

Bell Quits Post As MCC Director

State Cabinet's Report Critical Of Center Here

The executive director of the Mountain Comprehensive Care Center here submitted his resignation; changes were promised that would give staff members better access to the center's board of directors; and the leader of a citizen group that has been highly critical of center management expressed confidence Monday night that the mental health agency was beginning to get a handle on its troubles.

But an attorney for several Mountain Comprehensive Care employees terminated in a recent series of firings and layoffs said later that the board would need to initiate much more sweeping changes if the center's troubles were to be resolved.

In a brief letter read to the board at its regular monthly meeting Monday, Executive Director David E. Bell, Jr., a 13-year veteran of the center, announced his resignation, effective October 28. Bell did not attend the meeting.

(No one was named to replace Bell, even as acting director. A move reportedly made in executive session to appoint Lewis Robinson, head of the agency's Pikeville office, as acting director is said to have ended in a stalemate.)

Martin attorney Danny Caudill, chairman of the board's personnel committee, outlined proposed policy changes which include a streamlining of employee grievance machinery, reactivation of a staff personnel committee, and board notification of any firings, demotions and transfers. "We have been criticized for lack of access," Caudill said. "We're trying to correct that."

By the end of the meeting, Wesley Howard, who earlier had called for an investigation of recent "terminations, transfers, and demotions," expressed a desire to "get away from criticism" and said he was pleased with the initiatives undertaken or proposed by the board.

But attorney Ned Pillersdorf said after the meeting that "a lot more changes are needed" in the operation of the center. "I expected a complete reorganization of staff," he said, "not just (the resignation of) Bell."

Three Bridges In State Plans

Three major bridges to replace old, inadequate spans are expected to be completed in this county next year. They are:

—The bridge across the Big Sandy at Allen, already under construction and expected to be completed next summer.

—The bridge at Cliff across the Big Sandy, on KY 1428 (old US 23), scheduled for letting to contract Oct. 28.

—The bridge to replace the old German bridge in the headwaters of Dewey Lake, which had been slated for contract this month but has encountered a temporary delay pending settlement of a problem involving the U.S. Corps of Engineers, according to Kirby Ison, chief district engineer, Kentucky Department of Highways, Pikeville.

Rights-of-way for the new span at Cliff have been acquired from the City of Prestonsburg and Dr. Ballard Wright, with one small parcel yet to be bought from the University of Kentucky. Plans for the bridge provide that it be located on the south (upriver) side of the present span, which is to remain in use till its replacement is completed.

Ison said preliminary plans for US 23 between Prestonsburg and Paintsville are expected this month from Brighton Engineers, with alternate routes and recommendations. The time schedule for this project is incomplete.

SCHOOL WAS BACK Monday after two delays caused by the need to remove asbestos insulation and correct fire code violations at some schools. This unhurried scene at Prestonsburg grade school Monday morning contrasted sharply with a weekend of feverish activity at the school, where maintenance crews raced against the clock to install electrical wiring that would meet the city fire marshal's standards.

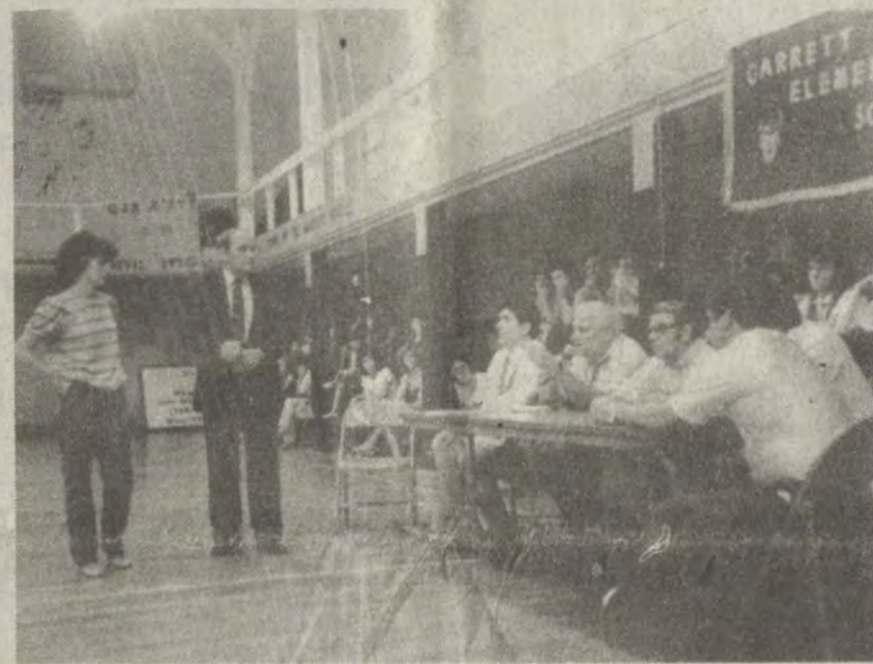

Charges Dropped Against Man, 81

A murder charge against an 81-year-old Justell man was dropped Monday in Floyd District Court, although a Circuit Court grand jury could still return an indictment against him.

William E. Hatcher was charged in the shooting death of Toma (Tommy) Dean Spradlin, 36, on June 8, but has been free on bond. At a preliminary hearing in district court Monday, State Trooper Todd Henson testified that several witnesses said that Spradlin was attempting to break into Hatcher's small camper home and had threatened the old man before he was fatally wounded in the neck.

The shooting appeared to be "a clear case of self-defense," said Henson, who indicated he would not seek an indictment in presenting the case to the grand jury which meets September 3.

Hatcher was represented in court by Public Defender Gary Johnson. Assistant County Attorney Dan Rowland, for the Commonwealth, offered no objection to the dismissal of the charge by District Judge Harold Stumbo.

CONCERNED PARENT PEGGY BROWN and Principal Ralph O'Quinn listen as Assistant Superintendent Ray Brackett makes a point during Monday night's meeting to determine what to do about a rapidly deteriorating Garrett Elementary School building.

Alarmed Parents Ask New Garrett School

"We want a new school!" was the battle cry of concerned parents of Garrett Elementary School students at a meeting Monday night in the school's gymnasium.

The alarm was brought on by a number of major cracks which have appeared since last Thursday in the school's oldest building, a two-story brick structure built in 1929.

Though school was opened as scheduled on Monday, angry parents did not allow their children to attend classes in the damaged building. Only the top floor of the building had been deemed unsafe by structural engineer Lee Shannon, and classes were to be held downstairs. However, as more than one parent noted, if the top floor was unsafe, the entire building was hazardous. Classes were cancelled yesterday and today (Wednesday) while a second structural engineer is sought to render an opinion on the safety of using the gymnasium to conduct some classes.

Monday's meeting was called to inform parents of the situation, and to tell them what officials planned to do about it, as well as to let them voice their concerns. In addition to a near-capacity crowd of concerned parents, children and teachers, Floyd Schools Superintendent E.P. "Pete" Grigsby, Jr., Assistant Superintendent Ray Brackett, school board member James A. Duff, State Senator Benny Ray Bailey and State Representative Jim Rose, Hindman Democrats, joined Principal Ralph O'Quinn in the sweltering gym.

And the heat was matched by the tempers of some of the parents, who were unwilling at first to agree to a compromise suggested by O'Quinn which would allow the gym to be partitioned into five classrooms, while bringing in two

School Leaders Here Reply to State Quiz

In the war of words between local and state education officials, Floyd school administrators discharged a 13-page salvo last Thursday in response to 18 questions posed July 8 by Robert Spillman, an associate superintendent in the state Department of Education.

The document represents the Floyd officials' answer to the challenge posed last month by the state Board of Education, which threatened to consider taking over the school system here unless the Floyd board and superintendent showed they could run the schools properly.

Superintendent E.P. Grigsby, Jr. tackled, head-on, the six questions directed to him. What Spillman called "an acknowledged breakdown" in the superintendent's direction and supervision of staff does not exist, Grigsby insisted. Regular meetings between administrators and staff, a monthly newsletter, and inter-office memos keep channels of communication open, he said.

Where Spillman spoke of "numerous delays" in complying with a 1979 order of the state fire marshal, Grigsby replied that he has "continually followed directives and agreements" relating to the fire code. Indeed, correcting code violations has been a "top priority" of Floyd school administrators, he said.

Can the schools be safely evacuated in an emergency? School staffs have been instructed in emergency procedures, principals are required to post escape routes, fire drills are held at least eight times a year, and a log is kept in each school recording the time taken to clear the building, the superintendent said.

Why did the district declare a fake emergency as a pretext for bypassing state bidding laws in purchasing bus parts and other supplies? In his judgment, Grigsby said, the emergency was real.

A June 27 letter he sent to state Superintendent of Public Instruction Alice McDonald was not meant to be "vague or evasive," Grigsby said. If anybody was being wrongly it was Spillman, who pled Floyd officials with "vague questions instead of direct specifics," he added.

In one of a dozen questions routed to Assistant Superintendent Ray Brackett, Spillman asked for an explanation of "acknowledged poor management practices," which continue to "siphon off funds needed for instructional programs

Big Sandy Health Care Names Chaffins Director

Big Sandy Health Care, Inc. has named Ron Chaffins, 33, of Prestonsburg, as executive director. Chaffins replaces Ellis Buchanan, who resigned as director in May.

Before joining the health care agency, Chaffins was for six years associate professor of accounting at Prestonsburg Community College. He has a master's degree in economics from the University of Kentucky.

Chaffins is married to Patsy L. Chaffins. They have two children—Aimee, 8, and Joel, 6.

This Town...That World

FOR THE BIRDS?

August, as a part of the time each of us has here below, has its points and should be duly appreciated, but if you're looking for a target to toss a few barbs at, this month is hard to beat. The day after day cumulative effect of those twin scourges, heat and humidity, has been so debilitating that I have stopped feeding the birds. And what's worse, the birds have given me to understand that they can very well get along without me.

MORE ABOUT THE DUCK

Jack and Alma Keenan were back home from Florida last week and dropped by during my absence. Left a note, saying that that much-publicized fowl that we were having trouble identifying is a muscovy duck and that in Florida this particular brand of duck makes of itself something of a nuisance. Down there, they say, a "duck truck" comes around and will help you get rid of them for $4 a head.

THE HOLDUP

Don't know who drew it, but one of the funniest cartoons I've seen in a while is the one showing this fisherman with a trophy-size fish dangling from the end of his line and his wife in the other end of the boat with scissors open and about to close on the line as she says, "Tell me again—who's gonna clean it?"

GOOD NEWS

This public official had a telephone call from a disturbed taxpayer. "We've got a flood up here," the man told him in excited tones. "Rain still pouring, river rising—"

"Great!" the official chuckled.

"Say, this ain't funny. The water's coming' into my house. What's so great about that?"

"It's great, the official insisted. "This is the first time during my term of office that what happens can't be blamed on me."

BROKEN RESOLUTION

My son, Paul Neil, thought the little town of Mountain View, Ark. was such a great place that during a visit there a few years ago he arranged an exchange between our paper and theirs. The Stone County Leader. We've been swapping papers, every week since, and I, who have never seen Mountain View, have

Court Votes To Curb Pollution in County

The practice of carving a narrow bench from a hillside and setting a house trailer on it will stop if Floyd Health Administrator Earl Compton has his way.

The problem, Compton told members of Floyd Fiscal Court last Friday, is that the property owner on such a site will have no way of handling sewage except to pipe it into the nearest creek or ditchline.

At the health chief's request, the court voted to require owners of new homes and trailers to show that they have an approved sewage disposal system before they can get their electric power hooked up.

Police Seek Safe School Traffic Flow

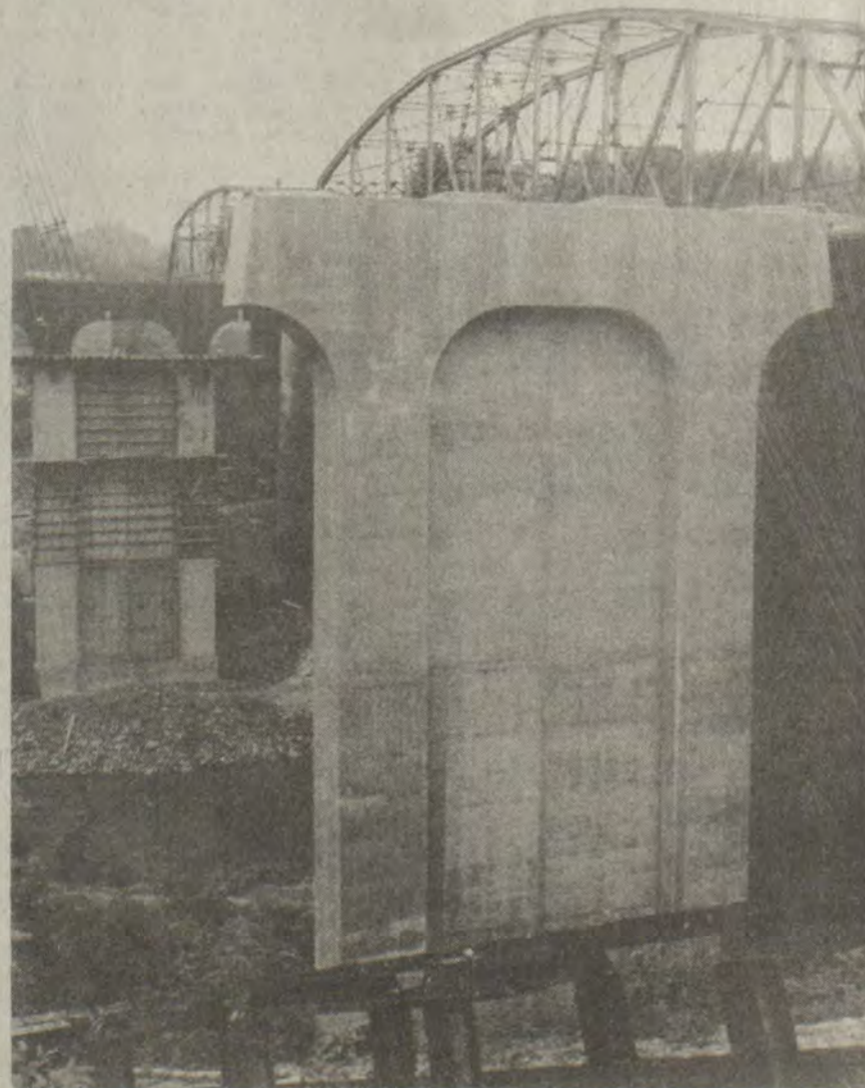

Police officers directing traffic and a new cross-walk on Highland Avenue should make things safer for Prestonsburg Elementary School children, says Police Chief Stan Fletcher.

