently opened an oral surgery practice in Paintsville; two Ashland physicians, Hugh L. Ray and Edward Knauff; and Dr. Charles Rogers, a former Ashland doctor who has since moved to Mesa, Ariz. The nurse-anesthetists are Sonja Greene, James Riley and Pam Thacker, who has since moved to Reynoldsburg, Ohio.

Plaintiff asks $3 million for the loss of Hall's earning power, $1 million for his pain and suffering, $5 million in punitive damages and $50,000 for medical expenses. She seeks a jury trial.

Mrs. Allen is manager of the American Legion Club in Martin and supervisor for a security firm there. She declined to identify the hospital where her son died, saying that is a condition of a settlement she is negotiating with the hospital.

In a suit filed here last week, Eugene Newman, of Grethel, seeks $105,000 in damages for injuries allegedly suffered by his son in a Jan. 2, 1980 collision between a school bus and a county truck on the Mud Creek road near Grethel. The suit says that Keith Newman, 13 at the time, was a passenger in a bus driven by Paul D. Tackett, of Teaberry, when it collided with a truck driven by Odis Martin, of Beaver. The boy suffered a broken jaw and injuries to his head, teeth and neck, it is alleged.

Named as defendants in the suit are the two drivers, members of the Floyd fiscal court and of the board of education.

Motions for summary judgment on behalf of both plaintiff and defendant were overruled in the case of Ronald L. Gullett et al vs. Island Creek Coal Co. et al.

Ronald and Barbara Gullett, of Wheelwright, asked for summary judgment in a $10 million suit stemming from a February, 1982 accident. Gullett lost a hand and a foot and was badly burned when he touched a live wire near an Island Creek Coal Co. mine on Jack's Creek. Plaintiffs argued in their Sept. 24 motion that there is no question that Island Creek was negligent.

For its part, the coal firm asked to have the case dismissed, claiming it had recently sold its property, including the Blue Branch substation where Gullett was injured, to Inspiration Coal Co. shortly before the accident.

Circuit Judge Hollie Conley turned down both motions but set no date for trial of the case. The Kentucky Power Co. was dismissed last year as a defendant in the case.

(A suit filed in court outlines the grievance of one party against another; it does not present both sides of the issue in dispute.)

Coal Company Told To Move Road to Mine

A Prestonsburg coal company has been ordered to remove an illegal access road to a Martin county stripmine. Natural Resources Secretary Charlotte Baldwin saying it threatens that county's only public supply of drinking water.

A state hearing officer earlier suggested the company made false statements on its stripmine permit application and may already have built the road at that time in an effort to circumvent environmental regulations.

In response to complaints by Martin county officials and residents, Mrs. Baldwin ordered the Triple B Corporation to cease operations at its 333-acre strip-and-auger mine until the road is removed and the area reclaimed.

The access road, 4000 feet long, was built more than a year ago without the required state approval. It lies on a mountainside upstream from Crum Reservoir, which supplies drinking water to an estimated 60 percent of the county's 13,925 people.

Mrs. Baldwin found that soil erosion caused by the road had "already produced substantial deposition of sediment" in the reservoir and a nearby stream. She said the Natural Resources Cabinet had erred in issuing a permit for Triple B's Job No. 6 mine before an opportunity was given for public comment.

Triple B was cited Sept. 14 last year for building the road without a permit. The firm was fined $9500 for that violation, said David Rubenstein, an attorney with the Appalachian Research and Defense Fund, who represented some of those who complained about the road.

A hearing officer who gathered evidence about the road reported later that the company "allowed devastating sedimentation of the stream and reservoir" to occur during the road's construction.

J. Gregg Clendennin said the company included "numerous serious factual inaccuracies" in its stripmine permit application. The application erroneously described the road as "an existing road" and said falsely that the closest municipal water source was seven miles away, he wrote.

The hearing officer's report says "it is reasonable to infer" that Triple B built the road before filing its stripmine permit application "to pre-empt the Cabinet's power" to ban construction of a road in the reservoir's watershed.

Protestors said spoil and siltage produced by the road have reduced the capacity of the Crum Reservoir at a time when public water in Martin county is in short supply. During the 1983 summer drought, officials had to ration water.

Gary A. Branham, president of Triple B, said this week he intends to appeal the Secretary's order. The process leading up to it, he complained, was "all in the form of hearings."

"No one ever came to look at the road itself," he said, adding, "It's probably one of the better haul roads I've ever seen constructed."

When the road was built it did not fall under federal or state stripmine laws because it was not then a mine-access road but simply a road any owner might build to property that would otherwise be landlocked, he said.

Judge Postpones Sentencing of 3 Asking Probation

Saying he needed more time to make up his mind, Circuit Judge Hollie Conley last Friday postponed sentencing of three men, all of whom had asked that their sentences be probated.

Carlos Little, 31, of Wheelwright, and David Slone, 25, of Bevinsville, were both convicted of theft last month by a Floyd Circuit Court jury which fixed their punishment at one year in prison. It is a first felony conviction for both men, who have served about a month already in the county jail.

Russell Hamilton, the Price gas station owner from whom Little and Slone stole some auto wheels last November, was reportedly in favor of probating the two, but Judge Conley said "it is hard to probate when you've had a jury trial. I'll need to give it a little more thought."

The judge also postponed sentencing of A.C. Collins, 19, of McDowell, who pleaded guilty last month to two counts of arson. As part of the plea bargain, the Commonwealth recommended a one-year sentence, to be probated on condition that Collins make restitution to his victims.

Judge Conley, noting that Collins has since been indicted on two theft charges, said he would put off a decision on probation until after the new charges are tried.

Elvis Crum, of Allen, was arraigned on three counts of theft. The judge agreed to appoint the public defender to represent him but ordered Crum to pay $400 to the state Office of Public Advocacy.

RECENT VISITORS HERE

The serving table was covered with a white cloth, and had for its centerpiece an arrangement of red and yellow baby mums from the flower garden of Mrs. Dorothy Harris. ## 7TH DISTRICT DEMOCRATIC RALLY— "FIGHTING FOR YOUR FUTURE"

Never before in our history has the American people had such a striking choice in candidates as in the 1984 General Election to be held on November 6th.

The Republicans have attacked social security, student assistance, aid to the disabled and elderly, mortgaged our future and our children's future while passing tax breaks for the wealthy and the well-to-do.

This year, we have an opportunity to give the Republicans a report card on their "Robin Hood in Reverse" method of running, led by the greatest Congressman in America, Carl D. Perkins. If dear Carl were with us today, he would be traveling the hills and hollows of our County, encouraging us to vote Democratic and to get out the vote for the ticket.

Carl D. Perkins left us a rich Democratic heritage—a heritage that says we, as a nation, have a responsibility to our old people, our disabled and our young people. We as Democrats believe Carl's philosophy was right and that it is best represented by Walter Mondale, Walter "Dee" Huddleston and Carl "Chris" Perkins. That is why we are planning a 7th District Democratic Rally at the Henry Stumbo Park at Allen in Floyd County on Saturday, October 20, at 10 o'clock.

Make plans to come out and be with us and hear our candidates tell you of their programs and their hopes for the future of our people. Let's make this the biggest Democratic rally in the history of Kentucky! Speakers will be Wendell Ford, Dr. Grady Stumbo, Benny Ray Bailey, Greg Stumbo and other state leaders.

VOTE DEMOCRATIC!

ABORTION

In your heart, you know it is wrong, but do you condemn without offering an alternative? Do you say, "Someone should help these women, counsel them, let them know they are loved...."?

Someone is. The abortionists offer their solution at the right price. They list their services in the yellow pages of your phone book under "Birth Control". They offer "free counseling" which always has a predictable and profitable conclusion. Abortion. In the 12 months of 1983, in this country, our abortionists destroyed one and a half million (1,500,000) unborn children, which generated for them over six hundred million dollars ($600,000,000.00) in fees. Of all those abortions, less than four percent (4%) were due to health of the mother, incest or rape. The remaining 96% were a matter of convenience.

In the midst of this slaughter, is anyone willing to speak for the love of these women and girls, and the value of their unborn children? One group hopes to, called Alternatives, Inc. It hopes to honestly counsel women with problem pregnancies without condemnation or concealed greed. By this, a full range of alternatives to abortion may be explored and the love of Christ revealed.

If you desire to be a part of this, or want to know more, please step-out of the crowd. Call 886-8189 for more information, or write:

Jenny Wiley Festival Scenes...

Mayor Harold Cooley and Mrs. Maxine Bierman, festival founder, rode in style in the parade.

Ryan Martin, in warpaint and Indian dress, was held aloft to see the goings on. He is the son of Tim and Jennifer Martin, of Prestonsburg.

The Marine Color Guard added a military aspect to the parade.

The new Miss Jenny Wiley was admired by the crowd as she was driven by...