Fletcher cited the severe traffic congestion on both Highland Ave. and North Lake Dr. at the school's front entrance as children are being dropped off and picked up as a priority problem for his department.

To help alleviate the problem, Fletcher said he had installed the cross-walk and would have police officers directing traffic at both locations as well as the traffic lights, during peak hours. A cross-walk had previously been made at the North Lake Dr. entrance to the school.

Fletcher said one of the problems he hoped to control was the line of traffic caused by children being dropped off in the mornings. "A parent letting a child out and searching for lunch money and things like that can back up traffic past the red light" on North Lake Dr., he said.

The police chief also said that parents would not be permitted to park in the school's rear parking lot, as it had been reserved for school employees only. He said parents should, instead, park in the lot of the vacated Piggly Wiggly Supermarket.

WORK PROGRESSED UNDER OVERCAST SKIES Monday on the new bridge at Allen. The span, scheduled for completion next summer, replaces the structure which has connected Old and New Allen for more than forty years.

Founder of Folk Festival Looks to Its 20th Renewal

With the 20th annual Highlands Regional Folk Festival less than a month away, festival founder Edith James is understandably excited.

Mrs. James, who founded the annual gathering of singers, dancers, tale-tellers, poets, musicians and craftsmen of the Southern mountains in 1966, says she is looking forward to the festival as much as ever, though she no longer serves as director. She gave up those duties several years ago to present director Kathryn Frazier, but still lives in her native Prestonsburg and helps in planning the festival.

Born here at a time when, she said, the town had just two streets, Mrs. James "was up and down them, in and out of everybody's house. I knew everybody. I was just a child, and I'd go up and down the streets whistling," she said.

This was apparently her natural musical ability showing itself, because as she grew older her life began to revolve more and more around music. "I started out to be a singer," she said. After beginning her musical studies at the Roanoke Institute (now Averette College) of Roanoke, Va., she continued at the Peabody Conservatory in Baltimore, Md., and later at the Cincinnati Conservatory. Mrs. James drew accolades as a singer with the Baltimore Symphony, and later toured with the Chautauqua.

But her mountain heritage was deeply ingrained, and she eventually found her way back to Prestonsburg, where she began a study of traditional folk music that has continued to this day. She said her studies have served to heighten her appreciation for the beauty and dignity of the mountain musical heritage.

Mrs. James said she began collecting folksongs during the WPA days. She committed to paper many songs which had never before been documented, and wrote of their relationship to the Gregorian Chant. The material she collected now is in the Library of Congress. For this and her many other accomplishments, not the least of which are the Folk Festival and traditional Old Christmas celebration held yearly at Jenny Wiley State Park, Mrs. James has been listed in both the "Personalities of the South," and the register of the National Association of Music Clubs.

The Folk Festival, which is held under the auspices of the Jenny Wiley Drama Association, has from the beginning been a professional, well-respected program. Even in its first year, it was receiving help from the National Folk Festival in the person of its director, Gertrude Knott, who helped in organization and rehearsal.

According to a Floyd County Times article of June 30, 1966, the first Festival featured "ballads and dances dating back to old England, river songs and chanteys," on its opening night, Friday, June 24. "Folk songs, dulcimer, fiddle and guitar music, balladry of the hills and dances of the region comprised the Saturday evening program," said the article, while "Sunday's closing program was devoted to church music and its development, ranging from the Gregorian Chant through lined hymns, Negro spirituals, church music with instrumental accompaniment and oldtime favorites of the region."

And the Festival, which Mrs. James claims is the oldest continuing event of its kind, was considered to be a success.

Things haven't changed much, apparently, in the last 20 years. With the exception of festivities beginning on Thursday now and running through Sunday, Mrs. James' original format is still used.

This year's Festival, which will run from September 5 through 8, will include Thursday, Friday and Saturday evening programs devoted to traditional music, song and dance of the Eastern Highlands, with a late afternoon program Sunday presenting the history and development of religious music in the hills.

For those interested in traditional Appalachian arts and crafts, such items will be exhibited and sold in the amphitheatre parking lot from noon Friday, all day Saturday, late Sunday morning and early Sunday afternoon.

In introducing the first performers at the initial Festival here, 19 years ago, Mrs. James said, "We go afar to learn the music of the masters and return to find our 'blue bird' in our own beautiful music with its Old World background."

In finding that beauty and helping to preserve it, Mrs. James has created a lasting legacy for the people of the Kentucky Highlands.

Auto Driver Involved In Death of Mrs. Cook Remained Unidentified

Identity of the driver of the car from which Linda Kay Belcher Cook, 31, of Grethel, either jumped or was pushed to her death the night of Aug. 12 on KY 80, near Hindman, has not been established. Officers of the Hazard State Police post continued the investigation this week.

Mrs. Cook's body was discovered early the next morning by a coal truck driver.

The victim, a daughter of the late Arthur and Oma Ray Belcher, was the widow of Wendell Cook. She is survived by two sons and one daughter, Timmy, Wendy Jordan and Roberta Evelyn Cook, all at home; four brothers, James Belcher, of Columbus, Ohio, Ricky Belcher Adkins, of Greasy Creek, Oliver Harrison Belcher, of Homer, Ohio, and Charlie Belcher, of Warsaw, Ind.; seven sisters, Audrey Belcher, of Teaberry, Anna Rose Johnson, of Jenkins, Sheryl Ann Smith and Judy Gay Keaton, both of Pikeville, Oma Riddle, of Virgie, Ruby Evelyn Belcher and Roberta Belcher, both of Bowling Green.

Funeral services were held Saturday at the Teaberry home of her grandmother, Rosie Belcher, with Luther Hamilton and Lloyd Ray officiating. Burial was in the Sam Hall Cemetery at Bear Fork of Robinson Creek.

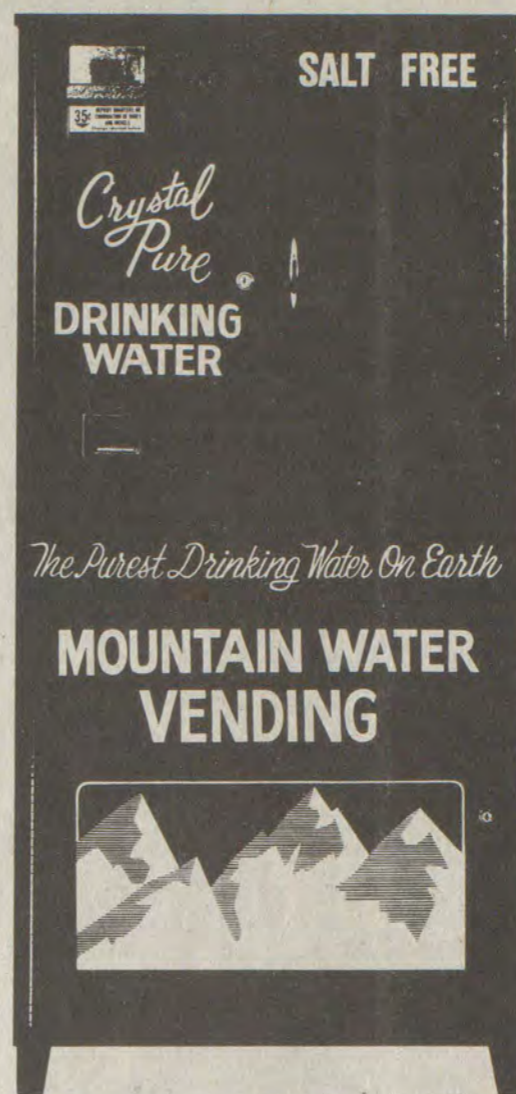

AUXIER NEWS

The Auxier Community Development Club will meet at 7 p.m., Monday, August 26, at the Auxier Grade School lunchroom. The topic of discussion will be the gas rate increase set for September 4 by the Kentucky Public Service Commission.

All those interested in helping to fight this rate increase are urged to attend this meeting.

District Key Club Adopts Child Victims' Trust Fund

The Key Club of the Kentucky-Tennessee District of Kiwanis International has adopted the child victims' trust fund as its charitable endeavor for one year, Attorney General David L. Armstrong announced last week.

"We were pleased to learn that such a well-known high school organization has chosen to help the children of Kentucky by making the Child Victims' Trust Fund its choice as a charitable cause," Armstrong said. "This kind of commitment is exactly what we need to publicize the plight of many of our state's children and to contribute concretely to breaking the cycle of abuse."

The Key Club of the Kentucky-Tennessee District (divisions 10 and 11) has about 3500 members, according to the district organization's lieutenant governor, Mike Johnson. The members plan to raise money by sponsoring roadblocks, dances, candy and bake sales, he said.

Social Security Has A Birthday

Valerie Dawn Ratliff, of Allen, was the youngest visitor to receive a piece of birthday cake at the Big Sandy Area Social Security office during Social Security's 50th anniversary celebration. Valerie, shown here with her mother, Vickie, and her grandmother, Alta Fields, was among many visitors who were served cake by Social Security District Director Jim Kelly and the Social Security staff on August 14.

The Big Sandy Social Security Office celebrated the 50th anniversary of the Social Security Act on August 14th.

Visitors to the office located on U.S. 23 were treated to a piece of the Social Security birthday cake and punch served by the staff. Jim Kelly, district director for the Big Sandy area, which includes Floyd, Johnson, Pike, Magoffin, and Martin counties, said people from every county in the service area visited the office and enjoyed the birthday treats.

It is important to note that after 50 years, Social Security is still safe and sound, Kelly said. The people who remember when there was no Social Security seem to have the greatest appreciation for the program today. However, Social Security is more than a retirement plan. Many young people receive disability payments. In addition nine out of ten young workers are insured for survivor insurance, Kelly said.

More than 110 million people have received Social Security since its inception. There presently are 37 million beneficiaries receiving Social Security payments.

More than 31,000 Big Sandy Area residents receive $12 1/2 million a month, Kelly said.

The pictures and exhibits depicting the history of Social Security will remain on display in the Social Security office through 1985, Kelly said.

Melinda Gail Duff Is Memorial Scholar

Bill Melton, director of admissions at Alice Lloyd College, has announced the most recent recipients of ALC's most prestigious scholarship. Melinda Gail Duff, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Billy W. Duff, of Estill, has received the Memorial Scholarship for the 1985-'86 school year as an incoming freshman.

The Memorial Scholarship guarantees the student will have no out-of-pocket expenses for room, board, or tuition at Alice Lloyd College for the academic year and is the equivalent of a $4230 yearly grant. The Scholarship is renewable each year the student is at Alice Lloyd and as long as the student maintains a "B" or better average while completing a minimum of 15 hours each semester.

Another Regulation—And Welcome!

We have contributed our share of the gripes against the plethora of governmental regulations and all the picayune dotting of i's and crossing of t's that beset us. But our grumbling turns to huzzas as it appears the Floyd Fiscal Court, at the urging of the county health administrator, is adopting strict rules on individual sewage disposal systems.

The proposed regulation would simply provide that any septic tank and sewage disposal system installed must be inspected and approved before electric service would be afforded to the home or business that it serves. This is a rule that has the unusual merit of being almost self-enforcing.

The need for such control can be found in every section of this county and, perhaps, in most counties of Kentucky. It's a pity this step was not taken, years ago.

In this county there are some otherwise attractive communities which, served by individual septic tanks, sit on growing cesspools as the soil is unable to receive and accommodate the sewage accumulation from homes and businesses. Or, in some, property-owners are more callously piping their sewage directly into the nearest stream.

The water districts that have been formed to serve people are a blessing, in the sense that purer water is available and convenient; and, at the same time, is a curse if no safe, effective means of waste disposal is maintained. Without such disposal, the old-fashioned outdoor privy was less of a pollution problem.

The desire for a clean, safe, adequate water supply is almost universal. Yet some of us will not do our part to keep it clean and safe unless we are forced to do so. For which reason we welcome this new regulation.

temporary classroom trailers for Headstart and special education students. By the meeting's end, however, a general consensus seemed to have been reached to go with O'Quinn's plan if the gymnasium is deemed safe.

The group acquiesced after O'Quinn suggested that the county apply for emergency building funds from the state, which he said were "set aside in the event the top floor of a building is about to fall in," for the construction of a new building.

Several parents wanted O'Quinn to guarantee a three-month timetable on getting the children out of the trailers and gym, but he was unable to do so. In fact, he said after the meeting, he was unsure when such funds would become available, and Senator Bailey said he wasn't even sure how much money the state might be able to apportion for the project. "It's not just money you can call up and get," said Bailey. "But if it's there, I'm gonna find out about it," he said.

There is already scheduled more than $9 million in state funds to be made available for construction projects within the county school system, but not until July of 1987, and a new building at Garrett Elementary has not previously been considered high priority. Bailey said it was up to the school board to move Garrett up the list in competition for the limited funds.

Anticipating public criticism over the condition of the building just as school was starting back, Duff said, "There is no way that you, I, the principal, the superintendent or anyone could have helped it. If anyone says that, it's just ridiculous."

One reason suggested for the sudden deterioration of the building is its location in the flood plain. Both of the school's main buildings have been flooded several times, and it is felt that, perhaps, the effects of the last flood in May of 1984 are just now making themselves known.

Ironically, after that flood significant renovation was done in the form of sanding floors, painting walls and scrubbing out the buildings in order to hold classes last term.

At least one parent was unwilling to wait for money to appear from the state. Willis H. Foster offered to donate $1,000 to help the school, saying "I think other men should offer to help, too." And his wife, Wanda, said of the proposed temporary solution, "As long as it's safe, I don't care if it's a barn."

A meeting was scheduled for 7 p.m. today (Wednesday) in the school gymnasium to organize committees for dealing with the situation.

And Garrett's problems are not the only ones faced by the beleaguered school system.

Workers at Prestonsburg Elementary labored all weekend to get that school's electrical systems and fire alarms in compliance with city fire codes before building inspector Paul Chaffins would allow classes to be held there.

Maintenance workers and teachers reportedly put in 37 hours from Friday till 8:45 p.m. Sunday, after the job had been held up in an effort to rid the school of asbestos. All county schools are now said to be cleared of asbestos.

Prisoner Here In Jail Flight

The escape of a prisoner from the Floyd county jail sparked a brief and unsuccessful manhunt in Prestonsburg Saturday night.

William Arthur Burchett, 19, of Prestonsburg, had been arrested around 8:30 p.m., Saturday by Detective Sgt. Mike Ormerod in connection with the July 15 burglary of the home of George Masone, of the Porter Addition. Burchett was charged with second degree burglary and theft by unlawful taking.

After the arrest, Burchett was taken to the jail by Officer Jeff Stumbo and Auxiliary Officer Greg Clark, who, according to Police Chief Stan Fletcher, left him in the custody of assistant jailer Larry Campbell.