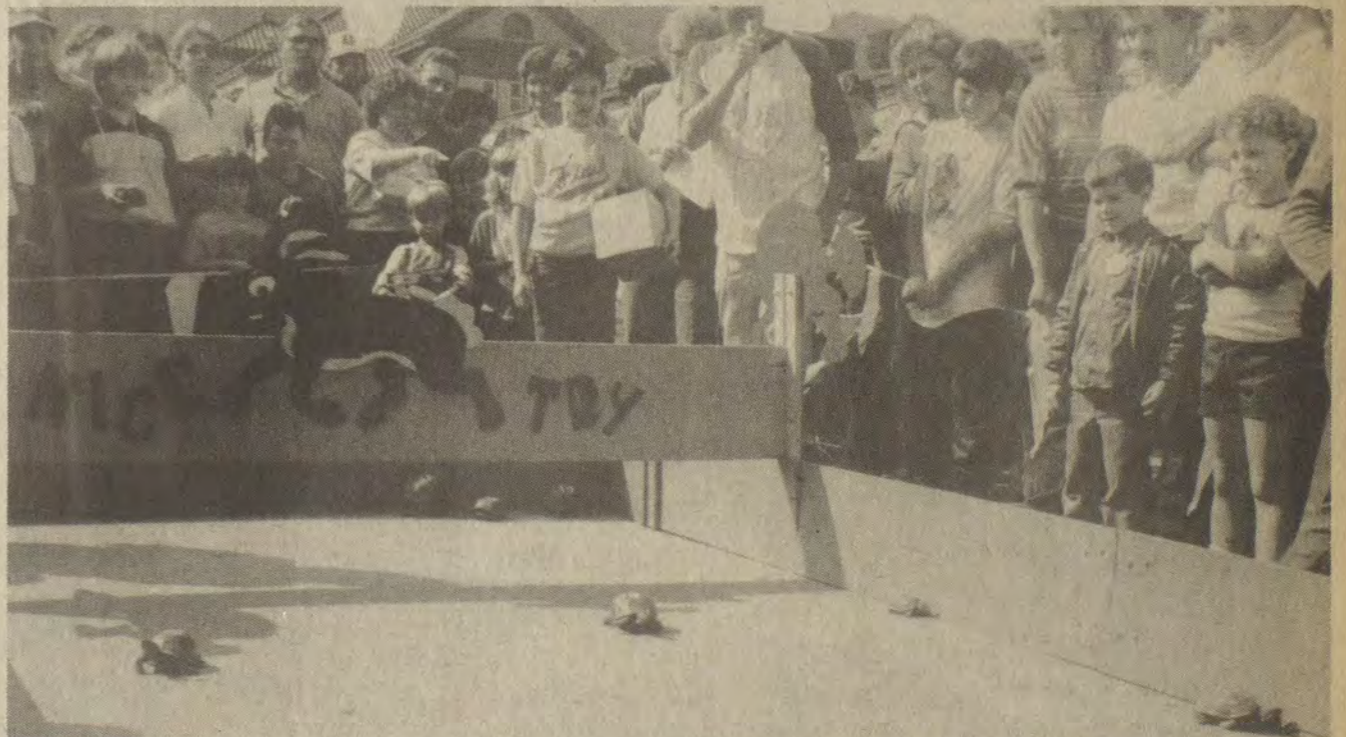

This McDowell majorette took time to wave to a friend along the way.

And what would a parade be without the antics of the El Hasa Shriners?

The Whitley county band came all the way from Covington to join the festivities.

The Turtle Trots saw some too tired, some with a poor sense of direction, and a valiant few who finished in the money. Racing may never be the same.

Among the crafts displayed were some that children eyed with thoughts, perhaps, of Christmas.

These young ladies seem to be enjoying being "dressed up" for the costume competition.

Flemingsburg Man
Reelected to Board

Jere L. Cannon, of Flemingsburg, was re-elected to the Southern States board of Directors for a three-year term at a meeting Oct. 9 of representatives of the cooperative's members at Jenny Wiley State Park. He has been a member of the cooperative's board since 1975.

Cannon will represent a district composed of counties in southern West Virginia and eastern Kentucky. He will be confirmed at the annual stockholders meeting of the association to be held Nov. 14-15 in Richmond, Va.

A beef cattle producer, Cannon has been a member of Southern States Flemingsburg Cooperative, Flemingsburg, Ky., since 1955. He is a former president, vice president and member of the board of directors of the Fleming County Farm Bureau, a former president of the Fleming County Livestock Improvement Association, a former director of the National Beef Improvement Association, a former president of the Kentucky Beef Cattle Association, and a former president of the Ohio Valley Angus Association. A graduate of Morehead State University, he is a member of the Flemingsburg Christian Church.

More than 80 persons, including the official delegates, local board members and Southern States retail managers, attended the day long session.

The program included an address by R.W. Bryan.

Preston Baker, of Oneida, was chairman of the meeting, while Joe McGlone, of Ashland, was secretary.

Delegates to the meeting also elected a nominating committee to serve a three-year term. Members of the committee are: Preston Baker, Oneida, chairman; Paul Jolliff, Tallega, vice chairman; and Charles Hicks, Blue River. Alternates are Dexter Graham, New England, W. Va., and W. Harold Combs, Booneville, Ky.

Pharmacy Seminar Set At Jenny Wiley

The University of Kentucky College of Pharmacy and Appalachian Regional Hospitals, Inc. are sponsoring a one-day program entitled "Antibiotics, Beta Blockers and Anti-Dysrhythmics: 1984." The program, scheduled for October 28, will be held at Jenny Wiley State Park, Prestonsburg.

Participants will discuss antibiotics which have become available within the past two years, a comparison of beta blockers will be provided which contrasts the uses and side effects of each, and recent trends and new products for cardiac dysrhythmics will be reviewed.

The fee for the program is $25 with an application deadline of October 19.

Condit S. Steil, PHARM-D, Director of Pharmacy for the Caldwell County Hospital, will conduct the programs, which carries 0.4 CEUs.

Officials To Probe Unpaid Withholding

State Revenue Cabinet Secretary Gary W. Gillis and Attorney General David E. Armstrong here announced a joint program between their offices to investigate and possibly prosecute businesses and individuals who have failed to remit employee withholding tax monies to the state.

According to Gillis, the current program began to take shape when Revenue Cabinet employees identified 23 companies that collectively owe in excess of $1 million in unpaid taxes. The nature of the problem is multiplied when the employees concerned file for a refund of excess taxes withheld but never paid to the Revenue Cabinet by their employers. This amounts to a double embezzlement of public funds, he said. After Revenue identifies these possible violators, the cases are turned over to the Attorney General's office for further criminal investigation to develop evidence for presentation to a grand jury.

Gillis added that there are no particular types of businesses which are more subject to the withholding violations involved. The violators represent a cross-section of business throughout the state.

The Enforcement Legal Section of the Division of Collections has recently added investigative auditors whose primary duties will be to gather evidence for submission to the Attorney General's office. By increasing this section, the Revenue Cabinet hopes to accelerate review of all delinquent withholding files.

MOUTHWASHES

People sometimes use mouthwashes for the wrong reasons. Gargling with cosmetic mouthwashes, when you have a sore throat, can actually cause the sore throat to become worse. The alcohol contained in these products evaporates from the throat, drying it out and causing further irritation. However, some mouthwashes contain an ingredient called "phenol," which is a deadening ingredient. They numb the throat, mouth and tongue. If you are already treating an infection with prescribed antibiotics, the phenol-type mouthwashes can provide some relief during the course of the illness. They are also available in pocket sprays and lozenges. If you are running a fever along with the sore throat, consult a physician. It may be a sign of infection.

If after contacting your physician he or she finds it necessary to prescribe medication, feel confident that COOLEY APOTHECARY has it right here in our store. We are always more than willing to answer your questions related to the medication, when to take it or with what to take it. ## Fiscal Court Lets Big Mud Contract

BANNER'S BID OF $37,500 LOWEST OF THOSE FILED

Court Plans Road Aid for Other Sections of County

MAY SUE COMPANIES

Contract for between five and six miles of highway construction on Big Sand Creek, this county, was awarded by the Floyd County Fiscal Court in session here Friday to T. B. Ranier, of Prestonsburg, on his bid of $37,500, the lowest of eight bids filed.

This section of road, which is a part of the proposed Harold-Ligon Highway, will lead from the Mayo Trail at the mouth of Branham's construction will consist of standard and drain, with stone masonry walls and rubble stone masonry culverts.

Important Connecting Link

When completed, this route for which a portion was contracted Friday, will give Ligon and surrounding territory connection with Harold and the Mayo Trail. The contractor, Mr. Ranier, is a contractor of much ability and is expected to carry out this project with the greatest possible dispatch.

Roads and Bridges Planned

Plans are being laid, it is announced, for the construction of similar roads up Middle Creek, Left Beaver, Johns Creek and the building of steel bridge at Auxier. Contracts for these projects may be let early in July.

At Friday's session of Fiscal Court sale of bonds was ordered for construction of roads to the amount of $50,000 on Johns Creek, $50,000 for Left Beaver, and $37,500 for Middle Creek. The Johns Creek route will lead from the Mayo Trail at the mouth of Brandy Keg toward the mouth of Brushy; the Beaver Creek road from the county road near Martin and extending toward Weeksburg; and on Middle Creek from Prestonsburg toward Ivyton.

The bridge at Auxier will span the Big Sandy, giving Johns Creek an outlet to Auxier and access thence to Prestonsburg.

To Build Court Addition

Work was begun Monday on a two-story addition to the courthouse here by W. B. Westbrook, who was awarded the contract some time ago on his bid of $5,900. The addition is to be constructed of brick, and will be 40 feet long by 28 feet in width. The lower story adjoining the county clerk's office will be used as the county court room, and the upper story adjacent to the sheriff's office as office rooms of the county judge, the county attorney and the county engineer.

Grading of roads is now in progress at Upper Fork, connecting with a way which joins the Mayo Trail in Pike County.

Require Road Repairs

An order was made by the Fiscal Court to sue all companies or individuals using Floyd County roads excessively and damaging them, unless the roads were repaired by those responsible for such condition.

HUNTER IS SHOT FOR GROUNDHOG

Kenly Hendrix was shot on the 17th of the month morning of last week, when he was hunting a groundhog at the mouth of a creek, according to reports from the scene here and several miles away.

Other boys in the vicinity had been hunting when Hendrix was shot, it is said, and Shepherd stated that upon sight of the other he fled, being unable to see Kendrick distinctly.

The wound is not serious, it is said.

The game of the Watsons Coal Company, was a failure on Monday town Tuesday.

ANNOUNCEMENT

Times to Publish Weekly Editorial Contribution

In view of the belief entertained by The Times that there is a great deal of valuable but unexpressed sentiment on various subjects of interest, we are announcing the appearance in future issues of this paper of editorials written by Floyd county people on topics of their own choice.

One editorial will be published each week, and the writer's name will be picked at random from a number of others so that none may be given preference over another.

These contributions may not be religious discussions or comment upon local politics. They must not be of an offensive character, but should be of a sound, constructive nature, aimed not at the injury of any but for the benefit of the region in which we live.

BEAVER ROAD SURVEY BEGUN

Contract May Be Let For Road Soon After July 1.

As The Times goes to press, information is received that a corps of engineers have arrived at Allen, Kentucky, and are now on the ground starting the surveying of the state road project from Allen to Lackey, a distance of approximately 20 miles.

It is understood that Governor Fields, while in Prestonsburg a few days ago, gave out information that he would urge the Highway Department to complete this survey as quickly as possible, in order that it might be let for construction during the present year, at least, soon after July 1, the beginning of the next fiscal year.

The survey, it is hoped, will be completed in time for the letting of the contract in the early fall. In view of the assurance from Governor Fields that the state will aid in this construction and his attitude about the matter, strongly favoring this project, and the fact that the county has already sold its bonds applied on this project, we have reason to expect an early completion of this much-needed road.

LOCAL KIWANIS MAKE DIXIE TRIP

And Vote for Atlantic City for Convention

M. J. Leete and Will H. Layne returned Sunday evening from Memphis, Tennessee, where they have been attending the Kiwanis International Convention, June 6-9, as delegates representing the Prestonsburg Kiwanis Club. They reported the round trip, reporting excellent roads until they came back home, and were stilled in by a mule team from Cliff.

Our reporter has been trying to get all the facts and information relative to this trip and what happened, but has been unable to do so except in spots and that too only when the other one was not around.

They say the whole thing is too big to make a definite report of what all happened down in Dixie at this convention, but their manner indicates that they thoroughly saturated with the Kiwanis ideals, and received a new phase of enthusiasm as to what Kiwanis really means to a community.

One of the outstanding features of the convention other than the routine of business was that it was the largest attended convention ever held by Kiwanis International, numbering over four thousand delegates. Memphis turned over the city, and Dixie will long linger with them as the center of

IDENTIFICATION OF SUSPECTED SLAYER FAILS

Man Arrested As Sherman Early Brought From Kansas

SLAYER YET AT LARGE

The man hunt which has been conducted over a wide area of the United States by police and detective agencies of Sherman Early, who shot and killed Homer Bayless, of this place and Will Hays, of West Virginia, July 30, 1925, at Burton, this county, continues as the result of failure to identify a man brought here from Wichita, Kansas, last week in the belief that he was the man being sought for the dual killing.

Deputy Sheriff Banner Mead and Special Deputy John Allen left here Sunday, June 5, for Wichita, after being notified by a Wichita detective agency that a man giving his name as Frank Francis Early, 37 years old, was being held as a suspect in the case. A photograph furnished officials here was compared closely to the likeness of the fugitive.

Identification was attempted Friday evening and Saturday morning, and the prisoner was released after those who were intimately acquainted with Sherman Early failed to recognize him as the slayer. Among those who attempted recognition of the suspect were Glomer Spencer, whose life was probably saved by his watch which was struck by Early's bullet after he had shot Bayless and Hays, and whose head was grazed by a bullet; Earl Hartley, who had hired Early as cook for drillers at Burton; Taultee McGuire, Andy Gearheart, D. P. Brown and others.

The man who was brought here for identification resembled Sherman Early. He claimed to have been reared in Owensboro, Daviess county, while Sherman Early is a native of Owingsville, it is said. The suspect is a man of short stature, with a prominent chin and deep-sunk eyes.

A reward of $500 has been offered by Gov. William J. Fields for the capture of Sherman Early, who escaped shortly after the shooting of Burton.

Homer Bayless, one of the victims of the shooting, was a son-in-law of Jonathan Fitzpatrick, of Prestonsburg. While here the suspect was treated with commendable kindness by officials and was given funds sufficient to secure him transportation back to Wichita, to which place he said he would return.

The Wichita Evening Eagle of June 8 carried a three column picture of Messrs. Mead and Allen with their "man" and Chief of Police Walston.

JAKE COLLINS IS KILLED ON JOHNS CREEK

Identity of Slayer Uncertain; Wannie Cline Is Suspected.

PRISONER ESCAPES

Jake Collins, of Johns Creek, this county, was shot and killed Sunday afternoon on that creek about twelve miles from here, and Earl Thompson was shot through the thigh as the result of an altercation, the details of which are so mixed that reports conflict as to the identity of Collins' slayer or as to the name of the man who wounded Thompson.

A number of men had gathered at the place where the shooting occurred, and some of them are said to have been drinking. According to reports reaching here, the report of a shotgun suddenly rang out and Collins fell, shot in the chest. Shot scattered over the victim's chest indicated that the slayer stood some distance away. Collins is said to have died instantly.

A man whose name was given here as Wannie Cline was accused of the killing, and was captured Sunday night, a few hours after nightfall, by Deputy Sheriffs Turner Burdett and J. L. Lafayette, about two miles below the scene of the slaying.

Cline was placed on a mule, and the trip into Prestonsburg with their prisoner was begun by the officers. At the mouth of Buffalo Creek, about two hours before daybreak, the accused man suddenly spurred his mule into the bushes and disappeared. A chase was begun at daybreak, and Cline was pursued to the head of Cow Creek, where the trail was lost.

Magistrate Cain James held an inquest over the body of Collins, but reports received here state that no definite proof of the slayer's identity was obtained.

The victim was about forty years old, and is survived by his widow and five children. He was a son of Vess Collins. Burial was made Tuesday on Sowers Creek.

APPROXIMATELY $115,000 IS BEING SPENT ON SCHOOL BUILDINGS IN THIS COUNTY

Betsy Layne School Completed.

Completion of the Betsy Layne Consolidated School building was made in March of this year by the contractor, E. E. Ramey. Cost of the building is placed at $23,000. The building is two stories high, has the rooms and is constructed of brick. E. A. Maggard was principal here last year and will assume the same duties at the opening of the coming term. Prof. Maggard will be assisted in high school work by Mrs. B. O. Gunnell. Grade teachers, it is announced by Superintendent John Stephens, will be Miss Eula Hunley, Delmon Howard, Joseph May, Samuel Hale, Mrs. Verlie G. Bush, Miss Margorie Lee and Miss Emily Scaff.

Begins Work at Maytown.

Work has been started on a two-story brick building for the Maytown Consolidated School, at Langley, this county, which is to have 11 rooms and will be erected at a cost of $23,251. C. E. Hale is the contractor in charge of the work. Work has been retarded here by damage wrought by recent flood waters in Beaver Creek to the foundation, but the building will be ready for use in September, it is expected. Prof. N. C. Boughton will be at the head of the faculty, with Lincoln J. Wells his assistant high school teacher. Teachers in the grades will be R. N. Cooley, ex-superintendent of Floyd county schools, and Jones Moore, with two or three other instructors yet to be selected.

Auxier Building Under Way.

At Auxier a two-story brick building for both high school and grade pupils is being built at a cost of $21,500 by E. P. Carter, Prestonsburg contractor. It will probably be completed within a month. The building will be approximately 100 feet long and 50 feet in width. A baseball field, which can upon occasion be utilized as an open-air basketball court, is in front of the building, giving the Auxier school one of the best athletic fields available for any school in Floyd County. Forrest Short is principal of the school, and will be assisted by Misses Flossie Hopson, Ruth Meeks and Mena Daniels.

Drilling Active in Local Field

Pipe Line Work Gives Employment For 800 Men.

Work in the Floyd-Knott oil and gas field is reported as being active, with about 30 rigs in operation, one big pipe line under construction and several short lines to be laid.

Drilling has been retarded by the recent high water in this county, but will probably continue at its present pace throughout the summer, an official of the leading company in this field said Tuesday.