Fletcher said Burchett was apparently sitting in the jailer's office unguarded except by Campbell, who was "finishing up his paper work" on the suspect, when the escape was made.

Fletcher said Burchett ran from the jailer's office, out of the courthouse and into the streets. Police were notified, and eight officers searched for almost two hours before giving up the hunt.

According to Ormerod, Burchett is believed to have fled the state with a juvenile suspect in the burglary. He said Trial Commissioner Jack Hyden issued an escape warrant for Burchett.

Both Fletcher and Ormerod stressed the point that Burchett was no longer their responsibility at the time of his escape, as he had already been booked and turned over to the jail.

A jail attendant indicated, however, that a police officer was still present at the time of the escape.

Police have recovered about $3,000 worth of the valuables, estimated at $5,500, taken from Masone's home, Ormerod said.

Two recent investigations of Mountain Comprehensive Care conducted by the state Cabinet for Human Resources—one focussing on management, the other on programs—were roundly critical of the operation of the center. The more recent report, which the board of directors declined to make public, repeated the earlier report's criticism of Bell's leadership of the agency. It pointed to a "significant decline" in the quality and scope of client services. And it did not spare the board of directors, which it accused of being unwilling or unable to meet its responsibilities.

The program review, conducted last month by the state Department for Mental Health and Mental Retardation Services, concluded that Executive Director Bell had failed to provide necessary leadership and that Mountain Comprehensive Care is "unable to provide specialized services in the areas of mental health, mental retardation, and substance abuse."

Extensive travel by the executive director made him inaccessible to staff; the agency lacks any overall planning; and there are serious deficiencies in its organizational structure, the report said.

"Contributing to the problems is the governing board's unwillingness or inability to provide the oversight functions with which it is charged," the report continued. "Attendance at meetings is woefully unacceptable and there appear to be few active committees. Apparently the board has chosen to delegate its role to the executive director, who has obviously been accountable to no one."

Staff layoffs and firings which shook the agency in May circumvented personnel policies, had a "devastating effect" on staff morale, and resulted in a severe reduction in client services, the report said.

Investigators found that some accounting procedures were irregular, program managers were unaware of their operating budget, and in some instances the agency failed to make use of available funds.

The 25-page report includes 47 recommendations for improving management and services at the center. These include: reviewing the competence of the executive director and top administrators; opening up lines of communication and accountability; strengthening supervision; drawing up short and long-term plans; and taking steps to insure that employees are treated "fairly and equally."

Qualified persons should be named as program directors; staff in-service training should be provided; cases should be assigned only to staff members with the expertise to handle them; relations with court, police, social services and other agencies need to be improved; and accounting procedures must conform to state regulations, the report says.

Several recommendations refer specifically to the Layne House, a detoxification and residential program which has been one of the center's best-known services here but which the report describes as "clearly the worst of any detoxification/residential site in the state."

Investigators said they could not see the point in Bell's appointing Mike Vance—"who does not have the necessary expertise in substance abuse treatment"—as director of the Layne House or in Vance's subsequent firing of Mike Ferguson, the former substance abuse director.

"Staff members at the Layne House are essentially providing good clinical services under the worst circumstances," the report says. "The facility is physically inadequate, management is non-supportive, morale is low, staff members do not feel valued as professionals doing important work, and clients are reflecting the staff and agency's insecurity about the future."

In addition to being understaffed, the building which houses the detoxification program is substandard and its fire alarm system has been out of commission for over a year, state investigators reported.

Alcoholics Anonymous, described in the report as "a key referral service," has been relegated to a musty, water-damaged building, a move which has strained relations between the two programs, investigators noted.

State officials recommend repairing or relocating the Layne House, reinstating group and family services there, making up staff shortages, and providing a meeting room for Alcoholics Anonymous. Special attention needs to be given to the spouses and children of drug and alcohol victims, their report says.

The report faults the mental health program at the agency's Prestonsburg facility, where a fulltime staff of eight in 1984 was reduced to two by firings and transfers between April and June this year. The outpatient program here is also said to be understaffed. Partial hospitalization programs at Auxier and Salyersville are reported to have "serious problems." The mental retardation program is described as "lacking organization and direction" for want of a director.

At Monday night's meeting, board chairman Gary Sword announced that applications had been reviewed for the position of director of the mental retardation program; a proposal was made that chronically absent board members be asked to resign; Vance announced receipt of a $21,000 grant for a drug education program in the middle grades at Prestonsburg; and at least one of the spectators crowding the boardroom expressed optimism that the agency's fortunes were turning around.

"We went to rock bottom," remarked Caroline Ford. "We're on our way back up."

and facilities improvements." Overstaffing has cut into school funds in the past, Brackett acknowledged, and staffing is now being brought more into line with state funding allocations. But the error, Brackett said, grew out of an effort to make the schools more equal in the subjects and enrichment programs they offered.

Contracts already let or being prepared will mean that all fire alarm systems will be upgraded by Sept. 30, kitchen extinguishing systems will be in place in another 14 schools, and fire detection systems will be inspected annually in all schools, Brackett said. Floyd administrators have probably paid more energy into resolving code violations in the last six years than was expended in the previous 26, he said. And, if some of the corrections have been slow in coming, it is because they cost more than the district can afford, he said.

In response to a question by Spillman as to how the district intends to raise the money it needs, Brackett said the board of education will try next month to set the highest of three permissible property tax rates, although the top rate is subject to a veto by voters. At the least, the board will impose a tax rate calculated to yield the 4 percent increase in revenues allowable without voter referendum, he said. (Over the objection of Chairman Dr. J.D. Adams, the board last year followed Brackett's recommendation in setting the lowest of the three permissible tax rates).

Brackett did not deny that bidding laws had been circumvented in the past, although the emergency declaration to which Spillman took exception was adopted by the Floyd board on the advice of the state Education Department's director of school finance, he said. In any event, Brackett added, bidding statutes are now being complied with.

The poor accounting practices referred to in the state official's questionnaire were confined to "a few isolated cases" where activity funds were loosely handled, according to the board treasurer. In an apparent reference to former Wheelwright High School Principal Ervin Pack, Brackett said that "the most flagrant abuse has been corrected," the principal was not rehired and has been directed to repay missing funds, and the case will be turned over to the Commonwealth's attorney for possible criminal prosecution.

Without attempting to explain why the school district allegedly ignored repeated warnings by state and federal officials to set up a system of inventory control, Brackett told state officials that such a system is now in place in the transportation, maintenance, remedial reading, vocational, library and lunchroom departments.

How is it, Spillman asked, that the school system has enough money to buy large quantities of bus parts and cleaning supplies but not to buy sufficient desks and textbooks? That question fell to Assistant Superintendent Ronald L. Hager, who denied there is any problem. "Pupils are provided all necessary textbooks" and "desks have been purchased as needed," he said.

Why, despite state regulations, are teachers still assigned to teach courses outside their field of study? No explanation is forthcoming. A May, 1984 order of the Floyd Board of Education requires that teachers be assigned to teach only in their field but, as recently as last year, 27 teachers were teaching as many as 40 classes out-of-field, Hager conceded.

State Department of Education officials are reviewing the Floyd administrators' answers and will make recommendations to the state Board of Education, which meets Sept. 10, according to a spokeswoman for the department.

and establish a tax for fire services had been withdrawn for revisions.

Road conditions were on the minds of residents from Endicott, Little Mud Creek and Drift. A mile and a half of the main Buffalo Creek road needs to be blacktopped and the ditches pulled, said Gail George, who told the magistrates, "We're going to keep after you until we get it done."

That may not be any time soon. "We'll get the ditches pulled but I don't see any chance of blacktop," said Stumbo. "We don't have any money."

A 10-ton weight limit was imposed on the Cow Hollow road at Drift in an attempt to forestall coal truck traffic there. The county will take over a coal haul road on the left fork of Little Mud's Big Branch and the C. and H. Coal Company will be asked to keep the road oiled, the court decided.

Two insurance agencies again vied for the county's health insurance business, Hatton and Allen offering to provide family coverage at a monthly premium of $182, Blue Cross quoting $208. The court postponed a decision on the bids, however, pending a comparison of the benefits included under each policy.

Ernest Graham Burchett was the only vendor to bid on storing, maintaining and delivering the county's voting machines. A decision on his $8900 bid was also held up, pending an inspection of his storage facility.

COMPLETES BASIC

Airman Paul T. Brown, son of Delores Brown, of Banner, has completed Air Force basic training at Lackland Air Force Base, Texas. Completion of this training earned him credits toward an associate degree in applied science through the Community College of the Air Force. He is a 1985 graduate of Abilene High School, Texas.

GIVING BLOOD recently at the Central Kentucky Blood Center's Prestonsburg office was West Liberty banker Lanny Franklin, whose blood, lacking certain antibodies, is of particular value to patients who are allergic to them. Blood center officials stress, however, that, while only some blood is rare, all is valuable.

West Liberty Banker Drives 100 Miles To Give 'Rare' Blood

Lanny Franklin, West Liberty banker, has "rare" blood. His blood is special because his plasma does not contain a group of protein molecules that is usually present in the plasma of most people. These protein molecules are also called IgA immunoglobulins, or antibodies. Some immune-deficient patients are unable to produce other immunoglobulins necessary to fight infection and they must be transfused with plasma containing these immunoglobulins, but some of these patients could have a severe reaction if they receive plasma containing IgA immunoglobulins.

Because his plasma does not contain IgA immunoglobulins, Franklin's plasma can be transfused to these patients.

The West Liberty man's rare blood was discovered by the Central Kentucky Blood Center laboratory staff after he donated at a mobile blood drive in West Liberty. Central Kentucky Blood Center marked his records as a "rare" donor who did not have IgA immunoglobulins. When a patient at the University of Kentucky Medical Center with an immunodeficiency problem needed a plasma transfusion, CKBC registered nurse Judi Baker called Franklin to ask him to donate. He left his banking job in West Liberty and drove to the Prestonsburg Donor Center to give his pint of blood. As his blood was rushed to CKBC's laboratory for testing and processing, he drove home.

Of the 100-mile round trip and the four-hour absence from work, Franklin said, "I never gave it a second thought. I thought it was a way to help."

Franklin is vice-president of the Commercial Bank in West Liberty. "The bank is very supportive about my donating," he said. Franklin has donated blood here three times this year, and his next donation will mark his eighth, making a gallon.

"Rare" donors are very special as are all donors. There's no substitute for them. All blood types are needed all the time, including yours. For more information about donating, call the Prestonsburg Donor Center at (606) 886-1557.

Reported Drowning Remains Unconfirmed

A reported drowning had the Floyd County Emergency and Rescue Squad dragging Dewey Lake last Monday and Tuesday, but no body was recovered.

In fact, a rescue squad spokesman now says he believes no drowning occurred, and, maybe, witnesses just saw "a big fish or something."

It had been reported that several people saw a white male, about 20, swim dangerously far from shore, begin floundering and disappear. However, according to rescue squad dispatcher Jim Lafferty, witnesses said the drowning had occurred near the old Girl Scout camp but could not agree on an exact location. The 19-member squad searched the area with boats and scuba divers, but to no avail. Investigators also searched the shoreline for an abandoned vehicle, clothing or other evidence to indicate a missing person, but nothing was found.

Lafferty said the search would not continue unless further evidence was found.

AARP Health Fair, Saturday At HRMC

The Jenny Wiley Chapter of the American Association of Retired Persons will hold its annual Prestonsburg health fair Saturday from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m. at Highlands Regional Medical Center. The fair is open, free of charge, to all adults.

The health fair will include blood pressure screenings, complete blood counts, pulse checks, and opportunities to meet with a physician, a dentist, an optometrist, and speech and hearing personnel. Also informational literature from several area organizations including the AARP and the American Cancer Society's Floyd County chapter will be available. The ACS chapter is planning to distribute free colorectal cancer screening kits.

Physicians planning to be on hand are Dr. Rodney Handshoe, Dr. Donald Chaffin and Dr. Sundiata El-Amin, as well as a physician from Big Sandy Health Care. Dr. Robert Herrick, a dentist, and optometrist Dr. Lee Majaakey will also be there. The Eastern Kentucky Speech and Hearing Clinic plans to send speech pathologist Barbara Curtsinger and learning disability/reading specialist Nancy Wildman. The clinic will also offer hearing screenings.

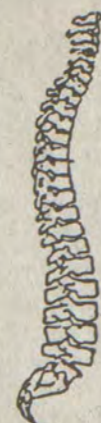

The health fair will be held in HRMC's Learning Center, with registration beginning at 9:30 a.m. Persons wishing to visit the health fair should go to the information desk in the hospital's main lobby. AARP volunteers will escort visitors to the Learning Center. There will be no charge for attending the fair or for using any services provided during the fair.

Democrats to Meet

The Floyd County Democratic Executive Committee will meet next Wednesday, August 28, at 6 p.m. in the Floyd courthouse annex, room 109. All members are urged to attend.

NUMB ARMS, LEGS Warning Signals

There may be misalignment of vertebrae in the spine causing pressure on nerves, yet the patient experiences no pain in the back. Instead, a variety of sensations may be felt in other parts of the body. These include tingling, tightness, hot spots, cold spots, crawling sensations, electric shock sensations, stinging, burning, and others.

The following nine symptoms involving back pain or strange sensations are often the forerunners of more serious conditions. Any one of these may spell back trouble.

- (1) Paresthesias (see above) (2) Headaches (3) Painful joints (4) Numbness in the arms or hands (5) Loss of sleep (6) Stiffness in the neck (7) Pain between the shoulders (8) Stiffness or pain in lower back (9) Numbness or pain in the legs.

These signals may indicate your body is being robbed of normal nerve function. Until this function is restored, you will, in some degree, be incapacitated. The longer you wait to seek help, the worse the condition will likely become. Don't wait! Should you experience any of these warning signals... call for in depth consultation in Layman's terms.

appreciated its newspaper, particularly for its neatness, the fine quality of its pictures and some of its down-home items.

This week we had a visitor from Mountain View—Pam Condrey, who is advertising representative of this same Stone County Leader. She and other members of her family were visiting relatives in the Paintsville area. She said she had vowed when vacation began not to enter a newspaper office, or a printing shop, or even to stop at a newsstand. Wanted to put newspapers completely behind her and enjoy life, for a change. But when she reached Paintsville, she told us, she asked, "How far is it to the Floyd County Times?"

And so, for all her high resolve to shun newspapers, she winds up not only in a newspaper office but, after a fashion, in the newspaper itself.

AND THERE HE STOOD

This is the oft-printed report of what happened when a newspaper editor asked a politician to give his stand on whiskey. The politician said:

"Sir, I had not planned to discuss such a controversial subject as whiskey at this time. However, far be it from me to sidestep any issue, no matter what the consequences, no matter what the effect.

"Sir, when you say whiskey, if you mean that devil's brew, that poison scourge, that bloody monster that dethrones innocence, deprives us of the jobs of this life, spends our money, snatches bread out of the mouths of little babes. Sir, when you say whiskey, if you mean that vile drink that topples Christian men and women from the pinnacles of righteousness and gracious living into the bottomless depths of despair, deprivation, shame, helplessness and hopelessness. Sir, if you mean that nasty fluid that represents the sad tears of dejected wives and neglected children—, if that's what you mean when you say whiskey, then I want you to know what I'll fight this demon with all the strength that is within me.

"However, if on the other hand, when you say whiskey, if you mean that oil of conversation, that philosophic wine and ale that is consumed when good fellows get together, that puts a song in their heart, laughter on their lips, and soft contentment in their eyes. Sir, if you mean that blessed substance that enables a poor man to embrace and enjoy the beautiful pleasures on this earth; to forget, if even for a moment, the sorrows and the heartbreaks of this life. Sir, if you mean that medicinal spirit that puts a spring into an old man's step, if you mean that nectar of the gods, the sale of which has put untold millions into our treasury to tenderly care for the little orphan children, the blind and the deaf, the halt and the maimed, the aged, and the infirm, and to build great roads, construct churches, schools, hospitals and to make this world a better place in which to live—if that's what you mean when you say whiskey, then I want you to know that with all the strength that is within me, I am dedicated to protect it.

Former Sheriff Named in Action

The Pike Fiscal Court has filed suit seeking an accounting of more than $300,000 in public funds allegedly owed by former Sheriff Charles "Fuzzy" Keesee, and Keesee says that he welcomed the action.

"I owe no monies to the state or county," said Keesee, the Democratic nominee for sheriff in the fall election. An accounting appears to be the main goal of the suit.

Pike County Judge-Executive Paul Patton questioned the state audit that pointed to deficits during Keesee's administration. County Attorney Gary Johnson, who ordered the suit, also said he had "serious questions about the audit."

Patton said the aim was to resolve what amounts to a dispute between Keesee and the state auditor's office, and "the only way I know is to have the facts brought out in a court of law."

State Auditor Mary Ann Tobin's office said that from 1978 to 1980, more than $300,000 was unaccounted for and owed to various taxing agencies, and her office recommended that Pike Fiscal Court sue Keesee to collect the funds.

Keesee has maintained the audit was at fault and the missing money consisted mostly of legitimate expenses of the sheriff's office that were not accepted by the auditor's office.

In June, just before the primary, Keesee called a news conference to ask for a "judicial determination," saying "I feel confident what I have been saying all along will be proven to be correct. I owe no money."

Johnson said he assumed the court would appoint an independent accountant to look into the audit.

Blackburn-Patton

Mr. and Mrs. John L. Blackburn, of Pikeville, and Mr. and Mrs. Billy J. Patton, of Prestonsburg, wish to announce the engagement and forthcoming marriage of their children, Jonda Lou and James Allen. The bride-elect is a graduate of Johns Creek High School and the University of Kentucky. She is employed by Pikeville National Bank. Patton is a graduate of Prestonsburg High School and the University of Kentucky. He is employed by Bocoook Engineering. The vows will be solemnized on Saturday, August 31 at 2:30 p.m. at the Pikeville Freewill Baptist Church on Chloe Road. The gracious custom of open church will be observed. All friends and relatives of the couple are invited to attend the ceremony and a reception immediately following in the fellowship hall of the church.

Blood Drive Set Today

The McDowell Appalachian Regional Hospital and Central Kentucky Blood Center asks you to do your part for the McDowell community by donating blood today, from 10:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. at the hospital.

Regularly scheduled blood drives are essential for effective management of blood and specialized components in CKBC's 45 county service area. Red cells, the component most frequently needed, can be stored for only 21 days. Platelets, another component regularly needed, must be transfused within seven days after donating. Blood drives like the ones sponsored by McDowell Hospital help provide a steady blood supply to the patients in local hospitals. With the group's support, CKBC strives to maintain an inventory of 1,400 units of blood and blood components.

On Saturday, August 10, 24 people donated blood at the Armory in Prestonsburg. The drive was sponsored by Central Kentucky Blood Center and Kentucky National Guard.

If you would like to learn more about the Kentucky National Guard blood program, please call Calvin Setser at 886-6167. The following people took the time to try and share their good health by donating blood at the Kentucky National Guard blood drive: Larry G. Jacobs, George T. Green, David D. Slone, Donald E. Ayscue, Ronald E. Stephens, Larry E. Hicks, Kenneth J. Davis, Michael R. Holt, Lloyd D. Borders, Michael Derossett, Tim Ceriffith, Wayne Jenkins, Glen I. Lewis, Dwayne D. Calloway, Charles R. FOOD AND DRUGS

Certain drugs can increase or retard the absorption of drugs into the bloodstream. For example, the absorption of iron is enhanced if it is taken along with foods that are rich in vitamin C such as citrus fruit. More commonly, however, food impairs the absorption of drugs. One well-recognized interference comes from antibiotics. If dairy foods are eaten during tetracycline therapy, the calcium in the milk, etc., will impair the absorption of the tetracycline. Other antibiotics, such as penicillin, ampicillin and erythromycin, should not be taken with fruit juices, citrus fruits, tomatoes, vinegar, pickles and cola drinks. If drugs need to be swallowed with liquid, it is safest to drink plain water.

COOLEY APOTHECARY is very proud of the significant role we already play in the health care needs of hundreds of families. If you are new to the Prestonsburg area we suggest you become acquainted with us even before you need our services. We provide everyday low prices on prescriptions and complete patient profiles. We are located at No. 2 Town Center Bldg., 886-8106. Master Charge and Visa honored plus we welcome all third party payments. Open: Mon.-Fri. 9-5:30, Sat. 9-4.

HANDY HINT:
The acidity in soft drinks can cause drugs to dissolve in the stomach rather than the intestines.

Computer Plotted Maps Locate Gas, Oil Wells

Computer-generated maps produced by the Kentucky Geological Survey at the University of Kentucky are helping the oil and gas industry tap into Kentucky's natural energy resources.

The maps, showing the locations of existing oil and gas wells, are plotted by computer onto tracing paper using a standard scale (one inch equals 2,000 feet), and are designed to be used as overlays on existing topographic and geologic maps.

Don Hutcheson of the KGS said computerization of the mapmaking process has greatly improved the usefulness of the well maps.

"When these maps were being compiled and drawn manually, the length of time it took to make them caused them to be automatically out of date," Hutcheson said. "With computerization we can produce maps that are up-to-date as of two or three days ago."

He said the maps are especially useful to smaller energy companies and independent drillers who cannot afford to produce their own well maps.

"Information on past drilling is essential for anyone planning to prospect in a particular area," Hutcheson said.

The maps show all wells—successful and unsuccessful—drilled since Jan. 1, 1981. Eventually, the computer will contain data on all of the more than 200,000 wells drilled in Kentucky since 1960.

The maps are available by 7.5-minute quadrangle from the Kentucky Geological Survey, Publication Sales, 311 Breckinridge Hall, University of Kentucky, Lexington, Ky. 40506. Each map is accompanied by a printout listing the wells shown on the quadrangle.

Salerno-Stephens

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Salerno, of Clarksville, Tenn., announce the engagement of their daughter, Susan Elizabeth, to Lindsey Earl Stephens, son of Mr. and Mrs. George L. Stephens, of Bethel Park, Pennsylvania. The wedding will be at 1:30 p.m., Sept. 14, at the Immaculate Conception Catholic Church in Clarksville.

The bride-elect is a 1979 graduate of Stuttgart American High School, in Germany, and a 1983 graduate of Vanderbilt University, Nashville, with a Bachelor of Science degree in nursing. She was a member of Kappa Delta sorority. She is employed by Vanderbilt University Medical Center as a staff nurse in the coronary care unit.

Mr. Stephens is a 1976 graduate of Paul Blazer High School, Ashland, Kentucky. He is a 1980 graduate of Emory University, Atlanta, with a Bachelor of Science degree in mathematics and computer science. He is presently completing his doctorate in computer science at Vanderbilt, where he will graduate next December.

Virginia is called "The Mother of Presidents" because four of the nation's first five Presidents came from that state.

Academic All-American

The National Secondary Education Council has announced that John David Ratliff has been named an Academic All-American.

The Academic All-American Scholar must earn a 3.3 or better grade average. Only scholars selected by a secondary school instructor, counselor, or other qualified sponsors are accepted.

Ratliff, who attends Paintsville Middle School, was nominated for the national award by Keith Dickerson, a teacher at Paintsville High School. He has a 3.5 average. The honor student is the son of Johnny and Barbara Ratliff, of Auxier, and the grandson of Rev. and Mrs. John Frank Ratliff, of Staffordsville, and Grace Goble, of Auxier, and the late Henry Goble.

RETURNS HOME

Mrs. Troy B. Sturgill has returned to her home here from Lexington, where she visited her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. B. Sturgill and other relatives and friends. On Sunday evening Mrs. Sturgill had as guests Dr. and Mrs. Harold Dorsey, of Lexington.

FAMILY PICNIC HELD

The annual Collins picnic was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gorman Collins, Sr., last Sunday. Attending from Prestonsburg were Mr. and Mrs. Ray Collins, Mrs. Jayne Collins Patton and sons, Ray and Baron, Mrs. Rose Collins, Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Collins, their daughter Courtney and sons, Craig and Chris, Mr. and Mrs. Gorman Collins, Jr., and little daughter, Mallaree, Mrs. Peachie Collins, Mrs. Nell Howard, Mrs. Beatrice Collins, Brady Collins, Astor Collins, Mrs. Mary Kay Collins Wills and children, Sara and Whitney, sons Tyson and Patrick, and the host and hostess, Mr. and Mrs. Gorman Collins, Sr.; from Versailles, Miss Pam Collins; from Lackey, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Collins, Mrs. Beulah Collins and grandsons, Nathan, David, Jonas and Adam, Barney Conley, Mr. and Mrs. Johnnie Collins and son, Chris; from Estill, Mrs. Georgia Collins Stapleton, and from Lexington, Mr. and Mrs. Steve Collins and sons, Greg and Daniel.

TO ENTER W. & L.

B.J. Sturgill, who has spent the summer months here with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Barkley J. Sturgill, will leave Saturday for Washington & Lee University, Lexington, Va., where he is a junior, in time for fall football practice.

DINNER HOSTS

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wallace entertained to dinner at May Lodge, Sunday evening, August 11, their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Wells, of Paintsville. This occasion was in celebration of the 13th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Wells.

CONCLUDE VISIT

Mrs. Gail Nielson and two children, of Lemming, Utah, have returned home after a visit with her mother, Mrs. Myrtle Skeans, at Martin. They were in Prestonsburg Thursday while they were here, guests of Mrs. Minnie Grace Sutherland.

FLOWERS PLACED

Flowers on the altar of the First United Methodist Church Sunday morning were in honor of Leslie Roberts on her birthday, from her family, and in honor of Deborah Diane Moore on her birthday, from her grandmother.

Continuing Education at PCC

For the truly maturing individual, education and growth never end. Prestonsburg Community College wants to be responsive to the needs of the people in the Big Sandy region, and the fall semester program of continuing education courses is ready for its citizens. If you wish to receive a schedule, register for classes, or learn more about a course, visit the Continuing Education Department at PCC, or call Juanita Ratliff at 886-3863, extension 215.

The Continuing Education Program focuses on two need levels: the individual and local business and industry. In an effort to meet the requirements of both the individual and local businesses and industry, PCC is offering:

—“Proofamatics,” designed to increase the efficiency and accuracy of office personnel when working with printed materials.

—Refresher Shorthand, a course which reinforces techniques and enhances speed when using this important skill.

—Refresher Course for Secretaries, taught by a team of experts, a course to add to professional abilities.

—Introduction to Microprocessing, a basic introduction to the use of microcomputers and microprocessing and it is understandable.

—Kentucky Building Code Update, designed for all professionals in the building industry who require the latest information on building codes.

—LSIT Review, a course which prepares participants to take the first of two examinations required for licensure as Kentucky land surveyor.

—Basic CPR, a much-needed skill for the individual who may be required to save a life.

—Kentucky Mine Foreman Instruction Course, a useful preparation for the examination for certification as a mine foreman.

—Mine Seminars, Mine safety instructor training and miner training for reduction of back injuries.

Changes In The Heavy Vehicle Use Tax

The federal Heavy Vehicle Use Tax Return (Form 2290) must be filed by August 31 on those taxable vehicles in operation on July 1 of this year. Effective July 1, only the taxable gross weight of each vehicle is considered in determining the tax. If a vehicle has a taxable gross weight of 55,000 pounds or more, it is subject to the heavy vehicle use tax, and a Form 2290 must be filed on the vehicle.

Taxpayers should note that the number of axles for their vehicles is no longer taken into consideration in determining the category of a vehicle for computing the heavy vehicle use tax. Some truckers who did not pay this tax previously will find that they are now liable for the tax because of the taxable gross weight consideration. Coal truck operators, who may have been exempt from this tax based on the number of axles on their vehicle, could now be liable for the tax based on taxable gross weight.

Person having questions about the Heavy Vehicle Use Tax or Form 2290 should call the IRS, toll free, at 1-800-424-1040.

National Group Planning School Asbestos Survey

The National Education Association is planning a comprehensive investigation this summer to determine the extent of cancer-causing asbestos in the nation's schools.

"The time has come to check every school building in the nation for this potential killer," declares NEA Vice President Geiger. "We need to uncover any health hazards caused by asbestos and work with school and community leaders to correct them."

The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) has estimated that asbestos hazards last year were present in more than 31,000 school buildings, affecting 1.4 million school employees and 15 million students—almost a third of the nation's public elementary and secondary schoolchildren.

But the lack of aggressive action by EPA, the Congress, the Reagan Administration, and most state governments has, for the most part, resulted in confusion at the school district level.

"What's lacking are uniform standards and the money to correct harmful asbestos once found," notes NEA's Geiger. "Despite all the attention on the dangers of asbestos contamination, information on how to respond has been very spotty, sometimes inaccurate. School districts have acted very cautiously, very slowly—if at all."

The new NEA survey is part of a nuts-and-bolts packet of materials that will be sent to all 12,500 local NEA affiliates. The packet includes a handbook, Asbestos In Our Schools: Taming The Silent Killer.

"The survey is being timed so that it will reach school officials prior to the opening of schools in late summer," says Geiger.

The NEA survey, which has been reviewed by the American Association of School Administrators, represents the most thorough study of the asbestos school crisis ever undertaken.

One of the major obstacles to solving the school asbestos crisis has been the inability of local and state governments to foot the cost of abatement—a bill conservatively estimated at more than $3 billion nationwide.