The only well reported last week was a light gasser on the Vinson Whitaker lease on Middle Creek.

Approximately 400 men are employed in this county in laying the big 20-inch gas line from Maytown to Kenova, W. Va., for the Warfield Natural Gas Company, and the same number may be used by a new company in running various short lines from producing districts into the Middle Creek section at Ashland, it is said.

W. L. Wiggleson, field auditor, L. E. Lockard, time-keeper, P. E. Durdendach, chief engineer, and George Balch, general superintendent for Bylesby Engineering Management, are new men connected with the Louisville Gas and Electric Company in pipe line work in this field.

PRIZE OFFER $10 in Gold Reward for Best Correspondence Work.

In order to secure the highest type of correspondence for The Floyd County Times, this paper is offering $10 in gold to the correspondent from Floyd county who does the best work during this year in reporting news events from his or her community.

Correspondents are particularly urged never to contribute news matter of questionable character to The Times. Verify all reports whenever possible, and write cold

TYPHOID THREAT IS STEMMED BY RED CROSS AID

Health Centers Are Established in Five Towns.

WET SEASON, BANE

Approximately 5,000 persons are said to have been inoculated against the ravages of typhoid in this county in an effort to prevent the sweep of an epidemic in the wake of the wall of water which swept Beaver Creek and other sections of Floyd May 29 and 30 at Wayland, Gardot, Lantry, Beaver, Maytown, with Dr. J. E. Higgins and Ashland in charge of the work. Dr. Higgins and Mrs. Burns have had five nurses in Beaver Creek for more than a fortnight, vaccinating young and old, and urging the employment of measures to restore sanitary conditions in the flood-stricken area.

Nurses Margeret Land, of Winchester, Misses Berry and Hensley, of Ashland; Mrs. Crowley, of Lexington, and Miss Baird from Versailles have been under the leadership of Dr. Higgins and Mrs. Burns, and a monumental work has been effected in combating the threat of an epidemic of typhoid.

When the Times called Wayland to gather information as to the extent of the work to date, it was learned that the Red Cross workers had left Wayland Thursday morning. Whether the work there had been completed could not be learned.

Since the flood, a number of families in the Beaver valley have been obliged to live in neighbors' homes and public buildings while their own dwellings were being rehabilitated. While conditions have been bad in that section of the county, few or no families are reported as being destitute. Increased illness is reported from the water-swept section, most of which is due to exposure, but has as yet taken no alarming aspect.

Unprecedented rains throughout the year has retarded farming in Floyd County, as elsewhere, to the extent that present conditions are probably no more distressing than those anticipated for the coming winter. Little bottom land is under cultivation, and a part of hillside crops have been damaged by torrential rains.

County Agent Fred Lawson is urging farmers, however, to replant with early with which, he says, mature crops may maturing corn and with soy beans, be obtained in the growing season yet remaining.

CAPTURE SLAYER AT WHEELWRIGHT

John Bush, negro, wanted for murder in Louisville, was brought here Tuesday by Deputy Sheriffs W. D. and Rufus Martin from Wheelwright, on Left Beaver, where he was working in the mines. A sergeant of the Louisville police department arrived here Wednesday and left Wednesday evening with the negro for Louisville, where charges will be preferred against the prisoner.

The negro killed a 75-year-old night watchman in Louisville in May, and fled on the night of the killing with another negro's wife. Detectives located him by letters written by the woman with whom he left Louisville to her mother there. Robbery of a store just which the nightwatchman's child is believed to have furnished the motive for the slaying.

A. B. Meade, of the sheriff's office, spent the week-end with his family at Banner, returning here Monday.

ROCK ON TV
'Rewind' home video features Stones' hits

By E.A. Vare

The Rolling Stones' most recent greatest hits (sort of) will be available on videocassette in November. The $29.95 tape, called "Video Rewind," contains 55 minutes of Stones clips, plus documentary footage and conceptual material to tie it together. Songs by Mick Jagger and the boys include uncensored versions of "Undercover of the Night" and "She Was Hot" along with "Start Me Up," "Miss You" and others.

The sour-looking fellow in that video of "Who Wears These Shoes?" wedged between those half-dressed ladies isn't Don Rickles — though it does look like him, doesn't it? It's really Elton John, who made the video in Los Angeles. The clip was directed by French filmmaker Just Jaeckin, whose previous film credits include "Emmanuelle" and "Lady

HARMER'S HOLLYWOOD

Haid not blue about 'Hill Street' role

By Ian Harmer

HOLLYWOOD — The cowboy cop he plays in "Hill Street Blues" has given Charles Haid a higher public profile than any other role in his career, but he says he still doesn't think of himself as a TV star.

"Henry Winkler's a TV star — so is Robin Williams or Larry Hagman," said Haid. "But that isn't what I want to do. I want to act."

Charles Haid

Haid has been playing Officer Andy Renko since the critically acclaimed police drama made its debut in 1981. The blowhard bigot who Haid plays on "Hill Street" has erased almost all memory of the more sympathetic characters he created in two previous series, "Kate McShane" and "Delvecchio."

"A racist cop who loves and respects his black partner and doesn't even recognize his own inconsistency is a challenge to play," says Haid. "Renko can be pretty obnoxious at times, but he's real, and that's why right now I have no interest in playing the lead in my own series.

"A TV star has a heavy load to carry," says Haid. "TV, generally, is about well-coiffed and handsome men who walk out with pretty ladies, but our show doesn't have a lot of that. People don't scream and chase me for autographs when I walk down the street. But when I go to work, I'm part of an ensemble of actors who are respected for doing a good job, and that's rare in television... and very satisfying."

Haid says that if NBC had been looking for star material, "Hill Street Blues" would never have been put on the air. "As it is, there is absolutely no network interference with our show," he says. "The writers, producers and actors do the best job they know how. It's also the best time I have ever had in my career."

Haid's "Hill Street" schedule permits him to pursue his interest in producing material for TV and movies — a second hat he admits he would not have time to wear if he were a full-fledged star, carrying a show almost alone and working 80-hour weeks.

In 1979, he shared a producer's Emmy with Henry Winkler for "Who Are the DeBolts and Where Did They Get 19 Kids?" He has just returned from producing "Children in the Crossfire," an NBC movie filmed in Ireland.

"I'm not about to knock any other show on television — they're successful because they're damn good and the people in them are stars because they are terrific at what they do," says Haid. "Renko happens to be what I want to do."

High-flying Bird will lead Celts to NBA top

By Lorenzo Carcaterra

Beat the Bird. That has become the rallying cry for any team hoping to dethrone the defending National Basketball Association champion, the Boston Celtics, during the 1984-85 season. Beat the Bird. Larry Bird.

Larry Bird

The Celtics remain the NBA's power team. They have the talent (Kevin McHale, Robert Parrish, Bird) and class (Red Auerbach) to beat back the challenge of anyone, despite the fact that they play in the Eastern Division, the NBA's strongest. The Philadelphia 76ers are an aging team. Julius Erving is a year older and Moses Malone is not as aggressive as his salary indicates he should be. The Los Angeles Lakers will again pounce on any team in the West, but then, as always, they must face the Celtics in the finals. As always, they will lose. The 1984-85 season should bring on a batch of younger, stronger teams, which should come as no surprise to those following the NBA's life cycle.

Each season a few teams exceed expectations. Last year, it was the Detroit Pistons and the New York Knicks. This year it should again be the Pistons and Knicks, to be joined by the vastly improved New Jersey Nets. The Pistons are the NBA's street fighters. Isiah Thomas and Kelly Tripucka are the gang leaders, stomping opponents up and down the court. That the Knicks are as good as they are is a credit to two people — coach Hubie Brown and all-world forward Bernard King. They have an erratic backcourt, a weak front line, a temperamental center and a rotating bench. But, they win. They have taken Brown's system (the best in the league), adapted it to fit King's style and managed to win games they had no business winning. This year they should pull more of the same and may make it to the finals. The NBA Western Division is always given short shrift by fans and media: The West does not play defense; the West does not like to rebound; the West thinks it is uncool to block shots. That's why it's a common occurrence for a Western game to have a final score of 145-137. It's also why, except in very off years, the West always loses. And come next spring, the Celtics will still hold the winning hand. The coaching may not be the best, their bench not as strong as other teams, their backcourt unguarded at times, but none of that matters. The Celtics have memorized the words to the definition of winning. They always do and always have. This year should prove to be no exception.

Women's Shelter Is Opening, Needs Help

With the anticipated opening of a shelter in Martin this month, women who are beaten by their husbands will have a refuge in Floyd county for themselves and their children.

The shelter is being financed by a $60,000 grant from the state Human Resources Cabinet, on condition that a like amount is raised locally during the next year.

Shelter Director Pam Burbach said this week that volunteer workers are needed, as are immediate donations of cash, furniture, kitchen utensils, bedding, office equipment, and toys.

"People need to know that we are here and we need help," said Burbach, who will manage the facility on behalf of an organization called SAFE (for Shelter for Abused and Family Emergencies). "We've had a lot of people say, 'This is a good idea,' she said, "but not enough asking, 'How can I help?'"