Congress approved $50 million for asbestos removal in 1984, but that amount, notes NEA's Geiger, is woefully inadequate.

Last June, for example, EPA distributed $45 million in asbestos federal loans and grants to 341 schools. But some 4,800 schools had applied for a total of $530 million in federal funds for 8,300 different asbestos projects.

Congress has also authorized $50 million for 1985 and $100 million a year from 1986 through 1990 for asbestos abatement. But the Reagan Administration hasn't budgeted any federal funds for future school asbestos work.

NEA, Geiger points out, has joined with other labor and education groups to petition EPA to issue regulations that would establish clear standards for determining when asbestos is hazardous and require schools to remove hazardous asbestos. EPA has turned down the request. NEA has also asked Congress to enact legislation that would mandate such rules.

The health hazards emanating from exposure to asbestos include asbestosis, lung cancer, and mesothelioma. All are potentially fatal diseases. Asbestos becomes a hazard when it is present in friable form—when it can be crumbled, pulverized or reduced to powder by pressure, vibrations, deterioration or damage.

Most asbestos was placed in schools between 1945 and 1970 as insulation on columns, walls, ceilings, and pipes.

Floyd County Public Schools UNIFORM CODE OF STUDENT CONDUCT

(Second in a Series)

V. RIGHTS AND RESPONSIBILITIES

Participants Rights

The United States Constitution provides for the protection and safeguard of all people. In this same vein, there is responsibility inherent in all rights. Therefore, all participants in the educational process must exercise the self-discipline and care necessary to afford others the same rights and to guarantee that their own actions do not infringe upon the rights of others. Further, all participants have the right and responsibility to know and understand the basic code of conduct expected of them. The following paragraphs outline both the rights and responsibilities of all participants.

A. STUDENTS

1. STUDENTS HAVE THE RIGHT TO:

- a. Attend the Floyd County public schools until they have either graduated from secondary school or have reached the age of 21 years, whichever comes first, and are entitled to receive a free public education.
- b. An appropriate public education which maintains high educational standards and provides opportunities to meet the needs of individual pupils.
- c. Receive academic grades based only on academic performance.
- d. Prior notification of all rules, regulations, policies, and penalties to which they may be subject.
- e. Make up all classwork upon returning to school from an excused absence.
- f. Physical safety and protection of their personal property.
- g. Consultation with teachers, counselors, administrators, and other school personnel.
- h. Be represented by students in the decision-making process on matters which relate to standards of achievement, conduct, elections, and participation where systemwide committees are appointed to address these matters.
- i. Inspect, review, and transfer their educational records with their parents'/guardians' written consent, or if the student is 18 years of age or older. This includes the right to challenge any misleading or inaccurate statement contained in their record.
- j. Free election of their peers in student organizations in which students have the right to seek and hold office.
- k. Involvement in school activities without being subject to any form of discrimination.
- l. Participation in school activities which require competition on an equal basis.
- m. Freedom from verbal and/or physical abuse by other students, faculty members, school administrators, and other school personnel.
- n. Freedom of expression as related to speech, assembly, appearance, publication, and the circulation of petitions and literature, recognizing, however, that no right is absolute, including freedom of expression and assembly, which cannot be exercised to interfere with the orderly educational process.
- o. Present complaints or grievances to school authorities and receive replies from school officials regarding such matters.
- p. Be secure from unreasonable searches of their person and property and from unreasonable seizure of their property.
- q. Organize or to have membership in groups/clubs with in the school so long as the group/club follows established Board of Education guidelines, does not disrupt the orderly educational process, and does not discriminate against any student because of sex, religion, age, race, national origin, economic status, marital or parental status, or handicapped condition.
- r. Procedural due process when any charge or accusation has been made against them.

Students and/or their parents or guardians have the right to appeal any action taken by the school which they feel is unfair, discriminatory, or inequitable regarding any of the rights listed in this document.

2. EACH STUDENT HAS THE RESPONSIBILITY TO:

- a. Be accountable for his/her own conduct during school and school sponsored activities and for showing consideration for the rights and property of others.
- b. Exhibit neatness and cleanliness of personal dress and hygiene.
- c. Refrain from fighting, creating disturbances, excessive noise, abusive language, denying others the use of school facilities or buildings, using or carrying any weapon on school premises or at school activities, intentionally injuring another person or exposing another to harm, or using threats or intimidation against any other person.
- d. Refrain from gambling, extortion, theft, or any other unlawful activity.
- e. Refrain from using tobacco in any form or using, possessing, or transmitting any alcoholic beverage or illegal or controlled substance.
- f. Show respect for the education process by taking advantage of every opportunity to further his/her education and not to interfere with the rights of fellow students to an education.
- g. Complete all homework and classwork in accordance with the teachers' instructions.
- h. Refrain from cheating on academic, athletic, and other school sponsored activities.
- i. Care for the equipment and physical facilities of the school by refraining from willful destruction and damage.
- j. Demonstrate pride in his/her school and fellow classmates and to contribute positively to all phases of the total school program.
- k. Exercise courtesy and reason at all times, to accept just punishment, to avoid unreasonable appeals, and to refrain from making false accusations for petty or vicious reasons.
- l. Attend school regularly and take advantage of the opportunities offered by cooperating with those trying to teach and working at the job of learning and not to interfere with the rights of fellow students.
- m. Adhere to the following rules and regulations while riding buses to and from school and school sponsored activities:
 1. Pupils shall wait at their assigned bus stop off the traveled roadway and shall remain there until the driver has stopped the bus and opened the entrance door, and signaled the pupils to enter the bus.
 2. When pupils must cross the roadway to enter the bus or cross the roadway when leaving the bus, they shall not cross the roadway until signaled to do so by the bus driver.
 3. For safety reasons, when pupils are required to cross the roadway when entering the school bus or leaving the school bus, these roadway crossings shall be made in front of the bus. The pupils shall cross the roadway a distance of approximately ten (10) feet in front of the bus in order that they may be seen by the bus driver.
 4. When pupils enter the bus, they shall proceed promptly to their assigned seats.
 5. Pupils shall remain seated until the bus has come to a complete stop before leaving their bus seats to get off the bus.
 6. For safety reasons, pupils shall not extend their arms, legs, or heads out the bus windows while the bus is in motion.

The Uniform Conduct Code... Struggling to Get a Handle On What the Schools are About

By RON MARSTIN

A cartoon appearing in The New Yorker some years ago showed an anxious mother, her five-year-old in hand, instructing a teacher on the first day of school. "Christopher has never been treated unkindly by adults. He trusts us implicitly," mother says, adding, "I hope, Miss Forbes, you won't in any way betray that trust."

Though the gag is on the mother, not a few mothers (and fathers) will identify with her this week. Kindergarten or first grade can look like a pretty rough neighborhood in which to leave a child who has rarely been out of mother's ear-shot, and many of us will have to own up to a twinge of fear that its mean streets will inevitably harden the gentle souls we left there Monday morning.

The fear, of course, is justified. Our fresh-faced kids will lose their innocence. They will learn, we hope, about the lifecycle of the honey bee, the symmetry of a strand of DNA, the artistry of Eliot's Four Quartets, the shrewd articulation of the United States Constitution. But they will come to learn, too, about the persistence of our worst instincts and the fragility of our best intentions, about routine violations of innocent people, about the corruptibility of trusted adults, about whole nations under the sway of maniacs, about the nuclear threat that could annihilate before supper the whole human enterprise.

We accept it as the price of growing up. And we bow readily enough to the collective wisdom that decrees 12 years of schooling as the context for this wonderful, fearful evolution.

We accept it, but we also do well to worry about it. To worry not only about whether our children are learning to read, write and compute—the so-called basics—but also about how schooling will shape them as persons, what it will teach them about coping with life's hurts, what notions it will foster in them about their responsibility for the world.

The Uniform Code of Student Conduct recently adopted by the school board and currently being serialized in this paper—and especially the brief "philosophy" that introduces it—is one way of articulating what the schools are trying to teach in this regard.

In one sense, the short preamble to the Code is too long, too wordy. In their opening paragraph the authors make the sensible point that it's hard to learn when students are cutting up and not being dealt with. But the way they put it is, "While there are many factors which affect the learning environment, perhaps the most pernicious is the problem that results from inappropriate conduct and lack of consistent and effective disciplinary response." That's the kind of jargon that makes the eyes glaze over.

That sentence is followed with: "This is a commitment to the establishment of consistent application of the code and as a means for modification of behavior to deal with dropouts and academic achievement." Presumably, that means the Code is intended to help students stay and do well in school by seeing that rules of conduct are enforced. But it is hardly a model of grammatical precision.

For all that, the Code is a useful beginning for what could profitably become a sustained effort to spell out the moral and spiritual values we think the schools—even the public schools in a pluralist society—should try to foster.

The very commitment to formulating a uniform code says something important about the role of law in a democratic society. And even if the wisdom embodied here—in the Code's provision for due process, for participatory decision-making, for mutual respect—is pretty conventional in this country, they are conventions, nevertheless, which we cannot afford to take for granted. There are still plenty of brutal schools about and plenty that have long ago yielded to cynicism.

In places, the Code may try to do too much: some things cannot be legislated. Few will quarrel, for example, with the proposition that students "should take every advantage" to further their education or that "they should demonstrate pride" in their school and classmates. But one has to wonder whether it helps to make a rule of it.

And it's all well and good to say that students have a right to an education "which maintains high educational standards," but delivering on that promise will take a more thoroughgoing public commitment than merely asserting it as a right.

On the other hand, there are places where the Code seems overly cautious. Parents are told they can raise issues specifically affecting their own child, for example, but the kind of systemic criticism that parent-citizen groups have raised in this county in recent years—and that has surely done more than anything to raise to consciousness the system's shortcomings—finds no support in the Code.

Teachers, too are invited to "provide input to committees" drafting classroom policies. But may they speak out—whether the issue is having enough desks or not being pressured to campaign for the local board member—without fear of reprisal? The Code is curiously silent.

And while corporal punishment is surrounded theoretically by safeguards that are now standard in schools that still condone it as a form of discipline, is there really any persuasive reason for retaining it in a system founded on "mutual respect" between child and teacher?

If there is a tension in the Code between freedom and control, that is to be expected. The same tension exists in any body of law. Indeed, maintaining the proper tension—without caving in to permissiveness on the one hand or resorting to authoritarian fiat on the other—is a task of some delicacy. Parents honest enough to admit they don't always strike the right balance with their children will sympathize if the schools sometimes falter. This is surely an area where parents and teachers (most of whom are parents, too) could usefully dialogue if the structures for dialogue were in place.

No doubt this sort of exchange goes on informally here and there and at least one Floyd teacher last year shared with interested parents her ideas on how to get the best out of children. Betty Schuster, head teacher at the tiny Bonanza school and a parent herself, offered last fall a ten-week course on parenting—with the Board of Education's blessing—that drew only a handful of parents but instructed them in ways that this parent, at any rate, found uncommonly challenging and helpful.

We could all profit from more initiatives like that. Existing citizen groups—like the Floyd County Citizens Education Council or the Floyd County Education Forum—might consider sponsoring parent-teacher conferences where some of the tough problems of raising children could be addressed.

Short of that, it takes no organization to read the Uniform Code of Student Conduct. All students are supposed to bring one home this week and it is supposed to be updated annually. The committee that worked on it—to whom we are all indebted—will presumably welcome any help they can get.

Security lighting makes everyone sleep better.

When you were a child, you may have gone to sleep with a night light in your room. The same feeling of security and peace of mind can come from a security light in your backyard or driveway.

A security light makes things brighter and safer for everyone. Its light can illuminate nearly a quarter acre. No doubt about it, that's a lot of light. But since a security light uses a special lamp that's energy efficient, it doesn't use much electricity.

And a security light is completely automatic. The light comes on when it gets dark. In the morning, the light automatically turns off. We will install and maintain your security light. All you pay is a small monthly fee added to your electric bill.

Keep the dark away from your door. Find out more about security lighting by calling us today.

Miss Harlow, Mr. Bailey Wed

Marilyn Gayle Harlow, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Harlow, of Wheelwright, and Willard Jeffrey Bailey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Bailey, of Hueysville, were united in marriage in an afternoon candlelight ceremony on March 2 at the Wheelwright Methodist Church. The double-ring ceremony was performed at 2 p.m. by the Rev. Garfield Potter.

The matron of honor was Shelia Harlow, of Wheelwright, sister-in-law of the bride, and the bridesmaids were Anna Tackett, of Wheelwright, and Libby Carr, of Martin.

Best man was Chris Blevins, of Langley, and the ushers were Doug Bailey, of Langley, brother of the groom, and Robert Harlow, of Wheelwright, brother of the bride.

The flower girl was Traci Gibson, niece of the groom, and the ringbearer was Kyle Bailey, nephew of the groom.

The bride is a graduate of Wheelwright High School and Mayo State Vocational School and is presently employed by Johnson Coal Company. The groom is a graduate of Allen Central High School and Pikeville College and is employed by Southern Hills Mining Company.

Mr. and Mrs. Bailey are residing at Langley.

More People Reap Benefits From H&R Block Tax Course

Thousands of successful tax preparers started their careers with the H&R Block Income Tax Course.

H&R Block has been teaching income taxes for 30 years and this year is offering a basic income tax course starting September 4 with morning, and evening classes available.

Many of the most successful people in the tax preparation business started with this basic course which teaches all phases of income tax preparation. The 13 week course progresses from simple to complex tax problems. Students learn through classroom discussion and homework.

Qualified course graduates may be offered job interviews for positions with Block. Many of Block's employees find the flexible hours a plus. However, Block is under no obligation to offer employment, nor are graduates under any obligation to accept employment with H&R Block.

The course is ideal for those interested in tax preparation as a career or for those who want to learn about taxes for their own personal use. The course is challenging and, for those who are highly motivated, can prove to be profitable as well. No prerequisites are required for enrollment.

One low course fee includes all textbooks, supplies and tax forms necessary for completion of the course. Certificates and 7.5 continuing education units will be awarded upon successful completion of the course. Also, the cost of the course may be tax deductible.

Registration forms and a brochure for the income tax course may be obtained by contacting the H&R Block office at 8B Richmond Plaza, Prestonsburg, telephone 886-3685. Don't forget to ask about early bird special tuition price. (Adv. 11.)

The Employment Cost Index increased 0.7 percent in the 3 months ended in June 1985, the U.S. Department of Labor's Bureau of Labor Statistics reported.

Three Arrested In Acker Murder

Extradition proceedings designed to return three men from Florida to Letcher county to face a murder charge in the slaying of Tammy Acker, 23, are expected to be initiated this week.

The three who were arrested last week at a Daytona Beach condominium are Roger Dale Epperson, 35, of Perry county, Benny Lee Hodge, 34, Lake City, Tenn., and Donald T. Bartley, of Everts, Ky.

Besides the murder charge in connection with the slaying of Miss Acker, 23-year-old University of Kentucky student, they are expected to be charged with the attempted murder of Miss Acker's father, Dr. R.J. Acker, and robbery and burglary of the physician's home at Fleming-Neon, in Letcher county.

Miss Acker was killed late Aug. 9 after two men posing as FBI agents entered the home of her father. A third man then entered, and they forced Dr. Acker to open a safe, tied up Acker and his daughter, ransacked their home, choked Acker into unconsciousness and stabbed Miss Acker to death.

Epperson had previously been charged with robbery in Georgia and was free on bond, police said. Hodge and Bartley are wanted for interstate flight to avoid prosecution in connection with the Georgia case.

ATTEND REUNION

Mr. and Mrs. John L. Scott, of Woodbine, N.J., attended the 16th Armored Division reunion in Cleveland, Ohio, and on Sunday came to Prestonsburg to visit with Mrs. Hern Burke and family for several days, before returning home. Mr. Scott and the late Mr. Burke were army "buddies" in Europe during World War II.

FIRST 'SPECTACULAR' SET

Irene Cole Memorial (First) Baptist Church will be having its first "Spectacular" of the year for football players, their coaches and others, at the church annex Friday evening following the Prestonsburg-Belfry game.

HERE FROM PENNSYLVANIA

Mrs. George Lindsey Stephens and son George David, of Bethel Park, Pa., and another son, Lindsey Earl Stephens, of Nashville, Tenn., were here last week for a visit with Mrs. Stephens' mother, Mrs. Ida Moore, and other relatives and friends. They were joined during that time by Mrs. Moore's granddaughter, Miss Donna Lynn Moore, of Ann Arbor, Mich., for a visit at the Moore home.

CHURCHWOMEN MEET

The Local Churchwomen met at the Community United Methodist Church last Friday morning, with Mrs. Eva Collins, president, presiding. Mrs. Wendy Allen gave the devotions. Mrs. Jean Burke was assisted by her granddaughter, Miss Kristin Ormerod, in serving refreshments, after which the business session was held. Recent requests for clothing from parents of school children was discussed, and it was decided that referrals should be made to the Fitzpatrick Baptist Church, which has been handling this matter.

Mrs. Jane Wallace, chairman of the Nominating committee, presented a list of officers and committee chairmen for the ensuing year. Along with her presentation, she read from the by-laws, which were written by Mrs. Mary Lou Layne and the late Mrs. Emma May, prior to the first meeting of this organization.

Mrs. Jane Wallace then presented the names of Mrs. Eileen Burchett, president; Mrs. Eva Collins, first vice-president; Mrs. Elma Jesen, second vice-president; Mrs. Jane Wallace, third vice-president; Mrs. Zella Archer, secretary; Mrs. Dot Marshall, treasurer, and Mrs. Docia B. Woods, publicity chairman. These are to be installed during the October meeting. Mrs. Vera Ford, who for the past several months has been in charge of the Loaves and Fishes Food Pantry, told of the need for replenishing the food shelves there. She said that an average of 42 persons per day benefitted from this food.

Present were Mesdames Eva Collins, Eileen Burchett, Mabel Donahoe, Jane Wallace, Dot Marshall, Zella Archer, Ernestine Collins, Vera Ford, Wendy Allen, and children Anna and Eric, Lucy Regan, Mrs. Jean Burke and Miss Kristin Ormerod.

The next meeting will be Friday, October 18, at 10:30 a.m., at the St. Martha's Catholic Church.

VISITS IN GEORGIA

Dr. J.M. Smiley, a member of the University of Georgia faculty in Athens, Ga., came here August 7 to accompany his mother, Mrs. Otelia Smiley, to his home for a visit. On August 10, Mrs. Smiley, her son and daughter-in-law went to Atlanta, where they met one of her daughters, Mrs. John C. Sewell and little daughter, Timmye Ann, who arrived at the Atlanta Airport, for a visit with them, and they visited briefly with Mrs. Sewell's husband, who is a pilot for Delta Airlines. Mrs. Sewell and daughter remained with them until the following Tuesday, before returning to Plantation, Fla., where they reside. After accompanying his mother home, Dr. and Mrs. Smiley went to Columbus, Ohio for a reunion of Mrs. Smiley's family.

VISITORS AT ALLEN

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Ripy and son, Tommy, of Arlington, Va., were at Allen last week for a visit with her mother, Mrs. Rebecca Martin. On Sunday, they were joined by Mrs. Martin's son, Joe David Martin, of Lexington, and drove to the Breaks of Big Sandy Park. Mr. Ripy is a legal counsel to the U.S. Congress; Mrs. Ripy is a research librarian in Washington, D.C., and Mr. Martin holds a position in the office of the Fayette county schools in Lexington.

TO VISIT HERE

Mrs. Cuma Wilson, of Paducah, will arrive here today (Wednesday) for a visit with her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Ron Hooker, and family.

Miss Young, Mr. Wallace Wed

Wedding vows were exchanged by Miss Olivia Murrell Young and Mr. Kenneth Franklin Wallace Saturday July 20, in the Lindenwald United Methodist Church, Hamilton, Ohio.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Paul Young, of Hamilton. The groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Franklin D. Wallace, of Prestonsburg.

The double-ring ceremony was performed by the Reverend Edwin Beck. Scripture reading was by Jeffrey Nabors. A program of nuptial music was presented by Helen Riedel, organist; Herman Matthews, pianist; Barbara Johnson and Debbie Wiggins, vocalists; and Chuck Wiggins, vocalist, pianist, and guitarist.

Grady Stephens was best man. Groomsmen were Brian Wallace, brother of the groom, Roger Derossett, David Walter, and Dan Young, brother of the bride.

The bride, escorted by her father, wore a white tissue taffeta gown styled with a high Victorian neckline featuring a sheer yoke adorned with Alencon lace and seed pearls. The fitted bodice fashioned with a drop waistline and the long fingertip sleeves were enhanced with matching lace and pearls. Edged in Alencon lace, the flounce on the bottom of the skirt cascaded into a full cathedral train. The bride wore a blusher veil of hand-rolled silk illusion attached to a floral wreath of silk embroidered flowers accented with pearls.

Karen Kindness was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Valeria Emmett, Vicki Rose, Jane Ann Wallace, cousin of the groom, and Teresa Woike, cousin of the bride.

Keeper of the guestbook was Tami Freyberg. Amber and Christy Murrell were in charge of the scrolls.

The reception was held in the church social hall. Reception hostesses were Omega Murrell, Lydia Murrell, Linda Hugglestone, Vicki Murrell, and Heidi Murrell.

After a honeymoon at Cape Cod, Massachusetts, the couple is residing in Lexington.

The bride is a graduate of Fairfield High School and Transylvania University. She is attending the University of Kentucky College of Medicine and is a member of Phi Mu Sorority.

The groom is a graduate of Prestonsburg High School, Prestonsburg Community College, and Transylvania University. He is attending the University of Kentucky College of Dentistry and is a member of Delta Sigma Phi fraternity. He is the grandson of the late Mr. and Mrs. Tom Burchett, of Prestonsburg, and of Ruby Wallace, Garrett, and the late Oral Wallace.

HRMC Installs CT Scanner

CT Applications Specialist Marjorie Salyer prepares George Begley, of Langley, for Highlands Regional Medical Center's first CT scan, as Radiology Technical Director Ken Addington and radiologist Dr. Eleuterio Lim watch.

Scarcely 10 years after it was first introduced, computed tomography (CT) has revolutionized the way the medical profession uses images to diagnose problems in the human body. Physicians have routinely used words like "marvel" and "breakthrough" in describing CT scanners and what they do.

What they do is make a visual image of a wafer-thin slice of the body. The process is completely painless, and in fact is done without anesthesia. A CT scan can replace other diagnostic tests, and sometimes can make an otherwise-necessary exploratory surgery avoidable.

Now, one of the most advanced models of this "marvel" has been installed at Highlands Regional Medical Center. The first CT scan at the Medical Center was performed last Monday afternoon.

"To say that we have installed a CT scanner only tells part of the story," said Paul Hutchison, HRMC's director of Diagnostic and Therapeutic Services. "Ours is not the first CT scanner in our service area, but we sincerely believe it is the best. To compare one CT scanner with another might be like comparing a luxury car and an economy car—they're both automobiles, but they're obviously not the same."

CT scanning was limited to analyzing the brain when it was first introduced, but this is no longer true. Some models—including the CE 10000 now in operation at Highlands Regional—can explore any part of the body.

Another test of the quality of any given CT scanner is the amount of radiation to which the patient is exposed—the less radiation, the better. "That's a two-part question," Hutchison said. "You can always reduce the radiation dosage, but there is a corresponding decrease in the quality of the image. The CE 10000 does more with less, meaning we get the same or better quality with less radiation..."

CT scanning is the third major addition to the Medical Center's Radiology department. The department handled only conventional x-rays when the hospital opened in 1973, but nuclear medicine and ultrasound were added in later years and are now joined by CT.

"CT scanning is a breakthrough in diagnostic imaging," said Dr. David White, medical director of HRMC's

Radiology department. "What's especially exciting is that, by not purchasing one when the field was in its infancy, we now have a scanner that is capable of doing things the earlier ones couldn't do. Over the years, improvements have included the number of areas of the body that can be scanned, a reduction in the amount of radiation used and higher quality image in terms of resolution. Highlands Regional's new CT scanner incorporates all of these improvements."

The clarity of the picture is important for accuracy and ease of diagnosis. "It is especially critical when scanning a small area of the body, such as the inner ear," said Dr. White. "This particular scanner produces superb images."

The Medical Center's CE 10000 was purchased at a cost of nearly $1 million from CGR Medical Corporation, a subsidiary of Thomson, one of the world's top-ranking electronics companies.

Highlands Regional is currently negotiating with other area hospitals to provide CT scans for their patients as well as for HRMC patients.

Floyd Represented In Peace Gathering

Floyd county was represented in the Ribbon peace gathering in Washington, D.C., on August 4, the Sunday preceding the 40th anniversary of the bombing of Hiroshima and Nagasaki. The Ribbon consisted of 25,000 segments made by people of 50 states and 10 countries, each one an individual statement of "what I cannot bear to think of as lost forever in a nuclear war."

Representing Floyd county was a quilting of a mountain scene by a number of quilters from David and Drift who work with David Appalachian Crafts; a silkscreen by Catherine Rubin, of Prestonsburg, and an embroidered panel from the Christian Appalachian Project at Martin. Other eastern Kentucky segments were from Knott county, Breathitt county, and Berea.

The idea of the Ribbon came from Justine Merritt, a 61-year-old Colorado grandmother, in 1982. The project grew as women all over the country created yard-long panels. On Memorial Day weekend, Kentucky Ribbon participants gathered in Frankfort for a worship service, then carried the 700 Kentucky segments from the old Capitol to the new Capitol. Governor Martha Layne Collins issued a statement recognizing the Ribbon and proclaiming August 4 Kentucky Peace Day.

RECENT GUESTS

Mildred Ritter Thompson and husband, Kenneth, of Shelbyville, were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Donald H. Goble, of the Auxier road. While here they attended the play, "Sound of Music," at Jenny Wiley Amphitheater, and on Saturday drove to the Breaks Interstate Park.

Ramey Retirement Was Not Permanent

Retiring after 30 years with Commonwealth Life Insurance Company, Roy Ramey has opened an agency office here representing Nationwide Insurance. While his office is being completed in Glyn View Plaza adjacent to the new Piggly Wiggly Grocery he will be temporarily housed next door to the office of Hughes Associates in Glyn View Plaza. Expected completion date of the new office is October 1.

Ramey joined Commonwealth Life as an agent in January, 1955, just as Commonwealth was about to celebrate its 50th anniversary. In 1969 he was appointed a special agent. During his career there he qualified for most of the company's Leader's Club Conferences, One and Two Million Dollar Circle awards, for all the Fire and Casualty Honor Awards and, on six separate occasions, was named the company's Leading Special Agent.

Now he joins Nationwide Insurance as it prepares to observe its 50th anniversary. Although 50 is not an old age for insurance companies, Nationwide is among the top one percent of all life insurance companies boasting 15 billion dollars of insurance in force, and it is among the nations' leaders as insurers of auto and homes.

"I look forward to serving the insurance needs of Floyd countians and their neighbors," Ramey said upon "retiring" from what started out as real retirement.

Mr. Ramey resides in Branham Village, near here. He is a past president of the Prestonsburg Area Chamber of Commerce, the Kiwanis Club and Jaycees, and is a former member of the Prestonsburg Park board and the Combs Airport board.

VIDEO SCENE

For Eurythmics, a new clip means a brand-new look

By Barton Weiss

Eurythmics

Eurythmics has a new clip, and Annie Lennox has a new look.

This time around she has long hair and angelic looks. The song? "There Must Be an Angel." Dave Stewart plays a king (or is it the King of Kings?). Either way, his white makeup looks great.

The heavenly gospel singers are, well, heavenly, but the clip is still a bit of a disappointment. From such videogenic performers, one expects more.

Dodging pies?

You don't have to have a great haircut to be a video star. Midnight Oil's lead singer Peter Garrett proves that you don't even have to have any hair. He has an intensity that makes it look like he's singing for mental health, he moves like he's dodging a bunch of pies ... and he's great!

"Best of Both Worlds" may break for this Australian band yet.

Looking good

Aretha Franklin's "Free-way of Love" video nicely sneaks some political messages about unemployment between the frames of this otherwise upbeat clip. And sax-man Clarence Clemons looks even better here than he did in his own or in any of Bruce Springsteen's clips.

Strings and funk

Speaking of Springsteen, Stanley Clark now has a video for his funk-rap version of Bruce's "Born in the USA." The clip is an odd assemblage of animated rope, bass strings, cables and other stringy objects, leaving room for only a few shots of the band and jazz bassist Stanley Clark.

Best home-market bet

A lot of new music has been released to the home video market. The highlight is a smashing Tina Turner live concert clip called "Tina Live: Private Dancer Tour."

This new Sony release is not to be confused with "Tina Turner Live" on Thorn/EML, a concert from a previous Tina comeback, or the "Private Dancer" video, also on Sony, which is a clip compilation.

The new concert feature was directed by David Mallet, who helped create the early music video form with David Bowie. The 55 minutes go by very quickly, and toward the end, Tina is joined by friends Bryan Adams and David Bowie.

The video concludes with a Bowie/Turner version of "Let's Dance." It alone is worth the price of the cassette.

CAGNEY & LACEY

Her husband and her partner finally talk Mary Beth (Tyne Daly) into seeing a doctor, and she is distraught when he recommends surgery, on "Cagney & Lacey," which airs MONDAY, AUGUST 26 on CBS.