Individuals or businesses wishing to help should call Mountain Comprehensive Care Center at 886-8572. Checks should be made out to SAFE. Battered women needing help should call the Mountain Comprehensive Care hotline, 1-800-422-1060.

Win, Place, and Show Finishers

These are the owners with their entries who come in 'in the money' at Saturday's Terrapin Trot, beating out more than 100 hardy competitors. First to thunder across the finish line in 47 seconds was a tarpin named appropriately enough "Thunder," entered by nine-year-old Charlotte Wells, of the Mountain Parkway, Prestonsburg. Coming in a close second was another speed demon, "Marilyn", the entry of Tara Berger, of Emma. Her time was 60 seconds flat. In what just missed being a photo finish, was "Mr. Will", the entry of the Prestonsburg Sundry, shown with his trainer, Maxine Branham. Mr. Will's time was 62 seconds.

Estates of Two Former Officials Targets of Suits

Claims were filed against the estates of two former county officials in Floyd Circuit Court this week.

The bonding firm that stood surety for former County Clerk C. Ollie Robinson seeks $75,000 from his estate, the amount the firm paid the Commonwealth of Kentucky earlier this year in partial settlement of the state's claims against Robinson.

The Aetna Casualty and Surety Co. insured Robinson for $75,000 against any dereliction in his official duties. After his death in February last year, the state Transportation Cabinet claimed he owed $288,989 in auto registration fees and the Revenue Cabinet said he owed $116,398 in delinquent taxes.

Claims have also been levied against the estate by the Floyd fiscal court, the First Commonwealth Bank and the Bank Josephine.

Heirs of the late Jerry Lafferty, Jr., former judge-executive and auto dealer, are named as defendants in a suit filed by the Bank Josephine, the bank claiming that a mortgage note signed three years ago by the judge, his wife Stella, son Jerry Bryan Lafferty, and daughter-in-law Anita Flanery Lafferty is in default.

Bank officials, who say $103,463 is owing on the note, are asking the court to order the sale of the New Allen property of Jerry Bryan Lafferty and Anita Lafferty to make good on the debt.

Earlier this year, Pikeville National Bank and Trust Co. won a $186,664 judgment against the late judge's estate.

Carnival Closed, Employees Booked

Police stopped operations of a carnival here early Thursday night following citizen complaints and arrested one of its employees on a drug trafficking charge two days later.

Schneider Amusements, an Ohio company, was closed only three days after setting up on the grounds of Prestonsburg grade school when police received complaints that some carnival employees had been seen drinking alcoholic beverages and were using profane language.

A carnival employee, Terry R. Warner, 28, of Reedsville, O. was arrested Saturday by Prestonsburg Auxiliary Policemen Rick Conn and Bob Carpenter, Jr. on a charge of trafficking in marijuana after what was termed a "large" quantity of the illegal substance was reportedly found in his possession. A subsequent search of a vehicle occupied by Warner by Detective Mike Ormerod and Jeff Stumbo led to the arrest of Benny L. Branham, 35, of Pomeroy, O. on charges of defacing a firearm and having a concealed deadly weapon. Also lodged in the Floyd county jail was Gerald K. Harris, 26, of Massilon, O., charged with disorderly conduct.

Branham and Harris were also employees of Schneider Amusements, it was said.

Man Arthritis Fund Roadblock

For the third year, members of the Prestonsburg Job Corps recently manned a roadblock here for the Arthritis Foundation. Their diligence and the generosity of those asked to contribute resulted in a total of $1,013.81, far exceeding the $700 goal set for Prestonsburg. Two of the 12 Job Corps members helping with the roadblock are, from left, above, Kirby Brown, III, and Norman Watson.

Blanche Finney, orientation specialist at the Job Corps Center, served as chairperson for the roadblock.

Fund-raising campaigns are now taking place in other towns in the county, and Miss Burieta Gearheart, Floyd county Arthritis Campaign chairperson said it is hoped that the goal of $1,400 will be exceeded.

New Phone Book Due This Month

One of Kentucky's best-read books is back in a new edition: It's the telephone directory.

Prestonsburg area homes and businesses will begin receiving the new books Wednesday, October 31, with mailing to be completed by Monday, November 5. Art Willett, manager for Bell, said home customers who don't receive a directory by Monday, November 12 should call Bell at 1-745-5011 and business customers should call 1-569-4400. All calls are toll free.

Most people know the white pages are a good source for names and addresses—in addition to phone numbers. And the Yellow Pages help find where to get the items and services you need.

But the phone book is a lot more than just listings it was pointed out. In the Customer Guide at the front of your white pages directory are emergency telephone numbers, area codes, time zones and zip codes. There's also information on how to pay bills, get repairs, reach directory assistance, call long distance, connect or disconnect plug-in telephone sets, plus money-saving tips and much more.

"We're constantly updating the directory with important facts about doing business with South Central Bell since its separation from AT&T," said Willett.

★ Cancer Hopeline

Q. I am an ovarian cancer patient who has had surgery and is now on chemotherapy. My doctor said that when the chemotherapy is over, I will need exploratory surgery to make sure all the cancer is gone. My big question is this: Is there any alternative to surgery for determining this?

A. Your wish to avoid any unnecessary surgery is understandable. However, there is no currently available technique, other than exploratory surgery (often called a "second look" operation), to determine whether or not all cancerous tissue has been eliminated by the recently completed treatment.

Ovarian cancer usually recurs within the abdominal cavity. These tumors or lesions (growths) are often too small to be detected on an x-ray or radioisotopic scan. For this reason, a second look operation is recommended for most patients.

The procedure is usually done soon after chemotherapy or radiation therapy is completed. Close examination of the abdominal cavity and biopsies (removal of tissue which is then looked at under a microscope) help to determine if additional treatment is necessary.

If Johnny can't read, is it because you didn't write?

This is your chance to let your voice be heard on the quality of education in Kentucky schools. The Prichard Committee, a group of Kentucky parents, employers, and citizens committed to Academic Improvement, invites you to share with us your ideas including:

- How can your schools do a better job for your child?
- How would you like to become involved?

Please jot down your ideas, and let us know what county you're from.

Improvements won't come overnight, but by working together, we can identify the problems, seek solutions, and find new directions to progress.

You'll be taking a step toward improving not only our schools, but also our future. Then if Johnny still can't read, you won't wonder if it's because you didn't write.

Cats Score Easy 42-15 Win Over Harrison County High

The Prestonsburg Black Cats continued their 1984 success story with an unexpectedly easy victory last Friday night at Cynthiana over the Harrison County Thoroughbreds, a team that had been regarded as trouble for the Cats. Prestonsburg won the game, 42 to 15. Coach Charles Wheeler saw the win as a "team victory," with the offense, linemen, backfield blockers and a stout defense sharing honors, but 16-year-old John Goble, junior quarterback, was outstanding. The Lexington Herald-Leader named him this week to the Sports Honor Roll for his performance at Cynthiana. Connecting on 11 of 16 pass attempts, he gained 232 yards in the air and added another 79 yards rushing. Two of his passes to Mike Gunter went for touchdowns, and a third scoring pass was received by Irvin Spears. In eight games this season he has gained a total of 1200 yards and has thrown 14 touchdown passes. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Gordon Goble. Another big hurdle is ahead Friday for the Cats when they meet the Pikeville Panthers here at 8 p.m. The final game on the Blackcat schedule is the following Friday evening, also at home against Morgan County.

Bobcats Lose in Overtime To Undefeated Phelps High

Undefeated Phelps High School kept its record unblemished last Thursday night at Betsy Layne, but the visitors knew they had been in a ball game before they left town. They won in overtime, 14 to 8. The Bobcats scored in the first quarter on a pass from Bud Newsome, quarterback, to Billy Campbell, and Campbell then picked up the two-point conversion. Down 8-0, Phelps tied it up in the third quarter on Maynard's touchdown and Gooslin's two-point conversion run. The fourth quarter was scoreless. Then the overtime, and Gooslin scored the tie-breaker. The extra point attempt failed. Betsy Layne's season record is 2-6. Thursday night's was Phelps' eighth consecutive victory, and the team has been rated in the state's top 10 in its class. The Bobcats are at home this week to Birch (W. Va.) High.

Redbird Wildlife Area Prepares for Fall Hunts

The Redbird Wildlife Management Area will begin its fall hunting seasons with a two-week archery hunt for antlered deer only from October 15-30. Management area gates at Sugar Creek, Gilbert's Creek, Elisha Creek, Amy Branch, Rockhouse, Lucinda and Henry Fork will be opened on October 14 to allow hunters access for scouting and to set up camp. Camping is allowed anywhere not posted as a "NO CAMPING" area. The gates will remain open through October 30. All Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources regulations pertaining to statewide archery seasons will be enforced. Hunters should especially note that all firearms are prohibited during archery season of the Redbird Wildlife Management Area. Shortly after archery season closes at Redbird, the management area will reopen for this year's one-day gun hunt for deer. This November 3 gun hunt runs concurrent with opening day of the statewide season for Zone 6. Management area gates will be opened the morning of November 2. Hunters may scout and set up camp. All guns, however, must remain unloaded and encased until 1 1/2 hours before official sunrise the morning of the hunt, November 3. Hunters are required to check in at the Redbird Wildlife Management Area checkstation before hunting. The checkstation will be located at the U.S. Forest Service District Ranger's Office on Highway 66 South at Peabody, Kentucky. Checkstation hours will be from 8 a.m. to 9 p.m., Friday, November 2, and from 4:30 a.m. to 9 p.m., Saturday, November 3. Hunters are also required to check out at the checkstation on Saturday when they have finished hunting for the day, even if they have not successfully killed a deer. Likewise, all successful hunters must check deer harvested on the management area, at the Redbird checkstation. The gates to the management area will be closed Saturday night, November 3 after hunters have had a reasonable amount of time to leave the area. All campers should allow themselves enough time during the day on Saturday to break camp. No camping will be allowed Saturday night. This one-day open season on the Redbird Wildlife Management Area is experimental and therefore it is hard to predict the number of hunters who will be hunting on November 3. Hunters should be cautious while in the field. All Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources regulations will be enforced during this hunt. If you have questions about the regulations, please ask any of the checkstation operators or available conservation officers. The last hunt planned for the Redbird Wildlife Management Area will be a two-week small game season from November 15-29. Hunters may hunt for squirrel, grouse, quail, rabbit and raccoon. Trapping for furbearers is also permitted during this two week season. The gates to the management area will be opened the morning of November 15 and will remain open for the two-week duration of this hunt. Camping is permitted as described for the earlier deer hunts. All Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources regulations and bag limits apply. Hunters should especially be aware that "ONLY SHOT-GUNS INCAPABLE OF HOLDING MORE THAN THREE (3) SHELLS ARE PERMITTED" during small game season on the Redbird Wildlife Management Area.

Public Notice
Dear Parkway Water Association:
The Association's Board of Directors are considering the sale of the Association to the City of Prestonsburg. This action is being considered because of the increased costs and time involved in keeping the water system functioning properly. The Association has 184 customers spread over approximately three miles, yet we do not have a paid full time maintenance person. We have been able to make the Association's service reliable over the years through the volunteer labor of the Directors and the use of part time labor and/or contract labor. But the economies of scale are not in our favor. We're too small to make enough money to make needed repairs and requested expansions. The system is fast approaching ten years of age and major repairs and maintenance needs to be done.

As stated above, the Board has begun preliminary negotiations with the City of Prestonsburg to purchase the system. If the sale should take place, the City would purchase the system including the outstanding indebtedness and assume responsibility of operation and maintenance, including reading the meters.

The rates currently charged by Parkway appear to be adequate except for the amount charged for any water purchased above the 10,000 gallon level. This is one area the Board feels is important to the members and will keep that foremost in our minds during the negotiations. We will ask our attorney to make a part of the condition to sell that the rates only be raised when City raises all its other rates and that the raise to Parkway be the same percentage.

In order for the sale to take place, a vote of the membership must take place. A meeting to secure the vote of the membership will be held November 1, 1984 at 7 o'clock p.m. at the Clark Elementary School. Please plan to attend this meeting at which time we can answer all your questions and secure your vote.

ROBERT HARRIS,
President, Parkway Water Association
10-17-84.

PCC Princess Honored at UK

Susan Collins, left, was honored as the 1984 Community College Princess representing Prestonsburg Community College during homecoming activities Oct. 6 at the University of Kentucky's Commonwealth Stadium. She is the 19-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Collins and is a sophomore at PCC. She was escorted by John Hinchman.

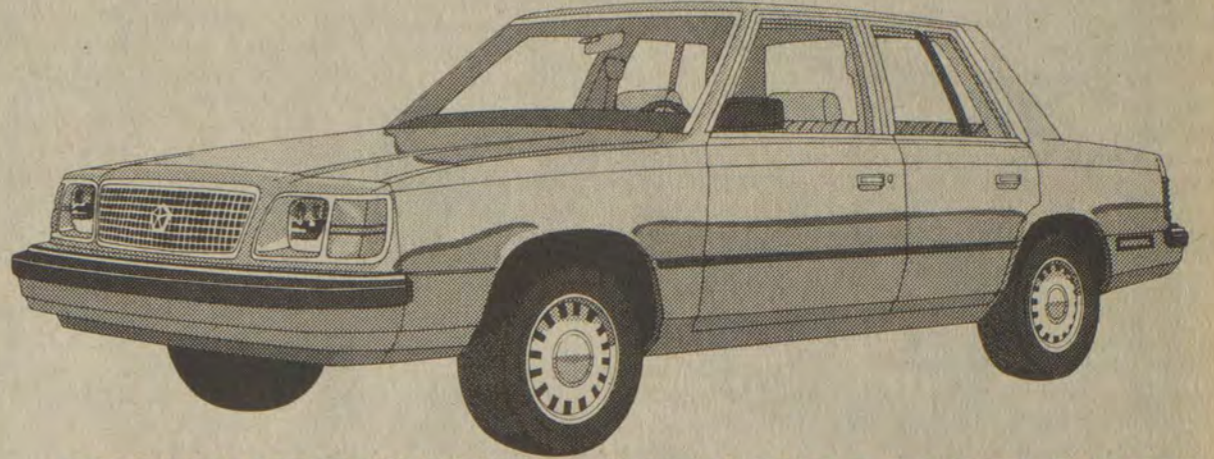

Have you looked at your woodland lately? If you considered the possibilities for timber improvement, you might be surprised. For instance, have you got any old hollowed out beeches or other trees that are taking up space but will never produce a good crop of lumber? If you do then you would benefit from woodland improvement harvesting where you remove cull trees to make way for more desirable species. Another possibility for timber improvement is thinning young stands of trees that are too thick for optimum growth. There are many young poplar stands in Floyd county that would benefit from this practice. Also pine tree stands that were planted 10 to 20 years ago usually need thinning. Sometimes there is slack time during the fall and winter months that can be put to use doing woodland practices. Instead of working in the garden you can work in the woods. Why not make an appointment with the local conservation district at 886-3128 or the Kentucky Division of Forestry at 886-8562 to take a closer look at your woodland today?

Also, be sure to get your order in for Kentucky Division of Forestry trees. Delivery of trees will start mid November. The longer you wait to order, the greater the chance there is that they may run short on the varieties you are needing. Call the local conservation district to have an order form forwarded to your address or come by the office at 105 Court Street and pick up an order form. Order forms are also available from the District Forestry office on South Lake Drive. It looks like we will have a good tree planting season with plenty of moisture to give trees a start and to carry them through the winter.

ACS Provides Free Telephone Service

The American Cancer Society's Kentucky Division has launched a toll-free telephone service (1-800-ACS-2345) that's equipped to answer nearly any question concerning cancer, according to Harry C. Barfield, of Lexington, chairman of the Society's Public Information Committee.

Barfield said that answers about the causes of cancer, preventive methods, new treatments and risk factors about the disease will all be part of the cancer response system. In addition, the service will put patients and their families in touch with local programs such as rehabilitation facilities, transportation to and from treatment locations, counseling and loan advice for home-care equipment.

The American Cancer Society has well-trained, highly skilled personnel ready to respond to Kentuckians needing assistance. All persons receive their information from a date bank, which continuously receives its information from ongoing sources all over the world.

"This new service will open new avenues of communicating with cancer patients and their families", Barfield said, "and the American Cancer Society looks forward to providing this cancer response system."

Thanks to Stumbo and Isaac

Photo shows County Judge-Executive John M. Stumbo directing machinery to another location after finishing repairs on the Prater Fork road. Edford Owens, who attended last month's fiscal court meeting and asked for help on repair of this road, said a special thanks is due to County Judge Stumbo and Deputy Judge Morris Isaac from the people and voters of Prater Fork "for their quick response in getting this job well done."

SHALL BEDTIME PRAYERS BE MODIFIED?

The traditional bedtime prayer most of us said as children can do more harm than good in certain family situations, such as after the death of a grandparent who "died in his sleep."

Consider the fear of death-during-sleep which an impressionable child might have after nightly recitation of the line: "...and if I die before I wake..."

Of course, we, ourselves, have survived the violence found even in Mother Goose tales, so, too, will our children survive their fears at bedtime. If, however, you'd like an alternate rhyme more on the positive side, you may wish to substitute these for the traditional lines:

Now I lay me down to sleep;
I pray the Lord my soul to keep.
In the morning when I wake,
I pray the Lord a good day to make.

While on the subject, the questions children ask about death deserve honest answers and on their own level of understanding. It may help if you can relate a person's or pet's death to that of a flower, a plant or a tree...that the flower grew, bloomed, faded and finally died, all in a natural order of events.

We'll be glad to discuss these subjects with you in greater detail.

SAFETY TIPS FOR HALLOWEEN

OCTOBER 30
6:00 p.m. to 8:30 p.m.

Halloween is a time for Trick or Treating and it is a time to be safe. When it comes to safety, here are the basic rules:

1. Make sure all costumes are flame-resistant and that they do not dangle or trail behind the child.
2. Use only flashlights in out-door Jack o'Lanterns.
3. Make sure that young children are adequately supervised by an adult.
4. Go only to houses or apartments of people you know.
5. Make your child understand that he is to eat no treats until you have gone over the loot together. (A box of raisins or a bag of candy provided by you for the journey will make the child feel less tempted.)
6. Discard any unwrapped candy, or any goodies in torn packaging.