REAL GENIUS (PG-Tri-Star) Starring Val Kilmer, Gabe Jarret, Michelle Meyrink. ★ ★

By J.T. YURKO

When Hollywood trends hit, they hit like a ton of bricks.

The latest movie trend finds writers and directors combining the effects of science with the wacky behavior of adolescents.

In "Weird Science," kids use a few chemicals and a little ingenuity and create a woman. In "Explorers," three kids and an Apple computer put together an interstellar space-ship. "My Science Project" follows the same theme, and even "Back to the Future" presents Michael J. Fox as a high-school time traveler.

"Real Genius" is neither the best nor the worst of the lot. The "real genius" is a 15-year-old whiz kid who has been accepted at the California Institute of Technology. Any kid has a little trouble adapting to college life, but when you're only 15 and have one of the most brilliant minds in the country, life can get a little weird.

In fact, "Real Genius" has as much in common with "Animal House" as it has with the other kids-and-science epics. For some reason, the teen geniuses are segregated in the same dorm, and their over-active minds devise pranks and technological pratfalls that make "Animal House" look like a home for the well-behaved.

But there is some socially redeeming value in all of this. It seems that the military is secretly using the kids' ideas to devise a super-powerful laser capable of vaporizing someone from outer space.

Thus, the kids not only have to put up with typical college pressures like exams and sexual frustration, but must also thwart the military-industrial complex. (Does anyone want to bet they're going to fail?)

But the predictability of "Real Genius" is partially offset by its delightful offbeat characters, some clever lines and a final outrageous technological prank.

Since the film ends with Tears for Fears singing "Everybody Wants to Rule the World" and the plot seems to be referring to the "Star Wars" plan for weapons in space, one almost wonders if there is more message than mischief here.

Nah

THE A-TEAM

Law-abiding citizens can always rely on "The A-Team" (clockwise from bottom: B.A. (Mr. T); Murdock (Dwight Schultz); Face (Dirk Benedict) and Hannibal (George Peppard). "The A-Team" airs TUESDAY, AUGUST 27 on NBC.

Crops Yet In Good Condition Despite Dry August Weather

Despite areas of excessive moisture and extreme dryness, the overall picture for Kentucky crops entering the second week of August was good.

Soil moisture as of Aug. 9 was rated 12 percent short, 79 percent adequate and 9 percent surplus by reporters for the Kentucky Crop and Livestock Reporting Service.

"Farmers across the Commonwealth spent the hot, humid days of last week topping, cutting and housing tobacco, haying and working on weed control," said Agriculture Commissioner David E. Boswell. The weather allowed 4.3 days of fieldwork.

Burley tobacco cutting advanced to 8 percent complete by Aug. 11. Cutting was barely under way at this time last year and for the five-year average. Cutting is most advanced in Central and Bluegrass counties.

Topping is now 78 percent complete, compared with 49 percent at this time last year and 48 percent for the average. The condition of the burley acreage was reported as 1 percent poor, 19 percent fair, 69 percent good and 11 percent excellent.

Corn is maturing rapidly, and some of the earliest fields will soon be ready for harvest.

The crop is 58 percent in the dough stage or beyond, compared with 31 percent a year ago and 43 percent for the average. Nearly 25 percent of the corn has reached the dent or later stage of development.

Despite some dry weather stress, the condition of corn is reported 13 percent fair, 67 percent good and 20 percent excellent.

Soybeans are 70 percent blooming and beyond. This compares with 63 percent for last year and the five-year average. About 25 percent of the soybeans are podding, slightly more than at this time last year and the average.

Pastures and hay crops are rated fair to mostly good. Hay quality has been reduced where farmers had weather-related problems during harvest.

Sorghum grain was reported 18 percent fair, 72 percent good and 10 percent excellent. Sorghum Midge is causing problems with some sorghum grain.

CARD OF THANKS

The family of Gene Booth wishes to thank all who were so kind and considerate during our time of grief. We want to thank those who sent food, flowers, prayers, prepared the grave or spoke comforting words. A special thanks to the merchants of the area for their thoughtfulness, the Samaria Regular Baptist Church, members and ministers, and the Hall Funeral Home for its kind and efficient service.

NOTICE OF INTENTION TO MINE

Pursuant To Application No. 836-0168

1) In accordance with the provisions of KRS 350.055, notice is hereby given that Sandy River Mining, Corp., Box 218, Ivel, Ky. 41642, has filed an application for a permit for a surface and underground coal mining and reclamation operation of approximately 99 acres located 3.5 miles west of Harold in Floyd county.

2) The proposed operation is approximately 1.5 miles southwest from KY 2030 junction with KY 1426 and located 3.5 miles west of Levisa Fork of The Big Sandy River. The latitude is 37° 31' 20". The longitude is 82° 40' 37". The surface areas are owned by Bernard Clark, Melva Lawson, Kellard Lawson, Lyman & Francis Branham, Denzil and Lola Mayo Kidd, Jose Harvey, Est., John P. Hall, Aaron Tackett and Willie Lawson.

3) The proposed operation is located on the Harold U.S.G.S. 7.5 minute quadrangle map. The operation will use the contour stripping (approx. 7 acres), auger mining (approx. 9 acres, and underground mining (approx. 83 acres) methods of mining. (This application also includes a proposed land use change from the forest land pre-mining land use to a residential post-mining land use. This operation will affect an area within 100 feet of a public road (KY 2030). The operation will not involve relocation of the public road.)

4) The application has been filed for public inspection at the Department for Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement's Prestonsburg Regional Office, 431 South Lake Drive, Prestonsburg, Ky. 41653. Written comments, objections, or requests for a permit conference, must be filed with the Director of the Division of Permits, 6th Floor, Capital Plaza Tower, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601.

This is the final advertisement of this application; all comments, objections and/or request for a permit conference must be received within thirty (30) days of today's date.

GRIEVANCE PROCEDURE

The following Grievance Procedure is established to meet the requirements of the Revenue Sharing Act. It should be used by any individual who wishes to file a complaint alleging discrimination on the basis of handicap in employment practices and policies or the provision of programs, services and benefits by Floyd County Fiscal Court.

The grievance should be in written form and contain as much information as possible about the alleged discrimination (name, address, phone number, location and description of problem, etc.). Other arrangements for submission of a grievance such as a personal interview or tape recording will be made available for the visually-impaired or those with motor impairments. It should be submitted by the grievant and/or his or her designee within 30 calendar days of the alleged violation to: Delores F. Dingus, County Judge/Executive's Office, Prestonsburg, Kentucky, 606-886-9193, Monday thru Fridays, 8:30 a.m. until 4:00 p.m.

Within 15 working days of receipt of the complaint, Mrs. Dingus will respond in writing (or a method understood by the complainant) to the complainant and/or his or her designee. The response will offer a resolution or explain the position of the Floyd County Fiscal Court with respect to the complaint.

If the response by Mrs. Dingus does not satisfactorily resolve the issue, the complainant and/or his or her designee may request a hearing to be held within 15 working days of receipt of the response before the County Handicapped Coordinating Committee, Court-house Annex, Prestonsburg, 606-886-9193, Monday thru Fridays, 8:30 a.m. until 4:00 p.m. for resolution. Within 30 calendar days of the hearing, the complainant and/or his or her designee will receive the final resolution in writing (or a method understood by the complainant) as proposed by the County Handicapped Coordinating Committee.

All complaints received by Mrs. Dingus and responses from the CHCC will be kept by Floyd County Fiscal Court for a period of three years. These documents may be requested by the Office of Revenue Sharing should an investigation into alleged discrimination on the basis of handicapped status be initiated.

New studies show that a creature's sleep time may depend not only on its metabolism rate, but also the animal's "danger factor," reports National Wildlife magazine. Animals that have few natural enemies, like the opossum and bat, sleep as much as 20 out of 24 hours. But the small roe deer, which has many predators, dozes only two-and-a-half hours a night.

Kentucky Fishing Report

Thunderstorms and cooler nights combined to bring about a much-needed break in the heat and humidity which has kept many anglers off the water in recent weeks. Scattered catches of catfish, black bass, walleye, rockfish, bluegill, rockfish/white bass hybrids, crappie and white bass were reported by anglers concentrating their efforts early in the morning, late in the afternoon or at night during the August 17-18 period covered by this report. The lake-by-lake rundown, as reported by conservation officers or creel clerks at each lake, is as follows:

KENTUCKY: Creel clerk Don Fortenberry reported moderate fishing activity with white bass caught by trolling light-colored, deep running crankbaits in 15-25 feet of water near Eggners Ferry Bridge (US-68). Crappie are being taken in 8-15 feet of water on minnows over ledges and dropoffs. Clear, falling slowly, 2 feet below summer pool and 81°.

BARKLEY: Light fishing activity was reported by creel clerk Norman Brantley. Bass were being taken on buzzbaits early and late over stumps and fallen trees. Catfish were being caught on cut bait and minnows in 10-30 feet of water over the old river channel. Clear, stable, 2½ feet below summer pool and 85°.

NOLIN: Light fishing activity was reported by officer Sammie Renfro. Bluegill were being taken on crickets and worms off deep rock banks, and walleye were being caught by trolling small, deep running crankbaits in the upper end of the lake. Bass were being caught at night by casting plastic worms over rocky points. Clear, rising slowly, ½ foot above summer pool and 85°.

ROUGH RIVER: Officer Harold Belt reported light fishing activity. Suspended crappie were being caught by drift fishing minnows in 12-20 feet of water, and bass were being taken on plastic worms at night off points. Clear, stable at summer pool and 84°.

TAYLORSVILLE: Creel clerk John Morgan reported light fishing activity. Bass were being taken on deep running crankbaits in 10-15 feet of water along the edges of submerged treelines. Bluegill were being caught on worms and crickets in 4-6 feet of water over brush and fish attractors. Clear, stable at summer pool and 84°.

HERRINGTON: Light fishing activity was reported by creel clerk Bill Pinkston. Bass were being caught on plastic worms at night off medium to deep banks. In the jumps, white bass and rockfish/white bass hybrids were being taken on plunker and fly combinations. Clear, falling slowly, 5 feet below summer pool and 84°.

CUMBERLAND: Light to moderate fishing activity was reported by officer Fred York. Kentucky bass were being taken on small crayfish off points on the main lake, and largemouths on plastic worms at night. Rockfish and walleye continue to be caught trolling deep running crankbaits and vertical jigging spoons off points in the main lake. Crappie were caught by drift fishing minnows in 25-30 feet of water in deep coves off the main lake. Bluegill were caught off rock walls in the afternoons on crickets and small grasshoppers 20-25 feet deep. In the tailwaters, trout were taken on cheese and salmon eggs. Clear, falling slowly, 16 feet below summer pool and 82°.

DALE HOLLOW: Officer Marvin Edwards reported moderate activity for bass at night on plastic worms fished over deep banks and weed beds. Catfish were being taken by trolling crankbaits across medium depth banks. Clear, stable, one foot below summer pool and 82°.

LAUREL: Officer Ken Mobley reported light to moderate fishing activity for rainbow trout at night in 25-30 feet deep on worms and cheese off steep rock walls. Bass were being taken at night off points on plastic worms. Clear, falling slowly, 7 feet below summer pool and 80°.

CAVE RUN: Creel clerk Tim Sloan and officer Mike Gilliam reported light to moderate fishing activity with bass being caught off points at night on plastic worms. Muskie were taken on deep running crankbaits trolled or cast in the heads of timbered coves. Clear, stable at summer pool and 81°.

BUCKHORN: Officer Bill Braswell reported light fishing activity for crappie on minnows at night. A few bass and muskie were being taken by trolling deep running crankbaits in the old river channel. Clear, rising slowly, at summer pool and 82°.

GRAYSON: Light fishing activity was reported by Kenny Scaggs. Bass were taken on deep running crankbaits and plastic worms over rocky points and mud banks. Crappie were caught 6-8 feet deep around stickups on minnows. Clear, stable at summer pool and 79°.

DEWEY: Officer Dalton Conley reported light fishing activity with crappie being caught on minnows in 10 feet of water over stickups and brush. Clear, stable at summer pool and 82°.

FISHTRAP: Light fishing activity was reported by officer Don Bevins. Bass were taken on plastic worms at night, and crappie on minnows in 15-20 feet of water. Clear, stable at summer pool and 82°.

There will be a pap clinic at the Floyd County Health Department Friday, August 30, from 8:30-11:30 a.m. and 1-2 p.m. This clinic is a free service of the Health Department and is open to women of all ages, but those women age 45 and over are especially urged to take advantage of this service.

Thank You

from the family of
Roger Dean Osborne

We, the family of Roger D. Osborne of Weeksbury, Ky., would like to express our deep appreciation and sincere thanks to all our friends who brought food, sent flowers, gave us their comforting words and a loving pat on the back for the courage to endure our sorrow; to the preachers for their communication with God on Roger's behalf and ours, and to the singers who sang so beautifully for him. A special thanks to the Wheelwright Freewill Baptist Church for opening its doors for our loved one's funeral.

May we always remember the good that Roger did for his family, his friends, his country. We will always cherish the memory of our beloved relative and dear friend Roger Dean Osborne, forever.

Hall Funeral Home

WHY HAVE I PUT OFF PRE-PLANNING MY FUNERAL?

The thought of one's own death is hard enough in itself! There is also the uneasiness of not knowing how to go about pre-planning your own funeral.

Perhaps reading some materials which present pre-plan facts and options would be helpful. We have specially prepared pamphlets you may take home and read at your convenience.

When you become acquainted with the facts, it will become apparent that three general stages of pre-planning are available:

1. Pre-Planning—discussion of the important items you want included in your funeral with the person most likely to have to handle the details.
2. Pre-Arranging—discussion of the details with the funeral director.
3. Pre-Financing—which would include a contract between you and our funeral home covering the extent and cost of the services you specify.

In these days of serious inflation, you might wish to consider our Inflation-Proof Pre-Plan option.

Teachers Hired For Reading, Math Help

Approximately 200 additional teachers will be employed in Kentucky this year as a result of the number of children needing remediation in both reading and math, Superintendent of Public Instruction Alice McDonald announced recently.

In the past, the number of teacher units allocated to local school districts depended on the number of students whose test scores in reading were substantially below mastery level for their class. Teacher aides were assigned for students whose scores showed a deficiency in math.

The new calculations show students deficient in both reading and math, so school districts will qualify for additional teacher units for transitional classrooms.

"These additional teachers will greatly improve remedial instruction throughout the state," McDonald said.

Estate Auction!
SAT., AUG. 24
AT 10:00 A.M.

LOCATED on Hwy. 460 and Greenbrier Road approximately 3½ miles south of Mt. Sterling, Ky. (between Mt. Sterling and Camargo).