The Work Picture Two Months Ago Brightens in All but 18 Counties

All but 18 of the state's 120 counties reported lower unemployment rates in August than in July, according to figures released last week by the Cabinet for Human Resources. Only 17 counties reported unemployment rates in August that were higher than in July. In one county the rate remained the same.

The figures reflect the drop statewide from a revised rate of 9.8 percent in July to a preliminary rate of 8.7 percent in August, the lowest in 34 months. Comparable national rates were 7.3 percent for August, down from 7.5 percent for July.

Bluegrass counties continued to head the list of those with lowest rates. Woodford county reported the lowest rate in the state, 3.4 percent, followed by Scott, with 3.7 percent, Jessamine, which reported a 4.4 percent rate, Fayette, with 4.5 percent, and Carroll and Clark, each of which reported 4.8 percent rates.

Three counties in northeastern Kentucky reported the state's highest rates. Carter county had the highest 23.1 percent. Menifee, which had reported the state's highest rate for three months, reported the second-highest, 19.8 percent, while adjacent Morgan county had the third highest rate, 19.3 percent. Letcher county was next with 19.0 percent.

The number of working Kentuckians was estimated to be 1,578,000, up 12,600 from July's estimate of 1,565,400 and 67,000 greater than the 1,511,000 reported in August 1983.

Meanwhile, an estimated 149,500 were unemployed, down 19,600 from 169,100 in July and 33,600 below the 183,100 who were out of work in August 1983.

State labor market analyst Ed Blackwell said seasonal factors caused the drop in the statewide rate. "Agricultural employment was up by 9,600 as the tobacco harvest season was underway," he said. Other gains were recorded in trade (2,300), state and local education (1,500), bituminous coal mining (1,300) and services (1,000).

He said manufacturing employment was down by 1,600, mainly because 700 jobs were lost in food and kindred products and 500 fewer jobs were reported in the paper, printing and publishing sector.

The state's civilian labor force estimate decreased from 1,734,500 in July to 1,727,500 in August, but was 33,400 higher than the August 1983 report of 1,694,100. Blackwell said, "Part of the decline between July and August can be attributed to the fact that students dropped out of the labor force to return to school." The civilian labor force includes non-military persons who are working and unemployed people who actively are seeking jobs.

In the Lexington metropolitan area unemployment dropped from a revised rate of 5.2 percent in July to a preliminary rate of 4.5 percent in August. In the area comprised of Fayette, Bourbon, Clark, Jessamine, Scott and Woodford counties, employment rose from 177,204 in July to 179,211 in August, while unemployment decreased from 9,764 to 8,448 during the same period. The area's civilian labor force estimate rose from 186,968 in July to 187,659 in August.

Unemployment in the Louisville metropolitan area decreased from a revised rate of 8.8 percent in July to a preliminary rate of 8.1 percent in August. In the area comprised of Jefferson, Bullitt and Oldham counties in Kentucky and Floyd and Clark counties in Indiana, employment declined from 403,841 in July to 400,267 in August, while unemployment dropped from 39,177 to 35,364 during the same period. The area's civilian labor force estimate fell from 443,018 in July to 435,631 in August.

In the Big Sandy district unemployment dropped from a revised rate of 12.9 percent in July to a preliminary rate of 11.2 percent in August. Martin county, which has reported the district's lowest rate since October, 1978, was the only county with a single-digit rate—5.5 percent—in August. Magoffin county's 14.2 percent rate was the district's highest.

The monthly sample of unemployment insurance benefits recipients in the district showed 44.0 percent had worked in mining, 22.6 percent in trade, 19.0 percent in services and 11.1 percent in construction.

With a work force of 15,891, Floyd county had 14,028 employed during August. The 1863 unemployed brought the county's rate to 11.7 percent. Johnson county, with all but 1069 of its 9498 workers employed had a rate of 11.3. Magoffin, highest in this area with a rate of 14.2, had 5077 of its 5918 workers employed. Pike county had an unemployment rate of 12 percent, with 28,219 of its workforce of 32,066 at work. Martin county's rate, as usual, was lowest at 5.5 percent, with all but 490 of its 8902 employables at work.

Amendment Approved To Protect Falls Of Ohio Preserve

The Senate has approved an amendment offered by Kentucky Sens. Wendell Ford and Walter (Dee) Huddleston that provides up to $1.04 million for land acquisition and preservation at Falls of the Ohio National Wildlife Preservation Area.

The Senate amendment, attached to a stopgap appropriations measure, was approved by voice vote. The House has already authorized the project, although it has not yet approved the spending.

The Falls of the Ohio contains a 375-million-year-old fossil bed which is believed to be the world's largest exposed coral reef.

"We owe the American public the means by which to preserve this unique form of natural history," Ford said in asking for passage of the amendment.

Huddleston said, "This project allows us to demonstrate our environmental concern for fish and wildlife in a manner compatible with navigation on the Ohio River."

Congress appropriated $300,000 previously. Since then, the Army Corps of Engineers has estimated that $1.04 million would be needed to adequately protect the wetland area and to provide safe access for the public.

"The preservation of the Falls of the Ohio is further made critical by the fact that the fossil bed area is a nesting ground for the American bald eagle—the symbol of American Spirit and drive," Ford said.

Huddleston added, "There are very few areas east of the Mississippi River that provide such a unique opportunity for preservation and protection. This is a special case, and I'm glad Congress agrees."

Eleanor Roosevelt's Historic Home, 'Val-Kill': Place of Peace and People

Eleanor Roosevelt's living room in her Val-Kill home. She sat in the wing chair behind the small table, usually knitting or frequently reading aloud to her guests, many of them children.

By DAVID M. MAXFIELD
Smithsonian News Service

Winston Churchill paddled about in the pool near the cottage. Nikita Khrushchev stopped by one autumn afternoon for a visit. John F. Kennedy, courting crucial political support, was invited for lunch during the 1960 presidential campaign. At times in between, the retreat along the Hudson River Valley often was brimming with friends, neighbors, relatives and others whom the owner deeply cared about or wished to know.

The place is Val-Kill, Eleanor Roosevelt's home and now the first National Historic Site dedicated to a first lady. Located in Hyde Park, N.Y., just a few miles east of the Franklin D. Roosevelt family home, Val-Kill has opened permanently to the public as part of the centennial observance of Mrs. Roosevelt's birth on Oct. 11, 1884.

"The peace of it is divine," she wrote shortly after the first section of the retreat was built in 1926, saying later that "Val-Kill was where I used to find myself and grow. At Val-Kill I emerged as an individual."

Known by admirers in her time as "The First Lady of the World," Eleanor Roosevelt was a woman of many interests and priorities—the abolition of poverty, careers for youth, women's rights, the rights of minorities, new homelands for refugees of war and, above all, peace. Her contribution in drafting the landmark 1948 United Nations' Human Rights Declaration is considered the crowning achievement of years of activism. She was "an American phenomenon comparable to the Niagara Falls," one U.N. diplomat said.

Eleanor simply loved people. She delighted the king and queen of England on a Hyde Park visit by serving them hot dogs. Each spring at her wooded site, she hosted—and thoroughly enjoyed—an all-day picnic for several hundred youths from the nearby Wiltwyck School for disturbed boys, also serving hot dogs and treating them royally.

She was constantly growing, biographer Joseph P. Lash writes, quoting from a letter of 1937: "If the day ever comes when someone talks to me about something and it does not at once start a dozen trains of thought, I shall feel that the real springs of life are showing up..." On another occasion, Eleanor advised a graduating class, "Don't dry up by inaction but go out and do new things and see new things with your own eyes."

Slowly at first, and often painfully, Eleanor had moved away from a patrician background of privilege in which she could have settled down to a comfortable life of teas and charities. Instead, Eleanor Roosevelt "wanted to be fully involved—with work, with people," Lash explains. "She did not want to be a name on a letterhead, an ornamental woman, without a job of her own to do."

By the close of FDR's second term in the White House, the first lady was highly praised for her independence of thought and action, says Howard Morrison, organizer of the Smithsonian's anniversary exhibition, "Eleanor Roosevelt: First Person Singular," at the National Museum of American History in Washington, D.C. Against President Roosevelt's wishes, Eleanor actively fought the lynching of blacks in the South. "It seems to me a terrible thing to stand by and let it continue and feel that one cannot speak out," she said at the time.

Look magazine named her "the most influential woman of our times" in 1941, but there were plenty of detractors. When FDR ran for his third term, the opposition party campaigned against Eleanor as well as the president. And though she spoke more of brotherhood and equal opportunity than of substantive racial equality, most white Americans in the 1930s had considered her positions radical, Morrison observes.

For all her causes and concerns, in the end, she wrote a close friend, "The people I love mean more to me than all the public things."

Val-Kill (a Dutch name that the Roosevelts took to mean valley stream) was a place she could be with those people. When Franklin was in residence at the Roosevelt family's Hyde Park estate, Eleanor joined him there. But that house overlooking the Hudson was too much mother-in-law Sara's home for Eleanor. At dinner parties Eleanor was seated among the guests while mother and son presided at the ends of the table. "Whenever I can I want to be at the cottage," she wrote of Val-Kill. "My heart is in the cottage."

The delightful approach to the Val-Kill site—the property and buildings are maintained by the National Park Service—takes one along a little dirt road that parallels a low wall of stacked fieldstone. Crossing over the Fall Kill stream, Eleanor's L-shaped cottage and an earlier house come into view. With its 20 rooms of all sizes and shapes, its alcoves and unexpected step-ups and step-downs, the cottage, she herself said, was "fairly comfortable if somewhat odd."

Odd, or as others thought, charming, the house started out as a furniture factory—fitting for a home often filled with guests. In 1926, Eleanor and two friends decided to set up a small plant to make Colonial reproductions. Val-Kill Industries was also a social experiment, the idea being that cottage industries in rural areas could provide jobs for unemployed youths who might otherwise move away to big cities. Eleanor, who managed sales, and her partners felt they "were moving to a great future." Actually, Eleanor was the factory's best customer, buying items for the Roosevelt clan.

The enterprise didn't work out, and by 1937 Eleanor had converted the old shop into apartments for herself, her secretary and any overflow of visitors from the Roosevelt mansion. Eleanor's favorite room was the second-floor sleeping porch off her bedroom. There, from May until October, she would awake to a view of the surrounding trees and the chirping of birds. At Val-Kill she found inspiration and moments of peace. "It was something of my own," she said of the place she called home.

And yet, as much as she cherished the tranquility and restfulness of the cottage, always she cared more about the people who visited there. "Val-Kill came to serve Eleanor's purposes beautifully," Park Service unit manager Margaret Partridge says. "She was not the type who wanted solitude. If she came up and was alone, she'd call and invite people over." Even Sara Roosevelt, ever the grande dame, came over and enjoyed picnics and the setting.

Place of Peace And People...

"The house instantly drew you into itself, welcoming you from room to room," a niece of Eleanor's once wrote. "It was a paradise for children who loved to explore, to discover books or to play hide and seek." Though pine-paneled rooms invited small, informal gatherings, they were rather awkward for the large delegations that arrived there so often. However, the niece added affectionately, "my aunt never seemed to see any relationship between the length of her guest list and the size of her cottage." During Eleanor's last days, she would tell her long-time housekeeper that there would be no more big parties, then, in the next breath, mention that there would be 14 for breakfast the next day. To Mrs. Roosevelt, that wasn't a big party.

Throughout the gatherings—to the uninitiated they could seem like bedlam—Eleanor somehow managed to find serenity. As guests assembled in her living room before lunch or dinner, Dr. A. David Gurewitsch, her personal physician and close friend, remembered, "she often sat at her desk, seemingly oblivious to the conversations that went on around her, reading her mail or making notations on how letters should be answered." And often she would pull someone aside and sit in a favorite spot near a living room window for a private talk.

Val-Kill also symbolized a major pattern in Eleanor's life, Morrison believes: independence. During FDR's 1920 campaign for vice-president, Eleanor had begun to take an interest in public life herself. She soon joined the League of Women Voters, monitoring political legislation for the group.

This was the beginning of her political stirrings that would last a lifetime. "Action brings with it its own courage, its own energy, a growth of self-confidence that can be acquired in no other way," she said, words that precisely fit her own life.

That self-confidence was vitally needed after FDR's death when she wrangled with Soviet and other delegates at the United Nations through hours of excruciating debate over the declaration outlining international rights and freedoms that people should expect from their governments. "I just did what I had to do as things came along," she said later with much modesty, revealing that "I got my most satisfaction from my work at the U.N."

Val-Kill provided sanctuary. The first thing she did each day there was to walk her Scotties in the surrounding woodlands. Mrs. Roosevelt loved flowers, and during her walks, depending on the season, she'd cut dahlias, marigolds or gladioluses. Later she would put them in vases around the house, remembering her guests' special favorites.

Work and her mail continued through the day. After lunch she often pulled the children aside to read to them for an hour or so before slipping out for a mid-afternoon swim. Dinners were filled with lively talk of the issues and dilemmas of the times. And when she retired about 10 or so, it would be to work on additional correspondence until she dropped off to sleep on her bedroom porch around midnight.

"I like the still nights," she once said, "sleeping on my balcony at home, with only the stars to look at, just because it gives one a feeling of taking it in."

(The Smithsonian's exhibition "Eleanor Roosevelt: First Person Singular," at the National Museum of American History, continues through next Jan. 6. The Val-Kill cottage in Hyde Park, N.Y., is now open to the public and is administered by the National Park Service.)

Social Security

Children Need Evidence

By JIM KELLY

Social Security District Director
Everyone who applies for a Social Security number must provide evidence of age, identity, and U.S. citizenship or lawful alien status, including young children.

Parents sometimes have difficulty finding the required evidence for their children. They especially have trouble with the idea of providing evidence of identity.

Proof of age is relatively easy, an official U.S. public birth certificate recorded before age 5 is preferred. This document will also establish citizenship.

Documents which will establish a young child's identity and which are usually available to most families, include a report card, school identification card, newspaper birth announcement, court order for name change, church membership or confirmation record, doctor or hospital record, vaccination certificate, day care or nursery school record, or child's membership in youth organization, such as Scouts.

This is not an exclusive list. Any document providing enough identifying data can be used.

Foreign born applicants will also need the appropriate Immigration and Naturalization Service documents.

Only original documents or copies certified by the issuing agency can be used.

(For more information, contact the Big Sandy Area Social Security Office, located on U.S. 23 between Prestonsburg and Paintsville.)

PUBLIC NOTICE

The Kentucky Natural Resources and Environmental Protection Cabinet, Division of Water, hereby gives notice that the Weeksbury Water Supply exceeded the maximum contaminant level for coliform bacteria for the reporting period of June 1984.

The test results for coliform bacteria (normally found in the intestinal tract of humans and other warm-blooded animals) indicate that some contamination occurred. Coliform bacteria is not considered harmful, however, its presence is a reliable indicator that harmful bacteria may have been present in the water at that time.

The Weeksbury Water Supply was formally notified of this violation and the regulatory requirement to inform their consumers of this violation. As of September 27, 1984, the Division of Water has not received verification of the Public Notification. Therefore, the Division of Water is acting on behalf of the water supply in issuing this statement in accordance with the Kentucky Public and Semipublic Water Supplies Regulations (401 KAR 6:015).

- Other violations accumulated since October 1983 are:
- October 1983—Failure to submit an adequate number of water samples for bacteriological analysis.
- November 1983—Failure to submit an adequate number of water samples for bacteriological analysis.
- December 1983—Failure to submit an adequate number of water samples for bacteriological analysis.
- January 1984—Failure to submit an adequate number of water samples for bacteriological analysis.

Martin Co. Coal's Mine Rescue Team

Martin County Coal Corporation's mine rescue teams were second in the Kentucky Statewide Mine Rescue Contests held in Lexington recently at the Kentucky Horse Park. Martin County Coal finished in second place in the one hour and two hour events. Mine rescue competitions are conducted to assess and sharpen the skills of teams organized to respond to emergency situations in underground mines.

The Kentucky statewide contests are conducted once every two years and are under the direction of the Kentucky Mining Institute in cooperation with the Kentucky Department of Mines & Minerals and the U.S. Mine Safety and Health Administration. Four other state regional mining institutes assist in sponsoring the contests.

Trophies were presented to the top three teams in each category at an awards banquet at the Holiday Inn North following completion of the contests. Receiving awards in the two-hour mine rescue contest were, first place: Leeco, Inc., Laurel Team, London; second place, Martin County Coal Corporation, Inez, and third place, Eastern Coal Corporation, Stone.

Winners in the one-hour contest were, first place, Leeco, Inc., Laurel Team; second place, Martin County Coal Corporation, and third place, Leeco, Inc., Leslie Team, London.

Other companies competing in the contests were six teams from Peabody Coal Co., three teams from Blue Diamond Mining Co., two teams each from U.S. Steel Mining Co., Island Creek Coal Co., and National Mines Corp., and single teams from Bailey Hill Mining Co., Beth-Elkhorn Corp., Brownies Creek Collieries, Pyro Mining Co., South East Coal Co., and Wolf Creek Collieries.

Ed Chafin, Martin County Coal's team trainer, said, "Some of the best mine rescue teams in the nation are based here in Kentucky. Our team's accomplishments this year prove that we are among the best in the country. In 1984 contests we have placed ahead of the defending national championship teams in the one-hour and two-hour competitions. Our second place finish in these statewide contests is even more significant when you consider this is only our second year in two-hour mine rescue work and the first year for our one-hour team. Well trained mine rescue teams can mean the difference between life and death in our industry. It's a real honor for me to be associated with such a dedicated group of men who are willing to risk their own lives to save the lives of others."

Members of the Martin County Coal mine rescue teams are Bill Prater, captain of the two hour team, Randy Moore, captain of the one hour team, Charles Snively, map man, Woody Slone and Warren Cassidy, gas men, Bernie Dalton, rear captain, Terry Preece, briefing officer, and Randy Fitzpatrick, pilot.