We have been commissioned by the Heirs of Lonnie Amburgey to sell this choice 42-acre farm that has been subdivided into 8 mini-farms that are very suitable for home sites.

42-ACRE FARM
(Subdivided into 8 Mini-Farms)

TRACT I: 2.492 Acres fronting on Highway 460 with 240 ft. of road frontage.
TRACT II: 2.516 Acres cornering on Highway 460 and the Greenbrier Road with 240 ft. of road frontage.
TRACT III: 3.084 Acres
TRACT IV: 4.338 Acres
TRACT V: 6.334 Acres
TRACT VI: 6.046 Acres
TRACT VII: 7.783 Acres
TRACT VIII: 9.397 Acres

Tracts 3 thru 8 all front on the Greenbrier Road. Tracts 5-6-7 & 8 are watered by Greenbrier Creek. Tracts 2, 3 and 7 also have ponds for livestock water. City water is available for all tracts. TOTAL TOBACCO BASE 2015 LBS., TO BE DIVIDED BY A.S.C.S. DETERMINED ELIGIBILITY.

ALL TRACTS TO BE SOLD SEPARATE WITH RIGHT RESERVED TO GROUP ANY OR ALL TRACTS.

TERMS: 20% down day of sale, balance with deed within 30 days. Announcements day of sale take precedence over all printed matter.

Don't Let Bats Drive You Batty

Bats! They're kind of creepy, aren't they? Little, furry mouse-like animals that fly around at night trying to land in your hair and bite you. They're evil little creatures, right? Wrong!
 Let us tell you why bats are good to have around—bats eat insects. In Kentucky, that's all they eat, and one bat can eat up to 3,000 insects in one night! The 15 species of bats found in Kentucky help control insects, including many major crop pests, as well as insects that annoy people, like mosquitoes. As a result, they are one of the most beneficial of all wild animals.

The Big Brown Bat, one of Kentucky's largest bats with a wingspread of 12-15 inches, is the most common bat found in buildings. Other common bats in Kentucky include the Red Bat, which spends summer days roosting under leaves in the lower branches of large trees, and the Eastern Pipistrelle Bat, which hangs in the foliage near the tops of trees.

A bat will usually leave the roost at dusk, fly to a pond or other body of water for a drink, skimming the surface with its mouth open, and then catch insects for an hour or so. They are not blind, as some people think. Besides having good vision, they have an incredibly sophisticated "radar" system, called echolocation, that helps them find food in total darkness. Although bats may fly close to you in their search for insects, they do not try to fly into your hair and bite you! When its stomach is filled, it will retire to the roost with perhaps another feeding just before daylight.

Besides buildings and the foliage of trees, bats live in caves, behind window shutters and loose bark, in rock crevices, and various other nooks and crannies. They usually move to a more protected area to spend the winter. Most bats hibernate in caves where temperatures remain above freezing and the humidity is high. In the summer during heat waves, bats are often seen by people as they move from hot attics to cooler places, like the crevices at the base of a chimney or the spaces in walls where you might hear their squeaking. If there is an opening in the wall, like around a window sill, the bat may come out into the room. Be very careful—that bat may be scared and try to bite. Don't touch it with your bare hands. The best way to get it out of the room is to throw a jacket or other heavy-weight fabric over it (which it can't bite through), then carry the bundle outside and turn it loose. A very small percentage of bats do carry rabies, but even these rarely transmit the disease to other animals or to humans.

So now maybe you don't hate bats as much as you did, but you're going batty trying to get them out of your attic! The best way to get rid of bats in your house (or belfry!) is to wait until they leave for the winter, then seal all their entrance holes. Their entrance holes are often stained and easy to identify. Rat snakes, minks, raccoons, and even cats eat bats, but their main enemy is man. The increase in numbers of people who explore caves has reduced the numbers of some bat species by disturbing them while they are hibernating in winter, causing them to use up their stored fat and starve to death. Another factor that is thought to have reduced some species to near extinction is the use of chlorinated hydrocarbon pesticides. The Kentucky Nature Preserves Commission, a state agency, recognizes the value of bats and their important role in nature and is concerned about those species which have become rare. Three of these species are considered endangered by the federal government: the Gray Bat, the Indiana Bat, and Townsend's Big-eared Bat. Bat Cave, a nature preserve in Carter Caves State Park, is guarded by a people-proof gate in an effort to protect the thousands of hibernating Indiana Bats which use the area each winter.

So the next time you're sitting on your porch and you see a bat flying through the night air, appreciate it. Because that little critter is helping you in your never-ending battle against harmful insects.

Disruption, Not Danger, Threat of African Bees

The feared influx of the African honey bee is expected to reach the United States within the next three to four years, regardless of what officials do to combat it.

Efforts currently under way in California to isolate and destroy hives of the aggressive bees are simply efforts to forestall the inevitable arrival of what will be a significant inconvenience to beekeepers, but probably no more than a minor inconvenience to the general public.

Rudy Scheibner, Extension entomologist in the University of Kentucky's College of Agriculture, said the African bee, also called the killer bee, is more aggressive and harder to manage than the European bee common to apiaries in the U.S.

"African bees are absconders. When their hive is disturbed they'll pick up and move—lock, stock and barrel. So management of them will be difficult," he said.

Bees play an important part in agriculture. Every spring millions of acres of crops are pollinated by hives of European bees trucked into designated areas. If African bees were to supplant European bees in the U.S., the use of domesticated bees to pollinate crops would be made very much more difficult.

Scheibner said it is quite possible that in areas where European bees are in competition with African bees, the African bees will drive the European bees out.

"African bees steal from European bees. African bees claim a larger territory than European bees, and will defend it with less provocation and more diligence than European bees will defend their territory," Scheibner said.

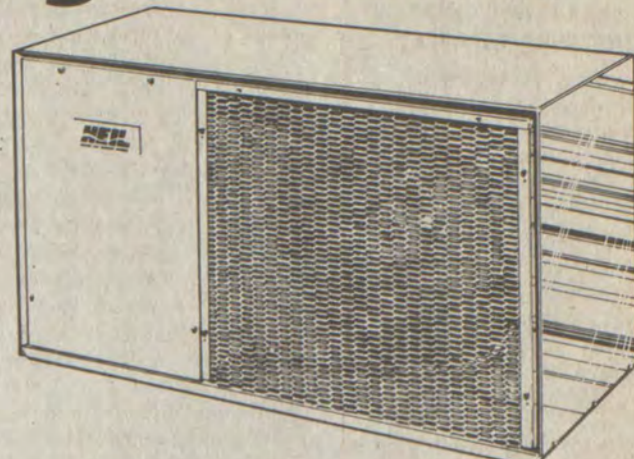

It's this aggressiveness that makes the presence of African bees so inconvenient. Beekeepers will no longer be able to have beehives in their backyards in residential areas.

"African bees claim an area up to 100 yards away from their hive. Unless you've got a mighty big backyard your (African) bees are going to consider part of your neighbor's yard as their territory. European bees, on the other hand, are often kept in residential areas and suburban neighborhoods without serious difficulties. You can sit on a hive of European bees and they won't attack you unless you're in their flight path," Scheibner said.

Kentucky may be spared some of the inevitable inconvenience by its temperate climate. Scheibner said the cooler average annual temperatures tend to lessen the malicious traits of the African bees.

"In the temperate regions of Argentina, African bees are kept in hives and managed by beekeepers. We'll just have to wait to see how they behave when they get here in the next few years," Scheibner said.

4-H VEGETABLE JUDGING

Eight Floyd County 4-H club members participated in the East Kentucky 4-H vegetable contest held last week at the University of Kentucky Quicksand Agricultural Experiment Station.

In the senior division, Richard Maggard was third in overall competition. He received the champion trophy in vegetable placing, second in seed I.D. and third in both insect control and vegetable I.D. He is a member of the Allen Central 4-H Club.

Second place in the junior division went to John Martin, Garrett 4-H member. He finished second overall. John also took second place ribbon in diseases, seed and vegetable I.D.

Other Floyd County 4-H members participating in the vegetable judging were: Robbie Mayton, Travis Martin, Jamie Martin, Ben Moore, Frank Martin and Jeff Moore. Both Richard Maggard and John Martin will judge at the State Contest at the Kentucky State Fair, August 24.

Accompanying the group were Thomas Martin and Benny Moore, parents and 4-H leaders, and Jack Friar, County Agent for 4-H.

The Kentucky Garden Journal

By Bonnie Lee Appleton
State Urban Garden & Home Horticulture Specialist
COOPERATIVE EXTENSION PROGRAM
KENTUCKY STATE UNIVERSITY

July and August are transition months in vegetable gardens across Kentucky. Beans, corn, squash and tomatoes are being cooked for dinner, preserved for winter eating and readied for county and state fairs. The chores of pick, can, freeze, water, weed and spray often cause us to shun the thought of planting more. But the last summer seedings should be made and the first fall seeding and transplantings started.

Does your garden seem too full for anything else? Look closely: do you still have lettuce that has bolted (flowered)? cabbage and broccoli plants whose produce has been harvested? beets and carrots that should have been pulled? Clear out spring and summer plants that have been harvested or that have stopped producing, and if the plants are disease and insect free, compost them. Work the soil again in the cleared areas and you're ready to plant again.

As you plan your new plantings, try to rotate your crops. Don't seed your final row of green beans where you've pulled out your earliest row that has stopped producing. When crops are replanted in the same area, insect and disease problems can build up. Common bean pests like bean beetles and viral mosaics will decrease yields so efforts should be made to keep them from passing from seeding to seeding.

Which summer or warm season crops can still be planted and have sufficient time to grow and be harvested before fall frosts? Green or snap beans, sweet corn (use varieties with shorter production time), dwarf or bush cucumbers and melons that produce more quickly than long vining varieties, okra and some squash. Unless you have good-sized tomato and pepper transplants available, it's probably too late to add anymore of these crops.

If you have enough summer produce, begin planting a round of cool season fall crops, many of which will repeat what you planted as cool season spring crops.

Again, rotation is important. Try not to put broccoli and cabbage transplants (it's too late to start them from seed) back in the same area. But do plant them if transplants are available—many people have far more success with cole crops in the fall than in the spring.

Other fall crops to start (direct seeded) include beets, carrots, various greens, kohlrabi, lettuce, radishes, spinach and turnips. Many of us also find we have success with a fall pea crop, especially the edible podded sugar snap peas.

One difficulty in seeding fall crops during July and August is caused by soil temperature. Seeds of these crops germinate better when soil temperatures are cool—in the 50's and 60's. Cover seedings with newspaper or burlap to shade the soil until seedlings emerge, or plant close in on the east or north side of a summer crop for shade. Even intercropping can help provide shade if space is available—i.e., put broccoli transplants between tomato or pepper plants. And above all, keep the soil evenly moist.

If summer crops get pulled and you don't want to replant, seed a cover crop for erosion control and green manure. Try winter wheat, annual rye, various clovers or even a seeding of peas to simply be tilled under come spring.

If you want a fall crops that will last well into the winter, start building a cold frame. A cold frame seeded with lettuce, spinach, carrots and radishes in August or September will yield a nice harvest for a Thanksgiving salad.

Timely Tip: Begin to re-evaluate your landscape. Are new trees and shrubs needed? Fall is a good planting time, so get out your measuring tape, pad and pencil, and make a scale drawing of your yard. Develop a planting plan to take to your nurseries and garden centers, or obtain professional design help.

New Forest Warden

Robert Lawson, of Harold, was appointed on Aug. 1 to the position of fulltime forest guard for the Kentucky Division of Forestry to serve Floyd county. Lawson succeeds Forest Ranger Willard Hamilton, who retired last April.

The forest guard has the power of arrest in any matter having to do with violation of forestry laws. Lawson is subject to call for assistance by any of the several fire departments he works with. The local forestry office is headed by Stephen R. Brackett, district forester. The Eastern district is headquartered in Prestonsburg.

Horses As Pets?

Kentucky is generally regarded by the rest of the nation as the home of fast horses and beautiful women.

It is also the home of the "pet horse," several hundred thousand of them, probably. Of these, probably a majority (there are no up-to-date statistics on this) are kept by their owners at home for pleasure purposes. Many of them may not be receiving the best care they could get for the dollars spent, largely because caring owners are not able to keep up with latest research data as the big breeding farms do by having their own veterinarians.

With the advent of the gasoline engine, many people believed the future of the horse was limited and many colleges and experiment stations discontinued equine research. Not foreseeing the explosive growth of the breeds of "light horses"—used for show purposes and trail riding, as well as racing—the "experts" got caught with a need for good research data on nutrition without the work having been done.

Only in recent years has the data begun to accumulate, with the result that better nutrition can be provided, resulting in better health.

Traditional feed for horses is hay and grain. A horse can survive on hay alone, but the volume needed is so much that it usually results in "hay belly," unacceptable for a show animal. As a rough rule of thumb, a horse needs about 1½ pounds of hay per 100 lbs. of body weight each day to maintain his condition. In addition, he needs about a pound, more or less, of grain per hour of work for light uses, such as showing or trail riding. Oats or corn may be used, but not in the same quantities. Corn provides about 1.7 times the energy, measured by volume, as oats.

Overfeeding is the most common error among light horses, and it can result in loss of stamina, liver disease and leg problems due to obesity.

Too much protein is sometimes a cause of foundering, while feeding moldy or "smoky" hay to horses can result in pulmonary emphysema ("heaves") and moldy grain can bring about mycotoxicosis.

The horse has a simple digestive system and an abrupt change in feed can bring about indigestion and colic. It also has a relatively high need for salt.

Sometimes feeding too much pelleted or grain, which the horse can eat quickly, results in boredom and the horse begins to "crib" out of frustration. "Cribbing" is biting or chewing on the end of a board while at the same time arching the neck and swallowing air. This, too, causes indigestion and colic.

Horses are usually dependent on the whim of the owner for housing, and an open shed or windbreak is usually adequate if the animal is left outdoors. Show animals whose coats are kept short should be kept in a barn, sometimes covered by blankets, in winter.

Concrete floors are not good for the feet.

Regular worming and vaccinations are advisable. Worming will reduce the cost of feeding because the energy is utilized more efficiently once the parasites aren't eating there, too. Vaccinations and regular check-ups can be figured into the budget and will prevent most diseases to which the horse is susceptible.

Your veterinarian is expert on the nutritional needs of the horse, as well as on the diseases to which he could become victim.

He'd rather help you prevent an emergency than try to treat your animal after it has become ill. Cost of preventive care isn't really as expensive as might be thought. For example, most authorities agree that $1 spent on worming and parasite control means a savings of at least $5 on feed.

The granules that form in a jar of honey will reliquify if the jar is placed in a pan of warm water.
